Kessel's Entertain Store Personnel

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Kessel, and their sons Julian, Bertram and Milton, entertained the personnel of their Lubbock and Slaton stores, Friday night. In keeping with the season of Thanksgiving, the banquet was a fine spread. Finely prepared turkey with the trimmings, cranberries, mashed potatoes, peas, finest of coffee, of course pumpkin pie to top it all off, with many other delicacies made up the menu. Clearing the costume racks in the Kessel Department store, a long table seating some 40 was nicely arranged, with a display of autumn blooms, each guest was personally welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Kessel. Mrs. Kessel graciously pinned a nosegay upon the lapel of the men guests. Able to let the ladies do their pinning, although he furnished the pins.

Mr. Kessel introduced all the guests and the departments under their charge, all were then seated and the festivities were on, all appeared to display a liking for turkey. After the guests began to push back their chairs with a feeling of being well filled and smiles radiating, Mr. Kessel who was seated at the head of the banquet table, made a fine talk, welcoming his guests, at this stage, he stated the purpose of the gathering other than feasting. It surely was an innovation, as there is no information available, that any commercial house ever before held a meeting of this character in Slaton. Mr. Kessel introduced one of the guests, Mr. J. J. Rieter, of Dallas, a representative of the Federated Stores System, who would be called a fieldman, as he visits stores and really acts as a business engineer, his talk was very interesting to all those present and his advancement of ideas covering all the phases of merchandising, was highly appreciated by the Kessel personnel. As he stated, merchandising is an art, and this art must be supplemented by standard goods, attractively displayed, in a clean and orderly store, with a fair price, and above all courteous salesmanship, judicious advertising was another point stressed, after his address, the members of the group discussed various features of merchandising, asking questions relative to successful management of stores, these were also very interesting.

Those who were guests and assisted in making a fine success of the first meeting, were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Fry and little daughter Margene, Mrs. Key Ely, O. W. Langlotz and Mrs. Tarter all of Lubbock, guests from Post were: Miss Gladys Stevens and L. A. Walko. Those from Slaton were: Mr. and Mrs. Kessel, sons Julian, Bertram and Milton, and Mrs. P. T. Gentry, L. A. Burdine, Mrs. W. W. Jones, Mrs. Carl Greer, Mrs. V. L. Woollever, Mrs. E. H. Bryan, Miss Ella Steffens, Mrs. J. C. Hennington, and T. E. Roderick. By request Bertram Kessel favored the gathering with a violin solo, and Milton and Bertram sang a duet, which was enjoyed very much. Mr. Kessel expects these gatherings will become a fixed part of his system. The guests before departing expressed their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Kessel for the banquet and the nicely arranged program.

Slaton Tigers Met Amarillo Sandies

The Tigers journeyed to Amarillo last Friday, meeting the Amarillo Sandies, in the Tigers last game of the season in their class. A goodly number of Slaton fans accompanied the boys, some via train others by auto.

The weather was not of the best, and the field was very muddy, causing much slipping, with it all, the Tigers put up a brave fight against the odds, the Sandies second string did most of the work, from all reports. The Tigers did well on defense but were unable to get going on the offense. The final score as reported was 25 for Sandies 0 for Tigers.

Mrs. G. R. Evans and children spent Sunday in Plainview attending a family reunion at the home of Mrs. Evans' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. person in that city.

Slaton Misses Snow Storm

The gate on the north, failed to have his hinges working, and the gate was wide open, and down on the sunny Plains came the heavy fog and low ceiling, Slaton was visited Saturday night and Sunday, while it was chilly still we are so much better off than many sections, especially the mountains, where snow has fallen liberally.

While the predictions are for cold weather for Thanksgiving, the Plains so far have been highly favored, some of the boys are preparing their cars for winter, and of course it is time, this should prove a good time for the gas company, as we do need heat. The Plains sure is a good place to live, if you do not think so go up north for a time at this season of the year, you sure will come back pronto, but best of all just stay here. Weather observer G. H. Orr is sure that we will not suffer, he is doing all possible that we may have a moderate winter. This is good snappy weather and makes every one feel full of pep. Of course some of us really do need a lot of pep.

Mysterio Master Magician Here

Mysterio The Master Magician and company, under the auspices of Slaton Volunteer Fire Department, will enthral Slaton folks Saturday evening at the High School auditorium. Here you will find sensation, baffling, brain tangling phenomenon. He is rated as the "Mentalist Supreme," as one who has observed his entertainment states, Lee Clark, superintendent of the Plainview schools. "If the mysterious, the magical, appeals to you, see Mysterio. There is something of interest for all, from the small child to the mature adult.

Things that will make you wonder, ponder, try to solve and hesitate to believe even what the eyes see—or seem to see. Everything is done in harmony with the law of nature, yet they are so wonderful as to baffle the trained intellect, while entertaining and delighting the children and holding an interest of all. Mysterio offers an opportunity for an evening of unusual entertainment for the entire family.

