Arbitration Board Is Asked In Texas Railroad Strike

Proposal Is Made In Hearing Before Emergency Board

Principal Issue In Dispute Is Asked To Be Considered In Hearing Before Commission To Be Named

Seek Compensation

Workers Contend Railroad Should Pay For Losses On Homes In Longview; Cost To Be Small.

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, April 12. — A proposal to submit to a board of arbitration the principal issue in the dispute between the Texas and Pacific railway and four Brotherhoods was made today to the Hoover emergency mediation board, hearing testimony on a threatened strike of 4,000 men.

Whether the men shall receive compensation from the road for loss sustained on homes in Longview when the terminal was moved to Mineola is the issue named in request for arbitration, made by Fred Barr, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Trainmen.

Request made to Hoover.

It is our request to this honorable body that it recommend to the railroad that this dispute be a proper one to be considered by such a board of arbitration. Mr. Barr said at the conclusion of a long statement on the subject of payment for losses sustained on Longview homes.

Barr said the cost involved in the compensation sought would not over many men, somewhere between 100 and 200.

"We believe that the charge for compensation against the carrier is just as reasonable as charges for premiums that the carrier has voluntarily paid out for thousands of employees for insurance in the last several years. I hold that it is just as necessary to try to take care of these men and their families as it is to take care of the men who are killed or injured after they are killed or injured."

Centner Outlines Need Of Airport; Advantages Told

Washington Official Says Municipal Airport Will Be Paying Investment Here; Inspects Sites.

Recommends Plans

Section's Advantages For Flying Explained; Report On Sites To Be Made For City From Washington.

"I built right, I predict within one year that you will have your municipal airport on a paying basis," is the statement of William F. Centner, of Washington, representing the United States Department of Commerce, who was in Lubbock yesterday for the purpose of inspecting this city's sites for an airport and to confer with city officials and others regarding the building of an airport along lines of standardization which the government has adopted.

"The day of aviation is here," he said. "All you need to do in order to get a great traffic in aviation is to build an airport. There will be between 25 and 50 planes landing on it within a short time, once your port is established."

Flying on Advance

Centner declared, with emphasis, that there is a tremendous volume of flying going on all over the country. Every port that has been opened during the last six months, he said, has already experienced a trade of from three to four times as much air traffic as they ever anticipated in many years to come.

"It seems that the air is just full of machines looking for a place to land. As soon as a port is provided, they flock to it."

There are nearly 1,000 airports being constructed in the United States at this time, he told a meeting of Lubbock men, which was held in the chamber of commerce rooms yesterday afternoon. The estimated cost of these ports is in the neighborhood of $60,000,000. Those present at the conference included Mayor H. D. Woods, H. L. Allen.

Debut Plan Will Draw Opposition From Number Of Leaders; Plan of National Grange Opposed

The Senate Committee heard testimony from experts of the Agricultural Department on how the debenture plan was working favorably in Norway and Germany and Chairman McNary said after the meeting that "the members were very much impressed by the expert's showing."

Stone Walls—No Prison For Him

McALESTER, Okla., April 12. (P)—After an extended experiment intended to prove that stone walls do not make a prison make, H. G. Bean was back today at his starting point, the state penitentiary here.

Bean left the penitentiary last December, after he had been made a trustee on the recommendation of officials of Carter county, where he was given a 20-year sentence for burglary two years ago.

In January he saved his way out of jail at Wink, Texas, after extradition papers had been granted by Governor Moody. Another month of freedom and Bean was caught at Edorado, Ark. but his trusty saw liberated him before Oklahoma officers could arrive for him.

Early this week he was taken into custody at Waurika, Okla., county officers held everything, and Bean still was there when a carload of prison guards arrived for him. He occupied an inner cell tonight.

Catts Currenders On Federal Charge

Former Governor Of Florida Makes $17,500 Bond For Counterfeiting Indictment; Denies Guilt.

(By Associated Press) MARIANA, Fla., April 12.—Former Governor Sidney J. Catts surrendered today to a United States Commissioner here, and made bond of $17,500 on charges of aiding and abetting an alleged counterfeit ring.

Florida's war time governor and Baptist minister came here from his home at DeFuniak Springs and went to the office of United States Deputy Marshal B. G. Stanley, who escorted him to the office of Commissioner W. H. Milton, where bond was posted.

Catts seemed confident that he would be vindicated when his case is called for trial at the next term of court.

The charge of counterfeiting $100 bills is especially ridiculous," Catts said. "Why, I'm still in the dollar bill class, not in counterfeit."

Catts was indicted at Jacksonville on charges of having furnished $5,000 to an alleged counterfeiting ring, said to have been headed by Julian Diaz, Tampa attorney, for which the former governor was to receive $25,000 in spurious bills.

Great Lakes Water Level Rising; City Streets Inundated

Lake Levels Go To Highest Point In Years; Cause Of Disturbance Unexplained, Buildings Examined.

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, April 12.—The basin of the Great Lakes, largest inland body of water in the world, was brim full and splashing over today. Wave-battered cities in Canada as well as on this side of the lakes reported thousands of dollars damage as water stood in the streets, slapped away at retaining walls, poured into basements and hindered navigation. Explanations for the prodigious quantities of water, which have shot lake levels to their highest point in years, run all the way from deforestation to sunspots.

Lake Rises Two Feet

At Chicago, where the lake has risen two feet in the last month and where it was predicted all records for high water would be broken next year, distress was general along the shore. The city's building commissioner ordered all shallow foundation buildings at the lake's edge examined for signs of weakening.

Coast guardmen made efforts to prevent the collapse of the 75-foot signal tower in Evanston, while homes and apartment buildings in the Rogers Park district of the North Shore reported basements flooded.

Rebel Chieftain Removes Manzo's Rank Along With Another Officer; Will Be Examined Today.

(By Associated Press) NOGALES, Ariz., April 12.—Mexican Rebel General Francisco Manzo tonight crossed the international line into Arizona with his personal staff of fifteen officers. Manzo and his escaping officers were taken in custody by United States immigration officers.

Rumors that General Manzo, until recently western leader of the rebels, would be executed from the Mexican Government had been circulated at insurgent headquarters near Nogales today.

General Jose G. Escobar, Rebel Commander-in-chief, recently ordered that Manzo be relieved of his command and be escorted to Agua Prieta.

Rebel officers claim that Manzo repeatedly attempted to withdraw from the revolution after an unsuccessful attack on Mazatlan, Pacific coast port. Insurgents say that intercepted messages to Mexico City declared Manzo would quit the uprising if promised immunity.

Snyder Airport Near Completion; School Is Planned

Workmen Finishing Up On Final Details; Modern Conveniences Planned For Field.

(Special To The Advance)
SNYDER, April 12.—Plans for dedication of Snyder field were hastened with arrival today of iron for the new hangar and cabin bins, which will bring a large squad of workmen to complete the airport and all buildings electric system, fueling pumps being installed at hangar with fueling made possible at proper distance from supply to comply with Department of Commerce regulations.

According to D. P. Yoder, owner of the airport, plans are being consummated for the purchase of three seater training plane and installation of flying school at once. Plans landing at the local field declare it one of the best they have ever visited, as close proximity to city being one mile from public square makes the port easily accessible to business men. Aviation journals have noted that the Snyder airport is the first small city in the country to tie up real landing field with a group of cabin bins and restaurant where plane visitors need not leave port. Several transport company officials with flying schools have already inspected Snyder field with view to following idea expressed by Mr. Yoder's originality.

SNYDER, April 12. (Special To Advance)—Snyder's first home-owned plane arrived at the airport this afternoon. A Curtiss Robin monoplane with an OX5 motor. The plane's arrival will hasten early completion of the field here for dedication by Snyder's Lyon Club.

Negotiations have been entered into with the Army Air Corps for maneuvers here when the airport is officially dedicated, although many planes have been using the port for several weeks, where they have been refueling.

Praises City's Advantages
Speaking of Lubbock's potentialities as a flying center, Centner said:

"This is God's own flying country. Here if you could see conditions confronting many cities over the country, you could appreciate your wonderful asset of flat country. From an aviator's viewpoint, it is beautiful, with no obstructions and very little work necessary to condition it for landing fields."

He then recommended to the group that a field of not less than a square mile in area should be obtained for its airport and that well-planned design should be made before starting the improvements on it. While here he looked over several locations and sent his own recommendations on to Washington, where the U. S. chamber of commerce will report back to this city in a week or so.

Airways Rapidly Developing
There are now 8,000 miles of lighted airways operating in the United States, Centner said, and there will be 12,000 miles by the end of this year. The nation is rapidly developing a system of airways and before long there will be similar in extent to our county, state and federal highway systems. The development will continue until all important centers are linked up.

He urged this city to have some civil engineer design a field for it before starting construction, and that this design be in accordance with standardized plans recommended by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. The airport, he contended, is just as necessary to the inland cities today, and as big an asset, as the deep water ports are to coastal cities. Construction of the port would include adequate runways for planes to use in landing or in taking off with hangars and other necessary equipment.

"The day is just around the corner," Centner said in closing, "when the young man will telegraph his young lady friend in a town 50 or 100 miles distant to get ready just after dinner. He will fly there, pick her up and fly to another town 50 or 100 miles away, attend a dance and return, in the time now consumed in the same cities by automobile. And the golf player will be putting golf sticks in his own private plane and flying a hundred miles or more to another city for a game of golf in the early morning, or late afternoon, as he now does to the course a few miles from town."

Workmen have been making quick work of the demolition of the old Merrill hotel, since starting April 1. Yesterday the front wall of the structure was torn down and by late today it is likely the side and back walls will have been treated likewise.

J. G. Moore, superintendent of construction for the new Hilton hotel, which will rear itself skyward on the old Merrill site, either to 12 or possibly 16 stories, stated yesterday that a building permit for the Hilton would not likely be taken out before the early part of next week. The Hilton Hotel company, it is thought, is revising their plans for the hotel's number of stories and final decision will not be made before early next week.

Original plans for the 12-story hotel building called for a total expenditure, including furnishings, of approximately $700,000. If decision is made to build on up to 12 or 16 stories, this figure will be raised to near the million mark.

HOUSTON, April 12.—(AP)—Harris County, Texas, city engineer probably will occupy that position here, it was learned today from a member of the new city administration.

Signs Of Possible Revolt In Coming Special Session Of State Legislature Now Apparent; Moody Faces Fight

(Special To The Avalanche)
AUSTIN, April 12.—Signs of possible revolt in the coming special session of the state legislature already are apparent. Usually a special session is a smooth running affair, but largely in the control of the governor for it can act only on matters he submits. This time the members are threatening to have some say about what is submitted. A first clash may occur over the order of legislation. Some members claim that appropriations can be made at any session. Governor Moody believes they will have to be submitted in order for the legislature to act upon them.

This would give the governor quite an advantage. He could first submit other topics in which he is interested and hold back appropriations as a topic until prison reformation, civil service and such matters had been settled.

