'All too often, we hear from elderly people that all their money is gone, but it is only the fifth of the month.'

— Celia Serrano, coordinator,
Panhandle Community Services

Abuse of elderly expected to rise as population ages

By DIANNA F. DANDRIDGE
Staff Writer

There is heightened awareness of the problems of child abuse and spousal abuse, and law enforcement agencies are more aggressive in going after abusers.

However, abuse of the elderly is on the rise -- and all too often goes unnoticed.

According to information published by the American Bar Association, elder abuse comes in many forms: physical, emotional, psychological, neglect/abandonment and financial exploitation.

The National Center on Elder Abuse estimates 820,000 elderly adults were abused in 1994 and that number is expected to increase as the population ages.

Abusers realize the frailties and fears of many elderly people and take advantage of them.

Senior citizens are prime targets because they often are afraid of reprisals after a confrontation or being alone with no one to talk to or help them.

This is a very real problem for many older adults. Once their eyesight and health begin to fail, older people have to rely on someone, and, unfortunately, they often are forced to turn to abusive family members.

"All too often, we hear from elderly people that all their money is gone, but it is only the fifth of the month," said Celia Serrano, coordinator for the Panhandle Community Services. "We ask what happened to their money and usually we hear they had to help a son or grown child."

"Often this is how the elderly keep from having to say someone took their money -- often with the threat of violence, should the senior refuse," Serrano said.

As bad as this sounds, this financial strain is not the most common form of elder abuse.

Of all forms of elder abuse, neglect is reported in 58.5 percent of the cases, with physical abuse being reported in only 15.7 percent of the cases. Serrano said the most her office can do is to refer elderly abuse victims to the Texas Department of Human Services, Elderly Protective Services, and offer them what services they qualify for through her office.

Statistics report most victims of elder abuse are white women, age 76 and older. Most victims were abused by family members.

Like child abuse, elder abuse carries some stiff penalties. But, unlike child abuse, it often goes unreported.

All 50 states have laws pertaining to elder abuse, reporting it and penalties against senior citizens.

Since elder abuse takes so many forms, many people are never really sure whether or not a case involves abuse.

Serrano gave the example of a man, who several years ago, had been diagnosed with a terminal illness. The man was required to be on oxygen most of the day. The family home had no air conditioner, so the family seated him under a tree, with his oxygen. Was this abuse or was this simply a bad case of family doing the best they could do?

Other instances include senior citizens who agree to have someone live with them so they don't have to live with their children or go live in a nursing home.

Often someone is hired to live with the seniors or supposed to check on them regularly. These employment situations often lead to problems.

The hired individual is in a prime position to take advantage of person under their care.

Diana Balzer, director of Clinical Services for Hereford Home Health Care, said the law requires any agency dealing with health care must do a criminal history report, both state and local, on anyone working in the health care industry.

"We look for any felony violations including child abuse charges. Anything on their records and they

Shannon Wilburn (left) and Nick Mackie of Satellite Shelters go over plans for medical office project

Wilburn still learning on the job

By DONALD M. COOPER
Brand Editor

Anyone driving by Hereford Regional Medical Center can see Shannon Wilburn's handiwork.

Wilburn is the construction manager for the new medical office complex being installed adjacent to the hospital.

Yes, that's right. He's overseeing the installation, not the construction, of a new office complex. That's because the new complex is not your conventional building. Rather, it's a collection of 20-plus pre-built modules that have been trucked into Hereford and installed on the foundation built earlier.

This is Wilburn's first modular complex construction, and he said it probably is the "trend of the future." Because the modular buildings, which are constructed at a plant then moved to the site, allow builders to complete their work in less time, while offering the advantages of on-site construction.

"When (the project) is completed, the modules will look just like on-site construction," he said.

Wilburn, whose company Wilburn Investments is overseeing the hospital project, is learning from this job -- and that's nothing new for him. He's been learning on the job for years. He was born and raised in Hereford, graduating in 1982 from Hereford High School. He attended West Texas State University (now West Texas A&M) in Canyon for two years, but left in 1984 because he was too busy with his own company to stay in college.

The company was a partnership with his uncle, Galen Hromas of Bovina. Wilburn had gotten his first taste of construction working during the summers for his uncle.

Also, as a youngster, he said he had followed along with his uncle and his grandfather, Arnold Hromas, also of Bovina.

"We did a lot of houses in Clovis, Farwell, Bovina -- in that area," he said. Also, Wilburn Investments built the Hereford Senior Community, located near the Homeland supermarket on North 25 Mile Avenue. His mother, Charlotte Wilburn, manages the complex, he said.

When Wilburn started out in the partnership with his uncle, there was another company, Wilburn Investments, which was not a construction firm. After the partnership was dissolved, Wilburn said, everything was shifted under the Wilburn Investments umbrella.

The company, located at 801 E. 2nd, also is involved in property

Area residents can express views on county health care

By DONALD M. COOPER

Twenty-three Deaf Smith County residents invited 10 of their closest friends -- and the public -- to join them next week in talking about health care.

The areawide public meeting will begin at 7 p.m. Monday at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave. It is expected to last about 2 1/2 hours, with child care provided for participants.

The meeting is open to residents of Hereford, Dawn and surrounding areas of Deaf Smith County.

The meeting, "People's Choice for Better Health," is sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Community Health Improvement Partnership (CHIP) and will be led by the partners.

"The goal of the meeting is to bring area residents together to develop a list of improvements they believe to be needed in the county's health care system. Also, the partners hope the meeting will generate new ideas that could help make Deaf Smith County a healthier place to live.

"It will be a different kind of public meeting than you have every attended before," community health organizer Pat Stone said. "We'll use a unique, enjoyable process. Everyone who attends gets to share their opinions about local health care services without having to actually stand up and speak to the entire audience."

Stone said some area residents have been reluctant to participate, saying they have no expertise on health care issues. However, she said, everyone has some dealings with the health care system, so those experiences give knowledge that can be useful for the project.

"We need everyone to participate," she said.

CHIP chair Ernest Flood stated

this type of meeting has been successful in other communities. The involvement and support of residents ultimately will share the future of local health care services.

"Residents need to come forward now to express their ideas about health care. This meeting will provide an excellent opportunity (for them) to voice their concerns," he said.

Participants will include physicians, dentists, and hospital and ambulance personnel, as well as individuals involved in environmental health issues, mental health services, senior health issues, teen or child health, public health and wellness programs.

The public discussion is part of the effort directed by Pat Stone, community health organizer for Deaf Smith County, and the Community Health Improvement Partnership

Golf tournament

Where's the beef?

There will be plenty on hand when Hereford hosts the Beef Capital of the World Ice-Breaker Open Golf Tournament at John Pitman Golf Course Feb. 21-22.

The two-person scramble will be limited to the first 40 paid teams. Entry fee will be $120 per team and includes green fees, prizes and a beef dinner following Saturday's round. Carts will be extra. Checks should be made payable to the John Pitman Golf Course Association.

The tourney title, "Ice-Breaker Open," refers not only to the first tourney of the year but it will sound familiar to feedyard operators who may still be breaking ice so the cattle can get to the water.

There will be a shotgun start each day, and teams will be flighted after the first round by the tournament handicap committee.

Based on a full field of 40 teams (80 players), prizes will be $300 for first place, $180 for second and $120 for third. For information, call 363-7139 or 1-800-687-6255.

Emergency FSA loans

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by three snowstorms with heavy snow and high winds are being accepted in the Hereford and Vega Farm Service Agency offices.

Deaf Smith and Oldham counties are two of eight in Texas recently named by FSA administrator Keith Kelly as eligible for loans to cover part of severe physical losses (only) resulting from the three snowstorms.

Farmers may be eligible for loans up to 80 percent of their physical losses, needed to continue in business. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest rate is 3.75 percent.

The deadline for applications is Aug. 16, but farmers are urged to apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly over into the new season.

County commission

Members of the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will open bids for county insurance, adopt a proposed order of renaming streets in the San Jose community (Precinct 2), advertise for a deputy clerk in the county clerk's office, and conduct a public hearing on a request by Bimbo Foods for a tax abatement.

DSEC scholarship

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative will award five $2,000 scholarships in May to eligible applicants of immediate families of active members and active employees of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative.

Applicants may be either traditional high school graduates or student wishing to continue an education after an extended absence. Applicants must be of good character and provide at least three letters of recommendation from teachers, principals, or counselors. Selection will be based grade point average, community activities, service work and recommendations. Secondary criteria will include; written essay, SAT/ACT scores and academic honors.

Applications may be obtained from area high schools, extension offices of Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro and Oldham counties, or Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative office in Hereford.

Applications must be received no later than March 13. Awards will be announced within sixty days of closing date.

Auxiliary will meet

King's Manor Auxiliary will meet at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Lamar Room for a short business meeting and a salad supper. Each member attending is asked to bring a large salad of their choice.

As the world's thoughts turn to the Winter Olympic Games, Hereford High School's Academic Decathlon team members did their own thing to bring home the gold. The team competed in a regional decathlon meet Jan. 30-31 in Abilene, placing second in region. They needed only 75 points to qualify for state. The team brought home 14 first-place, six second-place

HHS academic team qualifies for state

Hereford High School's Academic Decathlon team placed second at the Regional Academic Decathlon meet, held Jan. 30-31 in Abilene.

The team needed only 75 points additional points to earn a spot in the state competition.

The Academic Decathlon focuses on academic competition as team members test their knowledge in math science, social science, music, language, literature, art, essay, speech interview and Super Quiz. This year's Super Quiz topic was "Globalization: The New Economy."

Eddie Montoya, a three-year veteran, earned eight first-place medals and one second-place medal.

Charles Hubner, a first-year senior earned two first-place medals and a third-place medal.

Lynita Dotson, a sophomore, won two first-place and two second-place medals. Andrew Del Toro, a senior, earned a second-place medal.

Tan Nguyen, a sophomore, earned a third place. Torrac Hayes, a junior, earned two first-place, two second-place and two third-place medals.

Ruben Coronado, a junior, won a third-place medal.

The team is coached by James Perkins, Joe Don Cummings and Cherie Zinck.

Students preparing for the decathlon studied in a zero hour setting - 7-8:30 a.m. - for four days a week for a full semester.

"This is a great honor," Cummings said. "Both for the school and the students. They did very well."

Urbanczyk takes post

Staci Urbanczyk has replaced Nancy Griego at the Women's and Children's Crisis Center.

Griego, who was instrumental in reviving the crisis center, left Hereford in December.

Urbanczyk comes to the Women and Children's Crisis Center from Dalhart, where she was executive director of the CASA Program.

She and her husband, Ben Urbanczyk, a local Department of Public Safety officer, have three children.

In one of her first official activities, Urbanczyk will participate in volunteer training, beginning Feb. 17.

The training will be 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays in the XIT building, 809 S. 25 Mile Ave.

Anyone interested in volunteering should call the Women's and Children's Crisis Center at 363-6727 or go by Room 301 in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse, 235 E. 3rd.

U.S. officials wonder if bombing will chasten Iraq

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Analysis

WASHINGTON - Out of patience with Saddam Hussein, the Clinton administration is leaving no doubt of its intention to use military force if Iraq continues to deny U.N. inspectors access to potential weapons sites. Less clear is what air strikes would accomplish.

Do not expect too much, was the word from Defense Secretary William Cohen over the weekend. He said air attacks would not topple Saddam or destroy his arsenal of weapons of mass destruction - an arsenal the Iraqis insist does not exist.

What is the point then? The simplest answer is that from the U.S. standpoint, Saddam's continued defiance of the United Nations cannot go unanswered. To ignore him is to allow him to move ahead with his weapons program and threaten every nation within range of his missiles.

Secondly, an attack in Iraq has no political downside in the United States.

Even Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of Clinton's most vociferous critics, said Saturday on CNN that he would endorse bombing Iraq.

Another possibility is that a credible threat of force would persuade Saddam to back down, at least long enough to defuse the current crisis.

"The threat of military force is often one of the most useful ways to get diplomatic action," Secretary of State Madeleine Albright told CNN on Sunday.

Eliot Cohen, a Johns Hopkins professor who directed the Pentagon study of the effectiveness of the air war against Iraq after it invaded Kuwait, said the U.S. military has some advantages it did not have seven years ago.

"We've been in Iraq for a long time now," he said. "They (the Iraqis) are not as wealthy as they used to be and there are probably more people who are willing to cooperate with us."

When U.S. and allied air forces were pummeling Iraq in 1991, Pentagon briefers gave upbeat assessments of the raids. However, Cohen's study of the air campaign found the results were far more mixed.

The study concluded that the air strikes played a significant role in the swift defeat of the Iraqi military, but that it took ground forces to dislodge them from Kuwait. The study also found no evidence that air strikes destroyed Scud missiles on the ground.

Cohen said an air campaign aimed at Iraq's infrastructure could shake Saddam's hold on power. "If you were to take out all the television stations and telecommunications so that he finds it hard to communicate with the Republican Guard or the police, I could imagine it having a serious effect," he said.

Former Secretary of State James A. Baker III advocated a similar approach on "Fox News Sunday."

"The one thing that I'm convinced would bring (Saddam) to heel is to take out his infrastructure, pretty much the way we did during the Gulf War," Baker said.

He suggested the primary targets should be the bridges and power grid along with the presidential palaces that Saddam has placed off-limits to U.N. inspectors.

Baker, who was secretary of state during the war, said most of Iraq's ability to develop nuclear or chemical weapons was sharply diminished. However, he said it would be "damn hard to find biological weapons facilities," which can be set up in a single room.

Cohen said the United States must recognize "that the problem is Saddam, and the truth of the matter is we can't let up on the Iraqis until he's gone."

But how to achieve that goal is another question.

Baker said it would be a mistake to think American troops could go into Iraq and capture Saddam. He said an attempt to occupy Iraq would turn the confrontation into "a U.S.-Israel-versus-the-Arab-world-type war, and we don't want that."

Cohen said today's precision-guided weapons are more effective than the ones used in the Gulf War. But even with those improved weapons, he said, "that doesn't necessarily say you hit all the targets you want to hit when you want to hit them."

The Johns Hopkins professor warned against thinking that a few air strikes would accomplish anything.

"You have to go back and revisit them and you have to hit them with a lot of stuff," Cohen said. "The idea that you just have a few artfully placed shots and that does it, I think we learned in the Gulf War it doesn't work that way."

are ineligible for employment in health care."

"This is probably one of the biggest benefits of going through an agency," said Balzer. "Without the criminal history checks, you never really know about the person who is caring for the senior adult."

According to Balzer, criminal checks are also run on individuals who come from out of state.

"Speaking only for our company," said Balzer, "we investigate our employees thoroughly. If we suspect abuse, it, too, is thoroughly investigated."

Bruises aren't always caused by abuse, especially on senior citizens. Different medications can cause bruises, as well as falls and bumps.

"But what we look for is anything unusual," said Balzer. "We check it all out."

According to a number of officials, most trouble comes from hiring private individuals without doing the criminal history checks.

Kathryn Musser of the Women and Children's Crisis Center said her agency's office is equipped to deal with elder abuse, but there aren't many reports.

"If we get a report, we treat it just like any other domestic violence. We work out a protective service plan and treat it just like any other abusive situation," said Musser.

Like child abuse, there is help for the victims of elder abuse. The first step is reporting the abuse. Officials encourage friends and family members to report suspected cases of elder abuse.

"If we don't know about it, we can't offer any help," said Musser.

"We're building a 68-unit apartment complex in Pampa. We just (about) to start a 58-unit apartment complex in Lamesa, and we're doing a handful of home additions -- smaller jobs," Wilburn said.

