Tax time ...it's here

From local, wire reports

Procrastinators, beware! Do not let the distractions of spring obscure this painful reality: The IRS is waiting on you.

But the tax shut-ins over the weekend should find some solace in the fact that many, many other Americans are in the same fix. Although the bureau received 67.9 million returns from early birds through April 7, it expected an additional 36 million returns by the end of next week. The IRS also expected at least 5 million requests for filing extensions.

This year's filing deadline is two days later than most years, on Monday, because the usual April 15 deadline falls on a Saturday.

Snyder post office will stay open until 6 p.m. on Monday, rather than 4:30, said Postmaster Steve Justice.

"We understand the anxiety our customers have on this day. We hope this will help ease the stress of those waiting until the last minute to file," Justice said.

Until 6 o'clock, local customers will be able to get their return weighed, therefore assuring adequate postage. The IRS will not accept a tax return with insufficient postage, Justice noted.

April 17 post marks will be applied to any returns mailed prior to midnight at the main post office. Late filers should use the drive-through box or the inside drop after 6 p.m.

You can grant yourself an additional reprieve by requesting an automatic extension, until Aug. 15, using Form 4868. But that won't relieve you of responsibility for paying your taxes on time. Make your best estimate of how much you owe and include a check.

If you can't pay all you owe, send as much as you can. You'll still get the extension. And the IRS will bill you for the balance, plus interest and any penalty due.

SYMBOLS OF EASTER - This cross draped in black represents the death of Jesus Christ. On Easter Sunday, the cloth will be changed to white to symbolize the resurrection of Jesus. Churches in Snyder will hold special Easter services with many holding sunrise services Sunday. (SDN Staff Photo)

Heat turned up at college rodeo

Alumni rodeo set for 2 p.m. Sunday

It didn't take long for Travis Greenlee to make his mark Friday night at the Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo.

The Odessa College cowboy took over the lead in the bareback — the first event of the night — with a solid score of 73.

New leaders were posted in five of the nine events and cowboys and cowgirls manuvered for ranking into Saturday evening's short-go.

The rodeo was to continue Saturday morning with slack, which would wind up the long-go. The top 10 competitors in each event will compete in the Saturday evening show at 7:30.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students at the gate.

Western Texas College cowboy Cleve Schmidt marked a 72 in the bareback to move into a tie for second place with Doug Fennell of Vernon Regional JC.

Fennell's score was posted Thursday, but Friday was an even better night for Vernon Regional. Shane Hatch took over the lead in the calf roping with an 8.1-second run and Molly Swanson moved into the front of the barrel race with a 13.48 clocking. Vernon Regional holds down the top five spots in the saddle bronc with Colin Bauer's 73, Kolt Dowdy's 70, Kent Cox's 69, Mark Eakin's 68 and Travis Griffin's 67.

Brad Stewart of West Texas A&M took over the lead in the steer wrestling with a hot 3.7-second run. In team roping, Wayne Folmer of Sul Ross and Turtle Powell of Tarleton State combined for a 5.1 and the lead.

Western Texas' Mandy Harsh held on to first place in the breakaway roping as her 2.7-second time posted on Thursday was unchallenged.

WTC women also kept control of the goat tying, where Chasity Rickman's 7.0 is still in first place and Harsh's 7.3 is in second. WTC cowgirl Emily Shafer is third with a 7.5.

Howard College's Reed Corder held on to the lead in the bull riding with the 70 he posted Thursday. Cade Schalla of Odessa posted a 69 on Friday to move into a tie for second place with Howard's Cory McFadden.

The annual Western Texas College Alumni Rodeo is scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m. Sunday in the coliseum. Some 120 to 150 WTC students, exes and their spouses are expected to participate. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students at the gate.

Coliseum report among agenda items for county

A short agenda awaits Scurry County Commissioners' Court when it convenes in regular session Monday morning at 10.

The court will be presented with the first-quarter financial report of Scurry County Coliseum under the management of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber took over the management of the coliseum on Jan. 1 of this year and the contract calls for quarterly reports on the operation of the facility.

Commissioners will consider a request from Snyder Neigbors Sharing for the use of county-owned dump trucks for the one day blitz of repairing houses in the community.

Also on the agenda is consideration of an airport manager. The court voted last month to terminate the contract of Gary Haltom, who had been employed as the manager since September, 1993. He had been operating on a month-to-month contract since the expiration of that contract last September.

Commissioners had not renewed the contract due to anticipated changes in the operation of Winston Field, which included eliminating the clause in the contract that allowed the manager to perform mechanic work at the facility.

The court will also consider payment of bills and approve the monthly reports of the Scurry County Library Board, Board of County Development and the County Welfare Board.

Early voting begins Monday

Early voting in the May 6 elections begins with the opening of business Monday — but only at City Hall. Scurry County residents eager to cast a ballot in the one of three public school elections will have to wait until Tuesday. That's because Snyder, Ira and Hermleigh school districts will be closed Monday for the Easter holidays.

Early voting will be held at the business office of each entity holding an election — this includes City Hall for the the mayorial and city council election and Snyder, Ira and Hermleigh school offices for trustee elections.

All of the offices up for election on May 6 are at-large. Voters must reside in the particular school district where they wish to cast a ballot, or within the city limits to cast a ballot in the municipal election. Early voting ends May 2.

Tax office to close April 18-20

Scurry County Tax Office will be closed Tuesday through Thursday, April 18-20, in order for employees to be trained in the new Registration and Title System (RTS).

The $40 million automated system is a project of the Texas Department of Transportation. Its development began in 1987 to replace a manual system that was becoming obsolete because of the state's growing vehicle population.

As a statutory agent of the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), the tax office processes registration and title transactions in addition to collecting the appropriate fees. The office will be using RTS to continue that work.

The system brings enhancements in the level of efficiency and customer service. Registrations will be updated in the system within 48 hours instead of the usual six to eight weeks. This will be of considerable benefit to all law enforcement agencies and the general public, said Rona Sikes, tax assessor-collector. Scurry County residents will get their vehicle titles within two weeks.

Pops concert set Tuesday evening at Western Texas

Western Texas College's annual spring "Pops" concert will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre.

The concert is free, but donations to the WTC Music Scholarship Fund will be accepted.

Featured in the concert will be the WTC Community Chorale, Handbell Choir, guitar ensemble and a brass ensemble.

Chorale selections will include "Rock-a My Soul," "Ave Verum Corpus," "My Gracious Lord and Master," "I'm a-Rollin" and "Walkin' in the Spirit."

The handbell choir will perform "Out West," "At the Movies" and "It's Toon Time!"

The guitar trio will perform four selections, including "Roman Guitar" and "Arkansas Traveler." The brass ensemble will perform "Fanfare on Old 100th."

College plans health fair

Local citizens can take advantage of several health checks Thursday as Western Texas College will host a health fair at the WTC gymnasium.

The event is being sponsored by the WTC health and physical education deptartment, women's basketball department, Barbee Medical Supply, Snyder National Bank and Coca-Cola.

Those attending the fair, which will be held between 7:30 a.m. and 2 p.m., can take advantage of free checks of blood pressure, pulse, body fat, percentage of oxygen in the blood, flexibility tests, step tests, spinal screenings and other exams.

Plus, participants also have the chance to register to win mammograms, home blood pressure kits, health screenings, glucometers and other health-related prizes.

Organizers of the event encourage everyone to come out and take advantage of the free services offered and see what WTC has to offer that is health related such as aerobic classes, water aerobics and other physical education classes.

Booths are available to any business that wants to participate. Presently signed up are Barbee Medical Supply, Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Cogdell Home Health, Outreach, Interim Health Care, the WIC program and Snyder Chiropractic Center.

For additional information, contact Kaila Barbee, 573-3399, or Brenda Nichols-Welch, 573-8511, ext. 286.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Be thankful for taxes...it gives us something to gripe about."

Because April 15 fell on a weekend, the Infernal Revenue Service has given Americans two more days to figure, to fret and to fume.

Just think, if they had made the deadline Friday we all could have enjoyed a calm and relaxing weekend. The extension merely adds to the stress. Must be a government conspiracy with heart doctors.

The best thing about paying taxes is the right it gives us - the right to complain. It's sort of like the right to vote. Unless you exercise it, you really can't grumble.

But once we put that envelope in the mail, making sure we used the stick-on label provided by the IRS, we have bought one full year to rant and rave about the way "our" money is spent.

You think you have problems? Consider the burden faced by professional athletes. For the jock earning $1 million a year or more, his tax bill will jump from $264,000 to $323,758. Hey, dry those tears. You're not supposed to get the tax forms wet.

The late Lewis Grizzard, Atlanta columnist and author, said about this time of year he would get lots of calls from people complaining they had been done wrong by the IRS. He once wrote:

"I don't want to hear any more whining. It is the duty of every American citizen to pay his or her taxes cheerfully and respectfully. Besides, I don't want to be reminded of what the lousy bloodsuckers are trying to do to me."

Grizzard was more agitated about those folks who actually file their tax returns weeks and months in advance of the deadline.

"These people are usually well off, and they have their own accountants and use their refund checks to go to resorts in the Caribbean. You may be asking, 'What's a refund check?' Don't bother. It would only confuse you."

Prosecution erred, Ito says

By LINDA DEUTSCH
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trying to prop up the reputation of a key witness, O.J. Simpson prosecutors produced a page from a crime scene report that the defense claimed was destroyed in a police frame-up conspiracy. But the judge ruled the prosecution went too far.

The surprise late in Thursday's court session somewhat deflated the savage attack by defense attorney Barry Scheck on criminalist Dennis Fung. It prompted the judge Friday to slap the prosecution with a misconduct ruling.

Judge Lance Ito said prosecutors intentionally violated his order by failing to notify him and the defense about the page, which Fung said he found after his cross-examination ended Thursday. But Ito put off sanctions until next week and rejected a defense request to toss out the testimony.

Meanwhile, the jury was allowed to see the page Friday and compare it to a copied page that Scheck had produced with great fanfare Thursday, claiming it proved that Fung lied about when he received a vial of Simpson's blood.

Scheck had noted the copy was the only page of a crime scene report that lacked staple holes. The lack of holes, Scheck contended, proved that another page was slipped into the report as part of a conspiracy to frame Simpson for murdering his ex-wife and her friend.

Minutes after that, Deputy District Attorney Hank Goldberg produced the original page and had Fung identify it.

WTC sets nursing aide training course

The Continuing Education Division at Western Texas College will be offering a nurse's aide course to begin Monday, May 15, and end with state certification testing scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, June 20-21.

The course is a state-mandated curriculum for persons seeking employment as a nurse's aide in hospitals and long-term care facilities.

Mrs. Velma Clay, BSN, MS, director of WTC's Nurse's Aide Program and assistant Professor of Nursing for Howard College, will serve as instructor.

The total price is $249 which covers all expenses including tuition and fees, state testing fees, textbooks and liability insurance. Financial assistance for child care, gasoline and books is available for those who qualify.

A $25 deposit is required for pre-registration and will be applied toward the cost of the course. Deposits are refundable if cancellation notice is reported directly to the Continuing Education office by noon on Friday, May 12.

With enrollment limited to 13 spaces and the class expected to fill quickly, interested individuals are asked to pre-register as soon as possible. For more information, and/or to register, call 573-8511, ext. 390. To see if you qualify and for further information on financial aid, call 573-8511, ext. 397.

May Day, Senior Olympics events scheduled locally

Collectibles and antiques ranging from dishes and kitchenware to Avon bottles will be offered for sale at the Senior Center's May Day on May 6 in the Scurry County Coliseum. Other donations will be welcome and can be taken to the center at 2603 Ave. M.

Tickets are now on sale for the May Day barbecue, which will be served from 4:30-6 p.m. Tickets are $5 each and can be purchased in the Senior Center or from senior citizens. The antiques and collectibles booth, an arts and crafts and booths will open at 2 p.m. Persons wishing to bid in the 6:30 p.m. auction can inspect quilts and other auction items during the afternoon as well.

Senior citizens from the Scurry County area are being invited to participate in the Senior Olympics planned in Snyder May 12-13. Headquarters for the Olympics will be the armory in Towle Park, where a mixer and dance will be held on the evening of May 12.

The Olympics will take place in the park, with swimming and golf at Western Texas College. An exhibition softball game at 6:30 p.m. on May 13 will precede the awarding of medals for winners in the events. Participants are asked to pay registration fees at Snyder Chamber of Commerce by May 1. For additional information, call the chamber office.

The Senior Center will be closed Monday in observance of the Easter Holiday. Activities on Tuesday will begin with a Nine Ball Tournament. Hoss Clayton and his band will be performing in the dining room at 11 a.m.

There will be no distribution of surplus commodities in the center this month. The distribution scheduled for Wednesday has been cancelled and information about a later distribution will be announced when it becomes available.

Senior citizens are reminded that the hour for swimnastics has been moved to 10:30-11:30 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. May 2 will be the final day for this group to meet until summer classes begin at WTC.

The Senior Saints will perform in the center at 11 a.m. Thursday. The Sunshine Choir will go to Snyder Healthcare Center for a program at 10 a.m. Friday. Charlotte Irwin from Cogdell Memorial Hospital will present a program on CPR in the center at 11:15 Friday morning.

Drug ads OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bristol-Myers Squibb can begin advertising that its anti-cholesterol drug Pravachol helps reduce heart attacks by 67 percent, the Food and Drug Administration says.

The labeling change makes Pravachol the only cholesterol-lowering medicine to state that it cuts heart attacks, a long-sought asset in the fierce marketing battle among cholesterol medicines.

But it does not mean doctors will use Pravachol any differently — it is still just for heart patients who have not been able to lower very high cholesterol levels with diet alone.

'9' ball sticks in drawing

AUSTIN (AP) — No, the trouble was not with your television set. Confusion over the Friday night Pick 3 Texas drawing lay with a sticky No. 3 hopper.

The No. 9 ball failed to drop into the hopper used in the third-number drawing as shown on statewide television, said lottery spokesman Steve Levine.

Under Texas lottery rules, that invalidated the third-number draw and forced an off-camera redraw, Levine said. But it also made it appear on television that the number nine was the third number drawn, he said.

The second drawing was supervised by lottery security and accountants and the official results reported to The Associated Press and the state's news media, Levine said.

The Pick 3 winning numbers drawn Friday by the Texas Lottery were, in order: 2-3-5.

Golf instructor wins Powerball

PHOENIX (AP) — Golf instructor Kelly LaFay may buy some links of his own now that he's won a $77 million Powerball jackpot.

LaFay and his wife, Cathy, came forward Friday to claim the fifth-largest jackpot in the history of the multistate lottery game, giving Arizona back-to-back winners for the first time since the state entered the game a year ago.

The chances of a state having back-to-back winners are 1 in 10,000, with five previous back-to-back states in Powerball, officials said.

"I think this is great, something I probably have asked for since I was 6 years old," LaFay said at a news conference.

LaFay, 42, said he works 10 to 12 hours a day teaching golf. Now, he says he'll cut back on hours but still plans to teach.

"I'm going to buy a golf course, I think we need the write-off," he said, half-jokingly. Later he said he had always hoped to have the money to invest in or build a course.

LaFay said the couple bought $75 worth of tickets at seven stores for the Wednesday drawing.

Throat surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Smiling and silently mouthing to reporters that he felt "OK," Gov. Pete Wilson left a hospital soon after undergoing minor throat surgery Friday to remove a benign growth.

1995 sausage festival planned here April 23

Volunteers are spending untold hours preparing for St. Elizabeth Catholic Church's 8th annual sausage festival slated Sunday, April 23, from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Parish Center.

Besides the traditional "all you can eat" sausage meal served with all the trimmings, a variety of game booths are also planned. In addition, numerous prizes will be given away through drawings and a Country Store will sell homemade baked goods and handicrafts.

Game booths will include the cake walk, duck pond, go fish, dart board, ring toss and plunko.

Drawing prizes include four new tires, Sega Genesis game, queen size homemade quilt and a bread making machine.

The sausage meal includes beans, potato salad, homemade saurkraut, homemade desserts and tea or coffee.

Meal ticket prices are $6 for adults, $3 for children 12 and under and $6 for all takeout orders. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Sausage will also be sold by the pound — $2.75 cooked and $3.75 uncooked.

Some 5,000 pounds of sausage, 1,000 more than last year, are being prepared this year. The first 2,500 pounds were prepared last month for sale (uncooked) before the festival. The remaining 2,500 pounds will be prepared three days before the Sunday meal.

To prepare the sausage, volunteers grind 50 pounds of fresh pork at a time. After being seasoned, the sausage is stuffed into casings, smoked for two hours, allowed to cool in a walk-in refrigerator so the flavors can "set," vacuum packed and frozen.

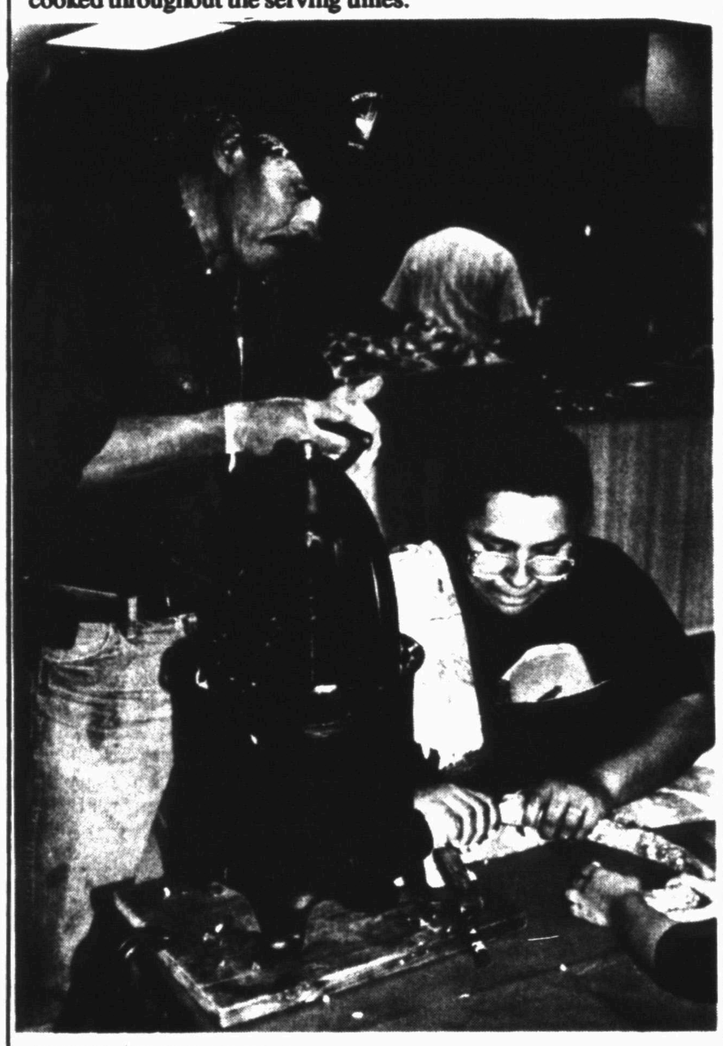

The sausage recipe is a well kept family secret whose origin can be traced to the late Lillie Rasche of Colorado City who passed away in January. Lloyd Rasche, her son, carries on the tradition today, but the recipe remains a secret.

