How's that?

Clogged culvert

The culvert the state highway department is building will be on Highway 350, not on Gail Route as was reported in Friday's How's That question, said Junior Dorn, maintenance supervisor at the Big Spring office. However the highway department is aware of the water backup on FM 669, he said, and is working to correct the problem. A design engineer from Abilene was in Big Spring Thursday to look at the area and determine what needs to be done, Dorn said. Bob Lindley, assistant district engineer from the District 8 office in Abilene, said the problem came about because the channel had changed course. It no longer runs through the culvert, but about 100 yards away, he said.

Sanitarian says water is safe

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Mayor Cotton Mize lifted the city's state of emergency at a press conference Friday afternoon as reservoirs throughout Big Spring brimmed with water.

Meanwhile, sanitarian James Luck of the county health department said, "We feel that the water is probably OK to drink" without boiling first.

Luck said Decell informed the department that chlorine levels in water samples were adequate, and water pressure was sufficient to prevent bacteria from thriving in city water lines.

However, Luck recommends that people let tap water "run for a few seconds" before drinking it just to make certain any bacteria lingering in home lines is washed away.

Decell said the fire department will continue to open fire hydrants to "get the murkiness out of the water."

"We feel good about the quantity and quality of water," Decell said.

Mized urged businesses, including car washes, to "go ahead and operate at full blast.

"We sincerely apologize to the business community for the inconvienence," he said.

Mize urged citizens to continue conserving water through the weekend or until the remainder of the city's water pumps go back on line.

Decell said he expected one pump motor, in Odessa for servicing, to be returned Friday afternoon. The other two pumps, being repaired in Lubbock, should be back at the plant sometime today, he said.

Acting City Manager Hal Boyd said it will be at least 10 days before the city can fix a cost on the water emergency.

Big Spring's water crisis made front page news all around Texas and a Waco radio station, KJNE, decided to help the city by sending over a truckload of bottled water, courtesy of the station, disc jockey Brad Rivers and Central Freight Co.

Up With People to perform 'Beat of the Future'

The international cast of Up With People, which performed at half time of four Super Bowls, will perform in Big Spring June 14.

The cast of 120 will perform a two-hour musical variety show called "Beat of the Future" at the Big Spring High School auditorium June 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Up With People is an educational and cultural organization with members from many different countries. James Bristo of Big Spring is one of the cast members, said member Sonja Crist.

The performance is sponsored by the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. It is really "a gift to the community," said center director Larry Bristo, explaining that the rehab center stands to make little if any profit from the show.

Twelve people from the show will arrive June 7 to participate in community activities at the Senior Citizens Center, Westside Community Center, the Salvation Army, Girl Scouts and others, Crist said.

The rest of the cast will arrive June 12 and will leave June 15.

"Beat of the Future" is a look at life in the 21st century, little more than a decade away, where there are floating cities, interstellar travel, songwriting computers and a global community, according to a news release.

In a medley of songs from Ragtime, the Big Bands and early rock and roll, the cast predicts the music and dances of the past will be back in style in the year 2000 and today's hits will be the golden oldies of the future.

The show also features a musical tour around the world, with an international medley including a Chinese ribbon dance, the Russian "Gopak," a Scandinavian polka and an old-fashioned American hoedown.

Noted futurist and space artist Robert McCall contributed his work for two special multi-image segments of the show. His murals and paintings are featured in Omni magazine, EPCOT Center in Orlando, Fla., and at the Smithsonian's National Space and Aeronautics Museum in Washington, D.C.

Tickets for the show are $6 for adults and $4 for students and senior citizens in advance. They will be $1 more at the door. They can be bought at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, The Candle Shop at Big Spring Mall, Big Spring Athletics in Highland Mall and at the Herald.

While in Big Spring, cast members will stay with local families. Anyone interested in hosting members of the cast should call the rehabilitation center at 267-3806.

Host families will be responsible for two breakfasts, two dinners and transportation to and from a central location, according to a news release.

Dead bodies lay on the banks of a river after a tour bus packed with senior citizens careened off a twisting mountain road killing 18.

Bus plunge kills 18, injures 24

WALKER, Calif. (AP) — A tour bus carrying residents of a retirement home careened at high speed off a twisting mountain road and plunged into an icy, swift-running river Friday, killing 18 people and injuring 24, authorities said.

The death toll made it the worst U.S. bus crash in nearly six years.

There was confusion over the number of people aboard the bus, and divers searched the West Fork of the Walker River for more victims.

The bus, bringing passengers back to Santa Monica, Calif., after four-day outing to Reno, was 90 miles southeast of Reno on U.S. 395 when it bounced off a fence and plunged down a 15-foot embankment into the Walker River.

It flipped over and then lodged upright on rocks with its rear ripped apart in a few feet of racing water, the California Highway Patrol said. The river is near flood stage and seven feet deep in some spots.

Mono County Sheriff's Department investigator John Daniels said the accident apparently was caused by excessive speed and no other vehicles were involved. The condition of the driver was not immediately determined.

The CHP initially said that 49 were aboard, but Bob Grunbaum, a spokesman for Starline Tours of Santa Fe Springs, Calif., said the company believed the bus was carrying 44 people, and a spokesman at the Bally Grand Hotel in Reno, Nev., where the tour stopped, said there were 42 aboard.

"There were bodies all over the place," said Alex McEwan, owner of the nearby Mountain Gate Lodge, who helped remove the victims. "I believe quite a few got washed out through the back when the windows popped out. A couple of the people we carried out died at the side of the road."

One of the passengers, Valerie Webb, said she was hurled into the aisle when the bus crashed, and saw her husband, Buster, tossed out a window as people fell on top of her.

"He went out the window and I thought he was floating down the river," she said. "It was horrible not knowing where he was." Webb later turned up among the survivors.

Rescue workers and all available ambulances and helicopters from 50 miles rushed to the scene, eight miles south of Walker in the Sierra Nevada.

Navy buries hero century after death

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy buried a forgotten hero Friday, ceremoniously carrying the remains of Civil War Medal of Honor winner James Smith to Arlington National Cemetery, "where he belongs" after lying for a century in an unmarked pauper's grave.

"This is now as it should be, only 105 years late," Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., said at a wreath-laying ceremony on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial. Waiting across the Potomac River at Arlington were some of the Navy's most senior admirals, ready to bury the old sailor with solemn military honors.

Smith had died in New York City in 1881 and was buried in an unmarked common grave, his earlier exploits aboard the USS Richmond at the Battle of Mobile Bay almost forgotten.

But he left behind three children. And a 20th century great-grandson took up his cause.

For the past eight years, Thomas Clarkson Brenker struggled to correct what he felt was the wrong done his great-grandfather.

"I just wanted a marker on his grave," Brenker recalled of his struggle to honor the old sailor. "But I was told they couldn't mark the grave because others had been buried in the same location over the years. Then I asked to exhume him, but the cemetery wouldn't allow that, either."

Brenker was stalemated, unable to mark Smith's grave, unable to have him removed to another site. Then, after yet another letter-writing campaign a year ago, the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York and the Navy advised him the body could be exhumed if he would obtain a court order — which the church agreed not to contest.

"Others had been buried in the grave and because we could not get the permission of the others, we felt he should go to the courts to get a court order so the body could be disinterred," explained Anthony V.

Stars perform for Chernobyl relief

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet stars performed for an audience of 30,000 Friday night, in the nation's first rock benefit, to raise money for victims of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster and the vast cleanup under way in the Ukraine.

"Money is money, but we want to give our hearts," said Alla Pugacheva, queen of Soviet pop, in opening the 2½-hour concert at an indoor stadium built for the 1980 Summer Olympics.

The program mixed hard rock and some touches of the 1940s from the new wave band Bravo with more typically Soviet variety numbers and a poetry recital by actor Mikhail Ulyanov.

Spectators in stands that began only 80 yards from the multi-tiered stage were quiet in comparison with crowds at Western concerts. They remained in their places and applauded most performances warmly, but not wildly.

Ms. Pugacheva opened the evening with a song called "Twentieth Century." She told Western reporters before the show that she thought it eventually might raise 1-1.5 million rubles ($1.4-$2.1 million at the official rate of exchange). Tapes and records of the benefit are to be sold.

The red-haired singer then introduced a Soviet journalist, Vladimir Svetov, who presided over a satellite television link with Kiev. He presented a parade of people who had done cleanup work around the stricken nuclear power plant 80 miles north of the Ukrainian capital.

"Come on, let's applaud every time we hear the name of that town!" Ms. Pugacheva urged as miners, firemen and others sent greetings to the Moscow audience and performers.

A Chernobyl worker later expressed "our heartfelt thanks" to balladeer Alexander Gradsky, whose set won a long ovation from the Moscow audience.

