Much-Discussed Italian Armistice Is Released by Allies

Secret Terms Of Surrender Made Public

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—The Allies made public the much-discussed Italian armistice today, soiking some old rumors but failing to clear up entirely why the terms were kept secret for 26 months.

Released simultaneously in Washington, London and Rome, the armistice and related documents — totalling some 10,000 words—disclosed that:

1. Exhaustive unconditional surrender terms — officially still in effect—were imposed on Italy.

2. In practice, however, the Allies never invoked some provisions and modified others substantially at frequent intervals.

3. The terms provided for no final dispositions of Italian territory or property.

Why the secrecy? Government officials explained it to reporters this way:

The state department and British foreign office had discussed publication of the terms as early as December, 1943.

At that time, Allied military officials objected. They said the Germans and Mussolini's fascist government in northern Italy could make good propaganda use of the armistice terms, especially among the pro-allied partisan fighters.

The officials, specifying they were not to be identified further, said the British and American governments felt after the Potsdam Big Three conference at a final peace settlement, ended in a stalemate in London.

Secretary of State Byrnes called

Sympathy Strikes Won't Be Called, Official Promises

DALLAS, Nov. 6—(AP)—No sympathy strikes will be called among other AFL transportation workers of the Southwest, A. F. Steele, national organizer for the American federation of labor, announced in Dallas today as Southwestern Greyhound busline employees entered their second day of strike for higher wages.

Southwestern Greyhound lines represent 70 percent of all bus transportation service over a seven state network.

Determination of the workers not to accept the company's proposed wage increase apparently had temporarily halted possible negotiations today.

Otto Debate, international representative for the union, to whom company attorney Carl Miller formally made the offer some time ago, said in a telephone interview from Fort Worth that "the only offer from the company was unsatisfactory."

Under the last signed contract, stipulated mileage rate was 4.2 cents per mile. Under a wartime bonus arrangement, the rate went to 4.88. The company volunteered a permanent new rate of 4.65 cents, but the union demands a flat 5 cents.

Steele met yesterday with Greyhound drivers here and later announced that the amalgamated railway, street and motor coach employees union was ready to negotiate "at any time."

Company officials in Fort Worth, headquarters for the seven-state division of Greyhound bus lines, Inc., said they were willing to grant a pay increase, and said they were ready for negotiations. They did not say how large a pay increase they would grant.

A meeting was scheduled to be held in Fort Worth Thursday between union, company and the department of labor conciliation service.

Approximately 2,000 drivers, ticket agents, and baggage room workers are involved in the strike which was called in Texas suddenly Sunday midnight.

Police Search for Local Jail Escapee

Pampa and Tulsa officers are still searching for Ronald Eugene Kerr, 16, who escaped from city jail yesterday morning. He was being held for Tulsa officers on a charge of car theft.

It was believed that the boy climbed out through a hole made as repair work was being done on the city hall auditorium upstairs from the jail.

Tulsa officers reported that Kerr had a long list of thefts and petty crimes charged against him.

POPULATION OF PAMPA INCREASES IN OCTOBER

Thirty-six babies were born in Pampa during October, 26 boys, 10 girls.

During September 55 babies were born, 28 boys, 27 girls.

Five of the October fathers were service men. The majority of the parents were in their thirties, had had one or more children before, were themselves born east of Pampa.

Thursday, October 18, was the noisiest day, four babies being born. Tuesday, October 2 and 9, and Columbus Day were runners-up with three babies apiece. Only one baby was born on a Sunday, the 21st.

Four sets of parents were from Skellytown, four from Lefors, one set each from McLean, Mobeetie, White Deer, Borger and Ranger.

Which gives 24 babies absorbed by Pampa.

Babies and their parents, as according to records provided by Mrs. Jewel Shackelford, assistant tax collector, from the city office of vital statistics, are as follows. (Unless otherwise designated, babies are of Pampa).

Molotov Says A-Energy Must Not Be Secret

LONDON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov called for an Allied control of Japan in a Moscow address today and declared "there ought to be no secrecy about the subject of atomic energy."

In a broadcast address opening Russia's observance of the 28th anniversary of the soviet revolution, Molotov asserted:

"In the treatment of the defeated we should not let ourselves be guided by our feelings, but only by the necessity to prevent a new aggression. This applies to all countries which bear the responsibility for securing peace.

"We must then mention here the force of atomic energy which was experienced in the war with Japan. Nowadays there ought to be no secrecy about this subject."

This was the first time a high soviet official had suggested that the United States and Great Britain share their practical knowledge of atomic energy as a means of warfare.

Molotov apparently was designated to make the traditional anniversary address in place of Generalissimo Stalin, who has just returned from vacation.

The soviet monitor's version of Molotov's remarks concerning Japan was that the liberation of China was of the greatest importance to the world.

"It is thus clear that the soviet union considers most important the negotiation of control of all the Allies over Japan," he said. "In this question no satisfactory results have yet emerged, but the importance of satisfactory results is clear to all."

Molotov told a cheering crowd that, with victory in war, "now we can return to peacetime labor."

The foreign commissar, deputy chairman of the council of peoples' commissars, said the main strongpoints of aggression in west and

Priest Testifies To Mass Slayings

MANILA, Nov. 6—(AP)—A Spanish priest and a Filipino laborer, testifying at the war criminal trial of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, recounted today the starvationn, torture and massacre of 6,000 Filipino and Chinese civilians by Japanese troops before the fall of Manila last spring.

Father Belarmino Decelis of the Spanish Augustinian order, said that last Feb. 5 the Japanese jammed the 6,000 civilians into the ancient church of St. Augustine, oldest building in Manila.

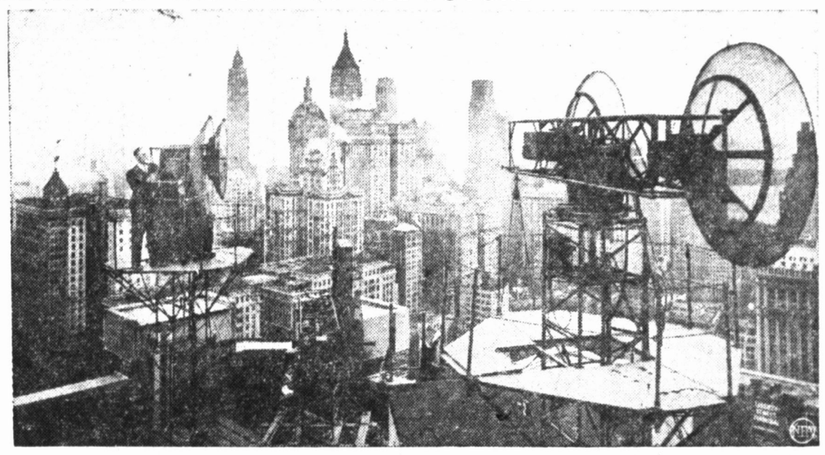

The men were thrown into the old dungeons which served the Spanish 100 years ago. Women and children, he said, were kept without food in the church compound until they were so hungry they ate the grass and roots of the patio gardens.

On Feb. 9, the men were taken out and forced to stand in the open streets under heavy artillery fire and then marched to Fort Santiago, where the burning and slayings took place.

Juan Paloda, the Filipinio, testified he was one of 100 packed into a stone dungeon 20 feet square. He was stabbed later and left for dead in a pit with 500 other bodies.

Earlier, an 11-year-old girl, Rosalinda Andoy, showed the military commission conducting the trial the scars of 38 bayonet wounds.

Hundreds of Workers Reported Quitting Atomic Bomb Project

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves said today hundreds of workers, key men and scientists are quitting the atomic bomb project because of uncertainty over the future of their jobs.

Questioned about a report to this effect, General Groves, in overall charge of the atomic bomb project told a reporter he has lost some of his best men, both at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash., as well as at Los Alamos, N. Mex. He said field representatives report that in numerous instances department workers list "uncertainty of the future" as a primary or secondary cause for quitting.

Although Groves would make no estimate of the extent to which this draining off of key workers has cut production, he asserted that there has been considerable slowdown.

Since peak employment on the atomic bomb project, more than one-fourth of the workers have quit.

Since VJ-Day, more than 6,000 workers have quit and approximately 3,000 more have indicated their intention to leave in the next month or two.

Not all of these have quit or are quitting because of job uncertainties by any means Groves said.

Many, including most of the scientific workers, offered their services for the duration or for some specific task and now are returning to their personal interests.

This is true, for example, in the case of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, chief scientist, and of the eight other scientists at Los Alamos to whom Groves referred as his first and second teams.

Phillips Chorus To Be Heard in Concert Tonight

Tonight the Phillips Men's chorus will be in Pampa to present an approximately hour and 45 minutes concert at 8 o'clock in the Junior high school auditorium.

The chorus, composed of members of the community of Phillips, is not a stranger in Pampa, having presented a concert last July at the Methodist church, and having a wide-spread reputation.

Brock Dale, chorus member, is familiar to Pampa, having acted as visiting director of the Methodist church choir several times.

Jack Skelly of Pampa, another chorus member, will not be in the group this evening, being on a vacation.

Many of the men of the chorus are employed as chemists, engineers, accountants, guards and other positions. Director Gordon Gilbert, employed as chemist with the refinery, has been the nucleus around which the chorus has been built.

Members are constantly searching for new voices, new music and arrangements. They report that any member is likely to show up late for rehearsals with the excuse, "I heard of a good second senor at Rock Creek gasoline plant and drove out to bring him in." If the newcomer comes up to the chorus' standard then he's in.

Tonight Pampa will be given an opportunity to hear the thrill of the full throated, rich harmony of the chorus. Tickets, if not already obtained, may be secured at the door.

Texas Division Men Join Pampa Police

Texas' famed 36th division has nearly taken over the local police department with the addition of another member of that outfit to the force this morning.

Latest member of the 36th to join the force is Raymond R. Greaves, a native of Coleman, and a former first sergeant in Company B, 146th infantry of the division. H. L. Fenton, another Pampa patrolman, was a first lieutenant in that company.

Greaves received his discharge October 9 and has been making his home here. He and Fenton went to school together and both entered the army at the same time.

Besides Greaves and Fenton, other members of the 36th division now on the force are Harry W. Hubbard and J. B. Pritchett.

Of the 11 patrolmen, seven are veterans of World War II. In addition to Greaves, Fenton, Hubbard and Pritchett, vets on the police force are James Conner, Dwight Day and Buck Gates.

