LEAHY'S OUTBURST THROWS COURT IN CONFUSION

City To Resume Operation Of Municipal Airport At Kell Field August 1

MERGER OF AIR ACTIVITIES FORESEEN HERE

Council May Endorse Plans For Extensive Changes At Field Here

NEED IMPROVEMENTS

Hammond Gives Up Lease As City Launches New Program

Operation of the Municipal airport at Kell field on the Burkburnett road will be assumed by the city on Aug. 1, subject to approval of the city council next Monday night, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager, who stated Friday night that he had reached an agreement with L. P. Hammond, president of the Lone Star Aviation company, lessee, for the assumption of the lease which expires about September, 1930.

Municipal Operation

The principal reason named for assuming the lease held by Mr. Hammond's company, Mr. Fairtrace said, was a feeling that with air traffic developing rapidly, and the number of ships asking airport accommodations here constantly increasing, Wichita Falls can better keep pace with the growth of air travel with the city government directly in charge of the field.

The Municipal airport, known as Kell field, is owned by the Wichita Falls Airport corporation, which was formed more than a year ago by a group of local business men with C. W. Cahoon Jr. as president. The lease now held by the Lone Star Aviation company calls for a rental fee of $160 monthly.

Efforts have been made by the Junior chamber of commerce during the last few weeks, it was stated, to have all aeronautic activities here centered at one airport. It has been pointed out by the proponents of such a consolidation that one large field is sufficient for a city of less than 100,000 population, and that better accommodations for aviators and air passengers may be provided by centering the attention and resources of the community on one airport.

Central Port Sought

According to Mr. Cahoon, assumption of the airport management by the city will render more feasible the proposed plan to have all accommodations for airline ships and passengers located at one field. Ground will be available, he said, for the location of hangars, shops, etc., which may now or later be in operation under private management for service to air traffic.

Improvements which are contemplated at the Municipal airport,

City Officials Called In Probe of "Sweat-Cell"

Unsanitary conditions in the city jail were attacked Friday afternoon in the written report of the 30th district grand jury, returned to Judge Allan D. Montgomery along with 30 true bills of indictment. The protests against the jail conditions followed a personal inspection of the "sweat-cell" early Friday morning and a prolonged conference with Mayor J. W. Akin, George D. Fairtrace, city manager, and several council members in the early afternoon.

Complaints Reported

"Because of numerous complaints coming to us concerning the police department and the city jail, we inspected the latter and found same in a very unsanitary condition," the report read.

City Tax Rate To Remain at $1.40, Fairtrace Says

A recommendation that the city tax rate remain at $1.40 per $100, the same figure as that of last year, will be made by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, to the city council at a meeting in the near future, it was announced Friday. The council must pass on the recommendation before it becomes official, Mr. Fairtrace said. It was also announced Friday by W. Ralph Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector, that work on the city roll of taxes would begin next Monday.

The budget for the year has been made on the basis of an estimated valuation of $51,000,000 at the rate of $1.40 per $100 which will produce $642,000 provided that 90 per cent of the assessment is collected, it was said. Belief that the rate as recommended by Mr. Fairtrace would be accepted by the council was expressed Friday afternoon by Mayor J. W. Akin, presiding officer of the council.

Tonight their sturdy little monoplane, the St. Louis Robin, was still loafing through space, close to the end of the second week of its endurance flight. At 11:17 p. m. (Central Standard Time), the fliers had amassed the amazing total of 328 hours of continuous travel in air and were still going strong, spurred on by the fact that their closest rival in the marathon, the Billion Dollar City at Houston,

Shot From Officer's Gun Halts Okla. Prisoner and Escaped Convict Here

Halted in a headlong flight along the river bank by a shot from an officer's gun, Raymond Tihlman, escaped from the Ramsey state penitentiary farm since July 6, and W. Ray Turner, who broke jail in Anadarko, Okla., last month, were recaptured here Friday evening by Sheriff W. G. Bralley and Charlie Gant, deputy.

The two men bolted from the back door of a cafe on Wichita street about 9 o'clock Friday when the officers appeared at the front. Mr. Bralley and Mr. Gant followed them into the darkness outside, where Turner leaped over the bank into the river bottom and Tihlman struggled through the underbrush on the bank. The running men came to a sudden halt when a bullet from the officer's gun whistled over their heads. Tihlman's clothing was badly torn and Turner had suffered a lacerated heel when they were taken into custody.

Tihlman has completed about one year of two burglary sentences aggregating 13 years, according to information given by Mr. Bralley. He was sentenced to 10 years from Knox City and to three years from Montague. The prisoner told the sheriff that he and a number of other prisoners had sawed their way out of the farm on July 6.

Turner, charged with felony theft in Oklahoma, escaped from the jail at Anadarko 30 days ago, Mr. Bralley said. Oklahoma officials had asked the help of local officers in his recapture. The sheriff explained that jail breaking is a felony in Oklahoma.

MINISTERS TO BEG POINCARE TO KEEP REINS

Announcement of Intention To Resign Caused By Premier's Health

WINS DEBT VICTORY

'Lion of Lorraine' Steps Out at End of Fight Over Accord

PARIS, July 26. (UP)—Premier Raymond Poincare notified the cabinet tonight of his decision to resign because of ill health, but the council of ministers, meeting in special session, decided to appoint a delegation to visit the premier and attempt to persuade him to remain in office.

A communique issued after the cabinet meeting said the ministers would ask Poincare to reconsider even though he will be unable to exercise the functions of his office for several months.

The cabinet appointed foreign minister Aristide Briand and Minister of Justice Louis Barthou to visit the premier at his home, where he has been confined to his bed since his sudden breakdown during the final days of the government's victorious battle for ratification of the war debt accords with America and England.

The premier's announcement of the decision to resign, made in a letter to Andre Tardieu, minister of interior, was made public shortly after the senate had completed parliament's ratification of the war debt accords, adding another great victory to the long and amazing record of "the Lion of Lorraine." Poincare had fought with great vigor for ratification.

Briand, in an interview after the cabinet meeting, said he and Mr. Barthou would visit the premier at 9 a. m. tomorrow to insist that he remain in office.

"We will emphasize that the political activity of the next few months is practically nil and members of the government will do everything to aid him," the foreign minister declared.

Tardieu and other ministers expressed the belief that the cabinet would be successful in persuading Poincare to remain in office at least until after the forthcoming international meeting.

G. Bernard Shaw Thinks Birthday His Own Worry

If Any in United States Are Concerned With Writer's Age, They're Indelicate, He Tells Reporter

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, July 26. (US)—The scene is a newspaper office, four floors above Fleet street. The time is 9 in the evening. The characters are your correspondent and George Bernard Shaw, the latter invisible, in telephonic communication.

G. Bernard Shaw

"Mr. Shaw," I began, "a lot of people in the United States consider your seventy-third birthday a significant event."

"Well, what of that?" the Shavian voice answered.

"I thought you might have a birthday message for your admirers in the United States."

"You did?"

"Yes."

(After an appreciable pause, during which the phone buzzed excitedly:)

"A young man of, say, 24, likes to be congratulated on his birthday. An old man of 73 doesn't care to be reminded of it. If anybody in the United States thinks my seventy-third birthday is in any way significant, I will say I think it exceedingly indelicate of him."

"May I call that your birthday message?"

"Call it what you please. Good-night."

The self-admitted genius and jester extraordinary to the human kingdom, celebrated his seventy-third birthday by berating the British labor government for barring Leon Trotzky, the exiled Red Napoleon, from Great Britain.

He wrote a letter to the London Daily Herald, labor organ, severely criticizing the government for the exclusion of Trotzky. The letter read:

"It is quite evident that the real

Allred Expected to Announce For Attorney General in Speech Aug. 13

Asked to confirm widespread rumors of his candidacy for election as attorney general in 1930, James V. Allred, former district attorney who polled 360,000 votes for the state office in 1926, Friday afternoon said that he felt any political announcement at this time would be premature but that he would have a statement for his friends and the people of Texas on Aug. 13. On that date Mr. Allred will address an assemblage gathered in celebration of the annual Old Settlers Reunion at Grandbury and he indicated Friday that his formal announcement would be forthcoming at that time.

Mr. Allred has been practicing law in Wichita county since 1921. In 1923, when he was 24 years old, he was appointed by Gov. Pat Neff to succeed Bernard Martin as district attorney here, becoming the youngest man in the state to hold that office. He had been working with Mr. Martin as his first assistant and succeeded to the office upon Martin's resignation.

Mr. Allred was a successful candidate for election to the position in the following year. He resigned in 1925 and in 1926 announced for attorney general. He was defeated by a margin of 4,000 votes over the state, having received the ballots of 360,000 people.

Last year 25 friends of the attorney in Young county called for his re-nomination for the office, but Mr. Allred withdrew his name to allow Attorney General Pollard to run without opposition for reelection.

The attorney said Friday that he had expected to remain silent until Aug. 13, but the persistent rumors, coming out from Austin and other parts of the state compelled the earlier confirmation.

DOCTOR SNOOK GETS 'SCRAPPY'

Slayer of Co-Ed Puts On Fighting Clothes

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
United Press Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 26.—Three days of the trial of Dr. James Howard Snook for the alleged murder of Theora Hix, closed tonight with the jury still incomplete, but with Doctor Snook sitting at his counsel's table with his fighting clothes on.

Eleven temporary jurors have been passed and the prospects were bright for acceptance of a twelfth early Monday, yet indications were that peremptory challenges will unseat many of those accepted. It may take another day or even more to select the peers who will sit in judgment upon the former professor of Ohio State university.

Just how much the quickened interest of Doctor Snook had to do with the determined offensive of his lawyers against the jury as originally constituted could not be told. It was notable, however, that coincidental with the assumption of a fighting role by the baldheaded doctor of horse medicine, defense counsel waded into the jury with peremptory challenges and played havoc with it.

Of seven such challenges exercised by the defense, four were directed against women and there was an inclination to believe the reports prevalent before the trial opened that if Snook and his lawyers had their way, no women would sit in judgment upon him. Only three remained in the jury box when adjournment was taken tonight until Monday morning.

Snook's new lease on life was easily the outstanding development of the day and it was not difficult

Planes Swarm From Wichita Like Bees From Hive After Raid on Bank

WICHITA, Kan., July 26. (UP)—Wichita, aviation center of the Southwest, tonight turned to the air in an effort to locate bandits who today held up the Peoples State bank and escaped with $4,000 in currency. The robbery was Wichita's first bank holdup in over 40 years.

Chief of Police Wilson, himself a flier, led the aerial search in an effort to pick up the trail before darkness nullified the efficiency of the aerial searching parties. In addition every available plane in the city—which boasts more planes per capita than any city in the world—joined in the search, each plane carrying an armed officer.

The three bank bandits were known to be traveling in an Auburn sport car, which officers be-

SLAYER UPSETS SANITY TRIAL BY HIS PLEA

Prisoner Picks 'Critical Moment' to Address Remark to Judge

X-RAYS ARGUED

Pictures of Defendant's Head Main Point In Day's Testimony

GEORGETOWN, Texas, July 26. (UP)—Surprising his attorneys and the entire court, Harry J. Leahy, condemned slayer fighting for life in a sanity hearing, blurted out today:

"Your honor, please, I think the X-ray is the best evidence."

Leahy had reference to two dark substances found in a photograph of his head by Dr. C. H. Standifer, alienist witness. Standifer, a physician of the Austin state hospital for the insane, testified the spot would have no effect on Leahy's sanity.

Court in Confusion

Then, with narrowed eyes and much emphasis, Leahy blurted out his words to Judge J. D. Moore, Austin, presiding. The statement put the court into confusion. As an experienced attorney long before he was conviced for the death of Dr. J. A. Ramsey, Mathis, Leahy had taken the most impressive moment for his statement.

In a writ issued the first part of the week to Judge Moore, the defense counsel had indicated it would have as one of its pleas the fact that Leahy had been in several shooting scrapes and that there might be bullets in his head.

The "dark substances" referred to by Doctor Standifer may be identified as bullets by the defense. One of the spots was seen just over Leahy's right eye, Standifer said, and the other in the back of his head. The testimony was the third appearance of the Austin alienist during the trial.

Witness Released

When state and defense failed to arrive at a proper definition of the word "insane," Hamilton Lowe, son of the Williamson county sheriff, was released from giving testimony. He had been called to the stand as a defense witness when the argument developed.

The subject of the X-ray photographs were again brought up shortly before court closed when Dr. J. H. Thorne of the Austin state hospital, arrived from Austin. He had the photographs with him.

The physician verified previous testimony that the celluloid plates showed foreign substances, coming from the outside. Asked why there wasn't a trace of bullets if they had passed through Leahy's skull, the physician answered the openings could have calcified.

Testimony Tempered

The testimony of Thorne was tempered by that of M. V. Wright and T. H. Ramey, who reported they had seen Leahy the next morning after he was shot at and that he showed no effects of having been hit.

The prisoner, realizing that on the controversy over the photographs might depend his execution, kept his eyes on the pictures continually and listened attentively to the discussion.