Equipment used ranges from meat grinders to sausage stuffers and a machine which vacuum packs the sausage.

Besides the sausage, 350 pounds of homemade saurkraut is also prepared in advance to allow time for fermentation. Three-hundred-and-fifty pounds are planned this year.

The beans and potato salad are prepared on the day of the festival. This year 100 pounds of beans and 450 pounds of potatoes will be made.

Volunteers begin working around 4:30 a.m. on festival day. Several barbecue pits are also started and sausage is continually cooked throughout the serving times.

Warship returns from first extended tour with women

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The first group of men and women to board a U.S. warship for an extended combat tour has returned from a successful six months of flying jets, working in the radio room and doing everything in between.

"I got to see places I've never seen before, I got to work on the flight deck — I enjoyed it! I'd do it again," Airman Gabriele Monaco, who worked on a helicopter search-and-rescue team, said Friday after the USS Eisenhower pulled into the Norfolk Naval Base.

She said it was tense at first, but "we got used to it."

The aircraft carrier was greeted by a crowd of about 7,000 friends and relatives waving "Welcome Home" signs, yellow ribbons, flags and bouquets.

Critics had warned that the 415 women among the crew of 5,000 wouldn't perform as well as the men and that fraternization would be a problem.

There were 15 pregnancies, but 12 of the women boarded the ship that way last fall. The three others got pregnant while on shore leave in Europe — two by their husbands and one who wasn't married.

All the pregnant women were reassigned back to Norfolk during the tour, a nonpunitive measure the captain decided on for health reasons. Pregnant woman can remain aboard Navy ships until the 20th week.

Six couples went to the captain and declared they had fallen in love, and two women complained they were sexually harassed, according to Time magazine, which had a writer on the Eisenhower last month.

Two Western Texas College students earn scholarships

Two Western Texas College freshmen have been awarded $200 scholarships for the 1995-1996 year by the WTC Faculty Association. Chosen are Christina Gonzales of Snyder and Justin Goebel of Colorado City.

Gonzales is an accounting/business major at WTC and a member of Phi Theta Kappa. Goebel is an animal science major and a member of the meats judging team as well as PTK.

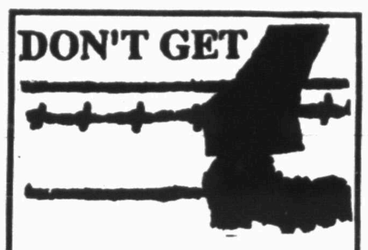

Applicants were required to complete a 300-500 word composition which explained how their respective educational experience at WTC has reflected the institution's primary educational goals.

To be eligible, students applying for the scholarships must have completed a minimum of 30 hours of credit by the end of this spring term, have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.25, and be a full time student.

Extracurricular or community activities were considered in the selection process also. Finalists were chosen by members of the Academic Affairs Committee, headed by Rockford Burrus.

Both winners will be recognized at the end of the semester at the annual spring Awards Day ceremony.

Probable cause of earthquake cited

ODESSA (AP) — Two geologists cite stress along a thrust fault along the base of the Del Norte Mountains east of Alpine as the probable cause of an earthquake that shook West Texas.

The two Sul Ross State University geologists, geology department chairman David Rohr and assistant professor Kevin Urbanczyk, plotted the quake's origin by drawing an arc on a map 20 miles east-southeast from Alpine and checking intersecting fault lines.

Geophysicists at the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., placed the quake's epicenter 20 miles east-southeast of Alpine.

Students in Urbanczyk's introductory geology class on the Alpine campus wanted to know if an earthquake would happen again.

"I told them yes, but probably not too soon," he told The Odessa American for its Saturday editions. "Judging from the way Santa Elena Canyon (in the Big Bend) seems to move, it may be 200 years. There is no way to be able to (predict) it."

According to Urbanczyk, the main quake occurred at 7:33 p.m. Thursday and lasted about 12 seconds; then was followed by a 7:34 p.m. aftershock. Other aftershocks followed at 9:19 p.m. Thursday, and at 3 a.m. and 5:02 a.m. Friday. The 9:19 p.m. aftershock was the strongest, with a magnitude of 3.3, according to the center's reports.

Only minor damage and a few minor injuries were reported.

The fault near the Del Nortes is a Laramide age fault caused by the thrust pushing the mountains upward, Urbanczyk said.

They excluded the fault line that caused the Valentine quake in 1931, because that fault line crosses a highway "and probably would have cut the highway in half," Rohr said.

"If it had done that, we would have heard about it."

"This one was a lot, lot milder than the one in '31, and it didn't last as long," said Johnny Sotello, who was 13 during the earlier quake.

"I don't know how to describe the sensation," Sotello recalled of the Depression-era quake.

Patient Who's Kept Waiting Won't Stay Kept for Long

DEAR ABBY: I must respond to "Full of Ideas," who wrote with suggestions about what to do while you're waiting to get in to see a doctor or dentist.

Abby, why should a patient who has an appointment have to wait any length of time?

I decided about a year ago that my time was just as valuable as any doctor's or dentist's — and you can add hairdresser to the list. If I have an appointment, I expect to be seen within a reasonable length of time, and if that's not possible, the receptionist — or someone from the office — should come out and let me know that there will be a delay, and give me the option of waiting or rescheduling the appointment.

I've heard stories of people having to wait in a doctor or dentist's office not "minutes," but hours, with no explanation of how much longer the wait will be.

I, for one, will not be subjected to waiting more than 20 minutes without some kind of explanation.

I am fed up with greedy professionals who try to cram in as many appointments in one day as possible.

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Physicians and dentists sometimes have patients in emergency situations: a filling fell out, a child broke his arm, or came down with an itch or an ache — the list is endless. However, a courteous professional will inform patients if he or she expects the delay to be lengthy. And patients should keep in mind that one day they or their child may be faced with that kind of emergency situation.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is trivial, but like a small burr under the saddle, it's very irritating.

My husband's name is Charles. He likes his name, and dislikes being called "Charlie" or "Chuck."

We have Bob, Bill and Pat among other friends. They call Charles "Chuck" or "Charlie." We are tempted to call Bob "Bobby," Bill "Billy," and Pat "Patty," but they may be offended, without realizing that their misuse of his name is also offensive. I think they would also be offended if I asked them to please call Charles by his given name, and I value their friendship too much to risk it.

Do you have a suggestion?

ALICE FROM DALLAS

DEAR ALICE: People who feel strongly about being addressed by a name they find irritating should speak up! (It may take a time or two, but it's preferable to allowing the irritation to continue.)

DEAR ABBY: I wish to respond to the widow who encountered a nurse commenting on her husband's critical condition in front of him as he lay in a coma.

I'm a nurse, and we are taught in nursing school that the last sense to go is hearing. That nurse was out of line, and obviously very insensitive. However, in defense of all nurses, she is the rare exception.

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Yuri," came here from Russia six years ago. We have been married for five years. Yuri speaks excellent English. He has mentioned several times that it would be a good idea for me to learn Russian, but with two small children under 4, learning Russian has not been a high priority for me.

The problem is that Yuri has many Russian friends, mostly professional people who speak English very well. But when they come to visit, they speak in Russian, and I am left out.

Last Sunday, "Natasha" came over. I served cookies and coffee and tried to be a good hostess. She directed all her conversation to Yuri. When I asked her about her children and her job, she gave me brief answers in English, then turned to Yuri and continued speaking to him in Russian.

I realize she's Yuri's friend. I'm not jealous of her, nor do I suspect they are having an affair. I just think it's very rude of her to ignore me when she's here.

Abby, it's not only Natasha. It has gotten to the point that when his Russian friends come over, I go to our bedroom and watch TV by myself.

It's the same when we go to Natasha's house — or Sergei's or Ilona's. Their husbands and wives all speak Russian, and I'm left to play with the children. When I tell Yuri how I feel, he says it is much easier for them to express themselves in Russian than in English.

I have decided to learn more Russian, but what do I do in the meantime? Should I insist they speak in English so I can understand them — or what?

FED UP IN CANADA

DEAR FED UP: Ask Yuri to compromise; suggest that he ask his friends to speak English part of the time they spend with you, while you learn their language.

A crash course in Russian would be a good beginning in overcoming the language barrier. Also, ask Yuri to teach you a few phrases every day. You'll be amazed at how quickly you can join in their conversations.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you wrote that the only man who beat Jack Dempsey was Gene Tunney.

Sorry. Jack Dempsey was beaten by Jim Flynn and Willy Meehan.

The late Paul Gallico, a longtime sportswriter, wrote a piece for Esquire magazine titled "The Gentle Warriors." In it, he contended that the gentlest athletes were boxers — and the least gentle were golfers and tennis players.

WOODY WILLITS, CAMAS, WASH.

DEAR WOODY: I don't know how Paul Gallico defined "gentle," but when two prizefighters get into a ring and try to knock each other senseless, I cannot imagine anything less gentle.

DEAR ABBY: This is a message to all the charities to which I contribute — make that "used to contribute." I must stretch a limited budget to include the many causes I sincerely want to help, so please stop sending me personalized labels to last me the rest of my life if I live to be 150.

Please don't send me any pens, pencils, key rings or greeting cards for Christmas, Easter, Mother's Day, Father's Day, congratulations-on-your-graduation, or sorry-about-the-death-of-your-canary, etc. (I think you get the idea.)

Also, after you've received my contribution, please do not follow it up a month later with a plea for another $10 or $20.

Abby, if you need a signature, my name is ...

LEGION

DEAR LEGION: Hear, hear! Charities would be amazed by the number of contributions they don't get because of their irritating methods of raising funds.

Bosnia believed receiving Iranian arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The embattled Muslim-led government in Bosnia is believed to be receiving weapons shipments from Iran in violation of a U.N. arms embargo against Bosnia and other republics of the former Yugoslavia, a Clinton administration official said Friday.

The reported shipments could represent a rare instance in which U.S. interests coincide with those of Iran, which is routinely pilloried by Washington as a terrorist state hostile to Western influence in the Middle East and elsewhere.

For years, the administration has complained that the embargo has punished the Muslim-led government more than the Serb side, a particularly unfortunate circumstance, officials maintain, because the Muslims are the aggrieved party.

The administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, acknowledged that the Serb and Muslim sides have benefited from embargo leaks, and he expressed understanding for Muslim efforts to redress the military imbalance.

While saying that evidence indicates a military link between Iran and their Islamic brethren in Bosnia, the officials were unable to confirm a Washington Post account asserting that Iranian shipments were in the "hundreds of tons" range.

At the White House, press secretary Mike McCurry said "it would not be surprising" if an Iranian role in arming the Muslims were uncovered.

Administration spokesmen generally confined their statements about the issue to legalisms, brushing aside questions about political implications.

They pointed out that the embargo is the law of the land and the United States is duty-bound to support it. They also noted that Congress last year barred U.S. forces from having any role in enforcing the embargo, leaving to other countries the task of blocking any Bosnia-bound arms deliveries from Iran.

In view of U.N. mandates, State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said, "we look negatively on anything that would continue to fuel the conflict."

Diana wasn't on official business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Princess Diana wasn't on government business when she was spotted in a Banana Republic.

The Princess of Wales visited the clothing chain store Friday in the suburb of Chevy Chase, Md. She was accompanied by Luiz Antonio Flecha de Lima, the 19-year-old son of Brazilian Ambassador Paolo-Tarso Flecha de Lima and his wife Lucia, whom the princess is visiting.

Financial Focus

You've probably seen the TV commercials showing express-mail delivery to ranchers in the Australian outback, or turban-clad businessmen discussing computers in the mountains of Tibet.

The world is getting smaller. Advances in technology and communications, combined with the growing economies of more and more nations, are enabling an increasing number of companies to do business throughout the world.

Investors are benefiting from this trend: Today, they can choose from an ever-growing array of international and global investments. With this type of investing, it's vital to fully understand what you're buying. One of the first things to know about "global" or "international" investing is that even though these terms are used interchangeably, they actually have different meanings.

Global investments are companies domiciled or doing business in foreign countries and the United States. A global mutual fund will buy shares of companies anywhere in the world. International investments, on the other hand, are companies that are domiciled strictly in foreign countries.

In most cases, where a company is headquartered makes the difference. For example, Procter & Gamble, which is headquartered in the United States and distributes its products worldwide, is considered a global investment. However, if you buy the common stock of a Japanese company headquartered in Tokyo, you are an international investor, because the company is domiciled in a foreign country.

This may appear to be nothing more than sematics, but international and global investments can offer different levels of risk and reward.

You may be a global investor if you invest in a company that has sales in a foreign country or a mutual fund that buys shares of such companies. Numerous American corporations--many of them large and well known--derive substantial income from foreign sales. U.S. companies regularly expand into other countries not only through sales but also by capital investments such as factories. Companies such as Gillette, McDonald's and Coca-Cola earn significant revenue outside the United States.

Investors willing to assume a little more risk can invest internationally by purchasing mutual funds that invest in foreign-headquartered companies. This offers the opportunities of foreign investing combined with the protection of diversification.

International investing also can be done by buying individual shares of foreign companies. The simplest way to do this is to purchase American Depository Receipts (ADRs), which are negotiable securities traded just like common stock on U.S. securities exchanges. They are issued by U.S. depository banks that handle all administration, pay dividends in U.S. dollars after deducting applicable taxes and provide all statements and reports. More than 900 ADRs are available to U.S. investors. Many of the ADRs that trade on the New York Stock Exchange are well-known companies.

However, individual international stocks--even through ADRs--carry more risk than U.S. [illegible] can have a significant impact as evidenced by stocks that were subject to the sudden and drastic devaluation of the Mexican peso earlier this year. Consult a financial professional for assistance with global and international investments, especially ADRs.

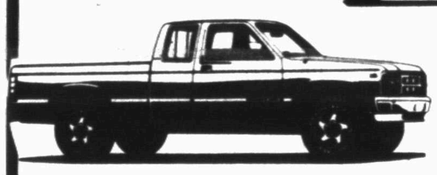

More and more investors are taking advantage of today's worldwide markets. If you want to be a part of this trend, be sure to understand the differences between international and global investing--and the risks and rewards of each--before you invest.

What causes this pain and stiffness?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis genetic? Does heredity play a part? Can you explain the difference between the two conditions, and is there home therapy or remedies to alleviate some of the pain and stiffness that result from both conditions?

DEAR READER: As we age, we become less efficient at repairing damaged tissue. During our younger years, normal wear and tear is so quickly repaired that we easily ignore the miraculous process. The joints are a prime example.

When we engage in everyday activities, the joint linings tend to wear down. When we're young, the body's reparative processes compensate for this.

However, in older adults, the joint linings remain worn, leading to the stiffness, pain and swelling called "osteoarthritis," a condition that will affect every one of us, sooner or later, to one degree or another.

The use of drugs, such as ibuprofen, will relieve symptoms but there is no antidote for the aging process.

In contrast, rheumatoid arthritis is an auto-immune disease, marked by severe inflammation of the joints, that can affect children as well as adults. The cause is unknown but, experts theorize, the body's immune system inappropriately attacks the joint linings, leading to pain, swelling and eventual destruction of the joints, unless treatment is given. Such therapy involves anti-inflammatory drugs, such as Voltaren and Naprosyn, as well as cortisone and other medicines, depending on the severity of the inflammation.

Neither form of arthritis is inherited, although as you can understand from my brief description, osteoarthritis does "run" in families whose members live to ripe old ages.

There are no satisfactory home remedies for these forms of arthritis — or any form, for that matter.

As a general rule, patients with age-related osteoarthritis suffer less handicap and can self-medicate themselves, whereas patients with inflammatory arthritis — such as the rheumatoid variety — usually require medical attention and the use of prescription drugs.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

To many doctors and patients, lasers have lost their science-fiction appeal and are now viewed as yet another weapon in the medical arsenal. When the first medical lasers were developed in the 1960s, only a few far-sighted physicians could have predicted the enormous benefits that have accrued from this remarkable technology.

Lasers (an acronym for Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation) are unique in that they generate an intense beam of energy in the form of photons, sharing an identical wavelength. A beam of light is energized by a variety of techniques.

As the molecules spontaneously return to a stable state, they shed photons that collide with other molecules, which — in turn — emit photons that collide with other molecules. When amplified in a resonator chamber (or tube), the energy of the photons increases until a threshold is reached and the laser beam bursts from the chamber/tube as an intense beam of energy that can sear, vaporize, cut or slice material, depending on the strength of the amplification.

Lasers differ according to their wavelengths (measured in nanometers) and the distribution of energy; these qualities depend on the medium within the laser tube. Blue-green argon lasers have a wavelength around 500 nm, yellow-light lasers 585 nm, and carbon lasers 10,600 nm (in the infrared range). The effect of lasers on tissue depends on several factors — ranging from the size of the target to the delivery rate — causing coagulation or (eventually) vaporization.

One of the reasons that lasers are so useful in treating skin disorders is that cutaneous tissue recovers from brief exposures without scarring, so that skin lesions may be merely "cooked" or can be utterly destroyed by high-energy, rapidly pulsed lasers, called Q-switched or flashlamp-excited lasers.

The argon variety is not as powerful as other lasers, but its beam can be "tuned" by varying its wavelength using optical crystals. Thus, it is well-suited for treating large areas of skin: birthmarks and vascular blemishes, for example.

The copper vapor laser is similarly used for vascular lesions and pigmented spots.

High-intensity lasers, notably the Q-switched variety, show great promise in fading tattoos. The energy is so great that the tattoo dye heats up rapidly and fragments, with virtually no scarring. Using this device, most tattoos can be eradicated without an anesthetic.

The carbon dioxide laser beam is absorbed by water. This characteristic permits astounding accuracy in destroying tissue. Moreover, once this laser has been applied, it minimizes bleeding. During healing, the skin remodels itself, with little or no scarring.

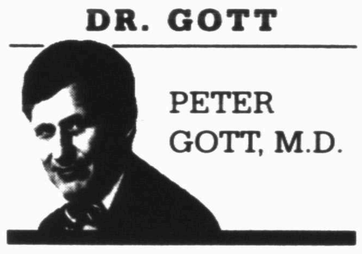

Carbon lasers are now routinely and successfully used to remove warts that are too extensive for traditional surgical therapy. These lasers are also suited to treating rhinophyma (the "W.C. Fields nose") and certain skin cancers. Research is now being conducted to test the efficiency of carbon lasers in treating keloids (excess scar formation).

In summary, laser therapy has come into its own as the preferred therapy for many dermatological conditions. The cosmetic results are often excellent and the procedure is less complicated by side effects than are other therapies, such as surgery and dermabrasion (sanding the skin lesions).