Attorney Charged For Tax Evasion

DALLAS, Nov. 6—(AP)—A federal grand jury yesterday indicted former U. S. District Attorney Joe H. Jones for income tax evasion in the years 1942 and 1943.

The indictment said income for both years was composed of salary as assistant United States attorney and of fees in civil cases.

A special report by the grand jury also criticized U. S. attorneys for engaging in private practice of law while serving as government attorneys.

The grand jury report said they had made a thorough 12-day investigation of the U. S. attorney's office during the term of service of District Attorney Clyde Eastus and Jones.

FOR FRYING OUT LOUD!

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 6—(AP)—Bill Blocker volunteered to fry the string of fish he and his pals caught on their last fishing trip.

He put the cleaned fish into a big paper bag into which he had poured a covering mixture and shook the bag so the fish would be nicely coated.

Into the frying pan he tossed the fish and bubbles oozed up from the skillet. Blocker investigated, then explained to his hungry pals he had put soap chips instead of corn meal in the bag.

POWERFUL 'BIG FIVE':

TOUGH PROBLEMS RISE OUT OF NIPPON ORDERS

TOKYO, Nov. 6—(AP)— General MacArthur today smashed Japan's four greatest financial and industrial families and gave notice of his intentions to break up all such combines to "aid Japanese economic development along peaceful, democratic lines."

The Japanese government was ordered immediately to prepare to dissolve Mitsui, Mitsubishi, Sumitomo and Zaibatsu and their holding companies and to eliminate their controls of Japanese finances and industries.

MacArthur further told the government to set up a holding company liquidation association to direct the dissolution under indirect Allied control and warned that all policies and personnel must have his approval.

Along with the directive aimed at the great Zaibatsu interests with their ramificatons, which spread throughout the world before the war, the supreme Allied commander said he intended to smash all such combines so as to permit "wider distribution of income and ownership of the means of production and trade in Japan and to aid the

Committee Makeup Argued by Leaders

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—A hot exchange between Mine Union Leader John L. Lewis and CIO President Philip Murray today threw the labor-management conference into dispute over Lewis' demand for a bigger role.

Lewis came out of the scrap with a temporary victory by obtaining delay in conference action on creation of an important executive committee pending settlement of a controversy over union representation.

A proposed agenda for the conference called for an eight-member committee, with four places each for labor and management. Labor's votes were to be divided equally between the AFL and CIO. Lewis demanded places on the committee for his United Mine Workers and for the railroad brotherhoods.

Murray, one-time ally of Lewis before the UMW leader broke away from the CIO, protested any changes in the committee makeup. Murray declared he had heard reports of a "veritable blitz" by Lewis to get on the conference executive committee.

Lewis jumped up and shouted that Murray's words constituted "despicable and unique German terminology."

Gripping a conference table, Lewis roared that "Mr. Lewis doesn't care a tinker's malediction whether he is a member of any committee" personally. But the UMC chief made clear he wanted his mine workers represented.

Murray retorted that Lewis, from past acquaintance, knew he never employed "Hitler-like tactics." He added that he was prepared to support all recommendations of the conference rules committee and to give consideration to Lewis' position.

The fracas developed over the rules committee's recommendation that the conference arrange for an eight member executive committee as proposed.

Lewis succeeded in getting the

De Gaulle Resigns From Presidency

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Gen de Gaulle submitted his resignation as provisional president today to the constituent assembly, returning the reigns of government to France's first elected legislative body in five years.

The assembly, charged by the electorate with writing a new constitution for a fourth republic, was expected to ask De Gaulle to continue as caretaker government until later in the week. Then the delegates will name a new provisional president to serve during the seven months assigned the assembly for its task. There seemed little doubt that De Gaulle would be returned to office as provisional president for that period also.

At its opening session today the assembly heard its first chairman, 81-year-old Paul Cuttoli, call for "not only a political, but also an economic and daringly social democracy."

By custom the assembly's oldest member sits in the president's seat to supervise the parliamentary organization. This time he is Cuttoli, delegate from Algeria, who was given the task of reading a letter from De Gaulle asserting that the tenure of the wartime government had ended and that its president was relinquishing his extraordinary wartime powers.

Texas Sergeant Plays Part in Reopening German Synagogue

As proof that the power to conquer has not always the power to destroy, Sergeant Maier P. Joseph of Houston, Texas, a member of the Medical Records Section of the well-known IX air defense command, has unearthed a Jewish Synagogue in the picturesque, medieval town of Bad Neustadt, Bavaria, Germany. Despite the nazis' efforts to deface and strip it, Sgt. Joseph states that he will have it ready for re-opening within a few days. Hidden away in an inconspicious ally but with all the symbols of the Hebrew faith intact over its entrance, the nazis had used it to store ammunition in during the war.

As a result of this American Sergeant's interest in the synagogue, unidentified German civilians began, item by item, to turn in to the military government officers at Bad Neustadt the scared scrolls and other Hebrew relics which had been secreted away and buried by the Jewish inhabintants in the path of the programs of recent years. A Jewish chaplain from the Ninth air force, Capt. Davis Lefkowitz, of Dallas, called in to examine these things, found them to be very rare and ancient documents, some of which are not to be found anywhere in the United States. A total of 17 scrolls and over 600 testiment books have been recovered and returned to their rightful place. Although some of them had been cached under hen coops and barns around the town, the greater majority had been buried in the cellor of the local Catholic church.

Perhaps as remarkable as finding a synagogue standing in modern Germany, was the discovery of a pretty 18 year old Jewish girl, the sole survivor of the nazi purges that threw the 60 some odd Jewish families in the community into concentration camps in 1939. She gave her name as Anno Elizabeth Stein and told the story that she had passed herself off as a Catholic so successfully that she had not been forreted out with the others of her faith. The synagogue has been turned over to her by Lt. Col. Floyd S. Smith of Stafford, Texas, Command Chaplain of the IX air defense command, and with the help of Jewish soldiers in the command headquarters detachment, she is readying it for re-dedication in the near future. The benches, ironically enough, have been permanently borrowed from a former nazi meeting hall.

Texas Tech Bids On Pantex Plant

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 6—(AP)—The board of directors of Texas Technological college here have voted to ask the Reconstruction Finance corporation to sell the college the $35,000,000 Pantex ordnance plant, 17 miles northeast of Amarillo.

School officials said last night if the RFC sells the giant plant, Texas Tech could use it as an adjunct facility for vocational short course training of veterans and as a "proving ground" for agricultural and research projects on a long-range basis.

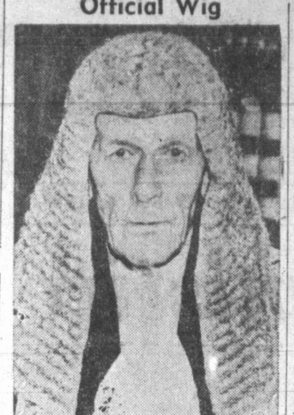

Covering 16,000 acres, the plant has been closed since the war's end. The Amarillo chamber of commerce proposed that Texas Tech take over the unit. Chanslor Weymouth of Amarillo, advanced the proposition to the college board, of which he is a member.

Members of the board, Dr. W. M. Whyburn, president of Texas Tech, and college officials, made an inspection of the plant Saturday.

Hardships of War Period Have Not Adversely Affected Health of America

NEW YORK, N. Y.—That the hardships and dislocations of the war period have not affected adversely the health of the American people, as reflected by the mortality record, is amply proved by the experience of the many million of industrial policy-holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. Their mortality rate for the first nine months of the year, exclusive of deaths from enemy action, but including disease and accident in the armed forces was 7.5 per 1,000, or lower than the comparable rate in any previous year except 1942—the all time record health year.

When war deaths are included in the mortality picture the record takes on a sombre hue, according to the statisticians of the Metropolitan. They report the effect of battle deaths was most pronounced in the 20 to 24 age group where the total death rate among white male policyholders jumped up 718 percent from the level of 1939-1941 to the figure for the first nine months of 1945. In the same interval, the mortality in the ages 15 to 19 years rose 278 percent, and in the age group 25 to 34 years, 223 percent.

Substantial progress, however, has been made in reducing the mortality among males outside the military ages, according to the statisticians, while even greater gains were registered throughout life among white females. At ages 10 to 14 the female death rate dropped almost one fourth between 1939-1941 and the first nine months of the current year. The decrease was almost one third at ages 15-24 years.

"A decline in the death rate from the card ovascularrenal diseases, tuberculosis, influenza, and pneumonia," the statisticians note, "is largely responsible for the improvement in mortality in 1945 as compared with 1944. The tuberculosis record this year is especially satisfactory. The current year's decline brings the figure for 1945, namely, 28.0 per 100,000, below the level which might have been expected if the downward trend in the five years preceding 1944 had merely been continued.

"Unusually low incidence of acute respiratory conditions, so far this year, has contributed materially to the improved record. The mortality from influenza and pneumonia combined has reached a new low for this period of the year, as has the mortality from the communicable diseases of childhood.

Scientists Seek Meteor Pieces

Oscar E. Monnig, geologist from Ft. Worth, who in 1944, sought fragments of a meteroite which fell in this vicinity, is seeking fragments of another meteorite which is believed to have fallen in the region about 10 miles south of LeFors. Also participating in the hunt is Floyd V. Studer, Amarillo. They were in Pampa Monday afternoon.

A brilliant light flashed in the Panhandle region last Saturday, about 12:13 p. m.

These two amateur scientists spent Sunday afternoon and all day Monday driving around the meteor path and making observations.

The results indicate that the ball of fire streaked thru the atmosphere from the region of Clarendon, where it made loud detonations, to the district between Alanreed and LeFors. It left a thin streak of smoke for a few minutes after its passage.

Studer and Monnig urged farmers, ranchers and oil field workers in the region where the meteroites probably fell to be on the lookout for black-crusted rocks, somewhat heavy for their size. These are never porous or spongy, but always solid.

Such meteorites do not generally bury themselves as deeply as is generally thought, and often lie substantially on the ground surface.

Any one finding any possible meteorites is urged to communicate with Mr. Floyd V. Studer, 636 Amarillo Bldg., Amarillo. He would also like to hear from anyone in the Pampa or LeFors region who saw the meteor or the cloud it left, as this would aid in fixing the probable point of fall more exactly. It is not likely that many saw the meteor from here, because it would have been apparently high in the southern sky and the sun's glare would interfere.

Says Millions of People Only Half Alive

A man now in Los Angeles, but formerly a world-renowned traveler and geographer, honored by leading geographical societies, reveals the story of a remarkable method that often leads to almost unbelievable improvement in power of mind, achievement of brilliant business and professional success and new happiness. Many report improvement in health. Others tell of increased bodily strength, magnetic personality, courage and poise.

