Another item scheduled for the 2 p.m. council meeting will be information from Koepke & Associates who were asked last month to re-examine their appraisal of a portion of Jenkins Street.

On the subject of city taxes, the council is expected Friday to set a rate of 28 cents per $100 valuation. This was the tax rate tentatively approved by the council in its meeting Sept. 27 when the 1982-83 city budget was adopted.

City Administrator Herman Johnson last week said the city was within $88 of estimating the official 1982 taxable valuations on which the tax rate is based — the official figure is $139,041,869 — which means the 28-cent tax rate still applies.

Johnson said the city hopes to have its 1982 tax notices out by Nov. 15. In Friday's meeting, the council will be considering giving a three percent discount on taxes paid in November and two percent on taxes paid in December. No discounts are proposed on taxes paid after Dec. 31.

Scheduled for Friday's meeting will be discussion and possible action on information received from Koepke & Associates, the firm that did the appraisal on a 400-foot-long strip of Jenkins Street — between Cherry and Linden — after the city received a request that the street be closed.

Adjoining property owners, including Juanita Wagley, requested earlier this year that the street be closed on the basis that the right-of-way is not used. The actual right-of-way is 400 feet by 100 feet wide, but only a center 20-foot strip has been shell-topped.

In response to this request, the city retained Koepke & Associates to appraise the street as the first step in the eventual closure and the firm set a value of $80,000 on the land.

At the council's Sept. 27 meeting, Wagley appeared before city officials to read a letter she had written to the city in which she protested the appraisal as being too high. She pointed out that the appraisers had set a value of $2 per square foot on this property and that adjoining property had been appraised by the Aransas County Appraisal District at only $1.10 per square foot.

Following Wagley's presentation, the city asked the appraisal firm to reconsider and/or explain its $80,000 valuation of the property.

Weather

Temperatures are expected to range in the 80s to near 90 with lows in the 50s and 60s through the latter part of this week. Forecasts call for slight chance of showers Thursday and Friday.

Aransas County United Fund:

One-third down, goal to go

Aransas County's United Fund campaign is more than one-third of the way to its 1982 goal, with $9,381 donated or pledged since the campaign kicked off at the beginning of this month.

Goal for this year's 30-day drive is $25,000, and Campaign Chairman Bob Bernardy said the campaign will climax in a door-to-door "blitz" on Oct. 29 and 30. In the meantime, he has been speaking to various civic and other organizations in the county in an effort to raise funds through their members.

Eleven organizations that serve Aransas County residents are scheduled to receive money through this year's United Fund Drive.

Agencies that will receive funding assistance through this year's United Fund drive include:

- The Aransas County Council on Aging which provides services for the benefit of county's senior citizens.
- Aransas County Emergency Medical Services (EMS) — the county's ambulance and paramedic service.
- Aransas County Youth Council.
- Aransas County Emergency Corps, comprising the five volunteer fire departments, in Rockport, Fulton, Copano

- Cove, Lamar and Holiday Beach.
- The American Red Cross.
- A.B.C. Learning Center.
- Boy Scouts.
- Girl Scouts.
- Family Counseling.
- A.I.M. Home Health Agency, a service that provides in-home health care for Aransas County residents.
- The USO.

Funds are allocated to these agencies on the basis of requests submitted by the agencies themselves considered in conjunction with the amount of money collected through the campaign.

Bernardy said the two-way "blitz" campaign, in which volunteers will go from door to door to collect money for the UF, will involve the organization of neighborhood groups under chairmen who will be named at a later date.

President of this year's United Fund is Joel Zapata and Frank Wix is executive vice president and chairman of business contributions. Louise Wilken is in charge of special gifts.

Assistant drive chairman is June Keesee. Jeanie Rutledge is head of this year's budget committee and Dr. Curtis Kovacs is publicity chairman.

School board sets tax rate for '82-83

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

The Aransas County Independent School District set an effective tax rate of 54.119 cents per $100 valuation at a special meeting at 6 p.m. Monday, Oct. 18.

The tax rate is approximately half of what it was last year, and is an estimated 13 percent lower than any other school district in the state which has already published its tax rate.

Due to appraisal errors in valuations, the ACISD does not expect to take in as much revenue as expected when the 1982-83 school budget was adopted in September. Board President Ottie Mundine called the tax rolls a "surprise" and a "shock." Aransas County Independent School District Superintendent Joe Randow explained that the actual tax rolls had put the district into a difficult position. "It looks like we will have to dip into our reserve funds . . . to hold at the effective tax rate," Randow said.

The expenditure budget for the 1982-83 school year totals $7,410,818. Estimated revenue from state and federal sources is $3,102,619, leaving a local revenue need of $4,308,199, including $443,402 for debt service.

The certified tax roll less exemptions and five percent estimated uncollectible and early payment leaves the district with a $581,739,508 total assessed value for tax. Adding total local revenue, the district would be left with a deficit budget which will force them to use approximately $696,235 from reserve funds in order to write a balanced budget.

Additional discussion from school board members yielded a decision to provide no additional exemptions other than those currently accepted by the district. The board decided against accepting the 40 percent homestead exemption. Several Aransas County Taxpayers Association members attending the meeting said they were "disappointed" with the decision.

After the sometimes heated discussion regarding the homestead exemption, school board member Margaret Dick made a motion to set the effective tax rate at 54 cents for the 1982-83 school year. The motion was seconded by board Vice President Polly Bracht, and unanimously approved by the board.

Initiative, recall rules adopted

By PAT BLAIR

A minimum of 150 qualified Rockport voters will be required to generate initiative or referendum — and at least 300 signatures will be needed on a petition for recall of a city council member.

These are part of the proposals approved Monday evening by Rockport's city charter commission as 12 of its 15 members took up discussion of Article VI of the proposed city charter, dealing with initiative, referendum and recall.

In a series of votes, the charter commission agreed that:

— Initiative, referendum or recall are to be initiated by a petitioners committee consisting of 10 qualified city voters.

— The petitioners committee will be responsible for preparing a petition which "shall set out in full the proposed initiative ordinance or cite the ordinance sought to be reconsidered or, in the case of recall, will provide a statement of the grounds for removal."

BILL PATMAN IS A REPRESENTATIVE YOU CAN BE PROUD OF.

(When asked how to prevent another Watergate) "Any voter could think a little more about personal qualities revealed in the candidate's life."

Special Watergate Prosecutor
Archibald Cox

"His colleagues appreciate my saying (to the people of the 14th District) a sincere thank you for having produced and shared with us a man of the character, the courage, the intellect—and the integrity—of Bill Patman."

U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright

"Political life magnifies the good and the bad in people. If basic flaws are there, the pressure will force them out. No man can be effective in Congress if he must be constantly defending his character."

your U.S. Congressman, Bill Patman

You've been embarrassed too many times by the way your elected representatives behave in Washington. In fact, before Bill Patman, the last two Representatives of the 14th Congressional District—the current Republican candidate, Joe Wyatt, and the Congressman he unseated—left office under a cloud of scandal.

Should personal integrity be a public issue? Yes. Public scandals involving your Representative cost you more than embarrassment: they seriously disrupt the effectiveness of the person who is supposed to be working for you in Washington. This district deserves a Congressman who represents the best of our moral standards and values.

In 22 years as a Texas state Senator and as your U.S. Congressman, Bill Patman's character has never been called into question, despite the intense scrutiny that is rightfully given the lives of all public officials. Over those years, Bill Patman has built an unblemished record you can be proud of—a record of character, courage, and effectiveness.

If you really want to do something to support integrity in your government, you'll have your chance November 2nd. Re-elect Bill Patman to Congress.

Try intercropping

By Mike Rothrock
County Extension
Agent - AG
San Patricio
Aransas Counties

"Intercropping" different crops in your fall garden will eliminate wasted space and make your garden more productive. Intercropping means planting between plants.

Among crops that love cool weather and do well in a small amount of space are beets, carrots, chard, collards, garlic, kohlrabi, lettuce, mustard, onion, parsley, radishes, spinach and turnips.

These can be planted between such large plants as tomatoes, peppers and eggplants that need a lot of space. Also, the larger plants will not survive cold weather, so your cool-season plants will have a head start once cold weather arrives. As frost kills the larger plants, they can be removed, providing more space for cold-tolerant crops.

Since most gardeners prepare the entire garden for planting and also water it while caring for the larger, warm-season plants, intercropping makes use of fertilizer and moisture already in the soil.

