Wilkins Freed On Charge Of Slaying In Wichita Falls Hotel

JURY CLEARS DEFENDANT IN HORN SLAYING

Verdict of Acquittal Is Reached After One Day of Testimony

WILKINS TESTIFIES

Threat With Knife Is Told By Accused Youth On Stand

Joe Wilkins was found not guilty of murder in the fatal shooting of Everett Horn at the Maryland hotel here on the afternoon of June 12 by a jury in the 78th district court Friday night. The decision was reached on the first ballot after the jurors had deliberated for 50 minutes, according to Oscar Kemp, foreman. The jury reported to Judge W. W. Cook at 7:30 o'clock Friday night.

But a single day was required in the hearing of testimony and arguments of attorneys in the trial of the case, which went to the jury at 6:15 o'clock. Hearing of witnesses was begun at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning after most of Thursday had been used in selection of a jury.

Wilkins on Stand

Attorneys for the defense attempted to show during the course of the trial that Wilkins shot Horn in self-defense. The only direct testimony to this effect was that offered by Wilkins Friday afternoon. He testified that he had been threatened by Horn.

On the day of the shooting, Wilkins said, he had been sitting in an automobile across the street from the Maryland hotel when Horn said, "There is the ——— whose head I am going to cut off." Wilkins further testified that he started running and went up into the Maryland hotel, pursued by Horn. At a vestibule on the stair landing, Wilkins said, Horn slashed at him with a knife, cutting his wrist and causing it to bleed.

He then shook free, Wilkins continued his testimony, and ran into a room of the hotel, pursued by Horn. He shot Horn through a screen door as the man attempted to follow him into the room, Wilkins said.

Chief of Police Frank Burns, to whom Wilkins surrendered following the shooting, had previously testified that when he started for the Maryland hotel the day of the shooting he met Wilkins, who said to him.

"I guess I'm the man you are looking for, chief. I just killed a ———over at the Maryland hotel."

Following Wilkins' testimony Chief Burns, recalled to the stand,

Barometric Pressure at Houston Bolsters Buff Spirits

Bisons Say Spudder Wallops Can't Go So Far in Bayou Climate

HOUSTON, Sept. 14. (AP)—At a stalemate with Wichita Falls in the Texas league championship playoff, the Houston Buffs today watched it rain at the hour they had intended taking a workout preparatory to the resumption of the series tomorrow.

A bit downcast over their 10-4 loss to the Spudders yesterday, the Buffs were visibly cheered over the thought that they will be on the home field tomorrow.

Among other things, they discussed their belief that Spudder bats will not crack out as many homers or doubles as they did in Wichita Falls. They spoke of barometric pressure, and quoted Weather Forecaster Daingerfield.

A ball hit here with force to travel 300 feet would go 310 feet in the Spudder camp, they said, since the barometric pressure of 30 inches here is one-thirtieth less than in Wichita Falls thus, a hit ball in Wichita Falls has one-thirtieth more momentum and will travel one thirtieth farther than the same ball here.

Their work today was limited to "skull practice."

Snyder was reticent about his pitching choice for tomorrow, although Barnes or Penner were considered probable selections. The Buff skipper is saving Hallahan, who beat the Spudders in the first fray, for Sunday's encounter.

President Ankenman of the Bisons said today's rain would not stop play tomorrow. Portions of the infield were kept dry by canvas during the three hour and a half rain.

Tied at one-all, the Spudders left last night for Houston to resume today the playoff with the Houston Buffaloes for the championship of the Texas league. Accompanied by more than 150 fans and cheered on their departure by numerous enthusiasts unable to make the trip, Jim Galloway and his men left to end the series and confident that the end will be within two more games, in their favor.

Players and fans left on a special train via the Denver and Katy roads at 8 o'clock and will arrive at Houston at 8:30 this morning. The return trip will be started in the evening after the decisive game, arriving here about 8 o'clock the following morning.

Speculation of fandom yesterday turned to the pitching selections of the rival managers. With no definite word on the probable hill starters, more than one possible selection looms for both clubs.

Cvengros Likely

It is believed that Mike Cvengros, the only Spudder lefthander, will be Galloway's choice. But there is a possibility that George Payne, Milt Steengrafe or Joe Kiefer, all of whom worked the opener Wednesday in which the Spuds were beaten 7 to 4, will toil today.

Four of his chuckers batted hard in Thursday's game, won by the Spuders, 10 to 4. Skipper Pancho Snyder of the Buffs is confronted

ASTOR RICHES ARE CONTESTED

Suit Against Heirs Seek $39,000,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (US)—Formal argument was directed by Federal Judge Thatcher today in the $39,000,000 suit against the heirs of John Jacob Astor, founder of that noted family's enormous fortune.

The three nominal plaintiffs in the case are said to represent some 900 kin of John Nicholas Emerick, who is alleged to have formed a partnership with Astor in the year 1787. Emerick was a furrier, merchant and business associate of Stephen Girard.

Edna Carnahan, of Eau Claire, Wis., one of the plaintiffs, says she was rummaging in an old leather chest in an attic. She came upon a small antique box. In it, she avers, she found a paper, yellowed with age. It purported to be a trust agreement, whereby Astor was to hold Emerick's property in trust for 90 years. At the end of that time, she avers, the property was to be divided among the descendants of Emerick's two brothers, Christopher and Valentine.

It was charged in the suit that the trust agreement had been concealed, and never carried out by the Astor heirs. Counsel for the Astors have moved to dismiss the suit. They contend that the claim has been outlawed by the statute of limitations. They also allege there is no indication John Jacob Astor ever was aware of the existence of the trust paper. They also argued that Emerick died a bachelor and therefore that the claimants cannot be said to be his "descendants."

War Clubs Soaked With Barometric Pressure

The Spudders left their bats in the open air all day yesterday on the theory that they might absorb some of the local barometric pressure, which the Houston Buffs are quoted as saying accounted for the defeat handed the South Texas club here Thursday.

No official government weather forecaster being stationed here, Manager Jim Galloway had not decided as to his lineup, preferring to wait until he had conferred with Forecaster Daingerfield at Houston.

Although conceding Manager Pancho Snyder's club a slight mathematical advantage in climatic phenomena, Galloway and his men were particularly impressed with the number of base hits, both short and long, with which they were credited in Thursday's game.

After a conference with a local college professor, Bad News called his charges together for a bit of skull practice and revealed to them the one and only way to hurdle the barometric barrier.

"Boys, after careful study, we have decided that there is one, and only one way to get a hit in the Houston park. You can do it if you will hit 'em where they ain't," the elongated manager declared as he spat a cupful of tobacco juice which traveled six and one-fifth feet due to the higher barometric pressure at Spudder park.

Pete Lapan, Spudder catcher, who was particularly adapted to local barometric conditions, would have been left at home if the Spudders had another regular receiver, Manager Galloway said, adding that Lapan would be worse than useless at Houston.

"Lapan probably will not be able to hit one past the pitcher down there," Galloway said.

DECISION IN SCURRY APPEAL WITHIN WEEK

Ouster Appeal Submitted To Fort Worth Court By Lawyers

WARM ARGUMENTS

Claims of Opposing Counsel Lend Zest to Hearings

FORT WORTH, Sept. 14. (INS)—An opinion on the appeal of Edgar Scurry, chairman of the Wichita county executive committee, from an injunction order issued by Judge P. A. Martin of the 30th district court at Wichita Falls, restraining the Wichita county executive committee from ousting J. W. Nicholson from the committee, will be handed down within the next few days, it was indicated after the appeal had been submitted today.

Nicholson was ousted because of his refusal to support the Democratic national ticket. The appeal was submitted late today after several hours of arguments by attorneys.

Counsel for Nicholson were requested to file briefs with the court. Attorneys for Scurry have already written briefs.

Exhaustive Argument

The case was submitted following an exhaustive argument by J. W. Townsend, representing Nicholson, and a brief closing argument by William Bonner.

Arguments by E. W. Fischer and C. C. McDonald, counsel for Scurry, and Alton B. Grant, representing Nicholson, were heard before the court recessed at noon.

The arguments were heard by Truman H. Conner, chief justice, and Irby Dunklin and R. R. Buck, associate justices.

Case Is Watched

Believed to have a bearing on the future of party discipline, the outcome of the case is being closely watched throughout the state.

In the beginning, his address, Senator Townsend declared that "it is time to get back to the law in our party law affairs." He said that the Wichita county executive committee exceeded its authority in "demanding that its members pledge themselves to Al Smith.

"I have been working for the Democratic party for 25 years and I resent having to be told that I must pledge fealty to the party I have served."

Townsend declared that if every county was permitted to make its own test of Democracy there would be as many kinds of Democracy as there are counties. He quoted the statute defining the duties of executive committee and declared that such duties related only to state primaries and "not to national offices."

Questions Authority

"An executive committee can fill a vacancy but it cannot create one," Townsend told the court. "What authority have you in law to throw off members of an executive committee? Where is the authority that gives an executive committee the right to accuse, to try, and to condemn?"

Throughout his plea to the court Townsend urged that the law be the sole guide and declared that there was no lawful authority for a county committee to impose a test and therefore its expulsion of Nicholson was illegal.

In the course of his remarks

Devastation of Hurricane General Over Porto Rico, Navy Report Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. (AP)—The navy department tonight received a radio message from San Juan, Porto Rico, via its naval radio station at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, which described the island's capital with 80 per cent of its houses unroofed and "devastation everywhere."

The message was the first direct word from Porto Rico that the navy has received.

The communication declared the wind storm was of "extraordinary violence" and lasted from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. yesterday centering upon San Juan.

The message gave no details of the destruction except in regard to damage to electric light, power, telephone service and "all communications" which all were badly disrupted."

"The power company estimated five days without power," it said.

FAMINE AND DISEASE THREATENS ISLAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—Borne on a hurricane's back, desolation and death rode across the sunny palm-decked islands of the Caribbean today, and it was feared that when the dust and debris of the storm's fury settled famine and disease would be found in its wake.

The seriousness of the situation was emphasized when the American Red Cross dispatched its national director of disaster relief to Porto Rico, which bore the first brunt of the lashing storm and suffered untold damage and loss of life. Shortly afterward the navy made ready to send several of its ships should a request for help come through.

Across Porto Rico the storm swept, leveling all in its path, upward along the northeast coast of Santo Domingo, and on in the general direction of the Bahamas and the southeastern coast of the United States.

Around noon today there seemed a tendency toward a curve eastward, the previous storm center direction of west northwest being variously reported to have altered to northwest and north northwest This seemed to promise immunity to Cuba and possibly even the Bahamas and Florida, but storm warnings were kept up and nothing was taken for granted.

MURRAY FREED AT PLAINVIEW

Police Chief Acquitted of Slaying Charge

Special to The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Sept. 14.—H. H. Murray, chief of police of Plainview, was acquitted today in district court of the charge of the murder of O. J. Thompson who was mortally wounded in an altercation early in June of this year.

The jury was out only ten minutes after receiving the charge from Judge Charles Clements and hearing the argument of attorneys. The trial lasted for three days, and a special venire of 100 men was called from which the jury was selected.

The case attracted considerable interest because of the prominence of Murray as a peace officer in this section.

Thompson received the wounds which resulted in his death when he attempted to run away from Murray who was questioning him about some of his actions on June 9 of this year. In the attempt to get away Murray was thrown from Thompson's car and severely shaken up himself. As he was thrown from the car he fired after Thompson was ordered to stop the car. Thompson was a farmer of Swisher county.

Cooperation of Large and Small Oil Producers Necessary, Teagle Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—Leaders of the world petroleum industry have come to a realization that the future prosperity of the industry depends on the voluntary cooperation of large and small producers to prevent overproduction, Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, said on his return today from a conference of oil heads in Scotland.

Mr. Teagle conferred with Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Royal Dutch Shell interests, and Sir John Cadman, of the Anglo-Persian Oil company. These executives, Teagle explained, disclosed they already have restricted production in their fields, and one tangible result of the conference, it appeared, would be limitation of production in Venezuela, where fields practically are controlled by the Royal and Standard of New Jersey interests.

While Teagle said he was pleased with the outlook for the oil industry generally, he did not predict that better crude prices would prevail in the near future.

STORM WRECKS LARGE PART OF ROCKFORD, ILL.

Frantic Rescue Efforts Made to Save 100 Buried in Debris

SCORES ARE INJURED

Officials Expect Toll of Dead to Mount as Check Goes on

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 14. (US) A cyclone that tore through the southern manufacturing and residential section of the city today took toll of half a hundred lives, according to estimates at midnight tonight.

Here are best estimates:
Killed, 50 to 75.
Injured, 300.
Property loss, $1,000,000.
Residences wrecked, 300.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 14. (AP)—Coroner Fred C. Olson, estimated tonight between 50 and 100 men were buried in the wreck of the Rockford Cabinet company factory, demolished by a tornado late today.

Searchers reported 20 to 25 men were dead in the debris, but efforts to remove the bodies were balked by the dark and confusion. Only seven bodies had been collected and identified six hours after the storm struck, while 125 were reported injured in hospitals.

First reports said most of the 100 buried in the factory were killed or severely hurt, but police estimated 50 had succeeded in crawling from the building.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 14. (AP)—Thirty persons were killed late today when a violent tornado struck the southern portion of Rockford.

The storm tore down houses and factories and buried 100 men in the ruins of a chair factory of the Rockford Cabinet factory and scores of policemen, firemen, and citizens worked frantically for hours to remove the dead and injured from the debris.

After a three hour check, police announced 30 persons were known to be dead, although they had gone through only part of the wreckage.

