In Meeting Today

School Board Fills Positions

Three changes in key school personnel, including replacements for resignations, were announced by School Superintendent Jack Edmondson at today's regular meeting of the Pampa Independent School Board in Pampa Junior High School.

Edmondson revealed that John Evans has resigned as principal at Baker Elementary School and is being replaced by Carl Jones, who has been serving as assistant principal at Robert E. Lee Junior High.

Wendell Altmeiller's resignation was announced as principal of Travis Elementary School. He will be replaced by Dan Johnson, Woodrow Wilson teacher and a former school principal in Oklahoma.

The resignation of Miss Evelyn Milam as Pampa High School counselor also was announced by Edmondson. Miss Milam will be replaced by Mrs. Ruby Capps, who has been counselor at Pampa Junior High School.

All three promotions were recommended by Edmondson and approved by the board members.

Edmondson said no replacement has yet been selected for Bill Tregoe, who recently resigned as director of the Pampa High School band.

The superintendent reported that some 30 replacements will be made in teacher personnel this year. This amounts to approximately the normal turnover of 10 per cent each year, he stated. Pampa has 293 teachers on its public school rolls.

The school board today accepted the low bid of $13,495 by W. L. Stark of Pampa for repairs to be made on the Pampa Junior High School gymnasium. The work will consist mainly of shower facilities and restrooms for boy and girl students.

The work is expected to be completed within six weeks.

Members discussed the special education class maintained by Pampa schools and Edmondson announced that the class would be moved this year from Travis School to Sam Houston School.

Announcement also was made that a public hearing on the annual school budget will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 16, in the board's regular meeting place at Pampa Junior High School.

KHHH was designated as the official radio station for broadcasting school sports events this year. The privilege alternates every other year between KHHH and KPDD.

Bills and invoices totaling $7,787.05 for July were approved for payment by the board.

Holmes Relinquishes Station

'Sizzle' Goes Out Of Local Controversy

The "sizzle" went out of the controversy between City Commissioner Leon Holmes and the Continental Oil Company today when attorneys for both parties agreed that Holmes would relinquish the premises of the service station he has been operating for eight years, at 845 W. Wilks, under terms drawn up by the oil company.

The agreement was announced at an eviction hearing held at 10 a.m. today in Justice of the Peace J. W. (Bill) Graham's court.

US Government Proposes New Tightened Controls Over Drugs

New Requirements Effective In 60 Days

By WILLIAM J. EATON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government today proposed new regulations to tighten control over testing of new drugs on humans and provide for halting the tests if substantial doubt develops about safety of the drug.

Anthony J. Celebrezze, secretary of health, education and welfare, issued the regulations and said the drug industry, the medical profession and others would have 60 days to comment on them before they go into effect.

The regulations require: Notification to the Food and Drug Administration and full details when a company begins testing a new drug by distribution to doctor-investigators.

Clinical investigation must be based on adequate pre-clinical studies, including animal experiments, to assure safety.

Proper planning and execution of drug trials with full reports on progress of the tests to the FDA.

Special Labeling

The rules now require that drugs used in clinical tests be labeled "for investigational use" and that manufacturers keep records of distribution. They also require that doctor-investigators have adequate facilities and that their names be given to the FDA on request.

The announcement said "if a substantial doubt developed as to the safety of the drug" once a clinical test had begun, the FDA and all doctors having the drug must be notified immediately. "If necessary, the trial would be halted by FDA," the statement said.

At the same time, he said, the proposed rules were drafted to avoid unnecessary restrictions on drug research.

Additional powers to police the drug industry have been requested by President Kennedy and legislation is now being considered in Congress.

The administration-backed bills would make it easier to take a drug off the market if there were serious questions about its safety and also impose additional controls to ensure safe manufacturing processes.

The regulations being issued by Celebrezze do not require congressional approval.

Designed To Prevent Scare They are designed partly to prevent another scare similar to the thalidomide episode that has caused widespread repercussions in this country and abroad.

The FDA has been making a pill-by-pill survey of thalidomide, a tranquilizer that has been linked with deformities in new-born babies when it has been taken during pregnancy.

Daughter Admits She Helped Plan Mother's Murder

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— Sally Prudhomme, 16, confessed today that she helped plan the hammer killing of her widowed mother late Wednesday night.

The mother, Mrs. Thelma Prudhomme, 38, was killed shortly before midnight. Sally said a boy friend, also 16, but not immediately identified, by police, wielded the hammer.

Sally complained that her mother did not "understand her." She refused to let Sally go out on dates.

According to Sally, the boy telephoned Wednesday night and talked her into killing her mother. She said she then helped plan the killing.

Mrs. Prudhomme went into the backyard to feed the family dog, Sally said, and, according to plan, then let the boy in the front door.

The boy hid in a room and waited until Mrs. Prudhomme came back into the house and went into the room, Sally said. She said she heard the sound of a blow and of her mother's falling to the floor. Sally said she heard sounds that indicated the boy hit Mrs. Prudhomme "three or four more times." Sally said she then went into the room and saw the boy, a blood-stained hammer in his hand, standing over her mother.

The boy wiped off the hammer, put a towel over Mrs. Prudhomme's head and hit her again with the hammer "to make it look good," Sally told police.

Sally at first implicated a 23-year-old man, but he proved he had nothing to do with the crime and police released him. Sally told police that the 23-year-old man was a former boy friend.

She said she was angry with him, so gave police his name for spite.

Near-Drought Conditions Smother Parts Of Texas

By United Press International
Near-drought conditions "prevailing in portions of Texas today under a sizzling summer sun that withered crops, dwindled water supplies, shattered heat records and brought outside activities to a halt. Brush fires whipped across parched areas.

Thundershowers were predicted for the Big Bend country of far Southwest Texas. It was the first prediction of rain in Texas forecasts in almost a week. But no relief from the heat or drought was in sight anywhere else.

Overnight low temperatures ranged between 58 degrees at Alpine and 79 at Dallas, Texarkana and Galveston.

Twenty-one of the Weather Bureau's 28 reporting stations in Texas had 100 degree or higher readings Wednesday. Houston had a high of 104 degrees at the downtown Weather Bureau station, making it the hottest Aug. 7 in history there. It was one degree off the all-time high of 105 set July 26, 1954.

Presidio and Wichita Falls set the pace with highs of 108.

Outside Training Halts
The heat wave brought outside training exercises for recruits at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, to a halt. The San Antonio area has gone 38 days without rain and has had 16 consecutive days of temperatures 100 degrees or more.

Brush fires broke out again Wednesday in a tinder-dry area north of San Antonio. The new fires came where an estimated 6,000 acres burned off last week-end.

A call was issued for volunteer firefighters Wednesday. The fire area was located from eight to 15 miles north of San Antonio.

Temple officials asked residents to hold off all but essential watering the next two days. About 200 homes southeast of Fort Worth in Tarrant County were left without water Wednesday when a well went dry.

Pumps Overloaded
Residents at Randolph Air Force Base near San Antonio were ordered to water their lawns on alternate days. Pumps at the base could not handle the recent increased loads.

Lackland AFB halted outside drills and exercises for recruits who have been at Lackland two weeks or less. Lackland uses a "heat stress index" to determine whether the climate has reached a point oppressive enough to endanger recruits.

X15 Phenomena Is Reported By Space Scientists

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — A possibility the X15 encountered strange phenomena in space arose today with scientists unable to identify a mysterious object both sighted and photographed by Maj. Bob White on a soaring flight by the rocket ship.

Scientists said Wednesday they could give no explanation whatsoever for the objects that appeared near the X15 on July 17 when White sky-rocketed to a world airplane altitude record of nearly 60 miles.

"It is impossible to explain the object's presence at this time," space agency scientists said. "As a matter of fact, we aren't even sure that what White saw and the camera photographed were two different objects."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, after intensively studying White's sighting report and films from a tail movie camera on the X-15, released photographs of an object that darted above and behind the plane.

The photographs, taken from the movie films, reveal an object that looks like a fluttering piece of paper and which scientists describe as being "grey-white."

White, from his cockpit near the nose of the rocket ship, reported seeing what looked to him like a piece of paper the size of his hand "going along with the ship" at an altitude of 270,000 feet — over 50 miles high.

The movie films captured shots of an object flitting past the rear of the supersonic craft on the same flight and at the same altitude.

"The object — or objects — were of undetermined size," scientists said, "because we don't know the distance they were from the ship to make such a computation."

DiMaggio's Breakdown Was A Final Drama In Saga Of Marilyn

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI)— Joe DiMaggio's emotional breakdown at Marilyn Monroe's funeral provided the final bit of drama in the tragic life story of the blonde sex goddess.

The former New York Yankee slugger wept throughout the rites Wednesday and at the conclusion murmured, "I love you, I love you," and kissed his ex-wife's lips in farewell.

DiMaggio's grief climaxed the 23-minute non-denominational service at Westwood Village Memorial Cemetery chapel where only 33 mourners heard the colorful actress eulogized as "the eternal feminine" by her friend and dramatic coach Lee Strasberg.

A crowd of 200 surrounded the small cemetery.
Curious Climbed Wall
More than 80 police officers maintained order in the 93-degree heat which produced a sprinkling of paraisols by women, most of whom wore bright colored dresses. Some of the curious climbed atop a wall.

After entombment, when the officers departed, the crowd grew unruly and dashed across the cemetery to snatch flowers from the crypt.

Services were conducted by the Rev. A. J. Soldan who based his comments on the Biblical quotation, "how fearfully and wonderfully she was made by the creator."

DiMaggio, on the arm of Joe Jr., who was in dress blue Marine uniform, composed himself after leaving the chapel to walk behind the hearse that bore Miss Monroe's body to the $800 crypt overlooking bustling Wilshire Blvd.

No Hollywood celebrities attended the services at the request of DiMaggio and the late star's half-sister, Bernice Miracle, who did not want the funeral to become a spectacle as had happened in the case of Tyrone Power four years ago.

In his eulogy Strasberg said:

Created A Myth
"In her own lifetime she created a myth of what a poor girl from a deprived background could attain . . . in our memories of her she remains alive, not only a shadow on a screen, or a glamorous personality.

"It is difficult to accept the fact that her zest for life has been ended by this dreadful accident."

Authorities, however, continued to investigate Miss Monroe's death attempting to discover if it was suicide or accident.

A special suicide team probed the facts surrounding her death last Sunday, including a mysterious telephone call which caused Marilyn great anguish, according to her housekeeper Eunice Murray.

Little Theater To Present Play Tonight

The first of two performances of "George Washington Slept Here" will be presented tonight at 8 in the Pampa High School auditorium by Pampa Little Theater Inc. The second night's performance will be given on Friday evening at 8 p.m.

Adult admission tickets of $1 and student admission of 75 cents may be purchased at the high school beginning at 7 p.m. tonight.

Mrs. Elbert Walker is director of the play, which has been in rehearsal since June. It was written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman and first produced in the Lyceum Theater in New York City in 1940. It is being presented here under special arrangement with the Dramatist Play Service Inc.

The three-act comedy takes place in an abandoned farmhouse somewhere in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, with the time placed at the present. The plot is concerned with Newton and Annabelle Fuller's purchase of the old farmhouse because of Newton's romantic attachment with its rumored historical heritage. Comedy and action throughout the two-hour play centers around their hilariously funny "headaches" in restoring the old house to a semblance of a family home.

