SECOND ARREST IN SLAYING LIKELY

'Necktie Party' For Northcott Thwarted By Sheriff's Nerve

SLAIN BOYS' DAD LEADS 250 TO APE MAN'S CELL

Sheriff Defies Big Crowd Attempting to 'Interview' Chicken Rancher

SEEKERS OF "TRUTH"

Winslow Says Visit Solely For Learning Location Of Two Graves

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Feb. 10. (US) —Following an attempt made early this morning by a mob of 250 men to take Gordon Stewart Northcott from the county jail, the convicted chicken ranch slayer, fearful of the menacing shadow of "Judge Lynch" tonight was in a state of hysterical collapse.

All of Riverside was intensely excited as the dramatic events of the early morning hours at the jail became known.

Sheriff Clem Sweeters, with more than a score of specially sworn in deputies, transformed the jail into a veritable fortress. Plans were made for calling on nearby towns for help should the crowd return.

Victim's Father in Mob

Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning 250 grim-faced men, headed by N. H. Winslow, father of two boys for whose murder Northcott was convicted, advanced on the jail for the purpose of "getting the actual truth" from the condemned youth.

It also was rumored that another sensational attempt to take Northcott "for a ride" would be staged at 2 o'clock, when the convicted youth is scheduled to appear before superior Judge Freeman for official pronouncement of the death penalty.

The attempt to take Northcott from his cell early this morning was fraught with all the tense drama that ever accompanied a "judge lynch" necktie party of frontier days.

Smoke Veils Band

A pall of smudge smoke which hung over the hundreds of orange groves nearby, as if all the ranchers were in league with the attempted violence on the guilty youth marked the movement of the mob that descended on Riverside shortly before midnight Saturday.

Shortly after 1 o'clock a sedan with all curtains drawn, circled the jail that is located on a quiet street about three blocks from the main business section of Riverside.

Ten minutes later at exactly 2 a. m. a calvacade of automobiles swooped down to the jail from the south and drew up along the curb for two blocks with almost a military precision.

Men Heavily Armed

In the ghost-like fog of smudge smoke, figures could be seen jumping out of the machines. More than a score were carrying rifles or shotguns. Others were armed with pistols.

There was a conference of some 15 on the sidewalk, directly across from the jail, that lasted almost 10 minutes. Suddenly a man left the group and dashed across the street and up to the jail steps.

It was N. H. Winslow, father of Lewis and Nelson Winslow, two of

Snow Drives Wolves To Attack Czechoslovakians

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 10, (AP)—Forced from their lairs by heavy snow, wolves continue depradations in the rural sections and small towns, attacking both humans and animals. Reports from Galanta say villagers have had to barricade themselves in their homes in order to keep from being attacked. A 13-year-old boy was torn to pieces by a pack after he had exhausted himself in flight and used the last cartridge in his pistol. A woman also was killed and several persons mutilated.

Gil Escapes Death When Dynamite Wrecks Train

Trainman Killed and Two Coaches Are Derailed as Afterglow Of Feeling Over Toral's Execution

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10. (AP)—An unsuccessful attempt on the life of President Emilio Portes Gil was made early today when the train on which he was traveling was dynamited. The president was not injured and his coach did not leave the tracks although two other coaches and the engine were derailed and badly damaged. One fireman was killed.

The attempt on the president came within 24 hours after the execution of Jose de Leon Toral, put to death by a firing squad in Mexico City yesterday for the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of the republic.

Bomb on Track

The presidential train was dynamited about 7 a. m. between the stations of Comonfort and Rinconcillo, in the state of Guanajuato. The president was returning from an official state visit to the state of Tamulipas.

A dynamite bomb which had been placed on the track at the entrance to a bridge exploded killing the fireman instantly as the engine turned over followed by one pullman, in which were several members of the president's party, and the private car of the director-general of railroads.

Gil Inspects Damage

President Portes Gil calmly descended from his private car accompanied by the secretary of war and inspected the damage.

General Anselmo Macias, chief of military escort, started immediately with troops seeking the perpetrators of the crime. He issued orders to execute on the spot if the person or persons were caught.

First news of the outrage was received in Mexico City from a special correspondent of El Universal who was accompanying the president.

Troops in Pursuit

A relief train and more troops to aid in the pursuit were rushed from the nearest large stations among which was Celaya, where, according to testimony at the trial of Toral it was once plotted to assassinate President Calles and Obregon.

'Tracked' Hotel Guest At Stinnett Perforates Walls of Room

STINNETT, Texas, Feb. 10 (AP) —Guests at a local hotel thought the town was being shot up in wild west fashion last night when a fellow lodger, under the influence of squirrel whisky, imagined he was being "shadowed" by a bootleg gang and turned a 45 caliber pistol loose. Standing in the darkness of his hotel room he emptied the gun at the four walls. The pistol belonged to a police officer to whom the man had appealed for protection several hours earlier.

SUNSHINE PUTS COLD TO ROUT

Ice Laden State Thawing After Siege

Streets and sidewalks in Wichita Falls began to clear rapidly of the snow and ice which has covered them for the last few days with the coming of a full day of sunshine and rising temperature which prevailed all over the section Sunday.

Though the temperature fell to 10 degrees during the coldest part of Sunday, it rose steadily during the greater part of the day, reaching its maximum height at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when the mercury registered 38 degrees.

The mercury declined very slowly after nightfall Sunday, slipping only 4 degrees from 5 until 9 o'clock, when it stood at 34 degrees.

Temperature and conditions similar to those in Wichita Falls were prevalent in the greater part of the section, according to reports made by the dispatchers at the local railway office.

Temperature of around 28 degrees registered Sunday night at 8 o'clock in Childress and Quanah and along the Fort Worth & Denver line, it was reported, while the mercury stood at 30 degrees early Sunday night in Stamford, according to the dispatcher of the Wichita Valley road.

Temperature in southern Oklahoma was considerably lower than that marked in Wichita Falls, with the thermometer standing at 8 degrees at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

THAW COVERS ENTIRE STATE

DALLAS, Feb. 10 (AP) — The sun came back to cold-stung Texas today but the ordinarily balmy Rio Grande valley again prepared to meet with smoking smudge pots a prospective "freeze" and frost which weather bureaus in that section feared would assault green beans, peas and potatoes before morning.

Religious Queries Barred by Edison

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 10 (UP) —Thomas A. Edison has banned religious inquiries from the interview he will give tomorrow as usual in connection with celebration of his birthday.

The interview, normally the outstanding event of Edison's birthdays for the public, will be but a preliminary part of his program tomorrow, the outstanding event being his reception of the president-elect of the United States, Herbert Hoover, and Mrs. Hoover, who will be his guests at luncheon together with Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, old friends and annual birthday comrades.

JOHNSTON GOES BEFORE SENATE COURT TODAY

Suspended Governor Faces Task of Winning Favor Of At Least 15 Senators

11 CHARGES MADE

Climax of Two-Year Battle Finds Party Lines Rendered by Strife

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 10 (AP)— A political storm which has for two years swirled about Henry S. Johnston, suspended Democratic governor of Oklahoma, and his former confidential secretary, Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, dividing the state's Democratic party into disputing factions reached its climax with Johnston facing trial on 11 articles if impeachment tomorrow. The charge which he first would be tried on was in the discretion of the senate court of impeachment.

For acquittal on any of the charges, preferred against him after investigation by a house committee, Johnston must muster at least 15 votes in the senate court comprising 44 senators.

Needs 15 Votes

Whether the suspended governor can muster the 15 votes will be determined by the judgment of senators on evidence adduced in the trial.

His office first drew heavy fire two years ago, when angry opposition was expressed in the senate and house to his employment of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds as confidential secretary. Resolutions were drawn up in the senate demanding her dismissal, as it was contended that she exerted an undue influence on the governor to the detriment of his cooperation with the assembly in a legislative program. The governor weathered the protests against the woman secretary only to find it revived in an attempted special session of the legislature in December, 1927.

Corruption Charged

The articles of impeachment allege corruption in the issuing of a pardon to R. D. Crosthwaite, escaped life term convict; diversion of funds in the employment of J. W. (Buck) Eldridge as an "undercover man" in the pay of the state bureau of criminal investigation and identification; diversion of funds in the issuance of deficiency certificates for the state banking department and issues board for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929; unlawful expenditure of state money in the employment of Kirby Fitzpatrick as an attorney in an effort to collect on surety bonds of defunct state banks; unlawful interference, by calling out the militia, with the assembling of legislators for the attempted impeachment session in 1927; the issuance of deficiency certificates for the employment of C. B. Cochrane and D. Hayden Linebaugh as attorneys for the state supreme court in the trial of H. Bart Martin for alleged contempt of that court, and incompetency.

'Marriage Markets' in 29 States Challenge Efforts of Investigators

NEW YORK, Feb. 10. (AP)—The Russell Sage Foundation reported today that a study of marriage law administration in 30 states has revealed the existence of 57 "marriage market towns" in 29 states.

The report says these towns constitute the most conspicuous, though not the most serious, results of "the general neglect of marriage laws in this country."

The communities styled marriage market towns are those that have more than twice as large a marriage rate as that of their state, or which draw more than half their marriage candidates from outside license districts.

Names Suppressed

"We are so little inclined to advertise these places," says the foundation, "that we are suppressing their names throughout this report."

In one marriage market town the report says social workers were told by the justice of the peace that his regular fee was $3 but if the principals wanted their marriage kept out of the papers he charged $3 extra.

In this town runners for the justices were found who, soliciting business, boarded moving automobiles if they thought the occupants looked as though they might get married if properly approached.

Justices Advertise

In another town two justices of the peace advertised in street cars running from a nearby city, displaying car cards reading "sweetheart: be ready at four o'clock—we'll go to . . . just a short ride, and justices . . . and . . . will tie the knot."

In a third town ministers rather than justices were found to be profiting by the business, splitting of fees with taxi drivers who brought them couples to marry having been charged against several.

In one marriage market town the chamber of commerce spoke in its printed circulars of the town's advantages for weddings and expressed its desire for a "legitimate resort marriage business."

South Plains' First Meat Plant Lost in $25,000 Plainview Fire

Special to The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Feb. 10— Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the plant of the O. B. Jackson wholesale meat packing house at Plainview Sunday afternoon with an estimated loss of $25,000, including a stock of meat on hand valued at $2,000.

The plant was owned and operated by O. B. Jackson of Plainview, and was the first packing house established on the South Plains. It had operated for a number of years.

The loss was partially covered by insurance. The fire was discovered about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Jackson had left the plant an hour before. The fire apparently caught in the roof and defective wiring is given as the probable cause. Located in a remote part of the city away from a fire plug, the local fire department could not stop the blaze after it was discovered.

The loss is the heaviest Plainview has sustained from fire for more than five years.

Busy Prince Has No Time to See American Wife Even if He Cared To

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Feb. 10 (AP)—The sudden appearance here today of Prince Suad Bey Chakir, grandson of the late sultan of Turkey, resulted in reports that he was about to induce the Princess Chakir, former Kansas university girl, to return with him to his palace on the shores of the Bosphorus. This was denied by the prince.

The princess, young widow of the late John D. Spreckles Jr., son of the sugar magnate, married the prince in Paris after her husband was killed in an accident in California.

Until she was re-naturalized recently in United States district court here, the princess was a subject of Turkey and could have been ordered back to that country by the prince.