Patients must remember, however, that laser therapy is expensive and must be performed only by specialists versed in its use. Nonetheless, lasers have become a valuable method of treating many of mankind's oldest and most resistant skin disorders.

Clintons expecting tax refund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meeting Monday's tax deadline, President Clinton is entitled to a substantial refund but will apply a little more than half of it to next year's taxes.

The 1994 tax tab for Clinton and his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, is $55,313 on joint income of $263,900. The refund: $14,418.

The presidential couple joined the 36 million Americans who were expected to file in the final days and hours of the tax season. They wrapped up final details of their return in a meeting with their accountant and tax attorney Thursday night.

The help didn't come cheap. The Clintons paid $10,000 for legal and accounting work that went into preparing their tax returns and other issues. An additional $3,000 went to lawyers who prepared their annual financial disclosure form.

The Clintons overpaid their taxes by $14,418, and elected to apply $7,500 of that amount to their 1995 tax bill. They should get a refund check for $6,918.

For the Clintons, the tax bite works out to 21 percent of adjusted gross income. That places them among the 1.2 percent of well-off Americans paying more because of the deficit-reduction law that Clinton pushed through Congress in 1993.

Not that the president is complaining.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry, in fact, used the release of the Clintons' tax returns Friday as a launching pad for a new denunciation of Republican tax-cut proposals that the Democrats argue would unfairly profit the wealthy.

"It's clear from their returns that they would be enormous beneficiaries of tax cuts as proposed by the Republican majority in Congress and the president ... thinks that that's unfair and that tax relief ought to be targeted on middle-income Americans," McCurry told reporters. "As you can see from their return, they fall outside that category."

Most of the Clintons' income came from the president's $200,000 salary, supplemented by $38,000 in capital gains on holdings in their blind trust and $21,000 in interest and dividends.

Art project gets honor

An art project by Phi Theta Kappa executive board member Jennifer Beard of Snyder was recognized April 8 at PTK's national convention in Chicago.

Beard was among a group of PTK members attending the convention. She receieved an "Achievement in Art" certificate for her creation of a ceramic lamp.

The lamp represented a world globe and featured small ceramic figures linked hand-in-hand circling the world.

It was in keeping with the theme of this year's convention, "Science, Humanity and Technology: Shaping a New Creation."

WTC recital set April 23

Four Western Texas College sophomore music majors will perform their talents at the Sophomore Ritual Saturday, April 22, at 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Carrie Keith, a piano student of Bill Lyon, and Paul Hagood, a classical guitar student of Jon Palomaki, will each perform six selections.

Cliff Allmon, a voice student of Melanie Smith, will perform three vocal pieces, and Leroy Martinez, a trumpet student of Cathi McFaul, will also perform three selections.

The recital is free and open to everyone. There will be a reception in Room 102 of the Fine Arts Building following the performance.

WTC students, publications earn awards

Four Western Texas College students and both the campus newspaper and literary magazine received honors at the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association (TIPA) Convention April 6-8.

As a publication, the 1994 edition of the Aquifer was awarded third place in the single issue literary magazine division. Also, the campus newspaper, "Texan," was singled out for honorable mention honors in the overall category.

In individual awards, Texas staff photographer Jennifer Jones of Snyder received first place in Division 2's feature photo contest. The winning photograph was of a WTC bonfire last October.

In addition, she won second place in the sports feature photo category for a shot depicting bull-riding practice at the WTC Rodeo Arena.

In writing awards, Texan staff writer John Campos of Colorado City was awarded second place in the news story division. His article detailed a murder-suicide involving a WTC student in the late winter of 1994.

The newspaper competed in Division 3 comprised of two-and-four-year schools with campus enrollments of up to 3,000 students.

For the literary magazine, sophomore Kellye Block was awarded first place for her literary essay, "Just Five Minutes," which dealt with her difficulty in coming to terms with the early death of her father.

Also, Nancy Harris' "Meg's Poem" received honorable mention in the poetry competition.

Aquifer entries competed in Division 2, which includes two-and-four-year colleges with an enrollment of 6,000 or less.

Lady Tigers second at district track meet

Parra, Miller will represent boys at regionals

LUBBOCK — Snyder High School's Lady Tigers ran and jumped their way to second place in the District 5-4A Track & Field Championships at Coronado High School Friday, making room along the way to send five girls on to the regionals.

Two SHS boys also qualified, giving the Tigers seven students advancing to the Region I meet scheduled for April 28-29 in San Angelo.

Devon Reed paced the attack, taking three second places and accumulating 24 of the Lady Tigers' 108 total points. Reed leapt 16-feet, 8¼-inches in the long jump, and clocked 12.44 seconds in the 100 meters and 25.35 in the 200 meters.

Snyder's lone first place medal came in the high jump, where Melissa Horn cleared 5-2. Lady Tiger Raechelle Wemken tied with two other girls, including teammate Jina Miller, with a 5-foot jump. Wemken, who was competing in her first track meet of the year due to softball obligations, took second place by virtue of fewer misses.

Melissa Castro finished in second place in the 1,600 meter run with a time of 5:49.80, while teammate Jamie Prather finished just out of regional qualifying time with her third place time of 5:56.50.

First and second place finishers in each event advance to regionals.

Prather, however, did qualify for regionals in the 800 meters, as she clocked a 2:27.26 in probably the best race of the afternoon. Frenship's Michaela Leal edged Prather at the wire with a 2:27.25.

In the boys events, Melchor Parra and Jason Miller both finished second to advance to the regional meet.

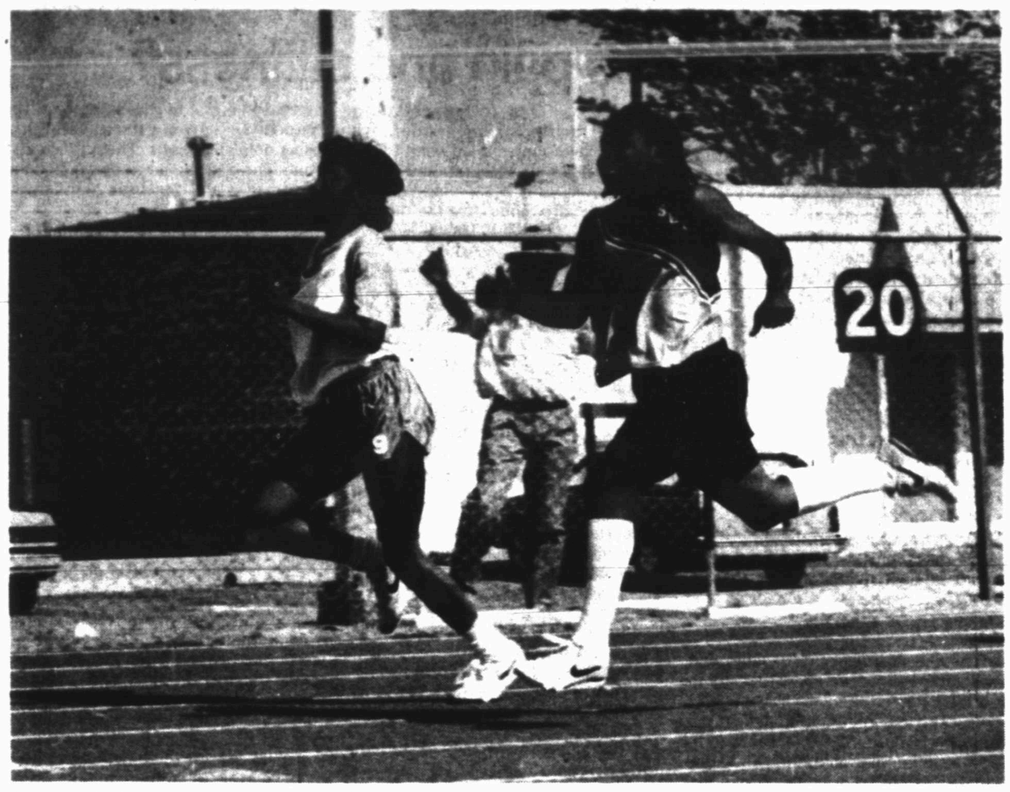

Parra, who was outdueled for second in the 3,200 meters, stayed close to eventual 1,600 winner Michael Sanford, from Frenship, and ended up second with a time of 4:55.95.

Miller also advanced with a second place finish in the 110 hurdles. He ran a 14.98, just .12 behind winner Phillip Lentz from Lamesa.

Other Snyder finalists were Kelly Clay (sixth in the long jump, third in the 100 and fourth in the 200), Tiffany Garza (fifth in the 300 hurdles), Melissa Castro (third in the 800), Chris Denson (third in the discus) and Ricky Post (fifth in the high jump).

The Levelland boys came away with the team title (146 points), while Frenship was second (114) and Sweetwater third (103). Snyder finished sixth with 39 points.

On the girls side, Frenship won the team title by 47 points over Snyder, 155-108. Estacado was third with 100 points.

LIFE IN THE FAST LANE — Snyder's Devon Reed and Estacado's Laquinta Manahan battle during the girls 200 meter finals of Friday's District 5-4A track meet at Lubbock Coronado. SHS quest for regional berth cut short

LEVELLAND — A solid rally in the final tournament of the District 5-4A race fell short Friday as the Snyder Tigers golf team missed the playoff by 21 strokes.

Faced with the task of catching second place Frenship in the final round, Frenship turned up the tempo themselves with a team score of 298.

Snyder shot a 311 on the last 18 holes which Coach Bob O'Day described as a good effort in the face of winds that gusted to 38 mph.

"Frenship, the team we were trying to catch, had an outstanding score of 298. I'm still proud of this group of kids, even though we didn't make the playoffs. They represented Snyder great."

Junior Carl Strelecki of Snyder had an outstanding final round of 71 and tied Lamesa's Bryan Hawkins for medalist honors in the final district tournament.

The 71 round earned Strelecki a place on the all-district team with a five-round total of 380, fourth in district medalist standings.

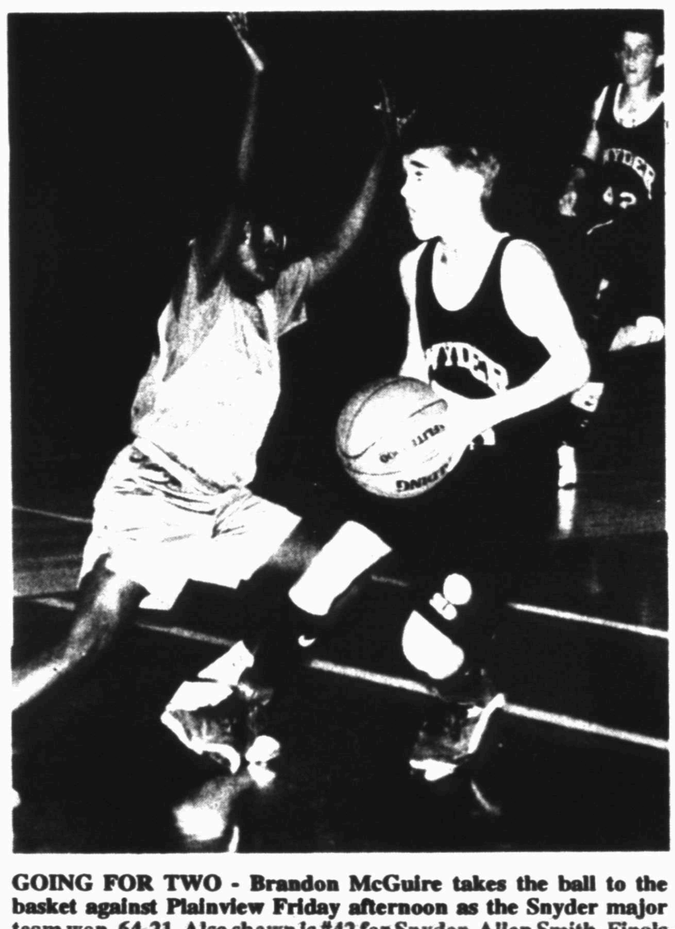

Tiger Page Patterson, who fired a 79 on Friday, made the all-district second team with a cumulative total pf 386, sixth in medalist standings.

Snyder's Bryan Word and Matt Parker were all-district honorable mention with totals of 406 through five rounds. Word had an 81 on Friday and Parker shot an 82. Shane Robinson carded an 80.

For the Snyder JV, sophomore Troy Allen shot an 81 followed with an 82 by James Pilgrim. John Purcell turned in an 84 while Jeff Levens added a 85 and Kraig Billingsley was at 100.

The Snyder junior varsity finished the district play in eighth place.

On Friday, district champ Lamesa shot only a 320 but finished the five-round tournament with 1,542. Frenship's 298 on Friday brought the runnerup's total to 1,552. Snyder's 311 pushed the season's total to 1,573.

Lady Tigers advance to regional golf event

LEVELLAND — From the first district meet up until Friday's finale, the District 5-4A girls golf title was never in doubt, as the Snyder Lady Tigers ran away from the rest of the pack.

Snyder captured a 197 stroke victory over second place Lamesa en route to its fourth straight trip to regionals under Head Coach Matt Glenn.

"It's pretty hard to stay focused throughout the season with a lead like that," Coach Glenn said. "Our kids have been able to compete at a high level all year. They have the confidence that they are going to go out and shoot low scores."

Brooke Lowrance finished the season as the district medalist by shooting 383 through five matches.

Five other Snyder players made the top ten list. Kayla Draine tied for second, Daysha Weaver was fifth, Kelli Lacik took sixth, Brooke Kubena placed seventh and Julie Doolittle ended up ninth.

The Lady Tigers will compete again on April 24-25, in the regional tournament at San Angelo's Riverside golf course.

Cowboys' Williams faces rape allegations

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys officials say they expect Erik Williams to continue rehabilitating a damaged knee, despite facing allegations that he sexually assaulted a 17-year-old girl.

The All-Pro offensive tackle has yet to make a public statement on the allegations, other to insist he is innocent.

Meanwhile, Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said he told Williams he can't allow the latest problems to influence the intense rehabilitation program the player has undergone since the wreck.

"It's part of life and we'll have to deal with it," said Switzer, the first team official to comment on the situation. "He has to come here and do what's expected of him. We have a goal to approach and an objective to reach and he'll have to work hard every day."

MLB pitching staffs behind in preparations

by The Associated Press

With a short spring training, all pitchers are scrambling to get ready for opening day. Greg Maddux, Chris Hammond and Tommy Greene will have even less time to prepare.

Maddux, who's won three straight Cy Young Awards, was diagnosed Friday with chicken pox. He is likely to miss his start when the Atlanta Braves begin the regular season on April 26 against San Francisco.

"It changes our game plan in that we will try to get Maddux ready for the fifth game as opposed to the first," Braves pitching coach Leo Mazzone said.

Hammond, the lone left-hander in Florida's rotation, was lifted in the first inning Friday with a pulled muscle in the left side of his rib cage.

Hammond, limited to 73 innings last season because of a lower back injury, was tagged for five hits and four runs while getting only two outs against the New York Mets.

"I did everything I could do to get myself ready," he said. "I stretched for 30 minutes before the game. I ran. Got sweaty. Then the second pitch I threw, I felt a little (pain) in my rib cage."

Greene, expected to be Philadelphia's No. 2 starter, reinjured his shoulder and will miss at least the first week of the season.

Greene missed most of last year after undergoing shoulder surgery. He said he was hurting after pitching two innings against Pittsburgh, and team doctor Phillip Marone said the right-hander had inflammation in his shoulder.

"Nobody's more disappointed than I am," Greene said.

Elsewhere in spring training, attendance seemed to be up. The Los Angeles Dodgers drew 3,383 for a game against the New York Yankees, almost double the 1,788 who saw Thursday's game at Vero Beach, Fla.

Junior Olympics Festival at Tiger Stadium Saturday

Attention potential gold medal winners. The annual Junior Olympics Festival for elementary grade students is planned for next Saturday at Tiger Stadium.

Competition starts at 9 a.m. and will run until 4 p.m. as students will compete by grades, kindergarten through sixth grade.

All students in elementary grades are eligible to enter, but they must first have completed an application form available at each elementary school. The entry form must be signed by a parent or guardian. Each student may compete in three events.

Schedule of events:

--9:30 a.m. — softball throw and running board jump.
--11 a.m. — 50 yard dash.
--noon — 400 yard run.
--12:30 p.m. — 100 yard dash.
--1:30 p.m. — buddy shuttle relay.
--2:30 p.m. — 200 yard run.
--3 p.m. - 400 yard relay.

In addition to the usual track and field events, game booths and concession stands will be operated.

All profits from the junior olympics festival, including the sale of T-shirts, will be divided evenly among the five elementary schools in Snyder.

Tech blasts UT for 26-17 victory

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech's Clint Bryant extended his school-record hitting streak to 28 games as the Red Raiders blasted 26 hits in the first five innings, then hung on for a 26-17 victory over Texas on Friday.

Bryant sent a 1-2 pitch from Texas starter J.D. Smart over the left field wall, giving Tech a 2-0 lead.

Matt Kastelic later scored for the Raiders (34-7 overall, 7-4 SWC) on an error by catcher J.P. Webb after stealing third that increased the lead to 3-0.

Tech sent 14 men to the plate in the second and went through three Texas (36-11, 9-7) pitchers. Beginning with a triple by center fielder Dominic Hernandez, the inning was highlighted by a two run triple by Bryant and a grand slam by shortstop Dion Ruecker.

Tech went back on the rampage in the fourth, sending 12 more batters to the plate, after a scoreless third. The Raiders scored eight more runs on seven hits, extending the lead to an incredible 20-1.

Lady Tigers second at district track meet

Parra, Miller will represent boys at regionals

LUBBOCK — Snyder High School's Lady Tigers ran and jumped their way to second place in the District 5-4A Track & Field Championships at Coronado High School Friday, making room along the way to send five girls on to the regionals.

Two SHS boys also qualified, giving the Tigers seven students advancing to the Region I meet scheduled for April 28-29 in San Angelo.

Devon Reed paced the attack, taking three second places and accumulating 24 of the Lady Tigers' 108 total points. Reed leapt 16-feet, 8¼-inches in the long jump, and clocked 12.44 seconds in the 100 meters and 25.35 in the 200 meters.

Snyder's lone first place medal came in the high jump, where Melissa Horn cleared 5-2. Lady Tiger Raechelle Wemken tied with two other girls, including teammate Jina Miller, with a 5-foot jump. Wemken, who was competing in her first track meet of the year due to softball obligations, took second place by virtue of fewer misses.

Melissa Castro finished in second place in the 1,600 meter run with a time of 5:49.80, while teammate Jamie Prather finished just out of regional qualifying time with her third place time of 5:56.50.

First and second place finishers in each event advance to regionals.

Prather, however, did qualify for regionals in the 800 meters, as she clocked a 2:27.26 in probably the best race of the afternoon. Frenship's Michaela Leal edged Prather at the wire with a 2:27.25.