JUST THE Baer Facts

A DILLER, A DOLLAR, A BANKRUPT SCHOLAR

HOOLYWOOD, July 26—If we cannot get our faces on government money, the next best thing is to get our hands on it.

The new, attractive, unfamiliar currency being issued in smaller sizes to replace the old mustard plasters is very fine business.

It will always be attractive. And, we are afraid, always unfamiliar.

The new dollar bills are short, squatty and with wheel-base of about 53 cents.

Don't think we are panning the old dollar shin-plasters. They weren't bad.

Money is your best friend.

It's a shame it ain't your relative.

Abbreviated dollar bills are due to Secretary Mellon.

He thinks if we make 'em smaller they will be harder for Europe to see.

Over a billion pieces of the new papyrus documents have been shipped to Federal Reserve banks all over America. The old, dirty, nasty paper money will be sent to Washington to be burned.

Burning money, brothers, is the lowest form of arson.

When new money gets dirty they put it through the government washing plant.

That's one laundry racket that Oong Wong Loo and Sing Hip can't get it on.

We once applied for a job as head soaper in the washing and ironing department, but Andy Mellon gave us the well-known wayfarer's rush.

He wouldn't even allow us to snitch a few soap bubbles off a thousand-dollar bill.

The 1929 dollar bills are an inch shorter than the old ones.

Possibly, we shouldn't have brought the matter forth. Maybe, you never saw one of the old ones.

Well, we will tell you about the old ones.

They are hard to get, too.

And when you tried to hold on to 'em, you found they were still soaped from the last cleansing.

Figuring the whole thing out on our two-foot yardstick, we must admit that this is a very unpleasant subject.

We know what we are talking about. But we haven't got anything to prove it.

How are your folks?

Planes Search For Bank Thugs

lieve was driven by a woman dressed in men's clothing. Surrounding cities have been notified and a dragnet has been extended for miles around this vicinity.

Only two employes of the bank, Thelman Jones and Louise Howard, were in the bank when the robbery occurred. They were locked in the vault with W. H. Purdy, who has an office in the back of the building and whom the bandits evidently believed was an officer of the bank.

The three masked bandits entered the bank shortly after noon. They forced the two girls and Purdy to lie down on the floor and threatened Purdy with death when he denied knowing the combination of a locked strongbox in the vault.

After attempts to open the strongbox proved unsuccessful the bandits forced their three prisoners into the vault, locked the door, scooped up all available currency and made their escape in the car which was waiting for them at the curb.

'TALLEY BREAD' TO BE MADE

Firm to Make Flour From Opera Singer's Wheat

By DIXON STEWART

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 26. (UP)—While a "bull session" of the Kansas City grain market, in which wheat sored fully five cents, was the most important event Wednesday in grain circles, the general public was far more interested in an announcement that "Marion Talley" wheat, flour and bread was soon to be put on the market.

The announcement, made by a Colby, Kan., grain firm which has purchased the entire wheat crop from the Kansas City Grand opera star's recently acquired wheat farm, was seen as a boon to American housewives who for years have been forced to listen to the discordant tunes produced by the average male during his morning bath.

Eat It and Sing

"Put your husband on a diet of Marion Talley bread and enjoy his daily bathroom concert," may soon be the advertising slogan for the Talley farm products. And certainly if the "Talley bread" has the desired effect on vocal chords of those who eat it, housewifes gladly will pay a premium for the product.

Then, too, consider the saving for ambitious grand opera stars who—instead of being forced to travel abroad and study under foreign teachers—can assure themselves of a voice of operatic quality merely by adding "Talley bread" to their diet.

Harvest of the Talley wheat is under way and V. M. Harris, who purchased the crop, has leased a special granary for the Talley farm wheat. Every person connected with the harvest, from the men working on the harvesters to those delivering the wheat at the granary, is being required to give a certificate that the wheat is Talley wheat from the Talley farm.

Genuineness Assured

These precautions are taken so the public can have absolute assurance that they are getting the first grain or its products ever raised on the farm of an American grand opera prima donna, Harris declared.

In discussing plans for capitalizing on Miss Talley's grand opera reputation, Harris said, both wheat and flour in five-pound sacks will be sold for seed or souvenirs, so that any person who wants to have wheat that will be a lineal descendant of Talley wheat, or desires to hearten themselves with biscuits or bread from the Talley flour, will have a chance to do so.

The sacks will be specially printed. On it will be told the story of the wheat and it is probable that a picture of Miss Talley will be printed on the white sack.

Special Milling Process

There will be a special milling process on all the wheat turned into flour, Harris said. The wheat is high in protein, he declares, and will not only make a souvenir of Miss Talley, but will equal the best wheat or flour on the market.

Miss Talley could not be reached for comment on the sale of the "Talley flour," but the announcement was regarded by her friends as proof that she was sincere in her statements that she planned to "farm for profit," and that purchase of the farm and her announced retirement from musical circles were not merely an effort to secure publicity.

Cause and Effect

"Yes," said one man to another, "motoring is a great thing. I used to be sluggish before the motoring craze, but now I'm spry and energetic."

"I didn't know you motored."

"I don't—I dodge."—Tit-Bits.

Texas, was hanging on tenaciously, 103 hours behind.

The letter, sent down by O'Brine to his wife, said:

"Dear Elsie:

"Well we are just starting on our 14th day in the air, and are feeling fine. We know a man can stay up here for six months and get back. It isn't bad at all. People are raising a big fuss over it, but there isn't anything to it all.

"We have made up our minds to set a record that will stand longer than any other made. What's the use of getting a record and losing it in a few days or months? When we get through, the rest won't know where to start. In other words, we just started where the others left off.

"There isn't much news up here—no shooting scrapes, no fights, in fact this is a peaceful country all around, with not even a speed cop. It's about time for me to get at the controls. This Challenger-Robin is sure strutting its stuff. I'll bet Curtiss-Robertson thinks we never will bring this ship back. I don't suppose they will ever lend us another one—Love.

—FOREST."

Something for the superstitious to ponder is that the Robin's flight, inauspiciously begun on the 13th of the month, completed its 13th day on a Friday. But the fliers aren't worrying.

They even ventured to change sparkplugs today while the watchers below looked on anxiously. The operation is a delicate one and is accomplished with one pilot keeping the motor idle while the other climbs out on a four-inch catwalk and changes plugs between beats of the engine. It's risky work.

O'Brine did the job and while on the catwalk, washed the cabin's windows. The Robin apparently had gone through a drizzle last night, as its wings were washed clean, the crew of the refueling ship reported.

reason for denying Trotzky the right of way in these islands is that he might be assassinated by some white Russians, to say nothing of white Englishmen.

"The difficulty with this particular reason is that, as anybody may be assassinated anywhere or at any time, it would justify the exclusion not only of Trotzky but the entire human race."

Shaw but recently returned to England from the island of Brioni, in the Adriatic, where he took several long walks and had several long talks and a few short chess games (which he won) with James Joseph Tunney, husband of the former Polly Lauder, and one-time heavyweight champion boxer of the world.

Tunnel Cave-in Stops Trains in Colorado

DENVER, July 26. (INS)—Traffic on the Denver and Salt Lake Moffat railroad was tied up today following a 250-foot cavein in the famous Moffat tunnel, about 2,000 feet from the east portal. Loose rock and debris blocked the tunnel. There were no casualties.

to understand. In the last 48 hours Mrs. Snook has given evidence both public and private that she would never desert him. Then his mother arrived at Columbus, announcing that if permitted she would sit at his side until the end, and being denied that, she would devote herself to "cheering Helen" and giving her boy all the aid she could muster. "Helen" is Mrs. Snook.

With the renewed assurances of faith by those whom he feels the nearest to him, Snook came into court today a much different man than on previous days. His step had a snap to it. He went to his chair, peeled off his coat and before the session had started was plunged into conference with one of his attorneys over a sheaf of notes. A transcript of testimony was brought to him. All day long he was busy, making notes, talking to his lawyers, studying and checking his transcript. He only paused at times to scrutinize a prospective juror.

It was plain to anyone that Doctor Snook was fighting now.

The day's work of jury selection produced few thrills for the 200 people who filled all available space in the courtroom.

Each prospective juror was closely questioned with regard to view on capital punishment and opposition to capital punishment unfailingly brought dismissal. The defense asked each talisman whether he or she would feel embarrassment discussing subjects usually confined to the clinic or to lectures on sex psychology, in mixed company. Words were not minced. It was notable that to date 50 prospective jurors, including 11 women, have been examined and not one has hesitated in saying no embarrassment whatever would be caused by such discussions in mixed company.

Before adjournment this afternoon, Judge Henry Scarlett ordered impanelled a new venire of 50, anticipating that the present panel would be exhausted before the jury is completed.

How good vegetables can be if cooked in this appetizing way!

MANY men and many children seem to dislike certain vegetable dishes that everyone knows they should eat. That is why the recent work of a group of nationally known women cooking experts is so important. These women working on the problem of taste rediscovered an old secret—add a dash of sugar to vegetables while they are cooking. It makes more difference to the taste than anyone who has not tried it would believe.

No, it does not make the vegetables taste sweet. That must be clear. The little sugar acts as a developer of the tasteful flavors—of the delicious flavors already in the foods. It also makes the vegetables seem fresher and it adds to their color. Experiment now with a little sugar in cooking every kind of vegetable and you will be amazed at the difference it makes.

A great variety of appetizing foods—that is the daily need of children and adults. Remember to use a little sugar as a flavorer for cereals, fruits, vegetables and milk desserts. Sugar, if used intelligently, can help everyone to eat and to enjoy variety. Think of sugar as a seasoning. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

THE SALT AND PEPPER DANCE

One day, or no, one night—
It happened just by chance
The Salt and Pepper pots
Decided they should dance.

They skipped and skupped about
As merry as could be,
For Salt and Pepper pots
So seldom dance, you see.

They jigged and jumped and jogged—
They really did too much—
The pepper sprinkled out
And made them sneeze "Ker-Snutch!"

"Ker-Wish! Ker-Wash! KerChow!"
The dancers now were through.
"We'll have to stop," they said,
"We'll have to st—Ker-CHOO!"

"No Man Ever Went To Jail or The Poor House If His Wife Was Boss"

By Robert Quillen

"Silence an' poor victuals will win any argument in the world."

"When me an' Pa first got married, we made two rules that we figured would keep us from fightin'.

"We agreed that neither one of us was goin' to be boss, an' we promised to kiss ever' night before we went to bed.

"There wasn't goin' to be no henpeckin' on my part an' Pa he wasn't goin' to boss me around just because he wore the pants. We was goin' to talk ever'thing over an' swap ideas an' do whichever way was sensible, an' if ever we did get riled an' say hard things we wasn't goin' to pout or go to bed nursin' a grudge. We was goin' to kiss if we was so mad we could chew rails.

"The way it worked out, we sure needed the second rule if we was goin' to have the other one.

"I was kind o' set in my way an' Pa was the stubbornest man I ever seen; an' it looked like ever' time a question come up, he was on one side an' I was on the other.

"You can't argue very long with hard-headed folks without losin' patience, an' when you do that you're purty apt to start insinuatin' that they ain't right bright.

"That's the way it was with us, an' no matter what we started arguin' about, both of us was hoppin' mad at bed-time.

"We kept our promise, though, an' puckered up for a good-night kiss, an' then both of us felt so foolish we was ashamed to stay mad.

"The kissin' part lasted for years an' maybe helped us over the rough places, an' we still talk things over before decidin' what to do; but it didn't take me long to find out a team can't work in double harness if one wants to go 'gee' when the other decides to go 'haw.'

"You got to have a boss in anything or you don't get nowhere. An' the one to do the bossin' is the one that don't go off half-cocked or get fool notions or dream o' gettin' rich by puttin' a mortgage on the house to buy oil stock.

"I seen we wasn't gettin' nowhere, an' I just reached an' got the reins soft an' easy an' went to runnin' things like I thought was right.

"Pa didn't make no fuss. He didn't know when it happened, an' he don't know it yet. He still thinks he is the dominatin' influence.

"We don't quarrel none. I just go ahead an' do what needs doin' an' if he jaws about it I keep still an' let him jaw. If he gets hateful about it, I just feed him on canned salmon an' spinach six days handrunnin' an' give him cold suppers, an' then when he gets to callin' me 'Hon' again I fix him a good chicken dinner.

"Silence an' poor victuals will win any argument in the world. A man feels too important to quarrel at somebody that won't quarrel back at him. And he kind o' losses interest in the sacred principle he's contendin' for after he's been stuffed with canned fish an' greens for six days.

"You got to boss a man, but you got to do it tactful. His head is hard, but his stomach will listen to reason, an' no mortal man is goin' to stay stubborn when you go to aggravatin' his dyspepsia."

Erstwhile Steno, Now Housewife, Demands Justice

Is a Wife's Job Worse Than a Good Stenographer's? How Can the Domestic Servant Achieve Social Dignity?—Sage Advice to Age-Conscious Woman.