Panic Prevented

In one instance, the occupants of a factory were held indoors after the roof had collapsed, during the height of the storm, and this probably saved many from being hit by flying timber. John Lange, of Chicago, blocked the door of the Union Furniture company plant and prevented a panic among the employes who tried to dash into the street.

Two youths were killed when struck by a roof blown from a house. They are: Bernard Cornmesser, 14, Everett Cornmesser, 16, they are not brothers.

More than a score were taken to hospitals.

Volunteers, police and firemen strove to clear away wreckage of brick foundations in an attempt to rescue more than 100 workmen who either were dying, entombed or injured in the factory of the Rockford Cabinet company.

200 Houses Down

More than 200 houses and small buildings were reported torn down. Telegraph and telephone wires were levelled and streets so littered with debris that passage virtually was impossible in places.

Another frame house was telescoped, burying Mrs. Clara Deschepper, 35, and two daughters.

Mrs. Deschepper, her leg severely cut, was taken to a hospital and one of the daughters was found uninjured. The other unaccounted for.

The wind twisted the shattered walls of the cabinet factory in an almost impenetrable mass over the wreckage of the brick foundation and made rescue work slow and difficult. The four story frame building contained 150 men when the storm struck.

Three Escape

Three men on the third floor are known to have escaped. They were hurled to the basement as the building crashed. They crawled from the ruins covered with varnish and shellac which had poured over them as they fell.

It was thought that probably 80 in all crawled from the debris, many without serious injuries. But the police said it would take many hours to check up on the men entrapped.

THURSDAY STORM TAKES 10 LIVES

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Sept. 14. (UP)—Re-establishment of communication with the tornado-stricken district of Nebraska and South Dakota tonight brought the encouraging news that the death list in the storms late Wednesday had been reduced to 10.

Earlier reports had stated that 13 persons lost their lives in the twisters that swept through three states, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota.

WEAKNESS SPELLS LASTED FOR WEEKS

So Weak, Without Enough Energy to Dress Herself, This Lady Improved Rapidly After Taking Cardui

Baldock, S. C.—"I was so weak," says Mrs. Josephine Cockcroft, of this place, "that I was not able to do anything. I would lie on the bed, days at a time, without energy enough to dress myself. Some days I would think I was able to do a little of my housework, but in a little while I would give out completely.

"At certain times, I suffered dreadfully with pains in my back and sides. My head would hurt—felt like it would split open.

"Spells of weakness would last for weeks.

"I read of Cardui. Other women wrote of how it had helped them, so I hoped it would do me some good. I sent for a bottle and began taking it regularly.

"At last I began to feel much better. Then I improved rapidly. For the last year I have been in better health than I ever have been before, and I have hardly taken any medicine at all.

"I give the credit to Cardui, for after I had given it a thorough trial, I got well."

Cardui is a mild, medicinal compound of purely vegetable ingredients.

Newly Formed Constitutional Body Will Try to Unite Hoover Forces

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 14.(UP) The first national Democratic organization, having for its purpose the defeat of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, regular presidential candidate, has been formed here.

The organization, self-styled the "national constitutional Democratic committee" will attempt to co-ordinate the activities of the anti-Smith and Hoover-Democrat clubs in 20 or more states. Seventeen states were claimed to be represented at a meeting which closed here last night.

National headquarters will be formed at Springfield, Mo., with M. D. Lightfoot, chairman of the committee, in charge. Regional headquarters will be formed in three other cities and state headquarters in other states, under plans announced at the meeting here.

The organization has for its declared purpose "the teaching of Democrats how to vote for Herbert Hoover for president, and at the same time support their Democratic state, county and local tickets."

The new organization would have no connection with the national Republican committee other than cooperate "where it serves our best interests," Lightfoot said.

Weird Murder With Poison Gas Gun Believed Fate of Baltimore Youth

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 14. (INS)—A murder as weird as if taken from a thrilling best seller detective yarn, a murder in which a queer poison gas machine gun is believed to have been the lethal weapon, was charged today to a man and woman held in the city prison for Seattle authorities.

Snared on a downtown street when two Oakland traffic policemen recognized the car in which they were riding as reported stolen in Seattle, D. E. Mayer, 40, four times a convict, and Mrs. Mary Smith, who says she is Mayer's mother, were taken to the jail. There evidence was found which police declared would solve the mysterious disappearance from Seattle of James Eugene Bassett, scion of a prominent Baltimore, Md., family, four days before he was to have sailed for the Philippine islands.

Body Still Missing

Although Bassett's body has not been found, Mayer was driving Bassett's automobile when arrested and was in possession of a watch presented to Bassett by a boys' school in Maryland as a tennis trophy.

In the car was found a poison gas machine gun, believed to have been manufactured in Germany and sold to Mayer by the Pacific Arms corporation of San Francisco. More than 100 lethal cartridges, packed 10 each in small cartons also were found.

Five of the cartridges, containing a deadly and unknown gas, are missing, detectives reported. The middle chamber of the gun, which has three cylinders, all steel lined, showed evidence of having been fired recently.

It was smoke stained.

Gun Is Fired

Mayer admitted that the gun was fired by his asserted "mother" somewhere in the north. He did not see her fire it, he said, but she told him that she had done so.

Among Mayer's possessions, was found an orderly arranged scrapbook. It contained newspaper clippings, detective magazine stories and magazine articles concerning the latest crimes and murder mysteries.

Bassett, son of the president of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce, left the home of his brother-in-law, Commander Theodore H. Winters of the Bremerton, Wash., navy yard, to attempt to sell his automobile to a man named "Clark" in Seattle. That was the last seen of him.

Mayer declared that he had taken Bassett to a Seattle physician after he complained of being ill. That was the last he ever saw of him, Mayer asserted.

Mayer admitted serving time in penal institutions in Utah, Colorado, Washington and Kansas. He said after he was recently released from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., he went to Helper, Utah, where he located a cache of $2000 which he had formerly buried there.

MILK SUPPLY DROPS HERE

Kraft Plant and Dairies Running Short

Cows have fallen down on the job so badly lately in the immediate district around Wichita Falls that the Kraft Cheese company plant is able to fill only 10 per cent of its orders for cheese and practically all dairies are short in their milk supply.

C. L. Teissler of the Kraft plant attended a meeting of farmers and dairymen at Bowie Friday and discussed the situation with them.

Before leaving Wichita Falls, Mr. Teissler said that the present supply of milk, and consequently the present output of cheese at his plant, is so low that it would be possible to sell 100 times more cheese than is now being sold out of this plant if the milk supply was available.

A good part of the decreased production is believed by Mr. Teissler to be due to flies bothering the cows, to the heat, which which affects animals in the same manner as it affects human beings in so far as it tends to make them eat little food, and to other allied causes.

Stop Headache With Capudine

Those who suffer from frequent headaches can find quick and delightful relief by using Capudine. It is also most effective for other nerve pains, such as rheumatic, neuralgia and periodic pains.

Being liquid Capudine acts almost instantly—much quicker than tablets and powders. It relieves pain by soothing the nerves, not by deadening them, therefore is perfectly safe. At drug stores—30c and 60c sizes.—Adv.

After shopping on a hot day

a cooling dish of Kellogg's CORN FLAKES is very refreshing

The men-folks, busy every day in office, store, work shop or mill, may think their wives have an easy time of it. But they can scarcely know the tiresomeness of shopping on a hot afternoon—dragging from store to store, trying to match materials, looking for the best values, in clothing and food.

"Fatigued" is no name for it—you're half-dead, it seems! How refreshing, after such a trial of strength and patience; is a cooling dish of light, airy, yet nourishing, Kellogg's Corn Flakes, when you reach home! It gives you renewed strength and courage. Soon you forget that tired feeling and put real interest into getting the evening meal.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes is a favorite with all members of the family—at meals and between meals. Serve with rich milk or cream and fruits or honey.

Man In 30's Least Likely To Make Mistake In Selecting His Mate

Why Dorothy Dix Thinks the Bachelor of 32 Makes "Best of All Possible Husbands"; What to Do With a Philandering Husband —Shall This Girl Marry a Divorced Man Hating His Children?

Dear Dorothy Dix—Should a man past the age of 32, who has never been married and perhaps has passed the age of romantic love thrills, get married if he has found a girl who measures up to his ideal and in every way seems qualified as a life companion? GEORGE R.

Answer: He certainly should. I think that in the early 30s is the ideal time for a man to marry, and the psychological moment in which he is least likely to make a mistake in picking out his life mate.

At that age a man has reached his full maturity. He has got his growth in mind as well as body. His tastes and ideals are formed. He knows what he wants in a wife and he has seen enough women to be able to judge between them and distinguish between dross and pure gold. The man who marries at 32 is not often fooled in a woman. He is not taken in by a pretty face that has no brains nor character behind it. Nor does he fall for cunning tricks that mask the artifices of the gold-digger. Like Mr. Kipling's hero, he has met many ladies and from every one has learned something about women. And so when he comes to pick out a wife he brings the expert knowledge of the connoisseur to her selection.

Also the man who marries in his 30s is pretty sure to stay married. He seldom tires of his wife and is rarely a philanderer, because for one thing his tastes do not change, and for another he is ready to settle down when he marries. He has had his fling, and a home looks better to him than cabarets and jazz parties.

But why do you think that a man of 30 is past the age of romantic thrills? On the contrary, he has just come to it. No hobbledehoy schoolboy is capable of experiencing the grand passion. It takes a strong man to love wholly and completely, with a love that takes in body and soul and that survives life and death. Compared to that, a boy's love is "as moonlight unto sunlight, or as water unto wine."

A boy's love is a passing fancy awakened by any pretty face, transferred to the next pretty face. The girl a boy is crazy about today he will forget tomorrow. The girl he feels he cannot live without one week, he cannot live with the next week, and that is what makes early marriages so tragic. The boy's love doesn't last. It is something born of the impulse of the moment, without stamina; nothing but moonshine and illusion and the mating instinct of youth, and when that is ended all is ended.

But the man's love is made of sterner stuff. It is woven of his heart strings and is part and parcel of his very being, and when he loves a woman it is with a depth and passion and a completeness of which no boy even dreams.

Perhaps the man of 30 doesn't palpitate at the flutter of every skirt as does the boy of 20. Perhaps he sees no woman as a goddess, as the boy does. Perhaps he doesn't threaten to commit suicide, or think that he will pine away and die if he doesn't get the woman he wants, as the boy does. Life has taught him to be discriminating. Life has taught him not to expect the impossible. Life has taught him self-control and given him the courage to carry on, no matter what happens. But when he loves a woman, he loves her for keeps, faults and all, and he makes her the best of all possible husbands. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What do you think of my husband stepping out with a friend of mine? He wants me to make a date for him with her. I had a good time before I was married, but then he didn't go out with the girls. Now he thinks he would like to. I want him to have a good time and enjoy himself, but I don't want him to go too far. He says he loves me dearly and I love him. He is a good husband and we have two darling little girls, but he hardly ever takes me out. Who should he spend his money on, girls or his wife? —ANXIOUS WIFE.

Answer: I should say he should spend his money on his wife, and that if he would step out with you a little more he wouldn't feel the need of any other diversion.

A wife who has a husband who craves amusement outside of the home circle and who is beginning to cast longing eyes at other women has a delicate and difficult problem to solve, because there is danger on every side of her. If she

Ramblin'

with Marie Theresa

WITH the Woman's Forum making advances that might mean activities will be resumed within a few weeks, or maybe days, and the neighborhood filling up with the usual inhabitants, and the weather slightly more soothing, it wouldn't do to complain too much about the heat. Of course summer won't last all winter.

The Majestic will soon haul out the rope so useful in keeping them in line during "Majestic nights," and vaudeville programs will begin at that theater, Oct. 4. Not even prevailing hot weather could keep the crowd down to rational proportions on those evenings. We who labor without much regard to time of day or hour of the night used to take in the first such show, but we started others to doing the same and now all performances are crowded about evenly.

But that is getting ahead of the season.

THESE last remaining hot days wouldn't seem so hot if one did not have to look at these people who are afraid to appear in summer clothes after Sept. 1. We've seen several of them today, and it is still a more or less pitiful sight. What do you think of a fellow who would appear on the streets wearing a fall hat and a linen suit, anyway?

THE average human being still feels safer on the earth than in the air, despite the many comments heard to the effect that a well piloted plane in good condition is safer than an auto. People just naturally like the earth, that's all, they are so used to it.

Today a member of the staff was offered an airy ride to Houston. He refused saying he had no object in getting to Houston, but promised he would find the pilot a passenger. To do him justice, he tried over a period of two hours to find a passenger for that plane. But each man interviewed, it seems, had a family, and each young lady approached had an "engagement for the evening," or a job that needed holding down, etc., far into the time allotted for finding the passenger. The fact that a man cannot fall faster than 118 miles an hour might have been used in arguing the question.

TWIN boys in New York have been named Alfred and Herbert, which fact doesn't prove anything. Press comment might be correct in saying that the family is taking no chances on election, but again, it might be a case of differing politics in the family.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—One by one the structures that have played big parts in the early history of downtown New York are being placed in the hands of wrecking companies which seem to keep as busy as those engaged in construction work.

Now the "old brown stone building" in City Hall park is doomed to fall, and ere it does a few reminiscences of men who made legal history within its walls should be set down.

Its place in the story of old New York is particularly associated with the housing of the most ancient criminal court in the land—the court of general sessions of the peace in and for the county of New York.

