Pampa's Rights To Canadian River Water At Stake Tuesday

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer

Pampa residents will decide Tuesday whether they will protect their rights to surface water of the Canadian River.

The results of the election called by the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, to be held in Pampa Tuesday, will decide this question. It will also decide whether or not the citizens of this city are in favor of building the dam and necessary water transmitting facilities to the cities in the authority by obtaining funds from the federal government.

The authority was formed on Nov. 30, 1953, when the board of directors approved the votes of the 11 cities on forming the authority. Prior to this time preliminary studies had been made to determine the feasibility of building a dam on the Canadian River and obtaining authorization for the dam from the federal government and from the state of Texas. Agreements on water rights also had to be made with Oklahoma and New Mexico before any plans could be made to remove water from the river.

Early Work

The Canadian River Project Organization Committee was formed in Plainview on June 17, 1949, after a report from the Bureau of Reclamation advised that approval had been made for the construction of a dam on the Canadian river approximately one mile west of Sanford, nine miles west of Borger Later the name was changed to the Canadian River Water Users' Association and was authorized to act on behalf of the cities seeking project authorization and in other matters required to secure initiation of the project.

The formation of a Water Control and Improvement District was approved by the Texas Board of Water Engineers on March 11, 1953, and five temporary directors were appointed, pending the holding of elections to ratify the district.

A bill authorizing the formation of the water district was passed by the Texas Senate on March 17, 1953, and by the house with amendments by the House of Represnetatives on April 22, 1953. The amendments of the House were approved by the Senate and the bill was signed by the governor on May 27, 1953.

The authority, as constituted by this action, superseded the Water Control and Improvement District.

After the authority was approved by 11 of the 12 sponsoring cities, attempts were made to obtain private financing for the dam and water distribution system. Information on the loan was obtained and the cost of water to the 11 member cities, over the period of the loan, was determined.

Pampa Withdrew

The cities were asked to approve the water contract so that the loan could be obtained. Pampa and Amarillo both withdrew from the authority when the governing bodies of these cities were unwilling to pay the high cost of the water. Later the citizens of Plainview rejected the water purchase contract thereby removing that city from the authority.

The remaining eight cities could not purchase enough water from the authority to indicate that sufficient revenue could be obtained to pay off the debt under the private financing

On Jan. 30, 1957, the directors of the CRMWA voted unanimously that the authority would discontinue the efforts to build the dam by private financing and would seek federal financing for the purpose of the dam and other facalities under the original plan as authorized by Public Law 898 of the 81st Congress.

On the same day the directors went on record in inviting Plainview, Amarillo and Pampa to rejoin the authority.

On June 10, 1957, petitions were presented to the directors at a meeting in Lubbock requesting that elections be held in the three cities for the purpose of allowing the citizens to vote on rejoining the CRMWA.

A hearing on the petitions was held in Amarillo on July 17 and following the hearing the directors ordered elections in Amarillo and

Mayor Says City Should Re-Enter

The Pampa Public Improvement Committee of the Chamber of Commerce met at 3 p.m. Friday with A. A. Meredith, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

The meeting, was called by Floyd Watson, chairman of the committee, to discuss possibilities of Pampa re-entering the CRMWA.

Mayor Lynn Boyd stated that it would be an advantage for Pampa to re-enter the Authority.

"If we don't get back in, we will loose all rights to the water," the Mayor said. "We don't especially need the water now, but when we do need it, we will have to have some rights."

The Mayor explained that Pampa got out of the former Authority because of the Private Financing Plan which it was set up under required Pampa to buy $428,000 worth of water a year at that time. Boyd said Pampa was only selling $350,000 worth of water a year at that time.

The Private Financing Plan has since been dropped, and federal funds will be solicited by the new authority.

"We must think of the future now," Boyd continued, "and we need our rights in the Authority back. Then if we want to get out again, we can." he added.

"If the city decides to re - enter," A. A. Meredith stated, "it will assume no finacial liabilities or indebtedness enacted before the time it does so. Thereafter, Pampa will have a voice in whatever the Authority does."

Meredith also reminded the committee that the Canadian River is the only surface water resource in this part of the country which can be used economically.

"How soon the dam can be financed and built is a future question," he said.

The group also discussed the Lake McClellan project but decided to take no formal action with reference to a recommendation.

Eight Killed; One Hurt In 2-Car Crash

KENEDY, Tex., July 27 (UP)—Eight persons were killed late today in the mangled wreckage of two automobiles that smashed together four miles south of here. Four members of one family died in the crash.

It was one of the worst automobile accidents in the state in several months and brought to 18 the number of persons to die in mishaps during the weekend.

One of those killed was a two-year-old girl who died instantly when the two cars met, apparently at a high rate of speed on U.S. Highway 181 about 6:30 p.m. Two other children were carried in agony to a Kenedy hospital.

The dead were identified at the hospital as Henry Moas, 37, of Aransas Pass; his wife, Clara, 41; their 11-year-old stepson, James Lee Acorn, and their two-year-old daughter. A third Moas child, five-year-old Leslie, remains in critical condition at the Kenedy hospital, the only survivor of the family.

Park Improvements Discussed Here

Future improvements of the recreation park area were discussed during a called meeting of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Chamber of Commerce Saturday.

Chairman Paul Bowers called the meeting which was held at 10 a.m. in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

The leveling off and oiling of the grounds surrounding the community building was discussed in preparation for the five county Top o' Texas Show and Sale which is tentatively set for March 2, 3 and 4 of next year.

Irvin Cole is chairman of the improvement committee which plans to further investigate the project.

"The committee has an important part in promoting the show," Bowers stated. "Also, the improvement will be beneficial to other acitivities held in the building."

The Show and Sale is mainly set up for 4-H and FFA boys in the five county area, Bowers added. It is held in co-operation with the Top o' Texas Hereford Breeders' Show, with a separate county show being held the day before.

James Smathers is a newly appointed member of the committee.

Grand Jury Indicts Four Here Friday

Four indictments — two forgerys, one burglary and one second offense DWI — were returned by the 31st District Grand Jury in a nine hour session Friday.

The District Petit Jury is scheduled to meet tomorrow at 10 a.m. to begin work on these cases.

Seven cases had been set for Grand Jury consideration Friday morning. The session lasted until almost 8 p.m. Friday.

An indictment was returned on Hamilton D. Campbell for burglary with intent to commit theft on July 6. His bail was set at $2,000.

Robert H. Hickman was indicted on a forgery and passing charge for a $21.50 check passed to the J. C. Penny Company June 10. His bail was $2,000.

Also indicted on a forgery and passing charge was Harold B. Archer, for a $25 check given on June 10 to the White's Auto Store. Bail for Archer was also set at $2,000.

V. R. Billingsley was indicted for second offense driving while intoxicated on July 8 of this year. His bail was $1,500.

County Singers To Meet Today

The Gray County Community Singing Convention will meet at 2:30 this afternoon in the Bible Baptist Church, 320 E. Tyng, for the groups fourth Sunday meeting, according to Shelby Ruff, convention president.

Local quartets will be featured at the meeting today.

Ruff also anounced that a free singing school for all young people of Pampa and the surrounding area will begin August 5 and will be sponsored by the singing group. The classes will be held at the Immanuel Temple, 801 E. Campbell and will continue for two weeks.

Communist Guard Turns Gun On Self

GUATEMALA CITY, July 27 (UP)—A palace guard, identified as a Communist, assassinated President Carlos Castillo Armas with two shots from his sentry rifle in a darkened palace hallway Friday night. He then committed suicide.

The 43-year-old president, who rescued Guatemala from Red rule in 1954 and gave the country its first really democratic regime, fell dead at the side of his wife shortly after a gay reception. The bullet pierced his heart. The other also lodged in his chest.

At daybreak, First Vice President Luis Arturo Gonzalez-Lopez, another anti-Communist, assumed the presidency and the cabinet ordered a state of siege. Gonzalez-Lopez appealed for order and indicated that others had been involved in the assassination.

Castillo and his wife had just left his bedroom aftr the reception shortly after 9 p.m. and were walking toward the palace dining room.

Romeo Vasquez Sanchez was on guard duty in the hallway leading to the dining room. As the president and his wife approached, Vasquez suddenly turned out the light and raised his semi-automatic rifle. He fired twice in the dim light.

Ike Sends Dulles To London Talks

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—President Eisenhower today ordered Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to fly to London Sunday night and find out whether the disarmament talks can be saved from threatened deadlock or collapse.

A White House announcement, echoed by State Department spokesmen, said Dulles' unexpected trip does not mean either a "breakthrough" or a "breakdown" is near in the long search for a disarmament formula.

Dulles will make a "personal review and judgment" of the big disagreements between Russia and the West and the lesser issues among the Western allies on how to make a "first step" toward checking the arms race, administration spokesmen said.

However, informed sources added that it was increasingly apparent that early hopes of agreement with Russia are being destroyed by Russia's refusal to link a proposed nuclear test suspension with more fundamental and complicated first - step disarmament moves.

The West refuses to stop testing atomic weapons without assurance that Russia will join in a broader and workable system of controlled and inspected disarmament. Russia insists that to tie in nuclar stockpile controls, missile control, convention arms reductions, open-skies inspection plans, and other complex steps will mean a long delay in starting the temporary ban on bomb tests.

The UN Disarmament subcommittee must report to its parent body next week on progress of the London talks. The talks could continue after the report is filed, however.

State Department officials said the London negotiations ar not running out of time. The United States, they said, is willing to continue the talks so long as there is any hope of reaching agreement.

Two Boys Victims Of Cruel Killer

BROCKTON, Mass., July 27 — (UP) — The charred, mutilated and bound bodies of two young brothers were found in a public park under a pile of burning branches today, the victims of a sadistic killer.

The youngsters, John Logan, 12 and his brother, Paul, 10, who had been missing since Friday when they went for a swim, were found face down about a yard apart close by a large pond. The bathing suits had been stripped from their bodies, their wrists had been bound with clothesline rope and one of them had been hacked with a knife.

Car keys on a ring were beneath one boy's body.

The youngsters, of Stoughton, Mass., had been missing after their father took them to the D.W. Field park, which is guarded by eight lifeguards and park police.

Hearings Closed At Tech

LUBBOCK, July 27 (UP)— The chairman of the board of directors of Texas Tech today slammed the door shut on a hearing for three fired Tech professors.

The chairman, cottonseed oil man W. D. Watkins of Abilene, said that "no one's constitutional rights have been violated" and "we therefore consider the incident closed."

Watkins issued his statement to the press by messenger and wasn't available for further comment.

Fired In Secret Session

The three Tech professors were fired on July 13 when the board, in a secret session, voted not to renew the contracts for two of them and abolished the job of the third. The three lose their jobs, ranging in pay from $5,500 per year to near $7,000, on Sept. 1.

Drowning Victim's Services Are Scheduled For Tuesday

Funeral services for Marcus Alonzo Sanders, 19-year-old Pampa youth who drowned here Friday, are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Church of God in Christ, 404 Oklahoma.

The boy drowned at 12:30 Friday afternoon in a shallow earthen tank about one-half mile east of the Cities Service Booster Station on the southeastern outskirts of Pampa.

Three or four other boys were swimming in the pool at the time of the accident. They reported that Sanders dived off the bank into shallow water and apparently was stunned when he struck the bottom.

"He came up in a minute sucking water," one of the boys said.

When the group tried to pull the victim out, he fought them off and went under again. Finally they managed to pull him from the water, and called for help.

A resuscitator from the fire department was applied for about 30 minutes, but the boy could not be revived. Dr. M. McDaniel and Coroner J. W. Graham were called and the youth was pronounced dead shortly afterwards.

The Sanders boy was a member of the Church of God in Christ here, where his father, the Rev.

Oiler Park Sold To Rodeo Association

The Top o' Texas Rodeo Association purchased the Oiler Baseball Park facilities in a meeting Friday, according to Bob Andis, Association president.