Dear Miss Dix—I was much interested in the letter from the bachelor who said that if a man's stenographer treated him the way his wife does she wouldn't last the week through. He would fire her right off the bat. But how about the other side of the picture? How about a man treating his wife as he does a good stenographer?

I have been both and I have found that the office girl begins at 8:30 and ends around 5, while the housewife's job runs from 6:30 to any old time in the night, and from the good old American dollar standpoint pays less.

—A Woman Who Was Once Somebody's Stenog and Is Now Somebody's Wife.

Answer—Right you are, sister. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and if wives are not always as spick and span looking at home as the office girls are when they come to work, and if wives don't always use the same tact and diplomacy in handling their husbands that office girls display in getting along with their bosses, no more do husbands show their wives the same courtesy and consideration and justice that they do their female employes.

Believe me, if men would bring their business manners home with them in the evening instead of leaving them locked up in their desks at the office, it would do a lot toward solving the domestic problem and making home, sweet home, instead of a place where scrapping matches are a part of the regular daily program.

Furthermore, many and many a wife would ask nothing better than for her husband to treat her as courteously as he does his stenographer. And this doesn't refer either to those philandering husbands who hold petting parties in their offices, and who have peachy looking secretaries that they take out to dinner and buy fur coats for.

I am talking about the average business man who spends his days chasing dollars and not skirts, and who regards his stenographer as just part of the office equipment, but who is polite to her and regardful of her feelings because in the first place he is a gentleman, and in the second place because she is useful to him and valuable to him and he doesn't want to lose her, and well he knows that she would give notice and quit if he didn't.

It takes time and trouble to train a stenographer into his way of doing things and he doesn't want to have to go through that any oftener than necessary. So when he has got a woman drilled into the office routine, and she proves herself efficient and capable and loyal he handles her with gloves for fear of losing her.

He wouldn't dream of such a thing as venting his temper and nerves on her as he does on his wife when things go wrong about some deal, or because he is tired and irritated. Nor would he dream of saying the insulting things to her that he says to his wife, or blaming her for everything, from the president's message to the state of the stock market, as he does his wife. On the contrary, he speaks Miss Pothooks fair, and gumshoes around her personal peculiarities, and when he has to call her attention to a mistake he does it in a way that does not give offense.

And this difference in treatment is not because he prefers Miss Pothooks to friend wife, but simply because a man regards his wife as a sort of lightning rod for his irritability and home as a place where he can blow up safely and get all the emotion and cussedness he has had to suppress in business out of his system. And he doesn't feel that he has to be polite to a mere wife, because she has to stick it and stand him, anyhow.

When a man's stenographer is one of the invaluable kind who is always on the job early and late, who never forgets anything, and who can put her hands on every paper that is wanted, and who becomes a sort of subsidiary memory and conscience to him, and keeps him reminded of everything he ought to do, why he is appreciative of it and doesn't hesitate to express his gratitude to her.

But when wife is on her job all the time, when she makes his home a place of comfort and gives him the things he likes to eat, cooked the way he prefers them; when she saves his money and press-agents him in society and writes his letters and sends his presents and does everything that one human being can do for another, he just takes it for granted and feels that she is doing no more than she should do.

And the man feels that his stenographer is worthy of her hire. He doesn't expect her to work for nothing, or just for barely enough to pay her board and clothes. And he doesn't expect her to come and wheedle her salary out of him, dollar by dollar, and throw flipflops of gratitude because he has given her the money she earned by her labor. No. He would consider himself dishonorable if he didn't pay her a fair wage and, if she had done extra good work, if he didn't hand her out a bonus now and then.

But it is different with wife. No matter if she puts in a 14-hour-day toiling for him and his children, he considers that he supports her and that she is not entitled to a single penny of the money she earns and that he is mighty generous to let her toil for him for her board and clothes.

Funny that husbands and wives who love each other treat each other worse than they do strangers, isnt' it? —DOROTHY DIX.

PRINCE WINS BRIDE AT LAST

Rejected German Cops Heart of Princess

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

BERLIN, July 25. (US)—Gottfried Herman Alfred Paul Maxmilian Vikter, prince of Hohenlohe-Langenburg, the dashing German prince who six months ago gave up all hope of marrying Mrs. Gloria Gould Vanderbilt, has won the heart of beautiful Princess Ileana of Rumania.

Princess Ileana today arrived at the ancestral Hohenzollern castle in Sigmaringen, southern Germany, which is about 100 miles southwest of Langenburg, where the Hohenlohe castle is located.

Announcement Delayed

It was expected that the engagement would be announced at Sigmaringen, but Ileana has asked that the announcement be held up until she reaches the age of 21 on Dec. 23.

The romance of the couple, who are cousins, began about the time of the death of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, when Gottfried paid a visit to his "Aunt Mari," queen of Rumania.

Since that time, Prince Hohenlohe has often been in Bucharest, though not until his recent definite break with the widow Vanderbilt was there any definite progress in the romance.

The prince's father is Prince Ernest, who married a sister of Queen Marie, the Princess Alexandria of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, but despite the close blood relationship, there has been on objection to the prince's suit.

Dashing Hero

Prince Gottfried is 32 years old, a former officer in the yellow Uhlan cavalry regiment, and is a great sportsman. He is considered not only Europe's most dashing romeo, but a man of spirit and courage.

Hohenlohe's engagement to Ileana shatters two dreams. The first involved the widow Vanderbilt, daughter of Harry Hayes Morgan, whose romance with the German prince had been one of uncertainty and frequent family conferences.

The second dream shattered is that of Queen Marie to become empress of the Balkans through the marriage of her daughters. The queen's eldest daughter, Princess Marie, married King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, to whom she has just presented a third son. Through this marriage, the ties between Rumania and Jugo-Slavia were strengthened.

Religious Question

Queen Marie sought to extend her influence in the Balkans by uniting Ileana and Boris, the bachelor king of Bulgaria, who has been seeking the hand of Princess Giovanna of Italy. But with the marriage of Prince Hohenlohe and Princess Ileana, the queen will have to be content with influence over Bucharest and Belgrade.

Just how the religious question in the betrothal of Ileana and Hohenlohe will be settled is not yet known. The Rumanian princess is a member of the Greek orthodox church, and the prince is Protestant.

What makes you think that you haven't got halitosis (unpleasant breath) the social fault no one forgives?

One person out of three has halitosis—and doesn't know it. It never announces itself to the victim. It is prevalent because caused by common daily conditions (many of germ origin), arising in the mouth.

If you wish people to like you, keep your breath beyond suspicion always by rinsing the mouth with full strength Listerine. It instantly ends halitosis.

Kills germs — destroys odors

Listerine, used full strength, is an effective germicide which kills even the stubborn Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) in 15 seconds.

Therefore it combats odor-producing conditions in the mouth. Furthermore, being a powerful deodorant, it destroys the odors themselves.

A "PREP" REUNION

Daily Editorial

IT lay amid a litter of pennants, papers and what-nots, patiently waiting until the reconstruction of an attic room should lift its yellowing sheets, and the latch to yesterday, a "school annual," through which memory re-traces hazy and neglected lanes.

Every Christmas, when the old boys gathered to hear us "speak for the cake," the editor-in-chief would read from the magnum opus, between pastry-inspired orations, a custom older than Fred and Ulysses Grant or the three Garfield boys, who once sat in the same whittled desks and haltingly parsed the Anabasis under "Baldy's" impartial yawn.

Our Individualism Dies

ALEXANDER H. LEGGE, chairman of the Federal Farm board, says the board's first job will be to make the American farmers "co-operatively minded"—by which, of course, he means that the farmer must be taught the advantages that come from sinking his individualism in a concerted effort to work with his fellows.

From the first it has been apparent that the success of the new farm relief plan would depend almost entirely on the degree to which farmers could be induced to work together. If they can learn to co-operate fully the board will help them greatly; if they can't, the board won't be able to do much for them.

There is a significance to this that goes beyond the confines of the present farm depression. For we are seeing a final assault on one of the last strongholds of individualism. A long epoch is coming to an end.

The whole history of modern civilization is nothing more or less than the story of the decline of individualism. As the world has grown smaller and each man has been brought into closer contact with his neighbors, the race has found co-operation forced upon it. In spite of themselves, people have been compelled to watch what their neighbors are doing and guide their own actions accordingly.

This tendency has gone a long way in most fields. The workingman can never act as an individual. He bands himself into unions and blends his own aims with the aims of his co-workers. Similarly, no manufacturer can play a lone hand. He has to join trade associations, base his activities on the activities of widely scattered men, take into account dozens of happenings that he would not, formerly, have thought of any meaning to him.

The farmer, however, has maintained his independence. He has kept the freedom that the farmer always had; freedom to run things on his own property exactly as he pleased, without paying any attention to what other farmers were doing. And—in the opinion of the farm board—it is precisely this independence, handed down from the very dawn of civilization, that has at last got him into trouble.

Independence and freedom, as a matter of fact, are words that we shall have to look on in a new light.

If we think of them in their old meaning, as giving us the right to do exactly as we please, without regard for the way our actions affect others or the way others' actions affect us, we might as well admit that we have lost them forever. No man, in this modern age, can hope to live for himself alone.

There is a deeper sense, however, in which freedom and independence are ours now more than ever before. A man's real life isn't his job. It's his home and his friends and his recreation, and what goes on inside of him. And this era of co-operation, cutting down our freedom of action in one field, is making us freer than ever in this one.

Mechanizing the Farms

THE WAY in which the engine is replacing the horse on American farms is strikingly illustrated by figures recently issued by the department of commerce.

In 1918 American farmers owned more horses than ever before—more than 21,500,000. By 1928, however, this total had shrunk to 14,541,000—a decline far too great to be explained simply on the basis of the agricultural depression.

In the same time the use of tractors increased amazingly. In 1920 there were only 229,332 tractors in use in the American farm belt. Last year this figure had risen to 781,745—and it's still going up.

This is a significant trend. Increasing mechanization may yet do much to lift the farmers back to his old position of economic independence.

Did He Really Want to Die?

IT IS ALWAYS hard to understand the complex motives of a man who decides to end his life. But sometimes the desire for suicide goes hand in hand, to the last minute, with an equal desire to live; and in that case the affair is apt to be more than usually puzzling.

A Chicago man drank poison, purposely, the other day. Then lying down to die, he wrote a note explaining what he had done—and adding that the antidote for the particular kind of poison he had taken was such and such a mixture; milk and vinegar, or something of the kind.

Naturally, when he was discovered he was given the antidote and hustled to a hospital, and thereby balked of his suicidal aim. And the question is: did he really want to die or to live?

The Basis of Prosperity

AN INDICATION of the solid basis on which American industrial supremacy rests is found in the current Outline of Business, published by the Central National bank of Cleveland.

In 1928, it is shown, American steel mills produced approximately 49,800,000 long tons of steel. In the same year German mills produced 14,300,000 tons, French mills turned out 9,200,000 tons and British mills produced 8,500,000 tons.

Thus American production topped the combined production of the three other leading steel-producing countries by nearly 18,000,000 tons.

Since steel is the essential commodity in the industrial life of a nation, this indicates clearly the solidity of the American industrial position.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

Charlotte Chatterton, whose nickname is Chatty, is a born gossip and busybody. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's hat shop because she talks too much.

Her widowed mother, Mrs. Harriett Chatterton, a dressmaker, has a wealthy friend and customer, Mrs. Van Nuys. Through her Chatty gets a job in the filing department of Mr. Van Nuys' bond house down town. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, a good looking young salesman, whom she once saw buying flowers for a pretty girl in a shop across the street from Mrs. Mayberry's hat store.

Billie Langenau, head of the filing department, tells her that the only girl in the office whom Jordan ever takes out is Agnes Herford, a plain, quiet girl who is Mr. Van Nuys' private secretary. But Chatty doesn't worry about this, because she knows Agnes sometimes lunches with Mr. Van Nuys, and she suspects her of being in love with him. Her mother makes her promise never to speak of this.

Chatty unearths another office scandal. Billie, who goes around with George Mayhew, another bond salesman, has been married, but does not let George know about it. She tells Chatty she never has had had a divorce, but so long as she and George are only friends, she does not intend to speak of it to anyone. Billie and her sister, Sara, come to live across the hall from the Chattertons, and Billie gives a Sunday night supper for the office force there. Winnie Talcott, Mr. Van Nuys' stenographer, suggests that they get some liquor from a neighboring drug store where Chatty's young brother, Pud, works, and Chatty discovers that Pud and his employer, Ben Tomlinson, are bootlegging. She keeps that fact from the others.

That night David Jordan makes love to her, and life suddenly becomes rosy and sunshine. But the next noon Chatty sees David Jordan and Agnes Herford having lunch together in the restaurant in the building.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER X

For weeks—ever since Dave Jordan had first begun to take notice to her—Chatty had been gloriously happy.

And because she had been happy, she had been all sweetness and brightness and goodness . . . For it is so easy to be good when you are happy!

