Group tours UTPB center

UT's Mark praises facility

By Melia McEwen
Staff Writer

Officials of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin showed off their Center for Energy and Economic Diversification Thursday to a group of Permian Basin businessmen.

UTPB officials credited the gathering with helping to make the building, under construction at the corner of Highways 191 and 1788, possible.

In town for the tour was Dr. Hans Mark, chancellor of the University of Texas system, who praised the facility.

"We thought a lot about the purpose of the facility, and the major point is to use it to house research and development groups who will do business in the Permian Basin," Mark told the gathering, which included Doug Scharbauer and his brother Clarence III, whose family donated the land for the building.

Mark said the University system has two resources in the Permian Basin: land and oil. He noted that a number of research projects require land, such as the electromagnetic accelerator used to build rail guns for the "Star Wars" defense system. "Once that's built, we'll need a range to test it."

As for oil, Mark said that U.S. Energy Secretary James Watkins' energy strategy calls for further development of enhanced oil recovery technology, and the university hopes to use the UTPB facility for research in that area.

The tour was led by Midland architects Jim Rhoten-

Chancellor says Basin must be united if residents want 4-year status for UTPB

By David Morris

ODESSA — Permian Basin residents must present a "united front" to the state Legislature if they want four-year status for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, the chancellor of the University of Texas said Thursday.

Hans Mark told Odessa Lions Club members that the recent conversion of the University of Texas at Dallas and Corpus Christi State University to four-year schools bodes well for UTPB.

"I believe there is a very good possibility that others will be turned into four-year schools as well," Mark said.

However, he said Midland and Odessa must lobby the Legislature with one voice if UTPB is to be converted.

"In both cases (Dallas and Corpus Christi), support from the community was essential," Mark said. "The Legislature was willing to act because there was community support."

UTPB President Duane Leach said commu-

Idaho sets stage for court test

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Legislature's approval of the most restrictive state abortion law sets the stage for a possible test of the U.S. Supreme Court's commitment to legalized abortion.

"The people of Idaho have said strongly what millions of Americans believe, that abortion is not an acceptable means of birth control," said National Right to Life Committee legislative director Doug Johnson.

But the American Civil Liberties Union and Planned Parenthood announced they would challenge the measure if it becomes law.

"It's got a wide-ranging impact beyond the understanding of the people who voted for this here," said Jack Van Valkenburgh of the ACLU.

The bill was patterned on a National Right to Life Committee model that has been rejected by other states as too restrictive. But it is the version that abortion foes want for the test of the U.S. Supreme Court's commitment to its 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion.

The law would make abortion illegal except in cases of non-statutory rape reported within seven days, incest if the victim is younger than 18, severe fetal deformity or a threat to the mother's life or physical health.

An abortion would be illegal in the case of statutory rape, or sex with a minor, on grounds that such behavior implies consent on the part of the female, said Democratic Sen. Claire Weatherell, a supporter of the bill.

If it is signed by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, the measure would take effect July 1. Andrus has declined to announce his intentions on the bill but has reiterated his long-held anti-abortion stand.

Hundreds of telephone calls, messages and letters flooded the governor's office as lobbying by both camps in the abortion debate shifted to Andrus after Thursday's 25-17 state Senate vote approving the ban on abortion as a method of birth control. The legislation cleared the House two weeks ago.

Abortion rights advocates in the Senate said the state was running up a futile legal bill of up to $1 million in passing a measure that would not withstand the high court's scrutiny.

They also labeled the bill a draconian product of an out-of-state organization pushing its own agenda.

"This bill challenges values ingrained in Idaho's tradition — freedom of belief, freedom of action, freedom of privacy," said Democratic Sen. Marti Calabretta.

But the bill's supporters said the only issue was whether the state would take the lead in protecting the lives of unborn children.

Jury clears Gideon in slander trial

By Chris Van Wagenen
Staff Writer

A jury had just cleared him of wrongdoing.

That jury agreed that the former Midland police chief was not the source of rumors that allegedly led to the demise of former Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith. Smith showed no emotion as he left the 238th District Court Thursday. His attorneys had little to say.

Gideon was accused of telling stories that Smith beat his wife, put her in the hospital and caused her to have a miscarriage.

But the jury said that wasn't the case.

Gideon, whose eyes watered up afterward, said that the burden of six years had finally been lifted off his back. The case was filed in 1984.

"I'm very, very elated," said Gideon. "I'm thankful to the jury...thankful to Mr. (Bill) Moss and Mr. (Bill) Wade. This has been a very stressful ordeal."

Wade and Moss were his attorneys.

Certainly, the stress showed.

Particularly at 8:25 p.m. when the jury made an unusual request to hear portions of testimony given by former Midland County Attorney Scott Henderson.

Henderson, one of the witnesses called last week, made the statement that Gideon told him that Smith was a wife beater.

But 25 minutes later the jurors reappeared with the verdict.

"Truthfully, when it was filed, I didn't think it would come to court," Gideon told reporters later. "We're (Gideon and his wife Pat) going to sleep very well tonight."

Smith's attorney, Tom Sims, said, "I don't know what we're going to do. I thought the testimony was unequivocal."

With that, he and his client stepped on an elevator and disappeared from the fourth floor of the county courthouse.

"I always knew the verdict would be not guilty," said Mrs. Gideon later. "I'm simply elated...this has been on our minds for six years."

Moss said he also was pleased with the verdict, a case, he and his partner, Wade, had been working on for more than four years. Moss said the two prepared with "great concern," not knowing at the outset just what to expect.

Moss said he had no idea whether Smith would appeal the outcome. "All I know is it was a very clear verdict."

But it was not so clear earlier in the day when final arguments were presented over a three-hour period.

Sims told the jury that the proof was there — that Wayne Gideon made the wife-beating statements to four different people — one of whom was a county attorney who had nothing to gain by returning to Midland for the testimony.

Sims said that Wade and Moss were doing nothing more that

Hazelwood anxious to return to sea

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Flushed with a feeling of victory after three acquittals and a conviction on a minor misdemeanor, Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood says he longs to return to the sea as a ship captain.

Hazlewood

His lawyer, Michael Chalos, said he will start negotiating with Exxon to regain the skipper's job with the shipping company that hired him out of college and fired him after his tanker grounded a year ago, causing the nation's worst oil spill.

"I'd like to go back to the sea. That's what I do," Hazelwood said Thursday after jurors absolved him of accusations he was reckless and drunk during the disaster that blackened the rocky shoreline of Prince William Sound.

The misdemeanor charge of negligent discharge of oil on which Hazelwood was convicted carries a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $1,000 fine, far less than the 7¼ years and $61,000 fine he could have faced if found guilty on all four charges.

Superior Court Judge Karl Johnstone set sentencing for today.

A grand jury indicted him last year on a felony, criminal mischief, and two other misdemeanors, reckless endangerment and operating a vessel while intoxicated. Jurors took only 10⅛ hours in deliberations to reject those counts.

"The state just didn't have the evidence," said juror Terrill Smith, a hardware store manager.

Alaska Gov. Steve Cowper told a news conference that Hazelwood's acquittal on the most serious charges shows that someone other than the veteran mariner was responsible for the grounding.

Judgment upheld in Monahans Draw case

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Midland farmer Lee Bell, who has waged court battles with Odessa over Monahans Draw flooding his farmland with Odessa's treated wastewater, today said he was "happy" with a Texas appellate court ruling that upheld a $103,000 judgment for water damage to his cropland.

"I wish I had gotten the exemplary damages ($327,000)," Bell said.

Last year, a Martin County jury in Stanton awarded Bell $430,000 in actual and exemplary damages. The city of Odessa, which discharges effluent from two wastewater treatment plants into the draw, appealed case.

While upholding the actual damages, the appellate court disallowed exemplary or punitive damages. There is no Texas case law that allows exemplary damages "to stand against a city in a situation where private property was damaged or taken for public use," the court said in its opinion.

However, the court decided that "No person's property shall be taken, damaged, destroyed or applied to public use without adequate compensation being made, unless by consent of such person."

And the term " 'adequate compensation' does not encompass exemplary damages, since such damages are punitive in nature and have nothing to do with compensating a party for his losses," the court ruled. "There is no statutory authority for exemplary damages in cases brought for damage to property" under Texas law.

To Bell, the ruling plainly said that "Odessa just can't use anybody's personal property anyway they want without paying compensation. And that's what's this (case) is all about."

Odessa City Attorney Joel Roberts declined to comment on the appellate court's decision until he has thoroughly studied the opinion.

"The main thing is we won," Bell said. "And they can't get away with using anybody's land like they want to. Sooner or later, they (Odessa officials) are going to be forced to correct their (wastewater disposal problems). And this (suit) is the first big step in taking responsibilities for it."

Lee's attorney, Midland lawyer Paul Bohannon who specializes in environmental cases, said that "The most important part of the case was liability for actual damages.

"Complaints voiced by Lee Bell and those residents in (Midland) County Commissioners' precincts west of Lee to Ector County finally have been vindicated," Bohannon said.

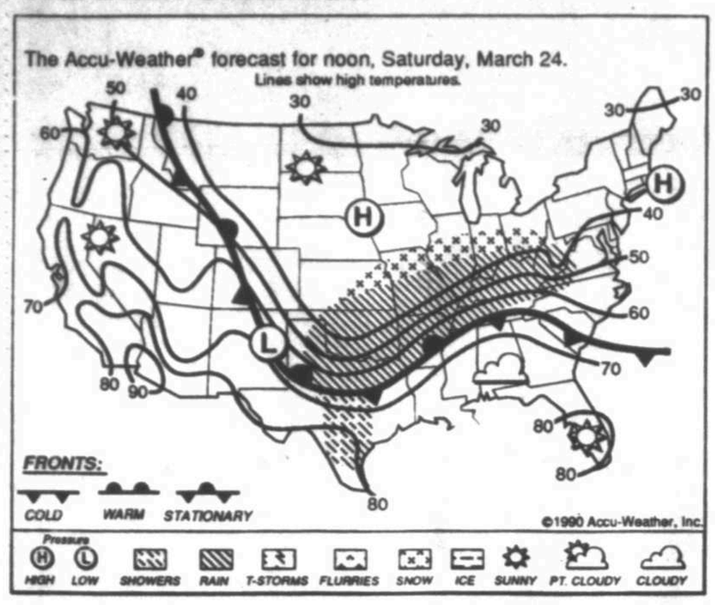
WEATHER SUMMARY



Cloudy skies in forecast

Staff Report

Tonight's forecast calls for cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low near 50 with 10 to 20 mph southeast winds, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Saturday is expected to be cloudy with a 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms with a high in the upper 60s and 10 to 20 mph northeast winds, NWS said.

Thursday's record high of 91 was set in 1934. The record low for today of 20 was set in 1952.

STATE

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms are possible across most of the state tonight and Saturday.

Some of the precipitation may be in the form of snow flurries in the Panhandle during the pre-dawn hours Saturday.

Forecasters are warning that some of the thunderstorms, which are expected over all of Texas east of the mountains, could reach severe levels.

An Arctic cold front moved into the Texas Panhandle early today. It was located in the northern part of the Panhandle early today, along a line from just north of Gage, Okla., westward to Dalhart.

Fog was reported in South Central Texas and along the coast from Beaumont to Corpus Christi. Skies were mostly clear over extreme West Texas and in East Texas and partly to mostly cloudy elsewhere.

NATION

Snow fell across the northern Plains today as it followed a cold snap that is threatening livestock in Kansas.

Snow was falling today in central Montana, western South Dakota, much of Nebraska and east-central Wyoming as the cold front moved eastward.

Advisories for stockmen were posted in Kansas late Thursday until Saturday. The sharp change to cold and wet weather will be hazardous to very young livestock, it said.

In the Southwest, temperatures were unseasonably warm Thursday. Records for the date were broken for El Paso, Texas, where it was 84, and three cities in Arizona. Phoenix was 94, Tucson 90 and Flagstaff was 67.

Colder temperatures with gusty winds moved across Washington state Thursday, bringing snow flurries to the eastern portion of the state. Snow was falling early today in Spokane.

Authorities lifted one flood warning in Georgia Thursday, but some residents along the Flint and Ocmulgee rivers prepared to evacuate. The Flint was expected to crest today, and the Ocmulgee on Saturday.

The high temperature for the nation Thursday was 97 degrees at Borrego Springs, Calif.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

HAZELWOOD: Jury acquits Exxon captain on 3 counts

(From 1A)

"The result bears out the fact that there are other people responsible for this, other than Capt. Hazelwood," said Cowper, who learned of the verdict Thursday while touring Prince William Sound by helicopter.

Alaska Attorney General Douglas Baily disputed suggestions that the state had tried to make Hazelwood a scapegoat.

"It was always my view that the captain of that vessel is ultimately responsible," he said.

The normally taciturn Hazelwood smiled broadly for the first time in the two-month trial when the verdicts were announced two days short of the oil spill's first anniversary.

"I'm not used to being in the limelight," Hazelwood told reporters. "I was a pretty anonymous character until a year ago."

Chalos said he would fight expected efforts by the Coast Guard to revoke Hazelwood's master's license.

The skipper's future also is clouded by more than 100 civil lawsuits filed by assorted victims of the nation's worst environmental disaster.

Jim Morakis, an Exxon spokesman in New York, said the company, which has fired Hazelwood, was "pleased that the ordeal of the trial is over for Capt. Hazelwood and his family."

"The verdict would seem to confirm the view that the grounding of the Exxon Valdez was an accident," Morakis said. "In light of pending litigation any other comment would be inappropriate."

Another lawyer for Hazelwood, Dick Madson, said even the misdemeanor was wrongly filed and would be appealed.

The heart of the case against Hazelwood was alcohol, and jurors said the state failed to prove he was drunk.

Juror Jeff Sage, a grocery store manager, said the panel didn't buy a prosecution expert's backward calculations which tried proving intoxication without physical evidence. A blood test of the skipper was taken too late to be conclusive.

"The jury felt there were just too many variables to pinpoint whether he was drunk at all," said Sage.

Assistant District Attorney Brent Cole conceded his prosecution would have been easier if a timely blood test was taken. He said he hoped the case had discouraged tanker captains from drinking before they sail.

The Exxon Valdez, a 987-foot tanker, ran aground and spilled almost 11 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound on March 24, 1989. It killed countless birds, fish and wildlife in the scenic area, and Exxon came under bitter criticism for failing to respond quickly with a clean up effort.

Sage said jurors concluded that Hazelwood was negligent to leave the bridge of his ship during an icy transit. But he also said they felt that "all his orders were prudent. He was in command."

DRAW: Local farmer happy with court's ruling

"The case was about something more than money," the lawyer said. "The exemplary damages were the jury's way of emphasizing the need to correct the problems.

"I am happy and relieved with the decision," Bohannon said. "It is a statement to Odessa, the Texas Water Commission (TWC), and other similarly-situated municipalities that long-term planning and concern for downstream landowners is just as vital as the need for sewage disposal."

Bohannon has suggested, and Odessa officials have considered and, in cases, implemented, using the effluent for agricultural and lawn irrigation instead of discharging it into the draw, which meanders eastwardly and south of Midland.

In its opinion, the appellate court said that "It is settled law that the operation and maintenance of a sanitary sewer system by a city is a governmental function."

The opinion was signed by Justice Ward Koehler of the Court of Appeals for the Eighth District of Texas in El Paso. The case on appeal was considered by Justices Koehler, Larry Fuller and Jerry Woodard.

The court, saying that the Bell-Odessa conflict was "not an exceptional case," said that there was "no evidence to support the jury findings of malicious conduct or evil intent by the city (of Odessa) or that such conduct was imputed by the City government.

"Such findings would require evidence that the mayor or City Council, through its water-treatment officials, intended not just to release large amounts of effluent into the Monahans Draw but maliciously or evilly intended to damage appellee's (Bell's) land.

"The fact that Robert Derrington, the director of the Odessa Utilities Administration, the department responsible for the operation of the water-treatment plants, testified that he thought it was all right for effluent in a heavy rain to get out of the draw and onto private land, despite the fact that the permits from the Texas Water Commission (TWC) and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) denied the city the right to use private property without first obtaining an easement, showed no evil or malicious intent."

But in granting actual damages, the court said that TWC permits which grant Odessa "the right to discharge its effluent into the draw specifically do not grant it the right to use or damage private or public property." Rather, the TWC permits charge the city "with the responsibility of acquiring whatever property rights that might be necessary in order to utilize the discharge route."

The city of Odessa operates two waste-water treatment plants that discharge into Monahans Draw. The older plant has been operating since 1950, and the newer plant was put into operation in 1982.

But in November 1980, the appellate court noted, the effluent "apparently" combined with rainwater in Monahans Draw and began "reaching and flooding" Bell's farmland some 15 miles and 20 miles downstream from the two wastewater treatment plants.

TRIAL: Former police chief's lawyer says verdict clear throwing up a smoke screen to confuse the issue — that their attacks were largely based on innuendoes and hear-say.

"My point is, don't be fooled by their smoke," he said.

Sims said the defense evaded the wife-beating issue, instead concentrating on other aspects of Smith's life that had nothing to do with the case.

He claimed Gideon's position at the police department gave him a platform to do sizeable damage to his client — to go out and make the rumors believable.

"The issue is what did this do to his (Smith's) reputation both personally and professionally. I think it's obvious what happened here...Wayne Gideon did what he did on purpose. He got his chance and took advantage of it."

But Wade and Moss said the issue wasn't as obvious as Sims would have the jury believe — that there were other factors that entered the ex-sheriff's life that caused him to lose favor with the voters.

"Mr. Smith challenged the whole system," Wade told the jury.

Wade characterized Smith as a man who didn't like to be crossed. "We have shown you by all these witnesses why people wouldn't vote for Dallas Smith. There were a lot of negative things about Smith."

Throughout the trial Wade and Moss painted Smith as a short-tempered man, who bullied and intimidated those around him, including his ex-wife Gail Mabee Commageres.

It was from that incident — the day Smith got in an argument with his ex-wife and slammed her hand in the door that the rumor reportedly blossomed.

But Wade rebuked that claim, recalling Mrs. Commagere's own testimony that a wife-beating rumor had surfaced as early as 1976 — a story she confessed that she and Smith laughed about later.

Moss was no easier on his client's accuser, stating Smith had a 25-year reputation of abusing people. "You look at his reputation. The fact of the matter is, it's been going on 25 years."

CENTER: UTPB research facility divided into five pods

berry and Mark Wellen, whose firm designed the building.

The 38,000 square foot facility sits alone on a large piece of vacant land. That, however, is one of its major benefits, according to Rhotenberry. He told the group during the tour that the building's design allowed for expansion north and south.

Rhotenberry and Wellen, after traveling to Austin to observe the university's Balcones Research Center and to Arlington to observe the university's Robotics Research Center, incorporated what they thought were the best features of the research facilities into the UTPB design. They also worked closely with university officials on the design.

Rhotenberry said the design essentially separates the center into five pods, linked by a common corridor.

The second pod includes a library and computer facilities, including link-up to the university's Cray computer in Austin so clients can obtain additional information from, for example, the Bureau of Economic Geology.

The third pod includes administrative offices for the staff running the center.

The fourth pod holds office suites that can act as a business "incubators" for new businesses. According to Rhotenberry, additional office suites can be built on the south side of the center.

The fifth pod contains four shop bays, separated by a mechanical bay. These are multi-use shops, allowing business to do everything from producing product mock-ups to converting it to a complete lab, including any necessary gasses. Additional shop bays can be added to both ends of this area.

Visitors to the center may be surprised to find a sizable man-made lake as part of the landscape. This will serve to provide fire protection, and will be treated to provide water inside the center.

Says Rhotenberry: "We wanted this center to be sympathetic to its surroundings, but also to convey the innovative nature of the building and the research done inside."

The center is expected to be complete by late June or early July. The UT Regents will meet there in August to officially accept the building.

MARK: Official says 4-year status vital

nity support for four-year status is more difficult to muster in the Permian Basin than it probably was in Corpus Christi or Dallas.

"In the case of Dallas and Corpus Christi you have a more united front because you're only dealing with one community," Leach said.

Nevertheless, Mark said, Midland and Odessa and the surrounding area must reach an agreement on the conditions under which four-year status can be implemented.

"I think the most important thing that the community can do — and it's the seventh largest community in Texas — is to develop a united front on the issue and approach the Legislature with a plan on the issue," Mark said.

Leach said that despite past differences, he thinks an agreement is possible between Midland and Odessa on the issue of four-year status.

"I think any plan is going to be an art of compromise," Leach said. "The issue is so important, a compromise can be struck, and I'm confident that it will happen."

Leach said a four-year school for the Permian Basin is vital to the area's economy.

"The Energy and Economic Diversification Center, and a university, are crucial investments for the revitalization of the region and its economy," Leach said.

ABORTION: ACLU faults proposal

(From 1A)

"Abortion is the destruction of life, and what can we say about the future of our society when defenseless victims are destroyed for the convenience of personal choice," Republican Sen. Roger Madsen said.

The potential legal bill "is a very, very inexpensive cost for the life of a child," said Democratic Sen. Jim Christiansen.

Andrus remained silent about his intentions on the abortion ban, standing on his recent affirmation of his long-held opposition to abortion except in the case of rape, incest or to save the life of the woman.

Kerry Uhlenkott of Right to Life of Idaho said she was confident the governor would maintain his anti-abortion credentials.

"Idaho is speaking out on this issue," she said. "I don't think he will ignore it."

But leaders of the fledgling Freedom Means Choice, formed two months ago as the Idaho debate was heating up, refused to give up the battle against a bill that would ban more than 90 percent of the 1,500 abortions performed in Idaho each year.

"The word is not dejected," said Sally Trott. "The word is determined. I don't believe anyone can state what the governor will do."

At the White House, President Bush said the vote was a state matter but added, "I have not changed my position at all." Bush's opposition to abortion mirrors that of the governor's.

Stained-glass artist renowned for work on both sides of border

By Paul Salopek

EL PASO (AP) — Francisco Delgado manipulates the sunlight, bending it through colored glass into the metallic green of a peacock's tail and the velvety reds of roses.

His commercial popularity, especially among the rich and famous across the border in Juarez, hangs on the creative whimsy of his glinting creations.

He beads smoked-glass waterfalls with sparkling marbles. His cut-glass windowscapes glow with the flight of imaginary birds and the fantastical limbs of willow trees.

"I don't know where the ideas come from," confesses Delgado, a former Juarez resident, who helped construct the stained-glass windows of that city's new central cathedral — a massive job designed and manufactured by Fred Griffin of El Paso that took Delgado more than a year of volunteer work.

Juarez church authorities say the cathedral's 35-yard-long windows harbor the largest stained-glass work in the state of Chihuahua.

"He worked every day from 6 to 11 p.m. installing all the pieces — all on his own time," says the Rev. Isidro Payan, past of the Nuestra Senora de Guadalupe cathedral. "I have two words about the work: extraordinary and beautiful. Mr. Delgado is a very dedicated man."

Religious realism, a style that goes back to 10th century Europe, still nurtures his own artistic roots.

"Now, there are some stained-g pieces that are so abstract only their makers understand them," Delgado says. "I'm more realistic — that's the original way.

"I know that once I start on the work, I don't want to stop. I dream about it. I see it already installed."

Delgado works alone, in a tiny one-room workshop in his family's apartment. A clock ticks among display easels. Conversation rings from other rooms in Spanish. The smell of cooking tortillas wafts through open doorways.

He's cut stained-glass windows for Mexican singing superstar Juan Gabriel. Juarez's influential Zaragoza family, dairy and natural gas magnates, also tapped Delgado for a huge, two-story window in their Club Campestre-district mansion.