This man tells how he found these strange methods in far-off and mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few travelers permitted to visit it. He discloses how he learned rare wisdom and long hidden practices, closely guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled many to perform amazing feats. He maintains that these immense powers are latent in all of us, and that methods for using them are now simplified so that they can be used by almost any person with ordinary intelligence.

He maintains that man, instead of being limited by a one-man-power mind, has within him the mind-power of a thousand men or more as well as the energy-power of the universe which can be used in his daily affairs. He states that this sleeping giant of mind-power, when awakened, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments, from the prolonging of youth, to success in many fields.

He claims that millions of people are only half alive, that the drive which gives vitality and strength to their efforts, and which makes life a joy and a triumph, is too often missing. He offers to send his amazing 9,000 word treatise—which reveals many startling results—to readers of this paper free of cost or obligation. For your free copy, address the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. V-112, Los Angeles 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly because this offer may be withdrawn at any time.

"GREATEST FORD EVER BUILT"

Says Public from Coast to Coast!

"How Soon?" and "How Much?" Ask Throngs in Dealer Showrooms

On October 26 the new Fords for 1946 went on display in dealer showrooms the country over. In city after city, town after town, dealers reported that the crowds who came to view these fine new automobiles equalled those who greeted the introduction of the famous Ford Model "A" back in 1927—when showroom attendance passed the 10,000,000 mark.

The opening day throngs were matched by those who came Saturday and later. And their opinion has been unanimous. The words most frequently heard have been "The Greatest Ford Ever Built." They backed up their acclaim with orders—326,840 on "V-8 Day", October 26—and Saturday, October 27.

This advertisement is published to record the deep gratification of the entire Ford organization at this splendid public reception . . . and to answer, as directly as we possibly can, the two questions most often asked.

"How Soon Can I Get My New Ford?" We sincerely believe the answer is: "Sooner than you think!" And here's why—Ford, first with assembly line production of postwar cars, first to stock dealers for a nationwide display, is first in quantity production—1,000 units a day reached last week . . . 2,000 a day in prospect within 30 days.

"How Much Will My New Ford Cost?" We think the answer to this is found in Ford's unvarying policy through more than 40 years of operation: always the highest quality at the lowest possible cost.

TO THOSE WHO HAVE NOT YET SEEN THE NEW FORDS: All our dealers have them on display. Please make it a point to see if you, too, don't agree that these are the "Greatest Fords Ever Built".

Thanksgiving Dinner Table Setting

T-Day for returning G[illegible]s this year, with the whole family helping returning Joes to second helpings of turkey and fixin's, is shown in above typical scene.

By NEA Service

The warm feeling of peace and good fellowship pervading this year's Thanksgiving Day reunions of families who have been separated during long war years, will be reflected in the gay, colorful table settings of many households.

For nothing so surely achieves a festive atmosphere as a beautiful or novel background for the holiday feast. And families who hadn't the heart to fuss much while their sons and daughters were away during the war, will outdo themselves this year.

Hostesses who want to strike a note of gracious informality when they entertain friends who drop in for Thanksgiving supper, will find in the above table setting novel ideas which they can adapt. The china turkey, which is almost life size and realistically colored, makes an unusual table piece.

Inexpensive solid color earthenware plates provide a contrast to the brilliant floral design of the individual place mats. And the covered soup dishes with matching plates rest on transparent glass service plates—a neat trick for synchronizing the color scheme.

The tumblers carry out the pear design used on the soup dish covers, as do the pear-shaped individual salt and pepper shakers. Waxy rhododendron leaves, tucked here and there among the fresh pears, apples, oranges and grapes, give a party air to this simple dessert.

Clare Tree Major Production To Be Presented Tomorrow at Junior High

From the Clare Tree Major production of "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," which the A. A. U. W. is bringing here tomorrow, the chairman, Miss Lillian Mullinax, feels that the children will receive more than entertainment. She believes that this fantasy (which will take them rapidly from the familiar to the unfamiliar), will be highly stimulating to the imagination.

The great inventions of the last 60 years came from the fertile minds of a world which had time to think, she stated. In the brief period since 1879 when Edison perfected the first incandescent lamp, we have been given the automobile, the telephone, the radio, the airplane, the motion-picture, and most of the wonders which have become the daily necessities. This generous outpouring of marvels has to an extent handicapped children who have had their minds so constantly occupied by the results of these inventions that they almost lack time to create for themselves.

In answer to the question as to whether children of today are different from those of 25 years ago when she first started her Children's Theater in New York, Clare Tree Major said, "No, our children are just as eager for fantasy, for color and beauty of expression as those of a less sophisticated generation. We must see that these desires are stimulated and gratified. All educators know that one of the most important values in education is to stir the creative faculties of children, to lead them to being alert, inquiring, and imaginative.

"A play such as 'Aladdin' takes every child out of his practical everyday life into a world where anything can be done. He will be entertained, but will also realize how many of his longings may be gratified if wishing hard enough impels him to dig what he wants out of hiding places with the help of the magic 'lamp of knowledge'."

"Aladdin" will be given in Junior high auditorium at 1:30 o'clock. Because of limited space, only children of the first five grades may attend the play. Tickets may be bought at the different grade schools.

New Hair-Do Aids An Old Ensemble

DOROTHY LAMOUR: Sparkles

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Don't be downcast if the budget won't stand a glittering new gown for holiday parties. A chic coiffure, tricked up with sparkly ornaments, will give a festive air to an old ensemble.

Dorothy Lamour shows here how a set of evening combs can give new interest to a familiar hair-do. Using a dozen or so silver backed combs, she tucks them in her sleekly-brushed hair in symmetrical rows, from the crown of her head to the nape of her neck.

A variation of this effect can be had by taking ordinary combs and sewing on tiny fresh or artificial flowers, or gluing rows of sequins across the top of the combs.

Or try a sleek page boy arrangement with the ends gathered into sequin-spangled snood.

The soft curls of a feather bob are ready for formal revelry when capped with sparkling paillettes or studded with jeweled clips. For piquance, comb hair into bangs or a soft inverted pompadour, catch up the sides, and nestle a deep red rose behind each ear.

Let's imagine tomorrow's lighting

Eyestrain picks its victims young

First of Us begin life with normal vision . . . but unless this blessing is carefully safeguarded, our eyesight may be permanently damaged

One of Every Five children in grade school suffers from impaired vision. Scientific authorities say poor lighting causes unnecessary eyestrain.

Two Out of Five college graduates have defective sight . . . a result which good lighting might have helped to prevent by reducing eyestrain and fatigue.

Think of the healthful outdoor light young eyes need—for hobbies, for homework, for every seeing task. Wouldn't you like your children to enjoy outdoors light?

They can, soon. And you won't have to move out under a tree. Lighting Research is planning now to "move the sun indoors." Looking ahead toward a healthier, happier, brighter postwar world, we see the possibility of bringing all the beauties of sunshine indoors and letting you enjoy them the year around.

These include:

- Softer, more abundant light for easier seeing
- Ultraviolet for essential Vitamin D
- Short-wave ultraviolet that kills germs
- Soothing, penetrating heat

PROSPECTS ARE NOT TOO BRIGHT

Americans all the way across the nation to Pampa are watching with interest the labor-management conference, under the sponsorship of the government and the President, that got under way yesterday at Washington.

As each day goes by, and as it becomes tragically more evident that the nation is not achieving the results in reconversion that it had hoped for, there is less tendency on the part of the people as an impartial majority to take sides lightly. Poignantly, it is being determined each day that labor and capitalist blocs are giving no quarter in their respective efforts to get all they can from the opposing faction.

Commenting on these economic tugs of war, the President said: 'I know that the American people do not like it—especially after the solemn promise by representativs of both managment and labor that they would cooperate with their government through the reconversion period."

He was right. The people do not like it. The waves of strikes, haggling and accusing, have been utter testimony that there is something lacking—that there is an underlying current of distruct between the ranks of labor and management.

And so, the President has told the two groups to get together and work out their differences. We are not too optimistic as to what the outcome will be. But there is one thing we believe is very likely to happen if they cannot work out those differences. The government would probably take a bigger hand than ever before—and that is what we, the people, have been objecting to for so long.

That, indeed, is not very encouraging.

LOOKING AHEAD

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

SOBER THOUGHT

Authority and alcohol influence the deeds of mortal man in ways that are strikingly similar. Apparently they both cail for more from the very first taste. Too much of either goes to people's heads in a manner that is highly unbecoming. Both have a tendency to retard productive activity and both are enemies of straight thinking. No wonder despots so often are called power-drunk.

Not long ago I heard a story about a drunk man with a new car. It probably was not true but it was thought provoking. In an effort to back out of his home garage, so the story goes, he pushed over a neighbor's fence and sank nails in three tires. Using a axe to disengage the debris he bashed a fender until it pressed against his only remaining tire that held air.

Unable to make the maimed car run, the inebriate got under it with a wrench and flattened the gasoline line so the engine could get almost no fuel; also emptied the brake fluid on the ground. Finally he lost his temper and assaulted the body with a pick until it was no longer a closed car. After that he orated loudly and eloquently on the mistakes of the engineer who designed it.

How like this story is the history of our country for the last decade. Instead of doing things to improve productive activity, men of authority viewed everything successful with suspicion and orater on its faults. Well-established principles of good business were disregarded. Radical ideas were used, like holding land out of production to raise farm prices.

Shortening crops raised prices, to be sure, but it made men idle, as well as land. The landowners got compensation from the national treasury for crops they did not raise and idle workers stood in line for dole. To meet the resulting heavy expenses, corporation taxes grew so heavy that they discouraged investments, further retarding productive activity.

With jobs scarce and poorly paid, people on government relief rolls fared better than many who persisted in trying to earn an honest living by honorable work. This automatically discouraged thrift and efficiency. It retarded the accumulation of personal wealth and hindered the starting of new, individually owned enterprises. People with odds against them discourage easily.

The case was more readily diagnosed than remedied. Economic tinkerers in places of authority got a taste of power and drank of it too deeply. Then they quit thinking straight. Each new raid on the nation's economic strength called for a bigger one to hide it. Gradually thrifty people were being beggared by alms and American business bankrupt by taxes.

The only honorable way out of any kind of intoxication is to sober up. Destructive strategy will buy food and clothing for nobody. Letting land lie idle is not farming. Scared money builds no factories and makes no jobs. The most helpful thing our government can do this year is work to this end: Devise the right taxes for the most jobs. This will automatically cure the "zimmies".