Association directors bought the facilities at an 8 p.m. meeting in the Chamber of Commerce conference room. R. D. Mills was the former owner.

The Shriner's, in turn, purchased the concession items such as the popcorn machine, snow cone machine, hamburger grill, cushions, icebox and chairs, from the Rodeo Association during the meeting.

"The Association needed the lights and bleachers for the Top o' Texas Rodeo grounds," Andis reported.

A contract was signed the same evening with Les Kreis of Skellytown, and moving of the lights from the park to the rodeo grounds was begun Saturday morning.

"We hope we can get them in before the rodeo begins," Andis stated, adding that a portion of the bleachers will also be moved before this year's show. The rest will be moved at a later date.

Andis also reported that there will be nothing else sold from the park until the Rodeo Association has moved a large portion to the rodeo grounds. Then it is planned to dispose of the balance of the facilities through bidding around Aug. 20, he added.

The Rodeo office, located in the Chamber of Commerce office, will handle the bids, Andis said.

The park facilities were put up for sale when it was learned that the Santa Fe Railroad, from which the land was leased, needed the site.

Ike's Hopes Raised

GOP Tightens For 'Trial' Fight

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—Republican lines tightened in the Senate today and heightened administration hopes for defeating a jury trial amendment to the embattled civil rights bill.

A United Press survey showed five GOP senators, who deserted the administration on a major vote this week, had swung over on the jury trial issue and four others were inclined to do the same. This swing was offset, in part, by the defection of two Democrats who sided with the administration in the earlier test.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, leader of the bipartisan coalition supporting the administration bill, stuck to his prediction that jury trial amendments would be defeated. But he admitted the vote would be close.

Agree on Close Vote

He told reporters he was ready to vote on the issue next Tuesday but that there "apparently was some cooling off" on the part of senators backing the jury trial amendments. This largely Democratic bloc, heretofore confident of winning, had previously shown a willingness to vote early next week.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the southern bloc fighting the bill, told reporters he could not say that he would be ready to vote Tuesday. He said further discussion of the timing would be necessary.

Russell agreed with Knowland that "a very close vote" can be expected.

Amendment Vote Next

The Senate starts its fourth week of debate on the bill Monday.

The bill now provides for a commission to investigate violations of civil rights, a new assistant attorney general to handle civil rights cases, and use of injunctions against conspiracies to deprive persons of the right to vote.

The next major vote will come on an amendment sponsored by Sens. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Frank Church (D-Idaho).

Canadian River Water Rights Are At Stake

Pampa next Tuesday and an election in Plainview on August 6.

No Prior Obligation

A. A. Meredith, secretary-treasurer of the CRMWA, has reported that "When cities join the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority by a vote of their people for annexation, they positively do not assume any obligation whatever for the financing of construction of a project. That obligation can only be assumed and become a valid obligation of any city by and through the execution of a water contract between the city and the authority under which the city agrees to take and pay for so much water per year.

"Under the existing law," Meredith reported, "water contracts can be executed by the governing body of a city only after the qualified electors of the city have voted in favor of such a contract."

Can Withdraw Later

According to his informaion the city is not obligated to purchase the water if Pampa rejoins the authority, according to Mayor Lynn Boyd. "We are only taking a part in the preparations to obtain water from the Canadian River and we can drop out again if the cost of water is excessive," the mayor has stated

The authority will be the agency who will owe for the dam and the project works when it is completed. It will be the responsibility of the authority to sell the water and pay the debt for money borrowed to construct the project, Meredith reported. The cities are not responsible for the debt for construction of the project but their obligation will be to the authority under the contract they make for the purchase of water, he stated.

"Bonds voted by the eight project cities, constituting the authority on Nov. 8, 1955, were voted in connection with the proposed private financing arrangement," Meredith stated. He continued, "No bonds were ever printed or issued and there is no obligation existing on any city as a result of that bond election. Cities now joining the authority would have no obligation under that bond election."

This position on the $74,800,000 revenue bond issue reflects statements of the authority's counsel and declarations of the Board of Directors that are now a part of the official Minute Record of the authority.

Where To Vote

Voting places in Pampa will be located in each of the four wards and residents will vote in the polling place of the ward in which they reside.

The voting places and judges of each are: Ward 1, City Hall, DeLea Vicars; Ward 2, Woodrow Wilson School, J. B. Massa; Ward 3, Baker School, R G. McCalip; and Ward 4, IOOF Hall, H. H. Boynton.

The polls will open at 8 a.m. Tuesday and will remain open until 7 p.m.

Who Can Vote

Meredith reported that all residents of Pampa that hold a poll tax receipt or exemption and otherwise qualified may vote in Tuesday's annexation election. For this election, voters do not need to be property owners, he stated.

The unofficial results will be tabulated Tuesday night and the ballot boxes will be turned over to the city secretary, to hold until a representative of the authority picks the boxes up.

The votes will be officially canvassed by the directors of the authority in a meeting on Aug. 13 and the official results will be released at that time

Glasses Are Boon To Television

(William Ewald is on vacation. Today's guest writer is Robert Q. Lewis, host of his own CBS radio show).

By ROBERT Q. LEWIS
Written For The United Press

NEW YORK (UP) —To see or not to see, that was the question. The obvious answer started me off wearing horn - rimmed spectacles, of which I have two pairs for TV —17 inch set and 24 inch set.

It was a wise decision, too, for, in trying to resemble my friends with 20-20 vision, I had trouble with young ladies who thought I was winking at them—when I was just innocently squinting.

Also the glasses put me in the class of "spectacles are my trademark" fraternity which many of the humorists of the past couple of decades have employed.

One of the most noteworthy of the bunch has been Harold Lloyd, whose good vision never deterred him from doning the horn-rimmed gogles without lenses which were as much a part of his character makeup as the pancake variety.

Built-On Rims

Another set of spectacles that are purely decorative belong to Bobby Clark, the stage comedian. No eyeglass cases for him to lug around; he takes his specs from the markings of a handy eyebrow pencil.

More useful than decorative, Groucho Marx used his eyeglasses as a foil for expressive eyebrows which, like tide and time, never stand still. Depending on the current revival going the rounds, he wears simple rimless or silver rimmed glasses which are built to withstand the ravages of its master's puns.

Horn-rimmed glasses served to emphasize the often surprised look on the eyes of Walter Catlett, and the same kind set off the jolly good fellow nature of Phil Silvers.

Fans' Comments Vary

Specatcles have been the subject of about a third of Phil's fan mail, opinions ranging from "They make you look romantic" to "They drain you of sex appeal." He's been responsible, he's told, for seasonal spurts of business at optometrists' shops at times when he appears on TV.

How did I pick horn-rims? Well, I tried to figure out what type I was. Not being the George Arliss type meant a monocle was out. Anyway, I needed two. I'm not the lorgnette type; I don't like opera. I could have chosen the rimless style, but they gave me the appearance of looking at the world through the bottoms of two Pyrex frying pans.

The silver - rimmed specs were another alternative, but they didn't go with my new gold tie clip and cufflinks someone gave me for Christmas. Any resemblance between Franklin Pangborn and me was purely coincidental, so out went the pince-nez. Which left me with horn-rims.

People still ask me if I really have to wear glasses. To tell the truth, I don't have to—only wear them when I want to see.

GRAY COUNTY SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

By JIM SMATHERS
Work Unit Conservationist

A number of farmers who have land in the Conservation Reserve part of the Soil Bank are now planting a cover crop on their land. Grass will be seeded on this land next spring. July and August are the two months set as the time to plant a cover crop so that it would not mature before frost.

Sorghums or millet may be used as a cover crop. Sorghums, in rows, should be planted at the rate of 12 pounds per acre and drilled or broadcast at the rate of 18 pounds per acre. Millet should be planted at the rate of 12 pounds per care. If the cover crop shows signs of maturing it should be mowed to a stubble height of eight to ten inches and the resulting litter must be left on the land.

July is almost gone so only about a months time is left to get a cover crop started. The few showers that have fallen this past past week have put some fields in just the right condition for seeding.

The fish truck was in town Thursday afternoon and most of those ordering fish received their orders. Some did not receive what was ordered or as many fish as was wanted. James Banner, supt. of the Fish and Wildlife Service at Santa Rosa, N.M., explained that some fish orders had to be cancelled and others cut down due to a poor hatch this year and due to large number of requests for fish received.

Equatorial Island Has Tragic History

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—The tragedy of a commercial air crash off Biak brought the name of that coral-fringed bit of equatorial island back into the news for the irst time since the spring of 1944, when it was a World War II battleground.

It was, during the war, a place of tragedy also. It was the scene of bitter fighting for a time between American and Japanese troops. I remember it particularly for a tiny-scale tragedy during the U.S. invasion because it was there that I could have saved a human life and did not.

Biak is a steamy-hot concentration of jungle, brush, cliffs, and swamp just 50 miles south of the equator near the northwest end of New Guinea. At first gray of dawn on May 27 our shelling and bombing of shore began. It's intensity soon obscured the coastline with a curtain of smoke and dust.

Coastline Not Visible

Perhaps because the coastline was not visible, our troop-hauling ships mistakenly took position two miles west of the designated landing beaches. The first wave of tracked landing vehicles that crawled across the green coral through the smoke discovered the error when they found themselves in mangrove swamp.

Our ships were ordered to move to the proper position. The ship on which I was riding as a reporter got underway with one soldier still hanging at the bottom of the rope landing net from which he had been about to drop into a waiting landing vehicle. The landing craft itself swung out along our side, trying to keep abreast of us.

The soldier was weighted with a heavy pack, his gun, and ammunition. The strength in his hands gave out. When I first saw him, he was dropping into the water. He came slowly down the length of the ship, pawing the rolling, slick green water desperately against the weight that kept pulling his head back and down under.

Victim Goes Unseen

Those of us at the rail on deck presumed the landing craft which was almost at his side would pick him up quickly. Any one of us could have vaulted over the side of the ship and helped him keep afloat.

But somehow the two-man crew of the landing craft failed to see him. While scores of men shouted frantically at the craft through the bombardment noise, he bobbed quickly astern.

The craft suddenly spotted him and raced after him. As his head started under, it reached him. A crewman swung out quickly with a hook pole — missed—and then dived in frantically after the vanishing head. It was too late. The crewman came up. The soldier was gone.

Russell's Stand Throws Ike's Crew Into 'Disorderly Rout'

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — It is 24 days now since Georgia's Sen. Richard B. Russell called a foul on the Eisenhower administration for what he regarded as dishonestly sharp practices in merchandising its civil rights bill.

Russell spoke in the U.S. Senate on July 2. The burden of his indictment was this: That the administration bill was deliberately and craftily written for such purposes as the forcible integration of southern schools, hotels and swimming pools whereas it was being presented to the public as merely a bill to make it possible for eligible southern negroes to vote.

Russell startled the Senate with his explanation of how the bill would authorize a president to order the Army, Navy and militia to enforce integration in all the public places of the South. He shocked his colleagues with an unqualified warning that blood would flow in any such process, that concentration camps would have to come to hold the overflow from southern jails.

The senator said he thought President Eisenhower did not know all that was in his own civil rights bill. Subsequent news conferences indicated Russell was correct. At that point in the first week of July, the administration began a strategic retreat on civil rights.

In the matter of three weeks since Russell spoke the retreat has become a disorderly rout. The pending legislation, as now amended, more properly could be called a Russell bill for what is not in it than an administration bill for what it still contains.

The administration moved fast to check the Senate trend against the bill, although not fast enough. Sen William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) was leader of the Republican - Democratic coalition which sought Senate approval of the bill, which already had been approved by the House.

Knowland and others quickly decided to accept a pair of amendments proposed by Russell, one to require Senate confirmation of the person selected by the president to be staff director of the proposed civil rights commission. No. 2 was to remove from the bill authority for the proposed commission to accept the services of unpaid volunteers.

Bill's Author Unidentified

This second amendment was to prevent representatives of such organizations as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People from volunteering as enforcers and investigators of civil rights. Provision for such volunteer opportunities was one of the parts of the bill which raised the question of who wrote the legislation in the first place. The provision for the use of the armed forces was another. The author or authors remain unidentified.

