Permian Basin rig count falls by 1 to 385

Midland and Reeves are unchanged at 42 and 65, respectively

By Trevor Hawes
thawes@mrt.com

The Permian Basin rig count slipped slightly this week, falling by one rig to 385. The Permian, however, remains the nation's most active basin.

Baker Hughes tracks 13 other basins in its weekly rig count. The Eagle Ford in South Texas has the second highest count at 68. When adding the number of rigs in the Eagle Ford and all other basins, the tally is 361 — 24 fewer than the Permian.

Located in West Texas and southeast New Mexico, the Permian has seen activity launch higher. A year ago, there were 204 rigs, or 181 rigs fewer than this week's count. Since the count taken Jan. 6, the Permian has gained 118 rigs.

This week, Reeves led all counties with 65 rigs, followed by Midland with 42. Both counts were unchanged.

Other counties with double-digit rig counts were Eddy, New Mexico (30); Lea, New Mexico (36); Loving (30); Martin (28); Reagan (22); Howard (20); Upton (14); Pecos (12); Glasscock (11); Ward (11); and Andrews (10).

Railroad Commission District 8, which encompasses the bulk of Permian activity, dropped by two rigs to 251. For other areas with activity in the Permian, District 7B held at one rig for the 17th straight week, District 7C was unchanged at 41, District 8A stayed at 25 and New Mexico rose by one to 67.

Texas & New Mexico

Texas recorded 451 rigs this week, down two. Of that tally, 318 were in the Permian.

The Eagle Ford was unchanged, as was the Barnett, which held at seven.

Texas shares the Haynesville with Louisiana and the Granite Wash with Oklahoma. Eleven of the Haynesville's 44 rigs were in East Texas, and six of the Granite Wash's 13 rigs were in the Panhandle.

The Lone Star State had one offshore rig.

New Mexico's Permian activity is largely split between Eddy and Lea counties, though a single rig has been counted in Chaves County each week since Aug. 25.

In total, New Mexico had 69 rigs this week, up one. Its pair of non-Permian rigs were in San Juan County in the northwestern part of the state.

Texas had 245 rigs a year ago, and New Mexico had 30.

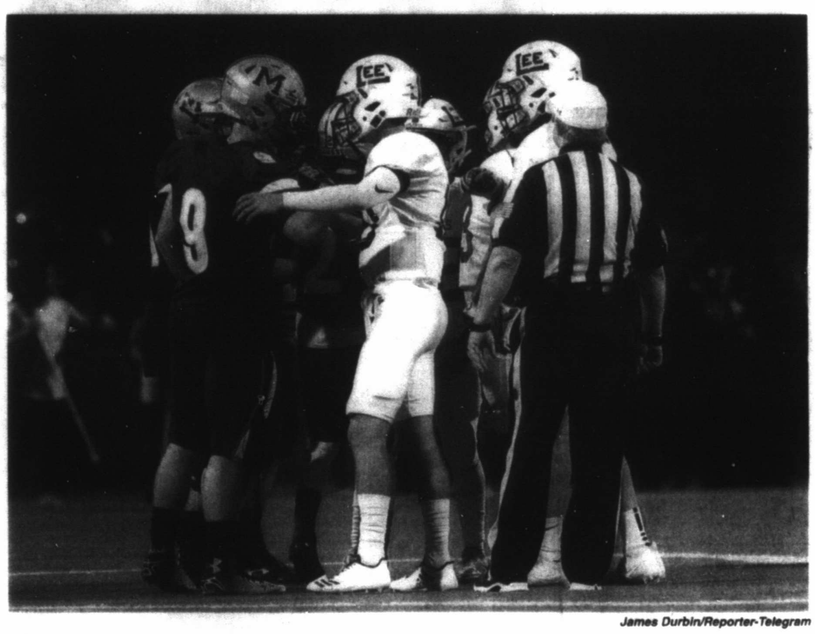

United States

The nation's 940 rigs saw 750 searching for oil, 189 exploring for natural gas and one listed as miscellaneous. Oil rigs were up by six, and natural gas rigs fell by one.

Offshore rigs tallied 22, up three. All were in the Gulf of Mexico. Rigs in inland

Oil rises for fifth straight week

By Trevor Hawes
thawes@mrt.com

The price of oil rose 2 percent this week and marked five straight weeks of gains.

West Texas Intermediate futures contracts for November delivery finished Friday at $51.67 a barrel, up 11 cents (0.21 percent) on the day and up $1.01 (1.99 percent) for the week. Monday's close of $52.22 marked the week high, while Thursday's settlement at $51.56 was the low.

WTI has spent the past eight trading days in the $50s after a layoff of 35 days outside that range. There have been 188 trading days this so far this year.

Futures prices are down slightly for the year, sitting 66 cents (1.26 percent) since Jan. 3. The average price for a barrel of WTI is $49.36. The price has reached as high as $54.45 and as low as $42.53.

Commercial crude oil inventories were down by 1.8 million barrels this week, according to the Energy Information Administration's weekly report released Wednesday. In total, the U.S. had 1.146 billion barrels of crude stockpiled, 471 million barrels of which were commercial crude. There was an 800,000 barrel draw down from the Strategic Oil Reserve.

Total motor gasoline inventories rose by 1.1 million barrels to 217.3 million barrels. Distillates dropped by 800,000 barrels to 138 million barrels.

Domestic crude production rose slightly. At 9.547 million barrels per day, production rose by 37,000 barrels per day.

Imports rose by 59,000 barrels per day to 7.427 million barrels per day. Exports rose by 563,000 barrels per day to 1.491 million barrels per day.

Plains Marketing posted prices also were up this week. The Reporter-Telegram tracks WTI "all other areas" and West Texas sour. Both crude grades rose by $1. On Friday, WTI posted fetched $48.25 a barrel, up 25 cents (0.52 percent) on the day. Sour was also up a quarter (0.55 percent) at $45.35 a barrel.

The spread between the crude grades was $2.90, which has held for the past 20 trading days. The spread

Governor Greg Abbott, right, presents a $50 million dollar check from the state to Mayor Sylvester Turner to assist Houston with Hurricane Harvey relief during a joint press conference at Houston City Hall on Friday, in Houston.

Governor gives Houston $50M for Harvey following clash

By Paul J. Weber
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Gov. Greg Abbott on Friday gave $50 million in state funds to the city of Houston for Hurricane Harvey cleanup following criticism over his assertions that the Democratic mayor already had "all the money he needs."

Abbott, a Republican whose political career began in Houston, handed a check to Mayor Sylvester Turner with hopes of easing tensions between them over the storm that left Houston underwater more than a month ago and could result in the costliest disaster cleanup in U.S. history.

The money amounted to something of a reversal for Abbott, who just days earlier accused Turner of sitting on hundreds of millions of local dollars and holding the state "hostage" by pushing a tax hike to pay for Harvey's mounting expenses.

Houston officials said Abbott misunderstood city finances, and on Thursday, the Houston Chronicle blistered Abbott in an editorial for refusing to start spending from Texas' $10 billion emergency savings fund. Wrote the editorial board: "Here's what he's essentially saying to Houston: DROP DEAD."

Sitting beside Turner at a news conference in Houston on Friday, Abbott said they were on the same team.

"Mayor, I don't come empty-handed today," said Abbott, who said he still is not tapping the state's rainy day fund but is instead using other sources in the state budget to provide the money.

Turner said with the money he will stop pushing for a one-time Houston property tax increase of 3.6 percent.

"We are most effective and most impactful when we are working together," Turner said. "Quite naturally, the only thing people want from us is to work together."

Federal Emergency Management Agency dollars will pay for most of Harvey's cleanup. President Donald Trump earlier this month signed a $15.3 billion Harvey relief package and congressional leaders have said they will pursue more recovery spending.

But cities and counties in Texas cover anywhere from 10 to 25 percent of the costs, and on Tuesday, Turner sent Abbott a letter saying Houston is accruing bills "at a scale beyond our savings." He said the city was without flood insurance since Harvey maxed out its $100 million coverage limit, and that a new policy would cost $10 million.

Harvey killed more than 70 people and damaged or destroyed more than 200,000 homes in Texas. Abbott has said the cost of the cleanup could exceed more than $150 billion.

For years, Texas has socked away more than $10 billion in emergency savings — a rainy day fund now larger than any other state's. As that money has sat untouched since the Category 4 storm made landfall Aug. 25, Texas Democrats have unleashed long-held frustrations over the fund, which Republicans let soar to record balances over calls to spend on public schools and health care.

Abbott has said for weeks that Texas will eventually use the fund for Harvey's recovery. But he has not committed a dollar amount and is refusing to withdraw any money until 2019, when the Texas Legislature reconvenes. Abbott is up for re-election in 2018 and still has no credible challenger from either party.

He has defended keeping a lid on the fund by calling it wise until Harvey's full price tag is known.

"He doesn't know yet what his costs are," Abbott said of Turner. "He's not alone. The time to use the thrust of the rainy day fund is when the expenses are known and identified."

It wasn't the first time that Abbott and Turner have clashed over Harvey. Houston residents got mixed messages before landfall, with Abbott encouraging people to flee while Turner urged families to stay put and not jam flood-prone roads with a major downpour imminent.

South Texas Project staffers spent days waiting out Harvey

By Sean Collins Walsh
Austin American-Statesman

BAY CITY — Days before Hurricane Harvey made landfall Aug. 25, workers at the South Texas Project nuclear power plant ensured the backup generators had fuel in case the power went out.

The Austin American-Statesman reports they obtained enough food and supplies to board the 250-person storm crew for three days. They cleared the site of any potential "missiles," equipment that might be picked up by the wind and hurled at the two reactors.

But they didn't prepare for Harvey — which made a slow, drenching loop around the plant near Bay City — to keep them sequestered at the site for nine days.

"We went from, 'We're going to be here for a couple days,' to, 'Guys, we need to start thinking like we're going to be here for a week on an island,'" said Mike Schaefer, the plant's general manager. "I remember saying, 'Not only are we running a power plant, we're running a hotel and a restaurant.'"

High winds never became an issue at the site, but the plant had to stick to its emergency procedures because the prolonged evacuation in Matagorda County kept other workers far from home and because the Colorado River, which is two miles away, was forecast to crest almost a week after the storm hit.

Nuclear safety watchdogs, who had called for the reactors to be shut down before Harvey arrived, maintained afterward that the plant, which is partly owned by Austin Energy, should have prioritized safety over production. Officials say that there was never a threat to public safety and that they would have shut down if wind speeds or flood levels reached certain thresholds in their emergency plans.

While stuck at the plant, workers had more basic concerns, and they drew up a new chain of command on a white board to address them. A chemistry supervisor became the clothing czar. The security manager became the food czar. The engineering manager became the bunking czar, in charge of cots, sleeping bags and pillows.

Most employees worked 12 hours on, 12 hours off. Some made emergency grocery runs through flooding streets to H-E-B and Walmart, which opened just for them despite the mandatory evacuation order. They slept in a large room called the cable raceway, through which bundled wires carry the electricity generated at the plant to the forest of transmission towers outside.

In the end, floodwaters never reached the site, the plant stayed open, and the reactors continued operating at 100 percent production levels throughout the storm and the week that followed.

Karen Hadden, director of the Sustainable Energy and Economic Development Coalition, or SEED, said that the risk wasn't worth keeping the plant running. Although winds topped off at 40 mph — well below the 73 mph trigger for a shutdown — tornadoes touched down just miles from the site.

"South Texas Project nuclear reactors, 90 miles south of Houston, could have shut down to ensure our health and safety, but instead played radioactive roulette. They prioritized profit and continued operating," Hadden said in a statement. "Flooding in Houston and throughout the region was disastrous enough. Many roads were closed. Picture a nuclear disaster on top of that."

Although the concrete walls of the reactors are built to sustain impacts from projectiles traveling up to 300 mph, plants often shut down for less dangerous winds to ensure that workers can safely move around the site.

As Hurricane Irma barreled toward Florida in early September, Florida Power & Light initially planned to shut down two nuclear power plants on the Atlantic coast. But after the storm changed course, it only closed one of two reactors at one of the plants, Turkey Point, and left the other, St. Lucie, open.

Tim Powell, the South Texas Project's chief nuclear officer, said that decisions on when to shut down because of weather, which are made by the reactor operators on duty, are dictated by the site's storm plans.

"We operate through our procedures at all times, so there was never any reason for us to shut down," Powell said. "If we had ever met any of the criteria , we would have shut the units down."

Irene "Tut" Stultz-Rotan

Irene Rotan, Faith-filled follower of Jesus Christ, went to meet her Savior on September 28, 2017. It was often said that she was the sweetest person you could meet. She was genuine and gentle spirit. Irene was born in Midland, Texas on September 21, 1929 to O.L. and Essie Stultz. She was a lifelong Midland resident who was active in her church and community. On June 12, 1948 she married Roy W. "Scooter" Rotan. Together they built a great life and family. They opened Scooter's Plumbing and operated it together for 40 years. Irene was involved in her church attending regular Women's Ministry meetings, making quilts for missionaries and being a prayer warrior. She also enjoyed playing piano while Scooter would sing. Irene was a volunteer for Meals on Wheels for 20 years. Her love of the Lord and life could be seen in everything she did.

Irene was preceded in death by her husband Scooter Rotan and her parents.

She is survived by her children, Pastor Jerry Rotan and wife Linda of Casa Grande, Arizona, daughter Pat Homola and Husband Joe of Midland, Texas. She enjoyed being a grandmother to three granddaughters, Jelynda Simpson and husband Jason of Casa Grande, Arizona, Valarie Cowin and husband Jason of Midland, Texas and Diane Simmons of Midland, Texas. The greatest joy in her later years came from being a great-grandmother to Brandon Simmons, Jonathan Simmons, Avery Cowin and Jason Cowin II, all of Midland, Texas. She is also survived by her two "partners-in-crime," sisters Betty Simmons of Midland, Texas and Freddie Laux of Irving, Texas.

The family will be receiving friends on Sunday, October 1, 2017 from 4 pm to 6 pm at Lewallen-Garcia-Pipkin Funeral Home, 2508 N. Big Spring.

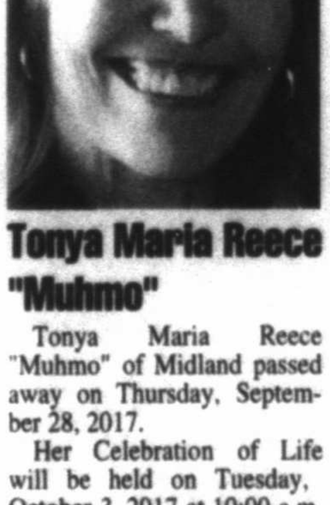

Funeral Services will be held on Monday October 2, 2017 at First Assembly of God Church at 100 W. Wadley at 10:00 am.

Pallbearers will be Tim Mabry, Raymon Villarreal, Michael Cole, Randy Hall, Marty Garcia and Brandon Simmons. Honorary pallbearers are Jonathan Simmons, Avery Cowin and Jason Cowin II. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Cemetery.

Tonya Maria Reece "Muhmo"

Tonya Maria Reece "Muhmo" of Midland passed away on Thursday, September 28, 2017.

Her Celebration of Life will be held on Tuesday, October 3, 2017 at 10:00 a.m. at Stonegate Fellowship Building F, with Pastor Patrick Payton officiating. Per Muhmo's request, please wear bright colors.

The family will receive friends Monday, October 2, 2017 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

Private graveside services will be held.

Tonya Maria Reece was born on June 10, 1954 in Midland to Stephen and Frances Sadowski. She graduated from Robert E. Lee High School in 1974 and married her high school sweetheart, Barry Dean Reece, the same year. Barry's enlistment in the Air Force took them to Georgia, across the Atlantic to Thailand, and back to Midland where they settled and had a daughter, Robin.