"My visit has really nothing to do with the presence here of the woman who is still, unfortunately for me, my wife," said Prince Chakir. "I am here on business and during my few days in San Francisco I expect to be tied up with conferences with several leading bankers and I do not expect or wish to see Madame Chakir."

SPENCE DELAYS REQUEST FOR SPECIAL JURY

Cotton County Sheriff To Quiz Others in Death Of Pendergraft

HOOBLER IN JAIL HERE

Accused Man Tells Story Of Alleged Fight Before Shooting

Investigation into the circumstances leading to the slaying of Arthur Pendergraft, prominent Oklahoma farmer, near here on Jan. 27, may lead to another arrest before the convening of a special grand jury, D. O. Hooper, sheriff of Cotton county and leader in the investigation, said Sunday night in a telephone conversation with The Record News from Walters, Okla.

D. J. Hoobler, former foreman of the Pendergraft farm, was put under a charge of murder Saturday afternpn after he led officers to the spot near the end of Lake Wichita where the slain man's body was found.

May Question Woman

Several persons near the Pendergraft farm and in the community will be quizzed by Mr. Hooper Monday, and the sheriff expects to be in Wichita Falls for another interview with the prisoner Tuesday.

"There's something and somebody back of all this," Mr. Hooper asserted.

"I expect things to develop within the next few days, although no arrest may be made at once. I expect to question several people tomorrow. Later on I may interview a woman."

No efforts to obtain a lawyer or make bond had been made by Hoobler late Sunday afternoon. Sam Spence, district attorney, said he planned to call a special grand jury to consider the case as soon as he had held a conference with Judge W. W. Cook, who would have to order the summoning of the grand jury. He expected to reach his decision some time Monday.

Special Guards at Jail

Mr. Hooper, who led the investigation which ended in the arrest and the discovery of the body of Mr. Pendergraft, missing for almost two weeks, said Sunday night that Hoobler was held in the Wichita county jail because the murder charges had been filed here. He said he did not anticipate violence of any kind, and that he was sure the people of his county would let the law take its course. Sheriff W. G. Bralley kept special guards around the jail Sunday afternoon and refused to allow anyone to see the prisoner. He had heard that the boys Northcott murdered on his Wineville poultry ranch.

MOB FAILS TO GET NORTHCOTT

Sheriff Turns Back Band Led by Winslow

Five other men followed him across the street and remained on the sidewalk in front of the jail as Winslow stalked up the stairs and rang the night bell, while some 250 men watched him from their automobiles.

Sheriff Amazed

Still in his pajamas, with a pair of trousers hastily pulled on, the sheriff with three deputies behind him came to the door.

"Sheriff Sweeters, I am Winslow —I am here to see Gordon Stewart Northcott," he almost shouted.

The sheriff and his deputies gazed out in amazement and especially so when they saw the long line of parked automobiles.

"I am here with 250 men," Winslow said. "We don't want to hurt him—all I want"—and the father's voice broke into sobs—"is to find where the bodies of my boys are hidden so that my wife and I can give them Christian burials."

Sweeters and his aids withdrew into the jail for a hurried conference. Then they again opened the door and Winslow stepped in.

Pleads for Interview

"I don't want to kill Northcott," Winslow told the sheriff. "The law will do that, but let me make him tell where he has hidden the bodies of my baby boys. Listen, I have the quit-claim deeds to my two houses in my pocket and I will give them to you as security that we will return Northcott to you alive after he has shown us where the graves are."

Sheriff Sweeters was firm in his refusal, saying:

"With only four of us here, I realize we are outnumbered more than 50 to one, but as sheriff of this county I'm going to protect Northcott if I have to die fighting. Bring on this mob of yours if you will, but you will only break into this jail over our dead bodies."

With Sweeters stood his three deputies, they were all only partially dressed, but each of them carried a gun.

Northcott Prays

The noise of the assembled mob carried through the still night air to the cell of Northcott. He whimpered in fear when he was informed the reason for the commotion. He fell to his knees and prayed to "save me."

"Don't let Winslow in to see me," he shouted through the cell bars. "He'll kill me. He'll shoot me Please, please have mercy on me and don't let him in."

In the meantime five of Winslow's lieutenants walked up the jail steps and demanded admittance. They were let in and then appeared one of the most dramatic scenes of the entire affair, when Sweeters standing dimly before them pleaded that the law might take its course.

Winslow and his lieutenants appeared much impressed by the sheriff's talk and withdrew to a corner of the jail's reception room for a conference. A few moments later Winslow and his followers walked over to Sheriff Sweeters and with outstretched hands—

Men Abandon Plans

"Sheriff—we believe you are right and we are going to do as you say. We are law-abiding men. If you say it cannot be—it cannot be," he said sorrowfully.

Sweeters shook hands with Winslow. A trace of moisture appeared in the sheriff's eyes when he said:

"'Tll be only too glad to see that you are invited, Winslow, to the hanging of Northcott at San Quentin."

Winslow and his followers turned on their heels and stalked down the jail steps and re-entered their cars. It was then that the remainder of the mob of 250 as if in disappointment started their motors and drifted quietly from the scene.

During the rest of the night, Sweeters and his men, augmented by a reserve of 20 more deputies, sat in the jail office with rifles over their knees. But the mob was through for the night, at least, and morning dawned without further trouble.

'Acts Just Like It Was Made for Her

Wichita Farmers' Wife Hadn't Seen A Well Day in Seven Years Until She Took Orgatone

"This Orgatone acts just like it was made especially to fit my wife's case," said B. E. Boydston, a farmer who resides four miles west of Wichita Falls, on the Iowa Park road while in Allison's Drug store recently.

"The fact is, my wife hadn't seen a well day in seven years," continued Mr. Boydston, "and almost as soon as she started taking Orgatone it went right to the seat of her trouble, and anyone could see that she was getting better. Her stomach gave her a lot of trouble, she had no appetite and she hardly ate enough to keep her on her feet. Her circulation was poor, and she suffered almost all the time from severe headaches. She was weak and nervous and all run down, didn't rest well at night and would get up in the morning feeling tired out and not fit for a thing. In fact, she was so weak and run down her housework was a burden for her.

"Most everybody in our neighborhood seemed to be taking Orgatone for their troubles and I got some for my wife to take. She is now on her second bottle and it is wonderful the way she has picked up, her appetite is just fine and she now eats a good square meal and feels all right afterwards. Her headaches are gone and her nerves are in better shape than they were before she began Orgatone; she rests better and gets up in the morning refreshed and feeling fine. Orgatone has given her the energy she needed and she is now strong enough to do her housework with ease. I am sure glad we found Orgatone when we did, for it has done her more good than anything else she ever tried before, and she is certainly spreading the good news around the neighborhood."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana Ave., under the personal direction of a special representative direct from the laboratories who charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

Arrangements Completed for Third Showing of "Dulcy" Tuesday Night

Final arrangements for a third presentation of "Dulcy," the Little Theater production which delighted Wichita Falls audiences on Thursday and Friday nights of last week, were completed at a cabinet meeting of the officers at the Woman's Forum Sunday afternoon.

The comedy, a charming three act play by Kauffman and Connelly, produced under the direction of James Daly, will be offered again Tuesday night by the original cast at the demand of hundreds of friends of the Little Theater who were unable to attend the first presentation because of the severe weather conditions.

Fair weather is promised for the third showing, and even in bad weather, busses run close to the Forum where the show is given, Mr. Daly pointed out. The curtain will rise at 8:15 promptly and the third audience will be given an opportunity of watching a cast already seasoned by two brilliant performances.

Several members of the cast, the first assembled here under the reorganization, can already boast of much experience. Mrs. Ruth M. Henry, who is charming as "Angela" the runaway bride of the comedy, is the holder of a degree from the Northwestern School of Speech in Chicago and has been a teacher of dramatics for three years. Miss Gretchen Comegys of Tulsa, who carries the difficult and delightful title role, has five years of training and stage work in New York behind her. Jerry Moffett, the unfortunate husband of "Dulcy," had professional training in his early youth, and J. Clyde Straus Jr., has been reared with the high traditions of Booth and Barett, with whom his grandfather played, before him.

Tickets for the third performance will be on sale at Renfro's drug store Monday and Tuesday.

Many See Toral's Body

It was understood here that the president would resume his journey to the capital as soon as the train and track damage had been repaired.

While the attempt on the life of the president was being made, the body of Toral, surrounded by flowers and burning candles, rested in his father's home while a stream of people filed past.

Extraordinary measures of precaution had been adopted in order to prevent any disturbances at Toral's fuperal.

American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow once travelled as a guest of President Calles on the presidential train dynamited.

The Mexican presidents' private train is said to be the finest of any ruler in the world.

COOLIDGE SENDS GIL CONGRATULATIONS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. (US)—President Coolidge tonight sent a telegram to President Portes Gil, of Mexico, congratulating him upon his escape from injury today when his train was dynamited in the vicinity of Comonfort, state of Guanajuato, Mexico.

The president's telegram read:

"I wish to congratulate you on your fortunate escape in the train accident today. I am sincerely happy to learn that you are safe and well."

DISORDERS MARK TORAL'S FUNERAL

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10. (AP)—The body of Jose de Leon Toral, executed by a firing squad yesterday for his assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, was buried at 5 o'clock this evening in the Spanish cemetery on the outskirts of the capital.

Three persons were killed, 25 injured and about 20 arrested, according to police reports, in the struggle of thousands to see the cortege as it passed or to witness the brief services at the grave.

Only a few hundred persons were permitted to enter the cemetery, but probably 100,000 lined three miles of streets, shouting "Viva Toral" and throwing flowers on his casket as it passed. Several thousand police and soldiers were stationed along the route.

A police cordon extended five blocks in every direction around the residence of the parents of Toral, where the body had been brought last night. Only relatives and close friends were allowed to approach the house.

Firemen frequently played their hose on the crowds near the home during the day, and the crowd retaliated in a few instances by throwing stones.

Catholic priests in civilian dress conducted services beside the grave. A squadron of mounted police with drawn sabers charged into the cemetery and galloped up the main driveway just before the body was lowered into the grave, as a precaution against last-minute disorders. The graveside crowd, mostly women, treated these police with shouts of "Viva Toral," which was taken up by the thousands outside the cemetery.

Anti-Alcohol Forces Don't Want $24,000,000 Under Present Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. (US)—With defeat of the $24,000,000 additional prohibition appropriation imminent, the Methodist board of temperance prohibition and public morals today announced that dry leaders do not want the appropriation under the terms provided by the present bill anyway, and that if it is passed most of it probably will have to go back to the treasury.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board, denied that the defeat of the appropriation would be a loss of the prohibition forces, and added that "congress will appropriate $24,000,000 or more if and when it is needed."

He declared that the present appropriation would not be available for use because of the lack of specific legislation, explaining that much of it would have to be used for prohibition enforcement work not included under the head of the prohibition division, such as the civil service commission, the coast guard, the border patrol, the customs service and the department of justice.

He charged that the defeat of the bill is due to political machinery, rather than to lack of merit.

Meanwhile, Ernest H. Cherrington, of the World League Against Alcoholism, undertook to score the advocates of a moderated prohibition, stating that if wine and beer are not intoxicating the wets would not be fighting for them, and if they are intoxicating any modification of prohibition that would permit their sale is in direct violation of the dry amendment.

PENDERGRAFT RITES TODAY

Slain Cotton County Man To Be Buried

there were 100 men in Walters who were ready to plan violence, he said.

