500 Animals Are Expected In Junior Stock Show Today

Biggest entry list in history in the annual Lynn County Junior Livestock Show is expected this week end, the judging in which gets started this Friday morning at 10:00 a. m. in the County Agricultural Exhibition building in South Tahoka.

County Agent Bill Griffin said Thursday he expected 500 entries in the show.

Swine and lamb entries were completed Thursday night, and 9:00 a. m. today is the deadline for steer entries.

Judging of hogs starts at 10:00 a. m. today, and lasts throughout the afternoon. Lamb judging begins at 10:00 a. m. Saturday, followed by the feature event, the judging of fat calves at 2:00 p. m.

Ollie Limer, county agent of Hale county, will judge the calves; Paul Gross, assistant county agent at Seminole, will judge the hogs; and Fred Wilkerson of Crane will judge the fat lambs.

Prizes totaling nearly $800.00 are furnished by Tahoka Chamber of Commerce and Tahoka Rotary Club. In addition, each entry not sifted out will draw a bonus from the "merchants' fund," which is expected to total between $1,500 and $2,000. E. L. Short heads the Chamber of Commerce picture, and Dale Thuren heads the committee raising the bonus fund from merchants of the county and interested individual citizens.

County Agent Bill Griffin is the general superintendent of the show, and helpers include the Vocational Agriculture teachers of the county.

Jerry Church is superintendent of the baby beef division. Hereford and Angus calves will be shown in separate classes this year.

Superintendents of the fat barrow division are Ward Eakin, Walter Ray Steen, Walton Terry, and L. V. J. Melfon; and Charlie Lacy and Wendell Edwards head the fat lamb division.

The Lynn county junior show has grown to where it is now recognized as being one of the largest and best county shows in the entire state.

All citizens are urged to attend both Friday and Saturday and lend encouragement to the boys and girls on their livestock projects.

Direct Distance Dialing Coming

Direct Distance Dialing (DDD) destined to become a by-word of area telephone users is coming to Tahoka and Wilson soon.

This modern new convenience gives local phone subscribers direct dialing access to over 40,000 cities across the United States and Canada. By dialing a series of digits, without the assistance of a long distance operator, local citizens can ring any of some 70 million phones across the continent.

DDD will come to Tahoka and Wilson and three other South Plains cities on April 7, the day General Telephone Company of the Southwest activates its new master office in Brownfield.

Tahoka and Wilson will be among the first small towns in the Southwest having this newest development in telephone communications.

Watch the Lynn County News for details on Direct Distance Dialing in the weeks to come.

Unknown Person Returns Billfold To Jack Waldrip

D. S. (Jack) Waldrip owes a vote of thanks to someone—but he doesn't know who.

Tuesday he removed his wallet from his pocket in the post office to take out the little slip of paper bearing his new box combination and says he must have laid his wallet on a table.

Although he had not missed the lost article, his wallet was on a table in his home when he returned.

Mr. Waldrip says there's one honest person in Tahoka, and he wishes this unknown person to make himself known so that he can thank him personally.

Snow Is Some Help In County

Snow Thursday of last week totaling about four inches put 31 inch of moisture into the ground, and gave encouragement to farmers hoping to hold the present underground season.

Added to the rain and snow of February 10 to 12 amounting to .42 inch and the .02 inch of precipitation in January, this brought the total for the year to .75 inch, or little more than half the normal amount for the two month period.

This, with March and sandstorms coming up, Lynn county is experiencing another very dry winter and faces the spring planting season in need of moisture again.

Most farmers report land has plowed very well, however, and there is a fair underground season due to rains last fall.

More land is being deep broken this year than possibly any other time in the history of the South Plains country, and most farm land is in perfect shape to absorb spring rainfall.

Dale Thuren Files For School Trustee

Dale Thuren has filed for school trustee in the school board election to be held on April 7. Deadline for filing for two positions is on March 6, rather than on March 7 as stated last week.

Anyone wishing to file for board trustee may do so at the school tax office in the Deen Nowlin building.

C. T. Tankersley is reported to be in serious condition at Tahoka Hospital. He was admitted Monday and Mrs. Tankersley said he is very ill.