Tonya spent 30+ years working in the Oil & Gas industry in Midland. She loved the fast-paced environment and challenge of always learning something new. There was no quicker way to get her fired up than to get her talking about the ongoings and changes within the industry. She met many bosses and coworkers along the way who became lifelong friends and a part of her family.

Tonya was the proverbial plant lady and her front yard was always lush and full of abundant life. She looked forward to every spring when she would make her annual pilgrimage to the plant shops around town and fill her flower beds and pots with vibrant colors. She was hopelessly in love with horses and all-things nature-related. She was always up for an adventure, whether it was a crazy road trip, a spontaneous day-trip to find the best parks in West Texas with the grandkids, or to her favorite mountain-town of Ruidoso with best friend, David Lee - she was all in and ready to buy snacks!

Tonya was a fiercely devoted mother and the most supportive and loving grandmother. Even in her last years when making games and activities became more challenging, she never missed a beat and was truly in tune with her grandbabies who loved her dearly. Tonya was one of the most selfless and caring people, literally giving the shirt off her back and then some to anyone she saw in need. She never met a stranger and her smile and laugh made anyone feel welcome. She will truly be missed by so many.

Survivors include her daughter, Robin Poole and husband David; three grandchildren, Caiden, Kambel, and Carter; sister-in-law, Kathryn Sadowski; sister and brother-in-law, Linda Williams and her husband Don; sister-in-law, Pam Reece; and brother-in-law, Thomas Byrne.

She was preceded in death by her twin brother, Stephen Sadowski; her husband, Barry Reece; sister-in-law, Brenda Byrne; and best friend, David Lee.

Memorial donations can be made to Hospice of Midland and Midland Fair Havens.

Arrangements are under the direction on Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory of Midland. Online condolences can be made at www.npwelch.com.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Report: Youth treatment center guards were inattentive

DALLAS — Conditions at a youth treatment center in Dallas were worse than officials originally described, according to a report by an ombudsman for the Texas Juvenile Justice Department.

The ombudsman cited a lack of supervision at the Lyle B. Medlock Youth Treatment Center, The Dallas Morning News reported.

The ombudsman's report said that allowed for at least five teenage boys who were at the facility for sex offenses to engage in sex acts from November to April. None of the boys have alleged coercion or force.

At the time, the boys were sleeping on mattresses on a multipurpose room flood because of understaffing. Once the sexual acts came to light, the multipurpose room was no longer used, the report said.

The report said staffing shortages and a lack of communication among management led to the sexual incidents. It found that some guards had a lack of concern regarding the safety, security and welfare of the youths, and that some guards would often read or play games on their phones.

Terry Smith, the Juvenile Department's executive director, said the department is holding weekly meetings with detention center leaders, conducting unannounced rounds more frequently and working to fill supervision officer positions.

Smith said the officers who didn't properly supervise the teens will be disciplined.

The boys involved have been moved to the Jerome McNeil Detention Center, which has separate cells for each youth.

Chief ombudsman Debbie Unruh said the department's efforts are a step in the right direction.

"It's a definite improvement," she said. "They have more to do."

Teen dies after being shot as group played with gun

GARLAND — A Dallas-area teenager has died two days after being shot in the head by another teen as they played with a handgun.

Garland police say the 15-year-old boy died Thursday.

Authorities say 17-year-old Andy Erives is charged with manslaughter in the death. Police have not released the name of the boy who died.

Erives, the shooting victim and another teen were playing with the gun at a home on Tuesday. Police say Erives pointed the weapon at the 15-year-old and fired. Authorities haven't said if he intended to shoot or if it was accidental.

Erives fled the home but was later captured and taken to the Garland Detention Center. The victim was hospitalized in critical condition.

It's not clear if Erives has a lawyer to speak on his behalf.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic, 4-positive, 3-average, 2-so-so, 1-difficult

Note: Bigar's Stars is based on the degree of your sun at birth. The sign name is simply a label astrologers put on a set of degrees for convenience. For best results, readers should refer to the dates following each sign.*

A baby born today has a Sun in Libra and a Moon in Aquarius.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Sept. 30, 2017: This year allows you greater movement and creates more opportunities because of your finances. You might receive a promotion and/or pay raise. If you demonstrate self-restraint, you could find that you are able to significantly strengthen your savings account. If you are single, you might be more attractive to the opposite sex than you realize. You are likely to meet someone you cannot stay away from. If you are attached, the two of you enjoy each other's company more and more. You love being a duo. AQUARIUS is learning from you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You are ready to relax and enjoy spending some time with friends and loved ones. Whether you're at a ballgame or out shooting the breeze at a favorite spot, others seem pleased just to be around you. A partner seems very content. Tonight: Make the most of the moment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Take care of a situation that involves an older relative and a serious responsibility. Once you handle this commitment, you might want to go out to a movie or join a friend for a meal. Others seem jovial. Fortunately, their mood is contagious! Tonight: Happiest out and about.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ You will be in touch with a distant friend or loved one. The two of you rarely have an opportunity to get together. Make a rendezvous possible; be willing to clear your schedule to make the time. You could hear some surprising news. Tonight: All's well that ends well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Make plans to be with a special person. You will enjoy catching up on his or her news as well. Spending some time together will allow you to gain a perspective on where you are at in life. Plan on spending some time at home to relax. Tonight: Put on your dancing shoes!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ What has been challenging up until now presents a different set of problems from what you normally would have to deal with. Others might be unusually difficult right now. Your smile and openness are likely to win the day. Tonight: Enjoy your popularity at the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You might find it more difficult than you think to get past an awkward moment. Know that the other party also probably feels a little off. Both of you will work to get past this issue. Toss yourself into a project or whatever others are doing. Tonight: Make it an early night.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Your imagination could drag you into a wild, unanticipated event that you will laugh about for a long time. An old friend or an ex-sweetie could add some spice to the present moment. Be sensitive to those you care about, and share more with them. Tonight: Where mischief happens.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★ Decide to share the moment with several friends, and invite them over for a fun get-together. You might want to consider having a theme. Your sense of humor comes out. Do not be surprised if someone doesn't know how to handle your comments. Tonight: Time for some fun!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ You don't need to go far to have a good time. You can walk out the door and run into a neighbor who shares some exciting news. You might be interested in this person's commentary. Try not to laugh too much! Tonight: Head over to a favorite spot for dinner with a friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ You want to get past a problem, and ignoring it is not the answer. Use your imagination to find a path that works for you. A conversation proves to be informative, and an invitation is likely to delight you. Your smile wins over many people. Tonight: Make it your treat!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You wake up on the right side of the bed. You are through your day feeling calmed and interested in those around you. Open yourself up, take a risk and reach out to someone you care about. Due to your energy, you have a lot to catch up on. Tonight: You have reason to celebrate!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★ You might want to spend some time by yourself, at work or with one very special person in your life. You often cross lengths against times at home and today is no different. You tend to confide in a close loved one who often seeks out your thoughts and opinions. Tonight: Make it nice and cozy.

Last child left at home balks at mother's plans to move

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 55-year-old guy stranded in a tough marriage situation. My wife has had a serious falling-out with her father. After his wife of more than 50 years passed away, he immediately took up with an old flame and dumped his family in favor of his new lady's family.

My wife now treats me like garbage. Apparently, "all men are dogs," and if she passes away, I "obviously already have a girl lined up to take her place," and, oh yeah, I plan to abandon my children in favor of the new woman's family. I'm being painted with a very broad brush, and it is destroying our relationship.

My wife is angry and bitter all the time, and I feel abandoned. I love her dearly and don't know what to do next, although I am thinking of punching out her father. Any thoughts are appreciated. — STRANDED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR STRANDED: Your wife is now an "orphan." She's hurt, angry, and misdirecting her anger at her father onto you. Of course it is unfair to you. She needs counseling NOW, before she compounds her pain by destroying her marriage to you. Be smart and insist upon it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a fifth-grader, and I'd like to know something important to girls my age. I want to know how to get a guy to be my boyfriend and the steps to getting him. It's hard for me to get a boyfriend.

I know what you're going to say — I'm too young for boys. But if I am, I would like this information for future reference. I have tried other things. Nothing worked, and basically, you're my last hope. — PLANNING AHEAD IN BAY CITY, TEXAS

DEAR PLANNING AHEAD: OK, let's review the basics. Are you neat and clean in your appearance? Are you fun to be around and liked by your classmates of both genders? Do you smile and say hello and show an interest?

Basically, the qualities that attract other girls are the same ones that will make boys pay attention. But there's an important point to keep in mind, and it's that while you may be developing an interest in boys, many of them may not be mature enough to have developed an interest in girls yet, so be patient. Focus on your studies, become involved in activities you enjoy, and things will happen naturally.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, a waiter spilled the dinner he was carrying for another diner all over my coat. This is not the first time something like this has happened to me or someone I was dining with. What is the proper thing for a restaurant to do in a situation like this? Offer me a free meal to cover the cost of getting my coat dry-cleaned? — ANNOYED IN AUSTRALIA

DEAR ANNOYED: The very least you should receive is an apology. If the restaurant is Class A, the manager should come to your table, apologize and instruct you to send or bring the bill for dry cleaning your garment to him or her so the establishment can pay for it. Offering to treat you to dessert would also be good public relations, but expecting to be treated to dinner is excessive.

Aid flows to Puerto Rico but many still lack water and food

By Ben Fox and Danica Coto
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Thousands of Puerto Ricans were finally getting water and food rations Friday as an aid bottleneck began to ease, but many remained cut off from the basic necessities of life and were desperate for power, communications and other trappings of normality in the aftermath of Hurricane Maria.

There were many people across the island, especially outside the capital, who were unable to get water, gas or generator fuel. That was despite the fact that military trucks laden with water bottles and other supplies began to reach various parts of Puerto Rico and U.S. federal officials pointed to progress in the recovery effort, insisting that more gains would come soon.

In some cases, aid that was being distributed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency was simply not enough to meet demand on an island of 3.4 million people where nearly everyone was still without power, half were without running water in their homes and the economy was still crippled from the effects of the storm that swept across the U.S. territory as a fierce Category 4 hurricane on Sept. 20.

"I haven't seen any help and we're running out of water," said Pedro Gonzalez, who was clearing debris to earn some money in the northern coast town of Rio Grande. Increasingly desperate and with a daughter with Down syndrome to support, he had already decided to move to Louisiana to stay with relatives. "We're getting out of here."

FEMA sent Rio Grande officials shipments of food and water for the past three days and arrived Thursday to help distribute meal packets, water and snacks in one community. But people in neighboring communities said no one came door-to-door to help them.

"This has been a complete disaster," said 64-year-old retiree Jenny Cordero as she filled plastic trash cans with water at the home of a neighbor who was among the lucky ones to have service restored.

Those who made it, however, were grateful. "This will help somewhat, so we don't starve," said Anthony Jerena, a 33-year-old father of two teenagers who had managed to get two boxes of water, each containing 24 bottles and, three packages of meals-ready-to-eat.

Yolanda Lebron, spokeswoman for the Rio Grande mayor, said they used a car with a loudspeaker to announce that FEMA would be registering people for aid, but did not mention there would be food and water given out. "We didn't dare," she said. "We didn't know if we were going to have enough."

Gov. Ricard Rossello and other officials said they were aware of people's deepening frustrating and of the difficulty, and danger, of living on a sweltering tropical island with no air conditioning and little to no water. He blamed some of the delay on the logistical challenge of getting aid shipments out of the seaports and airports, all of which were knocked out of commission in the storm, and then distributing the supplies on debris-strewn streets.

Rossello said Friday that the government would seize all food still sitting in containers at the port that private business owners had not yet claimed and would distribute it to people for free. He said the government would use FEMA funds to repay the owners.

He said operations were also ramping up at the airport and that the government had requested drivers and other workers from various federal agencies to help distribute aid, which he expected to begin flowing within the next several days. "We know we have to do more," he said. "We're still not getting at the optimal point. But it has been a limitation on logistics and as soon as we get those assets we are going to put them on the ground."

The governor also said he would shorten the nightly curfew by three hours, requiring people to be off the streets by 9 p.m. instead of 6 p.m., and would end a ban on alcohol sales that was in place since before the storm.

He spoke after touring the island with Acting Secretary of Homeland Security Elaine Duke, who drew criticism from the San Juan mayor and others for describing the recovery effort as a "good-news story." She sought to clarify the statement, saying she intended to praise the cooperation among the federal and local authorities in responding to a crisis. "Clearly the situation here in Puerto Rico after the devastating hurricane is not satisfactory, but together we are getting there and the progress today is very, very strong," she said.

There were signs that the island was slowly emerging from the disaster.

Telecommunications were back for about 30 percent of the island, giving some people the critical ability to call relatives and others for help if needed. Nearly half of the supermarkets had opened, at least on reduced hours, and about 60 percent of the gas stations, though it could take hours to buy a rationed amount. In San Juan, the news that a laundromat had reopened cheered some, as did the news that some buses and the rideshare service Uber would be back online in San Juan.

Meanwhile, FEMA officials said the agency had distributed 2.5 million liters of water and 2 million meals at 11 distribution centers including the nearby islands of Culebra and Vieques.

Disputed East Coast pipeline likely to expand

By Sarah Rankin
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — The developers of a disputed natural gas pipeline on the U.S. East Coast are considering a major expansion of the project into South Carolina, according to remarks made by an energy company executive and interviews with others in the industry.

Opponents of the Atlantic Coast Pipeline said that raises questions about whether Dominion Energy, the project's lead developer, has withheld important information from the public and whether the pipeline is even needed as initially proposed. But business leaders say the pipeline would help lower energy costs and boost economic development in South Carolina.

Dan Weekley, Dominion Energy's vice president and general manager of Southern pipeline operations, told attendees at a recent energy conference "everybody knows" the Atlantic Coast Pipeline — currently slated to pass through Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina — is not going to stop there, despite what the current plans say.

"We could bring in almost a billion cubic feet a day into South Carolina," Weekley said, according to an audio recording The Associated Press obtained from a conference attendee. The attendee requested anonymity out of concern for not wanting to harm business or personal relationships.

The remarks appear to be the Richmond, Virginia-based company's most direct public signal to date that it intends to expand the pipeline, though industry analysts said the potential has been discussed for years.

"It just fits into the whole idea that we've never really believed that Dominion is telling us the whole truth about the project and the gas and where the gas might go," said David Sligh, conservation director of Wild Virginia, a nonprofit dedicated to preserving Virginia's national forests.

Dominion has told the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which oversees interstate natural gas pipelines, the gas is mostly for power plants in Virginia and North Carolina, said Greg Buppert, an attorney for the Southern Environmental Law Center.

"Is the real intent to move most of the gas into South Carolina?" Buppert asked.

Tamara Young-Allen, a spokeswoman for the commission, said if the developers want to expand the pipeline into another state, they will have to go through the full application process again. Dominion spokeswoman Jen Kostyniuk said "absolutely no decision has been made about a potential expansion" of the pipeline.

Weekley's remarks during the South Carolina Clean Energy Summit in Columbia indicated otherwise.

"Even though it deadends at Lumberton (North Carolina) — of course, 12 miles to the border — everybody knows it's not going to end in Lumberton," he said.

Weekley said the pipeline could go toward the coast or into the mid-state region of South Carolina, depending on power needs. "You tell me, we'll turn one way or the other," said Weekley, who wasn't available for an interview, according to pipeline spokesman Aaron Ruby. As initially proposed, the approximately $5 billion pipeline is a huge infrastructure project that's been enthusiastically endorsed by business and political leaders but sparked strong opposition from environmental groups and many landowners in its path. With sections up to 42 inches in diameter, it would start in West Virginia, cross through the heart of Virginia — including national forest, the Blue Ridge Parkway and the Appalachian Trail — then bend through eastern North Carolina. Most of the 1.5 billion cubic feet of natural gas it could transport each day would be used to generate electricity in Virginia and North Carolina.