In the boys events, Melchor Parra and Jason Miller both finished second to advance to the regional meet.

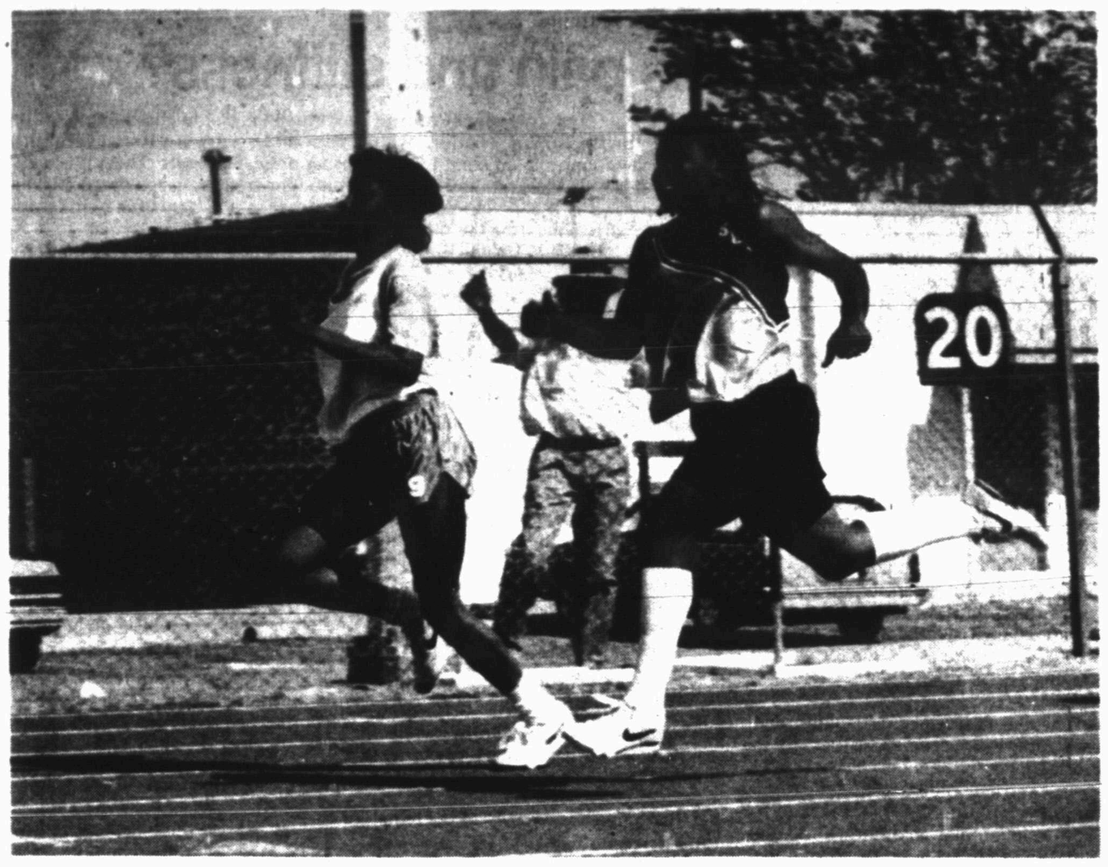

Parra, who was outdueled for second in the 3,200 meters, stayed close to eventual 1,600 winner Michael Sanford, from Frenship, and ended up second with a time of 4:55.95.

Miller also advanced with a second place finish in the 110 hurdles. He ran a 14.98, just .12 behind winner Phillip Lentz from Lamesa.

Other Snyder finalists were Kelly Clay (sixth in the long jump, third in the 100 and fourth in the 200), Tiffany Garza (fifth in the 300 hurdles), Melissa Castro (third in the 800), Chris Denson (third in the discus) and Ricky Post (fifth in the high jump).

The Levelland boys came away with the team title (146 points), while Frenship was second (114) and Sweetwater third (103). Snyder finished sixth with 39 points.

On the girls side, Frenship won the team title by 47 points over Snyder, 155-108. Estacado was third with 100 points.

Cowboys' Williams faces rape allegations

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys officials say they expect Erik Williams to continue rehabilitating a damaged knee, despite facing allegations that he sexually assaulted a 17-year-old girl.

The All-Pro offensive tackle has yet to make a public statement on the allegations, other to insist he is innocent.

Meanwhile, Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said he told Williams he can't allow the latest problems to influence the intense rehabilitation program the player has undergone since the wreck.

"It's part of life and we'll have to deal with it," said Switzer, the first team official to comment on the situation. "He has to come here and do what's expected of him. We have a goal to approach and an objective to reach and he'll have to work hard every day."

SHS quest for regional berth cut short

LEVELLAND — A solid rally in the final tournament of the District 5-4A race fell short Friday as the Snyder Tigers golf team missed the playoff by 21 strokes.

Faced with the task of catching second place Frenship in the final round, Frenship turned up the tempo themselves with a team score of 298.

Snyder shot a 311 on the last 18 holes which Coach Bob O'Day described as a good effort in the face of winds that gusted to 38 mph.

"Frenship, the team we were trying to catch, had an outstanding score of 298. I'm still proud of this group of kids, even though we didn't make the playoffs. They represented Snyder great."

Junior Carl Strelecki of Snyder had an outstanding final round of 71 and tied Lamesa's Bryan Hawkins for medalist honors in the final district tournament.

The 71 round earned Strelecki a place on the all-district team with a five-round total of 380, fourth in district medalist standings.

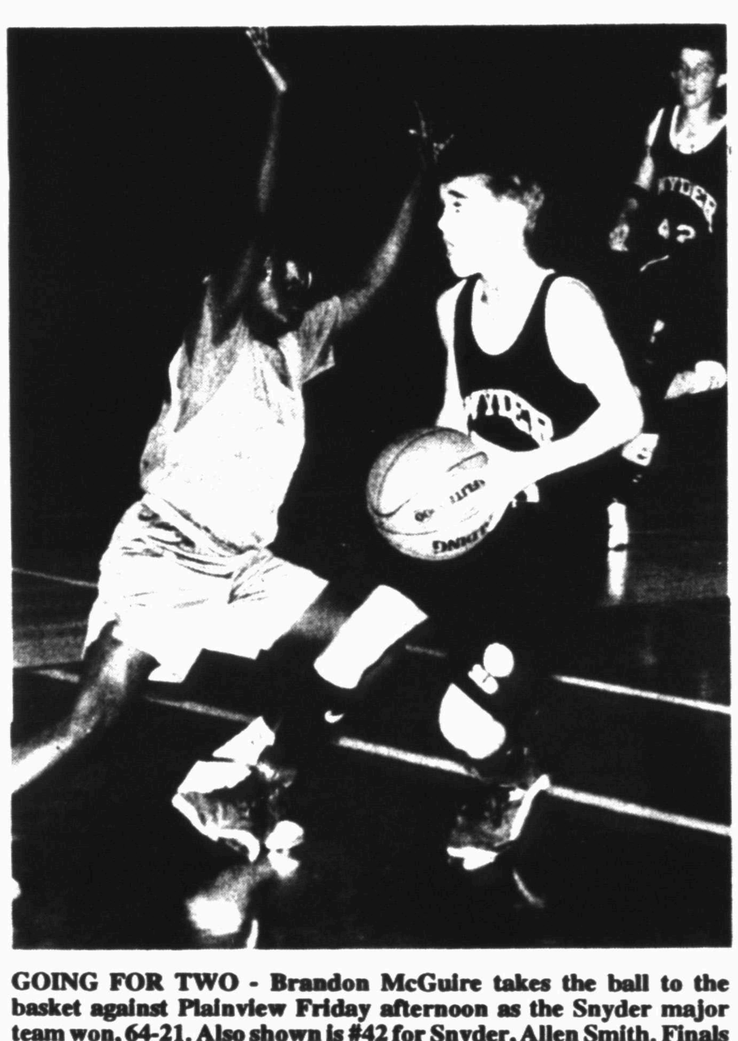

Tiger Page Patterson, who fired a 79 on Friday, made the all-district second team with a cumulative total pf 386, sixth in medalist standings.

Snyder's Bryan Word and Matt Parker were all-district honorable mention with totals of 406 through five rounds. Word had an 81 on Friday and Parker shot an 82. Shane Robinson carded an 80.

For the Snyder JV, sophomore Troy Allen shot an 81 followed with an 82 by James Pilgrim. John Purcell turned in an 84 while Jeff Levens added a 85 and Kraig Billingsley was at 100.

The Snyder junior varsity finished the district play in eighth place.

On Friday, district champ Lamesa shot only a 320 but finished the five-round tournament with 1,542. Frenship's 298 on Friday brought the runnerup's total to 1,552. Snyder's 311 pushed the season's total to 1,573.

Lady Tigers advance to regional golf event

LEVELLAND — From the first district meet up until Friday's finale, the District 5-4A girls golf title was never in doubt, as the Snyder Lady Tigers ran away from the rest of the pack.

Snyder captured a 197 stroke victory over second place Lamesa en route to its fourth straight trip to regionals under Head Coach Matt Glenn.

"It's pretty hard to stay focused throughout the season with a lead like that," Coach Glenn said. "Our kids have been able to compete at a high level all year. They have the confidence that they are going to go out and shoot low scores."

Brooke Lowrance finished the season as the district medalist by shooting 383 through five matches.

Five other Snyder players made the top ten list. Kayla Draine tied for second, Daysha Weaver was fifth, Kelli Lacik took sixth, Brooke Kubena placed seventh and Julie Doolittle ended up ninth.

The Lady Tigers will compete again on April 24-25, in the regional tournament at San Angelo's Riverside golf course.

MLB pitching staffs behind in preparations

by The Associated Press

With a short spring training, all pitchers are scrambling to get ready for opening day. Greg Maddux, Chris Hammond and Tommy Greene will have even less time to prepare.

Maddux, who's won three straight Cy Young Awards, was diagnosed Friday with chicken pox. He is likely to miss his start when the Atlanta Braves begin the regular season on April 26 against San Francisco.

"It changes our game plan in that we will try to get Maddux ready for the fifth game as opposed to the first," Braves pitching coach Leo Mazzone said.

Hammond, the lone left-hander in Florida's rotation, was lifted in the first inning Friday with a pulled muscle in the left side of his rib cage.

Hammond, limited to 73 innings last season because of a lower back injury, was tagged for five hits and four runs while getting only two outs against the New York Mets.

"I did everything I could do to get myself ready," he said. "I stretched for 30 minutes before the game. I ran. Got sweaty. Then the second pitch I threw, I felt a little (pain) in my rib cage."

Greene, expected to be Philadelphia's No. 2 starter, reinjured his shoulder and will miss at least the first week of the season.

Greene missed most of last year after undergoing shoulder surgery. He said he was hurting after pitching two innings against Pittsburgh, and team doctor Phillip Marone said the right-hander had inflammation in his shoulder.

"Nobody's more disappointed than I am," Greene said.

Elsewhere in spring training, attendance seemed to be up. The Los Angeles Dodgers drew 3,383 for a game against the New York Yankees, almost double the 1,788 who saw Thursday's game at Vero Beach, Fla.

Junior Olympics Festival at Tiger Stadium Saturday

Attention potential gold medal winners. The annual Junior Olympics Festival for elementary grade students is planned for next Saturday at Tiger Stadium.

Competition starts at 9 a.m. and will run until 4 p.m. as students will compete by grades, kindergarten through sixth grade.

All students in elementary grades are eligible to enter, but they must first have completed an application form available at each elementary school. The entry form must be signed by a parent or guardian. Each student may compete in three events.

Schedule of events:

--9:30 a.m. — softball throw and running board jump.
--11 a.m. — 50 yard dash.
--noon — 400 yard run.
--12:30 p.m. — 100 yard dash.
--1:30 p.m. — buddy shuttle relay.
--2:30 p.m. — 200 yard run.
--3 p.m. - 400 yard relay.

In addition to the usual track and field events, game booths and concession stands will be operated.

All profits from the junior olympics festival, including the sale of T-shirts, will be divided evenly among the five elementary schools in Snyder.

Tech blasts UT for 26-17 victory

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech's Clint Bryant extended his school-record hitting streak to 28 games as the Red Raiders blasted 26 hits in the first five innings, then hung on for a 26-17 victory over Texas on Friday.

Bryant sent a 1-2 pitch from Texas starter J.D. Smart over the left field wall, giving Tech a 2-0 lead.

Matt Kastelic later scored for the Raiders (34-7 overall, 7-4 SWC) on an error by catcher J.P. Webb after stealing third that increased the lead to 3-0.

Tech sent 14 men to the plate in the second and went through three Texas (36-11, 9-7) pitchers. Beginning with a triple by center fielder Dominic Hernandez, the inning was highlighted by a two run triple by Bryant and a grand slam by shortstop Dion Ruecker.

Tech went back on the rampage in the fourth, sending 12 more batters to the plate, after a scoreless third. The Raiders scored eight more runs on seven hits, extending the lead to an incredible 20-1.

SNS needs money, volunteers

Snyder Neighbors Sharing workday is April 29, and the non-profit organization is looking for volunteers and donations.

Since its organization in 1988, Snyder Neighbors Sharing has repaired more than 100 homes.

This year, Snyder Neighbors Sharing had more than 40 applicants. Each application is reviewed to see that it meets the organization's by-laws. After screening, members of the board of directors visit the home of each applicant. When it has been established that the application meets all criteria, it is placed on the project list.

"About the only limitations to the organization is the amount of donations that we receive and the number of workers that we have each year," said Thomas Fogleman, SNS board president.

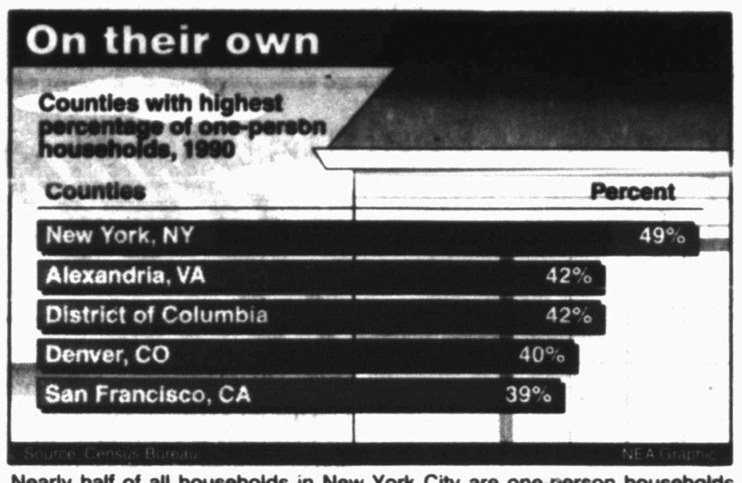

Donations are down this year, but the need of elderly or disabled homeowners still exists.

All donations are tax-deductable and may be mailed to Snyder Neighbors Sharing, P.O. Box 1072, Snyder, Texas 79550, or may be given to any SNS board officer.

Officers are Fogleman; Kim Hall, vice president; Jerry Martin, secretary; and Julie Sentell, treasurer.

All donations received by SNS are spent locally.

Any member of the community is welcome to work on April 29. Fogleman said that many of the local churches and civic organizations will have crews which will be assigned a work duty for that day. Anyone who would like to volunteer their time is encouraged to contact Fogleman, principal at West Elementary, for details.

Nearly half of all households in New York City are one-person households — the highest percentage of any place in the country.

Obituaries

Ada Stallings

1903-1995

ABERNATHY — Ada Stallings, a former resident of Snyder, died Friday at her home in Abernathy.

Service for Mrs. Stallings, 91, was set for 4 p.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church.

Born in Ellis County, she married Harold H. Stallings on Dec. 27, 1930 in Clovis, N.M. He died in 1994. The family moved from Snyder to Abernathy in 1947.

A homemaker, she was a member of the Abernathy First Baptist Church.

Survivors include two sons, Lenoy Stallings of Abernathy and Charlie Stallings of Lubbock; two daughters, Nada Gates of Midland and Geneva Scott of Abernathy; two brothers, Lowell Beaty of Wolfforth and J.D. Beaty of Giddings; seven grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

Myrtle Austin

1904-1995

Services are pending at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home for Myrtle Austin, 91, of Lubbock who died Saturday in Bender Terrace Nursing Home.

Born on Jan. 27, 1904, she was preceded in death by her husband, John Austin. She was a housewife.

Survivors include a daughter, Trixie Austin of Lubbock, and one son, Ted Austin of Ft. Walton Beach, Fla.

Willie Duncan

1924-1995

BIG SPRING — Willie Jo Duncan, the mother of Rosalie New of Snyder, died Wednesday in a Lubbock hospital.

Funeral service for Mrs. Duncan is set for 2 p.m. Monday in the Nalley-Pickel-Welch Funeral Home Rosewood Chapel. Burial will follow in Trinity Memorial Park.

Born in Trent, she married Lloyd H. Duncan on Oct. 25, 1941 in Monahans. She was an artist and homemaker.

Mrs. Duncan was a charter member of the Laura B. Hart Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, and she had served as worthy matron. She was also a member of the Past Matron Gavel Club.

Other survivors include her husband, Lloyd Duncan of Big Spring; a son, Buddy Duncan of Big Spring; two other daughters, Peggy Jo Ince of Hurst and Linda McCormick of Levelland; a sister, Johnnie Williams of St. Peters, Mo.; eight grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Henry Armstrong, the great triple champion in boxing, lost his first fight while using the name of Melody Jackson.

Snyder man recants story on abduction

A Snyder resident has recanted his story of being abducted from a roadside park in Garza County, area law enforcement officers said.

Albert Mack Taylor, a former Snyder High School Spanish teacher, told authorities in Post that he had been abducted by gun point and knife point on March 8 and forced to drive to Lubbock where he was forced to withdraw cash advances on his credit cards. According to Garza County autorities, Taylor said that he was robbed of more than $61,500 in cash and $15,000 worth of jewelry.

However, he told Garza County deputy Randy Johnston this past week that the abduction never occurred and he withdrew the money to pay debts.

Johnston said Friday that he had filed a complaint with the Garza county attorney against Taylor for making false reports to a police officer, a Class B misdemeanor.

Taylor had earlier told Johnston that he had been forced to withdraw some $5,100 from the first bank he and the alleged abductor stopped at in Lubbock and later was forced to drive to a branch bank of the American Bank of Commerce of Wolfforth where he withdrew $25,000 in cash and was issued a cashier's check for $31,400 — all from cash advances on credit cards.

Taylor said he was later forced to cash the cashier's check at the main bank in Wolfforth.

He then told Johnston that he and the abductor drove back to Post where he was later released at the roadside park on the Caprock but not before the man took $165 in cash and $12,000 to $15,000 in jewelry.

Taylor said the man threw the keys into the pasture and told him not to leave for "8 or 10 minutes" or "he would be taken care of."