Also, the partial shading provided by the larger plants helps cool the soil to allow fall-seeded crops to germinate better and get off to a better start.

When intercropping with cool-season plants, I suggest staggering plantings so that they don't all mature at the same time. This will insure better quality vegetables throughout the season.

So try intercropping to increase gardening efficiency while at the same time providing delicious vegetables during the fall and winter.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Ken Riley and Bill Harrison have both served one term in the Texas House of Representatives. Let's look at their records:

RILEY	HARRISON
As a freshman member of the House of Representatives, Ken Riley failed to pass any of the 25 bills he introduced.	As a freshman member of the House of Representatives, Bill Harrison passed more than 50% of his legislation.
Riley admits to voting for other legislators claiming he doesn't see anything wrong with casting a vote for a colleague.	Harrison's position is clear... "It is not only unethical to vote for another legislator, it is also clearly against the rules of the House of Representatives."
Riley was named as one of the unanimous "TEN WORST" members of the Texas Legislature.	A fellow legislator said of Bill Harrison, "You'd never know he was in his freshman term. What he did and how he did it had all the marks of a veteran legislator."
The Dallas Times Herald editorialized: "State Rep. Ken Riley exhibited to all the citizens of the state how a legislator can place private gain ahead of public good and then pretend that he has done nothing wrong... in his opportunism, we believe, Rep. Riley displayed an abysmal disregard for both the public welfare and the performance of his official duties as an elected representative of the people."	A friend who has known the Harrison family for years, talks about Bill: "He looks upon legislative service as a public trust. He was brought up to obey the Christian values of ethics and fair play. Bill is an outstanding product of our area and he will do us proud in Austin."

By comparison,
it's Harrison.

Pirates to play Warriors in homecoming Friday

This Friday night the Rockport-Fulton Pirates will try to get back on the winning track again as they host the Tuloso-Midway Warriors in the annual homecoming game for the Pirates.

The Pirates will be on the rebound after a loss to the Flour Bluff Hornets two weeks ago. The Pirates seem to catch teams on the upward swing whenever it comes time to play them, and this week is no exception. The Warriors were winless going into last Friday's game against Calallen, but the Warriors scalped the Wildcats by a score of 18-13.

A new running star emerged for the Warriors in the person of Charlie Long who scored last week on runs of 89 yards and 31 yards. Tuloso-Midway's defense has been less than competent this season, but they did rise up and stop the Wildcats Friday night when they had to, holding off the Cats with less than a minute to go.

The Pirates are still looking for the winning combination which has been missing due to the string of injuries suffered by the Pirates in the past four weeks. This week the Pirates may be closer to 100 percent than at any other point in the last few weeks. Game time will be 8 p.m.

Sports from the press box

With JOEY SASSO

Those swift-footed pro football backs and beefy linemen may be heroes to millions of sports fans — but to law enforcement agencies many are also law-breaking drug offenders.

The seriousness of the problems recently came to light when probes of several National Football League teams turned up widespread cocaine use. So far, several members of the Denver Broncos have been linked to cocaine sniffing and a federal grand jury in New Orleans is studying drug abuse that may involve 10 Saints' players. One top pro even confessed to the grand jury that he spent a staggering $10,000 on cocaine last season alone.

Rumors concerning the explosive scandal have become so strong that Charles S. Jackson — the NFL's assistant director for security and drug abuse — has admitted that 17 players are dependent on cocaine, and 50 others may be addicted to the drug. He says that hundreds more of the 1,500 league players are using cocaine, many of them regularly. One of the league's biggest nightmares is that players might fix games for gamblers in exchange for the expensive drug. "We've had players ask for salary advances, then heard that they planned to spend the money on drugs," Jackson says.

The wholesale price of cocaine is about $2,500 an ounce. When bought on the street it's 15 to 20 percent pure and sells for $100 a gram — only enough for a small party.

A former pro lineman says that one of the major reasons cocaine has made such great inroads in the NFL is that it duplicates the fantastic emotional high players feel on the field.

Cocaine has also threatened the integrity of other professional sports — the National Basketball Association and baseball team owners have expressed concern over its use by players.

Researchers believe that continued use of the drug can cause psychological dependence, paranoia and hallucinations.

Jayne Kennedy is a good sport — literally. Aspiring actress Jayne has been hired to host Berl Rotfeld's national syndicated TV show, "Greatest Sports Legends," for its 10th year on the air.

What are her qualifications for interviewing the likes of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bill Russell, Willie Stargell, Warren Spahn, Jim Ryun and Frank Shorter? "I was captain of the champion Girls County High School basketball team back in Wickliff, Ohio," Jayne said. "I also participated in the Junior Olympics 'and won the 100-yard dash, the long jump and the standing broad jump." She says her new hosting job "is like a dream-come true."

Previous hosts on the show include Paul Hornung, Reggie Jackson, Tom Seaver, George Plimpton and Ken Howard.

For years, San Francisco Giants manager Frank Robinson has seethed over the trade that sent him from Cincinnati to Baltimore in exchange for pitchers Jack Baldschun, Milt Pappas and Dick Simpson. But that ill-conceived trade is only part of the resentment he feels toward Reds president Dick Wagner. After criticizing the Reds' winter moves that lost Cincy George Foster, Ken Griffey and Dave Collins, Robinson then said, "You have to really question what they did this winter. But it goes deeper than this winter. You let a Pete Rose go, a Tony Perez go, a Joe Morgan, Ray Knight. Those guys have a lot of baseball left. It's a shame what that man has done to that team."

For those who doubt the solidarity of the St. Louis Cardinals in the pro-football strike, hear this: The Cards have decided to boycott all products produced by the Adolph Coors Beer Co., including refusing to participate in a series of clinics for school children aimed at encouraging them to stay in school. The reason for the boycott, according to player-rep Terry Stieve, is that Coors is a non-union business.

Coors sales manager Ivory Crockett was dismayed at the players' action. "I don't feel as sorry for myself as I do the kids," he said.

Bill Toomey, the 1968 Olympic decathlon champion, whose records have long been buried under the weight of those by Bruce Jenner and Daley Thompson, says he's got a solution for boosting his self-esteem. "I tell everybody my marks in meters now," he said, "even my age."

Chicago Cubs general manager Dallas Green has changed addresses, but the line the former Phillies' manager is issuing seems vaguely familiar when it comes to the changes he is contemplating for next season. "I'll use any means I can to improve this team," says Green. "But I won't jeopardize what I'm trying to do just because the fans want it, or the media want it, or the (Chicago) Tribune Company (the owners of the team) feel I've got to do something." Green has listed outfielder Leon Durham, infielder Ryne Sandberg and relief pitcher Lee Smith as untouchables, and first-baseman Bill Buckner close to being in that category.

Although they probably would like to forget about it, the Cincinnati Reds will remember their 101-loss season every time they break a sweat next spring. Which is to say, every other minute or so, if manager Russ Nixon is to be believed. Nixon gave this account of his final address Sunday to his bedraggled troops: "I told 'em nobody in this room is pleased with what happened this year. I just gave them a brief format of what to expect. First thing was to be in shape when they get to spring training, because this spring is going to be something like they've never witnessed before. A lot of hard work, a lot of sweat. I told them if they're not willing to do it, don't show up."

Among the Reds who may take that advice is Tom Seaver, 37, the once brilliant pitcher who fashioned a 5-13 record this season. Seaver, who makes his off-season home in Connecticut, said he had spoken to club president Dick Wagner about his future with the Reds. "It's hard for me to justify being away from home so much if we're not going to the competitive," Seaver said.

Wilds on wildlife

Opportunistic gulls thrive despite adversity

At a time when most other water birds are diminishing in numbers due to habitat loss, many gulls have been rapidly increasing. This is all the more surprising since the gull's biggest predator, man, is increasing equally rapidly. Only a bird that adapts very easily could pull off this survival trick.

But gulls are both predators and scavengers and man has strewn his garbage wide and far thus creating constant food supplies for these wily birds.

The most common wintering gull along southern coasts of the U.S. is the ring-billed gull. It is also the gull most likely to be found inland.

The ring-billed gull looks very much like a small herring gull, but its legs are yellowish or greenish and, as its name implies, there is a black ring near the tip of the yellow bill. In contrast, the herring gull has pinkish legs and a red spot on the tip of the lower bill. Also, it is much more buoyant in flight.

In the adult the head and entire body is white, the upper surface of the wings is colored medium gray with the back edges lined with white all the way to the tips. The primary wing features are black, with white tips.

