Opponents against Bork reach fifty

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Opponents of Robert H. Bork moved to within a single vote of victory today as Democratic Sens. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas and Paul Sarbanes of Maryland declared their opposition.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "The nomination is not dead until the vote is taken." But he also left room for Bork to ask that his name be withdrawn from consideration, saying, "Obviously, his decision can be whatever he wants it to be."

The announcements by Bumpers and Sarbanes, in speeches on the Senate floor, pushed to 50 the number of senators who have declared their opposition to the nomination, according to an Associated Press survey. Thirty-four senators have said they would support Bork, with the rest undeclared. Fifty-one "no" votes would ensure defeat for Bork in the 100-member Senate.

Because of Bork's plunging chances, the Senate Judiciary Committee already is combing the backgrounds of possible replacement candidates.

Bumpers said Bork is "such a slave to ideology that I question whether he could render simple justice."

There were widespread rumors that Bork would come to the White House today — as he did Wednesday — to meet with the president. But Fitzwater said there was no indication the nominee wanted to see the president.

"We don't know. We have not heard (from Bork). Our assumption is that we're fighting it out to a floor vote," Fitzwater said.

The spokesman confirmed that the Justice Department maintains lists of possible candidates for judicial openings, including the Supreme Court.

Prison visitors hosted

'Good day' says committee

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The visit Wednesday by a three-member team from the Texas Department of Corrections was a "good day," says a member of the Economic Development Committee here, but they note the final selection process still has "a lot of political decisions" ahead.

The local committee hosted the three as part of its effort to secure a state prison for Scurry County. The group visited here some six hours and consisted of Larry Kyle, head of TDC's industrial operations; Jim Hall, a staffer with Brown and Root, the overall consultant for TDC prison construction; and Clark Springfield, an economist for TDC.

Local committee members learned also that a final decision on the prison site selections may come later than the previously announced Oct. 15 date, the next meeting for the TDC board.

"Larry Kyle told us there was so much information to consider, it's likely the prison board will decide not to decide Oct. 15," said Roy Baze, project coordinator for the local prison bid.

"In his judgement, he said he

White Buff parade entries sought

County organizations are now being encouraged to sumbit entries for the White Buffalo Days parade planned as part of the local celebration Oct. 17.

And, as planning for the parade concludes, local couples are invited to the first White Buffalo Days-related event due Saturday, a dance and auction with proceeds to help finance next year's version of "Whirlagig."

Regarding the parade, cash prizes for first and second place totaling $250 will be given out. First prize will earn $150 and second prize, $100. Myra Martin is chairman of the parade this year.

In addition, a $10 cash prize will be given to the top two entrants in both a decorated bicycle contest for youngsters and a clown costume competiton for

Spotlight on rodeo with museum show

The Scurry County Museum will open its major fall show and art sale Sunday with a chuckwagon reception from 1 until 4 p.m. A multi-faceted exhibit will open entitled "High in the Saddle."

Rodeo will be the major theme of the exhibit, with paintings, photographs and sculpture illustrating the facets of this popular and often dangerous sport.

A related exhibit will open also, a rendition of a leather shop which operated in Ballinger prior to the turn of the century owned by Brooks and Ethel Rudder. Mrs. Rudder has made Snyder her home since 1975. Two of her daughters, Allene LaRoux and Willa Mae Booth, are Snyder residents also.

Using the rodeo as its theme, Sunday's art show will include paintings by Jodie Boren of Abilene and Dick Powell of Post, along with prints by Boren and Wayne Baize of Fort Davis.

Other paintings will be on loan from the Diamond M Museum of Fine Art.

Rodeo photographs will be displayed from James Fain of Logan, Utah; Dudley Barker of Stephenville; and Paul Gilbert of Snyder.

Patio project event tonight

A Twilight Serenade at 7:30 p.m. Thursday will close out a day-long observance marking the completion of the patio renovation project at Snyder Junior High.

Performers will include fiddler Brian Fowler, an eighth grader at the school; the junior high Chorale, under the direction of Melanie Smith; and the Singing Cowboys.

Formal dedication ceremonies for the patio were completed Thursday morning. The patio renovation project cost some $25,000, work accomplished through the efforts of a project committee comprised of junior high teachers and parents.

Tort reform measure included with ballot

Proposition 17 has been characterized as one of he most important proposals on the Nov. 3 ballot, seeking to allow the legislature, rather than the courts, to say what functions for which a city or town may be held to an unlimited liability.

The Texas Municipal League is strongly supporting its approval as part of the tort reforms package passed by the legislature to clear up what it calls "the crazy quilt" of court rulings on the subject.

A city has limited liability for governmental functions but may have unlimited liability for proprietary functions, the distinction being between activities undertaken for the benefit of all citizens of the state and those undertaken for the municipal citizens only.

Courts have ruled, for example, that the maintenance of traffic signals is governmental but that street maintenance is proprietary.

The tort reforms passed by the legislature list only three municipal functions as proprietary — the operation and maintenance of a public utility, but not water or sewer systems; municipally owned and operated amusements, but not swimming pools, beaches, marinas or fireworks displays; and "abnor-

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Inflation is paying $15 for a $5 haircut that used to cost $1 back when you had hair."

The annual Scurry County United Way Campaign is underway. Over the years, two Snyder fellows have probably raised more charity funds than all other residents combined.

The two are Lyle Deffebach, retired accountant, and H. W. Cargile, senior chairman of the board of West Texas State Bank.

Deffebach is still active in the United Way organization, and Cargile is still doing his part in fund-raising.

The retired banker is a long-time member of the Snyder Noon Kiwanis Club. The Kiwanis Club has a rule about referring to Cargile, one of its most respected members.

The rule says if anyone calls him "Mister" Cargile, the fine is 50 cents. It has become the club's most prolific fund-raiser to date. At almost any meeting, the club will net four or five dollars.

In fact, at one recent meeting, Speedy Prince of Friendly Flowers reported that ASB's Mike Banta coughed up $3 in fines for adding Mister to the name.

Explains Mike, "It just doesn't seem right to call him Hubert." Meanwhile, the funds continue to pour in.

Even frogs run into the "good news" and "bad news" situations.

A frog recently confronted a fortune teller who advised that the frog would soon meet a beautiful young girl. "From the moment she sees you, she will be attracted to you."

The frog was impressed and learned there was more, but it would cost another $2. The frog cheerfully opened his wallet and told the fortune teller to continue.

"She won't be able to keep her hands off you. The two of you will be together, very close."

The frog was excited about the good news and impatiently begged the fortune teller to go on. "Where will we be, her apartment or my place?"

"Neither," replied the fortune teller. "In her biology class."

Ask Us

Q. — Regarding the increase in the state sales tax and the addition of certain services, will the higher rate be charged for any unpaid balances still owed for these services?

A. — A spokesman for the state comptroller's office said the new sales tax of 6 percent could be charged only for services rendered after Oct. 1. Such services might include home repairs, membership in private clubs and services performed for insurance companies.

In Brief

Oil prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil futures have regained some lost ground, aided by Saudi Arabian denials of speculation that the world's largest oil exporter might incite widespread price discounting.

The November delivery price of West Texas Intermediate, the key U.S. crude, rose 22 cents Wednesday to close at $19.66 per barrel, following a 38-cent drop Tuesday on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Quake relief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands left homeless by last week's earthquake prepared to rebuild as President Reagan approved federal disaster relief, while a small quake near Palm Springs kept Southern California on edge.

