Soviets combating nuclear plant fire

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets appealed for advice from at least two countries in fighting a fire at its Chernobyl nuclear power plant where a disastrous accident may still be spewing radioactivity into the atmosphere today.

The Soviets today called the accident a disaster and said victims were receiving aid. A Foreign Ministry spokesman warned that travel to Kiev, 60 miles south of the plant, might be dangerous, but there was no confirmed word on deaths or injuries.

Experts and officials in the United States said the disaster was almost certainly a fuel meltdown that caused fatalities, and noted that radioactivity released in the accident also could pose a long-term health risk in the area.

The official news agency Tass first reported the accident Monday in a four-sentence dispatch saying one of the plant's atomic reactors was damaged and measures were being taken to "eliminate the consequences."

It did not say how serious the accident was or when it occurred. Abnormally high radiation levels were first detected Sunday in Finland and also reported in Denmark and Sweden, more than 750 miles northwest of the plant.

A brief broadcast over Radio Moscow was the first information today from the Soviets.

"A government commission has been set up to investigate what caused the accident ... and efforts are being applied to eliminate the consequences of the accident and to help the victims."

"The disaster was the first one at Soviet nuclear power plants in more than 30 years," the broadcast said. "Drastic measures are being carried out to guarantee the power reactors' reliability and safety."

An official of a West German atomic energy lobbying group said today the Soviet Embassy in Bonn asked for advice on how to fight fire in a nuclear power plant.

"That must be the worst (accident) that has ever happened in the peaceful use of nuclear energy," Manfred Petroll, of the West German Atomic Forum, told The Associated Press.

In Stockholm, Frigyes Reisch, a reactor inspector at Sweden's State Nuclear Power Inspection Board, disclosed that Soviet officials have sought Swedish advice on how "to combat a fire in a nuclear plant."

Hance TV ads under fire...

Republicans crossing state

The Associated Press

Texas' Republican gubernatorial candidates began the final election week crisscrossing the state, with candidate Kent Hance's television advertising grabbing the center of attention.

Former Gov. Bill Clements chided Hance for using actors to portray "man-on-the-street" supporters in a television commercial, while Hance also was confronted by Hispanics upset with his ads attacking illegal aliens.

In another campaign, state District Judge Roy Barrera of San Antonio, Republican candidate for attorney general, said he is confident of winning the GOP nomination without a runoff even though he has some name recognition problems.

And in Austin Monday, Democratic candidates for the Texas Railroad Commission, John Sharp of Victoria and John Pouland of Dallas, agreed on new rail safety efforts but disagreed on the need for a health care in-

U.S. 180 rework started

Work began Monday for extensive renovation to one of the two major roadways which bisect Snyder — U.S. Hwy. 180.

The repairs will see crews resurfacing it from East Highway to the western city limits — enroute taking in the eastern and western business districts in addition to an area around the downtown square.

The project's goal is to eliminate a "patchwork quilt" pattern of road repairs on 180 — in particular the surface along East Highway.

Highway officials have noted the work is "the most extensive possible short of tearing the whole thing up and starting over."

