Q—We have noticed that on the back of each lottery ticket is a number you can call if you have a problem with gambling. Is the state going to keep any statistics concerning whether the lottery actually promotes compulsive gambling?

A—The Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse gathered information to determine the prevalence of the problem before the lottery began, and will continue to monitor it. The commission's first survey is expected to be released sometime in the fall.

Police warn residents to secure bikes

Snyder Police Department is encouraging residents to make sure they lock up their bicycles and other outdoor equipment.

"We've had 15 bicycles reported stolen since last Thursday. We want to alert people to be sure and secure their bicycles and other equipment such as lawn mowers, yard tools and children's toys," said Sgt. Trevlyn Pitner.

Police said the bicycles have been reported stolen from all areas of town, during the day and night, and even from closed garages.

"It's not enough to just close the garage. You need to lock it, too," Sgt. Pitner said. "This is not just a nighttime crime. Anytime you are going to be where you can't see your property, you need to secure it."

The police suggest that people write down a description of their property, along with serial numbers, if possible. The chance of recovering a stolen bicycle or other piece of property is better if the police have a good description.

Residents may also want to consider taking a color photograph of their property, or marking the

Local man critical following accident

A 31-year-old Snyder man is in critical condition at Lubbock Methodist Hospital after sustaining injuries in a two-vehicle accident west of Snyder Tuesday.

Donald Lawler, whose address is listed as Box 1319, was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder EMS and later flown to Lubbock Methodist where he is being treated for head injuries sustained in the accident.

Also injured was 72-year-old Jody Thomas. She was transported to St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock where she is being treated for fractured ribs, a fractured shoulder and a facial laceration.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, a 1984 Cadillac driven by Thomas was traveling east on 180 near the Ponderosa Motel when it crossed into the lane of oncoming traffic, striking Lawler's west-bound 1983 Chevrolet pickup. The accident occurred about 1:58 p.m.

Booth spaces still remain for July 4

Booth spaces are still available for the annual chamber of commerce Fourth of July Celebration in Towle Park.

The celebration committee met Tuesday to outline plans for the event.

Arts and crafts booths in the National Guard Armory may be obtained for $45. There are currently 11 open spaces, although applications for five of those have been picked up.

Also available are some spaces in the park for food and activity booths. Those rent for $40 with electricity and $30 without electricity. Chamber officials said there are only a few spaces with electricity left.

The booths will be open from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. July 3 and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on July 4. Booth fees are good for both days.

Committee members are encouraging local civic, business and other groups to participate in this year's parade on the morning of July 4. Also needed are participants for the children's bicycle decorating contest.

Ronald McDonald, Grimace and the Fry Boys will be in the parade this year, committee chairman Travis Bunch said.

Anyone interested in obtaining a booth or entering the parade is encouraged to contact the chamber of commerce.

Committee members also briefly discussed horseshoe and washer pitching, novelty sales and fireworks.

There will be a $1 charge to enter the arts and crafts show in the armory to help defray the cost of fireworks. The $1 fee is good for both days of the celebration.

Tickets to enter a new event, the West Texas Chip Shuffle, will go on sale June 13. Proceeds will go toward completing the chamber's Light Up Snyder project. Prizes include one $1,000 Snyder shopping spree and one $500 shopping spree. There could be up to five $500 shopping sprees, depending on the number of tickets sold. Tickets will be $10 each for the event, which will be held at the Scurry County Rodeo Association arena.

Ministry to visit prison, churches over weekend

Five professional athletes and entertainers will visit the Price Daniel Unit and local churches this weekend as Bill Glass will present his Texas Weekend of Champions ministry in Snyder.

Activities are planned Friday through Sunday at Price Daniel, First Baptist and Colonial Hill Baptist Churches.

Glass, a dedicated Christian and concensus All-American football player at Baylor University, played 12 seasons in the NFL with the Detroit Lions and Cleveland Browns.

He was named All-Pro defensive end four times while playing for the Browns and has been inducted into the National Football Foundation College Hall of Fame and the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.

Along with Glass will be Bruce Crevler, Bunny Martin, Jack Murphy and Earnie Shavers.

Crevler is known as the most exciting basketball handler in the world. Crevler's record of spinning 16 basketballs at one time is listed in the Guiness Book of World Records.

Glass began a city-wide ministry, based in Dallas, in 1967. His first Weekend of Champions rally was held in 1972. Since then the programs have become recognized as one of the most effective prison ministries in America.

During the presentations, athletes demonstrate their athletic ability to audiences and then conclude the program with sharing a statement of their faith.

This weekend's activities at the Price Daniel Unit will begin Friday when Martin and Crevler will speak to inmates at 1:30 p.m. Shavers and Glass will present a

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The one thing that keeps some people from going to college is high school."

One of the SDN's most popular features, now in its third year, is the little item at the top of the page. The star located on the Texas map reads "home of..."

Over the years, we've been lucky to have had few problems with selecting the people. Our staffer with the longest local tenure is responsible for picking the names, based on the assumption that she knows the most people in Scurry County.