Analyst Shar Pourreza, managing director and head of North American power for Guggenheim Securities, said he expects that the pipeline will eventually be expanded as far into the southeast as Georgia or Florida, in part because the closures of coal-fired power plants are increasing the demand for natural gas.

Natural gas, which is cleaner than coal, has been embraced by politicians from both parties and touted as a bridge fuel toward greater use of renewable energy. Pipelines are also lucrative projects — developers can frequently recoup around a 14 percent rate of return.

Leaders of business groups, including the South Carolina Energy Users Committee, South Carolina Chamber of Commerce and South Carolina Manufacturers Alliance, told the AP they had discussed the pipeline with Dominion.

"If we want more industrial development, we're going to need the kind of infrastructure that Dominion can bring to the state," said Lewis F. Gossett, President and CEO of the manufacturing alliance. "The pipeline is essential."

But environmentalists and others are increasingly questioning the need for more natural gas infrastructure.

Rig count

From 1A

All were in the Gulf of Mexico. Rigs in inland waters fell to two after one rig was idled.

By drilling trajectory, there were 794 horizontal rigs, up four; 64 vertical rigs, down four; and 82 directional rigs, up five.

The U.S. had 522 rigs a year ago.

Most active

Basins with the highest rig counts were the Permian, the Eagle Ford, the Cana Woodford (62), the Williston (50) and the Marcellus (47).

States with the most activity were Texas, Oklahoma (124), New Mexico, Louisiana (64) and North Dakota (50).

Canada & North America

Canada's rig count fell by seven to 213, a tally much higher than the year-ago count of 162. The nation had 113 oil rigs, down nine; natural gas rigs totaled 100, up two.

The North America region had 1,153 rigs, down by two. At this time last year, there were 684 rigs in North America.

Trump's health secretary resigns in travel flap

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldivar and Jonathan Lemire
Associated Press

Health and Human Services Secretary Tom Price is seen silhouetted as he speaks during a National Foundation for Infectious Diseases (NFID) news conference Thursday in Washington. Price announced Friday he is resigning amid criticism of his travel on private planes.

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump's health secretary resigned Friday after his costly travel triggered investigations that overshadowed the administration's agenda and angered his boss. Tom Price's regrets and partial repayment couldn't save his job.

The Health and Human Services secretary became the first member of the president's Cabinet to be pushed out in a turbulent young administration that has seen several high-ranking White House aides ousted. A former GOP congressman from the Atlanta suburbs, Price served less than eight months.

Publicly, Trump had said he was "not happy" with Price for repeatedly using private charter aircraft for official trips on the taxpayer's dime, when cheaper commercial flights would have done in many cases.

Privately, Trump has been telling associates in recent days that his health chief had become a distraction. Trump felt that Price was overshadowing his tax overhaul agenda and undermining his campaign promise to "drain the swamp" of corruption, according to three people familiar with the discussions who spoke on condition of anonymity.

On Friday the president called Price a "very fine person," but added, "I certainly don't like the optics." Price said in his resignation letter that he regretted that "recent events have created a distraction."

The flap prompted scrutiny of other Cabinet members' travel, as the House Oversight and Government Reform committee launched a governmentwide investigation of top political appointees. Other department heads have been scrambling to explain their own travel.

Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke faced scrutiny over three charter flights while in office, including a $12,375 late-night trip from Las Vegas to his home state of Montana in June. On Friday, he dismissed the controversy over charter flights as "a little BS over travel," but he said taxpayers do have the right to know official travel costs.

Price's repayment of $51,887.31 for his own travel costs did not placate the White House. The total travel cost, including the secretary's entourage, was unclear. It could amount to several hundred thousand dollars. Following Price's resignation, White House budget director Mick Mulvaney informed Cabinet secretaries and agency heads in a memo that approval from chief of staff John Kelly will be required for any travel on government-owned, rented, leased or chartered aircraft.

An orthopedic surgeon turned politician, Price rose to Budget Committee chairman in the House, where he was known as a fiscal conservative. When Price joined the administration, Trump touted him as a conservative policy expert who could write a new health care bill to replace the Obama-era Affordable Care Act.

But Price became more of a supporting player in the GOP's futile health care campaign, while Vice President Mike Pence took the lead, particularly with the Senate. The perception of Price jetting around while GOP lawmakers labored to repeal "Obamacare" —including a three-nation trip in May to Africa and Europe— raised eyebrows on Capitol Hill. Price flew on military aircraft overseas.

Although much of Trump's ire over the health care failure has been aimed at the Republican-controlled Congress, associates of the president said he also assigns some blame to Price, who he believes did not do a good job of selling the GOP plan.

But House Speaker Paul Ryan, R-Wis., said Friday that Price had worked hard to help that chamber pass its plan before the GOP effort reached an impasse in the Senate. "I will always be grateful for Tom's service to this country," he said.

Democrats were glad to see Price go. Some urged Trump to appoint an HHS secretary who would reach out to them.

"I hope President Trump learns from this mistake, and looks to appoint someone who can work in a bipartisan way to strengthen health care for all Americans," said Rep. Frank Pallone, D-N.J.

A Pence protege, Seema Verma, has been mentioned as a possible successor to Price. Verma already leads the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, which runs health insurance programs that cover more than 130 million Americans.

Another possible HHS candidate: FDA Commissioner Scott Gottlieb, who won some bipartisan support in his confirmation and is well known in policy, government and industry circles.

Trump named Don J. Wright, a deputy assistant secretary of health, to serve as acting secretary.

Price, 62, was seen in Congress as a foe of wasteful spending. As HHS secretary, he led a $1 trillion department whose future is the key to managing mounting federal budgetary deficits. As secretary, Price criticized the Medicaid health program for low-income people, saying it doesn't deliver results commensurate with the hundreds of billions of dollars taxpayers spend on it. As a congressman, he favored Medicare privatization. But Price's image as a budget hawk took a hit when reports of his official travel started bubbling up. Price used private charter flights on 10 trips with multiple segments, when in many cases cheaper commercial flights were available. His charter travel was first reported by the news site Politico.

On a trip in June to Nashville, Tennessee, Price also had lunch with his son, who lives in that city, according to Politico. Another trip was from Dulles International Airport in the Washington suburbs to Philadelphia International Airport, a distance of 135 miles.

The reports triggered a review by the HHS inspector general's office, which is looking into whether Price's travel violated federal travel regulations. Those rules generally require officials to minimize costs.

The controversy over Price was a catalyst for Congress launching a bipartisan probe of travel by political appointees across the administration. The House oversight committee has requested travel records from the White House and 24 federal departments and agencies.

Initially, Price's office said the secretary's busy scheduled forced him to use charters from time to time.

But later Price's response changed, and he said he'd heard the criticism and concern, and taken it to heart.

US to Americans: Stay away from Cuba after health 'attacks'

By Josh Lederman and Matthew Lee
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States delivered an ominous warning to Americans on Friday to stay away from Cuba and ordered home more than half the U.S. diplomatic corps, acknowledging neither the Cubans nor America's FBI can figure out who or what is responsible for months of mysterious health ailments.

No longer tiptoeing around the issue, the Trump administration shifted to calling the episodes "attacks" rather than "incidents."

The U.S. actions are sure to rattle already delicate ties between the longtime adversaries who only recently began putting their hostility behind them. The U.S. Embassy in Cuba will lose roughly 60 percent of its American staff and will stop processing visas for prospective Cuban travelers to the United States indefinitely, officials said. Roughly 50 Americans had been working at the embassy.

President Donald Trump said that in Cuba "they did some very bad things" that harmed U.S. diplomats, but he didn't say who he might mean by "they."

Though officials initially suspected some futuristic "sonic attack," the picture is muddy. The FBI and other agencies that searched homes and hotels where incidents occurred found no devices.

Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, who reviewed options for a response with Trump, said, "Until the government of Cuba can ensure the safety of our diplomats in Cuba, our embassy will be reduced to emergency personnel in order to minimize the number of diplomats at risk of exposure to harm."

In Friday's travel warning, the State Department confirmed earlier reporting by The Associated Press that U.S. personnel first encountered unexplained physical effects in Cuban hotels. While American tourists aren't known to have been hurt, the agency said they could be exposed if they travel to the island — a pronouncement that could hit a critical component of Cuba's economy that has expanded in recent years as the U.S. has relaxed restrictions.

At least 21 diplomats and family members have been affected. The department said symptoms include hearing loss, dizziness, headache, fatigue, cognitive issues and difficulty sleeping. Until Friday, the U.S. had generally referred to "incidents." Tillerson's statement ended that practice, mentioning "attacks" seven times; the travel alert used the word five times.

Still, the administration has pointedly not blamed Cuba for perpetrating the attacks, and officials have spent weeks weighing how to minimize the risk for Americans in Cuba without unnecessarily harming relations or falling into an adversary's trap.

If the attacks have been committed by an outside power, such as Russia or Venezuela, to drive a wedge between the U.S. and Cuba, as some investigators have theorized, a U.S. pullout would end up rewarding the aggressor. On the other hand, officials have struggled with the moral dimensions of keeping diplomats in a place where the U.S. government cannot guarantee their safety.

The administration considered expelling Cuban diplomats from the U.S., officials said, but for now no such action has been ordered. That incensed several lawmakers who had urged the administration to kick out all of Cuban's envoys.

"It's an insult," said Florida Sen. Marco Rubio, a vocal critic of Cuba's government, in an interview. "The Cuban regime succeeded in forcing Americans to downscale a number of personnel in Cuba, yet it appears they're going to basically keep all the people they want in America to travel freely and spread misinformation."

The U.S. travel warning said, "Because our personnel's safety is at risk, and we are unable to identify the source of the attacks, we believe U.S. citizens may also be at risk and warn them not to travel to Cuba."

Canada, which also has reported diplomats with unexplained health problems, said it had no plans to change its diplomatic posture in Cuba.

The U.S. moves deliver a significant setback to the delicate reconciliation between America and Cuba, countries that endured a half-century estrangement, despite only 90 miles of separation. In 2015, President Barack Obama and Cuban President Raul Castro restored diplomatic ties, embassies were re-opened and travel and commerce restrictions were eased. Trump has reversed some changes but has broadly left the rapprochement in place.

After considering options that ranged all the way to a full embassy shutdown, Tillerson made the decision to reduce all nonessential personnel and all family members. Also included in the recall is Scott Hamilton, currently the highest-ranked diplomat at the mission. Staffing at the embassy in Havana was already lower than usual due to recent hurricanes that whipped through Cuba.

Cubans seeking visas to enter the U.S. may be able to apply through embassies in nearby countries, officials said. The U.S. will stop sending official delegations to Cuba, though diplomatic discussions will continue in Washington.

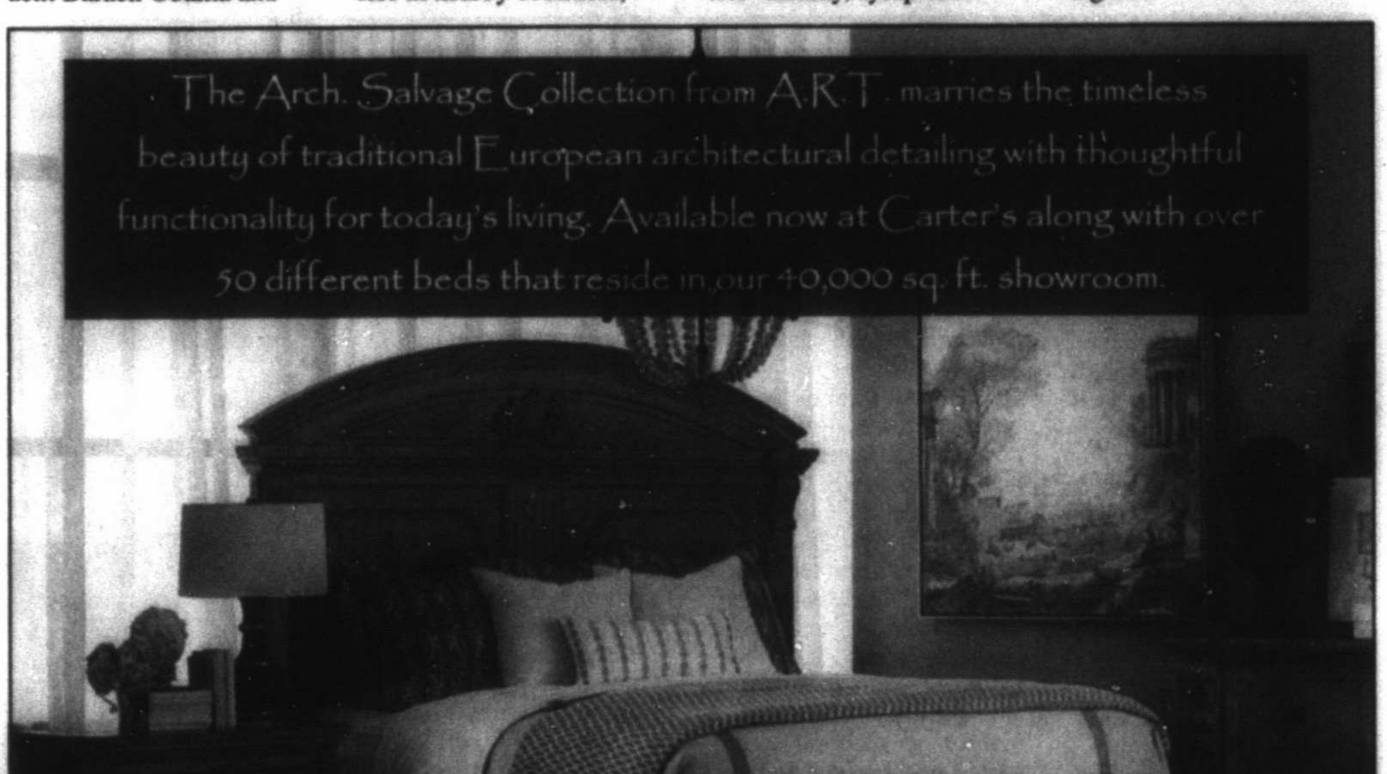

The United States notified Cuba early Friday via its embassy in Washington.