Can Go Ahead
But if the legislators are right in their belief, they can go right ahead with appropriations whenever they are called into session. With appropriations out of the way many members will not feel it imperative to remain in Austin. Lack of a quorum may cause a deadlock, then, like that which defeated the proposed state road bond issue at the regular session.

A large bloc of members is determined that they shall have a chance to reduce automobile registration. The governor is expected to submit the topic but he should be so, the members can use a little pressure of their own to persuade him.

They can easily form a bloc large enough to prevent the passage of any of the governor's measures. If that is not enough they can go home and leave the special session without a quorum.

Moody Rouses Feeling
Governor Moody's free use of the veto power has not left an extraordinary feeling between the executive and the legislature. The veto of the bill to discipline "Hoover" has caused more deep feeling than any other measure. Mrs. Laura Wilson Negley, who successfully vetoed the bill through the House, is deeply chagrined at the governor's action. In fact she feels so strongly about it that she declines to express her views.

Mrs. Negley is more than a popular representative from the largest county in the state (according to the census). She is the daughter of the former Postmaster General, A. S. Harrison. While the former member of the Wilson cabinet has retired from active service in politics, still takes great interest and has considerable influence among the party leaders.

Hills Home County
Two of the governor's vetoes were those that are felt most keenly by the home folks of Williamson county, where the governor votes. The veto of the Wirtz bill is almost a blow to State Chairman D. W. Wirtz of Georgetown, who issued a warning to demagogue before the last general election that if they bolted the Smith party they would be served from the next democratic primaries.

The other veto affecting Williamson county especially is that of the bill prohibiting the state highway commission from routing highways around towns without the consent of the county commissioners. Such a routing around Round Rock, in Williamson county, was attempted by the highway commission and caused a storm of protest.

A similar proposal to skip Buda and Kyle, in Hays county in the Austin-San Antonio road, led to a meeting of protest. These instances led to the passage of the bill which the governor vetoed.

The governor's reason was that he had been informed the federal government might withdraw federal aid if the bill were passed.

Just why some will find it difficult to understand. The federal aid was originated in the desire to build up roads for postal service. Shipping towns so why the federal aid of roads should object raises the discussion.

Even Savages Buy Fountain Pens And We Lose Five Million Of Them Every Year, Says Dean Of Industry

(By NEA Service)
NEW YORK, April 12.—Julius Schnell is one of those who know the pen is mightier than the sword. He may be slightly prejudiced, because he happens to be the dean of fountain pen makers.

But in Zanzibar, China, Cape Town and various strategic jungle points he has 29 agencies for his products and sales reports show, he says, that the heathen desire nothing more than nice, shiny fountain pens.

You've no idea how many uses savages can find for fountain pens. On swell state occasions, they make attractive culinary implements. A necklace of them is considered very chic. They're fine for tattooing, too, and decorating shields. Of course, if one has been to the mission school, a pen can be used for writing.

A Yankee Product
"They're one of the commodities," said Schnell, "for which Americans have established a world market—just as they have for motor cars and typewriters and soap."

This little Alsacian, quite wealthy now, knows a lot about fountain pens, having made millions of them since 1892. He holds eight patents on various parts and can make a complete pen himself—an accomplishment he admits, matched only by about a dozen other men in the world. He's self-made, self-educated and has been through a business course that would seem incredible to young men of today.

"I took my training in Alsace," he recalled, "and it was only because of a crippled thumb that I escaped serving in the German army and was permitted to learn a trade at an early age."

"According to the Alsacian custom, I was apprenticed to a machinist. He lived six miles away from my father's farm, which necessitated a twelve-mile walk for me each day. For six months, I received no pay at all, then ten cents a day."

A Common Practice
"But I considered this no hardship, since there was nothing unusual about it."

"Once an aunt sent for me to visit in Paris, and after realizing what a city was like, my next step was to work my way over to America. Once here, I found it to be the land of promise, I had hoped."

For years Schnell worked for others. "Then at 56," he said, "I decided to make some money for myself."

He has invented much of the machinery used in his own establishment. Recently, when a skilled workman in his shop was ill, Schnell himself took his place at the intricate machine and before the man returned he had invented a new device which could produce just 30 times as fast as the old one.

Schnell says that the fountain pen business in this country now represents a $70,000,000 industry and that there are 20,000,000 fountain pens made each year. Fortunately, however, there are 5,000,000 lost or broken each year, which seems to indicate that there always will be the need for a few million more.

Julius Schnell knows a lot about fountain pens. He has made millions of dollars making millions of them, and even sells them to savages.

Range Conditions In Texas Improve; Shearing To Start

Rains And Warm Weather Put Grazing At Better Status Than Year Ago; Prospects Bright.

AUSTIN, April 12. (AP)—Rains and warm weather during March have improved range conditions and assured good spring and summer grazing in most sections, according to the April Livestock Report of H. H. Schutz, statistician with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"New vegetation has made excellent growth and plenty of feed is available generally," he stated. "Cattle are putting on flesh. Calves, lambs and kids are coming rapidly. Sheep and goats are in much better condition than a month ago. Goat shearing is about over, and sheep shearing will be at its height in two weeks. Mohair sales have been inactive, and little spring wool has been contracted.

Movement To Be Same

"It is estimated the spring movement of Texas cattle this year will be approximately the same as last year. Shipments from March to June, inclusive, are expected to total 880,000 head of which about 46 percent will probably move interstate. In 1928, 889,462 head were shipped during the four spring months, 48 percent, or 431,810 head, went to other states. The number of cattle on farms and ranches in Texas on January 1, 1929, was about equal to that of the previous year. Although shipments to markets and to other states were heavy during 1928 many replacements were shipped in from Mexico which supplied large numbers of steers and calves to be grazed on Texas ranges during the winter. Receipts of cattle and calves at the Fort Worth stock yards since January 1 have been about 50,000 head less than for the same period last year. "The winter and spring in South Texas has been dry and unfavorable for cattle until recently, when beneficial rains relieved the situation. Cattle are thin as a rule, but no unusual losses have been suffered."

WILL PROBE DRINKING

Virginia Prosecutor Will Visit University

RICHMOND, Va., April 12. (AP)—H. Gibson, assistant to the Attorney General of Virginia, who is head of the state prohibition force, left today for Charlottesville to investigate alleged admissions of drinking at the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house of the University of Virginia.

Gibson said the admissions, quoted in reports on the current controversy over drinking between the national and Virginia chapters of the fraternity, if substantiated, would constitute grounds for criminal action against members of the chapter.

Is Giorista Beautiful?

Never Expected to See Well Day Again

Orgatone Has Filled Me With New Life and Energy, Suffered 13 years". Says Lubbock Farmer.

"A year ago I didn't think that I would be a well man again, but Orgatone has put new life in me and I feel so good I'd like to give this statement for my gratification." was the statement made by C. L. Carr, of rural route 3, Lubbock, Texas, while talking with the Orgatone representative recently.

"I suffered for thirteen years," went on, "with a very severe case of stomach trouble. In spite of everything I did, I kept getting worse. Gas would form in my stomach and cause severe headaches and sharp shooting pains through my back that would almost drive me distracted. At times I was extremely nervous and hard to get enough sleep.

"After every meal, I would just lie in agony for hours afterward, when this gas formed on my stomach, it would cause shortness of breath and my heart would palpitate very fast, until I thought I had heart trouble. I suffered from liver and kidney trouble, which caused intense pain in my sides and back. At times, to tell you the truth, I did not care whether I lived or not, my suffering was so severe, and I knew I didn't get something I wouldn't get much longer.

"A friend recommended Orgatone to me, and since taking it, I feel like a new person. It has cured me a wonderful amount of trouble. My nerves are perfectly steady when I was a boy, and I am feeling more like my old self again. I feel lively and energetic and want to be stirring about and doing things. I eat anything I want, and sleep fine every night. All of my old troubles are gone. Orgatone has certainly saved me a lot of trouble, and it has done more and I gladly recommend it very much."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false emulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock, exclusively by the Bowers Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out of town customers are being supplied by mail upon receipt of price $1.25 per one bottle or $2.25 for six bottles.—Adv.

Twelve Members Of Expedition Return To States; Landing Camp Suffered By Hard Struggles.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Twelve members of Commander Byrd's Antarctic expedition arrived today to describe the "Heart Breaking" struggles of the Explorers in repeated encounters with the forces of nature.

Speaking for the party, Lieut. Almazan Is Okeh American Flier Is Saved From Death

LAREDO, April 12. (AP)—J. W. Rawlinson, American aviator, formerly with the Mexican Rebel forces and captured at the battle of Jimenez, arrived here today with a message for American adventurers from General Juan Almazan.

If any more Americans are captured with the Rebels, they will be treated as enemies of Mexico, Almazan told Rawlinson to tell Americans. Almazan spared his life, he declared, but announced that in the future others in his situation would receive no consideration from American Consuls.

He was bound, hand and foot and left in prison for two days after his capture, he said. Almazan then gave him a "good hawking out" and sent him to the border.

"They threatened to court martial me," he said. "I was given no rank as a flyer with Escobar, but was made a number of promises many of which have never been fulfilled. Almazan is a fine fellow since he decided not to shoot me."

Matadors Expect Bitter Contest From Billies Today

Big Spring Bats Pound Out Second Straight Win Over Matador Nine, 7-3

Paymen Facing Acid Test In Dual Meet With Goats

Brownwood Aggregation Expected To Give Locals Tough Scrap In Track And Field Meet Today

Tech Field will be the scene today of two evenly matched dual meets, one strong in track and the other in field events. Daniel Baker Hill Billies are coming with a formidable group of speedsters who will force the Matadors to stretch their powers to the limit to eke out a victory. The first event will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Examination of both teams entries for the dual contest today shows that neither will have any decided edge in points. The locals will be able to give the Goats stiff competition in all running events and will have a slight edge in field events, a comparison of records reveals.

Strong In Quarter
Ed Duncan has been running the 440-yard dash in time clocked around 58 seconds. His latest time was 50.8. Sullivan in the mile and Reasoner in the two-mile are likely to make things more than interesting for Tech's long-distance leader, Freeland. Sullivan recently paced the mile in 4 minutes, 40 seconds. Reasoner ran the two-mile last week in 10:21, another splendid mark. Fannin of Daniel Baker is a hurdler who may give the Tech entrants plenty of competition. His time of 15.5 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles is likely to make the locals step to nose him out.

In their meet last week with Sam Houston State Normal, the Hill Billies took nine places and tied for another. Tech's hope to outscore the Goats lies in their edge in the field events.

Name Officials
The officials in the meet were announced last night by Coach Payne: Starter, Morgan; Judges, Stangel, Nelson, Lowrey and Mahoney; Weights, Freeland, Lockhart and Vincent; Jumps, "Chunky" Viles, Dewitt, Pikes, Announer, Schaefer, Hurdles and curves, Crites, Sheln, Kersey and Hays.

