NORTH TEXAS FLOOD-STORM TOLL GOES TO NINE

Holliday Creek, Half Mile Wide, Floods Wichita Homes And Maroons Scores

LITTLE DANGER FROM LAKES, SAY OFFICIALS

County Farm, Sanitarium And Many Homes Cut Off by Flood Water

VALLEY ROADS CLOSE

Railroad and Highway Travel to Many Towns of Area Halted

Wichita Falls Sunday was practically an island, with the Seymour road remaining as the only highway out of the city on which motorists could drive without going through or across heavily swollen rivers or streams.

Light rains Sunday morning counteracted the one-inch drop in Lake Wichita during the night and brought the lake level to about 20 feet, one half inch, almost two feet higher than the high mark four weeks ago when heavy rains put Holliday creek out of its banks.

Water Recedes

The high point of the lake Sunday was 20 feet and 3 inches, the level having dropped 2½ inches between 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning and 10 o'clock in the evening, according to the report of Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the city water department. The water apparently was receding still further Sunday night and the crest of the flood seemed past, Dr. Douglass said. The lake level Sunday was approximately the same as that of four years ago when Lake Wichita and Holliday creek were taxed by heavy rains. At that time, however, Wichita river was not swollen and no such damage was caused as was reported Sunday. The all-time record for the lake, established in 1915 when the entire business section of the city was inundated, remained unbroken, probably due to the big lakes up the river, which held back the water in tremendous quantities.

A crew of city workmen patroled the dam at Lake Wichita all Sunday night, keeping close watch in order to be immediately at hand to prevent possible breaks. Workers also remained at the spillway to clear away debris from the 30-inch screen and allow the water to drain through as rapidly as possible. The lake waters were about 18 inches over the spillway Sunday night, Dr. Douglass reported. He explained that the spillway at Lake Wichita is on the other side of the railway tracks at the point where the spillway bridge crosses and is not at the bridge, as many persons have been led to believe. A great depth of water at the bridge, therefore, would not necessarily mean a heavy overflow at the spillway, he said.

Dam Considered Safe

Dr. Douglass also stated there was no danger of the Lake Wichita dam giving way, the patrol having been stationed at the lake merely as a precautionary measure.

The greatest damage from the flood waters in the city was felt in the sections bordering Holliday creek. Hillcrest addition on both sides of Holliday street and south of Haven park was under about four feet of water, where the stream had gone far out of its banks. Scores of residents in this section were driven out by the water, which came up into their homes and necessitated removal of furniture by means of boats. Holliday creek was a half mile or more wide at points.

Automobile traffic was impossible out the Holliday-Lake park road, cars being forced to turn around at the bridge back of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club. The area between the country club and the Municipal Golf club house was practically a lake, with no portion of the paved road visible.

Golf Course Becomes Lake

The southwest corner of the Country Club Estates was under water with about a quarter of a mile of Hamilton boulevard impassable. City workmen erected barriers on the street Sunday afternoon and traffic from Brook avenue was forced to turn west on Speedway to Harrison street. At the point where the pavement ends, leading onto the dirt road winding through Weeks park, motorists were again forced to turn back. The water completely covered the concrete bridge crossing Holliday creek at the north edge of Weeks park, sweeping over the top of the banisters.

Almost the entire nine holes on the municipal golf course were under water several feet and many of those on the country club course were inundated. The municipal clubhouse was not approachable by automobile, standing on a high point with water on all sides except the east. The country club was cut off except from the rear and cars were forced to ford the swift flood waters near Haven park even in order to approach it from that direction.

Practically all homes near Holliday street from Twenty-eighth to Thirty-fourth street were flooded, the swollen creek extending its flood waters through the section occupied by the White sanitarium, the county farm and across the Fort Worth highway into the vicinity of the brick plant and on to the point where it runs into the Wichita river.

County Farm Isolated

County officials Sunday afternoon reported the county farm isolated on high ground and residents near the creek below that point

Among other things you seldom see in Wichita Falls is this much water. Holliday creek, spread out a half mile or more wide at points, damaged property and crops thousands of dollars Sunday, while it furnished hundreds of motorists tests for the navigating qualities of their machines as they plunged through flooded streets. At the top, right to left: One of the giant gasoline trucks of the Waggoner properties plunged off the Henrietta road near Holliday creek, and partially blocked traffic. Front wheels of the truck are buried up to the hub in the mud. Next is a view of Hamilton boulevard at the entrance to the country club, with several autos stranded in the back waters of Holliday creek. The Old Dutch Mill on the Henrietta road, luxurious tourist camp, was well under water, with the floors of the mill and cottages well covered.

At the bottom, left to right: An automobile which slid off the pavement of Holliday creek, and came dangerously near to plunging into the channel. The middle picture shows a motorboat towing another boat loaded with household effects from the area near Haven park. Boats were also used to transport many persons to safety. The last picture shows one of the houses on the Henrietta road flooded by the creek's rise. Street and highways were manned by city and county traffic officers, and state highway workers all Sunday.

WOMEN KILLED BY LIGHTNING NEAR LAMESA

Two Young Mothers Dead, Five Injured in Farm Home Disaster

ROADS DAMAGED

Single Funeral Held for Five Flood Victims At Goree

While motorboats were called into use to help salvage the furnishings of flooded Wichita Falls homes and the city watched the rising waters of Lake Wichita, Holliday creek, and Wichita river, the flood and storm toll of Northwest Texas rose Sunday to nine dead and five seriously injured. Railroad schedules over the Wichita Falls and Southern and the Wichita Valley roads were suspended and great gaps washed out of highways all over the section, with several state highway bridges menaced by the surging waters of swollen streams.

A bolt of lightning flashing out of a freak thunderstorm at Lamesa Saturday night killed two young mothers with their babies in their arms, Mrs. Morris Durham and Mrs. Cora Whittaker, enjoying an "ice cream supper" at the Durham home were struck by the bolt. The babies were injured and three other members of the party hurt. The injured include "Red" Best, Tom Best and Mrs. E. Vandivere, guests at the entertainment. The heavy rain caused inundation of parts of Lamesa.

Lindsey Phillips, 15, of Mexia, was drowned on the highway between Streetum and Fairfield, and P. C. Lee, Luling, lost his life at San Angelo, when their cars were swept from the roads by raging waters.

Victims Buried

At Goree Sunday afternoon hundreds gathered around the biers of the five victims of Miller creek flood waters, swept from their home after a 10-inch deluge Friday night. The body of Mrs. W. M. Gilliland, 70, the last of the five to be found, was recovered about 6:30 Sunday morning and the three generations of the family laid to rest at the O'Donnell cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Traffic between Wichita Falls and Henrietta was halted late Sunday afternoon when the rising waters of the Little Wichita threatened the bridge. The water was flowing well over the bridge and rising at the rate of six inches an hour, officials reported. Cars were allowed to pass during the afternoon but officers, equipped with red lanterns and danger signals warned motorists away after nightfall.

Paving Broken

Motor communication between Wichita Falls and Archer City was broken Sunday when a quarter mile block was washed out of the pavement four miles north of Archer City near the river bridge. Except for the road to Graham, Archer City was without a passable highway.

One-half mile of grading and paving on the highway between Seymour and Throckmorton was swept away by the rains; 500 feet of the pavement between Goree and Bomarton was sunken; and 200 feet of the grading between Westover and Megargel, on the road between Seymour and Olney was destroyed.

A bridge over Elm creek on the road between Newcastle and Throckmorton was swept away and the road made impassable.

Three miles south of Antelope, near Jacksboro, 700 feet of grading on the highway leading to Wichita Falls was washed out, stopping all traffic. Water was within a foot of the bridge on the Chico road and rapidly rising late Sunday.

LIGHTNING KILLS LAMESA WOMEN

JERSEY G. O. P. VOTE WATCHED

Republicans to Select Senatorial Entry

NEWARK, N. J., June 15. (AP)—A Republican candidate for the United States senate will be chosen Tuesday by New Jersey voters from a field of four contestants, whose personalities and platforms have served to make the campaign one of the most interesting in the state's history.

From among the four, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, former Senator Joseph S. Freylinghuysen, Representative Franklin W. Fort, and John A. Kelly, will be selected the candidate to oppose at the November election Alexander Simpson, Democrat, for a full six-year term.

Morrow and Kelly also are seeking nomination for the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, which is being filled for the time being by Senator David Baird. Unopposed for the Democratic nomination for the short term is a young graduate of Smith college, Miss Thelma Parkinson.

Lively speculation throughout the state over the attitude of President Hoover toward the candidates has evoked only one definite statement. Senator Baird in a speech last night asserted that the chief executive was "intensely interested" in having Morrow named.

Much significance has been attached to the political backgrounds of the major contenders. Morrow, avowedly a novice at politics, has made but three prepared speeches, in one of which he advocated repeal of the 18th amendment and restoration of states' rights in dealing with the question. Freylinghausen declared himself for modification. Fort entered the race as champion of the present regulation of liquor traffic.

New York State to Watch Party Meetings

NEW YORK, June 15. (US)—Two developments of importance in the political world are expected Tuesday when the Democrats hold their state committee meeting in Albany simultaneously with a meeting of the Republican advisory committee here.

The Democratic gathering will be for the purpose of laying plans for the gubernatorial campaign, and it has been predicted for weeks that it will be the occasion for a move to formally place James A. Farley in charge of Governor Roosevelt's fight for re-election.

The purpose of the Republican advisory committee meeting is to act upon recommendations made by a subcommittee regarding prohibition.

Whirring Propeller of Plane Kills Three When Ship Crashes Into Car

ROBEY, Ind., June 15. (UP)—An airplane smashed into a crowd at the Robey automobile speedway today, plowed into a small automobile and killed three of its occupants with its whirring propeller.

The dead: Peter Brockman, South Chicago; Mrs. Brockman, their infant granddaughter.

The mother of the child was so critically hurt that physicians said she probably would die.

Airmen Unhurt

Neither W. V. Newhall, Chicago, pilot of the 33rd division Illinois national guard, or his mechanic, James H. Van Meger, was hurt beyond minor scratches and bruises.

They flew the ship, property of the national guard, here to witness a 100-mile automobile race. They had just landed the plane in a field when the race was called off by a sudden rain and hailstorm. The crowd started running across the field to reach shelter there in the parked automobiles. Nearly all of the 7,000 persons in the grandstand had reached the field by the time Newhall had started to take off.

Ship Rises Slowly

He tried to get away once, failed, and then taxied to the far end of the field, planning to skim over the rows of parked cars. The ship got into the air slowly, the landing gear sheared off against the top of one of the machines, and then the plane nosed over into a straight dive.

It smashed head-on into the Brockman car. The churning propeller chopped the automobile to pieces. The mangled bodies of the victims were taken from the wreckage by witnesses who did not know whether they were dead. They were rushed in automobiles to St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago and St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond where they were identified.

Newspaper Scores Dry Law Enforcement Methods

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 15. (UP)—The Kansas City Journal-Post in a front page editorial today called attention to conditions surrounding the enforcement of prohibition laws and announced itself opposed to present laws. The newspaper said the past ten years has showed that the prohibition laws "cannot be, and certainly have not been, effectively enforced."

Carol's Companion In Exile Not to Return

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 15. (AP)—Denial that Mme. Magda Lupescu, companion of King Carol II when he was only a prince in exile, has any intention of returning here at present, was issued by a high official today.

CHICAGO CRIME PARLEY TODAY

Political and Civic Heads to Plan Action

CHICAGO, June 15. (AP)—Chicago's hopes for decisive action against crime tonight rested with the political and civic leaders who will assemble tomorrow to devise plans for combatting gang lawlessness.

Spurred by the wave of public indignation that has engulfed the city since the slaying of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter, Mayor William Hale Thompson, long reticent, was reported authoritatively to have called a meeting of his advisory cabinet for tomorrow.

The mayor has summoned his administration wheel horses—County Treasurer George F. Harding, Cook county Republican committee Chairman Bernard W. Snow, Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson and Eugene R. Pike—to consider the removal of Police Commissioner William E. Russell and Detective Chief John Stege, who have been under fire for their efforts against gangsters.

At the same time the executive committee, senior council and directorate of the association of commerce will go into secret session with 50 men, selected for their prominence in business and professional ranks, to "demand a showdown from the people responsible for continuing the gangs in power."

Canon City Convicts Caught After Escape

CANON CITY, Colo., June 15. (UP)—Two convicts who escaped from a ball and chain gang last Thursday at the Colorado state penitentiary were captured today as they attempted to flee from the prison grounds.

The men, Danny Reardon and "Red" Wilson, had hidden in a potato cellar since disappearing from the gang and were weak with hunger when discovered making a break for freedom.

Both men previously had made escapes from the prison and had been captured. Both were serving terms for robbery.

INDIAN WOMEN END SECLUSION

Proclamation Dooms Ancient 'Purdah' Custom

CALCUTTA, India, June 15. (AP)—Followers of Mahatma Gandhi in his civil disobedience campaign today proclaimed that "purdah," the seclusion of women, is doomed, since women have left the privacy of their homes to aid in the struggle for independence.