Appearing in the cast are Glenna Lea Miller as Annabelle Fuller; Bob Swanson as Newton Fuller; Jim Terrell as Mr. Kimber the "brightly pessimistic hired hand"; Jodi Hudson as the Fuller's young daughter Madge, and J. M. Douthitt as her boyfriend, Steve; Georgia Mack as Katie, the cook; Marie Jones as Mrs. (See THEATER, Page 4)

City Manager Schmitzer spoke briefly to the group, urging defeat of a proposed amendment at the fall election. The amendment, Schmitzer said, would permit court appeals on administrative decisions and cripple operation of city governments.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The state of Kansas has many silos. But one group of silos in south central Kansas is different — as different and weird and almost as mystical as the land of Oz to which a little Kansas girl named Dorothy was whisked by a tornado in a novel written many years ago.

Dorothy's Kansas was a quiet stretch of flatlands. The only thunder, indeed, came with the storms that bred the funnel-cloud twisters. Today, some of the silos of Kansas are heavy with the potential of man-made thunder and of power to match the reap of whirlwinds.

These are inverted silos. They drop 155 feet into the earth crust. They are built for the storage and launching of the Titan II intercontinental ballistic missile and they are "designed for deterrence." Which, appropriately, was the title of ABC-TV's "Focus on America" show Wednesday night that profiled the construction of the sites.

The program was produced by the ABC affiliate station in Wichita, Kan., and narrated by Kri Berg. It pointed up one more instance of the change the atomic age is bringing to America.

Brig. Gen. Murray A. Bywater, commander of the Site Activation Tank Force, early in the program noted that the Titan II "has the nationally important mission of war deterrence... If an attack appeared imminent, the Air Force will be ready to retaliate should the orders be given by the commander-in-chief, President Kennedy."

What the show did was give us a peek at the immensity and complexity of the job of getting missile bases built and ready. Huge earth movers at work (the producers brought in a geologist to detail the strata of earth crust that appeared as the holes deepened); whining jet helicopters; seven-ton steel doors for the dome-shaped control center; doors of several hundred tons for the silos; concrete walls many feet in thickness. The sites are designed to withstand attack and to retaliate.

The camera shots ranged from close-ups of Kansas earth being rolled and kneaded to a Titan missile rising into the sky like Dorothy's farmhouse riding the wind.

Bing's boy Gary Crosby may not be the world's most brilliant prospect to develop into a great actor, but Wednesday night he carried off a flip role with signs of competence on the steel hour's "Male Call" on CBS. Senator Krueger Sets Talk For Historical Group

Senator Kulp Krueger of El Campo, acting Lieutenant Governor of Texas, will discuss "The Work of the Texas State Historical Survey Committee" at the Panhandle - South Plains Meeting of the Texas State Historical Survey Committee with County Historical Survey Committees, announced John Ben Shepperd of Odessa, member of the Texas State Historical Survey Committee.

The Regional Meeting will take place August 18 at the Vic Mon Motel in Amarillo with a noon luncheon.

Also appearing on the program will be Senator Grady Hazelwood of Amarillo, the Honorable Tom Taylor of Austin; Travel and Information Director of the Texas Highway Department and Dr. Rupert N. Richardson of Abilene, president of the TSHSC. Individual counties will also participate in the program.

Reservations for the meeting may be made by writing the Texas State Historical Survey Committee, 112 East 18th St. in Austin, Mr. Shepperd said. Cost of the luncheon is two dollars.

"All County Historical Survey Committees are urged to attend as well as anyone interested in the cause of historical preservation," Shepperd said.

"These regional meetings are held to coordinate the work of counties and State in preserving our historical heritage," Shepperd explained. "County Committees learn what the state is doing and visa versa."

A special time has been provided for each County Historical Survey Committee to report on historical preservation work being done in that particular county.

One of the highlights of the meeting will be the presentation of historical Building Medallions which are awarded for structures of historical, cultural or architectural interest in the area in which they exist. Over 150 Medallions have been awarded over the state, since the inauguration of the program in March. These Medallions will be the first of the Panhandle - South Plains area.

This Regional Meeting is the fifth such meeting held this year. Other meetings have been in the regions surrounding Victoria, Nacogdoches, McCamey and Abilene.

Counties included in the Panhandle - South Plains Regional Meeting include Gray County.

A planning meeting for the Pampa-Lefors United Fund Campaign was held at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Coronado Inn. General Chairman George Scott presided at the meeting and outlined plans for the campaign.

Present at the meeting were the chairmen of the various divisions of the campaign for this year. The following men have been named as Division Chairmen: Advanced Gifts — E. E. Shelhamer; Industrial — Herschel Wilke; Wholesale — Lucian Young; General, including Retail, Services, and Individuals — J. C. Roberts and John Gikas; Professional — Melvin Jayroe; Oil and Gas — Fred Neslage; Lefors Community Chairman — Fred Blackwell; Publicity — Brantly Hudson and E. O. Wedgeworth.

September 25th was established as the kick-off date for the General Campaign. The Advanced Gifts Division will begin work immediately, and will try to have all contacts made by September 25th, according to Chairman E. E. Shelhamer.

The goal for the United Fund Campaign this year is $73,600. Money raised in this campaign is allocated to seven agencies operating in Pampa and Lefors. They are: Salvation Army, Red Cross, Heart Association, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Milk Fund, and Welfare Index. Each of these agencies receives its financial support from the United Fund.

General Chairman George Scott stated that great emphasis would be given this year to giving every citizen of Pampa and Lefors an opportunity to contribute to this important campaign. Emphasis will also be given this year to making sure that all United Fund workers understand the purpose of the campaign and importance of meeting the total goal of the drive.

Scott explained to the Division Chairmen that the United Fund effort eliminated having seven individual drives. He also stated that the total goal of the campaign must be met in order for the United Fund to continue as a successful operation.

Safe 'Crackers' Get $2 For Their Efforts Last Night

A crew of would-be safe-crackers went to a lot of trouble last night for only $2 in change when they attempted to cut open the safe at the Motor Inn Auto Supply Company, 416 W. Foster.

According to police, they received a report at 7:30 a.m. from an employee at Motor Inn that someone had attempted to cut a hole in the round, recessed door of the company safe.

Upon investigation, officers found an acetylene tank, hose, torch and oxygen tank which had been used in an attempt to cut the safe open.

Officers said that several holes were burned on the safe but it was not opened. A cash register near the safe was found broken apart and approximately $2 in change was looted.

While police were investigating the safe attempt, they received a report from an employee at the McAndrew Pontiac Motor Company, 800 W. Kingsmill, that sometime last night, someone entered the building and stole an acetylene tank and torch cutting material.

The equipment used at the Motor Inn job was identified as the same material taken from McAndrew Pontiac. Officers said the burglars gained entrance to Motor Inn by breaking out a north window, crawling through and unlocking a rear door where the cutting equipment was brought in.

Entrance to McAndrew Pontiac was gained by lifting up an unlocked overhead door in the service area.

NATURAL TEETER-TOTTER—Visitors to Natural Bridge State Park at Slade, Ky., are awed to silence when they come upon this balancing act of nature. Their concern is groundless, however, for Balanced Rock has held its precarious position for centuries, according to geologists.

The Lighter Side
On Lion-Hearted Cigarette-Quitters

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A man who is lion-hearted, steel-nerved and iron-willed enough to quit smoking finds himself drawn into heroic camaraderie with other lion-hearted, steel-nerved, iron-willed men who have given up tobacco.

We rejoice with each other in our triumphs and encourage one another in our tribulations. But mostly we talk about how lion-hearted, steel-nerved and iron-willed we are.

Those of us who are endowed with these attributes naturally feel superior to our spinless, craven brothers who remain slaves to nicotine. But at the same time we pity them.

We would like to help them, if only they would listen to us. They, however, look the other way when they see us coming, or leave the room, or make little transparent excuses to avoid our company.

Given 47 Lectures

In the six weeks that I have been courageously abstaining from cigars, cigarettes and pipes, I estimate that I have given 47 unsolicited lectures on this subject to my friends and colleagues. The only friend and-or colleague with whom I now have any sort of rapport is one who began courageously abstaining about the same time that I did. The others just don't seem to care.

The strangest upshot of the entire experience, however, has been a letter I received from a reader who claimed to have been off the weed for something over seven weeks.

It was, of all things, written by a girl.

I had to laugh it was so ridiculous. Whoever heard of a lion-hearted, steel-nerved, iron-willed girl?

This girl was telling me how quitting smoking had played hob with her social life. She now only makes dates to go to the movies, which sort of limits her appeal.

Doesn't Miss It

The reason is that smoking is forbidden in the theater. She couldn't smoke there before she quit smoking; therefore, it's the only place she doesn't miss it now that she has.

This girl also passed along a tip she said I might have overlooked.

"I have found it helps if I leave off certain foods and beverages that had previously induced a desire to smoke," she wrote.

"I have stopped drinking coffee, tea, milk water, cokes and cocktails. I have stopped eating meat, bread, vegetables, poultry, fish, eggs, salad and desserts. I'm living on lemonade and yogurt."

This girl certainly sounds like an authentic ex-smoker, all right, but I simply can't believe a member of the weaker sex could endure the travails I have conquered these past six weeks.

I'll bet anything she still sneaks a few puffs on the sly.

Shimmering Pink Molds Of Flavor

Shimmering pink molds of cool fruited gelatin are a picturesque melamine answer to summer heat. The pretty Rose wine from California provides a blush of color and a dash of flavor. Gingerale is the sparkle ingredient. Add fresh fruit — such as peaches, strawberries or melon — to accent these lovely gelatin molds. To make them doubly enjoyable, pour glasses of the same pink wine, well chilled, as the accompanying beverage.

- SPARKLING FRUIT SALAD
(Makes 6 (6-oz.) molds)
- 1 envelope plain gelatin
 - 1/4 cup cold water
 - 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
 - 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - Few grains salt
 - 1/2 cup California Rose wine
 - 1 cup chilled gingerale
 - 2 cups sliced fresh peaches, strawberries, or melon balls
 - Salad greens
 - Commercial sour cream
 - Soften gelatin in cold water.
 - Lemon juice and vinegar. Dissolve by placing over hot water. Add sugar, salt and Rose, and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool. Blend in gingerale. Fold in fruit, and spoon into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Serve with sour cream, or any desired dressing.

SPACE KITCHEN EXHIBIT SET FOR 1962 STATE FAIR

How the astronauts will eat in outer space — 250,000 miles from home — will be shown in a space-age exhibit at the 1962 State Fair of Texas, October 6-21. The mockup of the Space Kitchen recently constructed for the Air Force Systems Command will be a central exhibit in the Electric Building and will show how all foods and beverages required by a three man crew on a fourteen day mission could be stored and prepared.

Designers Solve Orbiting Astronauts Eating Problems With Space Kitchens

A central exhibit in the Electric Show at the 1962 State Fair of Texas, Oct. 6-21, in Dallas will display the Whirlpool Space Kitchen, an answer to orbiting astronaut mealtime eating problems. The model Space kitchen was recently constructed by Whirlpool Corporation for the Aeronautical Systems Division, Air Forces Systems Command. It will show the storing and preparing required for foods and beverages used by a three-man-crew for a 14-day mission.

Although the Space Kitchen contains appliances similar to those in American homes, it weighs only 800 pounds and is seven and a half feet high and 10 feet long. It features food-expelling devices, a thermoelectrically-operated freezer and refrigerator, a self-contained hot and cold water system and a wet and dry waste disposal section.

The freezer will store racks of canned frozen foods while the freezer door contains tightly-shelved layers of bite-size sandwiches. When the spaceman has eaten the canned food, the containers will be dead-stored in their original location to save space. Together thoroughly. Place in bowl on attractive platter and surround with large potato chips that have been sprinkled with onion salt and heated.