After leaving college, Wilburn also did some projects with his father, Jerry Wilburn, who is an equipment design consultant.

"Dad taught me design and how to read blueprints," he said.

Wilburn said he receives satisfaction from completing a project, "taking it from start to finish."

If there's a drawback to the job, Wilburn said, it has to be the paperwork, which "keeps me tied to the desk."

The big project being handled now, the hospital medical office complex, is still on schedule for its April 1 completion date, Wilburn said.

"After I'm finished, there's a lot of logistics to be taken care of," he said, noting the tenants will be able to occupy the building, but the construction crews still be on site, moving in furniture, building the parking lot and landscaping.

The Wilburns have two children, Andrew, 9, and Stephanie, 7.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the one who is pulling on the oars does not have time to rock the boat.

Why does a chicken cross the road?
To prove to the armadillo that it can be done.

With Gov. George Bush as the keynote speaker, the annual Chamber Banquet on Feb. 20 will attract about 1,000 people and be the best-attended C of C events in many years. Tickets went on sale Monday, and they were all gone by 10 a.m. Tuesday. No one seems to know for sure, but that may be a record time for a sellout here.

A large number of tables will be decorated by local businesses and other groups. Chamber manager Don Cumpton said this week that the Bull Barn will open Thursday for the decorators, and they'll have to finish by noon Friday. This is because of security measures associated with the governor's appearance.

Construction of the new medical office complex at Hereford Regional Medical Center is moving fast. The complex is larger than we anticipated, covering most of the west of the hospital property.

The new Burger King on 25 Mile Avenue, just south of Park Avenue, is also taking shape rapidly. The ribbon-cutting ceremony may be held later this month.

A newspaper editor lists a few reasons not to trust the computer spell check (read carefully to find the wrong words):

*The 70 holiday vendors will pedal unique items in the Marriott ballroom.
*In our busy lives, we often don't take the time for intellectual conversations," she said.

*Each bedroom has a full private bath, and the lower level of each home can be furnished according to the owner's desire.

*Because of illegal immigration problems, the congressman said he has met with Immunization and Naturalization Service officials.

*She was charged with careless driving.

*For dessert, I had an orange mouse, a light creamy concoction.

*"We'd have to double the breath of Vail Mountain," he said.

Valentine's Day rolls around again next Saturday, and the U.S. Census Bureau takes note of the event to give us statistics on marriages and divorces, chocolates and candies, and flowers.

During 1995, there were 2.3 million marriages and 1.2 million divorces in the U.S. On a typical day in 1995, that meant 6,400 marriages and 3,200 divorces took place. That also indicates a lot of people chose the wrong sweetheart. Among 18-to-24-year-olds, 24 percent of women and 14 percent of men were married as of 1995. The figures rose to 64 percent and 55 percent for 25-to-34-year-olds, and 74 percent each for 35-to-54-year-olds. For persons 55 and over, the percentage falls to 53 percent for women, but increases to 79 percent for men.

Pennsylvania could be called the nation's sweetest state. It has more establishments making candy and other confectionery products (83) and chocolate and cocoa products (25) than any other state. The chocolate and candy given on Valentine's Day was probably made in the U.S. where 169 such establishments employing 10,200 people produced and shipped $3.3 billion worth of those goods in 1995. Meanwhile, 762 other establishments, employing 53,700 people, manufactured other candy products and shipped $11.3 billion worth of goods.

Then again, these sugary products could have been made outside the U.S. Between January and October, 1997, the U.S. imported $250 million worth of chocolate from Canada, more than from anywhere else. The United Kingdom was the leading supplier of non-chocolate candy to the U.S. during same period with shipments totaling $75.7 million.

There is no shortage of places where you can buy flowers for your valentine. In 1995, there were 26,400 florists nationwide, employing 123,600 persons. The dollar volume of flowers sold on Valentine's Day was not available in 1995.

Reflections

We really don't need another television awards show, but if the network honchos decide there's a time slot open for a new awards show, then I think the Darwin Award should be considered.

The Darwin Award is made each year to the individual or individuals who have managed to kill or maim themselves in the most bizarre way imaginable.

A friend who's a literary agent in New York City recently shared the Darwin Award nominees, and ultimate winner, with me.

Previous Darwin laureates include the man who was killed when the vending machine he was trying to extract a soft drink from fell on him, a would-be aviator who strapped a jet engine to his car and blew it up, and last year's lawn chair aviator who tied 45 helium balloons to his lawn chair and cut himself loose.

This year's nominations include:
1 - A San Anselmo (Calif.) man died when he hit a lift tower at the Mammoth Mountain Ski Area while riding down the slope on a foam pad.

According to the Mono County Sheriff's Department, Matthew David Hubal, 22, and some friends had hiked up a ski run called Stump Alley about 3 a.m. and undid some yellow foam protectors from the lift towers.

The pads are used to protect skiers who might hit the towers. The group apparently used the pads to slide down the ski slope and Hubal crashed into a tower. Investigators later determined the tower he hit was the one with its pad removed.

2 - Robert Puelo, 32, apparently was being disorderly in a St. Louis (Mo.) market. When the clerk threatened to call the police, Puelo grabbed a hot dog, shoved it in his mouth and walked out without paying for it. Police found him unconscious in front of the store; paramedics removed a 6-inch weiner from his throat, where it had choked him to death.

3 - Spanish poacher Marino Malerba, who shot a stag standing above him on an overhanging rock. Malerba was killed instantly when the stag fell on him.

4 - A Kincaid, W. Va. man popped a blasting cap into his mouth and bit down, triggering an explosion that blew off his lips, teeth and tongue. Jerry Stromyer, 24, bit the blasting cap as a prank during a party, according to West Virginia state troopers.

An investigator said another man at the party had the blasting cap in an aquarium, hooked to a battery, and was trying to explode it. When it didn't explode, Stromyer said, "I'll show you how to set it off," the investigator said.

5 - Doctors at University Hospital in Portland, Ore., said an Oregon man shot through the skull by a hunting arrow is lucky to be alive. Tony Roberts, 25, lost his right eye during an initiation into a men's rafting club, Mountain Men Anonymous, in Grants Pass, Ore. A friend tried to shoot a beer can off Roberts' head, but the arrow entered his right eye, going through 8-10 inches of brain and protruding at the rear of his skull. Doctors said the arrow miraculously missed all major blood vessels.

Roberts admitted later he and his friends had been drinking that afternoon. "I feel so dumb about this," Roberts said.

6 - A woman named Linda went to Arkansas to visit her in-laws. While there, she went to a store. She parked next to a car with a woman sitting in it, her eyes closed and hands behind her head, apparently sleeping. When Linda came out a while later, she again saw the woman, her hand still behind her head but with her eyes open.

The woman looked very strange, so Linda tapped on the window and asked, "Are you OK?"

"I've been shot in the head, and I am holding my brains in," the woman responded.

Linda ran back inside the store and had employees call the paramedics. They had to break into the car because the door was locked. When they got in, they found the woman had bread dough on the back of her head and in her hands. A Pillsbury biscuit container had exploded, apparently from heat in the car, making a loud explosion like a gunshot, and hit her in the head.

When she reached back to find what it was, she felt the dough and thought it was her brains. She passed out from fright and when she regained consciousness tried to hold her brains in.

7 - A Michigan man bought a new Jeep Grand Cherokee for $30,000 and has $400-plus monthly payments.

He and a friend decided to go duck hunting, and found the lakes were frozen. The two Atomic Brains went to the lake with the guns, the dog, the beer and, of course, the new vehicle. They drive out onto the lake ice and get ready. Now, they want to make some kind of natural landing area for the ducks, something

'OTHER' SCANDAL Fund-raising furor getting a new life

WASHINGTON (AP) - Meanwhile, in the other scandal, a fund-raising friend of President Clinton faces criminal charges of buying access at the top with illegal donations to the Democrats.

The political money system Yah Lin "Charlie" Trie is accused of using illicitly still is reaping millions in unregulated contributions to both the political parties.

Clinton still is urging reform, while helping Democrats raise the kind of donations he wants banned, saying his party can't surrender unilaterally to Republicans who take in more money anyhow.

There is to be a Senate vote by March 6 on the campaign finance legislation advocated by Clinton. It was stalled before by filibuster threats which had prompted a presidential threat to keep Congress in session until there was action.

The campaign finance controversy, under congressional investigation and political dispute for most of 1997, has been submerged lately by the more sensational, and personal case of intern Monica Lewinsky, and the covertly taped allegations that she had an affair with Clinton and he wanted her to cover it by lying under oath. The president has vehemently denied both.

That scandal is sometimes salacious, but simple. Sex, lies and secretly taped conversations don't carry the complexities of the campaign fund-raising cases.

A year ago, the illegal foreign donations the Democrats got in the 1996 campaign was the issue, targeted for televised congressional investigations with advocates of reform saying admitted abuses in fund raising would lead Americans to demand an overhaul of the system.

The Senate hearings didn't have the anticipated impact, despite the memo that showed Clinton's hand in offering major Democratic donors a night in the Lincoln Bedroom, despite the White House coffees, despite the Republican promise of evidence that China had tried to buy influence in the election campaigns of 1996, which never was proved. The House investigation is still on, but hardly explosive.

Nothing, in any of it, to match the uproar of the Lewinsky case. With that one unfolding, the Trie indictment and arrest were reported dutifully but without the barrage of coverage it would otherwise have produced on television and in print.

Yet campaign finance abuses of the past and possible changes for the future are far more significant than a sex scandal in their impact on the government and the democratic process.

One of the 15 counts against Trie and a business associate charges that they "purchased access to high-level government officials in the United States by contributing and soliciting contributions to the Democratic National Committee."

No names, but no missing the meaning. Between the spring of 1994 and the late summer of 1996, Trie was at 10 dinners, lunches or coffees with Clinton, four at the White House. He was at four where Vice

SEX & SURVEYS: Anything goes if the pollsters call

A five-year study of the mating habits of the South American swamp rat

A recent survey shows sex provides men with a number of healthful benefits including

According to a recent poll college graduates have sex less frequently

Did I catch your attention?

Supposedly anything with sexual connotations catches most people's eye.

But, personally, I don't understand the studies, the surveys or the polls.

Take the first example. A number of wise and learned biologists were paid good money to go study the mating habits of very common, very large rats in South America.

Biologists discovered the female swamp rat is the aggressor and male rats will often play dead when an apparently unattractive or unacceptable female approaches.

Couldn't millions of dollars have been saved by staying home and studying the sex habits of the U.S. political rats? After all a rat is a rat. Do we really need to know all the little ins and outs of the mating rituals?

I honestly hope that some day when I'm (as my kids call it) in one of my moods with Creedence Clearwater Revival cranked up on the stereo and John Fogerty wailing his tunes, that someone calls me with a sex survey.

I already have my answers lined up.

I will honestly answer the first few questions regarding my age, gender, educational background and my race.

From there, though, anything goes.

I can just see the looks on the faces of my oldest daughter and her boyfriend, Chris, as I, with a straight face tell the questioner, am a frequent participant in sexual games, rituals and other recreations.

Amanda, because she knows me better than does Chris, will collapse in a fit of uncontrolled laughter and will probably have to be rushed to the emergency center when she busts a gut.

Her poor boyfriend, though, will just go straight to the funeral home. The cause of death will officially be listed as "death by embarrassment." After all, he was quite unprepared (and nearly died of embarrassment) when I merely remarked that since he had kissed Amanda, they already shared the same set of germs.

I'm not really sure how many ardent kisses I receive each day, though, because I am constantly fending off two most loyal and faithful admirers. And they aren't shy either. Any time they get close to me, I can expect several sloppy, wet ones.

OK, OK, you and I know they're the family dogs, but it will keep the interviewer's tail wagging.

I can't wait to tell of my most heated night of passion. My wedding night. I'll probably just forget to mention it was so heated because I had a temperature of 102 and his was boiling at 101.5.

What can I say about romance? What could be better than dim lights (probably because I short circuited the lamp and that's as bright as it gets), soft music (mainly because I really hate loud music most of the time and I am always yelling at one kid or another to turn it down) and a perfect cup of coffee (that I've been trying to drink since early morning).

Let's get real. How serious could most people be when questioned, by an absolute stranger, (notice I didn't say perfect) about their sex lives?

Is anyone really going to admit that it's been so long that it is only a distant memory? No way! They're going to exaggerate as far as they can.

How do researchers compare healthful benefits of sexual encounters? I want to know who is going to volunteer to be the control (abstinent) for the decoys to float on. In order to make a hole large enough to look like something a wandering duck would fly down and land on, they knew it would take more than an ice hole drill.

Out of the back of the new Grand Cherokee comes a stick of dynamite with a 40-second fuse. Now these two Rocket Scientists do take into consideration that if they place the stick of dynamite at a location far from where they are standing (and the new Grand Cherokee), they ran the risk of slipping on the ice when they ran from the burning fuse and could go up in smoke with the resulting blast. So, they decided to light the 40-second fuse and throw the dynamite.

Remember the vehicle, the beer, the guns and the dog? Yes, the dog. A well-trained Black Lab used for retrieving, especially things thrown by the owner. The dog took off as fast as he could run and captured the stick of dynamite with the burning 40-second fuse about the time it hit the ice.

The two men yell, scream, wave their arms and wonder what to do. The dog, cheered on, keeps coming toward them. One of the men grabs the shotgun and shoots the dog. But the shotgun's loaded with duckshot, hardly big enough to stop a Black Lab. The dog stops for a moment, slightly confused, but continues on. Another shot and this time the dog, still standing, becomes really confused and, of course, scared, thinking the two Nobel Prize winners have gone insane.

He takes off to find cover, now with a really short fuse burning on the stick of dynamite. He takes cover — under the brand-new Jeep Grand Cherokee. BOOM!

Dog and Grand Cherokee are blown to bits and sink to the bottom of the lake in a very large hole, leaving the two candidates for Co-Leaders of the Known Universe standing there with "I can't believe this happened" looks on their faces. The insurance company says that sinking a vehicle in a lake by illegal use of explosives isn't covered. The owner had yet to make the first of the $400-plus monthly payments.

And, the winner is:

John Pemicky and his friend, Sal Hawkins, decided to attend a Metallica concert at the Amphitheater at Gorge, Wash. Having no tickets, but 18 beers between them, they sat in the parking lot. After finishing the beer, they decided it would be easy to hop over the 9-foot-high fence and sneak into the concert.

The two friends pulled their pickup truck over to the fence. John, who was 100 pounds heavier than Sal, decided to hop over and then help his friend over the fence. Unfortunately for John, there was a 30-foot drop on the other side of the fence. Having heaved himself over, he crashed through a tree, but his fall was broken by a large branch which snagged him by his shorts.

Dangling from the tree, with one arm broken, John looked down and saw a group of bushes below. Apparently thinking the bushes would break his fall, he used his pocket knife to cut away his shorts, freeing him from the tree limb.

Then, he crashed below into holly bushes. The sharp leaves scratched his entire body and now, without his shorts, a holly branch penetrated his rectal cavity. To make matters worse, the pocket knife fell with him and landed 3 inches into his left thigh.

Seeing his friend in considerable agony, Sal decided to throw him a rope and pull him to safety. However, weighing about 100 pounds less than John, Sal decided to tie the rope to the pickup.

And, things went from bad to worse.

Sal put the truck into the wrong gear, pressed on the gas and crashed through the fence, dropping 30 feet to land on — and kill — his friend. Sal was thrown from the truck, suffered massive internal injuries and died at the scene.