After making a statement to Mr. Hooper in Walters Saturday morning Hoobler was brought to Wichita Falls and led Sam Spence, district attorney, and members of the sheriff's department to the place where the body of his former employer lay covered with an overcoat, a bullet through the right side of his head. The shooting, Hoobler said, occurred 10 miles from that place, a short distance out on the Henrietta road, this side of the Clay county line.

"Never Any Trouble"

The bullet which killed Arthur Pendergraft was fired across the hood of an automobile while Pendergraft threatened him with a crank handle, according to a story from the lips of the accused man, who claimed that he had already received one blow on the shoulder before the shot was fired.

In a graphic story of the events leading up to and following the shooting, Hoobler began with the assertion that the Pendergrafts had always treated him "like one of the family."

"I had worked for them as a sort of foreman for 11 years," he said. "I lived in the house and ate with them. I thought a lot of the family and they thought a lot of me. There had never been any trouble between us."

Mrs. Pendergraft and the children were in Wichita Falls on Sunday, Jan. 27, when Pendergraft and Hoobler left the farm and started on a trip which was to lead through Wichita Falls on down to Mt. Pleasant, Hoobler explained.

"We left the farm about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon," the prisoner went on. "We went in my Chevrolet, and I was driving. Pendergraft wanted to borrow some money and I hoped to get it from an estate I'm interested in in East Texas.

"We stopped a little while in Wichita Falls, but did not see the other Pendergrafts. We ate supper and then started out the Henrietta road on the way to Fort Worth. I told him I thought we'd better wait a week, because I might not be able to get the money now. But he insisted and we started.

Tells of "Quarrel"

"A few miles out he began cussing me and said he didn't believe I could get the money. I told him I'd get it from my brother if I didn't get it from the estate. But he kept on. He called me a damn liar. I told him to shut up, and he answered that he'd say anything he pleased to me.

"The quarrel went on until he picked up a crank handle from the bottom of the car and said he'd knock my brains out. I put on the brakes and opened the door on my side of the coupe. Before the car stopped I sort of fell out. It hurt me a little.

"Pendergraft stepped out on his side and started after me. I told him to stop or I'd hurt him. He said I couldn't hurt anybody and kept on cussing me. I had a pistol in my overcoat pocket that I always carry with me on the road. I warned him again that I'd hurt him if he didn't let me alone. I shot when he ran up from the right rear wheel, just across the hood from where I stood.

"I fired only once. He dropped the crank, and crawling on his hands and knees, climbed back into the car. I started the motor and came back to town. At Lamar street, after I crossed the railroad tracks, I turned west, driving out toward the asylum. I wanted to see whether he was going to die or not. I asked him if he was bad hurt and he didn't answer.

"When I got out by the asylum I felt over his left side and found out that he was dead. I drove on to a pasture on the Miller place which he had just leased. I took him under the arms and dragged him about 75 steps, pulled him under the wire and left him."

Hoobler then came back to town, according to his story, arriving at a hotel about 9:30. He visited a woman on Lake street, he said, and later went back to the hotel where he spent the night. He started back to Oklahoma on Monday morning.

Returns to Farm

Back on the Pendergraft farm he told Mrs. Pendergraft and other members of the family that Mr. Pendergraft would be back in a few days, he said.

"I owed some money," he went on. "I owed $350 to the bank at Burkburnett, $350 to the Farmer's State bank at Temple; and some more payments on my Chevrolet. On Tuesday I sold 11 head of Mr. Pendergraft's cattle for something more than $500, and on Wednesday I paid off some of my debts."

Hoobler said he had not "felt bad" about the shooting and about leaving Pendergraft on the Miller farm because Pendergraft, he said, "was trying to kill me with a crank handle."

Hoobler first told his story to D. O. Hooper, sheriff of Cotton county, as the two drove from Walters toward Wichita Falls. The statement came after three days and nights of ceaseless questioning by officials of Cotton county, members of the district attorney's office here, deputy sheriffs, and friends and relatives in Cotton county.

Sheriff Hooper said Sunday that the prisoner had had no sleep for three days and nights and that he had been questioned by friends and neighbors all of Saturday morning before he was willing to talk. Because of the crowd that was around him in the Cotton county court house, Sheriff Hooper offered to take him out in his car. They were expected back within a few minutes. But Hoobler started talking. Mr. Hooper said, and the ride continued until they drove up in Wichita Falls, picked up local officials, and went in search of the body.

Dr. M. A. Beckman Sunday examined the bullet wound found in the head of the dead man. He told Sam Spence, district attorney, that death had been instantaneous. No autopsy was held. The verdict of R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, who accompanied the group which went in search of the body and who conducted an inquest, said death was due to a "gun-shot wound one inch behind the right ear."

The body of Mr. Pendergraft was taken to the Hines Undertaking parlors. It will be returned to Walters, Okla., for burial early Monday. Arrangements are being completed by Louis Pendergraft, brother of the slain man.

Search for Mr. Pendergraft began last Wednesday after members of the family had become alarmed at his continued absence without explanation. On Wednesday afternoon Luther Pendergraft, brother of the slain man, with Sheriff Hooper an C. S. McCuistion, county attorney of Cotton county, brought Hoobler with them to Wichita Falls to begin an investigation. Hoobler at that time asserted that Pendergraft had met another man and had gone on to East Texas with him.

Hoobler was held for questioning Wednesday night, and Thursday members of the household reported the loss of the 11 head of cattle. Mike Anglin and George W. Anderson, assistant district attorneys, who had been trying to learn where Hoobler had obtained the money with which he had paid off certain debts, traced the sale and a check, bearing Hoobler's signature, received in payment. Charges of theft were immediately entered against Hoobler in Cotton county.

Three days of grilling preceeded the statement of Hoobler and his offer to show officers where the body had been placed. The prisoner was held here for two days, but on Friday taken back to Walters, where he described the shooting to Sheriff O. D. Hooper.

GIRL ALTITUDE SEEKER FAILS

Marvel Crosson Believed To Have Missed Mark

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Feb. 10. (UP)—Miss Marvel Crosson, 25-year-old San Diego aviatrix, tonight was believed unofficially to have failed to break the women's altitude flight record on an attempt made at Clover field this afternoon.

Joe Adams, National Aeronautical association official, estimated after a preliminary inspection of the plane's barograph that Miss Crosson had attained an altude of 18,000 feet. The existing record of 20,270 feet is held by Mrs. Louisa McPhetridge Thaden of Oakland.

Adams said it would be impossible for an official announcement to be made until the barograph has been examined by the bureau of standards at Washington, D. C. He will forward it Monday.

Adams made his unofficial estimate after the barograph mechanism had revolved sufficiently for inspection. His figure of 18,000 was gained by peering through the glass covering and comparing the unmarked sheet with one that had been used previously.

Miss Cross said she "thought she climbed 20,000 feet."

Spanking Machines Forebode Halt For Bolshevist Trend of Juveniles

"There Is No Other Such Sinister Figure in Modern Life as the Child Bolshevik, Nor Is There Any Other Crime Equal to Letting a Child Make Itself and Everybody Else Miserable"

The simultaneous announcement that two different men in different parts of the country have invented a patent spanking machine that is guaranteed to carry repentance and reformation in its wake when properly used is more than a coincidence.

It is a prophecy, and it indicates that flaming youth is about to get its comeuppance. Of course, there is nothing the matter with the old-fashioned hand-made spank, except that there is not enough of it to go around. Hence the invention of something that promises to enlarge its scope and usefulness meets a long-felt want, for there is no other such crying need in America today as for some method of dealing with the obstreperous children who are in need of a good paddling.

I am quite aware that these heterodox views will not meet with the approval of most mothers, and that I shall be considered a rank Philistine by the child culture-devotees, but to my mind there is no other such sinister figure in modern life as the child Bolshevik, nor is there any other crime against society equal to letting a child make itself and everybody else miserable and uncomfortable when it could be sweetened, made agreeable and optimistic by a judiciously administered spank.

For the spank stands to the child for law, order and respectability, and it is happy just in proportion as it is amenable to it. The child criminal is just as unrestful as the adult criminal.

The most curious evolution of the civilization of our day is the attitude we take toward children, and its fundamental principle is that a child must not be made to behave. He is no longer forced into the straight and narrow path and compelled to stay there. An effort is made to beguile him into the ways of righteousness and politeness and civility, and if he condescends to walk in that direction everybody offers up prayers of thanksgiving. If he behaves, it is simply a matter of grace. Nobody is rash enough to try to make him.

In other times there didn't seem to be any particular difficulty or flurry about rearing children, and when most of us older ones were brought up it was a perfectly plain and simple proposition without any sterilized milk or sterilized philosophizing about it.

We were just dressed simply, reared plainly, spanked when we were bad, kissed when we were good, taught obedience to our parents, respect for our elders, and that our place in the scheme of things was in the background.

Now all of that is changed. After the first baby is born into a family nobody expects to get any rational conservation out of either parent for the next twenty years. It is always what Tommy thinks or Sally says of Johnny did, and no effort is made to suppress these infant terrors. On the contrary, they are dragged to the front and kept there.

Now I do not believe in suppressing children, but I hold it is a rank injustice to any child to bring him up to think that he is of supreme and paramount importance. It is going to be a bitter day for him when he finds out, when he is grown, that nobody will listen to him, and life will give him many a hard knock before it kicks the inflated self-esteem out of him and reduces him to the proper size for the little bit of place he is going to fill in the world. Many a man is a failure because his mother has brought him up to think that he ought to start out by being president of the United States instead of emptying somebody's wastebasket.

Another cherished theory is that you must never force a child to do anything. Lead him to it. Entice him. Always present duty with a halo around it.

"I never give my children any duties to do at home as duties, because it would be distasteful to them, but I make a game of it and they never discover it is anything but play," said a woman to me, exploiting this theory.

Yes, but how about the day when the child grows up and faces the work that is stripped of its tinsel and disguise, and that is nothing but a hard, unromantic, twelve-hour-a-day job? We get the answer to that in the down-and-outers who have never had the grit to do anything hard, who all their lives have drifted down place to place and occupation to occupation, trying to find a soft snap in which there was good pay and no work.

There isn't any use in trying to sugar-coat life in the hope that we can swallow it and never discover there is a bitter pill inside. The sweet always rubs off at the critical moment. Far better to cultivate enough backbone in a child to make him strong enough to choose the right, even if it is hard. When any one has learned to do what they have to do without fuss or complaint, when they have learned to take their pill without making faces, they have conquered fate.

In the new attitude toward children it is held that obedience is desirable, but that it is tyrannical and brutal to enforce it. You must not say MUST to a child, but instead insinuate your desire in a diplomatic way. That is why you hear parents say that they can do nothing with a 10 or 12-year-old boy or girl. That is why mothers are sitting up at night, with their hearts torn with fear, waiting for their flapper daughters to come in at 3 o'clock in the morning, and why fathers are going down to the police courts to pay the fines of their hoodlum sons.

The greatest misfortune that has befallen the human race since the Eden episode is the discovery that the child is a problem. Up to that time we hadn't been pestered and confused with theories. In the mercy of Heaven, it had not occurred to anybody that there was danger of cowing a proud spirit by making a child behave, or that it was a humiliation for a child to have to obey its parents. It is altogether probable that Mrs. Washington and Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. Lincoln and millions of other women who brought up sons who were a credit to them never once suspected that little George or Thomas or Abe was a problem. They were just boys and they dealt with them on the platform.