Soviet pop singer Alla Pugachyova and other performers participated in a concert at the Olympiysky Sports Complex in Moscow Friday. Money from the concert benefits victims of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster.

Also featured were the hard rock groups Kruiz (Cruise) and Avtograf (Autograph), the only act with experience in benefit shows. Avtograf took part in the Live Aid concert last July, playing a 10-minute set beamed around the world by satellite.

Neither the Live Aid concert, which raised money for famine victims in Ethiopia, a Soviet ally, nor Avtograf's performance was shown on state television or given much publicity here.

Friday's concert was filmed by television and may be shown at a later date, said Art Troitsky, the concert organizer and manager of Bravo.

He said Bravo had been granted official status with government concert organizations after a successful performance in Moscow's first official rock festival this month.

The concert was called "Account No. 904" — the number of a Chernobyl relief account the state bank opened to receive contributions.

According to Troitsky, musicians got the idea for the concert and obtained support from Communist Party and Moscow city authorities.

Time was too short to line up Western rock stars for the show, he said, but Ms. Pugacheva said another concert might be organized in August with international participation.

She read a "good luck" telegram from the Swedish group Abba.

Troitsky said he would like to have an international concert including Bruce Springsteen, Julian Lennon, Stevie Wonder, Paul McCartney and the rock group Dire Straits.

None has performed in the Soviet Union, whose leaders have given rock little encouragement or recognition little bit better for us in music," said a musician who would identify himself only as Sasha.

High school senior drowns

LONGVIEW Texas (AP) — Graduation ceremonies at an East Texas high school have been darkened by the death of an 18-year-old senior who drowned during an end-of-the-year swim and ski party at Lake Cherokee.

Stephen Allen, who was with about 40 other Tatum High School seniors, disappeared about 3 p.m. Thursday when he and a friend tried to swim to shore from about 250 yards out in the lake, Gregg County Sheriff's officials said.

A search for his body was called off at dark Thursday, but officials resumed searching Friday. Officials had not located his body by about 11 a.m. Friday.

"It's a tragic situation," said Tatum High School Principal Clifford Harkless, who was at the senior party being held at the Reservation Club on the lake's north side.

"All the kids had just practiced their graduation exercises and were out of school the rest of the day and they came out here for a senior party about noon," Harkless said.

Two rescue attempts failed, officials said. Larry Centers swam to Allen and tried to pull him to shore, but was unable to keep Allen calm enough for both youths to stay afloat, sheriff's investigator Les Ferguson said.

Other students nearby in a boat tried to help, "but when they cranked their boat to get over to where Allen was drowning, their motor blew up," Ferguson said.

Assistant Principal Pat Browning said the party was one of a list of activities school officials and parents traditionally plan for seniors.

Browning, who also is the high school track coach, said Allen was an "academically sound" student wrote in a school essay that he had planned to attend Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches. He said Allen had run track, written sports stories and editorials for the schools newspaper and participated in drama.

Man charged with murder has competency hearing

A panel of jurors will determine Monday in 118th District Court whether a 68-year-old man charged with murder is mentally competent to stand trial, said District Attorney Rick Hamby.

L.H. Williams of 907 Gregg St. was charged by police with bludgeoning his 66-year-old roommate William H. Jewell to death with a baseball bat in April.

Both men were living at the Gregg street address under a foster care contract between the Veterans Administration Hospital in Big Spring and Marie McGregor.

Police had previously said they had no sensible motive to the killing.

Hamby said jurors will specifically determine whether Williams is in need of treatment at Rusk State Hospital.

Roina, assistant executive director of the Trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City. "We are happy it came to a successful conclusion."

That battle over, plans were made for a funeral mass and memorial service last week in New York City, followed by Friday's reinterment at Arlington, which had its origins as a cemetery for Civil War victims.

"Thanks to the efforts of Tom Brenker and others, James Smith can now be properly laid to rest," John Barth of the Freedom Foundation in Valley Forge, Pa., said at the Memorial Day wreath-laying ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial.

"He should never have been buried in an unmarked grave, forgotten," added Lent, who has sponsored legislation in Congress "to establish a central repository where the names, deeds and records of Medal of Honor winners can be assembled in one place."

Preston Amos of the Medal of Honor Historical Society estimated 400 other Medal of Honor winners are unaccounted for, buried without recognition of their heroism in battle.

Smith was one of the 400 until Friday, when his casket was placed aboard a horse-drawn caisson and taken up a winding road to a hillside overlooking the Pentagon. Waiting were Vice Adm. James Metcalf III, deputy chief of naval operations for surface warfare, Rear Adm. John R. McNamara, chief of chaplains, and the highest ranking non-commissioned officer, Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy William H. Plackett.

Metcalf, who thanked Brenker for his persistence in fighting for the overdue honors, presented the Medal of Honor citation to Smith's granddaughter, Murrilla Clarkson Walsh of New York City, "in the name of the president of the United States, the Navy and a grateful nation."

More than seven hours after the 10:30 a.m. PDT accident, authorities were still searching the water downstream for more victims.

"You just don't know which way a body will go in that stuff," Daniels said. "If they were to hit a rock, there's no telling where they might wind up."

The 24 injured were taken to six hospitals in Reno and Carson City, Nev., and Bridgeport, Mammoth and Bishop, Calif.

The passengers were mostly residents of the Santa Monica Tower retirement home who had been on "a relaxation tour" due back Friday evening, said Penny Hanson, a spokeswoman for Starline Tours.

"There was a lot of blood and lot of internal head injuries," said Marine Gunnery Sgt. Daniel Tretteen, one of more than two dozen Marines who helped pull the injured and dead out of windows.

The Marines, stationed at the Pickel Meadow Marine Corps Mountain Warfare Training Center a few miles away, were called to the scene about a half-hour after the accident.

The bus left skid marks on the pavement and apparently rolled two or three times before it hit the water, Tretteen said, and was "pretty well beat up with the roof caved in and the back ripped up."

Judy Sobel of Van Nuys, Calif., was parked at the side of the road fixing a tire on her motorcycle when the bus went by. She estimated it was going 55 mph to 60 mph when it passed and said she heard the crash seconds later. She and her friends helped pull seven people from the wreckage.

Officials could not immediately say what the speed limit was at the point where the bus left the road, but said the limit generally drops from 55 mph to 35 mph in twisting sections.

U.S. 395, the main highway between Reno and Southern California, parallels the river as it winds through a mountain canyon.

The National Transportation Safety Board dispatched a six-member investigation team to the site, according to spokesman Ira Furman in Washington.

Ben Olandj, general manager for Starline, said the bus was in service less than a year and had been inspected by the CHP last October.

Deaths

David H. Pohl

LUBBOCK — Services for the Rev. David H. Pohl, 71, of Lubbock, formerly of Big Spring, will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Oakwood United Methodist Church with the Rev. Tom Fuller, pastor, officiating. Burial will be at Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

He died at 7:25 a.m. Thursday, May 29, 1986, at Brentwood Manor Nursing Home in Lubbock after a brief illness.

He was born in Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 4, 1915, and received his education in Brownsville. He worked for a brief period in the Civilian Conservation Corps and moved to Iowa in 1938, where he worked for the Veterans Administration Hospital in Knoxville. He worked for the VA for 35 years, retiring from the Big Spring facility in 1976.

He married Mary A. Hollingshead in Knoxville, Iowa, Dec. 13, 1942. He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Coast Guard. He entered the ministry when he retired from the VA and served United Methodist churches in Big Spring, Garden City and Ropesville. He was a graduate of the Perkins Theological Seminary of Southern Methodist University. He retired from the ministry in 1983, moving to Lubbock. He was a member of Oakwood United Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mary of Lubbock; a son, David of Plainview; three daughthers, Martha Bennett of Traer, Iowa, and Harriett Sue Carson and Sara Kelly, both of Lubbock; a sister, Mrs. Roselie Davis of Apple Valley, Calif.; and seven grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials go to the American Heart Association or Oakwood United Methodist Church.

Poison found in capsule

AUSTIN — Chemical tests showed a trace of potassium cyanide in an Anacin-3 capsule from the bottle bought by a University of Texas chemistry student who later died, federal drug officials said Friday.

Police waited Friday for the results of fingerprint tests in Austin on the capsules found in the bottle linked to the cyanide-poisoning death of Kenneth Wayne Faries, 24.

The tests conducted at the U.S. Food and Drug Adminstration's main facility in Cincinnati found just one capsule containing cyanide, said Donald Healton, the agency's regional director in Dallas.

Two store chains removed Anacin-3 capsules from stores in four states after authorities tied the tainted capsule to a bottle of Anacin-3 purchased at a Walgreen Co. store.

