20 Men Missing...

British Frigate Sinks

By The Associated Press

Argentine warplanes sank a British frigate off the Falklands, leaving about 20 men missing and 30 wounded, and severely damaged another British vessel, leaving an unexploded bomb in its engine room, Britain announced today.

It said three other British warships sustained minor damage in Friday's fierce battle off the Falkland Islands.

Argentina said its jets hit eight British ships, damaging four severely, but it had no comment on the sinking of the frigate.

Defense Secretary John Nott said at a news conference in London the frigate Ardent, with a complement of 175 men, was sunk. It was the second British ship sunk since the crisis began. On May 4 a missile from an Argentine jet hit the destroyer Sheffield, leaving 20 dead.

Just before the British assault on the Falklands Friday, a helicopter ferrying troops between ships ditched in the South Atlantic, killing 21. Britain reported two killed, three missing and 27 wounded in the Falklands assault.

Nott said the most dangerous operation — putting an estimated 2,500 British troops on the islands — was over.

Intelligence sources quoted by Britain's domestic news agency, Press Association, said British troops bolstered their beachhead on the Falklands today and braced for a major counterattack from the Argentines at Stanley.

Press Association said Argentine troops, tanks and armored personnel carriers from the Falkland capital of Stanley were expected to try to push through to the British lines at San Carlos "within 30 hours."

In Buenos Aires, the official Argentine news agency Telam said about 400 British troops are in the San Carlos Bay area on East Falkland Island and they "are completely controlled."

"No ships have been seen in the zone and the British troops are being cleaned up," the news agency said, quoting a "qualified military spokesman." There were no communiques today from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The British said commandos landed on East Falkland on Friday, securing a base at Port San Carlos, about 50 miles west of Stanley, where the bulk of Argentina's 9,000 troops are stationed.

The British also said 16 Argentine warplanes and four helicopters were destroyed. The British acknowledged losing one Sea Harrier and two reconnaissance helicopters.

The Buenos Aires junta claimed it put "approximately 70 percent" of the British landing force "out of action," but gave no account of possible Argentine casualties. It acknowledged losing six warplanes and suffering damage to three helicopters.

The fighting was heaviest in the air and on the water, as Argentina threw its planes against the British armada supporting the landing, catching the ships in the strait between the two rocky, wind-swept islands.

The British staged their attack when the weather cleared slightly after a winter storm Thursday. Meterologists said another severe storm is now approaching the islands from the south.

While the fighting escalated, diplomats searched for a way to settle the conflict. The dispute, which dates back to 1833, became a crisis on April 2, when Argentina occupied the islands and interrupted 149 years of British rule.

At the United Nations, Ireland urged the Security Council to give Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar a new mandate to try to mediate the dispute. Perez de Cuellar negotiated with both countries for 12 days, but his effort came to a fruitless conclusion on Thursday.

"Someone must shout stop before the present conflict becomes uncontrollable," said Irish Ambassador Noel Dorr. Council sources said they expected a resolution to be drafted asking Perez de Cuellar to renew his effort.

In Lima, Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry tried again with his mediation effort. But Peruvian sources said Britain is saying that any peace plan must begin with an Argentine agreement to withdraw from the islands.

In Washington, a spokesman said President Reagan "is keeping an ear to the ground," waiting for an opportunity to help both countries settle the conflict peacefully. But in the meantime, American sources said Reagan is making good on his pledge of support for Britain by allowing the use of U.S. aerial tankers by NATO forces, freeing some British aircraft which are normally assigned to the alliance.

Pope John Paul II, celebrating a solemn Mass at St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City for peace in the Falklands, urged the two counties to demonstrate "magnanimous goodwill" and resume negotiations to settle their dispute.

Senate Passes Budget Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate has passed a 1983 budget blueprint, supported by President Reagan, calling for $107 billion in increased taxes over three years and projecting $273 billion in deficits over the period.

The final 49-43 party-line vote came Friday night after a week of consideration during which the Senate's GOP majority turned aside virtually all Democratic attempts to restore money for domestic programs ranging from unemployment benefits to environmental cleanup.

In a bit of a turnabout before final passage, conservative Democrats offered an amendment which projected a balanced budget in 1985 — a plan hinging on tax increases of $146 billion and reductions in planned Social Security cost-of-living increases.

With obvious reluctance, the Republican leadership led the move to table, and thus kill, the plan 70-21.

Republican leaders, faced with defections, were forced earlier in the week to drop an unpopular plan for $40 billion in unspecified Social Security savings.

Meanwhile, the House began preliminary consideration of more than a half-dozen competing budget plans as leaders of both parties lobbied to build a majority. Votes on the plans and amendments will begin Monday.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., predicted the president would be less of a factor in this year's House budget battle than a year ago. "I don't think he could be successful" appealing directly to the public again, O'Neill said.

O'Neill and other Democratic leaders also formally threw their support behind the budget plan approved by the House Budget Committee. It calls for tax hikes of $147 billion over three years, cuts the defense buildup by $39 billion over three years and cuts less from spending than the Senate plan.

Friday Night...

More Rain, Hail In Scurry County

Scurry County weather watchers were out in force again Friday night as a heavy thunderstorm--laced with wind and hail--moved northeast across the county.

The weather activity began about 5:30 p.m. when a buildup of thunderstorms gathered in the southwest part of Scurry County. The storm hit the Snyder city limits shortly before 6 p.m. and dumped .33 inch of moisture on an already-soaked area. The rains were recorded in a 20-minute period along with pea and golf ball size hail.

Accompanying the moisture was isolated reports of winds up to 50 miles per hour. In the Vincent community, southwest of Snyder, a travel trailer was reported blown over and some power lines were downed.

In Ira, reports of golf ball size hail broke the windshield and driver's window from a pickup owned by Hanks Oilfield Service. The pickup was located about three miles north of Ira. Ira received about one-half inch of moisture.

The rains missed the Dunn and China Grove communities where only a trace was reported. The northeast movement dumped .7 of an inch in the Hermleigh area, but rainfall reports there were spotted.

East of Snyder on the Roby highway, rainfall reports were .6 inch accompanied with hail larger than golf ball size. In the Camp Springs area, an inch of moisture fell. On the Harrell Ranch, a cattle guard was overturned and a tree uprooted by high winds.

The cloud moved on to the Rotan area where the heaviest downpour was experienced. There some 2.2 inches fell in 45 minutes and a total of 3 inches were recorded during the evening.

A tornado watch and flash flood warning were posted for Scurry and surrounding counties. It was the fifth such tornado watch here in the past 10 days.

Rainfall in the northern part of the county was spotted. Only a trace was reported at Dermott and at Fluvanna, but .18 fell north of Fluvanna near the Garza County line.

Lake J. B. Thomas received reports of from .6 to 1.3 inches of rain Friday evening. Rainfalls were heavier on the western side of the lake. Prior to Friday night, Lake Thomas had failed to receive appreciable moisture.

Gail in Borden County received 1.5 inches Friday, and Bull Creek ran only briefly.

The flood watch was made necessary by the large amount of rainfall in the county during May. The year's total in Snyder now stands at 9.02 inches.

The soggy fields will delay cotton planting which was scheduled for Monday. May 24 was set as the uniform cotton planting date in an effort to control the boll weevil. Few farmers will be able to plant as scheduled.

Weekend forecasts call for possibility of scattered thunderstorms and cooler temperatures.

Weekend update

Cheese Quarantined

DETROIT (AP) — More than 16 tons of surplus cheese destined for the hungry will remain locked in a warehouse under state quarantine until agricultural officials decide if has spoiled, officials said.

The cheese was stored in an unrefrigerated warehouse for at least four days and temperatures inside some of the 1,124 cartons reached 70 degrees, John Dunleavy, an inspector with the state agriculture department, said Friday.

The snafu occurred because the group that was to distribute the cheese, the Southeast Michigan Food Coalition, was in Springfield, Ill., attending a hunger conference, said the Rev. William Cunningham, who received the unexpected shipment.

Cryts Back Behind Bars

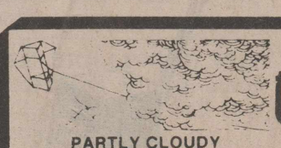

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A Missouri farmer, jailed for refusing to say who helped him remove soybeans from a bankrupt grain elevator, is back behind bars after after a week of lobbying in Washington, D.C.

Bankruptcy Judge Charles Baker had allowed Wayne Cryts out of jail at the request of Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who wanted the Puxico farmer to testify before subcommittees discussing bankruptcy laws. Cryts returned to his Pope County Jail cell about 10 p.m. Friday.

Soviet Strategy Explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, completing a study of national security strategy, is applying what one senior official calls a "full-court press" on the Soviet Union while seeking the strength to fight a global war.

The new strategy was outlined Friday by national security adviser William P. Clark in a speech at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

Snyder Seniors Open 1973-74 Time Capsule

By Noble Bryant Young

"To Mrs. Brinner, Dear Mrs. Brinner, I give you the Teacher of the Year Award. We give you this award for giving us favors that some teachers wouldn't do. Thanks for being my teacher for two years!

Your Love

John Lloyd Bloom and Class"

So read the text of a letter from John Bloom and 24 fourth grade classmates to their teacher in 1974.

Bloom and eight of the original class returned to room 5 at Snyder's North Elementary School, just hours before their graduation from Snyder High School, for a visit with their beloved Mrs. Brinner and the opening of a treasure chest deposited with principal Jim Erwin eight years earlier.

According to Elizabeth Brinner, the class, special because she was able to teach them in both the third and fourth grades, came up with the idea of a time capsule with no prompting from her or any other teacher.

She says that the opportunity to spend both the third and fourth grades with the exact same group of pupils has produced a closness between both her and the students and among the students themselves that is very unusual.

After being together in the same class from September of 1972 to May of 1974, the students each brought some momento of the time to the school and deposited it in a donated GI footlocker to be buried on the school grounds.

They all agreed to return on the date of their high school graduation and unearth the box.

In order to protect the contents of the chest from deterioration, Erwin and Brinner kept the box secure in the school offices for the last eight years.

Although the students expressed some dissapointment when told the box was not buried as originally planned, they were all rewarded with a box of perfectly preserved artifacts of their childhoods.

Ten of the students of the 1973-74 fourth grade class graduated from Snyder High School Thursday night. Nine of them were on hand for the treasure hunt leading to the box and its official opening around 1 p.m.

Kim Lunsford was the only graduating member of the class unable to attend Thursday's grand opening. On hand for the big event were Jacqueline Pylant, John Stephens, Ronnie Rosas, Danny Eckert, Gary Don Edmiaston, John Bloom, Jay Cox, Todd Stephens and Dale Shifflett.

They were all suprised and delighted when they finally got the chest open and then tried to remember who was responsoble for each of its artifacts.

Amazingly, after a mere eight years, they all had trouble remembering which items each had deposited in the box.

The debate over the influence of television on children goes on and on, and occasionally it spills over into other areas. We have heard people attack the traditional fairy tales and fables which used to be an exciting part of growing up from the lower grades of school. These critics say that such deviation from realism affects children adversely, that stories in which animals are supposedly talking warp their perspective and damage their ability to distinguished between fantasy and fact.

These fables and fairy tales, they say, are the same as science fiction violence on television when it comes to credibility among the youngsters. They say kids believe those things really are a part of normal life.

We would dispute that theory. We don't think children believe that animals in books of fairy tales can talk, or that fairies and witches who can wave magic wands or cast spells really exist. But it is fun to imagine such things, especially when you're young enough to let your imagination romp and are able to return to reality at the drop of a hat.

Perhaps one of the problems with television violence is that most of that stuff is not mere fantasy, but actually shows some sick, sick people as they really are.

Some people also think it is impossible to enforce discipline as it used to be. Others even doubt that discipline is a factor in success. Perhaps it is overrated by some, but it still is important.

There is a story about the University of Alabama football team. Someone asked one of the stars how it was to play for Coach Bear Bryant.

"No player is ever late for one of Coach Bryant's meetings, because if you were one minute late, the door would be locked," said the player. "Before Coach Bryant arrives, players are horsing around, kidding, laughing, maybe throwing spitballs. When Coach Bryant walks in----well, you have seen that E. F. Hutton commercial on televison, haven't you?"

Judge Gets Censured

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge who was accused of making disparaging remarks about blacks, Hispanics and Filipinos has been publicly censured by the California Supreme Court.