But now, as she sat at her table in the "Brown Betty" tearoom, with her eyes fixed darkly on Dave and Agnes Herford in their corner, all her old bitterness and discontent came back to her.

It dripped into her mind and heart like poison into a shining white cup.

"The nasty vamp!" she said to herself, watching Agnes lean across the little table where she sat with Dave, and smile up at him. "I'll bet she asked him to take her to lunch! I'll bet she told him she wanted to ask his advice on something, or some such gag as that!"

A waitress, pink cheeked and smiling in her blue dress and white cap and apron, came up to take her order.

"No—I guess I don't want any lunch after all!" Chatty told her, pushing her chair back from the table. "I thought I did—but I'm not hungry. I don't feel well—"

That was the truth. She was sick all at once—actually sick with jealousy. Her head had begun to ache, and she felt as if she would burst if she couldn't have a good long cry all by herself, somewhere.

She went upstairs and spent the rest of her lunch hour sitting idly at her typewriter, staring at the opposite wall and feeling unhappy and bad tempered.

"Last night I let him kiss me!" she scolded herself for her weakness. "And today he gives me the go-by to take that dumb cluck of an Agnes out to lunch. What can he see in her?"

When Winnie Talcott came along on her way to the record room a few minutes later she greeted her with the question.

"Win," she said, "come here and tell me what all the men see in Agnes Herford. You know her a lot better than I do . . . What's so fascinating about her?"

Winnie, all black taffeta, flounces and jasmine perfume and frizzled hair, shrugged her pretty shoulders.

"I don't know. Maybe some men like 'em that way—refined!" She pronounced it RE-fined. "Why? Who's fallen for her now?"

"Dave Jordan's taken her to lunch," said Chatty, trying to keep her misery out of her voice.

But there was no use in trying to keep anything from Winnie Talcott! She was one of those naturally sharp-eyed people who miss nothing.

"Well, dearie, if that's the way you feel about Davy, you'd better snap out of the dumps and work on him a little, yourself!" she answered smartly. "And listen—any girl can get any man she wants if she only goes about it in the right way. If Davy likes the Poifick Lady type like Agnes, be that type for him! That's my Beatrice Fairfax answer to you!"

Chatty nodded. That sounded like pretty good advice, she thought.

"I've always hated that moon-faced Agnes from the moment I first set eyes on her!" she said, hotly, her eyes narrowing and her lips tightening into a thin, straight line. "And last night she saw what a fuss he made over me, so now she's trying to get him away from me! Well, all I have to say is that she'd better watch her step when she starts anything with me! My mother and Mr. Van's wife are the greatest friends in the world. And I think Mrs. Van would thank me for telling her what I could tell her about Mr. Van and Agnes Herford!"

Her face glowed with a white-hot flame of anger.

She was still boiling with fury an hour later, when the door of the files room was pushed open, and Dave Jordan, himself, stood in the opening.

She saw him from the corner of her eye, but she did not look up until Bille spoke to him.

"Hello, David," she said, in her sweet, pleasant way. "Do you want us to get you something out of the files?"

"No, thanks," and he shook his red head. "I just came in to speak to—to Miss Chatterton." He came into the room and slung one of his long legs over the corner of Chatty's desk.

"I wanted to take you to lunch today—but I couldn't make it," he said to her, in a low tone. "And I'm going to be tied up evenings all this week with one bother and another—but on Sunday couldn't we go out with George and Billie? Take our bathing suits along in case we found a place to swim? And broil steaks or something? Wouldn't you like that?"

Chatty shook her head. "I'm not going to be anybody's 'side sweetie'," she told him, bluntly, giving him one straight look. "If you and I were just friends, I would. But you've—made me like you a lot better than I should like you. And I'd rather not see you at all than be with you once or twice a week and know you were out with other girls the rest of the time . . . no thank you!"

She sat there for a long time, feeling unhappy and bad-tempered.

He got off the desk and stood up, looking down at her.

"I'll be back at half-past five. I'm going to drive you home," he said, "and talk you out of this! What makes you think I spend all my spare time running after girls? Where did you get such an idea?"

"Oh, that's just some more of my own business," Chatty told him, calmly. "And there's no use in trying to talk me into going with you on Sunday, because I'm not going!"

But towards the middle of the afternoon she asked Billie if she could have a half hour to herself.

"I want to do some shopping," she said. "Dave Jordan has an idea that you and George and I ought to go on a picnic with him next Sunday—and I thought I'd buy some blue dotted Swiss and ask mother to make a dress."

Sunday was a day of soft sunshine and blue, skies with not a cloud in them.

At 6 o'clock Chatty was awake. She lay in bed for a minute or two, blinking at the sunshine that came pouring in through the open windows of the bedroom and smiling at the dark blue Swiss dress, crisp and fresh on its hanger just inside the closet door.

By 8 o'clock she had finished packing the lunch of fried chicken and deviled eggs and chocolate layer cake that she had made the night before and tucked away in the ice box in the kitchen.

By 9 o'clock she was dressed in the new blue dress, and her hair was brushed back the way Dave Jordan liked her to wear it. Then she went into the Langenau's flat to have Billie put the "finishing touches" to her costume.

For Billie had the gift of "style." She could pull a dress about until it had just the right lines. She could push in a hairpin there and tuck in a stray lock there with the expert hands of a born hair dresser.

"Chat, you do need the tiniest bit of powder on your nose in all this heat," she said. "I won't put on enough so that Davy'll see it, but just enough to make you look velvety. Come here."

And she touched Chatty's chin with the glass stopper of her perfume bottle, and fastened her own string of little pearls around her smooth young neck.

"Now, you're a dream!" she declared. "And if Sara would only say that she'd go along with us I wouldn't have a worry in the world."

But Sara shook her rather plain-looking head with great firmness.

"No indeedy!" she said. "I'm not going along as the spare tire on anybody's picinic. You all pile into George's car. It'll be crowded as it is—and I'll be perfectly at home with my magazines, all day."

But they did not crowd into George's small closed car.

For Dave Jordan came in his own 'open-faced, snub nosed' one that he called The Pride of America, and he had it all planned that he and Chatty should ride in it alone.

"George and Billie will have a much better time by themselves," he said cheerfully to Sara, who did not like to have Billie and George left to themselves very often. "And we can all meet out on the Old Mill road where the Turnpike crosses it."

"I don't believe they're so crazy to be just by themselves," Chatty said to him when they had started away from the Lipton street apartment house, and were running smoothly along through the sunny, clean streets toward the outskirts of the town. "Billie and George are just awfully good friends."

Dave Jordan laughed. "Old George is off his balance about her and don't you ever let anybody tell you anything different," he said, rounding a corner with great speed and expertness. "Didn't I do that neatly, for a wonder? No, nobody can tell me anything about the way Old George feels about Billie. You see, we have a flat with two other fellows, and we room together—George and I. And two fellows get to know all about each other, living in close quarters like that . . . He'd marry her tomorrow if he could! But she keeps him at arm's length—"

"Well, of course, she does. But she has to, doesn't she?" asked Chatty. "When she's still married—"

She stopped abruptly, and clasped a hand over her mouth . . . What on earth was she doing? Telling the one thing that Billie had begged her never to mention to a living soul! And that she had promised never, never to tell!

Blues Singer May Wed, and Then She May Not, So There!

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 26. (US)—Although Dixie Lee, said to be the original varsity drag girl, was born in Tennessee and the family home is in New Orleans, she seems to have quite a Yankee strain in her.

When you ask her a question, she asks you another by way of reply.

F'rinstance:

"It is true you and David Rollins are going to be married?"

"Have you asked my mother?" she replied.

"Where is your mother?"

"What did Davey say?" Dixie countered.

So there you—and where are you?

The situation seems to be that Dixie came out to Hollywood from New York several months ago to work in William Fox productions. She had become quite well known as an eccentric dancer and a blues singer.

She met David, also working in Fox pictures, and, when Dixie's mother, Mrs. Nora Wyatt, returns from Dallas, Texas, in about a month, Dixie and David may be married.

Memphis Church To Build $37,000 Annex

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, July 26.—Preparatory to the beginning of construction of a $37,000 annex to their present building, the First Baptist church began razing the large tabernacle on the north of their church this week. The contract for the construction of this annex has been let by the building committee to White & Hardy of Abilene, and work will begin immediately, the dirt to be broken this week for the new building.

The cost of the building will be about $33,100 when completed, and with the equipment that will be purchased, the total will run to about $37,000. The building committee desires to have the building completed so that they can present it to the congregation as a Christmas present. The contract calls for 150 working days, but with favorable weather, it is expected to be ready for use by the Christmas holidays.

City Planning Expert Addresses Memphis Club

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, July 26.—At a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions clubs held Wednesday at noon in the ball room of the new Memphis hotel, John E. Surratt of Dallas, a specialist in city planning, and an official of the Kessler Plan association of Dallas, made a very interesting address.

Mr. Surratt was invited to Memphis by Mayor Sam T. Harrison and George A. Sager, secretary of the local chamber of commerce.

Mayor Harrison in introducing the speaker stated that the primary purpose of the meeting was to discuss city planning, and that it was necessary for the smaller cities to carefully work out their plans.

The lecturer illustrated his talk with slides thrown upon a screen, showing certain towns he has visited, and more particularly the scope and nature of the work the Kessler Plan association has undertaken for Dallas.

Gain in Hall County Scholastics Reported

MEMPHIS, Texas, July 26.—A nine per cent gain in the scholastics of Hall county has been reported by Supt. Theodore Swift over the 1928 count.

According to Swift there are 416 more in the 1929 scholastics than in 1928. He further states that there are now in the common school districts, 1,390 scholastics. In the independent school districts the number is as follows: Memphis, 1,249; Estelline, 465; Lodge, 423; Turkey, 455; Lakeview, 274; Leslie, 232; Newlin, 178; Weatherly, 143; Eli, 132. The total for the county totals 4,941.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, July 26.—Forty-second street—the part of it west of Broadway—has housed many notable theatrical attractions that have had extraordinarily long runs. "Abie's Irish Rose" was quartered there. Florenz Ziegfeld's New Amsterdam theater entrance is on Forty-second street, and many's the hit that has lingered there. A little farther west is another theater where "Blackbirds" played for more than a year. But not until the other midnight did I realize that the longest-run show of them all is the flea circus. At midnight the theaters are empty and most of the lights have been turned off. Not a few of the theaters in the block are untenanted, anyway—so Forty-second street would look pretty dismal if it were not for the flea circus.

The narrow entrance to the museum which houses the flea circus is gaily alight, and the big sideshow poster out in front, showing the half-man-half-woman, attracts a curious crowd. A general admission fee permits you to view this and other wonders—but the real attraction is the flea circus. One corner of the museum is partitioned off, and within it is a tiny square arena. There sits the professor . . . or the professor's assistant, and a case of fleas. There is no labor law governing the lives of fleas, and they have been working since, perhaps, mid-afternoon. They perform once every 15 minutes. They dance, kick footballs, pull tremendous loads, jump through hoops and appear in costume. They have been there for several years.

In all the theaters to the right and left shows have been born, have flourished, and have died—tremendous successes. Yet the number of their performances is as nothing compared to the shows those fleas have put on. The circus was installed without benefit of publicity, and went quietly on for some weeks until the intellectuals belatedly "discovered" it. Here, said the smarties, is something unique, something different, something well worth while. Our best humorists visited the show and wrote about it. Frank Sullivan, in The New Yorker, told an entrancing yarn about the flea that made a break for liberty and sought refuge on a girl's arm.

The professor, Sullivan related, set up a cry for the return of the flea. "That ain't no flea," Sullivan quoted the girl, "that's my escort." And so the flea circus became one of the things to visit. Mere bums shouldered out of the way by parties in evening clothes. But that was years ago. Long since forgotten by our writing folk, the boys and girls of the flea ballet have settled down to quiet prosperity. They are the deans of Broadway.

He Wasn't Drunk

Not long ago the telephone company arranged a publicity stunt that was chronicled on nearly all front pages—but it nearly missed one newspaper. The chances are that you read about it. An airplane load of reporters was taken up over the New Jersey airport, and the journalists called their various city desks just as easily as if they were covering a three alarm fire in the Bronx from beds in Brooklyn. One by one the reporters made their calls. They got central, and gave their numbers. When connected, they reported to their city editors, and then were turned over to rewrite men. One of the flying news-hounds was connected with his city desk. "Hello," he said, "this is Mac. I'm phoning from an airplane over in New Jersey." The city editor wasted no further time. He hung up his phone and announced to the boys in his office, "Mac's drunk again." But the persistent Mac repeated his call, and convinced the boss that there was really truth in his statements.

