Nazis Say 2 French Armies Destroyed

MUSSOLINI SCORED BY FDR AS HE PROMISES ALL HELP FOR ALLIES

Italy's French Invasion Routes

With Italy's entrance into the war many routes for the army into France appear to be opened. This telephoto map shows the mountain passes through which Italy's "10,000,000 bayonets" might be brought to bear on dying France.

Turkey Poised and Ready to Come To Aid of the French and British ANKARA, Turkey, June 11 (AP)—Russia holds the key to Turkey's fulfillment of her mutual assistance treaty with Britain and France, it was acknowledged by informed quarters today.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 11 (AP)—The Turkish cabinet met last night to consider the question of war or peace for Turkey as a result of Italy's entrance into the conflict against Britain and France.

Any move toward an actual declaration of war in fulfillment of Turkey's mutual assistance pact with the Allies will, however, wait on developments, chiefly whether Italy's action brings the fighting to Turkey's doorstep in the Eastern Mediterranean, informed quarters said.

Italy Marshals All Resources for War On France, Britain

ROME, June 11 (AP).—Italy marshaled all her resources for war today as authoritative sources said fascist forces "undoubtedly are engaging" the allies.

House Completes Bill To Increase Navy

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).—The house completed congressional action today on bills permitting the navy to have a total of 10,000 planes, 16,000 pilots and build 22 new combat vessels.

Congratulations to:

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Myrick on the birth of a son in a Midland hospital this morning. The baby weighed 6 pounds 8 ounces.

President Says Dagger Stabbed In Allies' Back

Full Speed Ahead on Defense Signalized By Bristling Speech

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Sternly accusing Italy of plunging "a dagger" into the "back of its neighbor," President Roosevelt last night pledged the Allies "the material resources" of the United States.

These statements he made in a bristling address to the graduating class of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, an address so strongly worded that sources close to the administration said it was obvious the United States has abandoned a position of neutrality for one of non-belligerency.

His reference to the dagger thrust was contained in a departure from his prepared text. He said that "on this 10th day of June, 1940, the hand that held the dagger has struck it into the back of its neighbor."

The speech had already contained a grim rebuke for Italy, and a narration of his previous efforts to keep that country from extending the war to the Mediterranean.

"In our American unity," he said, "we will pursue two obvious and simultaneous courses: We will extend to the opponents of force the material resources of this nation and at the same time, we will harness and speed up the use of those resources in order that we ourselves in the Americas may have equipment and training equal to the task of any emergency and every defense."

Princess Juliana Is Safe in Canada

HALIFAX, June 11 (AP).—Juliana, crown princess of the Netherlands, arrived here today with her two young daughters for refuge from Europe's war.

40 Million for Red Cross to Be Asked

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt today drafted a letter asking congress to appropriate $50,000,000 to be used by the Red Cross for refugee relief work in Europe.

Pilot and Bride Honeymoon by Plane

Midland friends of E. P. "Gotton" Jeter, pilot for George Barham, drilling contractor, will not be surprised to learn that he chose to take his honeymoon by plane. He married Miss Bobette Jordan at her home at Shreveport, La., last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, according to a Shreveport paper.

Premier Benito Mussolini is shown in an address he made as Italy's declaration of war against the "plutocratic democracies," France and England.

LATE NEWS

PARIS, June 11 (AP).—The French high command reported today its troops had checked nazi attempts to advance beyond the Seine. It reported calm on the French-Italian frontier. No details of today's fighting were given. Government affairs are being conducted from Tours.

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 11 (AP).—Former Governor Richard Leche today was sentenced to ten years in federal prison on his recent conviction of using the mails to defraud the state of $31,000 in a deal involving purchase of state highway trucks.

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).—Edsel Ford said today, after a conference with William Knudsen, member of the national defense commission, his company is ready to swing into mass production of airplanes as soon as the government grants contracts.

Moody Decides Not To Make the Race For Governorship

AUSTIN, June 11 (AP).—The State Democratic Executive Committee Monday certified the names of 54 candidates for state office but that of former Governor Dan Moody was not among them.

He said he had pondered long whether to run, but, despite the fact the times were critical and there was a desperate need for a change in the governorship, he believed duty did not require him to relinquish the profession in which he was happy and make the race.

Two candidates for state office will be unopposed, Attorney General Gerald C. Mann and Land Commissioner Bascom Giles. There are 19 entries for the Railroad Commission seat of Railroad Commissioner Lon A. Smith, who is retiring.

Mineral Wells was chosen, after Amarillo and San Antonio had withdrawn, for site of the state party convention on Sept. 10 which will declare the nominees of the primaries, adopt a platform and elect a new executive committee.

Oil Well Drilling Company 1 Moss May Extend Foster East

BY FRANK GARDNER

East extension of southernmost production in the Foster pool of Ector county was indicated today as Oil Well Drilling Company No. 1 Paul Moss, one-half mile plus 990 feet east of Foster Development Corporation's original south extension to the pool, prepared to set oil string of casing after drilling nearly 90 feet of broken pay. The well is reported to have logged streaks of oil saturation and porosity from 4,135 to 4,223 feet. It halted drilling at 4,225 feet.

Large producer for the east side of the Jordan pool in southern Ector was seen as Gulf Oil Corporation No. 2-N State (University of Texas) gauged natural flow of 358 barrels of oil in two hours. Barnsdall Oil Company No. 9, R. W. Smith, in the North Cowden pool of northern Ector, flowed 1,273.61 barrels of 34.8-gravity oil on 24-hour test, with gas in the ratio of 830-1. Pay was topped at 4,062 feet, total depth is 4,212 feet in lime, and it was shot with 310 quarts.

Magnolia Petroleum Company and Atlantic Refining Company No. 1-221 Havemeyer & Jenny (H. & J.), in the southwest part of the original Seminole pool, central Gaines county, rated daily natural potential of 886.80 barrels, flowing through 1 1/2-inch choke on tubing, bottomed at 5,243 feet in lime. A quarter-mile west offset, No. 2-221 H. & J., is drilling below 2,850 feet in salt and anhydrite.

