Impact release date 'firm'

Big Spring should know more about the future of Webb Air Force Base by next week.

Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate said Tuesday that it appears the date for release of the environmental impact statement on Webb is holding pretty firm for Wednesday, Sept. 15.

There is still some possibility that release of the "draft" statement could be delayed for a fifth time, the mayor said, but the Air Force in Washington originally due in early June, will be ready for the public next Wednesday.

Mayor Choate said five members of the Legislative Action Committee will leave Big Spring on Tuesday to be there when the impact statement is released.

The Big Spring delegation will be accompanied by two persons who have been working on an impact statement which is being prepared locally. They are Dean Allen Gary of the University of Texas at Permian Basin in Odessa, an economist who has been assessing the effects of Webb's closing on this area, and Richard Jensen of the Permian Basin Planning Council, who has been preparing a computer model of the impact from a local survey done earlier this year.

Also on the delegation will be Mayor Choate, Legislative Action Committee chairman; Ben Bancroft, Big Spring attorney; Winston Wrinkle, owner of KBST Radio; and J. Tom Graham, publisher of the Big Spring Herald.

The delegation will arrive in the nation's capital Tuesday night and will meet with the Air Force early Wednesday morning to receive the impact statement.

Mayor Choate said that the remainder of Wednesday will be spent going over the impact statement with Cong. Omar Burleson, Sen. John Tower and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, along with aides from other members of

Ehrlichman must start jail term

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 18 months, former White House Aide John D. Ehrlichman has been charting a new life as an author, working quietly amid the desert landscape of New Mexico.

He grew a beard, lived alone, and emerged for public appearances from his cottage in Santa Fe only long enough to promote his book, "The Company," a fictional account of CIA intrigue in high government circles.

Now, a federal judge is about to end all that.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said Tuesday that Ehrlichman must start serving by Sept. 17 a 20-month jail term for approving a burglary by government operatives against Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, a psychiatrist who once treated Pentagon papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

The sentence is to be served in the federal prison at Safford, Ariz. Ehrlichman was convicted in the so-called White House Plumbers' case on July 12, 1974, and since then has been free on a personal recognizance bond. The U.S. Court of Appeals rejected an appeal from the conviction and, on August 16, the court rejected a request for a rehearing in the case, thus clearing the way for Gesell to order the former Seattle zoning lawyer to become the first of Richard M. Nixon's closest aides sent to prison.

There have been more than 60 persons convicted in scandals that collectively are known as Watergate, but none with Ehrlichman's relative rank and position have yet gone to jail.

Along with three others, Ehrlichman also was convicted on New Year's Day 1975 for his part in the Watergate cover-up. He faces a 2½-to-8-year prison term for that conviction, now before the appeals court.

Ehrlichman's lawyers plan a Supreme Court appeal on the "Plumbers' conviction, and it is possible that the appeals court could order that he remain free. But legal observers consider that unlikely.

C City gets new chief

COLORADO CITY — Fred McWhorter, 35, Lubbock, has been named Colorado City chief of police.

McWhorter succeeds Jesse Browning, who resigned unexpectedly Sept. 1 following a difference of opinion with City Manager James Campbell. Browning acted after Campbell announced he was discharging Assistant Chief L. C. Devorice.

Browning originally had planned to retire Sept. 28 because of his age.

McWhorter currently is law enforcement coordinator of the South Plains Association of Governments and Councils with law enforcement bodies in the Lubbock-Amarillo area.

McWhorter said he likely will move to Colorado City within two weeks to assume direction of the city police force. Campbell, meanwhile, will continue to direct the police department.

Burglars net at least $25,000 in local heist

The biggest burglary of the year took place sometime over the weekend.

It was reported 3 p.m. Monday that intruders entered the home of James Duncan, 6 Indian Ridge, and made off with between $25,000 and $30,000 worth of jewelry, silverware and clothing. A complete list of stolen items was made available today.

Missing items included three rings, one with emerald settings, one with diamond settings and one with turquoise settings; three turquoise necklaces; three turquoise bracelets; two chokers, one silver, one turquoise; a gold watch; a .22 cal. pistol; a sterling silver luncheon service for eight; a silver carving set; six silver bowls; and an unknown amount of men's clothing including leather jackets, sports jackets and men's suits and shirts.

Also stolen were two suitcases. Investigating officers suspect that these may have been used to haul away some of the stolen merchandise. Detectives speculate that the intruders exited through the back door of the home, but they have found no point of entry.

"We will follow this burglary just like any other," said Lt. Jim McCain, who is investigating the case along with Det. Avery Falkner. "We will be looking for any of the items to turn up on the market somewhere, and will check informants. But we just don't have any leads at this time," McCain added.

'Nothing new at all'

Other statements 'not encouraging'

While Big Spring awaited word on Webb Air Force Base this week, the Air Force released draft environmental impact statements on two other bases proposed to be closed.

Neither impact statement held out hope for changing the Air Force's plans announced in early March, local officials from those areas say. And neither impact statement brought up any new points or suggested any new missions for the bases.

The two bases were Loring AFB, Maine, and Kincheloe AFB, Michigan. Both were Strategic Air Command

Bases. The draft impact statements on the Air Training Command bases, Webb at Big Spring and Craig AFB at Selma, Ala., are due to be released next week.

The Herald talked Wednesday morning to Herb Levin, news editor of the Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., News, a small daily newspaper in a town of 16,000 people which serves a tri-county area of 55,000 people around Kincheloe AFB.

"The impact statement contained absolutely nothing new at all," Levin said. "My impression is that the Air Force didn't give us anything encouraging in this report."

The same was true at Loring AFB at Limestone, Me., a town of 13,000 people. In both cases, the impact statements supported the Air Force's plans announced earlier this year. Kincheloe, in President Gerald Ford's home state, would be closed completely. Loring would be reduced from 3,650 military to 700 and from 980 civilians to 650.

As alternatives to closing Kincheloe and reducing Loring, the Air Force suggested the closing of two other SAC bases. One was Blytheville, Ark., and the second was Wurtsmith, also in Michigan.

A third alternative was leaving both bases at their present levels.

"The impact statement said not much more than we had anticipated," Levin said.

The reasons given for closing Kincheloe was that it is a single mission base, that it is unacceptable for a larger mission, and that the weather conditions severely limit use in winter.

The Bangor News, in a story from its Washington bureau, noted that the Air Force had studied two other single-mission SAC bases, but both escaped the axe. Blytheville will remain open even though the estimated annual savings from closing it would have been $2.4 million greater than will be gained by reducing Loring, the news story said.

In both impact statements, the Air Force conceded that the impact on the communities involved will be great.

At Loring, the annual Air Force payroll would be reduced by $28.9 million from the present $39.5 million. The Air Force said 1,100 persons would be added to unemployment rolls. The action would cause a loss of $15.4 million a year in retail sales, the Air Force estimated, and reduce the economic output of the potato farming and forestry area by 10.5 per cent.

Around Kincheloe, the Air Force expects the area to lose 25 per cent of its population and regional economic output to fall by 25.2 per cent. It also predicted a decrease of 30 per cent in the value of privately owned land. Direct loss to the population was estimated to be 10,000 persons, or 29 per cent of the county.

Tower dismayed over impact report delay

A letter from Sen. John Tower of Texas to the Air Force has expressed dismay over the continued postponement of the environmental impact statement on Webb Air Force Base.

The letter, addressed to Air Force Secretary Thomas Reed and dated Sept. 2, said Tower continues to be "greatly concerned with the review process and planning related to the Air Force proposal to close Webb."

"In this regard," Tower said, "it has been particularly dismaying to witness continued postponement of the schedule for publishing a draft environmental impact statement, the timing of which, I must assume, directly affects the date upon which a final decision on this matter will be made."

The impact statement, originally scheduled for early June, is now tentatively set for public release Sept. 15.

Sen. Tower noted that prolonging the uncertainty inherent in the initial review forces considerable hardship on the local community and gives rise to problems which could have been avoided by a more orderly schedule for the study and review.

"I am informed," the senator wrote, "that the current date for release of the draft EIS is Sept. 15. I am hoping that this publication date will not be further postponed in order that concerned citizens can begin to exercise their right to review and comment on the Air Force's preliminary assessment of the dramatic impact which this proposed action would have on Big Spring and the surrounding area."

Sen. Tower has previously stated that he would fight "to the last bloody ditch" for Webb Air Force Base.

Clearing due after four days of showers

Skies appeared to be clearing off early today, but West Texans were beginning to get used to a daily shower after four days when some rain fell each day.

On Monday, the rain inside Big Spring in a 24-hour period totaled an inch with the hard shower Tuesday afternoon measuring .7 in the eastern edge of the city. The Experiment Station measured only .49 in that same period of time.

The shower Tuesday afternoon was almost countywide with Sand Springs getting .4, Coahoma, .5, and Ackerly, .4. Out at Elbow, the shower measured a full inch.

There was also around .3 in the Forsan area and .4 around Vealmoor.

Boyce Hale, two miles south of town had 1.8 of rain Tuesday with a three-day total of 2.25. His ten-day total was 3.35.

Ackerly area farmers were happiest with the Tuesday shower, having been short-changed out of some of the other rain which has fallen during the past ten days.

Cotton north of Ackerly to Lamesa is reported to have a better stand than the cotton south of that community.

However, countywide and areawide, the cotton crop apparently looks better than any time since the record-shattering 1973 season.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Can't afford it?

Q. Why does the City of Big Spring not go into the Emergency Medical Service like Odessa and Midland?

A. Because the initial cost for the first year of operation would be close to $180,000 while the present ambulance service services the city for a subsidy of $12,000 per year. The changeover would include the cost of 50 per cent of two ambulances, training of personnel and overtime pay for firemen who would be running the ambulances. At this time, city officials believe that they cannot afford to go into the program.

Calendar: Tennis meet called

Offbeat: Who's smiling now?

NIAGARA FALLS, Canada (AP) — The Guinness Book of World Records has frowned on a local 12-year-old girl who claimed to have set the world record for smiling.

Michelle Gallacher, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, smiled from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. one day a month ago.

With sore mouth and cheeks, she wrote the organization and cited times and witnesses.

Last week, the spunky youngster received a postcard from the group telling her smiling and laughing were not recognized because they were not interesting enough.

Undaunted, Michelle said she planned to set a world record for the longest bubble gum chew.

"They might not think that is interesting enough either. But I do," she said.

Best bet on TV: Crosby

Wednesday: It's either music or drama tonight, depending on your mood. At 7 p.m. crooner Bing Crosby and the energetic Liza Minnelli host a musical special on NBC with great guests and glimpses of specials from the past. At 7:30 p.m. Susan Clark and Alex Karras star in the moving story of sports great Babe Didrikson Zaharias, entitled "Babe," on CBS.

WHERE YOUNGSTER REPORTEDLY WAS IMPRISONED — This is the six-foot-square underground cell in Port Moody where authorities say 13-year-old Abby Drover, inset, was imprisoned for 181 days and sexually abused. Alexander Hay, 43, was charged with kidnaping, rape, gross indecency and abduction with intent to have sexual relations. Police in Port Moody, a suburb of Vancouver, B.C., said the girl emerged from the cell underneath Hay's garage "mentally quite stable but physically quite weakened."

Sexually abused by accused kidnaper

Girl imprisoned for 181 days

PORT MOODY, Canada (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Abby Drover, who authorities say was imprisoned for 181 days and sexually abused in a six-foot-square underground cell, apparently was convinced she would survive. She even told her captor, "I just wish you would be my friend."

She was in seclusion today, recuperating from the six-month ordeal. Authorities estimated that the 4-foot-3, blue-eyed girl, who was 12 when she disappeared while on the way to school March 10, weighed as little as 70 pounds when she was discovered Monday night. She had weighed about 90 pounds.

Charged with kidnaping, rape, gross indecency and abduction with intent to have sexual relations was Alexander Hay, 43. He remained in a British Columbia provincial jail awaiting a second court appearance Thursday.

Police said they found a scrap of paper in the converted bomb shelter in which the girl was entombed on which she had written: "God has helped me so far and He will help me to the finish. God works in mysterious ways but what He does is right."

"I know you think I'm stupid and like you say everybody is entitled to their own thoughts, but I do believe in God and I do believe in friends. I just wish you would be my friend."