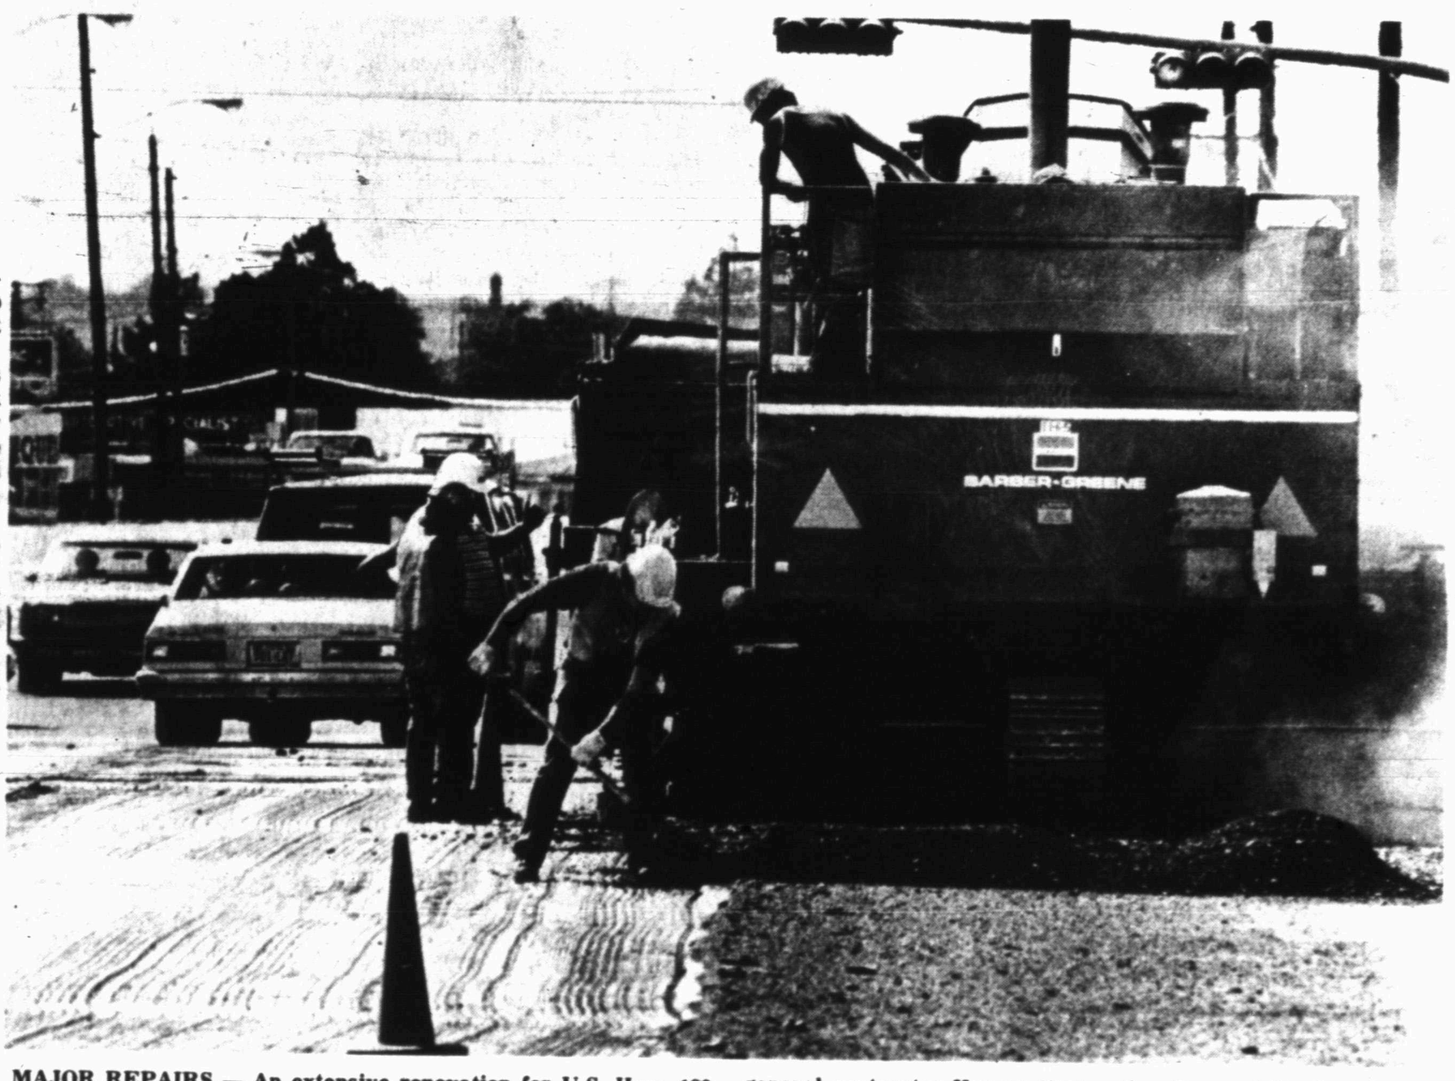

Monday, crews began "rotomilling" the surface of 180, a process which literally chews up the top ¾ inch of the highway.

Crews began at East Highway and are now working west.

The rotomill process is done to create a smooth surface again. Crews will then spray a layer of asphalt which will be the adhesive for a carpet of Petromat, a product of Phillips Petroleum.

Petromat is laid in rolls and

Election changes minus 'turnovers'

(Editor's Note: This article is the second of two regarding the challenge now before officials for Snyder ISD and the city council — the change from an at-large method of electing board members to single member districts).

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

"We tried to protect against a massive turnover," noted Levelland School Superintendent Dr. Gene Davenport."

"The thinking was this wouldn't do the board or the school system any good."

Davenport was referring to the recent changes effected to the Levelland ISD board of trustees after a lawsuit was brought against the district by local plaintiffs and the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project.

The suit was to change the district's method of electing its seven-member board from at-large method to single member district representation — a legal challenge the Snyder ISD as well as the city now faces.

Davenport, who will soon be leaving Levelland for a similar post in a Dallas-area AAAA school, added, "In the end, I think the change was good for the community. It brought some people together. Overall, it's been very harmonious."

The superintendent's self-expressed goal of protecting against "massive turnover" was also apparently achieved.

The school district held its first election under the new system in April — a change effected after some eight months of study and negotiation.

Before the change, the district operated with a seven-member board, all elected at large, to include one minority board member already in place.

Now, the number remains the same with four single-member districts and three posts elected at large.

Of the four single member districts, one is considered a minority district and a second "has the potential of being a minority district," Davenport said.

The recent April election was for two of the single member districts, one of these the one with a minority base.

The net result was that five incumbents remained on the board after the April ballot.

Over the next three years, the remainder of these seats will come up for re-election. Once the cycle is in place, the at-large elections will take place only once every three years.

The Levelland city council is different from the district in that it implemented single member districts a year earlier after a lawsuit was brought against it by a group of Levelland citizens.

Levelland City Manager Greg Ingham notes, "The city was Brud Boren, a partner in Hugh Boren and Son Agency, came by recently and asked if we had heard the recent news about a Midland man.

Brud says the man gave his son a 1,000-acre farm and a drilling rig. The man was charged with two counts of child abuse.

Kathy Landes of Landes Home Furnishings told SDN ad director Wayne Burney last week that the Dallas Cowboys were close to finalizing a deal to trade quarterback Gary Hogeboom.

Kathy says Tom Landry had offered Hogeboom to the U.S. State Department. "He's the only one who can overthrow Khadafy."

Ad man Burney is the song leader and Sunday school teacher at Northside Baptist Church.

Burney told us about a Sunday school teacher who asked all the children who wanted to go to Heaven to please raise their hands.

All except one little boy did as she instructed.

"Why," said the teacher, "don't you want to go to heaven?"

"Naw," said the youngster, "not if this bunch is going."

We read last week that Dallas, Texas is the divorce capital of the United States. Big D may now stand for "divorce" since the rate of marriage splits is 8.4 per 1,000 persons.

We have a friend who contends that the divorce rate is frightening. He says:

"My wife and I sleep in separate beds, eat our meals separately, and take separate vacations. We're doing everything we can to keep our marriage together."

White couple to adopt baby

HOUSTON (AP) — A black couple, who wanted to adopt a black baby girl found in a trash bin, said the white couple who was granted custody of the infant "bought themselves a black baby."

When 8-month-old Ashley Dennis was found four days after she was born, Wendell and Ruth Robbins, a black couple, saw her picture on television and immediately decided they wanted to adopt her.

The Harris County Children's Protective Services approved the Robbinses for the adoption late last year, but Arnold and Jana Neu, the baby's white foster parents, decided in January they wanted to adopt the baby, too.

On Monday, State District Judge Robert L. Lowry decided it was "in the best interests of the child" that she remain with the Neus and granted them custody of the little girl. The Neus have had Ashley since August.

Lowry said that county officials had rejected the Neus' adoption application without good cause, but declined to elaborate on his decision.

Mrs. Robbins, choking back tears after the ruling, said race was not the only issue in the custody battle but that she believes a black child would be better off in a black home.

"They have bought themselves a black baby," she said of the Neus. "If it had been a white baby and I had wanted to adopt, I could not have done that."

She said she did not know if she and her husband would appeal the decision or try to adopt another child. Their attorney, Bernadette Johnlewis, said the option is still open.

"This is so devastating," Mrs. Robbins said. "We had done everything right."

Both couples had been in court for nearly two weeks seeking the right to adopt the child.

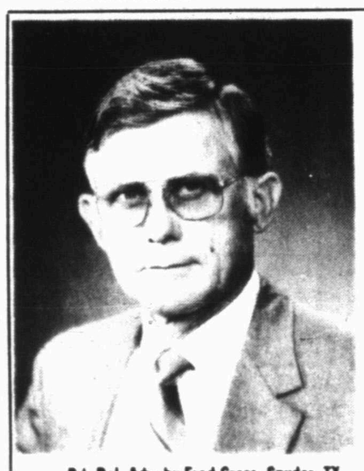

Neu, who plans to change Ashley's name to Mary Elizabeth, said after the ruling, "I'm not surprised, but relieved."

The Neus, who have three biological children and have cared for a half-dozen foster children, admitted they signed an agreement saying they would not take steps to adopt a foster child without the consent of the child welfare agency.

But the couple said they became more attached to Ashley as time passed.

"She's just like one of our own children," Mrs. Neu said.

Teacher group is to continue fight

AUSTIN (AP) — A state appeals court has cleared the way for teachers and school administrators to receive their grades on the controversial competency exams.