The history of this court goes back to the time when New York was occupied by the British. Under the administration of Gov. Dongan, earl of Limerick, the foundations of New York's judicial system were laid. Under the famous Dongan charter freeholders were granted the right of suffrage, taxes were no longer levied except by consent of the assembly, and trial by jury was guaranteed to all accused of crime. Records of the court still carefully preserved are dated as early as 1663.

How grim are these entries, still readable:

On February 2, 1696, Elizabeth Moore and Mary Vincent, charged with stealing remnants of serge valued at 10 pence, were sentenced to be "carried to the public whipping post, stripped from the waist upward and receive on their naked backs 21 lashes each with birch rods and remain in custody till they pay their fees."

On April 11, 1712, Clause, a negro slave of Allano Jarratt, was found guilty of murder and sentenced to be broken upon the wheel and so continue languishing until he be dead and his head and quarters be at the queen's disposal.

A negro named Robin, convicted of murder, was condemned to be hung up in chains and so continue without any sustenance until he be dead.

Another entry refers to Tom, a negro slave of Nicholas Rosevelt. "The defendant, Tom, having nothing further to say why judgment of death should not pass against him according to the verdict, it is considered by the court that he be carried from hence to the place from whence he came and from thence to the place of execution and there to be burned with a slow fire that he may continue in torment for eight or 10 hours and continue burning in the said fire until he be dead and consumed to ashes."

Beginning in 1841 and until 1894 the sessions of this venerable court were held in the brownstone building. During all those years prisoners to be tried for felonies were paraded, handcuffed, through the streets from the Tombs or carried in the wagon then known as the Black Maria. This distance between the prison and the court suggested the desirability of building the new criminal courts structure immediately adjoining the city prison and the erection of the now celebrated Bridge of Sighs.

Church Windows; 1928

THE Third Unitarian church of Chicago is putting in a new kind of stained glass window. Instead of the traditional Biblical scenes, its windows will depict modern science, industry, justice and the arts.

The church would seem to have more or less authority for this rather surprising step; a great Episcopal cathedral is to have a "sports bay," with such pastimes as professional baseball, golf, tennis and the like fittingly glorified.

Doubtless this is quite all right. But it reminds us, somehow, of the story that was current a year or so ago. In this story one man, meeting another, suggested that they go to church. The second man agreed, and asked where they should go. To which the first replied: "Oh, let's go to one of those quaint, old-fashioned places where they still read the Bible."

The Voice of Bryan

(Jackson, Miss., Daily News)

THIS is William Jennings Bryan speaking. It is in Madison Square garden in 1924, with the "religion" plank of the platform under debate—his "last word" to a convention of his party. Mr. Bryan said:

In this country it is not necessary to protect any church. I have such confidence in the Catholic church, which was for 1500 years my mother church as well as yours, that I deny it needs political aid. It was the Catholic church that took our religion from its founders and preserved it—it was the only custodian—for over 15 centuries. When it did this for Catholics it did it for me and every Protestant. The Catholic church, with its legacy of martyr's blood and with the testimony of its long line of missionaries who went into every land, does not need a great party to protect it from a million Klansmen.

The Jews do not need this resolution. They have Elijah, and they have also Elisha, who drew back the curtain and revealed upon the mountain tops an invisible host greater than a thousand Ku Klux Klans. The Catholic church and the House of Israel have their great characters today who plead for respect for them whose pleading is not in vain.

I am not willing to bring discord into my party. The Democrat party is united on all the economic issues. We have never been so united since I have known politics, and nobody has had more reason than I to regret past discord. Now, when we are united and face our political foes with dauntless courage and with enthusiasm never excelled, these people tell us that we must turn aside from this titanic task, divide our party on a religious issue and cease to be a great political force.

The Democratic party has never taken the side of one church against the other; the Democratic party must remain true to its tradition; it cannot surrender its rights to exist; it cannot be false to the mission that it had in the days of Jefferson, to which it remained true in the days of Jackson and to which it was still loyal in the days of Woodrow Wilson.

My last objection is that I am not willing to divide the Christian church, because if it is destroyed there is nothing to take its place. We must stand together to fight our battles of religion against materialism.

There is only one who can bring peace to the world, and that is the Prince of Peace—the One at Whose coming the angels sang, "On earth peace, good will toward men."

Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant stand for God, on whom all religion rests, and Protestant and Catholic stand for the Christ. Is it possible that now, when Jesus—the hope of the world—is more needed than ever before—is it possible that at this time, in this great land, we are to have religious warfare? Are you willing to start a blaze that may cost innumerable lives, sacrificed on the altar of religious prejudice? I cannot believe it; God forbid; I call you back in the name of our party, I call you back in the name of the Son of God and Saviour of the world. Christians, stop fighting; let us get together and save the world from materialism that robs life of its spiritual values. Banish the "Hymns of Hate"; our song must be "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love."

We print this portion of Mr. Bryan's notable speech on that memorable occasion, solely for the reason that many of those Democrats who are now opposing the Democratic nominee for president are citing Mr. Bryan as the inspiration of their opposition, invoking his memory as counsel and guide in bolting the ticket.

Never was there a more eloquent and fervent denunciation of religious prejudice in politics than that which William Jennings Bryan delivered in Madison Square garden. Never was there uttered a more impressive warning than was conveyed in his words on that occasion: "Divide our party on a religious issue and cease to be a great political force." And it applies with greater significance and meaning in 1928 than it did in 1924.

We commend to these misguided Democrats who profess adherence to the principles of the dead Democratic leader and who now summon his spirit to sustain their mistaken course, a reading of Mr. Bryan's declaration, as above quoted. Those who have not read it need the enlightenment it conveys; those who have need to be reminded of its undeniable truth.

PARTY POLITICS JUMBLED

This unprecedented election campaign reveals a bewildering variety of both Republicans and Democrats. It seems that there are "thick-and-thin Republicans, dry Tammany Republicans, dry ex-Democratic Republicans, wet Republicans, wet anti-Republicans, independent Republicans, and Ku Klux Republicans who are secretly circulating religious anti-Smith propaganda." On the other hand, there are "thick-and-thin Democrats, wet Republican-Democrats, dry Smith Democrats, dry anti-Smith Democrats, independent Democrats, anti-18th amendment Democrats, anti-Volstead Democrats, and mild modification Democrats."

SPEED LAWS MAY BE DISCUSSED

It is probable that the question of revising state laws governing motor speed on the highways will be undertaken by the next legislature. One representative has announced that he will introduce a bill to raise the limit from 35 miles an hour to 45 miles an hour.

With the improvement of roads and automobiles the demand for greater speed has grown. The state speed limit is seldom observed on the open highway where driving conditions permit.

In some states the legal speed limit varies with the condition of the road. Signs inform the driver that he is approaching the beginning of the 25-mile, 35-mile or 45-mile limit, as the case may be. This plan seems to offer greater possibilities of observance and safety than a fixed speed of 35 or 45 miles for all roads.

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

The Mysterious Visitor

"I think you have guessed who I am," said the voice in a conversational tone. "Anyway, Julia has. Get a grip on yourself, Mallingham. I'm surprised to see you go to pieces like that. You of all persons, Mallingham! Look at him, Julia. Is he the heroic figure you thought he was?"

Julia buried her face in her hands and whimpered hysterically. Mallingham's slack jaw tightened a little at the taunt.

"Pardon me if I seem a bit muddled," he murmured sarcastically. "This is a new experience in my life. I am not accustomed to carrying on conversations with persons whom I can't see."

"I understand. It must be rather bewildering. For the present it suits my convenience to come and go like this. With so many people in the house, it is best I should not be seen. There would be all sort of rumors and speculations, you know."

"Your discretion is to be commended." Mallingham sneered. "Well, heaven be praised, I have discovered a new thing under the sun. Life was getting a little bit stale. Now—" He assayed a laugh. "This has been worth being buried alive for. I've met all sorts of persons in my hectic life, but this is my first introduction to an invisible one."

"Talk on," said the voice. "It seems to soothe your nerves. They are in a bad state, aren't they, Mallingham, although you are trying hard to bluff it out? When you are through I'll have something to say."

"Why not say it now?"

Julia raised her head. In an inexplicable way she felt that the speaker was looking in her direction.

"Julia"—the voice had a gentler ring now—"I want you to understand one thing. I am not blaming you for what happened. It was my fault. I should never have asked you to marry me. But I was infatuated — madly infatuated — and — Well, what's done is done. Your beauty has been the curse of my life. It enslaved me and made me a fool. My weakness was at fault. Your heart and your impulses were good and true—in the beginning, at least."

A touch of scorn and contempt came into his voice.

"We know what happened. Mallingham attracted you with his polished manners and his intriguing air. You couldn't see the snake behind the fascination of his personality. Little by little he won you over. Remember, I am not blaming you. He is a persuasive and plausible scoundrel. You entered into a conspiracy with him."

He groaned a little. His voice had a humble and penitent quality.

"I was blind — dazzled by your loveliness and hypnotized by your subtle personality. But my eyes opened at last. I— But we needn't go into that." The voice paused. For a little while it seemed as if the only occupants of the room were Mallingham and Julia.

"Mallingham" — the voice hardened again—"you are beneath contempt. You are dishonest, hypocritical, treacherous and greedy. Above all else, you are greedy. Greed has been the mainspring of your whole rotten life. I shan't waste words on a viper like you. I'll only say this—you are going to get just the sort of punishment you deserve."

Mallingham trembled. The threat, spoken in a low tone and with a little hiss, and coming out of sheer emptiness, was singularly terrifying. His face was ashen and palsied. With an air of false bravado he lighted a fresh cigaret.

"Look at him, Julia. See his hand shake. See how frightened he looks. And what is he afraid of? Of me —an old, broken man. Ha!"

His mocking laugh rasped sharply on the brief silence that ensued.

"For heaven's sake," Mallingham jerked out in shaky accents, "if you have anything more to say, say it and be gone!"

"I'm almost through. All that remains is your punishment, Mallingham, you're a greedy and contemptible fool. You've wasted the best years of your life reaching for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Well, you have almost reached it. The pot of gold is here. You could almost put out your hand and touch it. You are so near to it—and yet so very far. That's your punishment—to come within reach of the thing you have hankered after all your life and yet not be able to grasp it. For a man like you I can't think of a worse punishment."

"You're raving," said Mallingham thickly, his smoldering eyes searching the emptiness out of which the voice was speaking.

"You know I am not. You know I am speaking the truth. Behind the iron door there is something which could be easily converted into a vast fortune—$20,000,000 perhaps.

"Think of it, Mallingham. That fortune is only 15 feet from where you are standing this moment. It represents all that you have wasted your life and bartered your soul for. It would be very easy to get hold of it—if you knew how."

Now the voice had a silken, taunting quality. Mallingham's gray, twiching face was a picture of dread and baffled desire.

"What is this thing you are talking about?" he demanded.

A low, mocking laugh was the only response.

"Tell me," said Mallingham hoarsely, "or I'll know you are lying."

"No, you know I am speaking the truth. That's why you are beside yourself with envy and disappointment. You know you are beaten—beaten within a few feet of your goal. This is the bitterest moment in your life. I can see it in your face."

"Show me this thing," Mallingham bawled, "and then I'll believe you."

"You don't need proof. You are convinced already. Just the same, I am demonstrating Old Winthrop's secret to you this very moment. You can't see me, yet you know I am sitting in this chair. You know I am real. You can hear me. You can feel me—"

The chair squeaked a little. Mallingham shrank back as footsteps came toward him. He uttered a horrified squeal as a hand brushed his face.

"There! I have proved I am real and human in every respect, haven't I? I am the personification of the secret for which Old Winthrop was offered $20,000,000. Think of it, Mallingham—$20,000,000 almost at your fingertips! And you are never going to touch a penny of it. Tough luck!"

Mallingham's impassioned face and the greedy smolder in his eyes bespoke an agony of frustration.

"Watch me," said the voice.

Julia drew herself up. A look of tormenting expectancy came into Mallingham's striken face. He stared into the void from which the voice came. And slowly out of nothingness, there emerged a faint, quivering shimmer. It swelled and took on color. It assumed human shape. Julia sprang to her feet. A groan escaped Mallingham's tight lips. He was witnessing the strangest sight of his life.

Before him stood a man garbed from head to foot in bright green. A green hood covered his face, meeting the soft green collar at his throat. Long green gloves and green shoes covered his hands and feet. He was looking at them with a tauntingly smiling gaze, partly dimmed by ovals of green-colored glass inserted in the hood over the eyes.

And then, while Mallingham clutched the table for support, the man in green jerked the hood from his face. A long, trembling cry broke from Julia's lips.

"Maxwell!"

She fled from the room.

"That's all," said Maxwell Martenet. "You may go, Mallingham."

John Brings News

With a dour and cautious mien John Breck entered Hannan's little room and set the breakfast tray down on a chair beside the bed.

"Feeling better, I see," he remarked lugubriously.

"I expect to be on top of the world again before long," said Hannan brightly. In spite of all that had happened, he was in a happy mood this morning. Hadn't Viola kissed him last night? And wasn't life a wonderful thing? "How is everybody this morning, John?"

John grunted. "What bothers me ain't how they are, but where?"

"Any more disappearances?"

"Well, I see there's a candle gone from the mantel in the library."

"Oh, only a candle," Hannan drank his coffee with keen relish. "Best coffee I ever tasted, John. Seen Miss Lane this morning?"

John wagged his long head. "Nope. Not since last night. We had a bit of an argument in the library. Didn't amount to much. She seemed kinda rilled."

"What do you mean? Did she look excited?"

"Well, I couldn't say. There was just the one candle burning—the one that's gone from its place this morning. The light being kinda dim, I didn't get a good look at her."