Grill 'Em, Fry 'Em Wieners Favored

Boil 'em, broil 'em, grill 'em or fry 'em — wieners are always a favorite. Why not be as versatile over the coals as you are over the range? Oriental Outdoor Wieners touched with Far Eastern flavors will start you on your way.

Make Friends Manners

A hostess shouldn't insist on a guest's eating second servings.

Guard Against Crinkles

A day at the beach may mean sun - crinkles around the eyes. Apply a dab of eye cream and shut out the glare with protective sunglasses. Slightly curved lenses and wide frames will give better side protection.

Gypsy-Dinner-In-A-Can Practical Yet Novel Meal In Out-Of-Doors

Warm weather signals the picnic, the camping trip, the outdoor barbecue. The best part of these events is the smell of an open fire combined with lots of fresh air. When it comes to preparing something simple, practical yet novel, the homemaker can borrow an idea from the Girl Scouts. Prepare dinner in a coffee can!

Layers of rice, whole kernel corn, onion and groundbeef are the basis for this recipe. A subtle, interesting flavor is supplied by adding a little red or white dinner wine from California. (The alcohol disappears during the cooking process so the whole family can enjoy this gypsy meal.)

For convenience, this dinner can be assembled at home and transported in insulated bags, then cooked at the picnic site. Or, it can be prepared and cooked in the kitchen and then just reheated over the open fire. Eat it right out of the can or turn it out on paper plates. Adults will find that the same wine used in cooking is a wonderful accompanying mealtime beverage.

GYPSY DINNER-IN-A-CAN

(Serves 1)

- 1/4 cup raw regular rice
 - 1/4 teaspoon chili powder
 - 1/2 cup whole kernel corn
 - 1-3 cup California red or white dinner wine
 - 1-3 cup tomato juice
 - 1/4 cup sliced onion
 - 1/2 cup (1/4-lb.) ground lean beef
 - Salt and pepper
 - 1 (1-lb.) coffee can with cover
- Layer ingredients in order given in coffee can; sprinkling now and then with salt and pepper. Cover and cook over coals on outdoor grill or over low heat on top of stove until rice has absorbed liquid and meat is tender, about 50 minutes. Remove cover and turn out on plate or eat from the can.

Italian Sandwich In Metropolitan Mood

ITALIAN SAUSAGE SANDWICH

- 1 pound thinly sliced Italian sausage
 - 8 sesame or poppyseed hard rolls
 - 1 cup shredded head lettuce or cole slaw
 - 8 (1 ounce) slices Mozzarella cheese
- Put just enough water in a shallow large skillet to cover bottom of pan. Place sliced meat in skillet. Cover and steam over low heat for eight minutes. Slice hard roll, lengthwise. Place 5-6 slices sausage on lower half of each roll; cover with shredded lettuce and a slice of cheese. Cover with bun top.
- Yield: 8 sandwiches.

Petite Cream Cheese Pastries Are Ideal for Coffee Party

Whether you're entertaining old friends, new neighbors or your husband's business associates, coffee and dairy pastries are always in glowing good taste. What's more, virtually everyone is a coffee-drinker. Your refreshments need not be complicated, of course, but they can have a touch of elegance — much easier than you might imagine.

There are, for example, petite Cream Cheese Pastries. Using the delicious cream cheese pastry base for all, vary the shapes and fillings of your pastries. The top tier of our tray holds tiny pastry triangles filled with sour cream and cherry preserves. The next tier has Liver Pate Pastries and on the bottom are Lobster Mayonnaise Pastries. Each is a perfect complement to a cup of fresh, hot coffee — poured from your most beautiful coffee-pot.

CREAM CHEESE PASTRY

- 1 cup butter or margarine
 - 2-oz. pkgs. cream cheese
 - 2 cups sifted enriched flour
- Soften butter at room temperature. Add cream cheese. Beat until smooth. Add flour, half cup at a time, blending well after each addition. Work with fingers

Ripe Olives Glamorize Casserole

Hearty ripe olives extend other foods like magic and they certainly help make a pound of ground beef go a long way glamorously in "Mexicali Casserole." This inexpensive, nutritious and colorful main dish with its zesty south-of-the-border ingredients coupled with the luscious flavor of ripe olives is indeed a satisfying meal accompanied by French bread, a green salad and fruit for dessert.

- Mexicali Casserole
- 1 lb. ground beef
 - 1 tablespoon salad oil
 - 1/2 cup instant minced onion
 - 1 can (1 lb. 1 oz.) whole kernel corn
 - 1 can (1 lb.) stewed tomatoes
 - 1/2 cup yellow corn meal
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - 2 teaspoons chili powder
 - 1 teaspoon Worcestershire
 - 1 cup pitted ripe olives, drained
 - Grated Cheddar cheese

Brown beef in oil. Using a fork, break up beef into crumbly consistency. Add onion, corn with liquid and tomatoes. Slowly stir in corn meal, salt, chili powder and Worcestershire. Cook and stir over low heat 10 minutes. Stir in olives. Turn into 1 1/2 quart casserole and sprinkle with cheese. Bake in 350-degree (moderate) oven about 45 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

WE FEED OUR OWN LIVESTOCK

USA Vs. USSR

Mr. Khrushchev was reported to have said to the capitalistic world, "we will bury you." He is also reported to have said that, in a few years we will catch up and overtake the United States in per capita production of meat and milk. In my opinion, his first alleged statement is as utterly fallacious as the second. No doubt he and other Soviets feel that these accomplishments can be achieved, but it would seem that the complete failure to carry out their agricultural threats would definitely convince them of the complete absurdity of even the thought of "burying" anyone other than themselves.

The Soviet Union has not overtaken this country in per capita milk and meat production or anything else. The fact is that it is daily falling behind. This is evidenced by the recent cost increase in Russian food products—an action which is supposed to channel more funds into their space activities (another area in which the Soviet is fast falling behind) and, at the same time, reduce the consumption of agricultural products that are in scarcity.

The Soviet population is growing at the rate of 3 1/2 to 4 million a year. However, in comparison with other countries this increase in population is not a major problem insofar as available land for production is concerned. In many countries there is much less than one acre of arable land to each individual. In fact, the ratio of arable land to population in the whole of Asia is less than an acre per person. This explains some of the trials and tribulations faced by the Chinese Communists on this problem. In the Soviet Union there are 220 million people with arable land facilities of at least over 500 million arable acres. Hence, the ratio of land to population in Russia more than doubles that of Asia and several times the ratio of many other countries. So the problem is not the lack of land. It is climatic conditions and the lack of "know-how." It is the latter that caused Khrushchev to suggest to his people that they follow the leadership of the free world in farming methods and in expanding their agricultural production. However, it is going to take more than words from Mr. K. to meet this problem in the USSR. For instance, the Soviets do not have the tractors and other farm implements with which to effectively farm the land. They do not have the fertilizers, herbicides and fungicides which modern technology in the U. S. has developed. In January of 1962, the records reflect that the USA had 4 times as many tractors as the USSR; more than twice as many grain combines, almost 3 times the silage harvesters; 4 times the number of trucks; more than 12 times the number of tractor trailers, and almost 4 times the number of tractor drawn ploughs. Another interesting factor is that Soviet agricultural consumption of electricity in 1959 was less than 13 of that in the United States. On the state farms with thousands of head of cattle, not more than 1/4 of the cows are machine-milked in the Soviet Union. It might also be pointed out that many of the machines above referred to are inoperable much of the time due to poor workmanship and poor maintainance and care as well as a serious lack of spare parts. The Soviets have apparently failed miserably in proper usage of chemical fertilizers which could have measurably increased the yield per acre as it has in the U. S. They have been highly unsuccessful in the use of herbicides to control weeds, pests and diseases, both in crops and animals. Their irrigation activities have fallen far behind those in the free world and especially in the U. S. Most of their irrigation has been confined to cotton growing areas in the Asiatic portions of their Country. At the present time, they are moving forward on restoring an irrigation program that was dropped several years ago, but it will be some time before the fruits of that activity can be realized. There is much more that could be said on this subject that I am sure would be of interest but space will not permit. However, I would not conclude this newsletter without pointing out one of the primary reasons for our extreme success in agriculture and the Soviet's dismal failure. Soviet agriculture is socialized in collective and state farms. United States agriculture, on the other hand, is predominately family owned and operated. The Soviet situation is further aggravated by the fact that the tenure, the initiative and the power of decision of Soviet farm managers is seriously curtailed by constant interference and harassment of the Party — state bureaucracy — also the requirements by the central government as to crop patterns and production "norms." There are other impediments in the path of the Russian farmer, from the type of machinery he is required to use to the crops he must plant. It would seem that the total lack of accomplishment would prove to the people of Russia that Communism won't work. In fact, they have a perfect example in the agricultural picture. The farmers are allowed to operate some plots on their own and to own a very few animals. The plots represent less than 4 per cent of the sown acreage, yet this private sector accounted in 1959 for nearly half of the total meat and milk output, more than 80 per cent of the eggs; 46 per cent of the green vegetables and over 60 per cent of the potato production. The peasant has to depend upon his private "acre and cow" for 38 per cent of his income.

All of which reminds me of the story of the Agricultural Commissioner who was checking the satellite countries for production. He asked one farm manager: "How is potato production?" to which the farm manager replied: "The piles of potatoes reach almost to Heaven." The Commissioner angrily commented: "You know there is no Heaven," to which the farm manager responded: "Yes, I know, and there are no potatoes." Area visitors to Washington last week were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Farrell and son of Panhandle, Mrs. Fay Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kone, Mr. and Mrs. Avery Rush, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cash of Amarillo. We also had a visit from Mr. Henry Gordon of Connelville, Pa., who formerly worked for the Pampa News.

Circus Dancer Leaps To Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A former circus dancer from Germany, described as upset over the death of Marilyn Monroe, jumped to her death Tuesday from a San Francisco building.

Gerdi Marie Hovious, 38, jumped 50 feet from the fire escape outside her third-story apartment while her husband, Raymond, 51, was at work.

"I think Marilyn Monroe set her off," Hovious said. "All day Monday she kept asking, 'Why did she do it? Why?'"

"I told her, 'I don't know, honey.'"

Polaris Tested

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Navy tested its new and longer-reaching Polaris missile Tuesday but a malfunction in the second stage caused the rocket to fall short of its intended 1,955-mile flight.

The test was termed a "partial success" by naval authorities who said the launching and first stage went off smoothly.

DARING YOUNG MAN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Lester Thompson Jr., 18, got a ticket for being a "daring" young man.

Thompson dared patrolman Justin N. Gorskin to give him a ticket for jaywalking and wound up charged with two counts of jaywalking, two of disorderly conduct and one of resisting arrest.

What Happened First 3 Days Of June?

What could have possibly happened during the almost fantastically fatal first three days of June in Texas that caused 35 fatal highway crashes and cost 54 lives?

The answer to that question has puzzled Texas traffic officials, statisticians and observers of the Texas traffic scene as few others have in recent years.

In that 72-hour period between 12:10 a.m. on Friday, June 1 and midnight on Sunday, June 3, these tragedies took place on the highways in a score of Texas counties:

One fatal crash took place ever other hour.

One person was killed in a fatal highway crash every one hour and 25 minutes.

Cars were wrecked on an average of about one an hour.

Nine of the fatal crashes resulted in from two to five deaths per crash, and these nine multiple-death collisions exacted a toll of 28 lives.

And if that wasn't bad enough, then the day preceding this 72 hours of highway carnage, Thursday, May 31, led off with four more fatal crashes, costing 10 more lives. One of these blasted the life from six victims, the worst of the week end drama of death. And Thursday is normally a safe day out on the highways, usually with fewer crashes and deaths than any other day of the week except Tuesdays.