The court denied a request by the Texas State Teachers Association to halt scoring of the exams. The association is appealing an Austin state judge's ruling against their lawsuit filed to kill the testing program.

Association lawyers asked the 3rd Texas Court of Appeals to halt grading of the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers until their appeal could be heard.

The denial means a North Carolina testing firm may begin notifying the more than 200,000 public school educators who took the test in March whether they passed or failed the reading and writing test.

Teachers will be told whether they passed beginning next Monday, a spokesman for the Texas Education Agency said. Statewide results will be released by the State Board of Education May 10 at its monthly meeting.

The request was denied by appeals court Judges Bob Shannon, Earl W. Smith and Bob Gammage. The three-judge panel will hear the association's original appeal in early May.

"We are disappointed with their ruling, but this certainly does not mean we are through fighting the test," Jim Butler, executive director of the teacher group, said Monday.

He said the group will continue to fight the tests even if the passing rate is high.

"Some teachers are going to lose their certificates based on this test, and that is wrong," he said. "It is wrong that these teachers will be judged on the basis of a test rather than their performance in the classroom."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone dealing with you in a frank and open manner will not appreciate it today if you are not forthright.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) All should go rather well for you today in job or career related matters. But where your social interests are concerned, you might find thorns among the roses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your common sense and good judgment will alert you as to how to handle a sticky issue today. However, you may ignore them and continue with ineffective procedures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your ambitious plans will be thwarted today if you do not have the good will of people whose help is essential. Don't ruffle anyone's feathers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's best at this time to keep social relationships social. Getting involved with a friend in a business venture could spell problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Think twice about throwing good money after bad today to salvage a losing situation. If it's a proven bummer, walk away from it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your relationships with others will run smoothly during the early part of the day, but toward evening you might get a little moody and be difficult to please.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something you're involved in appears to be a bargain. But, upon closer examination, it might be costly in ways you haven't considered.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't generate rumbles on the home front today if you treat family members with the same consideration you show your friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This can be a productive day for you, provided your attention is focused on practical objectives. Keep your eye on your target at all times.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Think through all of the ramifications before making a large purchase or assuming any new financial obligations today. Your resources have limitations.

See urologist for diagnosis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've had urethritis for the past eight years. There is a type caused by a stomach virus. How can I find out if this is the cause of mine?

DEAR READER — Urethritis refers to an inflammation of the tube leading out of the bladder. The inflammation is most commonly caused by microorganisms, such as viruses and bacteria. I am unaware of any "stomach virus" that produces urethritis. Whatever the cause of your uncomfortable problem, a precise diagnosis is needed so that specific therapy can be used. A urologist specializes in this type of ailment; so if you are experiencing repeated attacks, see such a specialist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am female and in my early 30s, and have had a bad foot condition. I had a bunionectomy and bone alignment using wire fixation and have to have casts on both feet for six weeks. Can the problem come back? Is there anything I can do to keep from getting leg cramps while in the casts?

DEAR READER — In my experience, once bunions have been removed and the bone condition corrected, the situation should stabilize more or less permanently. Because casts are designed to minimize muscle motion; leg cramps are common. Ask your surgeon about ways to reduce cramping without compromising the operation itself.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have always favored high-necked clothes, but lately I can't seem to tolerate the pressure on my throat. I do not have any swelling that I can see. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Try stretching the neckbands of your garments. Often, when high-necked clothing is laundered, it shrinks and becomes uncomfortable. If you ordinarily have no neck pain or swelling, I advise you to pay particular attention to your garments, rather than to your neck.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a 61-year-old friend who has had myasthenia gravis for the last 14 years. She has been told that her mother gave it to her, although her mother is in good health. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Myasthenia gravis is a neuromuscular disease of unknown cause, produced by protein antibodies to acetyl choline receptor, the area where nerves stimulate muscles to contract. A special type of weakness results. Current theory suggests that myasthenia is an autoimmune disorder — patients develop antibodies to their own tissues. However, in some cases, mothers with myasthenia can pass on their antibodies — and a transient form of the disease — to their babies. On occasion, a genetic tendency may be evident. However, most cases are not inherited. I doubt that your friend's healthy mother was the cause of the myasthenia you describe.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had a C-section delivery two years ago. Since then, I have experienced a very strong pain in my right side near the waist area. The doctor said she saw a small area of bursitis in the X-rays. I'm not totally satisfied with her answer. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Although calcium deposits causing bursitis can show up on X-rays, bursitis itself is usually invisible on the X-ray film. I think you need to see an orthopedic specialist to determine if your pain is coming from your bones or hip joint. If your bones and joints are normal, get an opinion from another gynecologist.

Sorority celebrates its 25th anniversary

Members of the Zeta Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma celebrated the organization's 25th anniversary with a coffee and luncheon April 12.

The group sponsored a morning coffee at the Cornelius Dodson House to honor Carolyn Larrison, Alpha State President, and Mary Rowlette, past Alpha State President.

A member of the Kappa Chi Chapter, Larrison spoke during the luncheon held in the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Currently residing in Anahuac, she serves as a librarian in the resource center at Barbers Hill High School in Mont Belvieu. She has held a variety of offices on chapter, state and international levels.

During her speech, Larrison compared Delta Kappa Gamma to five characteristics of a diamond — carat, cut, color, clarity and durability. Larrison challenged members to support the community through personal and organizational growth.

In addition to Larrison and Rowlette, other out-of-town guests included Maydelle Burns, Mauryse Stone and members of Gamma Tau Chapter in Roscoe, Sweetwater and Rotan, Beta Kappa Chapter in Big Spring, Epsilon Omicron Chapter in Lamesa and Beta Epsilon Chapter in Colorado City.

Bidding all the way to seven hearts was a bit much. Perhaps South expected dummy to have a more robust spade suit in view of the strong opening bid of two clubs. Although I like opening the North hand with a strong two-bid (artificial or not), many experts would prefer an initial bid of only one spade. Like it or not, you find yourself in seven hearts. Cover the East-West hands with your thumbs and plan the play.

Declarer played four rounds of trump, discarding two small diamonds from dummy. He reasoned that there was a good chance that the spade suit would come home for him. All he needed to find was a 3-3 spade split, or a doubleton queen of spades in either hand. If he relied on the diamond finesse instead, he would need the king onside plus a 3-2 diamond split. Alas, because East held four spades to the queen, the contract was doomed on declarer's line of play.

Declarer can actually combine both lines of play with little risk. After playing two rounds of hearts, he should then play A-K of spades and ruff a spade. If the spade queen drops, he can safely draw trumps, throwing diamonds from dummy. But with the spade suit not coming in, he can now pull trumps while throwing useless spades from dummy, and then fall back on the diamond finesse. The key to the proper play is not forcing dummy to discard before you know which suit you must rely upon to make your contract.