Often, names are suggested by readers on special occasions such as birthdays, anniversaries, retirements, etc. There really is no rhyme or reason, but we try always to get people we know who are still alive and who still live in Scurry County.

There was one minor flap a couple of years ago. You may recall the defendant in a case involving the sexual abuse of a child. During the trial, the defendant failed to return from lunch.

Several months after that, the man's name appeared at the top of the page. The late Andy Anderson, then chief deputy sheriff, had spent considerable time looking for the man who had mysteriously disappeared.

When the name showed up by the star on the front page, Andy called and inquired, "Do ya'll know something we don't?"

Nationwide, the odds are only 75 percent that the average American will ever have his name in print. In a small town, however, the odds increase dramatically.

A book entitled, "What the Odds Are," had some other interesting thoughts.

Here are some good bets:

--Regain weight loss after a diet are 90 chances in 100.

--That you will parent a child is 80 in 100.

--A smoker will try to quit is 71 in 100.

--A wife will outlive her husband is 70 in 100.

--That a college freshman will graduate is 50-50.

After yesterday's comments concerning odds, a reader called to express his frustration. He said:

"The odds of an unemployed person getting a job in Scurry County is one in 5 million."

--A cinch bet--it'll be hot, hot this summer.

Buck Naked is lure to visit this town

WILLOW PARK, Texas (AP) — Charles Nolte says he likes to see people coming through Buck Naked.

"Just being able to say that line is part of the reason we named this place ...," he says chuckling.

The town was named 15 years ago this month by Nolte and friend Johnny Logo. It disrobed a legendary controversy that still has some local residents convinced there is a nudist colony just west of Fort Worth.

Discarding names like Broken Wheel and Double Knobs, Logo came up with Buck Naked for a 40-acre plot of land owned by Nolte about eight miles east of Weatherford.

"We tell people, 'Hey you're living in Buck Naked. It's a laugh is what it is," Nolte said of the park-like area that is "more or less used as a meeting place for CBers and such." It includes a couple of lakes and a picnic area, Nolte said.

Logo has always defended his choice by saying, "If you can prove to me one person came into this world with clothes on, we will change the name."

For several months in 1977, Buck Naked aroused imaginations, blew the buckle off of the Bible Belt and had residents in the area thinking their quiet country neighborhood had gone red light.

The ideas were just getting started when the would-be hamlet was stripped of its identity.

"Don't shop out of town, shop Buck Naked."

"Stay at the Buck Naked Hotel."

"Thank you for stopping by Buck Naked."

Nolte, 68, grins from ear to ear and says, "everyone misunderstood our intentions."

Thoughts of a community run by bare-skinned yahoos drinking moonshine all day were off the mark, says Nolte, a relentless entrepreneur who has more homespun tales than Mother Goose.

"The last thing I wanted was a bunch of naked people on my property," he said.

"It was designed as a fun place, an el cheapo Six Flags," says Logo, 70, who is still the self-appointed mayor of Buck Naked.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT. I take Synthroid daily and believe that my breasts have increased in size dramatically. My doctor simply smiles and doesn't answer my question in this regard. Can you?

DEAR READER: Ah, the enigmatic doctor. He's smiling because he doesn't know why your breasts have enlarged, any more than I do.

Ordinarily, breasts enlarge under the influence of hormones. On occasion, women may experience harmless breast fullness from fluid retention that occurs during portions of the menstrual cycle. Some drugs (especially certain diuretics and drugs for peptic ulcers) may cause breast swelling, particularly in males. However, Synthroid (thyroid hormone) is not one of those drugs, and breast enlargement is not listed by the manufacturer as a side effect.

I suppose that the Synthroid, which you are probably taking because of an underactive thyroid gland, could in theory cause breast enlargement if it re-established a more physiologic hormone balance in your system. But I'm reaching. Such a reaction would be highly unusual.

Check with your gynecologist to see if further testing of your hormone levels is in order.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips On Medicines." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Just what is nonbacterial prostatitis in an 85-year-old man and is it treatable?

DEAR READER: Prostatitis (inflammation of the prostate gland) is often caused by bacterial infection, which is diagnosed by a culture of prostatic secretions and is treated with antibiotics.

More common, however, is nonbacterial prostatitis. This condition causes identical symptoms (difficult or painful urination, a swollen and tender prostate gland, and pus or blood in the urine) but no bacteria can be identified in prostatic secretions. Thus, the cause is unknown. Some specialists believe that the affliction is frequently associated with excessive congestion due, in younger men, to inadequate sexual release.

The most effective therapy is prostatic massage, during which a urologist massages the gland through the rectum. Antibiotics are of no use in the condition.

In my opinion, men with non-bacterial prostatis should be under the care of urologists.

Prison lawsuit headed to court

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorney General Dan Morales' charge that plaintiffs' lawyers in the longstanding Ruiz prison lawsuit are getting rich at Texas' expense is "just another piece of political baloney," one of the attorneys has said.

"The only thing standing in the way of a settlement is Dan Morales," attorney Donna Brorby said Tuesday. "He's off on a political venture. Like the rest of the American people, I'm not thrilled with politicians these days."