"I also know I will get out of here so I'm not worried. I know you don't believe in God but I'll just say that God will be with you."

Police in this Vancouver suburb said the girl emerged from the cell underneath Hay's garage "mentally quite stable, but physically quite weakened."

Constable Wayne Smith said the girl had been forcibly restrained by handcuffs, shackles and chains.

Abby was discovered almost by accident when police responded to reports of a domestic disturbance at Hay's home.

Constables Paul Adams and Bill Reid said Hay's common-law wife had summoned police because she feared Hay had locked himself in the garage, which he used in his business of building campers, to commit suicide. They said they broke into the garage but didn't find Hay.

They left but were summoned back when the woman reported that her husband was at the bottom of a seven-foot-deep shaft in the basement.

"Apparently she had seen his (Hay's) feet at the bottom of the shaft and thought he killed himself," Reid said.

The officers returned as Hay was climbing up a crude wooden ladder in the shaft. Adams said they had just put handcuffs on Hay when "I heard this whining."

"I looked down the shaft and here was this frail little thing coming up," he said.

Police said a sound-proofed door at the bottom of the shaft opened on the squalid room in which the girl was imprisoned. It measured 6½ feet by 6 feet by 6½ feet high and contained a wash basin, hot and cold running water, a chemical toilet, bed, chains, a vent and a heater.

Ruth Drover, the girl's mother, said Hay sometimes drove neighborhood children to school and was a frequent visitor at the Drover home, even while the girl was missing.

Echeverria plugging for closer trade ties

Yanks may soon be eligible for parole

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Luis Echeverria of Mexico, seeking closer trade ties with the United States, has told officials here that U.S. citizens in Mexican jails may soon be eligible for parole.

The possibility of releasing some of the more than 570 U.S. prisoners now in Mexican jails was outlined to Texas and U.S. officials here in private meetings Tuesday after Echeverria arrived to inaugurate the 5th annual Mexican trade fair.

A source close to the president said the parole release and possible exchange of prisoners between Mexico and other countries would depend on how soon two bills are approved by the Mexican congress.

The bills, submitted recently by Echeverria, are expected to receive quick approval.

"At least 200 of the U.S. prisoners in Mexican jails could be eligible for immediate parole and benefit from the new law as early as November," the source said.

Echeverria himself avoided any direct comments on the proposed legislation or on the status of U.S. prisoners in Mexico, and his public speeches here were aimed at soothing U.S. concern over last week's devaluation of the peso, Mexico's basic currency.

The presidential source said the bills submitted by Echeverria would make parole available for the first time to drug offenders. Most of the U.S. prisoners in Mexico are charged with violation of drug laws.

The bills also would make it possible for Mexico, for instance, to exchange U.S. prisoners for Mexican prisoners in U.S. jails. There are about 1,000 Mexican citizens in U.S. prisons, the source said.

"Depending on the negotiations between the two countries," the source said, "the prisoners could then serve their time in their own countries, close to their homes and families."

The alleged mistreatment of U.S. prisoners and the conditions of Mexican jails have been a source of friction between the two governments in recent years.

Last March, a Dallas man led a raid into the Piedras Negras jail across the border from Eagle Pass in Texas, and at gunpoint, freed 14 U.S. prisoners who then waded across the Rio Grande and turned themselves over to U.S.

authorities.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who was among the officials welcoming Echeverria to Texas, said he had been informed of the details of the new laws and said it was "wonderful."

The presidential source said the bills were not being enacted under any pressure, but were "humanitarian measures that are part of a long-range reform of the Mexican penal code that includes the construction of new, modern jails."

Echeverria inaugurated the giant MexFair trade display, which is his nation's largest display of goods on foreign soil.

In an opening speech, he sought to reassure U.S. investors that their capital was welcome in Mexico as a complement to Mexico's national development

Oil lobbyist denies Dole given money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Claude Wild Jr., Gulf Oil Corp.'s former chief lobbyist, today repudiated his claim that he had given $2,000 in 1970 to Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican vice-presidential candidate.

"I have been in error and consequently have done a serious disservice to Sen. Dole," Wild said in a statement.

Dole immediately accepted Wild's apology, calling the matter "an unfortunate incident." The senator added: "We're moving ahead with the campaign."

At issue was Wild's claim to reporters earlier this week that he had given $2,000 to Dole in 1970 to pass on to other Republican Senate candidates in that year.

Dole earlier had acknowledged that he had testified before a federal grand jury last March on the question of Gulf contributions, but that he had received no such funds from Wild either in 1970 or in 1973.

Wild's statement did not speak about other allegations that Dole received illegal corporate Gulf funds in 1973 — something which the GOP nominee has repeatedly denied — but discussed only the 1970 matter.

The former Gulf lobbyist said in his statement that he had made the claims to reporters without checking his records.

"I feel confident I confused the $2,000 in cash with the $2,000 check made out to another individual," Wild said. "I make a sincere apology to Sen. Dole for my impromptu remarks without benefit of information I could have obtained from my records."

He blamed the mistake on "the past three years of confusion, frustration and disarray in my personal life." He said he was referring to various legal proceedings and Senate inquiries into Gulf political contributions.

On Labor Day, Dole told reporters he was mystified by the allegation that he had received $2,000 from Wild in 1970, the year before he became chairman of the Republican National Committee.

He said federal prosecutors had showed him a check stub for the $2,000, apparently drawn on a legal Gulf "Good Government Committee" fund. Dole said that the name "Dole or Dale" was on the stub, with the indication that the money was to be passed on to someone else.

The Republican candidate said he had no recollection of such a check. But he told reporters the transaction also involved a prominent political figure in Washington. Dole did not name the political figure.

NBC News reported today that the other name involved was that of Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe, who in 1970 waged an unsuccessful campaign in North Dakota for the Senate.

A Dole spokesman declined to confirm or deny the NBC report, claiming it was "a moot issue" in light of the Wild statement, which the spokesman said completely divorced Dole from the transfer of funds.

There was no immediate comment from Kleppe.

Dole has told reporters that he made President Ford aware of his appearance at the grand jury before Ford chose him last month to be his running mate.

The grand jury appearance centered principally on the question of whether Dole had received illegal Gulf corporate funds from Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Scott has been accused of receiving up to $100,000 from Wild from 1960 to 1973. Scott has denied ever knowingly accepting corporate money from Gulf, which would be illegal under federal campaign laws.

In his statement, Wild noted that in the past two days he had made statements to the news media indicating that he had made the $2,000 available to Dole or a member of his staff in 1970.

"I was questioned unexpectedly and before I had time to review my records of a meeting that allegedly happened six years earlier," Wild said.

"After looking at the records and materials I have, I am confident I have been in error and consequently have done a disservice to Sen. Dole."

Deaths

Resendez

Mrs. Maria D. Resendez, 52, was found dead at her home at 709 N. San Antonio at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena Jr. ruled death by apparent heart attack.

The body will lie in state at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home tonight and will be sent to Stamford tomorrow for services at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Ann's Catholic Church there. The Rev. Steve White will officiate and burial will be in Highland Cemetery in Stamford.

Born Sept. 12, 1923 in Stamford, she married Pedro Resendez there on Feb. 6, 1939. They moved to Big Spring in 1971 from Ralls. She was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Big Spring.

Survivors include her husband, Pedro of Big Spring; three sons, Albert Resendez, Big Spring; Felix Resendez, Ralls; and Macario Resendez, Abilene; and three daughters, Mrs. Mercedes Diaz, Ralls; Miss Margaret Resendez, Big Spring and Miss Mary Ann Resendez, Lubbock.

Other survivors include three sisters, Mrs. Lupe Martinez and Mrs. Angela

W. T. Collett

SWEETWATER — William T. Collett Jr., 47, died about 9 p.m. Monday at the Nolan County Jail. Sheriff Joe Slater said Collett was being held over the weekend on a DWI charge.

Justice of the Peace Thomas Greene pronounced Collett dead and ordered an autopsy. The cause of death had not been determined Tuesday night and an investigation into the death was continuing, officers said.

Arrangements for services are being completed at Catespencer Funeral Home.

Born Oct. 18, 1929, in White Deer, he was formerly manager of the Dr. Pepper Bottling Co. in Sweetwater, and more recently was a sign painter.

Survivors include his widow, Vivian; and a son, Robert Collett, both of Sweetwater; five sisters and his parents.

GOP delegates to enter battle

Wrinkle seeks district post

By MARI CARPENTER

Big Spring Republicans, who are extremely active in Texas GOP politics, will be right in the middle of the party's State Convention in Austin this weekend, battling for their favorite candidates and platforms.

Five delegates will represent Howard County, including Bill Sheppard, Winston Wrinkle, Mrs. Polly Mays, Mrs. Mary Joy Cowper and Ben Bancroft.

The alternates are Mrs. Dorothy Hall, Dr. Akin Simpson, Mrs. Ruth Penner, John Elrod and David Elrod.

In the 29-county 30th District, which is bigger than the state of Connecticut, Wrinkle, Big Spring, will be a candidate for district committeeman against Dr. W. Rector, Wichita Falls, who presently holds the position.

Vying for district committeewoman will be Mrs. Mary Kirchoff, Plainview, who presently holds the post and challenger, Mrs. Mary Ellen Cummings, Wichita Falls. Mrs. Kirchoff has 1,670 delegates to the convention.

"I think a majority agree it would be a disaster to change the leadership now," he added.

Former State Rep. Barnhart, Pasadena, formally announced his candidacy Aug. 31. Four young Republican leaders have sent out letters urging support for Barnhart, saying he represents a grassroots establishment contest.

Hutchison said his 14 months in office produced a lot of success, including fielding more candidates for office in the state, creating a campaign reserve fund to help candidates, talking former Gov. John Connally into becoming chairman of the Ford-Dole campaign in Texas and talking Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas into being the keynote speaker for the state convention.

Since there is only one statewide Republican race this year for railroad commissioner, the GOP is expected to formulate recommendations for the commission.

Walter Wendlandt, the GOP candidate for commissioner, said there are several things he would like to see in the platform.

He said the party should adopt a plank calling for a change in the commission's name to Texas Energy and Transportation Commission to reflect its true function.

In addition, Wendlandt wants the GOP to come out for a two-term limit on the three commissioners and for greater efforts for railroad safety — "I think they have done a poor job in that area."

Finally, Wendlandt said, "I think there ought to be some concern about the utility costs to Texas consumers."

that she also backs Hutchison. Statewide news releases have said that Houston and West Texas back Barnhart, but this particular area of West Texas appears to back Hutchison.

Hutchison, Dallas, said Tuesday that a challenge for his post is "absurdity that threatens to dismantle the GOP headquarters staff just before the election."

U. S. citizens jailed in Mexico smuggle out written statements

Torture, extortion, lack of justice charged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Don't get arrested in Mexico. That message is unmistakable in dozens of written statements a Texas law student says he smuggled out of four Mexican prisons.

"I found that U. S. citizens imprisoned in Mexico were subjected to physical torture, extortion and denied procedural justice. Usually a prisoner is held incommunicado for days," said Paul Parsons, 25.

Parsons, who speaks Spanish, said he talked with more than 100 Americans in Mexico City prisons last month.

He shared the purported statements from some of them with The Associated Press on Tuesday on the condition that the signers not be identified by name.

President Luis Echeverria has sent Congress bills allowing a prisoner exchange and permitting parole of drug offenders, the category into which most American inmates fall.

The statements given to The AP by Parsons have several common themes:

—The use of torture to extract confessions while being held incommunicado.

—Extortion and physical abuse by prison officials and inmate "mayors" of —Crooked lawyers who extract huge sums from prisoners' families and then fail to provide representation.

Some said Mexican authorities didn't hesitate to use the tactic of rape as an interrogation tactic against women.

An American girl's statement said she was arrested at Mexico City's International Airport and was badgered to sign a confession in Spanish even though she didn't know the charges. She said she resisted for five days.

Finally, "I was pushed into a room where five men were and decided I'd better sign than suffer the consequences. Never knew what I signed," said the American girl.

Several male prisoners said interrogators shocked their testicles with cattle prods.

"My testicles were deformed from the interrogation and bleeding. Nine months later, they are still deformed," one statement said.