Richmond Drilling Company, Mascho Oil Company and W. F. Hanagan No. 1 G. R. Brunley et al, northwestern Gaines wildcat, this morning was drilling at 4,516 feet in hard lime. It had shown some slight saturation and porosity in cores from 4,405-31 feet.

Ray A. Albaugh No. 2 John Robinson, northwestern Dawson county wildcat, had 600 feet of sulphur water in the hole when it shut down at 5,059, nine feet past contract, to measure up. It is reported that operator is negotiating to deepen 200 feet. The well found salt water at 4,983 feet and topped sulphur water at 5,010.

French Holding German Armies On Left Flank

PARIS, June 11 (AP).—General Weygand's armies were declared tonight in dispatches from the front to be checking the Germans on the French left flank where the deepest nazi thrust had carried light armored columns across the Seine. Meanwhile, thunderstorms broke over the vast dry and hot battlefields, impeding dive bombers and tanks at the head of the German advance toward Paris.

Cartooning Shown At Jaycee Luncheon

Demonstrations in cartooning, silk screen work and embossograph work were given by U. A. Hyde today at the regular luncheon of the Junior chamber of commerce. Hyde explained how many cards and other advertising articles are made through silk screening work, then spent several minutes in illustrating the easiest method of cartooning. After drawing pictures of nationally known persons, he amused the audience by drawing pictures of several of the members present.

Murder Trial Slated In Court Tomorrow

A. L. Sullivan will go on trial before a district court jury tomorrow on a charge of murder in performance of a felony—driving a car while intoxicated—in connection with the death several weeks ago of L. J. Scruggs, Midland county dairyman. Sullivan is alleged to have struck the truck being driven by Scruggs about five miles west of town, causing injuries that proved fatal within a few days.

STRIVE TO MEET ITALIANS SOON

BERLIN, June 11 (AP).—Two French armies have been destroyed in the new Nazi offensive, informed sources declared today as the Germans raced southward to slice France in half and join Italian forces.

Nazi sources estimated the destroyed armies numbered between four and five million. (This estimate, however, seemed extremely high, since the whole mobilized strength of France is believed to be not much more than 5,000,000.)

Ship Carrying Refugees Is Halted by Sub

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).—The state department announced today the United States liner Washington with 1,020 passengers enroute from Europe was stopped at dawn today by an unidentified submarine which first ordered abandonment of the ship but later allowed it to proceed. "We thought you were another ship," the submarine signaled.

Officers for 1941 Are Installed by B&PW Club Monday

Mrs. D. R. Carter was installed as president of the Business and Professional Women's club at a dinner in the private dining room of Hotel Scharbauer, Monday evening. Other officers inducted in the candle-lighting ceremony led by Miss Betty Wilson, retiring president, were: vice-president, Mrs. F. Stalworth; secretary, Miss Vesta Denton; treasurer, Mrs. L. A. Denton.

Mrs. Hilda Blair Ray, president elect, could not be present for the installation service. The club voted to make a donation to the Red Cross.

After the installation, Mrs. Carter presided at a short business meeting during which it was decided to meet once a month during the summer months. A committee was appointed to plan and make arrangements for the next meeting which will be in the form of an outdoor entertainment.

867 Americans Are Brought Back Home

NEW YORK, June 11 (AP).—Her eight decks packed with humanity in search of peace, the liner Manhattan sped into safe harbor Monday carrying a record load of 1,907 refugees—867 of whom were aliens—from Genoa and Naples, only a few hours after Italy threw her armed forces into the cauldron of war.

Gratified in the vessel were so many babies—194 minor children were aboard—that the ship's laundry department and other services to wash diapers. Only yesterday, a similar refugee ship—the President Roosevelt—landed more than 700 persons, including 220 children, from England and Ireland, and racing across the Atlantic is a third vessel—the President Harrison—with some 500 men, women and children from Genoa.

A fourth American ship, the liner Washington, sailed from Lisbon for Galway, Ireland, en route to New York to add more passengers to a load already exceeding the normal capacity. More than 1,200 flag-waving, bouquet-carrying friends and relatives shouted and waved their greetings to the Manhattan.

Medals Received By Band Students

Medals won in the national band contest were received by band director M. A. Armstrong, he announced this afternoon. Students winning the medals were James Mims, Deane Anderson, Mildred Connor and Marjorie Hall. Thirty six Midland high school students were eligible to compete in the national contests but only the four named above accepted the opportunity.

The medals were described by Armstrong as large and beautifully engraved and well worth the effort expended in gaining possession of them by the students. Hall, Mildred Connor and Mims are playing in the summer band. The four students to win medals will be back next year, with the exception of Mildred Connor.

These sources also said the lower Seine had been crossed in various places.

The government fled from Paris, the capital of the republic of France last night as marauding German tanks were reported to have reached the region of the city itself.

Premier Paul Reynaud has gone to join the French armies, a brief ministry of information communique said.

The high command asked the ministers to effect their withdrawal to the provinces in conformity with established dispositions. This withdrawal has been effected.

Newspapers already had ceased to appear in the French capital, which in peacetime has a population of nearly 3,000,000.

Some German armored advance guards were said to have penetrated to the environs of Paris itself in isolated raids through the French line.

But the main front was about 35 miles west and northeast of the capital.

The stream of civilians leaving the city was steadily swelling, and more and more anti-aircraft fire against planes bombing the outskirts of the proud city was heard.

Although steadily approaching, the battle's roar still could not be heard here.

The announcement of the departure of the ministers was made only after they were safely installed "somewhere in France"—in the southern provinces.

Offer of Aid From President Hailed By Allied Leaders

LONDON, June 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt's assurance of material aid from the United States has inspired the allied victory. Clement Attlee told the house of commons today.

He declared that Hitler and Mussolini have united to destroy democracy but "democracy will answer the challenge."

He said Britain had already seized 14 Italian ships and ten others were in British ports.

