Mammoth Find

Pupil Digs Back 10,000 Years

That's quite a find, all right, that James Bradbury made on his 8th Grade science trip to Colorado's San Geronimo south of Colorado City.

Scientific tests at University of Texas at Austin have revealed the remains are the upper part of a 10,000-year-old mammoth.

He said, according to the report received from the university's radio-carbon test, the bones are about 10,000 years old.

Such animals became extinct in Texas about 10,000 years ago, before the birth of Christ. The 8th Grade science trip was in October, with the entire science class participating.

At that time, Science teacher Lee F. Bradbury believed the remains to be part of an eight-foot animal so they sent it to Austin for special tests.

Now, tests at the university have confirmed their appraisal and brought even more plate-

The Colorado City area for many years has been known as an area with preserved remains of pre-historic life. In fact, these finds are prominent in such nationally known institutions as the Museum of Western History in Denver, Colo.

County Voters Register Slow

Mitchell County voter registration reached 1,753 Saturday but that leaves more than half the potential still to register before Jan. 31 deadline.

Moving swiftly at the start, registration has slowed to a snail's pace during recent weeks.

If the county's potential is to qualify itself for casting ballots in this important election year -- precinct, county, district and state -- then the staff of County Tax Assessor-Collector Montie Harder is in for a rush during the next three weeks.

Eight precinct and county candidates already have announced in Mitchell County.

On a wider horizon, a successor will be selected for State Rep. Temple Dickson and a Democratic primary race is definite already between U.S. Senator Ralph Yarborough and Lloyd Benson, wealthy Houston insurance and oil executive.

There may be primary races,

Ministers Work For Registration

Mitchell County ministers are mustering citizens to register for voting.

Members of Mitchell County Ministerial Alliance agreed Tuesday at their noon meeting to encourage their church members, and all citizens to register.

It is an intensified effort, without taking political sides, for citizens to exercise their free vote.

Their resolution for action comes with registration deadline, Jan. 31, only three weeks away and registration lagging here in Mitchell County and across the entire state.

Ministers, in addition encouraging their respective memberships, approved two additional actions in the registration resolution:

1. To encourage members of their churches who cannot go to register at the Courthouse to register in their respective residences Saturday, Jan. 17 from 1 to 4 p.m. This can be accomplished by phoning 728-2321 (First United Methodist Church) before Jan. 17 so that a special register can

4-Day Flood Control Study

Engineers, Economist To Survey Lone Wolf

Proposed flood prevention and channel improvement project for Lone Wolf Creek comes under the appraising eyes this week of planning engineers and an economist.

The four-day study by the specialists will be a prime factor as to whether federal assistance is obtained for the needed project.

Application for the project was made in October 1966, following extensive flood damage all along the 27,656 acres of watershed in Colorado City area.

Mitchell County Commissioners' Court joined with Mitchell County Soil & Water Conservation District in filing the application.

Making the engineering survey will be engineers B. N. McGill of State Soil Conservation Service in Temple and Leland Barnes, engineer from State Soil & Water Conservation Board, and W. W. (Bill) Snyder, economist for State SCS in Temple.

They will point their studies in these two directions:

(1) What can be done to prevent re-occurring damage and losses in the Lone Wolf Creek floodplain.

(2) Appraise the cost of appropriate corrective measure in comparison with the dollar benefit these corrective measures will provide.

The trio will arrive here Monday afternoon to begin their survey work, according to Don Hodges, SCS supervisor here.

Major floods have been happening on the Lone Wolf watershed at least every other year. This series has been started in 1961, 1963, 1964 and 1965 by Mitchell Soil & Water Conservation District. There was no interruption this year with extensive damage coming again with serious loss.

The creek causes at least $30,700 damage every year -- not just the flood years -- to agriculture and non-agriculture.

This includes $17,240 to field crops and pastures, $5,330 for other agricultural damage, at least $6,000 for roads and bridges and more than $2,150 for re-routing of mail and school buses, etc.

In addition, Commissioners' Court in "very conservative estimate" say that more than $16,000 in county taxpayers funds were necessary to make emergency repairs to repairs to roads in the Lone Wolf plan after the two days of heavy rains last May 13.

This money brought the roads back only to "passable condition" and the actual loss to Mitchell County taxpayers is more than $25,000 or $30,000, when this road damage is appraised with the cost of restoring the roads to original condition.