Survey indicates educators favor 9-month schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most teachers believe they are underpaid, but a large majority say they would rather work nine or 10 months than be paid higher salaries to work year-round, according to a new survey.

The survey also concluded that teachers "fare pretty well" when their salaries are compared with earnings of full-time, year-round workers, but that money is less important to teachers than it is to other American workers in judging job satisfaction.

The survey by Emily Feistritzer, director of the private National Center for Education Information, was based on a random nationwide sampling with responses from 1,144 public school teachers and 448 private school teachers. The survey was conducted between Feb. 7 and April 15.

Unlike most working adults who rank a good salary and job security as the most important aspects of their jobs, teachers say the most important things for them are the opportunity to use their minds and the chance to work with young people, the survey showed. Teachers ranked salary fourth, behind appreciation of a job well done.

"The survey revealed that we really do have a teaching force that is dedicated to the development of young children," Feistritzer said in an interview. "It is significant that teachers aren't in it for the money, and even if they were, they are faring very well in the market place."

The average salary among public school teachers who were polled was $24,559 this year, which, based on an average 180-day contract, is about $136 per day. The Census Bureau says the average salary of a full-time, year-round worker with at least four years of college is $32,216, which based on 250 working days a year amounts to $129 per day, the study said.

Salaries for female teachers, who make up 69 percent of the teaching force, tend to be higher than those of women with four years or more of college who are working full-time year-round.

Mayfield named academic scholar

The National Secondary Education Council announced today that Cal Mayfield has been named an Academic All-American. The Academic All-American scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average.

Mayfield, who attends Snyder High School, was nominated for this award by coach Levon Webb. Mayfield will appear in the Academic All-American School Directory, which is published nationally.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Mayfield of Snyder and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mayfield of Stamford and Mrs. Effie Cole of Snyder.

Tourists are as safe as in U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese, trying to allay fears about terrorism, says U.S. tourists abroad probably are about as safe as they are when they travel in the United States.

At a news conference Monday, the attorney general said that "a great deal is being done to provide for the safety and security of travelers both in airports and in aircraft" in Europe.

"Probably the hazards of going to Europe as a tourist are no greater and probably less great than being a tourist on the highway in the United States," Meese told reporters.

Experts say Soviets might not face great health risks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fallout from the Soviet nuclear accident might be detectable in the United States by the weekend, but the amounts would be so small they would not present a health hazard here, a U.S. nuclear expert says.

And even in the Soviet Union, health risks outside the immediate area of the accident might not be all that great, experts said Monday.

By the time fallout reached the United States, which could happen in five or six days, "there is no question there will be a sizeable dilution, there's tremendous mixing in the atmosphere," said Kenneth L. Mossman, who directs Georgetown University Medical Center's program in radiation science.

"It is likely that with sensitive radiation detectors, we might be able to pick it up," Mossman said in a telephone interview.

The Soviet Union said a nuclear accident had damaged an atomic reactor at the Cherniobyl power plant in the Ukraine. Radiation as much as 10 times above normal was recorded north of Stockholm, Sweden, and this included iodine and cesium compounds — both products of nuclear fission which would be produced in uranium reactor fuel.

Mossman said the type of radiation detected in the United States and elsewhere could provide clues as to the nature and scope of the Soviet accident.

Mossman and another expert, Richard C. Reba, who heads the division of nuclear medicine at George Washington University Medical Center, said the health risks to Soviet citizens might not be great even in a nearby population center such as Kiev, about 100 miles from the accident site.

"If the Three Mile Island accident is any indication as to the severity of health effects, I would imagine there wouldn't be much in the way (of health effects," Mossman said.

The Three Mile Island accident near Harrisburg, Pa., in 1979 was a partial meltdown. No one was killed and very little radiation was released, but scientists are still monitoring the long-term effects.

With the Soviet accident "radiation injury is really not going to be a major factor," Reba said. Even if there had been a meltdown, he said, the dilution of water- and airborne radiation would minimize the health effects.

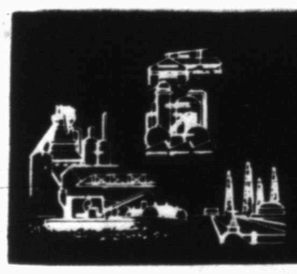

Reba and Mossman said radioactive iodine in humans would migrate to the thyroid gland.

"The thyroid is a rather sensitive organ with respect to cancer induction," Mossman said.

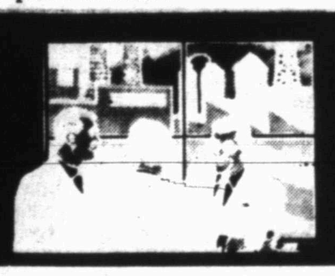

Cesium, if inhaled or ingested, spreads throughout the body, he said, lodging in muscles and elsewhere.

Reba said major injuries or deaths stemming from the accident were probably confined to plant workers.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My mother keeps sending me clippings from your column about "forgiving," as part of her campaign to reconcile my brother and me, so I hope she sees this.

My mother was aware that my brother had physically and verbally abused me throughout our childhood, but she wrote it off as "sibling rivalry." She never knew that when I was very young and he was in his teens he raped me and continued to sexually abuse me over several years. I could never bring myself to tell her because like most victims, I thought she would either blame me or simply say I was lying.

I have only recently begun to deal with this childhood trauma. As a result of my rage and anger toward my brother, I cannot bear to be in the same room with him. Over the years (and it's been 35 years now) he has been cold and distant toward me. I could possibly forgive him if he acknowledged his wrongdoing and showed some remorse for what he did to me. Instead, he's become a judgmental hypocrite who constantly quotes Scripture.

Mother is in her 70s and continues to tell me how unhappy she is that my brother and I don't "love" each other. How can I tell her now? She'd probably say, "Why don't you just forget it — it happened a long time ago."

I'm tired of her nagging me to reach out to my brother. By the way, she doesn't nag him or send him clippings, because she thinks it's all my fault.

Thanks for listening.

LITTLE SISTER

DEAR SISTER: On the chance that your mother doesn't see this column, tell her. Also tell her you are not going to "forget it" — you want to resolve the issue and put it to rest.

Then tell your brother exactly how you feel about what he did to you. You say that you are now "dealing" with this childhood trauma. I hope you are in therapy because that's the most effective way to deal with it. If you and your brother are to reconcile, he should have therapy, too.

The emotional wounds of your childhood will never heal unless they are thoroughly cleaned out. Express your hurt and anger to your brother, and even if he does nothing about it, that action will make you feel better.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the tight labor vs. loose labor market question: You blew it again. If I may quote you:

"I erroneously assumed that because the terminology 'money is tight' means 'money is scarce,' the same held true for the labor market."

Abby, it DOES! "Labor is tight" means labor (workers) is scarce. Too few laborers means plenty of jobs.