Inland, these gulls follow the plows eating grubs, worms, grasshoppers and other insects, and also mice. They scavenge garbage dumps in large numbers.

Along the coast, they fish and follow the boats for garbage. They also scavenge the beaches, cleaning up whatever can be found.

Ring-bills nest in colonies on isolated offshore islands or freshwater coasts and islands with other water birds such as terns, cormorants and ducks.

Three eggs are laid in a nest of grass, sticks and debris stacked on rocky ground. After 21 days of incubation the chicks emerge with eyes open and downy feathers covering them all over. They are able to swim early to escape predators.

But the odds are against the chicks. One study revealed that while 72 percent of the eggs will hatch, only 31 percent of the chicks will survive. Starvation is a real threat to those that do manage to leave the colonies. Those early months are very harsh.

Plume hunters wiped out most of the breeding gull populations along the Atlantic coast in the first part of this century. Finally, laws were passed to protect them.

Apparently the advent of garbage dumps later in the century is what has precipitated the spectacular increase in gull numbers.

Like other gulls, ring-bills are able to have spectacular "irruptions" when all the conditions are right. For instances, studies show how the ring-billed took advantage of man-made changes in the Great Lakes area during the 60's.

In seven years their population jumped from 27,000 nesting pairs to 140,000 pairs. One reason for the increase was the drop in water levels around Lake Huron and Michigan. Many small islands appeared providing ample nesting space.

The second reason was caused by the Welland Canal. The Canal permitted sea lampreys, voracious predator fish, to enter the lakes. These predators ate up the predators of the andromous alewives which became very populous in the lakes. The ring-bills thrived on the alewives.

Thus the gulls adjust to "boom or bust" periods, producing more young than they need to maintain their numbers so that under favorable conditions they can make up for — in a very short time — past catastrophic conditions.

It's truly a rare bird these days that can not only hold its own, but actually increase.

Pipeline permits include two in county

AUSTIN — Twenty-three permits to operate new pipelines in Texas — including two in Aransas County — were approved during September, according to State Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent.

A permit to lay gathering lines in Aransas Bay, Aransas County, was issued to Warpath Pipeline Co., Corpus Christi, and a trunk transmission line permit was issued to Venture Pipeline Co. of Houston to lay gas transmission lines through Aransas and Refugio counties during the month.

All permits issued during September were for privately-owned pipelines, Nugent said, and total permits for new lines through the first nine months of this year amount to 137 — up from the 128 permits issued for the same period in 1981.

Fifteen of the permits issued in September were for gathering pipelines, four for trunk transmission lines and another four for multi-purpose or other types of lines, Nugent added.

Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases. A trunk transmission line is a larger diameter line into which smaller lines connect.

Including the lines in Aransas, 19 of the newly-permitted lines will transport gas, two will move crude oil and two "other materials."

Other gathering pipelines approved include Bam Energy Inc., San Antonio, gas (two lines — one each in Cherokee and Wilson counties); Tangram Transmission Corp. of Spring, gas, Live Oak County; Pride Pipeline Co. of Abilene, crude, Tom Greene County; West Texas Gas Inc., Midland, gas, Jack County.

Also Cola Petroleum Inc., Austin, gas, Rusk County; Riddle Oil Co., Austin, gas (two lines — one each in Harrison and Rusk counties); Lindaire Corp., Terrell, gas, Shackelford County; El Paso Hydrocarbons Co., Odessa, gas, Reagan County.

And K-W Gathering Inc., Kingwood, gas, Eastland County; Cola Petroleum Inc., of Midland, gas, Gregg and Rusk counties; Davis Oil Co., Houston, gas, Concho County; Victoria Gas Corp., Corpus Christi, gas, Cherokee County.

Other trunk transmission lines approved include Liberty Natural Gas Co. of Dallas, gas, Pecos County; Amoco Gas Co., Texas City, gas, Chambers County; Western Crude Oil Inc. of Denver, Colo., crude, Burleson County.

Multi-purpose and other lines were approved for Termac Gathering Co. Inc., Houston, gas, Harris County; Petrochemicals Co. Inc. of Fort Worth, hydrogen gas, Tarrant County; L-TX Inc., Abilene, gas, Fisher and Nolan counties; Liquid Energy Corp., The Woodlands, carbon dioxide, Wise County.

New bill aimed at protecting unemployment fund solvency

By Bill Clayton
AUSTIN — The 67th Legislature met in its third called special session and passed two important pieces of legislation.

The Governor called the legislature back to Austin to address the situation of a rapidly depleting state fund which pays out benefits to unemployed workers in Texas. This fund is fed by a payroll tax paid by employers in our state on each of their employees. Because of the recent increase in unemployment, the fund has sunk to a level which would have triggered an automatic 2700 percent increase in pay-roll taxes.

House Bill One was passed to prevent the unemployment fund from going bankrupt and to levy a new payroll tax for next year which will replenish the fund.

To prevent the bankruptcy of the fund, the Governor was given authority to request an advance from the federal unemployment trust fund. However, interest must be paid on this advance. To pay the interest other provisions were necessary: $3 million was appropriated from a special administration fund of the employment commission and a one-time surtax was levied on employers for the last quarter of 1982 and the first quarter of 1983.

The total money borrowed from the federal fund will be about $270 million, and $31 million in interest is expected. The money borrowed and the interest must be repaid by May 1984.

House Bill One addresses the future solvency of the fund with other provisions. Employers will pay a surtax of .4 percent for the first quarter of 1983, and from the second quarter through the remainder of 1983 there will be .3 percent added to their experience rate. In 1984 it is anticipated that the surtax rate will be .5 percent added to the experience rate so that it will be back to its normal level prior to the triggered surtax.

A new triggering mechanism for a surtax to replenish the fund should it fall below a set floor is created so that the surtax formula is adjusted annually in consideration of economic growth. The ceiling of the unemployment fund is raised from $325 to $500 million in October 1982. This means that the fund thereafter will have a bigger cash reserve to respond to economic situations like the current recession.

Two other sections of this bill raise the wage base used to compute payroll taxes from the first $6,000 earned by each employee per year to $7,000, and the penalty rate on late tax payments is increased from 12 percent to 18 percent per year.

An expanded call allowed a second important piece of legislation to be introduced and passed, Senate Bill Two. The purpose of this bill is to allow school districts to conduct short term borrowing before their annual budgets and taxes are set. Such loans can now be paid back from any available funds of a district, rather than only from maintenance tax monies. By September 1983, 75 percent of the school districts had not had their tax rolls certified or their maintenance taxes levied. This delay was caused by a recent change in property appraisal.

Thus, Senate Bill Two increases the flexibility of local districts to finance current expenditures in years when final action on the tax rolls may be delayed.

Both of these new laws deal with matters which had to be addressed before the start of the regular session in January. The legislature concluded its business in a record three days time; this was the shortest special session since 1923 when the special session lasted one hour.

Do mothers-in-law get half a day?

Mothers-in-law can't seem to win. Their "day" is coming up on Sunday, Oct. 24, but it's only been recognized by half the U.S. Congress.

The House of Representatives last October passed a resolution officially naming the fourth Sunday in October as Mother-in-Law's Day. In November, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.) introduced a similar proposal in the Senate (S.J. Res. 128) but it hasn't been acted on yet and probably won't be until after the holiday this year.

But hopes are high that mothers-in-law soon will have an official day of their own to help make up for the centuries of abuse they've tolerated with remarkable good humor.

Sen. Bentsen's interest in mothers-in-law is understandable because one of the first efforts to do something for them occurred in his state in the 1930s. An Amarillo newspaper publisher promoted a Mother-in-Law's Day celebration in that city for a number of years after one of his columns upset his own mother-in-law. One year, 125,000 visitors, including First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt, traveled to Amarillo for a Mother-in-Law's Day parade and other festivities.

Since FTD, the cooperatively owned florist wire and membership service, first launched its Mother-in-Law's Day celebration in 1977, half the states and more than 20 cities have proclaimed the day at one time or another. Governor Ed Herschler of Wyoming, for example, recognized the day after he got into hot water by describing his mixed feelings on an issue as being "like watching my mother-in-law drive off a cliff in my new car."

While mother-in-law jokes still persist to some extent, most people seem to be genuinely fond of their "other mothers." As one man said, "If my wife ever throws me out of the house, I'll run home to her mother!" A daughter-in-law put it more poignantly: "Mother is a word for love; in-law just means we found it later."