The Fire Boys are noted for the high class entertainments they sponsor, and this is one of them, remember, Saturday evening, and take the entire family for an enjoyable outing.

Put On Your Thinking Cap

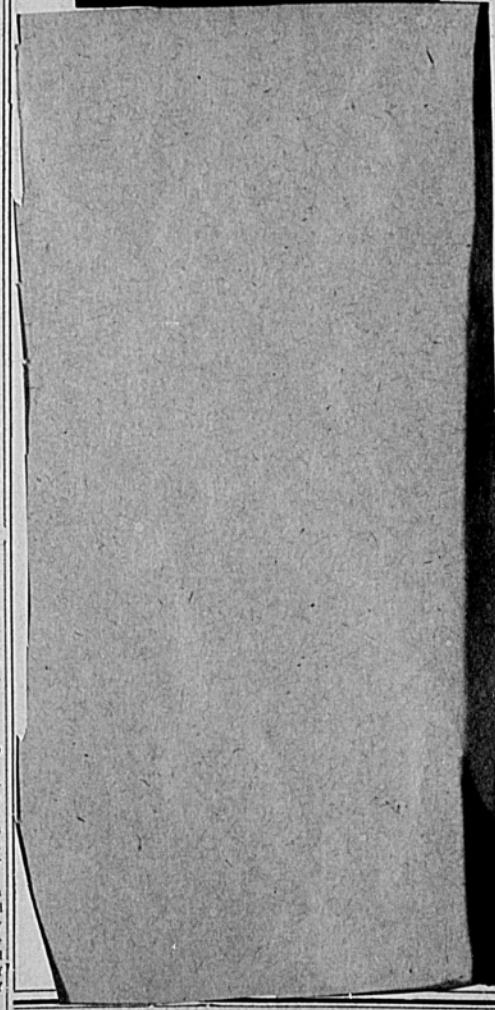

Citizen of Slaton are invited to put their thinking caps on, maybe win one hundred dollars, and do a great service to Texas. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has announced a contest to select a trade-mark for Texas fed meats.

To the man, or child who suggests the best trade-mark for Texas fed meats, which will be used to identify such meats and popularize their use and demand at markets, cafes, and hotels, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is offering a cash prize of one hundred dollars.

Complete details may be obtained from the local chamber of commerce secretary, but anybody may qualify. A trade-mark may be a mark, a device, a symbol, phrase, slogan or a combination of any two or more of these. The entries must be sent to the Stamford office of the West Texas chamber not later than January 15, 1932. Any person may submit as many entries as he desires, but each must be on a separate piece of paper and bearing the contestants name and address.

Three judges yet to be named will pick the winner. The contest originate with the Livestock Committee of the West Texas Chamber, which is working for increased consumption of Texas meats in Texas, and the promoting of feeding Texas livestock in Texas. John M. Gist of Odessa is chairman of the committee and Paul T. Vickers, Midland, secretary.

Mrs. H. A. McCandless, of Ponca City, Oklahoma, is spending Thanksgiving with her sister, Mrs. T. E. Roderick and Mr. Roderick.

Six Persons Injured In Sunday Accident

Six persons were painfully injured Sunday morning about eleven o'clock on the Slaton-Lubbock highway, in front of the Williams Service Station.

The accident occurred when two cars going north and one going south met, and one of the cars going north cut to the left in front of the car going south, causing a head-on collision for the second car going north which was driven by Earnest Carrol and the car going south which was driven by Miss Thelma Wilson of Lubbock. The car which cut to the left, and caused the accident did not stop, making a get away without securing the number.

Mr. Carrol was alone in his car, and received serious injuries, he was rushed to the Mercy Hospital. Reports are that he is resting well but painfully hurt.

In the car driven by Miss Wilson was her mother, Mrs. Nina Wilson, and an aunt, Mrs. Ella Forber; and two cousins, Harold and Paul Stewart, all of Lubbock, who were enroute to Slaton to spend the day with Mrs. Wilson's mother, Mrs. Moles and Master Alfred Stewart, who are located at the Commercial Hotel. All were painfully injured, however Mrs. Forber was the most painfully hurt of the occupants of the Wilson car.

The accident is said to have been unavoidable for the two cars. Officers are making a thorough search for the driver of the car which caused the wreck and did not stop.

Dramatic Club To Give Benefit Play

"Jimmie, Be Careful," is the title of the play which has been selected by the Senior Dramatic club, and will be presented in the high school auditorium Thursday evening, December 3rd, at 7:30 o'clock.

This play is a lively comedy in three hilarious acts, written by Lillian Mortimer. Several rehearsals have been held and the progress achieved is regarded as encouraging.