Though the market for most of Delgado's translucent art lies in such tiny, affluent Juarez neighborhoods — a 6-foot-by-10-foot window costs about $6,000 — his pieces also have traveled far beyond the border.

In Mexico, his orders have come from as far away as Mexico City and Monterrey. In the United States, he's gotten contracts from San Antonio, Los Angeles and Chicago.

SWAT's, Madonna saving tropics

By Paul Raeburn

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the city where lawyers and accountants are king, even the environmentalists wear gray flannel suits.

Not so at Conservation International, where some brash, young biologists who prefer jeans and khakis are running what they call "a lean, mean conservation machine."

Since its founding in January 1987, Conservation International has scored a string of rapid-fire successes.

In July 1987, it executed the first debt-for-nature swap, purchasing and forgiving $650,000 of Bolivia's foreign debt in exchange for the country's establishment of a wildlife preserve within its borders.

The group has tapped new sources of funds, enlisting such unorthodox environmental advocates as the "material girl," Madonna, who raised $200,000 last year with her "Don't Bungle the Jungle" concert in Brooklyn, and Bergdorf Goodman, which donated $50,000 from a benefit fashion show last October.

"CI reminds me of the Peace Corps in its early days, when it was led by Sargent Shriver and it was thought that nothing was undoable."

Patricia Kelly, Conservation Int'l.

"CI reminds me of the Peace Corps in its early days, when it was led by Sargent Shriver and it was thought that nothing was undoable," says Patricia Kelly, vice president for communications.

This spring, Conservation International will dispatch environmental "SWAT teams" to assess urgent conservation needs in eastern Paraguay and northern Bolivia, and will participate in the April 22 celebration of the 20th anniversary of Earth Day with the construction of a rain forest in a tent on the Mall in Washington, D.C.

The man responsible for much of this activity is CI's president Russell Mittermeier, 40, a wildlife biologist with 20 years' experience in the tropics.

"We have a motto: 'Heads in the sky, feet in the mud,'" says Peter Seligmann, the board chairman and key fundraiser.

Prized primate

A rare, tree-dwelling primate, the dwarf lemur, has been found in a remote rain forest in Madagascar, off the southeast coast of Africa.

National child-care bill faces veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans are accusing Democrats of rushing to the floor for a quick vote this week on a tentative compromise over competing versions of new child-care legislation.

"They've gone behind closed doors, they've cut their deals," Rep. Bob Walker, R-Pa., charged Monday. "Now they're ready to rush it to the floor."

The child-care legislation, which has been stalled for months because of differences among Democrats, was the object of weeks of private negotiations that were continuing today.

Democratic leaders, who control the House agenda, scheduled the bill for floor debate Wednesday and Thursday.

But Rep. David Nagle, D-Iowa, one of the sponsors, told the House on Monday that not all issues had been resolved and that Democrats didn't have copies of the bill either.

Democratic leaders hoped to work out details of their bill in time to seek a special rule from the Rules Committee Thursday limiting floor amendments. Opponents wanted no limit.

The tentative version worked out among Democratic leaders would combine elements of competing child-care proposals. It would expand tax credits for low-income families and increase funding for block grants under Title XX of the Social Security Act, as well as expand Head Start and create a school-based program for before- and after-school care.

It would drop a proposed new program of grants to the states to subsidize child care, which had been pushed by liberals including Rep. Gus Hawkins, D-Calif., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

The compromise was expected to face challenges on the House floor, however, from some Republicans and conservative Democrats.

Total cost of the Democrats' version has been estimated at as much as $5 billion a year.

Nagle said Democrats were seeking resolution of final differences over how to provide financial aid to religious institutions that provide child care.

Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia predicted that President Bush would veto the Democrats' plan if it wins passage.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., has promised floor action and has long said he hoped for a vote by the end of March. His deadline put pressure on Democrats to resolve their differences or risk losing entirely on the floor.

Trump agrees to pick up tab for Dem bash

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON – New York is raising the stakes in the competition with Houston and three other cities to host the 1992 Democratic National Convention (DMC).

New York Mayor David Dinkins will throw an expensive party for the Democrats when the national committee gathers Friday in Indianapolis.

Dinkins plans to use the regular DNC meeting in Indianapolis this week to launch the first phase of an all-out campaign to convince party chairman Ron Brown that Madison Square Garden in New York should be the convention site.

Houston, Detroit, Cleveland and New Orleans are the other cities competing with New York for the convention.

All four of New York's rival cities were invited by the DNC to participate in the Indianapolis gathering after party officials were informed that New York planned to host a lavish reception. The four cities declined, some complaining that the Democrats seem to be reneging on their promise to conduct a business-like, site-selection process.

Dorothy Brodie, an assistant to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, said selection of the host city should not be based on which city doles out the most money or pours on the most charm in its lobbying efforts. Young, she added, believes that such goings-on reinforce the view that the Democrats "tend to eat and drink their way across the United States" when considering where to hold their convention.

The party's site-selection committee, which will recommend a site to Brown, will have visited all competing cities by the end of April.

The committee already has been to Houston and Cleveland. Cleveland spent more than $750,000 in cash and contributed services – nearly eight times as much as Houston spent on the site visit there three weeks ago.

Officially, New York's budget for the visit has been set at about $200,000. But Donald Trump and other well-known New York business people are picking up the tab for expensive hotels like the Plaza, star-studded dinners, Broadway shows and other entertainment.

While New York has bid almost $22 million to host the convention, Houston is offering less than the $15 million minimum bid requested by the DNC. Houston offered the party a choice of the Astrodome or the George R. Brown Convention Center as the convention site.

Teachers' union gets tough with troublemakers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A teachers' union is fighting back against students who attack or threaten their instructors, obtaining court orders to prevent hostile youths from evoking further terror in the classroom.

In a school district where no student has been expelled in 25 years, Madison Teachers Inc. has obtained two injunctions prohibiting middle school students from having any contact with teachers they threatened to kill. A third injunction is pending against a pupil who kicked a teacher in the ribs.

"We don't do it unless there's a battery or threat of death," said John Matthews, the union's executive director.

The union's effort has been criticized by a juvenile court judge as a wasted step in helping troublesome students, but is attracting national attention among educators who are concerned that not enough is being done to protect teachers from being shot, hit or stabbed.

"I'm fairly sympathetic. If the administration doesn't take firm and absolute action, then you'll see more teachers taking actions to protect themselves. I'd do the same," said state School Superintendent Herbert Grover.

Lithuania accuses Moscow of 'psychological warfare'

WORLD

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis today accused Moscow of waging "psychological warfare" to force his Baltic republic to renounce its declaration of independence.

And, in a letter to the Soviet Parliament, he said that any attempt by the Soviet government or military to interfere with the enforcement of Lithuanian law would be a violation of international law.

Soviet armor rumbled through the Lithuanian capital's streets on Thursday, prompting the republic's leaders to issue a worldwide appeal for support and express concern that increasing Kremlin pressure would lead to violence.

The appeal followed orders from Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev that Lithuania stop signing up its own volunteer forces. He gave Landsbergis two days to reply, and ordered citizens to surrender their firearms within a week.

At the same time, Soviet military authorities ordered Lithuanian soldiers who deserted in the wake of independence to return to their units by Saturday, touching off fears that the rounding up of deserters would be used as a pretext to use military force.

Landsbergis said he was "concerned" that both deadlines fell on Saturday.

In Moscow, Gorbachev's military adviser, Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, told reporters that the army would act in accordance with Soviet laws in dealing with deserters.

Asked if mass arrests might not cause disruption in Lithuania and make Moscow look bad, Akhromeyev said: "Whether it looks good or looks bad, there's an established order, even if some people don't like it."

He said deserters would be detained and sent back to their units, where their fate would be determined. Some Lithuanians have deserted their units after complaining that fellow soldiers beat them in retaliation for their republic's declaration of independence.

Landsbergis said the Kremlin "was going from economic warfare to psychological warfare" in its attempts to make Lithuania renounce its March 11 declaration, according to Rita Dapkus of the Parliament's information center.

"New troops and maneuvers suggest that this is a psychological war," Landsbergis told parliament today.

Landsbergis' attitude toward Gorbachev appeared conciliatory. "Perhaps he faces obstacles," he said, adding that he still believed in the Soviet leader and hoped his good sense and moderation will lead a resolution of the problems.

Landsbergis appealed directly to the Soviet legislature for negotiations to solve the issues that Gorbachev has raised. A three-page letter was sent to the Supreme Soviet.

"Any attempt by the government or military organizations of the U.S.S.R. to interfere in enforcement of Lithuanian law in Lithuania will be viewed as a violation of generally recognized principles of international law," the letter said.

The letter added that in a 1920 treaty, the Soviet Union recognized "for all time" the sovereign rights and independence of Lithuania.

Landsbergis opened the session with an account of the U.S. Senate's resolution Thursday night urging Moscow to stop intimidating Lithuania and asking President Bush to consider granting the republic diplomatic recognition.

"The reaction was applause," Dapkus said.

The Kremlin has said it would not use force to bring Lithuania back into the Soviet Union. But Lithuanians have become increasingly concerned by the growing Soviet military presence in their Baltic republic.

"It is clear that another republic is going to use force against Lithuania and its citizens," said a Lithuanian government appeal to the world issued late Thursday. "We are asking people to prevent this by protesting the possible use of violence against a member of the world community, against Lithuania and its citizens."

A Lithuanian journalist identified only as R. Valatka said Thursday on late-night Lithuanian television that KGB officials had been going around to police stations asking for weapons counts.

The republic's police force has not been asked to turn in its arms, but Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene said the KGB "might even try to take weapons from the police, I don't know."

Romanian minister brings end to rioting

The protesters dispersed peacefully late Thursday after hearing the promises from Deputy Prime Minister Gelu Voican, who rushed to Tirgu Mures after clashes that left seven dead and 300 wounded.

Long suppressed under former dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, ethnic Hungarians have demanded greater autonomy and received some concessions from the provisional government, including the reopening of Hungarian-language schools in Transylvania, home to 2 million of the estimated 3 million ethnic Hungarians.

Strikes and demonstrations in Transylvania this week brought on the government's worst crisis since the December revolution that deposed Ceausescu.

Voican and a government commission went to this city of 165,000 northwest of Bucharest in an attempt to defuse the crisis, which culminated late Tuesday in street fighting among ethnic groups.

"Nobody is going to take Transylvania away from us. Don't let yourselves be fooled by rumors," Voican told 3,000 Romanians gathered on the square of Roses.

Earlier Thursday, about 3,000 Romanians and 1,000 ethnic Hungarians gathered at opposite ends of the square to shout slogans, separated by soldiers.

Many of the 23 million Romanians resent the concessions to the ethnic Hungarians. They believe the nationalistic ethnic Hungarians, supported by the Hungarian government, are trying to engineer the transfer of Transylvania to Hungary.

Voican's committee of inquiry met with Hungarian and Romanian community leaders.

"The Hungarian side agreed that there could be no talk of secession," Voican said.

A communique put out by Voican called for an end to the work stoppages that hit nearly all major factories in the area Thursday. Union leaders said workers would return to their jobs today.

But Voican said "the final and definitive guarantees to both sides cannot be given until after the coming elections. Both sides have accepted that."

Romania's first free elections since 1937 are set for May 20, and will establish a parliamentary system of government.

Until then, the country will continue to be led by the Council of National Unity, an amalgam of the National Salvation Front that took power during the revolution and dozens of opposition parties.

Kidnappers must pay for actions

As the weeks drag into months and the months into years, hopes rise and fall on whether the eight Americans and 10 other foreigners taken hostage in Beirut will be released by their captors. Some of the 18 have been held prisoner for five years, yet there seems to be little progress made toward their release.

Secret talks to free the prisoners have been going on outside Lebanon for more than a month. Several Third World governments and different business, family and terrorist groups are involved.

Releases have been stalled because Iran and terrorist groups want special payoffs. The talks are anything but morally uplifting. The lives and freedom of the prisoners are being traded back and forth like black market meat on a cutting block of deals.

The Iranians want to improve relations with the West on their terms — loans, aid and quick freeing of all blocked assets. Some Iranian hardliners want Arab terrorists freed as part of any deal. The kidnap groups want guarantees of their future after they release their prizes.

Iran and the fanatics holding the hostages are not so foolish as to believe they will be accepted back into the community of nations or civilized society after they free their prisoners. They are considering releasing the hostages because the value of the prisoners has become less — and their needs more. They are ready to dump their human cargo before the price becomes too low.

Before Iran, the major perpetrator of these kidnappings, can be welcomed back into civilized society, the unholy mullahs must give clear evidence that they will no longer practice such barbarism. Also, the West should continue trying to find the kidnappers and punish them. If and when the hostages are released, the West as a body will be free to act. Iran and the terrorists must pay a price for what they have done.

It will be up to President Bush and the Congress to decide what form that "cost" will take, but one thing is certain. Europe, Japan, and others cannot merely renew business as usual with that outlaw nation.

Nursing homes good places

It seems as if people only like to talk about bad things that happen in a nursing home; therefore, they tend to overlook all of the good things that happen and there are lots of good things that do happen.

I suppose their visits in a nursing home years ago may have left a bad taste or they have lost a loved one who has passed away in a nursing facility. I am truly sorry, but I feel that nursing homes are not given a fair shake. The nursing home employees work hard for the small amount of money they are paid. Nursing home employees are not chosen, they are born.

There are many dedicated people in this profession, volunteers included (and we wish we had more). The social activities, along with nursing, food service, etcetera, play a great role in the lives of the residents. There are nursing homes right here in Midland that have excellent programs that are stimulating and meet the need of all nursing home residents.

Unfortunately, unpleasant things occur; we lose a loved one. It's all in God's plan and men cannot control it. I think none of us want to face the fact that perhaps one day we may have to rely on a long-term care facility, either for ourselves or for a loved one.

I know I wasn't ready to face it six years ago when I placed my mother in one. So, if you have not visited a long-term care facility lately, why don't you? And maybe become a part of helping the dedicated people that make them better places to be.

Support urged

Thomas Dine, executive director of AIPAC, the pro-Israel lobby denounced the Bush administration and angrily said, "Remember that Israel's friends in Washington reside on Capitol Hill." Dine criticized a White House effort to withhold U.S. taxpayers' monies in regard to the financing of housing on confiscated indigenous Palestinian property on the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

AIPAC, the most potent lobby in Washington, is also bringing pressure on Congress (in an election year) to maintain or even increase the annual $3.6 billion of deficit-ridden taxpayer monies to Israel with few if any strings attached.

I would urge Reporter-Telegram readers to write/contact Senators Gramm and Bentsen to support the administration in spite of re-election threats by AIPAC.

Money spent on rat

I heard the other day that Midland was number one in Texas in per capita giving to the United Way. I am proud of this.

I just got back from Los Angeles and do you know what they are spending their money on? The kangaroo rat. They are spending $1 billion; that's right, $1 billion to protect the kangaroo rat. Los Angeles' value system is somewhat distorted when they spend more money on a rat than they give to their United Way.

Of course, they are not spending this billion dollars voluntarily — the federal government is requiring it.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

Twenty-five years ago, on March 23, 1965, America's first two-person space flight began as Gemini 3 — nicknamed the Molly Brown — blasted off from Cape Kennedy with astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young on board.

On this date:

In A.D. 752, Pope Stephen II was elected to succeed Pope Zacharias; however, Stephen died only two days later.

Failed S&Ls cause lawyer shortage

WASHINGTON — Not everyone is mourning the catastrophic failure of the savings and loan industry. Lawyers, the vulture capitalists of this disaster, are making a bundle off the carcasses of dead financial institutions.

Anderson

The man hiring law firms to represent the taxpayers is William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC). Our sources say that Seidman expects to pay a whopping $500 million this year to lawyers for legal work relating primarily to thrift matters.

Seidman privately lamented to a group of bankers last week that the FDIC and the Resolution Trust Corp. may "single-handedly be responsible for the first lawyer shortage in U.S. history."

The RTC is the stepchild that came into being last August to sell off ailing thrifts which the government has been forced to take over.

By one estimate, the government has seized 393 thrifts with $193 billion in assets. Another 157 thrifts with $113 billion in assets are insolvent and 400 more with $360 billion in assets are sick and probably on their way to the grave.

That explains why the RTC, which didn't exist a year ago, now has 2,400 employees and will probably have 5,000 by the end of this year.

The assets that the RTC will handle make it the largest financial institution in the world, the largest single owner of real estate and junk bonds and the largest auction firm in the country.

The combination draws lawyers like birds to carrion. One source at the RTC told us the government will be involved with an estimated 80,000 lawyers this year over savings and loan matters. That covers lawsuits filed by the government and against the government surrounding the disposal of thrift assets.

The FDIC and the RTC have a pool of 400 qualified law firms from which to choose, and the agencies divvy out the work to those on the approved list based on expertise and location.

The law firms making the most money are those with offices in the depressed areas of the country, such as Texas.

We have obtained a confidential internal FDIC memo listing the top 20 law firms and the legal fees paid to them by the FDIC in 1989 for commercial banks and savings and loan work.

The geographic area supplying the most law firms in the top 20 list is Texas with five. There are four from Chicago and two each from New York, Florida and Tennessee.

At the top of the list is Hopkins, Sutter, Hamel and Park, a Chicago firm in the ideal position of having strong offices in Dallas and Washington. Hopkins, Sutter earned $3.58 million from the government in legal fees last year, according to the internal memo.

Milberg and Weiss of New York, $2.74 million; Sidley and Austin of Chicago, $2.5 million; Morrison and Hecker of Kansas City, Mo., $2.37 million; Jenkens and Gilchrist of Dallas, $2.29 million; Mayer and Brown of Chicago, $2.18 million; Leonard and Marsh of Fort Worth, Texas, $2.16 million; Morrison and Foerster of San Francisco, $2 million; Carlton and Fields of Tampa, Fla., $1.96 million; Brown and Maroney of Austin, Texas, $1.53 million; Jones and Day of Dallas, $1.52 million, Morton and Lewis of Knoxville, Tenn., $1.51 million; Reid and Priest of New York City, $1.5 million, Stuzin and Camner of Miami, $1.46 million; Gable and Gotwals of Tulsa, Okla., $1.36 million; Sachnoff and Weaver of Chicago, $1.3 million; Miller and Martin of Chattanooga, Tenn., $1.14 million; Dorsey and Whitney of Minneapolis, $1 million; Kemp and Smith of El Paso, Texas, $996,000; and Adams and Howe of Des Moines, Iowa, $787,000.

GRIDLOCK — Americans spend more than 2 billion hours a year stuck in traffic. Yet the federal government is sitting on a $10 billion highway trust fund that could be used to repair and expand the network. The good news is Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner has promised to release the $10 billion. The bad news is he needs $350 billion to do the job right. Where will the money come from? In the past Congress has simply charged the costs to the next generation, but the nation can't go on running up a public debt without inviting private financial disaster. Congressional leaders agree they'll have to increase gasoline taxes.

CHARLEY REESE

Institutions only as good as their people

I have the answer to the question, "What's wrong with — ?" (pick the institution, trade, craft, or profession you like to gripe about). The answer is that while waves are individual, they are all part of the same ocean.

Reese

Not only will government, in all its many aspects, never be any better than the American people, neither will medicine, law, journalism, preaching, business, or whatever.

All of these institutions and vocations draw from the same common pool of humanity which generally share some common values. If, as appears to be the case, money is the highest value among the American people, then this will be reflected in every trade, craft, vocation, and profession.

It won't do any good, in terms of global competitiveness, to train students to solve problems if, upon entering the corporate world, the only problem they are asked to solve is how to please their boss and not otherwise cause any ripples. If they see that conformity and boot-polishing are rewarded, most will give the paycheck signers what they demand. Don't blame them. Those that refuse will be eliminated or shunted into dead-end jobs.

So while some things, like reform, may need to start at the bottom, leadership by definition has to start at the top. Leaders define what's good and what's bad — what's a value and what is not a value — by what they reward, what they punish, and what they ignore.

People are pretty good at reading the signals, too. That's as true of snow-white snobs bound for prep and proper education as it is of street kids on the south side of Chicago. What pays? What doesn't? Who gets the praise? Who gets the dirt? What's popular? What's unpopular?

Well, to the extent that newspapers, magazines, television, and motion pictures reflect American culture, money is the common value. Donald Trump, a private citizen, is followed through his marital woes by a horde of journalists for no other reason than he's rich.

Members of the U.S. House and Senate cater to the rich. Even two-bit radio stations in four-bit towns carry stock market reports as if a majority of their listeners were big time players and desperate to know how the Dow's doing.

There are hardly any shows on television or any movies made about people who aren't affluent. For one thing, a show about poor people sponsored by advertisers would be jarring and to the advertisers, a poor choice. Therefore the poor are left to the news department. Even there, most journalists prefer talking to affluent advocates of the poor, rather than to the poor themselves.

Charles Kuralt, bless his talented heart, provided an interesting example of this on his Sunday Morning show. He did a little piece about a homeless man outside the studio that he said he had twice passed every day for a couple of weeks. The punchline was, when is the United States going to do something about the homeless? Kuralt, however, mentioned in his spiel, that he himself did not know the man's name or anything about him. Obviously, on his way to the electronic pulpit, he never stopped to ask. And it didn't occur to him that he should have.

So while many people pay lip service to this or that worthy ideal — compassion, tolerance, take your pick — what most are really about are the bucks. Even some folks who preach about the carpenter's son from Nazareth are into six-figure salaries and perks, and if that isn't a contradiction, then my old King James contains a lot of misprints. Secular philanthropists, especially corporate ones, love that tax deduction and the press release.

Nothing wrong with making money or having it, but if that's the primary and sole goal, then no one should expect us to be competitive or, for that matter, enduring. Making money should be a by-product of doing something useful and productive.

MARIANNE MEANS

Bush blessed with political quality of luck

WASHINGTON — It is now clear that President Bush possesses at least one of the most useful qualities for political success: he's a very lucky fellow.

Means

His predecessor, Ronald Reagan, basked in exceptional good fortune that blessed his career even when he himself wasn't quite up to snuff. And those lucky stars seem to have stayed behind to beam on the current White House incumbent.

Consider the string of Bush triumphs that have more to do with circumstances than with masterful leadership on his part.

Unsure about how to handle Mikhail Gorbachev and his former satellites? The communist countries put on such a reassuring display of being on their knees that everyone is enchanted and distracted from the lack of American initiative.

Bogged down by a promise of no new taxes that prevents tackling the obscene federal debt? The Democrats, intimidated and confused, speak with dozens of voices and can't agree on an alternative that might show up the insanity of the Bush position.

Frustrated by a prolonged stalemate over Israeli-Palestinian peace talks? The Israelis finally shake up things themselves by dumping foot-dragging Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir in an unprecedented move.

Worried about a nerve gas plant in terrorist Libya? It burns down, the West Germans get the blame and there's no evidence we were anywhere near it.

Embarrassed by a Panamanian dictator that won't go away? After an invasion that employs three times as many troops as necessary and can't find its principal target, everything turns out fine when the Vatican kicks out Manuel Noriega.

Out of political ideas and strapped for a new Democratic boogeyman to replace tired old Teddy Kennedy? Up pops Rep. Richard Gephardt with some controversial ideas, a feisty politician ready-made for Republican barbs.

Trying to tactfully back away from the Contras without having much to do with Daniel Ortega? Nicaragua's long-awaited election turns out to be not only honest but to endorse the pro-U.S. opposition, much to the surprise of Ortega and everyone else.