Morales said Tuesday that he was ready to go back to court to settle the case. Although a settlement had been reached earlier this year, Morales repeated his claims that the plaintiffs' attorneys have made additional demands he now cannot approve.

"I now see no viable or realistic prospects for resolution outside of litigation," Morales said at a news conference before he spoke to a graduating class at Houston's Charles Eliot Elementary School. "And I have directed our lawyers to gear up for trial."

The attorney general made repeated references to the "attorneys from San Francisco" who have been representing the inmates and he questioned their motives. Ms. Brorby and William Bennett Turner, based in San Francisco, are chief attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Morales said plaintiffs' attorneys have made more than $6 million in the case — money paid by Texas taxpayers.

"Good Lord, they have become millionaires in this litigation. And we have people dying, literally dying, Texans dying on our streets. And we have a couple of San Francisco lawyers on the West Coast over there counting their money," Morales said.

"Given the fact that they have made so much money in this litigation, I just have to question their motivations. I'll tell you this. If we end up indeed going to trial on July 6, or whenever we go to trial, our lawyers are going to kick their $6 million butts."

But Ms. Brorby accused Morales of twisting facts and stymieing the settlement for his own political gain.

She said she did not know whether Morales' $6 million figure was correct, but said $300,000 a year, including costs, for the 20 years attorneys have been representing prisoners in the case would be "a deal" for the state. In the early 1980s, the state paid a corporate law firm over $1 million for several months' work on the appeal, she said.

"It's really just another piece of political baloney to try to say that there's anything going on now that is being driven by the money we've made in the past or the money we make in the future," Ms. Brorby said.

Lengthy friendship ends in romance for Sweetwater duo

SWEETWATER (AP) — Margie Cornoyer Smith said she owes her marriage to Jerry Smith to a stained-glass cardinal he made for her last year.

Actually, the story began when baby Margie Hardy began going to the nursery of Sweetwater's First Baptist Church, where a little boy named Jerry Smith already was enrolled. The year was about 1930.

From that time on, their friendship blossomed. They lived just three blocks from each other and attended the same church and schools. They even dated at Newman High School, but they say it was never anything serious.

In 1947 they went their separate ways, Margie to Sul Ross University in Alpine and Jerry to Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. Margie left college after one year and returned to Sweetwater to work. Jerry graduated one semester early in 1950, and enlisted in the Air Force to fight in the Korean War. "I was upset about missing World War II ... People had different attitudes back then," he said.

He left the Air Force and returned to Sweetwater in 1954. He began teaching at Philip Nolan. He recalled that he began teaching "in the very same classroom that I began first grade in." One of his students asked him what year he went to school there. "He found my name carved in a desk," Smith recalls.

In 1950, Margie married Vince Cornoyer and in 1951, Jerry married Rinky Boyd. Margie had gone to high school with Rinky, and Jerry and Vince were friends long before Vince and Margie knew each other. The families were friends. Their children were pretty far apart in age, but they attended church together and knew each other. Margie had a stepson and three of her own, and Jerry had two children.

The Smiths lived for several years in Texas City, where Jerry retired as high school principal.

Margie's husband died of cancer about six years ago. She and a former classmate, Gusta McGee, were planning an upcoming class reunion last October when McGee mentioned that Jerry's wife had recently died, and that he was living on a ranch just outside of town.

They invited him to attend a planning meeting at Margie's home.

Jerry noticed that Margie collected cardinals. He offered to make her one of stained glass.

"I said OK, thinking that he never would; you know how guys are ..." Margie says.

Two days after the meeting, Margie said, "I thought I should give him some books on grief, so I mailed them to him ... Three weeks later he brought the cardinal and invited me to dinner."

They both agreed that they had much in common. After all, they grew up together, knew the same people, both had lost their spouses to cancer, and like the same music. They also agree that they cannot agree on politics, so they avoid that topic.

That first night, they had so much fun that they went out together every night.

In November, Jerry returned to Texas City. While he was gone, the corresponded regularly.

"We love to exchange cards," Jerry said, "and at times, I would go and buy $20 worth of cards."

Gradually, the "friend" letters became love letters.

At Thanksgiving, Jerry came back to Sweetwater and Margie went to visit her daughter. The further Margie got from Sweetwater, the more depressed each became.

"Our friendship grew into deep romantic love and it grows every day," Jerry said.

Each agree that when they were growing up they never imagined in their wildest dreams that they would ever marry each other.

Their decision was quite a surprise to their children. Although no one opposed it, Margie said there were some split feelings.

Jerry had not been a widower long, so his daughter was apprehensive. Margie's children could not understand why she wanted to get married.

To lead or cover an honor

By Phillip Alder

The finesse seems a straightforward play. It is a 50-50 shot at an extra trick. But the exact technique can be a little more difficult than that. When should you lead an honor for a finesse? And when should a defender cover an honor with an honor? Both these considerations are present in today's deal.

Against three no-trump, West led the heart king. Declarer saw that he had six top tricks and that the three extra tricks he needed would have to come from the diamond suit.