Miss Hazel Mansker, director of the Dramatic club, has stated that this is not only a good play, but the members of the cast have shown surprising aptitude for dramatic work. She announces the following cast for the entertainment, Dorothy Arthur, Crystelle Scudder, Inez Watson, Betty Pack, Oleta Colston, E. G. Reese, Julian Kessel, James Merrel, J. L. Benton and J. T. Pinkston.

There is no predominating part. All players in the cast have unusual opportunity to shine as individuals. Throughout the entire three acts, the rapid actions bring about one situation after another in which are mingled thrills, laughs and surprises. The comedy is natural, not forced, the characters have the little mannerisms which we see about us in everyday life, and the interest is well sustained until the final curtain.

This is a play at which you will be entertained the entire time, with funny acts such as, "De Sins of De Human Race," "The Blank Blue Grass Widow," and several other interesting numbers will be given by the following members of the club, Pauline Owens, Rachel Darwin, J. L. Benton, Frances Gilley and others.

The club has arranged to donate a percentage of the proceeds to the High School Parent-Teacher Association.

Don't forget to see "Jimmie, Be Careful." Where—high school auditorium. When—December 3, 1931. Time—7:30 p. m. Benefit—high school P. T. A. Read the advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

LEGION DANCE ENJOYED TUESDAY EVENING

The American Legion Holiday season dance on Tuesday evening at the Johnston Ranch pavilion was enjoyed by all present.

The original Mexican Tickettote orchestra furnished the music for the evening's gaiety.

The legion boys were in complete charge of the entertainment, and perfect behavior was prevalent throughout the dance.

The legion will sponsor a dance December 19th at the same place, this will be designated as the "Christmas dance."

Perfecting Plans For Poultry Show

All the committees are busily engaged in perfecting plans for the second annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry show, to be held in Slaton December 9, 10 and 11. The entire officialdom are very anxious that the breeders support this exhibit. Every thing necessary for the comfort and care of the birds that will be on display will be accorded. The premium lists are very liberal this season.

We feel sure Slaton folks will support the show, and assist in giving a welcome to the visitors and exhibitors.

The Panhandle-Plains area can ill afford not to have a show of this character, while there are numerous local shows, the climax will be the show at Slaton in December, birds coming from the local shows will here find others of their breed, and here rivalry is most desired. The show bird is a feature, another is the breeder who looks for the true producer. There is a class for the Boys and Girls 4-H and Vocational clubs, their exhibits will have the same care and attention as those of the older exhibitors. A. J. Payne, secretary, advises they are whipping the plans into line rapidly, and every thing will be set for the December dates, and are looking forward to a very liberal display and feel the show will surpass that of 1930.

Every courtesy will be shown the visitor and exhibitor, as Slaton is noted for its hospitality, there will be a fine display of birds this season, and the exhibit will be all one could ask for.

Burglars Enter City Drug Store

Sunday night after closing hours, burglars made a visitation to the City Drug store, John Dabney proprietor.

Entrance is supposed to have been made through one of the back windows, which had been broken out, a small piece of the upper pane had been broken, in an effort to turn the window latch, the parties were unable to raise the window, it having been some time since it was opened, paint had sealed it solidly. For any one to have gained ingress through the opening, would have required a very small person.

Chief of Police Able, made a survey this morning, but was unable to find definite finger prints, the jury entering entrance doubtless was an adept, as the dial on the safe was moved so that it could be opened readily, the burglars fingers must have been very sensitive, as the safe was not locked, only placed on safety. This was opened and about $1500.00 in currency, and about $500.00 of diamonds taken.

Mr. Dabney estimated his loss at about $1000. A small box in the safe was opened, and with a key, as there was no breaking of the box, this would indicate that the yegmen were ready for any emergency. Some of the cases holding toilet articles were badly scattered when the force opened the store Monday morning, no door were found unlocked, so far no clues have been reported.

TWO SLATON BOYS WERE SUCCESSFUL

Information comes to us that John and Robert Rayburn, two Slaton boys, who are attending Trinity University, have survived the leimination tests in the Little Theatre, and have been initiated into the Trinity Little Theatre.

This is one of the most active organizations on the campus. Each year they present three full length plays and a number of one-act productions.

Last year Trinity won first place in the Central Texas Intercollegiate Dramatic Tournament held at Baylor University. We are pleased our home town boys are receiving recognition at Trinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Young are rejoicing at the arrival of little Betty Joyce, who came to them Sunday, November 22, at 10:45 a. m. The little lass weighed 7 1/2 pounds. We all extend congratulations.

Inspector Visits Slaton Schools; Good Report

According to the report given by the high school supervisor last Thursday, the Slaton schools are in "number one" condition.

The system in use, and all things in connection with the school were marked "o k". The organization in the different schools was complimented, as well as the teaching.

Mr. Smith, the supervisor, stated that he saw just as good teaching in the Slaton schools as he had seen anywhere. The discipline was judged as being well in hand, and the passing in halls in the high school was judged to be one hundred percent, better than it has ever been before.