The bill, substantially in the form it passed the House and reached the Senate, was sent to Congress by Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. Brownell defended all of its provisions in public committee hearings. Under pressure administration decided to retreat of Russell's attack, however, the part way on enforced integration in the South.

Knowland and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D - Minn.) teamed up in an effort to draft a compromise amendment which would have forbidden the attorney general to intervene with legal proceedings in behalf of southern integration except at the request of a local authority as, for example, a school board. That retreat was neither fast nor far enough. Efforts to achieve compromise ended in failure.

The Senate this week axed the integration section, leaving the bill just what it originally was advertised to be — a guarantee of the right to vote.

YOUTH

urday, after the boy had been picked up in Clinton, Okla., and returned to Panhandle by Deputy Sheriff Raymond Mecaskey.

Mecaskey stated that the boy said he was hitch-hiking down Highway 66 about 9 a.m. Friday when he saw the tractor in the field and had the impulse to get it. Being a farm boy, he just got on it and drove off with the intention to drive until it ran out of gas. He started toward Bethany, Okla., where he planned to get a job.

After driving 25 miles-an-hour down Highway 66, Russell thought the tractor was empty and drove it off the highway down the Trew Ranch Road about a quarter of a mile.

There he abandoned it behind a hill, but before leaving punctured all four tires and cut the ignition wires with his pocket knife.

He could not explain why he damaged the tractor.

Russell stated that he then walked into Alanreed, located about four miles down the highway, caught a ride into McLean, and there purchased a bus ticket to Bethany.

Approximately two hours after the theft, Deputy Mekaskey, with the aid of Jimmy Shelton, deputy sheriff, and J. D. Fish, constable, both of McLean, discovered the tractor. Beside it they found a piece of paper containing Russell's name and address, which he had dropped accidentally.

After checking service stations, bus stations along the highway, they discovered the bus ticket was purchased at McLean. Police picked Russell up as he was getting off the bus at 6:42 p.m. at Clinton. Deputy Mecaskey traveled to Clinton and brought the boy back to Panhandle that night.

tion, claimed that the liberal views of the three got into the craw of arch - conservative J. Evetts Haley, a Canyon rancher-man and member of the board.

Rumors were rife in Lubbock at the time that Haley also was after the job of Tech President E. N. Jones and wanted to have himself voted in as president. But Haley dismissed the rumor with a laugh and said "I'm the last cowboy who would want the job."

Most members of the board were tight-lipped about the board's action.

New Evidence In Airline Crash Found

By RON BURTON

BARSTOW, Calif., July 27 (UP) —A blasting cap and evidence of a possible explosion were found on an airliner from which a heavily-insured passenger was lost in a mysterious blast, the FBI confirmed today, and an insurance firm declared it would fight any immediate efforts to collect on the dead man's flight accident policy.

The body of the passenger, jeweler Saul F. Binstock, 62, was found in a desolate desert area late Friday following the blast which occurred in flight at 10,000 feet early Thursday. It was undergoing painstaking examination to determine the cause of death and whether any traces of explosive powder could be found on it.

The body was reported generally intact except for a mangled left hand with parts of it torn off.

A Jagged Hole

The twin engine Western Air line convair, with a jagged hole torn in its fuselage at the lavatory section where Binstock had been at the time, made a safe emergency landing with 12 other passengers.

John F. Malone, agent in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said an unexploded blasting cap was found in the lavatory, with what appeared to be burned toilet tissue and evidence indicating "the possibility of a small explosion."

He refused to speculate on the significance of the discoveries.

Binstock, of Canoga Park, Calif., had insured himself for $125,000 with two flight policies, one of them containing a suicide clause, before leaving Burbank, Calif., for an excursion flight to Las Vegas, Nev. He entered the lavatory soon after takeoff from Las Vegas on the return trip and the blast occurred 47 minutes following takeoff as the plane flew at 10,000 feet over the California desert.

An official of the insurance firm whose subsidiary wrote the policy which did not contain the suicide clause said any attempts to collect benefits would be resisted and the company was "prepared to defend any claim on air travel policies where suicide or an apparent suicide exists." Maxwell Klum, chairman of the board of Mercury International Co. said no claim had yet been filed on the policy issued by the subsidiary, the Security Life and Accident Co.

Racket Group To Check On Hoffa's Muscle

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)— The Senate Rackets Committee will ask in hearings starting Wednesday whether James R. Hoffa, crown prince of the Teamsters' Union, used the underworld muscle of John Dioguardi in a bid to control a lucrative segment of the trucking industry.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) announced this today. His statment left no doubt that Hoffa, acquitted on government charges that he tried to plant a spy on its staff, has become a major target for the rackets committee.

McClellan also disclosed that the committee is interested in the role played by a New York "narcotics racket figure" — Anthony "Tony Duck" Corallo — in what McClellan described as Hoffa's successful attempt to take over New York City's Joint Council of Teamsters.

"These hearings will show the methods by which known hoodlums and racketeers have muscled into the labor movement — and how some of the top leaders of labor have used these underworld forces in grabs for power," the chairman said.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Dioguardi — alias Johnny Dio—is one of more than a hundred witnesses scheduled to testify in several weeks of hearings. Dio, a New York labor racketeer, was convicted Thursday of conspiring to extract money from employers in return for labor "peace."

Smokers 'Wasting Money' On Filter Tip Cigarettes

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)— Rep. John A. Blatnik (D-Minn.) said today smokers worried about lung cancer are "wasting their money" buying filter-tip cigarettes.

He said a congressional inquiry has "exposed filter cigarets as being completely phoney." He urged the cigarette industry to go to work to produce a "reasonably safe cigarette" by combining a proper blend of tobacco with a really effective filter.

Blatnik is chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee which Friday completed a two - week public hearing into advertising claims made for filter cigarettes.

The subcommittee will inquire next into false and misleading advertising of "reducing pills." It will resume hearings in about 10 days.

Blatnik said the cigarette inquirey showed smokers are getting "as much or more tar and nicotine" from the filter-tipped cigarettes now on the market as from the regular-size, plain-tipped variety. But he said smokers are paying close to 200 million dollars a year extra for filter-tips.

The subcommittee heard conflicting testimony on whether cigarette tar contributes to lung cancer and nicotine to heart disease.

Blatnik, who began the hearings as a chain-smoker of regular size, plain cigarettes, said he was so impressed by testimony linking cigarette smoking to lung cancer that he is going to try to quit smoking altogether.

"I have cut my smoking from two packs a day to one, and I hope to be able to quit entirely," he said in a press statement.

High School Grads Can Enter Navy Flight School

Aviation minded high school graduates are now being considered for Navy flight training. Those graduates enlisting in the Navy who qualify for flight school during their recruit training will be sent to the U.S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

The new program is an excellent opportunity, according to Navy officials, for those young men who desire to fly the modern, high performance aircraft of the Navy and become Naval officers.

High school graduates interested in this program must be highly motivated toward flying and the Navy, and must meet exacting physical and mental standards to qualify for the course of training in Naval aviation.

Qualified applicants will be enlisted into the high school graduate training program and if they are not selected for flight training, all previous guarantees under the high school program remains in effect.

Complete details are available at the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station in the post office builidng.

STAFF NOTES

FRED M. PARKER, staff writer

Rodeo Week is only a week away and with it Pampa will have all of the dash and color of the "Old West."

Cowboys and cowgirls of all sizes and ages will take over the town during the week. Plenty of action will be in store as the cowpokes try to tame the animals supplied to the rodeo this year by Goat Mayo of Petrolia.

Possibly the best part of the week will be the Kid Pony Show on Monday and Tuesday nights. On these two nights the young cowboys and girls have their own scaled-down rodeo and for the size of the participants the action is rugged at times.

The audience is sure to enjoy the two performances of the Kid Pony Show.

The actual rodeo begins on Wednesday night and will continue through Saturday night, when the awards will be presented.

One thing is for sure, according to the Jaycees, if a man doesn't have either a beard or a shaving permit he will surely see the water in the horse-tank on Cuyler.

This is one week during the year that this writer dreads. It means that "me and my camera" will have to spend every night inside the arena.

The purpose of this is so that I can get as close to the animals as possible, without being stomped, and obtain pictures for the next day's paper.

It isn't so bad as it sounds, last year the animals missed me every time even though the breeze created by them nearly blew me over several times.

If the ambulance takes anyone from the arena this year it will probably be me instead of a performer. They must take a chance with one animal, I take it with every one of the brutes.

DORIS WILSON, women's editor

It was a Friday evening, like any other Friday evening, home from the office, dinner, a session of TV, teeth-brushing, and then the head on the pillow. When suddenly a clicking of typewriter keys came from the corner of the room.

The face of the typist was a blobbed blur, but the words being typed were distinguishable . . . they began . . . "In the back room of Pete's Pool Palace, Miss Fleeta Fern Floogie and "Buckshot" Gunsmith said, "I do," amid the cheers and whistles of their friends gathered for the occasion. Empty bottles, holding burning, flares, formed a cantelabra and the reflected light helped the bride out considerable.

The bride, who was hustled to the altar and gleefully given in marriage by her father, who was humming, "I'll Be Glad When You're Married, You Rascal You," was gowned in a knee-length gown of Chantilly gunny - sack. Her opaque veil of black and white denim fell in a chapel train . . and no one bothered to pick it up. Nuptial airs were presented by a guitarist, proficient in the "Rock 'n Roll" style.

Then the phone rang, the typist paused to answer. A voice said, "This is Mrs. Smith. You spelled my name wrong in the paper today. It has a "y" and an "e." It seems a shame with a simple name like "Smythe" that you can't get it right."

The typist went back to cracking out the wedding of the year. The phone rang again . . "This is Mrs. Katzenjammer, we're giving a midnight supper in my home this evening. Could you come out just a little past that hour and take a picture?"

"Among the out-of-town guests at the Floogie - Gunsmith wedding were Cloober Clump, truant officer, and "Star" Pistolana, sheriff, who, at the end of the ceremony, planed separate wedding trips for the young couple." The corner-typist concluded.

The ever-ringing phone rang again, but this time as the blobbed blur picked it up and brought it to her ear, she found it was the alarm-clock . . . and time to go to work again to her job as Women's Editor.

CHARLES CULLIN sports editor

Summer baseball leagues are drawing to a close now and preparations are being made for the final playoffs.

In Industrail League softball, plans were completed yesterday for the tournament to be held in Pampa July 31 to August 4. The tourney will host the leading teams of this area to pick the top two who will participate in the area Amateur Softball Association tournament in Brownwood. From this tourney teams will advance to the state playoffs and possibly to national. Charlie Wilkerson, softball commissioner for this district, stated that according to past records, the teams from our area should be among the top competitors in the state playoffs.

And in the Little Leagues, all-star teams have been selected to enter into the Optimist district and area playoffs which are scheduled to begin this week.

Deserving special mention also is the team which has already completed its season. The Pampa Rebels, in their first season of American Legion baseball, set an excellent record in obtaining the district championship. Losing out in the bi-district series last weekend, the Rebels had stacked up a season total of 17 victories against only five losses. Two of the defeats came in the final two bi-district games.

GWEN STARK, staff writer

A newspaper reporter always has to put up with lots of gripes from the public, one of them being "so many errors in the paper."

"Can't you print anything right," is an often heard statement.

However, if the average John Q. Public realized just how hard it is to get the correct information from people, he'd realize that much of the blame lies on himself.

How many times have I called people and asked if they had any pertinent news when they answered no, and then found out "from some other source" of some very important news item. Then checking back with that person get half statements, with "I think," "Well, I don't know exactly, but I believe," "I understand it's this way, but don't quote me."

Then I come back to the office and spend 30 minutes making calls to recheck, and then hearing, "No, its this way," etc., until I have to put them all together and try to come up with a general series of statements to let the public know that something happened.