Children are just as adorable now as they ever were and we need to get back into a saner attitude toward them. They need to be disciplined. They need to be taught obedience. They need to be strengthened to meet the hard requirements of life, not taught that they may shirk its responsibilities, for childhood is the school of life and as we learn its lesson we stand or fall. —DOROTHY DIX.

HOBBS SECTION WATCHES TEST

Bordages Wildcat Ready To Resume Drilling

Special to The Record News

HOBBS, N. M., Feb. 10.—While weather conditions are working hardships on drillers in this section, it appears that drilling will be resumed on the Bordages No. 1 Jenny Hughes by Saturday of this week. Workmen have been busy repairing engine, boiler and other equipment since Monday of last week, and at this time have everything in pretty fair shape for drilling.

The Bordages well, one of the first to be spudded in in this section, is more than 4000 feet deep at this time, and at the time drilling ceased some three months ago the bit was on the pay. Formations in this well are very similar to those found in the Midwest pool, and there is every reason to think the Bordages well will be a producer. The Midwest well, one mile from Hobbs, is the best producer in the state.

The two wells are some three and one-half miles apart, and should the Bordages come in a producer some 20,000 or 30,000 acres would be in proven territory. It would mean the opening up of a large oil field in the very near future.

However, these two wells, while being closely watched by members of the oil fraternity, are not the only wells in this section. To the southwest of Hobbs will be found several other tests, and at least one of them is spraying oil at this time. West of the city in the Maljamar area a good well was brought in last week. It is in the shallow well area, and is a light producer, making something like 80 barrels a day at this time.

Northwest of the city two new wells have been spudded in, and while they are not in the proven area, operators feel that they are on the paying structure.

Northeast of the city one new well has been spudded in. It is just over the Texas line.

Just at this time it appears that the Hobbs area will be given a thorough test during the coming months. At this time there are some 75 wells in Lea county, and the best formations are found in the immediate Hobbs area.

Car Registrations In Donley Show Gains

Special to The Record News

CLARENDON, Texas, Feb. 10.—Car registrations in Donley county to date total 2,013, with 274 trucks also on the list. This total shows to be a few more than the 1928 mark and is in line with a general increase in all tax payments received in this county, with the exception of poll taxes, which showed the usual let-down for a non-election year. State, county and school taxes are better paid than in 1928, showing that better business feeling is evident and was experienced during the year. City taxes for the city of Clarendon show a larger per cent paid than in the past few years also. Tax collectors report that payments have been made more promptly this year.

Early Training of Young Guides Later Musical Attitude, Says Critic

By LEONARD LIEBLING
Universal Service Music Critic

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Wordsworth's immortal thought that "the child is father of the man," fits nothing better than the world of music. How the grown-up reacts to good music nearly always is dependent on the kind of tonal atmosphere, training, and surroundings experienced during youth.

That idea is now generally accepted by the people at large and even by our civic authorities. Teachers and serious lay music lovers have, of course, always known it. In recent years community officials have made large strides forward in their endeavor to give juveniles every possible musical advantage through the schools. The symphony orchestras all over the country affiliate themselves with the movement by arranging contracts for the young. Wealthy persons are generous contributors to organizations that extend free music teaching to children. The phonograph companies, the player piano concerns, and the radio establishments contribute their inestimably valuable quota toward making the tots acquainted early with the best examples of the masters. The publishing houses issue editions of all the great works, simplified so accessibly that they are within reach of any child able to play a bit on the piano or violin.

Power of Training

It is a trite and oft-repeated but correct belief that if ever America is to become a thoroughly musical nation, that happy destiny can be achieved only through the proper training of the young. We are now on the right road in this country. Let us watch the ultimate results.

Perhaps some day the American father and mother, like those of Germany, will sit down with their children after dinner or of a Sunday afternoon, and unite in an ensemble to play the easier chamber-music works and arrangements for trio and quartet. In some Teutonic households where mama or papa have a singing voice, the program consists of Schubert, Schumann, Franz, and other classical songs, and frequently son or daughter serves as the accompanist at the piano.

My own father was a musician and therefore my case does not represent the average, but many of my childhood hours were spent playing piano-duet adaptions of the symphonies and overtures with my father, and the sessions usually ended only when the son could no longer see through his tears, after having been lustily cuffed every time he made a mistake. Looked upon by me at the time as the most tragic martyrdom, it was not many years later that I felt those seances to have been among the most valuable and lovely hours of my life, even including the cuffs and scoldings that went with them. When I was eight and nine years old my revered dad forced me to go to concerts; at the age of 10 and 11 I began to beg to be taken to them.

Doctor's Attitude

All that does not seem to be in harmony with a recent article in the forum, by Dr. Frank H. Richardson. He holds that the practicing of a musical instrument by a child often results in later serious nervous and physical disorders. He cautions against what he calls "ramming music down the throats of the youngsters, a process that produces more nervous trouble than infant prodigies." The good doctor forgets, however, that the musical education of the young is not primarily intended to produce prodigies. As a matter of fact, there are fewer performing infant prodigies on the public stage today than ever before in the history of the tonal art.

There are no doubt many cases of nervousness in consequence also of juvenile struggles with mathematics, geography, history, and other kindred matters which the young rebels prefer to playing games.

I cannot help regarding as highly exaggerated, Dr. Richardson's to me, assuming summing up of his theory:

"If your ears are assaulted by the notes of some infant demon picking his tortuous way through the maze of a scale in B flat, do not fancy that this tiny soul is being wafted to the heights of lyric tranquility on the wings of song. On the contrary, it is likely that he is going through torments far worse than your own, as a result of which he will probably be found in a doctor's office a few months hence suffering from some mental or nervous trouble. It may be an annoying twitch or grimace, it may be a conduct disorder, or it may be something as serious as St. Vitus' dance, from which it will take him months to recover—if he ever does recover completely."

Wanted: Garage Showing Profits; See Frank Gould

NICE, France, Feb. 10. (US)—Frank J. Gould is ready to quit his gambling venture at Monte Carlo and turn his $5,000,000 casino "into a garage if that will make money." He has thus stated to those associated with him in the venture.

After a survey of the operation of his enterprise recently, Gould has concluded that it is losing around $4,000 a day, and he sees little hope of improvement under present conditions. He regards the place as overstaffed and headed straight for bankruptcy unless something is done.

Regarding next season, Gould has informed his associates they cannot count on using any more of his money to open the place. It is said that he is dissatisfied, because the daily gambling receipts at his Casino aggregate only $3,000, while the municipal casino takes in $1,000.

Sharp Turn at Corner Costs Farmer His Milk

"It's no use to cry over spilled milk," but one farmer who turned the corner of Ohio avenue and Ninth street into a milky way Sunday afternoon regretted the loss of his five gallon can of milk enough to look sadly at the white stream it left across the street, pick up the can, and drive slowly on down the street.

The accident and the loss of the farmer's milk came as the result of a sharp turn in which he hurled the can off of the bed of his runabout. The lid flew off of the can as it hit the ground and the milk left a wide stream along the street until it rolled into the sewer and finished the work of emptying into the city's drainage system.

Roman Church Settlement and Peace Move by Russia Headline World News

(FOREIGN NEWS REVIEW)
By WILLIAM R. KUHNS
Cable Editor, The Associated Press

Four bulky, unrelated events gave current history a complete change of program last week.

In Italy Premier Mussolini induced Pope Pius XI to end the 59-year period of voluntary imprisonment in the vatican started after the revolution in 1870 by Pope Pius IX and continued by Popes Leo XIII, Pius X, Bendict XV and the present pope.

Russia made another bid for the role of world peace spokesman in renouncing her claims to Bessarabia and thus clearing the sulphurous atmosphere of central Europe enough to permit the first regional application of the Kellogg pact, a protocol signed by Russia, Poland, Rumania, Esthonia and Latvia.

In Paris international experts committee on reparations held their first meeting.

Finally, but not least important among the four events is the decision to add 15 cruisers and an aircraft carrier to the United States navy.

Pope Given State

The principal provisions of the Italo-Vatican concordat are that the pope renounces temporal claims over the former papal states and receives from the Italian government independent and almost absolute sovereignty over certain church property.

The Roman Catholic church becomes therefore, the recognized state religion of Fascist Italy.

America's new cruiser program aroused a variety of feelings abroad. The Tribuna of Rome, for example, was inspired by the vision of an American "Imperialism" rising to threaten a century-old British "imperialism."

East versus east, Japan and China failed once more to find a common denominator for their troubles and the important negotiations between C. T. Wang, Chinese foreign minister and the Japanese minister to China, Yoshizawa, are deadlocked.

Seven days of murder, rioting and street fighting between Moslems, Hindus and Pathans in Bombay have spread panic through that sun-baked city and caused the death of 100 persons.

Leon Trotzky's fate remains in doubt. Since the first report that Moscow had banished him to Turkey or some other point outside of Russia, his presence has been rumored in many different localities.

Colonel Lindbergh delivered United States mail by air to Panama three days after leaving, Miami, Fla. The new mail route will be put into regular operation immediately with stops in Cuba and the Central American capitals.

Ambassador Dwight Morrow returned to his post in Mexico City where the problem of Mexico's international financial status soon will come up for discussion.

President Moncada of Nicaragua has carried out his promised action to turn the big guns on General Sandino and suppress the revolt. Martial law now exists in the four northern Nicaraguan provinces.

The death of Queen Mother Maria Christina of Spain occurred while the Spanish government was at grips with a serious subversive movement. General Primo de Rivero seems to have maintained the authority of his government but not without a moment or two of anxiety.

The Mexican government closed the books on the assassination of President-elect Obregon with the execution before a firing squad of the murderer, Jose de Leon Toral. The nun, Mother Concepcion, convicted as the intellectual author of the crime, will serve a 20-year prison sentence.

Prince Who Is Akin to Half of Kings Of Europe to Wed Bourbon Princess With Continent's Nobles Looking On

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI
Record News Special Dispatch

PALMERO, Feb. 10—Royalty and nobility from the four corners of Europe were gathering here today for the wedding tomorrow of Princess Francoise of France, daughter of the pretender to the throne of France, and Prince Christopher of Greece.

By this marriage the house of Bourbon and the royal family of Greece, both tossed into the political discard by revolutions, will be allied in exile.

Prince Christo, her's witnesses will be former King Manuel of Portugal, and the Duke d'Aosta, uncle of the bride and cousin of the king of Italy. Witnesses for Princess Francoise will be former King George II of Greece, nephew of the groom, and Crown Prince Umberto of Italy.

European governments will be represented by Sir Ronald William Graham, British ambassador to the Italian court, Prince Knud, second son od King Christian II of Denmark; the Count of Dianders, second son of King Albert of Belgium; Princess Helene of Greece and Rumania, who is mother of the boy king, Michel, and Count de la Vinaza, Spanish ambassador to the Italian court.

Princess Francoise, born in Paris in 1902, is a descendant of Philipe l'Egalite and daughter of John, Duke of Guise, the pretender to the throne of France. Her sister is the Duchess of Apulia, daughter-in-law of the Duke of Aosta, the cousin of the king of Italy.

Christopher, the youngest brother of the late King Constantine of Greece, who died in exile here in 1923, is the widower of the late Mrs. William B. Leeds, who died that same year in London. He is 40 years of age. As a prince of the house of Schlewig-Holstein-Sonderbourg-Glucksbourg, the prince is directly related to half the crowned heads of Europe.

The villa Orleans d'Aumale, historic refuge of the French pretenders, will be the scene of the civil ceremony.

"He who harbors hatred in his heart, creates a hell for himself."