This is all as it should be so "why shouldn't Slaton have a Good School?"

Annual Red Cross Membership Drive Started Saturday

The annual membership drive of the Red Cross started last Saturday, with Mrs. A. L. Brannon as local secretary and Mrs. Lee Green assistant.

This is the fiftieth anniversary of the Red Cross, the organization having been organized in 1881.

The membership fee is one dollar per year and it is hoped that a large number of Slaton people will enroll in this annual roll call drive.

Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Ferguson and family left Tuesday morning for Waco to attend the B. Y. P. U. Convention which is in session in that city. They expect to return for the Sunday services.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NEWS

By A. J. PAYNE, Sec'y. Folks the Poultry Show is coming along fine. The business men of Slaton, have shown their interest by taking an "ad" in the Catalogue. Now the next thing we desire is some willing and free workers to help in arranging the coups and other necessary items in the building. Bell Telephone Co., South Plains Pipe Line Co., The Compress Co., and The Slaton Cotton Oil Co. For the payment of their City and School Taxes as early as possible, so that both institutions may be put on a cash basis, and be able to take care of their obligations.

Be It Further Resolved; That the Secretary be instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to the Corporations above mentioned, and a copy furnished the Slatonite for publication.

City of Detroit Hundreds now in THESE 137 new Ford cars represent one of the largest deliveries ever made to a municipality at one time.

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had been operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 21 cars was 2.284 cents a mile—less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 21 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

Reveals Origin of National Thanksgiving

Mr. East E. Fisher, former newspaper editor, disclosed a fact that has been known for many years, but which has not been generally known until now. He said that the first Thanksgiving Day celebration in this country was held in 1621 at Plymouth, Mass., and that it was the custom of the Pilgrims to invite the Indians to their homes for a special feast to mark the first Thanksgiving Day celebration in the country.

CHILDREN ON WHEELS

The chance of an automobile accident is much greater if the driver is under twenty than when he or she is over thirty, according to statistics compiled by one of the large insurance companies. The records of some four million licensed automobile drivers were examined and it was found that by far the highest percentage of accidents occurred when children under age were driving a car.

There are still a good many states and communities where very little or no inquiry is made into the qualifications of anyone who wants to drive a car. In the majority of the states today licenses are required, but the examinations and driving test vary. And there are still a great many places in which any child who is physically able to hang on to the steering wheel and reach the pedals is allowed to drive.

Of course, the earlier in life one learns to drive, the more confidence the motorist acquires and the better he or she is likely to be as time goes on. But we think there is a great deal of wisdom in the law which obtains in some states, under which no one under eighteen may be licensed to drive, and then only after a severe road test of ability. In order to learn to drive before applying for a license, young people in states where this law obtains must always have with them on the front seat an experienced licensed driver.

There will always be parents who will let their children talk them into taking out the car, whether really fit to drive or not, and children will always want to get out on the road and "step on it." That is, of course, a sure, and it would not be else's concern if people did not care for their own lives and the lives of others.

A chemist says all liquor today is bum. Nearly everybody else is getting tired of it, too.

Legion Auxiliary News Column

The Legion Auxiliary will meet Friday night, November 27th in a joint meeting with the Post. This meeting is the first of the kind for the new year.

We are expecting a good attendance and a good time. We are urging our women to be out and help us make this a good meeting.

Our president, Mrs. J. S. Bates, has asked the executive committee of the auxiliary to meet for a short session before the regular meeting.

Mrs. J. A. Elliott our Rehabilitation chairman mailed the Thanksgiving box to one of our hospitals Monday. We will soon be sending a Christmas box.

Department presidents and secretaries of the American Legion Auxiliary from every state assembled at the Auxiliary National Headquarters in Indianapolis, Indiana, November 23. All activities on the Auxiliary national program were discussed and plans outlined for the development of the organization's work during the coming year.

A telegraphic roll call of all departments, to which the departments will respond with the number enrolled for 1932 will be a feature of the second day's session. The roll call is expected to show a substantial percent of the auxiliary's 410,000 members re-enrolled for 1932.

The Texas Department of the Auxiliary has been assigned a quota of 9,444 members. The Auxiliary's enrollment in the state this year being 8,213 to fill this quota, an increase of 15 percent must be made. The Legion has 37,651 members in Texas this year, the Auxiliary enrollment equalling 21.81 percent of the Legion strength.

Enrollment of the auxiliary's 1932 membership is already underway. Membership campaigns are being conducted by all units during November. From present indications, the auxiliary will again reach its national membership goal and continue the growth which has made it the largest woman's organization in the world.

Our local membership committee has asked all who possibly can do so, to pay their dues Friday night. In this way it will save the committee a lot of work.

FRESHNESS

— that's the thing!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

HAVE you noticed the new trend in cigarettes?—freshness is the popular thing.