Texan Is Victim of Accidental Gunfire

OCEANSIDE, Calif, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Silas A. Dean, 35, electrician's mate third class from Houston, Texas, was fatally wounded here Sunday when a policeman stumbled against a clothesline and his gun went off, Deputy Coroner E. A. Turner reported.

The sailor, attached to the amphibious training base here, was wounded in the chest and died later in a nearby naval hospital.

Two policemen who were dispatched to the scene said they did not think at first that Dean was badly wounded, as he walked to the car.

Nation's Press

DISPOSING OF WAR PLANTS
(The Wall Street Journal)

Gradually—very gradually—some light is being shed upon the methods by which the government will dispose, or seek to dispose, of its variegated war plants. With special reference to steel and iron works constructed with public funds for war purposes, Surplus Property Administrator Symington has stated that prospective earnings will be the main criterion in setting prices. Certainly anyone who contemplates bidding for a war plant will look first to its probable earning power, though estimates thereof by owner and bidder are likely to be far apart when they begin their chaffering.

Wisely, Mr. Symington says that original cost will not be a basic yardstick. It could not be, considering the well known fact that in war plant construction time was of the essence and the national security was at stake. He proposes to consider the diversity and volume of production which a bidder contemplates; likewise the latter's intended "pricing policy." These are factors which cannot be determined with any degree of exactness in advance. A successful bidder—successful as far as the bidding itself goes—will thereafter turn out as many forms of steel and as much of each as he can market at prices made in competition with established producers.

Another point which Mr. Symington will keep in mind is the "relative monopoly position" of the bidder in the markets accessible to him. This means, apparently that bidders not now in the steel business or the smaller units thereof will be favored, other things being something like equal. But the government ought never to dispose of any plant in such a manner or on such terms as would in effect subsidize new competitors against the old. That would constitute special privilege, unjust and objectionable in any hands.

If we understand him, Mr. Symington intends to let government-owned plants pass to private ownership at their commercial valuation, as nearly as that can be ascertained Subject to the reservations just outlined, his plan looks good.

York's Courage Is Handed Down

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A story of courage spurred by the records of Tennessee's Alvin C. York was told here when a returned army officer relayed a message from far-off Calcutta, India, to the World War I hero.

The officer, Maj. L. Malcolm Morris of Hohenwald, Tenn., said that York's cousin, Tim C. York of Tyler, Texas, had spent three and one-half years in a Japanese prison camp, "living on little more than the inspiration of his famous relative's courage."

"I saw the boy in Calcutta after he had been liberated from the prison camp, said Morris "and he asked me to tell his cousin 'Howdy' when I got back to Tennessee.

"Young York had been living in a work camp in the Malayan jungle and looked as though he had been starved nearly to death," Morris continued. "He brightened up, though, when he found I'd met his idol, and told me and his family pride had kept him going."

A tentative schedule said the fliers may arrive on the Mexican border Nov. 10.

A special train will bring the fliers here from Nuevo Laredo where secretary of national defense, Francisco L. Urquizo will greet them.

In Mexico City, there will be a welcome by President Avila Camacho.

News Behind the News
The National Whirligig

WASHINGTON
By RAY TUCKER

PROVOCATIVE —Although President Truman's wage-price pronouncement does not satisfy an important segment of labor, the more farsighted representatives of the workingmen recognize and rejoice at his having put industrial bargaining on an entirely new basis that advantages them. He has decreed that a corporation's profits have a dollars-and-cents connection with the amount of money it can pay, and he intends to throw the influence of the government behind that philosophy.

It is probable that this issue may suddenly become the most provocative question before the labor-management conference now under way. The Truman theory will be opposed bitterly by spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers, especially Detroit automobile magnates now threatened with a C.I.O. strike that involves this key problem.

* * *

EARNINGS — The N. A. M. reluctantly agreed to attend the meeting, assenting only because it did not want to defy the White House. It showed its real attitude when it refused to become a signatory to the labor-management charter some months ago.

On the other hand, Eric A. Johnston, president of the U. S. chamber of commerce and a sponsor of the assemblage, strongly favors the administration's standpoint. He maintains that, when additional profits come from increased productivity, they should be distributed in three ways — to capital in larger dividends, to labor in the form of higher pay and to the consumer in lower prices.

But the N. A. M.-ers, especially the automobile bloc, insist that, so long as they pay decent and competitive scales, the size or disposition of their earnings is nobody's business.

* * *

STATUS — The practical difficulties of establishing any method or machinery for ascertaining prospective profits in an unknown future baffles the labor and management groups, including even those employers who favor the experiment. They fear that an attempt to fix a definite ratio involving the factors of earnings, wages, and prices will necessitate the permanent retention of government controls and everyday interference in their affairs.

Some "designated agency," to use the President's phrase, must undertake the job of inspecting their wage schedules, their cost sheets, their balances and all other items which enter into the determination of a corporation's profit-and-loss status.

* * *

PREDICAMENT — The accounting operation will necessarily be expensive, laborious and long-drawn-out. The victims will be at the mercy of the bureaucrats, the lawyers and the bookkeepers. As these harassments and invasions have been their chief complaint against Washington for the last twelve years, and especially during the war, they do not look forward to a repetition of these proceedings on an even larger scale.

The Truman system may also introduce such uncertainty that it will be impossible to engage in any advance planning or pricing or long-range operations. Pending any definite decision on the part of the government and its acceptance by all parties to the conflict, they will not be able to schedule production or prices far ahead.

Indeed, the auto makers are in that predicament at this moment. OPA's failure to fix the retail charge for new models prevents them from knowing how much of an increase they can grant the workers.

* * *

RESPONSIBILITY — Although President Truman is a respected and well-liked alumnus of Capitol Hill, his troubles in attempting to force wanted labor legislation out of blockading committees spring from his awkward handling of some of his old colleagues. His chastisements of them in his recent radio address has not improved the relationship between the White House and congress.

When H. S. T. called the ways and means committee to the executive mansion to rebuke it for not acting on the expanded unemployment compensation bill, he failed to notify Speaker Sam Rayburn of his plan, although it is customary to keep the house boss informed of these family tilts. Moreover, Mr. Truman blamed the democrats on the committee instead of assessing some of the responsibility on the republican minority.

* * *

RESENTMENT — As a consequence, Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton has made no move to report the measure to the house. Meanwhile, Mr. Rayburn took the unusual step of referring the full employment bill to the committee on house expenditures, although he realizes that it has only a small chance with this hard-boiled and conservative bunch.

Again Mr. Truman administered a spanking to the expenditures chairman, Carter Monasco of Alabama, and to the second top democrat, "Dick" Whittington of Mississippi. They revealed their resentment by deciding to hold three weeks of hearings after their visit to the White House.

DEFY — Another reason for the President's setbacks is that his leaders are not rounding up democratic supporters of administration proposals. The numerically powerful New York bloc spends hardly any time in the capital, and rarely attends committee meetings when it does. Party whips are not driving lazy or uninterested M. C.'s to the floor when important matters are up for discussion and vote.

The war's letdown has had the same effect on them as it has on the general public. Meanwhile, the G. O. P. sticks to the job and combines with democratic reactionaries to defy H.S.T.

DAY-BY-DAY COUNT ON WASHINGTON'S ACTIVITIES GIVEN

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON. — Secretary of State Byrnes, in his speech last week, has made a statesmanlike attempt to straighten out relations between the United States and Russia.

Mr. Byrnes did not suggest a Monroe Doctrine for Russia, as hastily interpreted by some headlines. The reason for this is that the Monroe Doctrine as oroginally conceived has now now been superseded by the adherence of the United States to the Charter of the United Nations organization.

Lawrence

What Mr. Byrnes tried to do was to use the evolution of United States policy under the Monroe Doctrine as a means of persuading Russia and the end result—the good neighbor policy—is a much better basis for maintaining her security in eastern and central Europe than any system of special or exclusive privileges in a given sphere of influence.

Mr. Byrnes was debating with Russia out in the open—a splendid technique. He was trying tactfully to explain that while the United States originally proclaimed the Monroe Doctrine as a means of preventing European countries from invading the republics of this hemisphere, at no time was the use of the Doctrine justified to interfere in the internal affairs of other countries in this hemisphere.

The secretary was frank about it. He conceded that there were times when dollar diplomacy and even force were used by us to intervene in the internal affairs of the Latin-American republics. But he indicated that the United States had since matured and had outgrown those imperialistic impulses.

Our good neighbor policy at the moment is to keep hands off the internal affairs of other countries and this, Mr. Byrnes argued, was a good example for the Soviet Union to follow in her relations with neighboring countries in Europe. The secretary, being mindful, of course, of what our ambassador at Buenos Aires has been preaching recently to the Argentine people, was careful to point out that the American people have a right through their ambassador to say what they are thinking about and to urge that government rest on the consent of the governed. But he implied that this expression of opinion was far different from military intervention or active interference in the governmental processes of another country.

Mr. Byrnes' speech is of historic important because it reconciles our policy prevailing long before the Chapultepec conference and before the adoption of the United Nations Charter with what has happened since.

Today the United States does not take—or isn't supposed to take—unflateral action with respect to what is happening in central and South America but it obligated to consult with the other inter-American powers. Today the United States does not use her military forces under the broad limits of the original Monroe Doctrine to back up her doplomatic policies in this hemisphere. A regional arrangement has been consummated under which all the republics of this hemisphere have a mutual responsibility and, adhering to the United Nations Charter, they can repel armed attack but canot take enforcement action even to protect the interests of the hemisphere against threatened invasion by European aggressors unless the security council of the United Nations appears to be failing to furnish that protection.

The key to Mr. Byrnes' whole argument is to be found in the following sentences from his speech:

"Inter-American cooperation is not inconsistent with wrold-wide cooperation among the nations. Regional arrangements, like the inter-American system, which respect the rights and interests of other states and fit into the world system, can become strong pillars in the structure of world peace.

"But we cannot recognize regional arrangements as a substitute for a world system . . . .

"We live in one world, and in this atomic age regional isolationism is even more dangerous than is national isolationism. We cannot have the kind of cooperation necessary for peace in a world divided into spheres of exclusive influence and special privilege."

This is sound American doctrine —Wilsonian doctrine, Roosevelt and Hull doctrine, and the doctrine of the congress of today which has written it into the ratified United Nations Charter.