The court said Thursday the remarks by Superior Court Judge Charles S. Stevens were "both inappropriate and in poor taste," but that the judge had displayed no bias in rendering decisions.

Stevens had been quoted as calling Hispanics "cute little tamales and Taco Bells."

The public rebuke had been urged by the state Commission on Judicial Performance, which also said the remarks appeared to be made mostly in jest rather than malice and in almost every case took place outside the courtroom.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb,M.D.

Let your doctor decide

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 66-year-old female who had a complete collapse of the vertebrae due to osteoporosis three years ago. I'm getting along very well without the brace I wore at the time because of intense pain. I'm free of pain now.

I'm very upset because I read an article that said taking vitamin D can result in vitamin D poisoning if you take too much. If too much is absorbed in the system it can cause serious damage and can cause a buildup of calcium in the blood and urine, causing kidney stones, kidney failure and death. I'm really scared.

Because of my condition I must take Os Cal tablets with vitamin D and drink a lot of milk. I've been doing this for three years. If I cut down on the vitamin D will my condition get worse?

DEAR READER — Many things in life that you need can also be harmful. And in the presence of disease some things you use need to be increased or decreased. It is true that vitamin D will cause damage in a normal person. BUT it is known that people with osteoporosis have trouble absorbing calcium from the digestive system. To bring them up to normal and get enough calcium into the bloodstream to strengthen their bones many doctors prescribe large doses of vitamin D along with calcium.

In these cases, since you are combatting a calcium deficiency in the body, you will not develop the problems of vitamin D toxicity. There are other medical conditions too, where absorption from the digestive system is impaired and additional vitamins and minerals are necessary.

Let your doctor chart your course in relation to your evidence of bone loss, symptoms and blood calcium levels. Do not change your medicines without his consent or you may increase your chances of having further bone loss.

And I'm glad you are doing well without your brace. I don't recommend braces unless there is an acute problem such as pain. Then you need them.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening, to give you more information on what causes it and how it is treated. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our daughter is becoming quite serious with her boyfriend. We like the lad, but there is one problem. He has deep rings under his eyes. We have been told these have some relationship to a man's sexual potency. Is this true?

If it is true, is there any cure?

DEAR READER — From all the letters I get about dark circles under the eyes there must be a rather deep-seated prejudice against people with this condition. Why? Possibly because when a person is thin or loses weight the veins and the dark pigment are more obvious. A hundred years ago when the leading cause of death was tuberculosis this may have been observed in terminally ill patients.

But it is caused by an increase of pigment, the same pigment that induces a tan, and in thin people the loss of fat pads make the veins more obvious. It is untrue that it has any relationship to dissipation, too much sex, masturbation or not enough sex.

Reading Class Set At College

Students who would like to become better readers can get help in a summer class scheduled by Western Texas college.

College Reading (RE 131) will be offered from 6-10-10 p.m. on Mondays in the Reading Development Center with Gerald Corkran as instructor. Lab time will be arranged on an individual basis.

Adults who are aware that improved reading speed and comprehension would be useful to them are also invited to enroll for this course.

"Many people feel their inability to read faster or retain information is somthing over which they have little control," Corkran says. "However, once they understand the factors which effect their reading habits and see that they can change these habits, they can help themselves become faster and more productive readers."

The reading course is organized to give each student as much flexibility as possible in setting and pursuing their goals for improvement. Persons who would like more information about the course are invited to contact Corkran and to visit the Reading Center. Summer registration will be held all day Wednesday.

Collect Lots Of Popcorn

RIVER EDGE, N.J. (AP) — Trash bags filled with popcorn are popping up all over at River Dell Junior High School — and the 8th-grade students responsible for the boom will keep on going until they have a million kernels.

"None of the students had ever seen a million of anything," said math teacher David Schoenfeld, who is supervising the project with colleague Patricia Pince. "So we decided to see what a million pieces of popcorn looks like."

The 120 students fired up eight popcorn machines Wednesday morning and plan to continue through Tuesday, Schoenfeld said.

"We're halfway there," he said Friday afternoon. "We popped our 500,000th piece today." Teachers plan a ceremony when the last piece is popped.

Local Church Sets Revival

Bethel Assembly of God Church will be in revival Wednesday through Sunday starting at 7:30 p.m. The church is located at 1411 25th Street.

Conducting the revival will be Rev. J. W. Farmer, superintendent of West Texas District Council of Assemblies of God.

TREE PLANTING--These sixth grade students at Stanfield Elementary participated in a tree planting ceremony earlier this week. Last year as students in June Brock's class they conducted an environmental study which resulted in their collecting over $100 to purchase this red oak tree. Originally they were going to plant the tree at Line Park, but when that didn't come about they put the money in a savings account and this year purchased and planted the tree on the school grounds. The students are Kevin Combest, Brad Newman, Brian Baker, Wendy Ingram, Gina Brooks, Shana Killian, Kirk Eiring, Jimmy Rankin, Walt Floyd, Hayley Vineyard, Loy McSpadden, Wade Spencer, Patty Tuggle, Angie Aycock. Muybridge Photos On Display At Diamond M

Included in "The Horse," the current exhibit at the Diamond M Museum, are three of the best-known photographs ever taken of horses. They are part of the "Animal Locomotion" series by Eadweard Muybridge done in 1877, and consists of a series of small photographs, taken consecutively, to show the motion of a horse gallopimg, trotting and jumping.

Muybridge was born Edward Muggeride in England in 1830. He changed his name to what he believed to be the correct Saxon spelling.

His photographic career began with a series of large photographs of Yosemite in 1867. In 1872 the ex-governor of California, Leland Stanford, bet a friend that a galloping horse has all four feet off the ground at one time.

Before fast stop-action photography was developed there had been no way to determine if this were true. Stanford commissioned Muybridge, by this time a well-known photographer, to try to prove his theory. Muybridge set up the first of his experiments in 1883, but the wet-plate photographic process of the time was too slow to stop the action.

Muybridge shot his wife's lover in 1884, was acquitted on grounds of temporary insanity, but fled to Panama for a time, delaying the work on his photographic experiment.

In 1877 he returned and tried again. As he had done before, he set up a series of 12 cameras to be activiated by the horse as it passed. By covering the track with lime and photographing in the brightest sunlight with a specially developed fast shutter, he managed to stop the horse's slow motion and did prove that the galloping horse has all four feet off the ground at one tme.

Muybridge went on to make a similar series of photographs of many animals and of humans in all kinds of activity. His photographs were studied by artists who often found that traditional ways of depicting motion were inaccurate, as with the earlier standard way of showing a galloping horse with his front feet extended forward and back feet extended backward.

Muybridge's photographs proved that all four feet are off the ground only when the feet are bunched up under the horse. Frederic Remington and Charles Russell were among those who benefited from Muybridge's study.

Muybridge was also responsible for the first true motion picture projection in 1880. He used a "magic lantern" with two revolving discs, which he called a "zoopaxiscope" to project his series of animal locomotion studies. He did not develop the device any further and this was done in France and by Thomas Edison in the United States.

The exhibit containing the Muybridge photographs will continue through July 18. Museum hours are 9 to noon and 1-4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The museum will be closed on Memorial Day weekend. The Diamond M is located on 909 25th Street. Admission is free.

Man Gets 15 Year Term

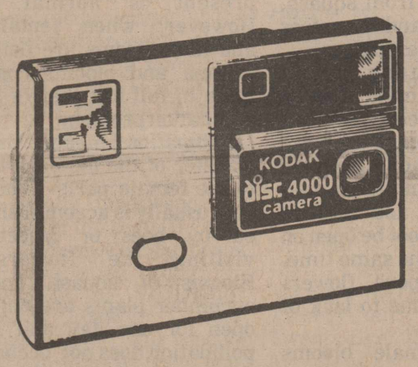

— A "Cowboy Santa" who gave away thousands of dollars worth of toys to the poor has been sentenced to 15 years in prison for conspiracy to distribute cocaine and marijuana.

Larry Keith Burt, who dressed as a cowboy and gave away goods to the poor anonymously on Christmas Eve 1980, was sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Earl Veron after entering a guilty plea.

Burt's identity as the mysterious Cowboy Santa was discovered by authorities during the drug investigation. The indictment alleged that Burt was the leader of a criminal enterprise involved in drugs.

First Baptists Adopt Theme

First Baptist Church in Snyder has launched a new milestone.

Seminar Set

A personal development seminar titled "Adventures in Attitudes" will be offered by the Continuing Education Department of Western Texas College in classes meeting from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. June 5, 14, 21.

The non-credit seminar has been approved for two hours of professional credit by Snyder public schools.

"Adventures in Attitudes" is a programmed experience in the change and mastery of attitudes, imagination, personal skills to achieve motivated effectiveness in family, work and social situations, according to Dr. Clyde Smith, instructor. Smith is an accredited instructor for Personal Dynamics, Inc. and a department chairman at Odessa College.

We will be stressing a refreshingly new concept using group involvement, the printed word and self-developmet projects to more fully utilize human effort and potential," Smith said.

Tuition is $35 and must be paid by June 2. Other supplies will cost $45.

Call 573-8511, extension 240, for more information.

The congregation is looking forward to its centennial celebration in May of 1983, and the past week began a year-long celebration that will reach its climax when the church marks its 100th anniversary.

First Baptist Church began in May, 1883, as the Bledsoe Baptist Church. The name was changed in 1892, and it has continued ever since as First Baptist Church.

There have been 31 pastors over the past 99 years, as the church has grown from a one-room building to the multi-purpose facilities it now owns at 27th St. and Ave. Q.

The Rev. Ken Branam the current and 31st pastor, recognized 26 persons who have been members for 50 years or more as the 100th year began. In all, there are some 48 persons who were members of the church 50 years ago, some who have been away for a time but returned, along with others who have held continuous membership in the church for half a century or more.

The theme adopted for the centennial year is "Glancing Backward; Marching forward," and the them song for the year-long event is "To God Be the Glory."

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton is beating its Ivy League rivals Harvard and Yale in the race to produce millionaires and conservatives without divorces, a study says.

The alumni associations of the three schools compared the classes of 1957 from each of the schools and found 17 percent of the Princeton graduates were millionaries, compared with 16 percent at Yale and 12 percent at Harvard.

More Princeton graduates supported President Reagan' policies and 70 percent of those responding to the survey released Friday were married to their first spouses, compared with 67 percent at Yale and 69 percent at Harvard.

Dr. Don Newbury, Western Texas College president, will be guest speaker for the program. Musical entertainment will be provided by Cindy Hatway. The Rev. Ken Branam, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be master of ceremonies.

The menu will feature a choice of roast baron of beef or Virginia baked ham, scalloped potatoes, whole tiny carrots with orange glaze, fresh spinach salad and pecan pie.

Before long, blooms will be dropping from squash, cucumbers and tomatoes in many home gardens.

On squash and cucumbers, male flowers which produce pollen are separate from female flowers which produce fruit. To complicate matters, male and female flowers may not be open on the plant at the same time.

If this happens, flowers will fall off due to lack of pollination.

Usually, male blooms will appear first on squash and cucumber plants. Male blooms are attached to the plant by a green stem while each female bloom has a small squash or cucumber attached directly behind thepetals.

Female blooms falling off early in a plant's life when male blooms are not present is normal. However, when female and male booms are both present and blooms continue to fall off, there's a pollination problem.

Pollination means the transfer of the male parts to the female parts. This task usually is accomplished by bees or insects visiting the flowers. Blooms of squash and cucumber plants are only open for one day and if pollination does not occur, then inadequate pollination occurs and fruit drop follows.

If pollination is a problem, you can hand pollinate the blooms. This involves pulling off a male bloom and rubbing or dabbing it on the female bloom. The result will be that you'll have squash to eat within seven days.

Tomato blooms drop off because of another type of pollination problem. The tomato bloom is classified as a perfect flower, which means that the same flower has both female and male parts.

The problem is that female parts of the flower that must be pollinated are located above the male part which produces pollen. If pollen is activated by high temperature or made sticky by cool, wet, cloudy conditions, the female flower part will not be pollinated and the entire flower and potential tomato will fall off.