That's because a fresh cigarette, as demonstrated by Camels, is something smokers have discovered as better than anything they ever tried before.

Camels are fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack because they're made fresh to start with — blended of choice, delicately mild, sun-ripened tobaccos in which the natural moisture and fragrant flavors are vigilantly safeguarded.

The tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say with so much assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh — not parched or toasted — and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

Try Camels' freshness for a change. Switch over for just one day, then change back — if you can.

Around the hearth of home, good people met and gave praise to the God of Harvest. Friendly, social and family ties were again renewed, it is the earnest wish that financial ties of this community may become united, that with an undivided effort by all to establish stability whereby Slaton may continue to prove her worth and retain her fair name.

NINTH INSTALLMENT
Synopsis

Six people, Horace Johnson (who tells the story), old Mrs. Dane, Herbert Robinson and his sister, Alice, and Dr. Sperry, friends and neighbors, are in the habit of holding weekly meetings. At one of them, Mrs. Dane, who is hostess, varies the program by unexpectedly arranging a spirit ualistic seance with Miss Jeremy, friend of Dr. Sperry and not a professional, as the medium.

At the first sitting the medium tells the details of a murder as it is occurring. Later that night Sperry learns that a neighbor, Arthur Wells, has been shot mysteriously.

At the second seance, Miss Jeremy adds details about a summer resort where Charles Ellingham was known to have been at the same time that Mrs. Wells was there. She also speaks of a pocketbook being lost which contains some important car tickets and letters. Mrs. Dane, alone of the women, seemed thrilled by the investigation.

Johnson goes alone and investigates the deserted house. He is frightened by strange noises, as of an intruder in the house, but completes his investigation.

He visits Mrs. Dane and tells her how he had carried off the fire-tongs and left behind his overcoat in his excitement. She then tells him she had advertised for the finder of the pocketbook and turn over to Johnson an answer she had received from one having guilty knowledge of the crime. Dr. Sperry announces he is to be married to Miss Jeremy when the club meets again.

Now Go on With the Story
As to the telephone message, it seemed to preclude the possibility of Ellingham's having gone to the house that night. But the fact remains that man, as yet unidentified, was undoubtedly concerned in the case, had written the letter, and had probably been in the Wells house the night I went there alone.

In the end, we decided to hold one more seance, and then, unless the further developments were such that we must go on, to let the affair drop.

That my wife had felt a certain bitterness toward Miss Jeremy, a jealousy of her powers, even of her youth had not dawned on me. But when on Sunday, in her new humility, she suggested that we call on the medium that afternoon, I realized that, in her own way, she was making a sort of atonement.

Miss Jeremy was out riding with Sperry, but arrived shortly after we got there. Sperry was glad to see us.

It was not hard to see how things were with him. He helped the girl out of her wraps with a manner that was almost proprietary, and drew a chair for her close to the small fire which hardly affected the chill of the room.

Sperry looked at the girl and smiled.

"Shall I tell them?" he said.

"I want very much to have them know."

He stood up, and with that unconscious drama which actuates a man at a crisis in his affairs, he put a hand on her shoulder. "This young lady is going to marry me," he said. We are very happy today."

My wife, to my surprise, kissed the girl.

Tea was brought in by Hawkins! I knew him immediately, but he did not at once see me. He was evidently accustomed to seeing Sperry there, and he did not recognize my wife. But when he had put down the tray and turned to pick up Sperry's overcoat to carry it into the hall, he saw me. The man actually started. I cannot say that he changed color. He was always a pale, anaemic-looking individual. But it was a perceptible instant before he stooped and gathered up the coat.

Sperry turned to me when he had gone out. "That was Hawkins, Horace," he said. "You remember, don't you? The Welleses' butler."

"I knew him at once."

"He wrote to me asking for a position and I got him this. Looks sick, poor devil. I intend to have a go at his chest."

"How long has he been here?"

"More than a week I think."

I drank my tea, I pondered, all, the Neighborhood Club guard against the possibility of and I felt that Sperry had been indiscreet, to say the least. From the time of Hawkins' service in Miss Jeremy's home there would always be the suspicion of collusion between them. I did not believe it was so, but Herbert, for instance would be inclined to suspect her. Suppose that Hawkins knew about the crime? Or knew something and surmised the rest?

I was uneasy all the way home. The element of doubt always so imminent in our dealings with psychic phenomena, had me by the throat.

How much did Hawkins know? Was there any way, without going to the police, to find if he had really been out of the Wells house that night, now almost two weeks ago, when Arthur Wells had been killed?

That evening I went to Sperry's house, after telephoning that I was coming. On the way I stopped in at Mrs. Dane's and secured something from her. She was wildly curious, and made me promise to go in on my way back and explain. I made a compromise.

"I will come in if I have any news to tell you," I said.

Sperry was waiting for me in his library, standing by the fire, with the grave face and slightly bent head of his professional manner.