Pavlof Valcano erupts

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Pavlof Volcano erupted Friday for the second time in two months, spitting steam and ash up to 17,000 feet high, a geologist said.

The eruption of Alaska's most active volcano was reported by passing pilots Friday morning, said Tom Miller, a scientist with the U.S. Geological Survey.

Miller said the eruption posed little danger to humans near the 8,905-foot peak, located 600 miles southwest of Anchorage at the sparsely inhabited tip of the rugged Alaska Peninsula.

An easterly wind Friday was carrying the eruption plume of ash north of Cold Bay, a town 35 miles away from the mountain, he said.

Pavlof last erupted on April 17. Miller said the peak has erupted at least 38 times in 200 years, with at least six eruptions in the past decade.

Board investigates crash

STURGIS, S.D. — The Air Force on Friday convened a special board of officers from the Strategic Air Command to investigate the crash of a UH-1 Huey helicopter that killed five people and critically injured a sixth.

The helicopter, which was providing security for a missile maintenance convoy, crashed shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday in a field northwest of Bear Butte, about five miles northeast of Sturgis.

Airman 1st Class Latania Huguley, 22, of Salem, Ala., was the lone survivor. Ms. Huguley, a missile security specialist, was listed in critical condition Friday in Rapid City Regional Hospital with undisclosed injuries.

Bullock denies permits

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday he denied sales tax permits last month to 150,000 businesses that owed taxes or failed to file reports last year.

"We let folks know that if they wanted to do business in Texas, they had to hold a new permit. And we weren't issuing permits to tax delinquents until they paid what was due," Bullock said.

The effort brought the state $9.1 million in back taxes, the comptroller reported. Accounts were re-opened for 18,787 taxpayers who paid their debts, he said.

Police whip black and white students from the University of the Witwatersrand in the streets of Johannesburg on Friday. Several were treated for injuries at the university clinic. The trouble began earlier when a group of students and staff were arrested during a protest march about previous police action on campus.

Protest march

Police use tear gas on college students

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police used whips, fired tear gas and arrested more than 50 people Friday as college students, both white and black, staged anti-government protests in South Africa's two biggest cities.

At the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, confrontations between students and riot police flared throughout the day in some of worst political violence ever at one of the country's predominantly white colleges.

Police said 48 Witwatersrand students and staff members, both blacks and whites, were arrested while marching toward a nearby police station to protest the arrest of a black student Thursday.

One group of white students was dispersed by officers who lashed them with whips, and several were treated at the university health center.

Police later fired tear gas to break up an estimated 500 students protesting police actions. Officers said some students threw stones at patrol cars.

The students regrouped on campus for a rally. Witnesses said some of them beat up a man in civilian clothes who was suspected of being a police officer or informer.

In Cape Town, five arrests were reported as more than 100 students demonstrated in the heart of the downtown shopping district against the Republic Day holiday on Saturday, when the nation observes the 25th anniversary of the creation of the Republic of South Africa after it broke with the British Commonwealth.

President P.W. Botha, whose cautious program of racial reforms has been under attack from both left and right, is scheduled to dedicate a reconstructed park Saturday in Cape Town. Several student protesters carried signs saying "Botha Is a Terrorist."

Botha is expected to draw further criticism Saturday when a coalition of far-right groups holds a Republic Day outside Pretoria at the Voortrekker Monument, which commemorates a northward trek by Afrikaner pioneers in the 1830s.

The far right has bitterly opposed the racial reforms initiated by Botha's National Party, saying whites will lose their dominance. The same reforms have been denounced as inadequate by black activists and a growing, increasingly outspoken white liberal opposition.

Several recent polls have shown that whites are becoming more receptive to substantive race reforms, including sharing power with the black majority. White university students have become increasingly active in anti-apartheid campaigning. Two weeks ago more than 200 Johannesburg-area whites received a tumultuous welcome from residents of the strife-torn black township of Alexandra went they went there to lay flowers at the graves of unrest victims.

On Friday, more than 100 white women fanned out through Johannesburg's northern suburbs to stage picket protests against new security legislation giving police broad new powers to contain unrest.

Facing rush-hour commuter traffic from some of the city's wealthiest suburbs, the protesters held up placards declaring, "No to Uncontrolled Police Power," and "No to More Detentions, Less Protection."

Eggs were thrown from a passing car at three of the women but did not hit them, said Susan Trathan, a regional official of the anti-apartheid Black Sash women's group.

The Botha government has run into strong protests against the new security proposals, including opposition by the new chambers of Parliament for the Asian and mixed-race minorities.

At Cape Town, five university students were arrested — two whites and three mixed-race — but no violence was reported. The demonstrators were from the predominantly white University of Cape Town, the predominantly mixed-race University of the Western Cape, and local high schools.

Police headquarters reported that the burned bodies of seven black men were found in five black townships across the country. No details were provided.

Nations to resist policy

BERLIN — Western ambassadors unanimously decided Friday not to comply with an East Germany policy that requires diplomats traveling from East to West Berlin to present passports, diplomatic sources said.

"There's no sign of any splitting of the ranks on this issue," said a source who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The decision was made at a meeting of East Berlin-based ambassadors from NATO countries at the British Embassy in East Berlin. The source did not say who participated in the meeting, the third in three days. Fourteen NATO countries are represented in East Berlin.

The passport checks were instituted Monday in what East Germany said was an effort to thwart terrorism. Previously, East Berlin-based diplomats only had to present an identity card to travel between sectors.

Salvador war will expand

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — A Marxist rebel leader says the guerrilla war against the U.S.-supported government will expand and that American military intervention would mean years of bloody regional battles.

"The expansion of the war seeks to encompass all the territory," said Joaquin Villalobos, writing in the latest edition of the Jésuit-run Central American University magazine.

Villalobos is commander-in-chief of the leftist People's Revolutionary Army, one of five groups making up the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front. He is a key leader of the coalition and the article carried an editor's note saying the magazine sought to get the point of view of the rebels but that the article did not necessarily reflect the point of view of the editors.

Volcano spews lava, ash

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Volcanic eruptions from Mount Ileboleng have caused hundreds of people to flee their homes on the Indonesian island of Adonara, but no casualties were reported, the Volcanology Office said Friday.

It said the 1,925-foot volcano in east Nusatenggara province, about 940 miles east of Jakarta, spewed lava and ash Wednesday night and Thursday and continued to rumble until Friday morning, with thick smoke covering its peak.

Nearly 600 people have been evacuated and lava has destroyed about 4,000 acres of crops in the area, the office said.

The office said the volcano erupted for the first time in 1975, but gave no details.

Fires burn across Canada

TORONTO, Ontario — More than 200 fires raged through Canada's forests Friday, and three conservation workers reportedly died while fighting a blaze in far-northern Quebec province.

The fires, ranging in size from a few acres to tens of thousands and fueled by a heat wave and lack of rain, were destroying vast stretches of timber from British Columbia through northern Quebec and forced the evacuation of at least two Indian communities.

Dairy foods recalled for health check

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas dairy plant that recalled some of its products from Texas stores this week after health inspectors found potentially harmful bacteria at the dairy will spend $500,000 for remodeling, a company spokesman said Friday.

Schepps Dairy issued a voluntary recall Thursday and closed the company's central processing plant in Dallas, hours after state health officials recommended it.

"The remodeling will further enhance (the plant's) ability to prevent a recurrence of the problem experienced earlier this week," said David Marguiles, a Schepps Dairy Inc. spokesman.

Isolated samples of the bacteria were found at the plant and in two unpasteurized milk samples at two of the 204 dairy farms that supply Schepps , said Kirmon Smith, director of milk and dairy products for the Texas Department of Health.

The bacteria — Listeria monocytogenes — is the same growth that contaminated California-made cheese last year and killed 60 people.

Schepps spokesman Stu Gibson said Thursday the plant was being sanitized and probably would open around noon Friday. Instead, officials decided to remodel the plant, delaying the plant reopening.

The state health department began the intensive contamination investigation at the plant April 24 after a sample of choclate milk tested in early April was found to be tainted with bacteria.

No illnesses have been reported, and health officials said there was no indication the bacteria — which can cause fever or diarrhea in mild cases or death in high concentrations — was present in any Schepps products on store shelves in Texas.

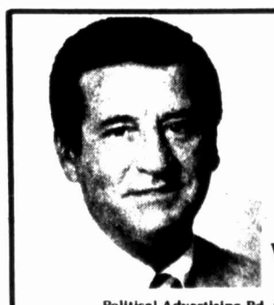

Milk sold in San Antonio and Austin under Schepp's name is bottled in San Antonio and was unaffected, Marguiles said.

"No contamination was ever found in the milk. It was found around the machines, on the floor. Not in the milk itself." Marguiles said.