Then there are the written statements. Those that are written in long hand and brought in. The E's look like O's, and the T's look like F's, and if some name gets misspelled, do we hear about it!

We have many many good people who give us correct and important information. We appreciate their co-operation But its the few mistakes which hurt. For these are what many people notice and remark about.

We newspaper reporters are human just like anybody else. We make mistakes. If we make them we want to correct them. But remember we're not the only ones who make mistakes. We make an earnest effort to serve you and and keep you informed of your neighbor's and the city's activities which you deserve to now.

Every story we reporters print, we obtained the facts from someone who should know. We give every story "authority." If you are that authority we are ready to work with you to get the correct information to the public.

BILL NEAL, staff writer

Along about this time of year everybody gets the bug to travel —especially me.

Its kinda tragic too, because prospects for this reporter hoofing it off seem remote to say the least.

The problem appears to be just how far a man can get on a hamburger-and-coke size bank account (the result of long years of conscientious savings), and a Sunday afternoon off.

Anyway the way I figure it, with luck I should be able to make Lake McClellan (the county's white elephant) for a rip-roaring one night stand of crawfish stomping.

Or maybe I'll just sit on the dock and make dirty faces at the people in motor boats.

Of course, if you want to go overboard about the whole thing, you could draw the weekly bill-pacifier, pack a few duds and cut out. But hitchhiking isn't so bad if you have a strong thumb and weak mind and don't particularly care where you're going.

Last Thursday the virus got me. I sneaked out of the office, put on my best pair of Levis and hiked out to the edge of town. I'd hardly cooled off my tennis shoes when I saw a sweet old lady driving a new Cadillac. I flagged her down and asked for a ride.

She jabbed me in the ear with a crochet needle and told me to eat a bug. As I lay bleeding to death she slammed it in second and slung gravel on me.

It's just too dangerous on the highways nowdays. I think I'll buy a Coke and walk down to the park.

ALL PAMPA VOTERS
Exercise Your Right To Help
DETERMINE PAMPA'S FUTURE
VOTE TUESDAY!
HERE IS THE ISSUE:

We in Pampa have the opportunity to rejoin the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority and protect our future rights for the water that we may be needing in future years.

The reason we withdrew from the CRMWA in 1955 was due to the excessive cost of water and the large quantity that was required that we pay for whether needed or not.

By rejoining the Authority now we have a new beginning and are not assumingany financial obligation, and will have a voice in all future transactions.

If A Majority Votes No we lose our rights for water in the Canadian River.

If A Majority Votes Yes we will take a new look at the future water for Pampa, and if the price is excessive we will again withdraw as we did in 1955.

It is hoped that the voters of Pampa will think of the future water needs before casting their votes, but be sure and cast your vote either YES or NO. This is our opportunity to either get back in the CRMWA, or we will be out and have no voice in what happens to this new supply of water.

If we rejoin the CRMWA, the City of Pampa still retains the right to approve or disapprove any future contract that may be negotiated.

DiMaggio Leads Yankee Oldsters Over Detroit, 1-0

NEW YORK, July 27 (UP)—Joe DiMaggio and a stroke of that famous luck of the New York Yankees proved decisive again today in the World Champions' annual Old Timers' Day game with the Detroit Tiger stars of yesteryear.

A crowd of 40,000 at Yankee Stadium reserved its biggest cheer for DiMaggio when some 60 stars, including eight Hall-of-Famers, were introduced. The fans then saw the famed "Yankee Clipper" single and score the run that gave the Yankee old-timers a 1-0 victory over the Detroit stars. The game was limited to two innings in deference to the toll the years had taken on the once-great athletes.

A parade of Yankee pitching might from the past — Red Ruffing, Spud Chandler, Monte Pearson, Bump Hadley, Hank Borowy, Russ Van Atta, Joe Page, Marius Russo and Lefty Gomez — had shut out the Tiger stars with one hit when DiMaggio came to bat with two out in the last of the second inning.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout who retired in 1952 but keeps in shape by pitching occasional batting practice for the Tigers, surprised DiMaggio when his first pitch whistled across the plate.

"That son of a gun threw me a fast curve," said the astonished DiMaggio after the game. "And, you know what, he actually threw me sliders and fast balls, too. I thought we were supposed to be old timers!"

Hall - of Famer Charley Gehringer, greatest second baseman in Detroit history, lashed a ground-rule double into the right field stands in the first inning for the Tigers' only hit.

Yankees Snap Losing Streak With 4-3 Victory Over Tigers

NEW YORK, July 27 (UP)—Jerry Coleman tripled with one out in the ninth inning and came home on Tony Kubek's squeeze bunt today to give the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers and snap the World Champions' three-game losing streak.

An old timers' day crowd of 44,184, which had watched former Yankee stars headed by Joe DiMaggio edge Tiger stars of yesteryear, 1-0, in a two-inning preliminary, saw Kubek surprise the Detroit infield with the bunt that earned reliever Bob Grim his ninth victory of the season.

Coleman hit his triple off Harry Byrd, who promptly walked Elston Howard intentionally and was relieved in favor of lefty Al Aber. Kubek's bunt to the left side of the infield easily scored Coleman with the winning run.

The Tigers made only six hits off starter Tom Sturdivant and Grim. Ray Boone's seventh homer of the season with two on base in the seventh inning gave the Tigers a 3-0 lead. Harvey Kuen singled and after he was forced at second by Bill Tuttle, Jim Small singled just before Boone's blast.

The Yankees tied the score in the eighth. Pinch-hitter Enos Slaughter walked and stopped at second on a pinch single by Joe Collins, Frank Lary replaced starter Duke Muas at this point and retired Kubek on a foul fly. Gil McDougald then drove in Slaughter with a single to right.

Mickey Wright Leads Into Finals Of Wolverine Open

Mickey Wright, the 22-year-old Californian who took first-day honors in the Wolverine Ladies Open golf tournament, repeated her fiery scoring today and grabbed a two-stroke lead at the three-quarter mark.

She carded a 70 with rounds of 34-36 to match her record-breaking 31-38 performance Thursday and posted a 214 total for the 54 holes. The lead was not unreachable but was the biggest a front runner has had yet in the four-day tourney.

Kathy Cornelius of Dayton, Ohio, and Vonnie Colby, the second-day leader from Miami Beach, Fla., were close behind Miss Wright with 216 totals.

The imposing shadow of the defending Wolverine champion, Fay Crocker, Montevideo, Uruguay, loomed heavily over the shoulders of the top trio. Fay blasted home with a 70 today giving her a 217 total.

Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga., went up for her worst round as she posted a 75. Her previous rounds of 71 and 72 gave her a total of 218 strokes and placed her in the fifth spot.

Michigan's key representative, Wiffi Smith of St. Clair, kept at a consistent pace and posted a 74-72-73—219. Close behind her at 220 was Marilynn Smith of Wichita, Kan., who had a 220 total, good enough to tie her with Marlene Bauer Hagge of Dallas, Tex.

Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., and Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., were tied for ninth place with 222 totals and at 223 strokes was Jo Anne Prentice of Birmingham, Ala. Bev Hanson of Indio, Calif. and the tourney's top amateur so far, Meriam Bailey of Evanston, Ill., totaled 225 scores.

Miss Wright could have lengthened her lead to three strokes but she bogeyed the par-four 18th hole after sizzling the warm Lochmoor club course with six birdies and 11 pars.

Buhl's Win Keeps Braves On Top Of NL Pennant Battle

MILWAUKEE, July 27 (UP)—Righthander Bob Buhl of the Milwaukee Braves had his string of scoreless innings snapped at 21 today in beating the New York Giants 5-2.

The victory kept the Braves in first place.

Buhl shut out the Giants for the first eight innings, then ran into trouble. Ray Jablonski led off the ninth with a single and Daryl Spencer followed with a double to put runners on second and third.

The righthander retired the next two batters but Bobby Thomson, a former Brave, doubled to the right field screen to score Jablonski and Spencer. Buhl speared Whitey Lockman's liner to end the game.

The Giants had threated to score earlier, getting runners on base in every inning except the first.

Wes Covington batted in two Braves' runs with an infield out in the fifth and a single in the seventh. Andy Pafko and Hank Aaron each drove in a run with a single and Red Schoendienst, whose hitting streak was stopped at 23 games, scored on a wild pitch in the third inning after walking and advancing two bases on an error.

The victory was Buhl's third straight and the 12th of the season against six defeats. Ray Crone, the former Milwaukee pitcher, started and gave up the first three Milwaukee runs for his fourth loss of the year.

Bolt In Front After Third Round Of Eastern Open Golf Tourney

BALTIMORE, July 27 (UP)—Tommy Bolt, of Los Angeles, Cal., clung to a slender two-strokes lead after three rounds of the Eastern Open golf tournament today by shooting a three-under-par 69 over the municipal Mount Pleasant course.

At the end of three rounds Bolt was eleven under par with a score of 205 while second place Fred Hawkins had 207, matching Bolt's 69 in the third round. In third place was Doug Ford, Masters Champion from Mahopac, N.Y. with a 54-hole total of 208.

Next in line came Billy Casper, Bonita, Calif., Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, and Paul Harney, Bolton, Mass. Each with 209 in the 72-hole $20,000 test over the 6,895-yard par 36-36—72 course.

Bolt had to come from behind midway of the third round to retain his lead. Hawkins, of El Paso, Tex., put on a brilliant display for the large gallery by dipping three under par on the front nine, then got an eagle three on the tenth to go two strokes ahead of Tommy.

Then Bolt turned on the steam when Hawkins faltered. Tommy got a par on the eleventh while Hawkins took a bogey, then birdied the next two while Hawkins took pars and on the par five fourteenth picked up another stroke when Hawkins three-putted from 20 feet.

Ford shot a 70 today, the highest score he's had thus far. He went into the third round tied with Hawkins two strokes behind Bolt but could do no better than two under par, with one bogey, on the par five tenth, and three birdies.

Both Hawkins and Bolt, who played in the same threesome with Wesley Ellis, Rivervale, N.J. had tough luck with their putts. Bolt missed several from six to eight feet while Hawkins had one stop on the lip of the thirteenth cup from 20 feet and his second on the fifteenth went in and came out again.

Boxing Beat Has Two Sides When It Comes To Jackson

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Hurricane Tommy Jackson had just finished fiddling around with a chicken dinner upstairs in the kitchen of his small apartment and now he was in the hall on his way out into the crowded street.

This was in 1952 when the Hurricane first blew onto boxing's bigtime.

"I know plenty 'bout boxing," he said.

"What have you learned lately?" he was asked.

He stopped and pulled off his watch and ring and put them on the floor. Then he put up his hands and thought for a moment. "Jab," he said. He jabbed quickly at the light cord in front of him.

"Jab and hook," he said. He moved his left hand straight, pulled it back, then hooked the cord. "Double hook," he said and he went through that motion.

Then he went out into the hot street. Somebody asked him for an autograph and he took the pencil and paper, bit his lips, rolled his eyes and wrote with labor. "Best Wiches. . ." the top line said. He tried to put Tommy Hurricane Jackson on the second line but it came out a childish scribble.

"If he is going to be heavyweight champion of the world, I give up," an onlooker said.

This has been the theme of many boxing people since the day Jackson first appeared as a ranking heavyweight. Style - minded boxing people rebel at his crazy, slapping style. George Gainford, for one. Gainford summed up the feeling he still holds while in camp with Sugar Ray Robinson two years ago.

Floyd Patterson:

Champ Or Club Fighter?

By Harry Grayson
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Not even the most confirmed longshot stabber could pick Hurricane Tommy Jackson to win the heavyweight championship from Floyd Patterson at the Polo Grounds tomorrow night.

This despite the fact that young Patterson took nothing more than a debatable and divided 12-round decision from Nature Boy as recently as 13 months ago.

Ordinarily, on the strength of such a strong showing, a fighter other than Jackson would be given at least some semblance of a chance in a second edition. The difference here is that Patterson would have to fall from exhaustion toward the fag end of the 15 rounds and the Brooklyn kid appears too well equipped to do anything like that.