Jokes are just one of the punishments mothers-in-law have suffered over the years. Shunning was common in some ancient cultures because of fears that even looking at your mother-in-law could cause blindness or sterility.

The question now is, will the U.S. Senate be as brave as the House, where members let everyone know how they stood on mother-in-law in a roll call vote on the resolution? The resolution passed, 305 to 66 with 28 abstentions.

Among those who will be watching the Senate action with interest will be Rep. Jonathan Bingham (D-NY) and Rep. Edward Derwinski (R-Ill.), who co-sponsored the House resolution with 216 other members.

However, if the resolution fails in the Senate, Bingham and Derwinski won't be able to lead a renewed fight — they both are leaving Congress this year. Such is the luck of mothers-in-law.

Texas Medical Assn. cautions

Arthritis has no known cure, as the 31 million Americans who suffer from it and related diseases are well aware. Just as aware of this are the inventors of quack devices and "miracle cures," says the Texas Medical Association.

For every dollar spent on arthritis research, $25 is spent on useless nostrums, unapproved devices, unnecessary food supplements and arthritis diet books, according to Consumer Reports magazine. The total annual tab for arthritis quackery is estimated to be $950 million.

One dangerous and powerful drug making a comeback as an unapproved arthritis treatment is Leifcort. This hormone com-money for the preschool center. In all, the candy sale brought in $1094.40 for the school. Prizes — tote bags for both youngsters plus a V.I.P. dinner for two for Justin — were donated by Rockport's Whataburger.

No 'miracle cures' for arthritis pound was developed and promoted nearly 20 years ago by Dr. Robert Leifmann, who fled to Canada to avoid arrest for selling a purported baldness cure. He continued to sell Leifcort there until his death in 1972.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration says a number of Leifmann's colleagues are back in business in the U.S. and operating as the Arthritis Medical Offices and the Arthritis Medical Center. Leifcort — under new names like "Hormone Balance Treatment," "Balanced Hormone Treatment," and "Rheumatriol" — is being sold in clinics often set up in hotel rooms. The FDA says the combination of hormones in Leifcort poses a danger to health.

The best advice for arthritis victims is to be wary of products that offer "special" or "secret" formulas, promise quick or easy cures, or are promoted by case histories and testimonials.

Greenhouse growers schedule meeting

COLLEGE STATION — as well as some new crops for greenhouse production will be featured at the annual Greenhouse Growers Conference at Texas A&M University Nov. 3-4.

The conference will open with registration at 8 a.m. the first day on the second floor of Rudder Center on the A&M campus.

Opening remarks will be by Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, which is sponsoring the educational event, said Dr. Don Wilkerson, Extension floriculturist.

In addition to emphasizing geranium and poinsettia production, the conference will feature discussions on disease prevention and control in the greenhouse, insect and mite control, use of small droplet pesticide applicators, use of foam propagation media, foliage production schedules, use of a commercial tissue culture lab, how to increase greenhouse operation efficiency, and fitting a computer into a greenhouse business.

Among new greenhouse crops to be discussed are Gerbera daisies, calceolarias, Exacum, Happi Pot and miniature roses as well as the potential for certain imported plants from Europe and South Africa.

One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning.

Beef cattle program to be highlighted

HALETTSVILLE — Getting more dollars for the animal you take to market — that's what this year's South Central Texas Beef Cattle Symposium will be all about.

The symposium will be on Oct. 28 at the Hallettsville Livestock Commission Co., with registration from 8 to 9 a.m., said Billy Paul, DeWitt County extension agent, who is in charge of promoting the event.

Featured on the program will be Bill Thorne, manager of XIT Feedlots of Dalhart, who will discuss "The Market Outlook — The Industry's View," and Dr. Bill Mies, assistant general manager of the Feed Yard Division of Friona Industries, who will talk about "The Ideal Market Beef Animal." The discussion by Mies will feature a live cattle demonstration.

Other program highlights include a panel discussion and live cattle demonstration on "Tips for Preparing Cattle for Market" with Frank Litterest, beef cattle lecturer at Texas A&M University, as moderator. Litterest will also preside over a panel of buyers who will discuss "Why the Difference in Dollars" as they look at a typical run of cattle.

Winding up the program will be Dr. Larry Boleman, Extension livestock specialist, who will give "An Analysis of Cow-Calf Systems for Beef Production." Emceeding the daylong program will be Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, Extension Service director.

Others on the program will be Joe D. Janak, chairman of the Lavaca County Beef and Pasture Committee and Lavaca County Judge Wilbert P. Roznovsky.

Anyone interested in beef cattle production and in getting more dollars for his market animals is urged to attend the annual symposium, said Paul.

Sponsors include the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A&M University System and beef cattle committees in Lavaca, DeWitt and Gonzales counties.

Our forefathers made a mistake, what they should have fought for was representation without taxation.

S/W Bell rate decision pends

CORPUS CHRISTI — A decision on Southwestern Bell Telephone's request for a rate increase "could be as late as mid-January," according to a spokesman in the Bell system's public relations offices in Corpus Christi.

David Martin, a staff specialist in the company's PR department, said Friday that "right now, the Public Utility Commission is on the rate design portion of the hearings."

He added he had no idea when the PUC in Austin would make its decision on Bell's request for an additional $471.5 million in new rates and said, "It's too early to speculate."

Bell filed its statewide rate increase request with the PUC on June 21, basing that request on increasing costs, regulatory changes and a "need for increased return on investment."

Bell officials say the company is earning a 9.27 percent return on its investment, "far below our real need," according to Paul Roth, the company's vice president in charge of revenues and public affairs. Officials also point out this return is below the 11.79 percent return authorized by the PUC.

Specifically, the rate request calls for an additional $4.60 per month in one-party residence rates and for one-party business increases that would amount to an additional $6.55 per month in the Rockport exchange (Aransas County).

The company is asking for a reduction in the directory assistance call allowance from 10 to three per month with a charge of 25 cents per each call over the monthly allowance.

One-time charges for installing or moving telephones would be increased to a minimum of $63.85 for installation of one residence phone.

Private line rates would be increased and all WATS rates would be restructured so that all WATS classes pay the same per-hour rates.

PBX charges would be increased and the company would inaugurate a $6 dishonored check charge.

No long distance rate increase is proposed — these rates "are well above cost now," according to company officials — and no measured service plan is proposed.

Bell officials say the residential local rate request is being made because most local rates are far below the cost of providing the service. They maintain the $4.60 per month increase being sought will still not take the rates up to cost but they are a step in that direction.

Martin said Friday the PUC decided on the 1981 Bell rate request in mid-December and the rates became effective on Dec. 24, 1981. This year, he added, there was a two-week delay in the hearings before the PUC — which could mean no decision will be coming from the PUC before late December or early January.

Since 1976, Southwestern Bell has applied for and received five rate increases. The first, which took effect on Dec. 21, 1976, allowed increased revenues of $57.8 million (Bell had asked for a $298.3 million increase).

On Aug. 14, 1978, after asking for a $214.3 million revenue increase, Bell was allowed to inaugurate a $124.5 million increase.

In 1979, according to figures from Bell officials, the company needed $243 million in revenue but their request was limited to $143.7 million under federal anti-inflation guidelines and the PUC awarded $138.8 million.

In February, 1981, the PUC approved a revenue increase of $114.3 million which was implemented on May 28 (the company had requested a $326.3 million increase).

Small business aid available

For owners of small businesses who have business-related problems, help is only a toll-free telephone call away.

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) has instituted a toll-free "SBA Answer Desk" that will be available to owners of small businesses from 7:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. The number is 800-368-5855.

Experts from SBA's Office of Advocacy will staff the "Answer Desk" telephones and will be prepared to handle any questions the small business owner might have regarding problems connected with their firm and government.

During other hours, calls will be recorded and answered the following business day.

"SBA Answer Desk has been started as a needed service to primarily help small businessmen and women deal with the complexities of government," according to SBA official Miguel Cavazos.

He added that full-time information specialists will take calls on the Answer Desk line and if they cannot answer a question direct the caller to the appropriate government office in Washington or elsewhere in the nation.

"Our information specialists will be supported by a wide variety of resource materials," he said.

SBA Administrator James C. Sanders in Washington said the answer desk "is another example of the Reagan Administration's interest in, and support of, small business community."

"The answer desk," he said, "not only will help small business owners but will enable us at SBA to become more familiar and aware of the problems and interests of the small business community."

Cavazos emphasized, "It is not the intention at the outside of the answer desk to become involved in case work or personal inter-governmental advocacy. We first want to study the kinds of questions and problems we encounter with answer desk calls."