Instantly and inevitably rose that bellwether question of Texas traffic: Why?

Veteran observers and statisticians of the Texas Department of Public Safety, whose dealing and delving with the fatal figures involved in the Texas traffic tragedy cover many years, say there is neither rhyme nor reason for such sudden, unexpected and unpredictable disasters in series. It happens every so often, once in a long while, a rather rare thing, but when it does happen, it is deadly.

Nothing took place on Thursday, May 31, when that six-death tragedy unrolled in Hall County, near Memphis on the Panhandle's High Plains to indicate that this was the first act of the deadly drama soon to be recorded.

Governor Price Daniel's traffic safety assistant, Brad H. Smith of Austin, has been watching Texas traffic unofficially for 32 years, both as a newspaper-radio-TV reporter and as a local traffic safety chairman, and officially for the past four and one-half years as Director of the Governor's Highway Safety Commission.

Out of his news-gathering experience, Smith has a theory: when a period of low barometric pressure continues for a few days, all kinds of unusual and rather sensational types of news develop, nearly always involving unexpected actions by human beings. Traffic crashes represent one type of unusual news developments involving human beings.

"Some of my scientist-friends tell me," Smith says, "that the effect of the weather on people is a study known as bio-climatology, and they hastily add that very little work has been done in this field. One such phase has been the study of the effect of the weather on human suicides. From my ringside seat as a newsman at the edge of the teeming arena that has become Texas in the past third of a century, I am personally convinced that unusual weather conditions have some sort of an upsetting effect on the feelings and resultant actions of large numbers of persons. Some of these drive automobiles."

Smith says U.S. Weather Bureau reports from various reporting stations over Texas are not yet available for the period between May 31-June 3. However, he recalls that thunderstorms were prevalent over much of the State at that time, and Austin, Weather Bureau records support that recollection.

Austin weather records show the average June barometric pressure was 29.286 inches of mercury. But about 4 p.m., Thursday, May 31, the Austin barometer dropped to 29.175 and varied from 29.160 to 29.170 for four hours. These low readings continued, off and on, from 4 p.m., May 31 to 5 p.m., June 3.

From 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on June 1, the barometer in Austin varied from 29.130 to 29.145, well below the month's average. The high was 29.250.

On June 2, the low was 29.147 at 5 a.m., and the high of 29.255 was recorded between 10 and 11 a.m. On June 3, a low of 29.195 was recorded at both 4 a.m. and 4 p.m., and the high of 29.280 was registered between 9 and 10 a.m.

"I draw no conclusions," Smith said, "but for many years, many of my reporter-friends over the State have followed two leads in looking for news stories: first, when the barometer falls and remains low for a few days, they watch for unusual happenings, and second, when there is a fatal highway crash in their area, they watch police reports and hospitals very closely on the theory that this kind of tragedy frequently runs in threes: when there is one major crash, two more frequently follow in short order.

"I have watched this phenomenon for so many years that I am convinced that oppressive weather has a decided effect on some personalities. A low barometer is a type of oppressive weather, frequently accompanied by unusual or extreme heat, and of course, usually forecasting a weather change. I don't pretend to know how it works; I only know what I have seen for many years."

Governor Price Daniel, whose Statewide traffic safety crusade for the past five years has dealt in detail with the causes of highway crashes, says the June record shows that "a normally safe day and a normally safe month can prove to be deadly on the highways unless each driver uses all his skill and obeys all the traffic laws. The records have long shown that most traffic crashes involve a law violation, so obe-

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress is in no rush to vote for an election-year tax cut because—among other things—tax cuts no longer seem to pay political dividends.

The lawmakers are divided about the wisdom of tax reduction to inject more vigor into the economy, but few are eager for a tax bill just because an election is coming up Nov. 6.

Neither political party has found any political benefit in the tax cuts enacted since World War II. The Democrats put through the first one late in 1945 and lost control of both the House and Senate in the 1946 elections.

Two Bills Passed
The Republican 80th Congress had to struggle to put its tax law in effect. Two bills were passed in 1947. Both were vetoed by President Truman and both vetoes were sustained. Another Republican tax bill was passed in 1948 and Truman's veto was overridden, but Truman was returned to the White House and the Democrats were restored to control of Congress in the 1948 elections.

Republicans have long boasted that their 1953-54 Congress gave the country the greatest tax reduction in history. Yet they lost control of Congress in the 1954 elections and stayed in the minority through the last six years of the Eisenhower administration.

These footnotes do not prove that tax cuts lose elections but they do show that tax reduction does not insure victory either.

The GOP attitude now is that a quickie tax cut is not the economic drug needed. Long-range tax reform is necessary, they say, coupled with reduction in federal spending.

Congressional opponents of tax reduction this year had their backs stiffened by last week's Gallup poll indicating 72 per cent of the voters oppose a tax cut which would add to the national debt.

Democrats Sensitive
Democrats are becoming sensitive to Republican charges of "fiscal irresponsibility" and many would like to be spared from casting a vote on a tax cut this summer.

Although both the AFL-CIO and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce are advocating tax reduction this year, congressional mail indicates no public clamor for it.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., who favors a 1962 tax cut, received only 46 letters on the issue during all of July—seven for and 39 against—from his populous state. At the same time, he received 585 letters—10 for and 575 against—the administration proposal for a withholding tax on interest and dividends.

The Democrats and the Kennedy administration could benefit next November from a tax cut if it gave the country an economic lift. Republican campaign seers now view the sluggish economy as the biggest single factor working for them in the coming campaign.

HOW MUCH AND WHERE—The booming U.S. population is expected to leap another 30 per cent by 1975. It was 179 million in the 1960 census; will reach 235 million 15 years later. Newsmap shows the growth rate of the 50 states. Fastest growing large state is Florida, which is expected to increase 4 1/2 million by 1975. In total population, California will be the largest in the nation, adding 9.7 million people in the same period. Only two states, Arkansas and West Virginia, will show a decline. Smallest growth will be an increase of 3,000 in North Dakota. Data from Kiplinger Washington Editors, Inc.

Small Upswing In Economy Of Neighbor Seen
MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Figures for the first half of this year indicate Mexico's rate of economic growth probably will take a small upswing for the 12 months ending Dec. 31, and avoid a repeat of last year's slump.

Government bank statistics for Jan. 1 through May 31 show an increase of $240 million in national income over the same period of 1961. The five month 1962 total was reported as $4,400,000,000.

Based on the five month total, national income for this year was expected to top $10.5 billion.

A government report said that "if this rate of income is not hurt by unforeseen international developments" the 1962 rate of growth is expected to top 4 per cent.

Nine months ago the economy was in a slump, the report noted, and last year's rate of growth was a disappointing 3.6 per cent. Early this year the entire business community and government agencies hashed over causes of this at length, and the President called for a 7 per cent figure this year.

The rate of growth for Latin America as a whole averaged about 2 per cent last year, the report added.

Dear Abby....

This Mom Needs Psychiatric Care

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you saw your daughter-in-law hit her two-year-old son over the head with a curtain rod? And what was his crime? He said, "Hungry, Mummy." I think this girl is mentally ill. I am not the meddling kind but I don't think this should go by unnoticed. If she did this with me standing there, I wonder what she does when no one is looking? The baby always carries bruises, bumps and black eyes. She says he is clumsy and rough. What should I do, Abby?

NO MEDDLER

DEAR NO: Would you stand by and let a stranger abuse a dog? Then give your grandchild the same break. TELL YOUR SON AT ONCE. No mother in her right mind would treat a child that way.

DEAR ABBY: I stand corrected. I had planned a baby shower for my daughter when a letter appeared in your column stating it was NOT proper for a mother to give her daughter a shower. I promptly called the shower off. Now will you please tell me what you think of a person who would clip an item like that from a newspaper and mail it to me anonymously?

VERY, VERY HURT
DEAR HURT: An "anonymous" message is a coward's way of expressing himself. He wants to be heard, but needs to hide. All anonymous communiques deserve to be ignored.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin has been married long enough to have learned how to cook, but I wish you could see some of the "meals" she puts out for her husband and family. A bowl of cold cereal for breakfast. A can of soup and sandwiches for supper. They are all as thin as rails, have colds all winter and catch everything that comes along. Their doctor bills are bigger than their food bills. How can I tell her to get busy and learn how to cook a decent meal? I like her a lot and hate to hurt her feelings.

COUNTRY COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: Cooking a "decent" meal today takes no longer than opening a can of soup and making a sandwich. Your cousin needs some information on nutrition. Introduce her to fresh vegetables and fruits and broiled meats. And don't worry about hurting her feelings when her family's health is at stake.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Sleeping facilities for overnight guests are greatly increased by unusual triple-tier bunk bed, right, and raised platform at end of the room, background, upon which mattresses can be placed. Top of bunk's lower unit moves up to notched posts and back rail to make middle deck. When not in use, the mattresses are hung from the wall.

'Spending The Night' Childhood's Delight

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Are you beginning to feel more like a youth hostel director than a homemaker? At this point in the summer, keeping track of the income and outgo of visitors of various ages and juggling available sleeping space almost requires a desk and a register book. I have made my share of mistakes learning the ropes.

It is a mistake to assume that all overnight visitors need the same treatment. This is the surest way to a depleted linen closet.

It is also a mistake to assume summer visitors are those relatives or friends who travel to see you. A nighttime headcount in our home this summer shows a preponderance of little crew cuts and shaggy bangs who have ridden over on their bicycles for the ultimate in childhood entertainment: "speeding the night."

I once tried to supply cots, blankets and pillows for the ever-increasing guest list. After a crisis in linens, I learned that the 8-to-13-year-olds are just as happy in sleeping bags on the floor.

From the "spending the night" phase, we progress to the "slumber party" and from there, friends tell me, to rooming house for visiting college chums. Our old sleeping porch may yet be the most valuable room in the house.

For older children and hardy adults, folding cots are still most useful as extra beds. Bunk beds and trundle bed arrangements help, too. A more modern-minded approach is supplied by a decorator, Paul Krauss, who designed a fair-sized workroom which could double as a dormitory.

A couple of points attracted my attention for possible modification to our own needs later. Instead of folding cots, etc., sleeping facilities are supplied by an unusual triple-tier bunk bed and bright-colored, duck-covered urethane foam mattresses. These mattresses fit across one end of the room and will sleep two. Storage drawers under the platform hold the bedding and, when not in use, the featherweight mattresses hang on the wall forming a bold design of color blocks.

Hanging up mattresses might be a bit too avant-garde for our crew but the idea of covering lightweight mattresses in bright-colored duck is an attractive solution to open storage. They could be stacked on a bench.

The bunk bed parallels the wall and three 3/4-inch plywood slabs, topped by urethane foam mattresses are anchored to the wall and to 6x6-inch posts. The posts, which are set two-thirds of the distance from the back wall to the front of the bunk are notched to fit the slabs.

On the back wall are double 2x2-inch strips set 3/4-inch apart. Holes drilled in the strips and the plywood slabs are spaced to hold pins which anchor the slabs securely in place. The middle tier can be pulled out and pushed under the first tier to afford headroom for lounging. A reasonably skilled carpenter could duplicate this design for a moderate cost.

White walls and beige vinyl plank tile floor are two neutral tones in an otherwise bright dormitory-workroom combination. Bitter green, royal blue, red, pink and yellow duck cover the urethane foam mattresses which hang on the wall and rest on the plywood bunk bed. Wall-hung mattresses fit on platform below which bedding is stored in drawers.