Wednesday's disaster declaration means federal money for temporary housing and Small Business Administration loans to those whose homes or property were damaged by the quake and more than two dozen aftershocks.

Plane crash

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — A twin-engine plane nosedived into an empty house here, killing the pilot who had purchased the aircraft only hours earlier and his four passengers, officials said.

The Cessna 421 crashed into the wood-frame house while taking off from DeLand Municipal Airport shortly after noon Wednesday, setting the house and the plane on fire.

Local

SCS election

Voting for an expiring term on the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District board and an information session for local producers are both scheduled Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Room A of the Scurry County Colisem.

The ballot will replace an expiring term for Zone 3 on the SCS board. It is currently held by Charlie Henderson.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will conduct the producer meeting.

Clements lauds twin plants program

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements has reaffirmed his support of twin plants and says their promotion will be a priority in his administration.

Clements, after touring a twin plant in Juarez Wednesday, said the maquiladora program is a plus for the economies of both nations.

"These plants ... are of our mutual intest," the governor said. "I intend to put emphasis on enhancing and expanding the twin-plant program in the 3½ years remaining in my administration."

Clements is a longtime supporter of the maquiladoras. Under the program, manufacturers ship U.S.-made parts to Mexico, where they are assembled and shipped back to the United States for distribution.

The U.S.-based companies benefit from paying low wages at Mexican assembly plants. Mexico levies lower tariffs for goods made in twin plants.

"It's certainly an example of what we need to do more of," Clements said after touring the Allen-Bradley Co. electronics assembly plant in Juarez. "It's helped the Mexican economy and the Mexican people, but more importantly, the Texas economy and Texas people."

Clements was given brief tours of Allen-Bradley plants in El Paso and Juarez. The company makes electrical components in El Paso, assembles them in Juarez and ships them back.

The two plants together employ about 2,000 people, company officials said. Many Mexican workers earn the equivalent of about $20 a week.

Labor groups have criticized the maquiladora program, contending that it encourages companies to export jobs to Mexico because of the low labor costs.

Consumer coalition calls for mandatory inspection of fish

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of consumer groups wants Congress to move quickly on a mandatory fish inspection system to protect American consumers, but the Agriculture Department is cool to the idea.

The fisheries industry, on the other hand, says it welcomes the consumer groups' enthusiasm for mandatory inspection but thinks Congress should avoid approving crash legislation until more spadework is completed.

Ellen Haas, executive vice president of Public Voice, a private non-profit health advocacy group, on Wednesday called the existing voluntary federal fish inspection program "nothing short of a national scandal."

Consumer advocates contend that the absence of mandatory federal inspection of fish and shellfish leave the way open for contamination by food poisoning organisms and buildups of harmful chemicals.

The coalition, comprising about 20 consumer and environmental organizations, sent letters to Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, chairman of a House Agriculture subcommittee on livestock and poultry, urging them to hold hearings quickly.

"Because fish are low in fat and cholesterol and high in protein, they are becoming an increasingly important mainstay of the American diet," Ms. Haas said. "And because the hazards remain unchecked, the case for mandatory fish inspection has become overwhelming."

Public Voice, a private public interest group, distributed a new booklet that included these assertions:

—Unlike meat and poultry, there is no mandatory federal inspection of fish. Under a voluntary program conducted by the National Marine Fisheries Service, an agency of the Commerce Department, only 13 percent of all fish consumed in the United States in 1986 was inspected.

—Of more than 3 billion pounds of fish Americans eat each year, the Food and Drug Administratioin checked only about 500 individual fish for toxic chemical residues last year.

Public Voice said mandatory federal fish inspection, once authorized by Congress, should be handled by the Agriculture Department, which already has a vast network and many years of experience in meat and poultry inspection.

At USDA, enthusiasm for mandatory fish inspection is muted. Spokesman John McClung, director of the department's Office of Information, said there is no apparent burning need for mandatory fish inspection at this time.

"But if Congress passes a law (mandating fish inspection) and gives us the money, we'll inspect fish," he said. "The question is whether the benefits are justified by the costs."

Lee Weddig, executive vice president of the National Fisheries Institute, said the industry was generally supportive of the consumer drive for mandatory federal inspection. Last year, he said, the industry persuaded Congress to direct the National Marine Fisheries Service to design a model inspection program, a project that is currently under way.

"Would you rather see a plant in Singapore or a plant in Mexico?" the governor asked rhetorically.

He added that "the labor element" is a small constituency in Texas because of right-to-work laws.

"We have to look in Texas to the benefit of all," he said. "And, by and large, the people of Texas benefit."

Clements originally had been scheduled to be in the El Paso area for a conference of U.S. and Mexican border governors in Las Cruces, N.M. That conference was postponed indefinitely because of political developments in Mexico.

Clements was scheduled today to visit another pair of twin plants, tour a Drug Enforcement Administration facility and attend a banquet.

Accompanying Clements on the tour through the Juarez plant were Juarez Mayor Jaime Bermudez and Chihuahua Lt. Gov. Marta Lara.

Dear Abby

Matchmaker's Blind Dates All Fail to Catch on Fire

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Since my divorce two months ago, I've had a hard time meeting single women, so I signed up with a dating service. The fee was $750 (in advance) and they agreed to fix me up with as many women as it took to find me a wife within 12 months.

For my very first date, I was fixed up with a woman of a different race. I'm not prejudiced, but I had clearly told the people at the dating service that I wanted to go out only with women of my own race. When I complained and asked for my money back, they said they were sorry and it would not happen again, so I gave them another chance.

My second date was with someone who works weekends and is not available on Saturdays and Sundays. I date only on weekends, which I told my "matchmaker" when I signed up.

The third date was with a woman who lives 90 miles away. Before joining I told them I would drive no more than 25 miles. When I told these matchmakers I was dissatisfied and wanted my money back, they said, "Sorry, we don't give refunds." Now what do I do?

DUMBBELL

DEAR DUMBBELL: You are not a dumbbell, only inexperienced and vulnerable. I'm reminded of a line from a song from "Fiddler on the Roof": "... playing with 'matches' a girl can get burned." Guys, too. The Better Business Bureau should be notified about this dating service. You were had.

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot of jokes about how women try to get out of having sex with their husbands by saying, "Not tonight, dear. I have a headache." Well, this is no joke — my husband really gets a terrible headache when we have sex.

I told him it wasn't normal, and he should tell his doctor about it when he goes for his next insurance physical, but he says he won't because the doctor might think he's crazy.

Abby, have you ever heard of this before?

HEADACHES IN HOUSTON

DEAR HEADACHES: Yes. I have heard that the physiological changes that accompany orgasm (accelerated heart rate and sudden rise in blood pressure) have been known to cause headaches in some men.

Also, just the stress of worrying about getting one of those headaches is enough to precipitate one.

DEAR ABBY: A co-worker arranged a blind date for me with a man she's been wanting me to meet for a long time. She gave him a big buildup, so I kept wondering why a "handsome, intelligent, successful, 36-year-old accountant" had never been married. (I'm 33 and divorced.)

Well, after the third date, I think I know why. This man doesn't believe in using a deodorant! I was very much attracted to him, so after the third date, in a very nice way, I told him he needed a deodorant — and even bought him one. He refused to accept it, saying, "There's nothing wrong with the honest smell of masculine sweat." (Can you beat that?)

I could really care for this man, but I get turned off when he gets close to me. He was born in this country and is modern and open-minded in every way except this. He says he showers every morning and sometimes twice a day, and I believe him, but, Abby, he perspires profusely and I find the odor very offensive. Frankly it would be very hard for me to have a physical relationship with a man who smells bad.