Peter Edson's Column:
ABOUT THIS 'MANAGEMENT SIT-DOWN'

By PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The charge that "management is on strike against labor" has become a common cry. It was made by John L. Lewis when the coal operators refused to negotiate on recognition of his foremen's union. It has been made by Walter Reuther against the auto companies. It is made by Phil Murray of the C. I. O. who says further that there has been no collective bargaining since VJ-day and that management is holding back on production till 1946, when it can produce under lowered taxes, thereby making greater profits.

The stock argument underlying all these arguments to discredit labor by forcing it into strikes. The grand strategy is presented as letting labor go hungry for a while so that wage rates can be forced back to prewar levels. The way the labor people spell this out, management can afford to do this—living off the fat of its war profits, reserves and tax refunds until such time as labor is forced to come to terms and beg the bosses for work at any wage they care to offer.

This being a major cause of labor misunderstanding, it called for clarification.

To get a line on all such charges, they were put before Ira Mosher, president of the National Manufacturer's association. The question was not presented with any naive idea that Mosher would admit it was true, but merely to see what the answer was, straight from the manufacturing employers' recognized spokesman.

MOSHER SAYS THEY'RE A MINORITY

Surprisingly enough, the N. A. M. president does admit that there are a few employers who feel that now is a good time to let labor "sweat it out" for a while, till things get shaken down. Mosher says they are a definite minority and not necessarily the biggest corporations. They are individuals and they are not organized into any great national conspiracy. He will mention no names.

He says, however, that the shortsightedness of this handful of employers with antiquated labor notions is unquestionably giving a bad name to the vast majority of employers who recognize that such sit-down policies mean only economic suicide. Business failure is ahead for any employers who believes that organized labor can be broken and starved into submission and that now is he time to do it, says Mosher.

Just plain selfishness if you want to call it that—the need for self-preservation of their own businesses in this reconversion period of cut-throat competition—is given as the real reason why no employer can afford to shut down now.

Mosher elaborates on his idea in this way: Under the American free enterprise system there is not only competition between idustries, but competition between companies within each industry. The fights for traffic between railroads, airlines, autos and busses—between steel and the alloys and new light metals—between all metal producers and the new plastics industry—provide examples of the former. Competition between two or more railroads, between two airlines, between two steel companies and so on, provide ready examples of the latter.

IF THEY SIT ODWN, THEY LOSE

Recognizing the existence of this fight for post-war markets says Mosher, any business or industry that wants to survive cannot now afford to let a competitor get ahead. With all the pent-up demand there is for consumer goods today, whatever firm gets on the market first with new radios, autos, washing machines or what have you, is going to get the lead. And whoever gets into quality production first stands a good chance to stay in the lead.

It follows that any business which keeps going now, even under high operating costs, will gain a business advantage that will take years to overcome. Conversely, any business that thinks it can sit down now, even to gain a reduced labor cost later, is inviting loss of market and failure.

All this, says Mosher, gives the best answer to charges that management is on strike against labor. It may be reasoning inspired by selfish motives, but that's business and it makes sense.

Fate certainly is making poor old China run the gauntlet.

Thus far the efforts at reconciliation between the Chinese communists and the national government have failed to disclose any avenue of escape from the horror of a civil war in fact is already under way although there has been no formal declaration of hostilities. Hard fighting has developed along the vital rail communications of North China.

This column a week ago said that it looked as though the Chinese communists were fighting on the conquest of northern China—where they are in greatest strength—and Manchuria. Developments strengthen that belief.

Indications are that the red strategy contemplates the seizure of Manchuria, with its well developed war industries and other resources, for a powerful base from which to strike at the national forces. The communists already hold large industrial and agricultural areas in the northern Chinese provinces of Shansi, Shensi, Shantung, Anhwei, Kiangsu and Hopei.

Were the red armies able to consolidate this great and rich territory, the natural development would be the establishment of a Chinese soviet state, thus splitting China in two. And one wonders whether the war would halt with this partition of the once huge China, or whether it might continue to the bloody finality which would see one side completely crushed. A fight to a finish might mean years of torture for China's five hundred millions.

Manchuria is the key to the immediate future, because of its vast resources. This country possesses one one of the richest soils in the world and it is heavily cultivated. There is great mineral wealth — coal, iron, gold and manganese. There is petroleum, and lumber is an important product.

For this reason the armies of both sides are racing to gain control of the railroads running from northern China into Manchuria.

Texas Today . . .

By JACK RUTLEDGE
Associated Press Staff

Texas, which once had a navy all its own, still has a navy that ranks fourth in the western hemisphere.

Ray McCarley of the San Antonio Express has it all figured out. Only the U. S. A., Argentina and Brazil have larger fleets than Texas.

He works it out this way: Take all the ships in the navy bearing Texas names, add them to one-forty-eighth of all the U. S. ships bearing just numbers and you find that Texas' navy consists of 135 vessels, 16 of them being combat ships.

Texas, of course, couldn't finance any such deal like that. "The San Jacinto" alone cost $60,000,000 or about $10 for each man, woman and child in the Lone Star state.

Admiral Chester Nimitz, of course, is admiral of the Texas navy. His flagship is the "Texas," sister ship of the "New York." McCarley says that by some odd quirk the "Texas" lists to port (which means to the left, you Landlubber' and the "New York" lists to starboard. When the two enter port together, they look like they're leaning on each other.

But to get back to the Texas navy.

There is the "San Jacinto," "The Texas," the mighty cruiser "Houston," the cruiser "Dallas," which is faster and bigger than the "Texas" but not so heavily armored, the "Galveston," the aircraft carrier "Ranger."

A total of 100,000 Texans, by Admiral Nimitz' own words, served in the navy during World War II. That's more than enough to man the 135 vessels.

Texas ship yards built an amazing number of ships of all kinds. Airplane factories manufactured the planes to go with them. Plants scattered over the state made guns and ammunition.

Refineries produced the oil and high octane gasoline to fly them, and to fuel the boats. Textile mills made uniforms. Texas farms and ranges provided food—vegetable and beef.

The only thing Texas didn't make was the atomic bomb—but 10,000 Texans worked on the project in sections.

On paper, Texas still has a pretty good navy.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD—Aging people in Hollywood is a simple matter. Make-up experts make Rosemary de Camp a very attractive young lady, look like Whistler's mother in almost every picture in which she appears.

But when Harold Lloyd walked on a movie set the other day looking 23 years YOUNGER, the Hollywood make-up business really had something to yell about.

Even a smart gentleman like Preston Sturges didn't think it could be done. He wanted to hire a double to play the Harold Lloyd of 23 years ago for the comedy they are making. "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock." But Harold had different ideas.

SNEAK PREVIEW

One day when Preston wasn't looking, he sneaked over to Wally Westmore's makeup shop and said: "Wally, I've got to look 23 years younger."

"After he recovered consciousness," said Lloyd, "Wally went to work, guided by a 23-year-old still picture."

When he was through, Lloyd looked in a mirror.

"It was almost unbelieveable," said Lloyd. He went back to the studio and Sturges took a look.

"Ye Gods," said Sturgess, "you look like Mickey Rooney."

So you'll see Harold Lloyd both as he is now, a man of about 50, and as a peppery 27-year-old, in "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock."

The "why" of all this is a unique film plot. Twenty-three years ago Harold Lloyd starred in a comedy called "The Freshman." In the last scene, as the water boy for a college football team, he scored a touchdown in the final few second of play and became a hero.

Sturges dug up the old film, used it for his first scenes and wrote a story of what happened to Football Hero Lloyd in the following 23 years. Carried away by Harold's touchdown, a big advertising executive offers him a job to learn the business from the bottom up. After 23 years Lloyd is still at the bottom.

Then one day he gets fired. He takes a couple of drinks, wins $30,000 on a horse race, buys a circus and creates havoc generally.

LONG ABSENT

It is Lloyd's first movie in seven years. His last one was "Professor Beware." after which he turned producer at RKO.

MOTHER'S HEALTH FAILS

XXVIII

I OFTEN took mother with me while rehearsing my tableau for the revue at the Palace—I knew she loved this. The Wonder Bar presentation, a spectacle which I originated, did rather well, and I received an offer from Henri Hallais and the famous cartoonist, Rip, to produce and dance two more tableaux for a revue they were presenting at the Theatre de l'Avenue early in May.

I accepted this offer, and there ensued a stormy scene with Henri Varna when I gave him my notice: he resented my leaving the Palace for another house, but it was an opportunity I couldn't pass up.

Mother spent a week or so in Spain, then went to England and wrote she was sharing a house at Marlow on the Thames—about an hour and a half by train from London—with the Australian singer, Nellie Melba. I gathered from the tone of her letters that she was feeling perfectly well and intended singing again in opera, for she spoke of studying two or three times a week in London. One night, just as I was going on at the Theatre de l'Avenue, Marie handed me a telegram. It said: "Mother has suffered a stroke. Please come at once"—signed by a Dr. Maclean, and there was the address of a nursing home in Marlow.

I read it twice before the full horror of that short message became clear to me. Then I automatically went on and did the best I could with my dance. It was impossible to let the performers down because of a personal sorrow. When I came off, Hallais was standing in the wings waiting for me, Marie having already told him the terrible news. He thanked me for dancing under the circumstances and very kindly told me to go pack a bag, and he would telephone the Imperial Airlines for a seat on the first plane to England.

* * *

I DID not arrive at the Marlow nursing home until afternoon, and I learned that Dr. Maclean had been called the previous evening by mother's hysterical maid and found her condition desperate. He had judged it best to send for an ambulance to remove mother to a sanitarium, but on the way she suffered a further brain hemorrhage, and his hopes for her recovery were very slight. My brother had arrived several hours before me and was bitterly resentful that mother should have been moved from her own room without our consent, for he was certain the effort of the trip had produced the second hemorrhage.

For 10 ghastly days we fought to save her life. The day following my arrival, I went to London and arranged for the best specialist I could find, Sir Frederick Treves, to drive down to Marlow immediately for a consultation. His opinion was that mother might live but would remain an invalid, partially paralyzed, for an indefinite length of time and that there was nothing science could do to effect a complete recovery.

When I met father at the boat train a week later, he looked so old and frail, my heart ached for him. It was not difficult to see that my mother's illness was the crowning blow to a long series of sorrows he had suffered all his married life and that the thought of losing her had completely unnerved him. He would not accept the opinion of either the doctor or the specialist, nor could he believe that such a brilliant, beautiful woman would be tied to a bed in helpless inertia, to drag out her remaining days in a way that would have revolted and horrified her.

During the third week of her illness, she improved enough to speak a few words, recognized my father, and even smiled at the flowers he brought her every day.