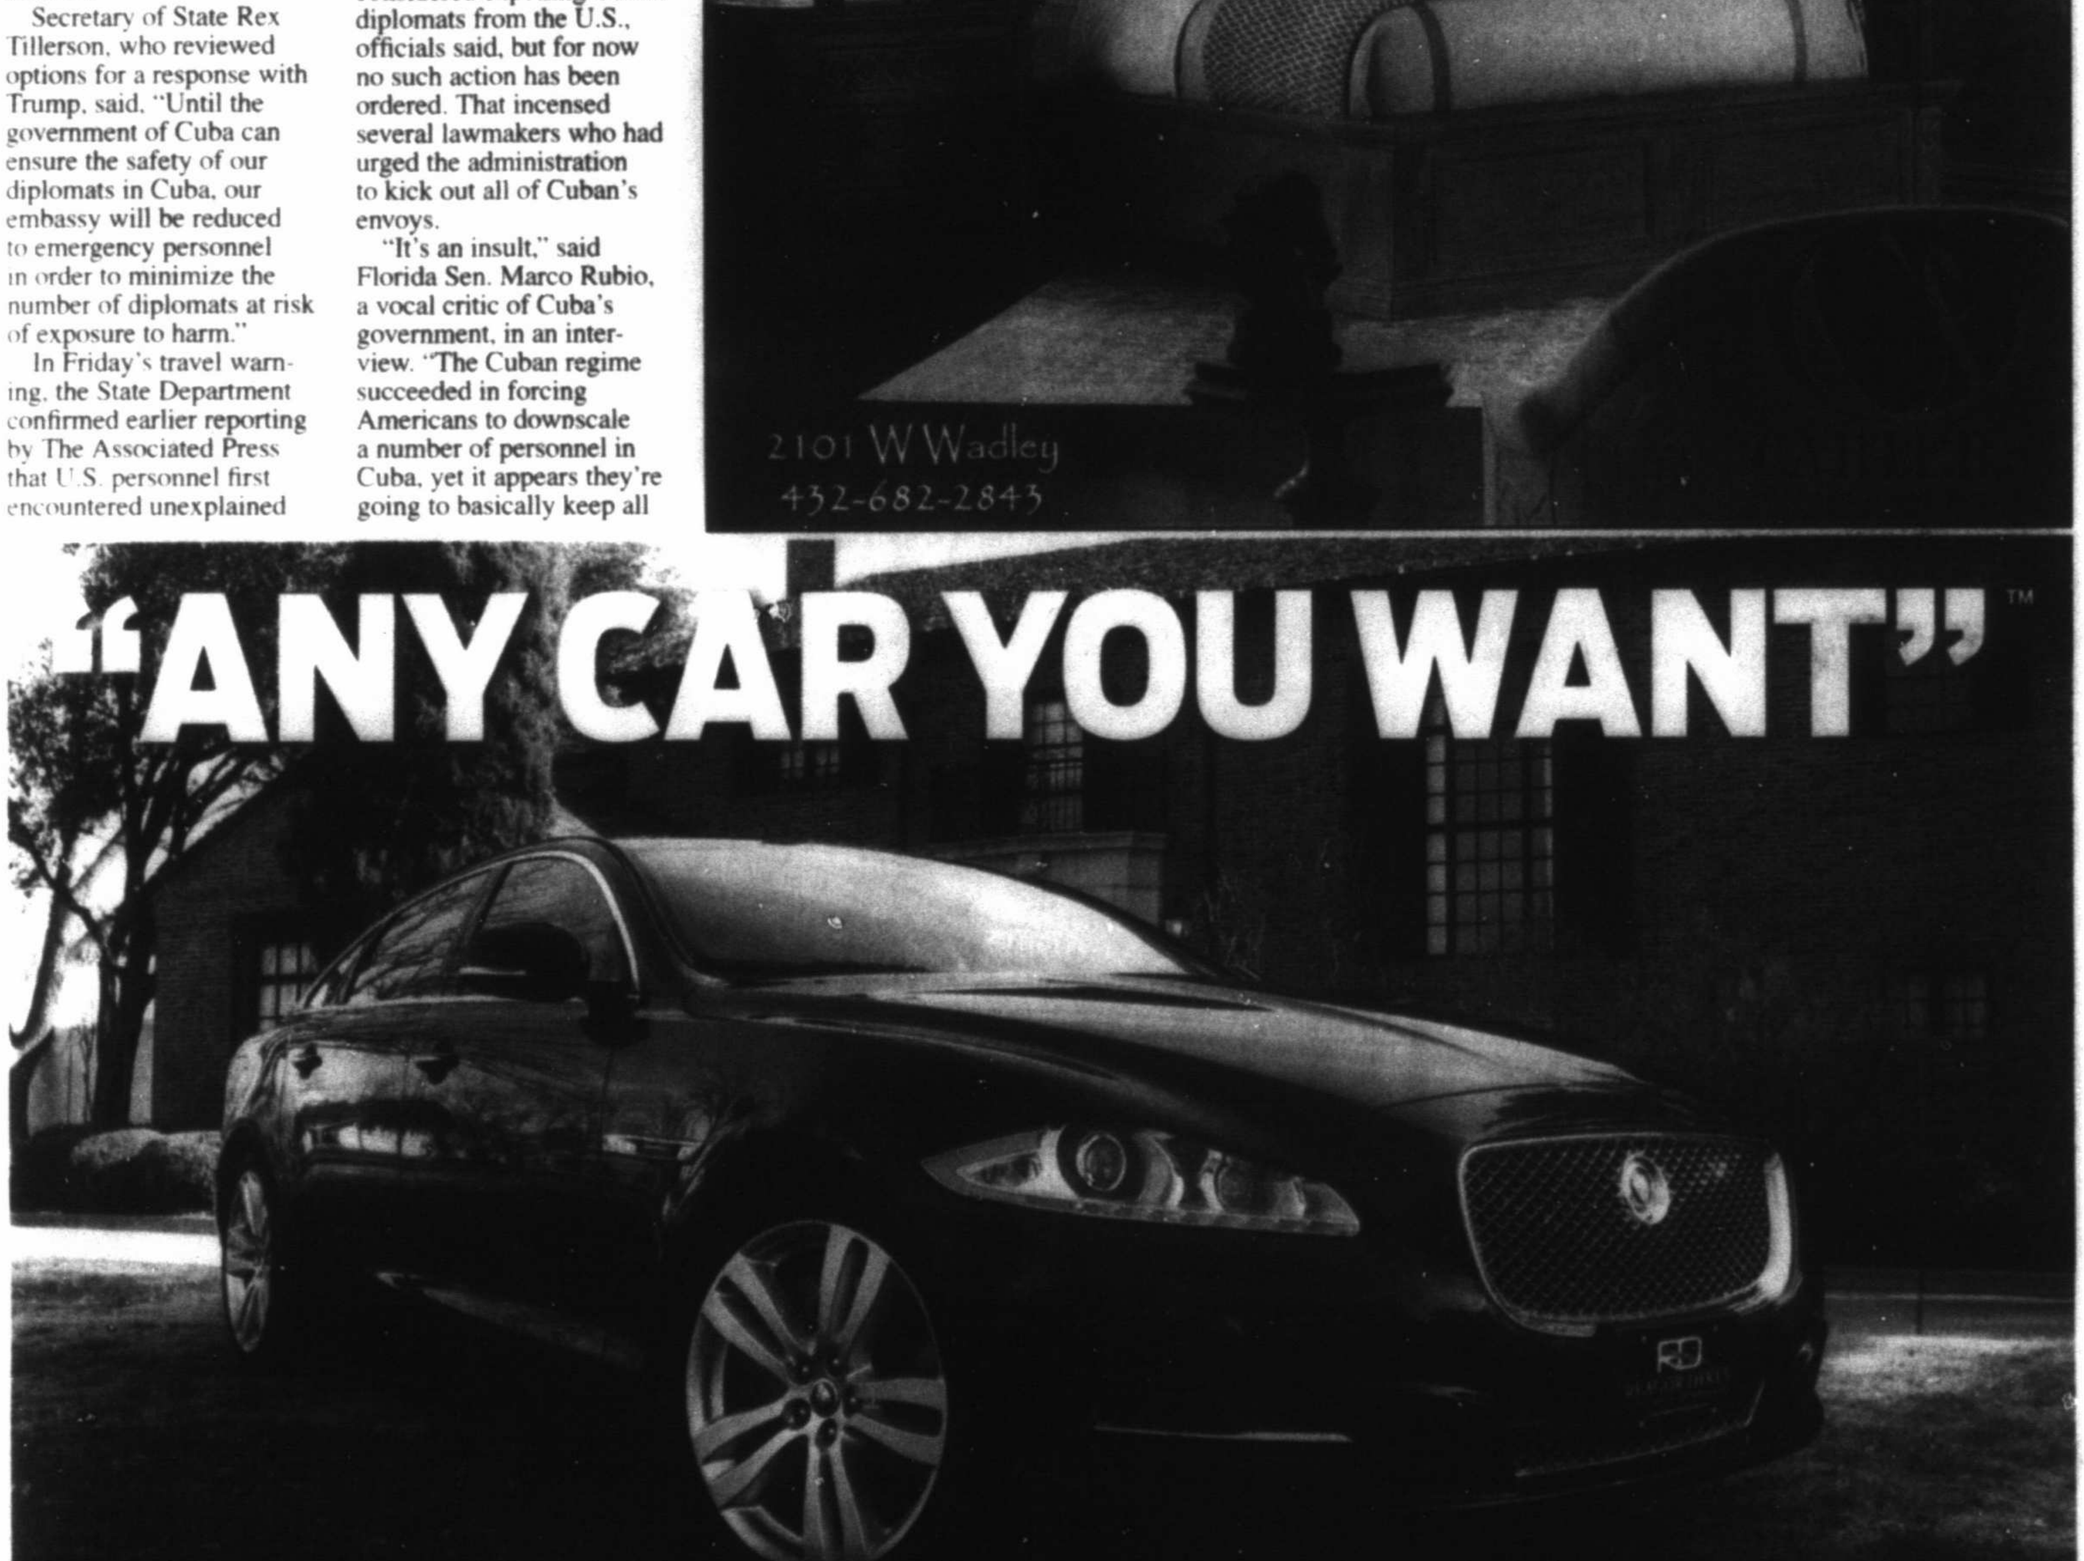

Cuba blasted the American move as "hasty" and lamented that it was being taken without conclusive investigation results. Still, Josefina Vidal, Cuba's top diplomat for U.S. affairs, said her government was willing to continue cooperation with Washington "to fully clarify these incidents." Her government took the rare step of the inviting the FBI to the island after being presented with the allegations earlier this year.

To medical investigators' dismay, symptoms have varied widely. In addition to hearing loss and concussions, some people have experienced nausea, headaches and ear-ringing. The Associated Press has reported some now suffer from problems with concentration and common word recall.

Some U.S. diplomats reported hearing loud noises or feeling vibrations when the incidents occurred, but others heard and felt nothing yet reported symptoms later. In some cases, the effects were narrowly confined, with victims able to walk "in" and "out" of blaring noises audible in only certain rooms or parts of rooms, the AP has reported

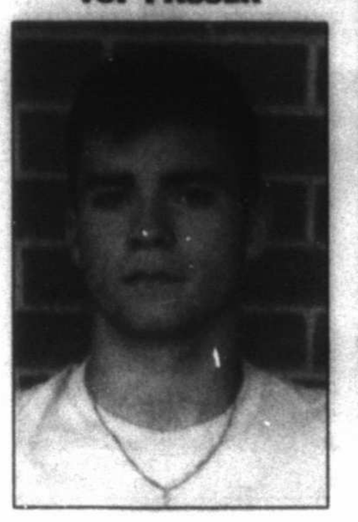

Though the incidents stopped for a time, they recurred as recently as late August.

LEE RUNS PAST MHS

Ground game key in Rebs' win

Lee and Midland High brought two potent rushing attacks into Friday's District 2-6A opener.

But it was the Rebels' ground game that dominated the spotlight in the crosstown rivalry at Grande Communications Stadium.

Quarterback Colby Standard and running back Josh Traylor spearheaded a Lee running game that racked up 422 yards and ran away with a convincing 49-14 win over the Bulldogs.

Standard led all rushers with 179 yards and two touchdowns on 13 carries, while Traylor contributed with 163 rushing yards and two TDs on 15 attempts.

Avery Akbar scored a pair of TDs on the ground as well, leading the Rebels (5-0, 1-0 in District 2-6A) to their first 5-0 start since the 1999 state title season.

"We were going to run the football," Lee head coach Clint Hartman said. "We were going to run it until they could stop it. If they got in our face, we were going to throw it. That was our philosophy. That's pretty much what we did."

The Rebels' most telling drive of their rushing dominance might have occurred in the second quarter while leading 21-7.

Lee needed only four plays to travel 97 yards and score on Standard's 11-yard keeper with 6:26 left in the first half. Standard quickly got the Rebels out of a bad position by rushing for 50 yards on the first play of the drive.

"We did not a good job of stopping the run tonight," MHS head coach Tim Anuszkiewicz said. "That's been kind of a mainstay for us, something we have been able to do. I have to go look at it (on film); you have to give Midland Lee credit. They have run the ball against everybody this year, and I'm guessing before we look at it that they probably gave us a pretty good whooping up there."

The Bulldogs (0-5, 0-1 in District 2-6A) are enduring their worst start since 1993.

MHS had three separate red zone drives against Lee that ended in zero points, two involving dropped passes in the end zone.

On the first drive of the game, the Bulldogs entered the red zone when punter Nic Gonzales rushed for a 43-yard gain on a fake punt.

Three plays later, MHS faked a 26-yard field goal, but Elijah Turner's pass was dropped in the end zone, and the Dawgs turned it over on downs.

The Rebels, starting on their 9-yard line, turned around to orchestrate a 10-play, 91-yard drive that culminated when Standard scored on a 3-yard quarterback keeper.

Lee never trailed from that point on.

"When something goes wrong, it tends to snowball on us, so we're not handling that adversity very good when something bad happens to us," Anuszkiewicz said. "That's something that has plagued us all season and we're going to continue to work on it."

Leading 28-7 at halftime, the Rebels rode the legs of Traylor after halftime, as he rushed for 119 second half yards and 2 TDs to extend his team's lead to 35 points.

Standard was efficient in the air, completing 11 of 15 passes for 126 yards.

Sheldon Bass Jr. was Standard's favorite target, catching nine passes for 97 yards.

Bulldogs junior Suddin Sapien completed 20 of 38 passes for 299 yards and two touchdown

Standard electrifies Lee in victory over rival MHS

By Will Korn
wkorn@mrt.com

Through four non-district games, the formidable backfield duo of junior Josh Traylor and senior Avery Akbar had been largely responsible for Lee's dominance running the football.

But in the District 2-6A opener against crosstown rival Midland High on Friday night at Grande Communications Stadium, it was senior quarterback Colby Standard who joined in and electrified the Bulldogs' defense above all else.

Standard carved up MHS for 179 yards and two touchdowns on just 13 carries, helping to direct his Rebels to a 49-14 thrashing of the Bulldogs. Lee (1-0 in District 2-6A) snapped a three-year losing streak against MHS (0-5, 0-1) improved to 5-0 overall for the first time since the program's second consecutive state title run in 1999.

Standard, who also plays catcher for the Lee varsity baseball team, efficiently doubled his season rushing total in the win. He now has 341 yards and three scores on the year to go along with 887

Greenwood starts district play with shutout

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Rangers	38
Panthers	0

Greenwood would have like to have had more first-half opportunities, but Fort Stockton kept the ball for what seemed like forever to start the game.

The Panthers ate up about seven and a half minutes off the clock, but they came up empty as the Rangers made a goal-line stand.

That proved to be the best opportunity the Panthers had in getting on the scoreboard as the Rangers' defense was stingy, while the Greenwood offense woke up in the second half with 31 points to roll to a 38-0 victory in the District 2-4A Division II opener at J.M. King Memorial Stadium.

"The first half, we couldn't get them off the field," said Greenwood coach Jared Sanderson about the first half, which saw the Rangers with only a 7-0 lead. "I think we only ran 18 plays offensively in the first half. Then in the second half, obviously we got on top early and we were able to get into the end zone and get a little energy."

That 18-play opening drive by the Panthers (2-3, 0-1) could have been a backbreaker for the Rangers (4-1, 1-0), but the defense rose to the occasion and set the momentum for the rest of the game.

"It was huge for us, just to not let them in right there," Sanderson said. "It says a lot about our kids. They were pretty tired; that was a long drive. I was proud of their character to not let them in the end zone."