Running events between Lubbock High School tracksters and Tech freshmen will be run off in connection with the meet today.

The entries in the various events between Daniel Baker and Tech follow:

100-yard dash—Daniel Baker, Snodgrass and Bourland; Tech, Corley, Dallas and Fisher.

220-yard dash—Daniel Baker, Snodgrass and E. Duncan; Tech, Dallas and Cole.

440-yard dash—Daniel Baker, E. Duncan; Tech, Corley and Lawrence.

Giants And Yanks Named Favorites By A. P. Experts

Annual Associated Press Consensus Gives New York Teams Edge In Coming Campaign.

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Apr. 12 (AP)—If the predictions that blossom in the spring bear fruit by October, it will require only a few subway rides to the Harlem and Bronx to witness the battle for the World's baseball championship of 1929.

The verdict of more than sixty major league baseball writers and sports editors, expressed in the third annual Associated Press consensus, is that the New York Yankees and Giants will win the pennant races that start next Tuesday. Here's the order of finish predicted:

American League—New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Detroit, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago and Boston.

National League—New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston.

Fourth For Yanks
The world champion Yankees will fly their fourth straight American League flag without much of a struggle, if the preponderance of opinion in their favor among the newspaper critics is a criterion of what the race will develop. The New Yorkers are picked to win by 53 of the 66 experts who contributed their selections to the greatest poll yet conducted, in number of contributing critics. Ten others pick the Athletics while two favor St. Louis and one selects Washington.

The Giants however, emerge as favorites in the National League only after a sensationally close race with the Chicago Cubs. Of the total of 64 ball club experts, 33 favor the Giants and 26 the Cubs. Only three pick the St. Louis Cardinals, 1928 champions.

The Giants, with a powerful young team, and the Cubs, an already hard-hitting array strengthened by the addition of the great pitcher, Walter Johnson, are expected to put on a battle reminiscent of the old days of New York-Chicago rivalry.

Impartial Ballot
It is a noteworthy tribute to the impartiality of the balloting that the Cubs received more ballots from New York writers than from home town critics.

Apparently the Yankees are accepted as the dominating American League power "on faith" for the champions have not been especially impressive in the south. Especially has the long range, long ball, and the pitching staff remains in some doubt.

The Athletics are again the runner-up choice. The St. Louis Browns, picked to finish third, hope to spring another surprise.

Noteworthy also in the American League, is the strong finishing position accorded the prospects of Walter Johnson's Washington Senators. Their exhibition performances within the past few weeks have sent the Senator's stock soaring.

Suspension Adds An "Off" Color To Most Colorful Chisox Rookie

ART SHIRES

(The eleventh of a series of articles of the rookies breaking into the major league training camps for the first time this spring. Other follow.)

BY NORMAN E. BROWN
Sports Writer for Central Press and The Morning Avalanche

WITH THE WHITE SOX BASEBALL TEAM, April 12.—They call him "Cocky Art," this Charles Arthur Shires, who is labelled as the best and most colorful White Sox prospect in years. He plays first base and, while he has not the lightning grace of a Chase, or the hitting power of a Sisler, he possesses more self-confidence than a drunken Irishman.

Just how far his cockyness will carry him along, or away from the path of glory remains to be seen. In view of the still recent action of Manager Blackburne in suspending him for failure to obey training rules.

The citizens of Waukegan, Tex., still remember back in 1925 when Shires first achieved public prominence. For it was then that "Cocky Art" drop-kicked 53 yards with 43 seconds to play to give his high school team a 9-7 football victory over Hillsboro high. The sectional championship of Texas was at stake in this contest.

Before that stirring event Shires had passed 35 yards to give his team their lone touchdown and then had missed the place kick for the point after goal to fail to tie the score at 7-7. The drop kick that won Shires' first in competition. Previous to that he had been a place kicker, but, when signals went wrong and he received the ball from center Mr. Shires calmly booted the ball square through the goal posts for the three points that meant everything.

When on Shires was the "Sweetheart of Texas." He became a roving athlete, playing in six different colleges. Most of his time was spent in various institutions under assumed names. He attended Marshall college, where he had been a two-year—but obtained his degree from Westminster college.

Shires is perhaps the only major league who was ever elected field captain of his team before he really made good in the big show. When Bill Kamm resigned from the captaincy this spring, Manager Lena Blackburne appointed Shires the new leader. And his experience in the majors is limited to a little over a month's work late last fall.

Shires' debut in the big tent was a most suspicious occasion—for Shires. It came late in August when he was appointed to the White Sox. He followed a single, an out on an attempted bunt and two straight singles. Thus he hit five for four his first day out.

"So this is the great American league we hear so much about in Texas," was Shires' first comment as he entered the club house after his first glimpse at big time hurling.

The six-foot, 195-pounder was born in Millford, Mass., but has been a resident of Texas since childhood days. He will be but 22 years old August 12. When a kid in Waxahachie he used to watch the White Sox in spring training, and ambitiously dream of future days.

Shires came to the Sox from Waco. His apparent disregard for discipline has not been a surprise to Texas fans.

West Texas Club Hit In Pinches To Down Tech Outfit

Rigney's Stick Work Is Feature Of Matador's Attack On Class D. Pitching; Teams Look Good.

(Special To The Avalanche)
BIG SPRING, April 12.—Bunching hits off McCrary and Hobson in the third and fifth innings enabled Big Spring to take the second straight game from Texas Tech here this afternoon, 7 to 3.

Topper Rigney's big bat was the feature of the college team's attack. The scrappy little second baseman got three doubles and a single out of five trips to the plate. He started the game off by hitting one of Briggs' fast balls down the third base line for two bases. Waller sent him to third and DeWitt scored him on a single to right. Marshall walked but a double play prevented further scoring.

Score In Third.
Tech scored two more runs in the third. Rigney again started it off by doubling to left. Waller singled to right, scoring Rigney and went to second on Garrett's error. DeWitt grounded out and Marshall was safe when Sain tried to get Waller at third. Taylor walked, and Rigney scored when Brothers forced Taylor at second.

Big Spring tied the score in the last half of the third. Shaw doubled to left and Glosup hit the same field for two bases, scoring Shaw. Sain was hit by a pitched ball, and singled by White and Gressett caused two more runs.

McCrary sent to showers. The locals knocked McCrary out of the box in the fourth. Waller, went to third on Briggs two base hit and scored on Glosup's long fly to left. Garrett put the game on ice when he tripped to right scoring Leedy, Gressett and Seitz. Hobson settled down after that and didn't allow the locals another hit the rest of the game.

Rigney got his third double after Hobson had popped up in the seventh. Waller got an infield hit and went to second on a passed ball. They were left stranded as DeWitt grounded out to first and Marshall fanned.

Both teams looked good in the field, especially Sain and Peterson. Marshall made a spectacular catch off of Sain's line drive in the seventh inning.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

Risko having eliminated Von Porat from the heavyweight picture. Tom McCardie says it has slimmered down to Paulino, Schmeling and Sharkey. At this point O'Goody rises rudely to ask how it comes that Risko didn't also eliminate Sharkey.

THIS FELLOW RISKO, BY THE WAY, ROSE UP IN THE SEANANG WEST ROLES. HE LOSSES DOWN IN THE STICKS TO A PUSH-OVER, THEN STEPS OUT AND BANGS A SWELL PROSPECT ABOUT THE NOGGIN.

Paulino is to meet Schmeling according to Tom's line-up, the winner to fight Sharkey. There have been drearier outlooks and we're not thinking of the pennant chances of the Red Sox when we say that, either.

Why not combine business with pleasure and let the winner meet Art Shires, Charley Curtis, Mabel Walker Willebrandt or somebody else who really likes a fight?

Meanwhile Dempsey, Fugazy & Company roll onward, building bigger and better arena in every corner of the United States. The uber thought strikes one that, after all these swell joints are erected, there still may be no heavyweight fighters to put in 'em.

And what is an arena without a heavyweight, a Gene Tunney or a bull or something?

Behind the Walls of the ALAMO

CORN WAS MORE PRECIOUS THAN GUN POWDER

Remember the Alamo! ... Remember Crockett, Travis, Bowie, its deathless defenders! Remember how Travis wrote in his appeal for aid, "The Lord is on our side! When the enemy appeared in sight we had not three bushels of corn. We have since found in deserted houses ninety bushels . . . !" Fighters, those men! Fighters of desperate courage; fighters who declared,
"We shall never surrender or retreat." Fighters who lived on corn and fought with guns! Has the world ever seen such a glorious, yet hopeless defense; such refusal to admit the inevitable, even to the end? Thermopylae had her message of death—the Alamo had none! Americans, your history is rife with such heroism . . . it is written in the blood of fighters like these. And the same sentences that tell of desperate courage, invariably mention Corn. . . . Corn and gunpowder . . . the stuff that history is made of. The builders of America lived on Corn. Corn has always been the Food of Fighters! In this pampered modern age, Corn remains a necessary part of our diet. In Kellogg's CORN Flakes, corn reaches its highest point in tasti-ness, nourishment and immediate energy. It's corn—steam-cooked—flaked, toasted corn!

NOTICE—It is not the intention of The Avalanche to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly, and through error, we should, the management will appreciate having our attention called to same, and will gladly correct any erroneous statement made.

The Avalanche is an independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics; publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times.

Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the declaration of the wrath when cometh.
For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keepeth thy foot from being taken.—Proverbs III, 25-26.

There is possibly no set of people who are worse neglected than the people who are insane. We do not think that the people of Texas really intend that this be the condition, but it seems to have been something that is overlooked, and it is to the shame of Texas that this condition exists. The Houston Chronicle in an editorial recently dealt with the situation regarding the insane and says the care of the insane of Texas in the hospitals of the state is a subject that a group of Texas legislators is very anxious to bring before the people of the Lone Star state, and representative Bradley of Houston is a leader in the movement along with Representative Helen Moore of Texas City, Senator Patton of Nacogdoches and other Senators of the state.

The case is quite simple. The fact has been determined by investigation that approximately 500 persons of unsound mentality are confined in the jails of Texas awaiting transfer to the six state hospitals. The hospitals at present are caring for at least 300 more persons for whom proper accommodations can be provided.

Representative Bradley proposes that new wings be built on the institutions at Wichita Falls and Rusk, four wings in all, to accommodate, respectively, white men, white women, negro men, and negro women. The cost of this construction work should be in the neighborhood of $500,000. He also would have fireproofing work done on hospital buildings which are now unsafe, including the installation of concrete floors in several of the buildings. The cost would not be a net increase in expense to the state. The people are already paying for the care of insane persons in the jails, while the fireproofing work at the hospitals would take the place of much remodeling work which will have to be done in any case. Representative Bradley thinks all this might be taken care of under the regular appropriation bills to be passed by the legislature at the special session soon to be called.