Take It From Kathy

... by kathy peterson

Dear Kathy: There is a boy I like very much but I can't tell if he likes me or not. I have invited him to several school activities. He acted then as if he really liked me. When Monday came around, he acted as if he didn't know me. Should I drop him or not?—M.C.

Dear Kathy: What do you do about boys who are one-night daters? ...

Dear Girls: Boys often complain because girls are so possessive. They don't want to feel owned after one or two dates. Dating several girls is their privilege. In fact, it's a good idea not to become too serious in your early teens.

If you like a certain boy but he doesn't know you are alive, you can arrange an introduction or take in activities he enjoys in order to bump into him. Inviting a boy who has never dated you to a party or dance planned by the girls is quite proper.

You make yourself look pretty silly by chasing him if the invitation isn't returned and there is no indication that he wants to spend time with you. The boy must take the initiative.

Fellows who date you only once obviously haven't been smitten by your charms. Girls who have constant problems of this sort should stop and think about their dating behavior. It happens to every girl once in a while. If an evening of her company hasn't made the boy wish for a second, she'd better forget him and look in another direction.

Many consider paper napkins too informal for an indoor meal.

Vacation More Fun If You Are Well-Groomed

By ALICIA HART

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Everyone looks healthy and happy after a vacation. Rest, fun and sunning put a glow in the complexion and add sparkle to the eyes. But why not take that glow with you when you go instead of waiting to bring it back at the end of your vacation? If you can manage this, you'll almost certainly enjoy your holiday more.

It takes time and faithful adherence to a beauty routine to look pretty and rested BEFORE vacation, especially after you've worked the year round and feel the need for relaxation. So start right now to achieve your aim.

Consider your hair, for example. A permanent or an expert shaping will be needed so that your coiffure can remain chic during days of swimming and casual living.

During winter, overheated rooms may have dried out your hair. To combat this tone up your hair and scalp with weekly hot-oil treatments. To do this, part your hair in sections, apply warmed olive oil with cotton and then massage your scalp to work in the lubrication.

Next saturate a towel with hot water and roll it around your head turban style, redipping it in hot water occasionally to make the steam penetration effective. Finally, shampoo well with three or four latherings, and follow with thorough rinsing.

Brush your hair vigorously every day from scalp to ends, holding your head down while you brush. When you combine frequent shampoos with daily brushing, your hair retains vitality and luster.

Next plan a pre-vacation beauty campaign for your skin. Remember that bathing suits, shorts and sleeveless dresses will reveal your good grooming or lack of it.

To cleanse and lubricate your skin, prepare a mixture of melted soap and baby oil and apply this to your body while your bath water is running. Then, step into the tub, soak for a while and vigorously scrub yourself with a rough cloth or body brush. This will stimulate circulation and remove dead skin. After rinsing and drying, apply body lotion.

If you observe these ground rules for hair and skin care during the weeks when you're planning a smart vacation wardrobe, you'll achieve a rewarding and unusual result — pre-vacation glow!

The Mature Parent

Can't Expect Every One To Love You

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Three weeks ago the superintendent of my little girl's Sunday School gave a party for a group of the children. I heard about it only after it was over from the mother of one of the youngsters who attended. My little girl was not invited, and so far as I can find out, she is the only member of her class who wasn't. It seems such an unkind thing to do for a woman who is supposed to be teaching the love of God to children. It troubles me greatly because we are good Christian people, maintain a nice home, although our income is not as large as some of the other members of our church.

ANSWER: Maybe the lady dislikes you and your child. Maybe she finds you personally unattractive and socially inferior. Maybe she can't stand anything about you.

So? You don't expect everybody to love you, do you? Because they won't. That's how the world is. The idea that we must exert irresistible charm on everyone we meet is the idea that produces our hurt and anger when we discover we don't.

So, if you want to get rid of the hurt inflicted by this Sunday School superintendent, you first have to rid yourself of the obligation to exert universal appeal. When you see what a cruelly impossible burden it imposes on you, you will find yourself able to tolerate this lady's right to like or dislike you. Instead of being the special person she now is with her special ability to hurt you, she will become just one of the thousands of other people you have met and will continue to meet in your life who, for reasons which are uncontrollable by you, do not like you. At this point a nice thing can happen.

You'll find yourself suddenly able to bring up the subject of her slight to this lady. One Sunday morning soon when you take your child down to the Sunday School room, you'll find yourself able to say, "We're fine, thank you — though Chrissie is a little sad at having missed that lovely children's party."

And staring at you in horror, the superintendent may cry out, "Oh, my goodness, didn't Chrissie get her invitation? I sent her one." Or she may say, "Oh, I'm counting on Chrissie for my second party. You see, there are so many children..." She may not say any of a number of things that will demonstrate she had no intention of snubbing your little girl.

But if you feel obligated to command her admiration, you will not be able to raise the subject of her slight with her. It will be too loaded with the Queen of Hearts' rage at anyone's refusal to fall to his knees in adoration.

Moore-Cooper Solemnize Vows In St. Theresa Catholic Church

PANHANDLE (Sp) — St. Theresa Catholic Church was the nuptial scene on July 30 for the marriage of Miss Aleeta Sue Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moore of Panhandle and Freddy John Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cooper of Turkey.

The Rev. Tim Tennis of Sacred Heart Cathedral, Amarillo, officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

Traditional wedding selections were sung by the Sisters of Santa Maria Convent, Panhandle.

The bride wore a gown designed with a bodice of nylon lace over taffeta, featuring a rounded neckline and long tapered sleeves. Rose brocaded satin formed the full skirt, which fell into a short train. Her Veil of Illusion was a held to a seed pearl tiara. She wore a single strand of pearls.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of lilies-of-the-valley and stephanotis, centered with a cattelya orchid.

Michael Moore, nephew of the bride, and Teresa Moore, niece of the bride, served as ringbearer and flower girl.

Attendants for the couple were Miss Lucille Cooper, sister of the bridegroom, and Richard Irby of Turkey.

Ushers were Larry Stewart,

Clarendon; Jerry Lane, Jerry Williams and Ronald Jay.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the War Memorial Building. The bride's table was laid with a white organza cloth over white with a full ruffled skirt. A white floral centerpiece was flanked by silver candle holders with white tapers. Table appointments were of crystal and silver.

Members of the houseparty were Misses Sherry Hearron, Rosemary Osborne, Beverly Cooper and Sheryl Keahey.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple is at home in Weatherford, Okla., where Mr. Cooper is attending Southwestern State College.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are graduates of Panhandle High School. Mrs. Cooper attended Pampa College of Hairdressing and has been employed by Roberta's Beauty Salon in Panhandle.

Marilyn's Future Seemed All Down Hill

(Editor's Note: The third and final dispatch by UPI Hollywood correspondent Vernon Scott on the life and death of Marilyn Monroe, whom he interviewed many times during her 12 years of stardom.)

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — In the last year and a half of her life Marilyn Monroe was a movie star without a movie, overweight, discouraged by three divorces and emotionally spent.

Her career had crested and the future appeared to be all downhill. Following her Mexican divorce from Arthur Miller in January 1961, she entered at New York clinic for mental illnesses. Her stay there was brief, but long enough to cancel her plans to star in a live television version of "Rain," which she had agreed to do.

For almost a year Marilyn became a recluse, rarely allowing visitors to her New York apartment. She had gained weight which shrouded her once-famous curves.

As she had since childhood, sex goddess Monroe sought ties, someone to grasp and hold onto. Surprising, that person was Joe DiMaggio, her quiet, steady, second husband.

They met in Florida and dated in New York City, and rumor sprang up that Marilyn would marry Joe and find the long-sought refuge from the battering life had given her.

"We're just friends," Marilyn said at the time. The great Yankee slugger of yesterday remained silent.

But his strength helped Marilyn. She drew on it. She forced herself to diet and, encouraged, the tired glamor girl once again attempted to prove herself an actress.

Still under contract to 20th Century-Fox, with which she had been fighting for eight years, Marilyn returned to Hollywood last spring, to star with Dean Martin in "Something's Got to Give." She wanted Rock Hudson for the costar role, but she was told he could not break another contract.

Rebellious, she complained that she was the star of the picture but making less money than Martin. Her old contract called for $100,000 per picture.

Monroe fan mail had dwindled to a trickle from a high of 5,000 letters a week. But Marilyn assumed a kind of gaiety despite the fury of studio executives who had delayed the picture at great cost because she was late in reporting for work.

Back at Studio
She had regained her figure and her scenes were better than she had ever done before. Spirits rose on the lot. Talk was optimistic.

Then shooting was suspended when Marilyn flew to New York to serenade President Kennedy at his birthday rally in Madison Square Garden. Studio executives were beside themselves with rage, powerless to punish their star.

Marilyn worked a few more days upon her return, then failed to appear again, sending notice that she was suffering from a virus.

I talked to her by telephone during the final few days of her employment.

"I'm really sick," she said. "I have a temperature over 100 degrees and my throat is terribly sore. I want to get back to work and I hope the studio understands."

The studio did not understand. It had been through similar delaying tactics with Marilyn in the past. So far $2 million had been spent on the picture and it was less than a fourth completed.

On June 8 the studio fired its biggest star and sued her for $500,000. It replaced her with actress Lee Remick only to be shocked at Martin's announcement that he would not appear in the picture without Monroe.

No Work, No Love

The beautiful girl-woman had nothing left now. She couldn't work under the terms of her studio contract although there were scores of offers. Nor could she lose herself in another romantic entanglement. The heartbreak of her marriages to Miller and DiMaggio had wrung her almost dry of emotion.

What, then, was there left for the most glittering glamor girl in memory?

In a recent magazine story she said, "... I was brought up differently from the average American child because the average child is brought up expecting to be happy."

Again, she said, "Fame may go by and—so long, I've had you, fame."

In death Marilyn could not say, "So long, I've had you, life." She had only a tiny piece of life, and for those of us who knew and admired Marilyn Monroe there remains soul-searing remorse that none was able to provide her with the knowledge that she was indeed loved and cherished.

A British Railways spokesman called it a "slight error of judgment."

Grid, Cage Squads In Readiness

LUBBOCK (UPI)— All-Star basketball and football squads polished up their offense today for the weekend clashes that highlight the Texas High School Coaches Association Clinic.

Coches Flash Walker of Brazosport was to run his South cagers through a light one hour workout early today and follow that up with a "final good hard session" this evening.

Otherwise, scrimmages ended Wednesday and North basketball coach John Ethridge of Dimmitt joined the North and South football instructors in brushing up.

Basketball coaches were expected to name their starting lineups today in a final move before Friday's cage battle, expected to draw a record crowd in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Coaches attending the 30th annual school returned to the classroom for the second day of studies. The old attendance record of 3,333 was still intact when registration opened this morning but officials were still optimistic it would fall before the day was out.

A total of 3,154 registered through Wednesday.

Starters Picked
Ethridge gave his North cagers the morning off today to allow healing time for blisters and other small ailments. The biggest part of his drills are finished. The starting lineup is expected to include Eddie Dominguez of Dallas Jefferson and Dub Malaise of Odessa at guards, Russ Wilkinson and John Beasley of Lindon-Kildare alternating between the high and low post.

Walker announced co-captains for the South cagers. 6-6 post man Bill Doty of Clear Creek and 6-0 guard James Simmons of Buna will share the honor. Doty and J. C. Smith of Leverets Chapel, who will alternate as high post men in Friday's clash, were praised for their work in Wednesday's scrimmage.

Walker indicated the South may have to play a ball control game to match the North's height advantage. Walker worked on defense extensively to prepare his smaller squad for the North's potent attack.

Rash of Injuries
Seven members of the North-South football squad were expected back in uniform for drills today following a rash of minor injuries which limited work Wednesday.