The police arrived to find a pickup with its driver thrown about 100 feet from the vehicle. Upon moving the truck, the officers found a half-naked man, with numerous scratches, a holly branch stuck up his rectum, a knife in his thigh — and a pair of shorts dangling from tree branches 25 feet in the air.

President Al Gore appeared. Trie arranged three White House tours for his business associates and got their photographs taken with Clinton.

His friendship with Clinton dates back some 20 years, to his days as a Little Rock restaurant operator, before he set up his international trading corporations with ties to Indonesia and China.

There's more to come in the campaign money investigation, a Justice Department operation involving 120 lawyers and FBI agents. Atty. Gen. Janet Reno called the Trie indictment "an important step forward in addressing campaign finance abuses," cases in which she has refused Republican demands for a special prosecutor.

There's word that the Buddhist temple where Gore attended a fund-raiser that yielded illegal donations is an indictable target of the investigators.

group? The priests? The president? The missionaries? The world leaders? The gentlemen who frequent the "ladies of the evening?"

Who?

Or maybe sex researchers run these studies for their "own" lurid gratification.

I wonder if the poll that questioned college educated people took into account how many college graduates wouldn't bother to answer the questions? I expect my Ph.D. anytime.

I know that if I should ever get one of these incredibly nosey questioners on the phone it will be at dinner time and when that happens want to guess what I'll say we're having for supper?

The simple and mundane macaroni and cheese will become a veritable smorgasbord of debauchery. Sliced tomatoes will once again be the aphrodisiac they were once considered, ice tea will become a bubbly champagne and like a good book always promises... the rest of the explicitly detailed fantasies I will leave to the discretion of your imagination.

The youngest president to assume office was Theodore Roosevelt. Vice-President Roosevelt became president at the age of 42 years, 10 months when President William McKinley was assassinated in 1901.

Trie donated or raised some $645,000 for the Democratic National Committee, all of it refunded as tainted or at least questionable foreign money. Foreign donations are illegal, although legally resident aliens can contribute. For a year, the Democratic committee, defensive after refunding a total of some $3 million in suspect donations, had barred contributions from anyone except American citizens, but that self-restriction has been lifted.

So has the Democrats' voluntary $100,000 limit on unregulated donations, the soft money that can be given to the parties without the strict ceilings applied to direct campaign contributions. They said it was essential to stay competitive with the Republicans, whose national party was $10 million better off going into the campaign year.

Firms lose respect for 'human' capital

NEW YORK (AP) - In less than a decade, more than 3 million jobs have been eliminated in the United States, and the toll continues to rise. Wholesale job cutting has become an accepted technique for streamlining companies.

Streamlining is a euphemism for various goals: modernization, adjustment to markets, increased productivity, stronger profits and a higher stock price, and downsizing is defended as the way to achieve them.

But does it work?

An academic study described in the Sloan Management Review, a publication of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, casts considerable doubt on the efficacy of the technique, which has caused so much woe to older workers and to entire communities.

It describes how most companies that slash jobs in search of these goals fail to achieve their stated objectives. The 10-year, ongoing study of 115 companies showed that a 10 percent staff cut led to only a 1.5 percent cost savings.

In addition, productivity improvements were hard to detect, and profits rose in only half the companies. The average stock price for downsized companies rose only 3.7 percent over a three-year period, while the stock of companies that were not downsized rose 34 percent.

Perhaps the greatest consequence of all did not lend itself so easily to numerical measurements. It was the devastating impact on employee trust and morale.

Earlier academic studies also were highly critical of the technique, and the latest evidence pushes the execution of downsizing closer to a cure-all fad.

The latest study is by Karen E. Mishra, of AKM Consulting & Research, her husband, Anil Mishra, of Michigan State University, and Gretchen Spreitzer, of the University of Southern California. For the most part, it involves the automotive industry.

Employment trust and empowerment, said Anil Mishra in an interview, are the engines that make these initiatives work. Yet, he said, these are often the very things not dealt with in downsizings. The result: lost productivity.

The damage is widespread. The authors found managers often become "abrasive, narcissistic, withdrawn, alienated, apathetic, or depressed," and blame themselves for causing harm to others.

And yet, Mishra says, the negative consequences could be lessened if management dealt with its human capital in the same manner in which it considered its other assets.

An automotive industry worker before he earned his doctorate, Mishra recalls the months of preparation and hard work his company put into reallocating machinery and other equipment when it was shutting down a plant.

But, he says, the perspective is different with its workers. Rather than salvage them they pay them to go and lose valuable assets.

Companies view human capital differently, he said. They see workers as more of an expense.

He recalls an executive who learned the art of closing a plant by sidestepping the rigid rules. He gave workers across-the-board pay increases and job outplacement help, among other things.

This executive, says Mishra, actually raised productivity among workers, many of them soon to be out of work when the plant closed its doors. He also cites instances of plants once destined for closing that are now productive.

Mishra's study will continue. Future emphasis will shift to the aircraft industry, which already has felt the impact of cutbacks in defense spending and now faces a reduction in orders from Asian countries.

Downsizing may be here to stay, Mishra says, but it needn't be as devastating as in the past. It begins with crafting a credible vision, followed by sensible planning and implementation and recognition of workers as human capital.

USDA delays action on organics rules

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amid mounting protests from pro-organic groups, Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said Friday that action on new national organic labeling rules would be postponed for 45 days to allow for more public comment.

The Agriculture Department has already received more than 4,000 comments on the rules, hundreds of them objecting to the possibility that irradiation, genetic engineering and sewage sludge fertilizer could be involved in organics.

Glickman, however, noted that the Agriculture Department had taken no stand on those issues and wanted to hear from the public about them. The new deadline for comment is April 30.

"This is not a final rule and should not be read to reflect how USDA will finally resolve the many difficult issues involved," Glickman said. "Our goal is to develop a final rule that the organic community and all the public can embrace."

But the mere possibility that organics rules could include a high-tech process such as irradiation to kill bacteria is anathema to most organic farmers, who say big agribusinesses seeking a share of the market are trying to move the definition away from its all-natural history.

"We as organic farmers and our customers will not sit idly back and have (the rules) force-fed to us by corporate agribusiness lobbyists and bureaucrats in Washington," said George Siemon, chief executive of an organic co-op in LaFarge, Wis. "The farmers of our co-op will not lower our standards."

Several big corporations have launched organic product lines in recent years as consumers - increasingly concerned about pesticides and other chemicals in food - are now buying organic food to the tune of $3.5 billion a year and growing.

The rules stemmed from a 1990 law intended to provide a national definition and label requirements for organics now governed only by a patchwork of state and private certification programs. But many organic producers say the national rules will be weaker.

"We strongly believe that the proposed rule is not compatible or consistent with current organic practices," said Kathleen DiMatteo, executive director of the Organic Trade Association based in Greenfield, Mass.

Some other objections raised by organic farmers:

- Livestock could be fed up to 20 percent non-organic feed each year and could be treated with antibiotics under certain circumstances. In addition, the rule does not mandate that animals get access to the outdoors.

- Numerous recommendations of the 14-member National Organic Standards Board were ignored and more stringent local organics guidelines would not be allowed.

Survey: People are drawn to scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ask people what news story comes to mind first and 1 percent mention El Nino and the weather. Ten percent say Iraq. Seventy-five percent mention the allegations concerning President Clinton and Monica Lewinsky, according to a new survey.

But ask what they think about the job the news media are doing in covering Clinton's sexual imbroglia, and majorities turn thumbs down. They think the allegations are getting too much attention. They think the news media have lost objectivity. They say reporters are going public with stories before they have checked them out.

Overall, a poll by the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press found that many people disapprove of the way the news media is handling the story - even if they are following it closely.

The pollsters say that media disapproval is rebounding to Clinton's benefit.

"Sympathy for a president beleaguered by a press perceived as biased and inaccurate is an important element in Clinton's support," the Pew report says.

The poll was conducted between last Friday and Monday, with 844 people questioned. The margin of error was plus or minus 4 percentage points. It found that Clinton's approval rating following the State of the Union address had reached 71 percent, about matching his high ratings in other recent polls.

Nearly two-thirds of those surveyed thought the media has done only a fair or poor job in carefully checking the facts before reporting, while 60 percent said the media were not being objective on the story. Some 54 percent were unhappy with the amount of coverage.

Andrew Kohut, the Pew pollster, said the poll showed that the public likes Clinton's policies better than his personality, and that Republicans were far less upset over news coverage of his personal life than were Democrats.

Meanwhile, in a fresh controversy, the White House criticized The Wall Street Journal for putting a story on its Internet site before obtaining White House comment.

In an Internet posting Wednesday, the Journal reported that a White House steward, Bayani Nelvis, told a grand jury he saw Clinton and Ms. Lewinsky, a former White House intern, in a study adjacent to the Oval Office. In a subsequent version, the Journal said Nelvis had given his account to Secret Service agents rather than to the jurors.

Nelvis' lawyer, Joseph Small, denounced the report as "absolutely false and irresponsible."

White House Press Secretary Mike McCurry called the Internet posting "one of the sorriest episodes of journalism I've ever witnessed."

Last month, the Dallas Morning News retracted a story after it had been posted on the World Wide Web - and had circled the globe.

Money woes plaguing Navy personnel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Money woes are costing some Navy members their security clearances and affecting their military readiness, a Pentagon-funded study finds.

The report also said at least one-third of Navy personnel cannot pay their bills and the cost to the Defense Department is put at more than $200 million a year in bad checks, loan defaults and bankruptcies. Study authors said the findings reflect military-wide financial troubles.

"The scope of the financial management difficulties is quite widespread," said Raminder Luther, one of the study authors who said well-paid officers reported even more bill-paying problems than low-salaried enlisted men and women. In 1996, annual Navy salaries ranged from $14,868 for the lowest-ranking enlisted member - not counting benefits such as housing, retirement and incentive pay - to $113,020 for a top-grade officer.

The study, done at Marywood University in Scranton, Pa., was based on Navy financial records and on a review of previous military surveys dating back to 1995. It found: - The Navy annually receives 123,000 letters of indebtedness, written by outside creditors to the Navy to complain about a past due bill from a service member.

- Approximately 99,000 bad checks are written each year on the Navy Exchange System, which acts as a bank for service members.

- About 75,000 bad checks are received annually at Navy commissaries.

- Some 35,000 Navy members - out of a total of almost 386,000 service members on active duty - had wages garnished in 1995 for such things as child support, alimony, commercial debt and bankruptcy.

- About 4,300 service members in 1996 filed for bankruptcy naming the Navy as the creditor. That doesn't count private bankruptcies.

- Approximately 43 percent of enlisted active duty personnel report problems paying monthly bills, compared with 45 percent of officers.

- On average, 60 percent of security clearance revocations were for reasons involving personal financial problems.

- In a 1995 quality of life survey, 33 percent said they did not have enough income for "essentials;" 55 percent for "extras;" 63 percent for "savings;" and 63 percent for an adequate "standard of living."

- Asked in the same 1995 survey what affected their "operational readiness," the factors in order of importance were: finances, housing, child care, health care, partner's job and neighborhood.

Luther, the study author, said the survey results show how difficult it is for anybody to manage personal finances in an age of deepening debt, ready credit cards and loans and free spending habits as well as a high cost of living.

BOB HOPE

WASHINGTON (AP) - Queen Elizabeth II will give Bob Hope an honorary knighthood, but the 94-year-old comedian won't be known as Sir Bob.

Prime Minister Tony Blair informed President Clinton on Thursday of the queen's decision to honor Hope for the years he spent entertaining the troops as well as his contributions to film and song.

The title "Sir" is reserved for British subjects.

"I'm speechless," Hope said from his home in Palm Springs, Calif. "Seventy years of ad lib material and I'm speechless."

He added: "What an honor and what a surprise for a boy who was born in England, raised in Cleveland and schooled in vaudeville."

BOB DENVER

PRINCETON, W.Va. (AP) - Gilligan got marooned again - this time on the top of a mountain.

Bob Denver, the star of TV's "Gilligan's Island," was snowed in for two days after a storm dumped 21 1/2 feet on his home Jan. 27.

Denver and his wife, Dreama, were without power for 17 hours, without phone service for five days and - gasp! - without television for a week.

"I got tired of feeding the fireplace and two potbellied stoves," Denver said Friday.

He and his wife have a weekly radio show, "Weekend with Denver and Denver," which they produce from a studio in their basement

TAMMY WYNETTE

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Tammy Wynette's daughter was standing by her man when she got into a fight with a police officer, authorities said.

Tamala Georgette Smith, 27, of Tuskegee, Ala., is due in court next Wednesday to face charges of defiant trespass, disorderly conduct and assault.

Smith is accused of fighting with Officer Vicky Mouser, who was providing security at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center on Sunday. The confrontation happened after Smith's boyfriend's put his feet on a chair.

Police quoted Smith as saying: "Who do you rent-a-cops think you are, telling my boyfriend to take his feet off the hospital chair? You're harassing my boyfriend."

Smith, the daughter of Wynette and country singer George Jones, pushed Mouser, authorities said. The officer injured her wrist and missed three days of work.

If convicted, Smith could get up to four years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Wynette, best known for the hit "Stand By Your Man," was released from the hospital Thursday after nine days of treatment for nutritional problems.

DAVID ATTENBOROUGH

LONDON (AP) - A BBC camera crew's five weeks of work filming birds in Papua New Guinea was all for naught, apparently because of a state-of-the-art airport security scanner.

Upon returning home, crew members on David Attenborough's 10-part series "The Life of Birds" discovered their film was foggy.

Initial checks with its manufacturer, Kodak, revealed the film probably had been affected by X-rays from a new high-dose CTX 5000 scanner. Suspicion then fell on Manchester Airport, where the cameraman started his journey with the film checked in his luggage.

Airport spokesman Darren Roberts said that there was no evidence the film was actually scanned there, but that passengers are always advised to carry such material in their carry-on luggage.

Keith Scholey, acting head of the BBC unit, said the story has a happy ending.

"We put in an insurance claim because it was clearly an accident," Scholey said. "We invested the money in another film crew, and the results of the filming were better than the first trip."

"David Attenborough is certainly not jumping up and down wailing and gnashing his teeth."

SIEGFRIED & ROY

CINCINNATI (AP) - Siegfried and Roy presented two white lion cubs to the Cincinnati Zoo on Thursday, and it was no illusion.

The cubs, named Sunshine and Future, will be on display indefinitely. The rare animals were born in Germany.

Siegfried and Roy, who perform illusions with animals in their Las Vegas act, are known for their efforts in breeding white tigers and lions.

"We're trying to make a positive impact on wildlife," Roy said. "We love the Cincinnati Zoo. We think that what the people are doing in Ohio and Cincinnati for animal husbandry is second to none, and that's why we're here."

LUCIANO PAVAROTTI

ROME (AP) - Luciano Pavarotti has canceled all performances in the coming weeks to rest following recent blood pressure problems.

"He has had sudden spikes in his blood pressure recently, caused by stress. And some extra stress was due to a recent illness of his mother, too," spokeswoman Renata Meroni said Thursday without elaborating on the illness.

Pavarotti, 62, won't be performing at least until the end of February, and only later on in the month will he be able to confirm whether he will perform "Aida" at Palermo's Teatro Massimo in April.

On Jan. 25, the superstar tenor was forced to sit out the second part of a Metropolitan Opera benefit in New York after he became dizzy. He later pulled out of three performances of "The Elixir of Love" at the Met.

ROSEANNE, BEN THOMAS

charges will be filed against the estranged husband of Roseanne for a New Year's Day incident in which he broke a lamp and window at the couple's home, prosecutors said.

The decision not to file charges against Ben Thomas was made after a review of the incident, Lara Bloomquist of the city attorney's domestic violence unit said.