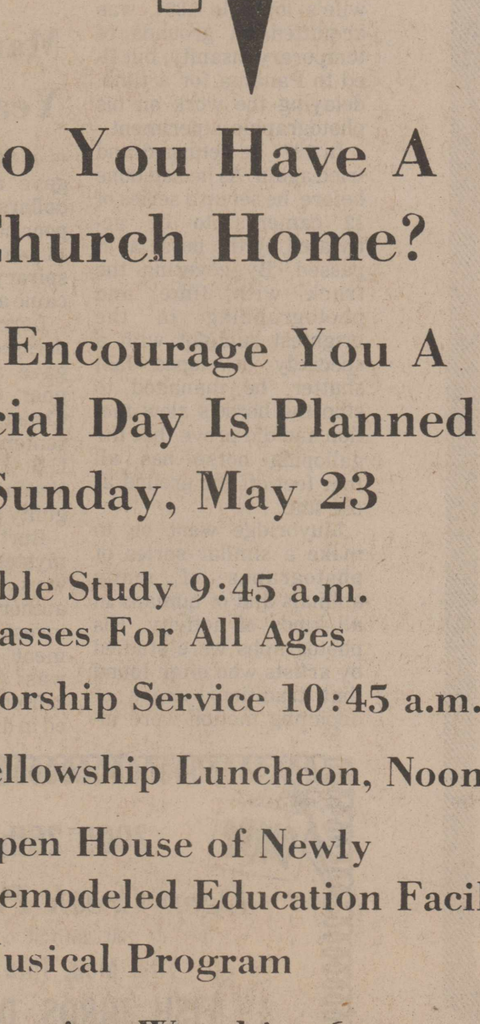

Tomato flowers are wind or mechanicaly pollinated, so you don't have to worry about having bees. Flowers can be artificially set or made to stay on plants by using blossom-set hormone which is sold by many local garden centers.

These bloom-setting products are most effective during early spring when cool temperatures and cloudy conditions cause poor fruit set.

If your blooming vegetables start dropping their flowers, try to determine the reason. Attention paid to your plants during this critical period will result in more groceries on the dinner table.

CRIB DEATH
Selenium, another trace mineral, is part of an important enzyme contained in blood and all body organs — it protects cell membranes from oxygen damage. There is some evidence that a deficiency of selenium in babies may play a role in crib deaths. Selenium is found in seafood, meats, and whole grains grown in selenium-rich soils.

Foreign Canoeists Swept Away

IONE, Wash. (AP) — Two Austrian canoeists who apparently couldn't read English warning signs on a treacherous, fast-flowing river were swept over a dam to their deaths, authorities said.

A dazed survivor, the brother of one of the missing men, swam to shore buoyed by two rucksacks to summon help, but he couldn't explain in English what happened, officials said.

The accident occurred Thursday afternoon at the Box Canyon Dam on the Pend Oreille River near this northeastern Washington community. The river, placid and picturesque in some spots, becomes a dangerous torrent that has claimed many lives downstream from Ione. The river runs north to the Canadian border.

"We presume they went over the dam and drowned," said Pend Oreille County Sheriff Tony Bamonte, who supervised an unsuccessful search Friday along a 16-mile stretch of the river to the border.

The trio had been warned Wednesday in Ione that there was a dam downstream, said Linda Windsor, who operates the Box Canyon Motel & Cafe below the dam, "but I guess they just couldn't understand English and didn't know what was coming."

The tourists bought a $535 metal canoe in Sandpoint, Idaho, a week ago and planned to travel to the Canadian border, said Deputy Dee Carsons. Authorities said there were no life preservers in the canoe.

Missing were Peter Weiglhofer, 22, a butcher from Spital, Austria, and Kurt Wohri, 21, a chimney sweep from Murzzuschlag, Austria, the sheriff said.

Weiglhofer's brother, Ernst, 24, also from Spital, swam to shore just above the dam. He was described as hysterical when he tried to summon help from an unidentified person.

But he spoke no English and no one on shore could immediately understand him. It was nearly two hours after the 5 p.m. accident before someone realized what had happened and called the sheriff's department, Bamonte said.

Weiglhofer was treated for shock at Mount Linton Hospital in nearby Metaline Falls. He later was taken to the home of Henry Fischer, a resident who speaks German.

"They knew something was wrong and were trying to make it to shore, but it was too late," said Fischer, who later interpreted questions to Weiglhofer.

The sheriff said the canoeists were about 300 yards above the dam when they started paddling to shore, but panicked and swamped the canoe.

Nutrition Session Set

With vacation time here, a program on nutritious meals for travelers has been scheduled Tuesday in the Senior Citizens Center at 11:30 a.m.

Virginia Whitson will present the program in the dining room as senior citizens gather for lunch.

The center will be closed Thursday because of the Volunteer Recognition Banquet planned here Thursday night. VIVA members and other volunteers at the center will be honored at this annual event.

The center is located at 2603 Avenue M and is open each weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. County residents 60 years of age and older and those with spouses in that age group are invited to take part in the activities which include table games, exercises, quilting, ceramics, square dancing, swimming, miniature golf and bowling sponsored by the center at other locations.

W. Jones Completes Requirements

Wendell Jones of Snyder has completed requirements for the Ph.D in Adult and Continuing Education at North Texas State University.

Jones is a professor of foreign language and assistant director of continuing and adult vocational education at Western Texas College. He holds the bachelor of arts degree and the master of arts degree from Texas Tech University, and was one of the original faculty members at WTC when the college opened in 1971.

For his doctoral dissertation, Jones prepared an in-depth study of the expectations of administrators at two-year colleges concerning the predicted growth of enrollment of students over 30 years of age and the effect they believe this trend will have on two-year colleges.

Jones surveyed the changing student population with a view to the impact that it will have on course offerings of the colleges, possible changes which colleges will need to make in such procedures as registration, admissions, scheduling, counseling student services and faculty development necessary to meet the educational needs of the over-30 clientele.

Rent-A-Wife Business Opens

ROUND ROCK, Texas (AP) — Susan Stanton will leave a love note under your pillow or listen to you gripe about work. And, for $60 an hour, she'll even argue with you about sex.

Her new business is called rent-a-wife, and her services are anything legal you desire.

She's running a fledgling business selling a fantasy to lonely bachelors, she says, who "need somebody to talk to, to be with, another person who cares."

"What I do best," says Ms. Stanton, "is take care of a man." This is not, Ms. Stanton says emphatically, "out-call service."

The 39-year-old Round Rock mother was a full-time wife for 15 years, before separating last year, and wants to get back in the business, on a part-time, no-commitment basis.

The first day her "rent-a-wife" ad ran in the newspaper, Stanton talked to 20 men.

She was booked for most of the first weekend with three customers, and was negotiating with a couple more.

There are two basic categories of work, and the fee is higher if you're underfoot.

For $12 an hour, Ms. Stanton will do all the things a maid would, but add a facsimile of romance.

"I'll leave little love notes under the pillow or cute stuffed dolls that say 'you're special,' and call at work to see how the day is going."

The less-expensive services include housecleaning, paying bills, picking up your clothes from the cleaners or your children from school.

In-person pampering costs more. A welcome-home kiss, sympathetic listening about the rotten boss, or enthusiasm for the super idea to make a million bucks run $20 an hour. She'll go out to dinner or a party for the same price, and you'll pay all expenses.

Ms. Stanton's telephone voice turns stern when the subject turns to sex. Handholding or pats on the back are her limit.

"Whenever passion enters in," she says, "business goes out the window."

Ms. Stanton wants to work part-time. You can get a bargain rate, though, if you hire her by the week. She'll charge $320 for four eight-hour days.

Trying To Repeat History...

Celtics Push Series To Game 7

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Larry Bird and Robert Parish triggered an early fourth-period, 12-consecutive-point rally while the defense allowed only 27 points in the second half as the Boston Celtics defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 88-75 Friday night and sent the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship playoff to a deciding seventh game.

The Celtics, in regaining the homecourt advantage they lost in the second game of the series, now have a chance to produce a "miracle" comeback against Philadelphia for the second straight year.

Last season in the Eastern finals, Boston trailed 3-1 in the best-of-seven series and won the next three games to eliminate the stunned 76ers.

They can do it again Sunday in Boston.

Only four teams in NBA history have come back to win a seven-game playoff series after trailing 3-1.

Kevin McHale, the Celtics 6-foot-10 second-year man from Minnesota, led Boston with 17 points, while Bird and Parish each had 14 and Gerald Henderson 13.

Julius Erving's 22 points led the 76ers, who in the first period had a 15-point lead and led under Parish hit the first of two consecutive turnaround jumpers that sent Boston ahead 69-67 with 7:58 remaining in the game.

The 76ers led 67-61 with 9:46 left in the final quarter when McHale collected a pair of free throws to start Boston's 12-point winning rally.

Bird then scored a field goal followed by a pair of free throws by Henderson that tied the score. Then came Parish's two jumpers and the Celtics never again trailed.

Philadelphia didn't score a field goal, with the exception of two goaltending calls, in the final 17 minutes of the game. They had 11 points in the final quarter, nine of them on free throws.

Despite its inability to put the ball in the hoop, Philadelphia came within a point at 74-73 on a pair of free throws by Erving with 4:23 left. But Boston outscored them 14-2 to the end of the game to send a unbelieving sellout crowd of 18,364 home wondering if the 76ers are about to do another swan dive.

Experience Key Lewis Believes

LUBBOCK -- Coach Albert Lewis admits his Tigers face a "monumental task" here this week, but he's feeling better about the situation than he did just a year ago.

"I've got a lot more confidence than I did this time last year because of the experience factor," said Lewis, who takes his team against the highly touted Estacado Matadors in Game One of a best-of-three bi-district playoff series here Tuesday. Game time is 4 p.m. "Last year we had so many sophomores. We had some good athletes and all, but we were so young - like Estacado was two years ago. This year we've got more experience and that makes a big difference," he said.

Snyder swept a playoff series with Estacado two years ago and the Mats returned the favor last year. Coach Lewis hasn't had many opportunities to scout the 1981 state finals team this season, but he's seen enough to know what to expect.

"They've had an advantage over us in that respect," said Lewis, who noted Estacado scouted Snyder's final three regular season games. Estacado, playing for best overall record in district 1-AAAA, wrapped up a berth two weeks ago while the Tigers, playing a double round-robin, claimed the 2-AAAA title last week. "We were able to just concentrate on getting out of district, while they were able to relax a little. But we're familiar with them. They like to get on base and then force you to make mistakes," Lewis noted. "They'll steal second and third base, they'll hit and run, squeeze - they'll tax you."

To play with the Matadors, 23-3, Snyder will have to "keep our composure and play good defense. And if we don't have success early, not get down on ourselves," added the coach.

Game Two of the series will be held 2 p.m. Friday at Moffett Field in Snyder, with a third game to follow if necessary.

Royals Blank Hapless Texas Rangers, 3-Zip

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Dennis Leonard and Dan Quisenberry combined on a four-hit shutout, and Amos Otis drove in a pair of runs as the Kansas City Royals handed the slumping Texas Rangers their 20th loss in 24 games Friday night, 3-0.

Leonard, 5-3, set down 19 of the 21 batters he faced but left the game with an injury after triggering an unusual double play in the seventh inning.

Mike Richardt opened the inning with a double, and Buddy Bell followed with a line smash off Leonard's pitching hand. The ball caromed in the air to second baseman Frank White for one out, but White, apparently unsure whether the ball had hit the ground, threw to first.

Kansas City first baseman Willie Aikens threw the ball back to second to double off Richardt, who had gone to third.

The Royals said Leonard was hit on the middle and index fingers of his right hand and was taken to a Kansas City hospital for X-rays.

The Royals got the only run they needed in the first off loser Frank Tanana, 1-6. George Brett drew a two-out walk and scored when Otis doubled to left.

White doubled with one out in the second and scored on Willie Wilson's single, and Otis drove in an eighth-inning run with a sacrifice fly.

Sutton Claims Seventh Win

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston's Don Sutton scattered six New York hits in eight innings and became the first National League pitcher to win seven games this year in a 5-1 victory over the Mets Friday night.

Sutton, 7-1, struck out seven and walked three in posting his fifth straight victory against New York. Frank LaCorte pitched the ninth inning for the Astros.

Danny Heep and Phil Garner hit consecutive doubles off loser Mike Scott, 3-3, to give Houston a 1-0 lead in the second inning, but the Mets tied it on Ron Gardenhire's single and stolen base and an RBI single by Mookie Wilson in the top of the third.