The South lost five members in the scrimmage, but all were reported in good condition and ready to return for the morning practice. Halfback Gene Walker of Hull-Daisetta, quarterback Jake David of Nederland and fullback Wayne Bell of Baytown received thigh bruises. End Ronnie Landry of Port Arthur suffered bruises and end Doyle H. Johnson of Galena Park received a leg cramp.

South coach Dick Sheffield of Jacksonville said the injuries "put a cramp in our workout," but all will be back for today's drill. He said the workout was also hampered by hot weather.

Few Changes
Ends Landry and Tom Nobis of San Antonio Jefferson switched positions in the only major moves made by the staff.

End Buddy Aldredge of Sweetwater and halfback Billy Mattox of Karnack suffered injuries for the North but both will be in uniform today. Aldredge missed the evening drills due to a knee injury but Mattox was at the evening workout despite a pulled thigh muscle.

Although Aldredge was cleared physically by the team trainer, coach Carl Spoonmore of Lubbock moved fullback Ronnie Bell of McKinney to left end as a safety valve against additional trouble with Aldredge's injury.

Larry Shields of Wichita Falls once again impressed the observers at the workout breaking loose on several long runs at the fullback spot. Mike Sutherland of Ysleta also broke loose a few times and the two signal callers, Mike Boxwell of Dumas and Mike Dossett of Dallas Wilson, impressed coaches with their passing and running.

Mixed Foursome Slated Sunday

A mixed scotch foursome will be held at the Pampa Country club course Sunday at 3:30 p.m. The scotch foursome is being sponsored by the Ladies Golf Association of Pampa.

Smith Given Nod To Win Golf Meet

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— A field of 60 leading women golfers, including 33 professionals, tee off today in the first round of the 72-hole Heart of America Open at Hillcrest Country Club.

The $7,500 event will conclude Sunday.

Marilyn Smith, a Kansan playing out of Jupiter, Fla., moved into the favorite role on the strength of a hot putting streak. She won the Waterloo Open last week with a final sub-par 67 that required only 28 putts.

Hebert Ruled As Tourney Favorite

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)— Defending champion Jay Hebert, who has made most of his golfing living the last two years playing the Firestone Country Club course, ruled a slight favorite today in the field of 99 golfers who teed off in the $50,000 American Golf Classic.

Hebert, who never has lost on the rolling acres of the 7,165-yard course, was one of 29 U.S. Open, PGA and Masters champions in the star-studded field.

He had all of the best golfers in the world to beat, including the 1962 kings of the sport — Masters and British Open champion Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open king Jack Nicklaus and PGA champ Gary Player.

Palmer, suffering from a bee sting on his right wrist, hoped to get back on his game, which has been fading since he won the British Open a month ago.

Stung By Bee
"I hope I'll play better," said Palmer, who was stung by a yellow jacket on his right wrist as he teed off on the 17th hole of his one-over-par 71 practice round Wednesday.

He said that despite a swelling in the wrist "I don't think it will bother me," then added with a grin:

"But my putting might."

His trouble this season — if you can call it that, for he has won $71,198.33 so far — has stemmed from his putter.

Like the others, he was shooting for the top money of $9,000 in this classic, which attracted the strongest field of any tournament this year.

Dozen PGA Champs Entered
Hebert is one of 12 PGA champs in the field. The others include his brother, Lionel; Player, Jerry Barber, Jackie Burke, Walter Burkemo, Jim Ferrier, Dow Finstewald, Doug Ford, Chick Harbert, Bob Rosburg and the aging Sam Snead.

Palmer and Nicklaus are among the nine U.S. Open champions trying for this big one. The others are Tommy Bolt, Julius Boros, Billy Casper, Jack Fleck, Gene Littler, Cary Middlecoff and Lew Worsham.

As for the Masters kings, they are three-time winners Jimmy Demaret and Snead; Player, Palmer, Burke, Ford, Art Wall and Claude Harmon. It adds up to the most powerful array for a golf tournament this year. All of the year's 40 leading money-winners, headed by Palmer, are here.

Lefors Finishes In Second Place In Loop

LEFORS (Spl) — The Lefors pitcher for the Twins. Tex Nolan and Jim Pennington, coaches of the Twins, considered it a very good season for Lefors considering the lack of experience the boys had, and look forward to a good season next year.

Samnorwood went through the entire season undefeated, with credit going to Bob King as winning pitcher. The team was presented a trophy after Sunday afternoon's game.

Lefors players shining at bat in the game were Ronnie Line, Neal Cates, Anthony McCool, James Coleman, Michael Allison, all hitting singles, and Tommy Smith, hitting a triple.

Scott Dunnam was the losing pitcher.

Angels Sweep Pair To Narrow Gap In AL Race

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Don't count those Los Angeles Angels out of the American League pennant race yet — not while they've got Jim Fregosi, Felix Torres and Jack Spring.

Who? Well, it's true they're not Mickey Mantle — or even Tony Kubek — but it's also true they're not yet ready to roll over and concede the flag to the Yankees. And the most respected axiom in all baseball is that a fellow — no matter who he is — is always dangerous as long as he keeps swinging.

That is exactly what manager Bill Rigney's team is doing. They were counted out of the race only about 10 days ago but today they're back in second place and sporting a four-game winning streak after Wednesday night's 5-1 and 7-3 victories over the Chicago White Sox. The victory, coupled with the Yankees' split of a doubleheader with the Baltimore Orioles, enabled the Angels to move within 4 1/2 games of the Yanks.

Dodgers Pulling Away
You might not think that's much of a race but it may be the only one left in the majors because the Los Angeles Dodgers opened up a 5 1/2-game margin Wednesday night when they beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 3-1, and the San Francisco Giants bowed to the New York Mets, 5-2.

The Yankees beat the Orioles, 3-2, in their opener but then bowed, 4-3, the Detroit Tigers swept the Washington Senators, 6-5 and 10-3, the Kansas City Athletics downed the Minnesota Twins, 4-3, and the Boston Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians, 6-0, in the other AL action.

In the other NL games, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Houston Reds defeated the Houston

Colts, 4-0, the St. Louis Cardinals scored a 2-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs routed the Milwaukee Braves, 12-4.

The Angels rallied for four runs in the eighth inning of the opener and Spring pitched two shut-out innings to preserve Ted Bowsfield's seventh win. Then Fregosi lashed out three singles and Torres tripled and scored in addition to hitting two singles to lead a 14-hit Los Angeles attack in the nightcap.

Wills Stole Two
Stan Williams pitched a seven-hitter for the Dodgers, Johnny Roseboro hit a two-run homer and Maury Wills stole two bases to raise his total to 60 in the Dodgers' triumph. Wills' 60 stolen bases are the most in the NL since Max Carey stole 63 in 1916.

Frank Thomas and Felix Mantilla each hit a two-run homer and the Mets reeled off five double plays behind the seven-hit pitching of Roger Craig. Bob Bolin suffered his second loss against six wins for the Giants.

Bill Skowron's ninth-inning single drove in the winning run for the Yankees and gave Marshall Bridges his fifth victory of the season but the Orioles won the nightcap with the aid of Billy Hoefi's no-hit relief pitching over the last four innings. Jerry Adair paced the Orioles' five hit attack in the second game with a double and a single.

Norm Cash and Vic Wertz hit homers for the Tigers in their opening game win and then Rocky Colavito and Mike Roarke sparked a 15-hit attack with round-trippers in the nightcap. Ron Kline won his third game in the opener and Phil Regan chalked up No. 6 in the second game.

Three Facing Trial On Cage Bribery Charges

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI)— Three New York City men face trial on basketball bribery charges today in Durham County Superior Court.

Another admitted fixer, Lou Brown, a former University of North Carolina court star from Jersey City, N.J., pleaded guilty July 30 to bribery charges stemming from a game between his college and the University of South Carolina Dec. 2, 1959.

The three New Yorkers are Gerald Vogel, a former University of Alabama player, and Aaron Wagman and Joseph Green, All except Wagman are free under $3,000 bond.

Judge Henry A. McKinnon Jr. said he would sentence Brown after today's trial. Solicitor Dan K. Edwards said he understood Vogel and Green will plead guilty.

SHOEMAKER WINS FOUR
CHICAGO (UPI)— Willie Shoemaker booted home four winners at Arlington Wednesday. The shoe started the string with Guanaco ($4.60) in the second race and followed with Three Links ($4.80) in the third, Gigi Dunstan ($4.00) in the seventh and Linger On ($5.20) in the ninth.

out in the ninth inning to provide the Athletics with their winning margin over the Twins and stretch their winning streak to six games while Gene Conley pitched a four-hitter and Lu Clinton hit a two-run triple for the Red Sox against the Indians.

Joe Nuxhall and Jim Brosnan combined in a six-hitter for the Reds and stretched the Colts' string of consecutive scoreless innings to 34. Jerry Lynch homered and Vada Pinson and Johnny Edwards hit triples to lead the Reds' seven-hit attack.

Bob Gibson pitched a three-hitter to win his 14th game of the season for the Cardinals and Ernie Banks and Ron Santo each homered to lead the Cubs' 14-hit attack on four Milwaukee pitchers.

What Is Self Government?

Sometimes we are accused of favoring no government at all.

Not infrequently, when such accusation is made, we deny it by pointing out that what we really favor is self-government.

This assertion sometimes leads to the further accusation that we are trying to evade the issue.

But we are not. Let's see if we can explain those parts of our response which may not be immediately clear.

All energy operates under control. This is a discernible fact in nature, in science, in all human experience. Electricity, steam, gasoline, all contain energy. Each kind of energy is different. Each kind operates differently than every other kind of energy.

But each kind of energy operates according to a control that exists within that energy. No one knows what it is that controls electricity, for example. But virtually everyone in America knows that electricity is controlled for its always acts in the same way under the same set of conditions.

Human energy is controlled according to the rules relating to human energy controls. Everyone knows how human energy is controlled, too. At least everyone knows it when he stops to think about it.

You are reading this newspaper. You wish to do something else. Your desire culminates in your own generation of sufficient energy to toss this newspaper aside and to energize your motor nerves to propel your body to some new location so that you can undertake the new activity of your choice. You are the only person and the only power on earth that can CONTROL your own human energy.

This ability you have to control your own energy is what can be called self-control. It is control of the self by the self. It functions mentally, physically, morally. Self-control is just another way of saying self-government.

We believe in self-government. For self-government is in harmony with nature. Men DO control their own energies. The fact is self apparent. Nothing could occur in this world if this were not true.

But when we start talking in terms of political forces we begin to believe that men do NOT control their own energies, but rather that governments control their energies. It is not true.

Governments have tried for centuries to make people moral. Are they? Governments have tried to prevent theft. Has it been prevented?

Governments have even tried (sometimes) to get people to believe in things they do not believe in. (Think of martyrs, both pagan and Christian, who have suffered under some governmental edict.) Did government CONTROL the beliefs of these people?

Governments always carry on this pretense. They try to make it appear that human beings either can't or won't control their own energies. But the fact is that only the individual CAN control his own energy. And he always controls his own energy in accordance with certain rules which are now known and which are demonstrable.

In this country when the Declaration of Independence was written, a great many people understood that they were free and that they did control their own energy.

At that time we proclaimed the idea that each man was self-controlling and self-responsible, and at the same time that governments were unimportant and entirely subject to the power and right of individuals to take their governments apart or to dispense with them entirely.

But that idea was probably not fully understood. For very quickly it was converted and corrupted into this idea: That everyone had a right to vote; that by voting we would find out what was best; that when people voted and thus discovered what was best, this was "self-government."