Buried Rum

Excavation for any new building in lower Manhattan is almost sure to disclose some historic relics. Perhaps an ancient graveyard will be unearthed, or some cannon balls dating from the revolution. But one of the most entrancing of the recent discoveries—one that vied in interest to New Yorkers with the excavation of Pompeii and Ostia—was the exhumation of a hundred or more bottles of pre-war rum. And by pre-war, I mean pre-Civil war, and possibly pre-Revolution. At the foot of Wall street the river front is being excavated for a new office building. Sandhogs, working in caissons 45 feet below street level, found some strange old bottles with wooden corks. They sampled the contents, and then began a frantic digging. They even risked their lives by digging beyond the wall of their caisson chamber. Their rewards were great. The bottles they found were hand-blown, of green glass. Their wooden corks were petrified. So, too, were some of the sandhogs. Antiquarians declare that the liquor is West Indian rum, and must date from the period of the revolution. In those days the river was wider and a wharf extended out to the site of the present excavation. The rum must have fallen overboard from a vessel which was unloading cargo at the wharf. Incidentally, George Washington landed at that point on April 30, 1789, when he was on his way to take the oath as first president, at Wall and Nassau streets.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Wickersham Plan

The nation is now agog over the Wickersham proposal for solving the prohibition enforcement problem.

PHILLIPS

The former attorney general would have Uncle Sam pursue the border and off-shore booze industry, centering its attention on ships and trucks, and paying no attention to individuals backing up to local refilling stations.

His idea is that the government should get after the cargo-lot violaters and let the states handle the individual bottle trade.

The proposition ruined what started out to be a perfectly delightful summer picnic of governors at a Connecticut shore resort. If there is anything the average governor doesn't want to touch it's the liquor enforcement problem. Trying to get out from under the Wickersham proposition with a good face kept the assembled governors so busy that none of them mastered the jack-knife dive or perfected his overhand swimming stroke at New London.

The idea that the states should attend to the gin, rye and Scotch after it left the wholesale warehouses and got as far as the bars, the pantries and the golf club locker-rooms was quite unsatisfactory to the executives, some of whom might have to raid their own cellars under the proposition.

Only the big bootleggers heartily indorse the plan. They see how, driving along a road with a load of booze and seeing government agents ahead, they could back into a lot, tack a sign "Country Club" on the truck, hop into some golf pants, sing "Sweet Adeline" in quartet formation and insist they were subject only to local regulation.

The average citizen is puzzled by the proposal and doesn't quite know what to think of it. All he is sure of is that a scofflaw would have a tough time reasoning out whether he was drinking under government jurisdiction or whether he was getting parboiled under state control.

He figures that the big question of the hour would be how big a "still" would have to be before it would pass out of state supervision and become a matter for federal attention.

A situation is even foreseen in which a woman might call the police station and say, "I want an officer at once."

"What for?" the sergeant might ask.

"There's a drunken man on my lawn."

"How drunk is he?"

"What difference does that make?"

"Well, if he's drunk on a big scale, it's a government matter. You'll have to call Washington."

Two state cops over.

Far From Home

ORANGE, N. J.—Sergt. William Curtin never touches drink, but he thought he was seeing things when he saw an armored covered little animal stroll across his beat. He captured it and found it to be an armadillo, native of hotter climes. Police headquarters are trying to make a pet of it.

Navarro County Trio Under Bond On Liquor Charge

DALLAS, July 26. (AP)—Under bond in the sum of $5,000, three men were held in the Dallas county jail today on charges of violating the liquor laws after their arrest Wednesday near Richland, Navarro county.

The trio appeared before the United States commissioner here, pleaded not guilty and asked for a hearing, which will be held Saturday.

The men are J. S. Lansford, Robert E. Foster and Charles B. Buehl. They were arrested at a still described by officers to be the most modern confiscated in that section in a number of months.

Natives Adopt Modern Dress

Anxiety of natives on the Gold Coast of Africa to assume modern dress is becoming embarrassing to their employers. They are very quick to imitate any new dress their superior may wear. Numerous tales are told of an entire office force changing its style of clothing to conform to the type worn by a new agent or superior officer. Some natives wear European clothing at the office and native garb at home. The number of persons adopting foreign apparel is constantly increasing, especially among the younger generation. In the schools the girls are now required to wear uniform dresses while the boys appear in khaki shirts and blouses.

ELECTRA C-C KEEPS GOING

Summer 'Slump' Doesn't Halt Major Activities

STAMFORD, Texas, July 26.—One organization which has no trouble keeping interest up and an active program going during the summer months is the Electra Chamber of Commerce, under the direction of Robert P. Hall, secretary, as brought to the attention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The mercantile bureau of the organization decided to sponsor a community party along the line of law enforcement which President Hoover asked preachers of the country to use as their texts not long ago. The program was made up and successfully put over. Talks by prominent citizens of the county were made, one by Charles I. Francis, of Wichita Falls, headlining the bill and drawing attention from regional newspapers.

Eleven Projects

The chamber has 11 major projects, and several minor ones which it is intended shall be accomplished during 1929. Getting a new hotel, a free bridge, a new business college, and new rural routes; and putting over the Pease river project and a campaign to sell Electra to its citizens are some of the major endeavors.

City beautification, cleaner streets and alleys, improvement of Front street, enforcement and observance of traffic laws, a grandstand for high school athletic grounds and a community rest room are some of the things which the Electra civic body hopes to gain through cooperation with city, mayor and city commissioners.

Seeks Factories

Industrially, it is investigating freight rates, and attempting to acquire new factories.

The care and upkeep of roads as well as the building of new roads were needed occupies the attention of several committees.

Legislatively, the subject of the widow and orphan law is being taken up in the county and state.

An exhaustive agricultural program, following up plans of community meetings, pig clubs, chicken clubs, etc., making trade trips, and development of the dairying and hog raising industries is being carried out.

Chillicothe Power Plant Is Repaired

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, July 26. (Spl.)—The big hydroelectric plant of the West Texas Utilities company at Lake Pauline was shut down last Saturday night in order for an inspection to be made and also a thorough over-hauling of machinery, according to W. R. Jones, local manager of the company. There was only a four-hour shutdown and in the meantime plants at Abilene and San Angelo were furnishing power for this district. The turbine has been operating continuously since the fall of 1928 with only a few hours off at intervals. Two men from Chicago are here superintending the repair work.

Miss Lucile Mason

Got the Secret From Her Mother

"I can remember very well how my mother struggled to get me into the habit of taking care of myself," says lovely Lucille Mason, Fort Worth girl, who lives at 205 Kentucky avenue. "It is the secret of my good health now though. She always believed Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) was the best to keep away indigestion, constipation, sick headaches, etc., and though I have used other medicines once or twice to see if she was right, I always go right back to NR Tablets. I know I can depend on them."

That's because NR Tablets are purely vegetable. They do not carry off vital body fluids like salts do; they do not salivate you as calomel does; they cannot poison you as excessive use of phenolphthalein preparations may do. Get the 25c box of NR Tablets at any drug store and be safe.—Adv.

Flowers Turn Canyon's College Campus Into Midsummer Beauty Spot

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, July 26.—The beautiful campus of the West Texas State Teachers college reflects the time and effort that has been spent upon it. At no time of the year is it lovelier than in midsummer, with its soft green terraced lawns around the administration building, and in front of the dormitories, its immense beds of Shasta daisies, the rich pools of color that are the canna beds, the bright, cheery zinnias, as well as the verbenas, petunias, dahlies, now just beginning to bloom, snapdragons and gladioli. Earlier in the spring tulips and hyacinths gave promise of the riot of color that was soon to follow. In the fall, the dahlias will come into their own. They are the premier fall flower on the campus, and in the town.

In the immense round flower bed in front of the administration building, of which the Guenther memorial forms the center, may be found tall cannas, ranging in color from light yellow to orange and deep red. Growing outside of the mass of cannas are velvety dahlias. In a wide border around the dahlias are great banks of snowy Shasta daisies. The walks around this bed, and leading to and from it are lined with violets, which will be covered with blooms in the fall.

At each end of the building are beds of cannas. These bright flowers are also growing against the front walls of the main building. The reds and yellows have been favored on the campus because they look best against the background the building makes. East of the building is a bed of gladioli surrounded by zinnias and bordered with violets. Between the main building and the education building is another bed in which these flowers are blooming. The two great beds in front of Cousins hall are full of fluffy petunias, both double and single, daisies and dahlias.

Faculty members, dormitory matrons and student workers have combined to make the campus of the West Texas State Teachers college a place of beauty.

Frederick Club Members Off for Contest Sunday

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 26.—Twenty members of the Tillman county 4-H model club will leave here Sunday in charge of Mrs. Susan B. Gray, home demonstration agent, and Lewis H. Beaty, county farm agent, for Stillwater, where they will compete with clubs from every county of the state for the championship in club work.

The clubbers expect to go in a large motor truck, and arrangements are being made to secure one for the trip. They will be gone one week.

The club camp this year will not be held in connection with the annual farm congress, as has been the case heretofore, according to Mr. Beaty, but will be a distinct feature to preceed the farmers' meeting. Many of the clubbers expect to remain in Stillwater to attend the farm meeting.

New Vernon-Chillicothe Road Opened to Traffic

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, July 26. (Spl.)—The new highway between Chillicothe and Vernon has been opened to traffic, shortening the distance between these two points. The curing of the over-pass was completed last week. The rutting of the new road, following recent rains, however, has caused many people to keep the old road. The paving of the six miles in Hardeman county to the Wilbarger county line will come some time this fall.

Two Oldest Dawson County Men Honored At Luncheon

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, July 26.—It's a short step from Wilderness to Prosperity as shown by the unique program at the Lamesa Luncheon club yesterday, entertaining Billie Baker, president of Lamesa National bank, and Hardy Morgan, extensive farmer and ranchman, both former cowboys.

The occasion of entertaining these men was that they are the only two persons now living in Dawson county who were residents of this county in the year 1900. They were cowboys together much of the time on the Long S or Slaughter ranch when Dawson county had a recorded population of only 36 persons and the deep fertile loamy soil of the county was unknown as far as its agricultural value was concerned.

Judge Carl Rountree presented a printed and framed roster of the early residents, only three of whom were women, to the two oldest pioneers.

They have traveled through many countries, appearing before the crowned heads of Europe and winning high praise in every instance.

The life work of these singers is to raise funds for the maintenance of Fisk university, a negro college near Nashville, Tenn. For three generations the travels of the jubilee singers have been marked with deep religious purpose and sincerity.

Canyon Professor Joins Hawaiian Fire Fraternity

Special to The Record News

CANYON, Texas, July 26.—Professor T. M. Clark, of the department of modern languages at the West Texas State Teachers' college, has been made a member of the Hawaiian order known as Hui-O-Pele and was initiated standing at the brink of the firepit of the world famous Kilauea crater. Mr. Clark is spending his summer vacation in Hawaii.

Only those who have visited the volcano and paid homage to Madame Pele, Hawaiian fire goddess, are eligible to join this novel organization. Mr. Clark was given a lapel button to attest his membership in the fire fraternity, and his membership card bears the fiery seal of the Hawaiian goddess, obtained by scorching the paper in one of the cracks of Kilauea.

Kilauea is located in the Hawaii national park on this island, the largest in the group, and the adventurers of Pele play an important part in all of Hawaii's mythology.

Big Feed Crop Seen In Hardeman County

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, July 26. (Spl.)—The feed crop is practically made in Hardeman county and from all indications it is going to be a big one. Farmers will not be faced with the proposition of shipping in feed as they were last year. Not only will they have plenty of feed for home consumption but will have plenty to ship out.

Maize, kafir and feterita are the principal feeds grown. Corn and sudan grass are also thriving since the recent rains.

Waurika and Ringling To Erect Traffic Signs

WAURIKA, Okla., July 26. (Spl)—Three large signs are to be erected, one on the highway north of Byers bridge, one in or near Randlett and one near the Burkburnett bridge, by the local chamber of commerce, cooperating with Ringling. This decision was made by the executive board of the chamber of commerce in its meeting on Tuesday of this week. Ringling will also erect one east of there directing traffic west through Ringling and Waurika.

At present highway No. 70 is marked into Waurika and then north to Comanche. It is a federal highway and was originally designated west from Ardmore, through Ringling and Waurika to Wichita Falls. This routing saves the tourist about 75 to 85 miles, which is not generally known and tourists are taking other routes.

Government Expert Lauds Plains Diversification

Special to The Record News

PLAINVIEW, Texas, July 26.—J. H. McClain, dairy specialist of the United States department of agriculture, spent two days this week in Hale and Swisher counties visiting dairy herds and inspecting other phases of the industry in this territory. McClain was accompanied by County Agent R. M. Milhollin, and District Extension Agent Sterling C. Evans. McClain expressed his wonder at the high degree of diversification that exists in this part of the Panhandle-Plains, saying that it approached the ideal of one-third cotton, one-third wheat, and one-third to other crops used in dairy farming closer than any other section of the southwest. He went from Plainview to Brownwood.

REVIVAL CLOSES

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, July 26. (Spl.)—The revival meeting at the First Methodist church came to a close last Sunday night. Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor evangelist from Vernon, conducted the meetings. There were several conversions.

A Good Treatment for Bunions

In many parts of the body where strong tendons pass over bones or where one bone presses upon another, friction is avoided by an intermediary tough membranous sac filled with fluid. These sacs, called "bursae," enable the two parts to work or glide past each other with ease. Bunions are caused by the swelling of the bursa covering the ball of the great toe. The inflammation may spread into the adjacent tissues of the foot and be very painful.