They exulted today in the fact that Indian women, who for centuries preferred the seclusion of their homes, had been given what was considered a new world status by the Simon commission, which took particular cognizance of women's part in the disobedience struggle. Spokesmen said women had shaken off the "purdah" chrysalis, enabling them to see and help the Gandhi fight with unveiled eyes.

In furtherance of the movement, Gandhi's subalterns today issued a new appeal, as follows: "Away with ancient purdah! Come out of the kitchens quick! Fling the pots and pans rattling into corners! Tear the cloth from your eyes, and see the new world. Let your husbands and brothers cook for themselves. There is much work to be done to make India a nation!"

The activities of the women in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and other centers soon will be concentrated on making a success of the Nationalist boycott against British materials. These include chiefly household articles, clothes and tobacco. Simultaneously they will encourage Indians to use home made fabrics, the women taking a leading part in picketing shops selling foreign dress goods.

Hoover Promises Quick Approval 'Of Tariff Bill for Business' Sake

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—President Hoover announced today he would sign the tariff bill.

In a lengthy statement issued at the White House, the president said it was urgent that the "uncertainties in the business world," should be ended by completion of the bill; that the rate increases "are largely directed to the interest of the farmer," and that the new flexible provision afforded an opportunity to "remedy inequalities" and take the tariff away from "politics, lobbying and log rolling."

"I shall approve the tariff bill," the statement began and then laid great stress on the importance of the flexible provision under which the tariff commission would recommend rate changes to the executive for approval or disapproval.

Recognizes Complaints

The president said complaints from foreign countries that some of the rates were too high could be "remedied, if justified, by proper application to the tariff commission," and added that if the flexible clause should prove inadequate he would ask congress that further authority be granted the commission.

Asserting every tariff bill was "bound to contain inequalities, injustices and unequitable compromises," Mr. Hoover said he was "convinced that the disposal of the whole question is urgent."

Demo Challenge

The presidential statement came simultaneously with one issued by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, laying down the challenge that the Hawley-Smoot measure would be "the issue" in the approaching congressional elections.

"The Grundy bill is thus made the issue of the coming congressional campaign," Shouse said. "The people will render their verdict next November and the Democratic party feels no concern over the results."

It was generally agreed among factional leaders tonight that the tariff would be a major issue in the biennial elections, with indications that the senate Republican Independents from the Northwest, who opposed the bill under the leadership of Senators Borah, Idaho, and Norris, Nebraska, would join in the campaign against it.

Youth Dies as Cycle Collides With Mule

FAIRFIELD, Texas, June 15. (AP)—James Cude, 18, of Waco, was killed instantly early today when his motorcycle he was riding struck a mule grazing along a road in the edge of Fairfield. Max Sanders, who was riding tandem on the motorcycle, was injured. He was taken to a Teague hospital. Cude's body was sent to Waco. The two men were en route to a motorcycle contest at Palestine.

GOODSPEED TO OPEN DEFENSE

Nocona Man Faces Murder Trial Today

HENRIETTA, Texas, June 15. (AP)—Carl Goodspeed will go to trial for the second time here tomorrow, on charges of murder in the killing of A. R. Gooch at Nocona last year. Gooch had gone to Goodspeed's home with a liquor search warrant.

In the first trial a year ago, Goodspeed was assessed a 20-year sentence but the case was reversed and remanded on appeal. It was transferred here from Montague county on change of venue.

Adults Learn 'Three R's' In Mountain School

WASHINGTON, June 15. (US)—"Opportunity school" has opened in the South Carolina mountains, the interior department announced today.

Near the hamlet of "Due West" the school for 30 days will teach pupils from 16 to 70 years of age the first rudiments of reading, writing and arithmetic.

The experiment is being watched by educators throughout the nation.

Aged Texan Killed In Automobile Crash

DALLAS, June 15. (AP)—Half an hour after he left the home of his son here today, John Bratton, 74, of Austin, retired farmer, was injured fatally in an automobile collision in the outskirts of Dallas. His daughter, Miss Belle Bratton, supervisor of the state school for the blind at Austin, was bruised. The aged man died in a hospital soon after the wreck.

CREEK WATERS FLOOD HOMES

Heavy Damage Caused by Rains Here

were forced to leave their homes. White's sanitarium was also reported cut off by the flood waters.

Motorists leaving the city on the Fort Worth highway were forced to ford Holliday creek at the city limits, where the waters were about a foot over the pavement. City and state highway motorcycle officers and volunteer workers spent the greater part of the day Sunday directing traffic through the water at the bridge, where the pavement was invisible for several hundred feet. Hundreds of cars lined the highway on both sides, waiting a chance to cross. Many of the cars stalled in the middle of the flooded portion of the road and had to be pushed across by machines coming behind.

The cabins in the Wichita Tourist camp at that point were under several feet of water, some of them submerged to the roof level. Persons living in that vinicity reported the creek had risen about two feet since 10 o'clock Sunday morning. During the evening, although a slight drop had been noticed in the flood level, the highway was blocked in order to prevent accidents to motorist in crossing the bridge.

Farther down the creek, at the point where it crosses the Petrolia road, the flood waters were apparently not so widespread. At the bridge on the road just beyond the clay pits at the brick plant, the water was well below the road level although the stream was well out of its usual banks. About a five-inch stream of water poured from the creek into the clay pits during the afternoon and evening and late Sunday afternoon the creek was still about five inches higher than the water level in the pits.

The pits were rapidly filling with water and, having no outlet, had filled to a depth of about 10 feet since noon Sunday. The earth on all sides of the pits and at the narrow portion over which the highway passes was falling away in large chunks, although it was not believed the road was in danger of giving way. Workers at the brick plant will be forced to dig away a portion of the pit walls when the waters recede in order to drain the pits back into the creek bed.

Farther out the Petrolia road, west of the high bluffs facing the city, approximately 250 acres of farm lands were under several inches of water. The fields were not flooded from the back waters of the creek but had filled by drainage from the hills, the water finding no drain into the already swollen streams leading into the Wichita river. Houses along the road also stood in several inches of water and fields on both sides were covered.

The Wichita river Sunday was within its banks but the water had risen to within about three feet of the edge near Scotland park. Along the stream where it passes under the Burnett street, Scott avenue and Ohio avenue bridges, the water was within a few feet of the top of the bank and any slight rise would inundate homes and camps near the edge of the north bank.

At the incinerator and disposal plant the water had risen to within about two feet of the road level. A small rise would put the water into the disposal plant grounds. At the concrete bridge across the river beyond the incinerator on the road to Charlie the river banks are higher and the water was confined to a narrow strip, although at the point below where Holliday creek empties into the river the waters were widespread and the river swollen beyond capacity. The creek waters, however, were still draining into the river although it was feared a further rise would back the water from the rives up into the creek and flood additional areas nearer the city.

The waters of Lake Kemp have risen only one foot, according to a reading of a gauge placed by John Crawford, game warden, who said that he expected another foot and a half rise within the next two days. The warden corrected an earlier report that the lake was rising rapidly and declared that the situation there called for no special measures and gave occasion for no alarm.

The road to Diversion lake was reported in good condition Sunday evening by motorists who drove into the city. The water in the lake was going over the spillway in a small stream and the floodgates were open. The dam was in no danger from the large volume of water and no overflow into adjacent lands below the dam was reported.

Railway traffic out of Wichita Falls on the Wichita Valley and Wichita Falls and Southern lines was suspended Sunday due to washouts and dangerous stream crossings, according to reports from train dispatchers here. The Little Wichita river, swollen beyond its capacity, made tracks near this city dangerous although no washouts were reported near Wichita Falls. Washouts were reported at Bomarton, Stamford, South Bend and the Brazos river bridge. The Fort Worth and Denver and the Katy lines were reported open although train service was slightly behind schedule.

Highways out of the city to Archer City and Henrietta were barricaded Sunday night, either because of too deep flood waters or dangerous portions of the road where the pavement was covered with water. Roads to Seymour, Burkburnett and Iowa Park were open. The heavy rains had halted service on the Safeway airlines to Dallas and Oklahoma City, although the Western Air Express from Amarillo and Dallas was on schedule. One of the Safeway trimotored ships was stuck fast in the mud at the Municipal airport and will not be able to fly until dug out, it was reported.

Sidelights on Flood

The Wichita Ice company delivered 300 pounds of ice and supplies of milk and butter to Dr. White's sanitarium on California street near Holliday creek by boat Sunday morning. The boat load of supplies was pushed off at the foot of Chester street and rowed approximately half a mile across the creek to the sanitarium.

H. Eggleston, maintenance superintendent of the state highway department for this division, told The Record News it would be impossible to estimate the damage to state highways by reason of the floods until waters had subsided sufficiently to allow inspection. First steps of the department toward repairing the damage from the floods will be the construction of detours, which will be opened as rapidly as possible to allow the resumption of traffic, Mr. Eggleston said.

Jack Grundy, linotype operator for The Record News, brought his outboard motor to the plant to be sure he would be able to get home later in the night should Holliday creek flood the business district.

L. H. Benson, 1405 Fillmore street was driving his car through the flooded portion of Holliday street near Haven park Sunday afternoon and keeping in line with what he thought was the edge of the pavement. Which it wasn't. The car suddenly fell sharply to the right, looked as though it were going over into the deep water but settled down at a 45-degree angle, and stuck, with the water running through the motor and inside the car. Wreckers were called at once to extricate it from its precarious position.

Boys in bathing suits—well, anyway, two or three had suits on—were having great sport Sunday afternoon in the submerged playground in Weeks park. They swam out to an island in the flooded section of the golf course and made use of the swings and see-saws in the park, which were more fun than ever since they were about half under water.

A man in a cabin at a tourist park on the Henrietta road spent the greater part of Sunday afternoon with a broom in his hands, sweeping the incoming water out of his house.

Ducks were having a great time of it but the chickens were getting the worst of the deal in the Hillcrest addition Sunday where the creek was far out of bounds. One ambitious hen, apparently not satisfied to remain atop a chicken house with the other chickens, decided to take a duck's chance and fluttered down into the flood waters. She floundered a minute and then went under.

Residents on Thirtieth street Sunday afternoon were removing their household goods by boat, bringing the furniture up to the road where it was transferred to cars and trucks. Asked by a reporter what street that was, one man replied it was "Thirtieth creek."

Dr. A. H. Douglass, head of the city water department, was forced to bring his family and move to an apartment in town Sunday when the flood waters surrounded and threatened his home on the Holliday street-Lake road. He reported no damage to the house, the water not having risen above the floor level, but his yard and garden were completely submerged. He moved into 2149 Avenue L. Other homes on the Lake road were also surrounded by water and practically all residents came into town because of the inconvenience of wading through mud and water to get to their front doors.

The Boy Scout camp at Diversion lake Monday will start on schedule, according to Frank B. Creighton, scout executive, who returned Sunday evening from the big lake to report the roads in good condition and no danger from flood waters at any point near the lake. Many of the boys, he said, were under the impression the camp would be postponed on account of the flood.

FLOOD-STORM TOLL MOUNTS

Two Young Mothers Killed By Lightning

Best, Tom Best, and Mrs. E. Vandivers, other guests at the supper, were injured. The group was assembled in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Durham.

Funeral services for Mrs. Durham and Mrs. Whittaker were held Sunday afternoon. Interment was in the O'Donnell cemetery.

The freak thunderstorm injured crops in Lynn and Dawson counties and killed several head of livestock by lightning and drowning. Six mules owned by Nathan Peterson, Dawson county farmer, were killed by a bolt of lightning. Two cows were drowned in a miniature lake formed when the deluge flooded the streets of Lamesa.

The rain measured between three and six inches over a section of 60 miles, washing out bridges and putting telephone wires out of commission.

AGED WOMAN'S BODY FOUND AT GOREE

Special to The Record News

GOREE, Texas, June 15.—The body of Mrs. W. M. Gilliland, the last of five victims of the 10-inch deluge which swept Miller creek out of its banks Friday night, was recovered in the driftwood on the banks of the stream about 6:30 Sunday morning after searchers had fought the raging waters through the night.

The body of the aged flood victim was brought to Goree where it was buried Sunday afternoon with the four other members of the family who were trapped when the torrent struck their lowland home on the banks of the creek 10 miles south of Goree some time Friday night. The other dead are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tidwell, Etna Dell Tidwell, 13, and Oscar D. Tidwell, 10. Mrs. Gilliland was the mother of Mrs. Tidwell. The other bodies were recovered Saturday and Saturday night.

Joint rites for the three generations killed in the flood were held from the high school auditorium and were attended by one of the largest crowds ever gathered in Goree.

The flood waters of Miller and Lake Creek were receding Sunday, but the section was still suffering from badly disrupted train and highway service. No trains have come into Goree since Friday and none was expected before Monday afternoon.

The highway between Goree and Bomarton on the road to Seymour was washed out in three sections, but detours had been cut through late Sunday to make communication possible. More showers Sunday added to the general distress.