Do not permit yourself to hate anyone. It is madness and destroys your reasoning powers. If you give way to hating, you harm yourself much more than those you hate. THIS THING CALLED LUCK

ACCIDENT leads the way to success, but never develops it.

Lots of men have been literally shoved into fortunes. Time and again, circumstances conspire to lift folk to unexpected affluence. Luck, though, neither clinches wealth nor power.

They owned title to the richest strike in western history, and the most any of the three got out of it was $40,000.

Nature is willing to furnish the specifications for the wildest dream, but she looks to her partners in every enterprise to contribute a due share of initiative and management.

Imagination has the same code. She reveals possibility, and then delegates the job to persistence and judgment.

Inventions are born of sudden notions. But the distance from the nebulous idea to the finished product is a long, arduous road.

If ther's any question in President-elect Hoover's mind about prohibition prohibitin' he's restin' up in a dandy place to git the low down on the situation. If a theater box office lineup was headed in any other direction you'd never suspect that ther was $3 in the crowd.

A Nebraska senator introduced a bill to put barber colleges on a plane with institutions of higher learning. Perhaps that's because barbers have so many heavy questions to settle.

It's just possible Mars may have been trying to get in touch with the earth and tuned in on one of those tenors who wants to show everybody he can hold a high falsetto note for 10 minutes.

Well, if the styles continue as they are, we're not in any danger now of petticoat government.

On Trying to Attain the Age of 150 Years

A GROUP of men in the Middle West have organized what they call the "Century-and-a-Half Club." It is the aim of each member to guard his health so carefully that he will reach an age of 150 years.

No one—except, possibly, the dupe of a medieval alchemist—would have dared try such a thing in any age but the present. So much has been said recently, however, about the possibility of lengthening life by proper care that these men have decided to try it.

If they should succeed it probably would be a fine thing for medical science. Case histories would be written on each man, and life insurance companies would issue charts telling everybody just how the thing was done.

Yet the whole experiment, somehow, is a bit depressing to think about. To shoot at the age of 150, one would have to make the business of keeping alive his major interest in life. And if some should ask him, "For what?" he might be stumped.

There is a good deal of misconception about the whole business of long lives, anyway. To live twice as long as the average man might be a great blessing; it might also be a great curse. If it could be done only by a strict asceticism, in which every action, every day, was made to fit a certain pattern, it would not be worth doing.

For length of days, by itself, isn't worth a continental. The newspapers recently unearthed a venerable Turkish peasant as the world's oldest man. This white-bearded gaffer had existed for something like 115 years. But who, reading the story, envied the old chap? He had been a boy when Waterloo was fought, he had seen the map of Europe change half a dozen times, he had seen the world turn from the cumbersome tools of antiquity to the lightning-fast machines of the 20th century—but none of it had meant anything to him. Colonel Lindbergh, not yet 30, has had 10 times as much real life as this aged Turk has had in a century.

How long you live doesn't count greatly. What matters is what you put into the time you have. If longevity is the best goal, we're all licked before we start. If it isn't, what's the use worrying about it?

The Century-and-a-Half club is probably a fine thing; but someone ought to start a club in which the aim would be, not to live long, but to live fully. To die with any of your powers for experience, expression, joy, or creation unused is a tragedy, whether death comes at the age of 10 or 100. The army sergeant, profanely urging his men across a shell-riven wheat field with the caustic, "Do you bums want to live forever?" had the right idea.

Death can be staved off for only a few years, at best. To make its postponement one's main job in life is to miss the whole point of living.

Our Reclamation Record

THE ACTIVITIES of the federal government's reclamation bureau are often attacked these days on the ground that they cost far more money than they were worth. It is charged that the arid lands reclaimed for cultivation were not needed and, in many cases, are not used.

Figures just issued by the department of the interior are interesting in, that connection.

They show that more than 600,000 people live on federal reclamation projects. Last year these people raised crops worth $135,000,000. The local food products which these districts supply have helped to open mining districts and keep mines in operation, and have strengthened the range stock industry by providing winter feed for stock. In addition, the crops grown on these areas have cheapened railway freight rate by providing an immense amount of local business for the transcontinental roads.

Such figures indicate that the reclamation bureau can be rather proud of its record.

Reed of Missouri

JAMES A. REED of Missouri, after 18 years' service in the upper house, will retire to private life March 4, 1929. He is one of the ablest men in public life and one of the greatest debaters congress has known. He forced Borah to his knees in the Kellogg pact debate and compelled the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee to write into the records an interpretation of the language and scope of the pact. Coolidge and Borah were compelled to dismount before the ratification of the pact. Reed led the fight for the cruiser bill. Coolidge and Borah lost. They demanded time elimination. Reed trained his oratorical guns on the proposal. He won. A pigmy takes his place.

He Speaks for Organized Labor

GOVERNOR MOODY has announced the appointment of J. H. B. Holderby of Fort Worth as a member of the state prison board. Holderby will represent organized labor on the prison board. He is a locomotive engineer on the Rock Island railroad. He carries a card. Of course the governor carries a card. He is a life member of the Electrical Workers union. President Coolidge is an honorary member of the Bricklayers union. It is just a decoration, that's all. As for the Texas governor, he worked with his hands for his declaration.

Circus Trainers Busiest During Winter

By CLAUDE H. WOLFF
Associated Press Writer

PERU, Ind.,

"I went to the animal fair,
"The birds and beast were there,
"The old raccoon by the light of the moon was combing his auburn hair.
"The monkey he got drunk and fell on the elephant's trunk,
"The elephant sneezed and fell on his knees.
"And what became of the monk?"
—Old Song

He's probably at Peru, Ind., along with lions, tigers, hippopotami, polar bears and trick horses in circusdom's largest winter quarters.

The circus City Zoological garden is the snow-time home of three large circuses. It is a 1,000-acre plot outside the city. Sells-Floto, Hagenbeck-Wallace and John Robinson all winter there.

December, January, February and March are more trying for the animal trainer than the 200 days he spends on the road with his jungle and plain charges. New tricks must be taught, new animals must be tamed and new acts perfected. While the trainers are at those occupations all wagons and cages are repaired and painted, patched and replaced, and all the paraphernalia of the "big top" refurbished.

Trainers, especially those who handle the wild animals and the horses, prefer the road to winter quarters. On the road the trainer works less than an hour a day. In the off-season they spend hours daily with their animals.

Peru is said to have more wild animals in winter than any place in the world except the jungles which nurture them. There are 36 elephants, scores of lions, Siberian tigers, hippopotami from the Nile and polar bear.

Training quarter visitors may find in one large brick building Clyde Beatty, youthful Chillicothe, Ohio, trainer, breaking in a new member for his group of 36 lions and tigers. A bit farther is Asage Christiansen of Denmark teaching a polar bear to wrestle, or Rudy Rudynoff, a German, working on a "liberty act," in which 12 horses react together to the crack of a whip. "Cheerful Gardner and Joseph Metcalf are in another building putting their elephants through their paces.

Dogs, ponies and monkeys, as well as llamas, zebras and camels, also are trained here.

A small army of carpenters, decorators and canvas workers are employed so that the circus may issue forth in the spring unmarred by the previous season's exactions.

The trumpet of an elephant as he plods through Peru, or the roar of a lion in a cage as he is hauled through the city causes only a ripple of local interest. There is no fear. Peru folk know these animals and their trainers. They reckon years by elephant chases in India and lion hunts in Africa.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—In his neat dark suit, wearing a cap that is a cross between those of the commanders of battleships and captains in the Salvation Army, the "lecturer" (woe to him who inadvertently refers to one of them as a "barker") stands beside his bulging coach, letting 'em have it in an eloquent stream, luringly descriptive of the haunts of New York. All the while his glance plays over the crowd that heedlessly passes. That glance is like the long, skillfully handled hook of a fisherman.

Suddenly, through the almost impenetrable mass of squirming humanity, it lights upon a meek looking individual a good 20 feet distant. Perhaps the unwary chap is staring blandly at the roof of the Times building, or looking into a drug store window.

He is a marked man. According to the best traditions of the snake and bird episode, he finds himself reading the sign on top of the bus. He thinks it is of his own volition, then he moves toward the genteel looking person in the dark uniform who politely opens the door of the bus with a "Starting shortly, sir."

"You can pick a live one a block away," explained the lecturer, modestly depreciating his little exhibition of legerdemain. "It's written all over their faces. All they need is a bit of encouragement."

Somebody, just for the fun of it, steps up and asks the lecturer when he starts. "Very shortly" bears the burden of procrastination more gracefully than any other combination, they say. And they've tried all of them.

Men grumble the most over continued delay in leaving the station, but the women seem to enjoy watching the crowds pass. But finally when the women, too, are beginning to grow restless and there are enough passengers to make the trip profitable, the chauffeur and the lecturer take their seats.

Employing a megaphone that would do credit to a cheer leader in Soldiers' field, the lecturer bellows: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are now starting on the famous tour through Chinatown. We always start on time—Times square."

This is followed by an appreciative pause, the barker scrutinizing the faces before him. If they laugh or even smile sheepishly he has learned that his is a jolly crowd. Anything will go. However, if they sit stolidly silent, and often they do, he is too experienced to continue wisecracking. These are the ones who demand their "money's worth," not a lot of gags.

Just before our bus started a laughing young woman in a calfskin coat mounted the steps. To the lecturer, who stood courteously holding the door, she said: "We have a fellow who's almost as good a liar as you are in New Orleans."

As the lumbering vehicle swung off of Broadway the lecturer mused over his experiences. Between his "on your rights" and "on your lefts," he grew philosophical. "After you're on this thing a while you get so you can spot the types.

"Now, take newlyweds. She hangs on his arm, like she's afraid she's going to lose him. They'll stand debating whether to take the trip for as long as 15 minutes. If they are right newly married he always says, 'Anything you say, honey.' Then they grab the back seat and giggle together.

"In summer we get the school teachers. The new kind of teachers are all right, lots of fun; but the old ones! My gosh! They bring a notebook and take down all the facts.

"We hardly ever have a complaint, but if we do it's sure to be from the women. There's one class of them that is disappointed in Chinatown. They keep asking us, 'Where's the opium dens?'

"An' they wants to know how many white women live down there with Chinamen; and if they operate laundries; and do they get along with their husbands; and are the babies white or yellow."

The barkers have formulated a number of generalities from their experience. Westerners are the pleasantest, most likely to engage in badinage. However, contrary to common conception, the southerner is cold and aloof.

The native New Yorker knows far less than a stranger about his own city. And it is the older, more mature persons, rather than the maligned younger generation, who are hoping for a "thrill" on the tour.

An average bus holds about 48 passengers. In the old days 18 women were employed to sit in the bus as decoys. When two passengers entered, two of the women would get out. No longer is this practiced.

Making an informal census of the passengers upon this particular trip, we found beside the young woman from "New Orleans," three apple-cheeked Irish priests from "up-state"; an old Jewish couple from St. Louis; a pair of housewives from Harlem; newlyweds from Boston; a retired school teacher from Dallas, Texas; a reporter from New Zealand; four schoolgirls from a seminary in New Jersey; a shy, reticent man and woman touring the world, natives of Switzerland; and three girls from Canada.

The barker said that on days when the bus has been filled they have found as many as 28 states represented.

It is the unanimous verdict of the barkers that directing the destinies of a sightseeing bus will make one of three things of you—a misanthrope, a madman or a philosopher. That they still laugh when recounting the vagaries of humanity is proof that they have not become embittered. However, one of them did confess that if he had to spend another three years telling "school marms and newlyweds that there are 50 stories in the Woolworth building," he'd fit very nicely into the second category. But by that time he prays to have enough saved to buy a peaceful chicken farm in Missouri.

