Troops work Iran oil fields

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The military government, in a double blow against anti-shah forces, arrested a key political opposition leader Saturday and ordered troops in to work Iran's strike-bound oil fields.

Violence between protesters and the army flared anew in the southern oil-producing region. Witnesses reported soldiers in the oil city of Ahwaz shot and killed two persons during a brief demonstration. Further details about the incident were not available.

Other reports said American oil workers in the Ahwaz area were sending their families to Tehran or out of the country to escape harassment by striking Iranian oil workers.

Police and soldiers arrested Karim Sanjaby, 71-year-old chief of Iran's major political opposition group, the National Front, at his home as he prepared to hold a news conference.

Sanjaby had returned only Friday to Tehran from Paris, where he had conferred with other Iranian opposition politicians and Ayatullah Khomaini, spiritual head of Iran's 32 million Moslem Shiites a symbol of the campaign against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's government. On his return, Sanjaby rejected the idea of negotitiations with the shah to defuse the political crisis, and an associate vowed the National Front would foment new strikes against the government.

A National Front member said Saturday's Sanjaby news conference was scheduled to announce that opposition politicians would call on the shah to leave the country, paving the way for a provisional government that would hold a referendum on whether to abolish the monarchy.

The oil strike, which began Oct. 31, has deprived Iran of about $60 million a day in oil revenues. Production had dipped from 6 million barrels a day to 1.5 million. But officials of the National Iranian Oil Co. said production had risen to 2 million barrels and was expected to reach between 2.7 and 3 million barrels in the next few days as armed forces technicians moved into the fields.

The order for the military to help get the oil industry back on its feet came after negotiations with the

Cool weather and threatening sky fail to dampen Mahon's big day

By SUSAN TOTH

More than 1,000 well wishers and supporters braved 40-degree weather and cloudy skies to honor George and Helen Mahon at Midland College's Chaparral Center Saturday.

Mahon, the only representative the 19th Congressional District has ever had, is retiring at the end of this term after 44 years in Congress.

"George and Helen Mahon Community Appreciation Day was designed to express the thanks of Midland to the congressman who has done so much for Midland and the country," master of ceremonies W.H. "Bill" Collyns said.

The Mahons were presented with several rememberances of the day, including a framed proclamation from Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and the City Council proclaming Saturday "George and Helen Mahon Day in Midland."

The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee since 1964 also received a bank made from one of the post office boxes from the old Midland Post Office.

The building was torn down to make way for the new Midland Convention Center when the new federal building and post office was built. The new facility has been named in honor of Mahon.

The citizens of Midland also presented the long-time representative with a portrait of the Mahons to hang in the Helen and George Mahon Library in Lubbock.

Mahon expressed his great appreciation for the honors accorded him and for the portrait, but protested on one point.

"I'm really getting concerned here," he joked. "Everyone has referred to the Helen and George Mahon Library. It's the George and Helen Mahon Library. The wives and daughters seem to be taking over, and we have to do our best to hold on."

Davis trial in show-biz phase

By MIKE COCHRAN

HOUSTON (AP) — The murder for-hire trial of Texas millionaire Cullen Davis goes "show-biz" this week, and prosecutors hope the jury finds the plot credible and chilling.

"Good drama doesn't necessarily mean a good lawsuit," smiled prosecutor Jack Strickland of Fort Worth. "But it's going to be a good show."

The FBI production includes a video-taped encounter between Davis and informant David McCrory and features the tape-recordings that form the heart of the state's case.

Prosecutors contend the tape recordings show that Davis discussed with McCrory a scheme to kill a Fort Worth divorce judge and others on an alleged "hit list."

The purported target, Judge Joe Eidson, 60, testified Friday about his role in the FBI scenario designed to trap Davis, 45.

Eidson posed last August 19 for FBI photographs depicting his blood-spattered body crumpled in the trunk of a car. He then secluded himself in a hotel room until after Davis' arrest the next day.

He said he was "shaken" by the episode.

Two FBI agents, an FBI photographer and Judge Eidson appeared for the state during the first week of testimony, mostly to provide the "technical predicate" for McCrory and the corroborative physical evidence.

"I'm sure everybody is anticipating the more dramatic aspects of the case," said Strickland, 35, the handsome, wise-cracking ace of the prosecutorial team.

"They want to see David McCrory, which is all well and good. But from my perspective, the star witness of the show is the tape recordings. The tapes are the hard physical evidence. And while it may seem very dry and very boring, I feel strongly that they are going to be the significant part of the case.

"The defense wants to put the focus of attention on McCrory. I tend to think that what we have here is David McCrory corroborating our main evidence, which is the tapes."

The million-dollar defense team views the tapes in a different perspective.

"Our position on the tapes is that they show only that there was a meeting between David McCrory and Cullen Davis," said Dallas defense lawyer Mike Gibson. "I don't think anyone at this juncture takes issue with that fact.

Water: The next crisis

By MARK VOGLER
R-T Staff Writer

LUBBOCK — West Texas, one of the richest agricultural and oil-producing regions in the country, is searching hard for something that money can't buy in these parts — water.

And a group of water resources experts convening here at a symposium on water last week said unless the region develops plans aimed at conservation and tapping new resources, the West Texas water crisis will make the energy crisis look like a bed-time story.

The problem is clearcut: Current resources are being depleted faster than rainfall can replenish them. Greater agricultural and oil production each year exert increased demands on the Ogallala Aquifer and the water reservoirs that serve the region.

How do you avoid a major water crisis before it occurs?

There's no one solution to the problem, according to the water experts.

But there are a few alternatives, which, if used with current water sources, could prolong future supplies.

The issues and ramifications of the West Texas water situation will be the subject of a seven-part series beginning next Sunday.

recycling of waste and storm water, use of playa lakes, cloud seeding and conservation by agriculture and industry were some of the measures discussed at the two-day water symposium.

Weather sure is getting . . .

By The Associated Press

Snow and bitter cold brought new shivers to the Midwest Saturday as a storm system dumped more than a foot of snow over the Rockies and up to 18 inches in Wyoming and pushed freezing rain across the Plains.

Northern Utah had heavy snow and fierce canyon winds, which gusted up to 110 mph Saturday morning just north of Salt Lake City. There was some damage to buildings, but no injuries were reported.

Lander, Wyo., reported 18 inches of snow and nine inches accumulated in Ely, Nev. No.

Travelers advisories and winter storm warnings and watches were in effect from Minnesota to the Texas panhandle, from Idaho to Nevada, and in Arizona and New Mexico.

Heavy snow warnings were confined mostly to higher mountain elevations, with one to three inches of snow reported at lower levels. Snow changed to freezing rain from Kansas to the Texas panhandle.

A flash-flood watch in central Arizona expired after heavy rain caused flooding in the Phoenix area.

Rainshowers were scattered along southern Florida and the coast of Texas. Rain, freezing rain and snow were found from the Texas Panhandle through South Dakota and into the Ohio Valley.

Frost or freeze warnings were posted for portions of California, including the San Joaquin, Sacramento and Salinas valleys.

The forecast for Sunday called for scattered rainshowers from the lower Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast into New England. Rain was expected to extend from Minnesota to Missouri and through Texas and Arizona, changing to snow from northern Minnesota to Colorado and the mountains of northern Arizona, through Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, the Dakotas and western Nebraska.

Rain was forecast for the Pacific

. . . more and more wintery here, there

The sun must have been hiding Saturday — or traded places with the moon.

It was one of those days when the high temperature, 55 degrees, came shortly after midnight while the low point, 41 degrees, came at both midmorning and midafternoon.

Such were the conditions of a very dark and overcast day which reminded Permian Basin residents Indian summer may be over and winter may be upon us.

A sweater may have been in order late Friday night. But most folks probably needed an overcoat for the good part of Saturday.

It's not quite cold enough yet for snow, though, according to the weatherman who was predicting a little warmer weather for today with a slight chance of showers through tonight.

There's a 30 percent chance of rain today and 20 percent tonight. Today's high is expected to be in the upper 50s. The low tonight should be in the middle 40s. Monday's high is expected to be in the middle 60s.

Monday's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with warmer temperatures.

The day's high and low, while a bit confusing for the time of days, did not

Mexico City police rescue Spanish wine heiress

By GORDON MOTT

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police commandos burst into a downtown house early Saturday and rescued unharmed the kidnapped heiress of a famous Spanish winemaker.

Authorities reported six suspects were seized and two men escaped as the police, known as Black Commandos because of their black uniforms, charged into the 20-room house where Brianda Domecq de Rodriquez was being held.

Miguel Nasser, chief of the federal security division, said the demanded ransom of $5 million had not been paid. He told reporters the rescue operation was mounted after one member of the kidnap gang was arrested earlier and told interrogators where the victim was being held.