One Of Our Biggest Assets...

is the Aransas County Emergency Corps. The ACEC consists of five volunteer fire departments: Rockport, Fulton, Lamar, Holiday Beach and Copano Cove. Over 150 dedicated volunteers throughout the county meet at night to train and to take care of some very impressive equipment. Together the five fire departments operate 14 fire trucks including a 1,000 GPM attack pumper and one equipped with the "Jaws of Life" for gaining access to trapped victims. Since 1938 this non-profit organization has had one goal: to save life and property in Aransas County.

One of our biggest assets at First National Bank is MPACT 24-hour banking service. With MPACT our volunteer fire fighters can take care of most of their banking needs even after working hard all day and well into the night.

Texas is like a giant magnet pulling people here from everywhere

COLLEGE STATION — Texas had three million more people in 1981 than in 1977, making it the fastest growing state in the nation. "It's like the state is a giant magnet pulling people here from everywhere," said Dr. Robert Skrabanek, demographer and sociologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Real Estate Research Center and

Texas A&M University Department of Rural Sociology. "The growth is simply phenomenal; we've never seen anything like this before," Skrabanek said during the 1982 Town and Country Church Conference at Texas A&M Oct. 4-5.

Why are so many people moving to Texas, and who are they? "Besides being in the Sunbelt, the Lone Star state has a low unemployment rate and low tax structure (compared to other states)," he pointed out.

In 1960, Texas was the sixth most populated state, and by 1970 it had become the fourth largest. In 1975, Texas became the third largest state, preceded only by California and New York.

The population has been evenly distributed the past 10 years, Skrabanek noted, with 210 Texas counties showing an increase and only 44 reporting a decrease.

"Big cities like Dallas, Houston and San Antonio are getting larger, but the real growth is occurring in the suburbs of these cities," he said. "The cities keep growing out and incorporating what were once rural areas."

Rural areas have been consistently gaining in population the past 15 years, Skrabanek said. This comes from factories and industries moving out of big cities and into rural communities, which in turn disperses the population more equally.

Immigration is responsible for much of the population explosion in Texas, he said.

During the 1950's more than 11,000 people moved to Texas each year, and between 1960-69 an additional 21,000 a year were making Texas their home. In the 1970s, the number had reached 180,000 people a year.

"Even with the depressed economy, Texas is still a bright spot when compared to other states," Skrabanek said. "And I don't expect this pattern to change anytime soon."

Who are the people inhabiting Texas?

"Since the mid 1950s, we've changed from a male-dominated to female-dominated state," he said. "add to this the fact that women live an average of eight years longer and it's obvious that women are a dominant force in Texas."

The median age in Texas is 28.2 years, compared to 30 years for the nation. This is almost double the median age of 16 in 1800.

"Ethnically, Texas can be divided into three groups," Skrabanek said. "In 1980, the population was 66 percent Anglo, 21 percent Hispanic and 12 percent Black."

Some 200 ministers and laity of rural and small churches attended the annual conference sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas A&M's Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology.

Inspect used mobile home before buying

A used mobile home can be an inexpensive and satisfying way to attain the status of homeowner. Before buying a used mobile home, however, you should inspect it closely or hire a professional inspector to do the job.

Here are just some of the areas you should look at:

Check the chassis to see if it is straight and level. A home with a bent or twisted frame could spell trouble.

Probe the wooden parts of the home for soft wood, which could indicate the presence of wood rot, wood-boring beetles or even termites.

Inspect the ceilings for water stains. Such stains could indicate a leaking roof.

Check for adequate insulation in the walls and ceiling. Without good insulation, a mobile home can generate large utility bills for heating and cooling.

Exercise caution by careful inspection when buying a used mobile home. You will be repaid with a comfortable shelter which has good resale value.

THE RULE OF 72's

The time period required for an investment to double while earning compound interest can be estimated using the rule of 72's.

Simply divide the interest rate into the number 72. For example, if you invest money at 12 percent compounded interest, it will take six years to double. If it earns nine percent, it will take eight years to double.

The same technique can be used to forecast home prices: They will double in eight years when compounded at a nine percent rate.

Since most houses are mortgaged, the equity or value in excess of debt will more than double when the house price doubles. For example, if you bought a home for $40,000 with a $10,000 down payment and its price doubled to $80,000 in six years, your equity will have increased five-fold during that time, from $10,000 to $50,000.

INTEREST RATES AND INFLATION

If you are planning to buy a home, delay in the hope of reduced interest rates may prove fruitless.

The price of the home may escalate to offset any future interest rate reduction. The availability of loanable funds at affordable interest rates is the life-blood of real estate activity.

Interest rates are set mainly by market forces, though the Federal Reserve Board plays an important role in determining the supply of money. Interest rates generally mirror the rate of inflation, plus two to three percentage points, though there have been long periods of exceptions.

In the early 1970s, mortgage interest rates were below the general inflation rate. At the present time, interest rates are above the reported inflation rate.

But, after tax deductions for interest, the cost of money may be considered quite reasonable.

WHAT A PROFESSIONAL CAN DO FOR YOU

If you have ever wondered whether or not to use a professional real estate broker, here's what a broker should be able to perform for you:

— Provide up-to-date information on what's available in the market.

— Show you neighborhoods with homes in your price range.

— Provide current information on zoning, growth, tax assessments, schools, availability of stores, services and transportation.

— Arrange appointments.

— Help you evaluate exterior and interior features of various homes — the good and the bad — so you'll find a home that fits your needs and tastes.

A broker also puts you in touch with appraisers, engineers, lawyers and insurance agents, if and when the services are needed.

And finally, a broker can provide information on financing and assistance in arranging your mortgage. Brokers bring buyers and sellers together.

BUYING AND SELLING UNDEVELOPED LAND

There are at least six considerations when buying and selling undeveloped land.

They are: selecting a broker, finding the right market, judging the quality of properties, use of professional advisors, negotiating the purchase of sales price and the terms of sale, including financing terms.

When selecting a broker, find someone knowledgeable about land. Reputations are crucial. Honesty and knowledge are invaluable. Your lawyer, CPA or banker can often recommend a good land salesperson.

It is prudent to plot known offerings and sales on a map. Consider what is known about each sale — prices and terms, topography, utilities, flood-prone areas and the like.

Be prepared to negotiate. Whether buying or selling, that's part of the transaction.

And use professional advisors — such as brokers, appraisers and attorneys. They can help you make a wise choice.

Two drivers in collision ticketed

Drivers of two of the vehicles involved were ticketed following a collision among two pickups and a four-wheel drive vehicle in Rockport shortly after 4:30 p.m. last Friday, Oct. 15.

Police said no injuries were reported in the collision that occurred on North Broadway at the intersection with Cedar Street.

According to the report filed this week, Edward Dean Simmons and Pedro Alberto Barrera, both of Rockport, were driving their vehicles south on Broadway when Simmons changed lanes into the path of Barrera's pickup. Simmons' four-wheel drive vehicle collided with Barrera's pickup and Barrera, according to the report, then pulled into a north-bound traffic lane, into the path of another pickup driven by Joe Elem Carrel of Newcastle, Okla.

Simmons was ticketed for changing lanes without signaling and Barrera was ticketed for driving on the wrong side and not passing and failure to show proof of financial liability.

Keep safety in mind when selecting baby furniture

COLLEGE STATION — Safety is a major consideration when one selects baby furniture.

"Manufacturers offer a variety of baby furniture, and it is wise to shop with safety in mind, especially when purchasing older, previously owned furniture," says Dr. Peggy Owens, housing and home furnishing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"A few general guidelines will aid parents in providing the safest purchase for their baby," Owens says. A crib mattress should fit snugly so the child cannot get caught between it and the crib walls. If you can fit more than two fingers between mattress and crib, the mattress is too small, she cautions.

Crib slats should be no more than 2-3/8 inches apart, Owens says. Slat too far apart can allow the baby to slip through and strangle.

Buy a crib with a latch or lock for the "drop side" that cannot be easily tripped. Avoid sharp edges and metal parts on the crib frame.

"Many accidents occur when the baby falls while trying to climb out," Owens says. "Select a crib with a large distance between top of the side rail and the mattress support."

"Bumper pads" should run around the entire crib and tie or snap into place, Owens adds.

Select highchairs with a wide base for stability. Safety straps should be simple and not attached to the tray, which should lock securely. Avoid plaster features — for these sometimes come loose easily — and check for rough or sharp edges and points.