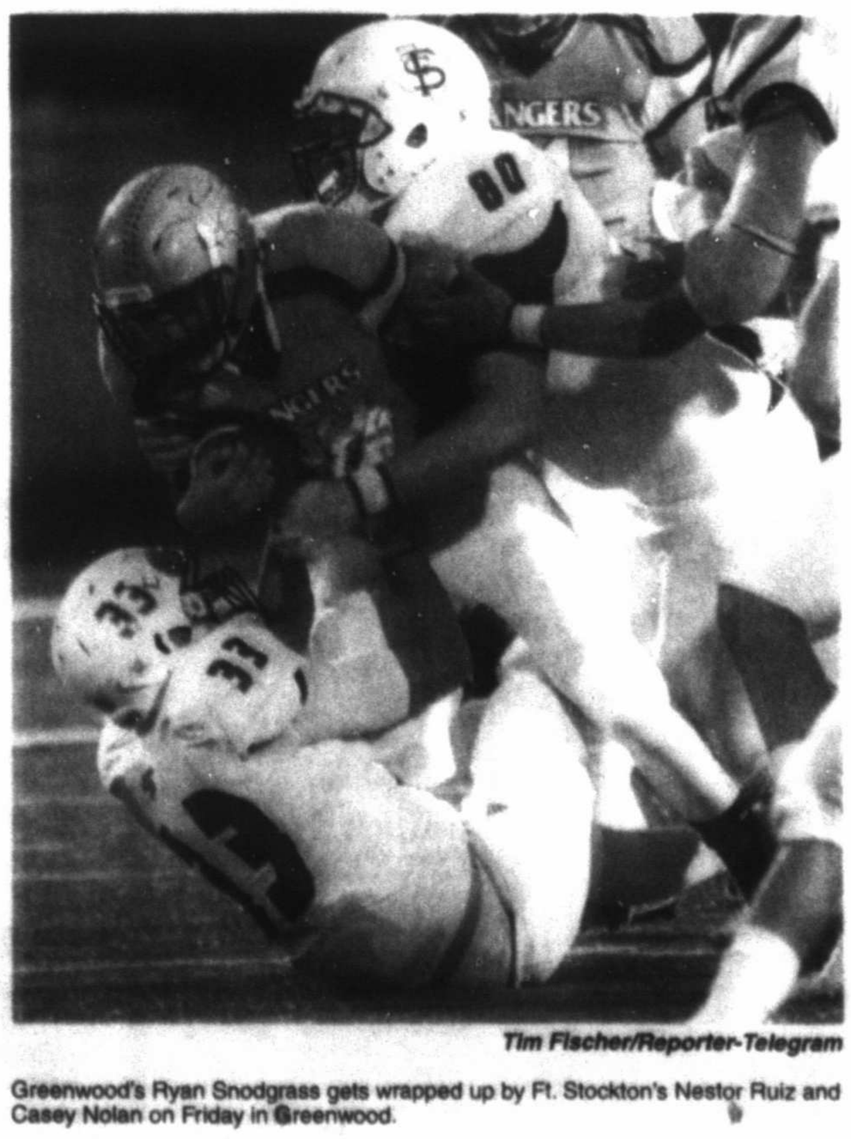

"We really needed that," said outside linebacker Ryan Snodgrass about the goal-line stand. "We've gotten a couple of stops like that in the past and we knew what we were up against, and we went out and did it."

Greenwood got off to a better start in the second half as Jake Somers scored his second touchdown of the game on a 44-yard run 1 minute, 3 seconds into the third quarter.

The Rangers then built a 28-7 lead behind a 14-yard TD run by Snodgrass and a 70-yard TD pass from Somers to Kobe Jameson.

"Our kids responded well," said Sanderson the second half surge. "The kids knew they had to go out and execute the game plan and they did a good job of that."

Lady Dawgs down Lady Rebs in 5

By Will Korn
wkorn@mrt.com

The Midland High volleyball team faced a much-improved Lee squad on Friday night and had its back against the wall after three sets.

But in the heat of the emotional crosstown rivalry, the Lady Bulldogs battled back ferociously to a fourth set win. Then, in a gritty duel in the fifth frame, senior middle hitter Gentry Foreman slammed down a pair of clinching kills to lift the Lady Bulldogs to a 23-25, 25-18, 21-25, 25-18, 15-13 victory over the Lady Rebels, Friday at the MHS gym.

Foreman, in her third year on MHS' varsity team, graciously included all of her teammates in the credit for the triumph.

"I like to think of volleyball as a team sport," Foreman said. "No one else really understands the dynamics of it and think it's all about the winning kill. But I had a perfect set to follow it up and our defense worked our butts off in that game. I was so proud of our defense. Lee, this is their best year in a long time, and they are playing awesome."

Hayley Branco led all players with 15 kills for MHS, which improved to 24-12 overall, 6-0 in District 2-6A and remained in first place. Merrick Beach and Foreman each added 12 kills for the Lady Bulldogs, while Emily Hillman and Quinci Strambler totaled 13 and 11 kills, respectively, for now second-place Lee (23-13, 4-1).

With the win, MHS improved to 11-2 against the Lady Rebels since the start of the 2012 season.

Lee head coach Robert Blakley, who was coaching in his first Lee-MHS match, said he was proud of his players' effort and was thrilled with the overall experience of the rivalry despite the night's result.

"(It was a) wonderful experience (Friday), and Midland High played well, and we played really tough," Blakley said. "It was a painful loss because we worked incredibly hard to put ourselves in position to win the game. We'll see what happens in round two."

The Lady Rebels took a 1-0 set lead thanks in large part to a key 7-0 run that established a 16-10 advantage. MHS eventually rallied to tie the set at 23-23, but Lee scored the final two points to clinch.

MHS responded with in the second frame with what has become somewhat of a trademark in recent weeks. Leading 20-17, MHS reeled off late a 5-0 run tie the match.

After Lee won the third set, MHS returned to its clutch tendencies and fired off a 12-3 run to catapult to a 21-10 lead in the fourth set. The Lady Bulldogs then weathered an inspired rally by Lee to tie the match once again.

MHS head coach Amanda Lopez continued to encourage and push her players during timeouts. She said she knew her team would be in a battle with its rival right to the end.

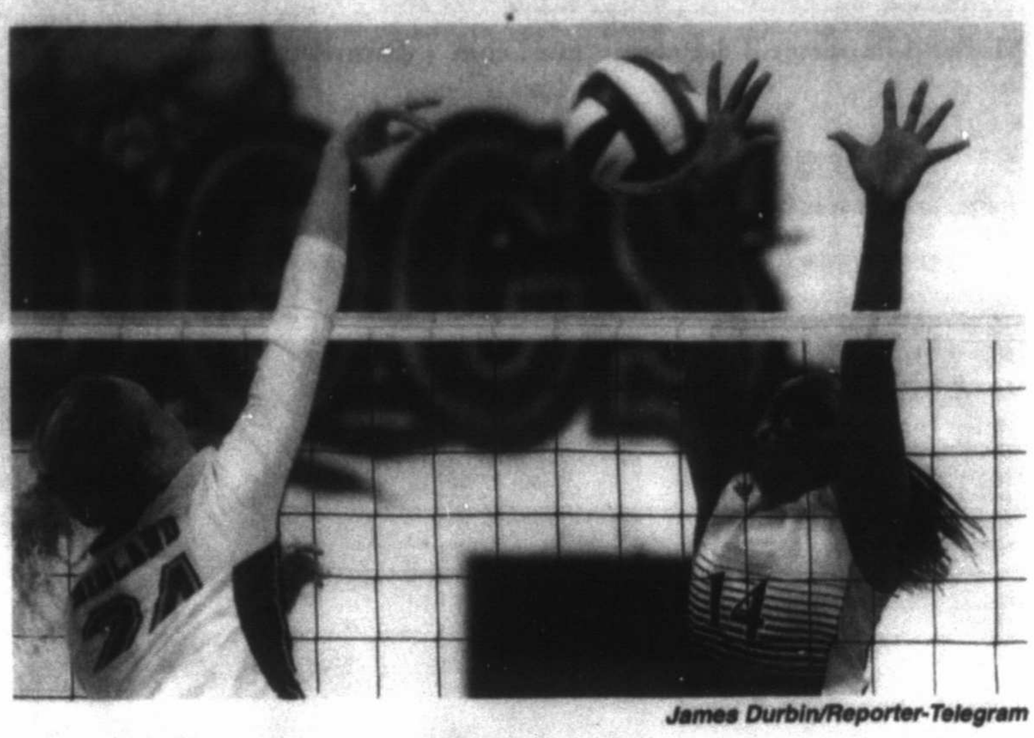

"(We talked about playing with) mental toughness, a lot of heart, supporting your teammates in tough moments and making big plays when it counts," Lopez said. "During every timeout, that's what we talked about. Shake it off, move on to the next ball, control what we do.

"Lee is a great team, and they made us work super hard. I told the girls 'Be prepared to play two and a half hours.' I knew neither team wanted to give up and both teams wanted this game so badly."

Added Foreman, whose team rallied from a 4-0 deficit in the fifth set en route to the win: "The game is never over until it's over. You never let up. You always finish up 100 percent."

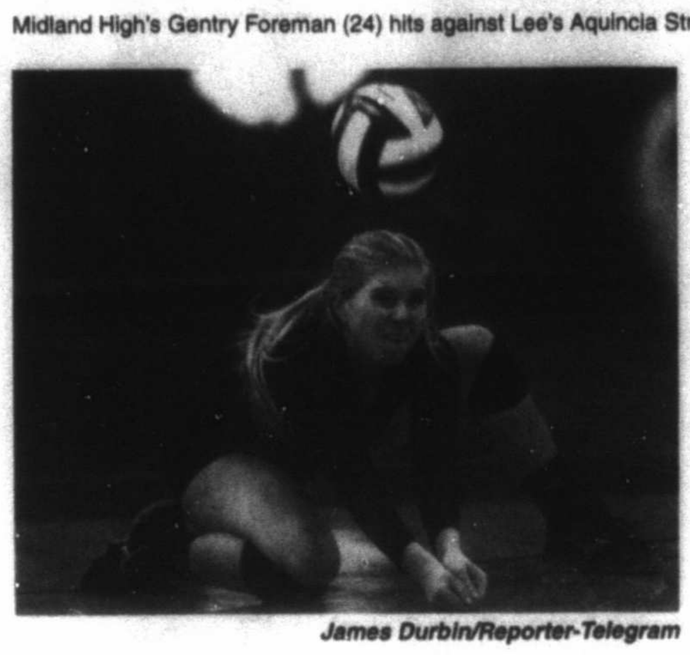

McKenzie Gibson and Elizabeth Kuhn each supplied nine kills for Lee. Beach contributed a match-high six blocks for MHS.

Sparks beat Lynx, move within a win of title

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Nneka Ogwumike and Odyssey Sims each scored 16 points to help the Los Angeles Sparks beat the Minnesota Lynx 75-64 in Game 3 of the WNBA Finals on Friday night.

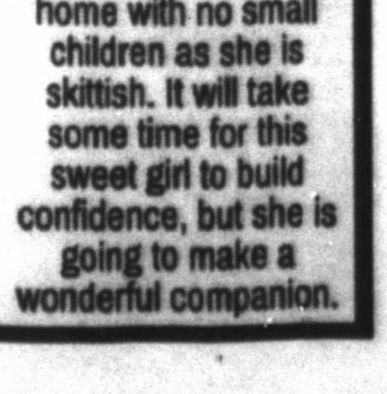

The Sparks have taken a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five game series and with one more win can become the first team since 2002 to win the championship in back-to-back years. Los Angeles won back-to-back titles in 2001 and 2002.

For the Lynx, Maya Moore scored 16 points, all of which came in the second half. She picked up her third foul in the second quarter and fouled out with 37 seconds left.

RANGERS

From 1B

Added Snodgrass, who finished with 155 yards rushing and two TDs: "In the first half, we weren't excited, and we needed to get excited about it. In the second half, we really turned it on."

The rest was left up to the defense, which produced three interceptions and held the Panthers to just 185 total yards.

It also didn't help Fort Stockton that starting quarterback Nick Johnson was shaken up in the third quarter and had to leave the game.

"They did a great job," Sanderson said about his defense. "Our defense runs to the ball really well. In the second half we were able to make some adjustments and we were able to contain (Fort Stockton's top running backs) a little better."

Somers finished the game with 157 yards passing, 96 yards rushing and accounted for three touchdowns.

The Rangers now get ready to head to Seminole next Friday for a battle of district unbeaten teams. Seminole is coming off a 30-13 victory at Monahans.

"It's huge for us to get off to a 1-0 start in district," Sanderson said. "We talked about being 1-0 every week, like everybody else so this was win was huge, especially to start district."

STANDARD

yards passing and seven touchdowns.

It was a performance Standard said he'll never forget.

But true to the selfless form that earned him a unanimous selection as a team captain, his team comes first and speaking with respect and class is a given.

"I was really just taking what the defense was giving us," said Standard, in his first season as a starting varsity signal caller. "I think they were trying to shut down Josh and Avery because they've been explosive all year. We took advantage of that by pulling the ball (on zone reads) and (the MHS defense) didn't make an adjustment until the second half."

Added Standard: "(Beating MHS) is special to all of us. It's just a testament to how much work we've put in and it's a special night we'll never forget. We're thankful that nobody got hurt on either team and that we came out on top."

Standard has earned a reputation as a tough runner who is not afraid of physical punishment in the open field. But Lee head coach Clint Hartman was quick to point out how explosive his quarterback can actually be.

To highlight Friday's showing, Standard dashed for runs of 50 and 33 yards, both of which set up Rebel touchdowns.

"I'm going to tell you something: He's a 6-foot-1 quarterback who runs a 4.5 (40-yard dash)," Hartman said. "I don't know how much more explosive he can be, other than maybe he can't outrun Josh. Having a quarterback that can run a 4.5, that's an explosive kid and he's going to make you hurt. We're proud of him. We feel like when he's back there with two running backs, you've got three running backs.

James Durbin/Reporter-Telegram

Lee's Colby Standard (10) runs past Midland High's Angel Nabarrette (26) on Friday at Grande Communications Stadium.

"Colby Standard did a great job. I'm going to give him credit: He's a tough kid, we knew he's a good leader on his team. We wanted to pinpoint who we were going to defend and Colby did a great job."

Tim Anuszkiewicz, Midland High coach

On the opposite sideline Friday night stood MHS head coach Tim Anuszkiewicz, who watched and praised Standard's awareness and presence all evening long.

"Colby Standard did a great job," Anuszkiewicz said. "I'm going to give him credit: He's a tough kid, we knew he's a good leader on his team. We wanted to pinpoint who we were going to defend and Colby did a great job."

As a team, Lee rushed for a season-high 422 yards against the Bulldogs. Standard said he'd like to believe his team has even turned another corner, as defenses have will now have to key in more on in his own contributions to the running game.

"I think it's going to be good for us as a team because things are balanced out now," Standard said. "I think it'll open up more holes for Josh and Avery. Our offensive line — some of the holes I was running through, yeah, you can drive cars through those holes."

RANGERS 5 ATHLETICS 3

ARLINGTON — Shin-Soo Choo tied a career high with his 22nd home run and the Texas Rangers beat the Oakland Athletics 5-3 on Friday night.

Martin Perez (13-12) allowed three runs and five hits as Texas ended a seven-game skid. The 13 wins are a career high for Perez and the loss guaranteed Oakland would finish last in the AL West.

A's catcher Bruce Maxwell took a knee during the national anthem and was booed by a portion of the crowd before and after the song. It was the first time Maxwell has taken a knee on the field in an opposing ballpark. He took a knee during the anthem on Thursday, but he was warming up starting pitcher Sean Manaea in the bullpen and out of view from television cameras and fans.

ASTROS 3 RED SOX 2

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox once again failed to clinch the AL East title as Alex Bregman homered and drove in three runs, giving the Houston Astros a 3-2 victory Friday night.

The Red Sox magic number remained at one to close out the New York Yankees. Boston leads the Yankees by two games — both teams have two games left and already are assured playoff spots.

If Boston and New York wind up even, they will play a one-game tiebreaker Monday at Yankee Stadium for the division crown, with the loser getting a wild-card spot.

The Red Sox dropped their second in a row and fell to 1-4 on their homestand. The AL West champion Astros won their fifth straight game and posted their 100th victory of the season.

YANKEES 4 BLUE JAYS 0

NEW YORK — Masahiro Tanaka struck out 15 over seven innings, his highest total since coming to the major leagues, and the playoff-bound New York Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 4-0 Friday to remain on the edge of contention in the AL East.