"There was no political motive in the case," he said. "It was just a business of kidnapping."

The 36-year-old American born victim said in a a telephone interview with The Associated Press that she thought the nightmare was being repeated when black-clad policemen smashed through the door of the hideout.

"I thought it was a new kidnapping," said Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez, the mother of two and a daughter of wealthy Spanish wine merchant Pedro Domecq. She said she was abducted Oct. 30 when her auto was cut off by two vehicles in a narrow street and two men jumped into her car, blindfolded her and told her to lie down.

She was held in a house near the center of Mexico City until the police rescue at about 1 a.m. Saturday. She was not mistreated, she said, but "I learned to live blind. It was incredible."

Authorities had been informed immediately of the abduction but kept their involvement secret "so as not to endanger the victim's life," said police spokesman Rodolofo Leam.

Nasser said the alleged leader of the kidnap ring, Alfredo Lara Navarrete, 45, had been seized in a restaurant in the northern part of the city and told police about the hideaout during questioning. The restaurant had been staked out after a ransom note was dropped there, he said.

Nasser, disputing earlier police reports, said no ransom was paid.

A police spokesman, asked to explain the conflicts between Nasser's account and earlier police reports saying the ransom money had been recovered, said the federal police had kept many details of the case from the local police.

Family members said the hospitalization of 77-year-old Pedro Domecq, who resides in Mexico City, was a federal police ploy designed to win sympathy from the kidnappers. It had been reported that he was suffering from a heart ailment aggravated by the strain of the kidnapping.

Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez said of her abductors, "They knew what they were doing. They were professionals. But I don't think they had any political ties."

Nasser said Lara Navarrete and the six other suspects have been linked to "at least three kidnappings that netted several million dollars." He said members of the ring were paid about $600 a month.

The kidnappers telephoned Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez' husband, Dr. Fernando Rodriguez Campillo, three times before they sent him a note she had signed.

Born in New York City, Mrs. Domecq de Rodriguez grew up in Mexico City and attended American High School. Her father, a third-generation member of the wine-and-sherry-producing family from southern Spain, moved a branch of the family business to Mexico 20 years ago.

Mrs. Domecq de Rodriquez has a 15-year-old son and a 10-year-old daughter. "I thought I would never see them again," she said in the interview.

State to try McInnis prosecution

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — State prosecutors will try to succeed where federal prosecutors failed, as pretrial motions in the murder-solicitation case of suspended Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis are heard here Monday.

McInnis has been named in a state indictment alleging he plotted in April to have a friend's ex-husband lured into Mexico and killed.

In June, a Brownsville federal grand jury indicted McInnis, 62, and Patricia Parada, 24, of McAllen, in connection with alleged plot. Both were also named in subsequent perjury indictments.

However, skillful arguments by defense attorney Frank Maloney of Austin, convinced U.S. Dist. Judge Robert O'Conor that there were no grounds for the federal conspiracy charge. The perjury counts also were dropped.

The state prosecution — led by special prosecutor Michael Hinton of Houston — will ask visiting State District Judge Vernon Harville of Corpus Christi to move the trial out of the Rio Grande Valley. Interim District Attorney Preston Henrichson said widespread front-page publicity of the case will make it difficult to find an impartial jury here.

Maloney said the defense will seek a local trial.

Attorneys who have kept a close eye on the case say McInnis probably would benefit from a local trial. The veteran prosecutor is still highly respected in the county and last week was unopposed in his bid for a fourth term as the top law enforcment official.

The prosecution has subpoened area newsmen in an attempt to document the widespread publicity.

The defense has countered with about 25 motions for the judge to consider.

Maloney said the defense will argue that state and federal investigators improperly entrapped McInnis. Much of the evidence was gathered by a tape recorder concealed on a prisoner who McInnis allegedly asked to arrange the slaying of Noe Villanueva. McInnis purportedly promised to aid the prisoner's parole efforts in return for carrying out the alleged plot.

A recently enacted state law regarding entrapment will be the basis of the defense argument, Maloney said.

Nurse who battled bureaucracy to save marriage dies at home

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — A nurse who battled government bureaucracy to save her marriage to a paralyzed man has died of a brain hemorrhage, her family says.

Louise Schnebelt, 24, collapsed and died at her home last Wednesday after a day of Christmas shopping. Her husband, Dale, 23, paralyzed from the neck down since he was injured on a canoeing trip, called out in vain throughout the night after his wife's collapse. Mrs. Schnebelt's mother discovered her body Thursday.

Schnebelt, in a state of shock from his wife's death, was in satisfactory condition Saturday at Mercy Hospital in Cadillac.

"They didn't have a very happy life, but they did at least have one happy year together," William Edwards, Mrs. Schnebelt's father, said Friday. "We always felt that somewhere down the road there would be some happiness for her and maybe this is God's way of doing it."

The two attracted national attention after they were thrown into a financial plight because of state and federal regulations which cut off welfare funds when they got married.

They had met at a nursing home in Flint. When they became friends, they moved to an apartment and Louise quit her job to provide the constant care that Dale needed.

After they were married, the state Department of Social Services notified Mrs. Schnebelt in the fall of 1976 that she no longer was eligible for $270 a month as a nursing services payment. Wives who care for their husbands, said the state workers, were ineligible to receive the payments. The Social Security Administration said Dale's federal disability benefits would be cut by 50 percent.

Government workers advised the couple to get a divorce and live together so that they could continue to receive assistance. The alternative was returning Schnebelt to a nursing home.

In the following eight months, Michigan Gov. William Milliken interceded on their behalf, a federal judge issued an injunction and the Social Security Administration reversed its ruling.

Services said for Rockwell

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Berkshire mountain neighbors said farewell Saturday to artist Norman Rockwell, who was eulogized as "a townsman, a neighbor, a friend."

About 300 persons filled St. Paul's Episcopal Church for the 35-minute funeral service while about 200 others stood quietly outside. Boy Scouts, a group frequently illustrated by Rockwell, stood as honor guards on the walkways leading to the church.

David H. Wood, director of a Rockwell museum in Stockbridge, eulogized: "I think of Norman Rockwell as a townsman. He did not seek seclusion or special treatment.

"He lived with us and among us. A very special relationship came about between us. In a sense, he was a townsman of the world as much as of Stockbridge. Now he is a townsman of a stiller town."

The Rev. Theodore H. Evans Jr. opened the service by calling it one "of thanksgiving ... for the life of our friend, Norman Rockwell."

Seated in the front pews were Rockwell's third wife, Molly, and his three sons by his second marriage — Thomas, Peter and Jarvis.

With Jarvis and five local friends of Rockwell serving as pallbearers, the artist's maple casket was taken to Stockbridge Cemetery for burial next to the grave of his second wife, Mary, who died in 1959.

Rockwell was laid to rest beneath a simple granite marker in the family plot set off by hedges.

'Cream puffs they ain't,' but those squeaking wheels are in big demand

SHREWSBURY, N.J. (AP) — Hard as he tries, Larry Cohen is nowhere near Number Two. Or three, or four. Status isn't his bag.

Cohen, a peppy number with a large, roomy exterior and, at 29, plenty of mileage left, is the proprietor of a fast-accelerating enterprise on the Jersey shore called Larry's Rent-A-Wreck.

"Cream puffs they ain't," he says of his unwashed fleet of squeakers and rattlers, "but if you want dependable wheels that will get you where you want to go at bargain rates, I'm the guy to see."

To see Larry Cohen, you drop in at his office — serviceable interior, clean upholstery, slightly worn carpet, H and AC — and try to get in a word between phone calls.

"Sorry, sir," he says again and again into a phone jammed between ear and shoulder, "not a car left on the lot. Try me Saturday."

The lot is a fenced dirt yard out behind the garage and body shop. It is where his 40 wrecks wait to be rented, but do not wait long.

"I could use 40 more," Cohen said. "I tell you, this is a can't-lose business. Well, I damn near lost my shirt there for a time, but not because business was slow. I overextended myself. Business has been good from day one."

That was nearly two years ago. Cohen owned a used-car lot. One day, staring idly at his inventory, he had a brainstorm.

"I wasn't looking to compete with the big car-rental agencies. All I was thinking was that those perfectly good cars ought to be put to use while they were waiting to be sold.

"I went to some local garages and body shops and told them if they had customers whose cars would be tied up to send them to me. I'd rent them a car they could use temporarily.

"After three months I was out of the used car business and into the rent-a-wreck business."

Cohen does admit, though, that he was not unaware of a man in Los Angeles who rented used cars.