The only excuse for the fight, outside of the display of raw savagery, is to find out how much Patterson has improved. If Floyd is now believing all the great things they are saying about him, on the heels of his knockout of old Archie Moore, he should take Jackson out along about the 10th heat.

There is a way to batter down any fighter and, if we have not seen Patterson's training moves in a distorted light, he figures to do this with a body attack.

Clubbing Jackson about the head gets you nowhere. So the Patterson who got ready at Greenwood Lake was a fast-fisted youngster who fired volley after volley to the midsection with alarming speed.

The fight at least will reveal whether Patterson is a genuine champion or just another pleasing club fighter.

There is no comparison in the combatants as far as tools of the trade are concerned.

Jackson is scorned by the intelligentsia because The Animal doesn't know how to fight at all. But prize fighting is a basic. It's a primeval test of one man against the other through round after round of throwing punches and expending energy. And it is a matter of record that Jackson's Alley Oop way of doing things stirred up more than considerable trouble for Patterson in 12 rounds. If there is any advantage in the three additional stanzas this trip it is on the side of the foremost human punching bag of his time.

Jackson shouldn't be entirely dismissed as a human shock absorber, for he never stops crowding and clawing. That's the best description of the weird warrior of Queens — he's a clawer. Hit him as hard as you can and as often as you want. He may wobble a bit, but he'll right himself and come jigin back, clawing all the while.

Restful clinching is out. The Hurricane lives up to his name—tugging, mauling, backhanding and double uppercutting three full minutes a round. The longer the fight, the better it is for Jackson, and, as one sage remarked, this is the first time he has been properly routed — over 15 rounds. The ideal route for him would be a fight to a finish.

It must be remembered that Patterson did not beat Jackson way off the last time out. Also that no one ever took an easier road to the throne room than the former Olympic titleholder. He came along in a period when the talent was poorer than it has been since back busting became big business. He is the most untried heavyweight champion in history.

Speaking of good fighters, as you know them, there won't be much fighter in front of Floyd Patterson at the Polo Grounds, but Hurricane Tommy Jackson's clawing and clubbing has proved very annoying and discouraging to others.

From Deer Hunting to Cottonpicking?

It would be quite an unheard of trick to swap a deer rifle for a cotton sack and pick cotton for sport. Swaps similar to that could be easily arranged if a person tried to make the exchange.

Last week J. R. McGill, game lease owner of the Turkey Track ranch, reported the burglary of a hunting and fishing cabin on the ranch to Game Warden S. V. Whitehorn. There was a certain amount of spirits plus two expensive Hudson Bay blankets missing from the cabin. This was not much to begin an investigation with, but Whitehorn went to work on the case and contacted the Sherrif's Department at Spearman. Lo and behold, Sheriff J. B. Cooke stated that there had been a very recent '76' wreck investigated in which there were two blankets and an amount of firewater taken from the wrecked auto. Deputy Hall had returned the blankets to the supposedly 'rightful owner.' Mr. Hall had retained the spirits plus a carton of 22 bullets which was quickly identified as coming from the cabin. Further investigation revealed names, addresses and such other pertinent information that wound up with the Hutchinson County Sheriff's Department filing three felony complaints against the party of three.

The alleged 'breaking and entering' party was said to be deer hunting on the ranch. Penalty for illegal hunting runs from 10 to 200 dollars whereas penalty for burglary runs from 2 to 5 years.

Due to energetic cooperation of Sheriffs Ray Phagan, J. B. Cooke and Hugh Anderson and thier respective departments, the case of the burglarized cabin was soon solved.

Buffalo Lake Fishing

Woody Pond, Game Warden at Canyon, stated that bass and channel cat fishing is picking up at Buffalo Lake. Mr. Pond also stated that recently one fisherman caught a bass that weighed within an ounce of eight pounds. Grass hoppers are one of the popular baits at this time.

Woody further stated that Leo Lewis, Game Department aquatic biologist from Wichita Falls, was up and that the boys used an 1,100 foot seine to remove thousands of carp "rough fish" from the lake. Woody stated that the Lewis crew took out 4,400 carp that weighed nearly one pound each in one days operation. Mr. Lewis and his crew are reported to be working at Rita Blanca Lake at this time.

Bob Addington, from Pampa, reports that channel cat have been biting at a terrific pace in the upper end of Lake McClellan. Addington stated that the boys are fishing in water too shallow for a boat and running trot lines via the hip-boot method with the line propped up with small forked sticks. Frogs, minnows and crawfish seemed to be the best bait. The channel cat running from one to six pounds was the report.

Bass Fry Still Available Despite Hatchery Damage

Some 12 million bass fry will be delivered to Texas lakes and streams this year, despite serious damage to several of the 13 hatcheries of the Texas Game and Fish Commission, according to Marion Toole, Chief Aquatic Biologist. The old state hatchery at San Angelo was wholly flooded. There will be fish production, however, from the old federal hatchery there, recently acquired by the Game and Fish Commission.

Heavy damage was also done to the Dallas hatchery, while the Sheldon hatchery near Houston also sustained some damage. The hatcheries at Cisco and Medina Lake, near San Antonio, have been out because of previous drouth.

"Every care is being taken to get as good a production as possible, because of the increasing demands we will have with so many lakes and ponds refilled by recent rains," Toole said. "Right now we have nothing but bass production. Later there will be catfish, crappie and bream. We cannot supply delivery of bass to impoundments smaller than ten acres before cool weather in September. Persons who can pick up the fish at the hatchery, however, can do so by making arrangements with the local superintendent.

Hip Williams, Dundee, Texas, is the nearest Hatchery Superintendent to this part of the state.

Indians Batter Boston, 7-2

BOSTON, July 27 (UP)—Gene Woodling and Vic Wertz came through with the big hits today to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox while once-beaten Ray Narleski hurled a seven-hitter for his seventh win.

Woodling hit his eighth homer to lead off the fourth and he tied the score 2-all, when he doubled home Al Smith in the sixth. When Boston starter Ike Delock protested a balk call by third base umpire John Rice, he was thumbed out and Ruddy Minarcin came on to be greeted by a Wertz single that provided the eventual game-wining tally.

The Indians broke the game open in the eighth on doubles by Smith and Wertz and a single by Bobby Avila.

Ted Williams put Boston out front in the first inning when he whacked a 0-2 pitch over the visiting bullpen some 420 feet away for his 28th homer.

Labine Quells 9th Inning

CINCINNATI, July 27 (UP)— Clem Labine, making his 42nd relief appearance of the season, halted a three-run Cincinnati uprising in the ninth inning today to preserve a 5-3 victory thal enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to regain fourth place in the National League.

Rookie Danny McDevitt, who beat the Redlegs in his major league debut on June 17, carried a 5-0 lead into the ninth inning but was forced to retire with a blistered finger after walking Roy McMillan and making two wild pitches to pinch-hitter Tex Kluszewski.

Carl Erskine, hustled out of the bullpen, yielded consecutive hits by Kluszewski, Johnny Temple and Gus Bell before Labine came in to retire the last three batters. The victory was credited to McDevitt, his first since June 30.

Cards Drop To Pirates, 4-2

ST. LOUIS, July 27 (UP) — Purkey scattered eight hits and posted his 10th victory today as the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped a three-game St. Louis Cardinals winning streak, 4-2.

The Cards remained in second place in the hot Naional League race but dropped a game and a half behind Milwaukee.

Purkey, a 28-year-old right-hander having his best year since he was with New Orleans in 1953, showed a good fast ball and near-perfect control as he struck out three Redbirds and allowed no walks.

The Pirates banged out four hits for three runs in the second inning off 40-year-old Murry Dickson, who lost his third game against five victories.

Gene Baker and Bob Mazeroski led off with singles and Hank Foiles drove in the first tally with a double. Dee Fondy scored Mazeroski with a sacrifice fly and Foiles raced home when third baseman Eddie Kasko, racing toward left with his back to the ball, let Bill Virdon's pop fly fall for a double.

Texas School Names Range Over Many Descriptive Terms

Nicknames of the 1300 high schools and colleges of Texas cover many varied and descriptive terms, ranging from "Harvesters" to "Fighting Farmers" and from "Antelopes" to "Zebras."

Leading in popularity by a wide margin are the animal names, with 85 Texas schools bearing the name of "Bulldogs." Next in line comes "Eagles" (76), "Tegers" (72) and "Wildcats" (42)

Many schools have employed unique measures for picking their names. Two schools have simplified the problem by merely using the name of their town; the Matador Matadors and the Quail Quails. Others that have made good use of the town name are the Van Vandals, Tom Bean Tomcats, Crane Golden Cranes, Jayton Jaybirds, Deer Park Deer, Peacock Peafowls, Elkhart Elks and Mesquite Skeeters.

Location of towns and surrounding industry have a heavy influence on many schools. Some of the most significant examples are Knippa Rockrushers, Amarillo Golden Sandstorm, Calhoun (Port Lavaca) Sandcrabs, Sundown Roughnecks, Hereford Whitefaces and Texas City Stingarees.

European countries have contributed several nicknames to schools and three of the most striking are Hamline Pied Pipers, Shamrock Irishmen and Highland Park (Dallas) Scotties.

Major league baseball has made its mark in the Texas nickname world. The towns of Cleveland and Pittsburg have branded their athletes "Indians" and "Pirates", respectively.

Then there is a long list of monickers that will make you look twice because thy are either clever or extremely unusual. Included in that group are the Poly (Ft. Worth) Parrots, Hutot Hippos, Hurst-Euless Sopters, Sidney Lanier (San Antonio) Voks, Somerville Yeguas, Munday Moguls, New Braunfels Unicorns, Lee (Baytown) Ganders and San Diego Vaquros.

Nicknames probably have little influence on the won-lost record of athletic teams but two schools that undoubtedly chill the opposition when they make an appearance are the Winters Blizzards and Frost Polar Bears

There For Comfort

Out Of Baseball 29 Years Cobb Still Fights Umpires

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — At 70, Tyrus Raymond Cobb wears glasses, but the eyes that made him the greatest ballplayer who ever lived miss nothing.

While Cobb and I watched the Braves edge th Giants at the Polo Grounds the other night he commented on everything from New York's two National League clubs being California bound to the size of Del Crandall's feet.

Regarding the contemplated franchise switches: "The first thing they know major league owners will run out of towns and then will have to come crying back to the rich fields they left."

Crandall raced back to the scren after a foul fly. "Look at the little feet on that catcher."

While he realized that the Giants were hard up for runs, Cobb couldn't understand Willie Mays attempting to steal on the first pitch in the eighth inning of a 1-1 game. "Not without protection from the batter." Bobby Thomson made no effort to swing at an obvious pitch-out. Umpire Lee Ballanfante thumbed Mays out.

"He wasn't out!" Cobb snapped to Joe Cairnes, president of the Milwaukee club, seated with us. Out of baseball for 29 years, Cobb, who in his own mind never was out on a close one, still violently disagrees with umpires. "They have blind spots," he said

Frank Frisch came by to remind Cobb that the Georgia Peach always played in long sleeves and with the shirt collar pinned up around his throat. The long sleeves protected his elbows and the pinned-up collar kept out the dirt when he slid. "And I got on base many times when ticked here," recalled Cobb, flipping his right sleeve.

What did he think of the bare-armed ballplayer of today? "They're out there for comfort."

Did Cobb, during his 24 years of clawing and cutting American League baseball, ever wear anything in his cap as a protection against bean balls? "Not a thing, and I was the original African dodger."

Now that ballplayers wear protective helmets, are more batters hit by pitched balls and why? "It seems that way and it is because they are more spread out, anchored there. They can't get out of the way."

On the shift against Eddie Mathews, a left-hand pull hitter, especially when he faces a left-hand pitcher, the shortstop plays well on the other side of second base.