Any suggestions?

TURNED OFF IN ATLANTA

DEAR TURNED OFF: Match his "honesty" with this honest statement of your own: "I am very much attracted to you, but I can't make love with a clothespin on my nose, so if you want to get closer to me, get wise and use a deodorant."

If he refuses, say goodbye with no regrets. He's selfish, insensitive and rigid.

Brazos River water rights case to high court

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has agreed to hear a state appeal of a lower court decision granting special water rights to some landowners along the Brazos River.

The court on Wednesday set oral arguments for Jan. 6 in the Texas Water Commission's appeal of a Falls County district court decision.

The trial court gave 11 people so-called equitable water rights along the Brazos River and its tributaries from Lake Whitney to the Little Brazos River.

Some of the water users, who owned land from Mexican-Spanish land grants, had been irrigating since 1918 without state permits, said court records. The landowners disputed the 1985 distribution of water rights along the river by the Texas Water Commission.

The Waco Court of Appeals, in upholding the trial court decision, noted the long use of water by the irrigators. It also noted that they had spent "great sums of money" on irrigation systems to use water that otherwise would not be usefully diverted from the river.

In its appeal, the Water Commission argued, "The consequence of the Waco court's decision is that any illegal irrigator can seek 'equitable' water rights to sanction illegal use of water."

Most of the parties involved now have state water permits to legally irrigate their land, the commission added, but they complained that the permits gave them inferior rights.

RETA GRAHAM
...cake decorator...

ABWA members view cake decorating skills

Cake decorating was the starred program at the Sept. 17 meeting of the Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women. Reta Graham, co-owner of Reta's Cake Shop and Barbecue, demonstrated her skills and gave those present a surprise box.

Beginning her decorating as a hobby, Reta began selling cakes from her Hermleigh home. The business soon grew into a full-time operation and moved to the present location at 208 East Highway.

Later, Reta's husband added the barbecue feature to the operation. The couple now makes their own dinner rolls and buns to serve with the barbecue. Fresh cakes and cookies are always available. They also cater weddings and other events and have gone as far as San Antonio with their combined skills.

President Mae Cole presided at the dinner meeting held at The Shack. Dorothy Dortch offered the invocation.

The chapter plans an old fashioned box supper to be held Oct. 24 in Towle Park Barn at 6 p.m. Judge Bobby Goodwin will be the auctioneer and live entertainment will be offered. The public is invited to attend.

Members will also be selling coupons for photos by Harley Bynum as another club fund raiser.

Hostesses for the meeting were Stella Bailey and Dorothy Dortch. Visitors were Pat Faver and Ruby Deavers. Vivian Cochran gave the benediction.

One is one too many

By James Jacoby

Bridge players are creatures of habit, and it's customary in bridge to hold on to potential winners and let useless cards go. Sure enough, in thousands of deals that is the best approach. But one still needs to use the old noggin to determine which seemingly useless cards may in fact take tricks.

The unusual bidding was simple enough. South opened with a strong two clubs, jumped to four no-trump, asking for aces, after his partner's negative two-diamond response, and then bid six clubs. West led the king of hearts. East followed with the three, and it was easy to determine that declarer surely had no more than the singleton jack. Since it was possible that declarer had some diamond losers, West smartly switched to a trump. Declarer forthwith began rattling off all his club winners. West thought he was being clever when he let a low spade go early in the discarding process. His plan was to save the jack of diamonds and rely upon his partner to save any potential spade trick. Alas, one low spade discard was too many. At the finish, declarer's A-K of spades pulled down all of the defenders' cards in the suit, and the lowly spade deuce was the 12th trick.

How could West know to keep his 10-9-4 of spades? Very simple. If declarer had a small diamond as a possible loser, surely he would have ruffed a diamond in dummy. Since that did not happen, West must hold tight to all of his spades and hope that the layout in that suit is as diagramed.

Our food is salty stuff

NEW YORK (AP) — Most of the salt we consume comes not from the salt shaker but from store bought foods, says the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

Scottish researchers say only 15 percent of our intake comes from adding it to our food during cooking or at the table. Natural salt in the food accounts for 10 percent. The other 75 percent is put into food by manufacturers.

Golden wedding year celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Herschell Woodrow (Woody) McClurg celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently in Midland at The Plaza Club. The reception was hosted by the couple's children and grandchildren, Charles (Tooter) and Carolyn McClurg, Carl and Cody of Snyder; Don and JoAnne McClurg of Midland; Lee Anne of Granbury and Bill, a student at Texas A & M.

Woody and the former Bonnie Lou Weaver, daughter of Edgar B. and Clemmie Weaver, were married Oct. 2, 1937 in Hunt County where they were born and attended school.

The couple lived in Midland and Odessa when they were newly weds. After World War II, they lived in Corpus Christi for a number of years, then Llano. Back in Odessa for 35 years, they operated McClurg Foods.

Moving to Snyder in 1981, they opened McClurg Auto Parts with their son, "Tooter."

Also present for the reception were brothers and sisters of the couple, Clydie McClurg Caudle and Leta McClurg McGuire of Dallas; Avery McClurg of Commerce; Dorthy McClurg Morris of Austin; Jack McClurg of Midland; Nina Lee Weaver Stephenson and E.B. Weaver of Lake Jackson.

Nieces, nephews and friends also attended.

CHARTER MEMBERS — The Scurry Charter Chapter of ABWA honored charter members, Inez Teaff and Maxie McNew, at the Sept. 24 dinner meeting held at Martha Ann Woman's Club. Members since the chapter's beginning in 1960, Teaff and McNew sliced the cake celebrating the club's 27th year. Other charter members not presently active in the club are Ileta Hall, Clara Mae Noah and Mary Starnes. (Club Photo)

Campaign launched by Alamo curator to retrieve flag

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Alamo's curator wants Texans to fire paper salvos at the Mexican government in hopes of retrieving the only flag that was documented to be flying over the shrine when it fell March 6, 1836.

"It's considered much like the Holy Grail," Steve Beck said of the flag. "As fellow Texans, I'm asking any and all of you to write a letter to the new president of Mexico asking that this icon be returned to San Antonio."

Beck announced his letter-writing campaign Wednesday when he spoke with members of the San Antonio Rotary Club.

The flag in question is known as the New Orleans Greys, the banner carried by a contingent of volunteer soldiers from Louisiana to the Alamo when they journeyed there to help fight for Texas independence from Mexico.

After the bloody battle in which at least 189 Alamo defenders sacrificed their lives for the cause, Mexican army Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna's troops took the flag from atop the chapel where it flew. The Mexicans kept the banner as a victory souvenir.

They deemed it worthy of keeping because it represented proof that the United States supported Texans in their struggle for independence. Today the flag is reported to be in a museum in Mexico City's Chapultepec Park.

But Beck said the New Orleans Greys is not on display for the public to see and that he has been told it is stashed in a paper bag.

"It is deteriorating and needs to be restored," Beck said, explaining most paper bags are made with an acidic substance that can destroy the flag's fabric and ink.

The campaign to flood with letters the office of the man who will be elected president of Mexico next year is not the first effort that has been made to get the flag.

The U.S. Senate in 1985 asked the Mexican government either to return the banner or at least loan it to Texas to fly over the Alamo during the Sesquicentennial celebration in 1986. The Mexicans' excuse was that the flag could not be moved because it was too frayed.

Beck hopes that a new administration may be more willing to show a gesture of international friendship by returning the flag.