"His name is Dave Schwartz. I contacted him. His operation is much different. Some of his customers are movie stars who want to travel unrecognized, or be campy. They want real clunkers. You know Californians.

"What I rent are plain used cars. All right, some are very used cars, but not wrecks. That's just for advertising. I couldn't get away with renting anything that isn't sound, not in this state.

"I try to keep cars that are about five or six years old, about the age of most people's family cars. What they rent from me is what they drive themselves.

Hill's portrayal as a big spender said fatal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements' portrayal of Attorney General John Hill as a high-spending professional politician was a major factor in Clements' election as governor, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Saturday.

Bullock said Clements also was helped by a superior job of getting out the Republican vote, a tendency of Democrats to vote independently in November and his endorsement by Gov. Dolph Briscoe's children.

The comptroller, a veteran politician, was interviewed on State Capitol Dateline, a production of the Wendell Mayes stations.

Bullock said the new revenue estimate he submits to the Legislature in January will show $3 billion available for spending increases.

In analyzing the election, Bullock said Republican boxes throughout the state had a heavy turnout, while voters stayed home in solidly Democratic precincts.

"One way they did it was money. ... Seven million dollars is what Mr. Clements spent. That comes out to $6 a vote," Bullock said.

Bullock said he would cooperate with the new governor — "He's my governor, too" — even though he is of another party.

"I have met him before and talked with him. He seems like a very sincere man to me. ... He reminds me of an old-time Texan. He looks you in the eye. If you make a statement to him, he expects you to live up to that statement," he said.

Bullock said Hill ran a good campaign but could not undo the damage of some of Clements' campaign statements.

He said he had predicted that Hill would beat Clements.

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: A travelers advisory will be in effect through early Sunday. Freezing rain may fall in the Panhandle through early Sunday causing hazardous driving conditions. There will be scattered showers but it will not be as cold in most sections Sunday and Sunday night. It will be partly cloudy and warmer Monday. Highs Sunday near 50 in the north to the mid 70s in the Big Bend. Lows Sunday night will range from 35 to 47. Highs Monday will be mostly in the 60s.

Alternatives to current usage of water explored

partment of Water Resources, warned failure to explore new avenues of stretching West Texas water ultimately could shake the economy of the rest of the nation.

A drastic reduction in available water supplies would shut down oil production in the Permian Basin, the heart of energy production in West Texas, according to Grubb.

Also at stake, he said, is the agricultural productivity of the Texas High Plains — which since 1970 has accounted for 66 percent of the cotton, 53 percent of the grain sorghum, 72 percent of the wheat and 82 percent of the fed-beef production in the entire state.

"We in Texas realize that water supply for food and fiber production is essential in providing adequate supplies to feed and clothe the nation, with hopefully enough additional production to at least maintain the nation's current position in world trade," said Grubb.

"To fail to assure adequate future water supplies for our state's major producing area, the Texas High Plains, will relegate this area to the economic and environmental ravages of dryland farming, with associated dislocation of some of our state's best farming expertise and loss of vital production for our consumers and for the nation."

Studies made by the Texas Department of Water Resources indicate that in 1974 the total quantity of water in storage in the Ogallala underlying the Texas High Plains was 340.1 million acre-feet. Pumpage in 1974 was about 8.4 million acre-feet, of which about 8.1 million acre-feet was for irrigation.

Grubb said estimates for the year 2000 indicate that 3.5 million acre-feet would be available annually from the Ogallala, and that this quanitity of water can be expected to irrigate about 3.2 million acres in the Texas High Plains.

By 2030, water available from the Ogallala is expected to decline to about 2.2 million acre-feet, and the volume of water in storage would dip to 134.5 million acre-feet.

"There's no excuse for wasting one drop of water in an area such as ours," said Felix Ryals, manager of the Panhandel Water Conservation District.

"We owe it to ourselves to use the water we have wisely. And we ought to consider water importation and also take a close look at recycling some of the waste water we have."

Lloyd V. Urban, civil engineering professor at Texas Tech University, said treated waste water constitutes a vital resource which can be coupled with other water conservation alternatives in a long-term water management program.

Waste water treated at various levels can be suited for municipal, industrial, agricultural, recreational and groundwater recharge uses, according to Urban.

In the Permian Basin, waste water can be a very valuable resource in industrial processing and use in deep well injection for secondary oil recovery.

And in the Texas High Plains where agriculture is abundant, treated waste water — with a natural built-in fertilizer — can be resourceful for irrigating crops.

Watering lawns, stocking water for swimming pools and creating man-made lakes are some of the other uses of what is commonly known as waste water, Urban said.

Urban rainwater runoff, either ignored or considered a flooding problem to most cities, can be turned into a valuable water resource, according to Hayward Ramsey, of the civil engineering department at Texas Tech University.

"This may seem far-fetched, but it's part of the option. With some innovative community research, it may be another method of augmenting our water supplies in the West Texas area," he said.

The average homeowner, by setting up a drainage and water storing system of his own, can collect runoff for lawn and shrub irrigation, use in a swimming pool and even as an auxiliary source of potable water.

Firefighting water supply, street washing, cooling water and irrigation of parks and public grounds are some of the municipal uses rain runoff can serve, Ramsey said.

Playa lakes, scattered throughout West Texas, also provide another alternative to irrigation, recreation and recharge uses.

However, Marvin D. Dvorecek, chairman of the Texas University agriculture engineering department, said playa lakes for the most part constitute "an ill-used resource" which usually is consumed through evaporation.

Many gather for Mahon festivities

over the years:

"The first thing we know you did right was to marry Helen Dec. 21, 1923," Feldt said, noting the couple will celebrate their 55th anniversary next month.

Since Mahon's first election in August 1934, he has served the area and the country with distinction, Feldt continued. Mahon was appointed to the Appropriations Committee in 1939 and served as chairman of the group since 1964.

"Mr. Mahon was able to achieve in Congress not because of the powerful position he held, but from the respect he earned from his fellow members of Congress," Feldt said.

Feldt noted Mahon has served through the administrations of seven presidents, after starting out in the cotton lands of Mitchell County.

"There must be no greater feeling in the world after completing one's chosen career than to know he has made a difference," the chamber president continued. "For those of us in Midland, it makes a difference that it was our Congressman who made a difference throughout the country."

In his remarks to the crowd, Mahon noted "I'm not retiring, just entering private life.

"I don't believe in retiring," he said.

He had high praise for the citizens of Midland who had gathered to honor him.

"Midland is not just another town," he said. "Midland is a dynamic city, a unique city, and it has been great to be a part of this community all these years."

"I always thought of myself as a modest man, an unassuming man. One who did not seek the headlines," Mahon said. "But after seeing these pictures and hearing some of the things that have been said here today, I may have to reassess that opinion," he joked.

"It seems some of the things they have said about me have been at least partially true."

If the opinion of the crowd could be a measure, everything they have said about him — and more — was true.

Temperatures were expected to be cool or cold from the Pacific Coast through Texas, across the Ohio Valley and Great Lakes, to the Atlantic Coast from New England to Virginia.

Temperatures around the nation Saturday afternoon (at 2 p.m. EST) ranged from 85 degrees in Miami to 0 in Great Falls, Mont.

Western U.S.: Los Angeles 56 cloudy, Phoenix 70 showers, Salt Lake City not available, San Diego 60 showers, San Francisco 47 cloudy, Seattle 41 fair.

Canada: Montreal 54 cloudy, Toronto 55 hazy.

Demolition team to examine find

A team of U.S. Army demolition experts from Fort Bliss near El Paso is expected to arrive in Midland Monday to inspect potentially explosive material buried near the Abbott Building Co. property off West Highway 80, according to city Fire Department authorities.

What appear to be wires from blasting caps possibly attached to dynamite were unearthed by persons who were digging in the area, local officials said Saturday.

Two deputies from the Midland County Sheriff's Department were dispatched to the scene about 1:22 p.m., as were Odessa firefighters, said Battalion Chief Doyle Land of the Midland Fire Department, who was on the scene.

"It looked like there were some red and yellow wires which were dug up probably by a front-end loader and those wires could be attached to some dynamite," Land said.

"We've decided to leave it alone. We don't know whether the blasting caps have already been blown off or not. We think there has been some blasting done there before."

A Texaco service station and several other buildings are located nearby and could be threatened if there is actually some dynamite buried, according to Land.

Within close range of the rocks where the wires were discovered set three underground fuel tanks, he said.

Detailing the muscles of a horse of clay is Stanton's ranch hand and sculptor-artist Don Turner. His hobby has become profitable. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

By GUY SULLIVAN
R-T Staff Writer

STANTON — He's a farm hand, ex-rodeo clown and former U.S. Army Green Beret soldier.