* * *

FATHER'S finances were in no condition to stand the terrific expenses involved in a long illness, so I did what I could to help by making a quick trip to Paris to break my lease, if possible, and send Marie and the animals to Violette, whose sympathy and kindness, like that of many such friends, were beyond expression. I was trying to do some packing when I received a long-distance call from father. I could hear the anguish in his voice vibrate over the wire as he told me that Dr. Maclean had noticed a change in mother that morning and thought I should come back at once. Violette drove me to Le Bourget where I caught the afternoon plane.

When I arrived in Marlow at 6 o'clock that evening my mother was dead. The doctor cautioned me to get father back to the hotel as soon as possible, for there was a possibility of his having a complete nervous collapse. All sorts of sad details had to be attended to, so I begged him to stay with Bunnie at the hotel and let me do everything. I could not stand the look of utter misery in his tired gray eyes, and the thought of saving him a moment's sorrow that could be avoided strengthened me to spend the night in vigil beside my mother's body. As the nursing home was a Protestant one, father had encountered all sorts of obstacles in obtaining their permission for a priest or nun to remain with mother as he wished.

Perhaps the only consolation to the whole tragedy was that she died in a coma, without fear or pain or ever realizing what happened. Her beautiful face was peaceful as it rested in the pillows of flowers father had arranged. We buried her in the old Marlow cemetery, whose dead sleep beside the River Thames.

BERLIN, Nov. 6—(AP)—Adolf Hitler knew in 1938 he would be in a "frightful" military position should the other powers protect Austria, and he eagerly rewarded Mussolini's submission to the Anschluss with a pledge that he would "never forget" the Duce's magnanimity.

Hitler's fears of foreign intervention are revealed in records compiled by functionaries of Reichmarshal Hermann Goering's air ministry, who took down every word as nazi conspirators manuevered the seizure of Austria over international telephone lines. Their transcripts, labelled "secret archives," were tossed into a head of rubbish in the airministry courtyard when the Red army swept into Berlin.

Two elderly Germans retrieved the records and loaded them into my jeep in return for two cigarettes. Translated and condensed, they give the first inside account of Germany's role in the Austrian seizure on March 12, 1938.

This record discloses that Prince Philip of Hesse, now in Allied custody, was the go-between in German and Italian negotiations. The prince was the husband of princess Mafalda of Italy, who died in an Allied bombing of Buchenwald.

Hesse phoned Hitler from Rome at 10:25 p. m., Friday, March 11, just 31 minutes after Arthur Seyss-Inquart, nazi puppet in Vienna, had agreed to a Goering-dictated telegram requesting German intervention to prevent "bloodshed."

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's Austrian government had resigned after a two-hour ultimatum from Goering. Seyss-Inquart had been instructed to seize power. Two hundred and forty thousand German troops had orders to cross the Austrian border at dawn.

Hesse opened the conversation, saying: "I have just come from the Palazzo Venezia. The Duce accepted the whole thing very friendly. He sends you his regards. (Mussolini) said XXX one couldn't do it. He was answered it was unfortunately already arranged thus and one could not change it. Then Mussolini said Austria would now be a finished concern for him."

Hitler: "Then please tell Mussolini I will never forget him for this. Never, never, never XXX in case the Austrian thing is settled. I am ready to go with him through thick and thin."

Tire-Rationing May Stay Much Longer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—OPA has substituted a pessimistic note for its previous optimism on when tire rationing will end. But the gloomy view isn't shared by the agency which will make the decision.

Officials of the civilian production administration, successor to the war production board, said there is a good chance the program may be terminated by the end of the year or soon thereafter.

Their estimate, given to a reporter with the understanding names would not be used was sought when the OPA issued a statement designed to tone down optimism generated after OPA Chief Chester Bowles told congress recently that the end of tire rationing was "in sight."

In the latest statement, Max McCullough, assistant to Bowles, noted that passenger tire applications now exceed supplies by nearly 1,000,000 tires.

Local Fires Result From Carelessness

Careless handling of cigarettes caused three fires of little damage within the last two days, two resulting in a mattress at 719 N. Hobart catching on fire, occurring at 4:45 and 6:55 p.m. Monday.

The third fire, 8:45 a.m. today, was caused by a burning cigarette coming in contact with a curtain at 307 E. Browning.

During the Ice Age, the mean annual temperature of the northern hemisphere probably dropped as much as seven degrees.

Italian Armistcie

the armistice terms "harsh and obsolete." Government officials long familiary with the documents agree.

They stress, however, that the provisions still in effect will be superseded entirely by the final peace treaty with Italy.

The original armistice, signed in Sicily September 3, consists of 12 terse provisions.

Here are the 12 terms of the original Italian surrender:

1. Immediate cessation of all hostile activity by the Italian armed forces.

2. Italy will use its best endeavors to deny, to the Germans, facilities that might be used against the United Nations.

3. All prisoners or internees of the United Nations to be immediately turned over to the Allied commander-in-chief, and none of these may now or at any time be evacuated to Germany.

4. Immediate transfer of the Italian fleet and Italian aircraft to such points as may be designated by the Allied commander-in-chief, with details of disarmament to be prescribed by him.

5. Italian merchant shipping may be requisitioned by the Allied commander-in-chief to meet the needs of his military-naval program.

6. Immediate surrender of Corsica and of all Italian territory, both islands and mainland, to the Allies, for such use as operational bases and other purposes as the Allies may see fit.

7. Immediate guarantee of the free use by the Allies of all airfields and naval ports in Italian territory, regardless of the rate of evacuation of the Italian territory by the German forces. These ports and fields to be protected by Italian armed forces until this function is taken over by the Allies.

8. Immediate withdrawal to Italy of Italian armed forces from all participation in the current war from whatever areas in which they may now be engaged.

9. Guarantee by the Italian government that if necessary it will employ all its available armed forces to insure prompt and exact compliance with all the provisions of this armistice.

10. The commander-in-chief of Allied forces reserves to himself the right to take any measure which in his opinion may be necessary for the protection of the interests of the Allied forces for the prosecution of the war, and the Italian government binds itself to take such administrative or other action as the commander-in-chief may require, and in particular the commander-in-chief will establish Allied military government over such parts of Italian territory as he may deem necessary in the military interests of the Allied nations.

11. The commander-in-chief of the Allied forces will have a full right to impose measures of disarmament, demobilization and demilitarization.

12. Other conditions of a political, economic and financial nature with which Italy will be bound to comply will be transmitted at later date.

Labor Meeting

conference to leave open this question.

AFL President William Green backed Lewis. Green proposed executive committee representation for the UMW and the railroad brotherhoods before the conference's second day session began.

The four places for management on the committee would be divided equally between the National association of manufacturers and the United States chamber of commerce.

Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. chamber of commerce, said the question was entirely up to the labor delegates.

The first big issue confronting the committee is a decision on the CIO's demand to bring the question of wages before the conference. Opposition has been expressed by both management and AFL groups to conference consideration of wages.

This would restrict the business of the conference to the seven-point agenda already prepared; that is, to a search for specific ways and means of settling labor disputes without a rash of reconversion-obstructing work stoppages.

President Truman, in opening the meeting yesterday, declared that "the whole system of private enterprise" depended on the finding of such methods. He did not mention wages.

Chief items on today's program were the appointment of several committees to do the spadework on each topic of the conference agenda, and two and one half hours of "general discussion."

John L. Lewis, who sat silent yesterday as the lone delegate of the unaffiliated United mine workers, would not tell reporters his stand on the wage question. He has not been invited to a place on the powerful executive committee, and he said he was undecided whether to speak on the conference floor today.

CIO President Philip Murray yesterday declared that the country faces a "major collapse in labor-management relations" because of industry's reluctance to negotiate on labor's demand for restoration of the loss in wartime take-home pay.

Secretary of Commerce Wallace also hammered on the wage issue. He reported there were clear indications that basic wage rates could be raised substantially in many industries without increasing prices generally and without impairing industry's profit position.

William Green, AFL president who spoke late yesterday, said that inclusion of wages, full employment and legislative matters on the agenda "would make failure of the conference a foregone conclusion."

NAM President Ira Mosher told the conference that industry's delegates came completely committed to "the principle of free collective bargaining despite our serious misgivings as to the manner in which it is being practiced."

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach scolded both labor and management for practices he said contributed to bad labor relations.

Japanese economic development along peaceful, democratic lines."

The government also was directed to take immediate steps to "terminate and prohibit Japanese participation in private international cartels or other restrictive private international contracts or arrangements."

The sweeping order—the most drastic of all against individuals or corporations yet issued by MacArthur—means the complete retirement from Japan's business life of the four big families, Yasuda, Mitsuit and Sumitomo, whose companies bear their names as Iwasaki, which controls the Mitsbishi interests.

All members of the four families were directed to resign immediately from "all offices held by them in any financial, commercial, noncommercial or industrial enterprises" and "to cease forthwith to exercise any influence either directly or indirectly" in their management.

The breaking up of Japan's fabulous houses of industry was expected to create an international financial headache in the question of how to dispose of thousands of shares of stock held by American and other foreign firms.

Supreme Allied headquarters issued a survey revealing widespread ramifications in the prewar tieup between Japan's "Big Four" industrial empires and firms throughout the world.

The survey said that American corporate big names such as Westinghouse, Tidewater Associated Oil Co., International Telephone and Telegraph, Aluminum Co., of America and Libby-Owens Ford had business links with such houses as Mitsubishi and Mitsui. All of their stock holdings and unsettled debts pose a huge problem.

There also was a close relationship between the powerful "big five" banks and American institutions from coast to coast.

Everybody's asking..."When can I get new tires?"

HERE'S THE FIRST POSTWAR NEWS ABOUT
U.S. ROYALS

When can I get new tires?
It won't be long now. War production is over. The entire facilities of our 5 giant plants are rolling out tires and tubes 100% for civilian use. This great production capacity is devoted to turning out more and more tires for you.
By January 1, 1946 we expect to be making as many civilian tires every day as we made before the war. Next spring we will be turning out more tires than we ever built before.

What about rationing?
We expect the government to continue rationing for at least 60 days. Present indications are it will be removed or greatly relaxed before the end of 1945.

How good will the new tires be?
Since Pearl Harbor, "U. S." scientists have made as much progress in applying synthetic materials to tire manufacture as had been made in the previous three decades with natural rubber.
When you buy your U. S. Royals, you'll buy more than just a good tire—you'll buy a great tire. Car owners are sending us reports from every section of the country that they are getting prewar performance and better from their U. S. Royals.
From tire dealers, tire service men and tire engineers, men who have made tires their life work, the evidence piles up—U. S. Royals are out in front in mileage, in safety, in all-around performance.