South ducked the first trick, won the heart-jack continuation in the dummy and called for the diamond queen.

When East covered with the king, South was glad that the finesse had worked. But after winning with the ace, he had to cash the jack and 10 of diamonds. East's discard on the 10 ended declarer's chances. He had only eight tricks.

As it couldn't benefit South for East to cover the diamond queen, declarer should instead have led a low diamond to his 10. When it wins, South plays a spade to dummy's jack and leads dummy's second low diamond. Here the king pops up. Declarer wins with the ace, plays a diamond to dummy's queen and claims nine tricks: three spades, one heart, four diamonds and one club.

If East plays a low diamond on the second round, South finesses the jack and cashes the ace, hoping for a 3-3 break.

Declarer should lead an honor only when he is happy to have it covered. A defender should cover the last of touching honors, and only then when it might generate an extra trick for his side.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have a little problem. I don't know if you can help me, but I figured I'd write anyway, since you give such good advice. What I'm about to write about seems to be happening more and more with young people my age. (I'm a 24-year-old, unmarried woman.)

I'm talking about having sex with more than one partner at a time. Like most men, my steady dreams of having two women in bed with him at the same time. He sold me on that idea about three months ago, so we experimented with another couple. My girlfriend and I sort of put on a show for the guys.

I found it very exciting, after I got over the shyness and embarrassment. Everyone had a really good time. My boyfriend said he had always fantasized about group sex, and he didn't feel any guilt and was very glad that I loved him enough to go along with it.

My only problem is that I really love this guy and he has even talked about marriage someday, but we never have sex alone anymore — just the two of us.

Abby, do you think this is wrong? I have talked to many people who have done it, and they say it strengthens their relationships. What are your ideas on the subject?

ABBY FAN IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY FAN: Your boyfriend has sold you on participating in a cheap, degrading kind of sexual game that should make you want to run as far away from him as possible. A man who truly loves a woman would never ask her to participate in such dangerous and destructive games.

Rather than strengthen relationships, it makes a sexual encounter as meaningless as a meal you ate last Tuesday.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a professional woman, happily married for 18 years to a professional man. We have a wonderful son, now 13 years old.

My concern is this: My husband had a troubled marriage when he was 22 years old. It was a very brief marriage that ended in divorce. His first wife died many years ago.

Our son does not know of his father's first marriage, though certain family members and old friends do. My husband says he sees no reason to tell his son about it, as it is a painful subject he regards as part of his past.

I worry that our son will find out about this marriage on his own (the divorce is listed on our marriage certificate) or that one day a friend or family member might mention it in conversation.

Should our son be told?

UNEASY IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR UNEASY: Yes. And the sooner the better.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Since your hobby is gathering facts about the American presidents, add this one: When President William McKinley received a cable from Adm. George Dewey reporting the capture of Manila, he had to look up the location of the Philippines on a globe.

"I could not have told where those damned islands were within 2,000 miles," he later confessed.

Six Bulldogs named to all-district squad

A group of six Ira Bulldogs were cited All-District 3-A for their performances in the just-completed baseball season.

Seniors Chris Haynes and Kory Clark and junior Mike Hughes were voted to the all-loop first team, while juniors Wyatt Webster, Jason Hartley and sophomore Cole Sterling were Honorable Mentions.

Haynes, recently voted Ira's Male Athlete of the Year, earned a spot on the team as a catcher. Clark, who was also voted all-district and all-area in basketball was the Bulldogs' second baseman. Hughes captured a berth on the squad as an infielder. He was also tabbed all-district and all-area for Ira's district champion six-man football team.

Hartley and Webster each split time as pitchers and first basemen and Sterling wound up the season at third base for the 'Dogs.

Ira finished the 1992 season, its first in high school baseball, with a 9-6 record. Ira earned a spot in the Class A playoffs as district runner-up with a 4-2 league mark.

Joining the Ira players on the all-district team are loop MVP Chris Majors and Doug Koch of Westbrook; Chris Phillips, David Madrid, Steve Gutierrez, David Mitchell and Craig Finely from district champ Loraine and Adam Castillo and Salvador Mendoza from Wilson.

Stars take 'center' stage in NBA Finals

CHICAGO (AP) — Remember the Wilt Chamberlain-Bill Russell wars? Remember Willis Reed limping onto the court and willing the New York Knicks to victory? Remember Bill Walton and Moses Malone and George Mikan?

Remember when having a great center mattered?

Those days are long gone.

The NBA has evolved. Its top players are do-it-all guards and point forwards — as the 1992 Finals, which begin tonight at Chicago Stadium, will illustrate.

Certainly Bill Cartwright of the Chicago Bulls and Kevin Duckworth of the Portland Trail Blazers will never be confused with Chamberlain and Russell.

And they know it.

"The stars are in the backcourt in this series," said the 7-foot-1 Cartwright, who averaged eight points and 5.1 rebounds during the regular season, 5.3 points and 4.6 rebounds during the first three playoff rounds. "It's the way basketball has become."