However, the modest West Texan also has another interest.

Fact is, Don Turner's two years of on the "V" Bar Ranch outside Stanton have allowed him to turn an artistic hobby into a profitable part-time job.

Born in Turkey, hometown of the late creator of the "Western Swing" sound, Bob Wills, Turner hardly looks the artist his bronzed sculptured western pieces prove him to be.

He wears cowboys boots and jeans and talks with keen interest of the modern-day western life.

He said a friend in Fort Worth convinced him to pursue the hobby.

Requests for his modern era western pieces of cattle, horses and cowboys are on order from people as far away as Canada, Turner said.

The graduate of the Class of 1964 at Turkey High School said he didn't just plunge into the sculptoring end of the art world.

Turner said he sort of worked his way to his present status.

Right out of high school, he snared a job as an artist for Cattlemen magazine, based in Fort Worth.

He expanded upon his natural talent there between 1964 and 1967 before signing up for four years service with the Army, which included a stint in Vietnam.

Back in 1976, Turner sculpted a bull's head out of clay and entered it in the Martin County Fair, where the piece won first prize.

"There aren't too many people doing modern western scenes today," he said. "I try and do modern type cattle, not longhorn steers and Indians like other artists have done.

"I want to sculpt life on a ranch today," he said.

Turner said he has appeared on an Abilene television show, asked to make a return appearance and been invited to be on an Amarillo television program.

"Why, a man down near San Angelo has even asked me to do a bronze piece of a coyote," declared Turner.

The popularity of his work may stem from the time and meticulous effort he puts into each piece.

If he is not working, Turner said, he can finish a small detailed animal piece in two week's time.

That's short, compared to his normal length of time per subject, because of his full-time job showing champion Hereford cattle around the Southwest and keeping up with chores on the "V" Bar Ranch.

Turner first draws his subjects on paper.

Next, he seeks out books about animal anatomy from the offices of veterinarians.

Turner then develops a wire skeleton similar to the forms of the animals he sees in the anatomy books.

He then puts the clay on his wire skeletons and develops the animals or cowboys or whatever the subjects are.

"I shape the animals just like the pictures I look at as I sculpt," he said.

He admitted the process takes more time. But he added, "I feel I can get surfaces just right where I want them. On animals, once I sculpt them, I go back and I put hair on them, too."

He has a comfortable, carpeted upstairs loft for a studio in the country home he shares with a fellow farm hand at the "V" Bar Ranch.

Up there, nearly surrounded by mirrors, Turner painstakingly molds the clay into the exact likenesses he wishes it to become.

The mirrors, he said, aid him in recreating the shapes of the subjects being worked on.

When rains come, Turner said he can devote more time to his hobby because on such days not much can be done on a cattle ranch.

"I'm trying to get into art full-time now," he said.

"I'm doing what I like and I'm doing it about what I know."

Paul Tadlock, a Fort Worth artist, is the man who Turner said furnished him the clay for his first efforts in bronze two years ago.

"He keeps telling me I should get into it full-time by saying I'll become the modern-day Charles Russell," said Turner with a laugh.

However, he insists, "I'm just trying to do what I know. I think the best teachers I've had as far as training, have been the old cowboys and cattlemen of West Texas, because they can look at a cow and tell you if you've got it right."

Turner said the point he's trying to make is that modern day West Texas life "should be preserved. Some artists are doing it, but not that many."

He also said he hopes one day he can help someone "because I've had a lot of people help me further my artistic goals."

The man who calls his hobby "Kowboy" art, said such works as his detailed, "Going To Water" piece which features a mother and a calf calf on their way to a watering hole sell for $900 per bronze cast "with or without the rancher's brands."

"Being a working ranch hand, I have studied cattle and horses and know the bone and muscle structures of each animal I do," Turner said.

He also knows what direction he's headed, too.

come close to any records. The record high for Nov. 11 is 83 degrees set in 1964. The record low for today is 19 degrees set in 1932.

Meanwhile, freezing rain iced portions of the Texas Panhandle Saturday, and the National Weather Service said more sleet was expected Sunday. A traveler's advisory was isseud for Northwest Texas.

The icy blast — the first freezing precipitation of the season for Texas — was part of a cold front that entered the state Friday and rolled passed a line from Marfa to Austin to Tyler during the day Saturday, snapping mild Indian summer conditions.

"We had 72-degree weather yesterday. Now it's sleeting here and 28," said police dispatcher Marguerite Carpenter of Dalhart. "The ice is sticking to the highway and we've had three accidents so far today."

Freezing rain was also reported in Amarillo at 1 p.m., where it was 31 degrees.

More precipitation was forecast for the entire state Sunday as a storm system from the west moves into the state to combine with the cold air from the north.

The weather service called for a 50 per cent chance of freezing rain Sunday in Northwest Texas, where low temperatures were expected to dip into the 20s. Cooler temperatures and rain were forecast for most other areas of the state.

Traveler's warnings were posted for northern and western parts of New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle, far west Texas and in mountainous parts of southeastern New Mexico. Some heavy snow was forecast for major skiing areas, but none adequate enough for skiing yet, according to the weatherman.

Rape suspect held, released

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A man who tried to help Berkeley police find "Stinky," a foul-smelling rapist linked to at least 62 assaults, was arrested and held for four days on suspicion of being the attacker.

"I worked with police for two months on the case and I didn't even get a thank you," said ex-convict Walter Taylor, 44. "All I got was arrested eight months later."

Police have refused to comment on the arrest, which was made public Saturday. The affidavit supporting Taylor's arrest warrant has been sealed and police will not say what led them to suspect him.

Report minimizes threat of marijuana poisoning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight months after HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. touched off concern over paraquat-contaminated marijuana, a federal drug agency has toned down its estimate of the hazard posed to heavy marijuana smokers.

The heavy users still could run a risk of permanent lung damage from smoking Mexican marijuana tainted by the tasteless, odorless, colorless but poisonous herbicide, according to a final report released Saturday by the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

But the institute fixed the danger level at five marijuana cigarettes daily for a year, with each containing 500 parts per million of paraquat. It makes no mention of a risk for occasional smokers.

The institute, an agency within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, had said in its preliminary report last March that the danger existed for anyone who for several months smoked three to five joints daily containing 450 parts per million of paraquat.

It also indicated in its preliminary report that there could be a risk for those who smoked less often or fewer contaminated joints.

In its final report, the institute also warned that pot smokers have more to worry about than just paraquat contamination. The institute said regular marijuana smoke contains more cancer-causing agents than tobacco smoke.

The NIDA report cited a 1975 study that compared to tobacco smoke, marijuana smoke contains a higher percentage of carcinogens known to produce tumors in certain animals.

It also cited a recent study that found chronic marijuana smokers — those who smoke five or more joints a day — had less ability to exhale air than those who smoked 16 or more cigarettes a day. The recent study said tars from marijuana smoke were shown to produce tumors in laboratory-tested animals.

Califano's warning on paraquat last March 12 created a stir within the nation's marijuana-smoking community. Users reacted with fear about the safety of their marijuana and resentment of the U.S. role in supplying $35 million to Mexico to support spraying the herbicide on poppy and marijuana fields.

There was a brief but frenzied flurry of private labs offering paraquat analysis and sales of a do-it-yourself test kit that later was found not to work.

The PharmChem Research Foundation of Menlo Park, Calif., became a clearinghouse for marijuana tests, and reported finding paraquat on 30 to 50 percent of the pot that smokers sent in anonymously. But the federal Center for Disease Control double-checked its results in August and found only 2 percent of the samples were contaminated.

The report released Saturday was based on examination of Mexican marijuana confiscated by the Drug Enforcement Administration in California, Texas and Arizona in 1976 and 1977.

Thirteen of 100 lots were contaminated. Institute scientists said all 13 were in 61 lots seized after Oct. 22, 1976, however, so they pegged the contamination rate at 21 percent.

But they admitted they had no way of telling if 21 percent of the marijuana actually sold on the street was contaminated. The institute says it knows of no confirmed cases of paraquat poisoning.

The institute's 13 contaminated lots contained traces of paraquat ranging from 3 to 2,264 parts per million, with an average of 455 parts per million. However, only five of the lots contained more than 92 parts per million, the institute added.

The institute report said about 97 percent of any paraquat in marijuana is destroyed harmlessly when the cigarette is lighted. But it said the heavy smoker of a cigarette contaminated with 500 parts per million still could inhale 1 part per million with each joint.

Paraquat is used by some U.S. farmers for weed control in orchards and elsewhere. The government stipulates that the fruit cannot contain more than 0.5 parts per million before marketing.