Already assured no worse than hosting a wild-card game against Minnesota, New York began the day three games behind AL East-leading Boston with three games left. The Yankees could take the division only by beating the Blue Jays both Saturday and Sunday, having Boston lose three in a row to Houston and then defeating the Red Sox in a tiebreaker game Monday at Yankee Stadium.

INDIANS 10 WHITE SOX 1

CLEVELAND — Edwin Encarnacion had a three-run double, and Jay Bruce and Jose Ramirez drove in two runs apiece, leading the AL Central champion Indians to a 10-1 win over the Chicago White Sox on Friday night.

Cleveland maintained its one-game lead — and owns the tiebreaker — over Houston for the best record in the AL with two games remaining. The top seed will play the winner of the wild-card game between the Yankees and Twins in the Division Series.

The Indians' 101 victories are the second most in franchise history and set a record for wins by an AL Central team.

RAYS 7 ORIOLES 0

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Evan Longoria and Logan Morrison homered Friday night and the Tampa Bay Rays clinched third place in the AL East with a 7-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Longoria led off the fifth with his 20th homer off Baltimore starter Wade Miley, marking Longoria's fifth straight 20-homer season and the ninth of his 10-year career.

Morrison hit his 38th homer off reliever Chris Tillman in the seventh.

Rays starter Jake Odorizzi left his final start of the season after four innings with a sore right knee.

National League

CUBS 5 REDS 4

CHICAGO — Ian Happ hit a three-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning, and the Chicago Cubs won for the 14th time in 17 games, beating the Cincinnati Reds 5-4 on Friday.

With a second straight NL Central title in hand and their sights set on another World Series championship, the Cubs held sluggers Anthony Rizzo and Kris Bryant out of the lineup. They also watched as Jose Quintana got knocked out in a four-run fifth. But they still found a way to pull it out.

Trailing 4-2 in the eighth, Tommy La Stella started the rally with a one-out single against Amir Garrett. Taylor Davis then singled to third off Michael Lorenzen (8-4). After Kyle Schwarber struck out, Happ drove his 24th homer to left.

PHILLIES 6 METS 2

PHILADELPHIA — Maikel Franco, Jorge Alfaro and Cesar Hernandez all homered to support six strong innings from starter Ben Lively as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the New York Mets 6-2 on Friday night.

Earlier in the day, the Phillies (65-95) announced that manager Pete Mackanin would not return to the dugout in 2018. Mackanin was given a role as a senior advisor to general manager Matt Klentak.

Franco, who has been the subject of criticism for most of the season due to a .230 batting average and .282 on-base percentage coming into Friday, connected on a two-run homer off Mets starting pitcher Matt Harvey (5-7) in the second inning to give Philadelphia a lead they would never relinquish.

NATIONALS 6 PIRATES 1

WASHINGTON — Stephen Strasburg pitched 7 2/3 shutout innings and Ryan Zimmerman homered twice to help the Washington Nationals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 on Friday night.

Strasburg gave up two hits and two walks while striking out eight. He's 5-1 with a 0.84 ERA since returning from the disabled list on Aug. 19. Strasburg (15-4) retired the first 14 batters before Gregory Polanco's hard smash bounced off a diving Zimmerman at first base for the Pirates' first hit.

MARLINS 6 BRAVES 5

MIAMI — Giancarlo Stanton went 2 for 4 with a single and a double and the Miami slugger remained at 59 home runs as the Atlanta Braves beat the Marlins 6-5 on Friday night.

Marcell Ozuna drove in three runs to lead Miami, which rallied from a 5-0 deficit and took the lead with a four-run seventh. Justin Bour's two-run single gave the Marlins a 6-5 lead. The Marlins also got run-scoring singles from Ozuna and Stanton off Braves reliever Dan Winkler (0-1).

BREWERS 5 CARDINALS 3

ST. LOUIS — Stephen Vogt homered and drove in three runs, Chase Anderson allowed one run over seven innings, and the Milwaukee Brewers kept their playoff hopes alive with a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals on Friday.

The Brewers entered Friday two games behind the Colorado Rockies for the second Wild Card spot in the National League. Milwaukee has won four of its last six games.

ROYALS 2 DIAMONDBACKS 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ian Kennedy picked up his first home victory in more than a year as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Arizona Diamondbacks 2-1 on Friday night.

Kennedy (5-13) snapped a franchise record of 18 winless home starts, holding the post-season bound Diamondbacks to one run and four hits over five innings, while striking out seven. It was his first Kauffman Stadium victory since Aug. 20, 2016. He was 0-9 with a 6.13 ERA in the skid.

Martin Truex wins pole at Dover for 3rd NASCAR playoff race

By Dan Gelston

Truex

DOVER, Del. — Martin Truex Jr. has tried to enjoy his career year as much as he can. The veteran driver says he never knows when the run might end.

He kept on rolling at Dover.

Truex will try to win his sixth race of the season from the pole at Dover International Speedway in NASCAR's third playoff race. Truex has been the driver to beat all season and he proved it again Friday, when he turned a lap of 160.664 mph to win his second pole of the season.

Truex had clinched a berth in the second round of the playoffs when he won at Chicagoland Speedway. He had the dominant car last week at New Hampshire Motor Speedway until he was caught up in a wreck and finished fifth.

Truex has nine wins in the No. 77 Toyota at Furniture Row Racing over the last two years after winning just three times in his first 10 years. Oh, and Truex won this race last year.

"It takes so many things to come together to be in a position that I've been the last few years, really," he said. "I'm very thankful. I'm definitely enjoying it. At the same time, there's that chance of a championship out there. You can't lose focus and say, this is going great, we're going to show up to the track and everything's going to be fine. You still have to work hard."

Truex ended Kyle Busch's bid at three straight poles. Busch started first in the first two playoff races and will start second on Sunday for the all-Toyota front row. He advanced to the second round when he won at New Hampshire.

"I'm glad for once we're first and he's not," Truex said. "I've been second to him a lot, so it's cool for us to get a pole."

Playoff drivers Kyle Larson and Matt Kenseth start third and fourth. Seven-time NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson starts his run at his 12th Dover victory back in 17th.

"I know when it comes to race time, we will be fine here," Johnson said.

Dover marks the first cutoff race and the playoff field will be sliced from 16 drivers to 12. Austin Dillon, Ryan Newman, Kurt Busch and Kasey Kahne are the bottom four drivers in the playoff standings. Dillon starts 23rd, Newman is eighth, Busch, the Daytona 500 champion, starts 13th and Kahne is 21st.

"It's going to be a race within the race," Dillon said. "You've got to be smart throughout and make sure you're there at the end and put yourself in good positions. I'm looking forward to the challenge."

Other playoff drivers and starting spots are: Denny Hamlin starts sixth, Kevin Harvick ninth, Ryan Blaney 11th, Chase Elliott 12th, Ricky Stenhouse Jr. 15th, Brad Keselowski 16th, and Jamie McMurray is 26th.

Larson and Keselowski also earned automatic spots in the second round on points.

Stenhouse holds the final transfer spot to the second round and McMurray is 11th.

"You are going to be dependent on the team to kind of fill you in like if you have to have another position or if someone is pressuring you that you can maybe give up that position and not get wrecked," McMurray said.

Louisville names Padgett as Pitino's interim replacement

By Gary B. Graves
Associated Press

Padgett

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Louisville has named assistant David Padgett as the interim replacement for men's basketball coach Rick Pitino, staying in-house to maintain continuity in the wake of a nationwide federal investigation of the sport.

"It's not going to be easy," Padgett said at a news conference on campus Friday. "It's a very tumultuous time."

University interim President Greg Postel made the announcement, two days after Pitino was placed on unpaid administrative leave after the school acknowledged its involvement in the federal investigation. Louisville athletic director Tom Jurich was placed on paid administrative leave.

Ten people have been arrested in the corruption case, including four college assistant coaches and an Adidas executive. Cardinals 6-foot-7 freshman Brian Bowen was not named in federal documents, but details in the criminal complaint make it clear investigators were referring to Bowen. Postel also did not single out Postel, but said Wednesday that one student-athlete has been informed he will not practice or play for the university until the investigation is resolved.

Padgett said that Bowen is still enrolled at Louisville. When Padgett was asked how he could not know what was going on, he declined to comment but said he is taking the interim position for "the team." After Postel introduced Padgett, the interim president did not take any questions.

"I'm not looking past the next six, eight months," Padgett said.

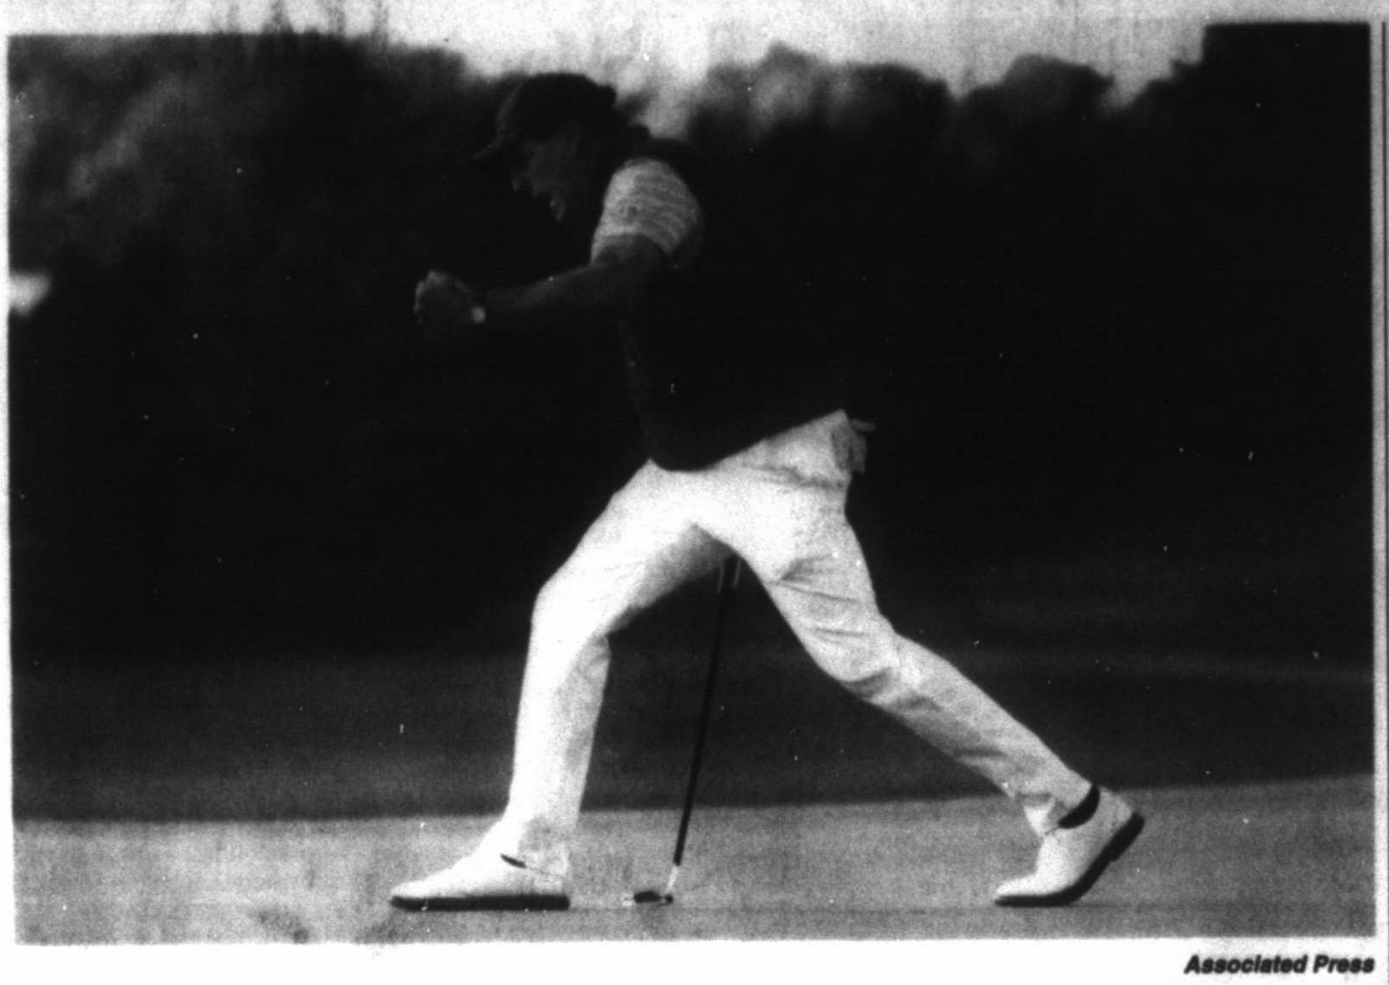

Padgett, 32, is coming off his first season as an assistant following two as Louisville's director of basketball operations. A three-year starting forward with the Cardinals under Pitino, he has worked extensively with frontcourt players.

"My focus right now is on these kids," said Padgett, who added that he last talked with Pitino on Wednesday. "They're here to play basketball."

Team captains are scheduled to speak with the media later Friday night.

The 6-foot-11 Padgett has also been Louisville's strength coach (2010-11) in a career including three years as an IUPUI assistant.

"This is Louisville, it is a top five program, and I'm trying to keep its reputation intact as much as possible."

Phil Mickelson reacts after making his putt on the 18th hole during the four-ball golf matches on the second day of the Presidents Cup at Liberty National Golf Club in Jersey City, N.J., on Friday.

Americans handily lead Presidents Cup

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Phil Mickelson rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to cap off another big day for the Americans and set a record for the largest lead after two sessions in Presidents Cup history.

Another day like this, and that's what the International team will be — history.

Mickelson and Kisner never led against Jason Day and Marc Leishman until the par-3 18th hole Friday at Liberty National. Mickelson poured in his birdie putt, and Leishman missed his from about the same range.

About the only thing that went wrong was the celebration. Mickelson, who on Thursday cropped himself out of a selfie with the last three U.S. presidents, missed a move in the "Three Amigos" dance with Kisner.

"I'm clearly the worst selfie taker. I'm the worst 'Three Amigos' dancer. But I can putt," Mickelson said.

Mickelson, who has played in all 12 Presidents Cups, has 24 match victories to tie the record set by Tiger Woods in eight appearances. Woods was looking on in his role as an assistant to U.S. captain Steve Stricker.

Hideki Matsuyama and Adam Hadwin were 2 up with four holes to play against Jordan Spieth and Patrick Reed and had to settle for a halve. Even that felt like a small victory for the International team because Spieth had birdie putts on the final two holes that narrowly missed.

Justin Thomas, already with a big year behind him as a major champion and the FedEx Cup champion, teamed with Rickie Fowler for another easy victory. They have trailed only one hole in their two matches, and they became the first partnership to beat Louis Oosthuizen and Branden Grace.

Perfect pair: Wade, LeBron 'like peanut butter and jelly'

By Tom Withers
Associated Press

INDEPENDENCE, Ohio — They have an unmatched chemistry on the floor, a connection that has led to NBA championships, Olympic gold, worldwide fame and strengthened an unbreakable bond.

LeBron James and Dwyane Wade aren't just friends.

More like family — basketball brothers.

"It's like peanut butter and jelly, man, we just go together," Wade said.

Reunited with the Cavaliers after their four-year run with the Miami Heat ended with an abrupt split after two titles, Wade and James are again teammates, a fact that neither of them can believe.

"Every time we walk by each other in the locker room and everywhere, we just look at each other and shake our head because it just don't seem real," Wade said Friday. "It's like, 'How did this happen? How did we get here?' We just start laughing every time we walk by each other.

"It wasn't planned, it wasn't expected, but when it happened it happened and everything happened fast. It's definitely cool. It's definitely good to have a friend here, somebody that you respect here, that's playing the game here."

Here. Cleveland.

Surreal.