Unable to bring the Middle East hostages home? Former President Jimmy Carter negotiates for their release, giving the problem bipartisan coloration and reminding everyone whose problem it was in the first place.

Nervous about Germany's rush to unification? West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl decides to replace Maggie Thatcher as America's special European friend and his party proceeds to win the East German elections, against the odds.

The list goes on. Don't like the Berlin Wall? The East Germans tear it down. Worried Gorbachev might fail? He gets himself elected president, with fancy new powers. Criticized by environmentalists for not fighting global warming? The weather turns cold.

Some historians believe that events make the man; others hold that it is man who makes events. The former theory is rapidly being confirmed by the happy presidency of lucky George.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Pilot drops dummy bomb

TOKYO (AP) — An American fighter pilot accidentally released a dummy bomb near the construction site of a nuclear waste reprocessing center, news reports and U.S. military officials said Thursday.

The accident caused no injuries or damage, said Capt. Phillip Delaney, a spokesman at the U.S. Misawa Air Base in northern Japan.

Delaney said the pilot "inadvertantly released" the 25-pound dummy bomb over a field about 1.5 miles from the base bombing range. Dummy bombs are for practice and do not explode.

He said there were no technical problems with the F-16C jet fighter, which was conducting routine runs with three other planes assigned to Misawa's 14th Tactical Fighter Squadron.

A report Thursday in the nationally circulated newspaper Mainichi Shimbun said the field is about four miles south of the Rokkasho nuclear waste reprocessing center, which is under construction.

Delaney could not confirm the distance from the range to the reprocessing center construction site. He said the circumstances surrounding the accident were being investigated.

Cuban diplomat expelled

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The government ordered Cuba's ambassador to leave the country within five days because he refuses to recognize the new administration of President Guillermo Endara.

The Cuban government's position has been one of "harassment, hostility and rejection," Foreign Minister Julio Linares said Thursday after telling Cuban Ambassador Lazaro Mora Secades he had to leave by Tuesday. "We're not going to let a goverment that is saying it doesn't recognize President Endara maintain accredited diplomatic missions in Panama."

Endara was installed at the beginning of the Dec. 20 U.S. invasion that ousted Panama's military leader, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who maintained friendly relations with Communist Cuba and shared President Fidel Castro's hostility toward the United States.

Endara has "a legitimacy that no other Latin American government enjoys, since no Latin American leader has been elected with an overwhelming 3-1 mayority," Linares said, referring to the May 1989 election Noriega anulled.

The expulsion "puts us on the edge of breaking of diplomatic relations" with Cuba, Linares said. But, he added, "Cuba can answer by breaking off diplomacy. That's its problem, that's its decision."

2 killed in copter crash

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — The wife of the governor of Jalisco state and a schoolteacher died in a helicopter crash Thursday and five people, including the governor's daughter, were injured, news reports said.

The official news agency Notimex said Idolina Gaona de Cosio Vidaurri died shortly after the crash at a hospital in Guadalajara, the state capital.

"Her death is an immeasurable blow to our family," Gov. Guillermo Cosio Vidaurri said.

Mrs. Cosio Vidaurri and her daughter Guillermina were on their way to a regional conference on family development in Villa de Purificacion when the government helicopter went down, the reports said.

The pilot, a bodyguard and two other people were also injured.

Rescue teams were rushed to the crash site, a rural spot known as the Hill of the Birds about 100 miles southwest of Guadalajara, the state capital.

The Excelsior news service said the pilot reported a mechancial problem shortly before the helicopter crashed.

Avalanche, floods kill 17

JAMMU, India (AP) — An avalanche and flash floods in northern India have left at least 17 people dead, including 10 border guards, a government spokesman said Thursday.

The border guards, on routine patrol in Budgaon village in Kargil district, and a civilian were buried under an avalanche late Wednesday in the remote mountainous area of Jammu-Kashmir state, said the spokesman who cannot be identified under briefing rules.

Kargil is 150 miles northeast of Jammu, the state's winter capital.

The spokesman also said a bus was swept away by flash floods Thursday morning at Bilol Nala near Jammu, and six passengers drowned. Witnesses said another five also were feared drowned but there was no immediate confirmation.

Pope to visit Mexico

TORREON, Mexico (AP) — When Pope John Paul II visits Mexico in May he will find it significantly poorer than it was during his last visit in 1979, the Rev. Saul Robles, the bishop of Zamora in Michoacan state says.

Robles told an episcopal conference Thursday that the average person's buying power has dwindled by 50 percent since the last papal visit.

The Rev. Carlos Quintero Arce, the bishop of Hermosillo, said that the gap between rich and poor has widened "scandalously" during the economic crisis of the 1980s.

The pope plans to visit Mexico for 10 days in May.

Blacks' death rate worsens, 'lifestyle' cited as reason

WASHINGTON (AP) — High homicide rates, AIDS and lack of medical care are continuing to cut short the lives of black Americans, while the health of whites is improving, a government report said Thursday.

While whites can expect to live to the age of 75.5, life expectancy for blacks is 69.5, and for black males it is 65.1, according to the study.

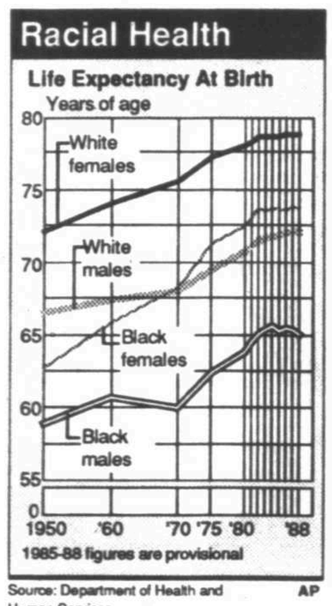
"This concerns us greatly," said Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan.

"We need to move toward equal health opportunity for our citizens — including the good health information and the family and community support that will help every American make the right choices for health and productive lives," he said.

Healthier living — quitting smoking, using seat belts, reducing violence and eating more nutritiously — is the key to improving health, since more than half the causes of premature death are related to lifestyle, he said.

"We have the data to show this pays off. This will have more effect than any of our (medical) research," he said.

However, he added that while "lifestyle changes are easily articulated as a goal, ... what we don't have enough information on yet is how do we most effectively get the information across and have people act on it."



The study, Health United States 1989, is the 14th annual report of the health status of the nation.

Overall, the country improved its infant mortality rate slightly to 9.9 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1988, although this rate still ranks the United States behind 21 other nations and the gap between whites and blacks is widening.

White infants died at the rate of 8.6 per 1,000 live births in 1987, down 0.3 points from 1986. During the same period, the rate for black babies dropped only slightly and at 17.9 per 1,000 births is more than twice as high as for whites.

Dramatic declines in deaths from heart disease, down 33 percent between 1970 and 1987, and stroke, which was cut in half during the period, contributed to the increased longevity of Americans.

But the gains weren't shared equally: The decline was greatest among white men, 35 percent, followed by 31 percent for white women, 28 percent for black women and 24 percent for black men. And in 1987, the death rate for stroke was twice as high among blacks as whites.

Health experts say the gaps are not always explained with behaviors, such as smoking, diet, homicide and other lifestyle factors.

Indeed, studies show that regardless of the age, education or marital status of the mother and whether she had early prenatal care, black woman are generally twice as likely to have a low birth-weight baby, a key factor in infant mortality, Sullivan said.

Also, some of the disparity in deaths from stroke cannot be explained by lifestyle, he said.

The decline in cigarette smoking is accelerating, Sullivan said. From 1985 to 1988, cigarette sales dropped about 2 percent a year, but decreased 6 percent from 1988 to 1989.

However, from 1970 to 1987, lung cancer — the leading cause of death among women — increased by 31 percent for white women and 25 percent for black women.

In 1987, homicide took the lives of seven times more black males than white males, while the homicide rate for black females was more than four times that for white females.

Blacks were also lagging in the proportion of mothers receiving prenatal care in the first three months of pregnancy. For blacks, the proportion was 61 percent in 1987, compared with 60 percent for American Indians, 76 percent of Asian and Pacific Islanders and 79 percent for white women.

A growing number of blacks are being diagnosed with acquired immune deficiency syndrome, increasing from 25 percent to 29 percent of all AIDS cases between 1984 and 1988. As of last September, blacks made up 55 percent of all AIDS cases among children under age 13, and Hispanics accounted for 21 percent.

Bush avoids Lithuanian - Soviet fray

State Department expresses concern over Soviet's seizure of citizens' guns

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is steering away from strong statements on the volatile situation in Lithuania and declining to criticize Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's order for secessionists to surrender their weapons.

"What possible good would come from the president of the United States, standing halfway around the world, speculating on something that he doesn't want to see happen," Bush said Thursday.

He spoke as Soviet armored personnel carriers moved through the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius in a show of force Thursday and leaders of the rebellious Baltic republic appealed for world support.

The president, at a news conference, urged the Soviets to refrain from using force to put down Lithuania's independence move.

He said he was pleased Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze had said Moscow would not use force.

"Please continue to exercise that kind of restraint. And remember, no use of force," Bush said.

He called on the Kremlin and Lithuanians to negotiate their differences.

"They should talk about that," Bush said when asked about Gorbachev's demand that the republic's citizens surrender their personal firearms. "My appeal would again be peaceful resolution through discussion of this difficult question."

Bush said it would be "presumptuous and arrogant" for him to get more detailed and say which side should initiate talks.

The State Department was more critical of the Soviet moves.

"We're concerned by the order to have internal security and secret police troops seize private sporting guns unless they are surrendered," department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Bush reiterated that the United States has never recognized the Soviet Union's forced annexation of Lithuania in 1940. "However, there are certain realities in life — the Lithuanians are well aware of them — and they should talk, as they are, with the Soviet officials about these differences," he said.

The president took questions from reporters on the White House lawn following a tree-planting ceremony to highlight his budget proposal for a $175 million forestation program.

On other topics, Bush said:

■ He sees no need for Soviet troops in Eastern Europe, including Poland where some officials have said a continued Soviet presence is needed for stability. "The sooner they get out of there the better," he said.

■ He has "a nuance of difference" with Polish Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki on whether a treaty is needed to guarantee current borders between Poland and Germany when East and West Germany unite. The Poles insist that a written guarantee is needed. Bush does not go that far, although he says current borders should remain.

■ He has been told Congress may buck at approving his $800 aid package for Nicaragua and Panama, with money to come in cuts from the defense budget. He urged swift approval of the aid.

■ A comment he made about opposing Jewish settlements in East Jerusalem did not contribute to the fall of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's government or disrupt the Middle East peace process, although many analysts contend the opposite.

Hopefuls trade shots in city race

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Candidates in the only contested Midland City Council race wasted little time in whipping out the political talons Thursday, a day after filing for the May 5 election ended.

District 4 candidate Mary Kniffen criticized city management and said opponent Tom Johnston probably would be another "rubber stamp" on the council.

"He's part of the good-old-boy network," Mrs. Kniffen claimed. "I have a different point of view."

Responding to the accusations, "Everybody is entitled to their own opinion," Johnston said of Mrs. Kniffen's comments. "Opinions are like noses, and everyone has one, and as a general rule, they are different.

"In this case, my opinion differs from Mrs. Kniffen's in that I am running as a city councilman and not as a special interest councilman. I will run on my merits, and she can run on hers. I'm not running a negative campaign."

Mrs. Kniffen also accused councilmen and high-ranking city officials of being too administration oriented and having little concern for their employees.

"The issue I'm most concerned with is where is the money," she said. "They always come up with the money for the bigwigs. Where's the money for the little people?"

Mrs. Kniffen said city administration has done little to patch relations between management and firefighters and police officers following a bitter election campaign last November. Firefighters and police officers lost in their bid for a 10 percent pay hike.

"They (city officials) have built no bridges between them and the firemen and policemen," Mrs. Kniffen said. "If they've done anything, they've widened the gap."

Johnston said administrators need to work out differences between themselves and all city employees, especially in the area of salaries.

"I can't agree with everything the city has done, but I can't condemn everything either," he said. "I understand the plight of the firemen, the policemen and other city of Midland employees."

Johnston, 39, has been an accountant with Estoril Producing Corp. since 1982.

He has served on the Midland Planning and Zoning Commission the past three years. He has been commission chairman the past year.

Johnston said administrators and councilmen must study diversification so city finances remain strong should a future oil boom again turn to bust.

A former Henderson Elementary School PTA treasurer and active First Baptist Church member, he is a 17-year Midland resident who is married and has two daughters, ages 12 and 10.

The former Midland Jaycees member moved to Midland from Lubbock in 1973.

Johnston said his City Council decisions would be made only after thorough consideration and not simply because other councilmen approve or disapprove of something.

Hotline now on-call 24 hours a day

By David Morris
Staff Writer

For the past year, Permian Basin residents have been able to call the Information and Referral Midland hotline with questions about where to go for help with their problems.

With the recent expansion of hotline services, they can now get those answers 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"People's lives do not run on a 9-to-5 schedule," said Debra Johnson Mayes, Executive Director of the Midland Volunteer Center, where the hotline is based.

"As with everything in life, (problems) happen when you least expect them to happen," Ms. Mayes said. "You never know when you're going to need help."

The hotline, which had been operating during regular business hours for about a year, expanded to 24 hour service two weeks ago through an agreement with Clearview Psychiatric Hospital.

Under the agreement, nighttime and weekend calls are forwarded to Clearview, where staff members can refer callers to appropriate social service agencies and even provide some counseling services, Ms. Mayes said.

"Clearview wasn't chosen solely because they are a crisis outlet, but because they offered to do it for free and because they have trained personnel," she said.

Before Clearview's offer, Ms. Mayes had not planned to expand the hotline to 24-hour service for at least another year.

"There are information and referral services throughout the state which have been around for years which are only just now going to 24 hours," she said.

Hotline callers, whose problems range from confusion about income tax forms to unplanned pregnancy and homelessness, are referred to social service organizations and other agencies which can provide advice and assistance.

"We are strictly a reference service," Ms. Mayes said. "We do not do any counseling or social work or anything of that nature."

Nevertheless, hotline workers hear their share of sad stories when trying to determine the nature of callers' problems.

Montez Johnson, who mans the hotline part time at the Volunteer Center, said she tries to lend a sympathetic ear.

"They'll have a drug problem, and they'll call you and talk to you and want to know what to do. ... They always tell you the story, the whole thing," she said. "You just tell them that you understand and that you're sorry — you give them a couple of numbers and try to reassure them."

Although some calls are tough, Ms. Johnson said no matter what the problem, there is probably an organization which can render some kind of assistance.

"I have not answered a call that I could not refer them to somebody," Ms. Johnson said. "They have so much information in these files — everything is here."

Ms. Mayes said it is most difficult to find agencies which can help people pay their rent, find low-cost transportation services or find low-cost nursing services for the elderly.

Many hotline callers are in financial straits and need help buying food or paying utility bills, she said. Churches and other charitable organizations can often help people in these situations.

"We really encourage people to call us up before a problem gets to be something that's just huge," Ms. Mayes said. "If you've got a problem, tackle it right away. (Organizations) can help with the small bills and the smaller problems."

Ms. Mayes said the hotline is not just for people in crisis situations.

"The day of the election and the day before we got a lot of calls about where to vote," she said. "And right now we're getting a lot of calls about how to do income taxes."

Ms. Mayes said the hotline has been "overwhelmingly successful."

"The No. 1 problem area was a lack of information about services," she said.

"Our goal was to receive 200 phone calls a month, and we are now averaging 400 to 500 calls a month. I think the need is a lot greater than we had envisioned."

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Big Spring Mayor Maxwell "Max" Green, his supporters and his critics will find out Saturday night if a concerted effort to oust the controversial mayor has been effective.

A relatively high percentage of Big Spring's 11,842 registered voters are predicted to express their sentiments toward Green in the 7 a.m.-to-7 p.m. Saturday balloting to recall the mayor or to keep him in office.

Already, 2,108 voters — 18 percent of the Big Spring electorate — have cast absentee ballots, according to Lana East, Big Spring's assistant city secretary.

Saturday's polling places, Ms. East said, are: District 1, Northside Fire Station and Kindergarten Center; District 2, Dorothy Garrett Coliseum and Kentwood Elementary School; and District 3, 18th and Main Fire Station and Wasson Road Fire Station.

Green's critics say the mayor has been too active in city management by going too far beyond the job's figurehead role. His supporters contend Green merely is carrying out his trouble-shooting duties as mayor.

Green, who has declined public comment until the recall election is over, earlier said that his supporters and advisers believe that he is "politically strong enough" to "win another election" and to defeat the recall effort.

Green, a Big Spring accountant, was elected to a three-year term last May.

In a press conference earlier this month, Green said that despite the pressure of the recall, "I will be suggesting new ways to improve our city government, making decisions, and asking for comments from all citizens of this community on how we can improve our current situation."

Green supporter Fran Jansch, who seemed confident of the mayor's victory in the election, said: "We don't want any more pushing, shoving or bickering.

"We want to get down to the business of running our city in a business-like manner," Ms. Jansch said.

Green critic, former schoolteacher Carie Dunnam who headed up a campaign to defeat the mayor, said that she is "very positive" that the voters by majority vote will kick the mayor out of office.

"We feel good that so many people are taking the time to go and vote," Ms. Dunnam said after absentee voting ended this week.

"I think the more people that vote the better our chances of having him recalled," she said.

Green supporters maintain that the mayor rightfully has a "part in managing the city, but we (critics) say he doesn't," Ms. Dunnam said. "We have have a managerial form of city government."

City manager is Hal Boyd.

By GREG McDONALD
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — FBI Director William S. Sessions has dispatched a group of agency managers to San Antonio to examine complaints of discrimination against Hispanic employees in the bureau's office there, officials said Thursday.

The announcement came as a San Antonio FBI agent testified before a congressional subcommittee that discrimination against Hispanic agents is worse now than it was before a Texas federal judge ordered sweeping changes last year in the FBI's system of promoting minority employees.

An FBI spokesman said Sessions, in addition to sending several representatives to Texas, also plans to meet personally with the supervisors in the San Antonio office and complaining agents to discuss the persistent charges of discrimination. The meeting has not been scheduled.

Sessions, the spokesman said, has also ordered the bureau's Office of Equal Employment Opportunity "to conduct sensitivity training for management and all agents" in San Antonio as well as Miami, Phoenix, Ariz., and Albuquerque, N.M., where there also have been repeated complaints of discrimination.

The spokesman denied that the actions are being taken as a result of the congressional testimony Thursday from San Antonio agent Gil Mireles.

Mireles and two retired Hispanic agents painted a grim picture of the FBI's equal employment policies before the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights. They complained of widespread reprisals against minority agents who had been involved in employment discrimination lawsuits against the FBI.

House votes down school finance plan as time runs out

By Rick Brown
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House members representing wide-ranging interests voted overwhelmingly against a school finance plan Thursday night in a move that could send the legislative process back to square one.

"I think what you've seen today is the complexity of the issue," said House Speaker Gib Lewis after the House voted 101-45 against approving a school finance measure it had worked 10 hours to amend.

"You had one group that was opposed to the bill because it did not spend enough money; you had one group that was opposed to the bill because it did the opposite," he said. "Then you had one group opposed ... because of mandates to the districts."

Observed Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, "Politics makes strange bedfellows."

Lewis said finding a compromise before the end of the special session Wednesday will be difficult.

"I do not have high hopes," he said. "But at the same time, each day that we progress, we get a better indication of what needs to be done."

The speaker said he will meet with House leadership, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Governor Bill Clements today.

The Texas Supreme Court this past October ruled the state's school finance system discriminatory and unconstitutional because poorer school districts are unable to gather as much revenue in local property taxes as wealthier ones.

Rep. Rick Williamson, D-Weatherford and vice-chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, told members that as long as the system relies on the levies for 53.9 percent of state education spending, it will remain "fundamentally flawed."

"Nothing about this bill changes that," he said.

The author of the measure, Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice and chairman of the House Public Education Committee, acknowledged that it contained many aspects she does not favor, such as a low level of initial spending.

However, she defended the bill's continued reliance on property levies. "I think it is important for the people in the districts to know that they have a direct and vested interests in seeing that their schools are run efficiently and effectively," she said.

Key votes throughout Thursday's debate indicated most lawmakers were having a hard time deciding what kind of finance plan they wanted to support.

First to fall was an alternative five-year education program supported by Gov. Bill Clements and costing $264 million in its initial year. That plan, offered by Rep. Alan Schoolcraft, R-Universal City, and supported by Republican members, lost on an 85-61 vote.

It mirrored an education plan developed by the Governor's Task Force on Public Education, which announced its program Feb. 27, the first day of the special session.

The plan stayed within the $300 million limit Clements has said he will support as long as the money comes from the existing state

Federal jury finds for executive in age-bias case

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

A federal jury in Midland this week found that a 58-year-old Midland executive, Donnie Ray Elmore, lost his job due to age-discrimination bias on the part of his employer.

"He feels like he has been vindicated," Elmore's lawyer, Melissa Hirsch of Odessa, said Thursday.

As a result of the jury's verdict, Elmore has been awarded $205,000 in a post-trial agreement between him and his former employer, Western Atlas International Inc. The Elmore-Western Atlas agreement was "by far the biggest age-discrimination settlement" in this part of West Texas, Ms. Hirsch surmised.

Elmore had been district manager for Western Atlas International Inc. in Midland for about four months when he was terminated by company management in March 1989, said Ms. Hirsch.

Elmore, who had been associated with the company for almost 33 years, started out with Western Atlas as a field engineer in 1956 when the firm was known as Elgen Corporation. Elmore had worked most of those years as a district manager in various offices in the continental United States.

Western Atlas had maintained that Elmore's job termination was tied to a reduction in workforce. However, Ms. Hirsch said, Elmore was replaced with a younger man in his mid-30s, and Western Atlas management "really didn't reduce their force (when Elmore was fired), we didn't feel like," the attorney said.

Western Atlas, an international wire-line company, had reduced its workforce since the downturn in the petroleum economy in the early 1980s. Western Atlas attorneys, Bruce Williams and Susan Richardson, left town after the trial and were unavailable for comment.

During his career with the company, Elmore "received something like 30 raises," Ms. Hirsch said, "and had never been told his job was anything but satisfactory."

Elmore's successor was hired at about the some annual salary — including benefits — of about $69,000, that Elmore was making, Ms. Hirsch said.

The six-member jury deliberated between 30 and 40 minutes before reaching a verdict.

"We felt like we had a good case," Ms. Hirsch said.

Initially, the jury had awarded Elmore $69,569, Ms. Hirsch said.

And the presiding judge, U.S. District Court Chief Judge Lucius D. Bunton, later was to rule on reinstating Elmore to his former position or awarding him "front pay" — his salaried pay from now until retirement age.

Instead, that option was bypassed after the case was settled for the $205,000, including Ms. Hirsch's attorney's fees.

90 million-year-old fossil found in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — A dentist's discovery in Austin's Shoal Creek turned out to be a 90 million-year-old skeleton of an aquatic reptile that should give scientists a better idea of the diversity of animal life that existed then, experts say.

Excavation of the plesiosaur fossil — found in January by a local dentist — began this week and is expected to continue for at least another week.

"We've had bits and pieces found before, but we don't know of any skeleton like the one here," said John Buckley, paleontology instructor at Austin Community College and a member of the Texas Memorial Museum's Vertebrate Paleontology Laboratory at the University of Texas.

"We still don't know how much we have. We don't know how far under the (creek) bank it goes," Buckley said.

He said plesiosaurs lived during a 100 million-year span that included the late Jurassic period — about 190 million years ago — to the beginning of the Cretaceous period that ended about 65 million years ago.