As Told by Them to
FRANK E. NICHOLSON

BEN TURPIN

Here's a guy who comes home cock-eyed every night in the week! Be that as it may, which it is, Ben's optics have carried him to the top of the heap of custard-pie throwers—for which he has amassed a fortune in movie money.

BEN TURPIN

"Did you ever have to squeeze your way onto a crowded street car?" Ben asked me. "Well, you know what it is to fight for a seat. I once overheard a conversation about that sort of thing.

"The first fellow said to the second, 'Cheez, the street car service is getting worse every day.'

"'I'll say it is,' replied the second. 'About the only difference between these street car conductors and a sardine packer is that a sardine packer knows when he's got a can full.'

"'Darned if you ain't right,' replied the first. 'Why, only last night the wife and me were coming downtown on the crowdest street car you ever saw. I had a heck of a time getting a seat—but my wife couldn't find one—she had to stand up all the way!'"

Drink Water in Fevers

There is much misunderstanding about fevers. Most people are alarmed at a fever, but I am usually pleased, because I realize that a fever is an indication that the body is putting up a fight against disease toxins, and that the body has considerable vitality. You have probably noticed that fevers are more frequently found in children than in old people. The reason for this is that children react more quickly to toxins than do adults or those who have become run down in health.

Fevers burn up the waste and poisonous material in the system and clean out the toxins of physical corruption. If these toxins could be taken out of the body and burned up it would be easier on the patient, but nature finds it necessary to burn the poisons where they are, within the tissues of the body, and the temperature rises, breathing becomes faster and a copious perspiration may break out. These are only indications that the body is taking steps toward a cure. Never attempt to break a fever. Rather, encourage it for as soon as the poisons are burned up, the fever will disappear.

It is advisable to drink large quantities of water as this assists the body in washing out and eliminating toxins. Orange and lemon juice may be added, but it is advisable not to use sugar. Do not take any remedy to cure your headaches, as this will interfere with the natural eliminative processes going on.

Perspiration should be induced even if it is necessary to supply artificial warmth by placing hot water bottles around the body. In every fever it is advisable to use enemas, sometimes several each day at the beginning of the fever. The temperature should not be allowed to remain long above 102.5 degrees and if it rises beyond this height, cool sponge baths along the spine and abdomen may be used at intervals of about an hour apart. But if the fever is below this temperature, tepid or warm sponge baths should be substituted.

There is very little danger of a fatal termination to a fever if these simple methods are used. Beware of any method or drug which will interfere with throwing out of the toxins which were responsible in the first place for the development of the fever, and be sure not to use any rich food until the fever is over as it cannot be properly digested during a fever and might cause serious trouble.

The following extract, which is from a lecture by Robert Ingersoll, may be interesting in showing the value of water drinking for fevers: "All the advance that has been made in the science of medicine has been made by the recklessness of patients. I can recall when they wouldn't give a man water in a fever—not a drop. Now and then some fellow would get so thirsty he would say: 'Well, I'll die anyway, so I'll drink it'—and thereupon he would drink a gallon of water, and thereupon he would burst into a generous perspiration and get well, and the next morning when the doctor would come to see him they would tell him about the man drinking the water, and he would say: 'How much?' 'Well, he swallowed two pitcher's full.' 'Is he still alive?' 'Yes.' So they would go into the room and the doctor would feel his pulse and say: 'And you drank two pitchers of water! What a constitution you have got'."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sleeplessness

Question: Mrs. M. E. writes: "I have suffered for a long time from sleeplessness. Can you tell me a remedy for same?"

Answer: The principal cause of insomnia is digestive trouble, such as excess fermentation of food, which produces gas pressure against the heart or diaphragm. Even if you are not conscious of such pressure, it is sufficient to unconsciously irritate you and keep you from getting a deep slumber.

Blood Tests

Question: Subscriber writes: "Will you kindly advise us if a test of blood taken from the ear could locate a disease, such as tumor or cancer, and what organs are affected? Is such a test possible or plausible?"

Answer: Such tests are not accurate as far as being able to discover from these tests whether you have a tumor or cancer. I know the tests you refer to, and exaggerated claims are being made for them which cannot be substantiated.

Seasickness

Question: Mal-de-Mer writes: "I am thinking of taking a trip to Europe next May or June. (I am a bad sailor, always seasick on sea or lake). Would you advise a fruit fast just before sailing? I am middle aged, in excellent health.

Answer: If your seasickness is caused from biliousness, the fruit fast will be helpful, if taken just before starting on your voyage. If you become seasick because of defective vision, you must secure proper glasses. If you always get sick and remain so all during your trips, it is doubtless because of the lack of balancing fluid in your ears. In that case the only thing you can do is to lie on your back and keep in a horizontal position until you reach land.

CHANGE IN JAILERS

MANGUM, Okla., Feb. 10.—E. W. (Lige) Reeves, who has been county jailer for 12 years under Sheriff S. H. Tittle, has been succeeded by J. H. Boatright. Sheriff Tittle and Mrs. Tittle also will make their home at the jail. Mr. Reeves and family will locate on a farm.

Two Black Crows

MORAN: Say, that man asked for a massage an' yo' near killed him.

MACK: He ASKED for it, didn't he?

MORAN: That's no reason why yo' should put lumps all over his head.

MACK: Well, when a man asks me for a message, I picks up the first thing handy.

MORAN: Yo' rough tackties is goin' to ruin this barbah shop.

MACK: That man wus sore when he come in. He says we is crooks.

MORAN: That ain't been a SECRET fo' YEARS.

MACK: Th' man says we advertises a sixteen-chair shop.

MORAN: So we does. We got sixteen chairs.

MACK: We advertises sixteen chairs all right. But we don't mention th' fact that we is only got ONE barbah.

MORAN: How about ME? Don't that make two?

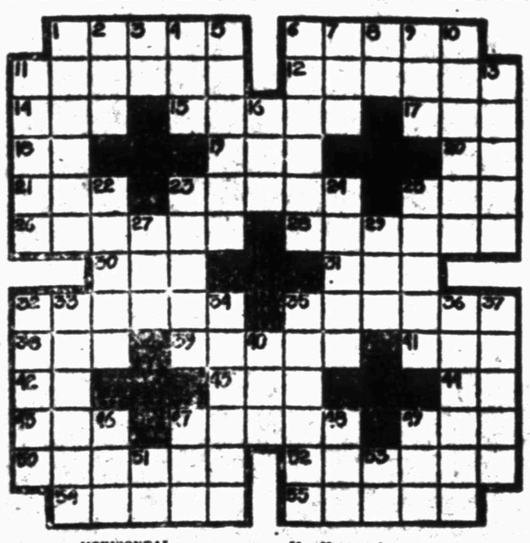

MACK: It still makes ONE.

MORAN: Well, I LIKES to be a barbah.

MACK: I know yo' does. This is th' only time in yo' life that yo' ain't been arrested fo' havin' a razsir in yo' hand.

The Two Black Crows are still going in strong for rough, manly shaves. The only trouble is that Egghead still thinks he is a cook on the lunch wagon. He shaves a man with the same stroke he used when cutting balogna.

HEENEY SIGNS FOR MALONEY

Tom and Jim to Fight On March 1 at Boston Garden

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (UP)—Tom Heeney was matched today for his first heavyweight bout since he was knocked out by Gene Tunney at Yankee stadium last summer.

The New Zealander will fight Jim Maloney at the Boston garden on March 1. The fight will be for 10 rounds and Heeney was guaranteed $12,500.

Heeney signed this afternoon with Promotor Eddie Mack of the Boston garden. The signing came as a surprise, since Charles Harvey, Heeney's manager, had indicated Heeney would not fight unless he was matched with Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship.

Olympic Trials System Flayed

Coaches Advocate New Plan Determining Team

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—In the opinion of five of the country's leading college coaches the present system of final Olympic track and field tryouts must be junked.

Though differing as to other details, four of the five, whose views are published in the current issue of the New York A. A. organ, "The Winged Foot," agree that responsibility of picking the American team must be given a small committee with arbitrary authority rather than to have the team's make-up hinge entirely on the outcome of a tryout meet.

This suggestion is made in one form or another by Harry Hillman, Dartmouth; Edward L. Farrell, Harvard; Kenne Fitzpatrick, Princeton, and Jack Ryder, Boston college. Harry Gill, University of Illinois, confined his recommendation to one that the final tryouts be extended "from two days to three or even four."

Notre Dame May Open 1930 Play at St. Louis

PORKERS NEAR FOURTH TITLE

Steers Have Outside Chance To Cop Championship

(By The Associated Press)

The prevalent impression that an Arkansas university basket ball team cannot be licked was disproved Saturday night, when the Texas university quintet, featuring "Big Un" Rose, stopped the Razorbacks, 36 to 25. A string of 21 consecutive Southwest conference victories was snapped when the Orange loopers turned the trick.

Outside of the personal satisfaction gained, however, it was doubtful the victory meant much to the Longhorns. The Porkers just about had their fourth straight championship salted away and the result of that one game meant little either way.

Only four more games are on the Arkansas schedule, two with Rice and two with the Texas Aggies, all on the champions' court. If they should lose one of that quartet and the Texans should win their remaining five, there would be a tie for the gonfalon. But no one expects the Razorbacks to take one on the chin from the Aggies or Owls.

A Fatal Lapse

Now that the Longhorns have done the "impossible" and nicked the rangy Porkers, they have cause to look back and regret their one-point loss to the Southern Methodist Ponies the first of the week. But for that lapse they would have stood an excellent chance of tieing for the conference crown.

The Mustangs, as the result of their win over Texas and a 26 to 20 victory over the Rice Owls Saturday night, climbed up the ladder and into a virtual tie with the Aggies for third place. The Texas Christian university five nicked Baylor university, 38 to 21, to move up into fifth place. The Ponies employed their "stalling" attack again in beating Rice, while Flynn and Eury looped plenty of baskets to give the Horned Frogs their triumph.

Third place will be at stake when Southern Methodist and the Aggies clash Monday night at College Station. The Ponies hold one decision over the Farmers. Four other conference games are booked for the week. Baylor and S. M. U. meet Thursday night at Dallas, Texas meets the Aggies Saturday night at College Station and Rice invades Fayetteville for games with Arkansas Friday and Saturday.

Porkers Lead Scoring

Wear Schoonover and Tom Pickell, costars of the Arkansas machine, continue to wage a merry battle for individual scoring honors, far ahead of the field. Despite the fact that Texas held him to 4 points and not a field goal Saturday night, Schoonover wound up the week with 109 points, barely ahead of Pickell, with 107. Holly Brock, the Longhorns' clever leader, ran his total to 71 to hold third place, followed by Eury of Texas Christian with 67 and Hess of Rice with 64. Other scorers:

Rose, Texas, 53; Smith, Baylor, 45; Brown, S. M. U., 45; Lambert, Arkansas, 44; McDonnell, T. C. U., 43; Johnson, S. M. U., 41; H. Hale, Arkansas, 41; Brooks, S. M. Lone Star League Cuts to Six Clubs

DALLAS, Feb. 10. (AP)—The Lone Star league will open the 1929 race with six clubs, despite a previous expression by league officials favoring an eight-team circuit, it was indicated at the annual meeting of the league here today.