PAWHUSKA FLOOD INUNDATES TOWN

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 15 (AP)—Bird creek was on a rampage here today following torrential rainfall last night which caused inundation of a large section of the business district and negro residential section. About 250 negroes abandoned their homes in the southeastern part of town when the flood waters covered the section.

The waters went over the Main street bridge and the Pershing highway span about half a mile below town. Several houses were washed against the latter structure. No lives had been reported lost.

The river, which reached a 20-foot stage early today, was receding this afternoon. A cloudburst fell during the night, starting shortly before midnight and lasting most of the night. Nearly four inches of rainfall was recorded.

Rain and flood reports from other sections of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma were reported to The Record News as follows:

SEYMOUR—Intermittent showers fell here all day Sunday, adding to the damages caused by the heavy rains Friday night and Saturday. The city is without train service and the highway to Wichita Falls is the only one left open.

ARCHER CITY—More rain fell here Sunday, bringing the total for the week-end to between 4 and 5 inches.

HASKELL—Haskell, Weinert and Munday, under the threat of still more rains, were working Sunday to repair damages from the cloudburst which flooded the area Friday night and Saturday. More than 8.66 inches fell at Haskell, and 12 inches at Weinart. Sewer and gas lines in Haskell are badly caved in and monuments in the cemetery are sunken. Occupants of at least four automobiles and a truck barely escaped the rising waters by abandoning their cars to the flood before they were carried down stream.

Feed stuff stored in barns was ruined, chickens were drowned and more than 50 per cent of the crops destroyed.

NOCONA—The section around Nocona was visited with a beneficial rain Sunday. No damages were reported.

CLARENDON—Clarendon was untouched by the flooding rains that visited parts of the district Saturday and Sunday. Only a light shower fell here.

CHILDRESS—A light rain fell here Sunday. No damages were reported.

ALTUS, Okla.—Rainfall, ranging from 1.6 inches in Altus to 2.5 inches in the northern part of the county, fell Saturday. Sunday all buses running out of here were able to cover their routes. Two culverts on highway nine between here and Blair were washed out. Frisco trains were behind schedule because of washouts near Oklahoma City. While cotton was benefited, the moisture will delay grain harvesting.

FREDERICK, Okla.—Rains varying from light showers to six inch torrents fell in and around Tillman county Saturday night and Sunday morning, interrupting trains and bus service all over the section and sending Deep Red creek one-half mile out of its banks on either side. Old-timers say the creek is higher than it has been at any time since 1903. Mrs. Minerva Kinder and her family were forced to move out of their home along the creek banks near Frederick to escape the encroaching waters.

A six-inch rain fell at Snyder, three miles from Frederick.

The general rains halted the Frisco service between Davidson and Vernon, the weakness of a bridge over Pease river making the trip Saturday night impossible. A bus took 7½ hours to make the 20-mile trip between Grandfield and Frederick Saturday night.

Crops have been seriously damaged and poultry killed. Much cotton will have to be replanted.

HARROLD—Highways through Harrold had cleared Sunday after Saturday's heavy rains. Clouds hung over the section at intervals during the day, but no further precipitation was reported in the county. Roads were passable except near Elliott, where the dirt highway was badly washed.

VERNON—Except for a light sprinkle Sunday morning, the rains that swept the section Saturday were checked today and highways were again passable. Crops were badly washed, but farmers reported that some of them could be saved in spite of the torrential downpours. Pease river showed only a slight rise. Beaver creek was reported almost bankfull, but no damage has been incurred.

OKLAUNION—Flood waters that blocked the highway between Wichita Falls and Vernon following a cloudburst here Friday night and Saturday had subsided enough to make traffic possible Sunday. In spite of cloudy weather, no fresh showers fell. Except for a few small wooden bridges along country roads, no permanent damages to the highways of the county was reported.

CROWELL—The heavy rains which have swept this section during the past few days have missed Crowell, only a light shower falling here Sunday morning. The precipitation has been heavier in the western and southern section of Foard county, but no damages to roads or bridges has been reported.

BENJAMIN—Downpours over the section Saturday tapered off into a light shower here Sunday morning. The rains have not injured crops in this immediate section and except for a small bridge washed out on the road to Seymour, the highways are in good condition. A detour has been cut around the bridge, so that traffic is still maintained.

NEWCASTLE—The swollen waters of the main Brazos river had fallen 15 feet Sunday and flood waters all over the section were receding. Highways through the county were re-opened and the main bridges, threatened by the floods Saturday, found in good condition. Ten miles from Newcastle a small bridge over Elm creek on the Throckmorton road was out, making the road impassable but Brazos river bridge was unhurt. The road to Graham was clear again with the repair of a washed out culvert.

Service on the Wichita Valley has been suspended because of washouts along the track.

KNOX CITY—Six inches of rain fell in sections of Knox county Saturday and Sunday, although the fall in Knox City measured only two inches. The eastern and central sections of the county are flooded out and all roads impassable except the highway between Benjamin and Knox City. Fifty per cent of the crops will have to be replanted, farmers report.

BURKBURNETT—A total of about three inches of rain fell in Burkburnett over the week-end, but no flood conditions existed here Sunday. Only a slight rise was noted in Red river, roads were open, and no damages reported except a temporary setback to growing cotton.

MATADOR—Matador's share of the heavy rains through the district was limited to a light shower Sunday.

MONTAGUE—A moderate rain which fell here Sunday was of benefit to crops through the county. All roads are open and no flood conditions reported.

RINGGOLD—A hard rain fell in Ringgold Sunday morning bringing a slight rise to the streams of the neighborhood but no threat of floods. All roads are open and train and highway traffic is moving as usual.

BYERS—The heavy rain which fell here Sunday morning brought a slight rise to the river and adjoining streams, but no overflow or damages has been reported. All roads are passable.

ELECTRA—Electra has missed most of the heavy rains of the past few days, its share being limited to a .82 precipitation Saturday. Roads and bridges through the section are reported in good condition.

MEMPHIS—Accompanied by a violent wind and electrical storm, rain measuring 1.40 inches fell here Sunday morning. No damages were reported and the precipitation will prove of great benefit to crops and ranges. The shower Sunday brought the total rainfall for the week to 2.70 inches.

WAURIKA, OKLA.—Heavy rains here Saturday were followed by additional showers Sunday, but no damages were reported. Beaver creek is reported rising in its banks, but no immediate overflow is feared. Rains have been general over the section.

JACKSBORO—Seven hundred feet of the grade on highway 25, between Wichita Falls and Jacksboro, three miles south of Antelope on the West Fork of the Trinity, was washed out Sunday under the bombardment of another 2.5-inch rainfall. The downpour brought the water of the fork within a foot of the highway bridge on the road to Chico, out observers believed the bridge would hold. The highway to Wichita Falls is impassable.

The words "haphazard," "haphazard," "happen," and a few others all spring from "hap," an Icelandic word meaning "good luck."

PLANE DELIVERS PAPERS

The Sunday Daily Times was delivered Sunday by airplane to Archer City, Newcastle and Olney, a special ship having been chartered to carry the papers which usually are sent by bus. About 175 pounds of papers were placed in the plane, a Ryan J5-9 monoplane of the Walker Flying service here. The condition of the airport at Archer City prevented landing and the mail was dropped out from an altitude of about 500 feet in heavy mail sacks, the plane returning to this city after a non-stop flight. Tex Logan, attendant at the Municipal airport, accompanied Pilot Burton L. Walker on the trip. In the event the flood waters remain, it is likely mail will be sent by the special ship, officials said Sunday.

Summer Lends Pretty Color To Pre-Nuptial Courtesy

Summer with her glorious coloring is furnishing a fit incentive to the series of colorful affairs being given in honor of Miss Dorothy Reed, whose wedding to Robert W. Peckham is to be an event of June 25.

Two particularly charming and ingenious hostesses entertained Saturday afternoon when Misses Mary Peters and Isabel Stone arranged a bridge shower featuring pretty shades of yellow at the home of Miss Peters on Speedway.

Shasta daisies were used in the reception room, and in the dining room an enormous bowl of nasturtiums in every shade of yellow filled the center of the shining table and spilled color on its surface. Yellow tapers in silver holders stood on the buffet and tallies and score cards emphasized the same pretty motif.

A novel fashion was introduced in presenting the many lovely linen gifts brought the pretty honoree. The topic of rain had been incessantly discussed and finally the clothesline was brought in laden with lovely gifts.

In the bridge games, the first prize for high score was presented to Miss Mary Catherine Gould; she received a luncheon set in Italian cutwork. Miss Reed was winner of the other prize, an exquisite piece of linen.

The chosen colors were used in the dainty refreshment plates where on a green plate, golden angel squares embossed with daisies were served with peach parfait, and yellow and white mints with boutonnieres of daisies perfected the gold and white scheme.

Among the guests were Misses Dolores Peavy, Margaret Brown, Constance Temple, Beatrice Ramsdell, Maybelle Moore, Juanita Kinsey, Laura Lee Hampshire, Faire Murphy, Mary Catherine Gould, Flora Lee Lassiter, Mesdames Paul Peters, Woodard Bass, W. H. Peckham, G. W. Peckham, C. M. Reed and the hostesses, Misses Mary Peters and Isabel Stone with their mothers, Mesdames C. C. Peters and L. E. Stone.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Muddy water flooding down through the banks of the Wichita river, drew crowds of both sexes to gaze upon so unusual a thing. It made us remember the iron benches on the banks along the Mississippi river in Memphis, Tenn., where men and women always sat gazing upon the broad waters.

◇ ◇ ◇

Does it make one remember that which is past and cannot be brought back? Or do they wonder vaguely what the resistless waves are bringing?

◇ ◇ ◇

At any rate, groups of men in broad brimmed hats sat looking and whittling, and the rushing waters carried more brushwood on its bosom than we thought grew along its banks.

◇ ◇ ◇

Time carries flotsam. We could not help remembering a news item we read just the other day. The queens of England, it seems, do not approve of divorce. Queen Victoria used to wait some time as if she pondered on it before she made public the fact that she would not receive a woman because of a divorce. But we read Queen Mary is "inflexible where the morals of women" are concerned.

◇ ◇ ◇

So the notice has just been printed that a Mrs. Christopher Courtney's presentation at her majesty's court was cancelled. And the reason, which was not published, was that Mrs. Courtney was a divorcee.

◇ ◇ ◇

We hold no brief for divorce. But we feel that divorce and the morals of a woman are two separate things.

◇ ◇ ◇

Which was not at all what we started to write about. We heard the beat of the rain on the roof Sunday morning and it brought us more reminiscences than the sight of mighty waters.

◇ ◇ ◇

We remembered just such a sound of pounding water when we sat in a little parlor in a country town, trying out the tune of the birds in the first chapter of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," and we are ready to wager that everyone who read the book, tried the music.

◇ ◇ ◇

We remembered an awful down-pour in Pueblo, Colo., when the echoing whistles and sirens suddenly drowned the sound of the rain. The wide Missouri, where one might have waded across an hour before, tore down bridges, and destroyed property and life inside two hours.

◇ ◇ ◇

We sat with a group of women one such rainy day in a lovely room in Clarksdale, Miss., and the phone rang and we heard that the levee had broken at Rosedale. One of us had a sister at Rosedale and all fun was over for awhile. But it is strange how little afraid those people are who live in the center of a dangerous district.

◇ ◇ ◇

We remember as a child lying abed and listening to the beat of the rain on the roof. There was a hint of fairyland in it that time.

◇ ◇ ◇

There is no value to be set on memory. She is a part of us that holds things we would so gladly throw away and others we would not part with for rubies and diamonds.

M. G. Bradley Dies In Vernon Hospital

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, June 15.—An illness of five months duration proved fatal to M. G. Bradley, 46, of Vernon, Saturday morning at 7:30 o'clock. He died in a Vernon hospital after being taken there in a critical condition last Tuesday. In an attempt to prolong his life, several blood transfusions were given during the week, but his condition had continued critical since Tuesday.

Mr. Bradley and his family had made their home in Vernon for the past three and a half years, coming here from Borger. He was in the trucking business until he became ill. Surviving are a widow, three daughters, Nevada, Estelle and Sylva May Bradley; two sons, Garland and Hubert Bradley, of the family home here; two sisters, Mrs. W. A. Benton and Mrs. Lena Backes, both of Kansas City; four brothers, P. S. Bradley of Whitesboro, R. D. and T. E. Bradley of Springdale, Ark.; and his mother, Mrs. Amanda Bradley of Marlow.

MEMPHIS, Texas, June 15.—Fifteen thousand dollars was the total for the building permits issued during the month of May, according to Wesley J. Mangum, city building inspector. Heading the list was the permit issued to K. B. Kennedy for a home on North Sixteenth street designed to cost $4,250.

Permits issued for the month of May were as follows: K. B. Kennedy, seven-room brick veneer, Mrs. W. A. Johnson, repair and addition; R. E. Roper, repair on roof; C. H. Hagemeier, two-room frame; J. L. Gibson, five rooms and bath, stucco; J. D. Hennon, seven rooms and bath, stucco; J. P. Watson, repair.

