Odd Bits Salvaged
By The Editor

Did you ever think of what a chore it is to be a volunteer fireman?

k-k

Our firemen are all working people, too, you know. They have things to do toward making a living other than just sitting by and waiting for the fire alarm to sound.

k-k

Yet, when it does sound and they are right in the middle of an important or rush job, they can't take time to finish that job before answering the fire call. They drop whatever they are doing, rush like mad to the city hall, man the fire trucks and rush to save the property of others from loss by fire. When it's all over — maybe a few minutes, maybe several hours — they return to their work and try to pick up where they left off when interrupted by the fire alarm.

k-k

But our firemen are about to give up in desperation. It is because of your carelessness?

k-k

Too often during the hot, dry months of summer, they are called out to fight fires that shouldn't have been.

k-k

And that was one reason for our recent clean-up campaign — to rid the town of those fire hazards, such as dead grass on the premises and especially on vacant lots, and an accumulation of trash that could be set afire through carelessness. Nearly all of the fire calls answered by our firemen lately have been of this nature.

k-k

So our firemen are asking your cooperation in such matters as these:

k-k

Get rid of your fire hazards. Do not leave trash fires unattended. Do not burn trash when the wind is high. If you want a vacant lot burned off, don't take the matter in your own hands, but make an appointment with the fire department, then wait for them to assist by standing by with fire fighting equipment in case the fire gets out of hand. Don't follow the fire trucks when the alarm sounds. If you're in a moving vehicle, pull to the curb and stop when the alarm sounds and wait until all fire trucks and firemen have passed before proceeding on your way.

k-k

The carrying out of these "do's and don'ts" will make for a happier bunch of firemen.

k-k

When we say our firemen are about to give up in desperation, we don't mean they'll quit answering fire calls. They can't afford to do that. They never know when the cry of "Wolf, Wolf" may mean the real thing.

k-k

The clean-up campaign, which in many instances had no real value, should not have stopped at the close of the two weeks period. And in this connection, we quote a portion of a letter which members received from their local Chamber of Commerce.

k-k

"We realize this is a busy season for most of you, but the fact remains that our Volunteer Firemen are called almost daily to put out a fire that was not necessary. Most of these fires started from burning grass or trash. Many vacant lots are still fire hazards to our businesses, as well as our homes. We cannot feel this campaign has been a success if these places are left in their present condition.

"We urge you to help us to continue this clean-up campaign until such time as these fire hazards have been removed. Your activities committee, with the cooperation of your City and Fire Department, have offered to help you clean up these places; therefore, we urge you to call 4011 and make an appointment with the fire department to stand by when vacant lots, and excessive amounts of trash are to be burned, or let them know if such lots need mowing. Let's all work together to make this campaign a success before we stop.

k-k

Remember, a carelessly dropped burning match can disrupt the activities of a large number of people. Did you ever stand by and watch the firemen assemble when "Big Bertha" sounds off? They come from all directions, some running, some driving like mad, to answer the call. Don't have them drop their work and do this because you have been the careless one!

Notes From Knox Farms, Ranches

By Jack Moore, Knox County Agent

Potato growers in the Munday area are anxiously awaiting the final tabulation on both the Irish Potato variety and fertilizer demonstrations carried out on the Gene Thompson and B. E. Smith farms near Munday. In both demonstrations the specific gravity was determined. In the variety test there were several varieties selected to test again this next year.

In the fertilizer test, 100-100-0 appears to be the best fertilizer, however, Dr. Singletary, extension Horticulturist at A & M, will compute the results and determine the best fertilizer after the cost of fertilization, specific gravity, and yield is all taken into consideration. It was noted in the field by B. E. and James Smith that the fertilizers high in nitrogen and phosphorus and low in potash had less rotten potatoes and low nitrogen caused low yields.

Grasshoppers have started appearing in many of the lawns in the county and in the edges of the cotton fields. L-218 Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects, which is available in the County Agents Office, recommends the use of Toxaphene. Heptachlor, Dieldrin or Aldrin in the control of these insects in the cotton. Application of insecticides should be applied when the infestation appears to be damaging.

Their son, Jim, is athletic director at Temple Junior College. Another daughter, Mrs. Cliff Beck, Fort Worth, and her husband are in their third year in TCU.

The Browns came to Goree from Azle.

Soil Conservation District News

Nearly everyone in the Wichita Brazos Soil Conservation District reported making a fair to good wheat crop. Aside from making a good grain crop, there is also an abundance of stubble in most places.