If the inflammation exists for a long time, the tissues become thick and hard. In the acute form the joint is swollen, hard, painful and red. In the chronic form the entire joint area becomes enlarged, and the big toe, in place of looking forward, points toward the little toe. The pain is not so severe in the chronic form, but the enlargement is much harder to reduce because of the toughening of the tissue.

The principal cause of this swelling is improperly fitting shoes. They may be too tight and cause a constant pressure, or they may be too loose and heavy at the same time, which will cause as much trouble. Injuries to the foot from stubbing the toe or from a heavy object falling on the foot may also be the start of inflammation.

If you wish to overcome the bunion, the first thing to do is to take away all pressure of the shoe upon the swelling. This may be done by obtaining special bunion shoes from an orthopedic shoe store; or, by cutting a hole through the leather of the shoe considerably larger than the bunion, and inserting a piece of very soft leather inside the shoe to make the hole inconspicuous; or, if the bunion is not large, it may be benefited by wearing extra wide-toed shoes.

Sometimes the pressure may be removed by the application of a bunion plaster, a form of ring which is pasted on the foot around the bunion to take away the pressure from the sore area. It is most important to be sure that the big toe can straighten out properly and that all pressure is taken away from the bunion.

After the problem of relieving the pressure has been solved, the following treatment may be used to reduce the swelling and soreness. Soak the foot in very hot water for at least 30 minutes morning and evening and keep the water quite hot by adding more hot water at intervals. A handful of ordinary "bath" epsom salts thrown into the water will improve the effect. The cheapest epsom salts are just as beneficial. After a half hour of the epsom salts hot water treatment, massage your feet thoroughly with cocoa-butter, olive or almond oil, giving the entire feet a complete massage, always rubbing upward toward the ankles, and never toward the toes. The massage should last for about five minutes, after which the excess oil may be wiped from the feet with a dry towel.

Where ulceration has occurred, it is sometimes necessary to use an antiseptic treatment as well, but practically all cases of acute and chronic bursitis will improve with this treatment. In some cases there may continue a slight enlargement of the joint of the big toe, but the soreness should disappear. At the same time, you will be delighted to see that the callouses of the feet will peel off and the corns will be loosened so that they can be removed without cutting.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Catarrh

Question—Mrs. K. S. writes: "My little boy has a continuous discharge from the nose, especially the left side. How can I remedy this?"

Answer—A correct diet, free from catarrh-producing foods, will stop the cause of the discharge. Temporary help can be received through the use of the ultra-violet light applied directly in the nose through suitable applicators.

Rash While on Fast

Question—W. G. F. asks: "What is the cause of a patient, after being on orange juice for a time, coming out in a rash? I have been on orange juice myself for nearly two weeks and I feel fine. Patient I refer to was a very heavy eater."

Answer—The skin rash frequently breaks out on a person who is on an orange fast. This is especially true with those who have been heavy eaters and who are very toxic. It is simply caused by the elimination of toxins, and will disappear if the fast is continued long enough.

Milk Diet

Question—N. B. writes: "I would thank you to advise me just how long one can remain on a milk diet I am on it at present for stomach trouble and have derived so much benefit that I am anxious to remain on milk just as long as possible.

Answer—It is impossible to determine just how long a person can live on an exclusive milk diet. In my practice I have had cases remain on the milk diet for as long as five or six months, and I have heard of others living on it for as long as three years. It is a good policy to stay with the milk diet regime until all pain and tenderness have disappeared from the stomach region.

Flu Peak Reached In Middle West

WASHINGTON, July 26. (US)—The influenza epidemic of 1928 apparently reached its peak in the middle west, according to a survey by the United States public health service, results of which were revealed today.

The service canvassed large groups of people in selected cities to find out the percentage of influenza, grippe, pneumonia and colds. The total number of cases per 100 persons was as follows:

San Francisco 34.1; Seattle 30.9; Kansas City 27.1; Farmington, Mo., 3.7; Des Moines 47.1; New Orleans 29.6; Cincinnati 27.0; Pittsburgh 25.2; Baltimore 15.1; Syracuse 26.8; Boston 23.5.

The incidence of pneumonia and grippe in 1928 was about one-third what it was during the epidemic of 1918.

Cloth Fire Smoulders 10 Months After Blaze

LAMPASAS, Texas, July 26. (AP)—Workmen excavating the basement of a dry goods store which burned here 10 months ago found bolts of cloth and other merchandise yet smouldering. When exposed to air, the fire blazed anew. Between 25 and 30 inches of rain has fallen since the fire, which burned away the roof and left the debris unprotected.

PAYNE'S 16TH VICTORY GIVES SPUDDERS UNDISPUTED LEAD

3 HOMERS AID IN 7 TO 3 WIN

Bettencourt, Fitz and Bennett Hit for Circuits

Special to The Record News

WACO, Texas, July 26.—Ol' George Payne took the cunning of his mighty right arm and brain onto the mound today and hurled the Spudders into undisputed possession of the Texas league lead. Thanks to George's superb chucking when danger threatened and to offensive and defensive aid of his teammates, the Wichita Falls club won the second and final game of the series, 7 to 3.

The victory gave the Spudders an even break in the series and marked Payne's sixteenth win of the season against eight losses, for the high record of .667.

Lefty Stein held the Spudders to six hits while Payne gave up 12 blows. Payne, however, did not issue a single base on balls while Stein passed three. Waco played erroriessly to one misplay by the visitors. But figures DO lie, at least in baseball, because Wichita Falls won the ball game despite apparent superiority of the Cubs.

Three home runs, by Fitzgerald, Bettencourt and Bennett, helped the Spudder cause as did a brace of double plays on critical occasions. Rye hammered a circuit drive for the Bruins.

Spudders Bunch Hits

The Spudders bunched hits to tally five runs in the fourth inning, which proved the winning margin. Wichita Falls confined all its hitting to the fourth and nine frames, when they added two more tallies. Save for those rounds Stein was near-invincible.

Larry Bettencourt, a righthand hitter, played first base for Jim Galloway's nine in place of Bud Stapleton, who swings from the left side of the plate. Bettencourt played a capable game at the initial bag in addition to clouting his homer.

Wichita Falls took first place while Houston was losing, the Buffs now being tied for second by Shreveport. The loss shoved Waco from third to fourth place.

Waco scored in the first inning. Rye singled to center and was advanced to third on Sanguinet's hit to left and tallied on Warwick's blow to the same territory.

That Big Fifth Inning

The Spudders counted five in the fourth, after two were out. Fitzgerald hit a home run over the right field wall. Bennett strolled. Working the hit-and-run, Sullivan singled to center, Bennett scoring all the way from first. Hermann singled to right, Sullivan stopping at second. Bettencourt hit a home run over the left field fence, tallying Sullivan and Hermann ahead of him.

Vigare doubled to center and scored on Stuvengen's single to center in the seventh and Rye hit his four-base smash over the right field barrier in the eighth to end the Cubs' scoring.

Wichita Falls scored two in the ninth when Fitzgerald singled to right, and thus became the Spudder batting leader of the day, and ambled home on Bennett's circuit drive over the left field palisade.

The Spudders open a three-day stand tomorrow at Shreveport, on which five games are to be played, before returning home Tuesday.

Waco Retires Zoeller; Buys New Outfielder

WACO, Texas, July 26. (AP)—Frank Zoeller, outfielder obtained by Waco from Atlanta for Jimmy Battle, wired President C. R. Turner today that he would be unable to report this season because of an injured ankle. President Turner said he would not call off the trade and will place Zoeller on the voluntary retired list and let him report next year.

Rascoe, hard hitting outfielder purchased from Wilmington, of the Sally league recently, was ordered to report to the Cubs immediately.

COEN IN NET TOURNEY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 26. (UP)—The chances of two of last year's champions to repeat have been almost completely discounted by the entrance of Junior Coen, former national boy's champion and a member of last season's Davis cup team, into the greater Kansas City tennis tournament which opens Monday. Coen will compete in the men's singles and the junior class.

Cochet Trims Tilden in Three Sets; Lott Extends Borotra but Is Beaten

PARIS, July 26. (UP)—Two sturdy Gauls, fusiliers of the tennis courts, today held firm against the onslaught of an aged veteran and a youthful invader from America, turning back the enemy with an ease that heralded invulnerability.

France today took the tenacious grip of a bulldog on the coveted international Davis cup tennis trophy, in its possession since 1927. William T. Tilden II, ranking American, went down to defeat at the hands of his inevitable conqueror, Henri Cochet, being allowed only six games by the invincible Frenchman. The scores were 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

Lott Loses in Four Sets

Although forcing Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, into extra sets, George Lott, finally succumbed to the superior playing and ability of the Gaul, who was just too strong for George and cut the American's last ditch rally short and ran out the match. The scores were 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Thus ended the first reading of the lesson that masters Cochet and Borotra taught their overseas pupils this afternoon. For France, it was a supreme triumph, since the Gallic team is without the services of its foremost ace, Rene LaCoste, who is confined to his home with an attack of grippe.

From the American standpoint, it was a veritable debacle. Only a most genuine miracle can salvage the United States' tennis self-respect in the next two days, while the prevailing view tonight is that anyone anywhere having any hopes of America's recovering the cup will have to stow away the story and wait till next year.

U. S. May Win Doubles

While the United States, represented by Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, may defeat the two French "iron men" in the doubles tomorrow, it will be one of the sporting world's greatest upsets should Lott conquer Cochet on Sunday, even though Tilden is given the palm over Borotra.

Perhaps, as the experts say, only two men in the world can beat Big Bill at his best. Unfortunately for the United States, while one, LaCoste, is prevented by illness from showing his skill, the other, Cochet, was in his finest fettle before the enthusiastic gallery as the bright sun beat down on Roland Garros stadium's courts. Only at long intervals did Tilden rise to his greatest heights to outshine his opponent. It was, generally, a distinctly one-sided affair.

Lott's defeat was a genuine heartbreaker. Except in the first set, when Borotra was utterly invincible, there was little room to choose between the two, but the Basque proved the money-player, while the Chicagoan suffered several fatal lapses.

The Quick Shift

As some one has remarked before, "This sporting life may be checkered, but it's never wholly dull." Only a short while ago Wild Bill Mehlhorn hit what looked to be a good drive from the sixth tee, at Winged Foot, in the U. S. open. This was in the first round, where Mehlhorn was one of the leading factors. His tee shot had a slight hook and it caught a trap just off the edge of the narrow fairway, 260 yards from the tee. Mehlhorn caught the ball too cleanly on his recovery and it sailed over the green into a ditch. Before he was through he had taken a 10 on a par 4 hole and was out of the championship. Just a trifle later the same Mehlhorn sank his putt for the sixty-eighth stroke to break the record at Lido, a great golf layout, and win at the same time the Metropolitan open from a strong field. After taking his 10 and fading out of the U. S. open, Mehlhorn played 72 holes at Lido in even 4s, one of the finest competitive golf achievements of many years. Which shows again how quickly affairs can shift in this baffling pastime. Almost any average golfer could get a 5 on the Winged Foot hole that cost Mehlhorn a 10. But not five golfers in the game could play 72 holes at Lido in 288 strokes, just four to the hole. This happened to be the sixth big tournament against fine competition that Mehlhorn has won in the last nine months. There is no other game where timing, touch, luck, the breaks of the game in general can shift and change as suddenly as they do in golf. Suppose Bobby Jones had failed to hole that 12-foot putt on the final green of the last round? Figure the difference it would have made in the career of the open champion and figure the difference it would have made to Espinoza. All on the final half-inch turn of the ball.

A Fairly Safe Record

There was a time when it looked as if the Athletics were out to grab off the old Cub mark of 1906. Without looking into the official figures, now under dust, that Cub mark was 116 victories against 36 defeats. No other ball club has ever come close to winning 116 games in one year. The Athletics may come close, but they will hardly crack this mark unless they can use Bob Grove every day. They still have more than two months left in which to operate on the enemy, but they are still several furlongs away from 116 victories. It can be done, but it isn't a good bet, even with the start they got and the big bulge they have on the rest of their league.

The Cub slaughter of 1906 was terrific. That was the year when the famous "Tinker to Evers to Chance" song hit began to sweep the country. Orvie Overall was at his best. Miner Brown and his famous three fingers were also around. Kling was handling fine pitching back of the bat. The Cub infield and outfield could make even average pitching look good. There were few safe hit zones when that cast was on the job.

There have been infields just about as good and outfields just about as good as the old Cub order, but it is doubtful if any one ball club ever had as much combined infield and outfield strength—Chance, Evers, Tinker and Steinfeldt for the infield—Sheckard, Slagle, Schulte and Hofman for the outfield. The wonder is that the rest of the National league ever won those 36 games which the Cubs dropped in the course of a year. That team won four pennants in five years, including a pair of world series. The big shock it collected came in facing Ed Walsh and Nick Altrock in the series of 1906. Not to overlook Doc White. All of which proved again that three great pitchers can upset almost any combination.