Congress voted this summer to give Mexico $13.5 million more for its poppy and marijuana eradication program, but stipulated that something must be added to the paraquat to make it obvious to smokers. U.S. officials are working on a foul-smelling extract made from oranges to be used as the additive.

Textbooks in 19 areas adopted by state board

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some $40 million worth of new textbooks in 19 subject areas — including a book branded "junk" by a feminist board member — were adopted Saturday by the State Board of Education.

Up to five books per subject, ranging from grade school penmanship to high school history, were certified to local school boards, which will choose the ones they want their districts to use.

Virginia Currey, board member from Arlington, was outvoted in an attempt to reject two American history books, Laidlaw's "Foundations of Freedom" for eighth-graders and "Challenge and Change" for high school students.

She argued they failed to depict the contributions made by women and minority groups.

Ms. Currey had only three votes out of 14 for her motion.

She cited a report released Friday that girls did less well than boys on a standardized citizenship test given 35,000 Texas students.

Women are virtually omitted from "Challenge and Change" except for cartoons of a flapper and of "Miss Liberty in scanty panties urging the boys to go to war," Ms. Currey said.

"This is not the dignity of women. Is it any wonder that little girls taking a citizenship test in school see no place for them in the political system, with that kind of junk to read? You should all be ashamed to put such junk in the hands of school children," she said.

The board reversed a preliminary decision it made Friday and approved the Economy Co.'s "Keys to Reading" series of supplementary readers.

Career not over

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he isn't ending his political career and might even attempt a comeback in 1982.

"I'm certainly not closing the door on running again. I intend to remain politically active, so we'll see what the future brings," he said following a speech to the Texas Research League on Friday.

He said he never campaigned for Attorney General John Hill, who defeated him in the Democratic primary only to fall to Bill Clements in the general election, because Hill never asked him to.

"I campigned for those who asked for my help," he said.

Briscoe's wife, Janey, said she doubted the election's outcome was influenced by the fact that the Briscoe children campaigned for Clements and that she said publicly Clements would make a better governor than Hill.

The governor said he is interested in helping the Democratic Party pick up the pieces after Tuesday's loss of the governor's race and a U.S. Senate seat to the Republicans.

"I don't see a fight over Democratic leadership. The problem is, what is there to lead," he said.

CLEAN HEAT?

Whenever there is any kind of discussion regarding various heating fuels, the matter of "clean" heat often comes up. One type of fuel is supposed to be "cleaner" than another. And a "cleaner" fuel allegedly means a cleaner home.

The term "clean" as used in this sense is meaningless and actually nonsense. A properly working heating system, regardless of the fuel that's used, is a sealed system. Products of combustion therefore won't get into the home. Dust can be found in homes that are heated electrically, and no one can say the dust comes from the fuel used to produce electric power!

Dust is found in homes not because of the fuel that's used but because of the result of the heating function. Heated air expands, becomes lighter, and rises. Cool air falls and takes the place of the hot air and with it, dust is deposited. The dust comes into the home through doors, windows, cracks or other openings. It's also brought in by people coming in from the outside-not from the type of fuel used.

Pecan show plans readied

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

Clearing weather and sunshine returned to the West Texas area last week. Cotton producers need some dry, open weather to permit the cotton harvest to get under way. The crop is short this year due to the extreme dry growing season and the unusual wet conditions this fall have threatened to cause further crop loss. The rains have been beneficial to native rangelands and cool season crops of small grains.

THE FINAL SESSION of a beef cattle short course is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the County Extension Office, Courthouse Annex, 218 W. Illinois St. The short course being conducted by area extension livestock and range specialists, will discuss supplements for cattle from the standpoint of how to select the most practical and economic program of supplementation based on forage supplies and quality and the animal's productive cycle and body condition. All persons interested in beef cattle production are invited to attend.

DAVID HARRIS, chairman of the Second Annual Midland County Pecan Show, says plans are complete for the event, to be staged this year on Nov. 27 and 28 at Dellwood Mall Shopping Center. Judging of the show will be done Nov. 27, and the entries and winners will be on display at the mall all day Nov. 28.

All entries must be in by 5:00 p.m. Nov. 25, 1978. Pecans for entry may be left at the County Agent's Office, Courthouse Annex, C.A.&L. Pecan Co., Rankin Highway, or Shirley Barrigan's office, Dellwood Mall, Midkiff and Illinois St. Homeyard pecan growers as well as commercial producers may enter.

Following are some guidelines for selecting nut samples for pecan shows. A grower can enter one sample of each variety which he grows. He can enter as many seedling, known hybrids, or natives as he wishes. Homeyard growers who do not know tree varieties may enter them marked as such and the show judges will classify them.

Select 40 to 50 of the heaviest nuts from each variety by weigthing them individually or putting them in water and select those which sink the fastest. Select nuts which are free of insect and disease damage. The sample should be representative of the variety and be uniform in size and shell color. Clean the nuts but do not alter their shape or color. Do not rub or polish the shells. Try not to peel pecans from the shuck too early. This can result in a discolored shell.

PROPER TRACTOR maintenance can mean real savings for the farmer. A poorly operating tractor engine can waste up to 30 percent or more of its fuel daily. Many diesel tractors under heavy loads use six to eight gallons of fuel per hour. At 45 cents a gallon for diesel fuel, that's $2.70 to $3.60 per hour. For a 10-hour day, the cost is $27 to $36, just for fuel. If 30 percent of that fuel is wasted, then that tractor operator is throwing away between $8.10 and $10.80 per day.

Common causes of fuel waste and improper engine operation in diesel engines are worn fuel injector pumps and nozzles. These pumps and nozzles are also affected by water condensation and dirt in the fuel. Dirty, improperly adjusted carburetors and fouled spark plugs cause problems in gasoline engines.

The causes of fuel waste and engine wear in all engines are improper lubrication, dirty air cleaners and improper inflation of tires on tractors and equipment being pulled by the tractor. Faulty thermostats, stop-and-go operation, and light loads for a big tractor are additional factors in fuel use.

In addition to fuel waste, poor engine operation results in reduced power and increased engine wear. Farmers should rely on the tractor operator's manual and follow the recommended maintenance practices.

Airlines pick up 248 new routes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Great Air Rush of 1978 soon will give American travelers a wider choice of flights as airlines begin serving 248 new routes awarded in one fell swoop by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The routes involve every major city in the nation and scores of smaller ones.

The awards, all for roundtrip service, were made last week to 22 airlines whose representatives had waited for six days and six nights outside the CAB to apply on a first-come, first-served basis for routes classified as unused or dormant under the airline deregulation law President Carter signed last month.

Previously, the airlines would have had to spend millions of dollars and years of time to win the routes from the CAB.

A route is considered dormant if an airline with the authority to fly it does not provide at least five roundtrips a week for at least 13 weeks in a specified 26-week period.

The carrier representatives laid claim to a total of 1,295 routes when their long vigils ended Oct. 25, but dropped hundreds of these when they saw what their competitors had selected.

The CAB action extended several carriers into distant areas where they have never flown. The prize in this category went to Hawaiian Airlines, an inter-island carrier, which now can fly to New York, Baltimore, Portland, Seattle, Minneapolis, San Diego and Washington, D.C.

Braniff, which had filed for 626 routes, picked up the lion's share of 60 around the country. The Texas-based carrier was followed by Hughes Air-West with 27; Air California with 22; North Central, 20; Trans World, 18; Allegheny, 15; and American, Northwest and Ozark with 11 each.

The CAB also gave six airlines authority to begin their first interstate flights.

That action, which also subjects the lines to board federal regulation, affects Altair, Air California, Air Florida, Golden West, Pacific Southwest and Swift Aire.

And the board approved requests by eight airlines to protect a total of 52 routes for which they already had authority but which they were not serving or had allowed to become dormant.

This included many seasonal runs to the South, which airlines have not served as fully in summer months as during the rest of the year.

Airlines awarded new routes must begin service within 45 days or lose them. Those lines allowed to protect routes not now served must resume service within 30 days.

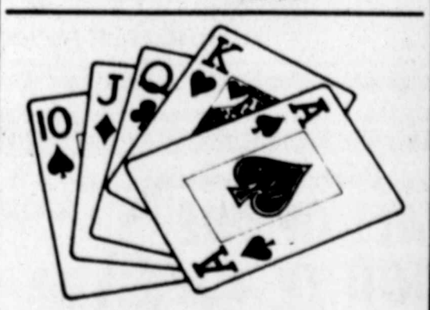

The new law also establishes a schedule for gradual elimination of CAB jurisdiction over airline routes, fares and mergers and could even lead to the commission's elimination by 1985.

Biligual education policy changed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Watched by dozens of disappointed Mexican-American demonstrators, the State Board of Education refused Saturday to extend mandatory bilingual education through the fifth grade.