If a separate measure is needed, it is believed that Governor Moody can be prevailed upon to submit the subject to the legislature. The need of hospital enlargement cannot be denied. There can be no doubt on that subject. The present state of affairs is a disgrace to the state. But if the people of Texas will picture to themselves hundreds of insane persons held in county jails for months, and even years, for no offense whatever, denied treatment and hope of cure, probably becoming all the more deranged because of their environment, there can be no doubt that a demand for remedial action will be heard immediately. The cost? Yes, there is a cost. But caring for our unfortunates comes first—even ahead of building highways and allowing tax remission to such cities as Port Arthur; ahead of buying land at the Alamo. The normal Texas will say: Take care of these insane people first, then see where else we should spend money. But Texas is no poverty-stricken state. Our tax rate is the lowest in many years. The increased wealth and increased prosperity of the state will bring in more revenue than ever in the coming year without any increase in the tax rate. We are vastly better off than we have been in the past. Surely there can be no complaint that we simply can't raise the money.

To free our unfortunates from the confines of county jails; to raise money enough to provide care for those already in the state hospitals; can't raise money to turn fire-traps into safe abodes. We can do it very easily, if we will. And the people of Texas will give the proper authorization if the matter is brought clearly to their attention. We haven't neglected this because we were inhuman or penurious, but because we have been involved in many other matters. Our special session of the legislature will deal in few subjects involving public opinion directly. Consequently, it would not be difficult for those who know best the intolerable conditions surrounding our insane persons to interest the public in asking their legislators at Austin to provide properly for the state hospital needs at the coming special session of the legislature.

The action of Oklahoma officials in compelling drivers of Texas commercial automobiles bearing the license plates of this state to obtain Oklahoma license when operating in that state presents an interesting issue. Of course one is at first inclined to protest the action as unjustly penalizing Texans motoring in Oklahoma. But reports from Oklahoma indicate that the law applies only to commercial cars.

Perhaps the law was designed to require bus and truck lines operating across state lines to pay taxes on their vehicles in the state of Oklahoma. If so, the justice of the law cannot be denied. One can readily picture the injustice to a state when heavy motor vehicles are allowed to operate over its highways without paying a just share of the maintenance costs. The people of a state go to considerable expense to provide highways and still further taxes are levied for maintenance. It is grossly unfair to permit heavy commercial vehicles to operate over these highways regularly without the operators paying their share of road upkeep.

However, the protests involved commercial automobiles used by traveling salesmen. Perhaps it is argued that such cars can hardly be classed as bus and truck line vehicles. Perhaps not, but still they are making use of highways paid for by the people of a state to enable them to make a profit in business, and it seems only fair that they should help pay road maintenance costs. Of course gasoline taxes may force them to pay, such costs to an extent, but would not require them to pay in proportion to the amount paid by citizens of the state.

A Washington Bystander

REPRESENTATIVE WOULD HAVE CABINET
SIT IN CONGRESS AT STATED TIMES
FOR PURPOSE OF ANSWERING QUERIESBy CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12.—As some folk see it, the department heads of the government are to make cabinet members sit in congress at stated times, and answer questions, as just a scheme to enable vicious lawmakers periodically to rake these executives almost physically over the coals. Cruel and unusual!

As others view it, the Pennsylvania proposition is simply to give the department heads a chance to defend themselves when attacked. Plain fair play!

Congressman Kelly's opinion is that sometimes the cabinet members would like it and sometimes they might not; that probably it would average up, anyway, that it would be a good thing all around. He intends to introduce a resolution for it early in the coming extra session, whether or no.

Of course, the Pennsylvania representative does not suggest congressional votes for cabinet members. In England they do vote, too. Indeed, nobody is eligible for a portfolio in the British cabinet unless he is first a member of parliament.

"That never would do," says Congressman Kelly, "under our system of government, with its complete separation of the legislative and executive branches."

"However, there is no constitutional reason why cabinet members should not have seats, from which they could speak, and explain themselves, whenever they chose; and which I believe they should be required to occupy on specified occasions, to reply to queries from the floor."

"It seems to have been forgotten," continued the Pennsylvania, "that the secretary of the treasury—not the other department heads—originally was placed under legal obligations to appear thus, when summoned; that Alexander Hamilton actually was summoned twice or thrice and did appear. After that the custom apparently lapsed—though the rule never was repealed."

"True, a cabinet member is asked, often enough, to appear before a committee meeting. What he says does not become part of the congressional proceedings, as it should."

"Questioned in open session, an executive official might plead grounds of public policy for refusing to answer, but his refusal would be likely to speak more loudly than any answer."

"On the other hand, attacked in the senate or house of representatives, a cabinet head can defend himself only through a statement which never is published in connection with the attack itself and may never be seen by many who have heard or read the accusations against him."

President Hoover has been mentioned as favorable to the Kelly proposal.

"At any rate, he was favorable to it during his term as secretary of commerce," confirms the congressman.

The latter's plan is not a new one with him. He first suggested it in the much earlier 1920's, and submitted it at the time to each of the then members of the cabinet.

"It was approved," he says, "by all of them." By Secretary Fall?

On that point representative is not positive. It may not have been as early as the Fall regime, he admits. "But it certainly was approved," he adds, by Secretaries Hoover and Mellon.

Which latter name is somewhat significant—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon having been rather noticeably referred to in print as one cabinet member who might not like being interrogated in congress concerning his departmental policies.

Your Health

DON'T FEAR—YOU COULD NOT SWALLOW
A SNAKEBy DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Some people believe it is dangerous to drink out of a garden hose, since if one does he is liable to swallow a snake.

Here is the simplest form of symbolic magic. A garden hose looks like a snake. The snake is one of the oldest and most important of symbols beginning with the one which caused Eve to depart from the path of virtue. Every tribe of savages has snakes in its folk tale and superstition.

The rod and serpent is the symbol of the medical profession and the rod with two serpents is the sign of Mercury, the messenger of the Greek gods. The Indians of South Carolina would not molest a snake because they thought that its kindred would wage war on their tribe. Snake oil is reputed to have all sorts of virtues for the cure of rheumatism. It is supposed to give suppleness and strength to the muscles of wrestlers.

According to the Freudian psychology, the snake is always the symbol of the propagation of life. Many attempts have been made to explain this significance of the snake. One explanation is that the reptile exerts a repulsive reaction, that it is able to inflict death in a mysterious fashion.

In Sussex, England, it was the custom to attempt to cure colic by drawing a snake nine times across the front of the neck of the patient and allow the snake to crawl away after every third application. Then it was killed and its skin sewn on a piece of silk which was hung around the patient's neck.