Mattox's participation in rate cases barred by PUC

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox and his staff cannot participate in rate hearings at the Public Utility Commission, the three-member panel has decided in a unanimous vote.

The PUC ruled Wednesday in favor of a proposal made by General Counsel Lambeth Townsend, who noted that the attorney general's office is required to defend PUC decisions that are challenged in court.

"Such bizarre situations can be avoided by properly construing the statutes to prohibit ... the representation of the state agencies by the attorney general in these (rate cases)," Townsend wrote in a petition to the commission.

But Assistant Attorney General Scott McCollough, who has represented state agencies in PUC rate hearings, said there was no conflict because another division of the attorney general's office handles the defense of PUC decisions.

"This means the commission has opened the doors of the state treasury to the monopoly utilities in this state," McCollough said of the decision ending his representation of state agencies in PUC cases.

Commission spokesman Bill Dunn said the decision allows state agencies to be represented at rate hearings by their own lawyers or hired lawyers, but not by the attorney general's office.

Mattox previously has lost battles to defend consumers before the Texas Railroad Commission and the State Board of Insurance.

Consumer groups and lawyers representing ratepayers supported Mattox in the PUC battle.

Don Butler, a lawyer for Texas cities, said consumer interests will be weakened in their efforts to combat "the massive resources of the utility companies."

"I think Mattox has played a very important role. I think it will hurt consumers in the long run that he's not participating," said Carol Barger, regional director for Consumers Union.

"The process is designed so that if all sides are represented the best decisions are going to be made and it seems this creates a void."

McCollough said his efforts in PUC hearings have helped save state agencies $42.6 million in utility bills. He said no decision had been made on whether to ask a state court to overturn the PUC decision.

Court hears case

AUSTIN (AP) — The attorney for a boy who was made paraplegic at an Army hospital near El Paso says it is unconstitutional for the state to limit malpractice awards.

At a Wednesday Texas Supreme Court hearing, El Paso attorney Walter Boyaki and James Spears, deputy assistant U.S. attorney general, argued the constitutionality of a 1977 state law setting a $500,000 limit on non-medical damages in malpractice cases.

Spears said Texas lawmakers have the broad right to limit damages, and the limit does not violate citizens' access to courts.

But Boyaki said that because of the limit, severely injured people "are denied the equal protection written into the constitution."

A federal appeals court asked the state Supreme Court to decide whether the liability limit is consistent with the Texas Constitution and whether it limits the liability of each defendant or the recovery of each injured party in a case.

The case centers on a medical malpractice lawsuit brought against William Beaumont Army Medical Center by the parents of Christopher Lucas, who as a baby became a paraplegic after a nurse at the center improperly injected a drug into his body.

Christopher's father, who was in the Army at the time of the incident, is no longer in the service. He and his family have moved to Utah, where Christopher is in the second grade.

A federal district court awarded Christopher's parents $498,623 for medical expenses until he is 18 years old, $350,000 for medical expenses he will incur after his 18th birthday, $600,000 for lost future earning capacity and $1.5 million for pain and suffering.

The district court subsequently reduced the total award of damages against the United States by $400,000, which was paid by Wyeth Laboratories, which manufactured the drug injected into the baby, to the Lucas family in a settlement.

"I don't think the state Legislature ever envisioned a government hospital falling under that statute," Boyaki said. "I don't think the federal government has any business under that statute."

He added, "This statute never did what it was supposed to do. Health care costs have not gone down in the last 10 years."

Spears said federal hospitals fall under the liability limitation because federal tort law gives them the same treatment as private parties in Texas "regardless of what the state purports to do."

The Texas Medical Association has filed a brief supporting the limit on liability.

Prime lending rate increases

NEW YORK (AP) — Major U.S. banks raised their prime lending rate a half percentage point to 9.25 percent, the highest level in 19 months, in a move likely to drive up interest on mortgages, home equity loans and credit cards.

The increase, the fourth this year, was attributed by economists to efforts by the Federal Reserve Board to tighten up on credit in order to stem the dollar's decline and hold down inflation.

On Wall Street, blue-chip stock prices Wednesday appeared to stabilize after a big drop. The Dow Jones average edged up 2.45 points, closing at 2,551.08. The index had tumbled 91.55 points on Tuesday, its biggest point decline ever.

The prime is the benchmark used by banks to set interest rates on a range of corporate and consumer loans.

Ask doctor about Omega-3

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Your article on Omega-3 oil was informative. However, you failed to mention that walnut and linseed oil are also high in Omega-3. Are these oils safe to use?

DEAR READER — As far as I know, walnut and linseed oil are safe to use in moderation. However, they have not been as fully investigated as have fish oils. To date, the final word is not in on the benefits of any Omega-3 oils. Experts have stopped short of recommending oil supplements for the public at large. Don't self-medicate with Omega-3 oils from any source until you either have your doctor's approval or enough information has been gathered to permit general medical acceptance of these compounds.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What are the differences between hair transplants and microfilamental non-surgical hair transplants?

DEAR READER — The primary difference is that hair transplants are "natural" — they are taken from the person's own body — and microfilaments are not. Therefore, the artificial substance can cause a distressing amount of tissue reaction and infection. Also, the less "natural" compound doesn't hold up as well with time.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter, a registered nurse, applied to a medical school in the Caribbean. She was accepted, completed her course and graduated with a medical degree. Now she finds it impossible to obtain an internship, after all the hard work and money. Why do hospitals discriminate against graduates of foreign medical schools?

DEAR READER — Although many foreign medical schools have upgraded their curriculums, some simply do not provide an acceptable level of education. Unfortunately, the Caribbean medical schools are in this category.

Your daughter may be very bright and capable; nonetheless, before she can continue her training in the United States, she will have to pass a qualifying examination. Whether she will be accepted into a U.S. internship depends on her score, as well as on individual licensing regulations that vary from state to state.

Hospitals don't really discriminate against foreign medical graduates; rather, they pick the best candidates they can from a pool of medical-school graduates, both domestic and foreign. Your daughter chose a difficult road to follow when she opted for a Caribbean school; surely she must have been aware of the built-in difficulties when she made that decision. She deserves a lot of credit for pursuing her goal, yet her frustrations could not have come as a surprise, especially since she was familiar with the medical system as an "insider," a registered nurse.

Anti-abortion group would fight against judge's nomination

DALLAS (AP) — The National Right to Life Committee has vowed a fight if a Dallas federal judge is nominated for the U.S. Supreme Court as a possible replacement for the embattled Robert Bork.

The committee has warned Attorney General Edwin Meese that all its resources would be used to fight U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's suggestion of possibly nominating Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham.

"Were the president to make such an ill-advised nomination, the National Right to Life Committee would have no choice but to devote our full resources to opposing Judge Higginbotham's confirmation," David N. O'Steen, the group's executive director, wrote Monday.

The 48-year-old judge, who sits on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, has been described by Bentsen, D-Texas, and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., as the kind of jurist they could support wholeheartedly.

The Senate Judiciary Committee recommended against Bork's confirmation Tuesday. Bork is awaiting the full Senate's vote on his nomination.

Noting how easily the Senate confirmed conservative U.S. District Judge William Sessions of San Antonio as FBI director, some senators have suggested that a similiar Southerner be placed on the high court.

But Higginbotham may not be as easily accepted.

"We believe that a number of pro-life senators would find themselves unable to support Judge Higginbotham," O'Steen wrote. The letter suggests that the White House should select a nominee who reflects Bork's philosophy, not one who is acceptable to the "special interest groups" fighting Bork.