"Older wooden-slatted playpens may have too much space between bars to be safe," Owens says. "The smaller the distance of the bars, the safer the equipment will be."

Mesh siding on playpens should be small enough to prevent buttons being caught or providing a foothold for climbing, Owens says. The hinges or folding models should lock tightly. Make sure the playpen floor has a center support, she adds.

"Safer furniture may cost more, but it is usually more sturdy and durable," Owens says.

Loan foreclosure is a serious matter

If you are facing default on your home mortgage, there are a number of steps you should take.

First, you should let the lender know as soon as possible that you have run into serious difficulty in making your payments.

Second, seek counsel. Various counseling agencies, legal service groups and the local office of the Federal Housing Administration can help you. Using their advice, try to work out an arrangement with your lender to make up your overdue payments.

If the lender agrees to the plan, the lending institution may hold off or forebear from taking legal action to get back the money. If satisfactory arrangements cannot be worked out, foreclosure is the legal process by which the lender takes the house from you and sells it to pay off the money you owe.

Foreclosure means you lose the house, the money you put into it and your credit rating.

RFHS homecoming kicks off Thursday night with bonfire on Rockport beach

By Roxanne Flores
Contributing writer

Rockport-Fulton High School homecoming activities will fire off Thursday, Oct. 21, with a gigantic bonfire on the Rockport beach.

Bonfire materials have been collected by wood shop students and other interested students and citizens. Care will be taken to see that all material placed on the fire is safe.

Enthusiasm plays an important role all weekend. On Friday, girls promenade the halls adorned with silk and white mums. "Everyone seems to have a good time," states Cheryl Hunter, a student.

A pep rally is set for 3:05 p.m. Friday, Oct. 22. "The cheerleaders have a skit prepared, and we are really looking forward to it," says cheerleader Janice Moses. "We have really worked hard to get everything prepared for homecoming. We want this pep rally to be the most spirited and the best one so far this year!"

Friday evening, the coronation of the homecoming queen will be held prior to the start of the football game against Tuloso-Midway. Student council representatives will crown the queen and recognize her escort in the pre-game ceremonies.

During the course of the football game, ex-students who have graduated from Rockport High School, Aransas County High School or Rockport-Fulton High School in years ending with the digit two, such as '52, '62, '72 or '82, will be recognized.

A homecoming dance will be held at the cafeteria, sponsored by the student council. Admission is $2 per person. Disc Jockey Jerry Sublett of KRYS will furnish the music.

FOR THE THIRD YEAR STRAIGHT, the Rockport-Fulton Junior High School Choir has placed more students in the all-region junior high school choir than any other school in the region. Pictured here are the 23 students and one alternate who made the choir. Bottom row: (left to right) Alice Barneby, Sophia Dominguez, Sheri Lowe, Kristie Anderson. Hewett brings experience to band Phillip Hewett has brought a valuable asset with him to Rockport-Fulton High School: experience. In addition to teaching 12 years in Texas, he was the band director at Kansas State University for 14 years.

Hewett recently returned from a trip to Dallas to judge the Parade of Champions contest, sponsored by the Cotton Bowl. The contest is one of the largest, most prestigious band competitions in the state, and being selected as a judge is quite an honor, says Hewett.

Forty-eight bands competed this year from areas including Arkansas, Oklahoma, and parts of Central, East and West Texas. In order to even compete in the contest, bands must submit a film or videotape of their performance. In addition, a superior or first division rating for at least three years in necessary and sometimes recommendations are called for. The top three bands in each class then compete for final honors. The winner gets to perform at the Texas State Fair.

Hewett is a firm believer in the potential of the Rockport-Fulton High School band. "There's a lot of talent here," he says.

Students in the Aransas County Independent School District start taking music lessons during the sixth grade. Hewett feels the student's body and attention span are more suited to play a musical instrument at that age than at an earlier age. "I've taught in both systems," he says, "and the kids who started in sixth grade are better players than those who started at the third grade level.

Although Hewett feels the RFHS band is small for a 4-A school, he hopes to get a larger turnout next year. The high school currently has approximately 128 total band members, including 90 instrument players and the rest flags and drill team. Hewett believes the school should have about 160 instrument players, with 200 total members in the band.

Later this year RFHS will attend the University Interscholastic League's Marching Festival. Bands from each region in the state compete in such areas as marching, sight reading, solo and ensemble, and concert. Bands strive for a rating of one on a one to five scale, with one being high, five being low, and three being average. Special prizes and a sweepstakes award await those bands who get a one rating in three major areas.

"Realistically, I don't know if we can get a one this year or not," says Hewett. Rockport-Fulton will be competing against some of the best 4-A bands in the region at the festival, including Calallen, Flour Bluff, Tuloso-Midway and Beeville.

Before the competition, the RFHS band will be putting in some long hours of hard work. The Rockport-Fulton High School band and their director Phil Hewett hope that hard work will pay off.

FHA/HERO plans service projects

By Toni Simpson
Contributing writer

Members of the Future Homemakers of America/Home Economics Related Occupations volunteered several hours of their time helping the ABC Learning Center operate their booth at this year's SeaFair. Members sold cotton candy, helped the children paint Christmas ornaments, build boats and planes, and supervised while the children dug for buried treasure.

This was only one of the many service projects which the club has planned for this year. Other projects include raising money for the March of Dimes and the American Cancer Society.

Steer clinic scheduled

COLLEGE STATION — A special Steer Production and Evaluation Symposium is planned for May 20-21, 1983, at Texas A&M University.

The symposium will be conducted for 4-H and FFA youth with steer projects for beef cattle breeders and feeders, and for those involved with beef cattle breed associations or steer shows.

Hosting the symposium are the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas A&M's Department of Animal Science. The event will be in the new Animal Science Pavilion on the university's west campus.

Planning the event is a special committee composed of Dr. Doug Wythe, associate professor of animal science (chairman); Dr. Larry Boleman, extension beef cattle specialist; Dr. Dennis Stiffler, extension meats specialist; Frank Litterst, animal science lecturer; and John Mauer, manager of Texas A&M's beef cattle center.

The symposium will include several unique features, said Wythe. Among these will be a display of most of the major U.S. beef cattle breeds and their crosses that will have completed a nine-month feeding program on the same ration at the same location. The only difference is that the steers will be divided into two groups — one fed and managed as "show" steers and the other fed and managed as "feed-lot" steers.

Also, all steers will be weighed, measured and photographed at intervals during the feeding period, said Wythe.

Symposium participants will be able to view the live steers, which will then be slaughtered to obtain detailed carcass data for evaluation and discussion.

In addition, purebred and crossbred heifer and purebred bull mates and sires and dams of some of the steers in the feeding program will be displayed and discussed, Wythe said.

Further information about the Steer Production and Evaluation Symposium is available from Dr. Doug Wythe, Department of Animal Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Tex. 77843 (713/845-7616).

Sentence assessed against Grantham

AUSTIN — Dallas Grantham of Fulton, charged with conspiracy to possess and distribute marijuana following a drug bust last May, has been sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment by a federal court judge in Austin.

Sentence was handed down Sept. 27 by a federal district court judge after Grantham was found guilty of charges arising out of a May 6 arrest in an Austin motel.

Drug Enforcement Administration Agent - in-charge Ron Steadman said at the time of the May 6 incident that Grantham had arranged to buy 1,000 pounds of marijuana for $202,000 in cash. The buy, Steadman said, was apparently set up at the request of five other men, all of whom were arrested in what turned out to be a "sting" by DEA agents assisted by Austin police.

Some 15 to 20 DEA agents and police officers were involved.

At the time of his arrest in Austin, Grantham was on a three-year probation after he pleaded guilty in federal court in Corpus Christi last year to a charge of conspiracy to import a quantity of marijuana into the U.S.

He and 13 other men were arrested in Calhoun County in March, 1981, in a drug bust conducted by officials that included members of Aransas County Sheriff's Department. On Aug. 18, 1981, he pleaded guilty to that charge in federal court and was sentenced to five years in prison and a $15,000 fine. The execution of that sentence was suspended and Grantham was placed on probation for three years.

to be considered for further action, must be signed by 15 percent of the number of people who voted in the last city election or 150 qualified voters, whichever number is greater.

— A recall petition must be signed by 30 percent of the number who voted in the last city election or 300 qualified voters, whichever number is greater.

Basing of the percentages on the number of voters in the last city election represented a departure from the charter commission proposal adopted in the 1979 city charter — which based the percentages on the total number of qualified voters in the city.