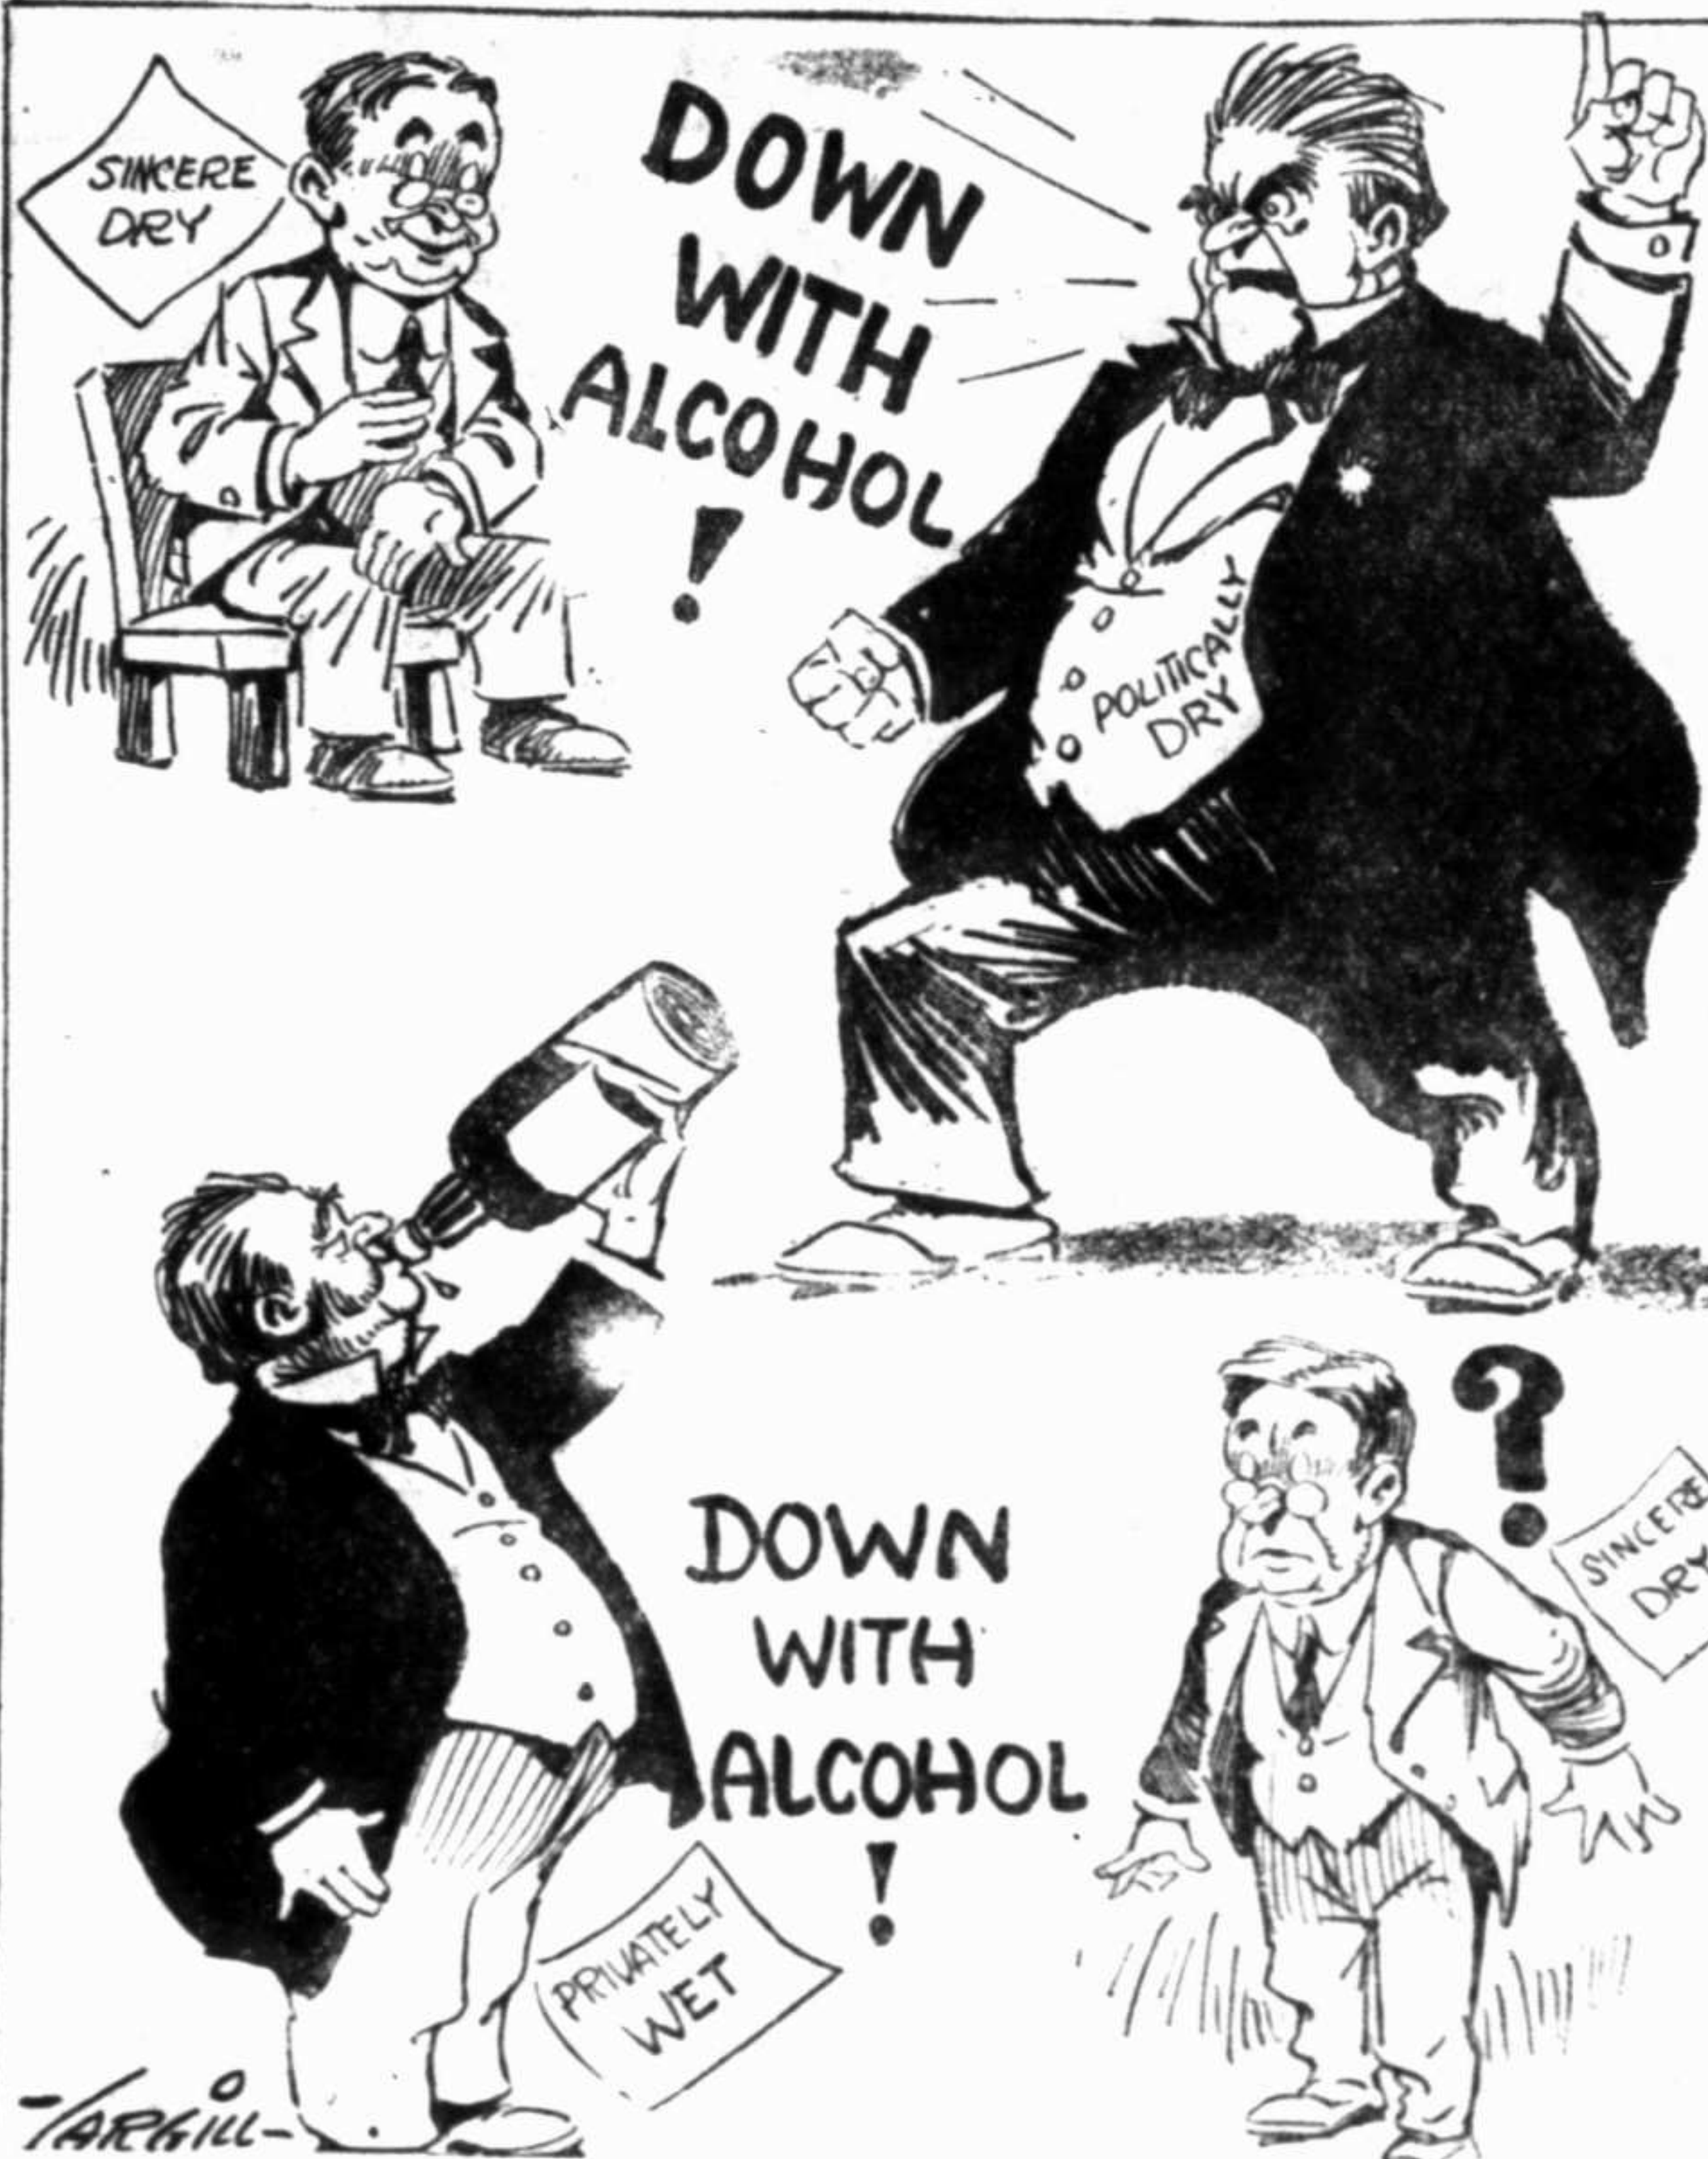

Because of the fact that snakes eat live, the animal has always been supposed to have a voracious appetite. The facts that have been mentioned are an indication of the symbolism that has been associated with the snake since the beginning of time. Recent investigations indicate superstitions and beliefs that are more modern if not less sensible.

Because someone once saw an X-ray picture of a stomach tube in the stomach, the idea grew that it would be possible for a person to swallow a snake and to have a snake develop in the stomach. Because a garden hose looks like a snake, the idea arose that one drinking water from a garden hose would develop a snake in the stomach.

There is not the slightest possible chance for snakes to develop in the human intestines. These are not snakes—they are tapeworms, round worms and similar species. They may easily be removed, when their presence is diagnosed, by the use of proper remedies.

FARMER HOOVER HAS 200 EMPLOYEES
Now that it can be told without any suspicion of gunning for the agricultural vote, it is of interest to goodness farmer, writes Frederick William Wile in the Farm Journal. The new President has owned a 1213-acre farm in California since 1920, and has operated it not only as a business enterprise, but also as a base for practical agricultural experiments. Hoover's acres are an object lesson in diversification of crops. They contain vineyards producing ten varieties of table grapes with a yearly output of 600,000 pounds; some 300 acres in cotton; 200 acres in alfalfa; 150 acres in potatoes; 100-odd acres in corn; 1200 acres in peaches; 90-odd acres in watermelons and muskmelons; 90 acres in Spanish onions; 80 or 60 acres in sweet potatoes; 70 acres in apricots. In addition, the Hoover farm contains 2,500 laying hens, 200 sows and 150 cows. During peak harvesting seasons, as many as 200 hands are employed; the annual payroll is about $75,000.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Michaelson

SO THINK WE

We think possibly the reason that some women are not experts in playing bridge is because their hearts are not the game.

We think the Roosevelt Dispatch is very jealous of Lubbock, and just because Lubbock is now a city of more than twice the size of Roosevelt, and not more than half as old. Which latter name is somewhat significant—Roosevelt being a name that appears in the part of the writers on that paper to try to throw rocks at our city. With the Lea County oil field opening up, Lubbock will get the Eastern New Mexico trade instead of Roosevelt, and of course that may have something to do with the situation.

We think if it had been suggested twenty years ago that a farmer was going to plant his farm in sunflowers, people would have counted him plenty crazy, but we notice that the farmers around Ropes will plant several hundred acres of them. Because in the fact that snakes eat live, the animal has always been supposed to have a voracious appetite. The facts that have been mentioned are an indication of the symbolism that has been associated with the snake since the beginning of time. Recent investigations indicate superstitions and beliefs that are more modern if not less sensible.

We think that when men seek advice most of them are really looking for some one to brag on their ability to know more about the things they are asking than the one they are asking.

We think that nearly all daughters discover after they are married that they are not smarter than their mother.

We think the old saying that what a man sows, he shall also reap, may be true in some respects, but it will not always work in regard to the sowing of wheat and cotton, etc. in the farming sections of these United States.

We think that it is not as if that wrinkles the face and turns the hair gray so much as worry, and very often we think that is not a very worrying about.

We think there would not be nearly so many divorces in the world if big mouthed neighbors, and people who are always prying into other fellow's affairs were busy attending to their own business. The forked tongue tale bearer that is at the bottom of most of the divorce suits in the land today.

WOMAN IS CANDIDATE
San Antonio Mayor Elect
Woman As Mayor(Special to The Avalanche)
SAN ANTONIO, Apr. 12.—San Antonio may be the first large Texas city to have a woman mayor. Mrs. E. P. Butler has announced as candidate in San Antonio and has opened headquarters. She has her vote-getting campaign under way.