T-B Testing of Cattle To Start Next Monday

Next Monday, June 17, is the day for starting tuberculosis tests of cattle in Midland county by federal bureau of animal industry representatives, it has been announced by County Agricultural Agent V. G. Young.

Both beef and dairy cattle, re-included in the project, and ten per cent of the county's cattle must be tested before the county may secure a three-year accredited certificate. It was pointed out that dairy cow owners have the advantage of free tests, the tests being required of them under the milk ordinances. Beef cattle owners are aided by having the county kept in the accredited column, making possible the shipping of cattle to points where such restrictions are made.

Comm. Approves Defense Measure

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP).—The house appropriations committee recommended an additional $1,706,053,908 outlay for national defense today to prepare the country for what the army chief of staff called "all manner of possibilities in the western hemisphere."

Streamlined Merchantment

In 40 shipyards the hammers ring, and 276 trim new hulls rest in the stocks—America's new merchant marine. Led by the beautiful new America, the finest ship ever built in the western world, this new fleet will soon be taking to the waves.

See what 22 years has done in the shipping world: Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, reports that one of the new 6-2 cargo ships left on the run to India practically a full month after one of the old Hog Island-built World War freighters started on the same voyage. The ships returned to New York harbor within 15 minutes of each other, and the new one was carrying 1000 tons more cargo.

What trade conditions may be after the war, we cannot tell. But whatever they are, we may be sure that a fine merchant fleet will help us to meet and cope with them.

Simple Honesty

Like a tall tree on a prairie stands an honest man. It was Hamlet who noted that "to be honest, as this world goes, is to be one man picked out of ten thousand."

Not that most men are dishonest in the sense that they would steal. They are not. If they were, even such rudimentary civilization as we have achieved would fall apart.

But to be really honest, in the sense of maintaining complete integrity in the face of disadvantage—that is something rarer. It has an antique flavor, and it warms one to find it.

William Brandt of St. Louis is 72, secretary-organizer of the A. F. of L. Central Trades and Labor Unions. As receiver for a local movie operators' union which had become corrupt he risked his life, he set things straight, and then refused a $5000 bonus offered by the grateful union members. He wouldn't even talk about it much, except to say, "I have never been a reformer; I have just tried to do the best I know..."

More men to steer unwaveringly that simple course—that's what the world needs.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — On the same day that Great Britain outlawed strikes and lockouts in all labor disputes, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins named seven veteran conciliators to keep in touch with labor matter in key U. S. industries.

The course these conciliators will follow has not yet been mapped, in detail. Probably is however, that each man will assume responsibility for harmonious relations in his industry and will try to anticipate sore spots before they develop.

It is apparent that, while the United States may have to follow the British lead later on, the Roosevelt administration has no intention of doing so under present conditions.

STRIKES FALLING OFF

JOHN R. STEELMAN, head of the conciliation service, is optimistic about the prospects.

"Since the defense program was announced," he said, "there has been a noticeable tendency on

Inventor Offers U. S. Sensational 90-Mile-an-Hour Flying Tank

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — A sensational new type of flying tank "worse than any type of flying tank" "worse than any type of flying tank" "worse than any type of flying tank" has been perfected by Walter Christie, dean of the tank-inventing fraternity, and is currently being offered to the United States government.

Christie

Within a few days Christie is to meet with President Roosevelt and high defense and congressional officials to show what this new invention of super-mechanized warfare can do.

According to the inventor, the devised is a tank of the familiar caterpillar-tread type, so designed that it can be locked beneath an airplane and flown to the point where it is to go into action.

A new ground-speed-accelerator embodying some of the principles of the launching catapults used by the navy will get plane and tank into the air after a run of only 200 yards.

A smooth-surfaced airport is not needed for landing; Christie says that the combination can come down in practically any field "so long as it isn't studded with rocks more than 12 inches in diameter."

90-MILE-AN-HOUR SPEED CLAIMED

MINUS its airplane, the tank it-through the straits to Allied warships.

And always it is emphasized that Britain and France must, if they are to blockade Germany completely, find some means of stopping Russian oil deliveries from Batum to Rumanian and Bulgarian ports for reshipment to Germany. So because of the Anglo-Turkish treaty, observers and no doubt some wishful thinkers permit the news to be circulated that Turkey is ready to collaborate by allowing warships through the straits.

Turkey Keeps Middle Road To Avoid War

ISTANBUL (UP). — Will Turkey allow French and British warships to pass into the Black Sea through the Dardanelles? The answer is no unless Turkey is at war or is directly menaced by war.

With each report that the Allies are going to tighten the economic blockade against Germany in the Balkans and the Near East, it is simultaneously reported that Turkey is going to grant free passage the part of the unions to try to settle their troubles without resort to strikes. I'm convinced there'll be increasing efforts by both sides to avoid any stoppages of production.

"If this voluntary machinery will work, we won't have to go to the British extreme—which incidentally, regiments the employer as well as the employee."

This policy of trying to prevent strikes before they start is not new. It has been the keynote of Steelman's policy since he took office two years ago. Its fruits may be judged by the fact that if present trends continue, 1940 will be the most peaceful year (from a labor relations standpoint) in 10 years.

LABOR BETTER OFF THAN IN 1917

STEELMAN recently pointed out to the President's business advisory council the sharp contrast between the labor picture of today and that of 1917.

In 1917 organized labor—the A. F. L., the railway brotherhoods, and the independent unions—spoke for about 3 million workers. Today between 10 and 12 million workers are represented by labor organizations. (There aren't that many dues-payers, but the bargainers speak for that number in all.)

Wages were low when the U. S. went to war in 1917. Today they are relatively high.

Hours of work were long in 1917. Throughout the war, labor fought for the 8-hour day and the 48-hour work. Today it has a better standard guaranteed by law.

Union recognition was hard to get in 1917, and the demand for recognition was the chief cause of strikes. Today recognition is, in effect, guaranteed by law.

A union contract in industry was a rarity in 1917. Today there are between 10,000 and 15,000 of them.