"I wonder," I said, "if you kept the letter Hawkins wrote you when he asked for a position?"

He was not sure. He went into his consulting room and was gone for some time. I took the opportunity to glance over his books and over the room.

Arthur Wells' stick was standing in a corner, and I took it up and examined it. It was an English malacca, light and strong and had seen service. It was long, too long for me; it occurred to me that Wells had been about my height, and that it was odd that he should have carried so long a stick. There was no case in swinging it.

From that to the memory of Hawkins' face when Sperry took it, the night of the murder, in the hall of the Wells house, was only a step. I seemed that day to be thinking considerable about Hawkins.

When Sperry returned I laid the stick on the table. There can be no doubt that I did so, for I had to move a book-rack to place it. One end, the handle, was near the ink-well, and the ferrule lay on a copy of Gibson's "Life Beyond the Grave," which Sperry had evidently been reading.

Sperry had found the letter. As I glanced at it I recognized the writing at once, thin and rather sexless, Spenserian.

Dear Sir: Since Mr. Wells' death I am out of employment. Before I took the position of butler with Mr. Wells I was valet to Mr. Ellingham, and before that, in England, to Lord Condray. I have a very good letter of recommendation from Lord Condray. If you need a servant at this time I would do my best to give satisfaction.

(Signed) Arthur Hawkins.
I put down the application, and took the anonymous letter about the bag from my pocketbook. "Read this, Sperry," I said. "You know the letter. Mrs. Dane read it to us Saturday night. But compare the writing."

He compared the two, with a slight lifting of his eyebrows. Then he put them down. "Hawkins!" he said. "Hawkins has the letters! And the bag! The question now is to whom was it written?"

We pondered that, to no effect. That Hawkins had certain letters which touched on the Wells affairs, that they were probably in his possession in the Connell house; was clear enough. But we had no possible authority for trying to get the letters, although Sperry was anxious to make the attempt. "Although I feel," he said, "that it is too late to help her very much. She is innocent; I know that. I think you know that, too, deep in that legal mind of yours. It is wrong to discredit her because I did a foolish thing." He warmed to his argument. "Why, think, man," he said. "The whole first sitting was practically coincident with the crime itself."

It was true enough. Whatever suspicion might be cast on the second seance, the first at least remained inexplicable, by any laws are recognized. In a way, I felt sorry for Sperry. Here he was, on the first day of his engagement, protesting her honesty, her complete ignorance of the revelation she had made and his intention to keep her in ignorance, and yet betraying his own anxiety and possible doubt in the same breath.

"She did not even know there was a family named Wells. When I said that Hawkins had been employed by the Wells, it meant nothing to her. I was watching."

So even Sperry was watching. He was in love with her, but his scientific mind, like my legal one, was slow to accept what during the past two weeks it had been asked to accept.

I left him at ten o'clock. Mrs. Dane was still at her window, and her far-sighted old eyes caught me as I tried to steal past. She rapped on the window, and I was obliged to go in. Obligated, too, to tell her of the discovery and, at last, of Hawkins being in the Connell house.

"I want those letters, Horace," she said at last.

"So do I. I'm not going to steal them."

"The question is, where has he got them?"

"The question is, dear lady, that they are not ours to take."

"They are not his either."

Well, that was true enough. But I had done all the private investigating I cared. And I told her so. She only smiled cryptically.

The following day was Monday. When I came down stairs I found a neat bundle lying in the hall, and addressed to me. My wife had followed me down, and we surveyed it together.

It was my overcoat! My overcoat, apparently uninjured, but with the collection of keys I had made missing. The address was printed, not written, in a large, strong hand, with a stub pen. I did not, at the time, notice the loss of certain papers which had been in the breast pocket. I am rather absent-minded, and it was not until the night after the third sitting that they were recalled to my mind.

At something after eleven Herbert Robinson called me up at my office. He was at Sperry's house, Sperry having been his physician during his recent illness.

"I say, Horace, this is Herbert."

"Yes. How are you?"

"Doing well, Sperry says. I'm at his place now, I'm speaking for him. He's got a patient."

"Yes."

"You were here last night, he says. Do you happen to have noticed a walking-stick in the library when you were here?"

"Yes. I saw it."

"You didn't, by any chance, take it home with you?"

"No."

"Are you sure?"

"Certainly I'm sure."

"Suppose we'll see you tonight?"

"Not unless you ring off and let me do some work," I said irritably.

He rang off. I was ruffled, I admit; but I was uneasy, also.

It was that day that I discovered that I was being watched.

I did not tell my wife that evening. After dinner I went into our reception room, which is not lighted unless we are expecting guests, and peered out of the window. The detective, or whoever he might be, was walking negligently up the street.

As that was the night of the third seance, I find that my record covers the fact that Mrs. Dane was house-cleaning, for which reason we had not been asked to dinner, that my wife and I dined early, at six-thirty, and that it was seven o'clock when Sperry called me to the telephone, and asked me to accompany him to the Well's house to see if we could find the other overcoat.