Hannan put his cup down and stared at the caretaker. "John, what in Sam Hill are you driving at? Anything wrong?"

"I wouldn't say, Mr. Hannan. There's just this about it. Miss Lane didn't come to breakfast this morning. That don't mean much, though, for she wasn't the only one that stayed away. The queer part is that she ain't in her room, and as far as I can make out she ain't anywheres else."

John bent over quickly and caught the cup as it fell from Hannan's hand. "Now, Mr. Hannan, no use gettin' het up. Gosh ding it! Now I wish I hadn't told you. Miss Lane's prob'ly all right. Things allus look a whole lot worse than they are. Maybe she'll— Oh, there's one thing I forget to tell you. I found the candle."

"Which candle?"

"Why, the one that vamoosed last night from its place on the mantel. I found it in a funny place, too." The caretaker scratched his jaw with a troubled air. "It was layin' on the floor just outside the iron door."

"The iron—!" With a sharp exclamation of dread, Hannan sprang up from the bed and reached for his dressing gown.

"Now, Mr. Hannan, no sense in that," the caretaker remonstrated. With crude gentleness he forced him back down on the bed. "You'd only make things worse, you with your bunged-up shoulder.

"There ain't nothing you can do —nothing anybody can do. Anyhow, I bet Miss Lane is all right. She strikes me as a young lady who can take care of herself."

"Guess you're right, John." Hannan pretended to realize the futility of trying to do anything. He finished his coffee and toast, then let his head drop to the pillow. A little eternity seemed to pass before John finally took himself off. The moment he was alone, Hannan jumped up and started to dress, the twinges in his shoulder being engulfed in a vaster torment of body and mind. He dropped Viola Lane's pistol into his pocket and opened the door a crack.

Hammer blows sounded somewhere. Evidently some of the men were engaged in fortifying the supports of the house where the danger was greatest. It seemed a grotesquely trivial undertaking to Hannan. Didn't they know that Viola was at the mercy of the terrors behind the iron door? Perhaps already—

He thrust the maddening thought from him. His body was all chills and hot flashes. He tried to put all disturbing thoughts from him. If he was to accomplishing anything, he must have a clear head and a steady hand. He looked into the library. A candle was burning feebly on a table. Some one was sleeping in an arm chair, and at the sleeper's feet was a tall glass, its inside flecked with white foam. Hannan moved swiftly across the floor. He paused for a moment and looked up at Old Winthrop's portrait, studying the grim set of the lips, the brightness of the eyes.

He chuckled nervously. Nothing but imagination, of course, but he fancied the austere lips had parted in a smile of encouragement. Old Winthrop understood!

Now he hastened down the little hall and up to the iron door. He clutched the handle. A sense of awe rushed upon him. What would happen? Would a bolt of destruction strike him? Old Winthrop's clock was ticking, emphasizing an oft-repeated warning of cloaked terrors that might spring into life the moment he opened the door. Only last night his father had repeated that warning, and he had hinted at some monstrous force lurking behind this very door. And Hannan had given his solemn promise that he would not enter.

He shrugged. Old Winthrop could not have foreseen an emergency like this. Hannan's heart was full of a love and a fear that reduced a dead man's interdiction to nothingness. A promise had no weight against Viola's peril. Wouldn't his father despise him if he failed the girl he loved?

His doubts had been a matter of moments only. Now, with brain afire and body trembling, he pulled hard at the knob. The door moved heavily, as if reluctant to yield its secrets. For an instant he waited to ease the violent pounding against his ribs. Again he pulled, and out of the dread-laden darkness a voice spoke—Old Winthrop's voice:

"If you value your life, do not enter until the clock stops."

A small, nervous laugh broke from Hannan's lips. A voice, even a dead man's voice, must not stop him now. Besides, it had an unnatural sound, like that of a dull needle scraping a phonograph record. The door swung wide and he stepped across the forbidden threshold. He was inside the forbidden room!

He exhaled a long breath, as if to throw off the heavy depression that suddenly seized him. There was something stifling, something evil in the air. Blood-freezing fancies leaped upon him out of the awful darkness on all sides. He moved forward, goaded by the single impulse burning in his

CRUEL KILLER TELLS RECORD

Ex-Choir Singer, Now Bad Gangster, Is Shot

CLEVELAND, Sept. 14. (INS)—One of the most ruthless, cold-blooded killers in criminal history lay in St. Alexis hospital here today, a bullet in his head and five others in his body, calmly confessed to an amazing string of crimes—and flatly refused to give any information concerning the possible whereabouts of his pal, John Vasbinder, 28, drug addict and murderer.

Paul Jawarski, formerly of Detroit, and later leader of the notorious "Flathead Gang" which was once the terror of western Pennsylvania, freely admitted that he participated in the $10,000 Detroit News payroll holdup last summer when one policeman was fatally wounded and another shot.

He also led the "Flathead gang" when it dynamited a payroll car and obtained $104,000 near Pittsburgh, he related.

He boasted to reporters that he had killed 26 men. Pennsylvania authorities say he is directly linked with the murder of at least four persons in holdups. Yesterday was the first time he ever killed a policeman, Jawarski said, though admitting it had been his ambition to kill six. Many of his victims, he related, were killed during private quarrels.

John Zavworski, who recognized Jawarski when he and Vasbinder entered a restaurant yesterday, and telephoned police, knew Jawarski when he sang in the choir of a little Ukrainian church in Butler, Pa., years ago, it was learned today.

Zavworski and Jawarski looked at each other, but neither gave any sign of recognition, according to the former's account. Zavworski walked quietly away to an outside telephone booth. He says he thinks the gunman followed, but for some reason did not molest him, and then returned to the restaurant and continued with his meal. Zavworski did not return.

Today, after his connection with the capture had been made public, Zavworski told police that he feared the underworld would seek him out and exact the usual penalty of the "squealer."

Miss Knox will represent Texas in a similar contest to be held by the National Restaurant association at Atlantic City.

BIRD 'CRUELTY' ARREST BASIS

W. C. Fields Pinched When Society Complains

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (UP)—A charge of cruelty to canary birds resulted in the arrest of W. C. Fields, who plays in the "Vanities."

Two officers who said they were agents of the humane society made the arrest. At each performance of the "Vanities" a canary bird is taken out of a bushy beard worn by Gordon Dooley, another of the actors.

The arresting officers said that 14 persons had complained that the canary, when removed from the dark thicket of the Dooley Beard appeared "bewildered." The bringers of the plaint all testified to the suffering of the little songster.

Texas Cotton Matures Erratically, Woodman Says

FORT WORTH, Sept. 14. (AP)—Cotton is maturing in Texas this year more erratically than ever before, according to C. W. Woodman, head of the United States farm labor service in Texas. A call was received from Wellington, Collingsworth county yesterday for 500 pickers to be delivered immediately.

The remarkable feature connected with the request for pickers at this time is the extreme northern location of Wellington. It is at the top of the cotton belt in Texas, nearly 150 miles north of Fort Worth.

Man in 30's Fit To Select Mate

encourages him to go out with other women and have dates and to demean himself as a bachelor, he is likely to forget that there is a wife and babies waiting for him at home. And, on the other hand, if she tries to lock him up too tight in the home corral, he either sulks and feels himself a prisoner, or else he jumps the bars.

So she has to steer a middle course and be liberal with him, but not too liberal. Leave him free, but not too free. Let him go, but not too often, nor too far, nor too unchaperoned.

So my suggestion is that while you should not be one of those foolish women who are so jealous that they cannot let their husbands speak to another woman without getting green-eyed and raising ructions, that you should also not be silly enough to encourage his attentions to other ladies, nor aid and abet him by making dates for him.

So tell your husband that if he wants to go out with your friend it is all right, provided you go along, too. Safety first should be a wife's motto, and those homes are in least danger when friend wife is on the watch tower. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 25 madly in love with a divorced man who has two children, 5 and 10 years old. Life would not be worth living without him, but should I marry him when have such a deadly hate in my heart for his former wife that I hate his children because they are also her children?

He wants me to forget that another woman has been his wife and says that I should be willing to accept her children as my own. I can't forget. I hate her. I hate those innocent children because they remind me of the years he loved her. He thinks that I am being childish, but even when I am happiest that spark of murderous jealousy flares up and burns my heart down to the core. Will time change my attitude when I am married to him? —MARIE.

Answer: No. Because jealousy grows by what it feeds upon and the more you brood over this subject, the more morbid you will become. The more distorted your vision will be and the less capable you will be of seeing things in their true proportion.

Why don't you have the courage and the common sense to face the truth and recognise how idiotically you are acting? To begin with, nothing can alter the fact that the man has been married, and presumably when he got married he was in love, or thought he was in love with the girl he married. But the love died. He was utterly disillusioned. Life with her proved so intolerable that he could not stand it, not even for the sake of his children, and he was divorced from her.

Why be jealous of her? Surely there is no other woman in the world who has as little charm for him as she has, no other woman you have so little reason to fear.

It seems to me that you are making yourself and the man miserable for nothing, and that you are deliberately ruining your life by indulging in this orgy of hate. If you want to be happy, if you even want to keep yourself sane, you must put that away from you, or otherwise it will poison you, body and soul.

But don't marry this man hating his children. It is a crime against them. A stepmother takes a great responsibility upon herself, and unless she can be a real mother and give a mother's love and tenderness to her husband's children, she has no right to take their young lives into her hands. —DOROTHY DIX.

FINAL SEARCH FOR AMUNDSEN

Krassin to Make Last Trip Into Wastes

MOSCOW, Sept. 14. (UP)—The final search for Roald Amundsen and his five companions and the six men of the dirigible Italia envelope party started today and if it fails the 12 explorers will be given up as lost.

The Steamship Krassin, which rescued so many members of the Italia crew and their rescue parties and which now is engaged in a last search for the Amundsen and Alessandri parties, has been ordered to return to Russia within a fortnight.

The last reconnoitering route will be in the region of Seven Islands to Victor island and thence eastward.

Meanwhile the Italia relief committee, formed when the polar dirigible went down in the arctic, organized an expedition to search for a group of five Russian aviators who are lost in the arctic.

The Soviet airplane Soviet Sever started on Aug. 19 on a flight from Vladivostok to Leningrad, directly across the arctic region. No word has been heard of the plane.

Mexicans In Texas Be Asked to Return

LAREDO, Texas, Sept. 14. (AP)—All Mexican refugees in the United States will be asked to return to their native country and start a legal fight for their rights, General I. Villareal, who has been deported for his activities in the Liberalist party, said today.

General Villareal, who was minister of agriculture under President Alvaro Obregon in 1921, said he had been visited by a papal envoy of Rome who promised him the support of the Catholic church.

"We will fight deportation on the grounds that we are Mexican citizens and the constitution does not permit any but foreign citizens to be forcibly removed from the country," General Villareal said.

That former President Adolfo de La Huerta, now living in Los Angeles, would be among those requested to go back to Mexico to try their cases through civil courts, was asserted by the general.

Colquitt's Picture Gives Place to New Portrait

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 14. (INS)—On the heels of the action of former Governor O. B. Colquitt, in bolting the Democratic party at the Dallas state convention last Tuesday, the group picture of Colquitt and members of the senate in 1918 was removed from the senate chamber Wednesday to make room for the portrait of Colonel Beaumont B. Buck, war hero, which was hung in the senate gallery. The Colquitt picture was removed to the third floor of the capitol.

"Of course, it was merely a coincidence," said R. B. Walthall, chairman of the board of control, today.

The watchman in the senate chamber, who was instructed to remove the Colquitt picture, said, however, that he "took great pleasure in removing the picture and Colquitt is not a Democrat anyway."

UNTESTED LAW FACES TRIAL

Train Block Holds Fire Trucks 15 Minutes

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 14 (INS)—A precedent will be established in the intended arrest of the crew of a Missouri, Kansas and Texas freight train, which blocked a crossing for 15 minutes early today and held up fire engines, is carried out. Two buildings were burned while the fire equipment was held up. The loss was estimated at $15,000.

A city ordinance of many years standing forbids the blocking of a crossing by trains for more than five minutes at a time. Officials can not remember that any arrests have ever been made for violation of the ordinance, although complaints have been numerous. The houses destroyed today were the property of the city.

A College Whose Campus Is the Southwest

The constructive forces expressed in the Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges and in the Agricultural Experiment Stations and extension services of State Universities, in States where no separate A. & M. College is maintained, hold high rank among the influences which are building a Greater Southwest. The dependence of civic industrial growth upon a healthy agricultural foundation is so commonly recognized that the service of the A. & M. schools is seldom mentioned for appreciation.

The fruit growers, lumbermen, corn, cotton and wheat planters, cattlemen, poultrymen, dairymen, swine raisers; in fact, all workers in agriculture and its related fields in the Southwest, profit by the scientific research and practical experiments conducted by the A. & M. Colleges and departments. By a wide exchange of students and through the work of short courses and traveling extension departments, the Agricultural schools have extended their campuses until they overlap and include every county in the Southwest and even some distant States and countries.

Upon the firm foundation designed and built by the Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges and departments the Greater Southwest of the future may rest in security.

The contribution of the Magnolia Petroleum Company to the growth of a Greater Southwest takes the form of efficient production, refining and marketing of petroleum products. Departments for the control and improvement of its motor fuels, motor oils and lubricants and all its related products, with special provisions for research, testing and experiment, are constantly maintained. In this way we assure the dependability of such well-known Magnolia products as:

BOBBY JONES DEFENDS AMATEUR TITLE AGAINST BRITISHER

PERKINS BEATS VOIGT, 6 AND 4

Champion Scores 13 and 12 Victory Over Finlay

BY WARREN BROWN

WEST NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 14. (UP)—Paul Revere out of the headlines all these years, is on his horse once more.