One of the best moisture conserving practices in managing of this stubble to leave as much as possible on top of the soil. The land should be plowed to control the weeds. One of the best methods to leave the stubble on top of the soil is to plow the land with chisel or sweep type plows. The stubble protects the land from sun and high winds, which reduces evaporation of soil moisture.

Mr. and Mrs. James Boger visited relatives in Henrietta over the week end.

Free Hose To Be On Wednesday

Pay no attention to the date of "Thursday" on the free hose to be given away by Carl's Department Store at Munday and Goree. Be there on Wednesday, instead, opening day of their Midsummer Clearance Sale.

Traditionally, the 50 pairs of free hose are awarded on opening day of the sale but through error the date of Thursday was given on the circulars, which was mailed out this week. Remember, it's not Thursday—but Wednesday.

Farmers, Ranchers May Have Service Of Government Trapper

O. L. Bronner government trapper who is employed in Knox County, was in the Times Office last Tuesday and stated that his services are available to all farmers and ranchers of this area.

"Some people have the erroneous impression that my services will be costly to them," Mr. Bronner stated. "My salary is paid by the government and the county, and services of the trapper are available without cost."

Mr. Bronner has been working in the county for a year, and is doing a fine job of eradicating predatory animals, such as coyotes and bobcats.

Anyone needing his services may contact him through their county commissioner, or the county judge. His mailing address is Box 18, Gilliland, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Snyder and Paula visited with his parents and other relatives in Chatanooga, Okla. Sunday and Monday.

Rains Benefit To Area Crops

Relief from the heat and a general soaking of thirsty range and croplands — that in general, is the result of the good rains which fell in this area this week.

Coming on the heels of too many days of 100-plus temperature the rains have not only brought relief but has boosted cotton and grain sorghum prospects to a high pitch. The cool front dropped the temperature from a high of 104 on Sunday to an 85 degree maximum on Tuesday.

All communities of the county reported about the same amount of rain. Monday night's downfall was reported from .60 of an inch in Munday to "better than an inch" at Benjamin and Rhineland with Goree receiving about the same as Munday.

Tuesday night brought additional rain, and in most areas of the county this was heavier than the one Monday night. The two visitations boosted Munday up to 1.42 inches, while farmers in other sections reported 1.75 or more.

April plantings of cotton were looking exceptionally well, but were right at the point where they had to have rain—and it came. Much of the grain sorghums had headed and were beginning to burn and twist in the July heat.

"I've never seen anything come any nicer," many stated as they commented on the rain. "There's no telling how much money it saved irrigation farmers, as they were just getting ready to turn their wells on full blast."

The thirsty land soaked up practically all of the moisture, as there was no heavy downfall, but slow, soaking, crop-saving rain.

Funeral Held At Whiteface For Claud Bowden

Mr. Bowden suffered a heart attack at about 4 p. m. Tuesday, June 28, on his oil lease about three miles northwest of Whiteface, and was dead upon arrival at Phillips-Dupre Hospital.

Merchants To Sponsor Bargain Day

Believing that a co-operative and concerted effort plus a special day of bargains, will attract more people into Munday during a mid-week day, a number of Munday merchants are inaugurating "Bargain Day" in Munday. This is similar to the Dollar Day events held in neighboring towns, but to get away from the idea of items being priced in a dollar bracket, local merchants are calling their event Bargain Day.

The first of these Bargain

Days will be held on Wednesday, July 13, and these will be continued for at least a period of six months, with Bargain Day falling on the second Wednesday of each month. Circulars will be mailed during the week-end, giving the bargains of each participating merchant.

In addition to special bargains on that day, it was announced Tuesday that the kiddies' merry-go-round will be here all day Wednesday to entertain the children, and other special events are being planned. People of this trade area will find a warm welcome from Munday merchants when they attend Bargain Day.

Some 26 merchants are combining their efforts to give their customers some attractive bargains for this day and to let them know their patronage is appreciated. Among them are the following:

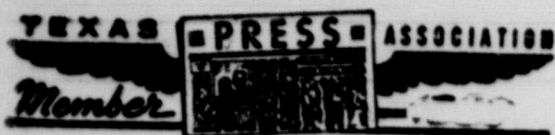

Ben Franklin Store, Boggs Bros. Furniture, Carl's Dept. Store, Calaway Gulf Service, Eiland's Drug Store, The Fair

Store, First National Bank, J. B. Graham Grain Co., The Hat Shop, Chas. Hogsett Chevrolet Co., Hutchinson Humble Station, Jean's Speciality Shop, Kay's Dept. Store, McCarty's Jewelry, McCauley Furniture Co., Morrow's T. V., Nora's Dress Shop, Munday Dept. Store, Perry Bros., Reid's Hardware, The Rexall Store, Dodgers Food Mart, Smith Auto Supply, Wardrop's Super Market, Wardlaw Appliance Store, and Whitworth's Army Store.