He slipped an arm through mine when I joined him, and we started down the street. "I'm going to get to the bottom of this, Horace, old dear," he said.

"Remember, we're pledged to a psychic investigation only."

"Rats!" he said rudely. "We are going to find out who killed Arthur Wells, and if he deserves hanging we'll hang him."

"Or her?"

"It wasn't Elinor Wells," he said positively. "Here's the point: if he's been afraid to go back for his overcoat if it's still there. I don't expect that, however. But the thing about the curtain interests me. I've been reading over my copy of the notes on the sittings. It was said, you remember, that curtains—some curtains—would have been better places to hide the letters than the bag."

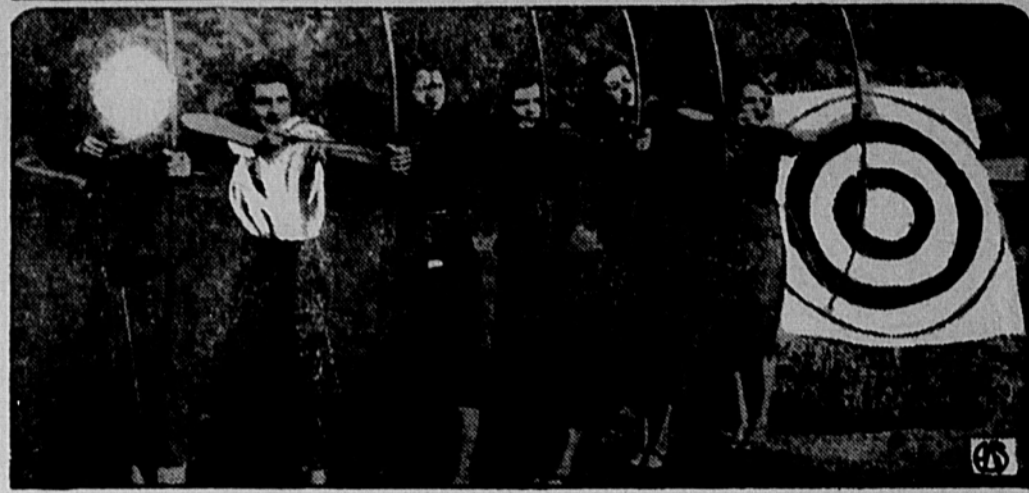

I stopped suddenly. "By jove, Sperry," I said. "I remember now. My notes of the sittings were in my overcoat."

"And they are gone?"

"They are gone."

He whistled softly. "That's unfortunate," he said. "Then the other person, whoever he is, knows what we know!"

"Just where does Hawkins come in, Sperry?" I asked.

"I'm damned if I know," he reflected. "We may learn tonight."

The Wells house was dark and forbidding, but I led the way with comparative familiarity.

"In case the door is locked, I have a few skeleton keys," said Sperry.

We had reached the end of the narrow passage, and emerged into the square of brick and grass that lay behind the house. While the night was clear, the place lay in comparative darkness. Sperry stumbled over some thing and muttered to himself.

The rear porch lay in deep shadow. We went up the steps together. Then Sperry stopped, and I advanced to the doorway. It was locked.

The lock gave way to manipulation at last, and the door swung open.

"Now friend Horace," he said, "if you have matches, we will look for the overcoat, and then we will go upstairs."

As we had anticipated, there was no overcoat in the library, and after listening a moment at the kitchen door, we ascended a rear staircase to the upper floor. I had, it will be remembered, fallen from a chair on a table in the dressing room, and had left them thus overturned when I charged the third floor. The room, however, was now in perfect order, and when I held my candle to the ceiling, I perceived that the bullet hole had again been repaired, and this time with such skill that I could hardly even locate it.

"We are up against some one cleverer than we are, Sperry," I acknowledged.

"And who has more to lose than we have to gain," he added cheerfully. "Don't worry about that, Horace. You're a married man and I'm not. If a woman wanted to hide some letters from her husband, and chose a curtain for a receptacle, what room would she hide them in. Not in his dressing room, eh?"

He took the candle and led the way to Elinor Wells' bedroom. Here, however, the draperies were down, and we would have been at a loss, had I not remembered my wife's custom of folding draperies when we close the house, and place then under the dusting sheets which cover the various beds.

Women's Column

for Slaton women

Although hardships have been frequent for the majority of us during the past year, we still have lots to be thankful for.

We should be thankful that we are still here, even if living is hard right now.

We should be thankful if we are getting three meals a day and have a place to sleep and something to wear.

There is always something to be thankful for, so pause for even a moment on Thanksgiving Day and offer your thanks for some blessing you have received.

Even though friend-husband has been cut off from his work, or his salary has been cut, you should still be glad that you have him and he has you, if not, get a divorce.