Instead, the board adopted a policy requiring bilingual teaching only through the third grade for those who need it.

School districts will have the option of adding fourth- and fifth-graders to the program if the districts can afford it. They also must provide "English language development programs" for children with limited fluency in English in grades 4-12.

A district must provide bilingual schooling only when there are at least 20 children in a grade who need it.

The policy represents second thoughts by the board. It voted tentative approval in June to a plan providing bilingual schooling through the fifth grade and adding a "good faith" effort at bilingual education to its accreditation standards for local districts.

Many school officials protested the plan as too difficult and expensive to implement.

The board's hearing room and the hallways outside were packed as it voted. Persons in the standing-room-only crowd held hand-painted posters proclaiming such things as "Bilingual Education Says Twice as Much" and "Children Have Only Those Rights Which We Choose to Protect." Some wore brown berets with brass crossed rifles infantry insignia.

Busloads of teachers and parents, totaling more than 200 persons, came from the Lower Rio Grande Valley and San Antonio. They were organized by the Texas Association for Bilingual Education, headed by Ramon Billescas Jr., director of migrant education for the Pharr-San Juan-Alamo school district.

"I want to support you in the Legislature, but you need to exert some leadership," Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, told the board.

Truan said if the state does not act, federal authorities will mandate "a more far-reaching and better plan."

"I would like to see us do one thing ourselves," said Truan, author of the 1969 law establishing bilingual education in Texas.

The crucial vote was 10-4 against a motion by board member Ruben Hinojosa of Mercedes to add the fourth and fifth grades to the mandatory bilingual program.

As the demonstrators filed out of the hearing room without incident, one shouted at the board, "We'll see you in federal court."

Afterward, Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, told a rally outside the building that board members voting against Hinojosa's motion were "idiotas" — idiots.

"I have another word for them, but I can't say it here," Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, said in Spanish.

Hinojosa said he "lost the three or four votes that would have thrown it into a tie" when some board members expressed concern about the ability of school districts to fund an expanded bilingual program.

Carter vetoes three bills in inflation-curbing effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter raised the ire of farmers, textile makers and student nurses Saturday by vetoing three bills, signaling once more his determination to curb inflation.

In a series of actions aimed at controlling inflation, Carter also announced plans to keep feedgrain prices from rising by more than approximately 5 percent in the next two years.

The president's moves came well ahead of a midnight deadline for vetoing legislation enacted by the 95th Congress, which adjourned Oct. 15 at the end of an around-the-clock lawmaking weekend.

The White House announced that Carter had vetoed:

—A bill that would have restricted his ability to permit imports of cheap foreign beef.

—A measure that would have forbidden him to lower tariffs on imported textiles.

—A bill authorizing spending "far in excess" of that requested by the administration for student nurse training.

Carter also decided against imposing tighter production controls on already abundant supplies of corn and other feedgrains — an action projected to lead to an average increase in corn prices of about 1 percent by next October and 4.4 percent in the year after that, given normal weather.

The president has vetoed 20 bills during his administration — six regular vetoes and 14 pocket vetoes.

"These actions are a clear indication that the federal government is prepared to do its part to reduce inflation," Carter said of Saturday's vetoes. He said "no part of our economy can be exempt" if the nation is to reduce inflation.

The beef-import bill was enacted after Carter enraged many cattlemen last summer by allowing a slight increase in imports after a record increase in domestic beef prices.

Cub Scout leaders offered chance to share ideas, skills

A once-a-year "happening" to give Cub Scout leaders an opportunity to share ideas and skills helpful in their Scout work will be held from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway.

The Cub Scout Leaders Pow Wow, sponsored by the Buffalo Trail Scout Council, will offer ideas and instruction in skits, puppets, games, crafts, pack administration, ceremonies, songs and more.

Eligible to attend are all Cub Den leaders, Webelo leaders, den leader coaches, Cubmasters, pack committeemen and assistants and interested parents. Cost will be $2.50 per person at the door Saturday ($2 if registration is paid in advance of Saturday).

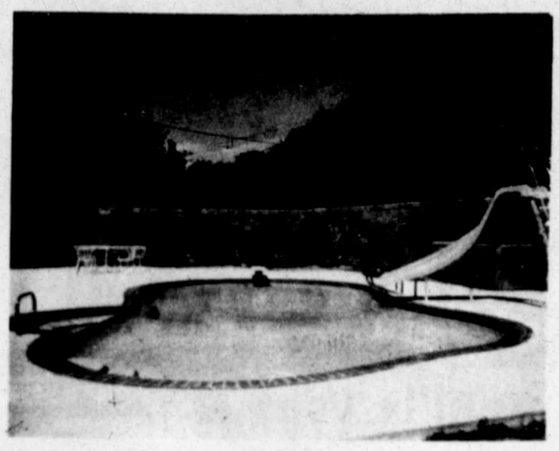

Advance registrations may be sent to 1978 Cub Pow Wow, Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, P.O. Box 1508, Midland, 79702.

Clements shares questions about his election

By SUSAN STOLER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Add another name to the list of those asking how Republican Bill Clements captured the Governor's Mansion after 105 years of Democratic dominance:

The governor-elect himself.

"I have talked with Nola Haerle, my campaign manager, very briefly. But neither she nor I have had time to sit down and give it that kind of in-depth analysis," he said before leaving Friday on a vacation.

"I'm not prepared to pick out the strengths or weaknesses," the 61-year-old self-made millionaire declared during a telephone interview.

He vigorously defends his almost $7 million campaign expenditure and scoffs at suggestions to limit future spending in state races.

"That's no solution," he said of state Democratic Party Chairman Billy Goldberg's suggestion to restrict future spending.

He won't call his campaign perfect.

"Undoubtedly, we made some mistakes," he admits.

But pinpointing mistakes requires time that Clements says he hasn't had since he beat Democrat John Hill by some 16,000 votes.

Neither has he had time to formulate programs to implement or propose to the Legislature. Those things will come later.

For now, the Dallasite must adjust from running a world-wide oil drilling corporation, SEDCO, to managing state government.

He already has an invitation from outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe to retain any of the Democrat's administrative staff in the new regime.

"He (Briscoe) told me that this transition was going to go smoothly," Clements said of his visit Wednesday with Briscoe and his wife at the Governor's Mansion.

"He said I should feel completely free to talk to any of his people, ... about recruiting and asking them to stay," the Republican said.

"I haven't talked to any members of his staff as long as I've talked to you," he said 10 minutes into the interview.

The Clements administration will include Democrats, Republicans and independents, he emphasized.

"There's one word that's going to prevail in this administration — that's excellence," he said.

Will the man he defeated in the Republican primary, Ray Hutchison, be on that team?

"I'm sure he would be considered," Clements said of the former state GOP chairman. Hutchison figures prominently in speculation over who Clements will name as secretary of state.

A united Republican Party elected Clements after he eliminated Hutchison from the governor's race. No one questions that he is the party's leader, he says.

And he plans a decisive role in the 1980 presidential battle.

"It will be an active role. I certainly will represent the people of Texas," he said. "I know I am absolutely opposed to Mr. Carter."

Long before his victory over Hill, civic leaders from his hometown began making overtures to attract the 1980 Republican national convention to Dallas.

"I think that would be marvelous. I think my election will add to our chances to get it," the Highland Park High School graduate said.

"I'm sure the Republican Party would realize they will be in a friendly meeting place," he said, noting fellow Republican John Tower's re-election also would attract the national GOP.

"I will give my assistance in any way whatsoever to further this effort," Clements added.

But before he leads Texas Republicans into the 1980 ring, the former U.S. deputy defense secretary must play ball with the overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature.

No problems there, he said confidently.

"Those are both conservative bodies," he said of the House and Senate. "Their leadership is conservative."

Clements met with Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby last week to discuss his relationship with the Legislature, composed of 156 Democrats and 25 Republicans.

"We're totally in agreement that we will fully communicate, we will cooperate and our programs will coordinate," he said.

Democrats and Republicans will be watching to see if his undaunted-by-anything exterior holds up after a few legislative fights.

But Paul Eggers, former Republican gubernatorial candidate, once explained Clements' style:

"The first thing you have to know about Bill Clements is that he doesn't understand that you can't do certain things."

Nixon pays visit to Biloxi district

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon came back Saturday to the district where voters liked him most in 1972 and spoke enthusiastically of victories by Southern Republicans in last week's elections.

The election of a Republican senator in Mississippi and a Republican governor in Texas, he said, "is a very significant breakthrough for the two-party system in the South."

He repeated remarks he made earlier on this trip, specifying that he was not venturing out of his reclusive life at San Clemente in order to return to politics.