Taylor said he waited approximately 20 minutes before leaving by using an ignition key he kept hidden on his vehicle, then drove back to Snyder.

Johnston said Taylor, upon arriving back home, called his credit card companies and reported the theft and then notified the Garza County Sheriff's Department.

Deputy Johnston said other law enforcement agencies are also investigating the incident and other charges could also be filed.

Busy 24-hour period for area peace officers

Three people were arrested Friday and five more early Saturday morning as local law enforcement agencies had a busy 24 hours.

A 41-year-old male was arrested for public intoxication at Lake Thomas by DPS troopers at 4:17 p.m. Friday. The arrest followed a one-vehicle accident near the DJ Country Store which was reported at 3:22 p.m. An ambulance was dispatched but cancelled because there were no injuries.

Two people were arrested at 8th Street and College Avenue at 11:44 p.m. Friday following a report of a fight behind the Town & Country convenience store.

Arrested were a 20-year-old male who was charged with Class C assault/family violence and a 20-year-old female who was charged with Class C assault/family violence and public intoxication.

Three people were taken into custody at 1:33 a.m. Saturday from the 4000 block of Eastridge and all were charged with public intoxication. Arrested were a 20-year-old female, a 20-year-old male and and 22-year-old male.

Two people were arrested at 3:06 a.m. Saturday at Allsup's and charged with public intoxication. Taken into custody were a 29-year-old male and a 21-year-old male.

Local officers are also investigating a report of a burglary of a building in the 1300 block of 23rd Street that was reported at 11:08 a.m. Friday.

The fire department responded to a report of a dumpster fire in the 200 block of 35th Street at 3:35 p.m. Friday.

A report of a juvenile runaway was submitted at 5:40 p.m. Friday in reference to a 14-year-old female leaving her home from the 200 block of 33rd Street.

Officers were notified at 6:08 p.m. Friday of an assault on a man that occurred at the College Park Apartments.

A report of a prowler was made at midnight Friday from the 200 block of 20th Street.

A report of a stolen vehicle was made at 2:17 a.m. Saturday in reference to a pickup missing from the parking lot at Scurry County Coliseum. The vehicle was later located inside the building.

A report of a husband assaulting his wife was made at 3:16 a.m. Saturday from a residence on county road 395.

Officers were called to Grimmitt Brothers Construction at 5:59 a.m. Saturday in reference to a burglary. A small amount of money was reported taken.

Tax office

Currently, the process takes about 10 weeks.

The office will reopen on Friday, April 21. At that time, employees will begin using the new system to perform registration and title transactions.

"As with any new system, there will be some problems. TxDot is continually working to correct these. We are asking the Scurry County residents to please bear with us as we begin this new system," said Sikes. "This will connect all 254 counties in the state to the Austin department."

Cadena fund established

A medical fund has been established at West Texas State Bank for David Cadena, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident on March 6.

All donations will be appreciated.

HISD board

Hermleigh ISD board will hold a special meeting at 6 p.m. Wednesday to consider the purchase of mowing equipment.

WTC formal

The Western Texas College Spring Formal will be held at 8:30 p.m Wednesday in the cafeteria. Z-93 will be the DJ.

Campus favorites will be recognized and Mr. and Miss WTC will be presented.

Open house

Scurry County Mental Health Clinic, 1911 40th St., will have an open house from 1-5 p.m. Friday, April 21. The public is invited.

Astro-graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, April 16, 1995

Your characteristics of hard work and fair play will help you achieve your goals in the year ahead. Stick to your virtues and you'll get past obstacles that hinder others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though the results you hope to attain today might be difficult to achieve, don't try to make yourself feel better by blaming others for your problems. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Bite your tongue if you have to put up with a difficult individual today. The eventual cooperation you'll receive will outweigh the current discomfort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For most people, this is a day of rest. If you're inclined to work, do so without expecting or demanding those around you to pitch in and help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful not to involve a frugal friend in a costly activity he/she cannot afford today. Make sure that you don't get caught up in anything you can't afford either.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Regardless of how insignificant something appears to you, don't discuss infractions that happen in the confines of your home with outsiders.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends will lose patience with you today if you refuse to discuss something that's bothering you. They can't help correct the unknown.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not use funds earmarked for a serious expenditure on something frivolous today. You may not be able to afford what you need later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something nasty someone might say about you today could turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Just to prove him/her wrong, you'll do something very impressive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you do not know well might insist on trying to help you with a critical matter today. You should politely refuse his/her offer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Allow your past experiences to dictate your responses to a person you're involved with today. Try not to measure this individual by what he/she does today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might fall short of your mark if you try to achieve an objective with a reluctant ally. You need a cohort who is as determined as you are.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You mustn't let your pride get in the way today if you get into something that turns out to be over your head. Your ego won't help, but a smart assistant might.

Your Birthday

Monday, April 17, 1995

For an individual who typically prefers to go it alone, you may find the coming year unusual in that you will probably form several partnerships. They each should work out rather well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others might become bored with the long-winded comments of a friend today, but you won't. Something this person might say will inspire you with new hope and enthusiasm. Major changes are ahead for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to devote your energy and efforts to a promising joint endeavor today. This project could spin off more than one good thing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your desire to get along with others could be quite strong today and this could impel you to look for their qualities rather than their frailties.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something materially advantageous might start showing new signs of life today. However, be patient with this situation; you might not reap rewards right away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel inclined to gamble today, don't take chances on things, take chances on people. Bet on those who have been lucky for you in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might be unusually fortunate; most things will work out to your ultimate benefit. Focus on major matters you would like to finalize and nail down.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Involve yourself with friends who stimulate your imagination today. Bouncing ideas off the right individuals could generate some interesting concepts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A situation that hasn't looked too promising up until now, might have more life left in it than you realize. Do yourself a favor and study it in depth today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who thought you were wishy-washy could be in for a big surprise today when he/she sees how firm and determined you can be when it really counts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not discount your logic, but pay heed to your hunches in business affairs today. Your intuition might be exceptionally keen in this venue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't need to put on any airs today to have the kind of magic, glamour and charisma that could be especially appealing to members of the opposite sex.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A close confidant might pass on some confidential information today that, if properly interpreted and utilized, may put you ahead of your nearest competitor.

Radioactive materials said mishandled

BOSTON (AP) — Radioactive material is tossed into the trash and buried in a landfill. Eight people are unknowingly exposed when radioactive waste leaks from a container because someone forgot to put the plug in. Labs with radioactive materials are left unlocked and unsupervised.

These incidents, and similar ones, occurred not at an irresponsible corporation or in a bad B-movie plot, but at Harvard, Boston University, the University of Massachusetts and other schools.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission documents obtained by The Associated Press under the Freedom of Information Act show that Massachusetts universities have what a Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspector called a "cavalier" attitude toward the handling and disposal of radioactive material.

The inspector singled out one school in particular: Harvard, which was cited at least eight times in the last 10 years for violating NRC regulations.

The documents showed that radioactive material has been illegally thrown into the trash at least seven times by four different Massachusetts institutions in the last eight years. Authorities suspect it now sits buried in municipal landfills — though they don't know where.

Four of these instances occurred at the Boston University medical school, where a radiology instrument containing radioactive material was accidently thrown into the a trash compactor in December 1987 and hauled to a landfill south of Boston.

On March 13, 1989, radioactive material was discovered missing from a BU lab. Six months later, a vial containing radioactive phosphorous was left in a hallway trash pile and disposed of in an unknown landfill. And on Oct. 4, 1993, a housekeeping employee threw another container of radioactive phosphorus into the trash.

BU's associate director of environmental health, James Bove, called the problems isolated incidents, and said procedures have been changed.

Robert Hallisey, director of the state's Radiation Control Program, called college students and professors "lackadaisical" about the issue.

"People are in deep denial about the potential hazard to themselves and the potential harm that they are doing to completely unknowing people," said Mary Olson, who was accidentally exposed to radiation when she was a Yale University researcher.

NRC documents show that in addition to inadequately disposing of radioactive waste, the universities violated safe handling rules and had several accidents.

JESUS IS THE TRUTH
John 14:6

Homer Anderson

Jesus is the personification of the truth. He came to reveal the truth about God, to demonstrate to us what God is like. He said, "And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). Again He said, speaking to God, "Thy word is truth" (John 17:17). Only truth can set us free from sin and the most profound truth in all the universe is the confession Peter made concerning Jesus, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Matthew 16:16). This is the fundamental truth of the Christian religion. This is the essential element in true Christian faith. This is the creed of Christians through all ages.

Showboat sails

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — Kenny Rogers has put his money on a belle with no taste for liquor or high rollers.

The $13 million Showboat Branson Belle, co-owned by Rogers, set off on its maiden voyage Thursday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Calling it the "height of hypocrisy," Police Chief Willie Williams condemned O.J. Simpson's attorneys for joking about a police criminalist's Asian surname and handing out fortune cookies in court.

Willie Williams said Friday that the actions were particularly galling in light of their allegations that sheriff's deputies fueled racial animosity among sequestered jurors.

"To have members of the defense team, who are defending a minority and some of them are minorities themselves, to make any statement that infers a racial slur is outrageous," Williams told The Associated Press.

Several Asian-American advocacy groups joined Williams in protesting the lawyers' conduct regarding Dennis Fung.

Attorney Robert Shapiro handed out fortune cookies to two friends Thursday as the defense team gloated over the withering cross-examination of Fung, its best performance in the case to date. A reporter overheard Shapiro tell authors Joe McGinnis and Dominick Dunne, "These are from Dennis Fung."

Dunne said Friday that Shapiro told him, "This is from Hang Fung restaurant." There is no telephone listing for such a restaurant in metropolitan Los Angeles.

Defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. also roamed the courtroom halls saying, "We're having Fung."

In the interview, Williams staunchly supported Fung and rejected defense claims that the 11-year LAPD employee was a stooge in a police conspiracy against Simpson. Early in the case, the chief was criticized for failing to back his department more aggressively against attacks by the Simpson camp.

"What we saw this week is prong four of probably a nine-to-10 prong (defense) assault," Williams said. "... Who are they going to accuse next week? And the week after?"

Williams said he would write the defense team seeking an explanation for what he called "an insult to Mr. Fung, an insult to Asian-Americans, and an insult to the Asian-American judge."

"If this was an LAPD officer using those terms, or handing out fortune cookies in the court, the media and the public would be outraged and calling for their heads on a silver platter," he said.

Shapiro said he was misquoted but did not elaborate. There was no answer at Cochran's office Friday afternoon.

Angelo Ancheta, executive director of the public interest Asian Law Caucus in San Francisco, said the behavior was unacceptable.

"It's the same kind of thing Sen. (Alfonse) D'Amato did in mocking Judge Ito's Japanese accent," Ancheta said, referring to the New York senator's parody of the judge speaking with a thick accent. D'Amato, who made the remarks on a radio show, eventually apologized on the Senate floor.

"It's still very racist," Ancheta said. "What's the reason to hand out fortune cookies other than to highlight that the witness is Chinese-American?"

Said Guy Aoki of the Media Action Network for Asian-Americans: "I think it's really ironic. Here the defense team is accusing a police force of [illegible] and they're fostering racism themselves. It's ignorant and backward."

TASP review sessions set

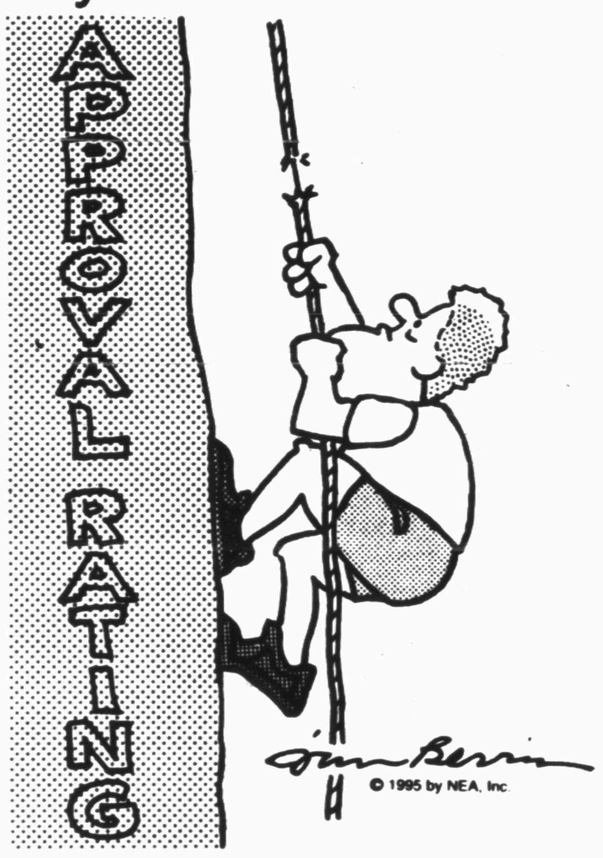

The English, math and reading departments at Western Texas College will sponsor two TASP review sessions Thursday.

Two review sessions are planned at 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. in Building 7-B, Room 101. To register for the sessions, students should contact an instructor in either of the three departments or call 573-5411, ext. 246. There are signup sheets in Buildings 2-B and 7-B on campus.

The sessions are to prepare students for the TASP exam, to be offered next Saturday, April 22. Other TASP test dates are June 3 and July 15.

The TASP test is required by the State of Texas. All students entering college must pass all sections of the TASP before they are allowed to complete more than nine hours of college-level work.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Rick Perry recognizes Scurry County family

More than one-hundred years ago, D.A. Jones of McClellan County in Central Texas, rode a one-horse cart in search of a new home. He found it in Scurry County. Some of his descendants are still living on and working the land today.

Part of that original homestead, now owned by D.A.'s son, C.D. "Pat" Jones, 95, was recently honored in Austin by Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry as part of the 21st annual Family Land Heritage Ceremony.

The family, represented at the ceremony by James Aaron, grandson, was recognized for having kept their land in continuous agriculture production for at least 100 years. The family will receive a plaque, which they hope to erect at the site where D.A. first arrived in Scurry County.

In order to qualify for the recognition, James said the family had to first compile all of the paperwork such as deed records, etc. Bob Doolittle, who served as county judge when they first began the certification process helped them compile what they needed, James said. While searching through old records, he said they also discovered the original papers for the first 80 acres.

Odyne, 92, Pat's wife, said she sought the recognition for her husband, father-in-law and grandson.

1939, D.A. divided the land (which then included more than the original 80 acres) between Pat and two other sons, Wallace and Mert, who are both deceased. Everyone drew lots for their share.

Odyne said each son added to what they had been given. In addition to the land, the brothers also received part of the debt for the original acres.

Pat and Odyne lived on his share of the land until his ill health forced them to move to town. Since 1993, he has been a patient in the long term care wing of Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Odyne has a room next to his.

D.A.'s younger brother, W.C., accompanied him on that fateful journey more than a century ago. As they "looked over the country," the flat land near Fluvanna, dotted with cow trails, apparently appealed to them, Odyne said.

During their survey, they encountered two cowboys camped on the land and obtained permission from them to settle there if they returned. That was in 1892. The cowboys worked for the Jumbo Cattle Company which ran lots of cattle in those days.

D.A. and W.C. eventually returned to McClellan County where they packed up a caravan of wagons, horses, milk cows and mules for the journey to their new home.

Pat's mother, Annie, who was 16 when she married, accompanied her husband. Pat's parents bought 80 acres and Annie's Aunt Annie also bought 80 acres from the state, one-fourth of a section in all. She lived with her niece and husband after they moved to Scurry County.

D.A. lived to be 95, but W.C. died young after a load of lumber fell on him. D.A's descendants continue to live on the land. However, not all of the land is eligible for the same recognition that Pat's farm and ranch has received.

In 1892, the absence of fences made it difficult for D.A. and Annie to know where the boundariers of their 80 acres were. When he and his wife first moved to the Fluvanna area, they lived in a dugout which had been constructed on land next to their homestead. Eventually, they built their own dugout, adding a wooden floor rather than the commonly used dirt floors and a flue.

They were "happy as can be," Odyne said. In later years, churches and schools were organized nearby and eventually Light, later renamed Fluvanna, was developed.

Annie was very active in church work and was a co-founder of the Fluvanna Presbyterian Church which began with eight charter members.

Aunt Annie's brother, D.C. McGregor, also bought acreage in the Fluvanna area known as Section 484.

The original Light settlement boasted a post office. It received its name from McGregor who was the first merchant to send in a request for a post office, Odyne said.

Later the community was renamed Fluvanna, a name suggested by a surveyor.

D.A. and Annie fenced their land, Odyne said, so they could run cattle on it. They also planted four acres of cane in a corner section for their milk cow and horses. However, they mistakenly let their cow graze when the cane was still green and it killed her.

He later planted cotton on those same acres. Milo and maize were

SUNSHINE ON THE PRAIRIE
The Story of Cynthia Ann Parker
By Jack C. Ramsay, Jr.

Nine-year-old Cynthia Ann Parker was living on the edge of the Texas frontier with her family, the clan of Baptist elder John Parker, when a band of Comanches surprised defenders of the little fort. They killed several members of the Parker family and took into captivity Cynthia Ann, along with other members of the family. Thus began the story of the "white Indian: and her son, Quanah, last and most famous of the Comanche war chiefs.

DEEP CREEK MERCHANT
The Story of William Henry "Pete" Snyder
By Charles G. Anderson

Pete Snyder spent less than four years living around Deep Creek. The town was named for him, but probably Snyder did not plan it that way when he first started a business here in 1878. They just called the new store along Deep Creek, "Snyder's Place," and he never tried to change their minds.

Settlers: Some traveled through as early as 1849. Others came later and settled, but they all made a contribution to West Texas.

Buffalo: They brought the Indian and the white man together on the prairie. The Indians and the buffalo were destroyed.

Indians: They were fighting for a lost cause. Even when they broke away from the reservation and returned to Deep Creek, it was never the same. The buffalo were gone from the plains forever.

also planted to feed to their horses and mules, Odyne said.

D.A. eventually planted cotton to sell. In those days, it had to be hand harvested and was used to make quilts and many other useful products.

Odyne described D.A. as "one of best men I ever knew." He was very "community minded" and drove a mail hack for several years. As it was very hard work, he added a partner in later years.

D.A.'s oldest son, Wallace, was born in the dugout. Pat, who was born in 1900, and a younger brother, Mert, were both born in a home which D.A. had moved from Snyder.

In later years, Odyne said D.A. would let travelers stay in the dugout he had built. A main road passed through D.A.'s land.

Cattle was the best "money maker" in D.A.'s time and he eventually also got into the cattle business. By 1915, he had established the first Hereford herd in the county. He really liked those "white-faced cows," Odyne said.

D.A. also planted sudan for his Herefords, not then realizing that it caused "bad eyes" in those cows. His cattle were also plagued by screw worms and had to be doctored, she explained.