"Mathews can't change his stance to meet situations. Against a left-hand pitcher (Johnny Antonelli was working for the Giants), Mathews should close his stance, choke the bat a little and move a little farther away from the plate. Make that ball be right out there and just jab it into left field.

"Left-hand batters should hit left-hand pitchers to left field. If the batter closes his stance, he hasn't committed his outside foot, but all they want to do is swing from the end of the bat, and they can't pull against a locked hip. A left-hand pitcher's curve is spinning away from a left-hand batter. He should hit the ball with its strength."

Red Schoendienst singled between the third baseman and the shortstop. "See how those choke hitters hit 'em," enthused Cobb, slapped Joe Cairnes on the back.

Would Cobb stick to his Willie Keeler type of hitting in this day of the lively ball?

"No, sir-ee," said the fiery genius of the game. "I'd adjust myself to home run hitting.

"But look, that third baseman way back there. What a bunt would do!"

Anti-Trust Members Probe Team Franchise Disposal

TAMPA, Fla., July 27 (UP)— The House anti-trust subcommittee is "carefully considering" evidence of conduct in restraint of free enterprise in the disposal of the Louisville baseball team's franchise last year, it was reported today.

Phil O'Hara, public relations counsel for the Louisville team's former owners, said he was notified this morning by Subcommittee Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) that the congessional group is checking allegations made by the Cuban syndicate that formerly owned the team.

O'Hara said he expects his interests to be called to testify as soon as the subcommittee returns to looking into charges that baseball violates the anti - trust statutes.

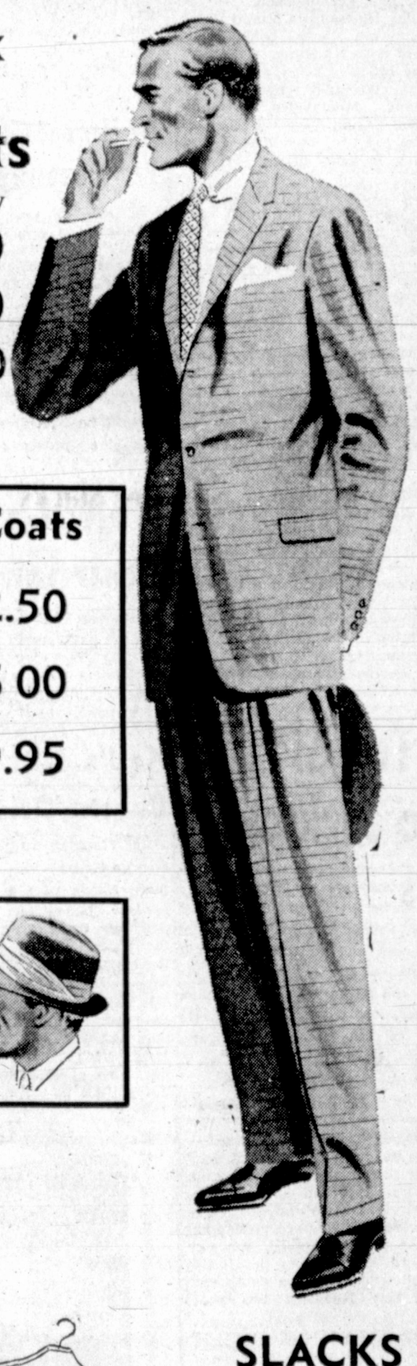

O'Hara represents a Cuban group which lost its Louisville franchise allegedly because it did not pay its debts. The club was declared in receivership and the American Association gave the franchise to a group of Louisville citizens.

The Cubans, headed by President Victor G. Menocal, maintained they were "willing and able" to pay their debts. They charged that their assets in Louisville were seized illegally by directors of the American Association, which they charged are controlled by major league clubs.

O'Hara said the Cubans' suit in Kentucky State courts was withdrawn when it was decided to turn over the evidence to the subcommittee.

Nativity Scenes Remodeled

By BILL NEAL
Pampa News Staff Writer

Pampa's famous nativity scenes — once featured on the "Texas In Review" TV show — are now being remodeled.

Each Christmas since 1948 scenes depicting incidents leading up to and following the birth of Christ have been erected in Pampa by interested citizens and sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

At first they were put on the Courthouse lawn, but when the number of scenes was increased to seven it became necessary to move to the north end of Central Park.

Lighted with theatrical spotlights and accentuated by Christmas carols, these scenes are opened between Dec. 15-20 by a colorful ceremony which includes performances by the speech department, band and choir of Pampa High School.

Those currently redoing the nativity figures are led by Mrs. Robert Vail, 2016 Mary Ellen, who is a professional portrait painter and one of the project's originators.

Assisting Mrs. Vail in the painting is Mrs. A. D. Hills, 1911 N. Russell. Mrs. Howard Johnson and Mrs. Walter Eller have also done work.

Alvin Henry, Pampa carpenter, has donated his services for the carpentry work and construction.

In the past the figures have been mechanically reproduced from photographs and paintings and many have been out of proportion. Now, Mrs. Vail is drawing and painting them on a masonite surface backed by plywood.

Nine new life-size figures have been added and all the old ones redone, Mrs. Vail reported. Due to improper storage and inadequate building materials some were badly damaged.

The repair work, started in June, is being done in a downtown warehouse furnished by E. Green Jr. Materials are being given by the Chamber of Commerce and several other Pampans. Electricity is being given free by the Southwestern Public Service Company.

Work should be completed in another two or three weeks according to Mrs. Vail. During past years, no repairs were made until early December, and then, due to the cold weather and discomfort, only hasty make-shift work could be done. Despite this, the property is worth several thousand dollars.

The Merchants Activities Committee of the Chamber takes this on each year as their "Christmas project." Along with the city engineering department, they are in charge of erecting the seven scenes.

Scenes include the "Manger Scene," "Angels Approaching the Shepherds," "Wise Men Following the Star," "The Annunciation," "No Room at The Inn," "Wise Men before Herod," and "The Flight into Egypt."

Originally the idea was conceived by Mrs. Lynn Boyd, wife of Mayor Lynn Boyd and Charles Thomas, former Pampan, in order to ". . . put Christ back in Christmas." Mrs. Vail is the only one of the original artists that is still active in this.

Mrs. Boyd has been in charge of the opening ceremony every year since 1948. Others who helped in the beginning are Mrs. Bill Davis, the Rev. Russell West, Miss Florance Jackson, Roger Long, Homer Shearer and Mrs. Drois Davis Rinehart.

Visitors from several surrounding states have visited the Christmas scene, and other communities have copied the idea. Pampa has had much publicity on it during recent years.

"We have hoped that some art club here would take charge of the scenes," Mrs. Boyd said.

"Children have always enjoyed the scenes," Mrs. Vail said. However, considerable damage has been done by a few minors who have thrown rocks and shot "BB" guns at the figures.

"I think that this time the figures will hold up providing there is no vandalism," Mrs. Vail concluded.

LOOKING AHEAD—This year Pampa's nativity scenes will have a new look. Starting early so everything will be comple by Christmas, several artists and carpenters have been remodeling the figures. At left, Mrs. A. D. Hills paints an angel, while Mrs. Robert Vail paints the Christ child's face and Alvin Henry, carpenter, trims the arm and hand of Mary. (News Photo)

Many Pampans Spend Vacations In Small, Scenic Town In Colorado

By GWEN STARK
Pampa News Staff Writer

Summertime is vacation time for Pampans, and thousands of miles are traveled in every direction by local families. However, there are a few special vacation spots that are visited by many Pampa families every year, and one of these is the popular little town of Lake City, Colo., located in the southwestern section of the state.

Only a day's drive from Pampa, this little town of a few hundred people, is a vacationer's paradise. Set in the middle of five rugged Rocky Mountain peaks ranging 14,000 feet high, it affords everything an outdoor man could want.

Cool Temperatures

The cool temperatures make the daytime an especially good time to get that needed rest away from the hot plains, and the usual soft morning showers keep the air smelling fresh and clean with a cedar scent. Rippling streams, falls, towering snow-topped mountains provide the scenery, and the rains provide the scenery, and the wood burning fireplace in the other wise modern log cabin makes the picture complete.

Horseback riding, trout fishing, boatriding, jeep trips, pack trips and sight-seeing provide entertainment during the summer months, with deer hunting the popular winter sport.

Among Pampa families who make Lake City a regular vacation spot are the C. M. Jeffries, R. L. Edmondsons, Frenchie Huvals, Eddie Zunigas, C. E. Highs, J. A. Thurmonds, T. J. Worrells, Dick Sullens and Fred Brooks.

Historical Sites

Lake City was formed during the mining boom in the Rocky Mountains and the abandoned mines and mining communities in the seemingly inaccessible mountains surrounding the town offer an interesting account of area's history.

Remainders of communities located thousands of feet high in the rugged mountains can only be visited by horse or jeep now. Old wagon wheels, mine shafts, and cabins are the only remainders of one time thriving communities of hundreds of people who pioneered the country in covered wagons. White Cross and Capitol City are two such towns. Lake City, itself, used to be a city of 7,000 people during the late 1800's.

Jeep trips over Cinnemon Pass (named for the Cinnemon bears in that area) and Engineer Mountain to Ouray and Silverton takes vacationers over miles of rugged mountain cliffs, rushing streams heading from the mountain snows and through mountain top valleys and thick forests.

From the top of Engineer Mountain one of the most beautiful scenes in the United States can be viewed. Hundreds of valleys, peaks, streams and lakes mirroring the cliffs can be looked upon and the odor of sweet-smelling flowers fills the air. The state flower, the Columbine, can be found in shades from light blue to deep purple.

Some of the mountains which can be seen about Lake City are Redcloud Peak, Uncompahare Mountain, Matterhorn Mountain, Sunshine Peak and Wetterhorn Mountain.

Fishing, Favorite Sport

Fly fishing is the most favored pastime of vacationers. Large rainbow trout can be caught in the rushing streams of Henson Creek and Beaver Creek, and hundreds of others around Lake City. But for those who prefer trolling or deep fishing, boats can be rented on Lake San Crystaville, a large beautiful lake from which Lake City is named.

Lake City is located approximately 72 miles southwest of Gunnison, but Pampan's usually take the shorter route on through Raton, N.M., Walsenburg, South Fork, and Creede, Colo. From Creede, Slumgullion Pass makes the town attainable on Highway 149.

Lake San Crystaville is located immediately at the foot of the pass with Lake City being approximately three miles from it. From there you can take your pick of the many camps, cabins and lodges in which you'd like to stay.

One of the most enjoyable pastimes can be listening to the tales of the old-timers. The most well known one is the story of a man named Packer, who was said to have killed five companions and eaten them during a hard winter on the mountain. The graves of Packer and the men can be found on the Lake City of Slumgullion Pass.

A little half-ghost town of beauty and legend is this vacation wonderland of Pampans. It is truly an interesting one, and maybe even the spot you'd like to spend your vacation next summer.

With or without East's double of North's club cue bid West did have a natural club lead. This lead gave South a chance to make his contract which he did by careful and conservative play.

South discarded one of dummy's low hearts on the club lead. He was after six — not seven. East won with the ace and returned a trump. South won in dummy and played ace and another diamond, ruffing in his hand with the ace.

The nine of trumps was led and overtaken by dummy's ten and another diamond lead trumped with the king of spades.

Opening lead—♣ J

Now South was almost home. He laid down the king of clubs and discarded dummy's remaining low heart. Then he led a heart to dummy's king and ruffed another diamond with his last trump.

Since the diamond suit had broken four-three dummy's last diamond was now a good trick. South ruffed his remaining club in order to get back to dummy. Dummy's last trump pulled East's last trump and South claimed his contract.

While this hand looks pretty easy when you see all the cards there were several traps in the play. If South had trumped the first club he would have been a dead duck. Furthermore, he had to time the hand just right. If he had postponed his heart lead until after he had trumped three diamonds East would have had a chance to get rid of his heart on the fourth diamond lead and would have made his little six of trumps.