"Both teams don't get the ball inside," said the 7-foot Duckworth, 10.7 points and 6.1 rebounds during the season, 12.9 points and 5.1 rebounds in the playoffs. "Me and Cartwright might only get two shots each game."

While Michael Jordan and Clyde Drexler perform aerial stunts, while Jerome Kersey and Scottie Pippen run and gun, while Horace Grant bangs the boards and Terry Porter bangs home jumpers, Cartwright and Duckworth will do what most big men do nowadays.

Set a few screens. Grab a few rebounds. Take a few shots — usually outside the lane and only if they're wide open.

Mostly, they'll serve as decoys and dishmen for Air Jordan and Clyde the Glide.

"Basketball has changed in the last 20 years," said Bulls coach Phil Jackson, a former teammate of Reed. "Teams double-team the post so much. That was considered illegal defense when I played, but now it's in vogue.

"Duckworth and Cartwright are great centers. It's just that they don't get opportunities to go solo."

Calling Duckworth and Cartwright "great" is generous. Fact is, if they were, they probably wouldn't be playing in the NBA Finals.

Here's the latest great center scorecard:

— Hakeem Olajuwon, Houston, eight seasons, one Finals, no titles.

— Patrick Ewing, New York, seven seasons, no Finals.

— Brad Daugherty, Cleveland, six seasons, no Finals.

— David Robinson, San Antonio, three seasons, no Finals.

Today's four best centers, over a combined 24 seasons, have reached the Finals a total of once. And they have zero championships.

Meanwhile, Cartwright has been in two successive Finals, Duckworth two of the last three.

The message? Orlando had better find some great players to help Shaquille O'Neal.

This isn't a recent trend. Robert Parish won three titles with Boston, but Larry Bird and Kevin McHale were the stars. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar won five titles with the Lakers, but none until Magic Johnson showed up.

Moses Malone was the last center to carry a team to an NBA title, back in 1983 with Philadelphia. And it didn't hurt that there was a decent Doctor in Malone's house named Julius Erving.

"When I was growing up, I always thought that great teams had to have dominant big men," said Will Perdue, Chicago's hard-working but talent-shy backup center.

Witt, Rangers drop Yankees

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine says Bobby Witt is a better pitcher now that he has learned that he doesn't have to strike out every batter.

Witt rebounded from a bad first inning Tuesday night to hold the New York Yankees to only four singles and no runs over the next 7 2-3 innings as the Rangers took an 8-2 victory.

The Yankees jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning.

Juan Gonzalez hit a two-run homer in the first and Dean Palmer had a three-run shot in the fifth to back Witt as the Rangers snapped a three-game losing streak.

"That gave us five runs on two hits and made our job a lot easier," Valentine said. "Gonzalez's homer was huge. He has to learn to hit the ball the opposite way. If he can do it, he'll be a monster."

Palmer's team-high ninth homer of the year expanded a 4-2 lead to 7-2 off loser Tim Leary (4-4). Dickie Thon, who singled, and Julio Franco, who reached on a fielder's choice, scored ahead of Palmer.

French Open...

Women's top seeds advance

PARIS (AP) — For the women, it's rematch time at the French Open. For the men, it's hurry up and wait.

While rain delayed the men's quarterfinals, the four top-seeded women won their matches Tuesday to set up a re-run of last year's semifinals.

In one pairing Thursday, top-seeded Monica Seles, seeking her third straight title, will try once again to get past third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini. In the other, No. 2 seed Steffi Graf will try to avenge her worst defeat as a pro, a 6-0, 6-2 loss on center court last year to Aranxta Sanchez Vicario.

The men have unfinshed business today, including completion of a suspended match between top-seeded Jim Courier, the defending champion, and No. 8 Goran Ivanisevic of Croatia.

Courier raced through the first two sets as evening fell Tuesday, seemingly on course for an easy win.

But Ivanisevic, furious at himself for mistakes early on, settled down while Courier made some unaccustomed errors to lose his first set of the tournament. The match was suspended because of darkness with Courier leading 6-2, 6-1, 2-6.

"Can anybody see anything?" Courier asked as he tried unsuccessfully to halt play before Ivanisevic could win the third set.

The second of Tuesday's scheduled quarterfinals, between No. 3 Pete Sampras and No. 11 Andre Agassi, was postponed until today.

In the last two quarterfinals, originally scheduled to be played today, France's Henri Leconte met Sweden's Nicklas Kulti and Andrei Cherkasov of Russia took on Petr Korda of Czechoslovakia. Korda, seeded seventh, is the only seed left in the bottom half of the draw.

Among the women, Graf probably has the strongest motivation as she seeks to make amends for last year's semifinal embarassment. That was the second time she had lost on the center court at Stade Roland Garros to Sanchez Vicario — the first was when the Spaniard won the title as a 17-year-old in 1989.

Sabatini also lost her first set of the tournament and trailed 0-3 in the second set before making a spectacular comeback to beat seventh-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

In her first four matches, Sabatini had lost only nine games.

"Before, I didn't have any tough player to play against," the Argentine right-hander said. "Now that I've had a tough match, I'm more prepared for the next."