Where and How can I get new U. S. Royals?
Your U. S. Royal Dealer offers you a plan to assure the earliest possible delivery of tires and to keep your present tires rolling during the waiting period.

Here is the plan:
- Go to your U. S. Royal Dealer today for a thorough tire inspection.
- If you are in urgent need of new tires, he will show you how to get them at the earliest possible moment.
- If your need is not immediate, he will use his expert knowledge of tire care to keep your car on active duty until new U. S. Royals are available.
- The quickest way to get new U. S. Royals is to register your tire needs with your U. S. Dealer now.

Harvester Gridders Have Trouble Against Lubbock Formations

Sports Shots

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
AP Sports Editor

DALLAS, Nov. 6—(AP)—There have been some changes made in schoolboy rankings. They may not be for the best but then, who knows what is best the way things are going?

Lufkin, our No. 1 of last week, beat Goose Creek 7-6. Goose Creek, consistently in everyone's first ten all season, then proceeded to fall before Port Arthur, rated twenty-second, 6-2. Galveston, ranked twentieth, beat Port Arthur. Cleburne, rated sixteenth, lost to unranked Temple by a touchdown. And so so on—

Anybody want to buy a slightly used rating system cheap?

Well, nothing to do but go back to our old standbys out at Highland Park (Dallas). Here's the first ten this week—repeat, this week:

1. Highland Park.
2. Wichita Falls.
3. Waco.
4. Odessa.
5. Lufkin.
6. Amarillo.
7. Paris.
8. Brownsville.
9. PAMPA.
10. Galveston.

The second ten: Plainview, Milby (Houston), Marshall, Brownwood, Breckenridge, Crozier Tech (Dallas), Austin, Port Arthur, Goose Creek, Jefferson (San Antonio.)

The third ten: San Jacinto (Houston), San Angelo, Brackenridge (San Antonio), Austin (El Paso) Paschal (Fort Worth), Sweetwater, Vernon, Sunset (Dallas), Temple, Cleburne.

We hear Goose Creek was pretty badly crippled for its game with Port Arthur. However, a prominent coach told us several weeks ago the Ganders were overrated anyway. He declared they were big and had plenty of experience but were slow.

Trouble is you don't remember those things until they're demonstrated on the field.

Another coach tells us Lufkin has a good team but the boys are too small.

We know Highland Park, Wichita Falls and Waco are big enough and also fast enough.

But it wouldn't be surprising if Odessa turned out to have the best team of them all. Or maybe Paris, and Brownsville must have a good club. It's been a long time since a strong team came out of the valley.

This may be it.

Speaking of football, it appears Texas will be back to full strength and then some with the colleges next year. In other words, all the schools that played football before the war are due to come back with a couple of additions—Trinity and the University of Houston.

The Texas Junior college conference will meet at Dallas in December to consider reactivation. It appears Kilgore, Paris, Lamar, Hardin, John Tarleton, North Texas Aggies, Tyler, Schreiner, Hillsboro Lee and San Angelo will field teams next fall.

Texas A. and I. is due to return to the fold and reports have it that Bud McCallum, now coach of Corpus Christi high school, will go back there as mentor.

The Bucks have won over Spearman, 12 to 6, and lost to Perryton, 33-12, and Canadian, 34-0, in conference play.

Alabama, St. Mary's Pull Up To 3rd, 4th Positions

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Alabama's big Red Elephants and St. Mary's fleet teen-agers have zoomed into higher positions in the ratings of the first ten college football elevens as the result of their latest impressive triumphs.

Alabama, fourth a week ago and almost a cinch to maintain their unbeaten and untied record, jumped into third ahead of navy following the Crimson Tide's 60-19 massacre of Kentucky and the Tars' second narrow squeak in a row, a 6-6 tie with Notre Dame.

The Gaels from California proved their class Saturday in walloping Southern California 26-0 and sports writers the country over, voting in the Associated Press' weekly poll, showered enough ballots on Jimmy Phelan's gridders to boost them into fifth place. The all-conquering Gaels were rated eighth last week.

Army and Notre Dame still ran one-two in the balloting but the Irish had a narrow edge over Alabama.

Of the 101 votes cast, army received 86 first place nominations and 982 points, based on ten for first, nine for second, etc. Notre Dame collected three top votes and 804 points while Alabama garnered four first placers and 799 points. Navy got three first place votes and 702 points. St. Mary's was honored with two top bids and 486 points and sixth place Indiana was the recipient of the three other No. 1 votes and 445 points. The rest of the top ten was made up of Michigan, Ohio State, Pennsylvania and Columbia in order.

It was Columbia's first trip into the first ten and Oklahoma's Aggies, idle last Saturday, made room for the Lions by dropping from ninth to eleventh.

Four of the big contests next Saturday match members of football's aristocracy. Army plays Notre Dame at the Yankee stadium, navy opposes Michigan in Baltimore, Columbia and Pennsylvania will battle it out for Ivy league honors in Philadelphia and Tulsa and Oklahoma A. and M. will battle for the Missouri valley title.

The leading teams:

| | |
|---|---|
| Army (86) | 982 |
| Notre Dame (3) | 804 |
| Alabama (4) | 799 |
| Navy (3) | 702 |
| St. Mary's (2) | 486 |
| Indiana (3) | 445 |
| Michigan | 346 |
| Ohio State | 280 |
| Pennsylvania | 218 |
| Columbia | 167 |

Second ten: 11, Oklahoma A. and M. 109; 12, Purdue 99; 13, Holy Cross 62; 14, Lousiana State 42; 15, Virginia 24; 16, Duke 18; 17, Texas 15; 18, Washington 7; 19, Tulsa 6; 20, Minnesota 5.

Honorable mention: Penn State 3; Mississippi State, North Carolina State, Wake Forest, and Southern California all 2 each; Tulane, Georgia, North Carolina, Temple all 1 each.

Chapel Building Fund Is Growing

CANYON. — Financial support of the West Texas State college chapel building fund has come recently from many sources, including a war veteran, a coed, and the Canyon Lions club.

The combat veteran voluntarily handed President J. A. Hill a check for $200. This was part of his overseas pay. The chapel project appealed to him as a good thing.

A coed who last summer earned a good wage by operating a farm tractor gave Dr. Hill a check for $75.

Canyon Lions contributed $411 at a luncheon meeting, in addition to other donations previously given by members.

Of a goal of $50,000, cash and pledges in hand now total more than $17,000, Dr. Hill said.

The chapel, to be built on the college campus, will be used for lectures, religious services, musical recitals, weddings, quiet meditation, and as a conference center for Panhandle pastors and student members of their congregations. The chapel program will not conflict with services of Canyon churches.

A library of religious literature will be an added feature of the chapel.

Pampa Holds Only Five Wins In 16 Games With Westerners

Pampa's Harvesters had quite a bit of trouble running against Lubbock's formations in a workout yesterday afternoon, Coach Otis Coffey reported today.

The Westerners use a single wing from an unbalanced line and a "T" from an unbalanced line. The local gridders have only been against an unbalanced line once this season.

Only five times in 16 years have the Harvesters registered a victory over a Western club.

In 1930, a great Harvester team beat Henry Frnka's Lubbock eleven 12-0. In 1931, Lubbock came up with a 32-6 victory but when the two teams tied for the district title, a playoff was arranged and Lubbock won again, 7-0. Lubbock won 6-0 in 1932 but the Harvesters came back to win 26-0 in 1933 and 13-6 in 1934.

The years 1935 and 1936 saw the Westerners' win 6-0 and 7-0, respectively. Pampa took a 21-8 victory in 1937 but the Westerners began a streak the following year that didn't end until last fall.

In 1938 it was 6-0, in 1939 Lubbock again won 6-0, in 1940 they triumphed 21-7, 1941 brought Lubbock a 30-13 win, they edged Pampa 14-13 in 1942, 12-0 in 1943 and saw their six-game victory streak end last year with Pampa's 14-0 win.

The Hub City eleven opened the season by dropping a 27-6 decision, to the powerful Odessa Broncs, victors over Amarillo 20-13. The Lubbock boys came back to tie San Angelo 13-13 and then swamped Big Spring 27-0 and Lamesa 25-6.

Borger eked out a surprise 21-19 win the following week and then Lubbock dropped another, this one to Abilene 12-6.

Two weeks ago, Lubbock faced a powerful, unbeaten Plainview eleven and came out on the short end of a 13-7 score but Plainview won the game on a pass in the last few seconds.

The Westerners got back in their winning ways last week by downing the Brownfield Cubs 20-0.

Reports from Lubbock indicate that the Westerners will be laying for the spirited Harvesters when the two teams meet at 2:30 Friday afternoon at Texas Tech stadium.

Pampa has not beaten Lubbock at Lubbock since 1937 and the Harvesters, not too over-confident, will be out to end Lubbock's home victory string.

Most of the local squad is in good shape, with Bill Washington showing more improvement and Charles Beard, co-captain and left end, getting slowly back into the swing of things.

Randall Clay and George Johnson, who missed practice last week, are ready to go. Clay was suffering from a slightly bruised knee and Johnson had a sore back.

The team is scheduled to workout this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon and leave for Plainview at 2:30 Thursday afternoon. The squad will stay Thursday night in Plainview and go to Lubbock the next morning.

A huge crowd is expected to jam Tech stadium for the Pampa-Lubbock. A block of 525 adult reserved seat tickets and 500 student tickets were sent here by Lubbock school officials.

The reserved seats are on sale at the school tax office in the city hall for $1.20 each, including tax, and the student tickets are on sale at the high school for 30 cents.

Airline Extension Hearing Continues

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6—(AP)—A regional hearing on expansion of existing airlines and creation of new ones went into its second day today.

Cities represented at the hearings or filing briefs include the following Texas cities:

Galveston, Marshall, Beaumont and Port Arthur.

Seven companies want to serve Beaumont, and officials said direct service was needed from Shreveport to Port Arthur, Beaumont and San Antonio.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Last word on Saturday's Notre Dame-Navy tussle, as voiced by Steve Owen: "Well, it was a photo finish." . . . There wasn't much doubt in the minds of the scribes who saw the slow-motion films yesterday that the Irish had failed to score, both on the disputed pass play and the two shots at the line which followed it, and that Notre Dame's Frank Dancewicz busted the rules all to pieces on the final play by trying to shove Halfback Terry Brennan through the pack of navy linemen . . . Another last word—Lt. Col. Carl Hinkle commenting on Army's attitude toward a Rose Bowl invitation: "Glenn Davis comes from California and would like very much to play out there. As you know, Davis and Blanchard have a great influence on the coaching staff."