It is not. Self-government is government of the self by the self. And this is the only real government of the individual, by the individual, for the individual. Voting, which merely determines where the power of might resides according to numbers, does not provide for self-government. Rather, it provides that some shall govern others. And this is the opposite of self-government.

Self-government is what we support. We believe in your absolute right to govern yourself. Is it wrong to believe in self-government and the individual rights of every human being on earth?

Is Government Stable?

Historians tell us that the one imperative for the preservation of a civilization is a climate of stability. That is, it is mandatory for businessmen, industrialists, producers and traders to know in advance what conditions are going to be like so that they can properly manage their affairs.

It is claimed that this is the basic philosophic reason for government. Most of the things (if not all) government does can be and are being done by private persons or firms outside of government. But it is essential to have this "climate" of stability and only the government can provide it, we are told.

Next, we are told that "ours" is the "best" government in the world.

Assuming this to be true, let's examine the record of stability as established by our own government.

Take the matter of public debt. The Congress long ago passed a law which placed a limit on the amount of money the government could borrow. Since 1954 (eight years ago), that debt ceiling has been boosted five times.

In 1955 it was raised to $281 billion; in 1958 it went to $228 billion; in 1960 it jumped to $295 billion; and in 1962 there were two pushups, one to $298 billion and just recently it zoomed to $300 billion.

and regulation? Or would you agree that this is unstable?

Again, let's take another item relating to money and debt, the annual budget. In January of 1961 as the Eisenhower regime moved out and the Kennedy regime moved in, the transfer occurred to the tune of an optimistic forecast by Eisenhower that by June of 1962 there would be a surplus in the federal budget of $1.5 billion.

Mr. Kennedy hadn't been in office 100 days before he revised the budget and on March 27 he forecast a $2.3 billion deficit for the 1961 - 62 fiscal year.

On May 25, 1961, just about 60 days later, Mr. Kennedy made another revision. This time he estimated a deficit of $3.6 billion. One month and two days later he revised this figure to $3.7 billion.

But it didn't stand long. On July 25, almost a month later, he pushed the budget deficit estimate up to $5.3 billion. On October 29, 1961, he showed upward again to $6.9 billion. Then in his annual budget message this year on Jan. 18, 1962, Mr. Kennedy forecast a deficit by June 30 of $7 billion.

Many people who are not informed in fiscal areas are inclined to shrug off this sort of thing with a "So what?" They follow by claiming that their own wages have been going up and they "never had it so good." There's no question but what

Red Carpet Day is a monthly event staged by 60 downtown merchants in a Texas city. The first Monday of each month each member actually rolls out a red carpet in front of his establishment, and 27 of the city's main intersections have carpets spread from curb to curb. The "red carpet" treatment also includes free parking, free bus rides, free theatre tickets and especially priced merchandise.

From a medical viewpoint, a celebrated nutritionist asserts, the reasons for weight - reducing should be in this order; longevity; health; comfort; efficiency; and attractiveness. But alas, he observes, longevity is the least common reason persons have. Although for the past half century it's been known statistically that overweight shortens the life to a shocking degree, fewer seek a shorter waistline for the sake of a longer life than for other reasons. . . . From an advertisement in the Rochester (N.Y.) Community News: "New boys light tan suit. Ladies black brood cloth winter coat."

About 75 per cent of all deaths caused by hurricanes are drownings. And incredible as it may seem, it is not uncommon to record a death or a serious injury to a man who climbed on to his roof to salvage his television aerial before it was blown away.

Today's favorite gag: The entire neighborhood was in its usual frenzy over gardening. One property owner approached his neighbor and said, "Hate to bother you, Jones, but I wonder if I could get back that spade you borrowed from me last week."

"I'm sorry," Jones replied, "but I lent it to a friend down the block. Do you need it?" "Not for myself," the gardener replied, "but the fellow I borrowed it from says the owner wants it back."

Flashback: Up to "World War I, second lieutenant in the U.S. Army did not wear bars on their shoulders at all, or any other insignia.

The daily newspaper at Pecos, Tex., that Billie Sol Estes started in 1961 has been sold to 12 local businessmen for $325,000. During his brief tenure as owner-publisher, Billie Sol had invested $199,419 in it - so that makes it another of his losing ventures. . . . For those who get out the semi-annual catalogs of the great mail order houses (there's an advertising guide which forbids them to use meaningless superlatives, the inaccurate use of trade terms, and to mention the fact that elimination of the middle man means lower costs.

Maybe you've noticed: Dry ice doesn't melt - it sublimates. That is, it passes directly from a solid to a gaseous state. . . . That succulent part of a boiled or broiled lobster that comes out green is for some unknown reason called the "tomalley," and is really the lobster's liver. . . . Now that the new State Department building in Washington has ample facilities for large formal dinners and parties, Secretary Dean Rusk is inviting many more newspapermen and their wives to such affairs than formerly.

Annual wages have been going up. Take a typical family of four in the United States. In 1947 the average annual income of such a family was $3,031. Income tax for that year for this family would have been $138.32.

A similar family of four in 1960 would have averaged $5,620 in annual wages. This is a dollar increase of $2,589 or about 58 per cent more than was earned in 1947. However, in the same period income taxes would have increased to $531.60, being a dollar tax increase of almost $400, or 284 per cent. And this is only the income tax. Meanwhile, social security taxes have been increased, real estate taxes have been boosted, and all other taxes, including school, commodity, excise and other taxes have climbed.

The dollar gain in wages has been offset by the hidden taxes and sales taxes. The family of four in 1960 had no more dollars to spend on real goods and services than it had in 1947. In fact, it had less.

Is this the kind of "climate" that establishes and maintains a civilization on the basis of reasonable forecasts of what will happen? Or is this an example of the very lack of stability supposed to occur when government is not a factor?

Hygiene, Medication, Minimize TB Spread

Q - We have just learned that my husband has tuberculosis. We have two children, age 6 and 3, and I am expecting a third in a month. What can be done to protect us from infection?

A - There are at least three general methods by which the dangers of a household spread of tuberculous infection may be reduced almost to the vanishing point.

First, your husband must realize that tubercle bacilli may be present in his sputum and in the droplets he sprays when he coughs. Consequently it is his responsibility to destroy sputum at all times. When he coughs, he must cover his mouth with a tissue that can promptly be burned. And when he kisses you or the children - which he must do as infrequently as possible - he must merely bestow a token caress on an indifferent area (top of head) with lips tightly pursed.

To supplement his efforts, you and the children may be protected both by a vaccine (BCG) that will help you build your own defenses and by a drug that possesses the power of killing tubercle bacilli (tuberculocide). To give you an idea of the effectiveness of these antituberculous measures, let me quote from three recent reports:

At the Cook County Hospital in Chicago, a comparison was made of the fate of BCG-vaccinated infants as compared with those who were unvaccinated and equally exposed.

Over a 23-year period of observation the occurrence of tuberculosis was reduced 75 per cent in the vaccinated, who suffered only a single death, as against six in the group of the unvaccinated.

And, in a similar study, conducted in the province of Quebec, deaths from tuberculous meningitis were reduced from 133 in the nonvaccinated group to 6 of the vaccinated. From their experiences, the Canadian investigators concluded that, of the 543 deaths that occurred from all forms of tuberculosis during the seven-year period of observation, vaccination would likely have prevented 361 of the fatalities.

With the additional aid of a simple tuberculocidal drug (isoniazid or one of its relatives), that can be taken by mouth, the number of cases of active tuberculosis and/or deaths from tuberculosis may be reduced still further. Using the drug alone, the United States Public Health Service observed the effects on more than 25,000 household contacts. Only 9 drug-treated children and 14 adults developed the disease, against 16 children and 62 adults who did not receive tuberculocide.

Thus you see, there is ample justification for my statement that, with combined vaccine and drug preventive therapies, the risk of a household spread of your husband's tuberculous infection may be reduced almost to the vanishing point."

Raul Castro's Russian Visit Seen as Failure; Kremlin Puts Off Requests for Aid

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON - Dictator Fidel Castro's younger brother Raul, commander of the armed forces, is back from his loudly-lanterned visit to Moscow, but the Cuban people have yet to learn that.

Astonishingly, there has been a complete blackout on Raul's return. Despite the strident hoopla that surrounded his Moscow trip, including being met at the airport by Defense Minister Malinovsky, several much-publicized meetings with Khrushchev and widely-publicized sessions with other Soviet leaders, Raul's arrival home has been shrouded in drum-tight secrecy.

Nothing has been said about it in the controlled press or on the air. Raul was flown to Havana in a TU-114 Soviet jet transport directly from Moscow, with one operating stop in Ghana. The pilot was the same one who brought Khrushchev to New York several years ago.

One purpose of this flight to Havana was to check on the route of a proposed regular air service between the Cuban Capital and Moscow.

Intelligence authorities attribute the extraordinary silence regarding Raul's return to the fact that his trip was a dismal flop; that he failed to get what he was dispatched for.

Fidel sent his brother to the Soviet for two things - a nuclear defense pact, and more arms, particularly a number of speedy patrol boats.

RED RUN AROUND - The failure to get a mutual defense pact was a bitter disappointment to Fidel. He had ambitiously planned to loudly proclaim this new bond with Russia at the recent anniversary of the start of his so-called "people's revolution." This announcement was to be the big feature of the celebration.

But while the Reds gave Raul super-VIP treatment, wining and dining him and talking promisingly, they carefully shied away from any commitments. They avoided friendship and goodwill, but persistently avoided getting down to cases.

On the patrol boats, Raul had somewhat better luck. Castro asked for 10 or more to combat intensifying insurgent operations. In the past several months, there has been a steady increase in the flow of arms and trained guerrillas to the Cuban underground. Castro sought a sizable flotilla of Soviet patrol boats, to counter this growing threat.

The Kremlin agreed to supply six boats, but did not specify when they will be forthcoming. Raul was told "it will be soon," but not how soon.

Moscow was even more indefinite on other arms Castro wants. To Raul's request for more MIGs, particularly late model MI-19s, the Russians were distinctly cool. There are strong indications they feel the $100 million in weapons they have poured into Cuba in the past several years are more than ample - for the time being.

Also that the Kremlin is beginning to have misgivings about the stability of the Castro regime.

So while the Communists are warbling comradeship and devotion, they are not being as free-handed to Castro as they used to be. They are still dishing out to him, but on a much chancier scale

Pegler Says:

Nothing Is Changed By

Supreme Court Decision

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES - The outcry against the Supreme Court's decision in the matter of an address to the Deity authorized by the New York Board of Regents for recitation by children in public schools stultifies the American public, the Press and much of the clergy. In a country infested and beset by clouds of pettifoggers it should have been instantly apparent that the decision changes nothing.

The Court is composed of fellows from political surroundings and their pay is higher than most of them ever expected. To lead myself a little more astray I reiterate my sensible and patriotic proposition that the Press attend to its bounden duty to tap the deliberations of all the courts.

But there is no greater reason now for children to refrain from praying or for teachers to abstain from leading them flagrantly in the Apostles' Creed than there was before the bull on prayer came down. Actually that verboten is mere gas. The Constitutional Amendment, the First, says only that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. In the case before the Court it was and principally in food, machinery and goods that they are making him pay for on a barter basis.

FIDELISMOISMS - Cuba once exported oranges, but under Dictator Castro they have become so scarce that they have been put in a medical category and a doctor's prescription is required to obtain them. Only eight oranges can be prescribed at one time, and 45 stores have been officially designated to handle this fruit. . . . In a new effort to obtain urgently-needed sugar mill parts, the Manzanillo sugar workers union has agreed to undertake to make some. How well this experiment will succeed remains to be seen.