Living prices were going sky-high in 1917, and labor was constantly trying frantically to make wages go up accordingly. Today living costs are not going up—in some cities, in fact, they've fallen in the last year—and it is believed the government has controls to keep them from going up in case of war or a war boom.

NOT MUCH CAUSE FOR TROUBLE NOW

THE moral, as Steelman drew it, was that there shouldn't be nearly as much labor trouble now—and that the government is infinitely better equipped to handle any that does develop.

And the appointment of these conciliators for the seven-key industries, with more to follow, is a first step toward insuring that a good situation stays good.

self will outclass anything yet put into service anywhere, according to Christie.

It carries seven-eighths-inch armor plate and has motors developing 3000 horsepower. Its top speed says Christie, will be 90 miles per hour. It will mount either a 75 millimeter or a 90 millimeter cannon.

Christie says perfection of this tank is the fruit of 20 years' experimentation. All in all, he says, he has put close to $2,000,000 into the job.

"This is the only possible thing that could help end the war," said Christie. "A machine of this kind would do away with the bombing of open cities and innocent people. With this you could attack the army direct and make it come out and fight."

Christie's past experience with the U. S. Army have made him wary. He says: "All I want the army authorities to do is say: Give him the money and let's see what sort of machine he can turn out. I won't let them change a thing on it. If they try to I'll walk out. I won't let them tinker with it."

"I don't want money for this. All I want is my expenses in turning it out. If they make the money available I can build one in four months and I can turn them out at the rate of 10 a day if necessary.

"A special plane to carry the tank is not needed. One of their regular heavy duty Boeings would do the trick. The tank with its guns, ammunition and equipment weighs six tons. Any plane that will lift that weight will do."

ARMY SPURNED AMPHIBIAN TANK

ONE reason Christie distrusts the army is his experience with an amphibian tank 15 years ago.

He built one to army specifications and held a public test of it, in which the tank traveled some miles along one bank of the Hudson river, climbed a steep bank, swam the river, came out on the far side, turned around, swam back again and trundled off to its starting point. The army men lost interest. Christie finally sold it to the Japanese.

He recalls that the German papers displayed great interest in the invention at that time, and he suspects it was this that started them on the research which produced the amphibian tanks that have figured in the present war.

care who was at war, as Midland had won a ball game.

Flag Day is coming around June 14. This is one time it should be observed in a big way. I'm in favor of being tolerant concerning peoples' religion, but I can't see any harm in honest patriotism. The flag of the United States deserves the respect and honor of its citizens.

Mussolini has made himself unpopular throughout the world as one man could, I suppose, but when he demonstrated so clearly his fear of entering the war when there was a chance of being whipped, then went in to help eat the kill when he thought the Germans had a cinch, he assumed the role of a buzzard. But his meat may not be dead yet.

Hospital report: J. H. Fine is just fine!

Odessa citizens are registering for the Permian Basin Association convention June 21 and 22 in a big way. As host city, they naturally feel hospitable. But Midland has the same obligation, as headquarters city of the PBA. Register today!

The cavalry unit of the U. S. Army at Fort Russell, Texas, has been motorized. This was the first and most famous cavalry unit in the United States.

Methodist Women Initiate Study of Home Mission Course

Methodist missionary society began a new home mission study course which will run through three more Mondays, at its regular session at the church Monday afternoon.

Mrs. W. Earl Chapman is teaching the course which is an appreciation of home missions and the work of the church in America since its beginning. "Homeland Harvest" is the title of the text but Mrs. Chapman is using supplementary books in her teaching. She also employed maps and graphs as illustrations for her lecture yesterday.

Next Monday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock the course will be continued with a review by Mrs. Chapman on a book by Peter Cartwright, one of the outstanding preachers of the church in the early 1800's. Making the review of special interest is the fact that Rev. Cartwright was Mrs. Chapman's great-grandfather.

The teacher stressed the fact that every effort is being made to meet the mission study interesting and effective and it is hoped that a large group will attend the lessons.

Mrs. C. E. Nolan, who is moving to Florida soon, was presented by the WMS with a gift of sterling silver as a token of appreciation for her work in the organization.

Twenty-four women were present.

SERIAL STORY AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

YESTERDAY: Hannah argues with Rossy tries to convince him that Steve is right. It was Steve who spied on the Tollivers. Rossy leaves her, knowing that she came home to see Steve. He rushes to town, asks Judge Leverage about the land.

CHAPTER VIII. OLD Jesse Leverage blinked at Rossy McAfee. The ancient man rose and switched on the light. There was a TVA power line in Hell'n-Damnation now, lighting the world. He groped in an old secretary and came forth with a packet of yellowed papers.

He mumbled, "Seems like I made copies of all the papers on account your pappy was a friend of mine, and I kind of had some funny notions about that deal myself." He sat down at the table again and with shaky hands untied the pack. He looked through some of them while Rossy looked through the rest.

"That's the conveyance," Leverage said, and spreading it on the table, he read it. "Um-mmm. I said then it was in good law, and I say again it's still in good law. This original was the handwritten of your paw, Rossy. I'd take my oath on that. It gave to your cousin Steve the land and timber on Wild Cat Ridge. Um-mmm. That was enduring of the time when your folks was having trouble with the Tollivers over that land line. Something about hogs getting over into the Tolliver crops. They was fixing to shoot it out or law it out. Let me see just let me see-see." He scratched his head. Finally he shook his head.

He got up again and searched for something else. It took a long time, while Rossy read the papers, the deed, the legal stuff that seemed to have cost him a small fortune by hill standards.

"Here she air!" Judge Jesse came back with a memo book worn and dogeared. He heated through it. He made a sound as he discovered a date. "That's right. Them Tollivers was to see me about the law in that case June 10th of that there same year. I told 'em, I recollect if they could prove that damages, they could collect. I didn't want no trouble. No feudin'. I ast 'em to be patient, that your paw was my friend, and I knowed he would do the right thing about it. "Well, I named it to your pappy soon as I seen him, and he was agreeable. He would settle out of court if they'd agree to arbitrate the dispute and get three disinterested parties to appraise the damages. Well, I thought I had it all hog-tied and ready for settlement when the next time them Tollivers appeared they was hell-bent on lawing and killing, too. I told your paw that. That was going on toward July, I recollect. "The next thing your paw done was to come in and ast me to fix up them here papers. So the land the Tollivers mout of laid claim to become Steve's maw's—she was the boy's guardian — and right after that, inside a week, I reckon your pappy was killed in the game, and then Steve he put in his claim, and he had the papers, and all I could do was what I done—I told your mammy the land wasn't her'n, not your'n, but the Hogs'. And that's the way hit's been from that good day, son!"