Wade, who signed a one-year, $2.3 million contract Wednesday with the Cavs, was introduced by the team on Friday following a practice. The workout didn't include James, who rolled his left ankle during Wade's first workout with the team and is being listed as day to day with the injury.

Wade posed for photos

holding his new No. 9 Cavs jersey, and the 35-year-old said he already feels at home in a place that has usually been welcoming, even when James famously bolted from Cleveland as a free agent in 2010 to join he and Chris Bosh in South Florida.

When he arrived earlier this week, Wade found himself in familiar company: James, Cavs assistant coaches and former teammates James Posey and Damon Jones, and players he's battled with over the years like Derrick Rose, Kyle Korver and Richard Jefferson.

From the outset, it just felt right.

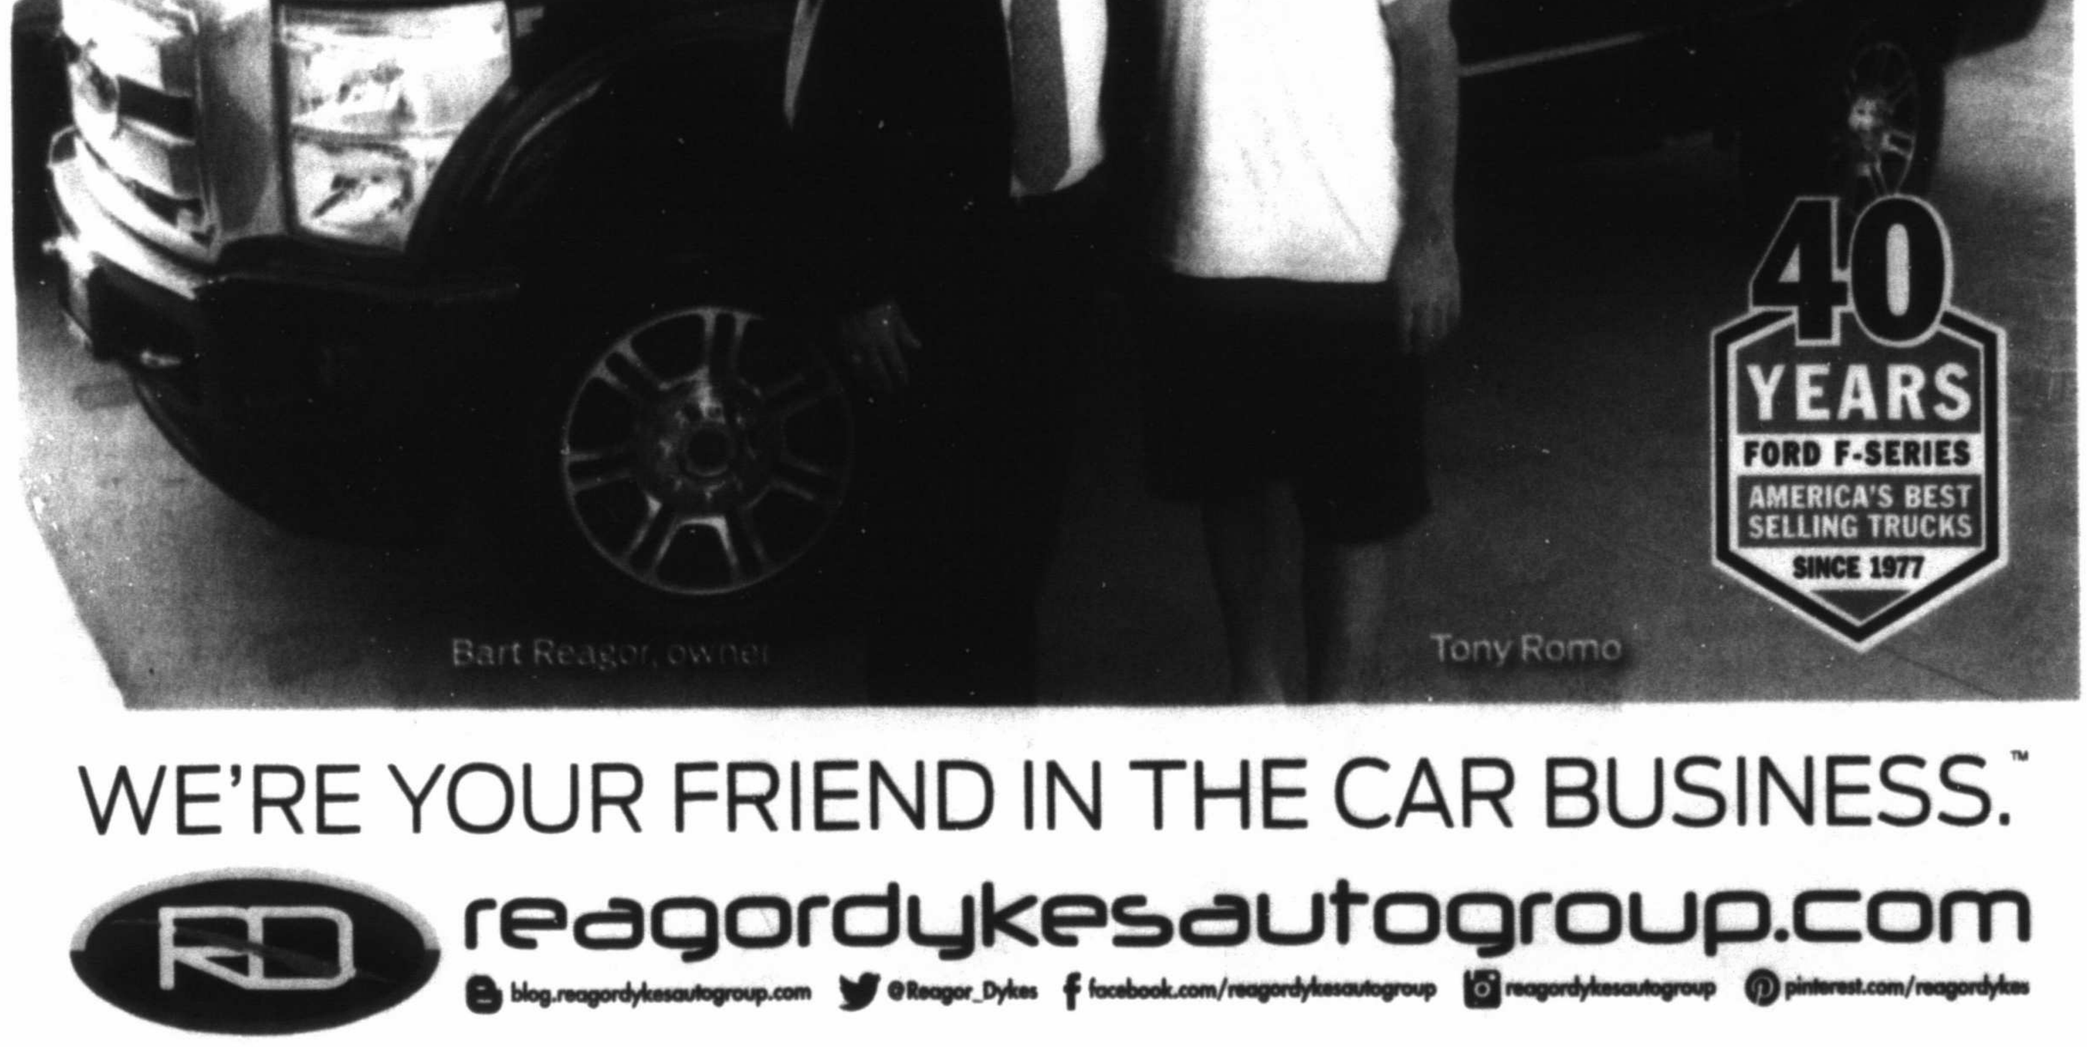

"I've been around Bron, I've been around this organization for a while from afar, so I knew everybody," Wade said. "I knew the coaches. It was seamless. I was telling my family. It was just like, just get me a jersey and I just got out there and it felt normal. It felt seamless. That made me at ease."

The three-time champion and 12-time All-Star smiled often and joked some during his first formal get-together with Cleveland's media, swollen beyond the normal number.

Wade made it clear that his decision to come to Cleveland — spurning offers by Miami, Oklahoma City and others — wasn't solely to play again with James. Obviously, that was a major factor, but Wade said he was mostly driven by an internal desire to get back in the meaningful game where he has always thrived — on the biggest stage, where careers are defined.

Cowboys face challenge in Lubbock

Texas Tech quarterback Nic Shimonek (16) lets a pass go in the Tech opener against Eastern Washington on Sept. 2 at Jones AT&T Stadium. Tech faces Oklahoma State tonight in its Big 12 opener.

Oklahoma State looking to rebound at Texas Tech

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — Oklahoma State went into the season considered one of the favorites to get into the revived Big 12 championship game, with the chance maybe for some extra bedlam against its Sooner State rival that has won the last two conference titles.

Although that is still possible after the 15th-ranked Cowboys (3-1, 0-1 Big 12) dropped their league opener at home to TCU, they first have to try to get out of September without their first 0-2 conference mark since 2005.

And they face quite a challenge tonight at rising Texas Tech (3-0), which is playing its Big 12 opener.

"It's all about the next game. It's hard to win two to three (games) down the line if you don't win the one on Saturday," Oklahoma State coach Mike Gundy said. "We're playing a team that's 3-0, and is playing with a lot of confidence now, on the road at night. It will take everything we have to play well enough to play this Saturday, so I think that helps them focus."

Texas Tech and Oklahoma State have the league's top two passing offenses. Both have senior quarterbacks — one a potential Heisman Trophy front-runner and the other a first-time-starter — and big-play receivers. The Red Raiders (587 total yards per game) and Cowboys (580 ypg) rank 3-4 nationally in total offense, behind Big 12 foes Oklahoma and West Virginia.

Nic Shimonek, Tech's fifth-year senior and first-time starter, has 11 touchdown passes with one interception while leading the Big 12 with 416 yards passing per game.

Oklahoma State's Mason Rudolph, who is going into his 33rd start, throws for 383 yards per game with 13 touchdowns and three picks. Rudolph has 35 touchdowns and five interceptions in his past 13 games.

Red Raiders receiver Keke Coutee is the Big 12 leader with 9.3 catches and 149 yards receiving per game.

James Washington has 4.8 catches per game for Oklahoma State, but averages a league-high 27.4 yards per catch to rank second behind Coutee with 130 yards per game.

"Washington's as good as anybody in the country," Red Raiders coach Kliff Kingsbury said.

A few other things about tonight's prime-time game that is sold out:

Tech's next game too

This is a big chance to for the Red Raiders to make an early statement in the Big 12, especially coming off a losing record last season. They can improve to 4-0 for the first time since 2013, which was Kingsbury's first season as coach. Like Gundy, Kingsbury is trying to keep the focus on this game.

"We'll do our best to play hard and put on a good show," Kingsbury said. "It should be an incredible atmosphere. We're treating it like our next game. It's not a Super Bowl or anything of that nature, but anytime you get to play out there at night in front of our fans, it's a special occasion."

Improved Raiders

Although Texas Tech has typically always been good on offense, the Red Raiders appear to be progressing on the other side of the ball in their third season under defensive coordinator David Gibbs.

The Red Raiders forced five turnovers in a win at Houston last week, giving them nine for the season.

"They're tackling better. They're running to the ball, and it looks like they understand their schemes and whatever Gibbs is trying to get accomplished," Gundy said. "Just looking at those three games, they're playing much better than they did from last year, from an outsider looking in."

Tightening series

Oklahoma State has won the last eight games against the Red Raiders, though Texas Tech still holds a 21-20-3 lead in the series that dates to 1935. The Cowboys held on for a 45-44 win at home last season when the Red Raiders missed an extra point after scoring a touchdown with 1:37 to play.

Quick starts

Oklahoma State has outscored its opponents 66-6 in the first quarter of games. The Cowboys outscored its three non-conference opponents 59-0 in the first quarter, and led TCU 7-6 after 15 minutes last week before losing 44-31.

MCS grad Wilson brings attitude to Okla. St.

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Ever since his days at Midland Christian, Johnny Wilson has had a mean streak.

For an offensive lineman who spends his nights pushing around defenders, that's a good thing.

That mean streak and toughness helped Wilson become a highly decorated lineman during his four years with the Mustangs. That also helped him anchor a line that was critical in helping MCS win three straight TAPPS Division II titles. And that mean streak helped him get recruited to Oklahoma State.

And at the college level, coaches love players who are tough and mean in the trenches.

That is why Wilson, a 6-foot-3, 310-pound redshirt sophomore, will be making his second start at right guard for the No. 15-ranked Cowboys when OSU (3-1) visits Texas Tech (3-0) at 7 p.m. today at Lubbock's Jones AT&T Stadium. The game will be nationally televised on Fox.

"I've always had a mean streak and an aggressive attitude in football," Wilson said in a phone interview earlier this week. "I've had coaches who have taken that attitude and have developed me more as a player, provided me with a bunch of skill sets and that has really helped me out."

Wilson has had to go through two offensive line coaches since he got to Stillwater in 2015 but he credits current line coach Josh Henson in helping his development further this season.

Wilson started his college career as a center was listed as the top back up in that position to start the season.

Bruce Waterfield/OSU Athletics

Johnny Wilson during the Oklahoma St. vs. TCU game Sept. 23 at Boone Pickens Stadium in Stillwater, Okla.

But because of injuries, Wilson was switched to guard.

Then when starting right guard Larry Williams suffered a broken leg, Wilson made his first start in last week's 44-31 loss to TCU.

"I did as well as could for my first start," Wilson said. "I had to prepare mentally and have the right mindset to start. I also knew that I had to apply the skills that have been shown to me to play that position."

Wilson admits that there were no jitters for his first start.

A&M's Mond looks to take step forward against Gamecocks

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Kellen Mond has made plenty of progress since he made his debut midway through Texas A&M's season opener.

The true freshman quarterback will need to continue his rapid development if he and the Aggies (3-1, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) hope to beat South Carolina (3-1, 1-1) today before hosting top-ranked Alabama on Oct. 7.

"He's got a lot of talent," coach Kevin Sumlin said. "I think it's a combination of a couple of things. He's getting more comfortable and we're getting more comfortable with him and knowing what he can do."

Mond couldn't help the Aggies to the win after taking over when Nick Starkel was injured in their opener against UCLA as Texas A&M squandered a 34-point third quarter lead in the 45-44 loss. But he's gotten better each week as the Aggies have won three in a row heading into today's game.

He threw for 216 yards and two touchdowns and ran for 109 yards in Texas A&M's 50-43 overtime win against Arkansas on Sept. 23.

"He was tossed into the fire," running back Trayveon Williams said. "As a true freshman he was just pushed into the game and had to go in there in a big-time moment. But now he has a different look in his eyes. He looks at the game from a whole different aspect. He's becoming way more vocal. He's just becoming the leader he was born to be."

Although Sumlin was complimentary of Mond, he was quick to point out that there are many factors that have led to his improvement in the last few weeks.

"We've got guys making plays for him, too that maybe that didn't happen early in the year on the perimeter," he said. "We made some competitive

K-State tries to bounce back, Baylor tries to get on track

By Dave Skretta
Associated Press

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Kansas State coach Bill Snyder was so embarrassed by his team's performance in a loss at Vanderbilt that he penned a letter this week apologizing to fans of the Wildcats.

"I did not hold up our end and provide you with a more positive outcome," Snyder wrote more than a week after the 14-7 defeat. "We did not play or coach collectively as well as we are capable, nor as well as we needed to against a competitive Vanderbilt team. I apologize for that."

The Wildcats finally can start making amends.

Kansas State (2-1, 0-0 Big 12) heads into its Big 12 opener against improving Baylor (0-4, 0-1) today following an inconvenient week off. Yes, the Wildcats had ample time to diagnose what went wrong against the Commodores, but they also had ample time to stew over the loss.