Clint Small Forces Claim Donley County

Special to The Record News

CLARENDON, Texas, June 15.—Odus Caraway, president of the Small for Governor club of this city, said here today that Small would get practically 100 per cent of the votes of this county after a canvas of the situation here this week. He said the first publicity that Small was a sectional candidate was losing ground and that Mr. Small was receiving a state response that was unusual. Mr. Caraway made this statement after a visit to South Texas in which he talked with several from that section.

Girl Who Goes With Many Men Shows She's Wise

Is It a Wise Girl Who Receives Attentions From Six Men?—Straight Talk to an Unbelievably Selfish Stepmother—Whence Comes Happiness in Love?

Dear Miss Dix—Do you think it wise for a girl to have a number of men friends and receive attention from them? I know a girl who has six young men who call her up and take her to places. She does not love any of these, but says that they are good for a good time until the right man comes along and that they will always be her friends. What do you think of a case like this?—S. Y.

Answer—I think the girl has a head full of good, hard, horse sense and that she has put the relationship between herself and boys on the only foundation that is fair and just to both sides.

Of course, every girl wants to have attentions from boys and every boy wants to go around with a pretty and attractive girl, but not every girl and boy are in love and want to marry every one of the opposite sex whose company they enjoy. Nor is every boy in a position to think about marrying.

I think that there is no custom more pernicious than that of boys and girls keeping what is called "steady company." It works a great wrong on both the boy and girl and is responsible for a large percentage of the unhappy marriages. Consider how it works out:

A young boy and girl, because they have natural urge for companionship of the opposite sex, begin to go together. They are not in love with each other. They have no present desire to marry each other. In any case, it will be years before they will be able to marry. But when they begin going together, although they are not engaged, neither one has any more dates and they are automatically cut off from association with other girls and boys.

This limits their knowledge of the other sex and narrows their choice, which is a fatal objection to the system, because before a man and a woman picks out a wife or a husband they should have known many men and women and be able to compare them with their selection in order to be sure that they have got what they want.

To marry the first man or woman you see is as poor judgment as it would be to invest all of your money in the first automobile you see or buy the first dress shown you in a shop. Perhaps the first one is as good as any. And perhaps it isn't what you want at all and you will see something you like better the next minute. But at any rate, if you have looked them all over you know you are getting the thing that fires your fancy and comes up to your ideal.

Again, if a girl and boy have gone together for years, they are automatically forced into marrying each other even if they find out that they have no especial tenderness for each other or even that they are uncongenial. People have come to expect them to marry and they have drifted out of touch with other young people and so they are practically driven into a union to which neither brings any enthusiasm and in which a disgruntled man and woman nag and fight through a miserable marriage.

For the girl the keeping company custom is still more disastrous, because she lets one boy monopolize her during the heydey of her youth and beauty when her chances of marrying are best, yet she has no assurance that he will ever pop the question. Any day he can kiss and ride away and leave her lamenting.

So, I think the girl is wise who keeps as many men on the string as she can until some chap comes along and pops the question and names the wedding day.

She has a good time. She has many men to pick from, and when Mr. Right does appear she makes him a better and a happier wife and because she has had all the love-making she wants she is content to settle down to one. It is the unsatisfied women, who still crave romance, who make the flirtatious wives.

And this is fair to young men, too, because it gives them feminine companionship and still leaves them free and unhampered.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am married to a man who is everything that is good and kind and generous, but he was a widower and has a daughter 10 years old. This child is very good, but for the last seven months she has been sick and her father expects me to wait on her and do for her just as if she was my own. We are expecting a little stranger in our home soon, so I do not feel like waiting on some one else's child. Please, Miss Dix, write me a comforting letter in your column.

—COMPLAINING WIFE.

Answer—I fear what I have to say to you won't be very comforting, for I think a woman who begrudges care to a little sick girl child is a candidate for the medal for the meanest woman and that she hasn't a heart as big as a chicken's.

I grant you that the role of stepmother calls for a nobility of character that many women do not possess. I can understand that there are many women who are so jealous that they cannot endure the children that are perpetual reminders to them that their husbands loved other women before them and that there are many women so selfish that they cannot bear to see their husband's affection or money given to his children by a previous marriage instead of being monopolized by their own children.

But why do such women marry widowers with children? How do they dare, knowing there is a just God, to take into their hands the lives of little helpless children and ruin them? Surely it was of such cruel stepmothers and stepfathers, for men are guilty of the same offense, that the curse was uttered: "It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he cast into the sea than that he should offend one of these little ones."

You say your husband expects you to care for his sick little girl as if she was your own child. Of course he does. You promised to be a mother to her when you married him and it is impossible for a generous-minded man, such as he is, to think of a woman so hard, with so little womanhood in her, so little sweetness and tenderness, that she would begrudge any care to a pain-ridden little child.

Suppose you try to visualize what he will think of you. What a contempt he will have for you when he finds you out and sees you as you are—hard, callous, selfish, without even a pang of pity for a sick child. I can think of nothing that would kill a man's love quicker than that.

You say you are about to become a mother. Suppose you should die and leave a little helpless girl baby. Suppose it was sick and suppose it fell into the hands of a stepmother. Would you want that woman to treat your suffering little child as you are treating your little stepdaughter?

—DOROTHY DIX.

Looks Young, Feels Fine

"Eight years ago before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am 44, but people tell me I look much younger. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."—Mrs. H. Dolhonde, 6318 York St., New Orleans, Louisiana.

Dalhart Provides Poison for Pests

Special to The Record News.

DALHART, Texas, June 15.—Fifteen hundred pounds of poison grain have been distributed to farmers and ranchers in Dallam and Hartley counties by Dalhart Chamber of Commerce. The grain is being used to poison rabbits, squirrels and what is commonly known as the kangaroo rats.

Only a small portion of the grain is necessary and it is best used by distributing around the edges of the fields and in the tracks made by rabbits and squirrels in the fields, according to E. R. Duke, county agricultural agent of Hartley county, who has co-operated with the Dalhart Chamber of Commerce in securing the grain.

Popular Wichita Couple Are Wed At High Noon Saturday

Just at high noon Saturday, June 14, Miss Bolena Field, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Field became the bride of Ted R. Williams, at the home of her parents on Travis street.

The bride entered the living room on the arm of her father and the couple took their nuptial vows amid a profusion of gladioli, ferns and pink roses. Miss Elizabeth Cole played the wedding march as they entered and "I Love You Truly," softly during the ceremony, which was read by Dr. O. L. Powers in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The bride was very lovely in her gown of eggshell chiffon with accessories to harmonize; she carried a shower bouquet of pink rose buds and lilies of the valley. Miss Helen Ingle, her bridesmaid, wore a frock of shell pink crepe with harmonizing accessories and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas.

Mr. Williams was attended by Nat A. Field.

A short reception followed the wedding during which the handsome three-tiered wedding cake centering the dining table, was cut and served. The dining room was lovely with the handsome cloth and shining tapers and the same flowers were used throughout the home.

Mrs. Williams is one of the popular young business women of the city and is prominent in church affairs. Mr. Williams is a prominent young business men, connected with the Security National bank and is widely known as a vocal artist.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams will be at home to their friends on Britain street.

Epworth Young People Hear Splendid Talks

With Thomas C. Scott, president, in the chair, an interesting program was given Sunday afternoon when the Epworth Young People of Floral Heights Methodist church met in their regular Sunday evening session.

Following the song and responsive Bible reading, sentence prayers were said, opened by Elizabeth Albritton and closed by Estelle McPhail. There was a group song, "Faith of Our Fathers," and Paul's letters to Rome were taken as the Bible study lesson, taught by the president. His discussion was interesting and Helen Simpson's story of "A Roman Prisoner and the Deepening Shadows," was a particularly fine resume of Paul's life.

Bernice Trevathan gave an interesting report from the Sherman conference and Mrs. Glen E. Laskey told the beautiful story, "The Golden Shield."

Following the business meeting in which pledges were made and dues paid, the benediction was said dismissing about 28 members.

A Valparaiso, Ind., woman was convicted 49 times in 25 years on liquor charges.

NOW and ...THEN

A Modern Moloch
Not So Alarming
Naive Will Rogers
"Dangerous Money"

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Dr. Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, is alarmed over traffic congestion all over the country. He thinks we have reared a Frankenstein monster bound to crush us in the end. The toll we pay in deaths and property he compares to the toll the pagans paid to Moloch, an idol with an insatiable thirst for human sacrifice.

It is not as alarming as Dr. Klein believes. Tolerance is needed with an era whose advance is so rapid that no boundary may contain or limit. The age is creative. A creative spirit, halted continually for revision and criticism, dies. After the renaissance, always the reformation.

The prodigal, returning to Rumania, amid exultation and festivity, is crowned king after five years' exile. But when the "feast is finished and the lamps expire" how will the people regard their ruler? They have invested with sovereignty a man who not only lacks the moral stature of a king, but also is wanting in the spiritual qualities of one. He has lived the life of a rake with a cheap adventuress and now mounts a throne. Simple Mr. Will Rogers, studying the situation in his naive way, would like to see the congratulations that will be sent by such men as Mr. Hoover and King George.

Members of the graduating class of New York university, who hope to get along, will be pained to hear from Chancellor Brown that money is a "dangerous impiement" which can only be used and spent intelligently by "mature moralists." Young gentlemen listening to this foolishness will remember, if they have studied their history well, that the same prejudice was held by princes of the middle ages when education, then the guarded possession of the few, was believed to be a "dangerous implement" in the hands of the many. Even the Bible was proscribed at one time for the poor and the unlettered.

The common people have not made such a mess of things. Notwithstanding opinions voiced by such men as Nicholas Murray Butler, they have done pretty well in the short space they have enjoyed freedom from tyranny. The great progress the world has made in recent years may be attributed to the democratization of the products of genius—products formerly hampered and even betrayed by titular heads.

In Indo-China the people are up in arms. Mr. Gandhi's salty defiance of England inspires that country to a like defiance of France. Diminutive Annamites refuse to pay taxes and demonstrate in "passive revolt." As a reprisal for volleys fired into their midst, they threaten a general tie-up of industry, to starve the centers where the French reside and function. That is very unpleasant for the imperialistic ambitions of European powers. The torch of freedom is blazing a bit too brightly in other quarters of the civilized world for even the darkest corners of the globe not to hail it.

From New York a cry goes up because its exports, amounting to four billions of dollars annually, are menaced by the tariff bill. Automobile exports have already dropped 50 per cent, with other trades suffering proportionately. Reprisals by foreign countries will probably be serious enough. But industries that have only a domestic outlet for their products have long stood unprotected from overseas imports. Some day we will learn to live and let live.

A congressman is a funny thing. He'll talk fer hours fer a billion dollar navy an' then drop in the nearest drug store fer a nickel cigar. Mrs. Art Smiley is real proud of her son, Lionel, who wuz the only boy in last week's roundup who wuz too young to send to prison.

John D. Rockefeller was made a Boy Scout in New Jersey the other day during a $150,000 fund scout drive. Of course, he'll soon be expected to do a good turn.

A British chemist predicts that cellulose, the raw material of paper, may soon be obtained from the air. Some day that's going to be news.

The Boy Scout motto, to do a good turn, is not such a bad slogan for the motorist to keep in mind rounding the corners.

While you might think congressmen might get enough exercise from log rolling, they no doubt feel there is more at stake in horseshoe pitching.

A Reporter Is Killed

IT IS just barely possible that in murdering Reporter Alfred J. Lingle the Chicago gangsters have gone a little too far for their own good. Newspaper reporters are not, ordinarily, especially honored members of the community. They are not up on any pedestal. No one gives their calling the veneration that goes to such people as doctors or clergymen.

But when a newspaper man, in pursuit of his duty, follows the news trail into a place where his temerity costs his life, there seems to be something in the situation that jars public opinion clear down to the bottom.

Perhaps it is because the reporter or the editor is, in a sense, a representative of all the people. He is the eye and ear for the man in the street. The ordinary citizen depends on the newspaper man's integrity, his daring, his zeal, for his knowledge about what is going on in the world. When Lingle, for instance, pursued his inquiries in the dark places of Chicago—those deep abysses where death is an ever-present threat, where all the structure of order and decency that society has painfully reared is held in contempt—he was there as the representative of all of us.

However that may be, organized crime invariably puts its foot into it when it elects to put one of these news gatherers out of the way.

The underworld of Canton, Ohio, might give the Chicagoans a tip. Canton had a wide-open underworld a few years ago. It also had a courageous newspaper editor named Don Mellett, who swung his searchlight on this underworld. Canton failed to get excited about it—until Mellett paid for his daring with his life. Then Canton boiled over with indignation. It landed on its underworld like a thousand of brick. The underworld, with its leaders imprisoned, has never been the same since.

Chicago has been extraordinarily patient with its gangs. For many years they have held open house in the nation's second city, and the city has seemed willing to tolerate them rather than rouse itself to the point of putting them down. But now it is, we repeat, just barely possible that things will be different.

For killing a reporter is, when you come right down to it, gangland's last word in open defiance of society. It is as if gangland had said: "Here—you not only can't keep us from doing the things we want to do, but you can't even find out about us. We don't want you to bother us even to the extent of putting things about us in the newspapers. If you do, we'll shoot."