Gorden Bell, a UT paleontology graduate student, said plesiosaurs were giant swimming reptiles that frequented the warm, shallow sea that once covered central Texas. The reptiles were mostly carnivorous and fed primarily on fish.

Bell is one of about 10 students working on the excavation. Based on the fossil remains uncovered so far, this specimen appears to have weighed about a ton and was from 14 feet to 18 feet long, he said.

The painstaking excavation — done with small chisels, brushes and dental picks — so far has unearthed what are believed to be femurs from three of the creature's four flippers, two humerus bones, three ribs, the pelvic girdle and part of the jaw.

The fossil was discovered by Dr. Bob McDonald, an amateur paleontologist and full-time dentist, who was hunting for fossils along the creek in January with his 5-year-old son.

"I'd found fossils like this along the Sulphur River (northeast of Dallas) so I knew this was something," McDonald said. "The large bone was in plain sight but submerged in water. I suppose that's why it may have been overlooked."

HOUSTON (AP) — Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams, trying to win the endorsement of defeated Democratic gubernatorial candidate Mark White, already is tapping White's financial backers for help in his own campaign.

"I'm hoping to raise $200,000 to $300,000 this afternoon," Williams said Thursday after speaking to the Southwest Chemical Association, a petrochemical trade group.

His money pitch to White supporters, made in afternoon telephone calls, came a day after he courted White's support.

"I was interested in his thoughts and judgments," Williams said. "It was interesting to me his frustrations with the bureaucracy over the years."

He would not identify the White supporters donating cash to him.

He also warned that if Treasurer Ann Richards won the April 10 Democratic gubernatorial runoff against Attorney General Jim Mattox and launched a negative ad campaign against him, he would not take the attacks sitting down.

"I will say this, if Ann Richards comes at me like she came at Mark White with those very untrue ads, I will defend myself," Williams said.

"I conducted a very aboveboard and very positive campaign as all people know. But if she attacked me in the format she attacked Mark White, I will defend myself."

RECALL: Mayor's place in government debated

(From 1B)

Boyd, who has maintained a "neutral" public stance on the Green controversy, earlier said that "regardless" of the recall election's outcome, it is important that leaders, administrators and staff join others in making Big Spring a "better place to live" and to make the West Texas city "opportunistic" for industry to encourage economic growth.

Big Spring city management "has to continuously work and strive to maintain integrity regardless of the outcome of the (recall) election," Boyd said. "We have been caught in the middle of this thing, and we've tried to remain as neutral as possible."

Green, however, "wants to manage the city. That's the problem," said Ms. Dunnam. "He is not responsible for managing the city. That's under our city charter."

The mayor "acts as the seventh member of the council," she said. "He has one vote just like any other member of the council. But the city manager is responsible for bringing problems with city departments to the council, and "discussing" those problems and then seeing "what happens."

Ms. Jansch, who said that Green's chances for staying in office are "great," said that "It's just amazing the support that he does have. He's done a good job up to this point."

Two of Green's more outspoken critics, City Councilwomen Gail Earls and Pat DeAnda, sense that the mayor has favored some City Council members over others in making decisions, Ms. Jansch said.

Serving on the City Council are Tim Blackshear, Ms. DeAnda, Chuck Condray, Ms. Earls, D.D. Johnston and Sidney Clark, along with Green.

"If the other two women (Ms. DeAnda and Ms. Earls) can't get along with him, I feel like they need to resign," Ms. Jansch said.

"I can see where if they had a difference of opinion, they might decide they want somebody in there that they can work like a puppet-on-a-string. And that isn't how this mayor works," Ms. Jansch said. "If people bring problems to him, he going to check them out."

The recall campaign, has been "unnecessary," Ms. Jansch said. "He (Green) has not been derelict in his duties. He has done just exactly what we elected him to do.

"He has been a fighting mayor. We don't need a rubber-stamp mayor," Ms. Jansch said. "The voters can keep him in if they get out and vote. I'm very confident that he's going to be (mayor). They (the citizens) need to try to work for the betterment of Big Spring and put all this other stuff behind them."

RACE: Relations between city, workers one issue

(From 1B)

Johnston also is a Vietnam veteran who earned an associate degree in accounting and computer from Midland College in 1987.

Mrs. Kniffen, 52, said she wants to bring an employee-oriented perspective to City Council.

"We need somebody with a different point of view," she said. "We already have seven (City Council) people who think alike. They make their little deals and come out and vote."

Mrs. Kniffen is a temporary land analyst for Meridian Oil Inc.

A 28-year Midland resident, she has worked as a legal secretary for Exxon Corp., the Stubbeman, McRae, Sealy, Laughlin and Browder Inc. law firm and the Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe and Dawson law firm.

She also has worked for Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe and Dawson as an oil and gas legal assistant for six years.

Mrs. Kniffen is a graduate of Midland College and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, where she received her bachelor's of arts degree in management. She graduated UTPB with honors and also was named outstanding graduate in management in 1986 by that university's faculty.

She is married and has two children, ages 33 and 15. She is a charter member of the Legal Assistants Division of the State Bar of Texas and the Legal Assistants Association of the Permian Basin.

She is secretary of the Lee High School Tennis Boosters Club and a member of the Permian Basin Church of Religious Science.

She also serves as a member of a city of Midland panel which is conducting a salary study of city employees.

The District 4 victor will replace Robert Rendall in representing Midland's west side. Rendall, an attorney, announced that he would not seek re-election because he wanted to spend more time with his job.

Bob Monaghan, a councilman for two years, was the only candidate to file in the District 3 race to represent Midland's southwest side.

Monaghan, a Midland resident since 1959, is president of Cal-Mon Oil Co. He is an attorney with an engineering degree. He is married and has two sons, ages 21 and 23.

Mayor Carroll Thomas, 51, was the only candidate to file in the mayor's race.

Thomas, who has been mayor since 1986, is a Shearson, Lehman, Hutton Inc. employee who is married and has an 18-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter.

budget.

Clements has said he will veto any education measure requiring new taxes.

A majority of representatives also failed to support a modified task force plan pegged at the $450 million level, in part because it contained too many hidden costs for school districts.

Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, blasted that proposal as forcing $840 million in additional costs on school districts over its five-year lifespan.

"If we are brave enough to mandate programs, we ought to be brave enough to fund them," said Stiles of the measure, which fell on a 82-64 vote.

Later, representatives overwhelmingly endorsed the idea that the state should provide enough money for any new programs mandated by the Legislature, but they refused to raise property taxes.

While a House majority was loath to bow to Clements' "no new taxes" stance, neither was a majority ready to support larger sums.

Bee industry feeling 'killer bee' sting

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — With killer bees approaching U.S. borders, scientists are looking for a salve for the honeybee industry to take the economic sting out of the invasion.

Reports of swarming Africanized bees attacking small children and large animals have beekeepers worried — not so much about sometimes deadly bites as about the way they earn their living.

"Beekeepers will go out of business ... rather than go through all of this ordeal," said Donald O'Neill, president of the Louisiana Beekeepers Association. "People will not want to let them have locations to place their bees because people are afraid of the Africanized bee."

Much of the research under way at the U.S. Agriculture Department's Honey-Bee Breeding, Genetics and Physiology Laboratory at Louisiana State University is focused on protecting the gene pool of the domesticated European honeybee and teaching the public how to avoid the aggressive Africanized honeybee.

Bees help pollinate more than 100 crop plants in the United States, including almonds, apples, watercress and white clover.

"Every third mouthful of food or drink you take is there because of honeybees," said Richard Hellmich, a research entomologist at the Honey-Bee lab.

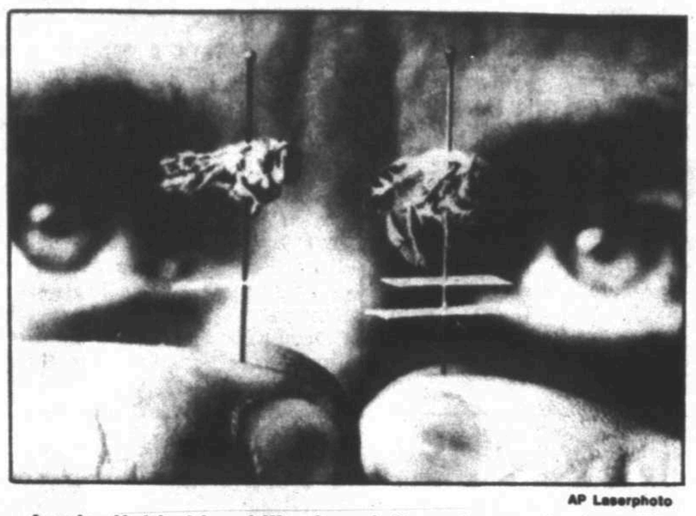
The Africanized bee — scientists dislike the sensational "killer bee" moniker — could wing into Brownsville, Texas, this spring. The bees have migrated 200 to 300 miles annually.

The $100 million-plus U.S. commercial bee business is beginning to feel the Africanized sting now.

"These bees aren't as bad as people make them out to be," said Bob Danka, a research entomologist at the Honey-Bee lab. "They are a problem. They're more defensive and not as productive."

The difference between the European honeybee, a companion of humans for the last 8,000 years, and the Africanized honeybee is like the difference between a domestic and a wild bee.



AP Laserphoto

They look the same. It takes minute measurements and genetic tests to distinguish them.

"The biggest problem in the United States will be liability," Danka said. "People will get stung to death by these bees."

But sensitive people also get stung to death by the gentler European bees, hornets and yellow jackets. Fewer people will die from Africanized bee stings than from lightning strikes, he said.

"A few to a few dozen die every year from insect stings. They died because one-half of 1 percent are allergic to bee stings. It's the same with Africanized bees ... which also will kill you by sheer numbers," Danka said.

The most likely victims are small children and old people who cannot outrun the insects, he said.

Twenty-six Africanized queen bees, exported to Brazil for a breeding experiment, were inadvertently released to breed with South American bees in 1957. Their range extends from northern Argentina to northern Mexico.

The scientists fear public overreaction to the arrival of Africanized bees could result in paralyzing quarantines. Even now, live Africanized bees are not allowed in the United States for study, so the researchers took their work out of the country to places like Venezuela, where the bees have a stronghold.

"We've seen these killer bee movies. It's pure science fiction. It sells newspapers. It sells magazines," Hellmich said. "But at the same time, we can't ignore Africanized bees."

Migration to cities on the rise

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — More Americans migrated annually to urban areas in the 1980s than in any period since World War II, according to a recently published book by a Cornell University professor.

The migration reversed the trend of the 1970s, when there was an unexpected increase in rural population as industrial and service-based employment spread from the cities and recreation and retirement industries developed. But within a short time, the industries that should have helped rural areas made them vulnerable to recessions.

The book, "Rural and Small Town America," was written by two rural sociology professors, David Brown of Cornell and Glen Fuguitt of the University of Wisconsin, and Calvin Beale, a senior demographer with the Economic Research Service at the U.S. Agriculture Department.

While there was a net exodus of 500,000 people a year from rural areas during the decade, the social and economic links forged between rural and urban America remained.

"Rural areas are not as traditional as a lot of people like to think they are," says Brown.

Crabgrass preventer may halt invasion

It's back and it's bigger and bolder than ever.

In a few months, homeowners in your neighborhood may be saying that about crabgrass invading their lawns. Summer weather has been tough on turf the last few years, creating plenty of opportunity for crabgrass to invade.

Kiker

Crabgrass, the bully of the neighborhood, usually wants to be the first on the block. Stopping it before it emerges, with a preemergent crabgrass preventer, can break the cycle of invasion and allow healthy turf to re-establish itself.

Crabgrass is an invited guest with bad manners. Forage research in the early 1900s showed it could provide a large quantity of high quality summer diet for grazing animals — far superior to native grasses grown at that time.

However, like many exotic plants introduced in the United States, crabgrass escaped into an unintended ecological niche where it has become the most troublesome weed in home lawns.

What made it good as forage grass helps assure its devastating survival in lawns. It fights aggressively for its "turf" in summer months when desirable grasses are slower growing. It stands up well to frequent mowing. And it develops many seed stalks throughout a growing season. One plant will bear hundreds of seeds which will germinate in many flushes through summer. Crabgrass survives through seeds that can lay dormant in the soil for as long as 30 years.

At its best, crabgrass provides an aesthetically undesirable, rough, patchy lawn because of its bunch-type growth habit. Desirable lawn grasses weave together to form a tight-knot uniform sod. Crabgrass prevents that good sod formation.

The biggest problem with crabgrass is when it isn't there. In the U.S., crabgrass lives about as long as the leaves on deciduous trees. However, crabgrass may not grow at all, depending on sunlight and rainfall patterns, or may germinate any time until early fall.

Crabgrass plants die with the first frost. The rough texture of crabgrass underfoot in late summer becomes stiff and bristly in fall. By spring, large areas of bare soil surround the dead carcasses of last year's plants and spring rains can cause soil to erode.

These bare spots are the areas where sunlight penetrates and brings the seed germination process for another season. Thus, successful infestation one year results in greater opportunities for invasion in future years. Healthy, dense and vigorous turf is the best cultural control of crabgrass. However drought, irregular mowing, diseases and insects can ruin a dense lawn, quickly leaving it vulnerable to crabgrass. Hand weeding and mechanical control are neither biologically effective or cost efficient.

The preferred point of control is before seeds germinate, killing the root system and thereby stopping the plant from initiating its ecological niche. Both healthy and troubled lawns may benefit from an early application of crabgrass preventer. In thin or sparse lawns, its preemergent activity will break that almost certain cycle of crabgrass plant growth.

Crabgrass preventer should be applied in March through May before weed seed germination.

Hightower urges organic farming

By James R. Owen
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, bringing his campaign for organic farming to Capitol Hill, tried Wednesday to persuade Congress to write a 1990 farm bill that would encourage greater use of organic methods.

Hightower

Hightower has been an ardent champion of organic farming, which avoids the use of chemically based herbicides and pesticides as well as fossil-fuel based fertilizers. The practice, although not in wide use in this country, has become increasingly attractive to environmentalists and consumer groups concerned about food safety and farm-based pollution from water runoff.

In making a pitch for organic methods, Hightower told the Senate Agriculture Committee that current federal policy has caused chaos for American farmers. That committee, along with a House counterpart, is now preparing its version of the 1990 farm bill, an omnibus package of legislation that will set U.S. agriculture policy for the next five years.

"It has busted their market prices, it has chained them to the overproduction of a few storable commodities, it has contributed to the depletion of agriculture's natural resources, it has sopped up intolerable amounts of taxpayer subsidies," the Texas Democrat said.

Hightower charged that during the past four decades, U.S. farm policy has encouraged heavy chemical use by linking federal farm benefit programs to maximum, "fencerow to fencerow" production, resulting in mineral-depleted soil and groundwater pollution.

Recalling the words of Earl Butz, the disgraced agriculture secretary who served in the Nixon and Ford administration who said "get big or get out," Hightower said the government has encouraged bad practices that have taxed farmland to the limit.

Hightower also said excessive use of synthetic fertilizers is an attempt "to fool Mother Nature."

"We have to recognize that agriculture is an art and a science of cooperating with nature rather than trying to overcome it," Hightower said.

Later, appearing at a news conference with a broad array of consumer, environmental and farm groups also seeking to influence the 1990 farm bill, Hightower remarked:

"There are a lot of folks in Washington who argue that we should be content to stick with the status quo in basic farm policy approaches. But, like a West Texas farmer told me recently, status quo is just Latin for 'the mess we're in.'"

Current farm commodity programs encourage most grain farmers, for example, to produce the highest possible yield, which results in excessive synthetic fertilizer use and overplanting, said Hightower. A better approach, he said, would reward farmers rather than penalizing them for using organic methods that can cut per-acre yields.

Another example, he said, would be to remove barriers that now penalize farmers who "rotate" their crops, the practice of switching crops from year to year to allow the soil to regain its natural minerals such as nitrogen.

Hightower also endorsed creation of "demonstration farms," which would instruct farmers in practical application of organic methods.

Congressional sources indicated Wednesday that while organic methods would be examined by the agriculture committees, it was unlikely that the 1990 farm bill would incorporate any major changes along the lines favored by Hightower.

One House staffer, speaking on condition of anonymity, said "Hightower's song is much different than what is being sung by the major commodity and farming organizations."

"We have to recognize that agriculture is an art and a science of cooperating with nature rather than trying to overcome it."

Don't Drink The Water!
Long-term drinking of chlorinated water appears to increase a person's risk of developing bladder cancer as much as 80 percent, according to a major new study.
"Your water supply could be loaded with contaminant, including bacteria, pesticides, industrial runoff and lead. It is expensive to test for all the possible contaminant, so installing a basic Charcoal-Activated filter acts upon the most common ones.
Ralph Nader states that the approach has got to be Prevention at the Source. (Tap water in the home.)
This is why we urge you to try SWEETWATER'S BACTERIOSTATIC SYSTEM. A patented mineral media that is effective in filtering municipally treated & private well water. For a cost of less than 1¢ a gal.

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Projects you have been involved with begin to pay off. Take a well-deserved bow! Reconciliations are possible in June. A class reunion provides the perfect setting for someone seeking a new mate. Private time will be more important than ever in September. Focus on reorganizing a business in October and November. A wonderful year-end bonus makes a fantastic vacation possible. Sticking to a diet-and-exercise regimen will make you look and feel better.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Brace yourself for possible repercussions if an associate behaves erratically. Avoid overindulging in food or drink. A loved one needs more nurturing. Take a chance on a blind date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A stroke of good luck restores your faith in the human race. Do not take a professional rejection personally. Someone could surprise you with a declaration of love. Be gentle with a child.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be candid with close friends and family members but stop second-guessing their decisions. Romance becomes more exciting. You could receive a special reward. Share the limelight with those you love.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A breakdown in communication could lead to confusion or embarrassment. Do everything possible to straighten things out. Short trips and small social gatherings are favored this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22): Avoid scattering your energies. Joint projects and artistic endeavors enjoy favorable influences. Tackle one task at a time. An older person will help you if asked. Your social circle is changing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Well-connected friends could help you finalize an important deal. Tie up any loose ends quickly so you can get away for a long weekend. You would be wise to double-check travel arrangements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Curb any outside activities that could interfere with an important work project. A new occupational field looks promising. Send flowers to someone you have hurt. Romance could take an interesting turn.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are in a more positive frame of mind now. Consult a lawyer if unsure about the fine print in a contract. You would be wise to dissolve an unrewarding relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A relationship could become strained. Something that seemed just fine in the past is no longer acceptable. A new hobby takes your mind off your worries.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A difference of opinion arises over the best way to solve a problem. Be willing to try new methods. A change of direction is advised for romance, too. Show your tender, loving side.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accept a loved one's apology graciously. You need to relax some of the rules where a teen-ager is concerned. Do your best to rise above an unexpected family expense. A Leo helps out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are in a conciliatory mood today. Do everything possible to calm someone who seems overwrought. Financial pressures ease when family members work together to reduce spending. Show your appreciation for their help.

Opening lead: Two of ◇

If an available line won't yield the tricks you need, it is feckless to even contemplate it. Just counting your tricks often can be enough to stop you from going astray.

Since neither defender held a five-card suit, which could have jeopardized nine tricks at sans atout, three no trump would have been simpler than four spades. However, neither North nor South did anything wrong in the auction. The play was something else.

The diamond opening lead went to the nine, ten and ace. Declarer cashed the ace and king of trumps, then ran the jack of hearts, losing to the king. The defenders banked their two diar .ond tricks and shifted to a club, taken by the ace. Declarer cashed all the trumps, but West clung stubbornly to all his hearts and declarer could scramble no more than nine tricks.

Had declarer paused to count his tricks, he might have found the right way to tackle the hand. South had seven fast tricks, and, therefore, needed three tricks from hearts to make his contract. Even a winning heart finesse would have yielded no more than nine tricks as long as West covered the jack, so another line had to be found.

The French have a name for it. Instead of the normal heart finesse, or impasse, declarer should have won the second trump on the table and led a heart toward the jack, or expasse. If East rises with the king declarer has his three tricks in the suit. If East follows low and the jack wins declarer must continue with a heart to the ace and then ruff a heart, hoping to fell the king. When that succeeds, the queen of hearts becomes the 10th trick.

Pryor hospitalized in Australia after suffering heart attack

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Richard Pryor was hospitalized after suffering a mild heart attack in northeastern Australia, and his agent said today that the comedian and actor was in stable condition and in good spirits.

Pryor was admitted to Wesley Hospital three days ago with chest pains, a hospital statement said today. It said Pryor was diagnosed as having suffered a minor heart attack.

Pryor, 49, was expected to be released early next week, said his agent, Guy McElwaine.

"Obviously, something like this tempers anyone," McElwaine told Australian Associated Press. "It scares me and it scares him. But he's in good spirits and making a few jokes.

"He said to me: Now you'll see what I'll go through to create new material," said McElwaine, who flew to Australia from Los Angeles to see him.

The Australian news agency said the comedian had been vacationing at the Sanctuary Cove resort in northeastern Queensland state.

McElwaine, Pryor's agent for 15 years, said Pryor was taken to a hospital near the resort after complaining of chest pains and then transferred to the Wesley for tests.

The hospital spokeswoman, Janice Wyatte, said Pryor was on a private visit. She did not say when he arrived in Australia or how long he planned to stay.

"He is in a very stable condition. He had some more tests this morning," Ms. Wyatte said.

Pryor has appeared thin and in poor health in recent public appearances. The comedian was very nearly killed in 1980 while "free-basing" cocaine, which involves heating the drug over an open flame.

The comedian recounted his drug and other experiences in the films "Richard Pryor Live on the Sunset Strip" and "Jo Jo Dancer, Your Life is Calling."

Other film credits include "Harlem Nights," "Stir Crazy," "See No Evil, Hear No Evil," "Brewster's Millions" and "Critical Condition."

LONDON (AP) — Singer Mick Jagger said there's nothing wrong with the Rolling Stones taking commercial sponsorship for their first European tour in eight years because, "We are all in a business in one way or another."

Jagger spoke at a news conference Thursday announcing the 12-country tour.

Asked why the tour needed the sponsorship of a U.S. beer company, Jagger told reporters: "We are all in a business in one way or another. We've got sponsorship and you have got advertising. I don't even remember a time when it was amateur."

The tour starts in the Netherlands May 18 and includes dates in Austria, Britain, Denmark, France, Ireland, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and West Germany.

Rolling Stones publicist Bernard Doherty said more than 150,000 tickets were sold within hours for two London concerts at Wembley Stadium.

He said negotiations were under way to end the tour with a concert in Moscow in August, but agreement had not yet been reached.

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Hunter S. Thompson was mistakenly invited to a dinner party with President Bush. But the "gonzo" journalist says there's no need for fear and loathing in Washington. He's not going.

Thompson, who is facing misdemeanor assault and drug charges in Pitkin County, received a letter recently asking him to join the Republican Senatorial Inner Circle and attend its May 3 spring dinner dance with President and Mrs. Bush as hosts.

"Last year, the Inner Circle had many outstanding members, including Joe Coors, Estee Lauder, Arnold Schwarzenegger, George Shultz and Sam Walton," the letter stated.

The letter said Thompson was nominated to join the elite GOP group by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal, said the letter was sent by mistake.

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Richard Nixon's longtime friend Charles "Bebe" Rebozo said the president laughed when he first heard of the break-in at the Watergate headquarters of the Democratic Party.

Rebozo

Rebozo, who owns the Key Biscayne Bank, gave a rare interview to The Miami Herald to help promote a benefit he and Nixon are holding for the Boys Club.