Hodges said the three specialists from Temple will report Thursday evening at 7 p.m. to sponsors of the project -- Soil & Water Conservation District directors and Commissioners' Court. Other interested persons are invited to attend the report meeting in Lone Wolf Electric's Medallion Room.

FOR PIONEER LAWMAN

New Historical Marker

Another Texas historical marker has been awarded to Mitchell County.

This time the official recognition is for J. B. McMurtry, Texas Ranger and Mitchell County sheriff during this area's earliest pioneer days.

The Texas Historical Marker was announced Saturday by Mrs. A. C. Geer, chairman of Mitchell County Historical Society Committee, which has repeatedly been cited as one of the foremost organizations of its kind in Texas.

Mrs. Geer was notified of the new marker by Truett Lattner, executive director of the state committee in Austin.

McMurtry, a native of Tennessee, was reared in Fort Worth. In 1862 he joined Company B, Frontier Battalion, Texas Rangers, under a brother, Captain Sam McMurtry.

Company B had the assignment of enforcing law in the Colorado City area as it emerged from a buffalo hunting ground into a frontier cattle town.

McMurtry became sheriff of Mitchell County in 1892 and served in that frontier lawman's duty to 1896.

One of his prominent actions was the capture of outlaw Bill Cooke, notorious murderer and train robber.

After taking off his sheriff's badge, McMurtry was a merchant and cotton broker. For many years he was a deacon in the Presbyterian Church.

Dedicatory program for placing of the marker at McMurtry's grave will be scheduled later.

The immunization, free to all children in the 4-6 age span, is part of the Texas State Department of Public Health's move to wipe out the dangerous disease.

Mrs. Mike Hamman, Colorado City public schools health nurse, said the vaccine will be administered in Kelley Elementary School.

Immunization of the first six grades of school children began several weeks ago and will be completed also Thursday with students of fourth, fifth and sixth grades receiving vaccine along with the 4-6 age group.

The two teams battle here Friday night after the Wolves' open district title play Tuesday in San Angelo against Lake View.

Erwin 'In'

8th Local Candidate

Candidate No. 8 entered Mitchell County's 1970 political campaign.

He is Bill Erwin, District Clerk, who will be seeking his fourth term in the office.

His announcement, emphasizing improvements in the operation of the district clerk's office, came as he recovered from illness in his home.

Erwin pointed out, that during his tenure the District Clerk has revised the entire civil court docket index for the last 40 years; set up and placed into operation for the first time a criminal court index.

Administration of child support funds under terms of district court has increased from approximately $200 to $20,000 per month during the same office tenure.

"On the basis of this service," Erwin said, "I am asking for re-election as your District Clerk."

"I am sincerely appreciative of cooperation and support extended to me through the years and pledge that I will continue to serve honestly and efficiently in this important office."

Erwin has served as secretary-treasurer of Texas Association of District Clerks, an office he was elected to by

'Romeo and Juliet' Starts Wednesday

Stars of "Romeo and Juliet" are two virtual teenaged unknowns, Leonard Whiting, 17, and 15-year-old Olivia Hussey.

The two young British performers were chosen for the movie, which opens Wednesday at Palace Theatre, from 300 youngsters auditioned.

Whiting, a London lad, finished school only two weeks before beginning the film.

He played the Artful Dodger in the long-running London musical, "Oliver!" and appeared in the National Theatre production of "Love for Love" which toured Moscow and Berlin.

Miss Hussey was playing a school girl in the London stage hit, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," until a week before starting "Romeo and Juliet."

The current movie is an English language film adapted for the screen, retaining all the great moments and speeches but translating much of the rest into action.

Franco Zeffirelli, leading contemporary interpreter of Shakespeare, made his motion picture debut last year with the popular, "The Taming of the Shrew," starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton.

'Romeo and Juliet'

"Danger this is thy sheath," cries Juliet as she prepares to join Romeo in death. Leonard Whiting plays Romeo and Olivia Hussey plays Juliet in the Franco Zeffirelli production of "Romeo and Juliet" opening Wednesday at Palace Theatre.

CONVERSATION CORNER

TROUBLE with inferiority complexes is that the wrong people get them," writes Earl Wilson in one of his "Remembered Quotes" paragraphs.