Today's Guest Star

Ben Bloodworth, Decatur, Ala., Daily: "While congress wrangles over the atomic bomb, the mystery of what happened to the army's bombsight has been cleared. It is on lend-lease to Harry Gilmer, the Alamaba football pitcher."

One-Minute Sports Page

It's a good bet that you'll find Dick Sisler, son of the celebrated George, playing first base for the St. Louis Cardinals next season while Ray Sanders goes to some other club. . . . Dick, now being separated from the navy, is an outfielder by trade but the word is that the Cards will send him south for training at a new position during the winter. . . . Admiral William L. Leahy will sit on the Wisconsin side of the field when navy plays the Badgers Nov. 17. Leahy grew up in Ashland, Wis., and is an honorary alumnus of the university.

On The Bounce

Lt. Jim Denton of Maplewood, N. J., was playing golf at Frankfurt Germany, last month. His third shot on a par five hole struck the hairless pate of a German prisoner of war working on the green and bounced into the cup. . . . "That," Jim wrote home, "was my baldeagle."

Recreation Groups Will Meet in Dallas

WOMEN ELECTED TO FRENCH ASSEMBLY FAVOR PROGRAM OF SOCIAL REFORM

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS. — For the first time in history French women will have a voice in this country's government. In the new national assembly, 33 out of 522 representatives are women. Seventeen are communists; ten represent MRP, progressive Catholic party; five are socialists and one independent represents the peasants. There were 258 women candidates.

Thus, despite their lack of apprenticeship, French women have accomplished more than their American sisters have in the course of 26 years of franchise. It is a matter of conjecture whether the granting of suffrage to women is responsible for the fact that they comprise almost six percent of the assembly membership.

Their votes may explain, too, the present reduction of the numerous prewar political parties to three major ones. Women all over the country, conscious of their new civic duty, flocked in great numbers to the polls.

Nearly all women who were elected were active in resistance movements during the war. Some were deported to horror camps and the husbands of others were victims of German oppression. Several are widows of political leaders. Ranging in age from the early 30's to the 60's, the women represent a cross section of classes with a large sprinkling of intellectuals and social service workers.

ORGANIZED RESISTANCE

Youngest is blonde, earnest 33-year-old Marieclaude Vaillant-Couturier, widow of the communist deputy who died before the war. For ten years she was secretary of the young girls' communist organization, and immediately after the collapse of France she started organizing women to resist the occupation. Arrested in February 1943 by Vichy police, she served five months' solitary confinement in Sante prison. Later, she was deported to Ravensbruck, where she was liberated by the Russians.

"Whatever party she represents," declared Madame Vaillant-Couturier in an interview, "every woman representative's first objective is passing new legislation covering all social services and much needed reforms. First we shall endeavor to solve the problem of food shortages and the scandalous black market. Next we want the children properly fed and clothed. Due to malnutrition, ten percent of the children under 12 are not only underweight but four inches shorter than normal. Many children in the working class districts are unable to attend school because they are without shoes and overcoats."

WOMEN MUST SERVE

Helene Lafacucheux, attractive brunette wife of the director of the nationalized Renault automobile industry, is the outstanding representative of the new Catholic party. When her husband was deported to Buchenwald concentration camp, she managed to follow him and obtain his release. She also won a seat last March on the Paris municipal council. Like most French women, she believes women's place is at home but that in times like these they have a definite duty to the country.

Also elected on the MRP ticket is Mademoiselle Solange Lamblin, state professor of English. Immeditely after the Franco-German armistice( she organized clandestine meetings of patriots. In 1943 she became assistant to Georges Bidault, president of the National Council of Resistance.

Madeleine Braun fought nazism from the outset. In 1936, as secretary general of the international committee for the aid of Spanish republicans, she inspected Spanish prisoner of war camps in France. During the occupation she helped to organize the national front. Socialist Madeleine LaGrange is the widow of Leo LaGrange, killed in action in 1940. Communist Helene Solomon-Langevin, daughter of famous Professor Langevin, was deported to Auschwitz following her activities in university resistance groups after the nazis had executed her brilliant physicist husband. Advocating sex equality in all walks of life, Madame Solomon-Langevin said, "This war proved women shoulder the same burdens, endure the same hardships as men. There is no reason why they shouldn't enjoy the same privileges."

Despite their unexpected triumph, women representatives take the victory soberly. Their program? First, they're interested in realities before political ideologies. They want legislation safeguarding home and country from the ravages of another war. Whatever their political faiths, they are determined that no more children and old people shall die of starvation; that the specter of unemployment will be abolished and that social security will be available for all. They desports, recreation and child welfare mand government organization of centers; development of health services, better conditions and equal pay for working women. They expect this program to enlist the sympathies of women the world over,, because in the long run, women are the worst sufferers from war. They believe that such a program will be an important factor in building up a new democratic France.

Frenchwoman, permitted to vote for the first time, outnumbered men by 14 million to 9 million in recent election. Here two nuns cast their ballot in Paris.

SOME SPOOKS

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Nov. 5 —(AP)—Two small girls, out to see what they could scare up in the way of Halloween treats, got what is probably the best "treat or trick" any prankster could claim.

They called at the home of a woman who evidently didn't understand that "treat" meant just a piece of candy or small treat. She gave them thick steaks to take home and cook.

Local Silver Star Winner To Marry Young French Girl

Sgt. Theodore R. "Ted" Duckworth will send for his 18-year-old French bride-to-be after returning home from two years in the European theater of operations.

Duckworth, son of L. H. Duckworth, Willowbrook, Calif., lived in Pampa at the home of I. S. Furlong and attended Pampa high school prior to entering the service in 1940.

Recently an announcement from Washington made public award of a second Silver Star to Duckworth. The 22-year-old sergeant had never written relatives about the award, but had said much about the coming marriage to his French fiancee, Jinette Lidove, of Sartrouville, just outside Paris. She is reported to be very pretty, speaks and writes English well.

The Silver Star citation was awarded for gallant action, to Duckworth when, "during an attack on Brest, France, the 3rd platoon, Company 1, 38th infantry, was pinned down by heavy artillery, mortar, machine gun and small arms fire. One enemy machine gun was located across a sunken road 50 yards away and the other directly to the front 150 yards.

"Sgt. Duckworth of his own volition secured hand grenades and a sub-machine gun, and creeping from his position toward a hedge row adjacent to the road, exposing himself to enemy fire from the other machine gun, ran along the hedge row until opposite the hostile gun position, jumped down into the road, ran up the opposite hedgeband and sprayed the machine gun emplacement with fire, killing the crew of four.

'Ted' Duckworth

"Then, dashing back across the road to a covered position, he fired bursts from his weapon at the remaining machine gun drawing fire to himself, thus enabling the platoon to advance and silence the enemy weapon.

"This action resulted in the capture of 50 Germans who were dug in at the latter position.

"The gallantry, courage, and disregard for personal safety displayed by this enlisted man exemplify the highest tradition of the service."

Duckworth, who was discharged Oct. 16, and is living at Compton, Calif., is authorized to wear two Presidential Unit Citations, Infantry Combatman's Badge, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon, Good Conduct medal, the famed French Fourragere (braid around the left shoulder), and five Bronze battle stars for campaigns in Normandy, Brittany, Rhineland, Ardennes, and Central Europe.

Two brothers are in the service. Cpl. Bob Duckworth is stationed in Germany awaiting transfer home. Sgt. S. A. Duckworth was recently transferred to Okinawa after completing an assignment in the India-Burma theater.

American-British Trade Barriers May Be Removed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain are reported to have agreed on a sweeping program for removing restraints on world trade.

This is the immediate forerunner, officials predict, of another agreement on U. S. finacial assistance to Britain. A review of the financial negotiations showed today that the sum probably will be between $3,500,000,000 and $5,000,000,000.

The terms are understood to include:

1. A 2 percent interest rate.
2. Repayment in fifty years, beginning five years after the actual making of the loan. This five year span is to allow the British to get back on their feet.
3. A provision that any time the British empire fails to take in sufficient funds its payment for that year may be delayed.

The British negotiators, Lord Keynes and Lord Halifax, transmitted these terms to London about ten days ago. So far as could be learned over the weekend, they are waiting for a final decision by the London government.

NEW GIANT X-RAY

The Latest Development in 50 Years of X-Ray Research

1895—Roentgen, in Germany, discovers mysterious powerful ray, names it "X"—the unknown. One year later, W. D. Coolidge, student at M.I.T., begins experimenting with x-rays. First x-ray tubes were about 25,000 volts.

1913—Dr. W. D. Coolidge, at General Electric, invents revolutionary new x-ray tube. First reliable method of controlling x-rays. This tube was 100,000 volts.

1920—Coolidge designs a completely insulated tube and transformer for a thoroughly safe x-ray unit. The first wholly safe, convenient and adequate dental x-ray outfit came out of this.

1923—Coolidge develops a 200,000-volt "deep therapy" tube with water-cooled target. This higher voltage tube greatly reduced time required for x-ray treatments.

1933—General Electric builds multi-section tubes producing 800,000-volt x-rays. Installed in Mercy Hospital, Chicago, and Swedish Hospital, Seattle, these units have been in constant use ever since.

1940—First 1,000,000-volt unit, plus portability, making x-rays more useful to medicine and industry. Fifty-six of these units built by G-E X-Ray Corporation used in U.S. war production—even flown to England. In 1943 General Electric scientists and engineers developed the first portable 2,000,000-volt x-ray.

1945—NEW G-E 100-MILLION-VOLT "BETATRON"!

This 130-ton giant whirls electrons, tiniest parts of atoms, faster than man has ever been able to speed them before. So fast that they make the nearly 17-foot circular orbit of a doughnut-shaped vacuum tube 250,000 times in 1/240th of a second, and, striking a tungsten target, produce x-rays of 100-million-electron volts!

Dr. E. E. Charlton, left, and W. F. Westendorp, G-E scientists, designed this new machine, which generates x-rays over a thousand times as intense as the early Coolidge tube—with a wave length of 0.00025 Angstrom units, up in the cosmic ray band! These rays will penetrate a thickness of metal considerably greater than even the 2,000,000-volt x-ray unit.

But more important still may be the uses of these super x-ray machines in medical and atomic research. G.E. is making them available to medical science for experimental therapy. General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