Upon entering prison, he said, "I was told that either I work cleaning floors nude on my hands and knees for 22 hours per day or I pay $2,000. I paid. I was then forced to pay $1,000 for my cell or else they said I'd be put in a cell with 20 murderers where I'd probably be hanged. The money was paid to the head of the prison."

If other affidavits are to be believed, the threat of forced labor was not an idle one.

One man's statement said cigarette burns received during interrogation became infected when he was "forced to wash all areas of the prison with water and a rag as big as a handkerchief."

"All of my clothes were removed forcefully and I was ordered to (go) into the urinals naked to scrub them with a brick while cold water was thrown over my body. This lasted all day long. I was told I could come out if I paid $1,000 U. S. which I eventually did," he said.

Another said he was required at Lecumberri Prison in Mexico City to rise at 4 a.m., 7 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. and mop up water. His family finally sent about $1,200, and this ended the forced labor and got him a cell to himself, he said.

"But the extortion had only started. Every Sunday was bill day. We had to pay for everything—electricity, beds, food, night guard, showers, cloths, even for paint for the dorm. . . . If we refused to pay we were beaten (and) put back to the work and in the cell with others who couldn't pay sleeping on the floor," he said.

A woman inmate told of an incident in which a Mexican prisoner pulled a knife on two American women.

The women protested to an official, she said.

"He merely laughed in our faces and said, 'Then you better go find yourselves some knives and learn to fight,'" the statement said.

Another woman prisoner said she was stripped after police agents said they had been tipped that she had hidden heroin in a body cavity, she said.

"When they got me nude, one of the agents stood aside laughing while another one felt me up and stuck his fingers inside of me. By this time I was crying hysterically. . . . Of course they found nothing in this so-called search of my private parts," she said.

Another inmate, who admits possessing a kilogram of cocaine when arrested in Mexico City, said that shortly after his imprisonment, "I hired a lawyer who stated he could have me released within three months for $10,000. I borrowed the money from a friend and paid him (the lawyer) in full. . . . I do not have any idea what happened to my appeal in the Supreme Court as I have not seen my lawyer since February 1975."

Parsons, an Eagle Scout, said he became interested in the plight of American citizens held in Mexican prisons through a law course on international human rights.

He said he visited inmates in four prisons in Mexico City last month and was allowed to mingle freely with other prisoners. Prisoners, he said, would write their statements with paper and pens kept in their cells, then slip them to him.

"I would walk out like it was a letter I was going to mail," Parsons said.

He said he visited Lecumberri, Santa Marta, Reclusorio del Norte and Los Reyes prisons.

American inmates, he said, believe their arrests resulted from efforts by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency. "They say the Drug Enforcement Agency prefers these kids to get busted there because the penalties are more severe. . . . These are mostly carriers—mules. Most are guilty."

Police beat Intruders hit schools

Two local schools were hit by intruders over the holiday weekend. Burglars entered Goliad Junior High by means as yet unknown, and made off with six sets of headphones and two cassette tape recorders. Total value of the articles was estimated at $225. Thugs also crawled through an unlocked window at the Lakeview Elementary School, and ransacked the main business office. The school's fire extinguisher was emptied into the hallway, but the only stolen item was a set of ballpoint pens valued at $2. For the third time in two weeks a burglar holed up in a local store until it closed. But this time the intruder was more successful than the two who were arrested last week. In this case the office of the C. R. Anthony Store, 305 Main, was rummaged through sometime between 6 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. Tuesday. Stolen were a .380 cal. Colt pistol and $130 in cash. Total loss was estimated at $280. A 14-year-old juvenile was arrested today as a suspect in the burglary of the YMCA, Fourth and Owens, sometime over the holiday weekend. Stolen from the center were a stop watch and a set of 15 keys. Total loss was estimated at $35. Two whitewall tires and rims were lifted from a brand new Torino at the Bob Brock Ford Dealership, 500 W. 4th. The incident occurred sometime between 6 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. Tuesday. Loss was estimated at $200. Police are looking for a man in his early 30s, having long, wavy, brown hair, who is suspected of indecent exposure. A local woman reported that while in the parking lot of the 7-11 Store, Eleventh and Johnson Tuesday, the man motioned her to the car in which he was sitting. When she approached, he exposed himself. Broken windows were three Tuesday. Peggy Baker, 1611 Young, reported a rock thrown through her window, 9:45 p.m. Damage was $5. Fay Wilson, 600 N.E. 9th, reported that a juvenile threw a rock at her grandson, and it sailed through the rear window of her camper. Damage was $40. A local juvenile shot a BB through a window in the home of W. W. Young, 2507 Larry. The youth's mother agreed to pay for the damage, estimated at $25. S. J. Cohen, 2609 Wasson, reported that vandals cut the right, front tire on his car sometime Monday night. Damage was estimated at $35.

Kermit officer school set

The Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy has announced a 40-hour in-service school for law enforcement officers, to be conducted in Kermit, Sept. 13, through Sept. 17. The school will be hosted by the Kermit Police Department and is funded through a criminal justice training grant from the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. Instructors will be provided by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, El Paso.

Cap Rock Electric Co-op meet called

The annual meeting of the Cap Rock Electric Co-op membership will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday on the Stanton Football field. The event traditionally draws a large crowd for a barbecue supper annual business meeting and lots of prizes. Co-op members and their families are invited to attend. Dr. Don Newbury, director of community relations for Tarrant County Junior College in Fort Worth, will be the speaker. The humorist is already well-known in the area. Directors will be elected for Districts 4, 5 and 9. Carlos Dusek has been nominated for District 4. Wilbert N. Braden is also nominated from that district. Both are from Midkiff. A.D. Reed has been nominated for reelection from District 5 and Jerry Hall has been nominated for that district. They both reside near Ackerly. In District 9, Dwight W. McDonald has been nominated for reelection and Donald W. (Bud) Lea is also a nominee. These men reside in Midland County.

Diez Y Seis Queen entries due Friday

Friday is the last day girls may register for the 16 de Septiembre queen contest, Gus Ochotorena Jr. said. Single, bilingual girls 14 to 17 years of age are eligible. They will appear in formal dresses at the Comanche Trail Park amphitheatre Sept. 15. Contestants will be judged on the basis of their performances and other factors. Prizes will be awarded the queen and first and second runners-up.

Interested girls should contact a member of the Mexican American Service Council. Registration costs $1. The American G.I. Forum and the council are sponsoring festivities in connection with Diez Y Seis, or Mexican Independence Day. A parade, art and cultural displays, dance and Mariachi music are planned here.

Woman released

NEW YORK (AP) — A 24-year-old woman, accused of negligent homicide after a starved pet German Shepherd mauled her infant daughter to death, has been released without bond in the custody of a cousin. Joanne Bashold, described as a recluse whose recent activities are a mystery, appeared before Criminal Court Judge Hyman Solniker Tuesday on the negligent homicide charge. She left the courtroom after the hearing without saying anything. Despite the contention of Asst. Dist. Atty. Andrew Donlevy that Miss Bashold should be kept under constant surveillance while psychiatric tests were conducted, she was released in the custody of a cousin who is a free-lance artist and who lives in the lower Manhattan art colony of SoHo.

Sikes wins primary

Voters in Florida's Panhandle have apparently decided that a reprimand by Congress isn't enough to make them unseat their long-time congressman, Robert L.F. Sikes. Sikes, whose colleagues voted the reprimand in July after allegations that he had benefitted financially from his congressional activities, won renomination Tuesday by a 3-1 margin in the Democratic primary in his northwest Florida district over John Benton Jr., a political newcomer. Sikes, 70, has no Republican opposition in November as he seeks his 19th term in the House.

Train hits school bus

LAFAYETTE, Ore. (AP) — A Southern Pacific engine and caboose slammed into a school bus today in this western Oregon farm town. State police said there were fatalities but could give no early estimate on the number killed or injured. Sheriff W. L. Mekkers of Yamhill County said his officers were at the scene. "I don't think anybody really knows yet what happened out there," he said. "One deputy came back from there and told me he was sick." Ambulances from several surrounding communities rushed to the scene. Hospitals in nearby McMinnville and Newberg were reported filled with victims of the crash. The more seriously injured were being transferred to hospitals in Portland and Salem, each about 30 miles away. Newsmen at the scene said the impact threw the bus an estimated 300 feet. The bus was from the McMinnville School District, and was picking up students in rural areas of the district at about 8:15 a.m. when the crash occurred.

Prisoners on strike

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican officials say 50 of the 140 American prisoners in Mexico City and two Canadians have started a hunger strike to prod U.S. officials to negotiate for their release. Sergio Garcia Ramirez, head of the federal prison system, said 13 prisoners stopped eating Tuesday morning at Norte prison and 39 began fasting at Oriente prison. There was no indication that the several hundred other Americans in Mexican jails were participating, although the strike organizer, James Dean Brown of San Francisco, said last weekend that the fast would be nationwide. The strikers are demanding that U.S. diplomats speed up negotiations for a prisoner-exchange program with Mexico.

A man who really likes his job

LT. JAMES MEANS

One of the many generalizations that often float around is the idea that military people aren't as devoted to their work as persons working for private companies.

I AM SURE that there are times when this might appear true, but in my dealings with personnel at Webb Air Force Base, I have been amazed at how seriously they go about their jobs.

For example, I recently had occasion to visit at some length with 1st Lt. James Means, officer-in-charge, propulsion branch, the 78th Field Maintenance Squadron.

I was impressed with how much this one officer likes his job, and how much he seems to work at it.

Basically, he is in charge of engines for the jet aircraft, a bigger job than might meet the eye. For each hour a pilot flies the plane, the maintenance people spend at least 10 hours working on it.

Lt. Means knows jet engines. For the first six of his eight years in the Air Force, he was an enlisted man doing hands-on work on the engines.

When he decided to make the Air Force a career, he went to officer training school. Now he is back with jet engines, except in a management capacity this time.

LT. MEANS said that he gets up at 5 a.m. for work and often stays until 4 p.m. to be sure that he visits each of the three shifts. The phone at his home is very likely to ring at any time of the day or night.

He works hard, but he says he is happy, comfortable and confident in his job. The mechanics know that he understands their problems, for he was there himself for six years.

With dedication like that shown by Lt. Means, I am not surprised that the U.S. military remains the most effective in the world.

—J. TOM GRAHAM

One problem

William F. Buckley, Jr.

John Vorster reacted as one might have expected to Mr. Kissinger's criticisms of South Africa's racial policies. It is the convention that chiefs of state and foreign ministers do not, in normal circumstances, criticize the policies pursued by governments of other countries.

THE RULE is of course broken in time of war: regularly it is broken when, even short of war, there is overt rhetorical hostility between nations, as for instance between the United States and Cuba. Sometimes the convention is broken when there is neither war nor continuing hostility but when a particular deed by a particular country induces widespread public reaction, as when the state of Massachusetts executed Sacco and Vanzetti, and when Franco executed the five terrorists. And finally, there is running criticism of another country's policies when this is demanded by domestic political situations, as for instance the criticism of Arab irredentism. The criticism of South Africa is in this category.

Although I do not suggest that there was any coordination in the two events, it is a reflection of the same impulse that caused 1) Kissinger to criticize South Africa and 2) Gerald Ford to pitch for the black American vote within 24 hours of each other.

The impulse to criticize as required by one's constituency sometimes brings on marvelous paradoxes. Within an area of about ten acres in New York City you not only can safely criticize Israel, it is very nearly unsafe to fail to do so. Immediately outside this area of the United Nations, exactly the opposite is the case. If Bella Abzug, Ramsey Clark, and Paul O'Dwyer were running for President of the General Assembly, they would take all their current speeches, remove the word "Israel" or "Israeli" and supplant it with "Arab" and "Palestinians."

Now one of the difficulties that make people grow old before their time is the frequency of criticism of one country's practices conjoined with silence about another country's practices, though these may be as venal or more venal. No serious man can suggest that the policies practiced in South Africa are as offensive as, say, those practiced in the so-called People's Republic of China, though there was not a whisper of criticism when Mr. Kissinger went there, along with Mr. Nixon, apparently to celebrate the great accomplishments of China.

THE LIBERAL historian Barbara Tuchman went to China and came back to say effusively that the diminution of hunger, disease, and illiteracy "is so striking that negative aspects of the new rule fade in relative importance." So much for freedom of the press, speech, religion, and property. Miss Tuchman would not say, after a visit to South Africa, that the diminution of many of the conditions in South Africa which are endemic to much of the rest of Africa — the same things, by and large: hunger, disease, illiteracy — justify the "negative aspects" of South African life.