JAPANESE BUSINESSMAN, TOKYO

DEAR BUSINESSMAN: Thanks, I needed that. The confusion lies in the term "labor market," which I assumed meant "jobs." It doesn't; it means workers. Hence a tight labor market means workers are scarce but job openings are plentiful. Now, by George, I have it.

DEAR ABBY: You asked, "How many men would accept a natural woman with no makeup, no hairdo, no bra, no nothing?"

The answer is, "Plenty." I'm a woman who owns no makeup, my hair is long and straight, and since I'm a carpenter, I wear almost nothing but jeans, work boots and flannel shirts. And I don't lack for men in my life! In fact, many men have told me it's nice to kiss a woman who doesn't wear lipstick.

I feel sorry for women who suffer from frozen toes and sprained ankles because they "have" to wear sandals with spiked heels in a blizzard, women who spend months at the beach without ever swimming because they don't want their mascara to run, and women who don't go camping because there's no place to plug their curling irons.

Men find me attractive because I'm natural, I like myself the way I am, and I'm willing to relax, have fun and just be me. Also, I'm not always in the ladies' room taking the shine off my nose.

PLAIN AND HAPPY

Mistakenly released inmate may be sent back to prison soon

DALLAS (AP) — A man who got a job and made plans to open a service station after he was mistakenly released from prison two years ago may be sent back, officials said.

Through a series of errors, Dale Ross Looper, 33, of Hunt County, was released after serving only 10 months of a 10-year sentence.

Looper was given the 10-year sentence in the drunken driving death of Grand Prairie police officer Lyndon Fred King.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers agreed that Looper will be sent directly to prison following his expected surrender today, said Pete Lesser, one of Looper's attorneys.

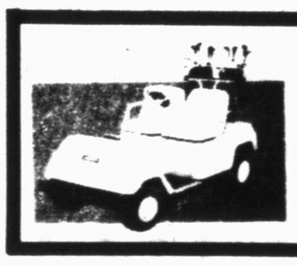

Authorities issued a warrant for Looper's arrest when the error was discovered two years after his release.

Looper said he has tried to resume a normal life and has stayed out of trouble during the time he has been out of prison. Going back to prison would destroy him, he said.

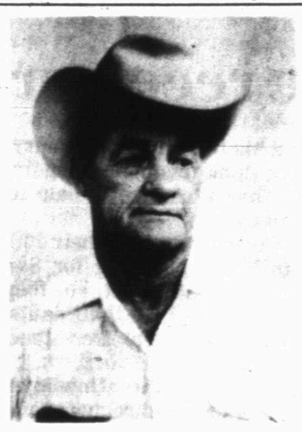

"If that's the way they want to play, they can write me off," he said. "I can't go through it again. There won't be anything left of me for them to take to prison."

Lesser said Looper is entitled to the time that he would have served had he not been released, plus any credit he would have received for good behavior. Looper served as a trusty while in prison and Lesser said he believes the man is close to being eligible for parole.

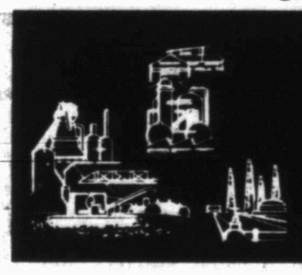

"On the one hand he didn't serve the time he should have. But on the other, he thought he had paid his debt to society," said state District Judge Ed Kinkeade, who presided at Looper's involuntary manslaughter trial.

Local boys reach semis at Region I-4A tourney

BROWNWOOD -- Snyder's Michael Rodriguez and Michael Risenhoover grabbed first-round and quarterfinal victories at the Region I-4A Tennis Tournament here Monday and were to play in the semifinals today for a chance to go to Austin.

The District 2-4A doubles champions opened the two-day tournament by nipping Tony Pletcher and Mark Filipek of Crowell, 7-5, 7-6. They then defeated Mark Lopez and Todd Spears of Levelland in another to-the-wire match before winning 6-7, 7-6, 6-3.

The Snyder team was scheduled against Conners and Lewis of Wado Midway today. The other semifinal match was to pit Scott Haydon and Tim Nabers of Austin Westlake against Lamb and Roach of Canyon.

First and second place in each event - boy's and girl's singles and doubles - advance to the Class 4A State Tournament in Austin.

In other action involving District 2-4A representatives Monday:

- Andrews' doubles team of Chad Redwine and Chris Holliday were defeated by Wallace and Kelly of Midway.
- Debbie Marlett of Sweetwater received a first-round bye, then defeated Cari Pritchitt of Mansfield in girl's singles, 6-3, 6-0.
- Rachelle Mulanax of Sweetwater lost in the first round to Gabrielia Sirbu of Granbury, 6-1, 7-5.
- Martha Barrera and Mindy Kniffen of Andrews received a bye, then overpowered Hunt and Rea of Georgetown, 6-3, 6-2, in girl's doubles.
- Janda and Manda Lopez of Lake View received a bye, then won easily over April Pearson and Samantha Mason of Austin Westlake, 6-1, 6-1.
- Chris Harris of Sweetwater took a bye in the first round, then popped Salil Mahon of Pampa, 6-0, 6-0 in boy's singles.
- Fort Stockton's Mike Hinson got a bye but lost in the quarterfinals of boy's singles to Mike King of Canyon, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1.

Bucks plan to rectify past with Philadelphia

by The Associated Press

Milwaukee's playoff record against Philadelphia can only get better, and the Bucks feel now is the time to start that improvement.

Since the Bucks moved from the NBA's Western Conference to the Eastern Conference for the 1980-81 season, Milwaukee has lost to the 76ers four straight times in the playoffs. Each time the result has gotten worse.

In 1981, the 76ers won four games to three. The following year it was 4-2, in 1983 it was 4-1 and last season Philadelphia swept the series in four games.

Bucks Coach Don Nelson says any revenge factor from last season's sweep is "an individual thing."

"I wouldn't think it's very important in my life," he said. "What's important is that we've never beaten Philly, and they've beaten us four times since I've been coaching. I'm anxious to rectify that."

Tonight, the Bucks and 76ers meet in Milwaukee in the opener of a best-of-7 second-round series. In other games, the Atlanta Hawks are at Boston and the Denver Nuggets call on Houston, with the Celtics and Rockets leading the respective series 1-0.

Wednesday night's only game has Dallas at Los Angeles, with the Lakers leading 1-0.

Bucks forward Terry Cummings says making amends for last season will play a role in how the Bucks approach the 76ers.

"But it's something that has to be controlled," Cummings said.

"I'm not concerned with revenge," center Paul Mokeski said. "I just want to win the series. I don't want it to end like it did last year."

Injuries could play a key role.

The 76ers will play without center Moses Malone and guard Andrew Toney, but all-star guard Maurice Cheeks is expected to play despite a sprained ankle. Malone has a broken bone under his right eye and Toney has foot and groin injuries.

Charles Barkley, who averaged 21 points, 17 rebounds and 7 assists in Philadelphia's 3-2 first-round victory over Washington, has helped filled the void for the 76ers.