D.A. and Annie were "very hospitable" and built a "big house" which was "more like a hotel" on their property. They later added corrals and barns, including a big red one.

The big house was considered rather fancy for its day as it had a bathroom and other conveniences.

In later years, D.A. slipped on a scatter rug and broke his hip. He was hospitalized in Abilene for a time and then he and Annie moved to town.

In 1952, D.A. and Annie moved into their last home, located on 20th Place in Snyder. They both died at home, with D.A. passing away after living there a scant two or three months.

Annie lived until 1965; however, she injured herself in a fall in 1961 and was an invalid for the remaining years of her life. A couple in town cared for her. Pat and his brothers eventually gave the home on 20th Place to the couple who had cared for their mother.

Mert and his wife, Ruby, were killed in a car accident in 1967. Mert's children are Don Jones and Janie Williard.

Wallace died in 1987. His children are Wallace Jones Jr. and Bill Jones.

Pat and Odyne's only daughter, Patsy Fee, died in 1984 at the age of 55. She loved the farm and ranch, Odyne said, and was the first woman to graduate from the animal husbandry program at Texas Tech University.

Odyne said her daughter's dream was to become a veterinarian, but at that time women were not accepted into veterinary schools.

James, Patsy's only child and Pat and Odyne's only grandson, now lives on the land which he will one day inherit. He lived with his grandparents for several years, starting in 1972. In 1982, he moved a doublewide mobile home onto the land and has been living there ever since.

He runs cattle and plants wheat and oats, a hybrid sudan and cotton. He attended school in Fluvanna for five years. He and his mother moved to New Mexico around 1952. She remarried in 1962 and for a time, James said, they lived south of Loraine. He attended school in Colorado City until the 11th grade.

He attended a military school in Missouri his senior year and then completed two years of junior college. From 1971-1972 he completed the Texas Christian University's ranch management program.

While growing up, James remembers working on the farm-ranch with his granddad.

Until illness forced him to quit, Pat worked his ranch and continued to pay Social Security taxes, which just amazed SS representatives who periodically came out to check on him, he said during the 1989 interview.

He also recalled daily mail runs and getting their first family car in 1915. People traveling through the county always stopped to visit his family while he was growing up.

Pat attended two terms at the Light School. At first, the teacher taught classes in her home and everyone in the class was able to play with her baby.

Since Fluvanna then had only 10 grades, Pat graduated at the age of 15. He signed up to attend classes at Trinity University, but came home because he was homesick.

Instead, he returned to the family farm-ranch and devoted his life to it.

At one time, Fluvanna also experienced a building boom with as many as five churches being erected there at one time, Odyne said. It also boasted three lumber yards. Another popular draw were cattle pens set up by the railroad.

Odyne said she and her husband have always been "sentimental about Fluvanna." Over the years, they watched it grow and expand and then begin to decline in the 1940s.

Odyne's grandfather, Dr. J.T. Jones (no relation to Pat) came to Fluvanna from Electra. He was a doctor and practiced until he went blind at the age of 87.

Odyne graduated from Snyder High School in 1921. She earned a teaching degree at Texas Christian University and taught for a year in Brady before returning home to marry Pat, whom she had known most of her life. They had become "best friends," she said, long before they were married on May 20, 1923. The couple will celebrate their 72nd anniversary next month.

This article was based on recent conversations with Odyne and James, an April 16, 1989, Scurry County Folks Column which featured Pat and his wife, and "Footprints Across Scurry County."

RECOGNITION — The Jones-Aaron Farm and Ranch in Scurry County has been honored by Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry for being family-owned land kept in agricultural production for at least 100 years. James J. Aaron, grandson of Pat and Odyne Jones, left, accepted the award recently in Austin. (Contributed Photo)

"The Garden Editor"

by Dr. Ted Brice

The home of Munson Daylilies is the Wimberlyway Gardens at Gainsville, Fla.

Few people have dominated any human endeavor as much as R. William Munson Jr. has prevailed over the world of daylily cultivation. With 156 national titles, he has won more daylily awards than anyone else, but, he hardly looks competitive at all. He combines the look of an artist with the tone of a scientist. This is not strange, because despite his achievements in the world of horticulture, he is a professional architect — a business where form and function must combine in a beauty that stands.

As a nybridizer, his goals are achieved through gradual refinement of characteristics over generations of mixing the daylily variations. Five important areas for breeding variations include color, brightness, substance, form and pattern, which are combined or highlighted to yield the most pleasing daylily.

Other characteristics that help distinguish daylilies include size, shape and texture, but there are no hard and fast rules for determining just which characterictics will yield the most pleasing outcome. Though he has consistently developed winners, he says, "the ultimate test of what's the right combination of characteristics is what the public likes and enjoys."

This makes his hybridizing very challenging. He must anticipate what the public will demand, perhaps years before those variations can be combined, and then hope that nature will permit such comibinations. It was Bill Munson who introduced colored edges and made watermark pattern a personal signature. Another of his trademarks is the ivory throat, where a faint light eye glows gently at the base of the flower's petals.

He sees the future of daylilies as virtually unlimited. The daylily is lucky enough to have the variability to transcend its gene pool. No other plant has the ability to lend itself to so many species appearances. Look what's happened in the last 55 years, daylilies have developed every size from two inches, and so many shapes; trumpet, spider, doubles and etc. — from no ruffle to totally fringed, from no eyes to the largest variety of eyes for any plant. Only a decade ago there were no varieties with ruffled edges of coloration around the outer perimeter of the petals, and now this feature highlights many daylily gardens worldwide. Who can imagine what is to follow in the coming years.

Munson began championing tetraploid daylilies in 1961, long before the idea became accepted or the results became worthwhile. It took a lot of dedication to make the dream happen. Getting the most out of these flowers became Munson's life work.

According to Sydney Eddison's book, "A Passion For Daylilies," he said that at the time Munson committed to breeding tetraploid daylilies, examples of the new race were unprepossing, unproven and unpopular. Moreover, they were as few in number as they were undistinguished in appearance. The transformation of tetras from undistinguished to dazzling was largely achieved by the Munson family. Their legacy has been one of the most significant in the history of cultivating daylilies.

Munson daylilies are now being introduced and offered by the Daylily Discounters of Alachua, Fla. As you may be able to see, I have a special interest in daylilies. The Gloria Fair daylily is named after my wife, Gloria, and was hybridized by Mrs. Peggy Williams of the Haltom Road Gardens in Tarrent County.

Gardeners, let me leave you with this thought, "God does not deduct from man's alloted time those hours spent gardening. Good gardening until next week, from Dr. Ted Brice, 'The Garden Editor.'"

Will the world ever know peace?

Some people who lived centuries ago saw things more clearly than we do today. Perhaps this was because they had less stress, less going on in their lives. I expect you will agree with this statement of St. Francis of Assisi: "Where there is charity and wisdom, there is neither fear nor ignorance. Where there is patience and humility, there is neither anger nor vexation. Where there is poverty and joy, there is neither greed nor avarice. Where there is peace and meditation, there is neither anxiety nor doubt."

After today's deal, South was definitely a poorer and wiser man, but he wasn't joyful.

With such a good six-card suit, South was right to upgrade his hand and treat it like a balanced 18-19 points.

Seeing overtricks in his future, South tried the spade finesse at trick one. However, East was enjoying one of his more lucid moments. After winning with the spade king, he switched to the heart 10. West won with the heart queen, cashed the heart ace and played a third round to South's king.

With a slight gnawing feeling in his stomach, South played a diamond to dummy's king and ran the club 10. But West produced the king and a fourth heart: one down.

If South had only won the first trick with dummy's spade ace and immediately taken the club finesse, he couldn't have gone down. Even after the finesse lost, South would have had eight tricks on top, one spade, two diamonds and five clubs. And he couldn't be stopped from establishing another spade trick for his contract.

Childrens Trust Fund awards planning grant for Scurry Co.

Scurry County is one of 15 sites in Texas selected by the Children's Trust Fund of Texas Council (CTF) for its new funding initiative, Family PRIDE, and has been awarded a planning grant.

Zola Schlegel and Rollin Swanson of the Scurry County United Way will be the facilitators for Scurry County and will be organizing a Family PRIDE Community Council (FPCC) of nine-15 members. The RPCC will establish priorities for prevention program needs in the community, based on the values of Family PRIDE: Principles, Responsibility, Integrity, Discipline and Education. The first FPCC meeting will be held Tuesday, April 25.

As a Family PRIDE community, Scurry County will be eligible for CTF funding for the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1. Based on community's priorities and CTF criteria, the FPCC will receive proposals for prevention programs or activities as prepared by community agencies in response to CTF's Request for Proposal.

The Children's Trust Fund will review the FPCC's recommendations and award grants. For the first fiscal year, each funded program will be required to provide a local match of 10 percent of the CTF contract amount. Programs will be able to apply for renewals for an additional two years.

For more information about Family PRIDE, contact Schlegel or Swanson.

The CTF of Texas was established in 1985 by the Texas Legislature to support community-based programs to prevent child abuse and neglect. Revenue comes from a portion of each marriage license fee, the federal prevention grant, and donation.

The goal of CTF, a state agency, is to promote and provide opportunities so that Texas children can grow to responsible and productive adulthood free of threats to their dignity, physical safety and emotional well-being.

BSP has program on immunizations

Cindy Nix presented the program for Xi Alpha Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi members, explaining a state-wide health campaign, Shots Across Texas.

Ms. Nix, food inspector for the Scurry County Health Department, related facts on the state campaign created to promote infant immunizations. She said Scurry County has 25 percent of its children, two years old and younger, that have not been properly immunized.

Ms. Nix was introduced by Jacalyn Lowrance.

Following the program, members planned for the annual Founder's Day celebration to be in the form of a brunch at 10 a.m. on April 22 at Nathalie's where awards will be presented.

Ask Anne & Nan

By Anne B. Adams and Nancy Nash-Cummings

Get rid of weeds the organic way

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Lately I've been hearing that using any kind of chemical weed-killer on your lawn can pose real dangers to children. Is there any "natural" product I can use instead? — DAVID P., Storrs, Conn.

DEAR DAVID: A company called Gardens Alive! Inc., a mail-order catalog company that specializes in organic gardening products, has recently come out with a totally organic herbicide. Called "A-MAIZING LAWN," it stops root development of germinating seeds, killing all those horrible weeds in your lawn before they emerge. (This will NOT work on weeds that are already flourishing.)

It should be used in the spring, right after your first lawn mowing and in late summer/early fall. A-MAIZING LAWN is 100 percent gluten meal, which is the byproduct of the wet milling process of making corn starch or corn syrup and, as it decomposes, makes nitrogen available to existing grass, so it not only acts as an herbicide but a fertilizer as well!

A 25-pound bag, which will cover 1,250 square feet, costs $19.95 plus shipping. For a copy of the Gardens Alive! catalog, or to order AMAIZING LAWN write to Gardens Alive!, 5100 Schenley Place, Lawrenceburg, IN 47025 or call 812-537-8650.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Do you know where I can buy mildew-resistant shower curtains? I used to get them through the Sears catalog, but the catalog has been discontinued. Also, I've heard you can mildew-proof a shower curtain by soaking it in white vinegar. Do you have any information on this? — HELEN KOWALSI, Belleview, Fla.

DEAR HELEN: We found your mildew-proof shower curtain (catalog #7554) in Dr. Leonard's Health Care catalog. It comes in white or beige and is $12.99, plus shipping and handling. You can order by writing to 74-20th St., Brooklyn, NY 11232 or calling 718-768-0010.

Although we've heard that white vinegar is very effective in removing mildew, we've never heard that it mildew-proofs as well. We would doubt it as one would have to rinse out the vinegar before rehanging the curtain.

STUMPED: Ann Reynolds of Topeka, Kan., writes: "I got in on the middle of a talk show the other day and they were talking about women collecting child support. They had buttons on that said ACES. I would like to get their address." Readers, can you help Ann?

FEEDBACK: C.L. of Hoyt, Kan., was looking for a 44A bra, and we were stumped. Thanks to our California readers, we are now able to point her in the right direction. Creative Woman Intimate Apparel, 1530 South Myrtle Ave., Monrovia, CA 91016 (818-358-6216) carries garments for "larger" persons. They not only stock 44A bras, but also can make any bra in any size.

Write to "Ask Anne & Nan" at P.O. Box 240, Hartland, VT 05048. Questions of general interest will appear in the column. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies cannot be provided.

Anne B. Adams and Nancy Nash-Cummings are co-authors of "Ask Anne & Nan" (Whetstone) and "Dear Anne and Nan: Two Prize Problem-Solvers Share Their Secrets" (Bantam). To order, call 1-800-888-1220.

Health: child-safe art supplies

By DR. LEWIS GOLDFRANK
For AP Special Features

Arts and crafts can allow children's imaginations to take wing. Making a careful selection of art materials, setting ground rules and providing proper adult supervision can help them to soar in safety.

The first step in safeguarding children is to consider their ages and developmental abilities when selecting art supplies.

Children under the age of 12 often do not understand or obey safety rules and should not be allowed to use potentially hazardous art supplies.

Preschoolers require even closer adult supervision. These children tend to put items in their mouths and swallow them and should only use art materials that can safely be ingested.

Children are physically more susceptible to health risks from toxic art supplies than most adults. Do not assume that children can use materials that are commonly and safely used by adults.

Children are at greater risk because they have faster metabolisms and breathing rates, and have greater amounts of body surface relative to their weights than adults.

In addition, children tend to absorb greater amounts of toxic substances through their skins. And the more of these substances that are absorbed, the greater the risk of injury.

There are a few alternatives in art supplies that will allow children to safely unleash their creativity.

Instead of cold water fiber-reactive dyes or commercial dyes, use dyes that are made from foods or plants such as onion skin, tea or flowers.

For coloring projects, select crayons, oil pastels and dustless markers rather than powdered tempera colors, pastels and dry markers that can create toxic dust.

Projects involving papier-mache or clay require special care since these materials can create dust or other substances harmful to children.

If papier-mache will be used, select approved papier-maches or use black and white newspapers and library or white paste.

Powdered clays often contain free silica and sometimes asbestos fibers, so select a talc-free, premixed clay known as Amaco white clay. And do not allow children to sand dry clay since this can create dust.

Cleanup should be careful and prompt. After children are finished working with clay, wet mop or sponge the surfaces and areas that have been used.

Sorrells family reunion held this month at Ira

Over 100 descendants of William E. and Amanda Sorrells, early day settlers of the Ira Community, met at the Ira Community Center on April 8 for dinner and visiting.

Their daughter, Ava Lapour and her husband, Joe, attended. Other close family members there were Agnes, widow of Jim Sorrells, and Opal, widow of Marvin Sorrells, both of Ira.

Grandchildren attending were Ted Sorrells of Maryneal; Claude Sorrells of Sweetwater; Vollie and Marjorie Sorrells of Snyder and Jesse and Mardell of Alpine; Ellen and Winfred Tucker of Meadow; Lucille and J.M. Sterling of Vincent; Doris and J.L. Byars of Ira; and Elza and Hazel Grant of Lake Thomas.

Also, Dale and Pug Grant of Grandview; Don and Margaret Grant of Snyder; Jimmy Sorrells and Jerry and Mary Sorrells, all of Dunn; Weldon and Eutha Fay Watson, of Odessa; Billy Ray and Delores Watson of Monahans; Gloria and Tee Griffin of Vincent; Ray and Betty Sorrells of Ira; Branda Johnson of Sweetwater; and Sue and L.D. Ely of San Angelo.

Great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren included Howard Engle of Adrian; Buck Sorrells of Sweetwater; Claudia and Les Rogers of Lubbock; Janet Ryan of Plano; Gary, Belinda and Stephanie Grant of Snyder; Laura, Anna and Jordon Sterling of Tatum, N.M.; Stacy, Whitni and Kari Souer of San Angelo; Geral and Sue Sorrells of San Angelo; David Cleckler of Lubbock; Gene, Lisa and Darrell Sorrells of Maryneal; Ricky and Nathan Sorrells of Snyder; Betty Ezzell of Austin; and Maria Buchanan of Austin.

Others were Judy Sorrells of Abilene; Dena Fay Stirling of Snyder; Lorita Keller of Snyder; Bambi Harvey of Midland; Lane, Dian, Tom, Ben, Dan and Laura Griffin of Vincent; Susan Watson and Cody Ratton of Roswell, N.M.; Amanda Sorrells of Lubbock; Kristi Sorrells of Ira; Patti, Davi, Jake and Mark Barnes of Ira; Rob A., Talley, R.A., Griffin and Miles Brown of Throckmorton; Terry, Tanya, Segan, Caleb, Cole, Gil, R.T. and Quint Shafer, all of Colorado City; Garry, Jennie and Josh Sorrells of Snyder; and Keith Sorrells of Blackwell.

Special guests were Leon and Darla Huddleston of Ira; Kevin, Shelly, Marissa and Kayli of San Angelo; and Rosemary Burton of Snyder.

BRUNCH HELD — Jean Everett recently hosted a brunch in the Cornelius-Dodson House honoring Clare Appleton Ohl of Clermont, Queensland, Australia. Mrs. Ohl, left, was visiting in Snyder with friends along with her son, Dave Appleton, who was on the rodeo team at Western Texas College in the early 1980s, and was named 1988 All-Round Cowboy in the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association. Pictured with Mrs. Ohl is Juanita Hart of Snyder. (SDN Staff Photo)

Microwave fruit dessert

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
For AP Special Features

Apples, pears, nectarines or plums. Take your pick from whatever fruits are in season to make this all-time-favorite dessert. Not only do you pick the fruit for the filling, but you also choose from three delicious toppings. Best of all, your microwave oven cooks it about three times faster than Mom's regular-oven recipe.

CHOOSE-A-FRUIT CRUMBLE

4 cups sliced, peeled apples or pears, or sliced nectarines or plums
2 to 3 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons water
Oat Topping, Granola Topping or Coconut Topping (recipes below)
Vanilla ice cream, light cream or milk (optional)

Place prepared fruit in a 11/2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Combine honey and water (if using pears, omit water). Pour over fruit. Cover with microwave-safe plastic wrap; turn back one corner to vent steam. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 3 to 5 minutes or until fruit is almost tender, stirring once.

Meanwhile, prepare desired topping. Sprinkle topping over hot fruit. Cook, uncovered, on high for 2 to 3 minutes or until fruit is tender and topping is heated through, giving the dish a half-turn once. If desired, serve warm with ice cream, light cream or milk. Makes 4 servings.

Oat Topping: In a small mixing bowl combine 1-3rd cup quick-cooking rolled oats, 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons brown sugar and 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice. Cut in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine until crumbly. Stir in 1/4 cup chopped nuts.

Nutrition facts per serving: 267 cal., 11 g total fat, 63 mg sodium, 42 g carbo., 3 g pro. Daily Value: 6 percent vit. A, 8 percent vit. C, 3 percent calcium, 6 percent iron.

Granola Topping: Crush 3/4 cup granola. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine; toss to coat.