Schepps voluntarily recalled all cartons of milk with an expiration date of June 8 or earlier, but the company is not advising consumers to return or dispose of milk already purchased, Gibson said.

The Schepps plant supplies some convenience stores, hotels, restaurants and schools in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Houston, Gibson said. He said he did not know which business and schools specifically carried Schepps milk.

Until the Dallas plant is back in operation, milk for Houston and Dallas will be processed and packaged by its sister company, Foremost Daries Inc. of Dallas.

Performer dares to be different

NEW YORK (AP) — Grace Jones, an unconventional performer who always dares to be different, also drops traditions when it comes to her birthday.

She arrived at the recent birthday party Peter Stringfellow gave her at his Manhattan club in a vampire outfit complete with ghoulish eyes. There was no cake and the guests, who included Prince Albert of Monaco, Yoko Ono and Sean Lennon, did not sing "Happy Birthday."

When asked how old she was, the disco diva smiled and said: "Pick any year you like, darling."

CITY OF STANTON
TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The City of Stanton is planning to file an application with the Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA) for Texas Community Development Program (TCDP) grant. The City's application will be submitted to TDCA on or before June 16, 1986.

A public hearing will be held at 3:00 o'clock P.M. on June 3, 1986 at City Hall, to discuss the details of the application which the City is planning to submit to TDCA. All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and learn about the activities which the City will include in its TCDP proposal.

The basic intent of the TCDP program is to eliminate slums, blighted housing and deteriorated neighborhoods by providing improved streets; parks and community centers; improved utility systems; better drainage; and other public facilities. TCDP funds may also be used to support economic development activities.

For further information on the TCDP program, contact Jimmy Mathis at 756-3301. Handicapped individuals who might have trouble in attending this public hearing should contact the City Hall to arrange for special assistance. Any other individuals who would have trouble in getting to the site of this public hearing should contact City Hall to arrange for special assistance.

Students compete in clapping contest

Bauer Magnet School extended-day music students clapped their way to victory Tuesday in a rhythm clapping championship.

Fourth-grader Robert Lee won the championship, with fifth-graders Heather Farris second, Becky Tedesco third, Tim Pearson fourth, and Christi Thurman fifth.

Competitors in the championship were winners of previous contests held each nine weeks at the school, said teacher Susan Dawes. Students were required to correctly clap a rhythm pattern from a flash card in order to progress to the next round, in spelling bee fashion.

Judges were Kristy Jasek, high school choir director; Ricky Mitchell, high school band director; and John Wilson, minister of music at First United Methodist Church.

Winners from the first nine weeks were: 1. Jeremy Peacock, 2. Jennifer Griffis, 3. Jason Solomon, 4. Shelbi Hall, 5. Papo Guerro, and alternate Carvelle Nguyen.

Winners from the second nine weeks were: 1. Heather Farris, 2. Jimmy Cox, 3. Azure Miller, 4. Becky Tedesco, 5. Todd Beasley, and alternate Christi Thurman.

Winners from the third nine weeks were: 1. Jennifer Griffis, 2. Tie Marrion, 3. Eric Waller, 4. Rafael Trevino, 5. Jose Jiminez, and alternate Angie McVae.

Winners from the fourth nine weeks were: 1. Heather Farris, 2. Robert Lee, 3. Sandra Mendez, 4. Cody Simmons, 5. Tim Pearson, and alternate Marta Greene.

Reading program begins Monday

Registration for the Summer Reading Program at Howard County Library begins June 2 and ends July 12, the last day of the six-week program, according to a release from the library.

The theme of this year's program is "Celebrate Texas," in honor of the state's 150th birthday.

Participants must be able to read on their own, and are encouraged to read at least 10 books during the six weeks to earn a certificate, according to the release. Those who read books over 100 pages will be given credit for two books; books over 200 pages will count as three, and so on.

Books may be checked out any time during the week and must be recorded in the Summer Reading Program logs before being turned in at the circulation desk.

For every five books read, the children will earn McDonald's coupons. The first 100 children to read 10 books will earn rodeo tickets or T-shirt decals (donated by the Big Spring Rodeo Association and the Friends of the Library, respectively). Also, the Cinema Theater has donated tickets, which children will be able to earn during the program.

During the six weeks an activity day will be held every Thursday from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., and will feature arts and crafts, speakers and movies related to the "Celebrate Texas" theme. Neil Allen from the Heritage Museum will tell youngster about West Texas history, Jack White will tell about the Texas Rangers, and Quail Dobbs will speak about rodeo clowning.

At the closing party certificates and prizes will be awarded. There will also be a costume party and refreshments.

For the younger people who are not yet reading independently, the library offers a "Read To Me Club." Parents of older brothers and sisters may read library books to them, and they must have the books listed in the reading logs before turning them in to the circulation desk.

The younger members are invited to attend Friday morning Storytime from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

Children registering for library cards must be accompanied by a parent. There is no charge for a library card for the summer reading program if the books are cared for and returned on time, said the release.

Two businesses file bankruptcy

A local construction company and restaurant have filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy claims in district court and are scheduled to undergo hearings in June to determine how to resolve their debts.

Basin Construction Inc. of Big Spring and Landmark Resources Inc. of San Angelo, doing business in Big Spring as Seawings and Rositas Fajitas, have both filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy, in which the court helps the company arrange to pay off its debts.

Basin Construction filed a bankruptcy petition May 7 in a Dallas district court, according to a letter addressed to the plaintiff's attorney and 118th District Judge James Gregg.

A spokeswoman in the U.S. Trustees office in Dallas said the bankruptcy petition was signed by local businessman Chris Christopher, an 80 percent shareholder of Basin, and president Kerry D. Burks, a 20 percent shareholder.

A meeting has been set for June 10 in the U.S. Trustees Office in Dallas, the spokeswoman said, "to discuss how they (Basin) will pay off their debts."

The petition contained a list of Basin's total assests, liabilities and 20 largest secured creditors. The spokeswoman, however, would not disclose those figures.

The construction company lost a civil suit in 118th District Court in April and was ordered to pay an outstanding principal amount of $3,000 to Big Spring Automotive for services rendered.

The judge also ordered that Basin pay $123 in court costs and a 10 percent post-judgment interest rate on the total amount of judgment from Feb. 25.

Landmark Resources filed the bankruptcy petition in San Angelo, said a spokeswoman in the U.S. District Court there.

A meeting is set for June 19 in the Federal Building in San Angelo with Landmark's creditors to determine how to resolve the debts.

The spokeswoman said the corporation has $1,784,904 in secured debts, $273,090 in unsecured debts and $1,388,351 in assets.

The petition was signed by Landmark Inc. President Gary L. Richards, the spokeswoman said.

Local company to restore Stanton jail

STANTON — Lee George Construction Co. of Big Spring has been awarded the contract to complete Phase II of the old jail restoration in Stanton.

The announcement was made at the Tuesday evening Martin County Historical Commission meeting.

Funding for Phase II of the project is a $6,486 grant from Mabee Petroleum Corp. of Midland. Mabee had earlier awarded a $77,000 grant for Phase I of the restoration project in 1982.

Lee George Construction was contractor for Phase I also.

Requirements for the current job include building the porch and porch roof to its original state. The jail's original 273 feet of antique iron fencing that surrounded it, will be sandblasted, painted and reset. Date of completion is July 10.

The old jail is a museum and visitor's center with Chamber of Commerce offices on the first floor.

It is located on the northwest corner of the courthouse complex in downtown Stanton.

Economic effects of oil price drop determined

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans last year consumed $100 billion of oil-related products. This year, while using up at least the same amount of oil, they are expected to spend 40 percent less, or just $60 billion.

The savings of roughly $170 for every man, woman and child — or close to $700 for the typical family — suggests the incredible impact that the sudden fall of oil prices has had on the economy.

Without any need to resort to theory, economists now can say with certainty that, among other things, the decline has:

Raised automobile sales, encouraged corporate capital spending other than for oil, improved the foreign trade balance, made the United States more competitive, reduced inflation, lowered interest rates, and lifted the stock market.

Because of these effects, the savings to Americans are enormously larger in terms of lowered mortgage rates, greater employment, reduced production costs and bigger equities — to say nothing about improved economic confidence.

There have, of course, been very serious negative consequences too.

Unemployment in energy states, which had been below the national average when oil prices were rising, are now above the national average. Bankruptcies are up in oil states. Housing has lanquished. State budgets are squeezed.

According to estimates by the Merrill Lynch, the investment firm, the deficit for Texas will be at least $1 billion this year, with the deficits for Louisiana and Oklahoma each about half that. Among other states, Alaska and Wyoming have been hit hard.

But all this will change.

A report by the Department of Energy suggests, in effect, that higher prices are inevitable within the next decade, and most likely well before that time. And that means radical economic changes all over again.