The next will bring her up against Seles, who had little trouble Tuesday beating error-prone Jennifer Capriati 6-2, 6-2.

Jones to host girls' cage camp

Western Texas College women's basketball coach Ron Jones will host a pair of girls' cage camps June 15-19 at the WTC gym.

A girls' fundamentals camp will be held daily from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for players entering grades three through eight.

The camp is to learn basketball basics and will also feature shooting games.

Cost is $55.

The second clinic is a girls' skills and competition camp including funadamental instruction, advanced offensive skills and shooting competition.

Time for the advanced camp, for High school-age players, is 2-5 p.m. each day.

Cost is $40 per camper.

Fees for the camps include insurance, individualized instruction, a camp T-shirt and free attendance to WTC women's home games when wearing a camp T-shirt.

Registration deadline to guarantee a T-shirt is June 10. Late registration will be accepted.

For more information, or to sign up, call 573-8511, ext. 390.

Portugal nabs shutout win

HOUSTON (AP) — The Montreal Expos kept hoping Houston pitcher Mark Portugal would run out of gas.

He never did.

Portugal (5-2) extended his Astrodome streak to four games with a six-hitter and he got outstanding defensive help Tuesday night as the Astros beat the Expos 6-0.

Portugal struck out three, walked four and became the second Astros pitcher to throw a complete game this season.

Center fielder Steve Finley highlighted Houston's defensive performance with leaping and diving catches that robbed Archi Cianfrocco of two hits. A double play with the bases loaded ended the second inning.

Portugal reached behind his back to stab a grounder by John Vander Wal for the first out in the eighth inning.

The Astros got first-inning runs off Bill Sampen (0-3) with singles by Jeff Bagwell and Eric Anthony.

The Albany Lions needed nine innings to notch a 5-4 playoff win over New Deal Tuesday at Moffett Field.

The Lions claimed the Class 2A semifinal victory after throwing out the winning run at home twice in the seventh inning and allowing the winning run to third with none out in the last of the eighth.

Winning pitcher Clint Chapman struck out three straight to wiggle out of the jam in the eighth, then scored the final run of the game on a two-out error in the top of the ninth after singling aboard.

Albany, now 23-1-1, will battle Holliday, a 4-3 winner over Ralls Tuesday, for the regional title. New Deal winds up with a 16-5 season slate.

Austin school board chief sues board

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin school board's president is suing her seven fellow board members and the district's superintendent over the budgeting process.

The lawsuit, filed in Travis County district court, heightens the conflict between Austin Independent School District Board President Beatriz de la Garza and other board members.

One board member said the lawsuit may prompt the Texas Education Agency to intervene or seize control of the district.

"Oh Lord, have mercy," said school Trustee Bernice Hart. "It's gone beyond belief. It's way beyond belief, way beyond imagination."

AIDS board vice president Kathy Rider said Tuesday that TEA officials have said that unless the lawsuit is dropped, the agency may have no choice but to intervene.

The TEA could appoint a monitor, an agency employee who serves as adviser to the district and could mediate disputes, or a master, who could run the district without regard to the board or superintendent.

At issue in the lawsuit is who has the power to prepare the AISD's budgets.

The practice in most school districts is for accountants and other administrators, under the direction of the superintendent, to do so.

"I know of no case in which the board president prepares a budget for presentation. Frankly, it is quite a job — especially in a large district," said AISD spokesman Jeff Prescott.

But de la Garza, in her lawsuit, contends that state law specifies that "the president of the board of trustees for each independent school district ... shall be the budget officer for the district."

SEC files complaint against Amarillo securities company

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Thousands of investors paid more than $250 million in church and corporate bonds sold illegally, federal regulators say in a civil complaint filed against a Texas company.

Investors are losing money on the bonds, Spencer C. Barasch, Securities and Exchange Commission trial counsel in Fort Worth, said Tuesday. But he said an exact figure was unavailable because many bonds have not yet matured.

"Many investors were church parishioners and the elderly," said Barasch. "A lot of the money invested was retirement money."

The civil complaint named AMI Securities Inc. of Amarillo and seven current or former officers and directors or registered sales agents.

The seven are James A. Gates, Ronald E. Gilbert and Benjamin C. Powell, all of Amarillo; Gene Armstrong and Willard May, formerly of Amarillo and now living in Birmingham, Ala., and Alpharetta, Ga., respectively; Auda Ashley of Tulsa, Okla.; and Claude Downs of Dunwoody, Ga.

The SEC accused AMI and the seven other defendants of violating anti-fraud provisions in the Securities and Securities Exchange Acts, said Jeanetta Hetrick, deputy clerk.

The lawsuit also contends defendants failed to disclose to investors in some Church & Institutional Facilities Development Corp. bond issues a preexisting commitment to provide up to $55 million to the Rev. Jerry Falwell's "Old Time Gospel Hour" television program.

Papers filed in the lawsuit contend May used Trust Company of America Inc. to hide the risk of investing in bonds issued by Falwell and others. Trust Company served as trustee, registrar and paying agent for at least 350 bond offerings.