"He has basically become their Moses," Cummings said.

"Barkley is playing phenomenal," said Milwaukee reserve center Alton Lister. "He's just unbelievable."

"What they've accomplished without Malone and Andrew Toney is amazing," Nelson said.

Meanwhile, the Bucks are concerned about the status of all-star guard Sidney Moncrief, who injured his left heel in the final game of a 3-0 first-round sweep over New Jersey last week.

"He hasn't worked out," Nelson said. "He's going to try it before the game, and he'll let me know."

Depth also is a consideration in the Nuggets-Rockets series.

None of Denver's starters played 40 minutes in Houston's 126-119 victory in Game 1, while four Houston starters went at least 40 minutes and center

Spurs coach takes firing in stride

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Cotton Fitzsimmons says he is taking his firing as coach of the San Antonio Spurs in stride and plans to remain in the National Basketball Association.

"Naturally, you're disappointed," Fitzsimmons said Monday after the Spurs announced he had been fired after two seasons.

"But I'm a professional and somebody has to take the heat when the team doesn't succeed," he said. "I'm the one who has to take that and I accept that fully."

Fitzsimmons, 54, said he has "no ill feelings whatsoever. I hope the change will be nothing but beneficial."

Fitzsimmons compiled a 76-88 record during his two years with the Spurs.

He led the team to the playoffs both years, but the Spurs were eliminated each time in the first round.

San Antonio won only five of its last 26 regular-season games, then made an early exit from the playoffs by losing a first-round game in three straight games.

Spurs owner Angelo Drossos said he fired Fitzsimmons because "in San Antonio, we need a new situation, a new coach, a new start."

The owner said he had no one in mind for the job, but said he hopes to have a new coach before the NBA draft in June.

Houston opts for Everett...

As expected, Jackson top draft pick

NEW YORK (AP) - Bo Jackson, Auburn's Heisman Trophy-winning running back, was the top selection in the NFL draft today but said he will wait until next month to choose between a career in baseball or football. "My heart" will make the decision, he said.

As expected, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers waited only a few minutes after the 8 a.m. EDT start of the draft to pick Jackson, considered by scouts one of the best NFL prospects ever. Then, as shouts of "Bo, Bo, Bo, Bo" rang from the gallery of about 1,000 fans, he posed for the traditional picture with Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

But in what is not traditional, Jackson declined to swear his allegiance to the NFL and the Bucs.

"I'm sticking by my guns," Jackson said. "I won't decide until the baseball draft. If the baseball draft is today, the NFL people would want me to wait for their draft.

"When everything is over with, there won't be people saying, 'Bo didn't give baseball a chance.'"

Baseball's draft of college and high school players is June 2-4.

The second pick also went as expected when Atlanta chose Tony Casillas of Oklahoma, a 277-pound nose tackle who won the Lombardi Award for top lineman in the country. "Casillas is dominating, and enough top football people around the NFL already have called him the best nose tackle ever," said Falcons President Rankin Smith Jr.

The Houston Oilers surprised some people by drafting Jim Everett, the Purdue quarterback considered the best at his position. The Oilers had been ready to trade the pick and still might trade either Everett or Warren Moon, their $1 million-a-year starting quarterback.

The Indianapolis Colts, who had wanted Everett but traded for Dallas Cowboys backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom on Monday, went for Alabama defensive end Jon Hand. And St. Louis, which had wanted Hand, pulled the first shocker of the draft by taking Anthony Bell, a little-heralded 230-pound linebacker from Michigan State.

But it was Jackson, the 6-foot-1, 225-pounder, who got most of the attention.

An outstanding baseball prospect, Jackson did not have a good year in that sport this spring, striking out 30 times in 69 at-bats and hitting .259 before being ruled ineligible by the Southeastern Conference after he accepted a trip to Tampa from the Bucs to undergo a physical.

Still, last week he traveled to California to visit with baseball star Reggie Jackson and said today he still is considering baseball.

"I played baseball all my life, football for 8-9 years," he said.

Like Everett, he will step into a position already well-manned - the Bucs used a one-back offense featuring James Wilder, who led the NFL in combined rushing-receiving yardage two years ago. In a two-back offense, one or both would be called on to block.

"I love to run," Jackson said. "I like to block, too. But I don't want to block two-and-a-half to three quarters a game.

"I think James Wilder's a great back," Jackson said. "He's done a hell of a lot for Tampa Bay. I hope he continues to."

Linemen dominated the first half of the opening round, with four offensive linemen, four defensive linemen, two linebackers, two running backs and two quarterbacks going in the top 14.

New Orleans, with the sixth pick, took 6-8, 296-pound offensive tackle Jim Dombrowski of Virginia, and Kansas City followed with 300-pound offensive tackle Brian Jozwiak of West Virginia.

Then came San Diego, which traded for Minnesota's No. 8 selection and took Oklahoma State's Leslie O'Neal, a 248-pound defensive lineman and noted pass rusher. Pittsburgh chose 278-pound offensive guard John Rienstra of Temple, the national power lifting champion.

Philadelphia, under new coach Buddy Ryan, gambled on Ohio State running back Keith Byars, who may be unable to play next season as he recovers from a twice-broken foot.

Cincinnati took Washington linebacker Joe Kelly No. 11 before Detroit drafted All-American quarterback Chuck Long of Iowa, runner-up to Jackson in the Heisman Trophy voting.

San Diego made Southern Cal's 6-7½, 280-pound offensive tackle James Fitzpatrick No. 13, and Minnesota took 253-pound offensive tackle Gerald Robinson, Jackson's teammate at Auburn, as the draft reached the midpoint of the first round.

Cowboys choose UCLA's Sherrard to bolster wide receiver position

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys, fearful the New York Giants were going to pull the rug out from under them, traded up in the first round of the NFL draft today to take speedy wide receiver Mike Sherrard of UCLA.

"We were afraid the Giants would take him, so we had to do something," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "He was exactly what we wanted."

The 6-1 Sherrard, the leading receiver in UCLA history, was timed in the 40-yard dash in 4.44.

"He has great hands, he's fast, and is a big target," said Landry. "I don't think this pick is a gamble. He has a chance to help us right away."

The Cowboys traded their 20th pick in the first round for San Francisco's 18th pick so they could get ahead of the Giants. Dallas also gave the 49ers their fifth-round pick.

Gil Brandt, the Cowboys' player personnel director, said, "Sherrard is the fastest wide receiver and may be the fastest player in the draft. He was our top ranked player. He's a producer."

Team President Tex Schramm said the Cowboys were determined not to miss the player they wanted.

"Something finally worked out right for us," said Schramm. "Sherrard was our main target."

Sherrard will get the jersey number 88, which belonged to Drew Pearson, who flew to California to work out with the UCLA star.