The fact of the matter is that Kissinger is quite correct. The apartheid laws of South Africa are incompatible with human dignity. If I were a South African black and mobile, I hope I'd leave. But to go where? Hamlet explored, but did not penetrate, this dilemma.

Weight, not time rules in 'preemies'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a doctor tell if a baby at birth is a month premature? Is a healthy baby fully developed at eight months? Can a woman have a ten-month baby? — J.A.

Prematurity is not a matter of time but of the size of the baby. The standard for prematurity is when the weight is less than 5 pounds, 8 ounces, with length not over 18 1/2 inches. That is regardless of the amount of time the mother has been pregnant. In short, a baby can be called premature and be full term or nearly so.

A normal baby is usually fully developed at eight months. At seven months, its viability (the ability to live outside the uterus) is threatened. However, today this threat has lessened considerably because of advances in care of "preemies." I know of one recent case where a bowel obstruction correction was made on a pound and a half newborn.

Women have had babies at ten-months, but sometimes the timing is based on a miscalculation of the last menstrual period before conception.

Physicians can evaluate the newborn's maturity quite closely by its length, breathing, skin appearance and general behavior. There is also a blood test which determines the level of a certain hormone found in the placenta. This can predict things pretty closely.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you please tell me what I can do when my ears clog? I mean, when I blow my nose my ears get stopped up and I cannot hear anything for about a week.

It happens many times when I blow my nose. Can you help? — M.K.

For some folks nose-blowing has to be a bit of an art. You may be one of those.

First of all, make sure there is no wax in the ear canal that is impinging on the ear drum. A gusty blowing of the nose can cause the drum to bulge, causing pain, some temporary hearing loss, even ear noises.

When you blow, do it gently and steadily without plugging one nostril alone. It may take a bit longer to accomplish the purpose of clearing the nostrils but might avoid your problem.

You might also be checked for tonsil, adenoid or other tissue forming at the opening of the tube leading from the mouth cavity to the ear. There can be a stricture (narrowing) here that may require treatment.

Such hearing loss can be a frustrating business. It would be worth your while to have a thorough ear and nose check up.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 64 years old. I have diverticulosis and watch what I eat to prevent an attack. I drink beer (no hard drinks), tea, decaffeinated coffee and plenty of water. Is alcohol harmful? I have no problem with constipation. — G.P.

You don't mention the bulk portion of your eating.

Doctors are beginning to take note of the rather high incidence of diverticulosis in the U.S. and Western, industrialized countries in general. In the U.S. more than 10 million persons are thought to have the problem, which is an outpouching of tiny sections of the colon to a degree that interferes with digestion.

A low bulk diet is now thought to be a major factor in the high incidence of the problem in our society. For example, the problem is rather rare in Africa, yet it is found frequently among U.S. residents of African origin. Perhaps the human colon was "designed" with a bulky diet in mind.

Diet bulk can be important in the treatment phase also. Certain pressures can build up in a relatively empty colon and worsen the diverticulosis. Enough bulk to avoid this would seem to be in order since you say you are not constipated.

If the beer and other liquids cause no symptoms I see nothing wrong with them in moderation.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: If you have a phobia, such as fear of darkness, closed-in spaces, etc., is it a lack of faith if you can't seem to conquer it? Or does God give us these things to keep us trusting Him? — Mrs. B.H.

DEAR MRS. H.: Many people are affected by such fears to one degree or another. Sometimes they are frustrating because there seems to be little that the individual can do about them, although they are irrational. Psychologists tell us that such things often result from some childhood experience that may be long forgotten, and sometimes it is helpful to uncover this experience.

Fear is a common human emotion, and of course, it can be useful if there is a real threat that we should fear. Even the Apostle Paul knew fear on occasion: "For, when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side; without were fightings, within were fears" (II Corinthians 7:5).

Fear, whether we know the reason for it or not, should teach us to trust God more. David said, "I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears" (Psalms 34:4). Paul urged, "Don't worry over anything whatever; tell God every detail of your needs in earnest and thankful prayer, and the peace of God, which transcends human understanding, will keep constant guard over your hearts and minds as they rest in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:6, 7 Phillips).

Only Christ can truly take away our deepest fears. By His presence with us we can know that God watches over us in every circumstance. "Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness" (Isaiah 41:10).

A good hand

Around the rim

Candy Smith

In a rare gambling mood, I made a bet the other day that Carter would win the presidency. I got the argument that Ford is going to send Carter back to kindergarten during the upcoming debate and turn things around in the nick of time.

It may happen. But Carter's got a few high cards in his hand, too. Many of them have nothing to do with Carter the Person, and that may very well be his ace in the hole. With the generally anti-Watergate mood of the country (despite the time-lapse this is the first public election since Nixon) being Carter the Democrat may be much more appealing.

Carter is also a new name. Taking into consideration the progressive temperament of our country, as opposed to countries of the Old World, it is really not too unusual or at least not out of character, that a relatively unknown name could be elected.

This country has never feared change the way some countries do, perhaps because we were born in transition. There is no "old rule," relatively speaking. We were the first government to adopt the scandalously liberal ideas of England and turn them into a more workable system than the English themselves did.

IT WORKED for democracy. It worked for Abraham Lincoln. It was the premise that led many an immigrant to these shores, and it may be the premise that will lead Carter to the White House.

The sky is the limit in America — it's the land of golden opportunity.

BUT IF Carter is true to his word, a much trampled-on segment of our society, which deserves better, will finally get a sympathetic ear. The farmer. Oil industries corner much more attention than the farmer, and personally, I'd rather eat that drive.

Too, Carter may take in his firm hand the state of our foreign affairs, which for too long has left egg on the face of Americans abroad. He may do a lot of things and surprise a great many people. That's his trademark — nobody knows.

But if it sounds like I am more than a little suspicious of Carter and will only vote for him to win a fifty-dollar bet, you're wrong. I'm doing it for a bottle of scotch.

MANY PEOPLE don't trust Carter, and even fewer seem to be able to understand his positions on the major issues, but no one trusted Nixon either by the time it was all over, and Carter is at least a welcome change, good or bad.

Ford may have felt that containing the status quo in his term succeeding Nixon, at least making no enormous blunders, was the best course of action for the time being. The 'time being,' however, slipped into two years and he's now become known, thanks to Carter accusations, as a 'do-nothing president' that wasn't even elected.

But back to Carter the Democrat. It's a thorn in the side of the two-party system that we often elect the party and not the man. I was reminded just lately that, only a few decades ago, democrats wouldn't have been caught dead on the platforms they now support.

I don't know first-hand that that is true, but given the nature of politics, it sounds plausible.

Faces U.S. Wrath

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — International wheeler-dealer Adnan Khashoggi may soon face criminal charges unless he reveals what he knows about millions of dollars in foreign payoffs by American firms.

The dashing Khashoggi, a close friend of the Saudi Arabian royal family, is the target of an intensive investigation by the Justice Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

GOVERNMENT PROSECUTORS will soon decide whether to charge him criminally or to file civil contempt charges against him to force him to testify. There is a remote possibility, of course, that they will simply drop the case.

As an intimate of princes and generals, Khashoggi was in a position to recommend that Saudi contracts worth hundreds of millions be awarded to U.S. firms. He commanded huge fees for his middleman role.

What has been publicly revealed so far about Khashoggi's involvement with American contractors, officials and politicians, according to sources close to the investigation, only scratches the surface.

These disclosures, nevertheless, have rocked the business world. Lockheed admitted it paid him $106 million. Northrop and General Tire also reportedly passed him fat commissions.

Khashoggi once told the Washington Post how he blocked a $250,000 Northrop bribe intended for a Saudi general. "I stopped the bribe," he crowed. "I put it in my pocket."

Lately, he has been more discreet. And now, he appears to be dodging a U.S. subpoena for his records and testimony. The investigators are presently considering whether to charge him with non-compliance with the subpoena.

Such a charge would make it risky for Khashoggi to return to the United States. If he does, he could be put in jail for up to a year, unless he produces the documents.

Footnote: Khashoggi could not be reached for comment. In the past, he has claimed all payments to him were legitimate.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

Knowing that the Big Spring Herald is a biased publication and is, and has been, chronically Democrat oriented as long as I can remember, I would not expect to see anything in your publication that would give anyone a "fair shake" unless that person were a Democrat.

However, when I found in my favorite column, "Hearts and Flowers", the underhanded cut that you took at Mr. Nixon and the joy you seem to receive from Jimmy Carter's statement that he would pardon all of the draft dodgers in Canada and bring them back as full citizens with all the rights that we enjoy, it was more than I could take. I have enjoyed this column since you became editor of the paper and looked forward to reading it each Sunday morning, but I never expected you to desecrate your writing in such manner.

Perhaps you would like to see the draft dodgers come back from Canada with no restrictions. This is not my feeling, nor that of many others out here, because my only son was killed in Vietnam and now lies buried in the Big Spring cemetery after having given his life for what he thought was freedom, which as I remember, was a war started by a Democrat.

I do not know whether it was wise to pardon Mr. Nixon or not, but it is my belief that he will go down in history, and it will be revealed in years to come, that he was one of the greatest presidents the United States has ever had. At least he stopped a senseless war, brought the servicemen home who were still living, and stopped the draft. Perhaps there has been a president somewhere along the line of succession who did more for his country, but from Woodrow Wilson on to Gerald Ford, in my opinion, there has not been any president who came close to doing what Mr. Nixon did for his country, if he did nothing more than the three things mentioned above.

I am not a Democrat, nor am I a Republican. I vote for the man and wish that more people would do likewise and forget party loyalty, because this practice of supporting the party first, has almost wrecked the noble aspirations of the United States.

Dear Editor:

The Jaycees may have failed to provide a rest stop this past Labor Day but there was one on Highway 87 South provided by First Baptist Church.

We served over 400 people through rain and winds which at one time blew our tent away. The people who did stop were most appreciative of our efforts and we enjoyed providing the rest stop, which by the way is our second as we did have one Memorial Day on Interstate 20 West.

Dear Editor:

One year ago the members of UPT class 76-11 started arriving in Big Spring with one purpose in mind, to learn to fly. Each class member had heard what West Texas had to offer; good flying weather, open spaces, clean air, and a distinctive brand of hospitality.

Now that those 48 weeks of pilot training are drawing to a close, reflection is natural. Everyone of us will remember that first "howdy ya'll" a local merchant or citizen extended as a friendly greeting. Each will remember those West Texas dust storms and those hot, clear summer days. But most of all each will remember Big Spring hospitality, and involvement in base activities. Where else have an Air Force Base and city become so mutually inter-dependent and self supportive?

As each 76-11 class member goes his own way during the next few weeks, he will carry irrevocable memories of Big Spring, and hopefully some part of that famous West Texas hospitality. So long and thanks.

Members of Class 76-11

Sterile flies on way to Baja?

TUXTLA GUTIERREZ, MEXICO — If program plans move ahead as projected, the first plane load of sterile flies from Mexico's newly-dedicated sterile screwworm fly plant located near here should be on their way soon to the Baja California Peninsula for dispersal.

"The Baja area was selected as the starting point in Mexico for a concentrated battle against the costly and destructive screwworm pest of livestock, and the area will be expanded eventually to eradicate the insect to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, in southern Mexico," said Dr. M. E. Meadows, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Mission-based screwworm facility which supplied larvae for the new Mexico plant.

Meadows indicated that intensive survey work is under way on the Baja peninsula to determine levels of screwworm infestation and special problems that may be presented by climate and terrain.

"Eradication program efforts also are being explained to ranchers of the region, whose close cooperation is required for success," Meadows said.

He emphasized that the peninsula was chosen for the initial sterile fly dispersal effort in the national eradication program because of its unique geographical characteristics: It is surrounded on three sides by water, and it can be protected from constant invasion by screwworms from other regions of Mexico.

"Most of the Gulf of California is too wide for the screwworm fly to cross. And all livestock entering the peninsula area will be inspected to control any introduction of screwworms on infested animals," Meadows explained.