MEETING THE BOSS

Spokesman for retail trade enterprises are fond of saying that the consumer is king. That isn't just a felicitous phrase—it's one of the hard and inescapable facts of retail life in this intensely competitive world of ours.

If you don't believe that, an article in the Saturday Evening Post of June 4 will prove enlightening. It is by the president of the nation's third-largest supermarket chain—an outfit that operates some 1400 large modern stores. He writes: "Within the last few months I have acquired an important new job. I ring doorbells and talk to housewives. This is, I believe, one of the most vital things I have ever done, although I am 60 years old, have had almost thirty years' experience in my business, and I am president of a company that will this year enjoy sales of almost $2,000,000,000."

Why does the top man in a huge organization ring doorbells? The answer is found in another paragraph of the article: "I should have taken up doorbell ringing long before I did. It is one of the best ways I know to meet my real boss—ring her doorbell and talk to her. She is the American housewife. The nearly $2,000,000,000 we receive in a year is her money. If she doesn't like me or my associates or our stores and products, she can and will destroy us."

It's no trouble at all for consumers to destroy a store, no matter how big. All they have to do is walk past its door and take their trade to a competitor in the next street or the next town. Successful retailers, in all branches of the business, know that, and never forget it.

AFTER THE SUMMIT

"It may be necessary, after careful consideration, to add one, two or even three billion dollars more for our defense because of the Summit's failure," says Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc. "Nobody would argue with that."

But what everyone should argue with—and more strongly than ever—is proposed increases in nondefense spending. Of this, the Survey says: "The post summit situation is somewhat parallel to what happened after Sputnik. Again, cries are heard for spending for all kinds of things—not just defense. If even a few of the big nondefense spending programs go through they will not only wipe out our prospective $1.2 billion federal budget surplus for fiscal 1961, they'll also hike our spending, raise our debt load and, perhaps, in the long run, through more inflation, inhibit our ability to defend ourselves and our allies."

These nondefense programs, for the most part, are based on the superstate, let-government-do-everything philosophy. Some would socialize business or professions. Some would give more grants-in-aids to state and local government. Some carry the grossly abused "Welfare" label. All of them are bad at any time—if we are to maintain a free country and a free economy. And they are infinitely bad at a time like this, when even a $40 billion-plus defense program may not be sufficient.

Max Ascoli writes in The Reporter: "When, how, and from whom are we to learn the causes of Khrushchev's recent behavior? Learn we certainly will, and we will not have long to wait if our politicians with Presidential aspirations let Khrushchev and the whole world realize that they fully appreciate the irretrievable nature of the wrecking job he has done. He has put an end to summitry, to the exchange of ceremonial visits between representatives of irreconcilably antagonistic orders . . . it is devoutly to be hoped that there is not a single politician in our midst who fancies himself as the American President who will tour Moscow, chaperoned by Khrushchev . . ."

Norvin R. Greene writes in Nation Review Bulletin: "Early economists thought of competition in terms of price only. But competition today consists not only in price but also in service, quality and innovation. Such competition brings in its wake a constant stream of new and better products and, in turn, contributes to a rising standard of living."

There are 8½ million civilian government workers, federal, state and national, according to the Tax Foundation, or about one for every 21 Americans. The most recent count shows that there were nearly 200,000 more of these workers last October than a year before. Most of this increase came at the state and local level.

COMMISSIONERS URGE FULL PARTY INCOME

An urgent request that Congress adopt necessary legislation to enable the American farmer to achieve 100 per cent parity income was among the most far-reaching resolutions adopted by the 14-state Southern Commissioners of Agriculture at their 1960 meeting in San Antonio.

It was emphasized by the Southern Commissioners in their resolution that "in past several years net farm income has shown a rapid decline from $15 billion to $11 billion, and farmers are not receiving their share of the national wealth."

The Commissioners also made it clear that in their opinion "present farm programs are obviously inadequate to meet farm needs."

No attempt was made to spell out any particular course of legislation or to restrict Congress in working toward a solution of the crisis in present farm programs.

Instead, the resolving clause stated simply: "Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the Southern Commissioners of Agriculture in convention assembled at San Antonio, Texas, June 10-13, 1960, urgently request the Congress to adopt necessary legislation to enable the farmer to achieve 100 per cent parity income."