Perhaps the most widely felt impact will be in consumer prices. As oil prices rise, when they do, the impact on the Consumer Price Index is likely to be as immediate as it was when oil prices declined.

That impact was impressive. By most estimates, the United States today would have a consumer products inflation rate of 4 percent or so, rather than a barely measurable amount, if oil prices had not fallen about 40 percent.

The energy component accounts for 10 percent of the CPI. Therefore, a 40 percent decline in oil prices means a 4 percent decline in the CPI, offsetting a 4 percent rise in other, non-energy components of the index.

Almost certainly, other great consequences can be expected as oil prices rise. While much of the United States will feel a negative economic impact, the improvement in oil-dependent states may be spectacular in terms of jobs, wages, profits, and improved state budgets.

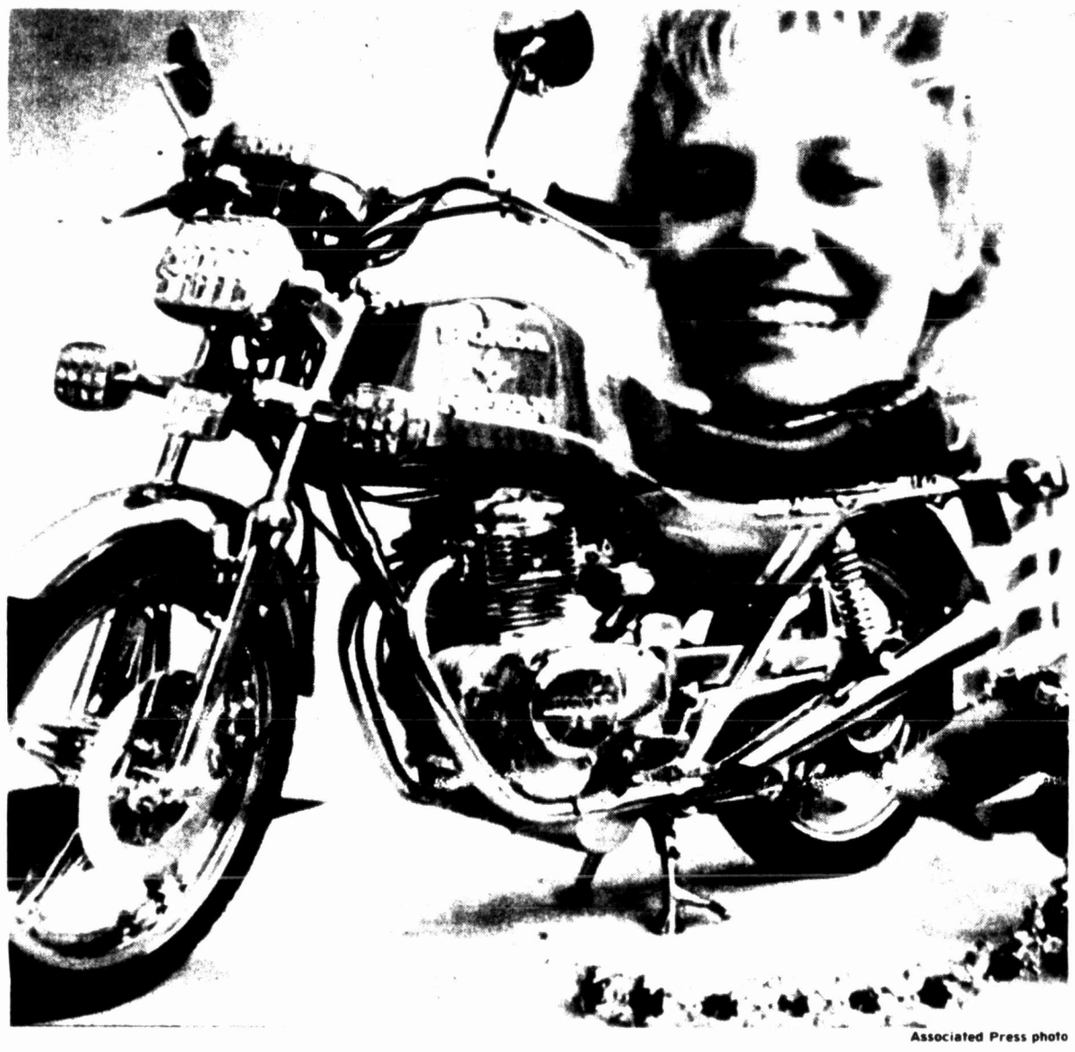

The Energy Department's study shows that if the price level during 1986 drops to $10 a barrel — it was between $14 and $14.50 early on May 28 — the subsequent price increase would begin next year.

If the average price this year remained at about $15 a barrel, the price rebound could be delayed to 1989. Meanwhile, prices conceivably could decline slightly during 1988.

Should the price level be about $20 in 1986, oil prices could continue to decline through 1989 before the upturn began.

For consumers, manufacturers, state budget officials, importers, exporters, investors and others, the near-term future has seldom been laid out so neatly.

What's done now to prepare and exploit that near-term future, is a totally different matter.

Perry is the 1985 recipient of the association Top Hand Award, presented to a member who has distinguished himself as an outstanding supporter and contributor to the independent petroleum industry. He is also a representative of the Colorado River Municipal Water District and is involved in many civic organizations. Stepping down as past president is Perry Bolger.

• Dr. George Rosenberg of Big Spring, obstetrics and gynecology doctor, has installed an advanced piece of medical equipment for examination of female patients, a power lithotomy chair, to replace the old examination table. The chair is padded and electrically powered. The doctor uses a foot control to move the patient from a sitting position to whatever position is needed.

The chair makes the patient more comfortable and makes it easier for the doctor to give an examination, Rosenberg said. It is also better for treatment of elderly or obese patients, because it eliminates any maneuvering around, he said.

• The Federal Aviation Administration plans to hire 2,000 to 3,000 air traffic controllers within the next year and is seeking candidates. The agency wants U.S. citizens, age 30 or under, with four years of college or three years work experience, or an equivalent combination of the two, according to a news release.

Candidates must pass an aptitude test with a high score for final selection. Aviation experience is not necessary.

Starting salary is $17,824. Training is free and will be given at the FAA's Oklahoma City academy with final placement throughout the U.S. Depending on their assignment, controllers can receive up to $55,000 in basic annual salary through Civil Service advancement.

Those interested should send a postcard to the FAA, Dept. 140, Box 26650, Oklahoma City, Okla. 73126 for further information.

• There were 35 rigs actually making holes in District 8, West Texas, including Howard County, as of May 27, according to Hughes Tool Co. This compares to 38 rigs May 19, 45 rigs April 28, and 113 rigs May 28, 1985.

• Texans can expect telephone innovations that allow shopping without leaving home, electronic mail, point-of-sale credit and many other services from Southwestern Bell Telephone in the future, according to Bill Haehnel, science demonstrator for the company. Haehnel spoke to the American Business Club in Big Spring Friday.

The company plans to invest more than $1.2 billion on construction projects in Texas during 1986 to meet increasing demands of state-of-the-art telecommunications technology in the state, according to a news release.

• WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s $2 billion rate reduction will be permitted to go into effect Sunday, the Federal Communications Commission said Friday. The company immediately announced more reductions.

Although a portion of the cuts come because of reductions in the price long-distance companies pay local companies to connect long-distance calls to the local network, the growth in the number of long-distance calls is also a factor.

"This is a sheer efficiency gain," said Albert Halprin, chief of the FCC bureau that regulates long-distance telephone prices. "It proves the world is not a balloon," he said. "It is not true that the only way someone can get a benefit is by squeezing someone else."

Halprin said he expects another AT&T long-distance price cut in the $50 million to $75 million price range in the next few days, as the result of another FCC action lowering some of the costs AT&T pays local telephone companies.

That would equal a fraction of a cent per call, but enough to be significant for big businesses with huge phone bills.

Separately, AT&T said it would reduce WATS, 800 Service, and some business private line charges by $52 million. Other private line charges are set for an increase.

MCI said Thursday it will match American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s new rates by dropping its charges for long-distance calls by almost 10 percent starting July 1.

Peters on excellence

Recognition of employee ideas key to progress

By TOM PETERS

I hate to admit this — even to myself — but at 4:45 a.m. on mot Sundays, you'll find me half awake, impatiently listening for the sound of the Sunday New York Times delivery van. On some pretext, I will sneak downstairs within seconds of the awaited sound, grab the paper and make a beeline for the best-seller list.

Between "In Search of Excellence" and "A Passion for Excellence," I have been on the list about 170 weeks. I do not tire a bit at seeing my name in print. You see, I am a closet recognitino junkie! For better or worse, that affliction unites me with approximately 100 percent of the human race.