Meadows, along with members of the Joint U.S.-Mexico Commission for the Eradication of Screwworms, and government leaders of both countries were on hand last week for the dedication of the new screwworm eradication plant, the world's largest facility for raising insects. The plant near Tuxtla Gutierrez, Chiapas, in southern Mexico, cost approximately $14 million and will have an annual operating cost of about $8 million.

Mexican President Luis Echeverria and U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, along with other dignitaries of both nations, dedicated the new sterile screwworm fly facility on August 25.

Opening of the new plant signals the start of a Joint U.S.-Mexico Program that is projected to eventually eliminate the screwworm pest from most of Mexico, establish a new barrier zone against reinfestation across the 125-mile wide Isthmus of Tehuantepec (replacing the current 2,000-mile barrier along the U.S.-Mexico border, which is too long to be completely effective in preventing reinfestation), and put an end to yearly invasions of the southern United States by these destructive livestock pests.

GETTING READY FOR THE BIG DAY — Some of artist Christo Javacheff's workers are pictured putting panels in place near Cotati, Calif., Tuesday, in preparation for today's scheduled unfurling of the panels of Christo's 24-mile long running fence. The fence, stretched on cables between stout poles, will run from U.S. 101 south of Cotati westward to the coast.

Big fence going up

BLOOMFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The curtain goes up today, literally, on the grandiose brainchild of artist Christo Javacheff — an 18-foot-high nylon fence stretching over 24 miles of rolling hills and farms to the Pacific Ocean.

If all goes well, he will tear it down again in two weeks.

At dawn today, 300 youthful workers begin stringing the white curtain panels like hundreds of billowing sails along cables attached to 2,050 steel posts previously anchored in the soil of 55 Northern California farms.

In a surprise move Tuesday, the helpers, who are paid $2.40 an hour, installed a section of the running curtain-fence on the one spot where Javacheff couldn't obtain permission: the last 1,000 feet to the ocean 40 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Conservation districts total 3,000 in U. S.

Five local conservation leaders were in Bronte, last week, attending the West Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation District Directors meeting.

W. L. Wilson Jr., Carl Williams, Walter Sturl and Leon Sterling, directors of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District and Erwin A. Pavlik, district conservator, for the Snyder Field Office, Soil Conservation Service, attended from Borden and Scurry Counties.

David Firor, of Athens, Ga., the southern representative for the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) reviewed progress that conservation districts have made since they began in the 1930's. He noted that in 1937, each state began to adopt a soil conservation program which led to conservation district being individually established. Today there are more than 3,000 conservation districts in the United States.

Firor noted that NACD had its origin in 1946, and emphasized that the NACD is made up of all the local districts in the U.S. with the one NACD organization speaking for the "wishes of the majority of the districts."

Soil Conservation Service State Conservatorist George Marks of Temple, reviewed the status of conservation programs and SCS operations in Texas. The experienced conservatorist said that the SCS and USDA "are not going to tell you (farmers and ranchers) how to do your job or do it for you — we are here to help ... here to assist you."

Harvey Davis, executive director of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board in Temple, reviewed the land-use proposal commonly known as "208." If adopted, "208" would mean a non-point source pollution plan which would blanket the state.

Davis said that the SCS has pledged to help the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board in researching the problem through coordination with the Governors office.

Sam Faubion, president of the West Texas association, presided at the meeting and said he was happy that Tuesday's meeting gave opinion from all over the country on the issue of farmers and ranchers and conservation. Faubion said he had great faith in young people to carry out needed conservation on the land in years ahead.

J. M. Sterling, Chairman of the Howard Soil and Water Conservation District's board of directors will become the West Texas Associations president after the State Association meeting which is to be held in McAllen October 12-14. J. D. Crawford of the Midland Soil and Water Conservation District was elected president-elect.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were lower in midday dealings today.

Profit taking depressed prices after early advances in sympathy with Chicago grain and soybean futures markets, brokers said.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1/16-inch spot cotton advanced 167 points to 72.19 cents a pound Tuesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were $1.30 to $2.85 a bale lower than the previous close, Oct. 75, 60c, Dec. 75, 25c, and March 76, 15c.

Clubhouse Bridgifest to begin

On Saturday, Sept. 11, the OWC is sponsoring a couples' bridgifest for members. A sandwich buffet will be served at 7 p.m. with bridge beginning at 7:45 p.m.

Single members of the officer's club are invited to come and bring a partner guest. Partners will play together all evening. Reservations must be made by Monday. Cost for the evening is $5 per couple or $2.50 per person. For reservations call Mary Hanson at 267-8953 or Darlene Leatherwood at 263-3565.

Homemakers begin new youth club

The new Four-County Young Homemakers Club met for the first time Monday night September 6 in the Homemaking Department of Sands High School. The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers and set up club goals. The club hopes to develop homemaking skills and help young people understand the influence of a home in the community. Another goal is to become better acquainted with new products on the market and consumer trends. Officers are president, Don Nell Herm; vice-president, Carla Peugh; secretary, Connie Zant; treasurer, Jeanette Brown; historian and reporter, Connie Shortes and parliamentarian, Cindy Hopper.

Seattle woman moonlights as volunteer decoy prostitute

SEATTLE (AP) — One weekend each month "Ms. X" dons a wig, dabs on lipstick, brushes on a little eye shadow and hits Seattle's streets as a decoy prostitute. She's a volunteer. Reimbursement for food, gasoline, child care and paraphernalia like wigs and false eyelashes is her only material reward.

Return favors or friendship's off

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor I'll call Sue who has done more for me than my own sister has. Sue's kids are the ages of mine, so she keeps my kids so I can go on the road with my husband for a few days. She also chauffeurs my kids around with her own so I won't have to. Sue has even done my marketing for me. She's a very handy friend to have and I appreciate her, but here's the problem: She runs in and out of my house just like it's her own. If she sees that I have company, she comes right over and joins us. She asks the most personal questions, and I have no privacy whatsoever. She's a good friend, but she's a terrible pest. How can I keep her from coming over whenever she feels like it? I don't want to end our friendship because she's been a good friend, but enough is enough.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

DEAR TOO MUCH: By accepting favors from Sue, you've become obligated to her. If you want your privacy, you will have to quit accepting favors from her. If you can't do that, face it: You've made a deal and you're stuck with it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and have recently taken an office job where other women are employed. This isn't the first office job I've held, but it's the first place I've been asked questions I would rather not answer. With regard to something I am wearing: "Is it new? Where did you get it? Was it expensive?" Maybe I'm wrong, but I think these questions are personal, and I don't know how to get out of answering without appearing to be stuck-up and unfriendly. Can you (or anybody else) help me?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: It's your right to refuse to answer questions you regard as being too personal. And there's nothing wrong with saying, "I'd rather not answer that."

DEAR ABBY: My sister is 18 and her husband is 19. They've been married for two years and have two children. The problem is her housekeeping. Her house is so filthy it smells. She wasn't raised that way. My mother, my two sisters and I keep clean houses and we can't understand what's wrong with that girl. She doesn't keep herself clean, either. In fact she smells of B.O. We don't know how her husband can stand to be near her. We have all hinted to her about her house and person, but when we do, she gets mad. We think she needs to be told so she can improve, but we don't know who should tell her. My husband says I should stay out of it, but I will tell her if you think I should. Please help me decide.

OLDER SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Your husband is right. If she gets mad when you've hinted, mind your own business. If her husband doesn't object, I see no need for anyone to tell her anything.

told a reporter. "But then I found 'fun' wasn't the word. 'Fair' is. If you're going to arrest the girls, you've got to arrest the guys, too." The tall former welder and truck driver, who asked to remain anonymous, is now a fulltime employe in a photo-finishing firm. She said she learned of the volunteer work from a woman friend who also worked for the vice unit.

She said her work one recent weekend resulted in seven arrests of prospective prostitution customers, half the average number of such arrests by the vice squad each week.

Over-all, police say she has accounted for 175 arrests, including 40 that have gone to court. Four cases ended in acquittals.

To bring an arrest, she must get a prospective customer to suggest and agree to a sex act — and agree to pay for it. She said she doesn't have to look or act any special way.

"It doesn't make any difference what you wear," she said. "One night I wore a short skirt and I didn't do any better than I did in my pants."

Most arrests, she said, go something like this: He: "Looking for a date?" She: "What's it look like I'm doing?" The question to answer a question avoids possible use of entrapment as a legal defense.

He: "How much do you charge?" She: "What for?" He: "Oh, you know, a (sex act). How much will it cost me?"

She: "How much you got to spend?" He: "I usually pay $20 to $25."

At this point the jig is up, Ms. X said. "Can you name a place?"

She: "Yes," naming a nearby hotel.

All this has been observed by vice officers, who keep the decoy and her catch constantly in view.

When the man enters the hotel room, he's greeted by a vice squad sergeant who makes the arrest. She identifies her companion as "the man who offered and agreed to an act of prostitution for a fee."

It doesn't always go smoothly after that.

"One guy ran down the hall yelling 'help' until we got him to understand we were police and not somebody who was going to roll him," she recalled.

Ms. X says said her attitude toward men in general hasn't been affected much: "I like 'em just as much."

Kitchen colors changing

White is the up-and-coming "un-color" choice — followed closely by a new chocolate brown — for kitchen remodeling, Mrs. Janice Carberry, a family resource specialist, reports.

"One reason for white taking top spot in appliance color choices may be for its economy — white appliances offer greater decorating possibilities without having to replace the appliances," she added.

Mrs. Carberry is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University system.

"Housewares manufacturers, who rate the most popular colors, say that avocado continues to lose favor in both kitchen and bath. Based on 1975 buying preferences, gold and harvest gold ranked first, and yellow second for 1976.

Dried herbs powerful

Dried herbs are four times more powerful than fresh ones, and powdered herbs are twice as powerful as dried ones, Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

Weather

Tropical wave advisory issued

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The National Weather Service issued this special advisory today on a tropical wave in the Eastern Caribbean:

Satellite photographs received during the night indicate that there has not been any intensification in the tropical wave now moving through the eastern Caribbean area. The disturbed weather associated with the wave shows less organization than Tuesday and consists now of an extensive area of isolated showers and thundershowers that covers the entire eastern Caribbean, extending northward to the Leeward Islands, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

Occasional showers and thundershowers should be expected today over the Leeward Islands, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico with some danger of locally heavy rains and gusty winds near thundershowers.

Cool snap zips into Panhandle

By The Associated Press
A cool snap nosed into the Texas Panhandle and headed downstate today, accompanied by scattered thundershowers.

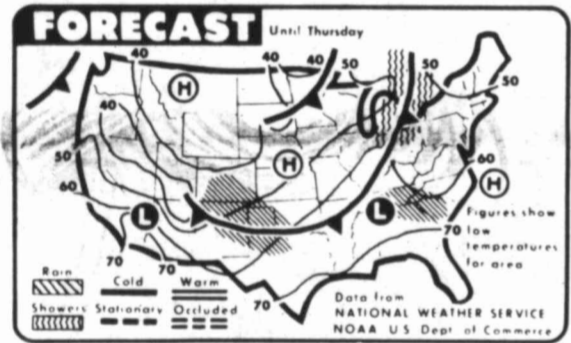

Occasional showers fell in the Hill Country around Kerrville and in the southeast corner of the state around Sabine Lake. Skies were partly cloudy to clear in other sections. Overnight temperatures as low as 50 were promised in the Panhandle and at least some cooling was predicted nearly everywhere in the state. The weak cool front was expected to dissipate while drawing near the coast Thursday.

Increasing clouds and occasional showers or thundershowers were forecast in most areas. Winds shifted to the north behind the forward edge of the cooler air, which passed Amarillo in early morning. They still blew lightly from the southeast across the rest of Texas.

Temperatures in early morning ranged from 79 degrees at Palacios on the coast down to 61 at Dalhart in the Panhandle. Top marks Wednesday went as high as 99 at Alice and Cotulla in South Texas.

WEST TEXAS: Considerable cloudiness and turning cooler north portion and partly cloudy south tonight. Much cooler north and not as warm south with considerable cloudiness. Thursday scattered thundershowers and showers becoming more numerous tonight and Thursday. Low tonight 50 north to near 70 south. High Thursday 82 north to 90 south.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Scattered showers and thundershowers mainly south Friday and a few thundershowers Saturday and Sunday. Highest Friday 90s and 90s rising to mostly 90s to near 100 by Sunday. Lowest 50s and 60s Friday up to 60s and 70s by Sunday.