The Astros went ahead to stay in the bottom of the third on Tony Scott's run-scoring single following a double by Terry Puhl.

Alan Ashby knocked in a run with a single in the fourth and Jose Cruz's double brought home another in the fifth to give the Astros a 4-1 lead.

Garner tripled to lead off the Houston sixth and scored on Ashby's fly to right for the Astros' final run.

Hansard Inks With College

Sam Hansard, four-time All-District Team golfer at Lamesa High School, has signed a letter of intent with Western Texas College.

Hansard was graduated from LHS with honors this spring. He was district medalist in 1979-80. He won runnerup medalist honors in both district and region in 1980-81 when current Western Texas golfer Rick Woodson was medalist.

Hansard has played in the state golf tournament in Austin three years and was a member of the team which was runnerup for the state championship in 1980-81. He also lettered in basketball and football, receiving honorable mention all-district for his gridiron efforts in 1979-80 and 81-82.

"Sam is an outstanding golfer and student," said WTC Coach Dave Foster. "He is a leader on and off the golf course and was a very highly recruited player. We are pleased that Sam chose WTC and I am looking forward to working with him in the coming season."

Hansard is the second recruit announced by Foster. Eric McGraw, a member of this year's Class 5A state championship Abilene Cooper golf team, had previously signed with WTC.

Problem At Oklahoma: Switzer In Hot Water

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Oklahoma authorities say they will investigate allegations University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer used state postage and stationery to promote a country singer, an Austin radio station reported Friday.

Radio station KVET reporter Jim McNabb said Friday the station received a letter signed by Switzer and urging the station to listen to and play a record by John Kelly, a singer the letter said Switzer signed to a nine-year contract.

McNabb said the postage meter imprint on the letter reads, "State of Oklahoma, Official mail, Private use illegal."

OU attorney Kurt Ockerhauser told McNabb he would begin investigating the matter next week.

"We'll probably ... talk with coach Switzer and find out what the situation is and get some kind of clarification on the matter probably by midweek," said Ockerhauser.

Switzer was quoted in the Oklahoma City Times as saying he purchased the OU stationery and paid the postage for the letters to the radio stations.

District Attorney Kay Huff in Norman, Okla., said she would investigate the matter if a complaint were filed.

"It just concerned me as to whether or not he is using university funds and university stationery to do what appears to be - at least from what you've said - a promotional letter," Ms. Huff told McNabb.

The record's co-producer, Fred Vail of Mariner Records in Nashville, said he was aware of the letter, but not the manner in which it was sent.

"I knew that there was a letter going out, but from my understanding I thought it was something Barry was doing on his own," he told the reporter.

McNabb said the letter, dated May 18 and postmarked the 20th, said in part:

"This was an exciting and interesting experience for an old football coach. I think you will find this young man a good talent and I would appreciate your listening to John and if you like him as I do, how about allowing your listeners to hear him.

Stabler Entering 'Chase'

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers quarterback Ken Stabler is philosophical about coming into training camp number two behind his former understudy Gifford Neilsen.

"Any way you say it, the job belongs to Gifford," Stabler said after being the first player to show up for the team's mini-camp this weekend. "But the chase isn't over yet. I've still got plenty of confidence in my ability. All I'm asking for is a fair shot."

Stabler emerged from his customary low off-season profile and wonders why there should be any curiosity about his activity or if he'll return to the team.

"I've just been taking care of business and listening to what people say about me," said Stabler, who religiously avoided working out in off-season training at the Oilers' new facilities.

"Just because I haven't been working out here doesn't mean I'm not in shape," Stabler said. "I've been lifting some weights. I jog around the lake close to my home. I've kept my weight down. I feel great."

Stabler not only has to take a back seat to Neilsen, he must contend with speculation that he will be waived because the Oilers chose West Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck in the second round of last month's draft.

"There's no reason to think that anyone who's involved in the mini-camp won't be with us in San Angelo," the team's training spot, Oiler coach Ed Biles said. "The purpose of this weekend isn't to make personnel decisions, and no team's going to be talking trade right now."

Stabler says he's heard the rumors too.

"If they don't want me, then they should just call me in and tell me," Stabler said. "Nobody's told me anything. I want to be as productive as I can for everybody on the team. I'm ready to play any role they want me to play."

Nelson Leads At Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) - Larry Nelson had his goal in mind, and was pretty much on target halfway through the $300,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I told Jeff Thomsen what I had in mind was 24-under," Nelson said Friday after firing a 67 for an 11-under-par 133 total and a 1 shot edge over Scott Hoch.

"It would be a new tournament record," Nelson said, "and I figured it would win."

Nelson, the reigning PGA champion, said he feels good about his chances.

"It's kind of like you're waiting for something to happen," he said. "I didn't play very well today and shot 67. I hope that's an indication of things to come the next two days."

Hoch, currently No.6 on the PGA money list for this season, had posted his 67-134 before Nelson began his round on the 7,007-yard, par-72 Atlanta Country Club course.

Lanny Wadkins had a torrid 64 despite bogeying his first hole and was alone in third place at 136.

Three players were tied at 137 - Peter Jacobsen 69, Wayne Levi 68 and Roger Maltbie, who capped a 67 with an eagle 3 on the final hole.

Defending champion Tom Watson had a 70 and headed a quartet at 70 that also included first round co-leader Keith Fergus, who had a 72.

Partnership Planned

July 24 and 25 are the days slated for the sixth annual Western Texas College Golf Partnership, a 64-team tournament held at the college course.

Entry is $90 with a deadline of July 21.

Four prizes will be awarded in each of the four flights. First place is a set of Wilson X-31 irons; second place is a set of Wilson X-31 woods; third place are Wilson Suit caddy bags; and fourth place is two dozen golf balls.

Action opens at 9 a.m. Saturday and continues at 2 p.m. with shotgun starts. A free barbeque will be held at 7 p.m. in the school cafeteria for contestants. Guests may attend for $5 each.

Second and Third flights will tee at 9 Sunday, followed by the Championship and First flights at 2.

Twenty-two golf carts are available for a fee of $24 (covers both days).

For reservations or further information, contact Bob O'Day or Dave Foster at the Western Texas College Pro Shop, (915) 573-9291.

Judo, Aikido Classes Set

Sport judo and aikido will be offered in evening classes for summer students at Western Texas College.

Judo classes will meet from 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays with aikido classes from 8-10 p.m. on the same nights. Dr. Shell Hillis, WTC judo coach, will teach both courses, which do not carry college credit.

Students are to register on Wednesday and evening students may register from 6:30-9 p.m.

Persons interested in non-credit judo and aikido classes may contact Hillis for information about Community Services courses. Students in those non-credit courses will pay fees of $35 each. Aikido classes are open only to students 16 years of age or older, while younger students may enroll for judo.

Tennis Meet Slated Here

Entry blanks for the Snyder Fourth of July Tennis Tournament have been made available to the public. Information may be obtained by contacting the chamber of commerce, Snyder Athletic Center, or by calling 573-3344 or 573-3940.

The annual tournament, sponsored by the chamber of commerce, will be held July 3 and 4.

Caponi Gets Tracked; Trails Little By Two

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) - Donna Caponi, winless after 10 events following a banner season last year, may be out of her slump.

Caponi shot a 2-under-par 70 and is two strokes behind leader Sally Little after Friday's opening round of the $150,000 Chrysler Plymouth Classic on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Caponi, who was tied with Kathy Morse, gives much of the credit for her better play to a month off she recently took to "clean the cobwebs out."

"After 18 years on the circuit, it's tough to be ready every time out," said Caponi, who last year earned $192,916 but managed just $35,841 this season. "And for me to take a month off is really something. Last year, I skipped two tournaments in a row, and before that I never missed more than one week."

Little, this season's leading money winner with $125,084, was a stroke ahead of Amy Alcott after her 68. Vicki Tabor and Kathy Hite are tied for fifth at 71.

Kathy Whitworth, the defending champion, was at 1-over-par 73. The Hall of Famer surpassed Mickey Wright on the LPGA list for most tournament victories last week by winning her 83rd title in Atlanta.

A pro since 1965, Caponi last season won five tournaments and became one of the LPGA's three millionaires, joining Whitworth and JoAnne Carner. This year, Caponi has not finished higher than fifth place.

"I started the year with a bad attitude and couldn't get self-motivated," said Caponi, who claims her attitude changed after taking time off following the Dinah Shore Invitational in April.

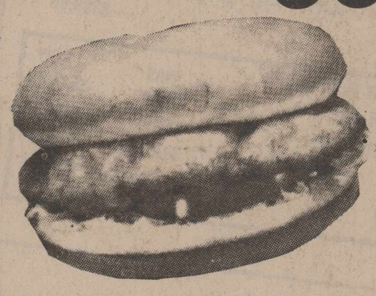

"Things were getting so bad, that even before I would get to the course I had a bad shot. When I finally decided to take a vacation I played only six days of golf in four weeks," she said.

Caponi said the layoff helped.

"My mental attitude is better," she said. "This is my third tournament since returning, and I was eighth in the previous two. Today, I had a dumb bogey on the 10th hole. Still, I played a solid round.

"I'm enjoying golf more," Caponi added. "I have my own private plan - aim to be in the top 10 every week and you can usually finish fifth. And if you do that, then you'll win a few," she said.

Experts Say Life In Space Will Be Very Spartan

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — If man ever colonizes space, life up there won't be as free and easy as some science fiction writers predict, says a researcher at the University of Texas at El Paso.

Ellwyn Stoddard, a professor of sociology and anthropology at UTEP since 1965, has been studying the possible social structures of space communities and he thinks space pioneers will have to answer to a strong central authority and give up many of their individual freedoms.

"Most of the people in this field have the mistaken idea that the farther we get away from Earth, the further we will be from Earth institutions," Stoddard said. "That's the last thing that will happen in space."

Although Stoddard is sure of his theories, he admits that studying the social life of space colonists is primarily speculation. His most recent paper on the subject is a blend of what is known and what is anticipated, drawing from both sociological sources and science fiction.

"I'm an avid science fiction reader," he said. "That's not easy. I have my heroes, like (author) Isaac Asimov, that I have to take to task on this."

Stoddard said most science fiction writers express the "liberal ideology" of space pioneers' being rugged individualists with a freedom of choice that he believes won't exist.

The liberal view is shared by many people in the space sciences, he said.

"I first presented this paper to the American Astronomical Society, which is dominated by space engineers and, well, idealists who say we have to learn to live in space so that we'll be able to escape when we blow up the world," he said. "This was not really the thing they wanted to hear."

Stoddard believes, first of all, that while colonizing space is an attractive idea, it will be a long time coming if it happens at all. The reason is money. He said economic resources will not be turned to taming the wilds of space until after problems here on Earth — particularly energy — are solved.

But if Earth can afford the ventures into space, the pioneers will need a structure for their social interaction and that's where Stoddard's theories come in.

There's little hard information to work from, he said, because there have been no projects where fairly large numbers of people worked together in space with some autonomy from Earth.

"The Skylab kind of thing does not tell us what a non-Earth colony will be like," he said. "It only tells us what a group of scientists in space will be like. . It's very dependent on Earth. It's always going to be a messenger boy.

"A lot of people have talked about establishing a colony on Mars because it is probably the least harsh of the other environments in the Solar System. But Mars isn't exactly next door. You go a further distance from Earth and you have to be autonomous."

Stoddard worked with two models in writing his paper, which will appear in the fall edition of Space Journal. One is for colonizing space relatively close to Earth and the other is a "doomsday mode."

"I say doomsday mode because I don't know of any other reason for throwing a man out of the galaxy," he said. "There are two ways of thinking about how we would select people to carry on our civilization after we blow up the world. One version would be an Earth microcosm, like a little United Nations. If you put, say, 10,000 people on the colony, you would put some of every kind of person to broaden the genetic pool."

The other possibility is placing the "best and the brightest," the experts in various fields, aboard the colony.

In both cases, a dictatorial central authority would be needed to run the operation, he said. In the first example, it would be necessary because "these people aren't any more apt to get along with each other than in the UN." It would be needed in the second model because of the "prima donna" nature of those chosen.

In colonies set up by an Earth that did not destroy itself, a strong authority still will be needed because the precarious existence in space will require it, Stoddard said.