Rossy McAfee stared at the simple, honest old face.

"Uncle Jesse, just suppose my father had done that keep from having to pay an unreasonable amount of damages in case of a law suit."

"Well?"

"When he was dead, would not Steve Hogg's case still hold in court?"

"It would."

"Rossy made to rise. "Thankee, Uncle Jesse, I think I got what I wanted to know."

"Come and see me when ye air home again, Rossy."

"Thanks, I will, Judge."

ROSSY went out and stood in the night. He hadn't known there was sweat on his face until the cold wind touched his brow. It came to him with terrific completeness that his father had really transferred the property to protect himself, knowing by that dodge he could outplay the grasping Tollivers. They would gnash their teeth in defeat and take a reasonable settlement. Later, Rossy's father planned to take back the land. That had all been worked out between him and the Hogs, at that time close to the family.

But no one could foresee the events of the Fourth of July, and after that, all Steve would have to do was make his claim and possess the property.

"That's what he's done! Now he thinks because I'm in college I'm going to learn too much, get too smart for him with terrific completeness that he could outplay the grasping Tollivers. They would gnash their teeth in defeat and take a reasonable settlement. Later, Rossy's father planned to take back the land. That had all been worked out between him and the Hogs, at that time close to the family.

He stopped there at the spot, and a sense of strangeness possessed him. He seemed to be alone, but there was the ghost of his father.

"Do I have to kill a man, after all? Not ary Tolliver, but one of my own kin—Steve Hogg? Looks to me like I'm looking for the wrong eye and tooth. Not in the head of my enemy, but in my kinfolks!"

Abruptly he started away, not toward home, but toward the cabin where Steve Hogg lived.

ROSSY had not gone far before he was stopped by the sound of voices somewhere down the path from him. He knew Hannah's very well. It was one of those penetrating voices that carry a long way, and when pitched in anger go even farther. The other voice was lower, a man's. It took Rossy some while to conclude it was Steve Hogg's. Moving closer he paused and listened.

"Well, all I got to say, Steve, is you'd better look out for Rossy (See SERIAL page 4)

WHO'S WHO in "ORPHAN NELL" By GLADYS SIRDEVAN

Flo Knight Boyd.

Flo Knight Boyd, author of the play "Orphan Nell," which is to be presented by the Glycic Theatre of Midland, June 26-27-28, is a native of Oregon but she received her degree from NTSTC at Denton, Texas. Mrs. Boyd was principal of the school at Reinhardt, in Dallas county, at the time she wrote the melodrama of the nineties, a play whose music depicts the moods of the over-emotional natures and flowing gestures of the hero, heroine, and villain, that many will remember as Art of its day.

The difference in the oldtime melodrama and Mrs. Boyd's "Orphan Nell" is that instead of only using the mood music, she combined the Blood and Thunder type of play with songs as well as music of the musical comedy. So far as Mrs. Boyd has been able to learn, her play is the only one of this kind. Thus her new type of play has won much praise, according to press reports from Dallas, Ft. Worth, and San Francisco. "Orphan Nell" ran for nine weeks in Fort Worth in 1937 and was directed by Mrs. Boyd. Her cast was composed of students from NTSTC and TCU and the musicians were from the radio stations.

The dramatic students of NTSTC are to present this play this summer under directorship of Mrs. Myrtle Hardy.

Mrs. Boyd, who is in Midland for a few days attending the rehearsals, will be present for the opening night when all come to applaud the hero, hiss the villain, and weep with the said and be thrilled when the play ends "and they lived happily ever afterward."

COWBOYS TAKE FINAL FROM LAMESA; MEET PAMPA OILERS TONIGHT

Bill Brown Is 14-6 Winner in His First Start

The Midland Cowboys evened the series with the Lamesa Lobes last night when the veteran Bill "Windmill" Brown held the visitors to six hits in racking up a 14-6 win.

Three of the six hits made off Brown were home runs, accounting for five of the runs scored. Right fielder Stevens got two of the circuit clouts, making him a total of four in as many games here.

Manager Sammy Hale this morning announced he would start pitcher Engle, a newcomer to the Cowboy squad from El Paso, against the Pampa Oilers tonight. Manager Grover Seitz will probably start Ben Parrish, a left-hander, against the Cowboys.

The Lobes, however, did not monopolize distance hitting. The Cowboys also got three out of the park. Greer, Wilson and Brown tabbing four-base hits. The Cowboys also had three doubles mixed in with the 14 assorted hits they procured.

The hardest hitting of the night was done by Hayden Greer, the new Cowboy shortstop. Although he weighs only about 150 pounds, Greer hit the ball on the nose every time up except once, and handled eight out of nine chances hit to him in the field. Sam Sealing also had three hits but one was a bunt that he beat out.

A big sixth inning during which the Cowboys made seven runs on five hits provided the margin of victory after the two clubs had rocked along even until that time. Lamesa got off to a two-run lead in the first half of the first when Hood reached first on Sealing's miff of Avadesian's loss and Stevens picked out an inside ball and hit it out of the park.

The Waddies bounced back with one in their half on walks to Avadesian and Jordan, a single by Sealing and an infield out. The home-ings managed to tie the score in the third when Greer walked, Sealing walked, Jordan reached first on an error and Manager Hale singled.

The Tatemens went one ahead in the fifth on three walks and an infield out but the lead lasted only until the last half of the frame when the Cowboys got two tallies. Greer opened the inning with his home run, Naranjo walked, Sealing bunted and the bases were loaded when Beeler muffed Jordan's bunt. Hale popped out to the catcher but DeGomez was hit with a pitched ball to force another run home. Wilson grounded out to end the rally.