Tahoka Votes Saturday On New School Bond Proposal

Voters of Tahoka school district will decide Saturday at the polls in City Hall on whether or not bonds in the sum of $550,000 will be issued to erect a new high school building and make many other improvements to the local school plant.

Property tax-paying residents of the 364 square mile district, who are otherwise qualified as voters, may cast ballots in the election.

An increase of 260 students the last six years, crowding the present plant beyond capacity, and demands from the Texas Education Agency for the local schools to meet state requirements or lose its accreditation prompted the Tahoka school board several weeks ago to start study of means to meet the crisis. They have judged a building program the only alternative.

Even if the bond issue fails, the school district will have to find some means of meeting demands of the State for raising housing standards, Clint Walker, board president told The News. Tahoka has had its second warning from the state. Otherwise, the school is threatened with loss of affiliation and State financial support, the latter amounting to 61 percent of the school operation cost.

Present enrollment is 1,140 this week in a plant designed for about 900 students.

Briefly, the report of the State

Accreditation Team, which inspected the school on last December 5, demands the following: More classroom space, more science laboratory facilities, separate library and study halls in high school, improved lighting in High School and North Elementary, larger cafeteria, more library and science facilities in North Elementary, smaller classes in number of students in South Elementary, and numerous improvements to Dunbar School.

The report ends with the statement: "It is recommended that the Tahoka Independent School District again be warned of violations of accreditation standards and of the danger to its accreditation that may result from continued failure to make corrections."

Mr. Walker says there is no way to meet these standards except through more space. Basically, the school plant is very sound, with minor improvements and repairs, but space is the big problem.

Briefly, here are the improvements outlined by the School Board following several weeks of study and consultation with architects and other school men.

1. A new high school building, costing about $250,000 to be wrapped around the old high school structure and blending in with the same, separated by landscaped patios, including classrooms, band hall, library, study hall, laboratories for general science, chemistry and physics, language lab., conference room, book room, offices, and rest rooms. Equipment for new and old buildings to meet standards, $30,000.

2. Renovating old high school building, $101,000, for use as a junior high school. Present location would make auditorium, homemaking cottage, vocational agriculture department building, gymnasium, football field, and cafeteria usable to both junior

School Children Out With Flu

During the month of February illness among children attending school classes reached a high peak, according to Mrs. Lillian McCord, school nurse, and although there is some decline many children are still reporting to her office each day.

Parents are urged to keep children home who wake in the mornings with nausea. Most of these have continued to be ill while in school and must be taken home in those instances.

Mrs. McCord stated she has taken as many as 20 children home in one day during February with nausea, cold or flu with high temperature. Other than being detrimental to the ill child, attending school can spread the diseases to others.

R. R. Luttrell is a medical patient in Tahoka Hospital, where he was admitted Saturday.

However, last minute filing will probably be the case in this year's City election.

Population Explosion To Affect Farms Of Future

At the present rate of population growth there will not be standing room on the earth in just 63 years, was the startling statement made by Dr. Gerald W. Thomas, dean of Agriculture at Texas Tech, in a talk before Tahoka Rotary Club Thursday noon on the subject, "The Agricultural Outlook for Texas and the Nation."

Dr. Thomas strongly indicated we are worrying too much about surplus in view of the exploding population and agriculture is too much involved in politics. The time is not far away when the world will need all the food it can produce.

In view of population trends, he said, two different viewpoints seem to be developing — one is rather pessimistic and seems to be favored by many biological scientists, the other is optimistic and rosy, supported by many economists and some businessmen.

Present population of the earth is 3.07 billion people. Last year 50 million people joined our world society, equivalent to adding an entire nation the size of France. In the U. S., our increase is 330 people every hour, a birth every 7.5 seconds and a death every 19 seconds.

More than one-half of the people that have been born since the beginning of history are alive today. Half of the world's population today live in the four most populated countries, Red China, India, Soviet Union and the U. S., in this order. Most rapid increases in population are taking place in two types of countries, the wealthiest and the most impoverished. Three-quarters of the yearly population increase, 50 million, takes place in one continent, Asia.

Long before "Doomsday" in 2026 A. D., 63 years from now, when there will be standing room only on this earth for the people some problems of food-population balances will come into play to change the best of predictions. But, these facts very forcefully call for a careful look at the problem, particularly those associated with agriculture.