"Space is inhospitable and unforgiving," he said. "The more critical the survival is, the more centralized your social system is going to be."

He compares the system to the wagon trains that took settlers West. To stay with the group, the settlers had to give total control to the wagonmaster, even if it meant giving up their personal freedoms.

"The frontier society, not modern society, approximates the model of space societies," he said. "The survival of the total society has to be secure. Only when survival of the society is safe enough will there be individual freedoms."

Stoddard predicts some specific systems for particular types of colonies. Again, science fiction comes into play. Stoddard even gives the types whimsical names like Factory Town, Space Prison and Ore-ville.

Three of the types, an orbiting prison, a hospital and a military base, would be run much like they are on Earth, with one "boss" that everyone answers to and a range of understructures.

But life in a space factory or mining operation would be much different from working in their Earth counterparts, he said. For example, there would be little or no recreational or family life.

"We're not going to have families sent up, too," he predicted. "We're not going to have normal family life. In space, it's too costly."

At Ore-ville, his imaginary mining operation, "the structure would be very, very rigid, like a military base. It would be like a prison with a sort of voluntary membership."

The only chance for freedom of choice in such Earth-connected colonies would be when the worker's tour of duty was completed, Stoddard predicts, when he could decide whether to come back to Earth or stay in the strict space system.

Police Take Complaints

Snyder police investigated one criminal mischief complaint and two minor traffic accidents reported Friday.

Norman Malone called local police around 2:30 p.m. Friday and told officers that someone had slashed a tire on his Ford pickup while it was parked at Snyder High School. Value of damages in the incident were estimated at $50.

The first of the day's two minor traffic mishaps occurred around 11:26 a.m. at the intersection of 26th St. and Hidetown Dr. Involved in the accident were a 1982 Ford driven by Dewayne Page of 4019 Eastridge and a 1982 Pontiac driven by Sabrina Tidwell of 4010 Eastridge. Only minor damages were reported to both vehicles.

Minor damages were reported to a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Dasha Treat of Snyder and a 1976 Oldsmobile driven by Lila Villasana of 2511 Ave. U after a minor two vehicle collision at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. I. This mishap occurred around 11:57 a.m. Friday.

In other routine action, local police made one DWI arrest and jailed two subjects on public intoxication charges during the evening.

The award, sponsored by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company carries a cash prize of $2,000 and will formally presented next October in Seattle, Washington.

Bellamy is a 1973 graduate of Snyder High School and worked at KSNY radio before moving to Lubbock and then Houston where she worked in both newpaper and radio journalism. She currently resides in Santa Barbara, California where she is employed in the marketing department of an information services firm and is pursuing a career as a freelance writer.

A short inventory of the contents revealed an artifical rose, an aluminum comb, the class portrait, a key chain and key to a forgotten Ford, the class letter declaring Mrs. Brinner Teacher of the Year, a soap carving of the Alamo, one miniature baby doll, a souvenir tray from Hemisfair '68 in San Antonio and at least two toy cars.

Prior to the opening of the treasure chest, Mrs. Brinner produced another surprise for her former students. As they arrived at the school, she had each of them take a piece of paper and write their ABC's and a sample of their best handwriting.

When they had completed the assignment, she produced copies of the same assignment given to the pupils Aug. 22, 1973. Comparison of the two papers produced an entertaining assessment of how much progress one makes in penmanship between the fourth grade and high school graduation.

While early marriage, family moves and other events took their toll on the majority of the original members of the class, at least four of the ten who graduated this year will be around Snyder a while longer.

Todd Stephens, Dale Shifflett, Danny Eckert and Kim Lunsford have indicated that the next year will find them all enrolled in courses at Western Texas College. John Bloom says he intends to go directly into farming after graduation.

While John Stephens and Jay Cox have indicated no specific plans for the immediate future others will be leaving Snyder to pursue their educations. Gary Don Edmisaton says he will be attending Angelo State University next fall.

Jacqueline Pylant plans to study music at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene and Ronnie Rosas will attend Vernon Junior College on a rodeo scholarship and study animal science.

MRS. CHRISTIAN LESLIE WHIGHAM

Johnson, Whigham Vows Exchanged

Linda Janelaine Johnson and Christian Leslie Whigham exchanged double ring wedding vows May 22 at 11 a.m. in Fannin Terrace Baptist Church of Midland. Rev. Jim B. Johnson of First Baptist Church in Troy officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James R. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Whigham, all of Midland.

Betty Watts of Snyder was organist and Jan McClure, cousin of the bride, of Plainview sang "Always" and "Jesus, Precious Jesus."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal ivory gown of satin organza and Schiffle lace. The natural waist bodice featured a scooped neckline, wide Schiffle lace edged the yoke and a wide pleated ruffle made a cape over the shoulders and around the yoke. The full A-line skirt was edged with a pleated ruffle trimmed with Schiffle lace and the full train was chapel length. A two-tiered fingertip veil was attached to a small bandeau.

Robin M. Johnson, sister-in-law of the bride, of Troy was matron of honor and Sherrie Early of Denton and Tammy Tate of Tarzan were bridesmaids. They wore sundresses of navy linen with natural waistlines and full-length A-line skirts topped with navy jackets. Both were trimmed with white linen.

Best man was David C. Whigman of Odessa and groomsmen were David W. Huddleston of Midland and Dean E. Cathey of Garland.

John M. Davis, David A. Smith and Bob Marshall of College Station and Ross Rucker of Idalou seated guests. They wore Texas A&M cadet uniforms with senior boots.

A wedding brunch was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

Leslie Hobbs and Angela Higginbotham registered guests in the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will reside in Midland.

The bride is a secretary for Kelly Service and the groom graduated from Texas A&M in December. He is a petroleum engineer.

Miss Gaona Becomes Bride Of Mr. Colvin

ROBY—Sylvia Evelinda Gaona became the bride of Michael Lyn Colvin Apr. 17 at 7 p.m. at the First Baptist Church. Rev. Allen Cartrite officated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Jeronimo Gaona and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Holder of Snyder are parents of the groom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown designed by Bridal Originals and fashioned of polyester organza over bridal satin. Silk venise lace molded an empire bodice and framed its Queen Anne neckline. Long sheer sleeves tapered to the wrists and were caught with a wide band of lace and a double ruffle of sheer organza. The carpet length A-line skirt was accented with double ruffles of sheer organza trimmed in venise lace. A chapel length train was attached at the back below rows of tiny covered wedding buttons. Her veil of silk illusion was trimmed in lace and was attached to a lace covered headpiece.

Something new was her gown and something borrowed was a Bible belonging to Mrs. Larry Williamson. She wore her mother's diamond necklace for something old and a blue garter.

Maid of honor was Jan Wright and candlelighters were Susan Gaona, sister of the bride, and Jennifer Wright.

The groom wore a three piece western tuxedo with a cream pleated shirt. It was accented with a brown western string tie.

Best man was Keith Baize of Lake J. B. Thomas. Ushers were Richard and David Gaona, brothers of the bride.

The registration table was covered with a white cloth edged in Chantilly lace. It had a white feather pen and registration book. A single blue carnation with blue and white streamers was the centerpiece. Cynthia Gaona, sister-in-law of the bride, registered guests.

Tammy Lee was pianist and soloist was Melynda Crow, both of Snyder. Guests were seated during "Endless Love." Other selections were "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding March."

A reception in the fellowship hall of the church followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was laid with a white lace cloth over blue and the bride's bouquet was used as the centerpiece. The three-tiered cake was accented with blue carnations with the couple's names written on it. Serving were Shelly Carlisle of Spur and Susan Gaona.

The groom's table was covered with a white cloth. The chocolate cake was shaped into two wedding bands overlaying each other. Jennifer Wright served at this table.

Sonya Gaona, niece of the bride, passed out rice bags.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Roby High School and attended Western Texas College. She is employed as manager of the Water Bed Shop in Snyder.

The groom is a 1973 graduate of Snyder High School and a 1975 graduate of Western Texas College. He is self-employed as a welder.

Prairie Luncheon Ends Club Year

The Altrurian Daughters Club was treated to a "Prairie Luncheon" at the home of Mrs. Borden Gray Sr. on May 19. Mrs. Pat Falls was co-hostess.

Costumed in prairie dress, members sat around tables decorated with baskets of ivy and spring flowers. The buffet meal featured many colorful foods with special rolls and dessert.

Mrs. Billy Null, president, presided at the short business meeting. Mrs. P. I. Youngkin, incoming president, discussed plans for the new club year beginning in September.

Twenty-two ladies attended the meeting, including a guest, Mrs. Roger Mize.

Tests Set For Pain Drug

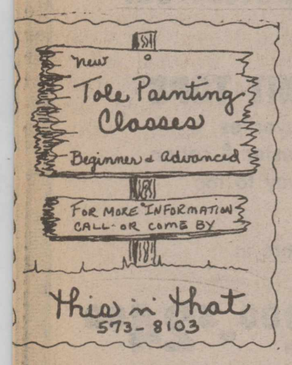

NEW YORK (AP) — Ely Lilly and Co. plans three years of tests on 1,600 rheumatoid arthritis sufferers to evaluate whether an anti-pain drug slows down the joint-destroying disease.

The drug, sold in the United States under the brand name Oraflex and known chemically as benoxaprofen, reduces symptoms of osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis, the pharmaceutical company said.

Dr. Ian Shedden, vice president of Lilly Research Laboratories, said at a news conference Wednesday that laboratory tests on animals indicated the drug may "actually be retarding the progression" of arthritis.

Lilly said the drug produces fewer gastrointestinal side effects than aspirin in most patients, although a few have experienced a burning skin reaction to sunlight.

President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at sea in 1941 to draft the Atlantic charter.

CommunicationHighly Important In Marriage

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The more a couple has in common the greater the chances that the marriage will succeed, sociology studies have indicated over the past 60 years.

But, say two Brigham Young University researchers, a factor that has almost been overlooked until recently — communication — now looms more important than similarities in background.

Dr. Thomas Holman and Dr. Wesley Burr, in the family sciences department at BYU, found in a survey of 57 married couples that communication outweighs such factors as the quality of their parents' marriage, agreement on values and role expectations, demographic similarities. and emotional health.

"This is the first study that's found communication is so very important when compared with other factors," said Holman.

"Before, we've known that if people come from similar backgrounds their marriage has a greater chance for success. We've assumed, through folk wisdom, that communication is important, but social science has not been able, through scientific devices, to corroborate just how effective it is."

Communication covers the ability to talk out problems without defensiveness or an emotional outburst and the willingness to listen to another point of view, Holman points out.

Although both husbands and wives thought communication was the most important factor in marriage, the women surveyed felt more strongly about it.

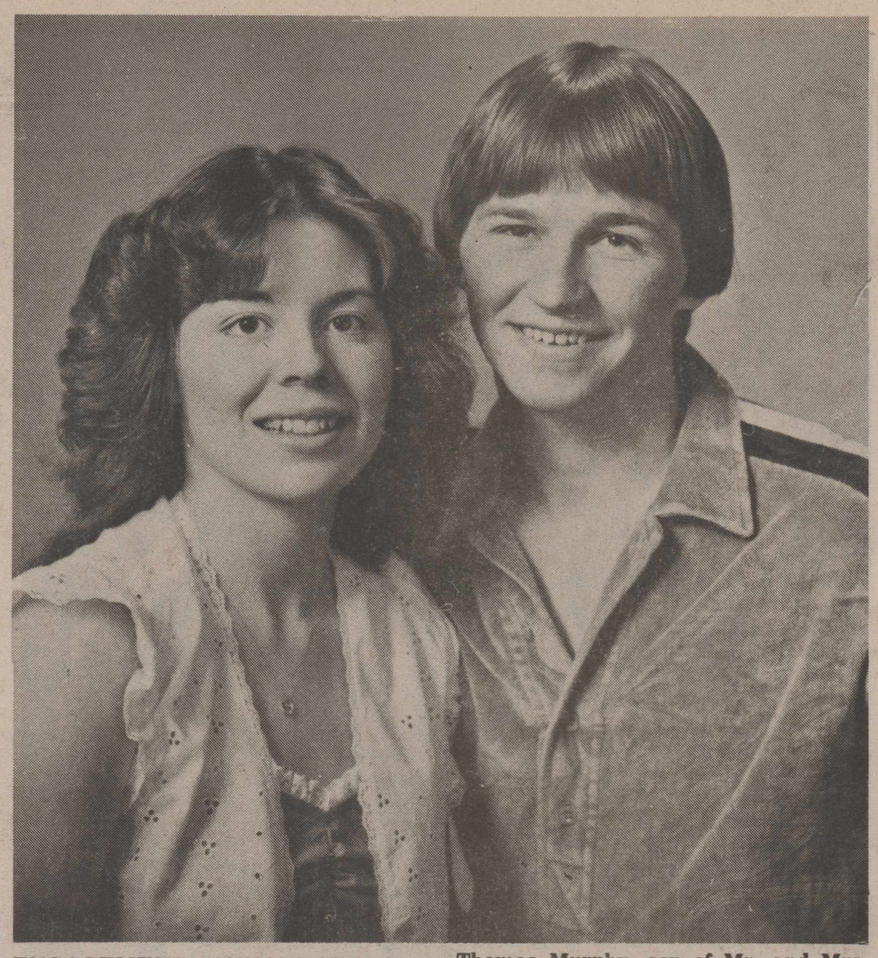

Burr attributes this to a "power imbalance" that still persists in many marriages, where the husband is seen as the "boss" and the wife as the subordinate.