The Cowboys really broke loose on Byington in the sixth. Brown started it all off with a homer, Avadesian walked, Greer flew out but Naranjo singled, Sealing singled, Jordan doubled, Hale popped out to second but Hood muffed DeGomez' fly ball, Wilson walked and Brown finally ended the inning when he grounded out to short.

The Lobes got three runs in the

Sociology Textbook Released by Editor

AUSTIN, Texas. — Looking at society through the eyes of the individual, a new sociology textbook co-authored by a University of Texas professor has just been released. It was announced here today.

Published as an introductory text, the book was written by Dr. Harry Moore, University assistant professor of sociology, and Dr. Ernest Groves, University of North Carolina research professor.

"The book begins with the person in the group, then gradually expands from the individual to the whole social order," Dr. Moore said.

Emphasis has also been placed on regionalism as a means of showing the relation of various social forces, he added.

"In sectionalism the resources of one part of the country are developed entirely for its own benefit, while in regionalism as we have in the southwest, a culture is developed for the good of the whole nation," Dr. Moore explained.

Eight on a single by Hood and consecutive homers by Stevens and Guynes but the Cowboys cancelled them by making three in their half on singles by Hale, Brown and Greer and walks to DeGomez and Wilson.

Bartell, Believed Through, Bounces Back on Two Good Legs to Put Tigers in Race

DICK BARTELL

Rowdy Richard wasn't supposed to have a leg under him when the Cubs traded him to Detroit for Billy Rogell. But Bartell is playing plenty of shortstop, and the Tigers have rallied around him to become a flag contender.

BY HARRY GRAYSON

NEA Service Sports Editor

CHICAGO.—A deal which appeared to be an even swap of fading shortstops when made at the winter meeting has turned out to be the most important item in making Detroit a pennant contender again.

It is the one which brought Richard Bartell from the Chicago Nationals for William Rogell.

Bartell, who is 32, was not supposed to have "a leg" under him, but turned up at Lakeland as sound as a dollar, and when able to navigate Rowdy Richard is just about as good an all-around shortstop as you'll find.

Bartell put life in the Tiger infield for the first time in years. He stands out in noisy relief among such strong, silent men as Rudy York, Charley Gehringer and Pinky Higgins.

Meanwhile, the Cubs, having traded the accomplished Billy Jurges for Bartell in the first place, were left in a hole when young Bob Sturgeon proved too inexperienced.

Billy Rogell failed to meet requirements, and Bobby Mattick was returned to the position, but he is rather ordinary.

Eddie Miller of the Bees, but were stopped by a $100,000 price tag.

In desperation, the Cubs were considering bringing Eddie Chiocki, now with Los Angeles, when the most seasoned shortstop in their chain was put out indefinitely by a leg injury.

The Cubs have fine prospects in Sturgeon, now with Jersey City, Harvey Storey and Leonard Merullo, but each is at least a year away.

Storey was purchased from San Francisco for a 1941 delivery.

Merullo, a fine fielder, was Villanova's captain in 1939; but left college in February to accompany the Cubs to Catalina Island. A shoulder injury suffered early in the training period kept him out all season, but this year finds him with Tulsa.

Bartell was harassed by sore legs and sciatic difficulties with the Giants late in 1938 and with the Cubs through much of '39.

"I've gotten rid of Bartell and his two bad ankles," asserted Gabbard Hartnett, when the Bartell-Rogell transaction was consummated in Cincinnati.

EVERYBODY BUT HIMSELF GAVE UPON DICK BARTELL

BUT Bartell set about correcting his trouble during the winter. He golfed, took up skiing, went on fishing and hunting trips, walked miles in heavy boots to get and keep his legs in condition. And then Denny Carroll, one of the most competent trainers, found knots in his muscles he didn't even know he had. . . . and got rid of them.

The result is a Bartell who looks not unlike the one who sparked the Giants to a couple of pennants.

Dick Bartell's name may be added to the list of more remarkable comebackers.

He came back after everybody had given up on him. . . . everybody but himself.

AKRON, O. (UP)—How to meet, mingle and marry now comes under the heading of academic study at Akron University.

A course of lectures has been started by the university's women's league on the problems of getting along with the opposite sex.

Two years ago, the course was known as a "grooming" clinic. Last year it became a "personality" clinic. But this year, says the league, it's frankly a "mating" clinic.

U. S. Receives Wildfowl Aid From Canada

WASHINGTON (UP).—Land rehabilitation activities of the Canadian government have played an influential part in supplying American hunters with a plentiful supply of migratory waterfowl, the Biological Survey reveals.

Following the intense drought of 1934 which destroyed millions of acres of farm lands and dried up marshes and sloughs of the North Central States and the prairie provinces of Canada, the number of migratory waterfowl reached an all-time low of 30,000,000 birds in 1935. It has been increased since to more than 65,000,000.

Survey officials attribute this growth to the Canadian Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act of 1935 and to the waterfowl refuge program in the United States.

More than 8,000 small water developments in Canada, undertaken in accordance with the act have been an important supplement to the United States waterfowl refuge program, the bureau said.

"Although the Canadian government's primary interest is to rehabilitate the drought and soil-drifting areas in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, the same conditions are found on both sides of the border," the bureau said. "Any water restoration project in that region is beneficial to the waterfowl as well as to the agricultural lands, and in both countries wildlife has received substantial incidental benefits from programs undertaken with other primary purposes."

Development of the water areas north of the Great Lakes provided waterfowl with safe breeding grounds during the spring and summer months, enabling them to double their numbers in the five years that have elapsed since the Canadian Parliament passed the rehabilitation act to avert further devastation of rich agricultural lands by drought conditions.

The Canadian program, survey officials added, will benefit all forms of wildlife on both sides of the border.

Bones of 2000 hippopotami, killed by prehistoric hunters, were found in a single cave in Sicily.