Tax-Man Says To Many Wrong Addresses Given

It seems that several thousand North Texans failed to furnish Uncle Sam their correct address for a refund on their 1956 income taxes. Some of these folks are probably ditsurbd about Uncle Sam not sending them a check, but the Internal Rev. Service has these checks with bad addresses waiting for the owners to send along the correct address.

If a taxpayer hasn't heard from his 1956 income tax refund and hasn't been infomred that a pre-refund audit will be made, he should write the full story giving the address used on his tax form and his present address to the Internal Revenue Service, 2101 Pacific Avenue, Dallas.

RETURN TO PARADISE—Some 7,700 exiled Japanese may be returned to the lush Bonin Islands. Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi said Washington had assured him of this. The Japanese were driven out by U.S. air raids. After the war, 135 descendants of pre-Japanese settlers—many of them Americans—were repatriated. They've petitioned for but never been granted U.S. citizenship. Japan took the islands in the 1860's after the U.S. and Britain gave up their claims.

Peg O' Pampa

YIPPEE-KI-YI . . . . they went that-away, pardner . . . . or at least "they" are fixin' to get ready to go that-away . . . . to the annual Top o' Texas Rodeo, which will get underway next week . . . . Madison Square Garden can have the championship boxing matches . . . . Yankee Stadium, the Big League Baseball games . . . . and Pasadena, the Rose Bowl games . . . . but for down-to-earth (no pun intended for the bronc-riders) thrills and color of the Great West, just give Peg the Top o' Texas Rodeo . . . . we've been shopping for colorful shirts and cowboy hats to outfit the small fry in our family and to become part of the background color of the rodeo . . . . and it will be cause for double celebration . . . for at the end of the rodeo, after the Most Beautiful Beard has been chosen, Mr. Peg can shave off his red and curly Pride and Joy, which he has been coddling and grooming for lo' these many weeks . . . . he has changed the style of it a dozen times and has been as fickle about its appearance as any woman at a beauty parlor . . . It has been fun . . . though, at times a ticklish situation . . . . But haven't there been some beauties grown in this hirstute endeavor that separates the men from the boys . . . . Take for instance, those beards of Floyd Hatcher, Lyle Gage, Leroy Ogden, Neil Johnson, Max Hukill, and Melvin Jayroe . . . . the old homestead is gonna look mighty bare after all that brush is removed.

A woman has two chances to a man's one of becoming a success. If she can't get what she wants by being smart, she can usually get it by being dumb.

—Mildred Miller

PEG CAN SEEM TO THINK of nothing but the rodeo this week . . . . small wonder, what with the advertising posters out all over town . . . . and the big banner spanning Cuyler down-town . . . . Watched Hoss Wrangler (isn't that a colorful title) Buck Hines putting the Top o' Texas Girls' Riding Club through their paces the other evening at the rodeo grounds . . . . the girls are to appear as one of the features of the rodeo . . . . and to Peg there is nothing as pretty to the eye as a pretty girl on a beautiful horse . . . . especially when the girl knows her horse . . . . evidently others think so, too . . . for there were several little girls, who are too young for membership in the riding club, watching spell-bound with their little hands and noses poked through the wire fence that surrounds the rodeo arena . . . now and then they would heave a heavy sigh that seemed to carry a silent and anxious wish for a horse and for the time that they will be twelve and can join this group . . . Saw Bobbie Lee Andis and Norma Jean Dillman reining their horse through some intricate routines . . . the girl and the horse seemed as one . . . they really know how to handle them.

Tact is the ability to shut your mouth before someone else wants to.—Arch Ward.

PEG'S EYES were taken by the lovely garden-in-the-air on the lawn of Albert and Olga Smith's home on Christine Street . . . flower pots holding pink, and blooming profusely, geraniums are suspended at the tips of slender poles that extend in an arch from the center of a pole about three feet off the grass . . . the effect is like a water spray . . . or a bursting rocket . . . or a gay merry-go-round . . . and the lovely blossoms of the plants just match the pink shutters and eave's trim on the house and garage . . . four attractive out-of-town visitors have been guests in the lovely home of Floyd and Marge Walker . . . they are Floyd's sisters from Fort Worth and Dallas and the daughters of Mrs. J. D. Walker . . . they came out to visit with their mother and attend the Shamrock High School Reunion last week end . . . Nomination for one of the most attractive tans in Pampa . . . Marion Fugate's . . . who has acquired it partially by teaching young tadpoles the mechanics of swimming during the summer-long Red Cross course at the Municipal Pool . . . saw lovely Mrs. J. L. Love entering the Lovett Memorial Library in the most beautiful orchid and pink flower hat . . . and attractive Freda LeMond entering the bank in a smart black and white checked dress with black patent accessories . . . another nomination for a smartly-dressed working gal . . . Peg, the inveterate snooper, ascertained that the new building going up out on North Hobart is that of the Stanolind Oil and Gas Company office building that will house the Pan-American Oil Co . . . that is going to be quite a community out in that direction . . . what with the new hospital wing just completed . . . and the new hotel to be built just a block away . . . Peg preens proudly at Pampa's progress.

MIDDLE-AGE: When you can do just as much as before, but don't.—Annonymous.

ISN'T THAT A WONDERFULLY worthwhile project undertaken by Claudine Vail, Edwina Boyd and Mrs. A. D. Hills . . . to repair and repaint the nativity scenes that are erected in our City Park during the Christmas season . . . and bring so much joy and reflection with their silent significance . . . they had just about deteriorated from the ravages of winter weather . . . and some hand-wrought damages . . . until these angels with a hammer and a paint-brush began their project to restore them . . . And have you seen the tidy-bugs picking up after the litter-bugs around town . . . they're Kit Kat Klub pledges, who, in blue jeans, base-ball caps with the KKK insignia on the bill, and bags, are engaged in an anti-litter campaign . . . Peg saw a group of them out in front of Carol Falkenstein's home the other afternoon, getting their instructions on the area they were to cover from Heidi Schnieder.

THE TIME HAS COME, the walrus said, to speak of many things, of sails and ships and sealing wax and cabbages and kings . . . . Peg can't think of a thing to say on any of those topics, but she did hear that Jerry Nell Griffin is hunting around like mad for a team of horses or mules to pull the Girl Scout float in the Rodeo parade . . . Anyone have a good team they would lend for a day? . . . Well, now, that Peg has done her Good Deed for the day, she will, like the Arabs, silently fold her typewriter and slip away . . . . until next week.

Love 'n Kisses

Manners Make Friends

It usually isn't a good idea to invite yourself to join in someone's plans for a trip or outing. If you would really like to go along, show your interest and then wait to be asked to join.

That's better than being pushy.

To get the most from your daily hair brushing session, be sure to brush it two ways. The first is with your head down, brushing from the scalp to the very ends for 100 strokes. The second is brushing your hair into place to polish it.

Here's a cure for those nasty white rings that appear when a careless guest puts a wet glass down on a tabletop. Dip a cloth in heavy soap suds and rub the ring until it disappears.

Housewives will welcome the new plastic - coated wallpaper in colors and paterns for every room in the house. Spots and dirt sponge away with soapsuds and water.

Don't leave all of your lingerie laundering for the week end. Have a couple of small laundry sessions during the week to eliminate that one big stack of lingerie on Saturday.

Never buy a strapless bra by size alone. Always have it fitted. Styles vary so much that what may be right for you in one bra may be all wrong in another.

If you want to avoid a crepe neck in later years, don't dig your chin into your collarbone as you read or sew. Keep your chin up an be sure you've a good working light near you.

The CRMWA Election

The problem of government intervention forces the individual many times to face a situation where there is no clear-cut choice as to principle. Under such circumstances, there is usually the concept of the lesser of two evils which rears its ugly head to haunt those who try to govern their decision by a moral yardstick of right or wrong.

In our opinion, the issue as to whether or not Pampa should become a part of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, for the purpose of obtaining federal funds to construct a dam across the Canadian River, is just that type of Hobson's choice.

Under the old authority, the feasability of private financing was examined quite thoroughly and at that time Pampa withdrew from the project because of conditions which would have made participation impractical and costly. Now, with federal funds in prospect, Pampa is being forced by the CRMWA into making a decision as to whether or not we will retain our claim to a portion of the only surface water available in the Panhandle.

Briefly stated, a stand against the project means sacrificing our surface water rights and a stand in favor of the venture means another nail in the coffin of American liberty through the route of federal subsidy.

The argument which contends that federal financing over a 50 year period, at an artificially low interest rate, does not differ in principle from private financing, over 30 years, with revenue bonds at a higher rate, overlooks the elementary point that the providing of capital is the proper function only of the open market, not Washington bureaucrats. If it is held that private financing makes the cost of the water "too high" at this time, then we are merely stating that the impounding and distribution of this water is currently not economical. Those looking for federal handouts, of course, are never interested in determining and allocating true costs but rather getting a ride on someone else's shoulders.

For Pampa to be forced into making a decision at this time we deem an injustice since our alternatives do not permit us to appraise the project by the accurate measure of free market utility. Yet, in all seriousness, we cannot overlook the club over our head which is the importance of retaining our claim to this vital asset for the years ahead.

Thus we face the quandry which makes a firm position impossible, for either way we stand to loose . . . either our traditional spirit of self-reliance against federal subsidy, or our water rights.

The choice, gentle voter, rests Tuesday in your hands.

THEORY AND PRACTICE

All of us are familiar with the phrase "a businessman's government," which no doubt was intended to imply "a businesslike government," which in turn was supposed to imply "a good government."

There is always the question, however, whether "business" and "government" are necessarily related, and whether an expert businessman is necessarily an expert political statesman. We are convinced "it ain't necessarily so," for we have known several extremely successful businessmen who seem to get confused, contradictory and lost in the abstract world of ideas, including the philosophy of government. In a serious discussion of "basic principles," they often sound naive and inconsistent, and give the impression that they have never taken the time to think such things through deeply enough to formulate unshakeable convictions.

It has been said that "men of action are seldom thinkers," and that "thinkers are seldom men of action." Perhaps this tends to be so, but it leads to a dangerous clevage across which some bridges certainly need to be built. Professors tend to become isolated and insulated off in their ivory towers amid ideas and theories, while the practical "doers" are so busy producing things that they have no time left over to meditate beyond "know-how" into the vast realm of "know - why." Surely these two types of people, the thinkers and the doers, could and should learn much from each other, and surely society could benefit from their closer contact.

Two such attempts, to my knowledge, have already been made, and this is all to the good. The Foundation for Economic Education launched a program a few years ago, by persuading top businessmen to invite professors of economics into their offices and factories for the purpose of observing and studying their production procedures and problems from top to bottom, and thus gain a close, practical knowledge of the business world about which they were writing and teaching theoretically.

The results so far indicate that this has been a most beneficial experiment. Businessmen have long complained that the "egg-head" professors of economics are too far removed from the production line to know what they are talking about, and this is at least a practical way to get them down into the market place. The professors themselves apparently agree that this personal business experience was an eye-opener, and no doubt it will effect and change some of their preconceived economic theories.

The reverse side of the coin is now receiving some attention too. Out in Aspen, Colorado, a group of top-drawer businessmen has recently gathered with some professors and thinkers in a joint seminar for the purpose of studying and discussing basic ideas and principles. These businessmen, upon their return home, have indicated that this adventure into the rarified atmosphere of abstract philosophy was one of the most exciting and beneficial experiences of their lives. No doubt it will inspire many of them to continue with this ideological exploration, and it stands to reason that society will reap untold benefits as a result.

Here then are just two exciting bridges of opportunity between the world of action and the world of ideas, which could lead the way not only to a greater understanding, but also to mutual cooperation.

It is hard to imagine what might or might not happen if our "thinkers" and our "doers" ever really "got together"!

Editor's Note: Mrs. Hunt seems to believe that professors are thinkers. If they were students coming out of college they would not be as confused as they are.

Counter Attack On Leftist Professors

I recently read six pamphlets written by Maj. L. L. B. Angas, past president, Oxford University Economic Society and former banker and stockbroker. The cost of these pamphelts is $1 each or the six can be had for gift purposes for $3. His address is Saxton's River, Vt.