"Last week we had the bye coming off a loss and the guys felt a little bit down," tight end Dayton Valentine said. "We didn't get to come out and play to have a redemption game to take that anger away. Coming back, the guys realize how important his week is."

That's because the Wildcats still have a conference championship as a goal. The loss to Vanderbilt didn't scuttle that.

"Honestly, we had a great bye week," Wildcats wide receiver Dalton Schoen said. "Obviously, we know what will happen when we don't execute, which was what happened at Vanderbilt. We know as long as we go out there and execute our game plan, we can do some good things."

Meanwhile, Baylor also learned last week what happens when it executes better.

The Bears were embarrassed by Liberty, UTSA and Duke during its non-conference slate, but things began clicking against No. 3 Oklahoma. Behind a breakout game from Zach Smith, who threw for 463 yards and four scores, the Bears took the Sooners down to the wire in a 49-41 loss.

"The way we process is to every day look at what you're doing right, what you're doing wrong, and try to get better at it," Baylor coach Matt Rhule said. "We have not played to our capabilities yet, and we won't all year. We'll continue to get better and better and better.

"We just have to keep pushing ourselves forward," he added, "and when we win, I'll still be the same way. I'll say, 'We're still not doing this right, but we're doing this better.'"

As the Wildcats and Bears prepare to meet on Saturday, here are some things to know:

Total props

Rhule gushed about facing the 77-year-old Snyder for the first time, calling him "the kind of coach that I respect, and the guys who coach the game right, play the game right."

"We're going to compete against each other, but really at the end of the day, having a chance to compete against Coach Snyder makes me better, and makes me look at myself and how I do what I do," Rhule said. "The way he runs his program is exactly the way I want to run this program."

Injury woes

Baylor wide receiver Chris Platt and defensive end Xavier Jones are expected to miss the rest of the season after getting hurt against Oklahoma. Platt, who had 16 catches for 401 yards, hurt his left knee and Jones broke a bone in his foot.

"We're anxious to get them back for their senior year next year," Rhule said. "As it is right now, it looks like they will be out for the season unless something changes."

Rushing to judgment

Kansas State prefers to grind out games, which could pose a problem for the Bears. The Sooners rolled up 342 yards and four scores on the ground against them, while Texas-San Antonio and Duke also piled up at least 200 yards rushing.

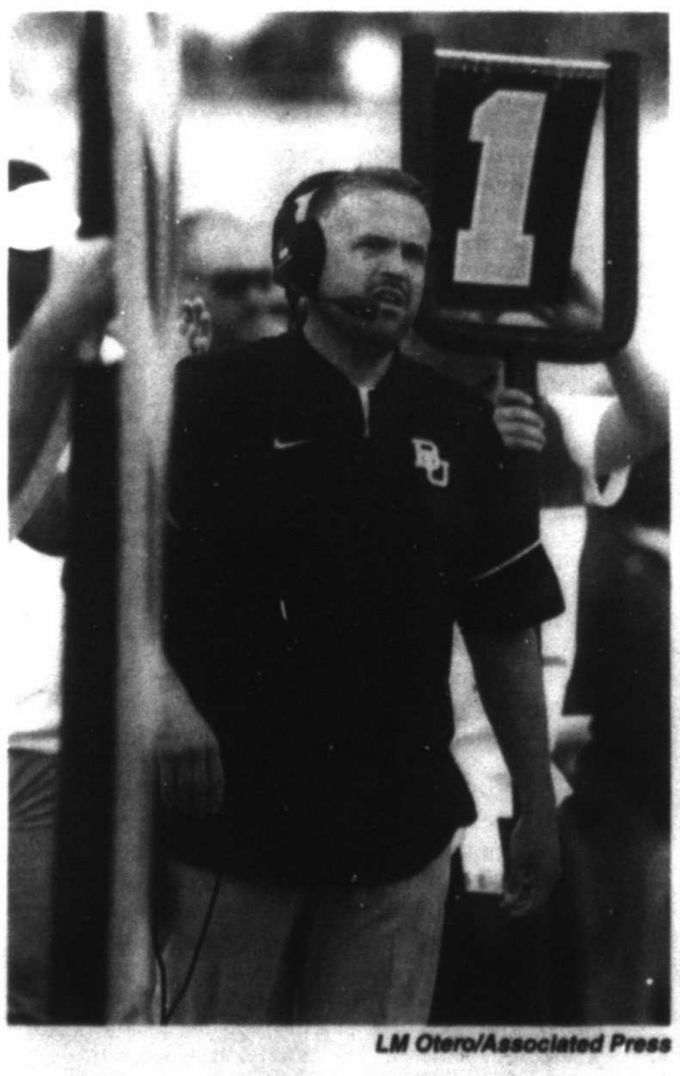

Or air it out

Jesse Ertz was just 10 of 28 for 76 yards with no touchdowns and two interceptions in the loss to Vanderbilt. But Snyder said the senior quarterback had a good week of practice, and there is a good chance the Wildcats will try to ensure Ertz's confidence rebounds.

Speaking of QBs

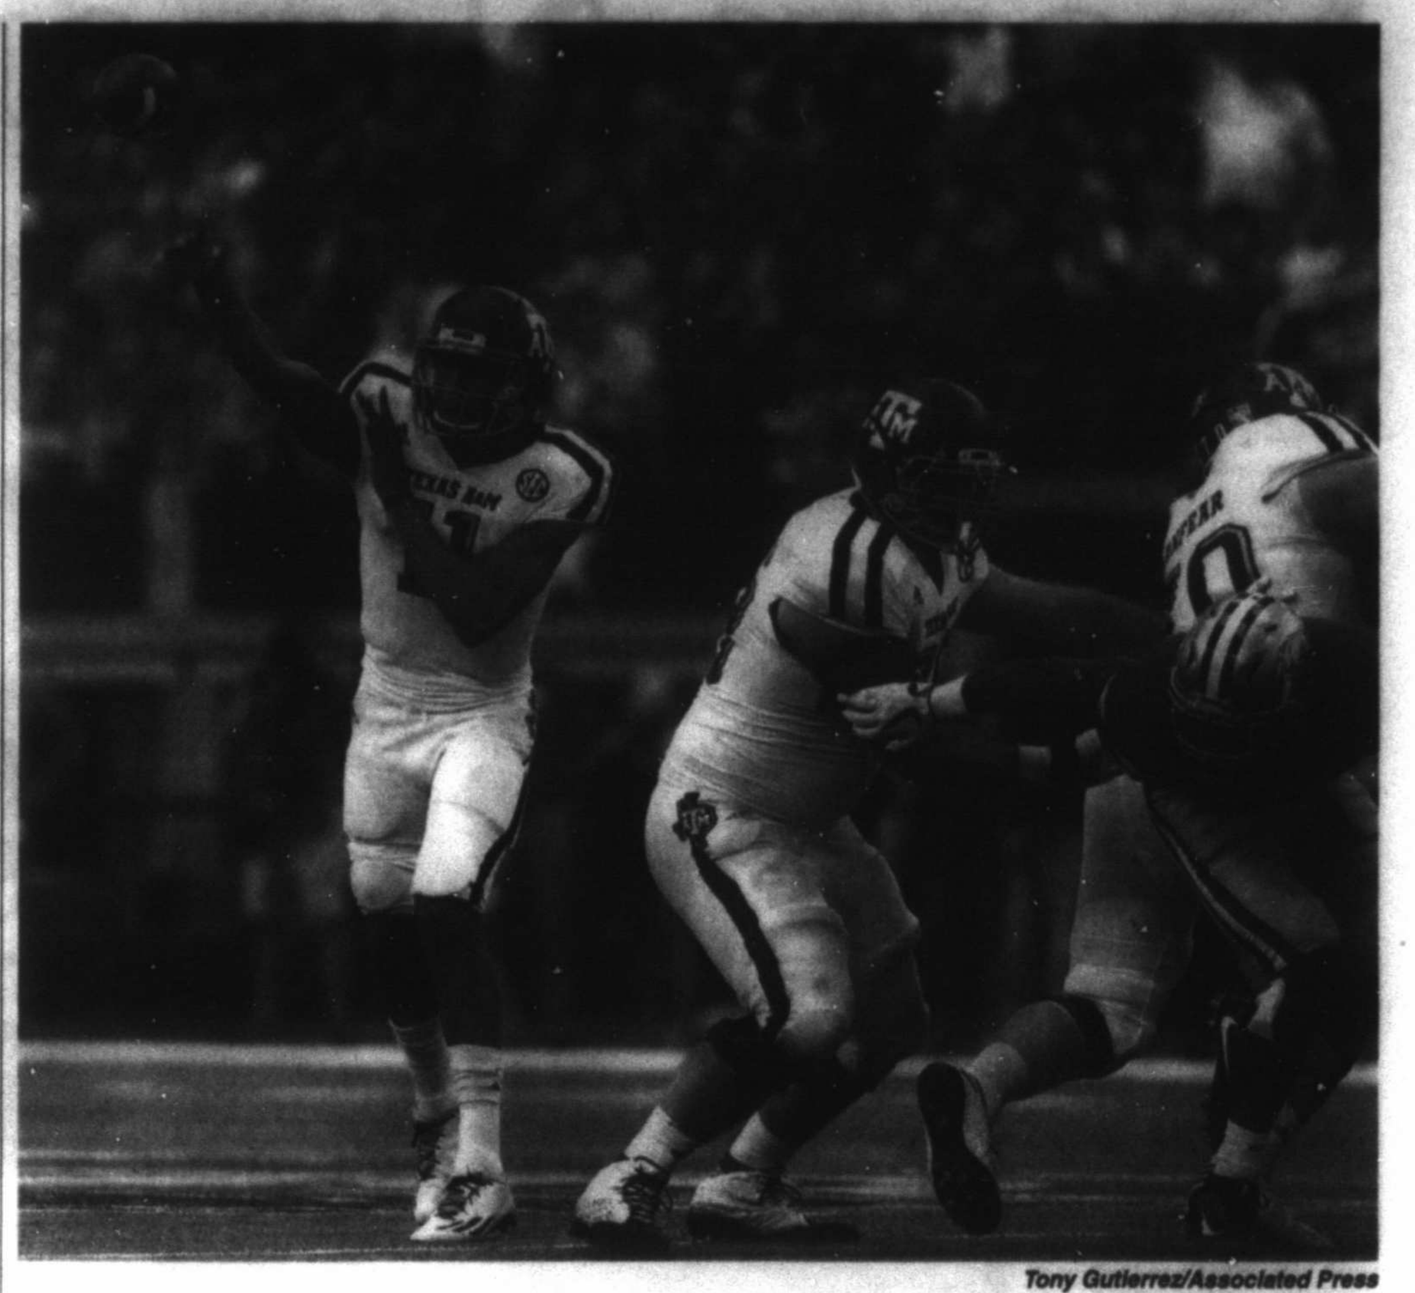

Baylor gave Anu Solomon a shot earlier this season, but Smith was given his chance against Duke. And while the starter late last season struggled against the Blue Devils, the sophomore was dynamic — downright flawless — in the loss to Oklahoma.

"It's going to be a test," Kansas State linebacker Jayd Kirby said. "I don't think we've seen 50 passes in a game yet, so it's going to be something new. We're going to have to defend them pretty well."

catches. We didn't make those plays at UCLA."

South Carolina coach Will Muschamp knows that dealing with a dual-threat quarterback like Mond will be a challenge as his team tries to get its first win in the series after dropping the first three meetings. But he's more concerned about his defense limiting running backs Williams and Keith Ford. The pair has combined for 560 yards rushing with nine touchdowns.

"The two backs they've got are big-time runners, guys that are going to create space," Muschamp said. "They'll get in one-on-one matchups, and you don't want to have to tackle in space and get both of these guys on the ground. They can take the ball anywhere."

Some things to know about the South Carolina-Texas A&M game.

Kirk does it all

Texas A&M receiver and returner Christian Kirk had one of the best games of his three-year career last week. After being held in check for the first three games, he returned a kick 100 yards for a touchdown and finished with 110 yards receiving and two touchdowns against Arkansas.

"Christian Kirk is as good of a player as there is in college football as far as a returner and receiver," Muschamp said.

Close call

The Gamecocks were held scoreless for three quarters last week before scoring 17 points in the fourth to get a 17-16 win over Louisiana Tech. South Carolina didn't lead until the final five minutes, but Louisiana Tech went back on top with a field goal with less than a minute to go. South Carolina eked out the win when Parker White made a 31-yard field goal with just four seconds remaining.

Red zone woes

The Gamecocks have struggled in the red zone this season, often settling for field goals instead of touchdowns. When asked about the problem, Muschamp recounted all of the mistakes they've made in the area to illustrate that there isn't just one reason why they haven't been better.

"It's multiple things," he said. "It's not one thing you're putting your finger on. Obviously, we need to coach better in those situations, because if our players aren't executing, that's a coaching issue in my opinion. So, we've got to do a better job of putting our guys in spots to be successful."

Watt(s) a player

Texas A&M defensive back Armani Watts is the only player in the Football Bowl Subdivision with at least five tackles for losses, three interceptions, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery this season.

He secured A&M's win against Arkansas last week when he grabbed an interception in the end zone. The senior has 260 tackles, has broken up 16 passes and has six interceptions in his career.

TARLETON STATE AT UTPB CAPSULE

When/where: 6 p.m. today, Ratliff Stadium, Odessa

On the radio: KQRX (95.1 FM)

Records: Tarleton State 3-1 overall, 2-0 in Lone Star Conference; UTPB 1-3, 1-1

Last game: Tarleton State 30, West Texas A&M 20; UTPB 41, Western New Mexico 32

Notes: The Falcons won the turnover battle by a 4-1 margin to pull off their first-ever Lone Star Conference victory in 11 tries with a win at Western New Mexico last week. The most pivotal turnover was Chris Hoad's 49-yard interception return for a TD, which gave UTPB the lead for good at 17-14 after it trailed 14-0 to start off the game. ... The Falcons are currently in a tie for fifth place in the LSC standings, their highest position ever. ... UTPB ranks eighth of nine conference teams in total offense per game (295.0) and dead last in total defense per contest (465.8). ... The visiting Texans are led by their 1-2 punch at running back of Xavier Turner (260 rush yards, 3 TDs) and Adam Berryman (202 rush yards, 3 TD). ... Falcons quarterback Kameron Mathis ranks last in LSC with a 38.5 completion percentage. ... Andrews grad and UTPB sophomore linebacker Keegan Gray is fifth in the LSC with an average of 10.5 tackles per game.

Next: UTPB at Eastern New Mexico, 8 p.m. Oct. 7; Tarleton State at Western New Mexico, 1 p.m. Oct. 7

Wilson

From 1C

"You know, I never really get nervous before a game," he said. "I guess since I've always had this mean streak when I play, I don't get nervous. It felt good seeing all the fans. I think our tempo was fast and we came prepared to do our job. It just seemed like not a lot of things were going our way."

Now Wilson and the Cowboys will face an improved Texas Tech team as Wilson makes a return to West Texas.

He said he should have plenty of friends in the stands for tonight's game, which could feature plenty of offensive fireworks.

Wilson will also look to help protect talented senior quarterback Mason Rudolph, who's passed for more than 1,500 yards and thrown for 13 touchdowns against three interceptions. Rudolph also has some talented weapons around him, led by senior wide receiver James Washington, who has scored four touchdowns and is averaging 130 receiving yards per game.

"I know we're going to be super prepared mentally and physically and just play hard-nosed football," he said. "I think we look fantastic this year. Hopefully we'll win the Big 12 and proceed in the playoffs."

Wilson said his personal goal is to do his part in helping Oklahoma State reach those goals.

"I just want to show up and give it my all. Hopefully that's more than enough to take us to that next level," Wilson said.