It will be interesting, now, to see what happens. Killing a reporter has always been bad medicine. Will it prove so in Chicago?

Work That Isn't Finished

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES is due to get a nice vacation this summer while the senate has to stay in Washington and worry over the naval treaty; but no one need think that the house gets to go home because it handles pending legislation more rapidly and efficiently than the senate. It doesn't.

The house, for instance, has still failed to take any action on the Norris "lame duck" amendment, which passed the senate more than a year ago.

It has also ignored the three senate bills to relieve unemployment, introduced by Senator Wagner of New York and put through quickly by the upper house. The house almost certainly won't pass these before adjournment; by the time it gets around to them the unemployment crisis may be almost over.

No, it doesn't do to suppose that the house gets its vacation because its work is all done. That simply isn't the case.

How to Raise Children

OUR PSYCHOLOGISTS have been very busy of late telling us how we should raise our children. The job ought to be done scientifically, they insist; most of us have not the knowledge to be good parents, and botch the job fearfully.

Now, however, comes Miss Joanna C. Colcord of the Russell Sage Foundation to laugh these pretensions to scorn.

Miss Colcord tells the national conference on social work, meeting in New York, that the old-fashioned, unscientific way of raising children is after all about the best way there is.

"The most stable children," she says, "seem to be reared by parents who are too busy at useful tasks to interfere unnecessarily in the development of the children."

That sounds like common sense. The psychologists are prone to take in a little too much ground in their claims.

A Parachute Jumper's Fate

FATE can be whimsical almost beyond belief, sometimes. Consider the case of Henry Bushmeyer, parachute jumper. Bushmeyer made his living by making exhibition parachute jumps. He had jumped from airplanes more than 500 times without being hurt.

The other day he went up in an airplane with a friend. It was a pleasure hop, so he did not wear a parachute. The plane crashed. A parachute would have saved his life—but he didn't have one. So Bushmeyer, who had made 500 successful leaps, was killed.

There is a queer, ironic twist to that story that fairly takes one's breath away.

"SHEILA"

Love and Mystery
Humor and Tragedy
A Story of Wichita Falls
By GORDON TURNER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sheila Wilber, daughter of William Oliver Wilber, manufacturer and inventor, gives a dinner party at her home for Samuel Enderby and James Westervelt, electrical experts who are negotiating for the purchase of Wilber's invention, a new type of electric light. Enderby is accompanied by a 9-year-old son, Dick. Other guests include Joseph Hedley, assistant county prosecutor, Sheila's fiance, and Frank Sheridan, wealthy young lawyer, friend of Hedley whose hobby is solving crime mysteries. Sheridan meets and is attracted to Edna Rogers, Sheila's chum. Edna's widowed mother, Mary Rogers, also is a guest, as is Andy Masters, Sheila's wayward cousin, who wants to marry Edna, but is entangled in a love affair with Mercedes Riverson, a stenographer in the office of Homer Menton, an unprincipled criminal lawyer. A few days before the dinner party, a safe in Wilber's experimental home laboratory was burglarized and a diary of Wilbur's wife, now dead, stolen. The diary holds a secret of Sheila's birth and Sheridan, in the role of amateur detective, is on the trail of the burglar. The stolen diary falls into the hands of Menton, who sees a chance to blackmail Wilber. Through a loan to Andy Masters, who has squandered his fortune, he gains the youth's consent to aid him in this scheme. Unknown to Masters, Menton also makes a deal with Riley Morgan to reburglarize the Wilber laboratory and steal Wilber's invention. At the dinner, Westervelt recognizes Lena Swartz, a maid, as a woman who had been dismissed from his employ for theft. Following the dinner, Wilber demonstrates his invention for the visiting experts. Dicky Enderby is permitted to pull the switch which puts the powerful new light into operation.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XVII

As Wilber lifted Dicky down from the bench, the boy's foot struck a can of water standing near its edge. It turned over, and the water splashed on the floor, drenching Wilber's shoes.

"It's all right," Wilber replied to the lad's sputtered apology. "My fault; I shouldn't have had the water there." Replacing the can on the bench, he turned to Enderby and Westervelt and said:

"At our conference in my office today I explained to you the chemical, mechanical and electrical properties of this device. This is merely a visual demonstration, but what I want to impress upon you is the high illumination produced in comparison with low current consumption. In that, coupled with low manufacturing costs, lies its commercial value.

"In this test, ordinary house current was used. Peculiarly, it has been shown by experiment, that higher power does not produce correspondingly greater illumination." He flipped off the switch quickly and threw on another. The cylinder continued to glow, but not perceptibly brighter than before. "That switch throws 2,000 volts through the cylinder," he continued. "By the way, that is almost exactly the voltage used in electrocutions at the penitentiary. And that is why I am careful to keep this room locked."

"Dicky's eye almost popped from his head.

"Gee! If you stuck a rat in there, it'd kill him quick wouldn't it?" he cried. "I'd like to try it!"

"No chance, Dicky," laughed Wilber. "This isn't one of Rube Goldberg's patent rattraps." He turned on the house lamps and threw off the switch on the bench panel.

"Another thing," Wilber continued, lifting the cylinder from the holding clips and extending it to Enderby, "observe that it retains very little heat.

"A white light of great intensity with a minimum of heat. That is due to the chemical composition of the tube and the flow of air around and inside of it. In commercial use the cylinder, for safety's sake, would have to be enclosed in glass, but there must be perforations to permit free flow of air."

Enderby, who had been examining the cylinder curiously, laid it on the bench. Wilber picked it up and replaced it between the clips. At that moment Sheila appeared in the doorway.

"Are you men going to stay here all night?" she called. "We've got the radio going and there's a perfectly divine dance band playing over KGKO. Joe's doing his best, but he can't dance with all of us at the same time.

"Coming at once, Sheila, dear," replied Wilber, leading the way back to the living room with Dicky close on his heels. Andy, who had been bored and restless during Wilber's demonstration, lingered until the others had disappeared. Then whipping a flask from his pocket, he took a long drink. Wilber was an uncompromising "dry," and no liquor ever was served in his home. Andy had been tormented by thirst. This was the first opportunity to relieve it. After a few moments, he followed the others, leaving the door ajar and the lights burning.

"Are you men going to stay in here all night?" Sheila called.

"I wonder, Miss Wilber," said Enderby in the living room, "if you could find some place to put Dicky for a nap. It's away past his usual bedtime, and I promised his mother that I would not break his routine any more than is necessary."

"Why, certainly," said Sheila. "Father's bedroom will be just the place. It's across the hall from the laboratory. Papa insists on being close to his work. He sometimes gets up in the night to mess around in that blessed laboratory." Dicky protesting vehemently, was led away.

It was a merry, carefree party that danced in the living room and listened to the music of the radio orchestra. Wilber even persuaded the diffident Mrs. Rogers to waltz with him when the orchestra suddenly switched from jazz to the "Merry Widow," an old favorite. To each of them the familiar melody brought tender memories, but each found in the other an antidote to that feeling of loneliness and frustration which remembrance of youth is sure to awaken.

Though dancing usually bored him, Sheridan was far from bored when he held Edna in his arms and glided through the steps of a slow fox trot. He experienced a sensation of buoyancy and exhilaration. In a vague sort of way, he was puzzled, and despite his absorbed interest in his lovely dance partner, one lobe of his brain was probing his own reactions to this delightful occasion. But tonight, his analytical mind was not functioning in its accustomed manner; emotion yields little of the truth to self-analysis.

Edna was giving him the "once-over" from her modern girl view-

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington is the world's greatest storehouse of all kinds of knowledge. You can draw on it free of charge through our bureau there. Any question of fact you may ask will be answered promptly in a personal letter to you. Be careful to write clearly, give your full name and address, and enclose two-cent stamp for reply postage. Send your inquiry to The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—What was Washington's attitude toward the Hessians?—R. P.

A.—Don Seitz says that Washington "liked these Germans and did all he could to persuade the prisoners to stay and send for their families, which many did."

Q.—Is paper money printed only in Washington or do mints print it, too?—O. D.

A.—The paper money of the United States is printed only at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, D. C. The mints of the United States make no paper currency.

Q.—How long have there been pogroms?—H. J. G.

A.—Pogrom is a Russian word meaning devastation and was applied to anti-Jewish riots in Russia. The first pogroms took place in 1881 and were the direct cause of the first wave of Russian-Jewish emigration to America.

Q.—How old is the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris?—R. K.

A.—It was founded in 1163 and it took two centuries to build it.

Q.—Who publishes the new magazine called The Roadside Bulletin?—N. E. N.

A.—It is published by the American Nature association of Washington, for the National Council of Protection of Roadside Beauty, 119 East Nineteenth street, New York City. This organ has for its purpose the beautification of highways and removal of defacing signboards.

Q.—Where was Julius Caesar buried?—A. J.

A.—The grave of Caesar is not identified.

Q.—How is water carried from the sea to the new aquarium in Chicago?—B. G.

A.—Twenty railway tank cars, such as are used to transport gasoline, were leased to carry sea water from Key West, Fla., to the new $3,000,000 John G. Shedd Aquarium in Chicago. This water was needed to keep the fish in condition as such organic matter is available only in their natural environment. In preparing the cars for the shipment, they were treated with hot paraffin so as to leave a lining to protect the water from contamination. The aquarium will be supplied with about two million gallons of water, both salt, from Key West and fresh, from Lake Michigan. All of it will be filtered, cleaned and aerated. This institution is said to be the first of its kind to collect and exhibit on a large scale not only the lake and stream life of North and South America but also representative fishes from the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Q.—Can the texture and amount of wool on a sheep be improved?—F. M.

A.—The department of agriculture says that the quality and quantity of wool is largely within the control of the sheep raisers. The feeding, breeding and management of sheep influence the wool production.

Q.—Of the working population in the United States, what percentage is composed of stenographers?—E. S.

A.—Stenographers form one and four-tenths per cent of the workers.

Q.—Was walnut used in colonial furniture making?—W. M.

A.—Through Pennsylvania and the colonies of the South, walnut was very popular. Some of the finest pieces of colonial furniture in these sections were made of walnut.

Q.—What country in South America manufactures lace?—H. W.

A.—The Pan-American Union says that Paraguay is the only country in South America that manufactures lace in fairly large quantities.

Q.—What was Valentine Scrip?—G. B. D.

A.—The land office says that a number of years ago Thomas B. Valentine was given title to some land which for one reason or another he did not take up. The government then issued to him scrip which was to be used for land in some other section in the country and this came to be known as Valentine scrip. Each certificate was for a 40-acre tract of land and the scrip was assignable by Valentine. This was perhaps the only scrip which may be used on unsurveyed land and for that reason was very desirable.

What to Do Until the Doctor Comes

In case of an accident which results in serious injury to any one, the first thing to do is to send for a physician. But until the doctor comes there are many emergency measures to be taken, all depending upon the nature of the injury, and far too often there is no one at hand who knows just what should be done. Ignorance or helplessness on the part of bystanders or first arrivals on the scene has cost many a life, or led to more serious after effects than should have resulted from the mishap.

Hence the value of the First Aid booklet which is offered by The Record News Information bureau. It is a compilation of data and expert knowledge obtained from the United States Public Health Service and the American Red Cross, all condensed into 24 pages and indexed so that the reader can learn instantly what to do in any emergency.

Wakefulness

In our present stage of evolution it is necessary for us to spend about a third of our time in sleep. Sleep seems to be a state of self hypnosis, during which time the body is able to rest and the nerve cells to store up strength very much as the radio battery is recharged during the night when it is not being used.

The inability to sleep is often purely mental. I have heard many patients say that they are sleepy until they go to bed, after which they are wide awake. If a person believes that he can fall asleep as soon as his head rests upon the pillow, he usually will, but there are many physical causes as well as mental which keep people from sleeping or from getting rest even if they do sleep. Most of these can be traced to some type of toxin or stimulant, which comes from the digestive tract.

One of the most frequently used stimulants which prevents sleep is coffee taken late at night. Wrong combinations of food, leading to intestinal gas, is another type of irritation that prevents sleep.

The next time that you suffer from insomnia which you know is due to worry or mental causes, just tap your abdomen and see if it is not ballooned out with gas. This type of sleeplessness can almost always be overcome by the use of a warm drink followed by a fairly warm enema. Once the intestinal tract has been cleared out, and much of the gas expelled, a person will be very apt to fall into a refreshing sleep.

The finest prescription for sleeplessness that a doctor can give is to recommend correct combinations of food, and the use of hard physical exercises. One who is tired from muscular labor has no problem of wakefulness.

Sleep is absolutely essential to preserve our vitality. It gives strength to the kidneys and other organs; it keeps the blood pure and the brain clear. A person who does not have enough sleep is liable to retain the systemic poisons in his body, and almost invariably we will find such a person is constipated or suffers from colds, catrrah or nervousness.

A congestion of blood in the head will prevent sleep, and in order to avoid this, one should take a few minutes of exercise before retiring. In the feet are cold, place a hot water bottle in the foot of the bed.