He said Nixon was visiting him at his Key Biscayne home in June 1972 when they first heard news of the incident that, two years later, led the president to resign in disgrace.

"We were swimming at Key Biscayne in front of my house," Rebozo said in the interview published Thursday. "They came out and told him. He said, 'What in God's name were they doing there?'"

Then, said Rebozo, "We laughed and forgot about it."

The banker said the subsequent scandal, in which he was also investigated, was a "terrible experience."

ATLANTA (AP) — Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca received an unexpected welcome when he visited an alternative school aimed at salvaging school dropouts — a rendition of the "Iacocca Rap."

"Lee Iacocca, for all you do, we dedicate this rap to you," Aaron Bolton, 20, began when Iacocca visited Rich's Academy, based in downtown Rich's Department Store, on Thursday.

Bolton, with the help of a friend who kicked out a drumbeat by using his mouth as a percussion instrument, began swaying to the beat as he rapped for a wide-eyed Iacocca:

"He left Ford Motor Company with a plan on the double.

"Became Chrysler's CEO, found out they were in trouble.

"He designed a new automobile, they called the 'K.'

"His new car and charming wit surely saved the day."

Iacocca toured the alternative school, formed in 1981, to see if he could use it as a model for similar schools through the Iacocca Institute, the philanthropic arm of Chrysler housed at Lehigh University, his alma mater.

Everything from shorts to sequins to snorkels — yes, snorkels — were paraded down the runway for the Pilot Club's Second Annual Spring Spectacular fashion show 7:30-10 p.m. Thursday evening at Midland Country Club. Local celebrities, including news anchors, modeled spring attire in a colorful show which culminated in an early visit from the Easter Bunny.

Tables were decorated with Easter Baskets, Easter Bunnies handmade by Faye Baum and silk flower arrangements provided by Kathy Littell of Mere Images.

Pilot Club member and model Barbara Hancock, prounounced the show a success. "We had a packed house," she said. The event raised $4,400 gross according to Mary Jane Wilds, Pilot Club treasurer. Proceeds will benefit the Midland Fire Department and the Fannin Elementary School Playground area for the handicapped. Billie Sherman was chairman of the event.

Rosella Grasha, owner of Cotton Tales, said she had "a blast" getting ready for the show. "I've really enjoyed it."

Not even excessively warm temperatures, due to the country club's faulty air compressor, could dampen the spirits of the models or the approximately 250 attendees.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Fashions modeled ran the gamut from floral prints to bright reds to subdued natural earth tones. Local celebrities included Sheriff Gary Painter, Modesta Willams — wife of Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams — Janet Storie of Channel 9 News, Eddie Wood of Channel 2 News, and Caroline Thau of Channel 7 News.

Michael Lawrence of KNFM served as master of ceremonies. He drew dozens of winning numbers for door prizes provided by area merchants. Door prizes included gift certificates from Backstage, Buddy's Flowers, Great Expectations; a calculator from Malone Business Systems; a manicure and haircut from Cletus; a massage from Metropolitan YMCA, and 10 tanning visits from the Tanning Place.

Entertainment was provided by men — many dressed as women — from Wilshire Baptist Church who sported a humorous array of outfits (that were virtual "creations") and fright wigs. The men's fashion show was accompanied by witty narrative. One male model wore a denim outfit with paint brushes sticking out from every pocket, described as "brushed denim." Another wore boxer shorts made from a cardboard box "designed to breath," and another a "cotton blouse" decked with dozens of attached cotton balls. "Heads will turn when you go out in this," described one man's attire of snorkel, goggles, swims fins and a fishbowl necklace.

Models pranced down the runway to contemporary music, including "You are So Beautiful to Me" and "Lady in Red" while wearing Janee's Evening Wear, "Rhythm is Gonna Get You" while wearing casual wear from Betty's Boutique and "Against the Wind" while wearing fashions from Lou's. Other fashions modeled were from Barbara's Fashions in Odessa, Cotton Tales, QT's and By Billie.

Diamond sponsors were Malone Business Systems, Pamy Oil Company and Texas Commerce Bank of Midland. Gold sponsors were John S. Bullard Jr., Copy Craft and Envoye Travel.

FAMILY MATTERS

Impact of loss not always evident

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: My mother recently died of cancer. She was sick for a long time so that we were all prepared for her death. She was only 63 years old, so that part was a surprise. She and my father had been married for almost 45 years. He seems to be handling her death very well — almost too well.

May

My sister and I have both talked to him about how he is feeling and he says that he is doing OK. We both think that he probably misses her more than he will tell us. Ohter people have told me that it sometimes takes a little while for a wife's death to really impact a husband. We are bo worried but really don't know what to look for. Can you give me some ideas as to what we might expect and be ready for? LOOKING

DEAR LOOKING: Although grief is an individual as the person experiencing it, some generalizations are to be expected.

At first, the loss of a spouse can be numbing and the widowed survivor can be swept-up by a sense of unreality.

After this stage comes a "breaking down" phase, during which feelings are so overwhelming that some people try to avoid them. But tears and sadness are to be expected and experienced — not denied.

As the pain begins to subside, the survivor starts to adjust to the loss, possibly by learning new skills and taking on new responsibilities. In the final phase, these changes become "normal." A new lifestyle is in place and is more natural.

Emotions to watch for include denial, anger, guilt and despair. The denial is often focused on "why her?" The anger may be directed at the doctors, the hospital, God, the disease, or those around. Sometimes people feel guilty for not doing enough. Overly responsible people often experience guilt. The despair follows from the sadness and loneliness.

Physical responses to loss can include sleeping all the time or not sleeping, loss of appetite, tightness in the chest or throat, weakness, constant sighing, breathlessness, and lack of energy. Be on the lookout for any of these emotional or physical responses to your mother's death. Expect them within reason, but don't let them go too far.

Hospice of Midland offers a program called "Friends Who Care" that is designed to support widows and widowers. You can get more information on the program by contacting 682-2855.

DEAR FAMILY: After the death of my brother-in-law, my husband (his brother) started having panic attacks. He has a hard time breathing, he feels like he is going to choke, his heart starts beating real fast, and sometimes he gets real dizzy. We have taken him to the doctor thinking that it might be heart trouble, but his heart is fine. One time it happened early in the morning and we had to take him to the emergency room. After spending almost six hours there, they sent us home with a few pills and said nothing was wrong.

My husband doesn't want people to think that he is crazy and I see him in a lot of pain. I'm getting really scared when he has one of these attacks. It hasn't affected his work yet, but I know that one day it will. Then I don't know what we will do. Do you have any suggestions? STUCK

DEAR STUCK: I encourage you to treat your husband's panic attacks very seriously. Research suggests that people who suffer panic attacks are 18 times more likely than usual to kill themselves.

I know it is frustrating to take him to the doctor or the emergency room, only to be told that nothing is wrong. Something is wrong with him. I strongly encourage you to take him to a psychiatrist for an evaluation for panic disorder. I know he doesn't want people to think he is crazy, but he needs help and it is available.

DEAR ABBY

House guest needs to be shown door

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine — I'll call her Sara — asked if she could stay with me temporarily until she found employment and an apartment. (She's relocating.)

Van Buren

She had no trouble getting a job because she's well-qualified in her field, but she hasn't found an apartment yet. She says she's looking, but I doubt if she's looking very hard.

Sara is not the ideal houseguest. She's on the telephone constantly, comes and goes at crazy hours, and has friends calling her all through the night. I just discovered that she had checks printed with my address!

I think she's abused the free room-and-board privileges long enough, which is where I need your help. Please tell me how to get her out of here. — ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

DEAR ENOUGH: Tell Sara that you both need your space, and she appears to need more space than you can give her, so you would like her to be out of your apartment in "two weeks," or "three," or "30 days." (Give her a deadline.) Anyone who would have checks printed using the address of a friend without that friend's consent has nerve she hasn't used yet.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Fed Up," I had to write. My situation was almost identical. From the day "Don" and I were married, we had one of his friends staying with us — and it continued for eight years!

I was the medical miracle who was walking around with no brain and no guts. I should have spoken out sooner. I finally filed for divorce when my husband refused to ask his buddy to leave, and the buddy refused to leave. It became apparent that my husband preferred his friend's company to mine.

You're right, Abby, asssertiveness training can give a person courage she never knew she had. I feel like a new person since I learned to speak my mind without being defensive.

Keep up the good work. People need to be told that they don't have to live in abusive situations — that help is out there if they have the guts to leave, and go for it. — IN CONTROL IN FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

DEAR IN CONTROL: Congratulations for taking control of your life. And to those of you who don't know where to find a course in "assertiveness training," inquire at your local college or university, or your local mental health association.

DEAR ABBY: Very briefly, my question is this: If both the donor and the recipient of a gift are in the same room when the gift is opened, and if the recipient expresses sincere gratitude for the gift — and even gives the donor an appreciative hug — is it still necessary for the recipient to send a written thank-you note? — ME IN TORRANCE, CALIF.

DEAR ME: Very briefly: Yes.

DEAR ABBY: Fiddledeedee, none of those explanations of "Mind your P's and Q's" is the proper one.

The expression harks back to the days when type was set by hand, letter by letter. Of course, the letter on each piece of type looked "backward" in order to print "forward"; hence it was very easy to mix up lowercase "p's" and "q's" — hence apprentice typesetters were constantly admonished by their masters to "Mind their P's and Q's." — NANCY CAREY, A LONG-AGO TYPESETTER

Nightmares may resolve waking conflicts

Associated Press

Sigmund Freud, who authored the 1900 landmark study "The Interpretation of Dreams," believed that nightmares were an expression of people's darker, primitive side.

But some experts today view nightmares in a much more positive light. They believe these dreams are the psyche's means of unearthing, and sometimes resolving, life's conflicts.

Rosalind Cartwright, director of the Sleep Disorder Service and Research Center at the Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago, says that both good and bad dreams offer a review of what's going on in a person's life and a rehearsal for what's coming up. But when the subject of a dream becomes too much to handle, such as a problem that seems insurmountable, the dream can turn into a nightmare.

According to Ladies' Home Journal, people can learn to read the symbols in their dreams. For example, being chased in a nightmare represents feeling stuck or feeling threatened. Climbing can be symbolic of a desire to realize an ambition or anxiety about making a change, while falling often mirrors feelings of loss, insecurity, lack of control or fear of failure.

When people miss planes, trains and buses in dreams, it often means they feel they are not progressing in life or fear they are missing an opportunity. Taking tests represents anxiety over a tough task, and appearing nude symbolizes fear or ridicule, exposure or embarrassment.

Once the symbols in a nightmare are clear, people can learn to work through the problem that caused the dream.

The nightmare itself will go away when the person realizes it isn't harmful. Cartwright recommends a technique in which people go back to sleep and try to change the nightmare's ending.

Some sleep scientists go even one step further with an approach called lucid dreaming, or the ability to recognize a dream as it occurs. By facing the threatening image, the dream character tends to merge with the dreamer. Having dealt with the fear, the dreamer is able to banish the image.

Solitary voice from Himalayas

By Binaya Guruacharya

GODAVARI, Nepal (AP) — The Rev. Marshall D. Moran worked for Mahatma Gandhi and drove India's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, around in a jeep. But to most of those who know him, he's simply "Mickey Mouse."

"I want to continue as long as I find people wanting to talk to me," said the 83-year-old Chicago-born Jesuit, ham license 9N1MM, the only private radio operator in this tiny Himalayan kingdom sandwiched between China and India.

Since he started out on the radio he built himself, Moran estimates he's talked to more than 80,000 ham operators. "I used to talk to captains of ships at sea."

In 1961, the Maritime Radio Club of Houston sent him the radio he's used since.

Moran learned to make receivers from a friend in school. "When I was 13, I used to sell them to my friends. The parts would cost me $90 ... I would sell it for $100. In those days $10 was good money."

Those were also the days when broadcasting was young and no one had heard of television. "I saw the development of radio and television from the very beginning. I was lucky to see the beginning."

Moran set sail from the United States in 1929, in search of a new homeland in Asia. He settled first in India, and became principal of St. Xavier's School in Patna in the eastern Indian province of Bihar.

It was there, in 1939, "while I was in the middle of putting a high school in Patna, I met Gandhi — the great man... After a half hour talk with him I agreed to work for him," Moran recalls.

"In 1946, just before the end of the Second World War, I was going to shillong to give a retreat lecture before Christmas," he said, and Jawaharlal Nehru, who a year later would become prime minister, was on the train.

"Nehru was then president of the Congress (Party). Large crowds would come to see and hear him when the train stopped at railway stations, and when his microphone did not work his voice stopped and I went up to the speakers and connected the wires," Moran said.

Two years later, as principal of St. Xavier's in Patna, Moran made his first trip to Nepal, to conduct examinations for Patna University. He moved to the mountain kingdom in 1951 so settle, intent on starting a boarding school.

At the time, there was no airport, so he took a train to Raxaul, the last Indian township on the border, and made his way to Bhimphedi at the base of the Himalayan foothills. "There were eight porters waiting for me with an ulinkath (an open palanquin). Four of them carried me on it and four others followed, running behind them, changing turns every 10 minutes," he said.

Chicago-born Rev. Marshall D. Morna, an 83-year-old Jesuit known as "Mickey Mouse" and the only private radio operator in Nepal, talks to people in other parts of the world.

"This was the only means of transportation system in those days to enter into the Nepalese capital. ... I saw even cars being carried by men on their shoulder along the trail. At Bhimphedi, people took off the wheels of a car and they put the car on top of two long logs with nine planks strapped sideways and 36 people in rows of four men carried it on the trail to Thankot."

When Moran brought his own car into Nepal that in 1951, however, he did it by air. Even so, he said, it was a Herculean effort.

That year, Moran met Nehru a third time. The prime minister was visiting as a state guest, "saw me at a civic reception standing among the huge crowd and told King Tribhuvan, pointing at me, 'This is my most favourite driver.'"

It was also the year that Moran established St. Xavier's, in an old maharaja's summer palace 5,000 feet up in the Himalayan foothills, where he still teaches five days a week — when he doesn't have his "ears on."

IT'S YOUR LIFE

Aging misconception due to society's attitudes

By Steve Edwards

The misconception about aging is that it is "all downhill from here." But the truth is, aging brings positive attributes too.

Edwards

Memory may decline, but judgment and the ability to understand significance improves with age. Vision may not be as good, but the ability to comprehend what is seen improves with experience — and age.

Mankind has always dreamed of perpetual youth and worried about aging. In 1909, the word "geriatrics" — from the Greek "geron" (old man) and "iatrikos" (medical treatment) — was coined to define medical care for the aged. But not until the last 25 years did geriatrics, even as a word, come into general use.

The study of aging has helped destroy so many myths concerning the process.

Older people today are physiologically younger than the generation at the turn of the century. Many of our 65-year-olds today are more like their 50-year-old counterparts 90 years ago, due to improved nutrition, health care and environmental sanitation.

Believe it or not, Whistler's mother, who epitomizes "old age," was 44 years old when her famous portrait was painted.

Recent scientific reports have discovered:

■ Muscle tone and strength can be regained by 60- to 90-year-olds with an exercise program of six to eight weeks.

■ Improvement in diet can reverse some of the fatigue, irritability, insomnia and confusion in elderly patients.

■ Loss of bone density (osteoporosis) — a common problem in the aged, particularly women — may be the result of a lifetime of faulty diet and hormone imbalance, not an inevitable part of aging.

■ Tooth loss and gum disease can be minimized by preventative techniques.

■ Appetite — and health — improve when the dining atmosphere is warm and friendly.

■ Healthy sexual activity can continue throughout life. All that is needed is an "interested and interesting partner." As myths about aging are being proven false, it begins to seem clear that the diminished function of the older person may be due to society's attitudes, not aging.

Steve Edwards is executive director of Community and Senior Services and the Visiting Nurse Service of Midland.

Local runners head to Hobbs

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Only two weeks ago local track teams failed to win a single event in the West Texas Relays. A week later gold was found 10 times in a big turnaround.

Now, Saturday, all four local teams are headed for Hobbs, N.M., for a relay-emphasized meet, hoping to pan for more gold.

Midland High got a double gold performance from Albert Ray in Levelland, winning both the 100 and 200 meters in 10.5 and 22.2. These were his first individual efforts since joining the team from basketball.

Midland Lee's Brett Sullivan turned in a 22.43 in Snyder's Canyon Reef Relays for his second win of the year in the 200. Lee's sprint relay team added Reggie Webb to its runners and won for the first time in Snyder with 42.48 and beat Odessa Permian in the process.

Midland High's Annette Glover won for the third time this year in the 100 with a 12.49 after being upset by Abilene High's LaShonda Kendrick in Odessa the week before. Glover, however, lost to Kendrick in the 200 at Snyder as those two continue a 4-5A fued.

Lee sophomore Traci Logan jumped to the front in Snyder, grabbing victories in the 800 (2:28.90) and in the 300 hurdles (no time available). She also ran a leg on Lee's winning 800 relay team as a new insertion into that lineup.

Midland High's John Braun climbed into the winner's circle for the first time this year with a 152-9 in the discus as he continues to improve and moves into position to challenge for a Region I berth.

MHS' Shan Barron also produced a 20-7 in the long jump for his first varsity victory last week to round out the 10 Midland victories.

The Hobbs meet will have four relays for both girls and boys, allowing individuals to enter four events instead of the regular three. That will give runners some added wind sprints.

Some other individuals are close to moving into the winner's circle. Midland High's Cindy Carullo placed second in both the 3200 and 1600 in Snyder while Midland High's Jack Kelso had a second in the pole vault in Levelland.

Spartans face stiff Tech test

NCAA SE

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jud Heathcote says his fourth-ranked Michigan State Spartans won't go to gimmick defenses in an effort to stop Georgia Tech's Dennis Scott in tonight's NCAA Southeast Regional semifinal game.

"We just don't think it would be to our advantage, the way we play team defense," Heathcote said Thursday.

Heathcote calls the Spartans (28-5) a "blue collar team," one that used hard work on the defensive end to capture the Big Ten championship.

He calls Ken Redfield "the best defensive player in the Big Ten, maybe in the country."

He will rely on Redfield to defend Scott, who led No. 9 Tech (26-6) with 27.6 points per game — hitting 121 of 309 field goals from 3-point range.

The Spartans, seeded No. 1 in the region, and Yellow Jackets, seeded fourth, will meet in the Louisiana Superdome 30 minutes after the opening semifinal between sixth-ranked Syracuse (26-6) and No. 20 Minnesota (22-8).

"It's our defense against the offense of Georgia Tech," Heathcote said.

"It's going to be very difficult for us to defense him because we haven't seen anyone like him," Heathcote said.

"Kenny helped Dennis and I raise our game to another level," Oliver said. "I don't think he's playing like a true freshman."

Tech coach Bobby Cremins knows a low-scoring game would favor the Spartans, who are looking for their first Final Four appearance since Magic Johnson led Michigan State to the 1979 national championship.

"We're going to try and play our game regardless," Cremins said. "We play a certain style and I cannot turn it off right now. If we're missing, we're missing."

Tech's game is a free-wheeling, fast-break attack, one in which Scott often will pull up to shoot the 3-pointer. Anderson and Oliver also fire from long range, with all three Tech players shooting 41 percent from that range.

"These guys have been a great perimeter game," Cremins said, adding that he originally thought this would be a rebuilding year for the Jackets because of an inexperienced inside game.

Tide hopes to slow down LMU break

NCAA West

"I was out trying to buy some track shoes," the Alabama coach said Thursday.

Sanderson didn't really want to find any. He knows he must slow down, not run with, Loyola Marymount if the Crimson Tide expects to prevail in tonight's NCAA West Regional game.

UNLV (31-5) meets Ball State (26-6) in the other semifinal.

Last week in Long Beach, Loyola Marymount pummeled New Mexico State 111-92 in the first round and then humiliated defending champion Michigan 149-115 in the second round.

The Lions (25-5) are assured of setting an NCAA record this season, averaging 125.2 points per game. Their fast-break, force-the-pace, shoot-from-anywhere style is being touted as the offense of the '90s.

Sanderson isn't so sure.

"I haven't seen anybody who plays like them," he said, "but I'm not sure if that's the style of the future. Players win games, style doesn't. Good players make that offense work. When you have bad players, that style probably wouldn't be worth a hoot."

Sanderson believes the Tide "can win an 85- or 90-point game," but he doesn't want to find out.

Alabama (26-8) hopes to play at its own pace, which will be considerably slower than Loyola's — whose isn't? — but won't resemble a four-corners stalling tactic, Sanderson said.

"We'll try to hold down their opportunities by trying to run off the clock and not shoot with 30 seconds left on the shot clock," Alabama guard Gary Waites said. "We'll take our time once we get past midcourt."

"We'll try to keep the score in the 70s," forward Melvin Cheatum said. "If it gets in the 100s, I feel it would genuinely be to their advantage. We've got to handle their pressure to win the game. They run a bunch of guys at you."

Loyola coach Paul Westhead doesn't intend to take prisoners.

As if his team's frenetic pace against Michigan wasn't enough, he said the Lions can actually play at a faster tempo, and intend to against Alabama.

"There were times against Michigan when we brought the ball upcourt at three-quarter speed," Westhead said. "We're trained to bring it at full speed."

Added Loyola forward Bo Kimble, "I know we can go faster than that."

Westhead said he is confident of being able to dictate the tempo. He'll try to do it by enticing Alabama to take the quick, open shot.

'Horns, Hogs win; UConn beats clock

Associated Press

Texas and Arkansas will play for the third time this season, while Duke and Connecticut will meet for the third time ever in Saturday's NCAA regional finals.

After Arkansas routed North Carolina 96-73 on Thursday night, Texas rallied from a 16-point deficit to beat Xavier 102-89 and set up an all-Southwest Conference battle for the Midwest Regional championship at Dallas.

Although Arkansas beat Texas twice this season, Longhorns coach Tom Penders is happy to play the Razorbacks again.

"It will be a great matchup," he said. "It's good for the conference."

In the East final at East Rutherford, N.J., Duke and Connecticut will renew an interconference rivalry that produced a 4-4 split during the season-opening ACC-Big East Challenge.

UConn edged Clemson 71-70 on Tate George's jumper at the buzzer, and Duke beat UCLA 90-81 to reach the regional final for the fourth time in five years.

Duke has a 2-0 record against UConn, including a 101-54 victory in the 1964 East final.

"They play like crazy. They play hard and so do we," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said of the Huskies.

In tonight's regional semifinals, it will be Michigan State vs. Georgia Tech and Syracuse vs. Minnesota in the Southeast at New Orleans. UNLV plays Ball State and Loyola Marymount meets Alabama in the West at Oakland, Calif.

Midwest

Texas 102, No. 25 Xavier, Ohio 89

Lance Blanks fired blanks in the first half, then found the mark in helping Texas shoot down Xavier.

Blanks, who missed his first eight shots, scored 26 of his 28 points in the second half as the Longhorns rallied.

"I challenged myself mentally at halftime," Blanks said. "I didn't want it to be the last half of my career. I started driving and the shots began to fall."

The Longhorns (24-8) are going to the final eight because their "BMW" guard trio — Blanks, Travis Mays and Joey Wright — operated on all cylinders. Mays scored 32 points and Wright 26.

"I drive a Pinto myself, but I think I see why they drive a BMW at Texas," Xavier coach Pete Gillen said. "We couldn't stop those guys."

Xavier, which upset top-seeded Georgetown in the second round, finished 28-5, the most wins in school history. Early in the second half, it appeared the victory total would be even higher.