The abortion foes' opposition to Higginbotham stems from a 1986 opinion he wrote striking down provisions of a Louisiana abortion statute.

The opinion held as unconstitutional a provision of the law requiring a doctor to "personally" inform any woman within 24 hours of having an abortion of her right to have the fetus cremated, buried or otherwise disposed.

In the opinion, Higginbotham called "unconstitutionally vague" a criminal provision of the law prohibiting any party from "experimenting" on an unborn child or a child born as a result of an abortion.

The committee wrote that "it appears to us that Judge Higginbotham employed the strained rationale of 'vagueness' in order to reach the desired result without being forced to rely upon the Supreme Court's abortion precedents."

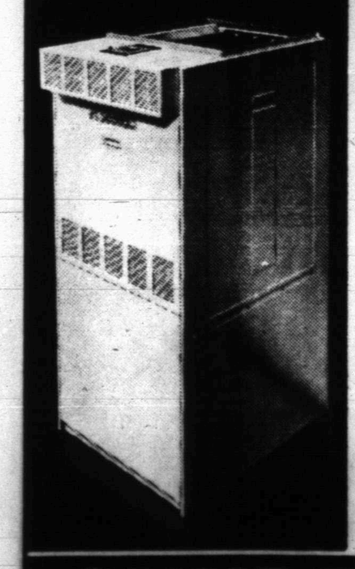

Higginbotham, an Alabama native, was appointed to the U.S. District Court in Dallas in 1975 and still maintains a residence there. President Reagan elevated him to the appeals bench in New Orleans in 1982.

SCREEEECH!
If your heating system constantly complains, take a look at LENNOX.

The LENNOX G16 Furnace is 80% efficient* versus 45%.
- Super efficient heat exchanger with a 15-year warranty.
- Advanced electronic ignition. No gas pilot light.
- Energy saving burners.

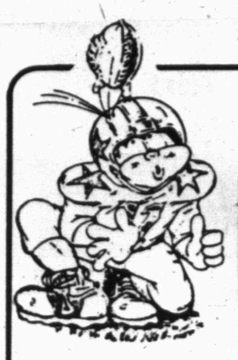

The LENNOX G16 Furnace is significantly more efficient than older gas furnaces. Most furnaces five years or older deliver only about 45% efficiency. A special combination of electronic ignition, and an induced draft blower that reduces heated air waste up the flue, helps make the G16 from LENNOX one of our best buys.

If your present furnace is over 10 years old . . . a LENNOX furnace could save you up to 60% on your monthly bill.

Giants even NL playoffs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — According to San Francisco catcher Bob Melvin, Dave Dravecky's two-hit shutout ranked close to perfection.

"From the first batter on, we were together on almost every pitch," Melvin said of the left-hander's 5-0 victory over St. Louis Wednesday that evened the best-of-seven National League playoffs at one victory each.

"When he was off, he was way off. He walked a few, but he just didn't make mistakes."

Dravecky, while baffling St. Louis with sharp control that belied the four walks he issued, stretched his streak of scoreless postseason innings to 19 2-3.

Dravecky became the fourth pitcher in playoff history to pitch a complete-game two-hitter, and extended his NL playoff string of scoreless innings to 15 — one fewer than the record set last fall by Mike Scott of the Houston Astros.

"It's a dream I've had for a long time," Dravecky said of his gem. "The ball was moving so much that I really didn't have to work on corners."

So effective was Dravecky that he faced only 18 batters after Ozzie Smith walked and Tommy Herr singled to open the Cardinals' fourth.

"When we had (runners at) first and second with no outs and didn't score, I knew we were in trouble," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said of the Cardinals' fourth-inning bid. "He (Dravecky) was just dominating from the start. He was in control all the way."

The teams are off today and the series resumes in San Francisco Friday night with the Giants sending left-hander Atlee Hammaker, 10-10, against either right-hander Danny Cox, 11-9, or left-hander Joe Magrane, 9-7.

Cox was scheduled to start the opener for St. Louis but was scratched hours before gametime with a stiff neck.

St. Louis' loss was its first in seven home playoff games and its third shutout defeat this year in 83 games at Busch Stadium.

"I've seen him better, believe it or not, (but) he threw a heck of a game," Cardinals center fielder Willie McGee said of Dravecky.

As Dravecky was carving up St. Louis with an assortment of fastballs, changeups and sliders, Jeffrey Leonard was using a hammer.

Leonard gleefully responded to catcalls from Cardinals fans in the left-field bleachers by hitting a home run, his second in two games, and two singles.

Leonard's home run was a 420-foot shot to straightaway center field off a 0-1 changeup from John Tudor that led off San Francisco's fourth.

Leonard's homer, drawing awe-inspired murmurs from a red-clad crowd of 55,331, continued an assault off Tudor that Will Clark started in the second.

Season at midway...

Snyder idle this week

District 2-4A teams are fine tuning for Friday night games while the Snyder Tigers are taking advantage of an open date in hopes of reversing a winless season.

Friday night games include Monahans at Andrews and Fort Stockton at Sweetwater. Monahans, who defeated the Tigers 63-0 last week, and Sweetwater, still on the Tiger schedule, just missed the state's top ten teams listing this week.

Other Friday games include Pecos at San Angelo Lake View and Lamesa at Big Spring.

Snyder is the only district team failing to post a win this season. Lamesa has two non-conference victories, and the Tigers face the Toronadoes in the final game of the season.

District 2-4A statistics released this week shows undefeated Monahans as the loop's top offensive producer. In four games, the Loboes have accumulated 1,310 yards rushing and 287 passing. This averages 399.3 yards per game. Sweetwater is second with a per game average of 366.5 yards.

Among the nine member schools, Snyder is seventh in offensive output with 744 yards rushing and 228 via air, for a per game average of 194.8

Monahans has produced the most total points, 188 followed by Fort Stockton with 182. Snyder is in the cellar with 25 total points.

In the first down category, San Angelo Lake View is the league's leader with 109 while Snyder is again at the bottom of the 2-4A list, tied with Lamesa at 45 each.

Sweetwater is the top defensive team at mid-season, giving up an average of 135.8 yards per game. Fort Stockton is second on defense, allowing an average of 144.8 yards.

Monahans has allowed only 13 points, followed by Fort Stockton at 43. The Snyder defense has been tagged for 171 points.

In individual statistics, Snyder QB Lee Fletcher has completed 13 of 42 passes for 191 yards. QB Roland Romo has hit on five of 21 attempts for 37 yards.

In district individual rushing, Snyder runners hold down the number 11 and 12 positions. Vyron Clay has carried 32 times for 260 yards and an average of 8.1. Michael Riggins has been called on 55 times for 249 yards and an average of 4.5. Isrrael Hinojos has gotten the call 45 times for 172 yards and a 3.8 average.

NFL strike 17 days old

TYSONS CORNER, Va. (AP) — As Gene Upshaw and Jack Donlan continued to work to end the NFL strike, 37 more players crossed picket lines, including San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana and 11 of his teammates.

Upshaw, the executive director of the NFL Players Association, and Donlan, his management counterpart, were to continue negotiations today in the latest round of talks designed to end the 17-day-old walkout. The two have been meeting at an undisclosed site in the Washington area since Tuesday.

There were conflicting reports on the amount of progress made Wednesday, but both sides said that no immediate settlement was in sight.

This weekend's games will once again feature teams with a majority of replacement players and a smattering of defectors.

The latest flood of regulars to cross picket lines came Wednesday as players tried to meet the deadline imposed by owners to pick up this week's paychecks and qualify to play in this weekend's games.