The 1928 Paul, in plus fours, is raising the inhabitants of every village and town in this vicinity tonight with the same old history making cry:

"The Red Coats are coming."

T. P. Perkins, the British amateur champion, who was manhandled 13 and 12 by Bobby Jones, in the Walker cup matches recently is in again and great is the excitement in Boston town.

On the morrow, when the national amateur golf championship will be decided, Great Britain and the United States will be the contending forces. The United States, of course, will follow that fellow Jones, a golfing revolution himself, as young Phillips Finlay, the Harvard lad whom he trounced, 13 and 12 today, to get into the finals where he might defend his title against the Briton. Perkins, will testify.

Forging past George Voigt, the amateur from the outlands of the U. S. G. A., Perkins tonight has nothing between him and the championship, but Jones.

New Perkins, Old Bobby

And while it is conceded that Perkins, in going through to the finals here at Brae Burn, has reached his true golfing worth at last, and is consequently much better than he was at the Chicago Golf club, the jarring note is that it's the same Jones.

With this in mind, I have heard on good authority that Paul Revere didn't even bother to ride as far as he did the last time the Red Coats were marching toward an American championship. In fact Paul is suspected of having turned into a speakeasy, which is no place at all for the capabilities of a guy with a voice such as Paul's historian reputes him to have owned.

Great as was Perkins today, in beating Voigt, 6 and 4, it is a matter of record, that for the 24 holes Bobby required to secure his 13 to 12 victory over Finlay, card for card, he would have been 3 up on Perkins, regardless of the latter's phenomenal play. It may have been the celebration of this that caused the early dereliction of the plus-foured Paul Revere.

To accomplish the downfall of Voigt, Perkins had to stall off a rush by the New Yorker, in the closing holes of the morning round, to finish 1 up, after having established what was quite an achievement, in keeping Voigt down all the way to the twentieth, and no better than all square there.

Voigt Rally Looms

So efficiently had Voigt played in that last nine, practically all the experts were agreed that he would soon cut T. P. down, in the afternoon.

They were sure of this when Perkins hooked into a trap from the very first tee, but they were annoyed when he came out of that sand pile, and on to the green, five feet from the pin, his next shot. As the result they were thankful when he missed the putt by inches, and took a half.

At the second, it was Voigt who hooked, and his ball was well up on the hill side, guarded by a tree. He planted his next shot around the tree, and up in the pin, leaving a four-footer which he holed for the birdie that squared the match.

Then the gallery settled back to watch Perkins crack. While they were waiting, Voigt cracked instead, putting his second shot into a trap at the left of the green, and his next clear across the patch which held the pin. He made a marvelous effort to hole the long putt, which had to roll up and down the undulating green, but was forced to watch it rim the cup, and stay out. Perkins, with nothing to worry him, took his 4, and was up again, to stay that way for the rest of the route.

Bobby "Off" Game

Jones, having produced another 70 in the morning, went out to get rid of Finlay as soon as possible, since he had no relish for the rain that afterwards added to the confusion of Voigt.

At that, Bobby was a little shy of his Thursday record, and had to go as far as the sixth hole, to wind things up. He was one under fours at that stage for the afternoon and Finlay was 4 over.

It might have been more than a coincidence that Perkins, returning from the war with Voigt, should have to discover that Jones had beaten Finlay, 13 and 12. Those figures will always be an unpleasant reminder for Perkins of an otherwise pleasant stay in the neighborhood of Chicago.

The British champion, coming back for another meeting, may be able to take Bobby past the ninth hole tomorrow afternoon. This in itself will be an accomplishment though two players coming into the final round after several rounds of the sort of golf they have been playing, offer a final round that makes well worth while the days of tramping up and down hills, and dodging trees, golf balls and galleryites that are all a part of life at Brae Burn.

3 AMERICANS IN NET SEMIS

Cochet and Hunter Victors In Quarter Finals

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Sept. 14. (UP)—Henri Cochet, stolid Frenchman, remained the only foreign threat to the American tennis title today as the 47th annual national tournament reached the semifinal round.

Completing the quarterfinal matches which were halted Thursday by rain and darkness, Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y., veteran, whose amazing comeback has been one of the high spots of the tournament eliminated Jack Crawford, the young Australian, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, and Cochet defeated Gregory Mangin, the 20-year-old Newark, N. J., boy, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

Hunter Speedily Wins

Leading Crawford two sets to one, Hunter won the necessary third set in less than 20 minutes today and advanced to the semifinal round for the second straight year.

"Big Bill" Tilden, who is covering this year's tournament for a syndicate, being unable to compete because of his suspension by the U. S. L. T. A., eliminated Hunter in the semifinal round last year.

Mangin was one set up on Cochet when they resumed their match today, but the Newark youngster completely collapsed and lost three sets in succession to Cochet in 37 minutes.

Hunter Meets Lott

Hunter will meet George Lott jr., Chicago youngster, in the semifinal Saturday and Cochet will play Frank Shields, 18-year-old New York boy.

Lott gained the semifinals Thursday by defeating Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., in straight sets and Shields entered the semifinals with a three set victory over Jacques Brugnon. The finals will be played Monday.

Helen Wills, who did not lose a single set to a woman player last season, lost to Herbert Bowman, New York, ranked No. 13 nationally, in an exhibition match, 6-2, 6-4. Bowman outdrove Miss Wills from the baseline, something no woman player accomplished all season.

Corbett Gains Unpopular Nod

Californian Beats Baker in Western Debut

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (UP)—Young Corbett, Fresno, Calif., welterweight, made his eastern debut tonight in Madison Square garden by winning an unimpressive decision over Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchel field.

Corbett, conqueror of Jack Thompson, knocked Baker down for a count of nine with a right to the body in the seventh round but slowed up in the next few rounds. A sensational attack in the 12th round earned the decision.

A crowd of 10,000 saw the fight and booed Corbett and cheered Baker when the fighters left the ring. Baker recovered quickly from the knockdown and carried the battle to Corbett in the next four rounds. He had the California southpaw in a bad way several times.

Corbett's wrestling tactics failed to make an impression on New York fans. The blow which dropped Baker was a short right that traveled less than six inches.

Baer Facts

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)
By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—It happened in Newark.

We knew that pedestrians were becoming as influential as germs in a glass jar, but we never thought the daylight saving time would ever arrive when a jake-walker would be fined for hopping.

A Newark judge nailed a jake-walker in the actual act of walking.

What made it worse, the judge caught him red-shoed.

The traffic looper saw the red, white and green lights, but, nevertheless he looped across the boulevard like a rabbit through the wheat.

Six cops flattened him and in a second he was a prominent figure on the metropolitan turf.

He had disregarded the ultra-violet rays of red, purple and green lights.

His only defense was that he didn't expect to see the aurora borealis so far south.

Fortunately, it was not a case of grand walking beneath a sightseeing bus, nor a compound walking against the radiator of a Reis truck.

It was simply walking in front of a flivver.

Nevertheless, the judge fined the curbjumper five bills of the Republican realm.

Now, that it's happened in Newark it can happen in your town. And taking your daily lump of yeast will not cure it.

The oligarchy of progress has finally declared itself against the diminishing tribe of bunion strutters.

There is no room in this mechanical universe for the pedestrian.

It's getting tough on the fading members of the heel-and-toe tribe. When they boil the chestnut, the worm can expect to get a hot bath.

Life in big cities is precarious for the few remaining footscooters.

They fine us when we walk. They shoot us when we run.

Next week we will hold our indignation meeting. In the town garage.

SPUDS - BUFFS RESUME PLAY

Texas League Playoff Is Continued at Houston

with a greater problem than Galloway. It isn't unlikely that Bill Hallahan, who southpawed the Spudders to defeat Wednesday, will be sent back today. This viewpoint is held for this reason: that Hallahan, ace of the Buff staff, might win today to give his club a 2-1 edge in the five-game series. And even if the Buffs should win today and lose Sunday, Hallahan might work a few innings Monday in a relief role.

The fact that Hallahan requires at least two days' rest and works better with three, however, seems to preclude his pitching today. There is a possibility that Frank Barnes, batted off the hill early in Thursday's game, will start today. He also is a southpaw and next to Hallahan probably the best hurler on the Buff staff. Ken Penner also seems a possibility to work today.

There isn't any doubt, of course but that Hallahan will work today or tomorrow. If the Spuders beat him on his next start they doubtless will win the playoff. And even if he beats the Spudders again, which isn't at all a certainty, the Buffs won't look any too good to cop. For except for Hallahan their pitchers have no success against the Spudders.

Spud Hurlers Ready

Except for Bill Shores, who pitched a superb victory Thursday, the entire remaining Spud slab corps of six is ready to work. Regardless of who starts there will be a pitching comrade warmed up and ready to go at the first sign of faltering by the man occupying the hill.

The Spudders outhit the Buffs in the two games and they figure to be more direful on the attack all the way. The outfields have been about equal in hitting and fielding, all the gardeners of both clubs having been factors in the attack. The edge offensively held by the Spudders is in their infield, which has far outbatted the Buff inner defensive quartet, in addition to holding its own defensively. Young Ed Roetz, after rather a poor start Wednesday, played a superb game Thursday at first base and did his share of hitting.

Pete Lapan has matched the bulky, terrific-hitting Frank Snyder in catching worth and batting.

Therefore, it again puts it up to the pitchers. And as Jim Galloway said last night just before boarding the rattler for Buffville:

"Our pitchers will deliver, as they have all season. We'll come home champions of the Texas league."

Good in Pinch

Illness and injury handicapped Wally Swenson this season. But in the pinch, the swatting Swede is at his best, at bat and afield, as the Houston Buffs have discovered to their sorrow.

ABLES RESIGNS AS BEAR HEAD

Successor to Be Named at Meeting in January

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 14. (AP)—After sale of Shortstop Ray Flaskamper by the San Antonio Bears to the Dallas Steers came announcement today of the resignation of Harry T. Ables as president-treasurer and member of the board of directors of the San Antonio baseball club.

Ables said other business interests prevent him from proper attention to the affairs of the baseball club.

At a special meeting the club accepted the resignation and Secretary Cooner was named business manager. Ables' successor will not be elected until the annual meeting in January.

Ables said there was no dissension. "The best friends, the closest ones, I have in town are directors and stockholders of the club," he said.

McGraw and Hornsby Deny Charges Of Betting on 'Fixed' Horse Races

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. (AP)—Two leaders of the baseball world, John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, and Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Boston Braves, made complete denials today of charges that they had participated in betting on "fixed" horse races at the Arlington park track through information alleged to have been supplied them by C. E. Allen, a leading jockey of the west.

McGraw and Hornsby telegraphed to Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, that neither had violated the rules against baseball players wagering on horse races. Each denied knowing Jockey Allen or having communicated with him.

Commissioner Landis said he necessarily must make an investigation but that he was inclined to believe both McGraw and Hornsby.

The charge, which the baseball managers deny and which Allen said he could disprove, is that the jockey rented an apartment in an exclusive district and there used the long distance telephone to convey tips to McGraw and Hornsby, among others, whose names were not mentioned, running up a telephone bill of $858.07. The charge became known through publication of a telephone collection letter to Allen, naming McGraw and Hornsby among the persons telephoned.

Charles Bidwell, secretary of the Illinois Turf association, said he believed the charges against Allen was false and that the jockey had been "framed by a tout."

"The charge is due to the use of Allen's name by someone else," said Bidwell.

Private detectives were engaged by the Turf association to search for the man and woman implicating Allen, McGraw and Hornsby in the scandal.

Lubricant Price Goes Up One Cent Gallon

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 14.—Increasing demand for bright stock has caused Mid-Continent refiners to advance current quotations one cent a gallon on this grade of lubricant to around 26 cents a gallon for grade "D." Several refiners make an "E" grade and it has also gone up one cent a gallon.

VERNON BEATS MEMPHIS, 7 TO 0

Cox's Run for Touchdown After Fumble Wins

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 14.—The Vernon high school Lions defeated the Memphis Cyclone here this afternoon, 7 to 0. The only touchdown of the game was made early in the first period when Cox of the Lions snatched a juggled Memphis pass on the Cyclone's 10-yard line and carried it over the counter.

The Memphis team seemed to have a slight advantage over the locals during the remainder of the contest, but never threatened. Memphis made six first downs to Vernon's three. The game ended with the ball in Vernon's possession on Memphis' three-yard line just after Crawford had intercepted a Memphis pass and raced fifty yards down the field.

Captain Cox was Vernon's performer. Lawrence and Crawford showed to advantage. The weakness of the Vernon line was very noticeable. Hammonds stood out as a Memphis ball carrier. Lineup:

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

Does Your Child Dislike Good Food?

Young children, and those who are grown up, sometimes dislike carrots, parsnips, milk, cabbage, spinach or other perfectly good wholesome foods, and cannot be persuaded to eat them. In fact, the more these disliked foods are placed before these individuals, the stronger becomes the dislike. If our sense of taste is for our protection, why do we sometimes like foods that are bad for us, and dislike foods that are good for us?

Although at first glance there may seem to be no reason for this dislike, there undoubtedly is. At birth we have not much appreciation of flavors. After a few hours or minutes of teasing the baby, by rubbing milk on its mouth, it acquires a taste for milk—sweet milk. Try to feed the baby unsweetened milk and see what a howl baby makes!