Led by their 6-foot-10 duo of Derek Strong and Tyrone Hill, the Musketeers increased a 53-41 halftime lead to 16 points by scoring the first two baskets of the second half. Texas rallied and went ahead 75-74 on Blanks' steal and dunk with 9:10 remaining. Blanks then led Texas on a 15-2 run that broke the game open.

"Texas got on a roll and it was like trying to stop an avalanche coming down the side of a mountain," Gillen said. "Poof! Our lead was gone. It was like we hit a brick wall or something. We had no answers."

Strong scored 27 points and Hill had 22.

No. 7 Arkansas 96, North Carolina 73

Lee Mayberry's 3-point shooting and the inside play of Oliver Miller helped Arkansas pull away from North Carolina and advance to the final eight for the first time since 1979.

The Tar Heels outscored the Razorbacks 11-1 early in the second half to take a 45-42 lead. A Mayberry 3-pointer broke a 54-all tie and gave Arkansas the lead for good.

After a free throw by North Carolina's George Lynch, Arkansas got two more 3-pointers from Mayberry and one from Todd Day in just over a minute for a 66-55 lead with 8:17 left.

"If we blow up and things go right for us, we're very tough to stop," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "And that's what happened to us."

North Carolina coach Dean Smith said the 3-point streak was "too much to overcome."

"I think we got impatient trying to catch up, and that was my fault," Smith said following his worst NCAA tournament defeat since a 92-65 loss to Purdue in the national semifinals in 1969.

Lenzie Howell led Arkansas with 25 points. Miller, who scored 13 points in the final 6½ minutes, finished with 19.

East

No. 3 Connecticut 71, No. 17 Clemson 70

George ruined another colossal Clemson comeback and put Connecticut (31-5) into the final eight for the first time in 26 years.

After missing a jumper with three seconds left, George got another chance to win the game when Clemson's Sean Tyson missed a free throw with 1.6 seconds remaining and the Huskies got the rebound.

"When I missed that first shot, I was coming to the realization that my career might be over," George said. "But they said in the huddle, 'It's not over, it's not over.' "

George got a perfect pass from Scott Burrell, a major-league pitching prospect. George caught the ball on the right side of the basket, turned around and swished the winning shot over Tyson as the buzzer sounded.

"The game isn't 39 minutes and 59 seconds," Connecticut coach Jim Calhoun said. "We had just enough time to win it."

Clemson (26-9), which rallied from a 19-point deficit to beat La Salle in the second round, trailed by the same margin with 12:36 left and was still down 14 with six minutes left. The Tigers took a 70-69 lead on David Young's 3-pointer with 11 seconds remaining, his only basket of the game.

"It was a typical comeback for our team," said Coach Cliff Ellis, whose squad won six games this season after trailing at halftime. "We've tasted the thrill of victory that way a lot. But I guess the further you get, the worse the agony of defeat feels."

Chris Smith led UConn with 23 points. Elden Campbell and Dale Davis, Clemson's 6-foot-11 "Duo of Doom," each scored 15.

No. 15 Duke 90, UCLA 81

Phil Henderson scored 28 points, including six 3-pointers, and sparked a decisive second-half run as Duke continued its mastery at the Meadowlands.

UCLA, which trailed by as many as 11 points in the first half, rallied to lead 66-65 on a 3-pointer by Tracy Murray with 7:53 left. With Duke trailing 68-67, Henderson hit his final 3-pointer to start a 15-5 run that put the Blue Devils ahead to stay.

Henderson said the game changed when Duke's big men, Christian Laettner and Alaa Abdelnaby, each went to the bench with four fouls in the second half.

"When our big guys went out, they went to a zone," Henderson said. "The shots became available and I took them."

CBS gives the okay for bigs to play 162

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball players will have to use the abbreviated spring training schedule to get ready for a full season.

Following the end of the 32-day lockout, and word the season will be delayed a week, it was feared part of the 162-game schedule would be lost because of a conflict with CBS.

But Commissioner Fay Vincent announced Thursday a compromise with the television network that extends the season and pushes back the start of the playoffs and World Series. Details of the full schedule will be released in the next few days.

At the time the settlement was announced early Monday morning, baseball said all teams were set to play 158 games, and that efforts would be made to restore the missing games.

Late Thursday afternoon, the efforts were completed.

CBS holds the rights to televise the playoffs and World Series, and had to give its permission for the postseason schedule to be changed.

"One of the major objectives was to preserve the full 162-game schedule, and I am pleased that we have accomplished that," Vincent said. "I thank CBS and the Players Association for their cooperation in making this schedule adjustment possible."

The National League playoffs will begin Oct. 4, instead of Oct. 2. The American League playoffs were switched from Oct. 3 to Oct. 6. The World Series will begin Oct. 16 instead of Oct. 13.

If the World Series goes to seven games, it would end Oct. 24. Last year, after an 11-day delay because of the Bay area earthquake, Oakland completed its four-game Series sweep of San Francisco on Oct. 28.

Baseball said one of the two series missed because of the delayed start will be made up during the regular season. The other series will be played from Oct. 1 to Oct. 3.

Bryan Burns, baseball's senior vice president for television, said there were provisions to deal with rainouts at the end of the regular season, but he did not detail them.

Doubleheaders, day-night doubleheaders and playing on open dates are ways the missing games can be played in the middle of the season. Open dates seem to be the alternative that baseball would prefer.

Meanwhile, players continued to drift into spring training camps in Florida and Arizona with less than 2½ weeks to get ready for opening day on April 9 and all 162 games.

In Phoenix, Jose Canseco arrived at the Oakland A's training camp on Thursday and said he was disappointed that the club used his off-field problems with the law in their salary arbitration case.

"I think it was a low blow," said Canseco, who has been ticketed many times for speeding and once was discovered with a gun in his glove compartment.

For managers, the problems had to do more with the law of averages. With such a short time to evaluate talent, some of the young players were bound to be overlooked.

"It's really unfair," Cincinnati first-year manager Lou Piniella said. "It's a shame. But in three weeks, we've got to get the veterans ready. It's plain and simple."

Cleveland Indians manager John McNamara is hoping to keep his pitchers from trying to be too ready too soon.

"We're going to take it slow, at least as slow as we can with the time we have," McNamara said. "We'll look at pitches, not innings, probably 45 pitches for each man, and then we'll take a closer look toward the latter part of spring training."

Spring training also brings aches and pains.

Outfielder Kirk Gibson reported to the Los Angeles Dodgers' training camp at Vero Beach, Fla., but did not participate in drills because of a sore left leg.

Gibson, recovering from surgery performed last August to repair a torn hamstring tendon, said the leg was sore

Umps ponder spring boycott; upset with scheduling

NEW YORK (AP) — Just when baseball seemed to put its troubles aside, another problem popped up.

Major league umpires, upset with the revised regular-season schedule, are considering a boycott of spring training games, The Associated Press learned Thursday night.

A source familiar with the dispute said umpires may protest by not working this spring. The umpires are not threatening the regular season, the source indicated.

Richie Phillips, head of the umpires' union, said from his home that there would be some sort of announcement around 11 a.m. EST Friday regarding umpires. He did not elaborate.

Exhibition games are to start Monday and opening day is April 9. The owners' 32-day lockout delayed the beginning of spring training for a month and pushed back openers by a week.

Baseball announced Thursday that it will play a full 162-game schedule. The season has been extended for three days and other games will be made up during the year.

The umpires, the source said, are upset that they were not consulted about changing the schedule. Baseball already has rescheduled some games for previously open dates, and umpires are worried that will mean fewer off days for them.

The umpires have other concerns, the AP learned. The use of fill-in umpires, particularly in the American League, is an area of contention.

Umpires signed a four-year contract just before the start of the 1987 season. They had gone on strike three times in the previous nine years, the last during the 1984 postseason. Amateur umpires were used for a few playoff games, but not in the World Series.

The umpires' contract expires at the end of the 1990 season. The main issue in the last contract talks was money.

Players and owners reached agreement on a four-year contract Sunday night, ending negotiations that started last Nov. 28.

Spring training camps officially opened Tuesday, less than three weeks before the start of the regular season.

Edberg may be looking at No. 2

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Winning the International Players Championships probably would mean more than a $179,000 payday for Stefan Edberg. A No. 2 world ranking also is within reach.

Mindful that the top two seeds — Ivan Lendl and Boris Becker — already have been eliminated by upsets, the 24-year-old Swede insists he isn't looking past tonight's semifinal match against Emilio Sanchez.

"I thought I had a chance to become No. 2 if I could win this tournament, but I've still got two matches to go," said Edberg, who won a pair of tiebreakers Wednesday to beat Jakob Hlasek in the quarterfinals.

"It's a good opportunity to win, but as you see I'm struggling already. I've just got to keep going."

A disputed linesman's ruling at match point in the third-set tiebreaker kept Edberg alive, and he went on to defeat Hlasek 6-7 (7-9), 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (8-6).

"It was a very, very close call, and my first impression was the ball was out. It was very, very hard to say," said Edberg, who trailed 6-5 in the decisive tiebreaker when Hlasek hit a forehand volley down the line and out of the Swede's reach.

"I let the umpire make the call, and that's the only thing you can do in this situation. I just went on playing."

Hlasek, thinking the match should be over, argued briefly with chair umpire Gerry Armstrong. When play resumed, Hlasek double-faulted, then hit a backhand wide to allow Edberg to escape.

"When you play so close to the lines like both of us, there are going to be a few bad calls," Edberg said. "Unfortunately, it happened on a match point. ... This could happen to me next time, so I sort of feel sad for him."

The victory moved the No. 3 seed into the semifinals of the $2.5 million tournament for the second time and set up a fifth career meeting with No. 15 Sanchez, who upset Lendl in the quarterfinals and beat No. 10 Martin Jaite 6-3, 6-3 on Wednesday.

No. 5 Andre Agassi and No. 7 Jay Berger meet in the other men's semifinal. Agassi advanced with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 triumph over Jim Courier, and Berger moved on when No. 16 Pete Sampras withdrew after injuring his left leg in a fourth-round victory over Jean Fleurian.

Agassi, who trailed 5-1 in the first set before pulling his game together, said Berger is "the kind of player that kind of counterpunches and keeps the ball in play.

Pistons show fallibility in loss to Rockets

Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons aren't perfect. Every two weeks or so, they lose a game.

The defending NBA champions had their 12-game winning streak stopped Thursday night, 115-110 by the struggling Houston Rockets.

The Pistons lost just once in February and this was their first defeat in March. The Pistons had won 25 of 26 since Jan. 21 before falling at Houston, and are 33-5 in 1990.

"We'll just have to start another streak. We've already had two this year," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said.

With a month left in the regular season, the Pistons have the league's best record at 51-16 and are the only Eastern Conference team to have clinched a playoff spot.

Spurs 107, Trail Blazers 106

At San Antonio, Willie Anderson made a foul shot with 1.2 seconds left and San Antonio ended Portland's 10-game winning streak.

The Spurs had lost 12 straight to Portland since April 15, 1987.

SuperSonics 125, Nuggets 118

Xavier McDaniel, who missed 12 games after arthroscopic knee surgery, returned to the lineup to lead Seattle over visiting Denver.

Mavericks 116, Magic 106

At Orlando, Rolando Blackman scored 32 points and Derek Harper had 27 as Dallas sent the Magic to its 17th loss in 19 games.

Blackman shot 12-for-21 from the field and Harper was 11 of 17. The Mavericks trailed 84-82 after Blackman's 10 points helped them surge.

NCAA Women

Defending champion Tennessee moved into the final eight of the NCAA women's basketball tournament Thursday night with an 80-62 victory over Clemson.

The Lady Volunteers (27-5) got 14 points each from Carla McGhee, Tonya Edwards and Kelli Casteel in taking another step toward the Final Four, which will be played at the University of Tennessee.

"Fortunately, our team right now really wants to be a part of the Final Four," Coach Pat Summitt said. "I mean we've heard for the last five months about the Final Four, and how many tickets they've sold. We know the University of Tennessee is throwing a party, and we'd hate not to be a part."

Tennessee meets Virginia, which beat Providence 77-71 in the other semifinal at Norfolk, Va.

Tennessee went ahead to stay midway through the first half on a pair of free throws by Casteel that made the score 22-20. Tennessee led by eight points at halftime and stretched its advantage to 61-38.

No. 12 Virginia 77, No. 18 Providence 71

Dawn Staley scored 24 points as Virginia (28-5) set a school record for victories. The Cavaliers never trailed, although Providence (27-5) tied the score at 46 with 13:45 to play.

The Cavaliers went ahead to stay on a basket by Dena Evans that made the score 54-52 with 9:04 remaining.

Venus Lacy scored 21 points as Louisiana Tech (31-0) ripped Purdue. Louisiana Tech, seeking its third NCAA championship in nine years, had scoring spurts of 10-0 and 11-0 in the first half to lead at halfime 52-30.

No. 15 Purdue (23-7) was led by MaChelle Joseph with 16 points, all in the first half.

Lacy played just 23 minutes. Shantel Hardison added 20 points while playing only 25 minutes.

No. 8 Texas 72, No. 11 North Carolina State 63

Edna Campbell scored 19 points and Texas overcame North Carolina State's early 11-point lead.

Texas trailed 28-17 with 5:14 to play in the first half but ran off nine straight points and pulled within 32-30 at halftime.

The score was 50-50 when two baskets by freshman Cinietra Henderson put Texas ahead to stay.

Henderson supported Campbell with 17 points for Texas (27-4). Andrea Stinson had 21 points for North Carolina State (25-6).

MIDEAST

No. 3 Washington 73, No. 19 South Carolina 61

Karen Deden scored 17 points and started a 17-2 second-half run that gave Washington control of the game. Washington (28-2) turned a 29-26 halftime lead into a 20-point bulge less than 10 minutes into the second half.

Jacki Myers and Laurie Merlino each scored 13 points for Washington, which is playing in the tournament for the sixth straight year.

Beth Hunt led South Carolina (24-9) with 20 points but went scoreless for 15½ minutes in the middle of the game.

PGA

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tom Byrum's newly relaxed grip on a golf club might be just the thing to tighten his grasp on the winner's trophy in the Bay Hill Invitational.

Byrum, who has won once on the PGA Tour, said he had "a lot of good luck" in fashioning an opening-round 64 that gave him a three-shot lead over Larry Nelson. Byrum figured a more relaxed grip was the key to his mastery of the 7,114-yard, Arnold Palmer-designed Bay Hill monster.

"The first-round leader is usually somewhere down the list on Sunday," Byrum said. "Hopefully I can change that. ... I'm learning to relax out there."

Byrum covered each nine in 32 in pulling away from Nelson, who had sides of 34 and 33 in shooting a 67. Two-time U.S. Open champion Andy North, Billy Andrade, Welshman Ian Woosnam and Spaniard Jose Maria Olazabal were at 68.

"I felt like I deserved what I shot," said Nelson, who has won 10 tournaments and almost $3 million in a 16-year career.

Byrum, a pro since 1985 who won the 1989 Kemper Open, had six birdies and an eagle — on the par-5, 543-yard 6th hole. He drove to the left, hit a 3-iron approach 93 yards to the right of the green, and holed out with a sand wedge.

'Trash Queen, Big Vic' lead Turquoise

LPGA

PHOENIX (AP) — Cindy Figg-Currier has been called "the Trash Queen" since college because of her inability to hit the greens consistently. Vicki Fergon says she can't shed her nickname of "Big Vic."

If they continue to play like they did in Thursday's first round of the LPGA Turquoise Classic, one of them will be called champion by Sunday.

Fergon chipped in for an eagle on the 500-yard 13th hole en route to a 5-under-par 68 to tie Figg-Currier, who had seven birdies in her morning round.

They share a one-shot lead over six other players heading into today's second round on the 6,514-yard Moon Valley Country Club course.

"The course condition was perfect and I really hit the ball well, but I never even thought about leading," said Fergon, winner of two tournaments in 14 years on the tour but none since 1984.

Oil futures on upward trend

Oil futures continue to seesaw. While West Texas Intermediate closed at $20.00 on Thursday, it was following an upward trend in midmorning trading, up 18 cents to $20.00. Posted price still clings to the $19.00 mark into a second week.

Futures sagged in moderate trading Thursday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, pressured by new government statistics that showed energy supplies are bigger than expected.

The report by the Department of Energy contrasted with industry statistics released Tuesday that showed oil products in the nation's storage tanks fell sharply last week. Tuesday's figures by the American Petroleum Institute helped boost oil prices Wednesday.

The DOE report showed that inventories fell but by much smaller amounts.

In trading Thursday on the New York Merc, contracts for West Texas Intermediate, the key grade of U.S. crude, for delivery after May fell between 1 cent and 40 cents. The May contract edged up 4 cents to finish at $20 a 42-gallon barrel.

Among refined products, April heating oil, which surged 1.19 cents on Wednesday, fell 0.53 cent to 55.01 cents a gallon. May heating oil rose 0.54 cents to 52.97 cents and June advanced 0.49 cent to to 52.09 cents.

Dollar slips slightly, gold inches up

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was slightly lower in trading in Europe this morning, with attention focused on other major currencies.

"There is no evidence of a trend in the dollar right now," one Milan trader said. "The market's exclusively a vehicle for cross-trading right now."

Traders said attention continued to focus on the weakness of the Japanese yen, with the market expecting a significant move by monetary authorities to shore up the Japanese currency after the market shrugged off a increase in Japanese interest rates earlier this week.

In London, the dollar fell against the British pound, which was quoted at $1.6040, compared with $1.6015 late Thursday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $393.40 a troy ounce, up from $393.05 bid late Thursday. At midmorning, the city's major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $393.60.

Share prices tumble, Tokyo loss

It was the third straight decline on the New York Stock Exchange, following a vigorous rally in recent weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials tumbled 32.21 points to 2,695.72, breaching the key psychological level of 2,700. The blue-chip barometer was down more than 40 at one point in the afternoon.

Declining issues outstripped advancing ones by around 3 to 1 in nationwide trading of NYSE-listed stocks, with 1,200 down, 368 up and 409 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board totaled 175.93 million shares, up from 130.99 million in Wednesday's session.

After a break for a national holiday Wednesday, the Tokyo stock market fell again in chaotic trading Thursday, three days after the third-worst drop in its history.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

UAL board, labor unions to talk buyout

CHICAGO (AP) — UAL Corp.'s board of directors agreed to negotiate with United Airlines' labor unions on a proposed employee buyout of the company and threw the bidding open to other suitors.

In a two-paragraph statement issued Thursday after a special meeting in New York, the board said it had directed its financial advisers to develop a plan for selling company assets, to consider buyout proposals from other parties and to address all other alternatives for increasing the value of its shares.

Chicago-based UAL is the parent of United Airlines, the nation's second-largest carrier after American Airlines.

Treasury appeals S&L bailout blockade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration asked a federal appeals court to dispell a legal cloud that could delay the president's savings and loan bailout and cost taxpayers millions of dollars.

The Treasury Department's Office of Thrift Supervision appealed on Thursday an order from U.S. District Judge Royce C. Lamberth blocking the takeover of a suburban Chicago savings institution, which has $1.1 billion in assets.

Lamberth sided with Olympic Savings and Loan Association of Berwyn, Ill., in ruling Wednesday that acting thrift office director Salvatore R. Martoche and his predecessor, M. Danny Wall, were unconstitutionally appointed.

'Texas Chain Store Massacre' not final

DALLAS (AP) — Some are calling Southland Corp.'s plan to sell control to a Japanese company the "Texas chain store massacre" but the sale may not be all that final. It could face strong opposition from creditors who must approve a restructuring of $1.8 billion in junk bonds and other debt, analysts say.

But the proposal by the owner of the 7-Eleven convenience store chain gets different views from opposite sides of the Pacific: Japanese analysts say the deal should go smoothly while some in the United States say it's shaky.

"The exchange offer ... will ensure a rapid descent toward bankruptcy," said Chriss Street, a managing director with Seidler Amdec Securities Inc. in Los Angeles.

Southland said Thursday it agreed to sell 75 percent of its common stock for $400 million to Ito-Yokado Co. Ltd., Japan's second-largest supermarket operator, and longtime Southland affiliate 7-Eleven Japan, which Ito-Yokado controls.

7-Eleven is the world's largest convenience store chain, offering items ranging from milk and frozen foods to newspapers, hot coffee, video rentals and "Slurpee" slushed ice drinks. It began in 1927 as a Dallas ice house.

Southland, which sought the Japanese buyer, said the deal hinges on the company's ability to get 32 bank creditors to restructure terms of its outstanding preferred stock and $1.8 billion in debt.

Much of the debt is in high-interest junk bonds used to finance the $4.9 billion leveraged buyout by its founding Thompson family in 1987. Under a restructuring, the debt would be exchanged for new bonds and stock with a much lower face value.

"The Japanese acquisition asked the bondholders to put themselves at tremendous risk if Southland files for bankruptcy reorganization," Street said. "It is a 'trust me' situation. Bond holders and Southland are suffering from their original acquisition."

A recent court ruling limiting bondholders' claims in a bankruptcy proceeding to the bonds' fair market value at the time of the exchange offer will hurt the deal's acceptance by creditors, he said.

Mark Yim, an analyst with Baring Securities Inc. in Tokyo, said the deal makes good sense for Ito-Yokado, which is flush with cash

Major Japanese Buyouts

The ultimate dollar value of the Ito-Yokado–Southland deal will probably make it one of the top five Japanese acquisitions of U.S. companies. But the final tab will not be known until Southland negotiates a restructuring agreement with 32 banks for its preferred stock and $1.8 billion in debt, much of it in the form of high-interest junk bonds. Ito-Yokado will pay only $400 million in cash for 75% of Southland's common stock.

Listed below are the 10 largest acquisitions by Japanese interests of major or controlling stakes in U.S. companies (figures in billions):

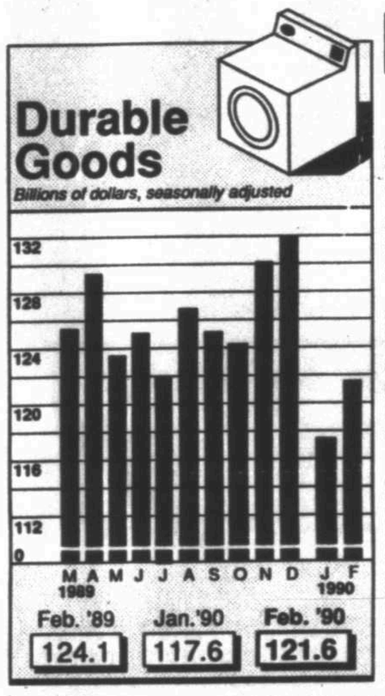
Durables rebound in February



WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders for "big-ticket" durable goods, led by the transportation sector, bounced back 3.3 percent in February from the steepest drop ever recorded, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said orders to U.S. factories for durable goods — items expected to last more than three years — totaled a seasonally adjusted $121.6 billion last month after plunging a revised 10.7 percent in January.

The January decline, originally reported to be 10.5 percent, was the biggest since the government began keeping track 32 years ago and broke the previous record set in the recession month of February 1982 when orders plummeted 9.2 percent.

Transportation orders, which accounted for most of the January drop, rebounded 11.2 percent last month to $30.2 billion. They had fallen 29.4 percent in January.

'Motor vehicles and parts and shipbuilding and tanks showed rebounds from last month's sharp declines," the department said, 'while aircraft and parts declined for the second month in a row."

The automobile industry had laid off more than 90,000 workers during January to erase a backlog in inventories. Most of those workers returned to production lines in February.

The January report had been viewed as another sign of weakness in the manufacturing sector of the economy. That sector has been particularly affected by high-interest policies of the Federal Reserve since many of the "big-ticket" items involved are financed by loans.