The couple were married Valentine's Day 1995, but Roseanne filed for divorce last month, citing irreconcilable differences. She is seeking custody of their 2-year-old son Buck.

IN BRIEF

Dolphin-ex injured

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP)—Former Miami Dolphins All-Pro defensive end Doug Betters was in serious but stable condition after undergoing surgery for spinal injuries sustained in a ski accident.

Officials at Big Mountain resort said the tip of Betters' ski apparently became caught in the snow and he fell, hitting his head.

Betters, 41, a veteran of two Super Bowls, was NFL defensive player of the year in 1983.

Isles-Canucks trade

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP)—Vancouver traded former captain Trevor Linden to the New York Islanders for defenseman Bryan McCabe, center Todd Bertuzzi and a third-round pick.

The deal is the fourth in three days for the Canucks.

Princeton wins

HANOVER, N.H. (AP)—The No. 11 Princeton Tigers, with their deliberate offense and stingy defense, wiped out Dartmouth 71-39 Friday night to run their record to 17-1, including 5-0 in the Ivy League.

The Tigers, who have the nation's stingiest defense, allowing 50 points per game, were aggressive from the start.

The Tigers' balanced offense produced six players who scored between seven and 11 points as Carmody went to his bench early. Brian Earl and Gabe Lewulis each had 11 and Mitch Henderson 10.

Players needed

The Hereford High School baseball alumni-varsity game will be 2 p.m. March 7 at Whiteface Field.

All HHS alumni interested in playing are encouraged to contact Hereford head baseball coach Pete Rodriguez at 363-7626 or 364-4427.

Opening ceremonies mix peace, technology

NAGANO, Japan (AP)—With Japan's imposing Alps lining the horizon, the final Winter Olympics of the 20th century opened Saturday with somber sumo wrestlers casting away evil spirits and the strains of Beethoven reverberating from a cherry blossom-shaped stadium.

Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko, her hands covered in white mittens, applauded heartily as more than 2,400 athletes from 72 nations and regions—the most ever for a Winter Olympics—paraded past their box. The athletes will compete during the next two weeks in 14 sports in Nagano and the mountains that encircle it. Some nations, like the United States, have dozens of athletes; others like Iran and Belgium have only one.

ONCE MORE Agent: Elway will return in '98

DENVER (AP)—John Elway will have at least one more more shot at being "king of the hill."

The 37-year-old Elway, who quarterbacked the Denver Broncos to their first Super Bowl title last month, plans to return for the 1998 NFL season, his agent, Marvin Demoff, said Thursday.

"My expectation always was that John would tell (owner) Pat Bowlen and (coach) Mike Shanahan a year in advance that I'm taking it one year at a time," Demoff told The Denver Post. "Well, John's giving them a year's notice on his locker starting now. He might end up renewing that lease after next season ...

"It fulfills his obligation to Pat to help him get a new stadium. It fulfills his obligation to Mike to get someone in place. And it allows John to tour the NFL at least one more season as the king of the hill, which is exactly what he is."

Team spokesman Jim Saccomano said Friday that Broncos' officials had not yet heard from Elway.

"In time, John is going to let us know ..." he said. "It's certainly very well known we love our quarterback, and want him to return."

Even before the Super Bowl victory over last year's champion, the Green Bay Packers, Bowlen had predicted Elway would be back at least one more season.

The two played golf last week in Hawaii and Bowlen said then he didn't get the feeling Elway was ready to quit.

"My impression is John is not going to retire," Bowlen said.

Lady Raiders top Hereford for 1-4A 2nd

By BOB VARMETTE
Sports Writer

The Canyon Randall Lady Raiders had one "big" advantage over the Hereford Lady Whitefaces.

And they were determined to use it.

Capitalizing upon their strong inside game, Randall took a 55-48 victory from No. 3 Hereford Friday night in front of 800 at Whiteface Gymnasium in District 1-4A girls basketball.

"Our post players played better than when we played (Hereford) at Randall," Randall head coach Jim Wilcoxson said. "We got more post play tonight."

The reason was simple. "They're 6-1, we're 5-9," said Hereford head coach Eddie Fortenberry matter of factly. "We can't physically match up inside with people. . . . Tonight, they (Randall) exposed our weakness."

The win earns second place in District 1-4A for the Lady Raiders (22-6 overall, 10-2 District 1-4A). Hereford (26-4, 9-3) finished third.

Randall dominated inside on the offensive end. Courtney Gilmore, a 6-1 senior post, scored 12 of her 15 points in the first half.

In the second half, it was Keisha Cornelius' turn. The 6-0 junior tallied 11 of her 15 points after the break.

"Keisha's a great athlete," Wilcoxson said. "She's got all that leaping ability. If she ever learns to keep her emotion under control, she's going to be something else."

For the Lady Whitefaces, it was simply a matter of picking your poison—Gilmore or Cornelius.

"You got to make a choice," Fortenberry said. "Which one are we going to try to slow down and stop. Both of them played much better than they did at Randall."

Hereford got out to a 10-6 lead on the Lady Raider's behind seven points from Misti Davis. Davis was 3-for-4 from the field in the first 5:46 of the game. She went 11-for-8 the rest of the way to finish with 12 points to lead Hereford.

The Lady Whitefaces held a 12-8 margin going into the second quarter,

The game plan was simple—hang around to have an opportunity to win at the end.

And try as they did, the Canyon Randall Raiders just couldn't seem to put the Hereford Whitefaces away.

That gave Hereford their opportunity at the end, but Randall survived 57-54 Friday night in front of 1,000 at Whiteface Gymnasium in District 1-4A boys basketball.

"Our guys played with a lot of effort," Hereford head coach Randy Dean said. "We had our opportunities at the end of the game. . . . The guys put out an awful lot of effort just to get back into the game."

With the win, Randall successfully defended its 1996-97 District 1-4A title in the Raiders' last year in the district. Randall will move to the new District 4-4A beginning with the 1998-99 season.

The win also avenged a 20-point loss to the Whitefaces Jan. 13 on the Raiders' home court.

It was different team that wore the silver and black than on that night three and one-half weeks ago.

Despite their height advantage, Randall only outrebounded Hereford by a 26-25 margin Jan. 13. Friday night they owned the glass.

The Raiders (20-7 overall, 10-1 District 1-4A) grabbed 38 rebounds to 24 for the Whitefaces (13-13, 7-3). And Randall was able to get offensive production inside, thanks in large part to Jimmy Webb's 24 points. Webb missed the Jan. 13 game due to a injury. "He's just so big and strong down there," Dean said. "He's got some nice post moves. He's really improved from a year ago."

The 6-5 senior grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds.

Webb wasn't the only big body the Whitefaces had to contend with on the night. Brandon Sims, a 6-5 senior, went 6-for-11 from the field and finish ed the game with 14 points.

"I understood that was one of their goals coming in," Dean said. "The yefe it like they had to utilize their size and pound the ball inside to get the ir postmen more opportunities. Both of those guys being 6-5 and as strong as they are, there's not very many high school teams around here that can stand in with that," Dean added.

Erya nt McNutt and sophomore Greg Ewing led Hereford with 15 points each. Cody Hodges added 12 for the Whitefaces.

Here's a way to up Nagano Games ratings

Are you ready for some . . . ice skating?

Those of us who are hockey fans may find the next couple of weeks hard to take.

The NHL is on a break for the Olympics, and we know, of course, that we'll see precious little hockey during the network coverage by CBS and TNT. It seems the network execs think you'll find some pre-pubescent girls skating around in circles much more exciting to watch than hockey.

But don't be surprised to see some "hockey" on TV during the Nagano Games—women's hockey.

I use the term "hockey" loosely, because from what I've been able to learn about the game,

The Toy Department

By Bob Varmette

it is indeed a game of their own.

Yes, the object is still to put the puck into the net more times than the other team does. The way that is accomplished is where men's and women's hockey differs.

Hockey, the male variety, is an incredibly physical sport. The powers that be have determined that women's "hockey" will have none of that.

Bodychecking is not allowed. Need I say more? OK, let me say more. How about this? They don't drop the gloves and fight.

I don't think we'll be watching too much women's "hockey."

Unfortunately, if you want to watch hockey, you may not have much of a choice. Team USA (women) has a better chance of medaling than Team USA (men).

That means you're even less likely to see men's hockey on TV.

So what else will there be to watch? As anybody who has ever extensively watched the Olympics on TV knows, very few events are covered in their entirety. What you're most likely to see are short updates and reviews, a collage if you will.

TV rarely allows us to see the full picture. After all, we all have the attention spans of, uh, what was I writing?

One of the few events that you will see plenty of, in its entirety until you'll probably be ready to commit seppuku (that's my Japanese word for the day), is ice skating.

You'll see men's figure skating. You'll see women's figure skating. You'll see pairs figure skating. You'll follow their every move, from the time they get up in the morning to late at night when they pay off that ninja (who says I'm culturally insensitive) to whack a com petitor.

I still have my doubts as to whether this is, in fact, a sport.

But it's all about TV viewing habits. The network execs want women to watch. That's how you get big ratings numbers.

They "know" men will watch because (A) they'll watch anything; (B) it's the Olympics; (C) skaters wear really short skirts; (D) nothing else to do in West Odessa.

I have a solution. It's a solution that will still keep the women watching because it's figure skating, and it will attract men to watch.

Full-contact figure skating.

Few remember NHL's Masterton Rangers ink Oliver, Sele

By DAVE CALDWELL
The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS -- Scott Masterton was not quite 4 years old when his father died. He says now he can remember little more than the long train ride from Minnesota to Winnipeg, where his father was buried. He can remember little more than how nice people were to him.

Time is like a sheet of ice. Put new layers atop old and, eventually, you can't see the pond below. It has been 30 years since Bill Masterton became the first -- and, still, only -- player to die from injuries sustained in an NHL game. It seems many memories of one of the worst days in hockey slowly are being covered by time.

"It happens to me every once in a while," Scott Masterton said of Minnesotans bringing up his father's death, "but it doesn't happen as much as it used to."

Bill Masterton, a 29-year-old forward who was one of the first players to sign with the expansion Minnesota North Stars -- now the Dallas Stars -- died on 1:55 a.m. on Jan. 15, 1968, a little more than 24 hours after hitting his head on the ice in a home game against the Oakland Seals.

Even immediately after "the accident," as his widow, Carol, still calls it, she thought Bill was not badly hurt. She was at the Metropolitan Center in Bloomington, Minn., that night. When asked recently if she first thought his injury was catastrophic, she said: "Absolutely not. I never would have dreamt it would have been that bad."

Helmets existed in those days, but practically no one wore them. "They all called 'em pansies if you did," said his widow, who remarried eight years ago.

As a result, head injuries were much more common than they are today. One theory was that Bill Masterton had recurring concussions, and that the damage had been cumulative leading to his fatal blow.

Two weeks before he died, Masterton complained of a sore temple, but Carol Meyers said he had talked of many other problems. The fatal injury, she was told, was to his brain stem, and the hemorrhaging had been massive.

Masterton, whom his wife had known since they were 15 and growing up in Winnipeg, was memorialized in three ways. The Professional Hockey Writers Association founded the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy after his death to honor the player who "best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey."

The North Stars' most valuable player award was named after him; Mike Modano has won the Bill Masterton Award five of the past six years. And Masterton's sweater number, 19, was retired in 1987. Only one other player in franchise history, Bill Goldsworthy, has had his number, 8, retired, in 1992.

The Stars know who Bill Masterton is. It is part of the players' unwritten code of hockey never to talk about injury. You just skate on.

"It's kind of an omen," Modano said recently.

But when he was shown a photo of Masterton, Modano knew his story. Some of the people who used to be with the North Stars -- people like Goldsworthy and Lou Nanne -- told Modano about Masterton.

"A scary incident," is how Modano describes it. The way he says the word "scary," you get the feeling Modano thinks such an incident could happen again.

No one from the papers in the Twin Cities called on the 30th anniversary of her husband's death. A reporter called just after the 25th anniversary, but that was to ask her about how she felt about Green moving the team to Dallas.

The years pass. The memories fade. The family of Bill Masterton -- a player who came back from a four-year hiatus to play in the NHL for $15,000 -- was compensated $100,000 by the NHL. Carol Meyers says it is a shame that not as many people remember her first husband.

"People have just forgotten about it," she said of his fatal injury.

"Sometimes, you just really wonder if it's going to outlive all of us," she said, not sounding too hopeful.

ARLINGTON (AP) -- Pitchers Darren Oliver and Aaron Sele, counted on to form the foundation of the Texas Rangers' starting rotation this year, avoided arbitration by signing one-year contracts with the team on Friday.

The Rangers also signed pitcher Matt Perisho to a one-year deal.

Oliver signed for a $3.05 million base salary, plus $150,000 in incentive bonuses keyed to making at least 32 starts and pitching at least 185 innings.

Sele agreed to a $2.815 million base salary, plus a $10,000 incentive bonus if he pitches 200 innings.

The 27-year-old right-hander was acquired from Boston after last season, when he led the Red Sox in wins with a 13-12 record and a 5.38 ERA in a team-high 33 starts.

UT club plans concern faculty

AUSTIN (AP) -- The possibility of opening a year-round club in the University of Texas' renovated football stadium has faculty concerned that too much money and emphasis is being focused on athletics.

UT officials say the idea for the club was proposed by ClubCorp International of Dallas, headed by Robert Dedman Sr., a major Texas philanthropist.

The council said it is concerned that UT is being portrayed as "Football U," not as an academic powerhouse.

Baseball TRYOUTS!

The Texas Sting Baseball Club is holding tryouts for its 13/14 year-old team!

Del Rio native drives bobsled for USA

By MARK McDONALD
The Dallas Morning News
NACIANO, Japan -- There are two horned-grown Texans here at the Winter Olympics, one a miniature figure skater from Sugar Land, world champion Tara Lipinski, a high jumper almost certain to win a medal.

The other Texan is a square-jawed fellow from Del Rio, Todd Hays, a college linebacker-turned-martial artist, a Canadian Football League reject whose parents paid to send him back to Canada to take lessons in how to drive a bobsled.

Lipinski and her handlers have known all along her athletic destiny was awaiting her in Nagano. Hays, well, he's another story.

A polite, courteous kid raised in the smelter-sweet air of South Texas, Todd Hays says he often daydreamed about winter scenes and snowy storms. Until he got to college, he had seen snow exactly twice in his life.

He played football at the University of Tulsa, then took up martial arts and became a professional kickboxer. He got a tryout with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL, but played in just one pre-season game before getting the ax. Dejected and jobless, he returned to the 110-degree furnace of Del Rio.

That same week -- this was June of 1994 -- Todd's older brother, Lee, was watching the 10 o'clock news and saw that the U.S. Bobsled Federation was holding a tryout camp up in San Antonio. Lee told Todd he'd make the perfect bobsled pusher -- strong, fast, explosive, a natural.

"Yeah, right," said Todd just before he turned out the light to go to sleep.

The next morning, however, Lee was banging on Todd's door. "Sure enough at 5 a.m., he woke me up," Todd says. "Drug me up to San Antonio. He didn't exactly ask me. He kinda demanded."

Todd's results in the fitness tests at the tryout were off the charts, and he was immediately invited to a bobsled camp in Lake Placid, N.Y. He took to sledding right away and found work as a brakeman on veteran driver Tuffy Latour's two-man sled.

But Hays, 28, quickly came to understand any future he had in the sport would be in driving, not pushing. There were too many other prospective pushers out there who were bigger, stronger, faster.