The latest defections brought to 129 the number of players who have crossed over since the strike began Sept. 22.

The biggest blow to the union came in Redwood City, Calif., where 12 49ers crossed. Among those accompanying Montana were wide receiver Dwight Clark, running backs Roger Craig and Joe Cribbs and cornerback Eric Wright.

San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh, who in the interest of team unity had last week persuaded many of the players not to return, said Wednesday he would not repeat the procedure.

"I wouldn't want to try it again," Walsh said. "We don't really have any other choice. If they want to come back, our doors have to be open."

Only seven of the league's 28 teams have no defectors: the New York Giants, Washington Redskins, Philadelphia Eagles, San Diego Chargers, Seattle Seahawks, Tampa Bay Bucs and Kansas City Chiefs.

Meanwhile, both sides gave different versions of the latest round of negotiations.

In a game at Wrigley Field, Chicago, on June 3, 1987, Brian Dayett and Keith Moreland of the Cubs and Billy Hatcher of the Astros each hit a grand slam, setting a National League record.

Hermleigh to face Trent

TRENT–The Hermleigh Cardinals hope to rebound from a one-point loss suffered to cross-county foe Ira last Saturday.

Ira spoiled Hermleigh's homecoming and 80th school anniversary with a 16-15 victory. Hermleigh hopes to rebound this week when the Cards travel to Trent for a District 1-4A tilt at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

In other action Friday, Blackwell takes on Highland. Ira was originally scheduled to play McCaulley this week, but the McCaulley grid season was cancelled. Jayton is also idle this week.

Snyder freshmen volleyball girls defeated Sweetwater by identical scores of 15-4, 15-4 Tuesday night in Sweetwater. The win brings the freshmen record to 8-4.

For Snyder, Monica Garcia was the point leader, scoring 10–including three aces. Liz Greathouse had nine points with four aces. Theresa Martin accounted for five points and one ace while Freda Clay had five points and two aces.

Robbie Braziel added three points while Brandon was credited with three kills. The freshmen host Pecos at 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Homers lift Twins to 8-5 AL victory

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When Gary Gaetti hit a second-inning homer, the Metrodome became so noisy that it was impossible to hear what was truly the most important sound in the Twins' most important game in 17 years — a sigh of relief in the Minnesota dugout.

Gaetti hit two homers to break Doyle Alexander's spell and Don Baylor came through with a game-winning pinch single in the eighth inning Wednesday night, leading the Twins to an 8-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers in Game 1 of the American League playoffs.

"We said he (Alexander) is human," after Gaetti's homer, said Tom Brunansky, who added two doubles and three RBI to help the Twins to their first playoff victory ever after being swept in both of their previous playoffs, in 1969 and 1970 against Baltimore.

Like every other team in the AL, the Twins have had trouble beating Alexander, who was 9-0 after coming to Detroit in an Aug. 12 trade with the Atlanta Braves. Two of those victories came against the Twins, who had only a .218 batting average against the 37-year-old right-hander.

Gaetti's second homer, three innings later, made him the first player to homer in both of his first two playoff at-bats.

With the Twins trailing 5-4 entering the eighth, Dan Gladden led off with a single. One out later, Kirby Puckett's RBI double to right tied the game and chased Alexander in favor of rookie Mike Henneman.

Henneman walked Kent Hrbek intentionally to get to Gaetti and then walked Gaetti unintentionally to load the bases.

Left-hander Willie Hernandez came on to pitch to lefty Randy Bush, who was promptly removed for the right-handed hitting Baylor. On a 2-2 pitch, Baylor, the 37-year-old designated hitter the Twins acquired just before the Sept. 1 trading deadline, lined a run-scoring single to center. Brunansky followed with a two-run double.

Bert Blyleven, 15-12, starts against Detroit's Jack Morris, 18-11, tonight in Game 2 of the best-of-seven series.

Gaetti said he thought his first homer "gave everybody a little hope."

Alexander, who had given up just three home runs in 88 1-3 innings since coming to Detroit, saw his postseason record fall to 0-4.

The Twins took a 4-1 lead after five innings.

Gaetti, who had 31 homers this season, had given the Twins a 1-0 lead with his first homer.

Mike Heath homered off Minnesota starter Frank Viola to tie the game in the third.

Gaetti's second homer, on Alexander's first pitch of the fifth, sparked a three-run outburst and made him the sixth player to hit two homers in an AL playoff game.

Detroit loaded the bases with none out but only managed one run — on Heath's RBI single — in the seventh.

Detroit scored twice in the eighth to chase Viola and take a 5-4 lead.

Reardon pitched a scoreless ninth for the victory.

Bass Club will meet tonight

The Snyder Bass Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Snyder National Bank.

Discussion of club officers for 1988 will be held as well as plans made for next year's tournaments.

The club's October tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at White River Lake. Headquarters will be at the campground and ramp on the southwest side of the lake–the ramp nearest the store. Competition begins both days at 7 a.m. and will end at 5 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday. Members may pre-register for the tournament at tonight's meeting.

Coyotes slaughter 48 flamingos at zoo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A ravenous pack of coyotes descended on 86 flamingos at the Los Angeles Zoo after keepers mistakenly left the birds' pen open, and by morning less than half the flock was still alive, officials said.

Some flamingos were saved by employees beating away the coyotes.

"We had a real tragedy here," said Michael Wallace, the zoo's curator for birds, after keepers returned Wednesday morning to the zoo in Griffith Park, north of downtown Los Angeles, and discovered the carnage.

The birds were worth nearly $50,000, but Wallace said workers were more upset for another reason.

"The real loss was emotional," Wallace said. "These birds have been here since 1974, some of them, and we'd just gotten the flock large enough to where we'd had breeding occur."

Some of the flamingos likely would be replaced, but he said zoo officials would wait until after the birds' next breeding season to see if any of the survivors will mate.

Flamingos in the wild travel in flocks numbering several thousand and don't usually breed in small groups, he said.

Wallace said the flamingos' cage door was left open when a zookeeper went to lock them in saw they were already inside and mistakenly assumed another handler had closed the door.

But the exotic birds, which are allowed to wander freely through the zoo during the day, had returned to the cage on their own.

Museum to open rodeo exhibits

Sculptures portraying the sport will be displayed by Ben Miller, of Fluvanna, Robert Taylor of Snyder and Rosie Alford of Lubbock.

During Sunday's reception, musical entertainment will be offered by Cindy Hataway.

The show will include a sale of the paintings, prints, sculptures and some photographs. Proceeds will benefit the museum.

"High in the Saddle" is to continue through Nov. 23. Museum hours are 1 until 4 p.m. each Sunday and 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Prison visitors welcomed locally

though the TDC board would hear it, digest it, then make a final decison at the regular meeting in November."

The three-man TDC team visiting here was part of seven such teams now traveling statewide for on-site inspections of cities and counties applying for the prison projects.

In particular, Baze noted, the TDC team seemed to be impressed by the facilities offered at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

"They commented that they didn't have facilities like these in Huntsville," Baze said.

The group toured also vocational education facilities offered through Western Texas College and the land sites. Again, Baze said, they seemed to be impressed with each.

The group was also shown the industrial foundation building here in hopes that it could be used in connection with some type of TDC industry.

Baze said the report here was not as hopeful, since the TDC representatives explained that transportation of prisoners to and from work sites is complicated by federal mandates.

Because of this, they noted any such facility would almost have to be "on-site." The possibility of some type warehouse facility was discussed, however, he noted.

"We had a very good day," Baze reflected, "all we could have hoped for."