'Excluding transportation, orders were up 1.0 percent," the department said.

The closely watched non-defense capital goods sector, often a barometer of business investment plans, fell 5.7 percent after dropping 13.7 percent in January. It had risen the previous three months.

Unfilled orders fell 0.4 percent to $493.3 billion, the first decline since August and only the second since early 1987.

Orders for electrical machinery rose 4.2 percent to $20.2 billion after falling 15 percent a month earlier.

Orders for non-electrical machinery, including computers and a variety of industrial equipment, dropped 1.1 percent to $22.2 billion after advancing 3.0 percent in January.

New Look

Continental Airlines has unveiled its "look of the 90s," a new upscale corporate image that symbolizes the airline's continuing worldwide commitment to customer service excellence.

Continental's 6,200 flight attendants are now outfitted in classically tailored navy blue uniforms with gold braid trim. In addition, first class flight attendants on transoceanic flights will now wear white dinner jackets during meal service. The new high-quality uniforms, which have a total $5 million price tag, were developed by a special flight attendant task force.

Central Bank of San Angelo fails

Staff Report

A prominent West Texas Bank, Central National Bank of San Angelo, was declared insolvent by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency Thursday.

The official announcement was issued by Kevin M. Blakely, deputy comptroller for special supervision. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) was appointed as receiver. The FDIC later announced that it has agreed to sell the bank's assets to First National Bank of Lubbock for an as-yet undetermined price.

The bank did open its doors today and First National will honor CNB checks written on accounts by the former bank and its two branch offices. The bank's new president is Gary Fletcher, an officer in the Ford Bank Group Inc., parent company of the Lubbock bank.

The closure caught many customers by surprise.

"I never did think it was going to happen here in San Angelo," said Jo Ann Martin. "I am very surprised and can't believe it is all taking place, especially here."

Other customers were worried about being unable to have access to their money.

Stated Lupe Casanova: "It's very upsetting and inconvenient."

Eastern, pilots agree on contract

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines and its pilots union have agreed to an interim contract that calls for a 25 percent wage cut, but does not call for rehiring pilots who went on strike, the company said Thursday.

And the carrier insisted it needs twice that amount in concessions by the time the contract expires on July 1 to emerge successfully from Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings.

The wage cut applies to Eastern pilots still being paid at the pre-strike wage rate. Eastern had 3,600 union pilots who honored picket lines when a sympathy strike with Machinists began in March 1989. Since then, many pilots have returned, replacements have been hired at lower wages and the airline has sold many routes.

Time to resolve the dispute "regrettably has just about run out, in light of the reorganization timetable," said Thomas J. Matthews, senior vice president of human resources for the carrier, which is owned by Texas Air Corp.

Eastern Air Line Pilots Association spokesman Edward Breen charged that the company intends to use the temporary agreement, which was negotiated with the help of the National Mediation Board, as a device to crush the union.

He said by demanding more concessions in advance, Eastern hoped to push the talks into a final impasse.

"Their first preference would be to have the NMB put us in a cooling-off period," Breen said Thursday. "After that, they can impose their own conditions."

Breen said ALPA executives had agreed in principle to the contract, but it will not be signed until after a formal vote of the Master Executive Committee on Saturday in Washington. He said the union leaders reluctantly went along with the interim contract to show they were bargaining in good faith and to persuade the mediation board to pressure Eastern to do the same.

The wage cuts applies to about 850 Eastern pilots still working at the pre-strike average of $72,000 a

MASSACRE: Debts may hit Southland restructure

"Their profitability is among the highest in Japan," Yim said. "That is all the more remarkable because what they sell — food — traditionally has a lower (profit) margin. Their cash position is very, very strong."

Southland, to raise money for paying debt, sold its 58 Hawaiian stores to 7-Eleven Japan Co. Ltd. for $75 million cash last November. 7-Eleven Japan, Japan's largest convenience-store operator, operates 3,940 licensed stores. Ito-Yokado owns 50.3 percent of 7-Eleven Japan.

Yim said the Japanese company and its affiliate "could easily finance this whole deal out of what they have right now."

"We have been in a consumption boom for the past three years in Japan and all the retailers have been doing really well," he said. "The retailers have very conservative management."

The agreement, besides the company-owned 7-Elevens, includes Southland's six food processing centers and five distribution centers.

Street said 7-Eleven, the world's largest convenience store chain with more than 47,000 full-time employees in the United States and Canada, is troubled not only by great debt but by an eroding competitive position.

PILOTS: Interim agreement reached with pilot union

year. A 25 percent cut would bring that average down to $54,000. But it excludes about 950 replacement pilots hired at an average $27,500 when the strike began.

The new wage levels are among the lowest in the country for major carriers, Breen said.

"An Eastern pilot after this will make about 50 percent of what a United Airlines pilot makes — and they still can't make a profit," he said.

There was no agreement on the key sticking point of hiring back more of the pilots who went on strike.

"The agreement does not cover that — it covers only wages and benefits," Eastern spokesman Robin Matell said. "And the simple fact is that no jobs are available now."

The intertim agreement calls for a reduction in the airline's contribution to the pilots' pension plan, increased pilot contributions to their medical and dental insurance, and the preservation of tougher work rules in effect since the strike.

Eastern insisted federal mediators would have to continue efforts to reach a permanent agreement to cut costs further.

"If expedited mediation is not successful in leading to such an arrangement, Eastern ... will have to promptly seek bankruptcy court permission to achieve full cost reductions on a long-term basis," Eastern said in its statement.

Mediators recall Greyhound to table

DALLAS (AP) — Federal mediators called a Greyhound Lines negotiator to Washington today as violence continued in the three-week-old nationwide drivers' strike.

Four Greyhound buses driven by replacement drivers were shot at since Wednesday and a fifth was pelted by rocks, but nobody was seriously injured, authorities said.

There have been 20 shootings at buses nationwide since the strike began March 2, the company said in an accounting released Thursday.

The Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions in Washington released its own list Thursday, saying 55 pickets have been injured over the three weeks by being struck by buses, hit by security guards, or in other incidents.

Jim Powers, spokesman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said continued violence has helped prompt mediators to try to reopen negotiations or to arrange "shuttle diplomacy" between the sides.

The company broke off talks Sunday in Tucson, Ariz.

Mediators planned to meet today with Greyhound chief negotiator Anthony P. Lanney. "We also plan to reach out to the union," Powers said.

"We can't tell when (new negotiations) would occur; it might just be a separate series of meetings," Powers said. "They are just as important. As a mediator, one finds that more mediation is done separately than in joint sessions."

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley said Thursday the violence pushes Greyhound away from reopening talks.

"It's impossible to reach an agreement while this violence and terrorism is going on," Gravley said.

Nelson said the suggestion that violent acts have tacit approval from union leaders is "absolutely ridiculous."

There have been no serious injuries in the 20 shootings. But on the second day of the strike a veteran Greyhound driver was crushed to death on the picket line by a bus driven by a replacement in Redding, Calif. No charges were filed.

U.S. may sell supercomputers

WASHINGTON — "Real progress" has been made in talks aimed at getting Japan to open its procurement process to American-made supercomputers, according to a senior U.S. trade negotiator.

Speaking at the end of two days of discussions that were slated to continue Thursday evening, the official said: "If there can be an agreement, we're near it."

Last year, the Bush administration charged Japan with unfair trading practices under the 1988 trade act, specifically targeting supercomputers, satellites and forest products. The law provides for retaliatory tariffs against Japanese products if the discussions in progress – widely referred to as the Super 301 Talks – fail to bear fruit.

To date, the talks in all three areas have largely been stalemated.

The supercomputer discussions are confined to the government procurement practices of Japan.

U.S. makers of supercomputers, led by Cray Research of Minneapolis, Minn., have charged that the Japanese government has limited their competitive opportunities by imposing unfair bidding procedures and by allowing Japanese manufacturers to discount their machines excessively.

No U.S. supercomputers have been bought by the Japanese government since August 1987 when an agreement was reached to provide such opportunities. Weeks ago, the two countries scrapped the language of the 1987 accord.

In the midst of the discussions still in progress, the U.S. negotiator, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said a significant breakthrough had been achieved when the Japanese agreed to abandon the practice of buying the cheapest machines available at minimum specifications.

While the Japanese have agreed to throw out bids for excessively discounted supercomputers, the U.S. official said the American side is seeking a one-year ban from the bidding process for any company that attempts excessive discounts.

The Japanese government is expected to purchase four supercomputers worth about $120 million during the coming year, and the market is expected to increase three-to four-fold within the next two years.

The U.S. negotiator noted that the United States is not seeking either an end to discounting or any quota of purchases from the Japanese government.

Hot wings too hot

LOUISVILLE (SWN) — Unprecedented consumer demand for Kentucky Fried Chicken's new Hot Wings, with sales running at nearly double the highest rate in earlier test markets, are straining supplies and bringing a temporary halt to national advertising.

HOT WINGS are crispy, marinated and breaded chicken wings with spicy seasoning. The new product was introduced nationally two weeks ago and quickly outstripped the sales rates and projections based on earlier successes in seven test markets across the country. As a result, Kentucky Fried Chicken is suspending national advertising of the product until supply can catch up to demand.

"The good news is that consumer demand is unprecedented, the bad news is that supply isn't," said Kentucky Fried Chicken spokesman Gregg Reynolds.

"We're absolutely thrilled with the outstanding consumer demand for our new product," Reynolds said. "We've never seen a new product catch the public's fancy so completely as HOT WINGS. But we're asking our customers to have patience if their favorite KFC restaurant is temporarily short on product."

Western Company moves to Houston

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Western Company of North America, founded by the outspoken Eddie Chiles, will move its corporate headquarters from Fort Worth to Houston, company officials say.

A company spokesman said Thursday that 100 employees at Western's headquarters will be offered jobs in Houston. Western has substantial operations in Houston.

The oilfield services firm Chiles popularized with the advertising slogan "If you don't have an oil well, get one," will keep some employees in Tarrant County.

The company's 70-employee manufacturing, engineering, distribution and purchasing operations will remain at White Settlement, according to Sheldon Erikson, Western's chairman and chief executive officer.

Erikson said some employees will probably leave the company rather than move to Houston.

BANK: Troubled since 1986

(From 4C)

Harry Dedman, FDIC closing manager, said CNB's total assets were more than $132 million, total deposits $130 million, and liabilities totaled more than $152 million.

CNB became a matter of concern to the OCC in 1986. Problems included deteriorating loan quality brought on by weak lending practices, poor loan portfolio administration by management, and inadequate supervision by the board of directors. These problems, as well as the adverse effects of the local economy, led to further deterioration in the bank's condition.

The OCC obtained commitments from the board of directors to undertake measures to correct the bank's problems. However, these efforts were unsuccessful and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in its insolvency.

MASSACRE: Debts may hit Southland restructure

after a successful introduction of point-of-sale systems for tracking inventory at check-out counters.

"Their profitability is among the highest in Japan," Yim said. "That is all the more remarkable because what they sell — food — traditionally has a lower (profit) margin. Their cash position is very, very strong."

Southland, to raise money for paying debt, sold its 58 Hawaiian stores to 7-Eleven Japan Co. Ltd. for $75 million cash last November. 7-Eleven Japan, Japan's largest convenience-store operator, operates 3,940 licensed stores. Ito-Yokado owns 50.3 percent of 7-Eleven Japan.

Yim said the Japanese company and its affiliate "could easily finance this whole deal out of what they have right now."

"We have been in a consumption boom for the past three years in Japan and all the retailers have been doing really well," he said. "The retailers have very conservative management."

The agreement, besides the company-owned 7-Elevens, includes Southland's six food processing centers and five distribution centers.

Street said 7-Eleven, the world's largest convenience store chain with more than 47,000 full-time employees in the United States and Canada, is troubled not only by great debt but by an eroding competitive position.

PILOTS: Interim agreement reached with pilot union

year. A 25 percent cut would bring that average down to $54,000. But it excludes about 950 replacement pilots hired at an average $27,500 when the strike began.

The new wage levels are among the lowest in the country for major carriers, Breen said.

"An Eastern pilot after this will make about 50 percent of what a United Airlines pilot makes — and they still can't make a profit," he said.

There was no agreement on the key sticking point of hiring back more of the pilots who went on strike.

"The agreement does not cover that — it covers only wages and benefits," Eastern spokesman Robin Matell said. "And the simple fact is that no jobs are available now."

The intertim agreement calls for a reduction in the airline's contribution to the pilots' pension plan, increased pilot contributions to their medical and dental insurance, and the preservation of tougher work rules in effect since the strike.

Eastern insisted federal mediators would have to continue efforts to reach a permanent agreement to cut costs further.

"If expedited mediation is not successful in leading to such an arrangement, Eastern ... will have to promptly seek bankruptcy court permission to achieve full cost reductions on a long-term basis," Eastern said in its statement.

Mediators recall Greyhound to table

DALLAS (AP) — Federal mediators called a Greyhound Lines negotiator to Washington today as violence continued in the three-week-old nationwide drivers' strike.

Four Greyhound buses driven by replacement drivers were shot at since Wednesday and a fifth was pelted by rocks, but nobody was seriously injured, authorities said.

There have been 20 shootings at buses nationwide since the strike began March 2, the company said in an accounting released Thursday.

The Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions in Washington released its own list Thursday, saying 55 pickets have been injured over the three weeks by being struck by buses, hit by security guards, or in other incidents.

Jim Powers, spokesman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said continued violence has helped prompt mediators to try to reopen negotiations or to arrange "shuttle diplomacy" between the sides.

The company broke off talks Sunday in Tucson, Ariz.

Mediators planned to meet today with Greyhound chief negotiator Anthony P. Lanney. "We also plan to reach out to the union," Powers said.

"We can't tell when (new negotiations) would occur; it might just be a separate series of meetings," Powers said. "They are just as important. As a mediator, one finds that more mediation is done separately than in joint sessions."

Union spokesman Jeffrey Nelson said, "We are absolutely ready to meet at any time."

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley said Thursday the violence pushes Greyhound away from reopening talks.

"It's impossible to reach an agreement while this violence and terrorism is going on," Gravley said.

Nelson said the suggestion that violent acts have tacit approval from union leaders is "absolutely ridiculous."

There have been no serious injuries in the 20 shootings. But on the second day of the strike a veteran Greyhound driver was crushed to death on the picket line by a bus driven by a replacement in Redding, Calif. No charges were filed.

U.S. may sell supercomputers

WASHINGTON — "Real progress" has been made in talks aimed at getting Japan to open its procurement process to American-made supercomputers, according to a senior U.S. trade negotiator.

Speaking at the end of two days of discussions that were slated to continue Thursday evening, the official said: "If there can be an agreement, we're near it."

Last year, the Bush administration charged Japan with unfair trading practices under the 1988 trade act, specifically targeting supercomputers, satellites and forest products. The law provides for retaliatory tariffs against Japanese products if the discussions in progress – widely referred to as the Super 301 Talks – fail to bear fruit.

To date, the talks in all three areas have largely been stalemated.

The supercomputer discussions are confined to the government procurement practices of Japan.

U.S. makers of supercomputers, led by Cray Research of Minneapolis, Minn., have charged that the Japanese government has limited their competitive opportunities by imposing unfair bidding procedures and by allowing Japanese manufacturers to discount their machines excessively.

No U.S. supercomputers have been bought by the Japanese government since August 1987 when an agreement was reached to provide such opportunities. Weeks ago, the two countries scrapped the language of the 1987 accord.

In the midst of the discussions still in progress, the U.S. negotiator, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said a significant breakthrough had been achieved when the Japanese agreed to abandon the practice of buying the cheapest machines available at minimum specifications.

The Japanese have agreed "to find a way to give credit for superior performance," the source said.

While the Japanese have agreed to throw out bids for excessively discounted supercomputers, the U.S. official said the American side is seeking a one-year ban from the bidding process for any company that attempts excessive discounts.

The Japanese government is expected to purchase four supercomputers worth about $120 million during the coming year, and the market is expected to increase three-to four-fold within the next two years.

The U.S. negotiator noted that the United States is not seeking either an end to discounting or any quota of purchases from the Japanese government.

Hot wings too hot

LOUISVILLE (SWN) — Unprecedented consumer demand for Kentucky Fried Chicken's new Hot Wings, with sales running at nearly double the highest rate in earlier test markets, are straining supplies and bringing a temporary halt to national advertising.

HOT WINGS are crispy, marinated and breaded chicken wings with spicy seasoning. The new product was introduced nationally two weeks ago and quickly outstripped the sales rates and projections based on earlier successes in seven test markets across the country. As a result, Kentucky Fried Chicken is suspending national advertising of the product until supply can catch up to demand.

"The good news is that consumer demand is unprecedented, the bad news is that supply isn't," said Kentucky Fried Chicken spokesman Gregg Reynolds.

"We're absolutely thrilled with the outstanding consumer demand for our new product," Reynolds said. "We've never seen a new product catch the public's fancy so completely as HOT WINGS. But we're asking our customers to have patience if their favorite KFC restaurant is temporarily short on product."

Western Company moves to Houston

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Western Company of North America, founded by the outspoken Eddie Chiles, will move its corporate headquarters from Fort Worth to Houston, company officials say.

A company spokesman said Thursday that 100 employees at Western's headquarters will be offered jobs in Houston. Western has substantial operations in Houston.

The oilfield services firm Chiles popularized with the advertising slogan "If you don't have an oil well, get one," will keep some employees in Tarrant County.

The company's 70-employee manufacturing, engineering, distribution and purchasing operations will remain at White Settlement, according to Sheldon Erikson, Western's chairman and chief executive officer.

Erikson said some employees will probably leave the company rather than move to Houston.

Erikson replaced Chiles as the company's chief executive officer in 1987 when Chiles, former majority owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team, retired.

BANK: Troubled since 1986

(From 4C)

Harry Dedman, FDIC closing manager, said CNB's total assets were more than $132 million, total deposits $130 million, and liabilities totaled more than $152 million.

CNB became a matter of concern to the OCC in 1986. Problems included deteriorating loan quality brought on by weak lending practices, poor loan portfolio administration by management, and inadequate supervision by the board of directors. These problems, as well as the adverse effects of the local economy, led to further deterioration in the bank's condition.

The OCC obtained commitments from the board of directors to undertake measures to correct the bank's problems. However, these efforts were unsuccessful and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in its insolvency.

L-tryptophan recalled

Amino acid's link to blood disorder baffling

WASHINGTON (AP) — After receiving reports of more than 1,400 cases of a rare and sometimes fatal blood disorder, federal health officials are still puzzled by its connection to the dietary supplement L-tryptophan.

They have found no contaminant or bad batch of raw material, no single brand that seems to be the culprit.

"We have analyzed hundreds of products, but we have not been able to single out any brand, manufacturer or supplier that would explain why people are getting sick from taking this stuff," said Chris Lecos, a spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration.

Even so, the FDA announced Thursday that it was expanding its recall of L-tryptophan supplements to include products that contain even small amounts of it.

The initial recall, announced last Nov. 17, was for supplements in which L-tryptophan was the sole or major component and would provide a daily intake of more than 100 milligrams.

But now at least one case has been reported in which the person developed the newly recognized blood disorder after taking less than 100 milligrams a day.

The disorder is called eosinophilia-myalgia syndrome, or EMS. So far, 1,411 cases have been reported in all states, including 19 deaths.

EMS is marked by severe muscle and joint pain, breathing difficulties, swelling of the arms and legs, skin rash, fatigue, cough and sometimes fever. In some cases, victims show signs of congestive heart failure or develop a condition that causes progressive weakness and sometimes leads to paralysis.

L-tryptophan, an amino acid, has been around for many years and occurs naturally in some foods, including milk, beef, turkey and beans.

L-tryptophan supplements are usually sold over the counter in health food, drug and grocery stores under different brand names. They are taken for insomnia, appetite control, depression, premenstrual syndrome, stress reduction and other problems.

"There are literally hundreds of brands involved here with various levels of L-tryptophan in them," the FDA's Lecos said.

Meese testifies Poindexter 'never lied'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Attorney General Edwin Meese III says "everything I know" suggests John Poindexter tried to get the facts out about a shipment of missiles to Iran and never lied to him.

Testifying as a defense witness Thursday at Poindexter's trial, Meese said he never suspected the national security adviser might be concealing from Congress the CIA's role in the arms shipment.

"Did Admiral Poindexter ever tell you a lie?" defense attorney Richard Beckler asked.

"Not to my knowledge," Meese replied.

Poindexter is accused of conspiracy, obstructing Congress and making false statements about the shipment of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles. The delivery was authorized by a politically embarrassing document signed by then-President Reagan that depicted it as an arms-for-hostages deal.

Poindexter destroyed the document on Nov. 21, 1986, several hours after allegedly lying to Congress by saying he hadn't found out about the shipment until five weeks after it occurred.

"Did you know that Admiral Poindexter" was "involved in that Hawks shipment?" prosecutor Dan Webb asked.

"No, I did not know that then and I do not know that today," Meese replied.

Webb showed Meese a copy of a Nov. 20, 1985 computer message from White House aide Oliver North to Poindexter about the impending shipment. Meese responded by saying "I don't know whether" Poindexter received it when North sent it to him.

Webb asked Meese whether he wasn't suspicious about the assertions of lack of U.S. knowledge after discovering two days after the meeting that the Reagan document, known as a finding, had ratified the missile shipment.

"No, I was not suspicious of that," said Meese. He explained that the CIA said it had discovered that Hawks were aboard only as the shipment was under way and the finding was signed by Reagan a week and a half after the delivery.

When Meese told Reagan on Nov. 21, 1986, a fact-finding inquiry would be launched of the Iran initiative, did Poindexter "jump up" and say he had a copy of the finding in his safe? Webb asked.

"No, he did not," said Meese.

"During this time ... did John Poindexter ever tell you he had destroyed this finding that had been signed by the president of the United States?" the prosecutor asked.

"No," Meese replied.

Banks target of 'anti-laundering' bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is moving to tighten the screws on bankers who cooperate with money-laundering operations of drug traffickers.

"Banks that knowingly handle dirty drug money should not be permitted to do business in this country," Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said Thursday as he and other senators introduced money-laundering legislation.

A similar bill won 48-0 approval from the House Banking Committee on Thursday amid heightened concern over drug profits being laundered through Caribbean tax havens and centers of bank secrecy and then returned to the United States.

The Senate bill would require federal regulators to hold a hearing on whether to close any bank convicted of money laundering.

The House version would require such a hearing if the officers and directors of the bank were also convicted.

Under both measures, the bank's charter could be revoked or regulators could appoint a conservator. Federal officials already have the power to shut down banks that are operated improperly.

Hearings under the bill would specifically apply to money laundering and would be mandatory.

Such hearings would have to consider the extent of management involvement in the offense, whether the bank had the means to block money laundering, the degree of cooperation with law enforcement and whether new procedures had been put in place to prevent a recurrence.

Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, described the House version as a compromise that would not only punish those who ignore money laundering but also provide due process for bankers.

Citing estimates of $300 billion in annual drug profits worldwide, Annunzio declared that the "vast quantities of cash may provide drug dealers with their greatest vulnerability to detection."

"The drug dealer is caught in a never-ending blizzard of cash every day," Annunzio said.

The House bill also calls for removal of bank officials convicted of money laundering or structuring transactions to evade requirements of the Bank Secrecy Act. Those found guilty would be prohibited from affiliating with other financial institutions.

It would require the Treasury Department to set forth regulations aimed at halting money laundering by wire transfer. It would raise the fine for negligent noncompliance with money-laundering reporting requirements from $500 to $5,000.