Financed by his parents, Hays went to driving school in Calgary but did not have the money to buy a two-man sled of his own. So he entered a martial arts tournament in Japan -- one of those anything-goes spectacles -- and knocked out the Japanese champion in his first fight. His prize money amounted to $10,000 -- precisely the cost of a used two-man sled.

"I guess you could say I got some sense kicked into me," Hays says of his subsequent retirement from kickboxing. "I decided I'd rather be able to walk and play with my grandchildren."

Hays honed his driving skills in that original two-man clunker, then sold it to an All-Star Cafe, making enough on the deal to buy a four-man ride.

Hays raced in the United States and Canada this season while the more veteran U.S. drivers -- Brian Shimer, Jim Herberich and Latour -- were getting crushed by the Germans, the Swiss and everybody else. The North American tour is like Class AA baseball, but Hays' success on that circuit entitled him to the use of one of the bobsled federation's sophisticated Bo-Dyn sleds, the ones engineered by Bob Cuneo, the mastermind behind Todd Bodine's NASCAR machinery.

At the '98 Olympic Trials in Park City, Utah, after months of practice on the bob run there, Hays knew its every curve and turn as surely as he knew every back-alley shortcut in Del Rio. He demolished Latour -- his former pilot -- and earned himself a place on the Olympic team and a trip to Nagano.

It is unlikely, however, that Hays will drive in the Nagano competition. The United States can race two sleds -- one is Shimer's, and the original plan was to have Herberich and Hays race off for the second spot. But one of Hays' pushers is Mike Dionne, who is currently embroiled in a dispute over a positive drug test. Dionne's case is to be heard, probably this weekend, by the International Court for Arbitration in Sport.

Albus Ligi Championship first-round leader

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) -- Jim Albus shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take the first-round lead in Senior PGA Tour's LG Championship.

Tour rookie David Lundstrom birdied two of his final three holes to finish one stroke back at 68. Gil Morgan was third at 69, with Hale Irwin, Bob Murphy, Tom Wargo, Al Geiberger and Bob Eastwood tied at 70.

"That was the first good one in a while," Albus said. "It felt great. I hit the ball well and putted good, too. And it added up to a good score for a change."

Albus, 57, won five times in his first five years on the Senior Tour.

But in 1996, playing in pain, he dropped out of the top 50 money-winners. Off-season surgery on a blocked nerve in his neck fixed the problem, but his form never returned.

Albus managed to play in 26 events last year, but for the second straight season failed to break into the top 50 money-winners.

His 67 marked his lowest round since July and gave Albus his first tournament lead since 1995, when he won in San Antonio -- 87 starts ago.

"I'm nervous," he said. "I haven't been here in a while. I was nervous coming down the last few holes. But it felt good to have the lead for a chance. I haven't seen it in quite a while."

Haltom City reinstates two players

HALTOM CITY (AP) -- Two Haltom High School basketball players have been reinstated for play three weeks after they were charged with using a teacher's credit card to buy shoes, compact discs, clothing, dinner and gasoline for themselves and friends.

Ricky Holmes, 18, who averaged 22.3 points per game for Haltom before his arrest in mid-January, and a juvenile player returned this week to the school and the basketball team.

Three of their friends arrested in the felony credit-card abuse case also have returned or are expected to return to Haltom in the next few days, school officials told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Friday.

Holmes, Katerina Easter, 17, Joelon Smith, 17, and two juveniles were arrested about Jan. 14 after a weeklong buying spree.

Holmes told Haltom City police, in statements released Friday, that he found the card with the teacher's name on it, called his girlfriend and went on a shopping and dining spree at a nearby mall. He said he and his friends visited other stores in the next few days, and he bought gasoline for other students.

The reinstatements have angered other students and parents, who have complained to school officials that the group, especially the star athlete, received preferential treatment.

They compare their punishment with that of three Haltom drill team members who were given gift-wrapped bottles of beer or were found with beer in their lockers in December. Three were sent to alternative school and were barred from extracurricular activities for the rest of the school year.

Hereford

but Randall, down by six -- 22-16 -- with 2:58 left in the half, went on an 8-2 run to take the lead at intermission 24-22.

It didn't get any better in the second half for Hereford. The Lady Whitefaces struggled against Randall's press much of the game, committing 22 turnovers to just 12 for the Lady Raiders.

"I had no idea whether it would work," Wilcoxson said. "We played poorly against them last year in the playoffs and earlier at Randall. I just felt like I had to change something."

It wasn't a refreshing for the Lady Whitefaces. "I never expected us to be that intimidated by pressure," Fortenberry said. "We've played teams all year long that tried to press us, and it wasn't that effective. That was probably the key to the game."

"The second quarter, when we hit a lull... our intensity level dropped," Fortenberry said. "We started turning the ball over against the press. I think that was the stretch that did us in."

But it was the fourth quarter where the game was decided.

The team were tied 32-32 after three quarters. Randall then slowly began to pull away, and had a two-point advantage -- 39-37 -- at the 3:47 mark.

With 2:04 left in the game, Randall had extended their lead to 45-39, but a 5-2 Hereford run got them back to within three points with 53 seconds left in the game. The Lady Raiders then iced the game down the stretch from the free throw line.

Mindy Norman went 6-for-6 from the line in the last 53 seconds of the game to wind up with 13 points on the night.

"We didn't shoot very well from the free throw line," Fortenberry said. "That was definitely the difference going down the stretch."

Wilcoxson said the earlier loss wasn't really a motivating factor for the Lady Raiders, nor was the fact this was the last district game between the long-time rivals, at least for two years.

"We just didn't feel like we played very well (in the earlier game) at Randall," he said. "Not to take anything away from Hereford, because they have a great ball club, but we just didn't feel like that was a very good effort on our part. We just wanted to play hard and execute... That was really the motivating factor..."

Both Randall and Hereford will play first-round playoff games next week. Randall will play Wolforth Frenship at a time and site to be determined. Hereford will play District 2-4A champion Plainview Thursday at West Texas A&M Fieldhouse. The time of the game has yet to be determined.

Herd

Randall and Hereford played to a 16-16 tie after one quarter. In the second, the Raiders went on a 15-8 run and eventually went into the halftime break with a 33-25 advantage.

"They had a nice offensive rhythm early in the game," Dean said. "We were struggling for stops at any point in the first half... We were just a little bit off and they were in a nice rhythm of executing."

The third quarter saw Hereford disrupt some of that offensive rhythm to outscore the Raiders 18-13 and close to within three points at 46-43 going into the final period. The Whitefaces tied the game 54-54 at the 1:17 mark of the fourth quarter.

"We were able to put more pressure on them in the second half," Dean said. "We extended out, and even went a little bit of full court (press) for a quarter and half and kind of got them out of their rhythm."

That gave Hereford their shot at the end. In fact, they got two.

Hodges missed a 3-point shot when it was blocked by Randall's Jesse Hunnicutt, who broke through a screen.

"Their kid made a nice play in coming over the top of the screen," Dean said.

After Randall's Jamaal Hunnicutt was whistled for travelling with 1.9 seconds left in regulation, Hereford, down 57-54, was forced to put up a 40-footer by Eric McNutt off an inbounds play. The shot was blocked, and he got the rebound back, but the final attempt fell well off the mark.

"Our guys deserve a lot of credit for the way they hung in there and battled," Dean said. "There were some times when it didn't look too good for us... We have nothing to drop our head about coming out of this game."

Hereford can still secure second place in the district with a victory in one of their final two games against Canyon or at Dumas.

Kite, Love III lead at rain-soaked Buick

SAN DIEGO (AP) -- The Spanish explorer Balboa clearly wasn't thinking about the PGA Tour's West Coast swing when he named the body of water off California the Pacific Ocean.

There has been nothing pacific, calm or tranquil about the last two weeks on tour. The West Coast Swing is now the Wet Coast Swing.

Just days after the Pebble Beach tournament was blown from February into August by El Nino, the second round of the Buick Invitational was washed out Friday when the greens at Torrey Pines became too wet to play.

Tom Kite, helped greatly in cold, windy rain by eye surgery that allows him to now play without glasses, was 9 under par through 29 holes, tied for the lead with Davis Love III, who had played 27 holes before play was suspended shortly after noon.

Steve Pate, Robert Damron and Jeff Sanday -- playing in his first PGA Tour event -- were at 8 under. Pate and Damron had played 28 holes and Sanday had completed 26.

Seven players, including Payne Stewart and Stewart Cink, were at 7 under. Tiger Woods, who started the day nine strokes back, got to 4 under through 30 holes to pull within five of the leaders.

Fuzzy Zoeller, who started the day one stroke off the lead at 9 under, was 4 over par for the 12 holes he played in Friday's mess and was 5 under through 30 holes.

The second round will be resumed at 9 a.m. PST Saturday then the cut will be made and the third round played. What's not clear, however, is if the storm will set up camp and stay around for a few days like it did at Pebble Beach.

"I've got a whole different perspective on playing in the rain now," Kite said about the surgery that corrected his eyesight. "These days used to wipe me out."

Ceremonies

sumo wrestling champion. Greece, the font of the games, marched first; host country Japan was last.

The 50,000-strong crowd's applause rose when the U.S. team marched in, wearing long slate-blue parkas and dark brimmed hats -- a good buffer for the 34-degree weather.

"It's just so exciting," figure skater Tara Lipinski said, smiling. "I hope I can remember it forever."

The Olympic flame, contained in a cauldron designed to resemble a traditional Japanese bonfire, was kindled by Japanese figure skater Midori Ito to the strains of "Un bel di" from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." Relay runners carried the torch into the stadium and up the steps to Ito before an automatic platform lifted her to ignite the cauldron.

Appropriately, the opening of these 18th Winter Games blended the Asian classical with the global modern in a choreographed wish for peace and a flourish of tradition and technology. A 17th-century bell tolled at Nagano's Zenkoji Temple.

Traditional Japanese music melted into an Andrew Lloyd Webber composition.

Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, called on the nations participating to "observe the Olympic truce" and "foster international dialogue and diplomatic solutions to all conflicts, in an effort to bring human tragedies to an end."

Eishiro Saito, president of the Nagano Olympic Organizing Committee, said: "I sincerely hope that these games from the

The opening ceremony's mix of nationalism and culture, ritual and faith, unfolded in an arena shaped like a cherry blossom, Japan's national flower. It came 102 years after the first modern games, held in the Olympic cradle of Athens, drew just 245 athletes from 14 nations. The first Winter Games came 28 years later.

The technology shone as it showcased a work composed before electricity was harnessed -- "Ode to Joy" from the ninth symphony by Ludwig van Beethoven.

Nagano

Recently, I've read stories on the Associated Press wire about figure skaters complaining about getting nicked and bumped during pre-event warm up skating.

This gave me an idea. Let's incorporate that into figure skating and make it a real sport.

Here's how you would do it. You put 12 skaters on the ice. You introduce a time limit, say 10 minutes for preliminaries, 20 minutes for the finals.

Skaters would still be judged on the artistic merit of their routines, but they would also have to "survive" the event to advance to the next round. Skaters would be allowed to bodycheck, board or slash their opponents with their skates.

Extra points would be awarded to skaters who take out the most fellow competitors.

All skaters still standing would advance according to artistic and body count points.

In the finals, the same rules would apply, except you would have maybe four, or eight, skaters and the time limit would be extended because there would be more open space on the ice to skate away from your fellow skaters.

If two or more skaters are still standing when time expires, there would be a sudden-death skateoff. The first skater to draw blood would be the champion.

Now... where are Tonya Harding and the East Germans when you really need them?

Knoblauch trade finally goes through

NEW YORK (AP) -- Chuck Knoblauch finally joined the Yankees on Friday after acting commissioner Bud Selig called New York owner George Steinbrenner to approve the trade.

The four-time All-Star second baseman leaves the Twins for $3 million and four minor league prospects.

Elway

"It's only two weeks after the Super Bowl and it's a sensitive issue, so I don't want to press John for an answer."

Despite his age and the pounding his body has taken over the past 15 years, Elway has shown no sign that his skills are waning.

He threw a career-high 27 touchdowns in 1997, and he needs only 1,331 yards to reach 50,000 career passing yards.

Demoff said Elway could find the game more enjoyable now that the pressure is off to prove himself in the Super Bowl.

Demoff said Elway's family also wants him to return.

Texas novelist ignoring the Lone Star boundaries

WACO (AP) - Texas Monthly tabbed her "the best novelist to emerge from Texas in years," but novelist Carol Dawson doesn't pay much attention to Lone Star boundaries.

She got the idea for her latest novel, "Meeting the Minotaur," while watching her son and nephew from a Cozumel, Mexico, hotel lobby. She wrote the book while spending two years in New Zealand working on a television documentary about the Maori people.

Dawson is now back in Austin, where she's putting the finishing touches on a book about New Zealand, based on her documentary, and another novel about daughters and mothers-in-law. Next her restless muse will take her, mentally at least, to West Texas, the setting of her latest novel-in-the-works.

In "Meeting the Minotaur," Dawson, 46, updates the Greek legend of Theseus, the son of an Athenian king who grew up not knowing his royal father and is best remembered for killing the Minotaur. Dawson turns that legend into a contemporary thriller, with an unlikely Texan as hero in a struggle spanning cultures and continents.

Taylor Deeds, the novel's protagonist, suffers from a disorder that periodically jangles his equilibrium, usually at the time at which he needs to keep his head and balance.

Raised without a father, he discovers he's the son of a wealthy Texas millionaire. His efforts to claim his heritage soon lead him into a sinister plot by a powerful Japanese rival who has siphoned off some of the best and brightest employees of the Texas firm.

"I've always wanted to write a thriller," recalled Dawson in a phone interview from her Austin home. "As for the Theseus story, it's haunted me since I was 8 years old, when I first read it."

For those who enjoyed her spin on the legend, there's good news: the Texas novelist intends a sequel based on the rest of the Theseus story when the young hero becomes Athens' king. Four film studios also have an interest in making a movie out of "Minotaur," although none have optioned her story or produced a script adaptation.

Don't ask Dawson to write that screenplay, though; the book is her medium of choice and she wants to stick to it.

That's one reason she chose to write a book based on her television documentary "Tangata Hara," ("The Condemned") which aired in New Zealand.

The book and TV film concern the New Zealand government's decade-long effort to return Maori tribal lands seized by the British Crown in the 19th century - thanks to a mistranslation of the word "sovereignty" in the 1840 treaty between the two parties - to their Maori owners.

Dawson feels she was asked to tell this story because she was an outsider, with little political baggage to impede or flavor her telling. And she hopes her book, which Penguin Press NZ will publish, will spread a tale that ultimately proves hopeful to an audience beyond New Zealand's shores.

The Texas author's audience grows with each book, thanks to favorable reviews and comments from such book critics as Texas Monthly's Robert Draper, who termed her "the best novelist to emerge from Texas in years."

That's a heavy burden for a writer, but Dawson shrugs at such praise, putting any attempt at celebrity-making in its place. "That was pretty nice of them," she said of the Texas Monthly piece. "But I'm very focused on my work. That interests me more than anything."

And even national attention can't shield an author from the occasional disaster, such as she experienced this summer with the publication of "Meeting the Minotaur."

Scheduled for a June release, Dawson discovered to her horror in August that an overlooked publication order had kept copies of "Meeting the Minotaur" from arriving in bookstores.

Favorable reviews, even a qualified one in USA Today, led to waiting lists at bookstores.

TEACHIN' THE BLUES

Musicians, teachers boosting interest

By PAISLEY DODDS
Associated Press Writer
HELENA, Ark. - He ain't got no bills, girlfriend or car - he is, after all, only 11 years old - but Marvin Sherrod's got the blues.