During the course of the next few weeks an infant may develop a liking for a few other things like water, orange juice or scraped apple. Each new flavor requires a period of getting acquainted. This process continues throughout life, and unless a new flavor reminds us of one that we already like, we are very cautious about using it. This is a wise provision of nature to guard us against poisonous foods. We taste a thing cautiously and if it does not harm us, we will be curious to try it again until finally we acquire a liking for its flavor.

In this way many people and races acquire appetites for a food that seems queer to us if we do not enjoy its flavor or appearance. One man's tidbit becomes another man's emetic.

It is a wise policy to explain to a child that the vitamins in foods will make him grow big and strong, and that he will be able to beat other boys in games, or to sometime drive an automobile or an airplane. It is a very poor policy to say, "If you don't eat your dish of spinach, you can't have any ice cream." Scolding is worse than useless. While it gives the scolder a feeling of superiority, it leaves the scoldee more obstinate than ever.

In training a child, it is far more valuable to bring out the instinctive desire to excel than to say, "This is good for you," or "That is bad for you."

A boy may be indifferent to a shower of facts about health, but suppose he wants to win a mile race at the school track meet? He is willing to go into training, and will simply gulp down the facts about health. Teach him to brag about the amount of vegetables he can eat. Give him helpings that are obviously too small and let him ask for more rather than force large helpings upon him.

It is a good policy to make favorable suggestions about food when talking to someone at the table so that the child can overhear as, "Gene Tunney drinks lots of milk and that makes him a big, strong man."

Many of our dislikes for food are associated with the memory of some sickness of the stomach. I have noted severe cases of dislike for cabbage that originated with vomiting a meal that contained cabbage. It is sometimes hard to trace the origin of a dislike, but this can usually be done if one really studies the problem impartially.

One can usually overcome a dislike by mixing a small amount of the unpleasant food with a very large amount of the good food. This can sometimes be done unknown to the person affected, and in this way the dislike will be gradually overcome. A person who dislikes many foods only makes life unpleasant for himself.

Questions and Answers

Question—C. G. H. writes: "Please tell me what to do for ulcers in the mouth. The tonics from doctors only seem to give temporary relief, and the ulcers return in only a few weeks after getting rid of them."

Answer—Chronic mouth ulcers come from a similar condition which occurs in your stomach, and is due to wrong habits of eating which produce an over-acidity of the gastric juice. The ulcers may be expected to return periodically until you learn to correct the hyper-acidity of your stomach.

Question—Mrs. J. L. asks: "Is it all right to eat cucumbers and ice cream at the same meal?"

Answer—Cucumbers and ice cream make a good combination, providing the cucumbers are not flavored with dressing and the ice cream is made of real cream and does not contain any corn starch.

Question—H. B. writes: "I have lost confidence in myself and others; also have lost control of my will-power, which causes me to have a nervous fear almost constantly. Will you tell me what causes this, and how to cure myself?"

Answer—You should seek the advice of a good psychologist or psychoanalyst. You can receive much help by reading good books on the subject of mind power and mental control, but personal advice and the encouragement of a mental practitioner are often necessary to help you in effecting a complete cure, after you are conscious of having lost your mental control.

brain. He must find Viola even if his very next step should mean death.

Suddenly he paused. A bell was pealing somewhere. It was a soft and melodious sound, something like the chiming of Old Winthrop's clock, yet there was a difference. There was something ominous, something sinister about this sound. In the same instant he became aware that the iron door had started to close behind him, shutting off all hope of escape. Not that he was thinking of escape, and yet—

Suddenly his eyes fixed rigidly on two blazing points in the distance. It was as if two menacing eyes of fire were staring at him. Somehow he pictured a beast with drips of venom slavering from its jaws. A low, threatening growl came. Lambent streaks of fire played in the darkness. Swiftly and silently something rushed upon him.

He cried out in sheer horror. He heard the iron door close with a clang. And now a loathsome shape was at his throat, choking him in a furry, monstrously powerful clutch, bearing him down. Ferocious fangs were tearing his flesh.

He fought, striking out blindly with torn fists, scratching, clawing, pounding. A single thought rallied his ebbing strength. Viola! He must live. He must throttle this vile thing that was maiming him. A hot, strangling agony was at his throat. His lungs were screaming for air. A sickening, miasmic breath was defiling his face. He heaved with all the frenzied strength he could summon. Now—

But the thing was upon him again, drops of fire trickling from its ravenous jaws, its murderous claws ripping his flesh. His lungs were bursting. A growling, hissing fury was tossing him about as a cat does a mouse. His tortured body could endure no more. His strength was failing. He was sinking, sinking . . .

"Cerberus," called a voice. "That's enough. Come here."

There was a pause. He lay still. Paws was gliding away in the darkness. Numbness was stealing over him. Some one had spoken. His brain had absorbed the words mechanically, as a sponge absorbs water. Cerberus . . . the three-headed monster guarding the entrance to the infernal regions. Viola was somewhere in these awful regions. Viola. . . .

A light was shining in his face. He opened his heavy-lidded eyes, but did not move. His body felt crushed and torn. Some one was standing over him, looking down.

Hardwick Declares Bigotry Big Problem

MACON, Ga., Sept. 14. (UP)—Former United States Senator Thomas W. Hardwick, stumping Georgia in behalf of the Democratic national ticket, said in a speech here last night that "more infernal hypocrisy is mixed up in the prohibition issue than in anything else I've ever heard."

The "negro in the woodpile" in the opposition to Gov. Alfred E. Smith is "the bigotry and religious intolerance in the crucifixion of Alfred E. Smith because he is a Catholic," Hardwick said.

In referring to activities of some clergymen against the Democratic presidential candidate, Hardwick said "if you ever let the ministry get mixed in the nation's politics they will always lead you to bigotry and persecution."

He recalled Tammany as "the sole ally of the South" in reconstruction days.

Bill Smith Must Die If He Regains Mind

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 14. (AP)—Bill Smith, convicted of the slaying of Sheriff Bob Smith of Fisher county, who was granted a 60-day reprieve by Gov. Dan Moody yesterday on the eve of his scheduled electrocution, will have to pay the death penalty if he recovers his sanity, Gov. Dan Moody declared today.

Governor Moody asserted Smith would not be electrocuted while he was mentally deranged.

Work Says Robinson Distorts Crop Facts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. (UP)—Chairman Work of the Republican national committee charged today that Senator Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate, and others have "wilfully distorted" facts in connection with Herbert Hoovers' attitude toward crop price maintenance during the armistice.

Rosebud Banker Is Sought for Shortage

WACO, Sept. 14. (UP)—Officials of the Rosebud State bank at Rosebud, near here, conferred here today with representatives of the state banking department relative to irregularities in the bank estimated at $15,000 by State Bank Commissioner Shaw.

Officers are seeking a former official of the bank who was last seen Monday afternoon when he walked out of the bank as the examiner walked in. He said he was going to Waco.

When asked if charges would be filed against the man, Shaw said today, "That is the usual procedure."

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By ALICE JOYCE

Alice Joyce, one of the screen's most popular actresses, was born in Kansas City, Mo. She quit high school to become a "hello" girl for the local telephone office. It wasn't long though, until Alice discovered that she was on the wrong line so she plugged out for the movies.

Alice Joyce

"One of the funniest things I have ever heard," Miss Joyce told me, "concerns the young man who played opposite me in one of my late pictures.

"I came to the studio one morning and was informed by the director that we would be unable to work for several days, owing to the cuts and bruises on the face of my leading man. The gentleman in question was seated there in the office, his head swathed with bandages.

"'What in the world happened to you?' I asked, 'have you been trying to tame wild cats?'

"'Oh, no,' he replied, 'had a date with my girl last night.'

"'Well, surely she didn't beat you up like that?'

"'The girl didn't,' said the actor, 'but we were dancing in the living room when her old man happened to come in. He's deaf and couldn't hear the music.'"

FAIR BETTER AT WELLINGTON

Record Breaking Crowds; Hall Fair Closes

By FRANK O. HALL
Staff Correspondent

WELLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 14.—The eighth annual Collingsworth County fair was bigger and better than ever before today as thousands of persons joined in celebrating the second day of Wellington's biggest event of the year.

Fair officials are jubilant with the second record breaking crowd in as many days and with fair weather continuing, are making preparations to entertain at least 6,000 or 7,000 more visitors Saturday, the last day of the fair.

Never before in the history of this county has there been such a fair and never before hve there been such large crowds attending a similar celebration here.

With ribbons fluttering from the prize winning exhibits, with the sputtering of motorcycles on the race tracks and the drone of airplanes overhead, intermingled with the chattering of announcers of the merry midway and the cries of hamburger and red lemonade venders, the fair grounds presented a holiday appearance today.

Friday's entertainment features were equally as good as those of Thursday, and Saturday an added feature will be the automobile races. The track is in excellent condition and some real competition is expected between the drivers who will compete for the prize money.

The cattle barns and the poultry pens probably received more attention today from fair visitors than any other exhibit or attraction.

Collingsworth county farmers are realizing more and more the value of having a dairy herd and a poultry flock on their farms. As a result the Jersey and Holstein classes were much better this year than ever before.

Greer and Geesey, ranchers living south of Wellington, who are proving the value of paying attention to the cow, the sow and the hen, captured most of the ribbons in these classes. Sitters ranch and Holland divided the money in the Hereford show. Sitters ranch received the ribbon for showing the grand champion bull and Holland won the grand champion cow ward.

GREATEST HALL FAIR CLOSES

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 14.—The greatest Hall county district fair in its eight years of existence closed here tonight. Unusually good weather prevailed during the four-day exhibition. Attendance records have been shattered and products and live stock on display were of greater quality and in larger number than ever before. Fair officials have announced that last year's deficit has been made up and a healthy bank balance will be on hand to begin the ninth annual fair next September.

The Memphis Gold Medal band presented the entertainment feature tonight, "Forty-Five Minutes in Savage Land," there being about 50 characters in the comedy. Music for the occasion was furnished by Paul James and the "Midnight Rebels," a division of the Gold Medal band.

The fair officials report that everything has gone very smoothly during the four days.

Tornado Kills 50 in Factory

No loss of life was reported in Iowa although considerable property damage was caused. Latest reports stated that five persons were killed in Nebraska and five in South Dakota.

More than 40 persons were injured in the two states hardest hit and property damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

The dead:

Nebraska—Mary Belt, 10, Winnebago; Helen Rooney, 18, South Sioux City, school teacher of near Homer; two-months-old daughter of Ed Kunale, Winnebago; Frank Rheumack, Omaha; Kenneth Norris, farmer boy of near Walthill.

Two separate tornadoes swept over the two states. The effects of the Nebraska storm was felt in Iowa along the Mississippi river.

The Nebraska tornado swept through the towns of Winnebago, Walthill, Homer and Dakota City and dipped over into Iowa, spending its force at Ireton.

The second tornado originated near Fordyne, Neb., crossed into South Dakota and struck Yankton, Walshton and Davis.

Crops in Nebraska and South Dakota suffered heavily. Heavy winds and torrential rains were reported from several towns in Iowa but the damage to property and crops was much lighter in the other two states.

WISCONSIN MAN HURT IN TORNADO

MANY OBSERVE DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (UP)—The beginning of the year 5689 of the Hebrew Calendar called 1,700,000 Orthodox and reform Jews to their various synagogues tonight to observe Rosh Hashanah. The New Year and Yom Kippur, 10 days later, are the most important holidays of the Jewish church.

DECISION IN APPEAL SOON

Court Hears Argument in Scurry Case

Townsend said that he would not "criticize any man for following the dictates of his conscience."

In closing for Scurry, Bonner, a tall mountain of a man with a bass voice, declared that Nicholson's stand was neither sound in law or morals and declared that "we face a national election and are entitled to none but tried and true Democrats on our committees."

"Yet Nicholson, who admits membership in an anti-Smith organization, comes asking the court to perpetuate him in office for the sole reason that he may do mischief to our party," he declared.

"We are entitled to have Democrats and not spies on our committees. Put none but chosen and tried Democrats on watch," he thundered.

After Fischer had charged during the morning session that Nicholson was attempting to hold two offices, McDonald went into his argument in which he ridiculed the term "Hoover Democrat."

Declaring he had never heard of a white blackbird nor a black swan, he asserted there can be no such thing as a "Hoover Democrat."

He said that if Nicholson was allowed to remain on the executive committee, he could attend the secret meetings of the body and then carry a report of the proceedings to the "Hoover Democrats."

Grant argued briefly for Nicholson, contending that the county executive committee did not have the right to expel Nicholson. Questioned by Justice Conner, Grant said that Nicholson's reasons for not supporting the Democratic ticket were personal ones.

Jury Clears Joe Wilkins

testified that he did not remember seeing any blood about Wilkins to indicate that he had been cut with a knife.

Many character witnesses were used by the defense in an effort to show that Horn had been a dangerous character. Residents from Haskell county testified as to Horn's character while he lived in that section and a number of Wichita Falls persons also testified for the defense as to the character of the man who was shot.

Phy Taylor, proprietor of the Hearn hotel, testified that he had been in front of the Hearn hotel on the afternoon of the shooting and that he saw Horn talking to Wilkins and that one of the men with him suggested that they "wait a minute and see the fight."

Says Wilkins Kicked

Ray Gilbert, state witness, testified that Horn had kicked Wilkins in the hotel and that Wilkins pursued him down the hallway of the hotel shooting at him.

Mrs. W. R. Stewart, proprietor of the Maryland hotel, testified that she had been in her room and had heard the shots. When she looked out the door of her room, she said, she saw Horn fleeing down the hallway, pursued by Wilkins, who had a pistol in his hand. Horn went into one room, she said, and Wilkins went into another room.