Withdrawal of Ardmore, Okla., admitted at a meeting last month at Tyler, and the fact that Mexia, a member of the league last season, was not represented, formed the basis for the opinion. Representatives of Sherman advised the meeting that city would take over Mexia's berth if Mexia dropped out.

DAILY DOPE

By

LARRY DAILEY

DUSTY ARCHIVES of baldom are resorted to by H. L. Holliday, in the selecting of his all-star, all-time baseball team. Some players who have been memories in the game for more than a decade or nearly a score years ago are included in Mr. Holliday's team. And a mighty combination it would be, too, as the list shows.

Pitchers — Addie Joss and Ed Plank.
Catcher—Johnny Kling.
First base—Frank Chance.
Second base—Frank Frisch.
Third base—Frank Baker.
Shortstop—Hans Wagner.
Center field—Sam Crawford.
Right field—Babe Ruth.

Mr. Holliday likes the Franks. And to be frank, they were, and are, great ball players, all those three Franks of his infield.

IMMORTAL IN baseball is the name of Addie Joss, who died years ago in the heyday of his career. Baseball annals record no equal to a game pitched by Joss for Cleveland against Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox. Joss turned in a no-hit performance while one only or two hits were made off the pale hose spitball master.

Dead, too, is Eddie Plank, the Gettysburg scholar who was a great lefthander and a member of that near-invincible pitching trio of the Philadelphia Athletics, which included Jack Coombs and Chief Bender, when the proud team of Connie Mack sported the title as champions of the world.

THERE IS no smarter catcher in baseball history than Johnny Kling, who with Frank Chance, the Peerless leader, former important cogs of the mighty old Chicago Cub machine of undying Tinker to Evers to Chance fame.

Frisch ranks as one of the foremost second baseman of all time. Baker was a great third baseman and the original home run king. Wagner has been unanimous choice of all fans for shortstop. He was supreme.

COBB AND Ruth also have been named for the outfield by all the fans selecting their all-time nines. Mr. Holliday names a new one for the other outfield place—old Wahoo Sam Crawford. Fenebuster extraordinary was the Nebraskan, who with Cobb formed that terrific-hitting duo that was to those halcyon days what Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth are today.

That's a great team, fans. But there are other super-stars of baldom. Perhaps you favor some of them for a place on an all-time nine. Mail your selection to me and it will be printed in this column. Keep the hot stove league fires burning.

Greeks Played Football In 595 B. C., Yost Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (UP)—Football was played by the Greeks 595 B. C., Fielding H. Yost, Michigan coach, told New York city high school coaches at a luncheon given by the Sportsmanship brotherhood here today.

LOUGHRAN AND MICK BANNED

Prehn Says Walker Must Defend Middle Title

By BERT DEMBY

CHICAGO, Feb. 10. (UP)—Three ring champions were given a pronounced hint today that Paul Prehn, new president of the National Boxing association, meant what he said when he ordered them to defend their titles within 60 days or surrender them.

Prehn quieted a report here today that Promoter Paddy Harmon was attempting to sign Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, for a bout with Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion.

"I told Walker three weeks ago," Prehn said, "that he would have to defend his middleweight title within 60 days. He certainly wouldn't be defending a middleweight crown by fighting a light heavyweight. And I won't sanction a Loughran-Walker bout now. Walker's going to defend his title or surrender it."

Others Must Fight

Joe Dundee, welterweight titleholder, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, may take note of this statement, for they too were commanded to engage in a title fight within the 60-day period.

Loughran also has not fought a championship bout within the six months allowed by the National Boxing association and is eligible to suspension. However, Tommy has turned down no big money offers to meet an opponent, and it is presumed he would fight if given the opportunity.

Loughran said he would be willing to discard the light heavy title if assured heavyweights would meet him. So far, several good heavies have turned down offers to meet Loughran.

"I don't believe anything can hurt boxing more than inactive champions," Prehn said; "It's my job to see that they defend their titles, and I'm going to do it.

They'll Find Excuses

"I have no comment to make on whether Walker might be an able opponent for Loughran, but I do know that Mickey has received orders to defend his middleweight crown, and I'm not going to allow him to fight a light heavyweight until he does something about complying with the order."

The order to the champions contained the phrase "must fight, except for some valid excuse."

Those words may cause Prehn plenty of trouble, for as soon as fight managers learn that "valid excuse" simply means a good alibi they'll give Prehn enough valid excuses to keep him busy.

He formerly worked in the Southern league. Shannon was with the Southern in 1927 but last year was with the American association.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—An English doctor says the world's supply of cuss words is pitifully inadequate.

He talks like an army mule.

His slurring remark has caused intense indignation among the upper classes of England.

A remark like that can start something. Like a giraff's adam's apple, it has a long ways to go.

When Dean Inge heard about it he immediately called an extra choir rehearsal.

It is apparent that the doctor was not in the war. Otherwise he would have heard some conversation that would have glutted the market.

He does admit that there are some very fine established cuss words that are as overworked as a taxidermist stuffing a whale. But he claims that there hasn't been a new swear word thought of in years.

The only explanation we can give is that, before the doctor calls on his patients, he must squirt ether through the keyhole.

We know some beautiful triple-jointed epithets.

And, peculiarly enough, they are all about doctors.

If the doc wants to improve his sub rosa education, we will give him two tickets to "What Price Glory."

It is apparent that the English stage is not so progressive as the American.

There are some shows running on Broadway that would blast the old doc right out of his tank.

Possibly the doc isn't qualified to speak on the subject.

Does he know what the prince says when he is flat on the ground and his hoss is winning the race without him?

He isn't reciting Mother Goose rhymes, prince or no prince.

Or we should say, prince or no hoss.

We would advise the doc to study chiropractics. Then he would increase his vocabulary every time he twisted a fibula or cracked a clavicle.

We feel sorry for the doc. If he doesn't know any cuss words, he must be very lonely without anybody to talk to.

Rise of Schmeling Lucky Break For Stribling-Sharkey Battle

Question of Max's Ability to Beat Clever Man Like Jack or Willie Is Ballyhoo for Miami Contest

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The rise of the German wonder, Herr Max Schmeling, is a great break for William Harrison Dempsey's pugilistic enterprise on the shores of Biscayne bay.

The New York ringworms, having recovered from their first gust of astonishment and admiration over Herr Max, are commencing to ask: "But how would he do with smart boxers like Sharkey and Stribling?"

That is the question that is making for increased interest in the muss of Miami. For out of the Miami matter must come the next real opponent for the German terror, if both our big blades, the Messrs. Dempsey and Tunney, are to remain in their scabbards.

I find that many folks are now going down to Miami to look the boys over, after having made up their minds to wait by the radio. The ill wind from off the Rhine that blew poor rubbery blubbery Jawn Risko off the heavyweight terrain thus wafts no little benefit to William Harrison Dempsey down Miami way.

It looks as if the Miami thing is going to be a terrific success, after all. I sincerely hope it is. I am on the boost for Miami, and Dempsey's project, as you are aware if you read this column. Not so much because I think their enterprise has extraordinary merit, but because I like to see people, and things, get along.

My motive is partly selfish. I figure if everybody and everything gets along, the general momentum may carry me with it.

Runyon Is a Booster

If Miami can gather a little of the prosperity that is floating around loose by means of an exposition of the sour science, I say more power to Miami.

I have been somewhat astonished by the anvil undertone in some of the public prints with reference to the Rose of the Southland, in view of the fact that Miami has had some tough luck lately, and it isn't usually regarded as the sporting thing to do to keep weighing in the Sax on a tough lucker.

Do I speak in the vernacular?

Well, let us see. Weighing in the Sax means to knock. It comes down to us from a gentleman who once infested a mining community out West. He may be there yet, for all I know to the contrary. His name was Sax.

If you chanced to mention a mutual acquaintance, Mr. Sax would probably say:

"Yes, yes! Nice fellow! Great fellow! He's all right! But I want to tell you something about the dirty such-and-such."

And then Mr. Sax would tell you. And by the time Mr. Sax got through telling you, the acquaintance had no more character left than a john rabbit.

It came to be called a "a Saxey boost." And thus we finally got "the Sax," or "weighing in the Sax," but it is usually spelled "sacks" by those who have no idea of its derivation. You can go and bet all the liverwurst in Berlin that I give it to you correctly here.

You Know This Type

There exists in this fuzzy old world, my little comrades, a species of human phonus bolionus that relishes failure. Failure of anything. Failure of anybody. Just so it's failure. Can't happen. Won't last. Never do. Punk. Rotten. Such is the code of the phonus bolionus.

Is anyone enthusiastic over anything? Chill 'em. Freeze 'em. Is anybody trying to do something? Down with 'em. No chance. Bad. Police. A strange angle on life, folks. Personally I rather enjoy calling everyone on top once in a while, just by way of encouragement, and I am no Pollyanna, at that.

But the fact that many of our old established pullers of the long puss, as we say at the club, meaning the sorrowful countenance, have been putting the Miami venture away as a complete bust before it started was to me a hopeful sign for Miami and William Harrison Dempsey. The pros are usually wrong. True, some of our professional Polyannas are also often wrong, but they at least outhit the sorrowing souls when it comes to the sour science.

Now, as such things go, the impending pugilistic encounter between Willie Stribling Jr. and the Sharkey man is an important match, and an important sports event. If it isn't, why are all the New York newspapers, and the big news services, sending men to cover it? Surely not merely to give the writers a touch of the warming Florida ozone? Oh, surely not that!

I venture the prediction that there will be as many newspaper writers at the ringside in Flamingo park on Feb. 27 as there were in Reno, when James J. Jeffries and John Arthur Johnson fought for the heavyweight championship of the world, or at Shelby, when Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons met for the title.

May Be Great Fight

And I wouldn't be astonished if they saw a great fight.

The rise of Herr Schmeling, and the hope of the return of the million-dollar gate, is apt to give both Stribling and Sharkey new ambition. One or the other is apt to get the big match of the summer with Herr Schmeling, if nothing happens to him in the meantime, and the boys are likely to start heaving right from taw.

I notice that Stribling remarks, in his interesting articles in the public prints, that he will flatten the bloke from Boston town, and I am quite sure the king of the canebreaks would do this very thing if they took Sharkey into the ring under the name, let us say, of Marion Blackstock, and Stribling didn't know who he was.

I care not how well Sharkey might fight. If Stribling thought he was some stiffy, of the type of which the Stribling knockout record has waxed fat, the king of the canebreaks would waltz out of his corner and knock that fellow Sharkey as dead as an old-time dinosaurus.

But, knowing Sharkey's identity, Stribling may not be quite so rambunctious. I thought Stribling might win with ease until Herr Max Schmeling bobbed up giving Sharkey a faint wiff of about 25 per cent of $1,000,000. I am inclined to think that this one sniff will hop the Sharkey up to at least 10,000 meters. Thus we will have quite a prizefight on the shores of Biscayne bay.

Assault, Battery Charged Gridders

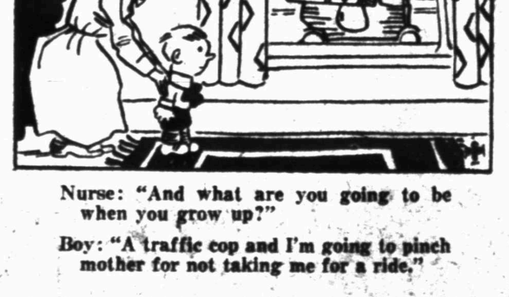

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 10 (UP)—Joe Kresky and Gene Rose, Wisconsin university football players, who gained publicity when they were suspended from the Badger eleven for breaking training in Chicago after the Purdue game last fall, were charged with assault and battery by Carl Reis, theater electrician, in court here.