While his classmates are throwing footballs or listening to rap, Marvin is on the road, pouring out Muddy Waters tunes like molasses on pancakes - like a down-and-out romantic shafted in love.

"I feel the blues," says Marvin, keyboardist for J.B. and the Midnighters, out of Clarksdale, Miss. "Rap just talks about robbing and murdering. Blues makes you think about the future. It feels good."

The future of the blues depends on attracting kids like Marvin. So some schools are offering "Kids and Blues" programs where youths learn about blues greats, write songs and perform at local venues. In cash-strapped schools, blues musicians are often brought in for single lectures rather than longer, pricier programs.

Then there's Johnny Billington, a blues old-timer who has single-handedly taught 150 children - including Marvin and Howard Stovall, now executive director of the Blues Foundation in Memphis, Tenn.

"I knew that people were teaching the blues in the schools, but kids can get an education and not understand the art in the music," says Billington, whose cataract-covered eyes speak to the soul.

"Rap is sending the wrong message," he says. "These kids need to know that rather than snatching someone's purse, they need to put things back in that purse. Blues tells the truth, whether that's playing with your friends or losing a woman. It's an ageless music that won't send kids to the edge."

Billington, 62, who's played with Muddy Waters and Elmo James, has devoted the past 15 years of his life to taking wayward children under his wing and teaching them how to feel, and play, the blues. His most recent gig was at this fall's King Biscuit Blues Festival in Helena, a tiny town on the banks of the Mississippi.

Dependent on donations of instruments and cash, Billington teaches his pack how to bang out B.B. King - but also how to dress, read, talk, do homework and manage money earned from music gigs in the South. The band attends school four days a week and tours the other three.

And for Marvin, playing isn't just a way to pass the time, it's a way of connecting with his heritage.

"My mom used to listen to gospel and some blues," he says. "This area is kind of known for it."

Born in the 1900s in the Mississippi Delta, the blues grew as generations of blacks, and some whites, endured hardships ranging from abject poverty to racism to the deaths of loved ones. Memories lapsed after seven decades and many kids today would rather forget the woeful past, Stovall says.

"A lot of kids think of blues as older music so they're more into listening to R & B or rap," he says. "Besides when you turn on a radio, you usually don't hear a lot of blues. You hear rap. It's become the blues of the '90s."

In Memphis, where grants have floated several "Blues and Kids" programs, children at six elementary schools and one high school are in a pilot project already being watched by record agents.

The program was started a year ago to tie the blues tradition to Memphis culture, explains Jim Holcomb, a performing arts specialist at Memphis city schools.

"We wanted to find some music to tie to social issues and to help kids understand where we've been and where we are now," explains Stovall. "Each school was assigned a specific time period of the blues. About 700 kids have written lyrics and a lot of them will be releasing a CD."

In schools where grants haven't come so easily, music teachers rely on local blues greats like Billington for regular visits.

"It's been something that we've been trying to work on," says Tony Crockett, a music teacher at Marvell High School near Helena. "Sometimes the kids look bored when they learn about different blues guys, but sometimes you can really hear how they feel."

GEORGE LINDSEY
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - Goober kept things lighthearted in Mayberry, and he can still make them laugh in his home state.

George Lindsey turned the Alabama Statehouse into a comedy club Thursday, regaling state lawmakers with tales of growing up poor before becoming a star in Hollywood.

The Legislature invited Lindsey to a joint session to honor him for raising $1.5 million for the Alabama Special Olympics and for starting the George Lindsey TV and Film Festival in Florence.

"We weren't poor," said Lindsey, recalling his childhood in Jasper. "We weren't even trash. We used to visit trash on Sunday. My sister got married for the rice."

"One Christmas, I got a box with two batteries. It said, 'Toy not included.'"

Tea is Sunday

Beta Sigma Phi will honor sweethearts

SONYA CASH

Sweethearts from Alpha Iota Mu and Xi Epsilon Alpha chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will be honored at a Sweetheart Tea from 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Sunday in First Baptist Church parlor.

Alpha Iota Mu chapter selected Sonya Cash as its sweetheart. She has been a member since 1996.

PATTIE URBANCZYK

Cash is currently serving her chapter as its treasurer. She is also chairman of the ways and means committee and the service committee.

She graduated from Hereford High School in 1977, and received her Associate Degree in Radiography in 1993 from Amarillo College.

She is married to Gail Cash, who is the parts manager for Steven's Five Star Car and Truck Center. They have two children, Tara and Dane, and one granddaughter, Stormy Nichole.

Cash loves to read, walk, ride bikes, and do a little crafting when she can find the time.

Pattie Urbanczyk is a member of Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter and has been in Beta Sigma Phi Sorority for almost eight years.

She has served as president and vice president of Alpha Iota Mu and president and recording secretary of Beta Sigma Phi City Council, as well as serving on various committees.

She and her husband Brian have been married for 11 years and have an 8-year-old daughter Madison, who attends Tierra Blanca School.

Urbanczyk is currently employed at Newton Trucking as a secretary.

Many of her activities are centered around her daughter, such as 4-H Parent Leaders and scholarship fund-raising projects. She is presently helping with the American Cancer Society Relay for Life and Hereford's centennial celebration.

Urbanczyk and her family attend Immaculate Conception Church in Vega.

Anniversary reception to be at Senior Center

George Erce and Anni Brashear will observe their golden wedding anniversary at a reception from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 14 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Hosting the event will be their children and friends of the couple.

Brashear and the former Anni Funk were married Feb. 17, 1948, in Kitzing, Germany.

Mr. Brashear retired from Allred Oil and Goodin Fuels after 35 years of employment. The couple attends Christian Assembly Church.

The couple has four children, Carol West, Erce Brashear, Tommy Brashear and Steven Brashear and seven grandchildren.

Veggies, legends are topic of club program

The Garden Beautiful Club met in the home of Doris Bryant with Marguerite Cole as co-hostess.

Audine Dettman gave a program called "Vegetables and Their Legends." She told about different families of vegetables and where the vegetables came from. One example was potatoes, which were found by Columbus in the new land of America. At first the people in England did not like them until experimentation produced palatable dishes. Sweet potatoes, turnips, radishes, carrots, parsnip, and artichokes were among those with interesting histories.

Louise Streun, president, presided at the business meeting. Discussion included the meeting place to install officers and a memorial for a deceased member. Helen Spinks was elected treasurer.

Each member answered roll call with a garden hint.

A brunch was served to Dorothy Noland, Louise Andrews, Jerry Wheeler, Streun, Spinks, Dettman, Bryant, Cole and guest Marcella McLain.

HRSEA will hear Spain

Jay Spain, Hereford Fire Chief, will present a program for the Hereford Retired School Employee Association at its regular meeting Monday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. The group will meet at 11:30 a.m. for lunch, followed by the monthly meeting.

Spain will discuss fire safety but will discuss gas line leaks and other dangers as well.

The nominating committee will present a slate of officers for the group to vote on. Nominations will also be accepted from the floor.

All retired school employees are urged to attend.

New Arrivals

Toby and Jean Turpen are the proud parents of a daughter, Emily Rene, born Feb. 3 in Hereford Regional Medical Center.

She weighed 8 pounds, 15-1/2 ounces and measured 22 inches.

Older brothers, Eric, 15 and Brian, 12, welcomed her home.

Grandparents are Vernon and Lu Sherman of Fargo, Okla., formerly of Hereford, and Lois Turpen of Hereford and the late Blue Turpen.

Great-grandfather is Carl Ruf of Shattuck, Okla.

Mike and Shandra Shea of Harrisonville, Mo., are the parents of a daughter, Maggie Realynn, born Jan. 6.

Grandparents are Don and Marlene Daugherty of Topeka, Kan., formerly of Hereford, and Charles and Karen Shea of Raytown, Mo.

Great-grandparents are Jewel and Irene Flynn of Sayre, Okla., and Bessie Daugherty of Cheyenne, Okla.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"Knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it." -- Samuel Johnson

Those students who have worked on projects and essays have done much research and it has been successful. In addition to our history and science fair winners who have been featured in the Brand, we have several recent essay winners. DAR essay winners are Wade McNutt, first place and Amber Fortenberry, second place. Conservation essay winners are Melissa Warren, who won first, Cecilia Gutierrez, second and Wendy Briones, third.

Melissa and Wendy have entries in the Daughters of the Republic of Texas essay contest and we should learn of the results of that contest soon. We have learned that 39 of the 64 entries in this contest were disqualified due to failure to follow directions. Melissa and Wendy are still in the contest!!!

The next opportunity for essay contests will be "If I Were Mayor, I Would..."; "How can schools and communities work together to improve rural schools?" and an essay/poster contest sponsored by MAAD.

Many students are preparing persuasive papers with hopes to be the representative from HJH to meet Governor Bush on Feb. 20 when he is to be the speaker at the Chamber of Commerce banquet. Their reasons for wanting to meet the governor are quite varied and interesting.

Mrs. Stephens math classes will be designing ads. This should demonstrate their understanding of percent. They will figure discount, sales tax and final price including tax on their ad.

TB tests were administered last week for seventh graders and make-up tests will be done this week. Results of these tests will be sent home with students. This is an effort to identify any student who may have been exposed to TB and/or to identify any active cases that could be contagious to others.

Classroom teachers are completing Effective School Surveys, the results of which will be used to identify strengths and weaknesses on our campus. Each HISD campus is taking part in this study which is being conducted by the superintendent and his cabinet.

Junior Historians are preparing valentines to be delivered to the Veterans Hospital on Feb. 12. Any contributions to this project are appreciated. They are also preparing a cookbook and will begin taking orders for those soon.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This is in response to the letter about the disgusting behavior of the Stanford University band, which did a half-time show at Notre Dame that ridiculed the pope and made fun of the Irish potato famine. Unfortunately, the Stanford band has engaged in this type of shameful conduct for years.

As a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, I have seen members of the Stanford band spell out obscene words as part of their routine and urinate on the football field. They once cost their team a victory by running into the end zone during the final play. In 1990, band members were suspended after a show at the University of Oregon made fun of the region's economic hardship over the spotted owl controversy. In 1991, they were reprimanded when the band's drum major ran onto the field dressed in a nun's habit at a game against Notre Dame.

I have heard Stanford alumni express anger and sadness over the conduct of their band members. It is a pity that Stanford allows such uncivilized behavior to continue. -- Sacramento Lawyer

Dear Sacramento Lawyer: The response to that column has been staggering. Most Stanford graduates who wrote were embarrassed by the "bad publicity." Some thought it was much ado about nothing -- a "tempest in a teapot." Keep reading for more:

Dear Ann: I grew up in Palo Alto and consider the Stanford band witty, playful and irreverent. Satire is one of the highest forms of expression, and it is almost always offensive to someone. We Irish are not a helpless minority that needs to be protected. Those who emigrated to America were a hard-working and bawdy group. They loved a good scrap, and they loved their liquor -- as the Germans loved their beer, the French and Italians their wine, the Russians their vodka, and so on. They earned acceptance by the sweat of their brow, their dogged tenacity and their sharp wit. We are not offended by joking references to our drinking, our Catholic faith or even the tragedy of the potato famine. This society needs more satire, not less. -- Auburn, Calif.

Dear Auburn: I like a good laugh as much as the next fellow, but I see nothing funny about alcoholism, the Catholic faith or the potato famine. Here's another:

Dear Ann Landers: Why is the school's athletic director responsible for the band performance? Isn't there a band director? Put the blame where it belongs. -- Celina, Ohio

Dear Celina: You've asked a very good question, and I don't know the answer. Keep reading for the last word. It comes from the president of Stanford University:

Dear Ann Landers: I am a bit upset that you printed the letter about the Stanford band without checking all the facts.

The Stanford student band's purported satire was indeed uncivil and improper, and those students should have known better than to insult others' heritage. However, contrary to your correspondent's statement that "school officials said they planned no sanctions," in fact, the band was barred from the field for the next three Stanford-Notre Dame games, and the athletic department put in place a new procedure for reviewing band scripts.

In October, the band issued a public apology, the athletic director made a public apology, and Father Edward A. Malloy, president of Notre Dame, accepted my apology to Notre Dame and the wider community. Please set the record straight. -- Gerhard Casper, president, Stanford University

Dear President Casper: The information I published came directly from the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Citizens' Voice. At the time that column was prepared, the only reported action taken by the university was the apology of the athletic director. I appreciate the opportunity to set the record straight.

— YOUR EYES —
Gas-Permeable Lenses
Gas-permeable contact lenses offer special advantages to those with astigmatism. Unlike soft contacts, which conform closely to the shape of the cornea and can only correct the mildest astigmatism, gas-permeable lenses can offer clearer and more stable vision.
What makes these lenses more comfortable than old-fashioned hard contacts is that oxygen can permeate through the plastic to the eyes. This prevents swelling of the cornea and eliminates what's called "spectacle blur," a phenomenon that occurs when the lenses are removed. Gas-permeable lenses are usually larger than soft contacts, but some types are made with a slippery surface that allows the lid to slide over them easily to avoid irritation.
The built-in slipperiness offer another advantage, too: it seems to resist the protein buildup that's often a problem with soft lenses. Gas-permeable lenses also last longer than soft ones.

MANDI REINART, ROGER BROMAN

Couple plans to wed in Umbarger church

Galen and Mary Reinart of Canyon announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mandi Lea, to Roger Joseph Broman of Vega.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of A.H. and Dorothy Broman of Vega.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of E.N. and Elfrieda Reinart of Hereford.

The couple will be married March 14 in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger.

The bride-elect is attending West Texas A&M University majoring in elementary education. She is employed as a teacher in the Canyon After School Program.

Broman graduated from Texas Tech University with an agronomy degree. He currently farms in the Vega area.

Energy program offered

Panhandle Community Services is offering the Comprehensive Energy Assistance Program (CEAP) which helps pay gas and electric bills for qualifying area residents.

Elderly and disabled families, as well as low income families in a crisis situation, are eligible to apply for this program.

While income guidelines will help determine eligibility, a priority rating point system will be used and applicants who have not received assistance in the past will receive more points, according to Celia Serrano, coordinator for Panhandle Community Services.

Qualifying applicants, other than elderly and disabled, must attend a series of six consecutive energy conservation workshops or they will be disqualified from the program.

The hour-long workshops are held one day each month with Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent, as the instructor. Programs will cover different areas such as nutrition, energy conservation and budgeting.

"CEAP, as with all Panhandle Community Service programs, is designed to help families become self-sufficient. That is why attendance at the workshops is required," Serrano said.

The first workshop will be from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Feb. 17 in the Hereford Community Center.

"Workshops will begin promptly at 10 a.m., after which the doors will be closed," Serrano said.

Future workshops are scheduled for March 10, April 14, May 12, June 9, July 14, Aug. 11, Sept. 8, Oct. 13, Nov. 10 and Dec. 8.

Assistance for the elderly and disabled, based on the past year's history with the utility company, will cover four months of fuel bills, electric bills or a combination of the two.

Applications for the CEAP program for homes that have not been weatherized will be submitted for consideration in PCS's weatherization program as well, according to Serrano.

For more information, contact Serrano at 364-5631.

Red Cross Update

The winter storms that have hit both coasts have caused massive damage to property and at least 10 people have been killed. Relief efforts are under way to help victims. By midday Wednesday, the National Weather Service had storm warnings active in 28 states. Among the states hardest hit were California, Florida, Tennessee and West Virginia. Through these four states, more than 3,000 people remain in more than 50 Red Cross shelters.

To help with this relief effort, donations can be sent through our chapter at 224 South Main Street or mailed to P.O. Box 1371 in Hereford. Checks should be earmarked for disaster relief.