"We are trying to change things so men and women are equal, but women still haven't had a fair shake in our society, and they're still lower on the power scale," he says.

"Wherever you have a power differential — parent-child, boss-employee, men-women — the one who is the most powerful doesn't have to be so effective in understanding the other person. The employee, for example, has to know what the boss wants. They have to be the communicators."

The BYU researchers also discovered that it is more important that a couple believes they are similar than that they really are.

"The actual similarity was almost irrelevant in the areas we measured," said Holman. For example, it is not as important whether the husband or the wife handles the family finances as it is that both are happy with the arrangement they have selected.

North's jump to three spades was one of those limit raises that are now found in most expert bidding kits. It was strong, but not forcing and South might well have passed. In spite of that sixth trump, South's opening bid was a minimum with nine of its 13 high card points in queens and jacks.

The contract was a fairly good one. With a club or diamond lead South would have had time to knock out the ace of diamonds and get to discard his losing spade. But West opened the king of spades and South was looking at four quick losers, two trumps, one spade and one diamond.

Unfortunately for East and West, South was a practitioner of bridge magic. He found a way to make a losing trick disappear into thin air. A little luck was required and South risked going down an extra trick, but the luck was there.

South simply played out his ace-queen and jack of clubs. He overtook the jack with dummy's king and the stage was set since clubs had broken 3-3.

Now he led dummy's last club and chucked his losing spade. It didn't matter which opponent ruffed. The defense was now down to one ruff, the ace of diamonds and one trump trick. The spade loser had gone away.

Parole Board Must Set New Guidelines

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The state Parole Board has been directed to develop guidelines on how a man who gunned down two policemen 19 years ago now can make restitution to his victims' families.

The ruling Thursday by the New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the parole board's right to require restitution as a condition for parole in the case of Thomas Trantino, 43, convicted in 1964

However, the high court admonished the board to reconsider whether Trantino had been punished enough for the "vicious" crime. A Death Row inmate until New Jersey's death penalty was overturned in 1972, Trantino said he was disappointed by the latest decision.

Conservative Bill Okayed

LONDON (AP) — A Conservative bill designed to reduce the power of organized labor completed its House of Commons passage Wednesday and was sent to the House of Lords.

The bill makes unions liable for damages for wildcat strikes, bans sympathy picketing of firms not directly involved in disputes and stops unions enforcing the closed shop.

The 12-million-member Trades Union Congress, Britain's equivalent of the AFL-CIO, is raising a defense fund to fight court actions arising from defiance of the proposed law.

Dear Abby

Woman Calls It Quits On Missing Husband

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was married to John in the Catholic Church back in 1956. John disappeared in 1958. He took a ride one Sunday afternoon and never came back. Nobody knows what happened to him. The police looked for him, but after several years they gave up.

I never filed for divorce because I kept thinking that one day John might turn up. He never did and his family say they have no idea where he is. For all I know he may be dead, or married to someone else.

Is there any way I can get a divorce? Or do I need one after all this time? I'd like to start my life over as a single woman, but how can I if I'm still married? I'm tired of waiting. I don't think the pope would have waited this long.

HELP ME IN MISSOURI

DEAR HELP: Your parish priest can help you. In recent years the Catholic Church has become more liberal concerning annulments. I am advised that your marriage could be annulled with very little difficulty.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I'm crazy about the U.P.S. man who delivers the mail to my office every day. He seems plenty interested in me but isn't making any moves. I have reason to believe that he thinks I am not available, but I am.

What do I say to a guy I see for only as long as it takes me to sign his clipboard? I want him to know that I am available and would like to get to know him better.

LUCY IN BUFFALO

DEAR LUCY: You need a pal in the office to help further your cause. You could conveniently just happen to be away from your desk the next time Mr. U.P.S. delivers the mail. Your "co-conspirator" could then say to him, "I think Lucy could be interested in you; would you like me to arrange it?"

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "Loves Love, Not Sex" and her husband have a communication gap. I used to feel the same way she does and hated every time my husband wanted to have sexual relations. (Notice, I did not say "make love," because it wasn't love.)

My husband was an unkempt, selfish boor who disregarded his partner's feelings as well as the basic rules of personal hygiene. I talked to him, I bought him underwear, soap, deodorants, but to no avail. Gradually, I was so repulsed, I became frigid and gave up. When I could no longer stand the smell, I divorced him.

Now I'm married to a man who "makes love" instead of just relieving himself.

Tell "Loves Love" if she really loves her husband she will tell him what she likes and what she doesn't like. And if he loves her he will change his habits to try to please her. And if he doesn't, she had better change husbands.

MAKING LOVE AT 52

DEAR MAKING: It's amazing how many readers (men as well as women) write to complain about their spouses' total disregard for hygiene. And as for lovemaking, the getting is always in the giving.

Will Not Block Execution

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — A man convicted of killing an 85-year-old woman with a skillet is one step closer to the electric chair after a judge refused to block the execution set for May 28.

U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott refused Thursday to order a hearing on what lawyers for the condemned man, Timothy Baldwin, say is new evidence that Baldwin couldn't have committed the killing.

Baldwin, 39, has been condemned to die for the slaying of Mary Peters, who was beaten to death during an April 1978 robbery.

Defense lawyers were expected to appeal Scott's ruling. Defense attorneys say they have a hotel receipt to show Baldwin was in Arkansas at the time of the killing, but District Judge John Joyce said Baldwin's presence in Arkansas wasn't a disputed issue. The judge said the disputed issues were the time of the killing and whether Baldwin was present.

Farmers in Russia are being warned by the newspaper Pravda that they face three years imprisonment if they feed bread to their animals. Bread is heavily subsidized by the government, and it is cheaper than cattle fodder.

Concert Planned By Sparkle City

Tiny Vargas, president of the Sparkle City Lions Club, has announced plans for the club to sponsor a big gospel music concert and talent show on Tuesday, June 29.

The talent show will begin at 7 p. m., and cash prizes will be awarded to the top three winners.

If you "pick and grin," sing, tap dance or whatever, and would like to enter the contest, write to P. O. Box 491, Snyder, contact any member of the Sparkle City Lions Club, or call gospel disc jockey Don Cheek on Sunday morning at KSNY Radio.

The gospel concert will feature two top groups, "The Brashear Family of Russellville, Ark., and the Crystal River Gospel Quintet, a Latin-American group from Lubbock.

There will be a couple of surprises, which will be announced later, Vargas said.

Proceeds from the show will be used by the Sparkle City Lions Club for the Lions' Crippled Children's program in Kerrville. The camp at Kerrville is open to children ages 7-16 who have visual, hearing, or physical handicaps, and it is operated free of charge to parents of these children.

Vargas said the Sparkle City Lions Club will seek support of business and professional people for the project.

WTC Provides Early Admission

High school students who have completed their junior year may enroll for summer courses at Western Texas College through the early admissions program.

Students must have the permission of their high school principal and their parents before enrolling. A form with space for these signatures can be obtained from the student services office in the WTC Administration Building. Students are to bring this form with them to registration.

College credits earned by early admissions students are posted to the students' college transcript following graduation from high school.

This is Jaruzelski's fifth trip to a Soviet bloc ally.

White House May Help Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House may intervene on an issue which has held up medical payments to Vietnamese orphans injured in a airplane crash during the 1975 Saigon "babylift," officials says.

The 150 children have not received any money yet because the Justice Department has refused to approve a trust fund arrangement agreed to by Lockheed, the plane's manufacturer, said Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., one of 33 congressmen who are seeking disposition of the matter.

A spokeswoman for McKinney said Wednesday that a White House spokesman indicated "something would be done" about the payments, which were to amount to $30,000 per child.

Locals, Texans Agree On Conservation Ideas

Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District residents agree with the majority of Texans when it comes to the nation's natural resources, results of a recent questionnaire reveal, although opinions nation-wide may differ on some points.

Commenting on a proposed new soil and water conservation program of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the district's 127 respondents showed clear support for continuing current program trends and strong opposition to the USDA's "preferred plan."

Statewide, 87.6 percent of the 5,279 responses opposed the proposed plan, while only 9.8 percent supported it. Some 83.2 percent in Texas supported a continuation of present program trends with adequate funding.

The other option, a redirection of the present federal program with priority setting and targeting funds, received 42 percent support and 33 percent opposition nationally, 52 percent support and 39.8 percent opposition state-wide, and 16 votes for and 78 against in the Upper Colorado SWCD, which includes Scurry and Borden Counties.

Nationwide, respondents favored a continuation of the current program trends with 61 percent. The department's favored program to redirect programs and add greater local and state roles was given 43 percent support and 43 percent opposition nationally.

The agriculure department solicited comments on 20 separate features of the poposed program, which was mandated by the Soil and Water Conservation Act of 1977. Secretary of Agriculture John Block asked for the public comments from November until January to help him prepare for the final RCA report and recommendations to the president and Congress.

One feature of the proposed program was opposed at the district and state level but heavily supported by the nearly 83,000 persons filing comments nationwide.

As a result, the feature that calls for targeting USDA funds and personnel to areas where soil and erosion and other conservation problems are critical is already being tried on a limited basis.

Targeting is a departure from traditional USDA conservation policies, but it is one of the 15 features among the 20 that gained support by the majority nationwide. Statewide, 10 of the proposals were approved by the majority, while one was supported on the Upper Colorado SWCD.

Another feature supported nationwide but opposed by Texas and Upper Colorado SWCD respondents was to require producers to have conservation plans before receiving Farmers Home Administration loans.

Fifty-three percent of the nation's respondents favored the requirements and only 32 percent opposed it. But Texas people who addressed the feature opposed it 15-1. In the Upper Colorado SWCD, all but three of the respondents opposed it.

Two features of the proposed plan were widely opposed at all levels. Establishing state-level coordinating boards appointed by the governor drew 60 percent opposition nationwide, 13-1 opposition statewide and got only one favorable vote from the Upper Colorado SWCD.

The feature to provide federal matching block grants to states by reducing federal conservation program funds was opposed by 64 percent nationally, 15-1 in Texas and drew only four favorable votes in the Upper Colorado SWCD.

Hayfever Woes Finally Over

LUGANO, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss family is enjoying their first torture-free spring in years in their new home, built to relieve the agonies of the hayfever sufferer.

"It started off as an experiment," said Milo Navone, an architect who became desperate after years of inoculations and medication failed to help his wife and daughter shake the runny nose, sore throat and itchy eyes familiar to millions worldwide. "But, now, we're all laughing."

Spring comes early to southern Switzerland, and with it the clouds of pollen that inflict misery on unwary city dwellers as far as 200 miles away from the countryside.

To meet the threat, the Navone house, innocuous among its suburban neighbors, is equipped with an invisible first line of defense — a sophisticated air-conditioning system.

The air conditioning lets the family keep all windows sealed. It also keeps the inside air pressure high, which acts as a buffer to the few pollen particles not kept out by the air filters.

Natural stone and wood were used for the structural walls, to avoid the problem posed by artificial building materials which release various irritants, Navone explained.

Inside, Navone has opted for open space instead of dividing walls, which trap dust. Also, he said, many hayfever sufferers feel confined by small rooms — an unexplained psychological side effect.