The economic committee has submitted bids for a 2,250-man maximum security prison and for four 1,000-man units housing low-risk prisoners.

Misdemeanors ruled in Lubbock case

Misdemeanor assault charges were being prepared Thursday against two Snyder men in connection with the July 19 beating of a 20-year-old man in Lubbock, a spokesman for the Lubbock County criminal district attorney's office said.

First Assistant Marta Rosas said the two men, 20 and 21 years of age, would be charged with assault, a Class A misdemeanor, upon the recommendation of the grand jury that Wednesday no-billed them on possible felony charges.

They will be charged in connection with the beating of 20-year-old Shell Garrett Bullard, who a pathologist said was fatally injured when he was tackled by a nightclub bouncer and his head hit concrete outside a Lubbock nightclub, the Fast and Cool Club.

The two Snyder men were also involved in the fight outside the club, but the grand jury held that they were not responsible for the fatal injury.

Parade plans are announced

both kids and adults.

In addition to float entries from local clubs and organizations, eight antique cars are scheduled for the parade.

At 10 a.m. on the 17th, the parade will kickoff a day's worth of activities here. The floats are to assemble beginning at 9 a.m. at the parking lot of Lawrence IGA Supermarket. Kids on decorated bikes and locals in clown costumes should assemble at the same time at the Furr's parking lot.

The parade will move down College Ave. from 30th St. to circle the downtown square.

This Saturday, the third annual White Buffalo Days Gala-Auction will featured the Jody Nix band at the Snyder Country Club. Tickets for the event are limited to 200 and are $12.50 each. Some tickets will be available at the door, chamber officials note.

Snyder merchants have donated some 100 items to be sold to the highest bidder.

The first series of auctions will be a 7 p.m. and the last at 9:30 p.m. Dance music will begin at 8 p.m. and again at 10:30 p.m.

White Buffalo Days, sponsored by the women's committee of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, celebrates the county's pioneer history

The event marks the shooting of a rare albino buffalo by early settler and buffalo hunter J. Wright Mooar.

This occurred 111 years ago on Oct. 7, 1876, some 10 miles northwest of Snyder on the banks of Deep Creek.

Amendment seeks state tort reforms

mally dangerous or ultra-hazardous activities."

It would limit liability for all other municipal functions to $250,000 per person, $500,000 per occurrence for bodily injury or death and $100,000 per occurrence for property damage.

But the new bill might be ruled unconstitutional because of the "open courts" provision of the Constitution if the proposed amendment fails, supporters say.

Opponents say the measure would overturn "200 years of common law, carefully reasoned legal precedents by which the courts have determined which functions of a city are governmental and which are proprietary.

"This attack on a historical-legal principle would be carried out for the ostensible purpose of responding to a tort-suit crisis that never really existed," a spokesman said.

Amnesty fraud charge alleged

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A total of 20 people in two different cases have been charged in federal indictments alleging that businesses dealt in immigration fraud in the Rio Grande Valley.

McAllen resident Ernesto Castaneda, 54, and 11 other Valley residents were named in an indictment late Tuesday, charging they operated what immigration officials say is a widespread document fraud ring.

Castaneda allegedly was the ringleader of a network of false immigration services available at offices in Pharr, McAllen, Brownsville, Houston and possibly other locations, investigators said.

Those involved in the operation are accused of charging at least 500 illegal aliens up to $850 for packages of false immigration documents under the guise of his McAllen-based immigration assistance service.

Philip Tutak, special agent with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Harligen, said Castaneda often carried a typewriter, camera and various rubber stamps with him, and advertised his services in restaurants and bars along the border.

Candidate hears labor's needs

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Carlos Salinas de Gortari heard from 33 labor leaders Wednesday on what they want from the next administration, including a guarantee that economic policies engineered by the presidential candidate will not cost jobs.

The unions that make up the Labor Congress also planned to press demands, some dating back two decades, for a 40-hour work week, unemployment insurance, fair salaries and more frequent raises in the minimum daily wage, now about $3.50, Labor Congress leader Fidel Velazquez said.

The day-long meeting was Salinas de Gortari's first intensive session with a major branch of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, since he was named Sunday as the candidate to succeed President Miguel de la Madrid next year.

Salinas de Gortari resigned Monday as federal secretary of budget and planning, in keeping with presidential candidates' tradition.

Saragosa records to be released

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Reeves County officials have promised to release files indicating what has happened to donations intended to help victims of the Saragosa tornado, a state official says.

County Attorney Scott Johnson agreed to release the files after Texas Rural Legal Aid's threat to take the county to court, Alpha Hernandez, managing attorney in Legal Aid's Del Rio office, said Wednesday.

"The request is to find out just who received the money, how much they received and what they did with it and on what basis they distributed it," Ms. Hernandez said.

Saragosa, a small town about 25 miles south of Pecos, was devastated by a May 22 tornado that hit during a kindergarten graduation exercise and killed 30 people. Reeves County and some private organizations accepted donations to forward for the relief effort.

Father, son remain in Texas jail

HUMBLE, Texas (AP) — A father and son charged in the rape and kidnapping of a 14-year-old Missouri girl remain jailed after the two were arrested at a local hotel.

Robert Lloyd Belcher, 53, and his son, Randy Kent Belcher, 33, were arrested without incident about 4:20 p.m. Wednesday after Humble police received a tip, officials said.

Missouri authorities have been notified and the two men will be extradited, Humble police dispatcher Bea Bradshaw said. Humble is north of Houston.

The men are charged with felony counts of kidnap, rape and sodomy, said Carol Tharp, administrative assistant to the sheriff in Platte County, Mo. Bond was set at $200,000 each.

Both were transferred to the Harris County Jail in Houston, Ms. Bradshaw said. They also were wanted by the FBI for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, she said.

Platte County officials claim the father and son lured the 14-year-old girl from her home in Bean Lake, Mo., about 25 miles northwest of Kansas City, on Sept. 29 and took her to a motel where she allegedly was raped and sodomized.

Brief by SEC supports Pickens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission is backing the position of a group led by T. Boone Pickens Jr. over a legal issue stemming from its hostile attempt to acquire Newmont Mining Corp.

Daniel L. Goelzer, general counsel of the SEC, said Wednesday that the commission filed a friend-of-the-court brief arguing that federal securities law did not require a person or group making a tender offer to have firm financing commitments first.

Newmont, a mineral-rich mining concern based in New York, has filed a federal suit seeking to thwart the hostile tender offer by a Pickens-led investment group, Ivanhoe Partners, on the grounds the offer violated federal securities law.

The brief was filed with the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco, which has blocked the tender offer pending a hearing Friday on the lawsuit.

Heaviest man wants to lose weight

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Three weeks after getting stuck in a doorway, a man who broke the scales at 1,000 pounds has stopped gorging on junk food for a diet that includes dried fruit and sesame seeds.

It's paid off.

Walter Hudson already has lost four inches around the knees.

He is still is far heavier than the heaviest man listed in the Guinness Book of World Records, who is less than 900 pounds.

Hudson has biceps like flabby watermelons. He has a 103-inch waist. That's 8½ feet. His knees are 51 inches around, down from 55. His neck is 22 inches.

The 42-year-old Hudson weighed 212 pounds when he was 12.

Former Miss America is indicted

NEW YORK (AP) — Bess Myerson, a housepainter's daughter who rose to become Miss America and then a top city official, has been indicted for allegedly using her position to influence the judge in her boyfriend's divorce.