"Remove the flag of partisan politics from the city hall," is Mrs. Butler's slogan.

Continued civic improvement, equal enforcement of all laws and economy in administration are stressed in her campaign literature. The election is to be held on May 14. Mayor C. H. Chambers is expected to be a candidate for reelection.

All telegraph lines and cables operated by the war department in Alaska are to be replaced by radio. All telegraph lines have now been replaced by radio. Plans have been made for replacement of cable between Alaska and United States by radio at estimated cost of $200,000 but will be delayed to conserve funds.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

THE BRAIN TEAM
Harvard and Yale, departing a bit from athletics for the moment, recently put on a brain contest. Harvard was victorious over Yale in an English literature test. Now Harvard challenges all comers. Newspaper humorists and others will have a lot of fun over this but it is good serious news just the same. As the years go on, and people become wiser, there will be more and more intellectual contests between college teams.CHEATING
An income tax counselor in Hollywood, helping some wealthy folk to make fraudulent tax returns, is caught by the government. This brings up the question of the never-ceasing attempts of people of all sorts to keep from paying their just taxes. A man who would not cheat another man will think he is smart if he can cheat the government. And yet the government is just a number of men banded together for the common good.KELLOGG'S JOB
Belgium accepts the Kellogg pact. Mr. Kellogg, secretary of state in the Coolidge administration, who has been holding over for a few weeks in the Hoover administration, has the satisfaction of seeing his great achievement practically completed. The important nations now outside the arbitration agreement. Mr. Kellogg, becoming secretary of state, had an aim. He set out to achieve a definite thing. By persistence he succeeded. No man is fit for high office unless he has a definite purpose in view. And she has imagination to see that there is something definite to be done that he may be able to do. And then he must be willing to pay the price of doing it.TELLING THE PEOPLE
The expense of the Republican national committee for the campaign and for the Democratic national committee was about $5,000,000 each. Those are large figures, but it is money well spent if it results in creating a greater interest on the part of the people in national affairs and in the governing of our democracy. The suggestion has been made that campaigns occupy too much time in a presidential year. Almost everybody would welcome a shorter campaign period, if the same amount of information could be spread abroad in less time. This ought to be possible with the increasing use of the radio and the more and more widely distributed publicity. But there should not be shortening of any major political campaign at the expense of a decreased amount of publicity.YOUTH HELD
Oby Lynn, Port Arthur, To Face Murder Charges

PORT ARTHUR, April 12.—(AP)—Oby Lynn, 18, was bound over to the grand jury under bond today charges of killing Lawrence (Red) Whyte at a private dance near here last night.

Two witnesses testified Lynn shot Whyte in self defense. They said they believed Whyte was intoxicated.

Lynn told officers he shot Whyte "because he insulted my sister."

Bright ideas chill quickly without the fuel of ambition—an alarm clock is useless if you forget to wind it.

PRESS COMMENT

A WISE SECRETARY
Secretary of State Stimson vindicated the wisdom and judgment of President Hoover in selecting him for the state portfolio by his decision of the social precedence question concerning the sister of Vice President Curtis. Stimson makes it plain that the department of state is not concerned with any social precedence problem except that which concerns the foreign diplomatic corps in Washington, and that social questions among official members of Washington life must be settled by the social community itself.Now that will social Washington do?
Secretary Stimson takes issue with his predecessor who undertook to decide a social precedence question for Washington society outside of diplomatic circles but the secretary makes it as easy as possible for Borden by saying in his note to Sir Esmé Howard, British ambassador who had addressed him on the subject, representing the entire diplomatic corps in Washington.

Neither Mr. Kellogg nor any other secretary of state has intended to make any official rulings as to the precedence in which American officials and their wives should be received within the houses of the diplomatic corps but that such decision rests wholly within the discretion of the members of that corps themselves. He adds:

"I should be glad, therefore, if you would kindly convey to your colleagues in reply to their memorandum that any course which they take in reference to such matters would be entirely their own affair, and that any courtesy which they may choose to show the Vice President and to Mrs. Gann will be most agreeable to me."

Mr. Stimson's sharp repudiation of the Kellogg ruling was made in his letter to Vice President Curtis. The secretary of state declared, "my thought rather runs in another direction." While he pointed out that the department fixes the seniorities of diplomats "it has no authority to determine questions of precedence among American officials." He said of general social precedence in Washington: "and it is my belief that it should no longer assist in such questions." He added:

"I am, therefore, instructing the department to give no further suggestions in such matters." For he concluded his letter to the vice president by stating that he had advised the diplomatic corps that any courtesy accorded Mrs. Gann would be agreeable to the department. And in concluding his letter to Curtis, Mr. Stimson said, "I have no doubt that in this way, by such unofficial action this matter will work out with the fullest courtesy to you and your official hostess."

At the same time, Mr. Stimson disclosed that Vice President Curtis had merely intended to record his designation of Mrs. Gann as his official hostess, in his original letter to Secretary Kellogg, without asking the department for a ruling as to her status, adding:

"We both agree that for the department to enter into such questions at all is inconsistent with the important governmental duties which it has to perform and that it is much better for social questions to be settled by the social community itself." Temple Telegram.

THE BLACK PIGEON

©1929 By NEA Service, Inc. & ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED
"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN is shot between one and four o'clock Saturday afternoon. RUTH LESTER, his secretary, finds his body Monday morning sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions RUTH, MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and the mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated; and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiancé, whose office is across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by his discovery that Jack's Colt .38 is missing; by Jack's own admission that he returned to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon and by the testimony of ELEVATOR BOYS MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLUGER.

WILLIAM COWAN, Jack's friend, unwillingly tells McMann he heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning.

JAKE BAILEY, Borden's bodyguard, is sent for. Meanwhile McMann questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE, his man servant; WINNIE CASSIDY, a scrawny, little, dark-skinned, scrub-woman; and CLEO GILMAN, Borden's discarded mistress, who gives an ironical alibi. MARTHA MANNING, mother of Borden's illegitimate son, is involved by Ruth's detective work. McMann questions her about her relationship with Borden. She declines to answer. She insists that she saw him last Christmas Eve.

MARTHA MANNING, mother of Borden's illegitimate son, is involved by Ruth's own detective work. McMann questions her directly about her relationship with Borden. She tells McMann she called on Borden last on Friday night after following him and JAKE BAILEY, his bodyguard, into the building. She says she climbed the stairs to the seventh floor and saw Borden after Jack's departure. McMann calls Jake who corroborates her story that Borden was in his office at that time. Martha says she did not call Saturday afternoon but telephoned Borden. McMann points blank accuses her of the murder and Martha challenges him to bring forward anyone who saw her in the building Saturday. Benny Smith bursts in upon them crying "I've come to give myself up. I shot Mr. Borden."

Secretary of State Stimson vindicated the wisdom and judgment of President Hoover in selecting him for the state portfolio by his decision of the social precedence question concerning the sister of Vice President Curtis. Stimson makes it plain that the department of state is not concerned with any social precedence problem except that which concerns the foreign diplomatic corps in Washington, and that social questions among official members of Washington life must be settled by the social community itself.

Now that will social Washington do?
Secretary Stimson takes issue with his predecessor who undertook to decide a social precedence question for Washington society outside of diplomatic circles but the secretary makes it as easy as possible for Borden by saying in his note to Sir Esmé Howard, British ambassador who had addressed him on the subject, representing the entire diplomatic corps in Washington.

Neither Mr. Kellogg nor any other secretary of state has intended to make any official rulings as to the precedence in which American officials and their wives should be received within the houses of the diplomatic corps but that such decision rests wholly within the discretion of the members of that corps themselves. He adds:

"I should be glad, therefore, if you would kindly convey to your colleagues in reply to their memorandum that any course which they take in reference to such matters would be entirely their own affair, and that any courtesy which they may choose to show the Vice President and to Mrs. Gann will be most agreeable to me."

Mr. Stimson's sharp repudiation of the Kellogg ruling was made in his letter to Vice President Curtis. The secretary of state declared, "my thought rather runs in another direction." While he pointed out that the department fixes the seniorities of diplomats "it has no authority to determine questions of precedence among American officials." He said of general social precedence in Washington: "and it is my belief that it should no longer assist in such questions." He added:

"I am, therefore, instructing the department to give no further suggestions in such matters." For he concluded his letter to the vice president by stating that he had advised the diplomatic corps that any courtesy accorded Mrs. Gann would be agreeable to the department. And in concluding his letter to Curtis, Mr. Stimson said, "I have no doubt that in this way, by such unofficial action this matter will work out with the fullest courtesy to you and your official hostess."

At the same time, Mr. Stimson disclosed that Vice President Curtis had merely intended to record his designation of Mrs. Gann as his official hostess, in his original letter to Secretary Kellogg, without asking the department for a ruling as to her status, adding:

"We both agree that for the department to enter into such questions at all is inconsistent with the important governmental duties which it has to perform and that it is much better for social questions to be settled by the social community itself." Temple Telegram.

Perfect wife: One just smart enough to please her husband's pride in public, and just dumb enough to please his vanity in private.—Detroit Free Press.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXII
Ruth Lester was miserably ashamed lately to remember that her first emotion upon hearing Benny Smith say he had shot Borden was one of relief. Jack Hayward was saved! And later she was glad to remember that she was conscious of no horrified shrinking as she saw her arms about the unsteadily swaying body who had just confessed to murder.

"Here! Let me help!" McMann gruffly commanded the girl, and with as much ease as if he were lifting a baby the giant detective lifted the boy in his arms and carried him to the big overstuffed leather chair from which the murdered man had manipulated his ruinous schemes and which for two days had served the detective in charge of the investigation into his murder as a vantage point from which to heave his barbs, bully and confound suspects.

When the boy was lying back weakly in the chair, McMann whirled one of the straight-backed visitors' chairs to the desk and commanded Ruth Lester's services as a stenographer. To take down the confession. Her eyes were blinded with tears that she could hardly find her notebook and pencils—pencils upon which Benny himself had put such a fine brave edge last Saturday!

"Ready, Miss Lester?" All right, Benny, tell us all about it now. The detective commanded, almost gently. A glass of cold water from the tap in the outer office had been fetched by the detective himself and stood beside Benny's right hand.

"Well, sir," Benny began, after a strange, wistful look at Ruth Lester, who waited with poised pencil. "I lied yesterday when I said I didn't come back. I did come back, but nobody didn't see me, 'cause I walked up."

"Why did you walk up, Benny?" McMann interrupted. "You were at Mr. Borden's, weren't you?"

"Yes, I was," Benny answered, his adolescent voice going suddenly soprano on the last word.

"What were you sore about?" "Cause he—he bewitched me out!" Benny cried, looking at Ruth Lester from side to side against the brown leather back of the chair.