Kresky pleaded guilty in superior court and was fined $15 and costs. Rose, and Phlip Coughlin, business man arrested with them, pleaded not guilty and will be tried this week.

According to the testimony, Rose, Kresky and Coughlin had referred to Reis' dress when they observed him in a restaurant and a fight ensued. Reis testified he was called a "Milwaukee sheik."

Free-for-all

If you've never seen seven giants in a boxing ring, each battling for supremacy, you've missed a gory sight.

Twenty-five dollars to the last man standing. That's the prize for which six of the seven will be half-killed. It's a free-for-all and the best man's bound to win.

Advertising is something like that . . . with its boxing ring inside of the mind . . . and with hundreds of adversaries to contend with.

A display that is attractive, compelling, interesting and arresting will be retained in that ring . . . it will be the last man standing . . . it will win the prize in being productive.

That's why our service bureau has been organized: To give advertisers of the Times and Record News an advantage in the free-for-all. The department is composed of layout and copy experts with illustrative art work at their command. It will prepare an individualized campaign for you without charge.

Our representatives will be pleased to confer with you and explain in further detail the advantages of dominating copy and layouts.

Evening Schools For Farmers at Olney

Special to The Record News

OLNEY, Texas, Feb. 10.—Considerable interest is being manifested by the farmers throughout this immediate territory in the evening schools being conducted by J. G. Bishop, through the local chamber of commerce.

On Jan. 29 Mr. Bishop opened a school at the German Lutheran church, three miles northwest of Olney, with 25 farmers in attendance. In spite of the bad weather and roads, there were 10 farmers who attended the second meeting Wednesday night. The purpose of the evening schools is to discuss the problems of the farmer and to exchange ideas that may be beneficial to others.

Proper feed and care of poultry has been the main topic of discussion at these recent meetings. C. A. Lucas of Dallas, poultry lecturer of considerable note, will be present at the meeting of Feb. 19 at the German Lutheran church and will give a demonstration of treating birds infected with intestinal parasites. Farmers throughout this section who have poultry infected with parasites are urged to bring infected birds to this meeting for demonstration work.

Two Important Cases On Vernon Court Docket

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 10.—One civil case of major importance and an assault case that are docketed for trial here this week are expected to attract much attention. The case in which W. W. Gilbert, former chief of police, seeks $63,600 for alleged damages in connection with his discharge by the City Commission is docketed for trial Monday.

TURKEY GETS NEW BUILDING

Third Brick Structure Announced for Town

Special to The Record News

TURKEY, Texas, Feb. 10.—J. N. Cypert, has let contract to Clifford Hedrick, local contractor, for the erection of a 30 by 60 brick building on Main street. Work is to begin at once and completed at an early date. Half of it will be used by the J. N. Cypert Barber shop, and the other half has been leased.

The construction of this building will eliminate one more frame building from Turkey's Main street and business district, leaving only two other frame buildings in the business district, and at this time plans are now under way for two modern birck buildings to take their place.

The Fred Lacy Brick is to be started just as soon as weather will permit, which will be occupied by the Turkey Enterpise.

The brick building of John Sharp is being completed this week and the West Texas Utilities company is moving its office and merchandise into same.

The work on the Lacy Hotel annex, consisting of 18 modern rooms is nearing completion, which will give Turkey hotel facilities equal to that of any city.

This gives Turkey four modern brick business houses, either under construction or with contract let for the construction since Jan. 1. Plans are now under way for the construction of some five or six other brick mercantile buildings within the next few weeks.

In Turkey's residential section some 10 or 12 nice modern dwellings have been completed or in the course of construction since Jan. 1.

With the abundant supply of pure water that Turkey will now have just as soon as the pipe line can be laid from the wells to the city, and with the prospects of securing the proposed Rock Island railroad, the building activities in Turkey are expected to greatly increase during the spring and summer.

Coolidge to See His Country First

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (UP)—President Coolidge will devote his freedom from public office to seeing America first, it was stated at the White House today.

It was stated that the president has been pressed with invitations to visit almost every foreign country, particularly those in South America. He has declined them all and given as his reason that he wishes to see his own country before going abroad. He plans to travel extensively and realizes his oft-expressed desire to visit every section of the United States.

It is understood that his first journey will be to several places in the southwest.

Vernon Seeks Main Section Census Office

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 10.—Efforts are being made here to have Vernon established as district headquarters by the Federal Census bureau during the census taking for 1930, Grady Shipp, secretary of the Vernon Chamber of Commerce, announced.

The census for 1930 will reveal a population of about 15,000 for Vernon and West Vernon, Mr. Shipp believes. Efforts are now being made to have the city of Vernon extend its corporate limits to include West Vernon before the 1929 year ends. A petition to the city commission to that effect is being circulated among the West Vernon citizens, and at present there are about 100 signers.

Sunday Schools Report Attendance Drop

Based upon the attendance at Sunday school in 24 local churches Feb. 10, it might be observed that approximately two-thirds of those enrolled as regular attendants are equipped with galoshes, rubbers or boots for such climatic emergencies as that marked by the heavy snowfall of last week. Ten of the 24 church schools reported slight increases over the preceding week, but the remaining 14 showed losses which totaled almost 400.

New Creamery Plant To Open at Plainview

Special to The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Feb. 10.—Installation of the machinery in the Hale County Dairy association's co-operative creamery at Plainview will begin this week. C. M. Anderson, manager and superintendent of the new plant, says the building is complete and the plant will be placed in operation about March 1.

Costing $30,000, the creamery will be the largest on the South Plains, and will have a total capacity for making a million pounds of butter annually. It was financed by farmers who are members of the co-operative marketing association which has operated in Plainview and Hale county for the past five years. Farmers bought stock in the plant on the basis of $10 per cow for every cow they have in their dairy herds.

Modern butter-making machinery will be used in plant, which is entirely electrically operated. A well has been dug under the building which will furnish cool water for the manufacture of butter. Butter will be sold under the label of "Plains Gold," and will be shipped to eastern markets, with a small part of it marketed locally. The building which houses the creamery is built entirely of brick and is 50 by 140 feet in size, covering one floor. It is complete with cold storage facilities for handling a car of butter.

Business Continues Satisfactory But Speculation Warning Is Made

NEW YORK, Feb. 10. (AP)—Several major industries showed expansion of activity during the past week, and business generally continued satisfactory. The federal reserve board, however, called attention to what it regards as a precarious condition of the credit structure.

While large corporations still showed no effects from persistently high credit rates, building permits fell off considerably in January, save for New York City and the far West, and there was a growing tendency by bankers to believe the high rates are imposing an increasing restraint upon smaller businesses.

The federal reserve board, in a statement declaring that the absorption of federal reserve credit for speculative purposes must ce—, pointed out "the extraordinary absorption of funds in speculative security loans deserves particular attention lest it become a decisive factor working toward a further firming of money rates to the prejudice of the country's commercial interests."

The metal industries still held the lead.

Demand for steel, particularly for automotive, railway and structural products, showed some increases bringing mill operations generally near 90 per cent of capacity.

Automobile production continued to gain.

Cotton textile prices were rather unsettled, and there was further talk of cutting down production.

Crude oil production continued to gain, and the trade was rather pessimistic over the immediate prospects of control. Consolidations within the industry were seen as the most likely means of bringing production into line with consumption.

Collingsworth May Vote on Highways

Special to The Record News

WELLINGTON, Texas, Feb. 10.—Citizens of Collingsworth county who are interested in a better roads program are circulating petitions over the county securing signatures of voters who want paved roads in this county. This petition will be presented to the commissioners at their regular meeting Monday, requesting them to order an election to determine whether or not bonds to the amount of $400,000 will be voted to pave highways in this county.

Should the commissioners order this election it will be the second of this nature held in Collingsworth county. The first road bond election was defeated last December by 67 votes.

Sentiment in Wellington for paved roads is growing constantly and many people are of the opinion that the bonds will be voted if the commissioners allow the second election to be held.

PRYOR FACES COURT TODAY

Former Constable Here For Calling of Case

Ed Pryor, former Electra constable, charged with robbery with firearms in connection with the hold-up of the Jefferson hotel in Electra last summer, will appear for trial in the 89th district court Monday morning, Shields Heyser, counsel for the defense, said Sunday. Pryor, now on crutches following a fall from an automobile last December, has been in Wichita Falls ready for his appearance several days, Mr. Heyser said.

Pryor was acquitted early in January on a charge of bruglary, growing out of the testimony of Henry Shumate, alleging that Pryor and Tom Shook, former chief of police at Electra, had conspired to protect him in the burglary of a cigar stand. Shumate will again be the principal witness for the state in the robbery trial. Mrs. Pryor, who with their baby, was with her husband throughout the earlier trial, is very sick at her home near Childress and will not be able to be in the courtroom on this occasion, Mr. Heyser said.

Mr. Heyser said no evidence had been prepared for presentation to the court. Sam Spence, district attorney, announced that the state is ready.

"Adoration," First National picture now showing at the Majestic, was happily named, for the quality of feeling used as a title for the production is elicited irresistibly from its patrons by the serene beauty of Billie Dove, cast in the leading role. The pageantry of dazzling costumes and gorgeous court settings is enhanced by the grace and comeliness of Princess Elna, as played by Miss Dove.

The story which is told against the background of the revolution in Russia, however, permits the Princess Elna to pay undying adoration to her royal lover, Prince Serge, portrayed with excellent feeling by Antonio Moreno. There is not enough revolutionizing shown to become unpleasant.

Those who want to laugh while finding out "why they are that way" will enjoy watching the Cohens and the Irish mix in "Abie's Irish Rose," which is now showing at the Strand. The play became part of New York's Broadway, and through the personal supervision of its author, Anne Nichols, has retained its delightful wit and lessons in tolerance in the Vitaphone version.

Tom Lewis and company opened their closing week here Sunday with a comedy, "The Girl He Couldn't Buy." The Lewis players have proven unusually popular with Olympic crowds. Changes of programs are announced for Wednesday and Friday.

Chester Conklin, who can usually find laughs where there were none, will be shown in "The Haunted House," Thursday and Friday, while John Gilbert in "The Mask of the Devil," will open a five-day stand on Saturday.

TERRACE WORK PROVES VALUE

Collingsworth Farmer Firm Believer in Sloping

Special to The Record News

WELLINGTON, Texas, Feb. 10.—Seth Roberts of the Swearingen community is a great believer in terracing, according to C. C. Stinson, county agent. Mr. Stinson has been observing the work Mr. Roberts has been doing on his farm for some time, and he finds that terracing has been an important factor in the success of the work.

Mr. Roberts terraced 90 acres of his farm in 1927 and is so thoroughly sold on the idea that he has purchased a new Corsicana grader and has recently terraced 100 acres of his cultivated land. With the completion of this last terracing work, his entire farm has been terraced.

Mr. Roberts stated that his terraced fields outyielded his acreage not terraced, in spite of the fact that the unterraced field was more level and had been outyielding the field that was terraced in 1927.

C. C. Stinson, county agent, who assisted Mr. Roberts with his terracing problems, believes this demonstration alone will mean thousands of dollars to the farmer in this community, since there is not a farm in the section of the county in which Mr. Roberts lives that will not be helped by the kind of soil conservation that is being practiced on the Roberts farm.