Amarillo-based AMI is no longer in business, Barasch said. Dick Hewitt, a Dallas defense attorney in the case,

Officers kept active with burglary, arrests

Snyder police made five arrests, began an investigation into a burglary and worked several theft cases Tuesday and early today.

At 11:18 p.m., police responded to a residence in the 900 block of 24th Street where a woman said a subject had gained entry into her home and assaulted her. The woman and her child were able to flee the residence after she struck the subject with a bat.

The woman described the person as a male, dressed in dark clothing. An offense report for burglary of a habitation was filed and the case is under investigation.

Police arrested two men at Municipal Court at 8:41 a.m. and transported them to the county jail to lay out fines. Arrested were an 18-year-old man for an expired drivers license and minor in possession and a 20-year-old man for public intoxication.

At 12:45 a.m. today in the 1700 block of 28th Street, officers arrested two men, ages 17 and 18, for public intoxication.

At 1:22 a.m., police received a report of a man prowling around a residence in the 2400 block of 26th Street. Officers located the 31-year-old man a block away and arrested him for public intoxication.

Police responded to a fight at the Great Western Lounge at 11:06 p.m. Tuesday, where one man apparently pushed another man through a glass door. According to the report, one of the men left before police arrived. The other man declined to file charges. Snyder EMS responded, but no one was taken to the hospital.

At 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, a manager at Furr's notified police of the theft of some grocery items by employees. Two suspects were identified in the case and an offense report for Class A theft was filed. No arrests were made.

At 10:33 p.m. Tuesday, two women involved in a dispute filed theft reports against each other.

Police also took a report of two bicycles stolen from the 400 block of 28th Street Tuesday. The bikes were discovered about 4 p.m., three blocks away.

Officers worked a minor traffic accident at 3:04 p.m. Tuesday in the 3400 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1986 Ford driven by Frances Autry of 3101 Ave. T and a 1990 GMC pickup driven by James Morgan of Justiceburg.

Lottery sales to reach $65 million

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Lottery Director Nora Linares has authorized an immediate shipment of additional tickets to retailers.

"Because sales continue to grow faster than we ever expected, all retailers will receive the additional tickets — whether they ordered them or not," Ms. Linares said Tuesday. There are nearly 15,000 licensed lottery retailers.

Texas Lottery sales were estimated to reach $65 million through the close of business Tuesday. A record of more than $23 million was spent on the $1 lottery tickets on Friday, the game's opening day.

Lottery officials say that sales for the first year of operation are expected to be about $1 billion.

Before ticket sales began Friday, the lottery shipped 127 million "Lone Star Millions" tickets to the retailers. The new shipments leave 80 million of the original 300 million tickets still available for distribution.

Board cuts rates on credit life

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance has approved a 10 percent cut in credit life insurance rates, while keeping credit disability rates at the same level.

The rate reduction, approved Tuesday 3-0, will take effect June 30.

The Insurance Board said its action will save Texas consumers up to $31 million per year.

But consumer advocates said that's not enough.

"I'm glad they lowered credit life 10 percent, but it needed to be lowered a lot more dramatically than that," said Amy Johnson, of the Office of Public Insurance Counsel.

"I'm very disappointed that they made no changes in credit disability," she said.

She said the two lines of insurance are most often purchased by poor people. "They are not being protected like they should be," she said.

Credit life insurance pays off consumer debt at death. Credit disability covers monthly payments while an individual cannot work because of illness or injury.

More than 200 companies sell credit insurance in Texas, which leads the nation in the purchase of that type of insurance. More than $290 million worth of the insurance was sold in Texas in 1990.

Consumer groups have called credit insurance "the nation's worst insurance rip off."

Under current rates, Ms. Johnson said that the most common form of credit insurance pays out only 27.6 cents for every dollar in premiums, as compared with payouts of 70 cents for every premium dollar by regulated auto insurance companies.

Ms. Johnson had requested a 30 percent rate decrease for credit life and 20 percent decrease for credit disability.

U.S. pressures to undermine Saddam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operatives working for the CIA are increasing their contacts with Iraqi military officials as part of a stepped-up campaign to undermine Saddam Hussein, congressional and administration sources say.

But those measures, together with a boost in money for covert action against the Baghdad regime, show little promise of succeeding in the near future, according to intelligence assessments.

The intensified liaisons with those inside the Iraqi armed forces are designed to position the United States to take advantage of any misstep by the Iraqi president, or to capitalize on any unforeseeable development that could create an opening for a military coup, said the sources, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

President Bush has sent to the congressional intelligence committees a modified version of a secret "finding" initially issued more than a year ago that authorizes U.S. aid to rebel factions inside Iraq and other activities aimed at chasing Saddam from power.

The new orders include more than doubling the CIA's budget for covert operations in Iraq over the coming year, increasing spending from the current $15 million to $40 million.

The administration has been criticized for its decision to halt the allied war against Iraq before getting rid of Saddam and is frustrated that the Iraqi leader seems to be as strong as ever despite an international effort to squeeze him out through trade sanctions.