Eight hours of sleep seem to be required by the average adult. Children require more sleep than this. It is important that children form the habit of retiring early.

If reading is to be done, it is much better to do it with the light of day rather than to use artificial light because the night is the natural time for sleep.

I have never known of a case of insomnia that could not be easily cured by using a combination of treatments for removing internal irritation, increasing the physical exercise, and the use of the proper mental suggestions.

When next you are bothered with insomnia, try to concentrate your mind on your hands and feet, relaxing all of your muscles as if you intend to fall apart. If you can successfully imagine that your arms and legs are dead weights and that sleep is gradually approaching from your extremities, you will find that you will fall asleep within a very short time. These methods are much more satisfactory and permanently wholesome than to depend upon sleeping powders which are brain and nerve sedatives.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sunbathing

Question: K. I. F. asks—"How and when should one take a sunbath How long should one remain in the sun at the very beginning, and should any clothing be worn"

Answer—A sunbath should be taken entirely nude and the body exposed to the direct rays of the sunlight. At this time of the year it is a good plan to start taking 10 minutes while lying on the back and also while lying face downward. If the sunbaths are taken daily, increase one minute's exposure on each side daily.

Salmon

Question: Mrs. C. N. S. writes—"I notice you exclude salmon from your list of good proteins. Please advise me why, and in what way, is it unlike other fish. I am a diabetic and am very fond of salmon, both fresh and canned and I know that most diabetic authorities bar it as you do, and I would like to know why and in what way it differs from hundreds of other fish. How about tuna?"

Answer—Both salmon and tuna contain large quantities of fat and therefore are a little more difficult to digest than most other fish or lean meats. For this reason I leave them out of the diets I recommended for sick people.

Hernia

Question: Mrs. M. T. writes—"My two months old boy has a lump the size of a large marble on the lower part of her abdomen. At times it almost disappears and then comes back again. Will you tell me what this is, the cause and treatment?"

Answer—I would advise you to have your baby examined, as I could not determine what the lump is without first seeing the child. If the lump appears and disappears, it may be a hernia, and should be attended to.

Hall County Road Report Gets Approval

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, June 15. — Report of the Jury of View appointed by the Hall county commissioners court to lay out and survey a road beginning at Memphis and terminating at Mulbery bridge has been turned over to the commissioners court and filed in the office of Miss Edna Bryan, county clerk.

The report contains the claims of damages made by land owners along the route of the new road, and the final damages allowed by the jury.

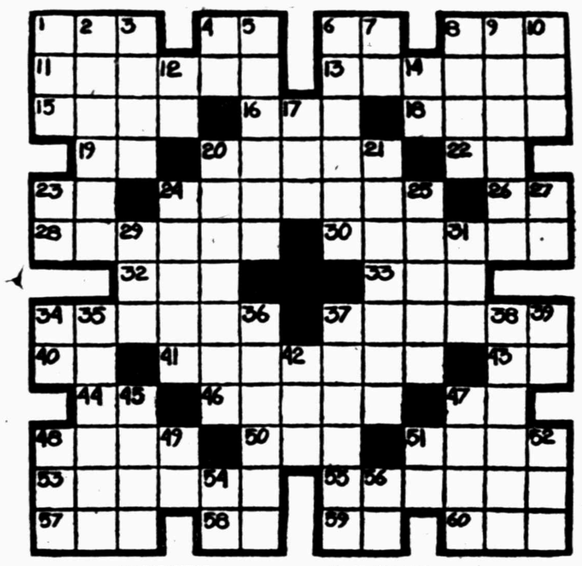

The report has been approved by the commissioners court, which ordered the route opened as a road of the first class.

Tillman County Grain Exhibits Prepared

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., June, 15.—Samples of some of the best wheat and oats grown in this locality were procured and sent to Louis H. Beaty, county agent, who is preparing them into fancy bundles. When this work is finished they will be placed in an exhibit from Tillman county at Wichita Falls. It is likely that samples will also be displayed at the Tillman county fair and Oklahoma state fair this fall.

HOUSTON GAINS NOTCH AS RAIN CANCELS SPUDDER GAMES

BUFFS DEFEAT STEERS TWICE

Waco Blanks Shreveport 5 to 0

The Spudders were deprived of the chance to make a double charge at the San Antonio Indians in the Central Texas city Sunday when rainfall cancelled the scheduled pair of games. The double-header will be played today starting at 2:30 p. m., announcements from San Antonio stated. The postponement will not interfere with the regular schedule, as Monday was to have been an off day for both clubs.

The weather was kind to other clubs in the league. Houston administered a double defeat to the Dallas Steers, thus improving its standing by a full game, and leaving the Spudders in possession of an eight instead of a nine-game lead. Shreveport suffered further humiliation at the hands of the Waco Cubs, and the Sports' defeat, by a score of 5 to 0, broke their tie with Houston for second place, and shoved them back into the third place notch. The Exporters whipped the Fort Worth Cats, 4 to 1.

BUFFS WIN TWO FROM DALLAS STEERS

HOUSTON, June 15. (AP)—Joe Schultz' brave lads had to work hard to capture the first game of today's twin bill from Dallas, the Buffs finally winning 4 to 3 in the tenth, when Carey Selph singled with the bases full. In the seven-inning nightcap the Buffs won 8 to 6. Score:

Boston Braves Whip Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3

BOSTON, June 15. (AP)—Clever fielding and timely hitting by members of the Boston Braves infield gave the Warriors a 4 to 3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today. It was the Braves' third straight win. Every member of the Braves infield hit safely, and between them they garnered 7 of Boston's 8 hits.

Four runs behind at the end of the sixth, the Reds rallied for two counters in the seventh and another in the ninth, when Ben Cantwell stopped them in time. Score:

Clock Posted Spectators On Time Throughout Race

EVANSTON, Ill., June 15. (AP)—A timing device to advise spectators of the speed of track runners during the races was used for the first time at the Western conference meet here.

A seven-foot dial carried both minute and second hands and moved in synchronization with a stop watch held by the operator of the huge clock. The device was perfected by Prof. Frank G. Dickinson of the University of Illinois, who originated a system for rating football standings.

A recording machine, like a huge thermometer, told the heights of high jumpers and pole vaulters.

New $750,000 Gym At Southern California

LOS ANGELES, June 15. (AP)—A new gymnasium, which will include two swimming pools, is to be officially added to the athletic department of the University of Southern California with fitting dedication ceremonies June 5.

The building is to cost $750,000 and will be available for all indoor sports in the fall.

Jungle Boys Meet Optimists Tuesday

Mayor to Open Milk-Ice Fund Benefit

By FRED REASER
The Record News Staff

Big game folks!

Lotta razzberries, funny antics, freak plays and everything that goes with a grudge battle will be dished up to patrons attending the annual baseball session between the Lions and Optimists down at Spudder park, at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, according to captains of the respective teams. The game was scheduled for Saturday but was postponed on account of the weather.

Hiz honner, Walter Nelson Jr., mayor, is scheduled to toss the first ball, and just who the noted individual on the receiving end will be is being kept a secret until the game is called.

The Optimists are circulating reports that Carl Williams may leave the Spudders for a day in order to pitch for their team. Other players of the Optimist aggregation hint that they have a slabsman of no mean repute who has been working out some time, and that Manager Williams will not be needed.

The Lions, through their manager, Milton Gaines, is of the opinion that the jungle team will present a powerful club, well-balanced and with a couple of flingers able to go the full nine innings.

It's all for The Times and Record News milk and ice fund and the public is expected to buy tickets—see the game—and help a good cause along.

Lions vs. Optimists, Spudder park, 4 bells, Tuesday.

INDIANS LOSE LEAD TO A'S

Yanks Prove Too Much for Pace Setters

CLEVELAND, June 15. (AP)—Cleveland lost its American league lead to Philadelphia today by dropping a second straight slugfest to the New York Yankees, 17 to 10, as the Athletics walloped Detroit.

The largest crowd ever to attend a ball game here, 33,823, looked on as Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and their mates levelled a 17-hit barrage at three Indian pitchers. Gehrig's 16th and 17th home runs of the season, plus a single, accounted for seven runs, while Ruth sent in one run ahead as he made his 21st circuit clout. Averill added a homer for the Indians. Browns Defeat Senators As Crowder Weakens

ST. LOUIS, June 15. (AP)—"General" Al Crowder, traded to the Washington Senators yesterday by the St. Louis Browns, weakened in the ninth inning today and the Browns won from the Senators, 3 to 2. Until the ninth the Browns were able to do little with their former teammate's delivery.

Heinie Manush, who went to Washington with Crowder in a deal that brought "Goose" Goslin to St. Louis, hit a home run. Score:

Merriwell Was a Piker Alongside Florida Boy

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., June 15. (AP)—Although in news stories a pitcher often wins his own ball game, the statement is seldom as well warranted as it was here recently with Bick Williams of Ketterlinus high school pitching.

Young Williams started out in the second inning of a game with New Smyrna, Fla., high school by getting a single. He was sacrificed to second and then stole third and home for the first run.

During the next seven innings he struck out 17 men, assisted in one double play with the bags loaded and allowed but three hits, one of which produced the tying run.

In the last half of the ninth inning, with a man on second and two out, Williams went to the plate and drove out a three-bagger that won the game.

CARDS DEFEAT ROBINS, 9 TO 4

High Leads Hitters With Triple and Homer

BROOKLYN, June 15. (AP)—St. Louis defeated Brooklyn 9 to 4 here today drawing even with the Robins for the series. Andy High led the attack with a triple and a home run, driving in four runs.

Five fielding erors behind Dazzy Vance and Ray Moss enabled the Cardinals to cash in their nine hits for nine runs. The Robins knocked Grabowski out in the seventh but Haines relieved in good style. Score:

Bobby Jones To Face Test Today

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 15. (AP)—Bobby Jones is ready to launch the second phase of his 1930 offensive against British golfing titles tomorrow when the big field of 296 pros and amateurs starts play over the Royal Liverpool and Wallasey courses, in the classic British open championship.

Jones, who led the American Walker cup team to victory at Sandwich a month ago, won the big medal competition at Sunningdale and then captured the British amateur title at St. Andrews, is only one of nearly 300 golfers from a half dozen countries who will tee off tomorrow but the tournament seems to revolve around Jones and his chances.

"Will Bobby win?" is the question everywhere and although the odds against Jones or anybody else coming through against the field ought to be no better than 10 to 1, the best wagers obtainable are at 2 to 1 against Bobby.

DIXONS DOWN GROCERS, 8-2

Williams Allows Only Five Scattered Hits

Lefty Williams held the Sullivan Grocery nine to five scattered hits Sunday afternoon on DeBus field while his mates was pounding out a 8 to 2 victory for the fast stepping Dixon Motor company team. The fielding sensation of the day was turned in by Earl Weller, groceryman third sacker when he leaped high into the air to snare Harlan Ray's line drive with one hand. Calhoun led the hitting for the day with three singles in four times at the bat. Score:

C. E. DELGATES CLOSE SESSION

Oratory Contest Awards Announced

BY MRS. L. N. CASON
The Record News Staff

Monday, one by one, the red and white cards brightening the downtown windows with their welcome of Christian Endeavorers, will come down in the natural course of events, but something of the spirit of the great conference must remain. The final sing-song led Sunday night by R. E. Shepherd was a faint demonstration of the real spiritual uplift felt and no more heartfelt congregational music has often been heard.

Miss Hattie Mae Wood, state president, was in the chair and following a short talk of appreciation by Jack B. Dale, the applause almost drowned the announcement of the winners in the state oratorical contest, in charge of Miss Nelle Witherspoon. Eliminations had been in the afternoon.

Winners Named

Franklin Morris, of Sherman was awarded first place and was presented with a handsome C. E. ring; L. D. Herbert of Wichita Falls was second; Maurine Spinnings of Fort Worth, third and Mildred Watson of Dallas, fourth.

The president's message was one of appreciation of the conference in Wichita Falls and spoke of the deeper feeling in delegates' hearts, of the manner in which they would go home to live nearer to Christ and to help more in their churches. The stressed thought was that the year's work and the enthusiastic conference had made better Christians of every Endeavorer.

Miss Harriet Bradley gave a special solo number in her rich mezzo soprano and the conference, reached its climax in Dr. A. E. Cory's address, "The Supreme Task of a Christian," which gave a magnificent message for each Endeavorer to carry home.

Special Features

A special message on "The Trinity of Triumph," by Harold F. Loviatt, general secretary of the Texas Christian Endeavor with the elimination contests in oratorical contests and a pipe organ, piano and violin trio, were special features of the afternoon program.

Mr. Loviaft said that three things dominated the lives of the nomads or old Hebrews of 2500 years ago, "the tabernacle, and priest, the observance of the Sabbath and daily study of God's law." These same characteristics were common down to the time of the Pilgrim fathers and were needed now.

A special musical trio was given with Miss Mathilde Donnell at the violin; Miss Mary Elizabeth Donnell at the piano and Mrs. J. V. C. T. Christensen at the organ.