Nutrition facts per serving: 222 cal., 9 g total fat, 32 mg sodium, 37 g carbo., 3 g pro. Daily Value: 3 percent vit. A, 8 percent vit. C, 2 percent calcium, 5 percent iron.

Coconut Topping: In a small mixing bowl mix together 1-3rd cup crushed graham crackers, 1/4 cup toasted coconut and 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine; toss to coat.

Nutrition facts per serving: 164 cal.; 5 g total fat, 78 mg sodium, 31 g carbo., 1 g pro. Daily Value: 3 percent vit. A, 5 percent vit. C, 1 percent calcium, 2 percent iron.

Nunn brothers make mark in Scurry County

By Charles G. Anderson

John Wesley, James Harvey (Jim) and Thomas (Tommy) Newton Nunn made their mark on West Texas as early as October, 1877.

Buffalo hunting was about to end and cattle ranchers were moving into West Texas. There were a few scattered herds of buffalo, but Josiah Wright Mooar and Pete Snyder were turning to other business by this time.

When the young Nunn brothers came to Scurry County, Pete Snyder had established his trading post along the banks of Deep Creek. Mooar was still hunting the few buffalo west of Scurry County. The Nunns came with their cattle because the land was wide open.

"These three men, from a family of 10 children born to a Methodist preacher and his wife (Rev. and Mrs. Thomas R. Nunn), left the security of home and friends in Washington County, Texas in 1876 for the 'unknown' of West Texas."

James Harvey Nunn said his parents came to Texas from Tennessee to settle in Washington County near Brenham around 1838-40 to "save Texas from the Catholics."

The Nunns left a colorful history in their trail. James Harvey Nunn, although too young to serve in the Civil War, remembered vividly his older brother "Willie" (William Rice Nunn...born 1839) going away to war at age 20.

Elise R. Green of El Paso, a granddaughter of James Harvey Nunn, had these memories related to her by Nunn: "Papa said he was just a little thing when Willie had left and sure had missed him. 'But I knew Willie.' When Papa looked up from playing and saw him coming a long way down the road and screamed as he ran to meet him. 'It's Willie Mama, It's Willie — home from the war.'

"When Papa spoke of him, it was obvious he had a case of hero worship." Willie became a doctor and practiced for several years. Later, he quit and said, "I will never practice again, medicine is a lot of Humbuggery."

Dr. Dunn did come later to join his brothers in West Texas, and he died in 1930 and was buried in the Snyder Cemetery. Later, his brother James Harvey Nunn and other members of the Nunn clan would be buried nearby.

In 1937, James Harvey Nunn told Oma Ryan of his first visit to Scurry County: "The only settlers here then were buffalo hunters and supply people. Pete Snyder was living in a buffalo skin tepee, on land where the Snyder Square now is, selling supplies to buffalo hunters. We bought our first groceries, flour, sugar, coffee and such from this Mr. Snyder...J. Wright Mooar, a buffalo hunter, was one of our first acquaintances in this county. He lived in a dugout about eight miles west of Snyder on Deep Creek."

Thomas (Tommy) Nunn grazed his cattle along the banks of Deep Creek. While Snyder still claimed the 640 acres surrounding his store, he moved to Colorado City in about 1880 or 1881 to start other businesses. He would come back to Deep Creek settlement occasionally to check on his land. Meanwhile, Tommy Nunn settled on the land and claimed it as his own.

By 1883, both Nunn and Snyder claimed the same property, which covered the townsite near Snyder's old trading post. Both men had a map drawn from the witness tree near Deep Creek to stake their claim to the 640 acres.

Each man wanted to divide the land into lots for a town. Their town was being called "Hidetown," "Robber's Roost," or "Snyder's Place."

Eventually, it was called Snyder. Pete Snyder was old and sick by the time the town was officially incorporated and named for him on July 2, 1907.

Six hundred and 40 acres of the city came from the Nunn land, and many of the churches were on land owned by the Nunns. When the town of Snyder was officially named, there seemed to be no fanfare where Snyder was recognized. Snyder was living in Colorado City, and was soon to die.

In the summer of 1884, Tommy Nunn traveled to Colorado City to talk to Pete Snyder. He asked Snyder to settle out of court and to divide the land equally. The story goes that Snyder responded: "This land is mine. I will have it all or I will have none." Verniece Jourden, who married Harold, the son of Jim Nunn, remembers her Uncle Tommy often talking of his offer to Pete Snyder.

The District Court of Mitchell County ruled against Snyder on Dec. 23, 1884. The 640 acres for the townsite of Snyder was awarded to Tommy Nunn. On Jan. 6, 1885, Sheriff W. W. (Uncle Bill) Nelson delivered the legal documents to Nunn and Snyder. Snyder appealed the decision, and it was taken to the Texas Supreme Court. On June 7, 1886, the Supreme Court upheld the lower court's decision, and Pete Snyder lost all hopes of ever regaining his property.

Meanwhile, the small city of Snyder was growing. A school had been established. Della Lavinia Barron, a Southern lady from New Orleans, came west to teach. Jim Nunn courted Della, and they married on her birthday on Feb. 2, 1890. She was a beautiful 21-year-old school marm and Jim Nunn was a handsome 35-year-old rancher with a moustache and beard.

They had five children — Gladys, Harold, Powell, Beryl and Clarence (Buddy). There would be only 14 happy years from this union as Della Nunn died April 24, 1904 as result of a miscarriage.

The Nunns became prosperous ranchers in Mitchell and Scurry counties, and counties further west, including into New Mexico. After gaining wealth, the Nunns suffered losses of cattle due to droughts, rustlers and cold winters.

At one point, they lost nearly everything and were forced to start over. Tommy Nunn was a handsome, confirmed bachelor with a full black beard. Tommy Nunn never married, and he lived out his days along the banks on Deep Creek on land he won in the courts.

Elise R. Green remembers him as a "sweet natured, smiling, old, old man sitting on the porch shelling pecans and going to milk a cow with Cousin Aubrey Clark. "When I was four or five years old. I recall Aunt Annie telling me not to bother Uncle Tommy, for he needs his nap now."

By 1885, the Nunn brothers owned 65,000 acres with 20,000 head of cattle. The Nunns were known throughout West Texas. They were offered a great sum of money for their cattle and ranches, but were determined to hold out.

However, frequent droughts and blizzards caused losses in cattle. They were declared bankrupt, and their land was seized by a Chicago company in an El Paso law suit. The Nunns moved back to Snyder to start over. They would never regain their vast empire, and by 1900 they had been numerous court suits which left them financially devastated.

According to Verniece Jourden Nunn, her aunt Mary Jane (Mamie) Nunn Sharp, sister of Jim and Tommy Nunn, married William R. Sharp. When the country was first settled, the Nunns were in battle with some Indians near the present site of the courthouse. When Sharp and others looked over the victims at the square, they discovered some of the Indians were really his relatives who had been captured and brought up by the Indians. They were white, but wore Indian clothing.

Information provided by Nunn's relatives — including Verniece Jourden Nunn, Herbert L. Gardner, Ruth D. Lamb and Elise R. Green — gave me the following of those times. James Harvey (Jim) Nunn lived from 1855 to 1944. Dr. William (Willie) Nunn 1839-1930, and Annie Elizabeth Nunn 1857-1954, Thomas N. (Tommy) Nunn 1849-1940, and George Nunn from 1857-1926.

There were many other Nunn family members who came to this area early to settle the land. Their contributions paved the way for the settlement of West Texas. When James H. Nunn died in 1944, his daughter, Beryl Rodgers, "Went to a great deal of trouble to clear title to (property) after Papa's death, just to have something left." It was then listed on the tax records as the Nunn estate.

James Harold Nunn, son of James Harvey Nunn, made a bit of history in 1916 when he was deputized a Texas Ranger to chase Pancho Villa out of Texas and New Mexico. James Harold served only a short time, and he never found Villa. He returned to Snyder and lived until his death on Aug. 15, 1967.

Herbert Lee Gardner, a grandson of James Harvey Nunn, made history on March 12, 1942 when his ship was blown up by a German submarine off the coast of North Carolina. Gardner was among the few who swam to safety through burning oil and debris. His heroic story was broadcast throughout the nation. Gardner lived in Snyder as a youth and later moved to Tennessee. He presently lives in Texas.

James Harvey Nunn described living in a dugout to his grandchildren, Elise R. Green and Herbert L. Gardner, when they were young children. "He told of being lost in a blizzard for four days without coffee or tobacco, and how badly he suffered wanting a cigarette and cup of coffee. He said he made up his mind he would never be enslaved by anything like that again. Then he quoted this rhyme: Tobaccy is an evil weed, it stains your teeth, and ruins your clothes, and makes a chimney of your nose."

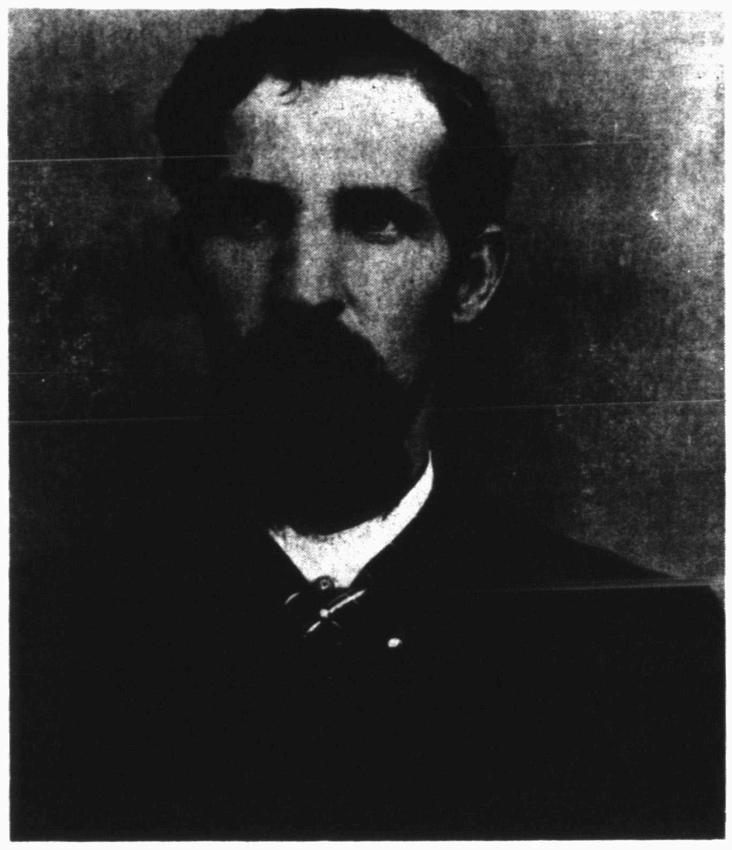

Jim and Tommy ran a livery stable as well as dealing in cattle. When the Nunns died, there was little property left. The Nunns were a hardy breed. James Harvey was a 33rd Degree Mason, and the Masons presided over his funeral. He had left the Methodist Church early in life because "he disagreed with them over some inconsequential point and he was too stubborn to back down."

One of the true interesting Nunns was Annie Elizabeth. She never married, yearned for acting and was a collector. She taught "elocution" which would today include the study of drama. She was a collector and would buy presents that were never opened.

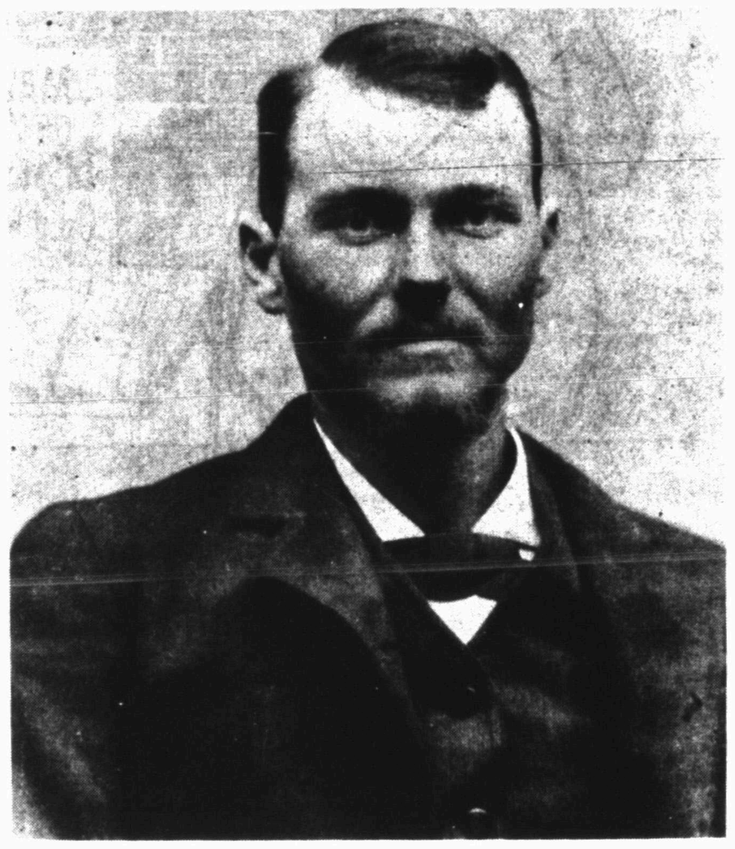

When she died in 1954, there were 37 new wrist watches and numerous other collections. Her niece, Elois R. Green said, "She played 'Victrola' for me and talked about the stage and acting and 'Sweet Jesus," and whatever went wrong, "The devil did it."

When the town was only about 2,000 people, the Nunns were among the most respected. As most people of their day, their word was their bond, and they dealt kindly and honestly with

Winner or no winner, it's just not right in Texas

By Bill McClellan

If it's possible to sin and shine at the same time, Kay Bailey Hutchison has done it.

That's the way Uncle Elber feels, anyway.

Oh, you know Uncle Elber. Sure. You hit that farm-to-market road west of town, head south 12 miles, turn back east two miles, then north a quarter of a mile, then west again over a dry creek bed. Make a sharp left just after the second bridge. You can't miss it.

I paid him a visit last weekend and he was fussing and fuming about the U.S. Senator from Texas.

"I'm happy she won on account of Texas is the chili capital and this is where the champ'eenship should be. But if she thinks she's representin' the people of Texas, she ain't. People of Texas don't put that stuff in their chili. Not good, God-fearin' West Texas people, anyways," he says.

You probably know by now that Sen. Hutchison won the Congressional Club Chili Cook-Off. She recaptured the championship for all of Texas. That's the good news.

The bad news is that her recipe calls for... yep, beans.

"Mixin' chili and beans makes about as much sense as puttin' taters in tacos. It flattens out the seasonin'. You flatten out the seasonin' and you ain't got chili. What you got, is chili beans," says Elber. "You wanna fix chili beans? Fine. Fix chili beans. You wanna fix chili? Fine. Fix chili. No beans."

That 'taters in tacos' remark was a friendly jab at my wife, who grew up putting potatoes in taco meat and still prefers it that way.

Smithy Thompson says "Puttin' chili in beans is like a man puttin' on womens' underwear. It don't fit right, it don't feel right, it don't look right and that makes it not right."

Amen...I guess. I didn't take issue with Elber or Smithy about the chili or the tacos because I agree one hundred percent. Beans don't have any business being in chili nor should a potato take up residence in a taco. My wife understands my position on this. That's why we prepare two versions of each dish whenever we have them.

Uncle Elber wasn't too pleased to learn that Kay Bailey's bowl of red also includes green peppers, but he will concede that they represent only a flaw in the Senator's recipe, and not grounds to begin impeachment proceedings — which surely would have happened had she not won the contest.

If the truth were known, a lot of people would take acception to Elber's version of chili, which calls for replacing tomato paste and water with actual chopped up tomatoes — not stewed or precooked tomatoes, mind you, but ripe, chopped up tomatoes.

Put them in with the rest of the traditional ingredients and simmer over low heat for a minimum of two hours in a covered pot. It adds a certain kind of freshness.

And that ain't no beans.

Thank you

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank KSNY and all the merchants who participated in the Clay Walker-Chely Wright concert. Thank you for making it possible for me to win the tickets, dinner, back stage passes and the limo ride to and from the concert.

A great big thank you to all who worked to get this concert in Snyder. Thank you to all who volunteered their time to assure the success of the concert.

Words cannot express how much we enjoyed our evening. Thank you to Coach Qualls for the limo ride, to KSNY DJs Cody, Dallas, Johnny T., Jimmy G. Bruce and everyone else who made this a very special night.

Keep up the good work. I hope Snyder can again enjoy more concerts.

Sincerely,
Barbara Burney

Editorial Roundup

More on term limits

The Pecos Enterprise

Not enough votes could be mustered in the U.S. House of Representatives for the necessary two-thirds majority to pass a constitutional amendment on term limits for U.S. representatives and senators.

It was obvious that old-timers on Capitol Hill were interested in keeping their jobs, not abiding by the wishes of voters as a huge majority of citizens have expressed interest in limiting terms.

We have for years expressed the need for term limits to get rid of professional politicians, not only on a national level but on the local and state levels as well.

Our nation was founded to be governed by citizen legislators — those who earn their living by other means than in government service.

Since Congress will not do what they should have done, it is up to us as citizens to gather petitions to demand elections on this subject and force an amendment to the constitution as well as local laws for term limits.

Pesty pesticide law

The Victoria Advocate

Imagine going to the supermarket and finding that the price of potatoes has tripled. Or that the quality of rice is so poor that no one wants to buy it, no matter how low its price. Or that fresh fruits are in extremely short supply.

Such a scenario is not all that farfetched if Congress does not drastically revise a 36-year-old federal regulation that prohibits the most minute traces of pesticide residue in food, even if it poses no more than infinitesimal risk of cancer.

This zero-risk standard appears in the so-called Delaney clause of the 1958 Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Delaney seemed reasonable at the time of its passage because scientists were able to detect chemical traces to "only" one part in a million.

Technological advances have had a drastic effect, however. Today scientists are able to measure traces of chemicals as minuscule as one part in a quintillion — the equivalent of one second in 1,024 years.

The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, Carol Browner, recognizes the unreasonableness of the continued application of the Delaney clause. Yet she recently acceded to a consent decree with the state of California and the Natural Resources Defense Council that actually reinforces the zero-risk standard.

Under the consent decree, the EPA is advising farmers that it has drawn up a list of 77 commonly used pesticides, several dozen of which will be banned over the next five years. Although Secretary Browner acknowledges that the targeted pesticides pose a negligible health risk, she is moving forward with plans to phase them out.

The forthcoming pesticide ban is a textbook example of government regulation based on misapplied science, with no consideration whatsoever of the relative costs and benefits to society. If farmers are proscribed from using pesticides, they will be forced to use more land to grow worse crops at higher prices to consumers.

A 1993 study by researchers at Texas A&M University provides some idea of just how crops around the country would be affected if the pesticide ban is enforced.