The optimist sees the population explosion as an increase in consumers of farm products. The pessimist worries about the rapid depletion of natural resources.

The optimist thinks food technology and scientific development will maintain our economic and individual health, and points to our problem of surpluses and increased per acre yield. The overly optimistic stress acreage diversion from crops, regardless of where these acres go or how good the soil or accessible the land and water.

The pessimist assumes industrial and scientific development in the future will be at a slower pace, more than half the world today suffers from insufficient food, and the rapid population growth will complicate this situation.

Since we cannot pass a retroactive birth-control law, you and I have no choice but to face this issue, and to face the world-wide implications.

Since World War II, we have increased per-acre production fantastically, and our current problem, from the political viewpoint, is surplus food, feed, and fiber. Unless we make some significant breakthroughs in basic research, particularly in the area of water use by plants, the yield per acre curves may level off in the decades ahead.

Agriculture is the one area in which we know that we lead the Russians. Our ability to produce is probably our greatest asset in the cold war, and we know that if the war becomes hot, our surpluses will disappear almost overnight.

Sec'y. Freeman stated "adequate reserves" were well over 45 million tons of feed grains, 600 million bushels of wheat, and 6 million bales of cotton. These are necessary to American security and are not the burden of farmers alone, but all the people.

Khrushchev seems to understand this concept, but the American people apparently do not. It could be that we are not telling the story properly — placing emphasis on wrong things. Maybe Russia does a better propaganda job.

Our thinking is so overshadowed by over-production that the term "utilization" has replaced "conservation". We now have fewer farmers, on larger farms, cultivating less acreage, but producing more crops and livestock than ever before. But a word of caution on resource use is still needed, and we should exercise more care in our mad rush to divert acres from production.

At the present, about 2 million acres are being diverted per year to other uses — highways, airports, parks, housing developments. Granted we don't need this land now, but it still bothers me to see good farm land lost when poor land could many times serve the same purpose.

Continued population growth has an impact on land use of the surface of the earth. More people who live longer, eat better, move around more and have more leisure time, more cities, more demand for recreation space — all these things influence land-use and land prices.

Texas farm and ranch land prices have almost doubled in a decade. Non-farm buyers continue to be the dominant bidders for agricultural land, and land price is no longer related to its productive capacity.

Economists look for little change in the short-run farm situation in Texas, and net income will continue around the levels of 1961 and 1962. Farm population will continue to decline.

Federal farm programs and policies continue to play the major in the short-term agricultural outlook. Many economists are concerned over the effect of the European Common Market on American agriculture.

Our biggest problem will continue to center around people.

Dr. Thomas was introduced by Fred McGinty, who introduced the speaker, reared in a rural community of Idaho with college education in University of Idaho and Texas A&M, a navy aviator in World War II, holder of various medals and citations for his actions, and Dean of the School of

Gordon - Southland

Wynne Collier Observes 37th Year In Business

Wynne Collier, druggist, today is celebrating his 37th anniversary in business in Tahoka, and has spent exactly one-half his life in Tahoka and Lynn county.

"These have been very enjoyable years," he says, "during which we have made a lot of fine friends with whom we have enjoyed associating, and only hope we can enjoy this association for 27 more years."

Wynne was "born and reared in the drug business," his father and uncles having been pioneer Plains druggists. He saw the light of day at Ennis, Ellis county.

Thomas brothers, his uncles, had established Thomas Bros. Drug Store at Tahoka, and in a year or two saw an opportunity for a store at the new town of Post. It was then that their brother-in-law, R. H. (Doc) Collier, came to the Plains to join them as a partner and to open the store at Post in January of 1909.

Mr. Collier, born June 30, 1890, at Hickory Flat, Miss., had come to Ennis and married Miss Ida Thomas. The couple had three children, Wynne, now in business here; Bob, now operating Collier Drug in Post; and Miss Lucille, a teacher in Lubbock schools. The elder Mr. Collier retired a few years ago, and friends say he now is "the best fisherman and checker player in Garza county."

"Doc" Collier, who back in the early days was the first tax assessor of Garza county, was significantly honored in 1909 when presented a 50-year membership pin by Post Masonic Lodge No. 1058, in which he is the first Junior Deacon.