A federal grand jury Wednesday charged the former cultural affairs commissioner with conspiracy, mail fraud and bribery-related charges for allegedly giving a city job to the judge's daughter in return for a reduction in the support her "intimate companion" had to pay his ex-wife.

If convicted, 63-year-old Miss Myerson could receive up to 30 years in prison and fined $513,000. Arraignment was scheduled for Oct. 15.

Also indicted were the boyfriend, millionaire Carl "Andy" Capasso, 45, and former state Supreme Court Justice Hortense W. Gabel, who presided over Capasso's divorce.

Capasso, at one time a major city contractor, is serving a four-year prison sentence on an unrelated federal tax evasion conviction.

Mrs. Gabel, 74, a judge since 1970, resigned in June after a city investigation charged she had a "secret understanding" with Miss Myerson in the Capasso divorce. The judge Wednesday denied any wrongdoing.

League endorses constitutional change

AUSTIN (AP) — The League of Women Voters of Texas, beginning what its president calls a long-range campaign, has called for complete revision of Texas' 111-year-old constitution.

President Diane Sheridan said Wednesday the league had decided not to support or oppose any of the 25 proposed constitutional amendments or two referenda on the Nov. 3 ballot because the ballot is so long and complex.

But she told a news conference that "the league is saying to voters 'Vote in this election — it's very important — but take a careful look at what you're voting on.' "

Ms. Sheridan, of Taylor Lake Village in the Houston area, noted that the Texas Constitution has been amended 287 times and is now 44 pages, compared with the seven-page U.S. Constitution.

"The league believes it is time to revise the Texas Constitution so that it becomes a basic framework of government," she said.

"And we are saying to the Texas Legislature, 'Enough is enough. Let us work together to halt this ridiculous system of running the government by means of the constitution,' " she said.

"Two binding statewide referenda are proposed on the November ballot, but there is no right of referendum in Texas," Ms. Sheridan said. "The Legislature has simply deferred to the people on two politically sensitive decisions: pari-mutuel betting and election or appointment of the State Board of Education."

Ms. Sheridan said the 3,800-member league was urging voters to contact legislators to complain about the number of proposed amendments on the ballot.

She said the league had no specific recommendations on how to revise the constitution, and was aware that attempts to rewrite the constitution had failed in 1974 and 1975.

"Ideally," she said, "the Legislature would take the first step within the next year" by appointing a group — possibly a task force or committee — to design a plan.

"We see this as the beginning of a long-range campaign," she said.

Canker quarantine won't be lifted

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Florida citrus is not welcome in Texas, growers from the Rio Grande Valley told federal officials at a hearing for public comment on a proposal to lift a 3-year-old quarantine on Florida fruit.

A 1984 citrus canker outbreak prompted the ban on shipments of Florida's fresh citrus to other citrus-producing areas.

Texas growers and other officials told the U.S. Department of Agriculture Wednesday that the potential for biological disaster continues, and that the quarantine should continue for another 18 months.

The USDA last month proposed allowing fruit deliveries to resume, subject to inspections and other precautionary measures, including dips in two different disinfecting solutions.

"It is generally agreed that it may take 18 months, in some cases up to three years, before a canker infection manifests itself and can be detected by visual inspection," said Ray Prewett, executive vice president of McAllen-based Texas Citrus Mutual, a growers' organization.

The hearing Wednesday was the second of three the USDA scheduled upon publishing the proposal in the Federal Register last month. The first hearing was Monday in Los Angeles, while the third is scheduled for Friday in Lake Alfred, Fla.

Citrus canker is an aggressive bacterial disease that causes defoliation and other damage to leaves and stems, and creates lesions in the fruit. The disease also can cause the fruit to drop from a tree before reaching maturity.

Robert Griffith, chief of the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, said his state has a thorough inspection process and that Florida citrus inspectors made more than 76,000 visits last year.

"The world's leading citrus canker experts have expressed that this protocol is biologically sound," said Richard Kinney, executive vice president of Florida Citrus Packers, a growers' organization.

But Alvin Cannady, a grower and grove care manager from Mission, said that if the disease spread to Texas, a quarantine would ruin the citrus industry concentrated in the three southernmost counties.

"I submit to you that the risk is too great, not only for Texas but for the entire U.S. citrus industry," he said.

Mike Moeller, Texas' deputy commissioner of agriculture, questioned inspectors' ability to detect the disease in Florida and said the cause of the disease, which has at least three strains, remains unexplained.

Monterrey citizens support de Gortari

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — A majority of people asked in an unscientific street poll said Nuevo Leon state will benefit if Carlos Salinas de Gortari is elected president of Mexico, a local newspaper said Wednesday.

The opposition National Action Party, or PAN, meanwhile, has criticized Nuevo Leon Gov. Jorge Trevino for supporting "in the name of the people" Salinas de Gortari's candidacy.

The daily newspaper El Norte surveyed 396 people living in poor, middle class and wealthy neighborhoods Monday, the day after Salinas de Gortari was named presidential candidate for the Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI.

Salinas de Gortari was born in Mexico City but his parents come from Agualeguas, Nuevo Leon, a small agricultural community north of this state capital. Two of his three children were born in Agualeguas.

It is a generally accepted fact that the president's home state benefits during his administration through government-supported public works projects.

Of those asked Monday by El Norte's investigative team if they knew who the PRI selected as its candidate, 66 percent said yes and 34 percent said no.

Only those who were aware that Salinas de Gortari is the PRI's candidate were asked follow-up questions, El Norte said.

When asked, "Considering the fact that Salinas de Gortari has relatives living in Nuevo Leon, do you believe the state will benefit if he is elected president?" 74 percent said yes and 17 percent said no.

Nine percent didn't know or gave other answers, according to El Norte.

Those surveyed also were asked, "Will you vote for Salinas de Gortari in the upcoming presidential elections?"

Sixty-three percent said yes, 22 percent said no, 13 percent said they didn't know yet and 2 percent gave other responses, El Norte reported.

When asked what they believed to be Salinas de Gortari's main virtue, 21 percent said he's intelligent, 10 percent said he's honest and 10 percent said he's an experienced economist.

Court to probe motion

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court wants to know more about a man who filed an expletive-ridden motion asking God to afflict AIDS and herpes on the justices and their families, Justice William Kilgarlin says.

"We have instructed our executive assistant to investigate and find out who this guy is and whether he's a lawyer or not," Kilgarlin said Wednesday.

"Freedom of speech is something that needs to be protected and I'm all for freedom of speech. However, there is a provision for unauthorized practice of law," he said. "As to the language in the motion ... the remedy of contempt of court is always available."

The motion, overruled Wednesday by the Supreme Court, was filed by George Buchanan Roden on behalf of a McLennan County religious group embroiled in a tax fight with officials there.

"What does the Supreme Court think they are, God? If you think you're God then God would have taken the poor into account but you sons ... have your ... click to take care of, don't you?" said the motion filed on behalf of the General Association Branch, Davidian Seventh-Day Adventist.

The number listed for the group in Axtell has been disconnected. There is no listing in Axtell or Waco for Roden.

Ross Lauterbach of Alvarado, treasurer for the Texas Conference of the Seventh-Day Adventists, said the Davidians "have no connection with us at all in our organized group."

The motion, replete with expletives and invective, was signed by Roden, who was listed as counsel for the group. The State Bar Association said Roden is not a Texas-licensed attorney.

Kilgarlin said Texans who are not lawyers are allowed to represent themselves in court, but cannot represent other people or entities.

The group wanted the Supreme Court to reduce the bond required in the organization's tax battle with McLennan County officials.