Furniture is sparse and simple — again to reduce the accumulation of dust. And when Mrs. Navone housecleans, she uses moist dustcloths and special micro-filter vacuum attachments which capture most of the minute dust particles vacuum cleaners miss otherwise.

Other than these concessions, it is very much of a normal house, Navone said, adding: "It cannot be like a hospital or my family wouldn't feel comfortable.

"There are no expensive particularities" putting such a house out of the reach of other hayfever sufferers, he said.

Navone, 49, said he had built the house as an act of desperation, after his wife and 14-year old daughter had "traveled all over Europe, trying normal medication and desensibility tests with no result."

Speaking Fees Provide Pay Boosts To Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — One Republican member of the Senate and possibly a second earned more from speaking fees than from their congressional salaries last year, financial disclosure forms show.

Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, were among 19 Republicans and six Democrats who took advantage of a new rule that eliminated the old Senate ban on earning more than $25,000 a year in speaking fees or similar activities.

Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, collected $66,650 from speaking engagements before various trade associations — and $200 for two newspaper articles. He reported that he kept $36,350 of those proceeds and donated the rest to charities, netting a charitable deduction in the process.

The speaking total not only exceeded his congressional salary of $60,662 a year but easily eclipsed the approximately $36,000 to $48,000 Dole reported earning on his investments.

Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, said he kept $29,700 earned from speaking to various groups. He also said he donated an undisclosed amount in speaking fees to charities. That undisclosed amount, combined with other undisclosed charitable contributions by the senator, totalled $33,900, Hatch revealed.

The two were among 25 senators who reported they earned more than $25,000 from speaking fees. Those most in demand as speakers were Republicans, hardly surprising since Republicans now control the Senate.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, reported earning $48,000 from 30 speeches. Garn, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, took in $13,000 from speeches before banking industry organizations.

Others high on the lecture fee circuit in 1981 were Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who earned $56,250 — all given to charity; Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who earned $40,200 and gave $15,200 to charity; Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., who earned $39,200; and Steve Symms, R-Idaho, who earned $40,700 and gave $3,500 to charity.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nevada, considered President Reagan's best friend in the Senate, picked up $33,500 from speaking, while Sen. Mark Hatfield, the Oregon Republican who chairs the Senate Appropriations Committee, pulled in $31,691 from speeches.

In contrast, 10 senators reported giving no speeches for money.

They are Democrats Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, John Stennis of Mississippi, Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Russell Long of Louisiana, Carl Levin of Michigan, John Glenn of Ohio, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas; and Republican John Warner of Virginia and Independent Harry Byrd of Virginia.

It's hard to identify the richest member of the Senate since the reporting forms require only general estimates of holdings.

But at least 20 senators certainly have over $1 million in assets and several are multi-millionares.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., would appear among the richest, if not the most wealthy, member of the Senate.

He reported assets of $5.1 million to $11.7 million or more and said his investments pulled in income ranging from $1.2 million to $2.8 million.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an heir to the Ralston Purina Co., reported assets of $3.7 million to $7.3 million and up. He estimated his income from investments to be at least $349,635 and possibly more than $451,222. He had no liabilities.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., whose family built a fortune in ketchup and pickles, reported assets of $2.89 million to $4 million and up. Nine of his holdings were identified only as worth $250,000 and up — the highest category on the form and one that allows true wealth to be easily hidden.

Union Is Viting For New Contract

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — More than 2,800 union members in Texas and Louisiana are voting this week on a proposed two-year contract with Gulf State Utilities.

"We aren't counting votes until all of the halls have met and held elections," said J.C. Hoell, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers local in nearby Beaumont.

Voting began Tuesday and will continue through Friday in Baton Rouge, Lafayette and Lake Charles, La., and Beaumont and Conroe, Texas.

Neither Gulf States nor union officials would comment on terms of the tentative agreement reached last week. Company officials would say only that an increase in wages and benefits is included.

The union's present contract will expire June 19.

Two Photo Classes Set

Two classes in photography are being offered this summer at Western Texas College for students off all ages.

Introductory Photography, listed a JOU 130, will offer students opportunities to learn how to operate modern cameras and use accessory equipment like lenses and filters. Understanding exposure and applying basic composition to picture-taking will be stressed.

Students in this course will learn darkroom procedures as they shoot film, process it and make enlarged photographs. Special topics will include available light vs. flash, how to display your work, and special effects like multiple exposures and night pictures.

The class will meet Tuesdays only from 6 p. m. to 10:10 p. m. Individual lab times will be available and occasional field trips will be scheduled at the convenience of the class members. College camera and accessory equipment will be available for anyone taking either photography course.

Also scheduled is Color Photography, listed as JOU 230, which will meet Thursdays only from 6 p. m. to 10:10 p. m. Students will expose color negative and slide films, process both and learn to make pictures from both.

Campus, community and area field trips will be used to allow class members to gather pictures for lab experiences. Lighting and special filtration will be emphasized, along with some color theory. Students are invited to bring negatives and slides from home, as well, for experimental work.

Students wishing to take either course on an individual-study basis should get instructor approveal Wednesday, May 26, the day for summer school registration. Classes begin Thursday, May 27.

Reflects On Music, Life...

Singer Joan Baez: Personification Of 1960s

SEATTLE (AP) — Joan Baez, a 41-year-old single parent with a business to run, a busy concert schedule to keep and pacifism to preach, says she's at an awkward age.

She can't shuck her old image as the barefooted madonna of the 1960s folk revival, the soprano flower child singing anthems to a generation's moods and movements.

At the same time, record distributors fear she may be old hat in an age of thunder and lightning rock productions.

"Some people still picture me with a dress made out of hopsack with a peace symbol on it, sitting on railroad tracks with a bucket of organic honey on my lap," she says, laughing at herself. "That's the stereotype of a dumb nonviolent activist I've spent years trying to do something about."

But she finds herself struggling in the business that gave her renown. After more than two dozen albums, she says she's having trouble finding a record company to distribute "Children of the 80s," which she produced with the Grateful Dead.

"This is the first fight I've had," she says. "Maybe they think I'm too old. I think I've become a calculated risk because kids like the hard metal of AC-DC. Record companies wonder, 'What is this woman going to do? She's been away for a few years. Maybe kids aren't interested in messages.' I know kids are interested in honest messages."

She describes herself, grown now and with money, as "classy."

"I don't want to kid anybody. I like the good things of life. I shop at I. Magnin and Saks because I can't get to Paris often enough to buy what I really want," she says, running her fingers through her short, streamlined hair.

She lives in a rustic house on two wooded acres in Woodside, Calif., south of San Francisco.

Neighbors often see Baez huff past as she jogs two to four miles a day to keep fit. She has taken voice lessons for three years — "Somebody kindly pointed out that if I didn't get help, the voice would deteriorate. That freaked me out," she says.

She's the fast-moving, strongwilled president of Diamonds and Rust Productions, which handles the commercial side of her life, and Humanitas International, a nonprofit humanrights organization that spotlights the world's poor and war-torn.

Her concert tours are frenetic, often packing two shows into a night. She was interviewed recently between sold-out appearances in Seattle and by telephone to her Woodside home.

Does she have trouble squaring her soft celebrity life with her professed devotion to the destitute?

"I felt guilty about it for a long time," she says. "But I finally realized that whether I live in a rustic home here, a Hollywood mansion or a mud hut has very little direct effect on the hungry of Africa or Cambodia. What small difference I make is through my money and my music."

She's raising Gabriel, a son born during her marriage to draft-evader David Harris, which lasted from 1968 to 1973. Harris, a novelist, lives about 20 minutes away and cares for the 12-year-old boy when Miss Baez is gone.

"I've told Gabe we live in a dangerous world and should work for disarmament and that his mom, for one, is going for it. But kids his age are pretty young and deserve a childhood so I don't push stuff on him. I think I could become oppressive very fast.

"I've never taken him on a march. I can't stand that Quaker peacenik syndrome when they drag their kids along. If he wants to come someday, fine, but he's not going to pushed or dragged," says Miss Baez, who was raised a Quaker.

"The divorce was hideous for a couple of years. If my ex wasn't such a good dad, it would have been worse. We finally got our heads together and realized that the only thing that made any difference was Gabe, not our ego trips," she says.

The '60s were ablaze with purpose for Baez, but they were not, she says, golden years.

"Those were active years and Vietnam and integration helped me organize my thoughts," she says. "What more could a 20-year-old ask than to have Martin Luther King call and say, 'You are needed.'

"But romanticists forget the bloodshed of millions of dead Vietnamese and thousands of dead Americans. An 18-year-old boy, dreaming about the '60s, told me he wished he was around then. He didn't realize he would have had to make the decision of his life."

Man Trying To Eliminate All Famine

PRAIA, Cape Verde (AP) — The words on the banner stretched across the cobblestone street of this small capital are simple and poignant: "We hope there will be no more famine."

Herbert Bedolfe, a young Californian with a wispy beard and a fondness for local moonshine, is doing all he can to make this hope a reality.

The 10-island West African republic of Cape Verde is one of the world's poorest countries with an annual per capita income of less than $160. It is also suffering from 13 straight years of drought.

Never in the seven years of independence from Portugal has the crop of corn, the staple food, been sufficient to feed the 320,000 inhabitants of the windswept volcanic islands. This year agricultural experts say half the livestock will be lost because of lack of feed.

The banner was one of several put up by the Cape Verdean government in honor of a recent conference held here for heads of state of the eight countries belonging to CILSS (Permanent Interstate Committee for Drought Control in the Sahel).

Cape Verde, although 250 miles out in the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Africa, is the westernmost extension of the Sahel. This belt, running through West Africa to Chad, is an area of low and erratic rainfall where a major drought from 1968 to 1974 caused the deaths of from 50,000 to 100,000 people and half the livestock in the region.

Bedolfe, better known as "Beto" to the peasants of the hinterland around Praia, knows there is little anyone can do to make more rain fall. But he and the people of Sao Tiago island are demonstrating that much can be done to conserve the rain water that would otherwise rush down the mountain valleys into the sea.

Workmen's Compensation Insurance provides for the cost of medical care, rehabilitation and lost wages for employees who are insured on the job. This insurance also provides death benefits for dependents of persons killed in work-related accidents. The coverage afforded workers has broadened considerably in scope in recent years, largely due to improvements in state laws. Many states have undertaken to expand benefits and coverage to classifications of employees not previously covered. Over the last decade, the premium volume of Worker's Compensation Insurance has more than quadrupled.

We handle many different types of insurance policies at THE DEFFEBACH AGENCY, College Heights Shopping Center, 3201 College Avenue, 573-5611. As an independent agency we serve your needs first. If you have any questions concerning insurance please call us. We're here to help you in every way possible. Open: 9am-5pm 5 days a week. Enjoy the long holiday weekend but, please drive carefully.

how warfare changes

It's just possible that the Argentine pilot did more with his missile than demolish a British destroyer.

He may have sunk two American nuclear carriers not yet built.

The incident already has been seized upon by both sides in Washington's debate on the future Navy to reinforce their cases.

Sen. Gary Hart, the Colorado Democrat who is point man of the congressional opposition to the $3.4 billion monster carriers the Reagan administration wants to add to the fleet, has advised his colleagues to see in it the fate of large surface ships in an era of electronically "smart" weaponry.

Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr. has an entirely different reading. He argues that the destroyer was lost because it was too small and under-equipped defensively, like the two carriers in the British South Atlantic task force. The Argentine fighter would not have gotten near an American battle group with its swarms of planes and elaborate radar, nor would a single missile have the same devastating effect upon a 90,000-ton carrier.