This is one of the resolutions which was forwarded to Rep. Chester A. Bowles (D-Conn.), chairman of the platform committee for the 1960 Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles, to Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), and to other national leaders for their consideration. Both the chairman of the platform committee and Senator Johnson had expressed interest in receiving a full report of the deliberations and decisions of the Southern Commissioners reached at San Antonio.

Another notable resolution adopted by the Commissioners observed that "credit is a necessary implement in helping small family-sized farms, and interest rates to the farmer are too high." It was resolved that Congress be urged to "appoint a committee to study the needs of small farmers for credit and that appropriate legislation be enacted."

The Texas Commissioner of Agriculture was elected president of the Southern Commissioners, succeeding Agriculture Commissioner S. E. (Si) Corley of Mississippi.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Claims He Knows Why Harry H. Truman Won't Go To Los Angeles For The Convention

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek is getting set for the summer National Political Conventions his letter this week indicates.

A neighbor of mine who has been working sixteen hours a day so he can rest and take it easy the last ten or twelve months of his life, had a flat on his car near my house yesterday morning and was working fast to get the spare on so he could rush on into town to get a part for his tractor so he could get back to work and I was standing there helping him, somewhat, at least I offered to help but he figured I'd be in the way, so he said "No thanks, you probably want to get back in your field and get on with your work. Here, take this newspaper, I understand you like to read em. I never have time to read one myself."

I didn't say anything, but I took the paper and went back home, not to my field. I don't need outside advice on how to run this farm, and sat down on the porch and read where Harry Truman isn't going to the Democratic Convention in Los Angeles. This news, the article said, stunned a lot of people, as Mr. Truman always has attended Democratic National Conventions. All the experts seemed baffled.

Regardless of what reason Mr. Truman gives for not going, I already know.

Him and me have discovered the best way to attend a political convention, prize fight baseball game, summit conference, or any other sporting event is to lean back in an easy chair, prop your feet up, and watch it on television. Lodging traffic, fighting your way into a convention hall or baseball stadium, and trying to see around the man in front of you while somebody behind you is yelling in your ears . . . all that belongs to a bygone era and me and Mr. Truman are living in the 20th century. The only hitch in the set-up is that some day the delegates themselves may catch on, like baseball players already have, and refuse to go without a good salary, sick benefits, and retirement pay. Some people say some of the delegates in fact have already seen to these details, but I don't know anything about that.

Meanwhile, though, when the Democratic convention starts in Los Angeles, and the Republican convention starts in Chicago, I'll be on hand, sitting comfortably at home on my Johnson grass farm out here, waiting to see which party really gets smart and writes a government-financed picture-tube replacement plank into its platform. That's one phase of the farm problem everybody seems to have overlooked.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Machine Stripping And Picking Being Increased Over Cotton Producing Areas

Increased mechanization marked the 1959-60 cotton harvest in Texas.

In keeping with the national trend, machine stripping and picking accounted for 44 per cent of the Texas upland cotton harvest. A year earlier, it was 35 per cent. Hand picking and snapping, with 56 per cent, still predominated, however.

A survey by the Agricultural Marketing Service, in cooperation with ginners, compressmen and warehousemen, shows that 42 per cent of the state's 4,371,000 bales ginned was hand snapped, and 14 per cent hand picked, compared to 49 and 16 per cent, respectively, in 1958-59. Machine picking gained from 4 to 10 per cent, and machine stripping increased from 31 to 34 per cent.

By comparison, the 1959-60 national average was 39 per cent hand picked; 18 per cent, hand snapped; 31 per cent, machine picked (a new high); and 12 per cent machine stripped. A year earlier, U. S. growers harvested 44 per cent by hand picking; 22 per cent by hand snapping; 21 per cent, machine picking; and 13 per cent by machine strippers.

Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico, with 48, 34 and 5 per cent respectively, were the only states that employed stripping extensively. South Carolina led with 92 per cent hand-picked cotton and California was first in machine picking with 83 per cent.

The AMS survey also reveals that Texas growers paid an average of $15.94 for ginning and wrapping each 500-pound gross-weight bale. A year earlier it was $15.40. Charges for bagging and ties, alone, averaged $4.34 a bale, 8 cents more than in 1958-59. The national average last season was $15.02, total charges, and $4.29 for bagging and ties only.

Last year, it took 1,435 pounds of Texas hand-picked seed cotton to make an average 500-pound bale, compared to the Cottonbelt average of 1,406. A bale of hand-snapped cotton in Texas required 1,332 pounds; machine picked, 1,515; and machine stripped, 2,078.