"That's just great to get Drew's number. I thought his number already would have been retired," Sherrard said. "He and Lynn Swann of the Pittsburgh Steelers are always my favorites."

Sherrard said he did not feel like there was any pressure on him to become an immediate starter.

"There might be some pressure, but I'll do all I can do," he said.

The selection was only the second time Dallas Coach Tom Landry has gone for a wide receiver in the first round. The only other wide receiver the Cowboys have taken in the first round was Dennis Homan of Alabama in 1968.

Homan turned out to be one of Dallas' biggest draft busts.

The Cowboys also were in the market for a third-string quarterback now that backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom has been traded to the Indianapolis Colts.

Snyder Tigers look for lock on playoffs at 7 this evening

Local fans have been turning out in force for Snyder baseball games and tonight's contest with Andrews promises more of the same as the Tigers battle for a playoff berth.

Snyder got sidetracked last week with a 6-3 loss to Pecos, making tonight's 7 o'clock contest here even more important. The Tigers are locked with Pecos in a two-way tie for first place in District 2-4A with 6-1 records. Andrews is in third at 4-3.

A victory this evening would lock up a playoff berth for the Tigers since they would have a three-game lead over Andrews with just two games left on the regular schedule. Snyder could lose tonight and still wrap up a playoff berth, but would have to win both of its final two games - or get help from Pecos when the Eagles play Andrews on Friday.

The other three teams in the district, Lamesa and Fort Stockton at 2-5 each and Monahans at 1-6, have already been eliminated from playoff contention.

Pecos is at Fort Stockton and Lamesa at Monahans in the other 2-4A games this evening. All get a 7 o'clock start.

Snyder blanked Andrews 5-0 in Andrews earlier this season. Jimmy Velasquez, author of that victory, will once again be on the mound tonight.

The Tiger batting will be shuffled somewhat and Scott Lanier will be called on to fill in an outfield spot. Dennis Martinez will move from right field to left field to fill in for Michael Long, who will apparently miss the game with an illness. Lanier will be in right field.

Catcher Ricky Hunter will lead off for the Tigers. In a switch in the batting order, third baseman Justin Webb will hit second and be followed by Steve Parker at first base. Velasquez will hit in the cleanup spot and be followed by Brad Holcomb at short stop, Chris Fryar at second base and Mike McWilliams at centerfield. Kenneth Pickering will be the designated hitter for Martinez. Lanier will bat in the ninth position.

Tonight's game marks the first time since prior to the Snyder Baseball Tournament that Parker has been at first base. Having recently recovered from an apendectomy, he has been the Tigers' designated hitter for the past several ballgames.

Parker is hitting .523 for the season; .455 in district play. It will likely be Holcomb's presence that gives Andrews pitchers the jitters, however. Holcomb accounted for all five RBI in the earlier victory over the Mustangs as he blasted a three-run and a two-run homer. He is hitting .545 in district play.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Cardinals 8, Yankees 4

The Cardinals made it two in a row Monday as they defeated the Yankees in Little League action.

The victory spoiled some sharp pitching by the Yankees' Raymond Ware, who struck out six batters. Chad Fox fanned four.

The Cards, however, countered with Locadio Luera, who buzzed it past eight batters. David Patrick led the offense with a double. Tory Garza and Damon Kennedy added a single apiece.

Jared Graves paced the Yankees, now 1-1, with two singles. Anthony Alvarez and Steven Bollinger cracked one single each.

Braves 14, White Sox 6

The hard-hitting Braves came up with 18 hits to win their second straight ballgame Monday.

The offense was led by Marcus Best, who slammed a triple and a double and scored five runs. Cade Walton powered a double and three singles while Matthew Byron and winning pitcher Cedric Sneed added three singles apiece. Also hitting for the Braves were Adrian Sneed and Jimmy Henry, a double each; Richard Morris, a double and a single; and Michael Briseno, two singles.

The White Sox, 0-2, got a double and a single from pitcher Bobby Clinkinbeard, a triple from Alan Powell, a double from Gabriel Castillon, and a single apiece from Shawn Cowan, Gus Castillon, Damon Cato and Justin Jones.

Baseball roundup...

Dernier ignites Chicago, 4-3

by The Associated Press

With only nine homers in more than 1,600 career major-league at-bats, Bob Dernier was an unlikely late-inning power hitter, especially against a pair of hard-throwing relievers.

Dernier, however, brought Chicago back from a 3-1 deficit with his 10th career homer, in the eighth inning off Tim Stoddard, and a two-run double in the ninth against Goose Gossage, giving the Cubs a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"You don't go up there with a whole lot of confidence against a guy who throws the ball 90 miles per hour," Dernier said. "You're looking to get on top of it, hit it well, and hope nobody's standing there."

In the only other major-league games Monday, St. Louis tripped San Francisco 5-4 and Los Angeles edged Pittsburgh 2-1.

Dernier said he expected nothing but fastballs from Stoddard.

"I played with Timmy in 1984, and I know he's going to challenge you," Dernier said. "He's that kind of pitcher."

The Cubs' center fielder also expected to see hard pitches from Gossage.

"I call it a country hard ball," he said. "That's what makes the game fun. He's out there to win, and most of the time he will. But there are times when he's going to lose, too.

The Cubs are one of five teams that are 4-5 games behind the New York Mets in the National League East, but Dernier said his teammates are confident after oening a road trip with a victory.

"It could be one of those games that turns the team around," he said. "It's fun to play against and with those kind of guys."

Matt Keough, 1-1, worked the eighth inning to pick up the victory and Jay Baller retired the side in the ninth for his third save.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 1

Fernando Valenzuela allowed only six hits and struck out nine while Los Angeles managed two runs with the help of a balk and a Pittsburgh error.

"It's been a long time since I've seen a lot of runs," Valenzuela said after his second 2-1 triumph of the season. "But I don't care how many runs I get; I don't change my game."

Valenzuela, 3-1, took a four-hit shutout into the eighth, but a leadoff double by Sid Bream and two groundouts brought home the Pirates' only run.

Pirates starter Bob Kipper, 0-2, balked with the bases loaded and two outs for the Dodgers' first run in the fourth inning.

Cardinals 5, Giants 4

Vince Coleman had three hits, scored two runs, knocked in one, stole two bases and threw a runner out at the plate, helping St. Louis snap a seven-game losing streak with a victory over San Francisco.

Coleman drove in a run in the 12th with his third hit after teammate Jerry White's sacrifice fly broke a 3-3 tie. The Cardinals needed the insurance run as the Giants scored in the bottom of the 12th and had the bases loaded before Pat Perry saved the victory, getting Dan Gladden on a long fly to end the game.

Losing pitcher Mark Davis, 1-1, committed an error on a bunt to set up St. Louis' winning rally in the 12th. Todd Worrell, 1-1, the third of five Cardinal pitchers, got the victory by pitching the 10th and 11th.

ROCKETS

Akeem Olajuwon and point guard Robert Reid each played 44.