It's Certainly a Lovely Game

This trio of entries in the Heart of America tournament at Kansas City is prima facie evidence that tennis is an easy game on the eyes. Waiting their turn to play, left to right, are Gloria Thompson of St. Louis, Virginia Wolfenden of San Francisco, and Pat Canning of Alameda, Calif.

McAfee! The first thing you know he's going to find out something, and then it's going to be trouble!"

"Yes, and you'd better be looking out for him, too! How come you got to go back to Lincoln? What's the idea in all that, anyhow?"

"I aim to get me an education or bust."

"An iddication! And what'll you do after you get one, in case you don't bust first?"

"Well, one thing certain, I won't marry you then, Steve!"

"Yes, and another thing certain if you got will enough to get a college education, which I doubt, I wouldn't have you on a Christmas tree. Me, my wife's got to be ignorant."

"It would take that kind to be fool enough to marry you!"

The two passed, while Rossy withdrew in the bushes, watching so after all, Hannah had been going to see Cousin Steve. It must have been important. The hunger for murder had gone out of him. But he did have to get back to Lincoln as quickly as possible and see if he could get a lawyer to tend to this land matter. It was not clear in his mind what would have to be done. But Steve would not have his land. Steve could have Hannah, but nothing else.

"Killing him won't help, either," Rossy thought, and went on to his home.

A LONG time before day on Monday morning he was up, had breakfast by lamplight, and rode through an icy dawn down the valley. The week-end had cheered him. He wanted to get back to college.

Yet, when he finally reached the bus station on the main highway, he found Hannah there, too.

"Hullo, Hannah," he greeted. The girl bridled. "Reckon me and you have to put up with each other all the way down! Well, it gives me as big a pain as you!"

"It couldn't," Rossy said gloomily.

"I'm a mind to slap your ears back for that crack!"

"Better get busy, there's the bus."

It was their misfortune to have to take the last two empty seats, and all the way down to Lincoln campus they sparred and chewed the rag, always just ready to take a slash at each other's throats.

That trip wore Rossy to the bone. He was never so glad of anything in his life when the town loomed up, and he saw the bus station at the corner of the campus, and felt the bus slow for the stop.

"I'll take your grip," he said to the girl, with a gesture of chivalry.

She sneered. "You wouldn't be caught even seeming to know who I am, would you?"

"I'll have you know I can tote my own grip. And now," she added, waiting for him to pass and kicking his shins as he descended, "you'll get to see your dear love-dovie Judy! Well, hope you'll have lots of fun. But I've got a thing or two to tell you yet, Rossy McAfee, and you'll burn when you hear it, too!"

Coach Hurd stepped up to meet Rossy. He nodded and grinned at Hannah. He took Rossy aside.

"I've got to see you right away, McAfee. Something's come up—something mighty important that can mean the biggest thing in your life. Come on over to the gym and I'll tell you all about it."

Tree Planting By CCC Camps Near 2 Billion

WASHINGTON (UP).—More than 2,000,000,000 trees will have been planted by the Civilian Conservation Corps when enrollees complete their 1940 program, according to James J. McEntee, CCC director.

The 1940 program includes the planting of 200,000,000 trees on forest public lands and 100,000,000 seedlings and young trees on erosion control projects, he said. Most of the CCC's reforestation plantings are planned and supervised by the Forestry Service, while the Soil Conservation Service supervises plantings on erosion control projects. Interior Department agencies supervise planting in other areas.

About 1,800,000,000 trees already have been planted. Michigan led with 419,000,000 trees, followed by Wisconsin with 328,000,000. Other high states were: New York, 171,000,000; Louisiana, 152,000,000; Mississippi, 110,500,000, and Minnesota, 93,000,000.

"The Civilian Conservation Corps, working in cooperation with federal and state conservation agencies, is making a dent in the national tree planting job," McEntee said. "An enormous amount of work remains to be done if the nation is to restore the millions of acres of barren and only partly stocked forest lands primarily suited to the growing of timber."

"These lands have been so excessively cut over and burned over that they will not renew themselves through natural reproduction. Federal conservation authorities state there are some 138,000,000 acres of treeless or only partly stocked lands which might well be producing some human benefits."

"Tree planting is a permanent investment for the future. Over the last seven years we have been planting trees for reforestation purposes at a rate slightly in excess of 250,000,000 trees annually. To maintain this rate it was necessary for the corps to increase the capacity of tree nurseries, collect millions of pounds of seed and hundreds of thousands of bushels of cones and tree nuts aid in the growing of trees."

The nation's tree seedling production has increased from 250,000,000 in 1933 to 400,000,000 in 1939. An indefinite period in the future about 1,000 trees are planted per acre."

McAfee! The first thing you know he's going to find out something, and then it's going to be trouble!"

"Yes, and you'd better be looking out for him, too! How come you got to go back to Lincoln? What's the idea in all that, anyhow?"

Workers' Camp Self Governing

BELLE GLADE, Fla. (AP)—The problem of self-government faces 129 families of migratory farm workers who recently were removed from living conditions described as comparable to those in the book "Grapes of Wrath" to a new camp of steel and concrete shelters built for them by the Farm Security Administration.

They have tackled the problem by electing a council of nine men, each representing the inhabitants of a group of 14 cabins. Chairman of the council is J. F. Wilson, 50, a native of Kentucky, who first came to Florida in 1929 and has been following vegetable harvests for 10 years.

First major problem to confront the council was what to do about 100 children, ranging from 6 months to 16 years, who were at the camp during the day with no one to prepare their lunch.

Provide For Children

The councilmen, whose duty it is to administer the $1 a week paid as rent by the occupants of each shelter, decided to hire two women at the camp to prepare balanced noon-meals for the children, a plan that met the approval of all.

Another act of the council was to buy 12 records for the combination of the children which provides music in the assembly hall. The council appointed a committee of three women, one elderly, one middle-aged and one young, to select the records so they would be "neither all jitterbug nor all classical."

Among ordinances adopted by the council were those requiring that dogs be kept on leashes and chickens in coops, garbage be placed in metal containers provided at each shelter and automobile limited to a speed of ten miles an hour on the camp grounds.