On Thanksgiving Day favor the family with a little something extra on the table, even if you can not afford one of those old time Thanksgiving dinners with the turkey and the fixins and good old plum pudding.

THE ART OF TABLE SETTING

For the everyday housewife, the art of table setting is rarely discussed, it is usually for the Mrs. So and So, who has ten servants and no children with the measles or whooping cough.

Here are a few of the simple pointers for the home dinner with perhaps a few guests.

In placing the silver, china and glass, exactness should be observed.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the lesson-sermon was "Soul and Body" in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, November 22.

Psalms 104:1 furnished the golden text. "Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou are very great; thou are clothed with honor and majesty."

This passage from the Bible (II Corinthians 5:1) was included in the service: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

Embraced in the lesson-sermon were also the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Because Soul is immortal, it does not exist in mortality. Soul must be incorporeal to be Spirit, for Spirit is not finite. Only by losing the false sense of Soul can we gain the eternal unfolding of Life as immortality brought to light" (p.335.) "Sooner or later we shall learn that the fetters of man's finite capacity are forged by the illusion that he lives in body instead of in Soul, in matter instead of in Spirit" (p. 223).

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

The people of Slaton have received us in a most cordial manner and we greatly appreciate it.

Though the weather last Sunday was unfavorable, the congregations were gratifying.

We want this to be a great year. We want the work of the Kingdom to march forward. We want the church to grow and we want each member to have a definite part in the growth. We will begin each service on time and quit on time. Come and find your place if this is the church of your choice.

All who will, are invited to worship with us.

You are welcome at the Methodist church.

C. E. Fike, Pastor.

upon their orderliness in arrangement depends much of the beauty of the table.

The ends of all the flat silver placed on either side of the plate must be in perfect line with reference to the edge of the table.

Each person should have at least twenty inches of space, as no one wants to be continually bumping their neighbor in the elbow.

All the flat silver should be laid in the order of its use starting with the piece farthest from the plate on either side.

The knives are placed to the right, the cutting edge toward the plate. The spoons are placed to the right with the bowl up. Forks are placed to the left with the tines up, with the exception of oyster or canape forks which are placed to the right.

If you need other silver bring it in with the course.

Glasses are filled three-fourths full and placed to the right of the tip of the knife. If more than one glass is used, they are arranged side by side parallel to the edge of the table.

If individual salts and peppers are used they should be placed directly in front of each cover. The newer method is to use one set for two or three persons. In this case they are placed in a convenient position for the group.

If flowers are used on the table, and they really should be as they add so much to the attractiveness of the table, be sure they are either very tall or else very short. So the flowers will not be a wall between the guests.

The same thing may be true about candles. Don't let the candle flame strike your guest right in the eye. Use either tall candlesticks or tall candles, which will bring the flame above the eye, that is unless you want your guest to grow squint-eyed in the course of the evening.

Now began the teacher pleasantly, "what year have we, Harold?" Little Harold pondered and replied, "1930 in the daytime and 1927 at night." "How do you figure we are so far behind at night?" asked the teacher. "It takes three years for starlight to reach us," said the boy.

ROTARY

Being the last meeting before Thanksgiving, every one gave thanks for what they have and not what they do not have, so it was another fine meeting. Congregational singing, and it was good, led by William Florence. Those old songs simply warm the cockles of a fellows heart, we sang Suwanee River, or Old Folks at Home.

The program was in the nature of retrospection, going back to childhood days, again seeing the castles, ideals and dreams, some came true, others scattered to the four winds of heaven, have we carried over into manhood the many lessons taught as children, did the early poverty of some prove a boon in later life, have we fixed on our ideals, did they come true as we hoped they would.

This program on account of the many subjects for discussion will be continued this Friday, this will give every fellow a chance to speak out in meeting, we have promised not to have the grand jury in session at this meeting, so again come loaded.

Lubbock visitors with us were, Tom Gaston, O. W. Riddle, Hubert Allen, Geo. W. Dupree, Charles Adams, J. J. Clements and L. W. Drawn, we enjoyed having these fellows with us, be on time today, last meeting in November, make it one-hundred per cent.

KITCHEN?

Forget to order something?

If you're like lots of women, you may find you're out of something right in the middle of preparing dinner. That's when the handy kitchen telephone meets another emergency.

Or perhaps a portable telephone

It plugs into the wall like a lamp. Move it from one location to another as you need it. Ask for details at the telephone office. Extra charge for installing sockets.

Like to sleep late?

Folks may think you're lazy . . . but why not make or answer calls from your bed? Mighty nice when you're sick, too . . . saves jumping up from afternoon naps . . . adds a distinctive touch to your bedroom.

For sale . . . One step savor

One man stayed with the baby while his wife went shopping. Before she got home he'd ordered an extension telephone. "Saves at least a mile a day," he declares. An extension telephone saves many, many weary trips.