"We don't plan to use too many players in this series," Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said. "We're going to keep some good observers on the bench, but we're going to be dynamite if we play like we did against Sacramento."

Olajuwon had 38 points and 16 rebounds in the first game despite a slow start.

Travel near Kiev might be dangerous

MOSCOW (AP) — A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today that travel to the Ukrainian capital of Kiev might be dangerous, but there was no other official word on what U.S. scientists say may have been a meltdown at the nearby Chernobyl nuclear power plant.

The official news agency Tass first reported the incident Monday in a four-sentence dispatch that said one of the plant's atomic reactors was damaged and measures were being taken to "eliminate the consequences."

It did not say how serious the accident was, or whether it there had been injuries. Abnormally high radiation levels were reported in Sweden, Denmark and Finland, more than 750 miles to the northwest.

Government-run radio in Hungary reported there had been injuries. The Hungarian report also said Chernobyl is located at the conjunction of two rivers, near the reservoir that supplies Kiev, a city of 2.4 million people.

Little additional information could be obtained today about the accident at the four-reactor Chernobyl complex, located about 100 miles north of Kiev. Attempts to call Kiev from Moscow were unsuccessful.

Asked about the possibility of travel by foreign reporters to the Kiev area, Foreign Ministry spokesman Alexander Sazonov said today, "I don't know whether it's possible right now because it may be dangerous."

"We will give you all the information when we have it," he said.

Kiev radio, monitored in London, which last repeated the Tass announcement at 3:15 p.m. Monday, as of today had not mentioned the incident again.

Although Tass said it was the first such accident in the Soviet Union, Western analysts and exiled Soviet scientists have said there was a nuclear accident in the Chelyabinsk area of the Ural Mountains in 1958 that killed hundreds of people and contaminated a wide area. The region is still off limits.

Soviet media seldom report natural disasters or accidents unless injuries and damage are widespread. Tass said a government commission had been appointed.

In Finland increased radiation levels, first noticed Sunday night, were 10 times higher than normal, said Gunnar Bengtsson, head of Sweden's Radiation and Nuclear Safety Board. Danish and Norwegian officials reported lesser increases.

Neither Hungary nor any other Eastern European country, much closer to the plant site than Scandinavia, made public reports of radiation levels. Polish radio, monitored in London, reported today that a radioactive cloud passed over northeast Poland on Monday, but said measurements indicated there was no health danger.

In Sweden, radiation levels between three and four times higher than normal, were first discovered Monday morning during a routine check of a worker at the Forsmark plant.

Candidates seek statewide ballot vestigation.

The Hance television commercial, which began airing this week, shows five people saying why they believe he is the strongest of the three candidates.

Hance's press secretary, Byron Nelson III, confirmed the people in the commercials were paid actors.

"I think it's deplorable. It's unfortunate. I'm disappointed," Clements, front-runner in the three-way Republican field, said.

But Hance, campaigning in Houston, said, "They were supporters ... whether somebody had been in a play sometime in their life I don't know."

He also defended his ads on illegal aliens, saying they are the cause of crowding in schools and other problems.

He was confronted by Hispanic leaders in Beaumont, but said he was right.

Meanwhile, Barrera said he had hoped to raise $1 million for a television blitz aimed at publicizing his name but said he will have raised only $400,000 by the end of the week.

He said he is relying on grassroots organization.

"We have every reason to be confident in a runoff if there is one or to win outright," said Barrera, a state district judge appointed to the bench in 1980 by Clements.

Barrera faces state District Judge John Roach of Plano and former Williamson County District Attorney Ed Walsh in the Republican primary.

If elected, Barrera would be the highest-ranking Hispanic ever to hold state office.

Clements, Hance and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, all are seeking the GOP nomination to challenge incumbent Democrat Mark White in the fall.

In Sherman, Tom Loeffler, beginning a campaign swing across the state today, predicted he could win the Republican gubernatorial nomination without a runoff. The Hunt congressman started a 24-city campaign swing leading up to the primary, saying, "We're the campaign that's got the momentum."

Earlier in the day, Clements told a rally of students on the Texas A&M campus that White broke a 1982 campaign promise by raising their tuition.

He said White promised not to raise tuition in an Amarillo campaign appearance in 1982.

Clements said he was not against the tuition increase and would not vote to roll it back, but he said that is not the point. "The issue here is this governor's credibility."

In campaign finance reports filed Monday in Austin, Clements' campaign reported raising $1.17 million since mid-March and spending $1.26 million, said press secretary Reggie Bashur.

Police quell disturbance

Police seized a shotgun from a man involved in a domestic disturbance Monday evening but no charges were filed in the incident as of Tuesday morning.

City officers were dispatched to an East Snyder residence at 7:12 p.m. by a caller who reported a man threatening his wife with a shotgun.

Police convinced the man to give up the weapon and no injuries were reported.

In other action Monday, police jailed three suspects on misdemeanor charges including one for disorderly conduct, one for driving on a suspended license and one juvenile picked up for public intoxication and released to the custody of his uncle.

Changes sought for vote process sued by a totally different group (than the school district) in 1985."

The city, which previously operated with a five-member, at-large council, managed to conduct its first ballot under the new system in April that same year.

With that vote, the city retained its five-member council total, now changed to the mayor elected at-large and four council members elected to represent specific districts.

One of these four districts is classified as a minority district.

When the change was implemented in 1985, the entire five-member council was up for re-election. One incumbent was not eligible to run again due to the addition of the minority district.

In 1985, the mayor chose not to run again and he was replaced by one of the exisiting council members. The net result was that four existing councilmen returned to the board and one minority representative was added from the minority district.

For both the city and school, the two Levelland boards are divided into four districts. Administrators for both note these districts "overlap some" but do not honor the same boundary lines.

"We couldn't get the numbers or the percentages to work (regarding ethnic breakup)," Ingham said.

This past city election, he noted, the board seats up for re-election on the council won new terms unopposed.

forms a membrane layer over the highway which is resistant to water.

Over this "carpet" will be laid a 1½ inch mixture of hot mix — creating a new highway surface.

The project is expected to take from four to five weeks to complete.

Bids for it were let Feb. 26. The bid of $616,989 was awarded to Herzog Contracting Corp. of St. Josephs, Mo.

Snyder man given probation

Adalberto Rodriquez of Snyder has been given a five-year probated prison term in 132nd District Court in exchange for a guilty plea to a felony charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

He had been indicted by a Scurry County grand jury in March for allegedly taking a 1984 Ford pickup owned by HOMCO Inc. from outside a local residence Feb. 9.

Fire damages storage shed

A one-room storage shed at a north Snyder residence was damaged by fire Monday night.

Units of the Snyder fire department were dispatched to the Julian Olivarez residence at the intersection of 15th St. and Ave. G where they extinguished the fire shortly after 10:20 p.m.

No injuries resulted from the blaze.