Arguments to the jury were concluded at 6:15 and the jurors were taken out of the courtroom to dinner after hearing the charge.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—Early advances were followed by reactions in the cotton market today, December selling off from 17.78 to 17.50, compared with 17.— at the close of the previous day. December closed at 17.50, the general market closing easy, net 1 point higher to 4 points lower.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points under a renewal of yesterday's selling movement. Initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying or covering, and the forenoon market steadied up on nervousness over the tropical storm situation, larger domestic consumption figures for August than expected, and reports that trade demand was a little more active around the 17½ cent level.

October rallied from 17.52 to 17.76, while March sold up from 17.41 to 17.63 net advances of 13 to 22 points on the general list. Demand then tapered off and the market worked gradually lower during the afternoon when there seemed to be less apprehension as to the future course of the storm. There was liquidation or reselling by some of the earlier buyers; also a little more hedge selling during the last half hour, while the trade demand was less in evidence after the early buying had been supplied.

The report of the census bureau showed consumption of 526,729 bales in this country for August, or about 30,000 bales above recent forecasts. Early buying also was promoted by reports that a fair volume of business had been done in cotton cloths during the week at the decline in prices.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14. (AP)—An advance of over $1 a bale followed publication of the consumption total for August in the cotton market today but the improvement met selling induced by indications that the tropical storm would miss the cotton belt. December contracts sold down from 17.18 to 16.92, and closed at 16.95, compared with 16.93 at yesterday's close. The general market closed steady net 1 point up to 4 down.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady at the start here but the market opened irregular, first trades being unchanged to 8 points down compared with the previous close. Prices steadied however, soon after the start on a bullish report of crop progress in Texas and the demand increased after the census bureau's report was issued showing 526,729 bales of cotton consumed by domestic mills during August, which was larger than the trade expected. October advanced to 17.08, and December 17.18, or 26 to 33 points up from the opening figures and 25 points above yesterday's close.

Later selling became more aggressive in the face of disappointing weekly statistics, particularly mill takings, and after midsession the decline gained momentum when a storm warning was issued indicating the possibility that the tropical disturbance would not reach the cotton region. Before the offerings were absorbed prices sagged to the early lows with October at 16.83 and December 16.95, or 23 to 25 points below the highs. The market closed at these prices with little net change for the day.

Warner Brothers Fiasco Signal For Crash In Stock Market Trading

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Precipitate decline in Warner Brothers stock unsettled the entire market toward the close today, wiping out a good part of the gains registered in another strong and active session. Warner broke wide open without warning.

The oils, which had been active and strong throughout, held most of their gains, however, with Texas, Tidewater and Barnsdall in the lead.

Cerro de Pasco and Greene Cananea were the outstanding features of strength in the coppers. Rails remained dull but continued to display a firm undertone. The industrials were in new high record ground when the Warner fiasco occurred with the tape a half hour behind as orders poured in under the stimulus of easier money, with the result that total transactions topped the 4,500,000 share level again.

Loans Increase

There were loans made at 6½ and 6¾ per cent while the official call rate held at 7 per cent throughout the session. The increase in broker's loans of $95,000,000 reported bythe reserve bank had no effect whatsoever. It was interesting to note, however, that the increase was caused by a gain of more than $60,000,000 in loans "for others" and of $78,000,000 for out of town banks, while the local banks were cutting down their accomodations. This tends to show that the new clearing house regulations have no effect on the call money market so long as those who want to trade are willing to pay 8 per cent and higher for the wherewithal. The better supply of call money offset the increased loans as the fact was rather overlooked that this condition is to be enjoyed but for a day or two.

The Warner episode, with a 20 point break in 10 minutes, was a demonstration of why the best market students continue to advise caution and also that there is no "new era" insofar as catching stop loss orders is concerned.

Investigation Talked

There was widespread talk of "investigation" after the close but nothing much is going to help the public following squeezed out in the precipitate decline. There are at least a dozen other stocks which would suffer to an equal extent the moment a similar touching off of stop-loss orders, with which the market is honeycombed, took place. Why group support for Warner was not there when needed probably never will be told but that the lesson was not entirely lost was evidenced by the resulting unsettlement throughout the entire list.

Further advance in Republic Iron was credited to the steel group who, as told here eariler in the week, think it is another Cast Iron Pipe by reason of the steel tube process it now controls.

Chrysler was again the most active independent motor, shares being taken in big blocks and showing most tendency to follow the operation in General Motors. Reo benefited from merger rumors. Cerro de Pasco registered a new high record price, due to recognition of the favorable dividend prospects. Eureka Vaccum jumped as the pool which it took several weeks to form finally started work.

Oil Active

Oil shares took an even more prominent place with bullish leaders most responsible for advances in outstanding industrials recently concentrating their attention to Texas and Tidewater. They both registered new highs for the move and were followed by Barnsdall, Mexican Seaboard and others.

The return of prominent oil executives from abroad, where conferences on international stabilization of production were held, was the signal for the aggressive operations of the group interested.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 14. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Cattle prices around the 11-market circuit were little changed; trade at most points was the usual Friday cleanup; choice long yearlings in Chicago realized $18.40, and St. Joseph attained $18 on choice 1,025-pound yearlings; eastern dressed beef markets were draggy today at 30c@$1.00 lower, prices with the lower grades of steers showing the most decline; a dull week-end close on dressed beef at eastern points is usually an indication of a slow live trade the following week unless receipts are light to moderate; aggregate supplies today were estimated at 15,700 as compared with 13,696 a week ago and 9,870 a year ago; the week's receipts to to date show an increase of 54,000 over the same period last week.

Although fresh receipts for fat lambs were moderate, packers insisted on another decline of 25@50c; the Chicago market was in a semi-glutted condition, the week's heavy receipts at this point having taxed slaughter facilities. Western lambs in Chicago topped at $14.35 while best rangers at Kansas City were only a notch behind at $14.25. Receipts were estimated at 55,000 against 54,264 a week ago, and 59,118 the same day last year.

Opening trade on hogs ruled steady to 10c lower, but the close at several markets was dull at 10@25c lower figures. Choice 180@210 pound butchers in Chicago topped at $13.50. Total offerings approximated 43,400, about the same as last Friday, but 1,500 heavier than a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 14. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 700; market mostly steady; top 12.25; truck top $12.00; bulk desirable 170 to 210 pounds rail hogs, $11.75@12.25.

Cattle—Receipts 3,500; market only three cars slaughter steers on sale; big bulk receipts plain mixed butcher classes; all classes cattle shown fully steady; two cars grass slaughter steers $10; one load good to choice lightweight cake feds $12.25, desirable fat yearlings practically lacking, few fat cows up to $9.50; bulk butcher grades $7.25@7.75; about one and one-half loads choice 226-pound vealers $13.50; some good to choice heavy calves on order $12.35.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. BRADSTREET'S STATEMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

The return of high temperatures, west and north, with rather too much rain in the spring wheat northwest and in the southeast, has slowed down fall buying slightly, but on the other hand, has helped to free a good portion of the corn from danger of frost damage. Another week of warm weather will find the great bulk of that crop beyond trouble from this source.

Other outstanding features of the week's news have been the increased strength of cruder forms of iron and steel, with numerous advances in steel scrap and pig iron; the continued activity at automobile manufacturing centers, where a possible new record of production for 1928 is talked of; advices from several centers, Illinois cities being a possible exception, that employment is increasing and advices from the association of Cotton Textile merchants that sales and shipments of cotton goods in August exceeded production by 12.7 and 7.1 per cent, respectively.

Weekly bank clearings $11,273,819,000, an increase of 8.0 per cent over last year.

Grain

CHICAGO REVIEW
By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. (US)—Grains closed higher today and acted at the end as if the markets were full of invisible strength. Too much selling may have been done at the present level and under it. A decided upturn in all the futures tomorrow may surprise shorts unpleasantly.

At the end wheat was up ⅜ to ⅝c; corn was up ⅝ to 1⅛c; oats were ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower; rye was up ⅛ to 1⅛c.

All this week wheat has been pounding around near the bottom, but gradually working upward. Its low point daily has been successively higher. There was plenty of selling that was easy to trace, but the buying was not obvious.

During this period the most bearish news has been disseminated. It failed to weaken the market as bears supposed it would.

The Liverpool market sagged away, but neither our market nor Winnipeg would follow it downward persistently. Liverpool again today was weak early, but toward the close it strengthened up quite decidedly.

Crop conditions and enormous supplies look as bearish as ever, but it is well to remember that the futures market is always discounting the situation far ahead of time. For the present, at least, it acts as if it had discounted the bearish situation.

Later the market may go lower than it has yet been, but that does not seem likely now until after there is a speculative readjustment which probably would mean a sharp advance.

When all is said and done it is the market itself that tells the story, and when a market will not break in the face of such bear news as has been spread abroad during this week it is, in my opinion, a dangerous market for the short.

The same kind of strength that appeared this week to be developing in wheat also seemed to be apparent in corn. The strength in the September future gives an aspect of excessive power to all the futures.

In spite of the fact that we are heading into a magnificent new crop, the market has been gathering upward momentum. Tomorrow there may be talk of frost in the corn belt before Monday.

Turkeys Reach Local Markets

Broiler turkeys were added to local poultry markets Friday, presaging trading in these birds that is to come. The Wichita Falls Poultry and Egg company already has purchased a few turkey broilers this season, paying 25 cents. Prices on all poultry were revised with Friday's quotations.

Cotton dropped off 50 points again Friday completing a 200 point drop since release of the government estimated production of 14,400,000 500-pound equivalent bales last Saturday. Prior to the department of agriculture release local brokers were offering 18 cents.

Produce markets showed a tendency toward increase in price in seasonal fruits and vegetables during the week. Watermelons and cantaloupes were taken from the local offerings during the week.

CROP REPORT HURTS COTTON

Price Suffers $8 Decline During Week

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. (AP)—Publication of the government crop report after the close of the market here last Saturday was followed by general selling and a decline of about $8 per bale, during the past week. The official crop indication of 14,439,000 bales was about in line with the average of private reports previously published, but the fact that it showed an increase of about 148,000 bales over the Aug. 1 indication, evidently made a bearish impression on sentiment.

Moreover, it is probable that a disposition to sell the market on the expectation of declines under the weight of the early movement had been held in check before the publication of the estimate, but became operative as soon as the figures were known.

Reports of improving weather conditions in the South contributed to the decline later and December contracts heer sold off to approximately the 17½ cent level at the end of the week, making a decline of 165 points from the high price touched last Saturday morning. According to local brokers one of the chief factors on the decline has been the expectation of a decline under the weight of the early new crop movement.

Receipts now are increasing and while mostly in small lots hedging has been more in evidence during the past week. This has been offset to some extent by trade buying, but the demand from that source has been chiefly on scale down orders, and some traders question whether it will broaden sufficiently to keep pace with picking as the season advances.

Mill stocks both at home and abroad were considerably reduced last season, however, while rather more encouraging reports have been received recently from the domestic goods markets, and trade buying was reported rather more active toward the end of the week.

Crop advices reaching here from the South have indicated further deterioration resulting from such causes as boll rot in the East, root rot in the West, shedding and insect damage, but they appear to have had comparatively little impression on sentiment. For the movement, at least, the tendency has been to talk a crop of about 14½ million bales while in some quarters estimates of world's consumption for the season have been scaled down to about or slightly below 15,000,000 bales.

'AVERAGE' DRY DEMOS VICTORS

Moody Quells Extremes in Two Conventions

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Sept. 14.—Dominance of the "middle-ground" dry Democrats who will support the national ticket, in the party's state convention at Dallas, has definitely taken Texas out of the list of doubtful states, and assured a Democratic victory in November. This is the consensus of opinion as the political leaders returned from the convention.

Governor Dan Moody, standing firmly upon the known majority dry sentiment of Texas, and at the same time upholding the principles of Democracy of the majority rule through organization party expression, and of support of the nominees fairly determined, won again in Dallas, just as he carried the day at the Beaumont state convention, fighting extremists on both sides.

It is the prohibitionists of Texas who will keep the state in the Democratic ranks, made up of men and women who do not subscribe to the personal views of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the nominee for president, but who believe they stand is firmly upon the national platform's demand for support of the prohibition laws as does Governor Smith, it has been pointed out.

Reaffirms Stand

Governor Moody's fight, the victorious dry-regular Democrats point out, was "in character" with that which he has made throughout the year. It was to reaffirm Texas' stand for upholding and enforcing the prohibition laws, and at the same time to keep intact and to support the party organization, rather than breaking away and giving aid and comfort to the political enemy. In Beaumont he first encountered and defeated an aggressive ultra-dry attempt to alienate Texas from the Democratic party in one stroke. Then he turned and defeated an equally aggressive effort of ultra-Smith leaders, to so bind the party in Texas to the views and fortunes of one man as to incite revolt among the majority element of the party in the state.

At the national convention in Houston, Governor Moody carried forward the same fight, and as a result of his own efforts, the 18th amendment was mentioned by name in the national platform.

The ultra-dry element was soon outside the Democratic convention at Dallas this week; but Moody, representing the dry Democracy of the state held firm in his same fight to reaffirm the state's loyalty to the prohibition amendment and laws and state laws as written, and carried the day again.

Drys Victorious

Thus, the prohibition Democrats of Texas, by far the majority of the party, have won their fight. Their demands are in the state and national platforms. They have been shown non-enforcement of the national laws for nearly eight years reflects the attitude of the Republican party more clearly than its platform wording, since its hand-picked nominees are pledged to continue the policies of the present administration. They have been convinced that a fight upon the Democratic nominees would weaken, rather than help their own cause.