Loughran's Outlook

If Tommy Loughran hopes to get anywhere among the heavyweights he should take the next few months off in building up a punch, if his style hasn't been set too much for speed and boxing.

He may be able to outpoint most of the heavies now around, maybe all of them, but that won't stir up any wild excitement among the taxpayers. Loughran is far and away the best boxer now in the business. But when you figure the number of times he thumped 23-year-old Jimmy Braddock, weighing only 170 pounds, without doing any particular damage, it takes no expert onlooking to understand the quality of his punching power.

It has also been said that Tunney couldn't punch, but Jack Dempsey, who never was any cream puff, will tell you something slightly different.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

A STRIKING and pleasant reminder that autumn, cool, crisp autumn, is nearing, and with it, football, is contained in a letter received from Barry Holton, the new athletic mentor at Wichita Falls High school. Holton takes typewriter in his big fists to pound out an interesting letter and while he reveals nothing of great moment so far as concerns Coyote prospects on the gridiron for the coming campaign, the communique was highly welcomed, in that it is the first word received from Barry since late last spring.

Holton has a tough assignment facing him and he is too cagy and experienced a coach to make any predictions as to the sort of eleven he will put on the field this fall. Save for an introduction to his future charges in the spring, the 1929 squad will be unknown to Holton. The loss of several star players from the 1928 team also will be a handicap to the new mentor.

But while Holton does not go in for expressions of high confidence he revealed that he expects to have a fighting team that will be formidable at all times. That really is all that can be asked for. And knowing something of Holton's past record as a coach, and from the impression received of his personality, my guess is that the Coyotes are going to be anything but pushovers out there in the white-chalked field.

NEVER BEFORE in the ancient and honorable history of the Texas league has there been such a close pennant race as that now prevailing in the Lone Star circuit. Only a game and a half separated the first six clubs as this was written yesterday before the start of play, and the other two nines are within striking distance of the leaders. A reason for that state of affairs may be seen in the fact that the five clubs which finished third and under, strengthened their forces for the second half, while the three leaders of the first half have done little or nothing to improve their play.

The Spudders could use a winning pitcher—that is, a chucker who could be depended upon to grab a majority of his games. But such a gentleman is mighty hard to locate right now and really, he isn't badly needed. I mean, with Payne, Steengrafe and Wiltse hurling great ball, a fourth pitcher of like ability would cinch the old pennant for us and ruin a perfectly ripping race.

As for the Spudder batting slump, I refuse to get hot and bothered. Pitching all around the loop is greatly improved in recent weeks. And with such an array of hitters on J. Alvin Gardner's payroll, from top to bottom, they're bound to break forth at any time with a display of lusty smacking.

A READER of this colyum of wit and wisdom writes from Springfield, Mo., and sends in an all-star Texas league selection. He says he has wagered a fur coat that it is the best selection that could be made. I don't agree with his team in several places, and I don't like that crack about a fur coat. The insinuation evidently is that Springfield is so cool that one needs a fur coat, and to one boiling in good old Texas heat, allusion to a coat is grounds to sever an ancient and beautiful friendship.

However, as it is the first 1929 all-star selection made, and a very good one, and as the writer is o. k. with me except for mentioning a fur coat, here is his team:

Members of the British Wightman cup team watched the match, together with hundreds of passengers it was stated in a wireless message.

NEW YORK, July 26. (UP)—The boxing licenses of Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, and two of his American managers, Joe Jacobs and Billy McCarney, were revoked by the New York state athletic commission at a special meeting today.

The action was taken as an outgrowth of Schmeling's refusal to go through with a contract to box under Humbert J. Fugazy's promotion at Ebbets field.

2 Texans Win In Shreveport Golf

Gus Moreland, Ben Hogan Advance to Semi-Finals

SHREVEPORT, La., July 26. (AP)—Two Louisiana and two Texas golfers today advanced to the semi-final round of the Southwestern Golf tournament, leading up to the 36-hole test for the championship over the Shreveport Country club course.

Louisiana will be represented in the semi-finals by Ross McDade and Bo Whited, both of Shreveport, and Texas by Gus Moreland, of Dallas and Ben Hogan, of Fort Worth.

McDade romped to a victory over W. G. Haywood, New Orleans, 6 and 5. Although Moreland experienced more trouble, he disposed of his fellow townsman, Ralph Guldahl, 3 and 2.

Hogan eliminated Jack Speer of Houston, Southwestern champion, 1 up in 19 holes, and Whited defeated Jack Jackson, Dallas, 1 up in 20 holes.

LIONS HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

Baseball Game Feature Of Club's Frolic

More than 150 persons representing Electra, Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Wichita Falls assembled in the Coleman grove near Iowa Park Friday evening for the annual Wichita county Lions club picnic, alternating games and entertainment with intermittent visits to tables spread with fried chicken, home-made cakes of large dimension, and oodles of iced watermelon.

Headlining the heavy activities which preceded the feast was a desperately contested ball game, waged between teams selected from Wichita Falls-Iowa Park and Electra-Burkburnett Lions' club memberships. The clusters of distance hits which usually feature picnic ball games were effectively eliminated by the skillful hurling of "Irrigated Ike" Hudson of Iowa Park and L. O. Schutte of Wichita Falls, the struggle ending at nightfall with the score knotted, 8-8. P. B. Curd survived as umpire.

Mrs. G. D. Buchanan and Mrs. Walter Taylor of Wichita Falls emerged victorious from a horseshoe tournament for the ladies. Readings and musical numbers were added spontaneously to the evening's entertainment.

Infringement of Patent Charged in Petition

CHICAGO, July 26. (US)—Charging infringement of the Steenbock patent for the irradiation of foods and medicines, the Wisconsin alumni research foundation today brought suit against the Solar Research corporation and Sargent's Drug stores.

The Wisconsin foundation, holders of various patents and inventions of University of Wisconsin professors, asks for an injunction forbidding the further exploitation of the products manufactured through unauthorized use of the process of irradiating food stuffs and pharmaceuticals with ultra violet rays for the production of vitamin "D."

Health Crusade Starts In Capitol Building

AUSTIN, July 26. (AP)—Rats, cockroaches, mosquitoes and other vermin must find a hibernating place other than Texas' capitol building.

The state health department today began a "health crusade," in the big granite structure.

Recently, during the legislative session, typhoid fever developed among legislators, members of their families and employes of the capitol. The legislators laid some of the blame on the capitol cold drink and lunch stand and passed a concurrent resolution ejecting it from the building.

City to Resume Port Operation

according to city officials and leaders in aviation here, include a waiting room for passengers, concrete sidewalks and runways in the vicinity of the hangar, border lights and more adequate marking of the field. It was said that the lease now in effect will be extended indefinitely at the option of the city management.

Service offered at the airport includes not only gasoline and oil supplies for planes, but mechanical service. Visiting planes are also accommodated with storage in the hangar at fixed prices, it was stated.

Hammond Retains Priority

Two airports are now in operation in Wichita Falls. The Lone Star Aviation company, at the Municipal airport, maintains ships for taxi service, and represents the manufacturers of the Curtiss-Robin ships. Staley field, on the Henrietta road, is operated by the Wichita Falls Air Transport company for similar service, and represents the Eaglerock and Stinson lines of airplanes.

The agreement made between the Lone Star Aviation company and Mr. Fairtrace, according to Mr. Hammond, provides that in the event the city at some future time should desire to turn the Municipal airport back to private management, the latter is to have first opportunity to obtain a lease on the property.

AIR LEADER GUEST AT C-C DINNER

Members of the aviation committees of the senior and junior chambers of commerce met at the chamber of commerce Friday afternoon for a consultation with Philip R. Shumway, traffic manager of the Braniff Airlines, relative to present and future development of air travel through this city.

Mr. Shumway expressed the satisfaction of his company with the interest and support given by the citizens of Wichita Falls and vicinity since the inauguration of regular service here some months ago. R. O. Harvey, a member of the senior chamber, stated that more actual progress has been made in aviation in the Southwest during the last 60 days than in the preceding five years.

It was predicted in the meeting that within one year practically all first class mail in the country will be transported by air at a rate of two cents per ounce.

Mr. Shumway, Leo Rice, traffic representative at San Angelo, and R. M. Mercer, local Braniff representative, were guests of Jerry Vinson and Walter Nelson Jr. at the Wichita club Friday night.

MERGER OF ALL 'CO-OPS' ASKED

Federal Farm Board Opens Session at Chicago

By JAMES K. MARTINDALE

CHICAGO, July 26. (UP)—Merger of all farmers' grain marketing associations into a giant sales corporation was proposed by the federal farm board today in its first general conference with farm marketing officials designed to work out a long time program for the development of agriculture.

The proposal, to be discussed in detail at tomorrow's session was suggested only in general form at today's meeting but represented the first tangible move by the government applying business methods toward aiding the farmer.

The board, organized only 10 days ago in Washington, proved that it intended to get down to business. Meeting in their first session away from the capital, the members shed coats, rolled up sleeves and plunged into the porposal without the usual time-taking formalities.

BROOKHART LEAVES BY 'INVITATION'

CHICAGO, July 26. (US)—That President Hoover's new farm board, which opened a meeting here will not countenance any intrusion in its sessions by uninvited persons, was demonstrated when United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa was requested to leave the conference chamber today.

Senator Brookhart complied without a word, hailed a taxicab, gathered his baggage at a hotel, and a few minutes later was headed for Washington on a train.

He visited the session, which was being conducted behind closed doors. It was not until the conference had started that his presence was noted. An announcement then was made by Chairman Legge that only those to whom official invitations had been extended would be permitted to remain, and he walked out.

In outlining purposes of the Chicago conferences, Chairman Legge of the board remarked that agriculture literally was "behind the times" and needed an injection of modern "pep."

Announcing the meeting as an executive one, Chairman Legge ordered the withdrawal of all newspaper men and other "outsiders" who were not members of the board or witnesses.

Among those was Senator Brookhart.

Cargo of Gasoline Ordered by England

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., July 26.—Another cargo of Mid-Continent gasoline is being shipped by Dale W. Moore, independent refinery broker of Tulsa, to a large distributor of petroleum products in England. The gasoline has been awaiting orders from Mr. Moore, and following a telephone-cable-radio talk with London, in which the English distributor ordered 2,600,000 gallons of 60-62, 400 endpoint material. Mr. Moore ordered the gasoline started to the Gulf of Mexico.

According to the English oil man, the market in England is good. This is the third big cargo of gasoline that Moore has sent to this same distributor.

Rule Croquet Cronies To Rest on Sabbath

HEARNE, Texas, July 26. (UP)—There will be no desecrating of the Sabbath by the Texas croquet cronies.

That was made clear late today as the Galveston to New York marthoners pounded their balls into Hearne to the tune of citizen's huzzahs.

"Yes, sir, we rest over Sunday," said Manager W. F. Walton as he stretched out in the seat of his car. "We'll be in Calvert Sunday morning and Bremond Saturday afternoon, but from then until Monday we'll rest."

COTTON NOTES

NEW YORK, July 26. (UP)—The Oklahoma cotton crop has made good progress during the past week, with the western counties reported doing well. Weevils are present in the eastern half, but not doing any appreciable damage at this time. Some concern has been shown about the lateness of the crop and small plants and safe bolls are reported only along the southern edge.

Boll worms have appeared in about 30 counites of central upper South Texas and East Texas and the pest is apparently general, according to Dr. F. L. Thomas, state entomologist.

Unwanted rains have interferred with picking in the lower Rio Grande valley and similar conditions prevail in the Corpus Christi section, where grades have been considerably lowered.

Gray goods business is pretty quiet, but prices are firmer as a result of curtailment plans.

Curtailment projects in the section around Greenville, S. C., in the next week or two will shut down thousands of spindles.

The government report on Aug. 8, which will give the condition and probable production as of Aug. 1 is being looked forward to with keen interest and local commission house opinion is that the market will continue to back and fill within narrow limits until issuance of the report with the weather and the weevil continuing as the immediate dominating factors.

Stock List Holds to Narrow Range As Selling Follows Loan Increase

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 26. (US)—Individual stocks moved to new high ground while the list as a whole held to narrow range on the stock exchange today, due to further liquidation caused by the increase in brokers' loans. The bullish earnings statement of Bethlehem Steel caused skyrocketing advance in that stock at the opening and induced better demand for Steel common. Strength in the latter helped sustain bullish sentiment despite continued tightness in money that kept the call rate at nine per cent throughout. Baldwin advanced 7⅜, International Match 5⅝, Kreuger & Toll 3, Marmon Motor 4⅛ and National Power & Light 2¾. Radio dropped 6¼ and Allis Chalmers lost 7¼ while declines in other parts of the list were limited to a point or so. Coppers reflected a little better support while the Oils and Rails remained quiet and irregular throughout. Turnover increased to over the 3,500,000 share level.