WEATHER FORECAST — Sunny skies and cooler weather are forecast today for most of the nation. Rain is forecast in the Southwest, the Southeast and showers are expected for the Great Lakes.

Ford making maximum use of White House as campaign backdrop

Carter busy pressing flesh

By The Associated Press
While President Ford campaigns from the security of the White House, Jimmy Carter is out pressing the flesh. It seems that meeting the public has more hazards.

Campaigning through the Northeast on Tuesday, Carter said he would have fired FBI director Clarence Kelley and speculated that cheating by Richard Nixon and other Washington big shots encourages crime.

But for a group of angry demonstrators in Pennsylvania the big issue was abortion and they were noisy about it.

Carter met the demonstrators as he arrived Tuesday night in Scranton, Pa. They lined the route Carter took from the airport to his hotel, waving anti-abortion signs and shouting at the candidate.

And they mingled with Carter supporters at the hotel as the candidate arrived, making a throng estimated by police at 1,000 persons, with one side shouting "We want Carter" and the other chanting "Life, life, life."

Meanwhile, President Ford remained in Washington, making some unusual appearances designed to make use of the White House as a backdrop for what his campaigners hope will show him to be working instead of campaigning.

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, said Ford was "practicing being president" and is "failing to take his campaign to the people."

Carter, faced with the crowd outside his hotel Tuesday night, first tried to greet supporters and shake hands. But in the crush of bodies and the din of the conflicting shouts, Secret Service agents circled the candidate and hustled him into the hotel.

Carter was not struck or injured and did not appear shaken by the incident. Inside the hotel, he smiled and waved to people in the lobby.

Demonstrators outside the hotel said they opposed Carter's stand on abortion. Carter opposes a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion, although he says he personally is against abortion.

He is running on a party platform that says it recognizes religious and ethical concerns over abortion, but opposes a constitutional amendment. Earlier, Carter resurrected the memory of resigned President Nixon in arguing that wrongdoing by Republican big shots has led other Americans to conclude that breaking the law is okay.

And the former Georgia governor said if he were president he would have fired FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, who received gifts from subordinates and $355 worth of government supplied window decor.

But asked if he will fire Kelley if elected president, Carter replied, "I will cross that bridge if I come to it."

When people throughout the country, particularly young people, see Richard Nixon cheating, lying, leaving the highest office in disgrace — when you see the head of the FBI break a little law and stay there, it gives everybody the sense that crime must be okay."

Meanwhile, Ford's stay-at-home campaign relied on a variety of events Tuesday aimed at showing him at work in the White House.

He held formal Rose Garden ceremonies Tuesday before television cameras to sign two bills that ordinarily would have been signed with little fanfare.

One bill provides funds for victims of the collapse of Idaho's Teton Dam. White House aides made sure Idaho Sen. Frank Church, who had sought the Democratic presidential nomination, was positioned behind Ford as the television cameras recorded the signing.

The other bill signed by Ford was a rerun of a measure Ford vetoed earlier this year. It adds $240 million to authorized funding for federal day-care services for children.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New ideas are available for your contemplation so make sure you are able to build a better set of circumstances for yourself. You can benefit by being alert to new situations.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on your personal aims and see what can be done to gain them easily. Improve social relationships with others tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Gain the favor of associates and increase your success. You need to give more attention to your health. Obtain the data you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make a new friend who can be of great assistance to you in the future. Pleasure activities should be planned early in the day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend a civic affair that is important to you. Consult a financial expert for advice you need. Use care in motion.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A new situation develops that gives you an opportunity to get ahead faster. Go to the right sources for the information you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a new method for handling obligations and get good results. Adopt a new attitude with mate and have greater accord.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make new arrangements with associates and come to a true understanding with them. Look to an expert for the advice you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take a new stance where co-workers are concerned and iron out any misunderstandings. Relax at home tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Work on any creative ideas you have that will make the future brighter for you. Take time to engage in favorite hobby.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to control your temper at all times today. Forget about going on a worthless tangent today. Think constructively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Spend your time wisely and don't go on a trip unless it's for a constructive purpose. Keep a close watch on important papers.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to act quickly where money matters are concerned, otherwise you could lose a great deal. Avoid a troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who acts hastily and should be taught to exercise more caution. A course of education that is well-rounded is what is needed here in order to reach the place of prominence your progeny dreams about. There are many facets to this nature that can bring success.

The Stars impel, yet you do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Strong cold drugs decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said today it will allow 10 strong medicines, available until now only on a doctor's orders, to be sold without prescription. The drugs are used to treat symptoms of coughs, cold, allergies and asthma.

The agency predicted the decision, coming just ahead of the traditional season for colds and hay fever, will save consumers money by reducing trips to the doctor's office and time lost from work. The average American suffers three colds each year, experts say.

A panel of outside scientists had recommended the action on the basis of its three-year study of the 35,000 to 50,000 cough and cold remedies sold without prescription.

The panel also said: —No non-prescription cough or cold drug should contain more than three active ingredients, and each of them must be from a different group such as cough suppressant, nasal decongestant and antihistamines.

No pay raise this year for members of congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no cost-of-living pay raise this election year for members of Congress.

The Senate voted 46 to 25 Tuesday to exclude Senators and House members from an automatic pay increase due Oct. 1 to all federal civil service employees.

The House had voted 325 to 75 last Wednesday to exclude not only Congress but also federal judges, Cabinet members and other top federal officials earning more than $37,800 a year.

Reported missing, now dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two missing American pilots who the North Vietnamese now say are dead were previously identified by American officials as alive after they were shot down during the Vietnam war.

North Vietnamese diplomats remained silent five years ago when given evidence suggesting that the two pilots were alive when captured during the war, says the Pentagon's top expert on prisoners of war.

Shields spoke in an interview Tuesday after President Ford demanded "a full accounting without further delay" of all the missing.

Coahoma grad is selected

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Richard L. Bearden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin L. Bearden of Coahoma, has been selected for technical training at Corry Field, Fla., in the Air Force communications systems operations field.

He noted that the United Nations is about to consider North Vietnam's application for membership, something the United States has refused to permit so far. Shields recalled that during the Paris peace talks the United States laid before the North Vietnamese diplomats information relating to a number of men.

The Pentagon said publicly at the time that these men "were known to be alive, on the ground in North Vietnam, or were at one time actually identified by the North Vietnamese as having been captured."

Capling of Detroit and Waters of Mocksville, N.C., were among this group, Shields said. Capling was shot down in 1968, Waters in 1966.

Defendant in pot case faces prison sentence

COLORADO CITY — Two trials were held in Colorado City during the past week with one going to the jury late Wednesday and the other ending Friday with a plea of guilty.

Carrizales, 21, of Colorado City, had been arrested on a charge of murder following the death of his cousin, Jose Aguilar of Lamesa, Dec. 26. Aguilar bled to death from a stab wound in the leg.

Future of Laos to be discussed

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and Laotian Premier Kaysone Phomvihane are meeting in Moscow to discuss the future of Laos, the official Communist news agency Tass reported.

Brezhnev suggested at a meeting Monday that the new Southeast Asian state has an important role to play in supporting progressive movements in Asia.

Trials were heard before District Judge Weldone E. Kirk. Lupe Galvan Jr. of Lorraine was found guilty of possession of more than four ounces of marijuana. The jury recommended sentence of 15 years. Date for sentencing has been set for Sept. 17.

In the second trial of Alfredo Carrizales, the guilty plea resulted in a five-year probation sentence on the charge of aggravated assault.

Mystery unraveled

with Marj Carpenter

Once in this column, I ran the Fairview Grocery Store as a "mystery store", and I have now receive more information on it than on any store in the county.

The people who originally owned the house were heard from immediately. Now, we have a wonderful newsy letter from Gerber, Calif., from a Mrs. R. F. Morehouse that tells us most of the rest of it. Thank you, Mrs. Morehouse.

She said, in part, "Our family, the Earnest Grissam family moved to Howard County in 1919 from Clovis, N.M. and lived in the Fairview area until 1946. The mystery store was moved to that location in 1939 by my father, Earnest Grissam from its location north of Big Spring. My family lived there until 1946 and we then moved to Pictown, N.M.

"Among the friends we remember in that area is Ray McNew, who lives one mile north. My sister, Ora Lee and Earnestine attended both the Fairview school and the Moore school. We had a lot of relatives around. Callie, widow of Charlie Grissam, still lives at Elbow."

Earnest had the store at Fairview and Charlie the store at Elbow so the Grissams were on both sides of town. Morehouse continued, "M. J. Copeland was my grandfather and a lot of his family remain in the area. This year's Heritage Museum calendar, on the November page, has a picture showing Charlie Grissam, John McGarry and Earnest Grissam."

Earnest Grissam died Jan. 1, 1950 at Salem, N.M. and he is buried in Mt. Olive Memorial Park.

Mrs. Morehouse said "The Earnest Grissam family has dwindled to just three remaining daughters, Mrs. Fred (Ora Lee) Cates of Colusa, Calif.; Mrs. Vernie (Earnestine) Robson, of Red Bluff, Calif. and me."

Mrs. Morehouse said that they come back around Big Spring every few years to touch base with old friends. "We had just been in to see the old store when your article came out. And that store is no mystery to us."

This fence rider is so pleased that Mrs. Morehouse took time to write. So many things that are not a mystery to the old timers who went through them are a mystery to the rest of us.

The present people operating the store knew nothing of its history. They referred us to others who were unable to learn from whence it came.

But because of that mystery story, we have now had three more columns about the Fairview Store from people who do remember it.

With this letter, anyone who had lost touch with the Grissam girls can now know where they are. Their brother, Monroe died in 1965 in Oloville, Calif. and their mother, Mattie, died two years ago in Gerber.

EARNEST GRISSAM ... in the good old days

However, part of their memories and part of their hearts are apparently still here in Big Spring where for seven years their father operated the Fairview Store. I'll think about them every time I drive by that store on the Lamesa Highway, when I'm out ridin' fence.

He infringed on copyright

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Beatle George Harrison was not aware of it, but he infringed on a copyright when he wrote the melody for "My Sweet Lord" in 1970, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Owen, a composer himself, convicted Harrison of copyright infringement Tuesday. Although Harrison did not deliberately plagiarize the melody of "He's So Fine," he did essentially use the work, the judge said.

"His subconsciousness knew that song had worked out but his conscious mind did not remember," Owen said. "This then under the law is infringement of a copyright."

Owen scheduled a trial for Nov. 8 on the issue of damages in the lawsuit brought by the Bright Tunes Music Corporation, which owns the copyright to "He's So Fine."

Shoot-out time for Republicans

By SCOTT CARPENTER
Herald Staff Writer

AUSTIN — Republicans head for a shoot-out this weekend on the banks of the Colorado River where they'll be deciding who will head the state party for the next two years.

The choices are to continue the reign of Ray Hutchison of Dallas who has wiped out a $200,000 state party debt, or install Ray Barnhart of Houston, who led the state Reagan forces to Kansas City.

Hutchison's announcement that he was seeking reelection was printed on state party stationery. That quickly changed when Barnhart got into the race. Hutchison was having Doug Lewis, state party top staffer, hand out his releases, but Lewis was saying it was during his lunch hour.

And, the releases now contain the phrase "not printed at Republican Party of Texas expense."

John Connally said he wouldn't take sides in the party race at the press conference to announce he was heading President Ford's reelection efforts in Texas, but might later. He was sure, he said, Hutchison would win. Nellie Connally told Hutchison he was her pick.

Secretary of State Mark White must have been smarting when the Texas Observer printed an article by White's former press aid attacking White and aide Lupe Zamarripa for using the state voter registration drive as a stepping stone for a statewide race for White. The Observer, the day the story hit the news stands, mailed White his annual subscription renewal notice.

A little later in the week, Federal Judge Adrian

Spears gave White a lecture for being trappy to court. White was an hour late for a case set before a three-judge panel and Judge Spears thought that a little arrogant.

Rep. Don Rains of San Marcos has to be one of the least identifiable members of the House. During a hearing two longtime Capitol reporters who cover the House daily when it's in session asked who Rains was, and when told, said "I don't think I've ever seen him before."