Some Own Autos

About 40 families have automobiles, which range from sturdy trucks to dilapidated "flivvers."

The nomadic families, who earn a meager living picking and packing vegetables in the Lake Okeechobee region, meanwhile have settled down to routine living in their prefabricated steel shelters. Many of their former dwellings, which were condemned by state health authorities, have been razed.

Many families have decorated their homes with potted plants. Porches are a blaze of color with boxes containing a variety of flowers.

A. M. A. Sessions To Open June 10

NEW YORK (UP)—The latest contributions to medical knowledge will be discussed at the American Medical Association's 91st annual convention here, June 10-15.

Some 10,000 members are expected to attend. More than 250 scientific and technical exhibits will display new instruments and the latest hospital equipment.

The Journal of the American Medical Association said the convention will be divided into three classifications, the exhibits, the reading of 275 scientific papers, and the meeting of the House of Delegates. The house is composed of the 115,000 association members who will discuss common problems and association policy.

Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten, New York, will be installed as president, succeeding Dr. Rock Sleyter, Wauwatosa, Wis. Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York, and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York City will speak.

The scientific sessions will be held June 12-15. Vitamins will be discussed in several papers dealing with deficiency diseases, and sulfanilamide and its derivatives will be thoroughly covered.

One section will hold a symposium on the use of pituitary gland preparations in various phases of childbirth. A synthetic substitute for the female sex hormone, which can be taken orally, will be discussed, although it has been withheld from general use pending further investigation.

High blood pressure, techniques of blood transfusion, radiology, syphilis, and mortality problems attending appendicitis will be included in the three-day meeting.

Stamford Man Beaten To Death in Jail Cell

MARYSVILLE, Calif., June 11 (AP)—Police Sgt. A. H. Albrecht said Joseph Fox Westbrook, 42, of Stamford, Texas, was fatally trampled and mutilated in a cell of the Marysville jail, and that Owen LeMaster, 34, Yuba City, was booked Monday as his slayer.

Albrecht said Westbrook was locked in the cell Saturday night. About an hour later LeMaster was locked in the cell with him. Albrecht said no others were in the cell. The sergeant said Westbrook's skull was crushed, and LeMaster's shoes were covered with blood. Westbrook, described as former dealer of weights and measures in Texas, came here three weeks ago to visit his sister. The Texan died of his injuries Sunday.

Britain's Sieve For Nazi Hunt Of Fine Mesh

LONDON (UP)—Up and down the steps of Bow Street, where the pounding feet of a century of Bobbies have cupped the stone sills, a line of refugees moves these days, the target of Britain's drive against the "fifth column."

Slim young Austrians and Germans, neatly turned out in the short-skirted outfit of spring; heavy old women in well mended shawls, and when whose English falters like the first steps of a child queue up to prove they are not Nazis.

Most of them go without fear to Bow Street, for the hub of London's Metropolitan police, is no Gestapo headquarters. In fact it has been heretofore too indulgent, critics assert, and now Britain's 60,000 aliens must be combined again for possible Nazi agents.

How many Gestapo men moved into Britain with the flood of refugees from Central Europe? Only a little more than 500 enemy aliens were interned in the first six months of the war. Only 6,000 were placed under any kind of restriction.

Weeding Out Slow. Revamping of the entire system of handling aliens followed severe criticism in Parliament and outcries in the press. But typically British, there is no hysteria about the new weeding out process.

They are thorough, however. Questioning sometimes requires hours, but the tribunals hearing are in secret. A well-known German born hotel keeper emerges from the hearing his eyes twinkling and no stigma upon him as the result of the investigation. He is released without restrictions.

A housewife emerges with her witnesses. They are laughing. There will be no internment camp for her. Another comes out accompanied by a police officer. He or she may be on the way home to collect personal belongings. The story is under suspicion.

There are clergymen, shop girls, domestics and laborers, some 2,000 of them scheduled to be heard at Bow Street alone this month. These are the most suspected, but even so, most of them are being confirmed in their original classification.

Norway opened Britain's eyes to the danger of this "secret weapon" of the Nazis.

"Chute Invasion Possible." On the contrary new symptoms appeared. The power of internal sabotage was amply demonstrated in Scandinavia. The existence of fifth columns was confirmed in the Balkans. Parachute invasion no longer was dismissed as fantastic.

Parliament has been assured that Britain is prepared for any move of that type. About one man in every 60 is a policeman making up an army of a quarter of a million. They can be armed from secret stores within an hour. While the danger of massed invasion has been minimized partly by defense precautions, individual

Looking Toward High Office?

They are said to have discussed Senator Byrnes' candidacy for the vice-presidential nomination during a recent cruise on the Potomac River.

arrival of the enemy by parachute is not. Five men emerged recently from a four-seater Nazi bomber shot down over the English coast. Authorities do not believe the fifth man was a military flier. He spoke excellent English. He might have been lost in the crowd. So Britain has posted special squads in lonely moorland villages now. They investigate reports of every suspicious airplane. Several times suspicious airmen have been sent to Scotland Yard for analysis—to make sure that it was not burned parachute silk.

Latest Advice To Young Men, Go to Alaska

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP)—Want to go north, young man? If so, youthful Mayor Leslie Nerland of Fairbanks, Alaska, says that opportunities in the central Alaskan town are better than "anywhere else under the American flag"—but, he warns, the days of a quick bonanza are over. "We want settlers," he said, "but they must come equipped with more than ambition and courage. No one should think of going to Alaska without taking enough money to keep him until he gets established."

The 38-year-old mayor, a University of Washington graduate, pointed out that Fairbanks residents fly more miles per capita than any other people, and the town itself constitutes one of the most important aviation crossroads in the northern hemisphere. "Planes carrying prospectors and mining supplies have opened many creeks that would be inaccessible otherwise," Nerland said. "The U. S. army is building a $4,000,000 cold-weather experimental station about three miles from the city, training pilots to fly in Arctic weather conditions."