Nixon spoke into a cluster of microphones set up outside the Broadwater Beach Hotel, on the shore of this Gulf Coast resort. About 500 people gathered to greet him, breaking into applause when he stepped out of a big black limousine, hand raised and waving. Women in wet swimsuits, fresh from the pool, mingled with sedately clad politicians in the crowd.

"He didn't do anything I wouldn't have done," said Daniel Crawford of Panama City, Fla. "He tried to protect some aides who got a little bit too zealous and went down with them."

Nixon, who resigned the presidency in 1974 in the midst of the Watergate scandal, had flown to Biloxi by private jet from Shreveport, La., for his third stop on a Southern swing to address a Veterans Day rally at the Biloxi Coliseum. He was guest of honor at a private reception in the hotel during the afternoon.

As many as five trapped in collapse of Joplin hotel

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — The front of a vacant nine-story hotel collapsed Saturday, one day before it was to be demolished with dynamite, and authorities said as many as five workmen were trapped under the rubble.

"There was no way they could have escaped," one witness said.

Rescue workers using bulldozers and cranes, and some with their bare hands, started clearing the wreckage of the landmark 70-year-old Connor Hotel in downtown Joplin.

Harold McCoy, Joplin public works director, said he understood the men had been inside dismantling steel girders in preparation for dynamiting this morning.

Police said some men got out safely, but at least three and as many as five were believed trapped.

Joe Newman, the president of a bank across the street said he was standing on the roof of his building when the hotel section caved in.

"All of a sudden we heard a rumble and looked in that direction...it started like it was just slow motion, but then there was a big rush, and it came tumbling down," said Newman.

After 44 years in Congress, the instinct to shake hands, to greet the people must be reflexive.

Even on the eve of his retirement after 22 terms as the only representative the 19th Congressional District has known, Mahon smiled and listened and gave off the air of the campaigner trying to woo his constituents.

Winning over the crowd, however, was not necessary Saturday in Chaparral Center at Midland College. The better than 1,000 people who gathered there had come to honor the long-time West Texas representative.

The crowd was varied.

Some were obviously old friends and companions. Others had known the Mahons back when — "We used to live across the street from you in Colorado City."

Still others were just people who wanted to shake the hand of the dean of Congress.

Small children and senior citizens offered programs for the Congressman to sign. Some brought his biography for him to autograph.

All were received with a smile and a friendly greeting from the man who had represented them for so long.

Asked the one thing he was most proud of in his long career, Mahon said it was being able to help hundreds of thousands of people in the district who had come to him with a problem.

"With legislation, you never know how it's going to turn out," he said. "But when someone has a problem with government and you're able to help him with it, you know you've done a good job.

"That's the most rewarding thing about my career," Mahon said.

Providing funding for the atomic bomb was the "most spectacular thing" he did in his 44 years, Mahon said. "That was a historic event."

Mahon was one of the few members of Congress aware of the Manhatten Project when it was being developed.

"That could change the course of history," he noted in reference to the atomic project. "I only hope it turns out for the good of mankind.

After so many years of working for the constituents in West Texas, Mahon said he plans to "sit in a rocker for two years to rest up" after his retirement.

"After that," he said, "I'll start rocking."

Congressman Mahon hits a high note while he leads the crowd in the singing of the national anthem.

Helen and George Mahon are joined by daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Holt of Dallas at festivities honoring the Mahons Saturday.

Autographing a photo poster from the past, Congressman Mahon reminisces with nephew Bryan Mahon and his wife of San Angelo.

Presenting the congressman with a coin bank fashioned from a mail box from the old Midland Post Office is Midland Reporter-Telegram Editor W. H. "Bill" Collyns, who served as master of ceremonies for the George and Helen Mahon Community Appreciation Day.

Held aboard ship, refugees fighting among selves

By HARI S. MANIAM

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Some 2,500 Vietnamese, said to be low on food and water and fighting among themselves, waited aboard a crowded freighter off the Malaysian coast Saturday as officials tried to determine whether the ship was on a mission of mercy or a pay-your-way cruise to freedom.

"All the children are crying and the people are clamoring outside as I am talking to you," said Mrs. Ly Lin Wei Then, a spokesman for the group who was contacted aboard the ship by telephone. "We need fresh water and food."

Refugee officials said they are investigating reports that a syndicate of Hong Kong businessmen may have been paid $5 million by the refugees, mostly ethnic Chinese residents of Vietnam, to provide the ship, register it in Panama for one month, and use it to take the Vietnamese to a new country.

"All we are asking now is for some tons of water before the situation worsens," said Mrs. Ly. "We are pleading for help. More than 600 people, most of them children, are ill. Please come and help us quickly." She said fighting had broken out on board and the situation had become "dangerous."

"We have no fresh water — not one drop for the past two days," she said, denying a police statement that medicine and water had been sent to the ship. "We have rice on board given to us by Indonesian authorities, but we have no water to cook it."

Officials said the Vietnamese were reported to have boarded the ship off the Vung Tau Peninsula, south of Ho Chi Minh City, on Oct. 24. The ship, the Hai Hong, was sighted last week off the Indonesian island of Siantan in the South China Sea.

Police at Port Klang were keeping the ship isolated and ordered all vessels and reporters to stay away.

Rajagopalan Sampatkumar, the regional representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, boarded the vessel to investigate the situation, but neither he nor Mrs. Ly would dicuss details of how the 1,250 children, 620 women, 499 men and 125 elderly persons were able to flee Vietnam as a group.

Once powerful figure, Hays still in politics

By DAN FREEMAN

BELMONT, Ohio (AP) — Wayne L. Hays, forced from politics two years ago by a sex scandal, admits he has considered another congressional bid. But for now, he says, he is concentrating on his role as a freshman state legislator.

Hays, 67, a Democrat and once one of the nation's most powerful congressmen, has won three elections since his affair with Elizabeth Ray became public. The latest was Tuesday, for a state legislative seat.

"Anybody would say I was a liar if I said I hadn't thought about it, but I haven't seriously thought about it."

Asked if his re-entry to politics would lead to another congressional bid, Hays said: "Anybody would say I was a liar if I said I hadn't thought about it, but I haven't seriously thought about it."

His victory for the state legislative seat held by retiring Democratic Rep. A.G. Lancione was slim, less than 500 votes in the unoffical tally. Hays said it was his second-closest margin in a 30-year political career, second only to a 1950 congressional race.

"I was the recipient of one of the dirtiest and most untruthful campaigns that has been put on in Ohio during my lifetime," Hays said.

His opponent, Republican George Contos, 47, publisher of the trade journal "Coal Monthly and Energy News," said, "Voters need to be reminded that Wayne Hays used their tax dollars to put a mistress on his payroll."

Hays said what hurt him more than references to the affair was his opponent's charge that he had paid unduly low property taxes on his 160-acre farm — a charge Hays denied.

Hays lives on that farm with his second wife Pat, 35, and they raise prize-winning dogs there. He divorced his first wife, Martha, in 1976 after 38 years of marriage.

He said he and his wife would rent either a townhouse or apartment in Columbus during the legislative session and live there part of the week. The capital is about a three-hour drive from Belmont,

"I've got a lot of things I want to do, but I'm pragmatic enough to know I'm not going to get them all done," Hays said.

For example, he said he wants to abolish the state Board of Regents, which regulates colleges and universities, and to clamp down on the Public Utilities Commission, which regulates utilities.

Hays resigned from Congress two weeks after winning nomination for re-election, ending House Ethics Committee and Justice Department investigations into allegations he misused public funds.

He admitted an affair with Miss Ray, a blonde half his age who was a clerk on his staff and said she performed no clerical duties. But Hays maintained she was on the payroll for doing her government job.

He beat five opponents in the primary election last June.

Contos described Hays' victory as "a disgrace to our district. It's a travesty to keep electing this type of people," he said. "I wouldn't call and congratulate him. I wouldn't feel sincere."

Wayne Hays relaxes at his home in Belmont, Ohio and talks about his political plans the day after winning election to a freshman legislative seat. He says the sex scandal that forced him from office two years ago is behind him. (AP Laserphoto)

War heroes honored

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Two tablets honoring Polish World War II underground heroes were dedicated in a Warsaw church Saturday, 60th anniversary of Poland's Nov. 11, 1918, independence day. The ceremony and others like it across Poland marked the first time in three decades the anniversary has been publicly observed in this communist nation.

Two held in killings

ONEONTA, Ala. (AP) — Two Birmingham men were held without bond Saturday, charged with murdering a farmer and his wife and wounding their three children and the man's mother.