Aeronautics Commission Counsel John Soule is proudly sporting a President Ford button at all occasions, even the latest TAC meeting. He says it's perfectly legal and proper for him to be one-sided politically. Others in his office are doing the same. From a brief check, that's the only state office where there are as many buttoned as not.

Former House member and longtime lobbyist Jimmy Day of Brookshire said he got just what he wanted when he ran third in a race for state representative. He pulled 5,000 votes from incumbent Rep. Latham Boone of Navasota (the man who beat Gus Mutscher) and that threw Boone into a runoff which he lost. Day said he got votes from Black areas which didn't show up for the runoff, and the defeat of Boone was what he wanted. Without Day in the race, Day said, Boone would have won.

Day's wife, Good Neighbor Commission Member Annie Laura Day, said it would take $1 million a year for that agency to do the job it's supposed to. That would include overseeing all migrant programs and reporting on them to the governor. Without that money, she thinks the agency ought to do what it was started to do — act as a public relations agency for the state, which constitutionally, she says, can't have one. "So you call it a Good Neighbor Commission."

Local chamber banquet will be held Jan. 24

The Organizational Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has selected a date for the annual Chamber banquet.

The event will be held Jan. 24, and the speaker, a humorist, to be announced at a later date. The committee also appointed a nominations committee to review names of citizens submitted for outstanding Big Spring man and woman.

The selection committee will include Joe Pickle, Mrs. Janelle Davis, Terry Hanson, Mrs. Grace Peters and Clyde McMahon Sr.

The committee also set up plans for the selection of thirty high school students to serve on this year's BASIC organization.

Applications forms are to be distributed at the high school for students interested in the Big Spring Area Student Involvement Council.

John Arrick, chamber vice president and chairman of the Organizational Affairs group, pointed out that the BASIC group had been formed by this committee of the Chamber last year and that it has been very successful.

The committee discussed ways of having regular reports from the BASIC members so that they can have more input into chamber projects.

The committee also heard a report concerning the possible formation of a women's division of the Chamber. The group agreed to attempt to obtain more women members into the chamber itself and to solicit more help from the women rather than setting up a separate division.

The committee named a chairman for the banquet to be announced after she has been contacted by the members of the group.

Attending the meeting at the Holiday Inn Tuesday were Ellis Britton, Dan Allen, Sidney Clark, Terry Hanson, Clyde Hollinsworth, Mrs. Margaret Hamby and Mrs. Marj Carpenter.

Historic Sabine Pass lighthouse destroyed

SABINE PASS, Tex. (AP) — The 91-year-old keepers' house and several out-buildings at the historic Sabine Pass lighthouse were destroyed late Tuesday afternoon, victims of a marsh fire.

The 85-foot brick lighthouse tower, built in 1856, was not damaged. No effort was made to fight the marsh fire, a common occurrence in the grassy, coastal region.

The lighthouse and buildings are on the Louisiana side, but can only be approached by shallow draft boats from the Texas shore of the Sabine River.

The surrounding area was also blackened by marsh fires.

The ten-room wooden house was built in 1887 to replace an earlier building swept away in a hurricane. The tower served as a beacon on the Texas-Louisiana coastal border until 1952.

In recent years, the lighthouse and the buildings around it had suffered from neglect and vandalism. Vandals had even stolen the copper roof from the tower.

Plans had been drawn up to make the lighthouse and the keepers' house into a tourist area. The house was to have been made into a museum.

The Louisiana legislature, however, never considered bills to provide funding for the project.

The Louisiana Parks and Recreation Department, which took over the site about two years ago, marked the sagging, abandoned buildings as tourist sites four months ago.

Authorities said a boathouse, a generator house and other wooden structures were consumed by the blaze.

Gov. Briscoe okays grant

AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has approved a grant for $22,724 for continued law enforcement training in the region served by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

The City of Midland and Permian Basin RPC will provide law enforcement training courses and eight 40-hour in-service training schools in Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties.

The local grant was among 78 approved by Governor Briscoe statewide with funding from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration under the Crime Control Act of 1973.

Her chances not bad, she admits

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — British Conservative party leader Margaret Thatcher, concluding a two-day visit to Pakistan, says her chances of becoming England's first woman prime minister are "not bad."

She made the statement at a news conference Monday following private meetings with Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

The results of the first week of "Crystal Ball" predictions turned out miserably for yours truly. I finished at the bottom of the six-pick list with a .333 percentage, and of "Red River" Finley topped all pollsters with a .583 rate.

We all hope to improve our standings this week, and the defeat of Hobbs by Big Spring will be a great start.

Number 55 in the black and gold, Alan Partee, the Steers' top 192-pound senior offensive center, has been named this week's tri-captain for the Hobbs game.

The coaching staff, after reviewing and grading the film of the Andrews game, bestowed upon him that honor.

Partee has quite a busy night this Friday. Not only will he be opposite the Hobbs' "warhorse" Steve Cox, (No. 55 as well, and 193 pounds), but Partee is also president of the band and will crown the Queen of the band at half-time.

Robbins said that Cox was a "tremendous player, and Partee will be a very busy young man" in keeping Cox out of the Steer offensive backfield.

Cox is surrounded by two tackles that weigh in at 237 pounds and 225 pounds. The middle of the Hobbs' defense will be formidable indeed.

"It was very hard to get anything done yesterday," said Head Coach Don Robbins, of the rainstorm-postponed practice Tuesday.

The Steers had to go inside to practice and view Hobbs' game-film. The Longhorns worked on assignment type duties, defensive recognition, and reviewed each of the responsibilities on the triple option defensive tactics.

The junior varsity was used in simulating the Hobbs' highly-touted wishbone offense.

Decision-making time College football

NEW YORK (AP) — It's decision-making time. And it has nothing to do with people named Ford or Carter, although it wouldn't be surprising if Jerry Ford, a one-time Michigan center, dropped in to see how the football team is coming along when he kicks off his campaign in Ann Arbor this week.

No, the immediate choices lie between Nebraska and Louisiana State, Arizona State and UCLA, Ohio State and Michigan State, Pitt and Notre Dame — people like that.

Our Presidential favorite will remain a secret; that's why they have curtains around voting booths. The college football picks are yours for the price of this newspaper.

Nebraska at Louisiana State: The Cornhuskers had all sorts of trouble with LSU a year ago, winning by only 10-7. This time, the Cornhuskers are ranked No. 1 in the nation, but it still won't be a runaway ... Nebraska 21-14.

UCLA at Arizona State: The Sun Devils make no bones about it — they're going for No. 1. You can see them do it on national television in a unique Thursday night game, if the cameraman can stay with the ASU speed demons ... Arizona State 28-14.

Michigan State at Ohio State: For a change, someone other than Woody Hayes is out for revenge.

Michigan State is steaming because Hayes — among others — whispered recruiting misdeeds into NCAA ears, leading to a whopping three-year probation. New Coach Darryl Rogers said he doesn't know Hayes or Columbus, Ohio, very well but he doesn't like either one. He'll like them even less after ... Ohio State 24-7.

Oklahoma at Vanderbilt: No team has ever won three national championships in a row and only one team has a chance this year ... Oklahoma 38-14.

Alabama at Mississippi: How much was Ole Miss looking ahead when Memphis State zapped 'em last weekend? Too much, probably. Last week, the Tigers; this week, a Bear named Bryant ... Alabama 28-7.

Virginia Tech at Texas A&M: The Gobblers are trying to crack the Top Twenty and this could be their only stumbling block ... Texas A&M 24-10.

Washington State at Kansas: Jackie Sherrill, State's new coach, may turn the program around, but not this fast ... Kansas 28-14.

Houston at Baylor: Houston makes its long-awaited debut in the Southwest Conference. Too much, too soon ... Baylor 20-12.

Tulsa at Oklahoma State: Winner can lay claim to being the second best team in the State of Oklahoma ... Oklahoma State 29-14.

Alabama at Mississippi: How much was Ole Miss looking ahead when Memphis State zapped 'em last weekend? Too much, probably. Last week, the Tigers; this week, a Bear named Bryant ... Alabama 28-7.

Virginia Tech at Texas A&M: The Gobblers are trying to crack the Top Twenty and this could be their only stumbling block ... Texas A&M 24-10.

Washington State at Kansas: Jackie Sherrill, State's new coach, may turn the program around, but not this fast ... Kansas 28-14.

and five-man defensive line. The Steer attitude on the upcoming game can be described in two words, said Robbins, "Hobbs Wednesday." Robbins is hoping the rains stay away today, as this will be the last "hard" day of practice, and the Steers will be tapering off Thursday and Friday in preparation for the game.

Lamesa's Steve Freeman, fighting for a berth on the Buffalo Bills, enhanced his position Friday night when he pounced on three Cleveland Browns fumbles to pace the Bills to a 28-10 victory in the NFL pre-season game.

The recoveries by Freeman set up three Buffalo touchdowns, and gave the winners the momentum to take a quick lead over a strong Cleveland Brown team.

Early in the game, Buffalo's Marv Bateman punted 59 yards to Cleveland's Larry Poole who was unable to hold the ball. Following Freeman's recovery, the Bills scored four plays later.

On the second play after the Buffalo kickoff, the ball again got away from Poole. Freeman, playing for the injured Tony Greene, pounced on the pigskin again, and eight plays later, the Bills scored.

Early in the second period, Cleveland's Cleo Miller fumbled the ball away and Freeman came up with the ball again. Eight plays later, the Bills had their third TD as a result of Freeman's swift fingers.

Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Freeman of Lamesa, is playing his second National Football League season after graduating from Mississippi State.

Quote for the day: When asked if he thought the 30 per cent chance of showers today would hold up, Robbins replied: "If you could predict the weather, you could cure the common cold."

Colorado at Texas Tech: The last time the Buffs hit the Lone Star State, Texas provided a 38-21 loss in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Tech ain't Texas ... Colorado 28-20.

Arkansas State at San Diego State: Goodbye to the nation's longest winning streak at a major college. Arkansas State has won 15 in a row, but ... San Diego State 21-13.

Wisconsin at Michigan: Oh, yes, Mr. President, the Wolverines are doing very nicely, thank you ... Michigan 42-7.

Rutgers at Navy: The Scarlet Knights are looking for an unbeaten season to match the one turned in by the basketball team. Surprise, surprise ... Navy 18-14.

Duke at Tennessee: The feeling in this corner is that the Vols will be the surprise team in the South ... Tennessee 24-10.

Indiana at Minnesota: The Gophers, riding Tony Dungy's throwing arm, are the Big Ten's darkhorse. Things get even darker via the Upset Special of the Week ... Indiana 21-17.

Alabama at Mississippi: How much was Ole Miss looking ahead when Memphis State zapped 'em last weekend? Too much, probably. Last week, the Tigers; this week, a Bear named Bryant ... Alabama 28-7.

Virginia Tech at Texas A&M: The Gobblers are trying to crack the Top Twenty and this could be their only stumbling block ... Texas A&M 24-10.

Washington State at Kansas: Jackie Sherrill, State's new coach, may turn the program around, but not this fast ... Kansas 28-14.

Alabama at Mississippi: How much was Ole Miss looking ahead when Memphis State zapped 'em last weekend? Too much, probably. Last week, the Tigers; this week, a Bear named Bryant ... Alabama 28-7.

Virginia Tech at Texas A&M: The Gobblers are trying to crack the Top Twenty and this could be their only stumbling block ... Texas A&M 24-10.

Washington State at Kansas: Jackie Sherrill, State's new coach, may turn the program around, but not this fast ... Kansas 28-14.

Houston at Baylor: Houston makes its long-awaited debut in the Southwest Conference. Too much, too soon ... Baylor 20-12.

Tulsa at Oklahoma State: Winner can lay claim to being the second best team in the State of Oklahoma ... Oklahoma State 29-14.

Tournament results New president named

By WALT FINLEY

Don Couvillion, who played singles in the Air Force's World Wide Tournament in Boston, Mass., is the newly elected president of the Big Spring Tennis Association.

The 6-foot, 170-pound righthander with a twisting serve was invited to participate in the Boston event after he placed near the top in Alaskan Air Force Tournament competition in 1954.

The lanky pilot is retired from the U.S. Air Force and is presently employed by Corden Oil and Chemical Co.

Other new officers include Victor Coats, a Corden employee, vice-president and Edna Nichols, wife of Bud Nichols, a Democratic candidate for county commissioner, is secretary-treasurer.