Wynne grew up in the Post store, graduated from Post High School, Baylor University, and received his degree in pharmacy and license in 1927. After working as a pharmacist at Post and several other towns, he bought out his uncles, Thomas Bros., when they decided to retire, and moved to Tahoka on March 1, 1936.

He had been married a few months previously to Miss Coyle Latson, who grew up in Clarendon, where she attended high school and Clarendon College and later attended Baylor University. The couple have three children, Carolyn, Jan and Jack.

After a few years, the store was enlarged to double its size, Wynne required the two story Thomas Building, and again remodeled the store a few years ago.

A Rotarian at Post, Wynne was instrumental in organizing Tahoka Rotary Club soon after moving here, and has the distinction of having never missed a club meeting in 27 years without having made up his missed meeting at some other club the same week.

He has long been active in his church, the Methodist, and the Sunday School, Chamber of Commerce, of which he has served as director and president, served as vice president of the school board, on the City Council, and has been associated with almost every civic movement in the town and county. He is a Mason and past worshipful master of Masonic Lodge No. 1041.

Professionally, he has been president of West Texas Pharmaceutical Association, Texas Rexall Club, and the Texas Pharmaceutical Association, and members of the latter give him credit for the most active leadership of any president of the organization.

Not only is this a pioneer store of the area, but it is also one of the oldest Rexall stores in all Texas.

Sale Of Savings Bonds Start Slowly

The Savings Bonds volunteers of Texas can be proud of the fine start made in sales of E and H Savings Bonds during January. Sales increased $500,000 over January of 1962. This represents 3.2% increase. January Bond sales for Texas were $15,814,670.

Savings Bonds sales in Lynn County totaled $23,643.00 according to A. C. Verner, Chairman of Lynn County Savings Bonds Committee.

As a part of a nation-wide Freedom Bond Drive, every family in Texas is being asked to buy at least one U. S. Savings Bond by June 30, 1963. 21 Percent of Local Homes Built Since 1950, Government Survey Reveals

(Special to The News)
New York—The production of new housing in Lynn County, over a 10-year period, has been at a rapid pace, according to cumulative figures released by the government.

A larger proportion of the local dwellings was built during the past decade than was the case in many parts of the nation.

The facts and figures on the amount of new housing in the local area and in other communities across the country are contained in reports released by the Department of Commerce. They show that home building went on at a great rate, with records being set in many localities.

In Lynn County, some 938 new dwelling units were produced in the period. Taking into account the number of old houses that were eliminated to make room for new ones, the county ended with a total of 4,495 units.

This wave of construction played an important part in the local economy, providing work for people in the various building trades as well as outlets for suppliers of building materials, appliances, home furnishings and the like.

The reports show that 20.8 percent of the homes now in use in Lynn County were built since 1950.

The upsurge of building, locally and in other parts of the nation, is attributed in part to the easier financial climate that prevailed throughout most of the decade. Because of Government support, mortgages became easier to negotiate and home ownership was made possible for more people.

As a result, over 15 million new dwelling units were constructed in the United States. Partially offsetting these additions were 3 million old houses that were demolished.

The value of the new dwellings erected in Lynn County, based on average market prices prevailing in the region during the 10 years, is approximately $12,000,000.

Not taken into account, in connection with these figures, is the huge amount that was spent on modernizing older houses. One-fourth of the income of construction companies, reportedly, came from this source.

By virtue of the changes that have occurred, the average dwelling unit locally now has an occupancy of 3.4 people. The average elsewhere in the country is 3.4 also.

C. R. Cargile Tells Experiences In Versa

C. R. (Charlie) Cargile, route 2, an old timer in the Draw community has written the following interesting "drivel" with "tongue in cheek" reminiscent of the hard times the first settlers of this country went through:

Eighteen and a half miles from Tahoka, out on the Gail road, here on these baldies, I took up my abode and worked hard until Saturday night and hauled water on Sunday.

I could not buy or rent, and the only thing for a dwelling was a 12 by 14 tent—worked hard 'til Saturday night and hauled water on Sunday.

I went to my neighbor's and found his well was dry; I thought his heart would break and I could almost hear him cry; worked hard 'til Saturday night and hauled water on Sunday.

Was on my road to the well when the poor old horse died—the only plan I had left was to make me a slide. Worked hard 'til Saturday night and hauled water on Sunday.