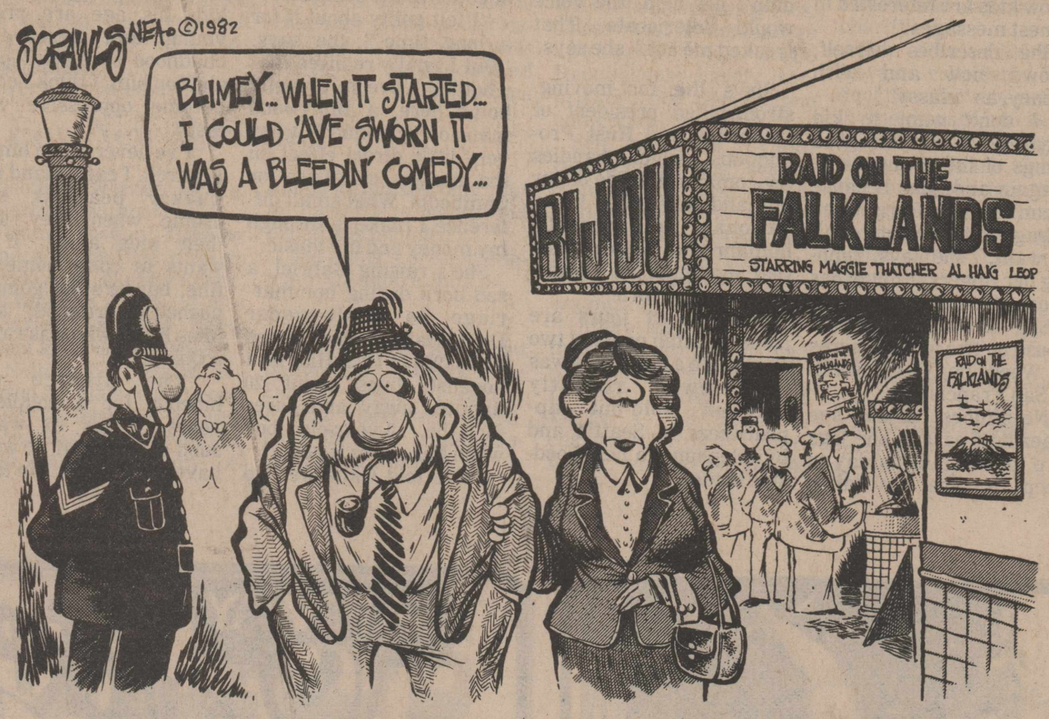

We can count on hearing much more on the subject in the months ahead. And if a single engagement ends up revolutionizing warfare, it won't be the first time. In 1862, all the world's navies were made obsolete by two vessels barely capable of keeping afloat on their own.

With careers as well as billions at stake in the debate, it may be some time before it is clear whether the big ship or little ship forces have gained the advantage.

But another party's advantage is immediately apparent. That was a French radar-guided missile that covered 20 miles at near surface level and nearly the speed of sound to score its direct hit. For that matter, it was launched from a French-built plane.

The action is a boost to French arms sales around the world that already are doing very well. The French are No. 3—behind the Soviet Union and the United States—in a thriving seller's market and energetically seeking to expand their share.

Competition in that market is cutthroat. It is a business war that has been going on a lot longer than the one over the Falklands.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Hey fella, want to buy a storm shelter."

Native West Texans have seen spring thunderstorms before. Many of us have seen so many, that we pay little or no attention to them.

It takes a major disaster like the one in Lubbock or in Wichita Falls to make us realize how destructive a twister can be.

During the past few days in Snyder, civil defense officials have been put to the test. There have been so many, so close that even the most skeptic are paying attention.

It all began that Tuesday afternoon when a funnel cloud dropped from the clouds south of Snyder. The cloud was seen by the majority of folks in Snyder, and it got our attention.

The warning signals sounded and emergency precations were taken in schools and hospitals. Schools have tornado drills periodically, but all knew it was for real that afternoon.

The warnings became necessary again early Monday morning when a funnel cloud was sighted near Northeast Elementary. Again, civil defense officials did a super job in alerting and keeping residents informed.

Because of the two sightings, Tuesday morning's thunderstorm and lighting display also got considerable attention, as did Tuesday night's storm in the Dunn and Ira areas.

City Manager John Gayle, who serves as civil defense director, says much was learned during the past 10 days, and folks are becoming aware of available storm shelters. In fact, Monday morning several hundred residents took refuge in eight different locations.

Gayle said the city will look at supplementing the number of warning signals located around the city. Several folks have said they did not hear the warning.

Warnings are also broadcast by the radio station and TV cable is interrupted to advise of weather conditions. This is fine as long as the city has power.

We'd still like to see the city and telephone company explore the possibility of using the telephones as a warning signal. It exists in some cities.

What happens is civil defense headquarters has the ability to activate or ring every phone in the system as a warning. There are few folks without telephones, and it's hard to sleep through a ringing telephone.

By the appearance of all the bloodshot eyes Monday, it seems that more and more people are taking their cloud watching seriously.

There is no law that says television commercials have to be bad. Coke is a refreshing example of how it can be done. Remember the one where mean Joe Green gives his jersey to the kid? I really enjoyed that one the first 300 times I saw it.

Alka Selzer has produced some classics also. They have yet to top the old "I can't believe I ate the whole thing." pitch of the early 70s. "Try it, You'll like it." wasn't bad either.

That delivery service that says, "When it positively has to be there overnight," has produced some memorable ads. My favorite is when the businessman tells his service if he doesn't get the package by tomorrow, he'll be out of business. Two days later the truck pulls up and there is a sign on his door that says: Out Of Business

If you are into "cute", Velveeta Cheese is trying to corner the market. Their pint-sized pitch man is always trying to keep all the cheese to himself, without much success. In one ad his sister tells him that if he doesn't give her a slice of cheese, she is going to tell their mom that he used her purse for second base. In another he explains to a toddler friend that all some people are interested in is his cheese. "Girls are the worst." he is told.

The toddler then asks for a slice to practice with. When the poor chap realizes he has been duped again, he looks at the camera and deadpans a melancholy: "I'm a sucker for little kids."

Lone Star Beer's giant armadillo series is an encouraging departure from the lifestlye commercials the other booze peddlers are indulging in. Instead of recycled Marlboro men gulping down Coors or Miller every time they do something mancho, Lone Star has created a mythical giant Armadillo that is sucking up all the Lone Star, "the national beer of Texas."

My favorite character in this on-going drama is Cooter. Poor, incompetent Cooter. He tries. While trying to get through with a vital load of Lone Star he hears on the radio that the giant armadillo has been spotted 30 miles from Hondo. He sees a sign that says Hondo 30 miles. He stops the truck, and inspects the serene Texas countryside and all appears to normal. So he jumps in truck and zap!

The next scene shows Cooter wandering aimlessly around with his demolished truck in the background. The radio still works and is advertising the glamour of life on the open road.

The funniest spots on the tube these days are the political ads. What's funny about them is that they are not supposed to be funny. I can't say much about them because it would appear I would be endorsing or condemning a candidate on the basis of his ad. I will say that if they can't govern any better than they can make ads we are in a heap of trouble. Do they really think we are that gullible?

There is one I can't let pass. Shortly before the primaries, a gubernatorial candidate on the donkey side was trying to squash a charge by one of his opponents that he was trying to buy the election. He set out to accomplish this with a saturation TV ad campaign. In other words he was trying to discredit the notion that he was spending an insubordinate amount on the election by spending an insubordinate amount on TV commercials denying it.

Now that's funny. Or is it sad? I get so confused during election years.

I have just figured out if insurance companies keep circulating forms at their present rate, by 1990, they will need the Grand Canyon for a filing cabinet.

The average family carries insurance on every conceivable risk known to man including their car, health, major disasters of nature, appliances, TV, defamation, malpractice, and the kindest one of all, life.

People are protected from everything except death by forms. (When that comes it will include six illegible carbons, sign at the X and mail one copy to your doctor, one to your accountant, four to the insurance company, and retain the last copy which no one can read for your files with the number of your canceled check in the lower right hand corner and please put I.D. number on the outside of the envelope before mailing.)

I bleed for the average American who had the misfortune to smash the bone in his little finger when it became wedged in the restroom towel machine where the towel was to come down automatically and didn't.

There is a form from the employer, bank, hospital, doctor, radiologist, worker's compensation and insurance company. To get everyone's money into motion is like getting music out of a basketful of snakes.

By the time it's resolved, you could grow a new finger.

And what about the poor fish who is driving to work one day, stops for a traffic light, and the guy behind him drives into his trunk?

As a victim he can look forward to eight months of correspondence, legalese, no personal checks, for business office only and please fill out and return.

I have a solution to these fender-benders that would save a lot of paperwork. It's called "No Sweat" insurance. The victim gets out of his car and trades on the spot with the guy who rear-ended him. (Those cars never have any more damage than a white smudge on the bumper.) He leaves the guilty one with a car that won't run, a towing bill and instructions to "get three estimates and return my car to me when it looks and runs like it did before or my attorney will find you and hurt you!"

It would take three months to write all that down in triplicate.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

May 23, 1982

In the year following your birthday you'll fare best when you undertake enterprises or ventures that do not require a partner. Acting independently, you'll find fewer obstacles strewn in your path.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Select an activity today that you enjoy, and that's fun for your mate as well. Unless the choice is pleasing to both, it could be a bummer. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Rather than delegate responsibilities to people who can't handle them, it's best to do the extra work yourself today. Their accomplishments may need redoing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's fun when socializing with pals to try new places, but this may not be the day to do it. Go where you are well-received and know what to expect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will handle matters that are meaningful to your security or status with confidence today, but there's a possibility you won't use all your smarts in other areas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though you may not agree with another's philosophy, you'd be wise not to make an issue of it today. Nothing is apt to be resolved. Hard feelings could result.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sometimes much more is demanded of us than what we get in return. This might be one of those days for you. Accept it graciously. You'll get your turn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to become to closely involved today with one who, experience tells you, can be very bossy and dictatorial. He could ruin your day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If there is something important you wish to accomplish today, don't let outside distractions get you off-course. Bar the doors to intruders.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today, instead of heeding the counsel of one who has your best interest at heart, you may give more credence to the words of another who hasn't.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A matter on which you and your mate do not see eye-to-eye can be worked out to the satisfaction of each if both will make a sincere effort to do so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone who is caustic and difficult to get along with may cross your path today. Instead of mirroring such behavior, steer this person into line with kindness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are having work or a service performed today, shop around until you are absolutely certain you're getting the best price. You'll be sorry if you don't.

Your Birthday

May 24, 1982

As time ticks on, your financial prospects will grow more encouraging this coming year. Be optimistic regarding your material affairs and act like the winner you will be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're good at making quick decisions today, but you might not be equally adept in acting upon them. Although you're mentally alert, you could be physically sluggish. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each season following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This could be a rather demanding day, with claims filed on your time from family members and outsiders alike. Take care of the home front first.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A situation about which you are rather hopeful could take some confusing turns today. Don't let what occurs rattle you. You're lucky in the long run.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're capable of accomplishing that which you set out to do today, but once you get a grip on the situation you may let go of your own volition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You've heard the adage: "The harder you try, the luckier you get." This will be true for you today, especially in financial or career matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Dame Fortune has her eye on you today. Though she might not work things out according to your blueprint, she'll do a far better job for you on her own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In important one-to-one relationships today, it's essential that you make an extra effort to be fair and cooperative. The dividends will be worth the gestures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An opportunity may present itself today to make a friend of someone you know merely on a business basis. Respond when opportunity knocks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to advance your position in life, it may be necessary to take a calculated risk today. Do so, if the odds are tilted in your favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even if obstacles are placed in your path today in what normally should be a smooth venture, don't let this disturb you. This will open a door to something better.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will be more effective in presenting your ideas today if you don't belabor your points. Tell what needs to be told and no more.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Put financial matters first on your agenda today and tend to them while you're fresh and alert. Your possibilities for turning a profit lessen as you tire.

Need Strong Stomach

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The state of California has a vacant position that requires only part-time work but perhaps a strong stomach: gas chamber inspector.

The government has been seeking a qualified inspector of the gas chamber at San Quentin Prison for more than a month.

So far, there has been no response to advertisements in the "California State Contracts Register," the semi-monthly publication of service and construction contracts available from state government.

One reason for the lack of response could be the ad's erroneous listing under "office equipment."

San Quentin spokesman Bob Means said future editions of the register will place the ad under "construction trades."

Means said the gas chamber inspector is strictly a part-time job, checking the apple-green chamber about once every three months for leaks and other possible malfunctions.

"Even though we have not had an execution in a number of years, the gas chamber has to be kept in proper functioning order," he said. "It would be very embarrassing to have a malfunction during an execution."

The gas chamber has not been used since 1967, but Death Row currently houses 100 men.

Board To Aid Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has moved to help laid-off airline workers receive special compensation benefits under provisions of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978.

The action came Thursday as the commission declared that seven airlines had "major contractions" in their labor forces in the past year. The law lets affected employees qualify for aid if it can be shown that deregulation caused the layoffs.