Members of the association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Figure Seven Tennis Center to discuss tennis play.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1976

QB Club growing as unity reigns

"We came home disappointed, but not discouraged," Coach Don Robbins told an ever-growing Quarterback Club Tuesday night.

He and Coach Ron Logback reviewed the Andrews game film, pointing out strong points and weak points to the crowd of over 100 interested parents and other Steer backers.

They also heard a report on the Hobbs team, which defeated Lovington 46-0 in their opener. Coach Robbins told the group, "I hope it rained in Hobbs this afternoon too, because it brought our workout inside."

He reported that three varsity players, Robbie Wrinkle, Jimmy McChristian and Jesse Doss have a light case of flu this week, but "hope they'll be back in action."

Coach Wayne Nail of Goliad reminded fans of a game at Travis Field in Snyder at 5:30 p.m. Thursday and one Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Blankenship Field.

Coach Bobby Zellars of Runnels plays Snyder at 5:30 p.m. Thursday here. Coach Ed Henry reported for the two freshmen teams who meet Snyder at 7 p.m. Thursday and play Brownwood here Saturday.

The freshman A team beat Andrews last week, 36-0, and the B team lost by a 0-6 score.

Coach Don Childs, whose JV's lost to Andrews 6-26 play Snyder at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Memorial Stadium.

Plans are being readied for the Big Spring Ladies City Golf Championship for the weekend of Sept. 25 and 26.

The shotgun start will begin that Saturday at 9 a.m., and the final 18 holes will be played the following day at 1 p.m.

The tournament will be flighted with full handicap, with the first round determining those flights. A current September handicap is required.

Jerry Foresyth, one of the tri-captains of the club, welcomed guests and passed out football books and posters. The Gold Digger leaders and cheerleaders were also introduced.

Beaumont Hebert in Class 3A and Rockdale in 2A, already on top in their respective divisions, have received added honors this week as unanimous No. 1 pick in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Hebert, which convincingly trounced cross-town rival Beaumont Forest Park 35-7 and Rockdale, which thumped Brenham 21-9, each received all 17 first place votes of the AP panel of Texas sports writers.

Joining Hebert and Rockdale with No. 1 billings after the first week of schoolboy games are Brazoswood in 4A Aledo in A and newcomer Rochester in B.

Abilene earned its promotion to the top 10 with a 39-0 embarrassment of Rider. Killeen blasted Austin Lanier 39-6.

Brownwood, a perennial powerhouse in Class 3A, lost its opener to Class 4A Abilene Cooper 14-13 and dropped from No. 2 to No. 6.

Mount Pleasant, ranked eighth a week ago, dropped out of the top 10 after losing 11-3 to 4A Marshall.

Double T's offense could be superior

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan said Tuesday he has decided not to red-shirt quarterback Rodney Allison, who is in a battle for the No. 1 spot with senior Tommy Dunivin.

Allison, a junior, had been running a close battle with the strong-armed Dunivin and Sloan indicated during spring training a possibility that he might red-shirt the nifty-running Allison.

"I had been thinking about 1978, but decided a lot of things can happen between now and then," Sloan told fouring Southwest Conference football writers.

Sloan laughed and added, "Somebody might shoot me with a harpoon before 1978... you just can't tell what will happen. Both quarterbacks will be ready to go for our opener against Colorado."

Sloan indicated that both Dunivin and Allison will see plenty of action.

"If one is not doing well, then I will play the other quarterback... we'll kind of play it by ear," he said.

Sloan, a former All-American quarterback under Bear Bryant at Alabama, said, "I don't remember ever having two guys that capable at quarterback on the same team. Both of them are winners."

Sloan said Tech's offense could be superior and had high praise for his offensive line.

"If I had to go to Russia to fight, I wouldn't mind taking them along," Sloan said of his offensive line. "We are a little undersized but the quickness is above average."

He said one of the keys to the Red Raider season could be the Sept. 11 opener in Lubbock against powerful Colorado of the Big Eight Conference.

"I think it would help our confidence a great deal if we could beat them," said Sloan. "Understand it's not a live or die situation, but there would be great by-products of we could beat Texas Tech has two open dates in September and Sloan said "The schedule is in our favor. It will help our inexperienced kids."

While Sloan said his offense "has the potential to be the best I've been around," he admitted his defensive team was a big question mark.

"We will field a competitive first-line team, but we don't have much depth," said Sloan. "We have been very aggressive in practice, but then again, we haven't played a down under fire."

Sloan said he felt that the defending co-champions, Arkansas, Texas A&M and Texas "are the teams to beat."

He added, "I've always been a big Houston fan and admired the way they've played. I have a tendency to think they will be a factor."

Told that Texas Christian Coach Jim Shofner had picked the Tech team to win the championship, Sloan smiled, raised a diet soft drink on high, and said, "Here's a toast to those people. I hope they know what they're talking about."

Sports briefs

TENNIS
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Temperamental Ilie Nastase of Romania overcame Roscoe Tanner 7-5, 6-7, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 to move into the quarter-finals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

HOCKEY
PHILADELPHIA — Czechoslovakia's Joseph Augusta backhanded shot past goaltender Mike Curran with 5:54 remaining to give his team a 4-1 tie with Team USA in Canada Cup competition.

HARNESS RACING
DU QUOIN, Ill. — Steve Lobell, $17,600, won the 51st Hambletonian Stakes by a head over Armbr Regina.

'KINDA SUDDEN' — This local horse owned by Ronnie Moser and Ted Groebl won the third consolation of the All-American Futurity. The race was run last Friday at Ruidoso Downs, N.M., and the horse should be even better next year. Shown in the bottom half of the picture, second from the horse on the left, Ronnie Moser, Ted Groebl, Pete Herrera (holding trophy), Jan Moser, Janette Middleton and Ann Groebl. Harry Middleton is second from the far left, Roy Brooks is the jockey, and Tom Wiley, third from the right, is the trainer.

Local horse in top ten

"Kinda Sudden", a champion quarterhorse owned by local men Ronnie Moser and Ted Groebl, won the Third Consolation of the All-American Futurity held in Ruidoso, N.M. Sept. 3.

The horse, rated as one of the top ten in the nation, missed the Rainbow Futurity by only 3 1/2-hundredths of a second. The horse, destined for corrective treatment in Kentucky shortly, is also rated as one of the top 20 horses in the world.

Tom Wiley, trainer of the horse

American Party files suit to halt debates

WASHINGTON (AP) - The American party and its presidential and vice presidential candidates filed suit in U.S. District Court today to halt the forthcoming debates between President Ford and Jimmy Carter. "The so-called 'debates' are a political event staged for the media and are not bonafide news events, eligible for exemption from the equal time requirements" of the law, said the complaint. The equal time provisions require broadcasters to give comparable exposure to all candidates. News coverage generally is excepted from the rule. The three debates agreed upon by Ford and his Democratic party opponent are sponsored by the League of Women Voters - not the networks - and will be televised as news events. The first is to be held in the old Walnut Street Theater in Philadelphia Sept. 23. Plaintiffs in the suit are Tom Anderson, the 64-year-old American party candidate for president, and Rufus Shackelford, his running mate. Anderson and Shackelford were chosen by 262 delegates at the party's third national convention in Salt Lake City in June. The complaint specifies that the party is "not to be confused with the American Independent or ax-handle Nazi parties or ax-handle racism." The American Independent party nominated Lester Maddox and William Dyke last month in Chicago. Named as defendants in the suit were Ford and Carter, their running mates, officials of the Federal Election Commission and the League of Women Voters.

Sponsorship of the debates "amounts to an illegal, campaign expenditure and contribution to the two so-called major candidates," the suit said. Anderson, a millionaire, is a conservative author and orator from Pigeon Forge, Tenn. Shackelford, also a millionaire, is a tomato farmer from Wauchula, Fla. Anderson was the party's candidate for vice president in 1972 when Rep. John Schmitz ran for president. Former Gov. George Wallace headed the ticket in 1968 and the party received 9.9 million votes. Without Wallace, who returned to the Democratic party in 1972, the American party received one million votes.

Soviet defector to head for U. S.

TOKYO (AP) - The Soviet air force pilot who landed his MIG25 fighter jet in northern Japan will leave for the United States in a day or two unless some unexpected development delays his departure, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said today. The flier, Lt. Viktor I. Belenko, 29, told police after his surprise landing Monday that he wanted asylum in the United States. The U.S. Embassy declined to comment, but White House press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters in Washington: "If the pilot requests asylum in the United States, I'm sure he will be welcomed here."

Washington sources reported that U.S. experts were making a thorough examination of Belenko's plane, but the Japanese spokesman denied this. "As far as I know, no foreigners have touched the aircraft," he said. The Soviet Embassy said it lodged "more than five protests" because the Japanese government would not let it see Belenko. The Soviet Union demanded that both the pilot and the plane be returned. The Japanese Foreign Ministry said the Soviet Embassy's request to interview Belenko had been denied, and the government took the "humanitarian view" that his request for asylum should be honored. But it was expected that the plane would be given back after American and Japanese experts learned all they could from it.

The MIG25 was still at the commercial airport at Hakodate, on Japan's northernmost island, where Belenko landed. U.S. military sources in Washington said American intelligence specialists are going over it thoroughly. An intelligence bonanza was expected from the inspection. Officially, however, the U.S. and Japanese governments refused to say that the Americans were inspecting the plane. Sources in Washington indicated the U.S. government was trying to spare the Japanese diplomatic difficulties with the Soviet Union. The plane, called the Foxbat, can fly at more than 2,000 miles an hour at 80,000 feet and is faster than the fastest American interceptor, the F15 Eagle. Although U.S. Air Force experts contend that the F15 is more maneuverable, Air Force Secretary Robert Seamans in 1973 said the MIG 25 was "probably the best interceptor in production in the world" at the time.

Trimmed employment bill faces test today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress adjourns for the year on Oct. 2. The committee passed an earlier version in May. However, that bill was blocked by the House leadership from coming to the House floor after the measure attracted a lot of political lightning. The Republican National Convention used the bill as a prime example of what the GOP considered the tendency of congressional Democrats to spend huge amounts of tax money and to expand government. And 60 of the 81 Democratic freshmen asked the House leadership not to bring up the costly bill because it might hurt their re-election chances. Under the bill, the president, Congress and the 'Animal Lovers' HOUSTON (AP) — Michael A. Burke, a theater operator, has been sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $1,000 after pleading guilty to commercial obscenity. County Criminal Court Judge Neil McKay sentenced Burke Tuesday for showing the film "Animal Lovers" May 27 and June 15 in his two theaters. Federal Reserve would take various steps aimed at stimulating private industry to produce new jobs. To further close the unemployment gap, there would be public service jobs to employ those unable to find work elsewhere. The Ford administration claims the bill would cost $30 billion annually. Others estimate the cost from $8 billion to $16 billion. It also has been criticized by some supporters of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, and some liberal economists have said it might be inflationary. Since the early summer,

Hawkins, organized labor and civil rights organizations have regrouped to revise the bill. That revision is up for committee approval. An aide to Hawkins said the revisions have been endorsed by Carter campaign aides and are being promoted with vigor by the AFL-CIO and other groups. These are the key changes: —The goal of getting unemployment down to 3 per cent within four years would be for adults only. The original 3 per cent goal was to include persons between the age of 16 and 20 as well as adults. By comparison, the August unemployment rate was 7.9 per cent. —The bill's mandate to plan ahead for balanced growth in the economy with full employment and minimal inflation would apply only to government planning. The original measure held the prospect of government planning for private business. —An anti-inflationary section was inserted to set the goal of keeping the annual rate of consumer prices at the level they are at the time the bill is enacted into law. —Providing government jobs to persons who can't find other work — the so-called "last-resort" jobs — would be delayed until two years after the bill takes effect. These would be mainly lower skilled jobs.

Wants chess player barred

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — The Soviet government has officially requested that chess grandmaster Viktor Korchnoi, who has defected from Russia, be barred from the next world championship series, the International Chess Federation says. Korchnoi is in The Netherlands on a six-month permit while he awaits a decision on his application for political asylum. He did not return to Russia in July after competing in a tournament in Amsterdam. However, federation president Max Euwe said Tuesday that nothing can