We will hold a garage sale in March or April to raise funds for disaster relief.

Another way to help is by becoming a trained volunteer and helping with large disasters. We will begin a series of classes soon. Call the office at 364-3761 to find out more information about these classes.

March is National Red Cross Month and the Tri County Chapter will have a membership drive as part of the observation of that month. All volunteers and friends of our chapter will be asked to pick up a membership card at the office and give a small donation.

A CPR class will begin at 7 p.m. Monday and finish on Tuesday. The First Aid section will be held on Wednesday. Call the office to register for these classes.

Alliance addresses needs of mentally ill

Alliance for the Mentally Ill-Hereford will hold a meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 14 in the Hereford Community Center.

The meeting is open to anyone who has a family member or friend who suffers from mental illness.

Included in the discussion will be information on "The Journey of Hope," a 12-week course for family, nurses, teachers and Christian leaders to be held in Hereford.

The Journey of Hope can help families cope, learn the signs, learn the cures. The class will be limited to 20 participants.

The first program will be Feb. 21 from 9 a.m.-11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.-2:30 p.m. A covered dish lunch will be served.

Reservations are required. Call 364-2103. C.E.U. available for nurses and teachers.

Alliance for the Mentally Ill-Hereford is striving to education the community on mental illness.

Mental illnesses are disorders of the brain that disrupt a person's thinking, feeling, moods, and ability to relate to others. Just as diabetes is a disorder of the pancreas, mental illnesses are brain disorders that often result in a diminished capacity for coping with the ordinary demands of life.

Mental illnesses can affect persons of any age, race, religion or income. These illnesses (disorders) greatly affect family members and society in general. Mental illnesses are not the result of personal weakness, lack of character, or poor upbringing.

Most importantly, these brain disorders are treatable. As a diabetic takes insulin, most people with serious mental illness need medication to help control symptoms.

Supportive counseling, self-help groups, housing, vocational rehabilitation, income assistance, and other community services can also provide support and stability, leaving the focus on recovery.

Brain disorders include schizophrenia, bipolar disorder (manic depression), major depression, obsessive-compulsive disorder and panic disorder.

Schizophrenia, a highly treatable brain disorder, impairs a person's ability to think clearly, manage his or her emotions, make decisions and relate to others.

Because the disorder causes unusual, inappropriate, and sometimes dangerous behavior, people with schizophrenia are often shunned and unnecessarily stigmatized.

Scientists don't know exactly what causes schizophrenia, but they do know that the brains of people with schizophrenia are different, as a group, from the brains of those who don't have the disorder.

Although there is no cure yet for schizophrenia, the symptoms can be controlled with medication in most people.

Alliance for the Mentally Ill-Hereford can provide information on schizophrenia and other brain disorders. For more information call 364-2103.

Expression of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to everyone for their kind words, thoughtful prayers, food, flowers & phone calls during the loss of our beloved who will live forever in our hearts. Your outpouring acts of kindness have been a great comfort and will be remembered in healing our sorrow.

Our sincere gratitude to Jay Spain and the Hereford Fire Department and Emergency Team for their prompt, efficient response to the emergency call.

Special appreciation is extended to Georgie Rogers, Christian Assembly of God Church, Hereford Senior Citizens and Deaf Smith Home Health who helped make it possible for my mother to live as she wished, independently in her own home until her death.

The Successful Family

CHILDREN REPRESENT HOPE FOR THE FUTURE

Having children is one of the most natural things in the world, being a good parent is not. Most people have not been taught how to handle the frustrations that accompany the joys of parenting. Seek help when help is needed...being a parent is not easy, but you're not alone. Help is available through parenting classes, various organizations, support groups, etc.

For more information you may contact Debbie Canode at 363-7668 for the Tuesday Night Sessions at the Hereford Independent School District Building. The sessions are from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. and include a meal. It is a whole family program for all ages.

Transportation is provided and door prizes are offered each evening with a grand prize of a TV and VCR at the end of the program March 10. Come and learn the skills needed to cope in today's complex society as an individual and family.

Maybe one day your child will honor you with the following letter:

"Dear Mom and Dad,

Thank you for helping me to grow into an independent, self-sufficient, caring adult. Thank you for realizing that your job as parents was just a short-term commitment, that children need to learn to live without their parents because they will eventually be on their own.

Thanks for always giving the reasons behind your requests, your denials, and your explanations. I am thankful for your unconditional love, accepting me as I was and not for what I could do. Thank you for your example because I learned more from what you did, than what you said.

You gave me the opportunity to fail, to make mistakes and I grew from those experiences. Thanks for listening to me, you made me feel worthwhile and important by giving me your undivided attention. Thank you for always being there for me and believing in me.

I appreciated the fact that your way of parenting didn't include spanking and hitting. You gave me consistent, loving guidelines and were firm and fair while enforcing them. Your honesty and your ability to say I'm sorry helped me realize that you made mistakes also but were willing to admit them.

Thank you for your encouragements, your hugs, and most especially for the priceless gift of your love.

What a wonderful legacy this letter represents to the honor of parents. For more information about counseling, parenting programs, family issues and tools for success, contact Tilli Boozer at 364-4357, HELP hotline or at Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority at 364-6111.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

The number you have reached ...

On March 10, 1876, Alexander Graham Bell hooked up the first two telephones and made the world's first phone call. Today, telephone users place more than a billion calls everyday in America. Small-business owners are heavy telephone users. Some are abusers and misusers. Like other technology, the telephone can increase your productivity and profitability if used properly. However, it can cost you time, frustration and customers if used incorrectly. Here are some tips for improving your business on the telephone.

21 Telephone Tips

• Answer the phone promptly. Answering on the first or second ring is fine. Answering on the third ring is sloppy, and four rings or more is annoying.

- Identify yourself. Whether you are making the call or answering the phone, let people know who you are. It is professional and courteous.
- Put a smile in your voice. You'll win friends and boost your company's image.
- Speak slowly and clearly. Speak distinctly and never talk with food in your mouth.
- Be willing to help. Take time to ensure that each caller finds what he or she is looking for.
- Be a good listener. Stay alert and ask for clarification if there are any points you don't understand.
- Give the caller your undivided attention. Don't try to do two things at once. Paying attention can help you gain new customers and retain old ones.
- Keep a pad and pen handy. Take good notes: did you quote a price? Make an appointment? Promise delivery? Write it down.
- Take messages effectively. Train everyone who answers the phone to get at least the following basic information every time: the caller's name, company and phone number, the time and date, the message and any required action.
- Return calls promptly. A quick return increases the odds of completing the call. It also shows interest on your part.
- Place your own calls. This saves time. It also makes the other person feel that you value his or her time.
- Place each call carefully. Look up the number, jot it down and dial deliberately.

- Answer your own calls. There may be times when urgent priorities prevent you from taking calls. However, if you are accepting calls answer your own phone.
- Prepare for important calls. List critical points to cover, questions to ask or information to gain. You waste time, and may appear foolish if you have to call back because you forgot to ask a question.
- Choose your words carefully. Know how to say what you want to say. Practice how you want to tackle tough topics.
- Avoid "turn-off" phrases. Instead of "You have to..." say, "If you will..." Always be positive and polite.
- Keep a "hot list." We all have numbers we call frequently. Keep a short list of those numbers you need frequently, but don't have memorized.
- Keep a phone book handy. Have a phone directory within reach for your own use as well as helping a caller find a number.
- Use the hold button carefully. If you have to leave the line to help a caller, let the person know why. Remember, the caller can't see what you are doing. If it takes more than 30 seconds, return to the line and update your progress. Offer to call back if you need to.
- Leave good messages. When you must leave a message, make it as complete as possible. Include your name, work number, home number if appropriate and a good time to reach you.
- Use the fax to request information. When I have difficulty reaching someone, I send a fax. I include the questions I need answers to, and request a fax back. It usually works.

These are just a few of the services provided by your public library. On March 2 at 7 p.m., the Friends of the Library will host its Open House and you are all invited. Local author Gerald McCathern and Brandon Holcombe, cover illustrator, will be the guest speakers. Come join us in a celebration of Texas Independence Day with a discussion of the book Horns by Gerald McCathern.

The new book list this week begins with Fear Nothing, the book that Dean Koontz considers his best work to date. Christopher Snow suffers with a very rare genetic disorder shared by only 1,000 other Americans. The disorder makes Christopher dangerously vulnerable to light which makes him one who must embrace the dark.

The mystery, beauty, terrors, and rhythms of the night become his world of freedom, until Christopher becomes the unsuspected witness. Christopher finds himself caught in a violent mystery that only he can solve. He must force himself to rise above all his fears, the strangeness of Moonlight Bay and its residents, to triumph over severe physical limitations if he is to end this evil.

Finding Laura by Kay Hooper is the story of intrigue, dangerous ambitions and murder. In the past the aloof, wealthy Killbourne family has suffered more than its share of suspicious deaths. There were never any witnesses. Charges were never brought, only unresolved questions remain.

Laura doesn't really understand why, but she has a fascination for mirrors. This fascination has developed into a large and lovely collection of mirrors which is one of the reasons for attending the Killbourne estate sale.

When Laura sees the tarnished brass hand mirror, she knows it is the one she has been looking for. Imagine how surprised she is when Peter Killbourne appears at her door asking to buy the mirror back.

Laura refuses. Now the charming, seductive Peter Killbourne is dead and Laura was the last to see him alive, and the first suspected of the murder.

Determined to find the murderer and discover the truth about the mirror, Laura enters the Killbourne estate.

Eyes by Joseph Glass is the first Susan Shader novel. Tragically orphaned at the age of 10, Susan discovers she is psychic by touching a photograph of John Lennon and seeing him shot to death.

As an adult Dr. Susan Shader's reputation as a renowned psychiatrist and criminal profiler has made her a celebrity among the law enforcement professionals. The Chicago police have asked her for her assistance in capturing the Coed Killer.

With Susan's assistance an arrest is made and the case is closed. Until the next murder. Her reputation destroyed, Susan knows she must act fast, enter into the mind of the elusive killer, and save the next victim.

Among the other titles for this week will be Diana: Her True Story by Andrews Morton. I guess part of the fascination we have is how could such a warm caring person think she loved such a stuffed shirt? I will let you read this one and form your own opinion.

James Stewart: Behind the Scenes of a Wonderful Life by Lawrence J. Quirk is, according to Quirk, "an honest, humble, objective attempt to share with you the understanding I have acquired of the complex, gifted, colorful and yet poignant human being known to the world as James Maitland Stewart."

According to Jimmy's sister, Virginia, Jimmy "had great inner resources. The other boys and girls we knew always had to be together, feeding off of each other; if they were alone for two minutes, they were lonesome. But Jim was the self-sufficient kind...he could spend a lot of time absolutely alone, his own best company, and never mind it."

At the age of 9 while Jimmy's father was off fighting World War I Jimmy started writing and performing plays, the local children being the audience in the basement. One of the plays was entitled "To Hell with the Kaiser."

When Jimmy was asked about his childhood he said, "I can't recall anything unpleasant. Those things I remember best were getting my first long trousers, vacationing in Atlantic City during the summer, and not particularly liking school because I was only a fair student."

Jimmy says he tried to talk to his grandfather about love and girls and "he gave me the best answer I ever remember..." Things have a way of sorting themselves out. Make do with each day's problems and challenges and handle them the way that makes you feel easiest, and don't get too worked up if you make mistakes or do things you feel you need to do. It's not a crime to be human - make allowances for yourself. There are no saints or heroes around here, or anywhere else. Just ordinary people making do their own way." That is pretty good advice.

American Legion, Auxiliary learn about framers of U.S. Constitution

Helen Rose gave a program titled "The Framers of the U.S. Constitution" at the recent monthly meeting of Hereford American Legion Post 192 and Auxiliary.

Mrs. Rose discussed the conditions and hardships, the different political situations, and the educations of the delegates from 12 states. Rhode Island refused to be represented.

The delegates met in Philadelphia in 1787 with two very important principles being agreed upon -- secrecy and that the delegates would not be bound by any earlier vote or decision, if discussions and compromises would bring agreement among the makers. After 10 months, the Constitution was signed in September 1787.

In separate meetings, the Auxiliary's business, conducted by president Patricia Robinson, included the approval of the newly revised constitution and By-Laws for the Auxiliary.

Information of the selection of Girls State nominees has been given to the high school counselor. The nominees will be presented in the March meeting.

Betty Jo Carlson, scholarship

chairman, discussed the application forms for a scholarship available for a graduating senior girl.

Troyce Hanna discussed the project of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society, a cookbook with favorite recipes. Deadline for submitting favorite recipes is Feb. 28 to Margie Daniels at the Hereford Senior Center.

Hostesses for the meeting were Viola Wagner and Nadine Lance.

The next meeting of the Post and Auxiliary will be March 3 in the American Legion Home.

Speaker's gift

Helen Rose, right, is presented a gift of appreciation by Patricia Robinson, president of the American Legion Auxiliary. Rose gave a program titled "The Framers of the U.S. Constitution" at the recent meeting of American Legion Post 192 and Auxiliary.

Farm stench causes big stink

DEVERS, Texas (AP) - Neighbors who live near a Liberty County farm where treated human waste is being used as fertilizer are raising a stink about the unbearable stench.

On some days, the smell from Henderson's Farm is so bad that the neighbors say they have to stay indoors.

But when they go inside, they're afraid to use their air-conditioners, even on a sultry day, for fear the odor will follow them.

The use of treated sewage sludge, called "biosolids," is gaining in popularity, said Sreenivasula Magunta, engineering specialist for the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission's wastewater permit section. He said Wednesday there are about 220 sites in Texas using the treated sludge.

The 220 sites represent three times the number of sites using the material five years ago.

Henderson's Farm, a 15,000-acre rice and cattle operation in Devers, about 29 miles west of Beaumont, has used a biosolids form called Class A for about the past five years. It did not require a permit.

"I feel that we are good managers and are able to use this in an agronomic benefit to the land, and we are also good neighbors," said James Henderson, part-owner of the farm.

The farm's owners recently applied for a permit to use a less-treated, more regulated form of sludge called Class B. The TNCRCC is reviewing the application.

The Hendersons are proposing to use the product on 3,000 acres of mostly hay fields and grazing areas.

The agency also is receiving public comment from some of the 53 landowners near the farm. It will take a few months to approve or reject the application, Magunta said.

In addition to the offensive odor, residents are concerned about whether the product can contaminate the water supply.

"It definitely smells, but the main thing I'm worried about is the water," said Belynda Johnson, who lives near the farm and relies on well water.

But the TNCRCC and Texas A&M professor Sam Feagley maintain that if applied properly, the sludge is not hazardous to the water supply.

"With the treated sewage sludge, the majority of the pathogens are already gone," Feagley said. "The harmful things that are in (the raw sewage) are taken care of."

Magunta added that the Environmental Protection Agency has found no documented cases of illness or damage to the environment from the sludge use.

Henderson said some residents have the wrong perception that the material is toxic.

"It's not toxic at all. And this misconception has led to the misunderstanding with folks in Devers," he said. "We wouldn't pollute ourselves."

But that doesn't convince some nearby residents.

"I'm not a chemist. But for years and years, nobody thought asbestos was a hazard," said Bobby Evans, an adjacent landowner and the mayor of Devers.

Extension News

The Deaf Smith County Conference is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 12, 1998, beginning at 8 a.m. at the Hereford Country Club.

The conference will feature presentations on cotton management, irrigation management, weed control, insect control, transgenic cottons, selection of seed treatments, cotton marketing opportunities, grading and classification of cotton, safe handling of pesticides and risk management.