Discussions of employees recognition are complex. Cynics accuse management of "trying to void a $1-an-hour raise by staging a 'recognition night' with pasty Chicken a la King and a $3.95 momento at every table setting."

Vociferous proponents as well as detractors of employee recognition are worth listening to, but a more basic premise eludes both their arguments. Max De Pree, chairman of office-furniture maker Herman Miller, Inc., is on the money when he says, "The conventional wisdom is that American managers have to motivate people. But employees bring their own motivation. What people need from work is to be liberated, to be involved, to be accountable and to reach for their potential."

I have accordingly struck the idea of manager as motivator from my phrase list. The effective leader's task is not to turn a magic motivation key in the middle of the worker's backs, but to unleash and guide the existing potential. The one-two-three punch for doing so: ensure preparation (training, for instance); remove unnecessary and demeaning barriers; and recognize achievement.

These topics were tossed about in a recent discussion of a blue-ribbon task force report on incentives in the public sector. The objective was to induce government managers to mount more quality and productivity experiments, big and small. Their problem was to do so in the government's risk-averse, low-incentive environment. The task force concluded that senior managers should "motivate subordinates to try out more ideas."

Nonsense! After 25 years of practicing and studying management, I have no idea what "motivating people to try anything" means. But I do know, and it was true in this case, that in any sizable system, no matter how stodgy, the laws of probability ensure that a few brave souls already are trying out new ideas. They are doing so because they think it's the right thing to do.

The leader's objective is clear: to provide "it can be done" examples that empower people to try it themselves. The only sure-fire way to do so is via recognition. Laud the building efforts in every forum. Turn the lonely risk-takers into the new role models. Don't "motivate" their peers; expose them to the kind of behavior — already going on — that will now be recognized as meritorious. Chide managers who don't have some interesting tests going on.

Small tests (I call them "small wins") are as worthy of attention as large ones. Recognition for little victories is a powerful way to spur widespread participation. Pat Townsend has crafted a successful quality-improvement process at the Paul Revere Insurance Co. He is adamant about the importance of recognition for the tiniest of victories, even such things as a quality team's decision to move a filing cabinet six feet to the right to improve work flow. He argues that such small achievements previously were viewed to be a bureaucratic pain in the neck. Inducing people to understand that auction per se is valued and possible, rather than risky or a time-wasting nuisance, is the very essence of gaining momentum for the program. Of course, the reward for a half-million-dollar saving is substantially greater than for a rearranged file cabinet. But heartfelt recognition accompanies small and large successes alike.

As with my Sunday-morning routine with the best-seller list, none of us can get enough recognition. But the indiscriminate pat on the back is a step backward — recognition must be for an act of merit, and it must be commensurate with the achievement.

Some appropriate responses include the manager's spontaneous purchase of a cake to recognize a project team that just passed an important milestone on schedule. Serve it yourself at the morning coffee break. Or stage a nice dinner to thank all 60 persons in the distribution center at the end of a laudatory quarter.

But one dinner, whether at McDonald's or Four Seasons, cannot substitute for a well-deserved raise. The point is, one without the other is hollow. An extra dollar per hour (before taxes and other forms of withholding), silently slipped into the paycheck, is as inadequate as a recognition event without a more lasting reward.

Employees come equipped with motivation to a new job, whether a wet-behind-the-ears 19-year-old or a well-seasoned 50-year-old. The leader can either squash that or proactively remove minor barriers and then constantly recognize small accomplishments.

A Marriott property manager I know dashes off 100 thank-you notes a month. Have you recognized — today — a minor improvement or a task well done? Will you commit to seeking a minimum of 10 big or small spontaneous or planned recognition opportunities a month?

Drilling report

These are the latest oil and gas activity reports filed with the Texas Railroad Commission for the five-county crossroads country.

Enduro Oil has filed first production figures on 10 new oil wells in the Moore Field, Howard County. The Nos. 1 Clanton, 1 Frazier "D," 8 Quinn "G," 6 Quinn "EE," and the Nos. 2 & 4 Rosser are located three to seven miles southwest of Big Spring, the No. 3 Gilbert is located three miles west of Big Spring, and the Nos. 91 Guitar "B" and 4 & 5 Ray Phillips "D" are located five to six miles northwest of Big Spring. All 10 wells are in the T&P Survey.

The wells indicated ability to pump oil at the combined rate of 237 barrels per day, plus 176 barrels of water. Total drilling depths ranged from 3,247 to 3,478 feet into the wellbore. Production will be from perforations in the San Andres Formation, ranging from 3,132 to 3,306 feet into the wellbore.

* * *

Rosewood Resources has completed the Nos. 1011 Love and 1011 Mascingill 10 miles northwest of Big Spring. Drillsites are in the T&P Survey, Moore Field.

The wells pumped oil at the combined rate of 321 barrels per day, plus 169 barrels of water. Total drilling depth of each well was 3,300 feet. They will produce from perforations in the San Andres Formation, ranging from 3,156 to 3,302 feet into the hole.

* * *

Graham-McCormick Operating has completed a plug-back for shallower pay at the No. 2 B. Lillard in the J.L.M. Field, Martin County. Drillsite is 12 miles north of Strawn.

The well showed potential to pump 190 barrels of oil per day. It will produce from perforations in the Mississippi Formation, 10,225 to 10,750 feet into the wellbore. Bottomhole was at 10,922 feet.

McCormick Operating Co. was the original operator. The well was spudded March 29, 1981, and flowed 80 barrels of oil per day from Mississippi Formation perforations, 10,562 to 10,750 feet into the hole.

The operation is in the Bauer & Cockrell Survey.

* * *

Four new producers have been brought on line in the Spraberry Trend Field, Martin County, with James B. Lewis Land and Oil of Midland as the operator.

Located 14 miles northwest of Stanton, the wells are in a lease in the T&P Survey. They are designated as the Nos. 1 through 4 Glass "23-B."

The wells pumped oil at the combined rate of 185 barrels per day, plus 347 barrels of water. Total drilling depths ranged from 9,450 to 9,460 feet. The wells will produce from perforations in the Spraberry Formation, ranging from 7,763 to 9,294 feet into the wellbore.

* * *

A Dallas-based operator has staked location for the No. 6 Blass "25," a developmental well in the Eagle Field, Martin County. With projected total depth of 10,700 feet, the well will be drilled in a 465-acre lease in the TP Survey. The operator is Rosewood Resources.

* * *

Pumping 65 barrels of oil per day, plus 62 barrels of water, the No. 1 Casey was completed in the Spraberry Trend Field, Martin County, with HCW Exploration as the operator.

Drillsite is 11 miles northeast of Stantop.

The well was drilled to 11,150-ft. total depth and will produce from a perforated interval in the Spraberry Formation, 7,790 to 7,814 feet into the wellbore.

The location is in a lease in the T&P Survey.

* * *

Martin County's Spraberry Trend Field gained two new producers when Brazos Petroleum completed the Nos. 1 Free and 2 Williams seven miles north and seven miles northwest of Stanton, respectively.

The wells indicated potential to pump oil at the combined rate of 50 barrels per day, plus 233 barrels of water. Total drilling depths were 9,567 and 9,500 feet, respectively. The wells will produce from perforations in the Spraberry Formation, ranging from 7,251 to 9,131 feet into the wellbore.

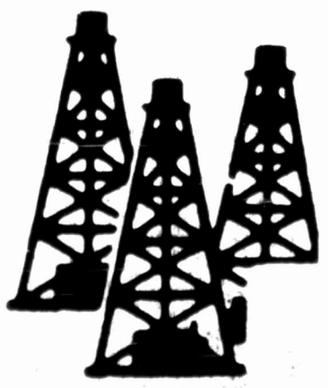

The operations are located in the T&P Survey.

* * *

At a location 10 miles northwest of Stanton, Parker & Parsley Petroleum has finaled a new oil producer in Martin County's Spraberry Trend Field.

The well is designated as the No. 1 Dickenson "B," pumping 34 barrels of oil per day, plus 127 barrels of water.

Location is in the T&P Survey. Bottomed at 9,300 feet, the well will produce from perforations in the Spraberry Formation, 7,462 to 9,138 feet into the wellbore.

* * *

James B. Lewis Land & Oil of Midland is planning to drill six 9,700-ft. developmental wells in the Spraberry Trend Field, Martin County. Drillsites are 17 miles west of Stanton. The locations are in a 480-acre lease in the T&P Survey. Wells' designations are the Nos. 1 through 6 Glass "25." They will be drilled in the Spraberry Trend Field.

* * *

At a location 21 miles southwest of Garden City, Sohio Petroluem has finaled a new oil producer in Glasscock County's Calvin Field.

The well is designated as the No. 11 J.C. Bryans "B," pumping 65 barrels of oil per day.