The new money for covert operations comes from the spy agency's contingency fund and does not require direct congressional approval. Rather, the administration consults with the oversight committees in the House and Senate and generally proceeds with its plans unless there is overwhelming objection.

The House Intelligence Committee has signaled it has no strong objections to the stepped-up program and there has been no major dissent from its Senate counterpart.

But some congressional officials doubt whether the program — which includes stepped-up satellite surveillance of Iraq, increased aid to Kurdish and Muslim opposition groups and propaganda broadcasts — will change anything.

"This is still not much beyond the cosmetic stage," said an official familiar with the plans, referring to the program as "a popgun" compared to what would be needed to decisively force Saddam's ouster.

The bottom line is, "we have to get lucky" for Saddam to be deposed or assassinated, said another source.

There continue to be intelligence reports about dissension within Saddam's tight inner circle, primarily made up of family members from his hometown of Tikrit. The assessments also mention jealousy among military units over the allocation of scarce resources.

But those rumblings differ little from reports that have flowed to Washington over the 15 months since a cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War, said one official.

Bush's intelligence finding last year authorized broad authority for clandestine activities to subvert Saddam's rule, but appear to have had little effect. Officials in close contact with opposition leaders in Iraq.

Jeff E. Tankersley, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Tankersley of Snyder, received his law degree from Texas Tech University in ceremonies May 16 at the Lubbock Civic Center.

A 1982 graduate of Ralls High School, Jeff received his BA degree in finance from Angelo State University in 1986. He was employed at Texas Commerce Bank in El Paso as assistant vice president from 1986-1989.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Tankersley of Ralls. Other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Lemon of Lubbock.

While attending Texas Tech's School of Law, Tankersley was selected for the Tech Law Review, chosen for the 1990 Law Review Fall Publication, received the $500 award for the Best Law Review Casenote, and served as Note Editor on the Law Review Board for 1991-92.

Other activities included serving a clerkship with the U.S. Attorney's office, and selection as a brief writer for the 1991 National Moot Court Team.

He served clerkships for two Fort Worth law firms last summer. Upon completion of his bar exam in July, Tankersley has accepted a position with a corporate law firm in Amarillo.

Texas execution set early Thursday

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas death row inmate Kenneth Granviel is slated to die by lethal injection early Thursday, and state attorneys say the former machinist and convicted killer is a likely candidate for execution.

Granviel, 41, faced lethal injection for killing a 2-year-old girl in a 1974 incident in Fort Worth. Natasha McClendon was one of five people killed Oct. 7, 1974, and one of seven people Granviel has admitted murdering.

Granviel's attorneys were considering appeals to try to keep him from being put to death before dawn Thursday.

He would be the ninth convicted killer executed in Texas this year and the 51st since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982.

Clinton clinches Demo bid, but Perot casts long shadow

By The Associated Press

Bill Clinton locked up the Democratic presidential nomination with a six-state sweep and quickly promised to wrest Washington from the "forces of the status quo." But Ross Perot showed fresh strength on Clinton's victory night.

President Bush added six more wins to his undefeated streak against Patrick Buchanan in Tuesday's coast-to-coast balloting, another topsy-turvy day in which voters sounded a call for change but appeared uncertain about how to trigger it.

"I am going to give you a campaign with a vision of an America that works again, that rewards work, that invests in people, that insists on responsibility and that pulls us together as one nation under God," a triumphant Clinton promised.

His next big task: selecting a running mate.

The Arkansas governor's final flourish closed a roller-coaster nominating contest and included a win over lone primary rival Jerry Brown in California, where Brown served eight years as governor.

Brown, winning four out of every 10 votes in his home state, could take satisfaction from a respectable showing; he called it "a miracle ... a revolution." But he was trounced everywhere else Tuesday.

Clinton was getting 68 percent of the vote in Alabama, 59 percent in New Jersey, 61 percent in Ohio, 52 percent in New Mexico, 47 percent in Montana and 48 percent in California. Brown's best showing was 20 percent in New Jersey, and in Alabama, Montana and New Mexico he polled behind uncommitted.

Long-gone rival Paul Tsongas, the former Massachusetts senator, chose Tuesday to endorse Clinton. But Brown would not.

Faring even worse than Brown was Buchanan, who spent the night in the state where he peaked — New Hampshire.

Bush rolled up 83 percent in New Jersey and Ohio, 75 percent in Alabama, 72 percent in Montana, 67 percent in New Mexico and was pulling 74 percent in California. Like Brown, Buchanan trailed uncommitted in the three states with that option.

But even as the voters handed Bush and Clinton more wins, they sent warning signals that the parties will study closely as they prepare for their summer conventions and a fall campaign that billionaire Perot assures will shape up unlike any other.

Without being on one ballot, the independent Perot showed the potential of assembling a winning coalition, attracting support from both Democrats and Republicans who were polled after they voted. But voters appear confused about Perot too. In California, the exit interviews suggested he draws more from Bush than from Clinton; in Ohio it was the opposite.

And Perot's unfavorable ratings shot up from past surveys, particularly among Democratic voters, a sign that scrutiny may be taking a toll.