J.C. Harlan, chairman of the subcommittee responsible for making the recommendations on Article VI, said he recommended the number of voters in the last election as the percentage basis as the result of talking "to a number of concerned citizens."

Use of the number of voters in the last election is consistent with charters of other cities, charter commission members observed, as well as with state election laws, many of which are based on past election turnouts.

In a discussion of whether to require a petitioners committee to initiate initiative, referendum or recall, charter commission member Richard McMakin said, "This (a petitioners' committee) is pretty standard" in other city charters.

In discussing what percentage of voters' signatures to require on initiative and referendum petitions, commission member Mary Lou Tiner suggested requiring signatures by a number equal to 20 percent of the last city election turnout.

The majority of the commission however who have graduated in years ending with the digit two, such as '52, '62, '72 and '82, will be asked to stand and be recognized.

Following the football game, a homecoming dance sponsored by the student council will be held in the high school cafeteria. Admission is $2 per person. Disc Jockey Jerry Sublett from KRY5 in Corpus Christi will be on hand from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. to spin records.

Student council members are taking precautions to make sure that dangerous materials do not find their way into the bonfire. No paper, rubber tires, oil-soaked materials or aerosol cans will be allowed near the blaze.

seemed in favor of the 15 percent figure and Bill Walston suggested including the phrase requiring at least 150 signatures.

"I think if you can get 150 people in this city to agree to anything, you ought to listen to them," Walston said. He subsequently made the motion to adopt the 15 percent-150 figure for initiative and referendum petition requirements. The motion was seconded by Curtis Kovacs.

Kovacs subsequently recommended the 30-percent or 300 signatures whichever-is-greater provision on recall petitions following discussion among commissioners in which they agreed recall procedures must be more difficult than those for initiative and referendum.

Kovacs originally suggested a 40-percent requirement but subsequently changed that number to 30. "I think it's an attainable figure but only under an extreme case and I think that's what we want," he said.

McMakin moved to adopt Kovacs' suggestion and was seconded by Gayle Atchley.

Under the referendum provisions adopted Monday evening, the power of referendum specifically would not apply to the city budget, capital improvement programs, any emergency ordinance or any ordinance relating to appropriation of money or tax levy.

The power of recall may be exercised over any elected city official.

The charter commission will consider remaining provisions dealing with initiative, referendum and recall and anticipates work on proposed articles VII and VIII — dealing with municipal finance and tax administration — at its next meeting Monday, Oct. 25.

Accent on health

Hot dogs are 'expensive protein'

From the Texas Department of Health Robert Bernstein, M.D. Commissioner

Those hot dogs you munch at baseball games may satisfy your hunger, but too many of them and other fatty foods can cause you to strike out nutritionally.

"Government regulations permit no more than 30 percent of a hot dog's weight to be fat," says Nancy Gay Robinett-Weiss, a registered dietitian who is Director of Nutrition Services with the Texas Department of Health. "But it's important to know that 80 percent of the calories in a hot dog come from that fat."

She said hot dogs are not only fatty food, but are also an expensive source of protein. "A recent Consumer Reports evaluation showed that a pound of protein from hot dogs costs $14.87."

Too much fat in a diet is unhealthy. Cholesterol, a fat-like substance in the blood, is linked to atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries. "Since heart disease is the number one cause of death in Texas, we recommend that people reduce their dietary fat intake to 30 percent," said Robinett-Weiss.

Fat is the most concentrated source of calories, having nine calories per gram. Carbohydrates and proteins have only four. Because excess calories may contribute to excess weight — another risk factor for heart disease — limiting the intake of fats can be beneficial.

Robinett-Weiss advised preparing meat without the use of additional fat by broiling, baking or roasting. Select lean cuts of meat.

Poultry and seafood are lower in fat than beef, pork and lamb. All have about the same amount of protein, but those lower in fat are naturally lower in calories.

Saturated fats of animal origin increase the level of blood cholesterol. Saturated fat comes from butter, bacon, cream and meat fat.

"Many people don't realize it, but saturated fat is also derived from the vegetable fat coconut oil," Robinett-Weiss said.

"If fat is needed in cooking," Robinett-Weiss said, "I advise cooking with polyunsaturated fats of vegetable origin, such as safflower, sunflower or corn oil."

"Polyunsaturated fats lower the level of the body's cholesterol by aiding in its removal," says Dr. Scott Grundy, head of the Center for Human Nutrition at the UT Health Science Center in Dallas. The mechanism of this process is unknown.

Dr. Grundy recommends widespread dietary changes to a low-cholesterol, low-saturated-fat diet of skim milk, chicken, fish, egg whites, fruits, vegetables, whole grains, legumes and moderate increases in polyunsaturated oils.

For more information, contact Nancy Robinett-Weiss, Director of Nutrition Services, Texas Department of Health, 1100 West 49th Street Austin, Texas 78756. Phone: 512/458-7321.

Title I Reading parents organize

Parents of students in the 1982-83 Title I Reading Improvement Program organized into parent advisory councils for Rockport and Live Oak elementary schools and the county school district in their first meeting last Wednesday, Oct. 13.

Betty Groblebe, Carol Trimyer, Maria Rendon, James F. Gillis and

Elizabeth Brumley, representing the Rockport and Live Oak PACs. A parent will be named later to represent Fulton Elementary School.

Parents of students in the Rockport and Live Oak reading improvement programs held separate elections for PACs at each school.

William N. Spears, principal of Rockport Elementary, welcomed the 24 parents at last week's meeting and introduced William J. Ratliff, director of elementary education, and the Title I staff members before turning the meeting over to Miller.

Killed was Alice Owens who died shortly after arrival of paramedics to the scene, according to Aransas County's Chief Paramedic Bill Aston. Her husband, Woody Owens, also 36, was reported taken to Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi suffering leg and arm injuries.

Aston reported Owens was admitted to Spohn's intensive care unit Saturday. As of Monday, the Refugio man was reported released from ICU but still in "guarded" condition.

Mrs. Owens' body was picked up by Marshall

Funeral Home of Rockport and subsequently released to the Refugio Funeral Home where arrangements were pending Monday.

Earlier, on Saturday afternoon, an accident in which an 18-wheeler rolled over tied up the northbound lane of FM 881 just past the intersection with 1069. A deputy with the Aransas County sheriff's office reported Monday that the northbound lane was blocked off from the 881/1069 intersection to just south of Huffmeyer's Curve "for a couple of hours."

No injuries were reported in that mishap or in a two-car collision that occurred Friday afternoon on Hwy. 35 North just south of the Causeway.

The exhibit brings together selected recent works of two distinguished Texas artist/teachers: Anderson, assistant professor of art, Texas A&I University, Kingsville, and Ash, professor of art, Midwestern State University, Wichita Falls.

Anderson received his bachelor's degree in fine arts from University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb., in 1969 and his master's of fine arts from Wichita State University, Wichita, Kan., in 1976. He has served as an assistant professor of art at A&I since 1980.

Of Anderson's almost 30 exhibits, five have been solo exhibits. His work has been shown throughout the United States. Besides exhibitions, Anderson has conducted workshops at Midwestern State University, University of Dallas, Irving, and Idaho State University, Pocatello, Id.

Anderson's works in the Weil Gallery exhibit will include several monotypes, lithographs, intaglio reliefs and silkscreens.

Broadway is my beat

With Joey Sasso

A persistent whisper that Joan Kennedy is seriously considering a hush-hush TV offer to host a Hollywood talk show has shaken the entire Kennedy clan — from estranged husband Ted to crusty matriarch Rose. And Ted — who coughed up a whopping $5 million separation settlement — is so panicked at the notion of Joan spilling family secrets on prime time, he's said to be ready to double the money and make her the $10 Million Woman if she stays off the air.

"It's really got him worried. The network offer was made discreetly to Joan, but with family connections like theirs, it was quickly brought to the Kennedys' notice. Apparently he was horrified and Rose was speechless when they got the news. "Next to her going on tour with the Rolling Stones like Margaret Trudeau, this is the last any of them want, Ted least of all," a source close to the family said.

This fear, it was revealed, goes far beyond just wanting to protect the dignity of the Kennedy name. "None of them — especially Ted or Rose — want Joan to turn into a TV personality and give America an intimate peek at the three-ring Kennedy circus," the source says.

"They're convinced she'll inadvertently let slip family secrets and embarrass them all and jeopardize Ted's political ambitions. "And among themselves, they're starting to speculate whether the pressure of regular TV work might start her back drinking again.