Location is in a lease in the T&P Survey. Bottomed at 8,700 feet, the well will produce from a set of perforations in the Dean Formation, 8,391 to 8,617 feet into the wellbore.

* * *

Plug-and-abandon orders have been issued for the No. 1 Houston "4," a wildcat venture of Union Texas Petroleum. Drillsite is 17 miles northwest of Garden City, Glasscock County. Spudded March 1, the well bottomed dry at 11,090 feet.

* * *

Dyad Petroleum has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of the No. 1 Mustang Draw, a developmental try in the McDowell Field, Glasscock County.

The well was spudded Dec. 8. It probed to a dry bottom at 2,400 feet, and will be plugged and abandoned.

* * *

A new producer has been brought on line in Borden County's U-Lazy-S Field, with Maynard Oil as the operator.

Located 12 miles northeast of Gail, the well is in a lease in the T&P Survey. It is designated as the No. 105 Slaughter "UL."

The well pumped oil at the rate of 101 barrels per day, along with 130 barrels of water. It was taken to an 8,689-ft. bottom, and will produce from perforations in the Pennsylvania Formation, 8,168 to 8,174 feet into the hole.

* * *

Borden County gained a new producer when Amoco Production completed the No. 4 Pearl Jones, a wildcat venture located three miles northeast of Gail.

The well indicated ability to pump 66 barrels of oil per day, plus 171 barrels of water. Total drilling depth was 8,800 feet, and production will be from a set of perforations in the Strawn Formation, 8,432 to 8,505 feet into the wellbore.

The operation is located in the T&P Survey.

* * *

The same operator has issued plug-and-abandon orders for the No. 3 Pearl Jones, a wildcat venture located three miles north of Gail, Borden County.

Spudded Nov. 21, the well bottomed with no commercial potential at 8,988 feet.

* * *

½ Drillsite has been staked for the No. 1 Sterling Williams, a 9,800-ft. wildcat well in Borden County. The operation will be located six miles southwest of Gail in a 40-acre lease in the T&P Survey. The operator is Amoco Production, based in Brownfield.

* * *

Superior Oil has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of the No. 1 Lawrence Hamilton, a wildcat venture in Borden County.

The well was spudded January 22, and bottomed at 9,880 feet with no indicated commercial prospects. Drillsite was eight miles northwest of Gail.

Alarm clock slows tennis

PARIS (AP)— Top seeds Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova continued to dodge the upset scythe that claimed more victims Friday at the French Open tennis championships, including Sweden's fifth-seeded Anders Jarryd.

The action-packed day was interrupted for about 4,000 spectators when they were evacuated from one area of the Roland Garros stadium during a match when a ticking sound was heard coming from a suitcase under the stands. It turned out to be an alarm clock.

Lendl and Navratilova breezed to straight set victories on the red clay courts, Lendl beating Chris Miniussi of Argentina, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2, while Navratilova ousted Claudia Porwick of West Germany, 6-3, 6-3.

Jarryd was the victim of fellow Swede Ulf Stenlund, who shocked himself with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 victory.

The 19-year old Stenlund joins Lendl of Czechoslovakia, No. 4 Yannick Noah of France, No. 9 Andres Gomez of Ecuador, No. 12 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, No. 13 Johan Krieck of the United States, West Germany's Damir Keretic and Guy Forget of France in the fourth round.

Stenlund did not figure in Sweden's high hopes when the tournament began with four of the top seven seeds representing the Scandinavan country. After five days, those hopes now lie with defending champion and No. 2 seed Mats Wilander, Stenlund, and another upstart, Mikeal Pernfors.

Wilander and Pernfors play their third-round matches Saturday.

Navratilova led the top half of the women's draw into the fourth round, while two seeded Americans — No. 10 Zina Garrison and No. 16 Terry Phelps — were upset. Italian teen-ager Laura Garrone ousted Garrison 6-2, 6-2, and Bulgaria's Katerina Maleeva eliminated Phelps 7-6, 6-0.

Also posting third-round victories were No. 4 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 6 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, No. 7 Kathy Rinaldi of the United States, No. 12 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden and 14-year-old Mary Joe Fernandez of the United States.

The Swedish men's contingent, all of whom were considered strong contenders for the French Open title, included No. 5 Stefan Edberg, No. 6 Joakim Nystrom and Jarryd.

Nystrom, who has won five tournaments this year, tumbled in the first round. Edberg fell in the second round to Pernfors, a Swede who honed his game at an American university.

After losing to Stenlund, who is ranked just 17th in Sweden and 101st in the world, Jarryd was upset and baffled.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "I can't push myself to win. I have no fighting spirit anymore. After the the first set, I had no guts."

Stenlund is playing in his first Nabisco Grand Prix event, having earned enough computer points in satellite tournaments in Morocco, Italy, Austria to gain entry into the 128-player draw. In his only other attempt to play in a Grand Prix tournament, the Stockholm Open, he lost in the first round of qualifying.

The 33-year-old Vilas, the 1977 French Open champion who is making his 15th appearance at Roland Garros, downed Sweden's Jan Gunnarsson 7-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 in a match that was interrupted by the bomb scare.

"I was very calm. I was not scared," Vilas said of the one-hour delay that came in the second set.

Play was halted and more than 4,000 spectators were cleared from the No. 1 court in four minutes after security detected the suspicious package.

"We were not anxious. We did not inform the public" as to why they were being temporarily evacuated, tournament director Patrice Clerc said.

Noah, who in 1983 became the first Frenchman in 37 years to win the title at Roland Garros, struggled to victory for the third straight time, downing Fernando Luna of Spain 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"My ankle was hurting," Noah said. "It was difficult to concentrate. I used a lot of energy to get me through."

Noah said the ankle, which he injured two months ago, then reinjured "two weeks ago at home when I dropped a suitcase on it," was swollen and "is like a sprained ankle."

In the top half of the men's draw, the fourth-round pairings are Lendl against Keretic, Gomez against Stenlund, Noah against Kriek and Vilas against Forget.

Healthy girl born to Mary Decker

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Track star Mary Decker Slaney gave birth Friday to a 7-pound, 5-ounce girl, officials at Sacred Heart General hospital said.

Ashley Lynn Slaney was born at 4:50 a.m., hospital officials said.

The mother, the 1983 world champion in the 1,500 meters and 3,000 meters, and the premier women's middle distance runner in the United States, is married to Richard Slaney, a British discus thrower.

Speed limit at Indy?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Some drivers took in a final few laps of practice for peace of mind. Others were looking for specific problems. Others, confident their cars were race-ready, didn't even show up.

"I just rolled the car around the track to make sure all the wheels still turned," driver Jim Crawford said after Friday's half-hour warm-up, the final chance to test the race cars before Saturday's rescheduled Indianapolis 500.

"We had done a few things to the car through the week, and we wanted to make sure everything was working. Now we're sure. It was really just for a bit of confidence," said Crawford, one of 24 drivers who took advantage of the special practice.

Nine drivers, including former winners Rick Mears, Johnny Rutherford and Al Unser, didn't take their cars onto the track.

A 120-mph speed limit was in effect, meaning the most the drivers could hope for was to be sure there were no leaks and that the brakes were working properly. At that speed, some 90 mph slower than the 33-car field average, there was no way to test the car's handling.

"It was better than nothing, let's put it that way," former winner Tom Sneva said of the restricted practice.

Then, with a wink, he added, "Let's say, I was able to lean on the car a couple times, enough so they shook a finger at me. They wanted us to run less than 75 seconds (120 mph) for a lap, and we did that. But I'm not sure everybody stayed under 120 all the way around."

That didn't really matter, though.

Mario Andretti, for instance, was asked the last time he went 120 mph.

"I was gonna say just the other day on the road, but not really," he laughed.

Driver Al Unser Jr. said the practice was a gamble, "but I'm a race car driver, and I want to go out there and race. I'd like to have seen them give us 30 minutes of green time (no speed limit). That would have helped everybody. This didn't do a thing."

Defending champion Danny Sullivan practiced, but only about seven laps to check out his helmet radio.

"If you can't get it together in the time we've had before, something's wrong and you just don't belong here," Sullivan said.

First Signee

Big Spring High School third baseman Randy Hayworth, shown here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hayworth, signs a baseball scholarship agreement with Howard College Thursday morning. Hayworth is the first signee by HC coach Bill Griffin for the upcoming year. Hayworth batted .344 for the Steers this past season.

Reardon, Expos halt Astro streak at four

Expos 1, Astros 0

HOUSTON (AP) — Bryn Smith and Jeff Reardon combined on a three-hitter and Mike Fitzgerald homered and singled for Montreal's only hits as the Expos defeated the Houston Astros 1-0 Friday night.