A dinner in honor of Dr. A. E. Cory, who delivered the wonderful message Sunday evening was held at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday noon. The state council, state convention committee and representatives were guests.

Dallam Wheat Crop Ready for Harvest

Special to The Record News.

DALHART, Texas, June 15. — Actual harvesting of wheat in Dallam county will be in full sway within two weeks, according to information furnished by large wheat farmers in this section. A sufficient number of laborers are already on hand to take care of the crop and those seeking employment of this type should not come to Dalhart expecting to secure work, in the opinion of the farmers.

It is estimated that the average yield will be close to 10 bushels with some fields running as high as 20 bushels on the early wheat. Recent rains have prevented an early maturity of the grain but have been very beneficial to crops in general. The first 10 days of June bought approximately six inches of rain in Dalhart, however the showers were scattered and reports state that some sections of the county are still in need of moisture.

About 70 per cent of the corn in Dallam county has been planted and some of it is up to a good stand. Heavy rains in places have necessitated re-planting, but this has not been general.

SUGGESTS AUSTIN STREET FEDERAL BUILDING SITE
Editor The Record News:

In selecting the site for the federal building, there should be kept in mind the fact that the trend of retail business, if unimpeded of its natural inclination, is always toward the more populous and prosperous residential sections. This is I believe a guarantee that the better class of retail business of this town will push westward up the hill; and that the next substantial move in building for such expansion will be in that direction. It seems that me that a still better location than those already mentioned for the federal building would be on Austin street, from Seventh to Ninth.

BANKS HATE TO LOSE 'DOBBIN'

Horses No Longer Used as Loan Securities

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., June 15.—Is old Dobbin going out of existence?

The tax rolls seem to indicate that such is true, but the bankers think it is a temporary movement only.

During the 15-year period extending from 1914 to 1929, the horse population of Jackson county declined from 7,501 to 4,200. Two thousand eight hundred twelve of this decline has been since 1920.

More spectacular, however, than the decline in numbers has been that in value. In 1914 horses were listed at an average value of $50.35; in 1929 they were listed at $28. The total value for the county declined from $377,738 in 1914 to $117,590 at the present time.

Tax officials expressed the belief this week that the returns from this year would not only be much smaller, but would record a relatively great decrease in value. Banking officials were agreed in the opinion, but they viewed the movement with alarm.

Every farmer who wishes a loan, mortgages his horses the first of anything, if he is fortunate enough to have them, H. B. Bellenger, vice president of the Altus National bank, said. Banks still mortgage more horses than any other type of property, he added.

W. A. Ingram, acting vice president of the First National bank expressed regret at the trend toward tractor farming.

"The tractors are bringing the very things we don't want," he declared, "namely, decrease in rural population, large scale farming and rural unemployment."

Ingram also pointed out the decrease in value. The best team of horses was formerly valued at close to $500. The maximum amount allowed at the present time on the best team is $150, he said. Ingram cited a further instance of the sale of an old horse for $2.50.

Neither trucks nor tractors were recognized as collateral by the national bank examiner.

Vernon to Vote on School District

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, June 15.—Citizens of Vernon will vote Tuesday on the question of whether the school district will be removed from municipal control by creation of an independent district. Considerable interest is being manifested in the proposal, and mass meetings are being called for the discussion of the issue.

Experimental Cotton Fields Are Replanted

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., June 15.—Because of the heavy rain early in the month washing out the cotton on the W. S. Drumm farm, south of Frederick, the 15 varieties of seed which were planted there under direction of County Agent Louis H. Beaty, and Luther M. Wagnon, secretary of the Frederick Chamber of Commerce, were replanted last week. There are four rows of each variety or about one-tenth of an acre of each.

Nearly an acre of 15 different kinds of cotton were planted some time ago on the A. L. Schrimsher farm, southwest of Frederick, and this is growing nicely, according to Beaty.

Professors' Attitude On Christ Assailed

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15. (US) —"The sneering attitude of college professors toward Christ," was suggested as the reason young people lose faith in religion, in an address by Bishop Charles Wesley Burns before the Methodist conference here today.

Religious experiences of Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, were told by Bishop Burns in his address.

"This Christian man confessed that his faith was shaken by the sneers of his college professors," declared the bishop.

SEVEN FEARED LOST ON LAKE

Empty Boat of Toledo Men Is Recovered

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 15. (AP)—Searching parties were organized here tonight to visit Lake Erie islands to hunt for seven Toledo men who may have drowned yesterday while racing in a speedboat to Pelee island to attend the annual Elks picnic.

The speedboat was found this morning, drifting near West Sister island. In it were life preservers and a hat. No trace of any bodies was found.

The men missing: Charles H. Nauts, Franklin B. Jones, Herbert Nauts, Arthur Kruse, Frank Miller, Henry Heinbush and John Myers, who was piloting the speedboat.

Although his vision is normal, Miles Robisud, 8-year-old Verdigre, Neb., boy writes backward.

BURK LIONS NAME HEADS

Anderson Made President For Coming Year

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, June 15. — Johnnie Anderson was elected president of the Burkburnett Lions club at the regular meeting in the annex of the Central Christian church. He succeeds C. E. Mitchell, who has proved one of the most outstanding civic workers in this city during his presidency. Other members of the club elected for the ensuing year include the following: Chester Duncan, first vice president; second vice president, Floyd L. Jackson; third vice president, D. J. Carey; secretary, and treasurer, Ross Britain; tail twister, Judd Exley; and Lion tamer, Ray Hill. The two directors selected are Jack Kelly and Fred R. Knauth.

C. E. Mitchell and Sloan Mills were selected as delegates of the club to attend the Lions International convention which convenes at Denver, starting July 15.

Mrs. Roy Majors was selected as club pianist for the summer.

Burkburnett Merchants Help Storm Victims

Special to The Record News

BURKBURNETT, Texas, June 15.—Several merchants of Burkburnett paid a visit to farmers just across Red river this week where a hail and rain storm swept the Rabbit creek vicinity, totally demolishing all crops in a territory which extended six miles long and eight miles wide. The purpose of the visit was to render aid to the farmers who had lost everything they had planted. Practically all farmers in that community bring their products to Burkburnett across the free bridge.

Woman Under Death Sentence Regains Calm

TOMS RIVER, N. J., June 15. (US)—Mrs. Hattie Evans, sentenced to die in the electric chair with her marine lover, Lester Underdown, seemed today to have regained the calm that has been her chief characteristic since her arrest.

She and Underdown were convicted Saturday of first degree murder for the killing of her husband, Robert, and Albert Duffy of Brooklyn in the Evans' Lakehurst, N. J., home May 15.

They are being held in the county jail here pending removal to Trenton. Mrs. Evans today read the Sunday newspapers. Underdown retained his contemptuous imperturbability.

CLASS TOLD OF CHRIST'S DEATH

Barron Interprets Cross to Kay Bible Group

The death of Christ was the subject of an address given Sunday morning before the Kay Bible class by John Daniel Barron. Mr. Barron laid down several approaches to an understanding of the relation of the death of Christ and our salvation. The address follows:

"In the time of Jesus the Romans used crucifixion as a method of executing their lowest type of criminals. The cross on which the crucifixion took place consisted of two beams. After the prisoner was condemned he was brutally beaten and lead to the scene of execution. There he was stripped of his clothes, laid on the ground, and the cross-beam was thrust under his shoulders and his hands were fastened to the extremeties with cords or nails. Then the beam on which the prisoner was thus fastened was raised and fixed in its place on the upright beam already erected. Contrary to our most common belief, this upright beam was only long enough to keep the prisoner from touching the ground. The prisoner's feet were then fastened to the upright. This method of execution was a long and painful one. Sometimes the prisoner would live on the cross for days, and finally die of starvation and exhaustion. However, sometimes out of mercy for the suffering victim he was given a mild anaesthetic and his legs were broken to hasten his death.

Barbarism Outgrows

"We have outgrown such cruel barbarism. Now we take the prisoner and give him a clean shave, place him in a 'nice, comfortable chair and fry him brown in five or six minutes. We could never tolerate a shocking cross in this Christian nation.

"Jesus did not go to the 'comfortable Christian' chair, but to the pagan cross. How incredible it was that He of all men should have to be crucified. All His life He had done about doing nothing but good. He spent all His years and energy seeking and saving that which was lost. He preached the gospel to the poor, deliverance to the captives, and the acceptable year of the Lord. He healed the brokenhearted, recovered the sight to the blind, and set at liberty the bruised. He preached and lived a perfect life of sacrificial love and service. He told men about a loving, redeeming Father, and lived although the thing He taught was a present reality. He was truly the way, the truth, and the life. Yet at the instigation of His fellowmen, He was crucified by the agents of Rome. He was beaten, outraged, and spiked to the cross, where, in a relatively short time, He died from exhaustion and a broken heart.

"Why was it that the only perfect edition of a man that the world has known came to such an end?

"God, the Father, foreordained that Jesus should be put to death in this way. Gentlemen, I cannot believe it! The cross should never have been, the crucifixion was a bloody crime. God over-ruled the purpose of Jesus's murderers and caused the cross to be a sublime blessing to the race. Yet, I cannot conclude that God ordained and made necessary the crucifixion of Jesus. Jesus and his contemporaries caused the crucifixion.

"Jesus was crucified because His way of life was in deadly conflict with that of His contemporaries, and He would not compromise. It was not divine foreordination, but the bigotry, fear, self-centredness, and indifference of His contemporaries that caused the opposition to Jesus which lead to His death on the cross.

New Edition of Life

"Jesus published a new and spiritualized edition of life. In it He said that the social conventions of the people were too narrow and exclusive; that the religionists were placing too much emphasis on minor religious matters to the neglect of the weighty ones, which amounted to a distortion and pollution of real religion. The religionists retaliated with plots to exterminate Him not with ideas but with physical force. He not only published His ideas, He lived them. This, of course, lead Him into a hand to hand conflict with leaders of the established order. His diverse theological views, His sway over the people, His success in controversy and efficiency at 'spanking' His opponents, and general revolutionary ideas which might cause them endless trouble caused the leaders of His day to move against Jesus with ruthless determination to put Him to death by fair or foul means. He would not compromise, but continued His way in the teeth of mounting opposition and certain death. And finally by foul means His enemies succeeded in bringing Him under the executioner's hand.

"To hold that God foreordained and made necessary all this, is in effect to deny the conception of God which Jesus lived and died to give us.

"Just here let us note some things the cross reveals.

"First, the cross reveals the extremity to which hate, sin, and selfishness will go. They are real, powerful, and active forces that know no limits. They will kill the best the world has. When seen in their actual working, they are unlovely, and repulsive to the normal soul.

"On the other hand, we see the extremity to which divine love will go. It will stand injustice and endure crucifixion. It is awful! Divine love has no limits; it knows no boundaries.

"If the cross makes us conscious of sin and its tragic consequences, it equally makes us conscious of love and its divine power and influence.

Love and Hate in Conflict

"The cross dramatically presents love and hate in conflict. When the curtain drops on the lifeless, and hate is the victor. But three days later comes Easter and the triumphant march of love.

"That is to say, then, the cross reveals that moral ideals are more effective than physical force. Jesus succeeded. The religionists failed. The world has not learned this lesson from the cross. We are still force minded, and paying for it in countless failures to solve our problems.

"Then, the cross reveals the error of the belief that a man must live regardless. It reveals that there are some things worth dying for. Here we see that physical existence is not the most valuable thing in the world. If death is the price one must pay for spiritual living, then die. Look at Jesus on the cross and Gandhi in jail in India and learn that there is something worth more than mere physical life.

"Christendom has always felt that there was a vital relation between the death of Christ on the cross and the salvation of men. Many books have been written in an attempt to tell why the cross was necessary to salvation, and how atonement was wrought by the shedding of Christ's blood. These explanations start from men's conceptions of the nature of God and the nature of salvation. The older theories are based upon the idea that salvation is escape from hell and entrance into heaven, which is possible only after an angry God has been satisfied. One explanation was that the devil had captured the human race and God gave Jesus Christ as a ransom for the release of man. Another one was that the death of Christ was the infinite price necessary to placate an angry God whose laws had been broken. Still another one was that, though God wanted to forgive men, he could not tell His divine justice was satisfied by a perfect sacrifice for the sins of the race. But most men have not tried to explain the relation between the death of Christ and salvation. They simply impute magical power to the shed blood of Christ. A mere statement of these explanations, it seems to me, is an adequate refutation of their truth; so I shall not deal further with them.

"Let me indicate another approach to an understanding of the relation between the death of Christ and our salvation. I say indicate, for I humbly confess that I am not able to say the last word on this subject. At the same time I feel that it is wrong to say here is an explainable mystery, and superannuate our minds. We have to make some attempt to explain this relation. So I would say the first step in this direction is to change the two conceptions on which the older explanations have been based. Let us think of salvation not as release from future punishment and the enjoyment of eternal bliss, but as reconciliation and appreciation, reconciliation unto God and man, and growing appreciation of the good, beautiful, and true. Let us think of God as the loving Father which Jesus revealed, the Father who welcomes the prodigal home the moment the prodigal turns from evil to good. Let us see that God's nature, or feelings, or will, does not have to be changed before the repentant son can find peace and sense of forgiveness, but that He forgives all who come humbly unto Him asking for forgiveness and fellowship. Salvation, then, is a process and not an act. It is the process in which we are becoming reconciled to God and man, growing to appreciate and love all that is good beautiful and true, growing to love God with all the heart, mind, and soul, and others as ourselves. We were not saved five, 10, or 20 years ago, but daily we are being saved or lost. Immortality is the belief that we shall continue in another life that which we have begun here.