Russia has forged another link in its iron grip on Cuba. Castro has signed an agreement with the Soviet to provide Cuba with postal, telephone and telegraph equipment and "training personnel" - who in actual practice will probably take over running these key services. Five Soviet fishing vessels have arrived in Havana avowedly to "teach modern fishing techniques" to Cubans. Significantly, the commander of these Russian fishing ships is a naval officer, and the crews are Soviet naval seamen. If they know anything about "modern fishing techniques" they've given no indication of that so far.

LATIN AMERICAN FLAHSSES - Mexico's President Lopez Mateos is going to the Far East later this year. His itinerary will include Japan, the Philippines, Indonesia and India. This will be his first visit to this strategic section of the world. . . . Argentina is in the process of reducing its armed forces by 15 per cent as an economy move. This has the backing of the military chiefs. . . . Intelligence authorities have warned certain South American countries that Communist agents have been sent there to create violent disturbances. The identity of some of these Red provocateurs is known. They are Latin Americans who were trained behind the Iron Curtain, and have been using Cuba as their base.

not even alleged that Congress had done so. It was not even alleged that the New York Board of Regents had "made" any such law, nor had it. No law had been passed by the Board and, anyway, the Board is not a legislative body and could not and did not enact a law.

All this being so - and it is so - why do such eminents as Cardinals Cushing and Spellman and the great spiritual leader of the Christian Crusade, the Rev. Billy James Hargis, of Tulsa, Okla., fly into excitement?

As of today and henceforth any schoolteacher who has the courage to do so may lead the children in any prayer in the Catechism or the Book of Common Prayer without the slightest risk of any Federal action. Not even Eisenhower would have the gall to send the First Airborne to enforce the implications of this decree because it does not imply that Congress enacted any forbidden sort of law. No jury would convict any teacher even if Congress had done so.

This was a bear trap case. The Court made a damned fool of itself in its crazy zeal to over power the whole nation, and altogether that was not bad for the country. It has issued a decree which no power can enforce.

THE AMERICAN WAY

A Friendly Gesture Misunderstood

Thalidomide: Part Two

'They're Beautiful, Pale Blue Pills'

By DAVID SMOTHERS
United Press International
CHICAGO (UPI) — "They're beautiful, pale blue pills, round, a bit smaller than aspirin, scored on one side, with a double circle and an 'M' on the other side."

"They're lovely. If I didn't know what they were I'd take them myself."

Mrs. Trudy Whitman happens to have a bottle of the pretty blue pills because she is an employee of the New York City Health Department. The bottle is labeled "Kevadon" and comes from the highly reputable pharmaceutical house of William S. Merrell Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Until a month ago, most of the nation's doctors regarded "Kevadon" as a promising sedative and tranquilizer which had proved highly popular from Europe to Australia.

Today the Federal Drug Administration (FDA), together with state and city health departments and medical associations was grimly at the job of locating and confiscating every one of the blue pills in the nation. For "Kevadon" is the American trade name for thalidomide, the sleep-inducing drug which has caused thousands of babies abroad to be born deformed.

The records of the FDA showed that William S. Merrell Co. had made the drug available to 1,231 physicians throughout the country. The doctors were asked to test the drug's effectiveness and safety. There was nothing wrong with this practice. It is routine, because testing on humans is required before a new drug can be approved by the FDA.

It was two years and eight months after the Merrell Company first asked FDA clearance to market thalidomide that the drug's tragic potential became public knowledge.

Many — perhaps most — U.S. doctors had little idea of Thalidomide's cruel effect upon unborn infants until they read in the newspapers in mid-July of the dogged fight of an FDA investigator, Dr. Frances Kelsey, to keep thalidomide off the market — and why.

There was nationwide concern and even occasional hysteria when Dr. Kelsey's story was told that pregnant women were dramatized by the plight of Mrs. Sherri Finkbine, a Phoenix, Ariz., housewife and television personality who had taken thalidomide during the early months of her pregnancy. Mrs. Finkbine preferred an abortion to the possibility of giving birth to a deformed child.

In New York, psychiatrist Richard H. Hoffman revealed he had obtained thalidomide pills from Baden-Baden, West Germany, and given them to 10 patients. One of the patients gave birth to a deformed baby July 21. The child died 41 minutes later.

This was the only case of death caused by thalidomide obtained in the United States. But in San Antonio, Tex., a woman who had bought thalidomide in Germany had a deformed baby who lived only five days. There were six more cases of deformed births blamed on thalidomide in the New York area and two unconfirmed reports still under investigation in Chicago.

A Gardena, Calif., housewife who had obtained thalidomide while her husband was in the Army in Germany gave birth to a deformed child June 15. The housewife, Mrs. William J. Webb, said "after I got out of the hospital and held the baby in my arms I knew everything was OK." She said an abortion to prevent the birth would have been "entirely wrong."

Barring future tragedies, that was the worst of it. Health authorities could list these positive factors in the nation's thalidomide scare:

—The FDA reported that thalidomide had been distributed to 207 pregnant women in this country and nearly all of them had given birth to normal babies. The FDA estimated a total of 15,904 Americans had received thalidomide from their doctors.

—The FDA had contacted 1,097 of the 1,248 doctors who had supplies of thalidomide. A total of 74 doctors still had supplies of thalidomide on hand when FDA inspectors contacted them and 22,948 tablets were collected. The remaining doctors who had the drug were on vacation, the FDA said.

—There was not a single recorded case of a baby deformed by thalidomide which had been obtained in the United States. In all cases of deformity, the drug had been brought from abroad or had been ordered from a foreign source.

As far back as last November, thalidomide was taken off the market in West Germany. Yet federal and state agencies in this country took no action to prevent the drug's circulation until late July.

There had been danger signals and the Merrell firm was credited by the FDA with acting "with reasonable diligence." Last December, the company warned doctors who had received the drug not to give it to women of child-bearing age. In March, Merrell asked the doctors to return all their supplies of the drug.

Yet, last Friday, the Chicago Health Department announced it had confiscated 7,395 thalidomide pills within the previous week. The FDA said at least 67 doctors still had supplies of thalidomide in hand as late as July 27. Investigators turned up a doctor in Virginia who had put a bottle containing 1,000 pills on a shelf and then forgotten about them.

Despite the precautions of the Merrell Company, the New York Health Department had no official word of thalidomide's danger until Dr. Kelsey's statement on the drug July 16. It had to wait until July 27 for the names of doctors who had the pills. The Dallas public Health Department began investigating when it received letters from the manufacturer June 11 and June 26. Illinois health authorities said they woke up to the thalidomide danger when a newspaper story appeared July 20.

The American Medical Association (AMA) put the investigation on a long-term basis, announcing it would conduct a "careful analysis" of the effects of thalidomide upon unborn babies. The AMA noted that thalidomide had been under clinical evaluation in this country for six years but there had been no reports published in scientific journals of deformities caused by the drug in the U.S.

Most health authorities said the emergency was over by the week. It had been a close call. There were second thoughts among many health authorities on the efficiency of the nation's drug-testing procedures.

Dr. K. F. Meyer, director emeritus of the Hooper Foundation at the University of California, said testing of unlicensed drugs should be restricted to the pharmacology departments of universities.

"Giving the drugs to doctors is not the safest way to do it," he said. "Sometimes observation periods of a year are needed. And the drug houses are in such a rush."

A warning of a different nature came from Dr. Warren Weaver, dean of the School of Pharmacy of the Medical College of Virginia. It would be unfortunate, he said, "if the thalidomide tragedy, sad as it is, is allowed to paralyze the forward movement of research for new drugs."

Time To Make Some Resolutions For Student's Coming School Year

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

It's time now to make some resolutions for the coming school year. One should be able to help guide your child with homework, but don't do it for him.

Remember your school days and the last-minute rush studying for exams? Obviously, you realize how wrong that was. You can help your child to avoid developing these bad habits.

Home assignments are an integral part of the education process. They fall into different categories. Some assignments are for practice while others are creative and require research, critical thinking, and the growth of ideas. There are, also, basic assignments which may be preparatory as background for a future lesson.

Parents rarely have control over the actual assignments. Their responsibility can be called supplementary. Teachers desire parental cooperation but they do not want responsibility taken away from the student.

Learning Through Discovery
The concept of learning through discovery is basic to parental help. Do not specifically correct an arithmetic problem. Do discuss the method for solving the problem and suggest reevaluation. You can help a student learn by asking searching questions which will help him to think.

Practice type assignments require only limited assistance. The concepts have been taught in the classroom. The child should be encouraged to seek assistance when it is introduced by the teacher. In such cases, the parent can help by following procedures indicated in the student's textbook. This will avoid confusion of methods. It is also possible that through discussion the child will be reminded of the classroom instruction. In any case, help should be aimed at understanding how to solve the problem rather than a memorization of steps. The teacher is pleased to give further explanation to an interested student and parent.

Creative assignments require a combination of skills which are developed over a period of time. In this type of assignment a student needs encouragement and motivation. You should help the child plan his own approach. The problem should challenge the thinking processes, but it should not be so difficult that frustration will result in discouragement.

Preparatory assignments are aimed at developing background and curiosity. Generally, help should be of a superficial nature in that a full understanding will be developed in the classroom.

In regard to all assignments, make available the tools and atmosphere conducive to good study habits. Take an example a quiet spot with writing area,

Foreign Business 'Should Help' Country Involved

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the businessman overseas, the best approach is to go into a country to help out some rather than to take out all.

This, in its essentials, is the attitude toward foreign trade held by Donald M. Kendall, president of Pepsi-Cola International and a director of Pepsi-Cola. He heads an organization with operations in 93 countries, and is looking for more.

His travel schedule today averages out to about 100,000 miles a year. When he returns to his New York office overlooking Park Avenue it usually is to a desk thickly carpeted with reports accumulated from the area he just left or the one where he will go next.

"Each of the individual countries where we are has its own problems," he explained. "No one of them is like another. And the opportunities are growing. There are many young countries, and we have a young organization."

"When we go into a new market," he continued, "we make a three year projection, figuring out what the future holds. But we always find a local group which might be interested, and go over the situation. Then we bring in engineering, and then a marketing group."

But it is this contact with local people and full cooperation with them which Kendall regards as the most important step. He thinks the theme is one which should be standard for any United States business concern going into an overseas operation.

appropriate chair, and proper lighting. The student should plan a sufficient period of time. Research books are convenient to have at home, but they are always available in the library.

It's The Law In Texas

IMPEACHING A WITNESS
A story they tell on Lincoln is how he once proved his client's innocence by "impeaching" an eye-witness.

Lincoln's client had stolen a chicken, the witness vowed, at a certain time on a certain night.

Asked how he could see so well at night, the witness declared "by the light of the moon — just as clear as clear."

Lincoln "impeached" the testimony with ease by pulling an old almanac out of his pocket. It showed that no moon was up at that time, nor was it full on that date.

Trials are hard on everybody — witnesses and parties alike. They often take place when other ways to settle a dispute have failed, and there are hard feelings. But granting good faith, people do make mistakes in what they recall. After they have told their story a few times, many are dead certain — like Lincoln's witness — that they did see and hear what they say they did.

And so, for the sake of justice, courts allow each side to test a witness' reliability. Sometimes a witness is so obviously prejudiced or so obviously twisting the facts that the cross-examiner easily discredits his story.

But often sincere witnesses tell different stories, and the jury has a right to know how much weight to give each. It is the jury's sworn duty, in fact, to weigh the credibility of witnesses. And a good way is to see how a witness' story hangs together under fire or checks with other known facts.