Think I will go back to Hill county and work for my pard—he has a well of water in the back yard—work hard until Saturday night and go fishing on Sunday.

Glen "Moose" Hopkins, freshman in West Texas State, Canyon, was home over the week end visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hopkins, and Donnie.

In closing his talk at Tahoka Rotary Club recently, Texas Tech Dean of Agriculture Gerald W. Thomas said:

"The population of the United States in December, 1962 reached an estimated 189 million; however, there are 73 million over 60 years of age. This leaves only 119 million people to do the work. People under 21 total 68 million, which leaves 50 million to do the work, and there are 21 million employed by the Government—that leaves just 29 million to do the work. Twelve million are in the Armed Forces, leaving 17 million to do the work, if you deduct 16 million 800 thousand, this is the number in state and city offices; that leaves only 300,000 people to do the work. There are 126,000 in hospitals, insane asylums, etc., and that leaves 74,000 people to do the work, but 28,000 of these are bums or others who won't work, so that leaves only 12,000 people to do the work. Now it may interest you to know that there are 11,998 in jail, so that leaves just 2 people to do the work and that's you and me brother, and I'm getting tired of doing everything by myself."

Our long-time friend, E. L. Short, is a cantankerous cuss, but you've got to hand it to him; he's a man of action. During two years as head of Tahoka's Chamber of Commerce, he has kept things moving, launched a program of work, and then flew in and helped directors and other members carry out many projects for the good of the entire community and county. He has drawn not one dime for the many hours of hard work he has put into the job. We remember...

ber at one meeting of the board, he made the statement, "I wouldn't live in a town I wouldn't try to help improve." We need more unselfish workers and fewer do-nothing critics.

The new president, whose name will be announced at tonight's banquet, is a progressive young Tahoka businessman who has come up from a store clerk to own his own business, and we predict he'll make another fine leader of the organization.

A man from a neighboring town asked us recently if we thought a Chamber of Commerce was worth while. If for no other reason, our C. of C. is worth while simply as a clearing house for local business institutions and county citizens, where mutual problems can be handled. But, our C. of C. handles many helpful details over the period of a year that the public never hears about, such as finding a place for a new citizen to live, furnishing information on the town or county to some prospective new citizen or businessman or wholesaler, locating a farmer, furnishing local statistics to any number of far-away interested person, etc. The body underwrites the county livestock show, sends 4-H contestants to state events, sponsors special trades days, helps with the rodeos, secures publicity in state and regional papers and magazines, helps set business holidays, works toward securing new improvements, has published a brochure that has widespread distribution, and this week is distributing a new city map showing streets, parks, public buildings and other places of interest, helps individual businesses with problems, discourages questionable out-of-town salesmen, offers a first sale premium, cooperates with other county communities on projects, etc. Every monthly meeting, sometimes twice a month, there is a crowded agenda of problems of the community for discussion. Some projects prove very successful, some fall flat. But, we don't see how a town that amounts to anything can get along without such a clearing house and vehicle for carrying on projects for the good of all citizens.

Lamesa C. of C. has launched a "Lamesa Beautiful" program, a feature of which the planting by citizens of Mimosa trees and Peace roses on an extensive scale to help the looks of the city.

A Texan told his wife: "I think the kids are old enough now to know the facts of life. Let's tell them about Alaska."

Gulf Breeze: "My husband and I like the same thing, but I like to spend it and he likes to save it."

Visitors to the capital in Washington may go through the building from 9 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

United Nations has earmarked $1,197,000 to aid Cuban agriculture. Our U. S. representatives at UN say the U. S. will not pay for any of the planned aid to Cuba. When will we quit being dumb clucks? The U. S. now furnishes 32 percent of the UN budget, and our Administration favors contributing an additional five percent to UN. Some of the Communist and neutral countries fail or refuse to pay their full assessments to UN. Our representatives in UN have a lot of audacity!

Remember back when John F. Kennedy was running for president? He said he could balance the budget. Then, last fall he flatly declared there was no build-up of offensive weapons in Cuba. About two weeks later, he was forced to back-track. Then, he demanded removal of the offensive weapons by Soviet Russia and the right to inspect the island. Now, some men in high authority, including some Democrats, are charging Khrushchev is continuing the build-up. JFK says "no." Adlai Stevenson says Soviet forces in Cuba are no menace to the U. S. or Western Hemisphere. Pierre Salinger, the President's press secretary, says a "white lie" in reporting government news on foreign affairs is justifiable. How are we to know what to believe?