"Isn't it true that you were more sore at him because he 'got fresh' with Miss Lester Saturday morning?"

"You keep Ruth's name out of this!" Benny protested shrilly. "I tell you—I was sore at Mr. Borden 'cause he was always pickin' on me, 'n Saturday he talked to me like a dog 'jst 'cause I wanted to borrow his car."

"Settin' at his desk!" Benny repeated stubbornly, and began to cry like a small boy, and not at all like the 17-year-old young man—about-town that he fancied himself to be.

"Cause Benny," McMann's voice was very gentle now—how many times had he said that?

This Anniversary

BIRTH OF JEFFERSON
Today is the anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson in 1793. No man contributed more to the early American republic than this lawyer-farmer, whose insight into the future made him one of the greatest of all his brilliant contemporaries.

Jefferson's part in the struggle for independence dates from the first moment of colonial unrest. His first political writing, "A Summary View of the Rights of British America," was written to urge the first general meeting of representatives of all the colonies. He wrote at least in part, many of the state documents of the early republic. In debate, he was handicapped by a poor voice and the fact that he hated personal combat, but his written language was unsurpassed in its time for clarity and force.

Jefferson's physical measurements were as large as his intellectual. He was six feet two inches tall and strongly built. His plain dress was in sharp contrast to the formal attire of most of his contemporaries. His personality was unusually winning and, history says he addressed his slaves as kindly as he felt toward them.

Today's Poem

"VOICE OF THE WESTERN WIND"
Voice of the western wind!
Thou singest from afar,
Rich with the music of a land
Where all my memories are;
But in thy song I only hear
The echo of a lone
That fell divinely on my ear
In days forever flown.
Star of the western sky!
Thou beamest from afar,
With lustre caught from eyes I knew
Whose orbs were such a star;
But, oh, those eyes—too wildly bright—
No more, eclipse thine own.
And never shall I find the light
Of days forever gone!

times did you shoot Borden? How many bullets were fired?"

"Just one! sorta come to when I seen what I'd done, 'n I dropped the gun and beat it."

"Just one bullet! Ruth repeated to herself, and two bullets had been fired on Saturday, one embedding itself in Borden's chest and the other scarring a brick beside Jack Hayward's office window!"

"So you dropped the gun, eh, Benny?" McMann asked gently.

"Odd we did not find it—"

"I—I picked it up again 'n stuck it in my overcoat pocket, 'n then done it!" the boy pleaded, wiping his eyes on the sleeve of his coat.

"Benny, after you'd—shot Borden, did you go around to Mr. Hayward's office for any reason whatever?" Ruth interrupted with a question of her own.

The boy stared at her, frankly puzzled. "Now—why should I?"

"I thought so! Oh, Benny! Why are you doing all this? For my sake, Benny?" the girl cried, her voice shaking. Jumping up from her chair at the desk, she abandoned her notebook and pencil and ran to the boy, knowing you are just making it all up, Benny, darling. Why, why?"

"Oh!" Ruth cried, her blue eyes blazing scorn at the embarrassed detective. Then to the boy, soothingly: "Dear Benny, I told you yesterday I was in no danger—"

"But after he'd sent you for Minnie, he said you was 'n just didn't know it, 'n all last night 'n this morning I studied how I could get you out of it because I'm just a kid and they wouldn't 'treat me—"

The boy broke off, sobbing heart-brokenly.

The door opened. "Mrs. Smith's here, sir—"

But Benny's mother waited for no permission. A small woman, her sharp-featured face framed in frizzy waved light-brown hair, pushed past Detective Birdwell and ran to the sobbing boy.

"Benny Smith, if you wasn't sick, I'd spank you right here in front of these folks!" she roared the boy sharply, but Ruth knew that the sharpness covered acute maternal anxiety. "I mighta known you'd pull some stunt like this the minute my back was turned."

Then she whirled upon Detective Sergeant McMann. Are you the detective, mister? Well, I hope you're satisfied. You and your three degree have run my boy's fever up till it's something awful! I didn't get a wink of sleep last night, listening to this poor child rave about keeping Miss Lester out of jail! The doctor and my girl-friend, Mrs. Thompson, who helped me set up how he took on—raving in fever he was—about confessing so this Lester fellow wouldn't have to go to jail—"

"Please, please, Smith!" McMann at last succeeded in stopping the torrent of words. "I'm very sorry indeed if anything I said to Benny yesterday gave him the impression I was about to arrest Miss Lester. Now, I think you'd better call an ambulance and have this boy taken to the hospital. I'm afraid he's a pretty sick youngster."

After Benny, who had lapsed into a fever stupor, had been removed on a city ambulance, stretcher, the whole proceeding frantically recorded by newspaper cameras outside the Borden suite, a wet-eyed girl faced a flushed, penitent detective across the dead man's desk.

"Pretty rotten, I know," McMann admitted defensively, dropping his eyes to the sheet of notes he was shuffling between his thick fingers, "but if the police didn't use old-fashioned methods occasionally we wouldn't solve half the crimes we do. Don't like 'em myself, but—"

He paused and shrugged. "Leaves us pretty much where we were before Benny burst in on us, doesn't it? If you'll pardon my language, Miss Lester, this is a hell of a case!"

McMann's voice—"how many times did you shoot Borden? How many bullets were fired?"

"Just one! sorta come to when I seen what I'd done, 'n I dropped the gun and beat it."

"Just one bullet! Ruth repeated to herself, and two bullets had been fired on Saturday, one embedding itself in Borden's chest and the other scarring a brick beside Jack Hayward's office window!"

"So you dropped the gun, eh, Benny?" McMann asked gently.

"Benny, after you'd—shot Borden, did you go around to Mr. Hayward's office for any reason whatever?" Ruth interrupted with a question of her own.

The boy stared at her, frankly puzzled. "Now—why should I?"

"I thought so! Oh, Benny! Why are you doing all this? For my sake, Benny?" the girl cried, her voice shaking. Jumping up from her chair at the desk, she abandoned her notebook and pencil and ran to the boy, knowing you are just making it all up, Benny, darling. Why, why?"

Of course I knew the kid was lying before he'd been 'confessing' five minutes! Well, better go to lunch, child. It's after one, by George! It's half-past."

Ruth rose, her notebook with its stenographic report of Benny's chivalrous lies held against her breast, tenderly. She would transcribe every word of them, keep the record all ways. "And, may Mr. Hayward go with me?"

With Benny's confession worthless the investigation is back where it started. Who killed Harry Borden?

Stock Market Is Continued Rather Quietly Yesterday

Call Money Drops To Seven Per Cent As Numbers Of Shares Go Up; Aircraft Takes Rise.

BY CLAUDE A JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer
NEW YORK, April 12. (P)—Operations for the advance were continued, rather quietly, but effectively, on the stock market today.

Bullish sentiment was strengthened by last night's federal reserve reports, showing, in addition to the expected drop in brokers' loans, substantial improvement in gold reserves, through releases from car-mark, and increases in the reserve ratios of both the New York bank and of the entire system above the levels of this time last year, when brokers' loans were about $1,400, 000,000 lower.

News Is Mixed

The day's business news was mixed in character. Wall Street was particularly interested in the copper statistics in March and was not particularly pleased by the substantial upturn in production.

Trading picked up somewhat from yesterday but total shares were but 3,405,420 shares, a gain of about 300,000 shares. Week-end liquidation was fairly heavy but well absorbed.
For 10 successive sessions the turnover has fallen below the 4,000,000 share mark.

Chemicals, utilities, oils and specialties made the best progress.
Adams Express rallied 26 points allied Chemical, Atlas Chalmers, Du Pont, Goodyear, Gold Dust, Royal Silk & Tobacco mounted from 4 to 5 points. Burroughs Adding Machine company, Olden company and Hershey Chocolate broke into new high ground.

Aircraft Jumps Up

United Aircraft, in its second day on the big board, jumped more than 16 points to a new high in anticipation of an excellent earnings statement by Pratt & Whitney, engine manufacturers, which it controls. Croley Radio jumped 3 points in what appeared to be a driving in of shares. Old generally improved but gains were moderate.
Houston, Standard of New Jersey and Mexican Seaboard mounted 2 points each.

Motors were quiet but steady.
General Motors, Hupp, Hudson and Nash closing about a point higher.

Coppers turned heavy on the March statistics, Greene Cananea, Kennecott and Anaconda losing about 2 points each. Distillers lost about 3 points and Artisan and Botany Mills both dropped to new 1928 lows.

Commodities were quiet but fairly steady. Cotton rallied after declines resulting from improved weather conditions and indifferent Liverpool cables.

In foreign exchanges sterling was higher during most of the day as bills were in brisk demand. The Canadian dollar, however, dropped below 29.16 cents.

warded to the World Federation of Education association. In New York City and first prize in this nationwide contest is a trip to Europe and nation at Canyon, Miss Lorena Holland, of Wilson, Texas, and Miss

Cotton Prices Rally Following Early Declines

NEW YORK, April 12. (P)—Early declines influenced by a better view of weather conditions in the south and indifferent Liverpool cables were followed by rallies on covering and trade buying in cotton here today.
July contracts sold up from 19.85 to 19.99 and closed at 19.95 with the general market closing steady net unchanged to 4 points higher.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 4 to 5 points under selling supposed to be chiefly for southern and local accounts. Active months sold about 6 to 8 points net lower under these initial offerings with May declining to 20.44 and December to 19.88.

Rains Not Noticed

The market did not seem to pay much attention to rains in the Atlantic states or lower temperatures, but they may have increased the disposition to cover short contracts. There was also buying in the continued firmness of the near positions. May sold up to 20.38 and December to 19.98 during the afternoon or about 6 to 8 points net higher but the close was a few points off from the best under resistance.

At the close May was 57 points over July compared with a difference of 60 points at the close of the previous day.

The week-end figures showing a decrease of 140,022 bales in the world's visible supply of American cotton for the week compared with 113,402 last year came in for some bullish comment, contributed to the steadier tone of the afternoon market. Exports today were 31,806 bales making 7,078,467 so far this season.

Port receipts 9,612 U. S. port stocks
1,548,998.

Texas Livestock Is Light Friday

ceptionally light receipts make up estock market here today.

lings sold at 14.00, about in line with the week's quotations. Common and fair kind in package lots sold at

Oil Notes

TULSA, Okla., April 12. (P)—J. S.
Couden and Company, Inc., number one Anderson in 12-8-5, which made history in the Eastboro pool when it attained a peak flow of 390 barrels for an hour early this week, gauged 4,813 barrels of oil and 200 barrels of salt water the past (twenty)-four hours.

Simms Oil Company of Dallas,

Rush and Baughn, opened up their Pottawatomie County wildcat, which is believed to have opened up a new oil pool near the town of Asher, at nine last night, and in the last ten hours, it flowed but 175 barrels by heads.