Even though Joan is long over that problem, they're unnerved enough to think along those lines. "The ultimate Kennedy nightmare is Joan getting a little loose on TV and spilling her guts about her marriage breakup, Chappaquiddick, Jackie's personal life or Ted's other women. It's got them climbing the walls, and Ted will do just about anything to stop that happening — including buying her off. "The tragedy is that Joan would make a very good talk show host. She feels ready for a challenge like that, but she's torn between her own ambition and loyalty to the Kennedys."

Richard Burton's estranged wife Susan Hunt has hit him with some staggering financial demands. And the ailing superstar is furious. Susan is asking for $2.5 million, their $750,000 home in Beverly Hills and their posh summer hideaway in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. "Not bad for five years," Burton snorted sarcastically.

Meanwhile, Burton talked several times by phone to former wife Liz Taylor while she was shedding pounds at a health spa in Florida. They agreed to help her stepson Mike Todd Jr. arrange financing for the movie "Herself Surprised" that they both want to film in Ireland in the fall.

Ahead And Behind The Headlines

It's going to be a big surprise — particularly to certain movie producers — if Robert De Niro is ordered to testify at the Los Angeles County grand jury investigation into the drug overdose death of John Belushi which is now underway.

De Niro, who was reportedly with Belushi the evening he died, is in Montreal filming "Once Upon a Time in America," and an executive with the production reports, "We would have known if he had been served with a subpoena and we certainly would know if he was planning to take time off from work. He's not. We're working six days a week, and he'll be here every day."

Robin Williams, who is vacationing at his Northern California ranch, is expected to testify at the closed-door hearings. However, spokesmen for the grand jury say no statements will be issued as to the participants of the details of the proceedings, which could last weeks.

Channel Views

What's Ian McKellen, renowned British star of Shakespeare and the classics, doing in a TV thriller, "Dying Day," that's about as far from Hamlet and Mcbeth as an actor can get?

Simple. Author John Bowen in a McKellen favorite who had McKellen in mind for the starring role when he first sat down at his typewriter, and the actor was happy to play the role because, as a reviewer said, "Dying Day" is a psychological mystery that Alfred Hitchcock might have been proud to put his name to.

"Dying Day" airs on the Mobil-funded Mystery' on PBS Tuesday evenings, Oct. 19 and 26, at 9 (ET).

McKellen portrays Anthony Skipling, a nondescript little man who commutes daily to a boring office job in London and who hears on an audio-tape cassette, of all things — two mysterious voices plotting to kill him on a specific date. He's been called the master of the macabre, the high priest of horror, the shah of shudder. Somewhat less elegantly, Vincent Price, who's been scaring the daylights out of audiences for better than 40 years, refers to himself as the goosepimple grandee.

In The Wings

Filming "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" left a sour taste in Dolly Parton's mouth, who described the making of the picture as "a kind of blood-bath all the way through. The people who wrote it got ushered out, and so many people changed — weren't right for it and had to be fired — it just hurt me," the top-rate blonde singer said.

Parton says she has fought back all the attempts to make her conform to the Hollywood mold, winning only because her stardom in the music world gave her someplace else to go, and independence she otherwise might not have had.

Curtain Calls

The Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn, N.J. — dormant since 1980 when a tragic fire almost destroyed the landmark, will re-open on Saturday, Oct. 30, with a gala celebration, headed by Helen Hayes and Governor Thomas H. Kean.

More than 200 political dignitaries and stars of stage, screen and TV will attend, many of whom have graced the stage of the Paper Mill like Miss Hayes, Jerome Hines, Joan Bennett, Vincent Gardenia, Ginger Rogers, Jack Gilford, Dennis Day, Hermione Gingold, Celeste Holm, Maureen O'Sullivan, Nancy Walker, David McIlum, James MacArthur and Betsy Palmer who will act as mistress of ceremonies.

Boat recall . . .

Polywog 8

O'Brien International, a subsidiary of the Coleman Company, has announced a recall of its "Polywog 8" boat due to a potential safety hazard.

In a limited number of boats, pinhole-sized holes are present that can allow flotation chambers of the boat to flood if they are stored in the water for an extended period. If the chambers flood, the boat can sink. O'Brien is recalling all potentially affected boats.

The involved boats were manufactured in April, 1982, and can be identified by the last four digits in the serial number. This number is an alpha-numeric code located on the outside of the boat, at the stern of the righthand or starboard side just under the gunnel or uppermost side of the boat.

The numbers 0482 identify those boats that are to be recalled. Owners of boats with serial numbers ending with these digits are asked to return the Polywogs to the dealer for replacement. The boats will be replaced at no charge to the consumer.

The suspect boats were principally distributed in the states of Washington, Oregon, California (north of Bakersfield) and Texas.

For more information about the recall, contact the Polywog product manager at O'Brien International, 14615 N.E. 91st Street, Redmond, Wash. 98052 or call 206/881-5900.

"Inverted degree" approved

by Texas A&I Board

LAREDO — A new Bachelor of Applied Arts and Sciences degree at Texas A&I University approved here Thursday by the Board of Directors of the University System of South Texas will "open up higher education to a greater extent than ever before."

Texas A&I Academic Vice President Richard C. Meyer said the program, in the planning stage for the past year, provides access to undergraduate degrees "for a much larger segment of our society and underscores today's trend toward lifelong learning."

The new degree will not require additional faculty or courses, said Dr. Meyer.

Called an "inverted degree," the concept turns around the traditional academic process whereby entering college students first satisfy general educational requirements, leaving their last two years for specialized study.

Under the new approach, students coming to Texas A&I from two-year colleges, and in some cases, those with work experience alone, will have their background closely evaluated according to carefully constructed criteria.

"The idea," explained Meyer, "is to give students with vocational-technical training at junior colleges and technical institutes, and/or work experience in certain occupation fields an opportunity to obtain a bachelor's degree without the significant loss of credits that normally occurs."

The program is intended to "better serve the kinds of backgrounds represented by the individuals this program addresses," said Meyer. Included are those who have not previously sought a bachelor's degree, but who have elected some other option outside the typical higher educational framework, such as voc-tech training programs, certification program, etc.

This type of degree has been authorized by the State Coordinating Board for the past several years, and is offered by other regional universities in Texas. "We have had people ask us why we don't provide it, too," Meyer added.

A Texas A&I faculty committee versed in the technical-vocational area will apply guidelines and criteria under which the University will validate credit and administer the program.

"Both our accepting system and our own position demands and dictates a strict adherence to a highly structured set of criteria," Meyer pointed out.

The next step in the approval process is forwarding the proposal to the Coordinating Board for staff review. The earliest that action might be expected would be next April.

African Violets the easy way

By Ted Brice

Hybridists have created thousands of cultivars from the original few African violet species. They are free flowering and much easier to grow than their ancestors. The foliage can vary from somewhat velvety smooth or plain smooth, scalloped or wavy, lance or heart-shaped, green or variegated. The flowers range from single, to double or semi-double in shades of pink, blue, lavender, purple or white.

The soil must be sterilized or a commercially mixed package of potting soil specifically for African Violets must be used. They need bright light in the spring and summer and some sun in the fall and the winter. They must be set so that the crown is slightly above the soil line.

Remember African Violets always need good air circulation. The soil needs to be watered moderately in order to keep it slightly moist but never wet. You should always use tepid water to water either the soil or the leaves.

Bottom watering is often advised to insure even moisture at the roots but you can water from the top as well.

You can alternate watering from the bottom and the top, this would insure even moisture at the roots. Never leave the leaves wet for any length of time.

Remember to arrange for proper drainage when potting and don't let your plants stand in water.

African Violets need humidity of 40 to 60 percent which is very essential and can be promoted by setting the plants on pebble filled trays.

Dry air will cause the leaves to curl and the buds to drop. There are two ways to propagate and that is by seed and leaf cuttings. Remember humidity, moist soil (not wet), sterilized soil and the amount of light are major factors in growing African Violets.

Some of the blue cultivars are: Alakazam, Big Boy Blue, Lady Wilson and Purple Knight; some of the white cultivars are: White Girl, White Doll and White Perfection; some of the pink cultivars are: Bloom Burst, Flash, Happy Time and Pink Rock; some of the red cultivars are: Red Honey, Honeyette and Chochise.

This month and next month will be the time of the year for the African Violet Shows and you can learn more about growing African Violets by visiting one of these shows. So long for now and good gardening until next week from your Garden Editor Ted Brice.