Texas was a doubtful state until the Dallas convention in this respect, it has been said.

Had Governor Moody and the zealous Smith bandwagon group come to a break, the combined Republican vote, the ultra-dry vote, the straight anti-Smith vote, and the indifferent voters who stayed away from the polls, and the dry Democrats who follow Governor Moody, would have been sufficient to defeat the remaining group of Smith supporters.

But with Governor Moody and the majority element of dry Democrats firmly entrenched as the leaders of the party for party regularity, it has become certain, in the minds of observers here, that another regular Democratic victory this fall is inevitable.

Marland and Magnolia Make New Locations

Special to The Record News.

MIDLAND, Texas, Sept. 14.—Magnolia Petroleum company made locations for two new oil tests in Howard county this week on the Dora Roberts farm, which were Nos. 14 and 15, section 157, block 29, W. & N. W. survey.

Marland Oil company will also drill two wells in Howard according to report given out this week. These tests are No. 2-C Clay, section 126, block 29, W. & N. W. survey; and No. 8-A Clay on section 139, block 29, W. & N. W. survey.

LEWIS-WAGGONER

The Lewis Oil corporation No. 1 W. T. Waggoner located 210 feet north and east of the southwest corner, of the northeast quarter of section 18, block 4, H. & T. C. survey, Wilbarger county is drilling at 2395 feet with 800 feet of oil in the hole. The well which is located a short distance northeast of the Phillips Petroleum corporation's well, topped a sandy shale at 2360 feet, and about 15 feet lower than it was picked up in the Phillips producer. This was penetrated to 2367 when after standing over night showed 800 feet of oil in the hole.

IN MONTAGUE COUNTY

The Superior Oil Producing company made location for its No. 1 O. N. Miller test to be drilled 575 feet south of north line, and 2490 feet west of east line of section 58, W. J. Miller farm in abstract 844 Montague county.

PANHANDLE-HINES-WAGGONER

The Panhandle Refining company-Harry Hines have set casing and cemented its No. 6 J. & J. Waggoner test located on G. C. S. F. survey, southwest Wichita county. The sand which is showing oil was topped at 1385 feet.

TEN INCH SET

The Texas company H-1 W. T. Waggoner located in section 2, block 5, H. & T. C. survey, southeast Wilbarger county has set the 10-inch casing and is now drilling at a depth of 1501 feet.

FAIN-McGAHA-WAGGONER

The completion of a commercial producer of some kind in the 1800-foot sand in section 32, block 4, H. & T. C. R. R. survey in Wilbarger county is looked for by the showing of oil in the sand at 1825 feet. The well which encountered the sand several days ago was placed on the swab and produced considerable oil, but due to a leaky casing the seat gave way and it was necessary to reset. The outcome of operations will be watched with interest as it is the only well to test out this horizon in this section, the closest production from the 1800 pay being the Staley-Wynne, some distance to the south. Other wells producing around it are in the 2300 and 2400 foot pays.

HARRY HINES-PANHANDLE

Harry Hines and the Panhandle Refining company have spudded in on their No. 1 Burnett test located in the G. P. Meade survey south of Electra in Southwest Wichita county.

PANHANDLE-MENARD

The Panhandle Refining company No. 1 Eckard located 18 miles northwest of Menard, in Menard county, is preparing to drill out the plug from the sand in its wildcat test at 2970 feet some time Saturday

Marland Denies Reported Break

TULSA, Sept. 14. (UP)—A reported break in oil shutdown agreements of the Maud-Mission areas, which would result in the immediate drilling of 60 wells, failed to materialize this afternoon.

When representatives of operators in that area met here today, no representative of the Marland Oil company was present. This gave rise to reports that the Marland Oil company did not desire to co-operate, thereby nullifying the agreement.

Later, just when it appeared the meeting would result in abandonment of the plan, Ray Collins, Seminole umpire, announced the Marland company had called him from Ponca City advising that it was willing to continue the shutdown program.

PENN CRUDE GOES UP AGAIN

Eastern Grades Now Near Normal Prices

Out of the East cheering news for the oil industry yesterday.

Pennsylvania grades of crude oil, which have been slowly but steadily rising in price during the past 10 months, were again advanced 15 cents per barrel yesterday, wires from Pittsburgh said.

Penn crude is to the oil industry what the Maine election is to the Republican optimists, an infallible barometer of the future trend. Seldom has Pennsylvania oil been advanced that subsequent hikes were not made in petroleum produced in other fields of the country.

Yesterday's raise puts the Penn schedule practically at the level it maintained previous to the devastating slashes which followed the floods of production in Seminole and elsewhere. Although Penn crude comprises a very small part of the nation's oil supply, it is the most sought after grade and hence the first to enjoy price raises.

Now that the Eastern grades are within a couple of short steps of the pre-Seminole price scale, generally considered as normal, oil men say that the natural thing to expect is for the Mid-Continent schedule to reach normalcy soon.

Producers and refiners alike look with considerable gratification upon the fact that motorists are using more gasoline at present than ever before.

The Joseph Seep Purchasing agency of the South Penn Oil company announced the following schedule:

Pennsylvania grade oil in New York transit lines $3.35.

Bradford district oil in National transit lines $3.35.

Pennsylvania grade oil in National lines $3.25.

Pennsylvania grade oil in Eureka pipe lines $3.15.

Corning grade oil in Buckeye Pipe Line company lines $3.00.

Somerset medium oil in Cumberland Pipe Line company lines advanced 5 cents a barrel to $1.75.

JEWS OBSERVE NEW YEAR DAY

Wichitans Hold Services at Temple

Saturday is the Jewish New Year's day, and is being observed by the Jews of Wichita Falls in accordance with the customs of their religion. The day is known to the Jews as Rosh Hashanah.

New Year's eve services were held Friday evening at Temple Israel where Rabbi J. S. Schwab spoke on "A Parting and a Greeting," and at the House of Jacob where Rabbi A. Rabinowitz of the orthodox congregation was assisted by J. Goldstein of Fort Worth.

Rabbi Schwab will speak on "The Offering" at the 10 o'clock services at Temple Israel Saturday morning. Paul Goldstucker, Hebrew Union college student and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Goldstucker of Wichita Falls, will assist the rabbi. Mrs. T. G. Fletcher, Miss Ruth Wilcox, George Taylor and A. Hall will sing. Mrs. Carrie Wilcox will preside at the organ.

The House of Jacob service Saturday morning will be held at 8 o'clock. Another service will be held at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Rabbi Rabinowitz will blow the trumpet at the 8 o'clock service Sunday morning.

The Jewish new year has several significances, and is now generally taken to mean a period of self examination, repentance and reconciliation with God and man.

Hammond Buys New Type Monoplane

Death Strikes Father of Wichitan As He Sits at Wheel of Auto

J. W. Collins of Austin, died Friday morning en route from Wichita Falls to Haskell following a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Collins was the father of Dr. Bailey R. Collins and Miss Eilene Collins of Wichita Falls.

When Mr. Collins was found by Dr. Q. B. Lee of the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital, who was making a call at Seymour, he was slumped over the steering wheel of his automobile.

He was taken back to a small town by Dr. Lee and died soon after being found. The body was taken in charge by the Hines mortuary.

Funeral arrangements had not been made late Friday. Friends of Dr. Collins broadcast notices over station KGKO in an attempt to locate him on the route to Houston.

Mr. Collins is survived by one son, Dr. Bailey R. Collins of Wichita Falls and two daughters, Miss Eilene Collins of Wichita Fals and Miss Mary Collins of Austin.

City Inspector Warned of Job as Writers of Threat Letters Keep Busy

Mystery threat letters continue to come to Wichita Falls citizens.

Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief inspector of the city sanitary department, received one Friday.

The letter was written on the back of a check and read as follows: "You are the next to go. You are being watched as to the time you devote to your private practice. Watch your step until a certain party leaves the city."

Dr. Farrell said he had no idea who might have written the note or to whom the note referred.

"I can't believe that anyone with common sense would send such a thing through the mails as it contains an open threat against my job. I am not now engaged in any private practice and have not been so engaged since I was named chief inspector by the city manager as I promised him I would not."

Business Council Hears Baseball Dope in First Fall Meeting

There are a number of fine young players among the Abilene Aces of the West Texas league who will some day make good Spudders, in the opinion of J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Spudder team; and Jim Galloway has confidence the Spuds will wallop Houston in the remaining games of the Texas league pennant playoff series.

These two statements were the high spots at the first meeting of the fall of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce business council in the Kemp hotel. The Spudders were guests of the council at the meeting which was attended by one of the smallest crowds of the year.

Attention to the difference in the spirit of cooperation of the Houston and the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce was emphasized by Mr. Gardner who said the Houston chamber refused to have anything to do with the special train of Houston supporters that came here for the first two games of the series.

"There were 37 in the Houston party," he said.

"In Wichita Falls, the chamber of commerce cooperated and got in behind the train and worked hard. J. W. Chatham, traffic manager of the chamber was assigned to the task by Hubert Harrison, general manager, and the result is that 150 Wichitans are ready to go to Houston tonight." (The Spudder special left Wichita Falls at 8 o'clock Friday evening with about 150 aboard.)

P. A. Cordell spoke a few words in eulogy of the Spudders on behalf of the chamber and expressed the good will of the city and the chamber to the owners and the team.

Hubert Harrison made a short talk in which he told of the unfinished work of the springtime which the chamber will endeavor to complete. Among these things he mentioned the Petroleum Air Line which is destined eventually to connect Wichita Falls with the oil fields in the Tulsa and San Angelo districts and which tentatively also includes Oklahoma City, Duncan, Bartlesville and Abilene.

Attention was called to the fact that the meeting next Friday will be designated in honor of Sherman, whose business men will then be here.

Asks About Manager

COULD NOT GET OUT OF BED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Strengthened Her

Elkhart, Ind.—"I had a tired feeling and was unable to get out of bed without the help of my husband. We heard of the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I am still taking it and it sure is a help to me. I can do my work without resting before I am through. I know that if women will give the Vegetable Compound a trial they can overcome those tired and worn-out feelings. I cannot express the happiness I have received and how completely it has made over my home."—Mrs. D. H. Stuber, 1226 Laurel St., Elkhart, Indiana.

Damages of $1,180 are sought by Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Baxter from C. E. Sturdivant and Louis Sturdivant in a suit filed in district court Friday.

School - College Notes

The staff for the Wai-Kun, the junior college year book, held conferences during Friday afternoon, laying plans for the year. The suggested layout of the dummy of the 1929 Wai-Kun has just been received from the engravers and is being discussed in order to begin active work. Class pictures will be taken in the near future.

The executive committee is as follows: Miss Verna Sellers, editorial sponsor; R. O. Jonas, business sponsor; Mack Thomas, editor-in-chief; Lloyd Wyatt, art editor; Jim Tom Barton, business manager.

A meeting of the Wichitan staff will be held Monday morning in room 121 during the 30-minute period. The meeting will be called to organize the staff.

The Writers' club will meet next Wednesday morning in room 127 during the 30-minute period, according to Miss Weber, the sponsor of the club. The club is a strictly college club, and all students are invited to attend the meeting. For the first few weeks the club will deal mostly with feature articles and newspaper work, but will later start on playwriting.

Typewriting seems to be one of the most popular elective courses at the junior college and high school. According to Mr. Webb, an instructor, all classes are full and some of them over-crowded to the extent that some students are forced to change to some other subject.

The enrollment Friday at the high school reached the number 1,231, an increase of over 100 over that of last year. The total enrollment at the college has not shown such an increase, the number being 225 at the close of school Friday. This number is expected to increase by a few students before the close of the semester.

The Snider library opened to college students Thursday morning. In the past it had been necessary to close the doors of the library to all college students until several days after the opening of school.

The study halls have been removed from the library this year, owing to the demand for the desks by students who must have access to the room. The library will also be open on Saturdays until noon, according to Miss Lillian Jones, the librarian.

The high school band will organize next Tuesday, according to L. M. Underwood, director.

VERDICT ENDS SLANDER SUIT

Stories Untrue But Without Malice, Decision

Although a jury in 89th district court returned a verdict for D. G. Rigsby Friday in the $75,000 slander suit filed against him by W. S. Duval, president of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce, the jurors reported that their investigations revealed that remarks made about Mr. Duval by Mr. Rigsby were untrue.

Mr. Rigsby was absolved from liability by the jury on the grounds that, although he did make certain statements regarding misappropriation of money by Mr. Duval which were untrue, "in making the statements about Mr. Duvall, Mr. Rigsby was not actuated by malicious intent."

Testimony during the trial, which extended over a period of four days, brought out that the two men were once associated in the grain business and that Mr. Rigsby told mutual friends that Mr. Duval had appropriated for his own use $40,000 or $50,000 of Mr. Rigsby's money while in his employ during a period of eight or nine years.

Mr. Duval had brought suit for $50,000 actual and $25,000 exemplary damages.

Wichitans Attend Erwin Services

Three Wichitans, friends of long standing of Frank Erwin of Dallas, attended his funeral there Friday, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager. Mr. Erwin died of shock in a Dallas hospital a few hours after a falling rock had crushed out the life of his 14-year-old son.

Those making the trip were P. B. Curd, former city commissioner; Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the water department, and Ed Chamberlin, an employe of the water department.

Mr. Erwin was due in Wichita Falls the Friday, the day he was buried, to rehearse his part with Joe Ward for a vaudeville skit the two were to have presented in Dallas in October at the Southwestern Waterworks convention.