Political realities mellow Democrats

Associated Press

Often-fractious Democrats were playing down their differences as two major party groups met in separate cities to plot strategy for their next attempt to recapture the White House.

Ron Brown

Ronald H. Brown, the party's national chairman, was quick to praise a statement of principles issued Thursday by the Democratic Leadership Council (DLC), a group of elected officials that was close to unanimous in opposing Brown when he ran for the chairmanship last year.

Brown said the statement on a wide range of issues "demonstrates just how united this party is."

The Democratic National Committee, the party's governing body, was meeting in Indianapolis today and was expected to endorse Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan's call for a cut in the Social Security payroll tax.

Bush's 80 percent approval marks are often cited as the reason few Democrats are making any moves toward challenging him in 1992. Democrats have lost five of the last six presidential elections.

The DLC was meeting at the same time in New Orleans with an agenda that included speeches by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, the party's 1988 vice presidential nominee; Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia; Gov. L. Douglas Wilder of Virginia and Brown.

In his speech to the leadership council, Brown called Moynihan's proposal a political "stroke of genius. Substantively it's a blow for fairness, a triumph for honesty."

NATION IN BRIEF

IRS tie ups budget related

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service blames a budget squeeze for its inability to answer two of every three taxpayer telephone calls for help.

But if you can get through to the agency, you have a better chance than last year of getting the correct answer to a tax question.

The bad news is that only 34 percent of callers are getting through to the IRS, down sharply from 61 percent in 1989, Jennie S. Stathis of the congressional investigative agency said Thursday.

"It bothers the hell out of me that taxpayer service has declined that way," IRS Commissioner Fred T. Goldberg testified. He said the inability to take phone calls resulted from a decision by the agency to cut its service — rather than the quality — because of a shortfall in its 1990 budget.

Pilot, crew charged

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Northwest Airlines pilot fell out of his barroom chair and couldn't find his motel the night before he and two others in his cockpit crew were arrested on suspicion of flying while intoxicated, authorities say.

The three, who have been fired by Northwest, were charged Thursday by federal and state officials with operating an aircraft while under the influence of alcohol.

Quotas phasing out

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Korea will phase out all quotas and tariffs on American beef entering the country, according to Sen. Phil Gramm.

Gramm, R-Texas, said the agreement sets up a three-year "transition period" in which current American sales to South Korea, which are running at 63,900 tons, would grow to 68,300 tons this year and 72,800 tons next year.

Gramm said the agreement signed Thursday by U.S. Trade epresentative Carla Hills and outh Korean officials "sets out procedures to eliminate all quotas and tariffs on American beef going into Korea."

"This is another major step toward opening the world market to the joys of eating American beef," Gramm said.

Rural aid approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residents of small towns that are losing business and population because there are fewer farms in the United States are closer to getting help from the federal government.

A rural development bill was approved overwhelmingly by the House and sent on to a conference committee Thursday for negotiators to work out differences with the Senate version.

"They can be meshed," said Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., who wrote the House version with Rep. Tom Coleman, R-Mo.

English said a key provision would establish state review panels to set priorities on how federal money should be used.

The bill was hung up for a week because of a dispute over how states could use about $8(million in three separate funds in the bill.

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., led a movement to stop the bill's authors from pooling the funds — $600 million in sewer and water, $100 million in community facilities and $100 million in business and industry development.

NOAA orders ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has ordered a ban on the capture of bottlenose dolphins in the Gulf of Mexico as scientists try to determine the reason for more than 190 dolphin deaths this year.

Dozens of dolphins have been stranded and died since Jan. 1 in five Gulf States, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration — 118 in Texas, 40 to 45 on the barrier islands of Louisiana and Mississippi, 21 in the Alabama-Florida panhandle, and 10 in Florida's Tampa Bay.

NOAA announced a halt in dolphin captures late Wednesday, to remain in effect through at least June 15.

Although cold weather is believed responsible for the deaths of 26 dolphins in Texas' Matagorda Bay, the NOAA spokesman said "this thing could involve a number of reasons."

After LBJ book, should Ortega monitor U.S. elections?

By George Gedda

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Panama last year and Nicaragua this year, the demand from Washington was unambiguous: hold a free and fair election. It's hard to imagine elections anywhere that were scrutinized more closely.

Now comes a book by Robert Caro suggesting one of the most important U.S. elections of the post-war era was, in fact, rigged by Lyndon Johnson.

Caro makes the case that the outcome of the 1948 Senate Democratic primary race in Texas did not reflect the will of the voters because Johnson stuffed ballot boxes with 35,000 phony votes, giving him an 87-vote margin over Coke Stevenson.

Johnson, of course, went on to become Senate majority leader and president. The course of history was altered by what happened in 1948, assuming Caro got his facts straight; thus far, credible evidence to refute him has not surfaced.

That election is not the only one about which questions have been raised. The public probably will never know whether John F. Kennedy actually beat Richard Nixon in 1960 because of strange happenings on election night in Illinois.

The furor over Caro's book, arising as Nicaraguans were preparing to vote, raises the question: Does the U.S. have the moral authority to demand purity in foreign elections in light of the spotty record at home?

The election run by Daniel Ortega was certainly more honest than the Texas primary Caro describes. Perhaps Ortega, soon to retire, should offer to monitor U.S. elections to ensure the will of the American people is not trampled on.

Can you envision Ortega paying a visit to Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, on election night next November and asking him to respect the outcome of his bid for another term?

Kidding aside, the founding fathers got it right: government can't be trusted. There are pious moralisms in public statements and, at times, an anything goes attitude behind the scenes.

All governments, for example, are very selective about when to express indignation.

When an anti-communist is slain, say, in El Salvador, the U.S. government is quick to blame leftist guerrillas. When someone from the left is killed, U.S. officials invariably say they are puzzled about who did the deed.

For years, the United States had been saying the big problem in Afghanistan was the Soviet military presence. Well, the Soviets have been gone for more than a year but the fighting persists, partly because U.S. weapons deliveries are still going to the Afghan rebels.

John F. Burns, a New York Times reporter, writes that rebel rocket attacks killed an estimated 1,000 people in Kabul, the capital, last year and several times that many across the country.

Among Afghans, Burns writes, "the damage to American prestige has been immense." They now look on the United States as a distant power that sanctions "the routine killing of civilians," he says.

The State Department attitude is to say as little as possible about the rebel abuses. On the other hand, virtually every election abuse committed by the Sandinistas last winter was dealt with as a matter of utmost gravity.

The U.S. government, of course, has no monopoly on hypocrisy and probably comes out better than most countries. Many Latin American presidents who attended the recent presidential inaugural in Chile took steps to avoid being photographed with the departing Augusto Pinochet. A dictator is one thing, but being associated with an unelected president was too much.

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally said author Robert Caro's portrayal of former President Lyndon Johnson focuses only on his dark side.

"Most of the things that Bob Caro says in his book you can't refute specifically because Johnson had some undesirable traits and mannerisms and behaviors," Connally, who was one of Johnson's closest friends, said Thursday.

"But he also had some good ones. Up until now, Caro has not given him credit for any of the good ones," he said.

Caro's second volume on Johnson, "Means of Ascent," portrays the 36th president as a man who consistently lied in his ruthless pursuit of political power.

Much of the book focuses on the 1948 Senate election between Johnson and former Gov. Coke Stevenson, an election that Caro says Johnson stole with bogus votes in South Texas.

Connally worked for Johnson in that election.

"Historically and traditionally, as you well know, the votes in South Texas in those years were controlled votes," he said in an interview Thursday.

Both he and Johnson told their supporters to get as many people to the polls as possible, Connally said.

"Certainly none of us told anybody to falsify votes or stuff a ballot box," he said.

Connally also said Caro, a Pulitzer Prize-winning biographer, "almost did everything but beatify Stevenson."

"Caro's treatment of him went overboard and I think he did it in order to make Johnson look all the worse," he said.

Connally said Caro's massive study of Johnson will be one of the "definitive pieces ever written on Johnson, but there are going to be others that will paint a different picture."

Connally is writing an autobiography and said, "It's not going to be a whitewash of Johnson, I'm going to make every effort to treat him factually and fairly."

"Most of the things that Bob Caro says in his book you can't refute specifically because Johnson had some undesirable traits and mannerisms and behaviors."

Maimed cub gets new home in Texas

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syra has said good-bye to Syracuse and hello to the Lone Star State.

Syra, an orphaned black bear cub adopted by Syracuse's Burnet Park Zoo after it was mutilated by an animal dealer, left Thursday for its new home at a Texas sanctuary.

The bear cub, whose story roused local animal activists, was delivered to the Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Sanctuary, a 21-acre private reserve near San Antonio, Texas, said Burnet Park Zoo Director David Raboy.

The sanctuary specializes in rehabilitating abused animals so they can return to the wild, dealing with about 2,500 animals each year, said sanctuary director Lynn Cuny.

However, more than 100 animals have been so badly maimed they cannot be taught how to hunt or protect themselves and must be kept as permanent guests.

The bear cub, which was named Syra by animal rights activists because the zoo didn't want to name its temporary guest, will be kept in a one-acre pen that contains woods and a large natural pond.

Syra will be the sanctuary's only bear, although that is likely to last only as long as it takes Cuny to find her a playmate, she said.

The Syracuse zoo agreed to care for the cub after it was confiscated from an animal dealer last July by the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

The dealer had the bear declawed and her baby teeth ground down in an apparent effort to make her an attractive acquisition for a petting zoo.

DHS chairman blasted for missing hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Human Services chairman Rob Mosbacher was blasted by state lawmakers for not attending a legislative hearing on his agency's projected $850 million budget shortfall.

Mosbacher, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, was on a trip with his children during spring break, DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey said Thursday.

"All of us must meet our public commitments as well as our personal responsibilities. Certainly spring is a time for all of us to meet family commitments but this is our primary responsibility," said Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo.

Lindsey told the Senate Health and Human Services Committee that if the Legislature doesn't help bridge the shortfall, the agency would have to implement cuts that would leave many needy people unprotected and jeopardize $1 billion in federal funds.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who attended the meeting, said more revenues — not cuts — were needed to prop up DHS, which has projected a budget deficit because of increased demand on services and increased responsibilities mandated by the federal government. Hobby favors a 14-cent increase in the cigarette tax to help bridge the budget gap.

The agency faces a $152 million projected deficit for the current fiscal year that ends Aug. 31 and the remaining $850 million shortfall at the end of the next fiscal year.

Stephanie Thomas, one of many disabled advocates at the hearing, said she was "tired of the Texas Department of Human Services and the state Legislature treating people like throwaways."

Leslie Lanham of the Children's Defense Fund said, "Texas should be investing more, not less on its children." She said Texas ranks 48th in the nation in funding for early prenatal care.

The DHS board Wednesday approved freezing rate increases proposed earlier this year for a number of contract providers of services, such as pharmacists, nursing homes, day-care centers and hospices.

The rate increases would have helped cover the cost of the federally required increases in the minimum wage as well as other expenses, such as increased minimum staffing requirements at nursing homes.

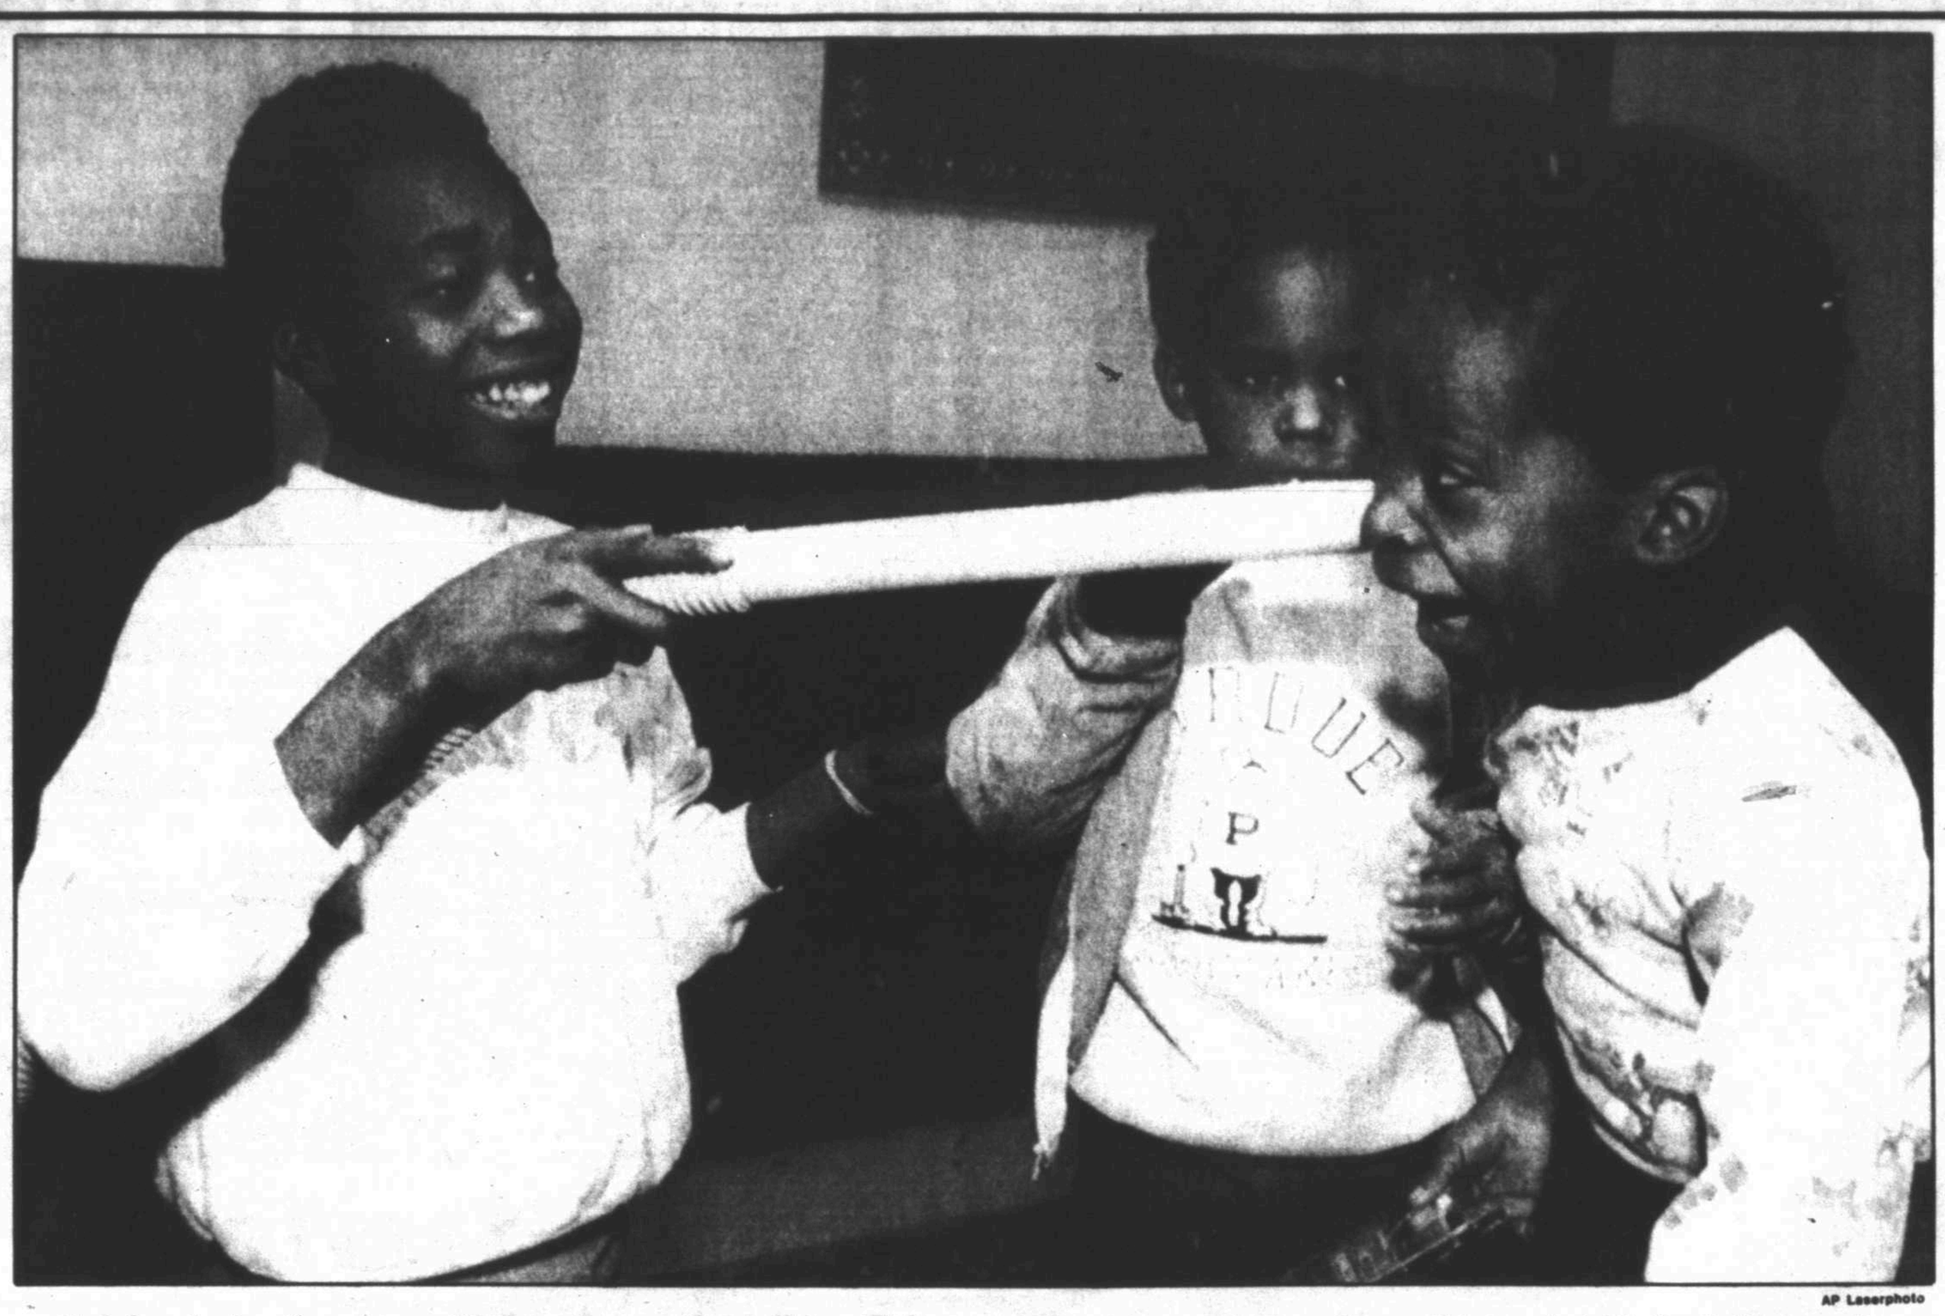
Haitian children: Living in new land



AP Laserphoto

Caleb, 4, is "vacuumed" by Jo Anna, 11, as she takes a break from cleaning the dormitory at the church camp near Greesburg, Ind., where they live. Things such as vacuum cleaners and cars are new to the Haitian children, who are among 28 orphaned or abandoned children brought to the United States by a missionary couple who hopes to adopt them all.

Kathy Blackburn, left, comforts 3-year-old Andy after he was teased by the older children. A group of the Haitian children, who range in ages from 3 to 14, below, head down the driveway of the church camp where they live with Mrs. Blackburn and her husband, Dan.

Couple bring orphaned, abandoned youths to U.S.

A burst of giggles erupts, but the mother of this brood — 17 boys and 11 girls — is a picture of tolerance.

"I hear kids from the time I wake up until the time I go to sleep," she says. Then she adds, "There are times I've been frantic."

Mrs. Blackburn, 42, and her husband, Dan, 45, came home to Indiana at the end of December. The two Christian missionaries and their wards, all orphaned or abandoned Haitian children ranging in age from 3 to 14, are temporarily living in a drafty church camp about 50 miles southeast of Indianapolis.

The Blackburns, who have two grown children of their own, began taking in homeless children shortly after becoming missionaries in 1969 and at one time thought about opening an orphanage. Now they plan to adopt all the children, four of whom are mentally retarded.

In 1987, violence in Haiti forced the Blackburns to flee to the Dominican Republic. Last December, they finally received permission from the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to bring the children to the United States.

The children are Rosie and Mary, both 14; Becky, Yvonne and Jim, 12; Tom, Sam, Bobby, Cheryl and Jo Anna, 11; Steve, Marva and Liz, 10; Jemima, Abigail, Aaron, Jeremiah, Benji, Noah and Gideon, 9; Matthew and Jake, 8; Rachael, 7; Thaddeus, 6; Mike and Caleb, 4, and Andy and Mark, 3.

In Haiti, the family had a house; in Indiana, they sleep in a dormitory heated by a wood stove and use an outdoor privy.

Down the lane is the "chow house," the hub of the family's social life. A hand-made sign posted on the refrigerator says: "A late meal is a hardship with 28 kids. Please have consideration for the cook. Thanks."

Blackburn does the cooking and supervises the older boys, who wash dishes and sweep floors. The girls do the laundry and care for the younger children, giving baths and changing clothes.

Mrs. Blackburn says the secret to managing 28 children and a household is not to fear mistakes.

Parenthood is "something you can't cram for at the last minute," she says. "We do it by making mistakes, by trial and error. ... It's just something you keep working at."

The Blackburns have many of the same dreams other parents have.

"I'd like them to have music lessons, learn to ride a bike, know history and know it well, and be well-educated within their own bounds," Mrs. Blackburn says.

The children are taught by the Blackburns and volunteer teachers, who come to the camp to give lessons in math, science, reading, writing and sign language, the last a device to keep the noise level down.

"These kids aren't overstimulated," Mrs. Blackburn says. "They enjoy stuff more. A jet going overhead and a beautiful sunset is a really big deal. They not only appreciate, but they comment on it."

"It's continual questions. Even getting into a car is a big deal for them," Blackburn says.

As part of their arrangement with immigration authorities, the Blackburns may not accept government support. Instead, they rely on regular donations from about 20 churches and whatever else comes in. Local businesses have donated secondhand clothes and leftover baked goods. The family has received clothes, food, toys and money from strangers who have heard about them in news reports.

"We're not taking a vow of poverty, but one of the things I want to discourage is excess, the mindset that you don't need one thing, you need 10," Mrs. Blackburn says.

The Blackburns' most pressing need is permanent shelter. The church camp opens May 1, and they must be out. The Rev. Lee Creech, who has supported the Blackburns' missionary work for 20 years, heads a committee seeking a home for them.

"More people are in awe than anything else that someone would attempt to do this," says Creech, pastor at New Bethel United Methodist church in Decatur County. "I think it's the best way for someone else to say, 'I am my brother's keeper.' "

PART-TIME $$$$$ AVAILABLE APRIL 1

Effective April 2, the Midland Reporter-Telegram will become a morning newspaper instead of an afternoon newspaper. As a result we have several routes which will need to be re-filled with qualified, responsible individuals. Due to this one-time large number of routes becoming available, now is the best time ever to obtain a route in your area!

Often asked questions:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current carrier force is already 50% adult and 50% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a part time job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

How much money can I make as a carrier?
Depending on the size of the route(s), from $150 to $500 monthly! Some motor routes make even more, although currently none are expected to be available. Depending on your service record, you may qualify to move up to a motor route later!

How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carriers choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Some collecting in person will be necessary though.

When do the papers have to be delivered by?
6:00 am Monday - Friday, and 7:00 am Saturday and Sunday.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