Earl Wilson, "show-biz" syndicated columnist who has the rare quality of using the kinder approach, the gentler judgement, didn't reveal his source for that succinct quote. Have the feeling it may be one of his own little bits of philosophy. His father was a minister. So he may have said it, once.

At any rate, whoever said it, the sentence has the ring of truth. There are all kinds of troubles with inferiority complexes.

Maybe the main trouble is that nearly everybody gets one, sooner or later, in this age of phisic exploration and exploitation.

It may be due, in part, to so much advice in modern magazine articles.

GIVE a woman time to read enough magazine articles and she winds up feeling like a flat failure, a total flop in any number of directions.

Time a woman reads six different articles dealing with how to cope with the children, talk to teenagers, keep her man happy, and save money all at the same time, she just naturally develops an inferiority complex—because all six articles have different and contradicting suggestions for solving every time for everybody.

Trouble with trying to pattern a happy household after articles like "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" or "Why You Can't Live On Your Husband's Salary" is that husbands rarely cooperate.

Can This Marriage Be Saved? reads like an old copy of True Story and for husbands bother to be all that onery, that complicated.

Why You Can't Live On Your Husband's Salary deals in the five and six figure income bracket which makes it read like more fiction too.

And even Dr. Spock has yet to explain fully what to do when your little darling refuses to fit into any of his behavior patterns.

No wonder the wrong people get inferiority complexes. The children can't read and some husband won't read how they are supposed to act or read. They're mostly on their own non-competence.

HAVE you a little inferiority complex in your stuff? Well, all the wrong people do, it seizes here. There are ways of living happily ever after in spite of the silly things.

One frequently experienced way is to spotlight all your own virtues. Everybody has a few virtues to look about too.

Can't make flakey pie crust? Try the package cake. Eggs break in the skillet? Scramble 'em. Children won't get to bed? Turn on the television. Start off with the dinner. Practice of so straighten up your closet.

Soft answer does not turn away wrath. Try yelling just once. Sometimes you get better results when you play it by ear.

TROUBLE with inferiority complexes is that they interfere with doing what comes naturally.

Trouble with inferiority complexes is that they handicap people trying hard to accent the positive.

Trouble with inferiority complexes is that they're ridiculous. In the first place, Nobody can do everything well. Nearly everybody can do a few things well.

Trouble with inferiority complexes is that they are really going out of style, anyhow.

Trouble with inferiority complexes is that the wrong people get them. And when the right people find that out, the trend is sure to be an epidemic of superiority complexes.

A superiority complex, dear readers, is the double cousin of the inferiority complex. Or maybe its identical twin.

National average loan levels of other feed grains will be:
grain sorghum, $1.61 per hundredweight; barley, 83 cents per bushel; oats, 63 cents per bushel; rye, $1.02 per bushel.
Price support is required by law for oats and rye, but there are no provisions for acreage limitations.

Feed grain price support payment rates will be: corn, 30 cents per bushel; grain sorghum, 93 cents per hundred-weight; barley, 20 cents per bushel.

Payment rate for this additional diversion will be based on 40 per cent of the total county price support (loan plus support payment) multiplied by a farm's projected yield of the crops involved.
No advance diversion payments will be made, Anderson pointed out.

Minimum diversion at 20 per cent of a farm's feed grain base acreage will be required for program participation. No payment will be made for this first 20 per cent diversion, except for small farms.

Payments will be made for additional diversion of corn, grain sorghum, and barley.
Maximum acreage that can be diverted for payment will be the larger of 30 per cent of a farm's feed grain base or 23 acres less the qualifying 20 per cent diversion.

LOADS

From Page 1 cent of the entire load, he said.

The rest will be carried away just as quickly as the city cruisers can load the debris into trucks.

Property owners have co-operated with the city, piling up the broken branches so that city workers could have easy access to the debris.

"But each truck load has to be piled on by hand," the city manager emphasized, "and that just takes time."

After the big haul-off, the city expects a second but small assignment of carrying away more limbs which will come from pruning which was forgotten until after the first loads of debris were already trucked away.

"The city is stacking the broken limbs in an open area near Little League baseball field so that it can all be burned under watchful eye of firemen.

Additional trouble -- not counting the chug holes showing up in streets after drying out from the hard freeze and heavy moisture -- has been with water line breaks.

A large 10-inch water line broke this week near Colorado Feed & Seed on West First and a 6-inch main had three breaks on the South Side.