Maine, for example, is projected to lose 70 percent of its potato crop. Florida would lose 50 percent of its tomato crop and 30 percent of its sweet corn. Washington state would lose 30 percent of its apple harvest. California would 68 percent of its grapes. There would be major losses in all Texas food crops.

The anti-pesticide Natural Resources Defense Council touts organic farming as the alternative. But organically-grown crops account for only a tiny share of the food in supermarkets. The vast U.S. agricultural industry cannot make such a transition overnight. Indeed, it is all but certain that it cannot make such a transition at all.

It is ridiculous for the EPA to be considering a ban on pesticides that pose a next-to-zero safety risk. Congress should rewrite the Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act to reflect the realities of modern science, and it should do so before the EPA begins to implement the proposed bans.

Charm School for Nerds.

If you're laughing now, wait'll you hear this. This is an actual — and quite serious — seminar which is being offered to none other than the students at MIT.

Most everybody knows what MIT is; they may not realize that the initials stand for Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but they do know it is the university where all the brainiacs go. Some of our most eminent scientists, computer experts, and other technical geniuses come out of that institution.

So, needless to say, the kinds of students this school attracts are not your basic mainstream kids; they're the kinds of kids who stay up all night long trying to invent a variation of the electron microscope in their basements. These are highly cerebral people; uninterested in the social niceities of high school, like sports and dances and cruising the drag. "I've met a few graduates of MIT," said my husband when I told him about this. "They're different, all right. It's as though they exist on some sort of cloud up above your head."

But through the years, people began to notice something else about MIT graduates. They were, to put it bluntly, rude slobs. They'd spent so much of their lives inside their heads that many of them had never learned even basic table manners, much less how to communicate with others down at the lab.

The president of the university, (and forgive me for forgetting his name; all my information came from a brief spot I caught on Good Morning, America), said that he'd been approached by a number of faculty members, "none of whom attended MIT," who complained that the students were "rude and graceless and had no sense of style." (You should have seen the camera pan an on-campus cafeteria, selecting various unshaven, rumpled speciments hunching over their plates, shoveling food in their mouths. The girl student's weren't much better; suffice it to say that I didn't see many potential beauty queens in the crowd.)

So the president put together this little seminar, offering fifteen courses, and granting a diploma to those students who took six. He even invited a commencement speaker — Miss Manners herself.

At the seminar, the students sign up for such courses as Ballroom Dancing, Power Walking, Table Manners, ("This is your soup bowl. You do not pick it up and slurp the soup out of it."), and How to Flirt, ("Guys, establish eye contact with women. Do not stare at their chests.")

The response was overwhelming. Grateful students complained that it hadn't been offered sooner and longed for the classes to be expanded and added to the college curriculum. They've done it for several years now, and the crowds just keep growing.

Now, I'll tell you a little secret. If you think MIT is the only place offering charm school, think again. Major corporations are doing the same thing for its young executives.

What's going on here? Well, I'm no sociologist, but I'd say that if most of your meals growing up consisted of eating Big Macs in the back seat while your parents ferried you around to eighteen different sports and forty-two different classes and activities, well, you never really had a chance to learn table manners.

And if high school boys are judged based on mythical "scorecards" they've kept of how many girls they've slept with, well, I'd say the fine art of flirting has become a thing of the past.

And if your role models are Beavis and Butthead ... need I say more?

We giggle at all those educational films of the fifties and early sixties which spelled out all these restrictive social boundaries for young people, but at least somebody was teaching them how to behave in society. Maybe the kids of the nineties do like to wear clothes that are too big and have manufactured rips in them, but that doesn't mean that, as parents, we can't teach our sons, say, the proper way to give a firm handshake, or our daughters the correct way to sit like a lady while wearing a skirt.

Teaching our kids to say, "ma'am" and "sir" or "please" and "thank-you," to rise when an elder enters the room, to chew with their mouths closed, to hold open the door for someone, to write thank-you notes, to establish eye contact when they speak with someone, or to carry their plates to the sink and compliment the cook when they've been invited to supper does not inhibit their creativity or stunt their childish freedoms.

What it does do is teach them common courtesy, respect for our fellow human beings, and provide them with important skills they can use in any life situation. And if the brilliant young people of MIT have secretly been hungering for such skills all their lives, then think how the rest of the kids must feel. Nobody wants to enter today's job market feeling well educated but essentially helpless.

Call it charm school if you want. I call it simple survival. Don't we owe our kids at least that much?

Taxpayer heaven could just be in the stars

By Joseph Spear

I am not a big believer in fate and astral influences and other New Age mumbo jumbo, but it must be more than coincidence that some truly reformational ideas are forging their way into the public cognizance just as we are entering a new millennium.

I mean, we are actually conducting a national debate about bloated government and balanced budgets and a fair tax system.

Roll that last one around on your tongue and savor it before you swallow it. We are talking about a flat tax — a system of revenue collecting so profoundly equitable and efficient and simple that your average politician, biased as they are toward things that gum up the governmental process, can't comprehend it.

As someone who has been agitating for a flat-rate income tax system for the better part of a decade, I am truly astounded that the notion seems to be catching on. House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, has been touting a superbly designed plan for about a year. Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., has proposed a flat-tax scheme, albeit a flawed one. Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, is working the Senate side with a plan similar to Armey's.

Talk about star and planet alignment.

And there's more: Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., recently formed a commission on economic growth and tax reform and directed it to study the flat tax and have recommendations ready by October.

And more: Former GOP congressman Jack Kemp will head the group. This is a man who is on record as saying the Armey plan "sets the agenda around which Republicans should unify" and would be "the first step toward restoring the American Dream."

Talk about cosmic collisions.

I have three things for responsible citizens to think about as they compose their letters to the commission:

First, with a flat-tax system, taxpayer hell would be instantaneously transformed into taxpayer heaven (well, relatively speaking). There would be no deductions, no credits, no loopholes. You would simply calculate the allowances for each adult and child in your family, subtract that amount from your total income and pay a flat tax on the remainder. You could file on a 10-line form.

Every person and every business in America would pay precisely the same rate, which means the system would be completely fair at last. A person who makes 10 times the income you do would pay 10 times the tax you do. And, here's a real incentive: The 9,000-page federal tax code would be history and the parasites known as tax accountants and tax lawyers could be displayed in the Smithsonian as extinct species.

Second, doing away with tax breaks would mean that political favors for fatcat friends could no longer be buried in complex tax bills. We could focus completely on Congress' spending habits. To pay for their extravagances, the squandermaniacs would have to raise the flat rate on our income. We could finally understand the process and pass judgement at the polls.

Because Congress spends most of its time tinkering with tax laws, their elimination would make it easy for lawmakers to adjourn early and go home and find honest work for half of every year. We could then cut their pay and ax their pensions.

Finally, a suggestion of my own for Mr. Kemp: To protect the flat-tax system forever from selfish and small-minded politicians, we should incorporate it into the Constitution with an amendment to the 16th Amendment. Something like this would do: "Collection of income taxes shall be accomplished solely through the application of a flat-rate system."

Picture this: It is April 15, 2001, and you still haven't filed your taxes. You stop by the post office at noon, pick up a postcard-sized form, fill it out while munching your lunch in the park, then pop in in the box on your way back to the office.

Talk about an idea whose time has come.

32 CENT STAMP | 3 CENT STAMP | 20 CENT STAMP

Postal stamps said confusing

The Postal Service continues to receive comments from citizens concerning the new "G" stamp, according to Steve Justice, Snyder postmaster.

"It seems that the community is having difficulty determining the value of each of the three "G" series stamps," he said.

To help clear up the confusion, Justice explained the value of the three stamps.

"Each stamp has a unique purpose in its design. The .32 cent stamp was developed for one ounce postage requirements. The .03 cent stamp was developed for the necessary add-on to the old .29 cent stamps. The .20 cent stamp was developed for the postage requirements on a regular post-card," he explained.

Police say man killed over a water bill for small amount

COVE, Ark. (AP) — Townspeople say Orville Miller was a recluse, an odd man who wore insulated coveralls year-round and drove his gray lawn mower to and from town along the shoulder of U.S. 71, pulling a wagon to load groceries or gas.

At the small building that doubles as a town hall and fire station, city workers knew the 78-year-old Miller as a bit of a curmudgeon.

"He comes periodically and gripes and carries on about one thing or another," said Donnie Shoeman, the town's treasurer-recorder.

On Wednesday, police and witnesses say, Miller did more than gripe.

Angered by a $15.55 water bill, he went to town hall, waited for Mayor Fred Neblick to return from lunch, then took a .38-caliber revolver out of his pocket and shot him.

"He said Fred was cheating him out of his money and that he was ripping him off," Shirley Kyle, another city employee, said. "He was going to settle it and settle it now."

"He said he was going to challenge him to a duel," Mrs. Shoeman said. "And Fred said, 'You're going to what?'

"And then he shot him."

Mrs. Shoeman said she was helping someone when she heard the "horrible bang." She turned, stomped her foot and screamed, "Stop it, stop it right now."

But Miller did not stop. There was another bang. A second shot hit Neblick in the middle of the chest.

Even then, it didn't seem real.

"I know it was horrible but he couldn't be dying, you know," Mrs. Shoeman said, a tear rolling down her left cheek. "He stood up and the blood came up out of his mouth."

Dying, the 58-year-old Neblick — a former sheriff and state trooper — lunged for the gun.

The two women ran outside looking for something to use as a club. When they returned, Miller was standing with his foot up against the wall and the gun pointed down.

"I'm the marshal of this town now," another witness recalled him saying. "Everything's under control. Everything will be all right."

And then he rode off — on his lawn mower.

Miller was arrested at a gas station about a half-hour later and jailed without bail on a murder charge.

On Thursday, the mayor was mourned in this town of 391 — a community so small that, "you become a family," Mrs. Shoeman said. "What happens to one happens to all of us."

others.

When Tommy Nunn traveled to Colorado City to try to make peace with Pete Snyder on the disputed 640 acres, this showed a man of honesty and character. While Pete Snyder was drawing his map for a city, Tommy Nunn was doing the same thing.

Nunn relatives are now scattered throughout Texas, Tennessee and other states. They no longer have the vast holdings that once belonged to the family. The land they once owned is encompassed today with vast ranches and peppered with oil wells. Great fields of cotton and other crops now grow where Nunn cattle once grazed.

The Nunn family left a legacy for our county, and they will not soon be forgotten.

"Family Focus"

By James C. Dobson, Ph.D.

QUESTION: Is there a comprehensive formula for solving family problems?

DR. DOBSON: Albert Einstein spent the last 30 years of his life in a gallant attempt to formulate a unifying theory that would explain all dimensions of physics—but he never succeeded. Likewise, I doubt if the human personality will ever be reduced to a single understanding. We are far too complex to be simplified in that way.

From another perspective, however, there is one "formula" that applies to all human relationships, and of course, I'm referring to the four-letter word called love. Conflicts seem to dissolve themselves when people avoid boastfulness, irritability, envy, jealousy, selfishness, impatience, rudeness, etc.

QUESTION: Practically speaking, what does that mean? For example, how does that formula apply to kids who constantly fight and argue?

DR. DOBSON: I'm convinced that many of the emotional problems suffered by some adults can be traced to the viciousness and brutality of siblings and peers during their early home experiences. Self-esteem is a fragile flower that can easily be crushed by ridicule and mockery occurring routinely between children. But it need not be so.

One of the primary responsibilities of parents and teachers is to teach children to love one another. It can be done! Most boys and girls have a tender spirit beneath the unsympathetic exterior. Adults who take the time to cultivate that sensitivity can create a genuine empathy for the physically or mentally handicapped child, the overweight child, the unattractive child or the younger child. But in the absence of that early instruction, a hostile competitiveness often emerges.

QUESTION: How can I tell whether my child is just normally active or genuinely hyperactive? And how can I decipher whether his problem is the result of emotional or a physical impairment?

DR. DOBSON: These questions are difficult to answer, and few parents have the training to resolve them. Your best resource in evaluating your child's problem is your pediatrician or family physician. Even he may have to guess at a diagnosis and its cause.

He can however, make a complete medical evaluation and then refer you, if necessary, to other professionals for specific assistance.

Your child may require the services of a remedial reading teacher or a speech and hearing therapist or a psychologist who can assess intellectual and perceptual abilities and offer management advice.

You should not try alone to cope with an excessively active child if this additional support and consultation is available.

QUESTION: I'm guessing that in your professional capacity you have been in a position to observe those who get involved in extramarital affairs. What happens to them? If we checked in on them two to three years later, what would be found?

DR. DOBSON: I have carefully watched such people who have left the world of responsibility--the "straight life"--and have observed a virtual inevitability.

These individuals eventually establish another "straight life." The grass is greener on the other side of the fence, but it still has to be mowed.

Sooner or later, the pleasure of an illicit affair has to come to an end. Folks have to get back to work. And, the fantastic romantic feelings don't last forever. In fact, the new lover soon becomes rather commonplace, just like their husband or wife. His or her flaws come into focus, and the couple has their first fight. That takes the edge off the thrill.

Furthermore, the sexual relationship gradually loses its breathtaking quality because it's no longer new. There are times when it doesn't appeal at all. But more significantly, the man and woman eventually turn their thoughts to earning a living and cooking and cleaning, and paying taxes again, permitting ego needs to accumulate as before. Alas, after the emotions have been on a moon-shoot, they are destined to come back down to earth once more.

Then what does our amorous couple do when they conclude for the second time that the "straight life" has become intolerably heavy? I am acquainted with men and women, and so are you, who have ripped from one "straight life" to another in vain search of prolonged pleasure and sex - and ego-gratification. In so doing, they leave in their wake former husbands and wives who feel rejected and bitter and unloved. They produce little children who crave the affection of a father or mother, but never find it.

All that is left on the march toward old age is a series of broken relationships and shattered lives and hostile children.

Appeals court injunction will prevent return of girl to Texas

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A Puerto Rican appeals court has blocked the return of a 7-year-old girl to her mother in Texas after the girl alleged that her mother's husband had sexually abused her.

The Carolina Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a lower court ruling that denied the girl's father, Joaquin Inigo Espinosa, custody of his daughter.

Inigo Espinosa told Carolina District Judge Roberto Miranda that his child told him during a visit that her stepfather was sexually abusing her.

But on Wednesday, Miranda ruled against him and ordered the girl's immediate return to El Paso, Texas.

As television cameras rolled, Inigo Espinosa and his neighbors on Wednesday night tried in vain to stop officials from the Department of Social Services from carrying out the order.

"Please help me. Daddy, I love you!," the girl cried as officials took her from her father's home in Isla Verde, an upper-middle class section of Carolina, a city east of San Juan.

On Thursday, Inigo Espinosa petitioned the appeals court to stay the lower court's order.

Meanwhile, Gov. Pedro Rossello said he and first lady Maga Rossello were going to ask for temporary custody of the girl if the appeals court ruled against Inigo Espinosa.

Officials at the Luis Munoz Marin International Airport had to close down one of the terminals after dozens of people gathered there after reports that the girl was going to board a late-morning flight to Texas.

Hundreds of persons demonstrated at the Social Services Department in San Juan to protest how the 7-year old girl was removed from her father's home.

"The officers were only executing an order," said Social Services Assistant Secretary Jenny Ramirez in response.

The girl's mother, Maria Elena Sanchez, accused Inigo Espinosa in a televised interview of manipulating the girl to obtain custody, adding that she will fight the court's decision.

She said Inigo Espinosa cannot return to Texas nor Mexico because he's wanted there on fraud charges totaling about $500,000.

"He came here on a business trip in 1991 and never went back," the woman said.

Brittany Lee will attend conference on journalism

WASHINGTON, DC — Brittany Lee of Snyder has been selected to attend the Washington Journalism Conference (WJC) to be held here next Tuesday through Sunday, April 23.

Lee, a junior at Snyder High School, will be one of 350 outstanding high school journalists attending the conference sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council.

Drawing on the expertise of leaders in the field of print, radio and television journalism, the Washington conference will give Lee an insider's view of the industry.

She will meet with key figures from government and the private sector. During a visit to Capitol Hill, Lee and other students will participate in a question and answer session with a Member of the Congress on the Floor of the House of Representatives. The young journalists will also interview the press secretary of their elected district representatives about issues of concern to Snyder and the nation.

Students will participate in a number of activities at the National Press Club, including a panel discussion with top journalists. The conference will culminate in the production of the student-written "Washington Chronicle."

For six days young journalists from high schools all across the country become part of the Washington press corps — covering news and interviewing newsmakers.

Quiet companion had large role in F.D.Roosevelt's life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letters found in a beat-up trunk show Franklin Roosevelt as a man not only saddled with crises and paralysis but lifted by airy thoughts of serene hilltops, small pleasures and secret flirtations.

Fifty years after FDR's death, a collection of letters between the president and his distant cousin, Margaret (Daisy) Suckley, has been published in a book scholars say casts more light on Roosevelt's busy private life.

The correspondence making up "Closest Companion," edited by Roosevelt biographer Geoffrey C. Ward, lays out a deeply affectionate, even giddy relationship that Ward believes was romantic but not sexual.

The letters "constitute an old-fashioned love story — chaste but clandestine, and often distinctly flirtatious," he told a lecture audience at the National Archives.

Suckley was the "little mud wren" in FDR's glamour circle, the plain, adoring and unassuming woman often with the president and never in anyone's way. Possibly no one knew how much he confided in her.

Her diary and the letters — 38 from him, scores from her that she eventually retrieved — were found under a bed in her home after she died four years ago at age 99.

They reflect the vigor, humor and doggedness that FDR showed to the world, but also the fatigue and frustrations he seemed unable to admit to his wife or the other women whose company he enjoyed.

"What a week — why did I come back — why this endless task — why run again — why see the endless streams of people — why the damned old basket of mail which is either full and hanging over my head or just emptied and ready to be filled," he wrote in April 1936 in a rare burst of self-pity.

Buffalo Soldiers re-enactment set

COLORADO CITY — "A Day in the Life: Buffalo Soldiers at Camp" will be hosted by the Lake Colorado City State Park on April 20.

The event, sponsored by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, will be a re-enactment of the Buffalo Soldiers' life on the Texas frontier.

The story of the Buffalo Soldiers begins in the 1860s when the black soldiers helped open up the American West by battling raiding Indians and protecting numerous outposts.

However, due to widespread racism, the soldiers received little or no credit for their bravery.

Kenneth Pollard, regional maintenance supervisor for the Department, along with Jackie Edwards, assistant warden from the Wallace Unit, and several TDCJ employees will dress and preform the re-enactment.

The first performance is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and the second performance is slated for 1 p.m.

Exhibits from Fort Concho, Fort Richardson and Monahans Sandhills State Park will be on display throughout the day.

Sherry Merrit, a wildlife rehabilitator from Denver City, will show a video and answer questions about rehabilitating wildlife and local game wardens will be on hand to talk to the those attending.

Admission is free for students and $4 per vehicle for the public.