Smith, 4-4, allowed only one Houston runner to reach as far as second base in 7 1-3 innings and snapped a two-game personal losing streak. Reardon came on in the eighth inning to record his National League-leading 12th save.

Mike Scott, 4-4, was the loser despite striking out a career-high 11 batters and pitching a two-hitter. Scott's previous career high was 10 strikeouts set May 25 against the Chicago Cubs. Scott, the major-league strikeout leader, increased his season total to 98 in 88 2-3 innings. Scott has struck out nine batters in a game five times this season.

Scott held the Expos in check until the fifth when Fitzgerald hit an 0-1 pitch over the left-field fence. The home run was the fifth of the season for Fitzgerald, equalling his career high.

The defeat snapped Houston's four-game winning streak.

Cubs 6, Braves 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Ryne Sandberg hit two home runs and drove in four runs Friday in support of pitcher Scott Sanderson to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 6-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Sandberg hit a three-run homer off loser Rick Mahler, 4-5, in the first inning after Davey Lopes had singled and Gary Matthews walked. He also homered in the third for his fifth of the season.

It marked the seventh time in his career Sandberg had homered in successive at-bats. The last time he did it was at Atlanta last August.

Sanderson, 3-2, worked six innings and didn't allow a run. He gave up four hits, walked five and struck out four.

Pinch-hitter Billy Sample spolied the shutout when he hit reliever Ray Fontenot's first pitch for his fourth home run in the seventh inning. It Fontenot's first save.

Phillies 2, Padres 0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kevin Gross pitched his fourth complete game and first shutout of the season Friday night as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres, 2-0, for their fourth straight victory.

Gross, 4-5, allowed eight hits, striking out four and walking two. Padres starter Eric Show, 3-3, worked six innings.

Jeff Stone opened the Philadelphia fifth inning with his second single and reached second on a ground out. Juan Samuel singled to center scoring Stone for a 1-0 lead.

Mike Schmidt followed with a single to center which glanced off the glove of center fielder Kevin McReynolds for an error, Samuel scoring and Schmidt reaching second.

Reds 6, Cardinals 4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ron Oester drove in three runs with a pair of homers Friday night as the Cincinnati Reds came from behind to defeat St. Louis 6-4, handing the slumping Cardinals their fifth consecutive loss.

Joe Price, 1-1, pitched 3 2-3 hitless innings in relief of John Denny for his first win since last June, before he was disabled by a sore elbow. John Franco pitched the last three innings for his seventh save.

Loser Ray Burris, 2-1, allowed just three hits in the first five innings, but two of them were homers — Bo Diaz's third of the season with the bases empty in the second, and Oester's liner over the right-center field wall with Diaz on by a walk in the fifth to tie the game 3-3.

Oester's homer was his fourth of the season, matching his combined total for the last two years and saving Denny from his sixth loss.

Royals 12, Rangers 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rudy Law hit three doubles and scored four runs and Steve Balboni and Willie Wilson each homered Friday night to power the Kansas City Royals to a 12-2 rout of the Texas Rangers.

Dennis Leonard, 5-4, gave up six hits through seven innings, struck out four and walked one before giving way to Scott Bankhead. The loss went to Bobby Witt, 2-4.

Two Texas outfielders left the game with minor injuries. Pete Incaviglia twisted the knuckle on the middle finger of his left hand while striking out in the fifth and Gary Ward was hit by a pitch in the first. X-rays on Ward's left elbow were negative, a Rangers spokesman said.

Wilson led off the Royals' first with his fourth home run, then Lonnie Smith walked and scored on Law's first double. A groundout sent Law to third and he made it 3-1 on an infield out by Frank White.

Law walked in the third, took second when Witt threw wildly to first on an attempted pickoff, and scored when shortstop Curtis Wilkerson threw wildly to first.

Balboni doubled leading off the fourth and went to third on an infield out. After Smith walked, Law doubled to score Balboni and put Smith at third. Mickey Mahler then relieved Witt and surrendered a two-run single to George Brett.

Balboni hit his seventh home run leading off the fifth. The Royals loaded the bases in the sixth on Law's double, Brett's walk and White's single. Hal McRae then unloaded a two-run single and Balboni brought White in with an infield out.

Brewers 11, Indians 7

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cecil Cooper drove in five runs with a double and two singles Friday night and Paul Molitor homered, singled and scored three times in his first appearance in three weeks as the Milwaukee Brewers beat Cleveland 11-7, sending the Indians to their sixth straight loss.

Milwaukee rookie left-hander Juan Nieves, 5-1, won his fifth decision without a loss this month, giving up five runs, four of them earned, on 10 hits, striking out three and walking three in six innings. Mark Clear worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the Indians' six-run seventh and went on to gain his third save.

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 0

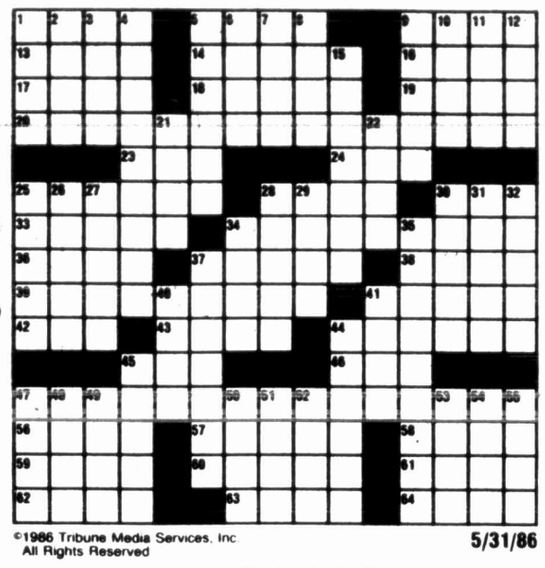

TORONTO (AP) — Dave Stieb, backed by home runs from Rick Leach and Rance Mulliniks, won for the first time in 11 starts this year with a four-hitter Friday night as the Toronto Blue Jays blanked the Chicago White Sox 6-0.

Stieb, the American League earned-run average leader last year, had not won a regular-season game since last Sept. 27 and was 0-6 going into Friday night's game with a 6.83 ERA.

It was the sixth straight loss for Chicago.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

SUNDAY, JUNE 1, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't allow yourself to get involved in any strange schemes early in the day or trouble will rsult, but as the day progresses you find better judgment replaces this influence over you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get into new interests and make the contacts that are profitable inthe morning, and avoid going off on any tangents.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A situation with a new interest can be a little confusing but act in a casual way. Some private aim also needs careful attention.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Stop daydreaming so much and go after your personal goals in the morning. Handle a civic duty carefully8.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) An associate and a public official should be avoided now or you could get into trouble with them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try a new approach and you can get your points across to others easily now. Put aside dull tasks that can be done later.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Count the cost before you gt into new types of recreation. Don't take any unnecessary risks that could bring you a loss.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid the temptation to argue with family or close friends this evening. Go out and visit trusted friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Thinkmore clearly where your ideas are concerned and then put your time and effort on practical affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get out and have a good time instead of fussing over monetary affairs. Stay within your budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have trouble with another over some importanta matter, so stay at home and enjoy your family instead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have an opportunity to be of assistance to others, as you often like to do, so be very helpful today.

PISCS (Feb. 20 to March 20) You have some sticky situations on your hand, and can best solve them with a clever friend who understands you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she may get confused between the old and the new, the modern and the old-fashioned unless given a fine education that will teach how to best combine the best of both. If this can be done, it can be very profitable and this person can be a force for good in the world.

MONDAY, JUNE 2, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon, all sorts of interesting ideas arise by which you will be able to start afresh to win the various outlets that appeal to you and that you want as part of your future.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You get fine new ideas and should put them in operation quickly, since later, prominent persons could deter your progress.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Keep quiet for a while and let good ideas pervade your consciousness, then you can forge ahead quickly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A clever friend has the right course of action for you to follow if you want to get rid of your problems.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get fine talents to the attention of a bigwig and gain support for them easily. Avoid arguments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) This is a good day to make that change you have been contemplating for some time. Plan a trip that can bring greater success.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Change your attitude toward your mate and avoid an argument later on. Show your loyalty and don't go off on any tangents.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to what a clever associate has to suggest and follow advice given to you. Don't permit a family affair to upset you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you get into your duties enthusiastically, you can accomplish more than you think possible now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make arrangements for amusements later, but be sure to count the cost. Handle business affairs wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to get your home improved with the okay of kin, but don't be too forceful in trying to get your way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy early since you can accomplish much more than usual. Don't permit a secret worry to deter you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) You know how to gain more of life's blessings, so go after them early. Steer clear of a pal who is trying to be forceful.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will quickly understand anything of a modern nature, even though living in a staid atmosphere, so be sure to send to the most modern schools that teach such subjects. Spiritual training should come early in life.