In the Haskell district, Muskogee

County, the Houston Oil Company

Decline Followed By Rally On New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, April 12. (P)—An early decline on continued favorable weather in the belt was followed by a moderate rally in the cotton market today when the weekly statistics about met bullish expectations.
July advanced from 19.79 to 19.92
and closed at 19.87, or 5 points net higher. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 2 to 3 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 1 to 2 points and prices advanced a point or two additional after the start until active positions showed decline of 3 points from yesterday's close. Liverpool cables were relatively steady, and although ignored at the start, brought out some support later which was further stimulated by expectations of bullish weekly statistics. Before the demand supplied July sold up to 19.83, or 4 points up from the low.

In the afternoon the market rallied under buying promoted by the bullish weekly statistics and overcoming in advance of the March consumption report due tomorrow. At the highest July sold at 19.92 and October 19.75, or 11 to 14 points above the low. Final prices were 2 to 3 points under the top.

Receipts 13,788; for week 55,600;

for the year $310,097; last year 7-581,282. Exports 5,808; for week
103,470; for year 5,843,283; last year
3,821,904. Stocks 1,377,825; last year

MID-WESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, April 12. (P)— (U. S. D. A.)—Opening hog trade around the 11 market circuit ruled steady to 10c higher, but later a weak undertone developed and at most points packers made their purchases at prices weak to 20c lower than Thursday's average. Chicago and St. Louis had a top of $11.80.
Total offerings were around 54,000,
a decrease of 6,000 from a week ago and 2,000 less than the corresponding day of last year.

Fat lambs held steady at Chicago

but most of the river markets reported weak to 25c lower prices.
Chicago realized $17.50 on choice fed woolen lambs, and secured $16.
25 for clippers. California spring lambs of good to choice quality at Omaha brought $15.50 to $16.25.
Aggregate receipts were estimated at

The cattle supply approximated

9,600, slightly less than a week ago and a year ago. Although the supply of fed steers offered at Chicago was meagre a decline of 15 and 25c was confirmed.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

International Sunday school lesson for April 14, 1929.

General topic: Hezekiah leads his people back to God.

Scripture lesson: 2 Chronicles 30: 1-27.

1. And Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, to keep the Passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel.

2. For the king had taken counsel, and his princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, to keep the Passover in the second month.

3. For they could not keep it at that time, because the priests had not sanctified themselves in sufficient number, neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem.

4. And the thing was right in the eyes of the king and of all the assembly.

5. So they established a decree to make proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beersheba even to Dan, that they should come to keep the Passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel, at Jerusalem, for they had not kept it in great numbers in such sort as it is written.

6. So the posts went with the letters from the king and his princes throughout all Israel and Judah, and according to the commandment of the king, saying, Ye children of Israel, turn again to Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel, that He may return to the remnant that are escaped of you out of the hand of the kings of Assyria.

7. And he not ye like your fathers, and like your brethren, who trespassed against Jehovah, the God of their fathers, so that He gave them up to desolation, as ye see.

8. Now be ye not stiff-necked, as your fathers were; but yield yourselves unto Jehovah, and enter into his sanctuary, which He hath sanctified for ever, and serve Jehovah, your God, that His fierce anger may turn away from you.

9. For if ye turn unto Jehovah, your brethren and your children shall children shall find compassion before them that led them captive, and shall come again into this land; for Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if ye return unto him.

10. And all the assembly of Judah, with the priests and the Levites and all the assembly that came out of Israel, and the sojourners that came out of the land of Israel, and that dwelt in Judah, rejoiced.

26. So there was great joy in Jerusalem: for since the time of Solomon, the son of David king of Israel, there was not the like in Jerusalem.

27. Then the priests, the Levites arose and blessed the people: and their voice was heard, and their prayer came up to His holy habitation, even unto Heaven.

Time: Hezekiah was born (Beecher) B. C. 747. The great Passover, B. C. 722.

The final downfall of Samaria, B. C. 722.

Golden Text: Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful.—2 Chron. 30: 9.

Introduction.

"In direct contrast to his father, Ahaz, who had vainly favored everything Assyrian, Hezekiah gave himself passionately to whatever was national and devoted his life to the restoration of the worship of Jehovah and the purification of the land from the heathenism which Ahaz had introduced."—Geikie.

"The reform was a recognition that the new and higher religious conceptions of a people must link themselves with the religious forms of their past."—Barton. "The Religion of Israel."—Snowden.

The first step that separated brethren should take toward revival is to get together."—Snowden.

King Hezekiah v. I.

Hezekiah, the son of Ahaz, was the noble son of an evil monarch. Ahaz was incapacitated for ruling during the closing years of his reign, and Hezekiah became regent when quite young. Ahaz was an idolater, even offering some of his own children in sacrifice to the awful god Molech; but Hezekiah was a true worshiper of Jehovah, being led in this pure faith, we may well believe, by the prophet Micah. As soon as he came to the throne he put the temple of Solomon in order, repairing and cleaning it, and reorganizing the services there, which had fallen into neglect. Our lesson finds him in the midst of this great reformation.

The Meaning of the Passover.

Every year the Jews celebrated three great religious festivals which required the presence in Jerusalem of every male citizen. The first and most conspicuous of these was the Passover, which began in the evening of the fourteenth of the month Abib, our April, and lasted for seven days, the 17th attendance was not compulsory after the first supper.

The institution was established in Egypt just before the exodus, and was for the purpose of commemorating that great event, the passing over by the death angel of the houses of the Hebrews protected by the blood of the sacrificial lamb, as he was on his way to punish the Egyptians by slaying all their first-born sons. Under Ahaz, the noble commemoration had been neglected.

Hezekiah wisely determined to restore it, as an important part of his general reformation.

The King's Message. v. 1.

"And Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, that they should come to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, to keep the Passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel, the Northern Kingdom, as well as of Judah, in spite of Israel's apostasy. It was Hezekiah's hope that the passover politically, at least in good feeling, would bring about a reunion, if not a restoration of the kingdom."

"From Beersheba to Dan" v. 5.

Beersheba was a town in the extreme south of Judah and Dan a town in the extreme north of Israel, so that this phrase, found so often in the Bible, signifies all Palestine.

"That they should come to keep the Passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel, at Jerusalem." v. 5.

In the terms of the proclamation, that the nation was a unit, having only one God, Jehovah, and only one great historic capital and seat of worship, the Holy City, Jerusalem.

The Passover was to be kept in obedience to Him, and not to any earthly monarch. The Passover, if observed at all, had not been celebrated on a national scale, or in the manner prescribed by the law of Moses, but had been observed by only a scattered few and in irregular fashion.

"Who Is Gracious and Merciful?" v. 7.

"For Jehovah, your God, is gracious and merciful." He was not like the cruel and revengeful gods which the people of the north had been worshipping ever since their separation from Judah. "And will not turn away his face from you, if ye return unto him." Hezekiah's entire message, so gentle, yet so firm, so solemn in its warnings yet so alluring in the hope it extended, was a most statesmanlike and noble document, worthy of a far better reception than was accorded it. But the hearts of Israel were hardened.

Hezekiah's Appeal.

Hezekiah's appeal may be taken as a summary of God's call to the impatient in all ages. (1) It is a call to turn away from everything that is not in accordance with God's will and return to glad obedience to that will. (2) It is a command to cease from dissension, to forget quarrels, and unite with former brethren. (3) It is an urgent invitation to the services of the sanctuary, that in a common worship all have may be lost and the new life of obedience be entered upon with divine help. (4) It is a solemn warning of God's fierce wrath which will fall on those who refuse the invitation. (5) And it is a promise of graciousness of mercy, and of all blessings that will come to those who return to Jehovah.

The Response to the Call.

The messengers of Hezekiah had little success among the people of the Northern Kingdom, most of whom "laughed them to scorn and mocked them." "The pious enthusiasm of Judah stood out in vivid contrast to the stubborn impotence of the majority of the ten tribes. By the grace of God, Judah was of one heart to observe the feast, so that there was gathered in Jerusalem a very great assembly of worshippers, surpassing even the great gatherings which the Chronicler had witnessed at the annual feasts."

The Joyous Enthusiasm. v. 24, 26.

Enthusiasm spread through the whole community. Priests and Levites who had neglected to complete their ceremonial cleansing were roused to do so, and when the great day at length arrived, stood in their prescribed places, after the order fixed since the days of David. Nor was any ritual inexactness allowed to mar the universal joy. Then came the great celebration, with such music of chants, and instrumental music, such wealth of gifts for sacrifice such vast numbers in attendance, and such general gladness, as recalled the solemnity of the dedication of the temple by Solomon."—Cunningham Geikie.

Hezekiah's Wicked Son.

Unfortunately the wickedness of Hezekiah broke down where Hezekiah had built up, and the duty devolved on Josiah his grandson of restoring, with even greater thoroughness, the old paths; yet but for the sweeping reforms of Hezekiah, who can say whether the nation would not rather have been absorbed into the empire of Sennacherib and passed out of sight."—Rev. Robert Stalker, D. D.

"Back to God."

"If religion had a spokesman who stood before the divided and estranged worshippers of God as Hezekiah stood before his own divided race, his call would be framed in the same spirit and in much the same language as Hezekiah employed. Back to God! is still the plea that is necessary. Back to God, who is just in His judgment and immeasurable in His love and mercy. Those who differ in their application of religion to life can be brought together only by so intensifying faith in God and reverence for His law as to dissolve their differences in a unity of purpose and of faith."—William Jennings Bryan.

A Personal Question.

"We may all ask ourselves if there is anything in our lives, worldly or spiritual, which we are cherishing and guarding, paying to it the adoration, worship, and love due only to God our Creator—anything we are making an idol of, burning incense to it, the clouds of smoke which sometimes obscure it only for a time, the true vision of our God and His will towards man. If so, let us ask God that He will in His infinite wisdom bestow upon us the righteous zeal of Hezekiah, that we may utterly destroy and put away from us all hindrances to our love, and worship, and service of God."—L. B. "What is Truth?"

"Give Him your hand in token of giving Him your heart. Say not that you will do what you please, but resolve to do what He pleases."—Matthew Henry.

A Personal Prayer.

"The dearest idol I have known, What'er that idol be; Help me to tear it from Thy throne And worship only Thee."

Stomach Disorders First Revealed by Coated Tongue

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90% of all sickness starts with stomach and bowel trouble.

A coated tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders which lead to so many kinds of serious illness. It tells why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

Coating on the tongue is a sign that you need Tanlac—the medicine which has helped thousands who were physically wracked from stomach and bowel troubles—who had "tried everything" in vain and about given up hope.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of herbs, roots and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

CLEVELAND.—Patrolman Leo J. Housa was taking off his coat in a drug store here. He had been sent to guard the store because it had been robbed on four occasions. As his hands were in the air, removing his coat, the robber decided to make another raid on the store. He entered, took the policeman's gun and said: "You were planted here to get me. I ought to shoot you full of holes. Lie down on the floor." He then robbed the store of $138.