Hizhonor Judge Harry L. Roddy says while he was serving up on the front during World War I, there was a German artilleryman in the American artillery whose dad was in the German army. Every time this young German would fire a shell, he would say, "This one is for you Dad, you old conuagun, I hope it gets you."

Joe Phil and Wyndell Inman say if you work in California a while you'll really appreciate Lynn county people. They worked in a service station out there and now are operating one here. In California, customers are grouchy and have little or nothing to say. In Tahoka, the people are friendly, cheerful and pleasant to deal with.

From Tahoka Rotary Stemwind er:

An old Kentuckian was being interviewed for the local paper. "How have you grown so wise?" the reporter asked. "Because I've got good judgment," the old man replied. "Good judgment comes from experience, and experience well, that comes from poor judgment."

Fond mother: "Willie, you've been a naughty boy. Go to the vibrator and give yourself a good shaking."

Visitors to the capital in Washington may go through the building from 9 a. m. until 4:30 p. m.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks for the many kindnesses shown us during our sorrow at the loss of our father, to the ministers, the ladies who brought food and those who served as pallbearers, those who sat up, the singers, the ones who sent flowers, cards or otherwise expressed their sympathy. May God richly bless each of you. —The family of E. E. Perry. 1tp.

"OUR ELECTRIC HEATING SYSTEM IS PERFECT!"

says W. M. GOODE,
ROUTE 3, FLOYDADA, TEXAS

"I've had many kinds of heating systems in my lifetime," says Mr. Goode, "but, none of them could come up to our electric heating." Mr. and Mrs. Goode, firm believers in the use of electricity, have a completely electric home and use electricity to do the important farm jobs that modern-day farming demands.

YOUR PUBLIC SERVICE MANAGER HAS COMPLETE HEATING INFORMATION

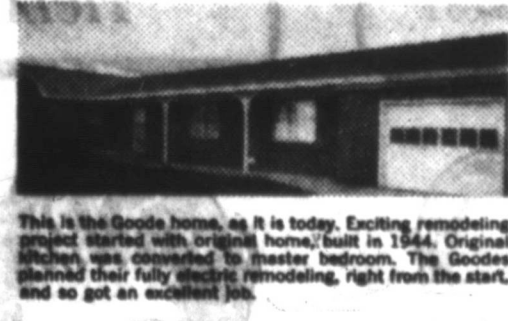

This living room picture gives an idea of the beauty of the Goode home. Daughter, Billie, a Texas Tech home economics major, with interior decorating experience, helped the Goode's in decorating their home.

A Unique touch in the Goode home is this master bedroom featuring decorative lighting and a sitting room separated by attractive wire divider. Mrs. Goode saw idea in magazine and adapted it.

Mrs. Goode is delighted with her electric kitchen. Note drawer, below built-in electric oven, designed to "fit" pot and pan covers. Each cover has its own place preventing marring and adding convenience to kitchen cooking.

This is the Goode home, as it is today. Exciting remodeling project started with original home built in 1944. Original electric was converted to heater indoors. The Goode's planned their fully electric remodeling, right from the start, and so got an excellent job.

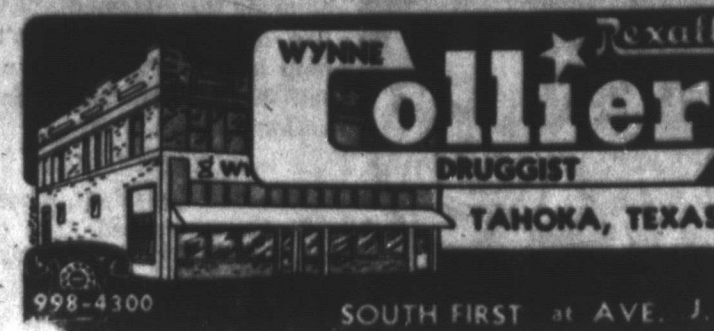

Electric irrigation pump requires just the press of Mr. Goode's finger to starter button—no trouble, no inconvenience.