A tremendous market developed over the counter in the new Baldwin shares on a when and as if issue basis. The stock is expected on the curb before long and when stockholders approve its issuance will replace the existing stock on the big board. The split-up, which was first forecast here, is in line with plans of the Cutten-Fisher group that hold control to equalize and strengthen Baldwin's capital position and expand its operations. When consummated Baldwin no longer will be independent of the fluctuations of railway equipment business for it will be in several lines of activity that will keep plants working at times when the railroads are not buying. Sufficient stock will be authorized to acquire new properties and ultimately, it is believed, the preferred stock will be retired so that increasing earnings will accrue to the common.

Electric Investors, the outlook for which was outlined here when the stock was more than $130 a share lower, is issuing its report for the fiscal year ended June 30. It shows actual earnings of $12 a share which is some 300 per cent better than ever before and does not include the big increase in value of its security holdings. Since the end of the fiscal year there has been considerable further increase in value of its securities. Appearance of the new Shenandoah Corporation caused increased demand for North American and Electric shareholdings as both are affiliated with the central states interests who formed the new Utility Holding Company in cooperation with Goldman Sachs.

Mystery, innuendo and all manner of rumors surround the Radio operation. Those who know most of the company's affairs are being "careful" until after the six months' report is out of the way but they are not as bearish as they were. One reliable source reports important selling from Chicago under cover of Thursday's rapid run in of shorts. Union Bag continued to reflect expectations of benefits from sale of power holdings. More than $32 a share will be realized from the sale. CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 26. (AP)—Suddenly substituting losses for gains, board of trade markets today tumbled back, after wheat, corn and oats had all soared above season top-price levels.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at virtually the day's lowest point, ¼ to ⅝c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅜c to 1½c down, oats ⅛c off to ⅝c up, and provisions at 2c decline to an equal advance.

A notable bit of brightness, too, contrasting with the recent long succession of cheerless news about wheat crops was an official announcement that the wheat yield in Italy this season will be the largest Italy has ever raised, 242,000,000 bushels, against a six-year average of 21,000,000 bushels.

Corn and oats prices were mainly swayed by the action of wheat. Reports of drought and excessive heat in the western part of the corn belt attracted much notice.

In provisions, more outside buying than usual was seen, and a firmer tone was noted.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, July 26. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Trade and industry generally seem to be at about midsummer minimum evidences of further recession in some areas appearing to be balanced by slight gains in others, so that net changes are rather slight. Perhaps the outstanding features aside from the clearing "sales" at retail of stocks of summer goods are the talk of further reductions of spring wheat estimates in the Northwest and in Canada, over again which are found a maintenance of good crop reports from most other America areas. The corn crop, it is conceded, has made great progress in the past two weeks, but there are advices that dry weather in the middle belt and in the Middle Atlantic states and New England is a bar to the continuance of the improvement which has made up for some of the lateness with which crops started. In several lines of industry, notably automotive trades, increased speed is noted in the steel trade, with buying of pipe, rails, structural material and cars tending to offset any shrinkage visible in automobile sheets. Special mention is made of demand for plates increasing, with the result of diversion of some orders to the East from central-western mills.

LOCAL WHEAT PRICES GAIN

5-Cent Advance Marked Up On Market Here

Wheat regained Friday 5 cents per bushel lost several days ago after it had remained at $1.10 for a very brief period. Through the stress of heavily congested movement of the last two weeks, it remained steady at $1.05, but was advanced by local buyers Friday to $1.10.

Cotton continued its unending vacillation, dropping 25 points to offer 17.10 cents per pound, middling basis, here Friday.

The poultry and produce market has been featured chiefly by a rapid increase in the number of broilers delivered to local buyers recently. Receipts of young chickens at the Armour creameries plant here has overtaxed the supply of pickers, it was said. Approximately 35,000 pounds of dressed poultry is moving out weekly from this concern, it was stated.

CORRECTING AN IMPRESSION ABOUT OUR

USED CARS

WE HAVE sometimes found the impression prevailing that we will not accept anything but a used Ford car in trade for a new Model A. That is not a fact. Many cars—in both high and low price classes—are being constantly traded in for the new Ford.

If you're in the market for a used car, come to our showroom. Thousands of miles of unused transportation are represented there in cars awaiting second owners. And each one is priced at just what it is worth. There is no "price padding" or inflation to permit us to recoup excessive trade-in allowances. The price of the Model A is so low that excessive allowances for used cars are impossible.

You can take advantage of this situation. Act now—come and see these bargains in unused mileage.

JURY RETURNS 30 TRUE BILLS

City Jail Criticized in Report to Court

conditions would be corrected as far as possible."

In discussing the questions raised by the grand jury City Manager Fairtrace said late Friday that the protests of the body had been centered in the "sweat-cell" or hold-over compartment in which four prisoners spent Thursday night.

"There are no sanitary arrangements," the official explained.

"The porter was slow about sweeping out Friday morning because the officers had had to put in another prisoner as soon as the four were taken out, and the boy doesn't usually go into the cell when it is occupied."

The manager declared that the installation of sanitary devices is practically useless because of the tendency of the prisoners to tear them down as fast as they can be built. Mr. Fairtrace said that the porter would be expected to sweep a little earlier in the mornings as a result of the protests and that he would discuss the question of new equipment for the cell with council members next week.

The grand jury report praised the conditions of the Wichita county jail, which was also visited before the final adjournment of the body Friday afternoon, and expressed appreciation of the work of the district attorneys office and other court officials.

Indictments returned Friday afternoon included four charges of "barratry," or soliciting business, against a Wichita Falls attorney who has been practicing in Wichita county for many years. Two of the indictments name three other men who are accused of having worked with him in encouraging the filing of law suits in the local courts. No arrests had been made in the cases late Friday.

Perjury Indictments

Three perjury indictments against two defendants, all growing out of former trials in the Wichita county court, were returned; one defendant was named in three separate embezzlement charges; and nine child desertion cases were made out. Of that group only Lewis Wilkinson and E. O. Brannon, both accused of child desertion, were under arrest Friday.

Art Hobbs, now in the Wichita county jail, was indicted on criminal assault charges, growing out of accusations brought by a 16-year-old girl who appeared before the grand jury Wednesday morning with the story of an alleged attack on the night before.

Frank Houston, negro, also in the county jail, was indicted on charges of burglarizing the home of J. F. Wright on the night of May 9. Other indictments returned included the following charges: two swindling, one false entry, one assault to murder, two disposing of mortgaged property, one seduction, and one theft.

Warrants for the arrest of the defendants were being rushed out of the office of Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk, late Friday afternoon.

Reservations for Scout Camp to Close Today

With several reservations still open for the final period of the Boy Scout summer camp, to be held at Diversion lake Aug. 4 to 14, Frank B. Creighton, scout executive, Friday urged all boys wishing to attend the camp to enter their applications Saturday, the closing date for registrations. Unless as many as 40 boys apply, the camp will not be held, Mr. Creighton said. The last period was set to open on Aug. 4 in order to allow Boy Scouts attending summer school to enroll for the summer camp and in order to select honor campers who might be able to make the annual honor campers' trip, which will be to Carlsbad Caverns, N. M., this year.

Capt. Andy Hawks' "Show Boat" paddled into Wichita Falls 40 minutes late Friday afternoon, anchored at the Majestic, submerged to the water line under a capacity crowd of excursioners, and chugged faithfully through three afternoon trips without interruption to make up lost time before darkness fell on the river.

"Old Man River" casts its spell around the "Show Boat." The joy-hungry plantationers and dancing pickaninnies who swarmed the river's edge, bringing the Old South to behold drama on the boat, will be matched by crowds just as eager to behold the drama of the river from 50 years "yon way." Magnolia trees, mocking birds, lazy, crooning blacks, and plantation melodies will usually keep the box office busy, especially in the South. This traditional magic, the ever flowing river, and the swish-swish of the paddle-wheel, effectively erase any doubt which the too-sophisticated may have felt toward the show.

Laura La Plante and Joseph Schildkraut take full advantage of the Mississippi river atmosphere to endow a better than average plot with realism that pulls the patrons breathlessly forward. The burlesque with which Magnolia and her leading man treated melodrama of the early eighties enacts a peculiar reversal in the Show Boat story, the melodramatic punches doled out by Fate in their later ups and downs carrying little of make-believe.

Magnolia and Gaylord are forced to move over slightly, however, to admit to the spotlight Emily Fitzroy's Mrs. Hawks. Old Parthenia Ann motivates the entire action of the story with a cold, relentless strength that stopped or moved everything but the river.

The music of "Show Boat" makes the production very different from the musical shows which thus far have been offered by the talkies. Neither the syncopated, red-hot jazz tunes of flaming youth, nor orchestral scores bordering on the highbrow field, have been used. The predominance of folk songs, and the eerie, rhythmless melody peculiar to the negro, first colors and finally possesses completely the background against which an appealing story is given a thoroughly good performance. "Old Man River" and "Look Up, Look Down" are the kind of tunes which will be feelingly enacted in bathroom solitude for a fortnight, and hummed dreamily as the water spray renews the lawn at sunset.

Surviving specimens of rare phenomena invariably are hailed with new and high valuations. For that reason, we're going to remember Joseph Schildkraut's unusual finesse in losing the cares of his very worst day in bringing back to his Magnolia the results of a large evening with the cup. That colorful return to home and fireside comprises one of the year's pleasant hours.

Of the three numbers comprising the prologue to "Show Boat," Jules Bledsoe's remarkable baritone voice in "Old Man River" is conspicuous. Helen Morgan, popular blues singer, and Aunt Jemima's chorus assist materially in spreading the river haze as the boat approaches.

WATER DEMAND CLIMBS AGAIN

Consumption Increasing 500,000 Gallons Daily

A steady increase in consumption of city water has been recorded at the water plant since the sudden decrease last Friday resulting from the heavy rains which followed on the heels of one of the city's worst heat waves. The daily consumption during the last week has been well under the stated capacity of the filtration plant and it has not become necessary to by-pass any of the water without filtration, according to Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the water department.

On Thursday, July 18, it was reported that 7,820,000 gallons of water were pumped into the city mains, the largest consumption in the history of the city. The stated capacity of the filtration plant is 5,000,000 gallons, but changes in the machinery made last winter make it possible to filter 6,000,000 gallons, Dr. Douglass said. During the heat wave it became necessary to pump about 1,000,000 gallons into the mains without filtration.

The consumption had decreased to 4,710,000 gallons on Saturday following the rains. Another slight decrease was recorded on Sunday but beginning Monday the consumption has shown an increase of about 500,000 gallons daily. In the event there is a recurrence of the long heat wave, there will be no doubt but that water will again have to be by-passed from the chlorinating pools into the mains, it was said. The consumption Thursday was recorded at 4,690,000 gallons.

Missouri Firm Disputes Right Of Wichitans to Use Similar Title

An injunction forbidding the use of the name "Fidelity Bond and Mortgage company" by a group of Wichita Falls business men operating here under that title since 1926 is sought in a petition filed Friday in the United States district court by the Fidelity Bond and Mortgage company of Missouri. The suit for injunction names J. C. Mytinger, M. D. Walker and John W. Thomas as the incorporators of the defendant company under the same name here.

The petitioners allege that the Missouri company was chartered in 1921 and has since been engaged in the sale of first mortgage bonds, including nationally advertised "Fidelity bonds." They assert that they have sold "participating bonds," involving first mortgages on $1,000,000 worth of Texas real estate within the state, in addition to interstate business all over the section.

The Missouri corporation sets forth in its petition that in 1924 it began a program of advertising through national mediums involving an expenditure of $200,000, and it claims to have built up a wide-spread reputation and standing valued at at least $100,000.

In asking for the injunction against the local concern, the petitioners assert that they learned in June of this year that the named "Fidelity Bond and Mortgage company" was being used by the Wichita Falls corporation. The company was chartered in August, 1926, the papers state. The Missouri company asserts a prior claim to the name. The petition will be laid before Judge W. H. Atwell in the November term of the United States district court here.

Freight Train At Crossing Halts City Fire Trucks

Damage estimated at $1,000 by fire department officials was caused by flames which destroyed a house at 707 Lee street about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. The house belonged to H. G. Karrenbrock and was rented to Reese Fuller, colored. No cause for the blaze was assigned by department officials.

Several minutes delay was caused when fire trucks were held up at Seventh street crossing by a long string of box cars which were being switched on the tracks. In order to allow the fire engines to cross the tracks, the freight train was split at the crossing, the switch engine resuming its work when the trucks had gone through.

Insurance Suit For $8,020 Goes to Trial

Trial of a suit for $8,020 in workman's compensation, brought by Albert Kalinec against the Texas Employers Insurance association, got underway in the 78th district court Friday afternoon.

The suit grew out of a heat stroke, alleged to have been suffered by the plaintiff when he was working near an open furnace for the Wichita Falls Foundry and Machine company in August, 1927. Mr. Kalinec claims to have suffered permanent injuries from a heart dilation which he says followed the stroke and which he claims has made him unable to carry on his work. The plaintiff asks for compensation at the rate of $20 a week for a period of 401 weeks.