Work of Christ

"Now the work of Christ is that He assists us to realize this salvation. He does so by making us aware of a loving Father, and by bringing us into happy fellowship with Him. That is the heart of Christian salvation. His life and death produce in us repentance and faith which are necessary to fellowship with God the Father His life, teachings, and death (these are really inseparable) make the human heart receptive to the life of God. God is willing to enter human lives at all times; the work of Christ was to get men willing to open themselves to Him. He told men how to be saved in the highest sense of the word, but, what is better, He showed them how to be saved. He discovered the laws of salvation, applied them to his own life, then taught and showed men the result. I quote a sentence from Kirby Page, one of our leading religious writers: 'This is the way Jesus saves us: by revealing the nature of God and creating within us the desire for fellowship with Him; by exhibiting life as it ought to be and may be and thus inspiring us to nobler conduct; by showing us the hideous results of estrangement and enmity and by producing penitence and aspiration; by creating a consciousness of God's forgiveness and loving concern; and by prompting us day by day to higher thinking and more courageous living.'

"Our salvation, then, is not free. It is the prize of cooperation with divine and human forces. It is more than mere lip confession of belief in Christ. It involves a complete dedication of self to His way of life."

Wilbarger Pioneer Dies From Paralysis Stroke

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, June 15.—S. M. Pybus, 69, who had lived in Wilbarger county for over 17 years, died at his home here Friday afternoon after suffering a stroke of paralysis. He had been suffering from high blood pressure for two years. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the family home with Rev. J. L. Henson, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Burial followed in East View cemetery.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Rannie Pybus; two sons, M. P. and J. C. Pybus, both of Vernon; three daughters, Mrs. Alice Thomas and Miss Callie Pybus of Vernon, and Mrs. Pearl Howe of Claude; and a brother, Tom Pybus of Arkansas.

STRAND: "Journey's End," with Colin Clive, David Manners, Ian McLaren and others. Paramount novelty, "Dresden Dolls." Sound news.
MAJESTIC: "In Old Arizona," with Warner Baxter. Talking comedy, "All Stuck Up." Sound news.
STATE: Jack Mulhall and Alice Day in "In the Next Room." Talking short subjects and Universal news.
GEM: Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge." Comedy, "Taxi Scandal."

One of the greatest first-night crowds in several weeks sweltered through the two hours of "Journey's End" at the Strand Friday night, and were rewarded for their unusual stamina by one of the finest productions of the talking screen. Perhaps those who enjoy seeing a good show twice will go back and find out how much better it is when there is no fanning or brow-mopping to be done.

◇ ◇ ◇

Maybe "swelter" isn't the proper word—then take your choice: stewed, simmered, boiled, burned, broiled, smouldered or toasted. Whatever it was, the hundreds of victims staggered to the open air after the show took deep, gasping breaths and shouted "Oh, isn't the night air wonderful?" The crowds at the Majestic were prepared, since in electric letters a foot high there was the warning, "Burning Up."

◇ ◇ ◇

Justice demands the announcement, however, that the Strand is now using its cooling system. The new system at the Majestic will be partly working Monday and should be all set by Tuesday, according to Manager Victor Lowrey. "In Old Arizona" might be more effective, however, at the same temperature which was sizzling merrily at the Strand Friday night. It was too hot for the battlefront, but it might be just right for Arizona.

◇ ◇ ◇

Not even the mid-August atmosphere could keep "Journey's End" from being the most effective war picture yet screened, however. Through the superb acting of Colin Clive, audiences can more nearly realize the actual emotions of soldier life then they have ever been able to do before, and through the nearly-as-good performances turned in by his four companions, there can be seen the actual effects of war on all types of men.

◇ ◇ ◇

There has been enough of mud and blood and French girls and marching lines and flags and trumpets on the American stage and screen, but the feelings beneath it all—the terrific strain and horror of it all—have never been so adequately pictured before.

◇ ◇ ◇

Nowhere but the stage could there be found such acting. It is safe to predict that "Journey's End" is the herald of a new day—the dawn which will bring more real drama into the movies and will usher out the melodramatic and insignificant.

MARTIN SPEAKS ON CRUCIFIXION

Lesson of Cross Given by Class Teacher

The hour of Christ's death was the greatest hour in the history of the world, Judge P. A. Martin told the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning. Judge Martin's subject was the "Lesson of the Cross." His address follows:

"How helpless we are when we try to interpret the lesson of today; Jesus on the cross. Why should He suffer thus? Why should He died such a death? Why did not God send forth the conquering legions of heaven and strike dead His tormentors? All these and many kindred questions crowd into the human mind and the answers of theology are many and varied, so varied in fact that we are left in hopeless confusion. It is an overwhelming story; this story of the cross; every man is at liberty to place his own interpretation upon it; but I am thinking that it will never be understood and appreciated in full measure until all things are made plain in a better world than this.

Human Side of Picture

"In some ways and in some measure we can get a faint idea of the human side of the picture of Jesus on the cross; we can understand the awful injustice of his trial and condemnation; we can see a glimpse of his humiliation as they spat upon him and mocked him and our hearts respond with human sympathy to his cry, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?' the last human words he uttered according to Matthew. Another sacred writer credits Him with saying 'It is finished' at the close of His life. About the best we can do with our finite intelligence is to do as the Roman soldiers did, sit down and watch Him there. For six hours He suffered as a man suffers. And then He died as men die. It was the greatest hour in the history of the world. The Son of Mary had walked the hills of a little Roman province called Judea for a little over three decades and for the last three years He had preached the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Now on the cross as a convicted criminal, between two thieves He yields up the ghost as Matthew tersely calls it and parts company forever with His humanity, so that He is able on the third day to come forth from the tomb a conquerer over death and the grave and assume His rightful place as king of kings and lord of lords.

"Of course we cannot understand it. Neither did the blind man understand how He 'made clay and annointed his eyes and had him wash in the pool of Siloam and received his sight, neither do any of us understand from a human standpoint how He raised Lazarus from the dead, nor do we understand any of the miracles wrought by Jesus during His brief ministry. Then how could we understand the story of the cross? No human intellect can understand the things of God.

Strange Happenings

"But we know a few things from the history given. We know that strange things happened when Jesus died there. Matthew tells us that an earthquake shook the hills of old Judea as He breathed His last; that the graves fell open and the dead walked forth in the city; that over in the temple an unseen hand smote the veil of the temple, which for ages had separated the Holy of Holies from the place of assembly, was rent in twain from the top to the bottom. Some theologians tell us that this meant that the great Spirit which the Jews called Jehovah, the mighty God of Israel, walked forth in majesty from His place behind the veil of the temple and took up His abode in the hearts of faithful men from that time forth. I don't know its meaning; but I do know that from that fateful day on to the present, the cross, as a symbol of the Christ has been loved and revered by men everywhere. Empires have risen and fallen; nations and tribes have been swept away by the ravages of time but the cross still lives in the hearts of men as the symbol of all that is good and it is still dear to the followers of the Nazarene everywhere.

"And it has been the symbol of peace and love and hope to all who love it. Only yesterday I sat with hundreds of other friends of a grief-stricken father and mother, bereft of their only child. Words of comfort were spoken by the preacher, beautiful flowers decked the little casket, we all mingled our tears of sympathy with them in their bereavement, but we all realized and recognized the truth of the words of the preacher who pointed them to the cross of Christ, who so loved little children, as the only true Comforter in this sad hour. In such hours as this human wisdom, human sympathy, sweet as it is, fails to offer a satisfactory consolation; but the faithful Christian parent can look across the dark waters of death and on the other shore see the beckoning hands of the departed loved one, waiting for a happy reunion in a better land. Such is the great lesson of the cross as it touches humanity, whether we understand it or not. We may know that all is well with the soul of those whose lives are shaped by the example of the Man of Gallilee who died on this cross to make these things possible for us.

"In the hour of grief and sorrow we may sing with the writer of the sacred hymn:

"In the cross of Christ I glory,
Towering o'er the wrecks of time;
All the lights of sacred story,

WAURIKA, Okla., June 15.—Mrs. Ann W. Dillard of this city, long identified with Republican politics in Oklahoma is seeking the Republican nomination for congress from the sixth congressional district.

Mrs. Dillard has been in Republican political circles for a number of years and was with her husband, Joseph T. Dillard, when he was secretary to Congressman L. M. Gensman. Mrs. Dillard gained much political knowledge while living in Washington. Two years ago she helped direct the campaign of Walter C. Stevens of Lawton when he ran for congress.

Bandits Get Big Haul in Waurika

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., June 15.—A pair of unmasked bandits escaped with between $500 and $600 worth of clothing from the Palace Clothing store here early Sunday morning. A lodger on the floor above the store, disturbed by the noise, went downstairs in time to see the two men flee with four suitcases loaded with dresses and suits of clothes. They escaped in an automobile parked a block from the store.

County officers believe they are the same men who have been raiding other stores in Waurika during the past several days.

point. Here was an alarmingly interesting specimen of the male tribe, well worth examination.

They sat out several dances in the cool darkness of the veranda which adjoined the living room.

"Where have you been all my life that I've missed knowing you?" Sheridan asked.

"That's an old line," Edna replied. "I expected more originality from you. Try again."

"I'm an amateur; I'm not used to making pretty speeches to beautiful ladies," he said banteringly. "Won't you overlook my pristine, uncouth methods and acknowledge the sincerity of my stumbling tongue?"

"Not so bad, not so bad," said Edna judicially, "with proper encouragement and persistent practice, you might pass muster."

"Ah, that's just it," he said, rising quickly to the bait, "I need both encouragement and practice. I yearn to learn and no price would be too high to pay. Will you be my tutor?"

"To toot or not to toot, that is the question, according to Omelet!" she exclaimed. "As a fitting recompense, fair sir, what dost offer?"

"The whole-hearted devotion of a knight of old, coupled with the joyous, unrestricted appreciation of a knight of now; a gift to you of understanding companionship, a share in my world of dreams, a glorious ride in a chariot of imagination down a bewitching path paved with moonbeams."

"What ho, varlet! Bring forth the chariot!" she cried, entering fully into the spirit of his semi-serious funmaking. "I fain would ride me the moonbeams." She laughed joyously.

"Really, Mr. Sheridan, you need no tutor. I acknowiege my error. You have taken a post-graduate course. I fear to offer you encouragement; there's no telling where it might lead. If the University of Texas ever establishes a chair of advanced amatory declamation for the enticement of unwary women, I shall be delighted to recommend you for the professorship." Relapsing into the vernacular, she continued. "Believe me, you're no slouch; you're a wow!"

"Now look what I've done!" said Sheridan mournfully. "I permit myself to dream and lovely reality spurns me."

"Dreams sometimes come true," said Edna demurely.

Sheila appeared in the doorway and called to them before Sheridan could reply.

"Oh, there you are!" she exclaimed. "I'm going to put up a sign on this porch. It will read: 'Petting prohibited, except by permission of the owner.' Edna, your mother thinks you have been kidnaped."

As the laughing trio passed through the door, Edna whispered to Sheridan: "I've decided to accept the tutorship; don't forget to bring the chariot."

Little Dicky Enderby wandered into the living room, rubbing his eyes.

"Papa," he said, "don't you buy Mr. Wilber's funny light; it's no good."

Wilber laughed. "He's angry because we put him to bed," he said, caressing the boy's touseled head with his hand. Enderby glanced at his watch.

"Great Scott!" he said to Westervelt, "do you know what time it is? We'll miss our train."

"You have plenty of time," Wilber told them. "I ordered a taxi for you. It ought to be here in a few minutes."

Enderby and Westervelt, during their morning conference with Wilber, had agreed on the terms of the contract for exploitation of his invention, contingent upon its successful operation under the Demorel company's tests and they had planned to leave for Utica on the 2 o'clock train.

Their departure was the signal for the party to break up. Andy took Mrs. Rogers and Edna home in his car and Hedley and Sheridan escorted Sheila's three other girl guests to their nearby homes.

Sheila and Wilber were seated on the veranda when the two men returned. They had conversed quietly for a few minutes when Wilber suddenly exclaimed:

"Do you know, Sheila, I believe I forgot to lock the door of the laboratory. I must go—"

He was interrupted by a piercing scream from the interior of the house and the sound of running footsteps.

Another scream met them as they crowded through the door. None of them saw nor heard a man who ran around the house, scuttled across the lawn and vanished in the shadows of the trees. The cook, Clara, ran into the living room as they entered. Her eyes were bulging with terror and her arms were waving wildly.

"Lena!" she cried. "Oh, my God, Lena! She's dead!"