Feature presentations will be by experts from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agriculture Experiment Station, West Texas A&M University, U.S. Department of Agriculture and private industry.

Dr. Randy Boman, Associate professor and TAEX Cotton Specialist, will discuss cotton management for profits.

Cotton insect identification and integrated pest management will be Dr. James Leser's topic presentation.

Dr. Wayne Keeling, Associate Professor and weed and herbicide researcher, will present transgenic cottons and their management as well as weed control strategies.

Other topics will include: irrigation management; laws and regulations pertaining to the handling and transportation of pesticides; risk management; seed treatments and crop marketing.

"We feel that we have an event planned that will provide both old and new cotton producers with an opportunity to learn more about producing, marketing and risk management as it deals with cotton," said Dennis Newton, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent.

Newton has applied for five continuing education units for commercial and pesticide applicators, as well as five CEUs for Certified Crop Advisors.

The program is free to interested producers, and agribusiness, but those planning to attend are asked to contact the Deaf Smith County Agriculture Extension office.

For more information contact the office at (806) 364-3573.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!
 Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.
 For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:
 --Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
 --Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
 --Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 --Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

SHUTTERED WINDOWS ...
An inviting front porch and keystone accents are welcoming features.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
 AP Newsfeatures
 Plan G-63, by HomeStyles Designers Network, is a cozy country-style home that features an inviting front porch and an equally welcoming interior. Its living space totals 2,190 square feet.
 One steps directly from the covered porch into the living room which includes a fireplace and windows that overlook the front porch.
 This spacious living room flows into an all-purpose dining area, where French doors open to a covered porch and a patio. Both outdoor spaces are ideal for summer parties or barbecues.

 The large kitchen has numerous amenities — an island cooktop, a windowed sink and a pass-through to the adjoining sun room among them. The bright sun room is large enough to serve as another eating area, a hobby room or a family room.
 The private master suite is secluded in the rear of the home. A garden spa tub, dual walk-in closets and separate dressing areas are featured in the master bath.
 Across the home, two secondary bedrooms identical in size, share a compartmentalized bath.

THE COVERED FRONT PORCH leads directly into the spacious living room. The island kitchen serves the dining room, and offers a pass-through to the sun room. French doors lead from the dining room to the covered porch and patio in back. The sun room and a utility room flank the hallway leading to the master bedroom, which has a private bath. Across the home, two secondary bedrooms share a compartmentalized bath.

G-63 STATISTICS

Design G-63 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, sun room, three bedrooms, two and one half baths and a utility room, totaling 2,190 square feet of living space. This plan includes a standard basement, crawlspace or slab foundation, and 2x6 exterior wall framing. The two-car garage covers an area of 465 square feet. The storage area provides an additional 34 square feet of space.

(For a more detailed, scaled plan of this house, including guides to estimating costs and financing, send $4 to House of the Week, P.O. Box 1562, New York, N.Y. 10116-1562. Be sure to include the plan number.)

All-Star Game hoopla centers on Jordan's future

By Jim Baker

©TVData Features Syndicate

Chicago Bulls star Michael Jordan looks to lift the Eastern Conference to victory in the 1998 NBA All-Star Game, airing Sunday on NBC from Madison Square Garden in New York. One of the hot topics surrounding this year's game is talk of Jordan's possible retirement.

It is no secret that NBC is treating the 1998 NBA All-Star Game from Madison Square Garden in New York on Sunday, Feb. 8, with more than the usual gusto.

CBS' $500 million-a-year plunge into the NFL and NBC's failed stab at ABC's Monday Night Football package has left the Peacock network without pro football for at least five years.

While its feathers hardly are plucked — NBC still has the rights to five Olympics, Wimbledon, the PGA Tour and Notre Dame football — Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls and his fellow dribblers and dunkers are now even more important to NBC.

That is reflected in the network's new four-year, $1.75 billion deal to televise NBA games.

It is part of a $2.64 billion total package that includes cable channel TNT, which also was ousted from the NFL fraternity.

But what happens to the NBA — and NBC's huge investment — if Jordan, the league's biggest star, retires after this season as many expect? It is a hot topic at this year's All-Star Game.

Bob Costas, who succeeded Marv Albert as NBC's top basketball play-by-play announcer and calls the All-Star Game with former NBA stars Isiah Thomas and Bill Walton, doesn't hesitate to address the issue.

Costas says Bulls head coach Phil Jackson seemed to be only half-kidding when he raised the possibility of Jordan becoming player-coach for the Bulls next season, while Jackson heads to New York to become head coach of the Knicks, a move that has been discussed and even encouraged by Jackson.

Thomas, who played for the Detroit Pistons and came to NBC after a stint as the general manager of the Toronto

Raptors, points out that Bill Russell succeeded in a dual role for the Boston Celtics, and that Jordan might like the challenge.

But does that mean Jordan's game is slipping?

"I'm supposed to be an analyst and know what to look for, but he does it all," Thomas says. "I don't see (any) weakness in Jordan's game."

Greg Gumbel, NBC's No. 2 NBA play-by-play man, says Jordan has given a clear indication he will retire after this season. But Gumbel, who may return to CBS as an NFL announcer, isn't fretting over the NBA's future.

"Everyone was worried what would happen after Larry Bird and Magic Johnson left — and before, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar — but someone always comes along," he says, possibly referring to teen-age sensation Kobe Bryant of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Bird, the former Celtics great and first-year coach of the Indiana Pacers, has led his team to one of the best records in the Eastern Conference, something that has Walton, a former Celtics teammate, excited.

"His Pacers have the best chance in the East to unseat Chicago," he claims. "Larry's a very smart guy who's a workaholic and he's showing it as coach. He's reinstalled a level of pride and hard work in that Pacer franchise. He's not one of those coaches who jumps around trying to draw attention. His work ethic is what makes him special, and he has the Pacers off to one of their best starts ever."

While there are many changes taking place in the NBA, Costas appears certain of one thing:

"As long as Jordan is in the equation, the Bulls will draw a higher rating than all the other teams," he says. "Most Americans want to see Michael, but he is likely to retire after this season."

HOROSCOPES

★ ★ February 8-14 ★ ★

ARIES - March 21/April 20
A financial windfall comes at just the right time. However, don't be a spendthrift. After you pay off your bills, put some money away. You're going to need it in the near future. A close friend has a problem and needs your help. Be supportive, and do what you can. Gemini plays an important role at the beginning of the week.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
A project that you've been working on hits a snag. Don't get discouraged. Think rationally, and you can solve the problem. A family gathering that you really don't want to attend actually ends up being a lot of fun. All of your worries are for naught. That special someone has a surprise for you. Enjoy it!

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
You've got a relaxing week in front of you, Gemini. There are no deadlines to meet, and no one is piling responsibility on top of you. Enjoy it while you can, because things will get hectic soon. A loved one asks for your advice about a family problem. Be honest, and say what you really think.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
You are on edge this week, because you have so much to do and not enough time to get it all done. Don't get nervous. Just prioritize your schedule, and stick to it. You'll be surprised at what a little organization can do. Some friends take you out to celebrate an important event. This is your time to relax and have fun.

LEO - July 23/August 23
Be true to your ideals this week, Leo, as you face a challenging problem. Stand up for what you believe in, and you will come out ahead. A loved one reveals an interesting family fact to you. Don't let it throw you — and keep it to yourself. Capricorn and Pisces play key roles later in the week.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Your error puts an important business project in jeopardy. Remedy the situation as quickly as possible, but think before you act. The higher-ups are watching you. That special someone has a question for you. Don't get nervous; he or she is not putting you on the spot. Just be honest.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Your pleasant nature saves the day early in the week, Libra. Those around you are on edge, and you calm them down and keep them focused. A loved one gets into trouble. Don't get involved — you'll only end up getting hurt. The person you've been seeing stops calling. Don't get upset; he or she wasn't the right one for you anyway.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Don't be too aggressive when you meet an interesting person early in the week. You don't want to push this person away, because he or she has a lot of connections that could help you with your career. A close friend confides in you. Be supportive, but be truthful. Leo plays a key role.

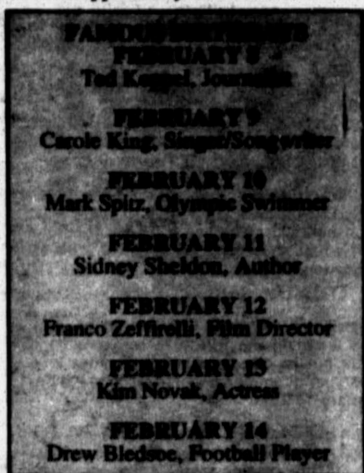

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
You're on the go this week, Sagittarius. There's a lot to get done, and you can do it all if you stay focused. Don't let your responsibilities lag just because you want to have some fun. There'll be plenty of time to celebrate once you finish everything. Loved ones are more than willing to help you if you need it.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Be honest with yourself, Capricorn. Don't get involved in something that you don't agree with just to make others happy. You have to think about yourself. You run into an old friend at the end of the week. Take some time to reminisce. You've got a lot to catch up on.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You're on top of the world early in the week. Everything is going well at work and in your personal life. Even family problems are working out. Enjoy it. An interesting person asks you out to dinner. Say yes, but don't expect this to be the beginning of a long relationship. Just have a good time.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
This is your week to shine, Pisces. You do well at work and make a good impression on your superiors. As for romance, your relationship with that special someone is going strong. A loved one needs your help planning a family event. Do all that you can to help. He or she will appreciate your efforts.

cial someone is going strong. A loved one needs your help planning a family event. Do all that you can to help. He or she will appreciate your efforts.

Sunday, PBS' Masterpiece Theatre takes flight with The Wingless Bird, a story about an intelligent and spirited young woman (Claire Skinner) who runs her family's candy store (check local listings).

HIGHLIGHTS

Sunday on TBS, Gladys Knight (pictured) co-hosts the 1998 Trumpet Awards, saluting African-American achievement. Retired Gen. Colin Powell and singer Whitney Houston are among the honorees.

Trumpet Award winners expected to point the way

By Suzanne Gill

Award ceremonies by definition are intended to remember and honor past achievement. The Trumpet Awards, airing this year on Sunday, Feb. 8, on TBS, has an eye on the future as well.

The mission of the 6-year-old awards is "to inspire, educate, stimulate and enlighten human minds" so people can see success as colorblind. Honorees must be "viewed not only for what they have individually achieved, but for the achievement they inspire in others."

Hosts Robert Guillaume and Gladys Knight are scheduled to preside over a ceremony honoring the sheriff of Fulton County, Ga.; the executive editor of Ebony magazine; a nuclear engineer; an award-winning R&B artist; and the first black player in Major League Baseball's American League.

Also honored is Major League pitcher Don Newcombe, the only player in baseball history to win the Cy Young Award, the National League Rookie of the Year Award and the MVP Award. A posthumous honor goes to Reginald

F. Lewis, a corporate CEO and philanthropist. Lewis' simple motto was "Keep going, no matter what." Before his death in 1993 at age 50, Lewis donated about $10 million. His $3 million gift to Harvard University was the largest grant in its history.

Two women prominent in law enforcement in the South are designated honorees. Jacquelyn H. Barrett is the Fulton County sheriff and is responsible for a $45 million budget. Beverly J. Harvard, chief of police in Atlanta, is the first African-American woman in the nation to run a major metropolitan police department.

New this year is the Family Spirit Award, which goes to five individuals.

Other special honorees include retired Gen. Colin Powell, who receives the Living Legend Award; Whitney Houston, selected for the Pinnacle Award; and Wynton Marsalis, winner of the Young Star Award.

The award presenters include Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Dick Gregory, Jane Fonda and May May Ali, the daughter of boxer Muhammad Ali, a 1994 Trumpet Award winner.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: What was the 1960s movie starring Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr. and Joey Bishop? It had a Western or cavalry setting. Was it Sergeants 3? -Linda Zito, Salt Lake City.

A: Yes, that was the name of that 1962 pseudo-remake of Gunga Din.

Q: A group of us would like any information you can supply on actor Guy Williams. I think he and I attended the same high school (George Washington in New York) in the early 1940s.

A: Did he make any movies in addition to his Zorro films? -Marie Lucas, Lafayette, Ind.

A: There is a chance you went to school with Williams, Marie. He was born in New York on Jan. 14, 1924, which would have placed him in high school during the early 1940s.

While Williams is fondly remembered for playing Zorro in two movies and a TV series and for his final role as professor John Robinson on TV's Lost in Space, the actor had a checkered film career. He had small roles in mainly B movies before his Zorro TV series made him a star in 1957.

Between Zorro and Lost in Space, he made only three movies: Disney's The Prince and the Pauper, Damon and Pythias and the swashbuckler Captain Sindbad.

Williams died of a heart attack on May 7, 1989, in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Q: Whatever happened to Martha Hyer? -James B. Hill via e-mail.

A: Born in Fort Worth, Texas, in 1924, Hyer was a lovely, talented actress who nevertheless wound up making mostly mediocre movies.

She made her movie debut at age 11 in Thunder Mountain and hit her stride in the late 1950s, when she appeared in such films as My Man Godfrey and Some Came Running, for which she received an Oscar nomination.

Her quality of roles declined in the 1960s, and she began to withdraw from the limelight after her 1966 marriage to film producer Hal B. Wallis (Becket, Dark Victory).

Her last acting credit to date was the little-known Day of the Wolves in 1973, after which she turned to writing. Under the pen name Martin Julien, she wrote the screenplay for the film Rooster Cogburn.

Q: Why isn't Lovejoy Mysteries on A&E anymore? -L. Andrews via e-mail.

A: Lovejoy was a British production. A&E aired all the original episodes made in England, then ran repeats for several years. There's nothing left to show.

Q: What was the name of the sequel to Terms of Endearment? -V.R., Biloxi, Miss.

A: The Evening Star (1996).

SOAP WORLD

It's always nice to see a familiar face

Dear Candace: I think the actress who plays Sharon on The Young and the Restless is so pretty. She really has that girl-next-door quality. I was wondering what other shows she has been on. I've seen her on a prime-time program. I'd appreciate anything you could tell me about her. —J.B. in Virginia.

Dear Reader: Sharon Case (Sharon) played Debbie on As the World Turns, Dawn on General Hospital and Anne in Valley of the Dolls. She also has made guest appearances on Cheers, Silk Stalkings, Parker Lewis Can't Lose and Beverly Hills, 90210. Case was born in Detroit and grew up in California. She has received two Emmy nominations for outstanding younger leading actress. Dear Candace: I have watched As the World Turns for more than 15 years, and the show that aired on Dec. 11, 1997, was one of the finest I have seen. It had clips from shows from the good old days. In recent years, the writers have brought in young, shallow characters to fill up time, which has left the really good characters, such as Kim, Nancy, Susan and Bob (Kathryn Hays, Helen Wagner, Marie Masters, Don Hastings), with nothing to do. But the worst part is the story line involving Lily. Holden and Molly (Martha Byrne, Jon Hensley, Lesli Kay Sterling). It has been so disappointing. This show needs more moral lessons and less shenanigans from the new characters. —Mrs. Bruce Hunt, Kirksville, Mo. Dear Reader: By the time you read this, Holden and Lily will be married, but they won't be together. And it doesn't appear as if Molly is going anywhere any time soon. Dear Candace: I heard that Melissa Reeves (ex-Jennifer, Days of Our Lives) was going to have a baby. Was it a boy or a girl? —Mel in Pittsburgh. Dear Reader: Melissa and her husband, Scott Reeves (Ryan, Y&R), had a baby boy, Larry.

TRIVIA

Bill Johnson overcame a juvenile record for car theft to become the first American to win Olympic gold in downhill skiing (1984).

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.