Mr. Angas does a splendid job in the pamphlet, "Counter Attack On Leftist Professors" or "ABC of Socialism." He also has "A Capitalist Manifesto" that pretty well explains what capitalism really means. I want to point out a few of the gems in this "ABC of Socialism" or "Counter Attack on Leftist Professors."

Root Cause Of War

He makes this remark, which I think few people have thought about:

"The Marxian theory of the morality of profit is vitally important because it lies at the root or core of four separate wars.

"1. The East-West War with Soviet Russia.

"I. The domestic war between capital and labor.

"III. The civil war between domestic communists and the government.

"IV. The fight within our universities for the minds and souls of the rising generation (the communists being declared anti-Christian atheists.)

"If however the communists could be proved wrong in respect of their Theory of Profit, the ideological side of the war with so-called Russia might soon come to an end. They would have no ideological legs to stand on."

He does a splendid job in pointing out the ethics back of all profits. He puts it this way:

"As regards ethics: — Although everyone in business goes about trying to be economic, i.e. paying (giving) as little as possible, and getting as much as possible in return, this does not mean that trying to be "economic" is either unsocial, exploitative or un-Christian.

"No man is forced by another to exchange. No man (only Nature) makes another man buy or sell. We may hate having to live (our 'life' being one frame of reference,) but our exchanges are voluntary and not forced on us by our employers or the shopkeepers (our exchanges being another frame of reference.)"

Illusions

He contends, of course, it is illusion that profits are immoral. He puts it this way:

"Illusions however are not uncommon. For 50 centuries men thought they 'saw' the sun go round the earth."

"It was only 300 years ago (1635) that the Inquisition at Rome deprived Galileo of his lands for saying the priests were wrong in their 'scientific method' of trusting their senses when they daily 'saw' the sun go round the earth.

"Economics is full of similar popular sun-earth illusions (about 40 of them;) but woe betide the man who dares to mention them to any opponent. The latter's eyes will flare up: his hair will stand on end and the heat will become much greater than the light. Indeed only very bold men dare to tilt with an illusionist. That is why this book will be unpopular."

I agree with Angas that the man who is consistent and contends that all men should get everything they want on a voluntary basis, is accused of being almost anything, even to being reactionary, when, in fact, he is most progressive.

Maj. Angas sees that we are spending too much money on ludicrous wars but not enough money in distributing ideas that promote peace and goodwill. He puts it this way:

"Meanwhile the world spends two billion dollars a week in fighting the anti-profit Kremlin with bullets — because no one bothers to write clear bulletins on Capitalism, Money and Profit.

"Bulletins however are cheaper than bullets. But few patriotic or anti-Communist capitalists are interested in distributing bulletins. (They might offend their Labor (or the Kremlin) or the Union. But who cares? It is time they were offended, and woke up! For this is the Battle of the Ages.)"

Under the chapter "Socialism . . . A Political Rainbow," he makes the following observations:

'The Great Chameleon'

"The self-styled 'scientific' socialist party is essentially a political rainbow. It is composed of seven conflicting colors, like those of the spectrum. Each color however merges into the next gradually. Call it the '7 phases' of socialism if you like. Here are the sects or shades of Marxist intensity:

'The 7 Kinds of Socialist'
'The Socialist Spectrum'

"1. Those favoring public charity, and widespread state handouts to the relatively poor. The Welfare or Charity (or Robin Hood) State.

"2. Those favoring progressive taxation of the rich, so as somewhat to equalize post-tax incomes. Fiscal Socialism or Egalitarianism.

"3. Partial State Control — though not ownership — of private industry. Interventionism.

"4. Nationalization of some industries, though not necessarily all. Amphibianism.

"5. One hundred per cent nationalization of all industry. Totalitarianism.

"6. Nationalization of all forms of property and land. Communism-Proper, in the pre-Leninite sense.

"7. A One-World State under central planners. The 'Internationale,' or Global Sovietism.

"The reader will thus see that, it is difficult to know precisely what socialism means, when a man declares he is a 'supporter' of socialism. He can wiggle about as much as he likes, and has 7 different intellectual rabbit holes into which he can conveniently escape.

Ike Adopts Two Policies Instituted By Wallace

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has taken one of the greatest gambles in all military history in placing almost complete reliance for national security and world peace on atomic arms rather than on a more flexible and conventional defense force. That is the awful meaning of his latest decisions in this field, in Pentagon and Congressional opinion.

Defense Secretary Wilson, for instance, has ordered a reduction of 100,000 men in Army-Navy-Air personel. He will soon announce sharp cuts in the monthly draft allotments. He has cancelled a contract for the 5,000-mile, intercontinental missile after spending $750,000,000 on its development. Secretary Dulles has promised that we will fortify NATO with a stockpile of nuclear weapons.

These seemingly unrelated moves mark a revolution in warfare that is almost impossible for the layman to grasp. They match the change-over from arrows and spears to gunpowder, which introduced democratic government by placing guns in the hands of the people to offset the nobility's horses and armor.

The shift far exceeds the importance of the development of vast air armadas in World War II. That was merely a change in weapons and their emphasis, for the GI's had to do the cleanup job. But the plan to rely almost exclusively on an atomic armory means an entirely new attitude and approach to war — and possibly permanent peace.

FINANCIAL CONSIDERATION? — Military experts on Capitol Hill have already begun to express doubt and skepticism over the Eisenhower orders. They will undoubtedly undergo sharp and searching scrutiny before they meet with necessary Congressional sanction.

The suspicion grows that financial rather than military considerations motivate this radical departure. In announcng these plans, Secretary Wilson emphasized that they would save millions annually. But the skeptics will ask whether national and world security will not be sacrificed on the altar of economy. It is significant that the program has been praised by members of Senate-House Appropriations Committes, but greeted with silence by spokesmen for the Armed Services Committees.

Another objection centers on the fact that drastic cuts in conventional forces (ground, air and water) will leave us helpless to fight local Communist - inspired "brush fires," as in Korea, Indo-China and the Middle East. Every diplomatic expert reports that another dropping of an American A-bomb on a non-Caucasian people would turn them against us forever. We would be isolated utterly.

MAY KILL AGREEMENT — It will even affright our Western European Allies. It threatens to transform their cities and farms into an atomic battlefield, assuming that our threat does not scare Russia into abandoning any idea of war or local aggression. It may force Europe to engage in an atomic arms race, killing any chance of a disarmament agreement at the current London taks.

It could unite Western Europe against us. Irritated by their post-war dependence on the United States, they have already organized a Euromart and Eurotom — a common market and common atomic pool. They may now resent even more bitterly our promise of an atomic shield that would leave their lands in hopeless ruin, no matter which side won another possible World War.

WOULD RUSSIA SACRIFICE MANPOWER? — The Eisenhower gamble, of course, is one of hope — the hope that Russia, despite her vast superiority in land forces, will never order them to march into overwhelming nuclear fire powered by the industrial might of the United States. He apparently believes that this prospect will influence his old friend, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Defense Minister and a rising figure in Kremlin circles.

Nevertheless, this awful step into the far future has shaken every responsible member of Congress and every world chancellery, especially as they had not been forewarned. It could mean the end of war or a conflict far more horrible than H.G. or Orson Wells ever dared to depict in their wildest and most unbelievable speculations!

Answer to Previous Puzzle

THE Cracker BARREL

The New York Times, in praising the Supreme Court decision opening FBI files to Communists, says, "It is better for a few enemies of freedom to escape than for freedom itself to be lost." If the New York Times ever is destroyed by an atom bomb, it will be because these same enemies of freedom, that the Times treats so casually, succeeded in stealing the formula of the bomb from the United States. They will be just as eager to steal other and more destructive secrets, now that the Supreme Court has made it easy for them. And if the Times is destroyed, the rest of us (including the Supreme Court Justices) are apt to be destroyed along with it. How can freedom be preserved if we are deprived of the right to protect it from the enemies of freedom?

Small Business Clamor In Congress May Help Oilmen

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—All the clamor in Congress to help small business may eventually pay off for the little man in the oil industry.

Senate and House committees are exploring ways to spread out government buying. President Eisenhower has turned down early tax relief but has proposed changes in the anti-trust laws that might help.

The House has passed a bill making the Small Business Administration permanent and ordering it to reclassify small business on an industry-by-industry basis. The formula for deciding which business is eligible for government orders or loans would be made more lenient. The Senate may not get around to the bill until next year, but its ultimate chances are good.

Small Refiners Benefit

Recent Senate and House subcommittee investigations of Defense Department buying practices have focused new attention on how small refiners are benefitting. One fact developed is that ethy are not taking full advantage of the military petroleum supply agency's small business set-aside program even though they put up a stiff fight for tre concession two years ago.

The National Petroleum Association, a refiners' organization, is calling this to their attention. NPA counsel Donald C. O'Hara pointed out that on one recent 4,000,000 barrel set-aside for jet fuel the small refiners offered to supply only 2,350,238 barrels.

"The real key to increasing the quantity of the set-aside," he said, "is for the refiners to offer more product." He added that "now that the MPSA has a policy of paying a top price, the door is open to get an increased share of government business at a fair price."

Smather's Suggestion

Chairman George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) of a Senate Small Business Subcommittee, suggested after looking into military buying that the MPSA set-aside be increased to 14 or 15 million barrels. A spokesman for the Navy which through MPSA controls all petroleum buying for the armed services, said he would be happy to consider the suggestion. His only reservation was that adequate supplies must be available at all times.

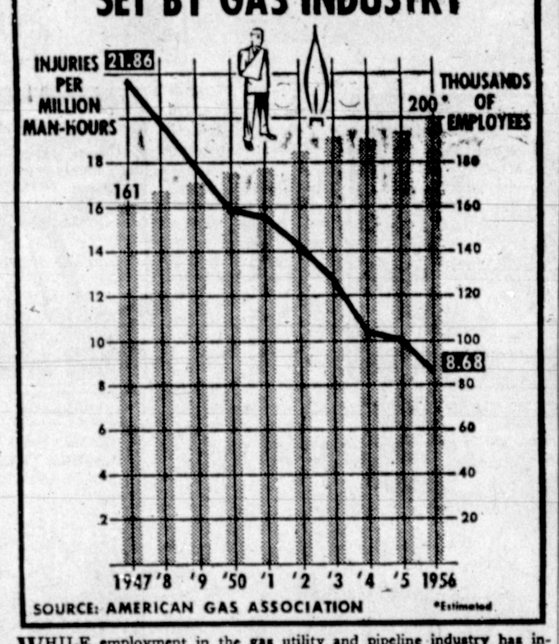

The plan provides that 10 per cent of all purchases of jet plane fuel go to small refiners on a competitive bid basis. The remaining 90 per cent goes to big suppliers, also competitively. Senate and House hearings showed the program is working well, with no complaints from any quarter.

In fact, in all the hearings on how small business is faring the MPSA program was praised as an example of what all government purchasing agencies should be doing. Members of Congress especially lilke the competitive bid feature. They are trying, thus far without success, to force the Defense Department to set up a single purchasing office for all service branches and replace negotiated contracts with the bid system.

Purchases Negotiated

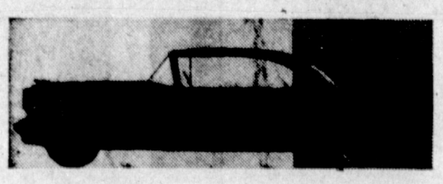

More than 90 per cent of the Defense Department's purchases are negotiated. This hasn't affected the oil industry but Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee says negotiated buying is open to abuse.

EMPLOYEE SAFETY RECORD SET BY GAS INDUSTRY

WHILE employment in the gas utility and pipeline industry has increased more than 24 percent since 1947, the industry's safety record has been improved 60 percent. The accident frequency rate was reduced in 1956 for the ninth straight year and achieved an all-time record of only 8.68 disabling injuries per million man-hours worked.