Blount County Sheriff J.C. Carr said Arthur Lee Giles, 19, and Aaron Jones, 26, each were charged with two counts of first-degree murder and four counts of assault with intent to murder. They were arrested in Birmingham Friday.

Killed were Carl Nelson, shot in the chest, and his wife, Willene, who was "cut all to pieces," police said.

Mrs. Annie M. Nelson, in her mid-80s, was in serious condition at an Oneonta hospital with a bullet wound in the face.

Night fire kills four

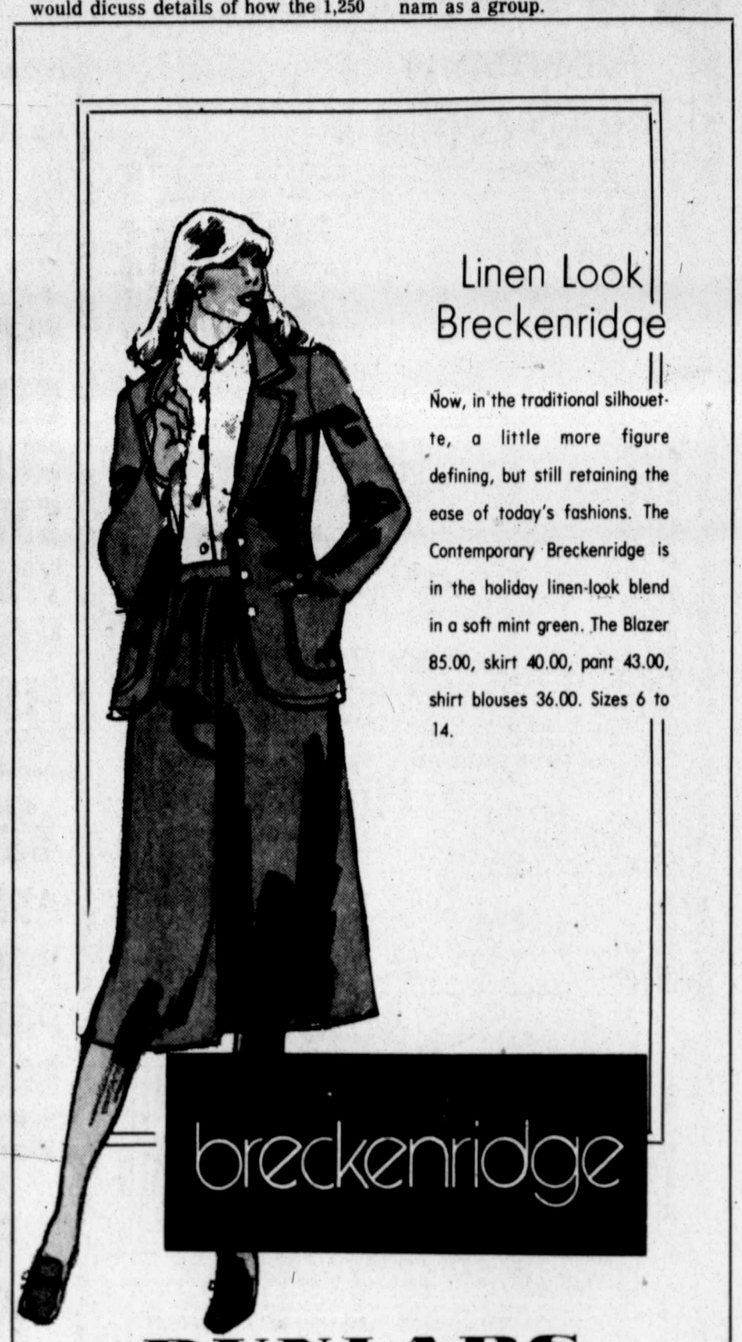

COHOES, N.Y. (AP) — A teen-age baby sitter, two younger children and an elderly man perished today in an apartment building fire in this city in eastern New York.

The victims were identified as Ellen Ann Genest, 16, Paul Chad Wyrshyhora, 7, and Donna Lynn Wyrshyhora, 4; and John Mazinski, 67.

The three youngsters were found on the third floor and the elderly man was found dead on the first floor of the three-story building.

Five off-duty firemen responded to the first alarm shortly after midnight and they were credited with rescuing two women who were trapped on the second floor.

The cause of the blaze was under investigation.

Ed Poulter named to U.S. task force

Ed Poulter, head of the Midland College Petroleum Technology program, was selected to serve on a national task force committee on "Petroleum, Natural Gas, and Advanced Fossil Fuels."

The committe met in Washington, D.C., Thursday and Friday to outline a program to be presented as part of a national conference.

The National Education, Business and Labor Conference on energy-related technician training, employment, and public is awareness is scheduled Jan. 15-17 in Washington, D.C. The conference is being sponsored by the Education Programs Division, Department of Energy. It will cover such fields as conservation, solar energy, coal, nuclear energy, petroleum, natural gas, advanced fossil fuels, federal program assistance, energy and employment and public energy awareness.

Poulter will serve on a committee which will prepare the program for its segment of the conference. He also will help prepare a paper to be presented outlining the educational and technical skill requirements for energy-related employment, manpower needs, and the role of petroleum in the energy program.

The Petroleum, Natural Gas, and Advanced Fossil Fuels task force includes representatives from Lincoln Trail College in Robinson, Ill. Midland College, Tenneco, Cities Service, Shell Oil Co. and organized labor.

"We are honored to be represented on the task force as one of the three community colleges in the nation which offer training in petroleum technology," Poulter said, "We think this speaks well for the lead which Midland College took in developing the petroleum technology program in cooperation with the oil industry in the Permian Basin."

Poulter joined the Midland College faculty in August 1976. He earned his B.S. degree in petroleum engineering from the University of Tulsa and is a Registered Professional Engineer. He had more than 20 years experience with a major oil company and is an independent consulting engineer.

James E. York

District boss announced

ODESSA — James E. York has been named district superintendent for Amoco Production Co. in the Odessa District office, according to John W. Phenicie, Amoco's vice president and regional manager in Houston.

A native of St. Louis, Okla., York graduated from the University of Oklahoma with a degree in petroleum engineering and joined Amoco as an engineer in Hobbs, N.M. Subsequent assignments were in Amoco offices in Lubbock, Fort Worth, Tulsa, Midland, and Houston before going to Traverse City, Mich., in 1975. He was area superintendent in that office until the current reassignment.

York is a registered professional engineer in New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas, and has been active in the Society of Petroleum Engineers and the American Petroleum Institute.

Davidson talk slated

John Davidson, associated with Davidson Air Service and Helicopters of Fort Worth, will present the program for the Tuesday meeting of the Permian Basin Section of the National Association of Corrosion Engineers.

The meeting will start with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. in the Plaza Cafeteria in Odessa. The program and dinner will begin at 7 p. m.

Davidson's presentation will be "Cathodic Protection Surveys Using Helicopters."

He is a graduate of the Univdersity of Nebraska at Lincoln, and has 20 years flying experience, including 3.5 years flying for cathodic protection surveys.

Gas strike reported

DENVER, COLO. — Forest Oil Corp. reported a gas-condensate discovery in Jefferson Davis County, Miss.

The No. 1 Magnolia drilled to a total depth of 15,964 feet and tested numerous Hosston sands on structure. The well will be completed in three zones in the Hosston formation.

Forest tested the well in three perforated intervals between 14,605 feet and 14,936 feet, where it flowed gas through 16/64-inch chokes at a combined rate of 11 million cubic feet of gas and 700 barrels of condensate per day. Forest plans to proceed with development evaluation soon.

Forest owns 93.75 percent interest in the discovery well and in the proposed 640 acre proation unit around the discovery well. In addition, Forest has 1,882 net acres under lease in the surrounding sections.

Davis well opens field

DENVER—Atlantic Oil Corp. announced that Davis Oil Co. of Denver has completed a wildcat well in Weston County, Wyo., for an initial potential of 530 barrels of oil per day.

Atlantic holds a 12.5 percent working interest, convertible to a 6.25 percent working interest after payout, in the well—The No. 1 Gordon-Federal—and in approximatley 200 gross acres inclusive of the wellsite. Production is from the Bacon Creek (Second Frontier) sand between 6,382 and 6,396 feet.

Atlantic anticipates drilling a west offset to the discovery well as soon as a rig becomes available. Atlantic's working interest in the offset well will be 12.5 percent with no reduction after payout. A maximum of three wells may be drilled on the prospect acreage, pending further geological analysis, production results of the discovery well, and drilling results on the west offset.

G. J. Savage

G. J. Savage leaves Gulf

G. J. Savage has announced his retirement from Gulf Oil Exploration & Production Co., Western Division, Southwest District, headquartered in Midland.

He was a staff geologist in the Midland office and retired Nov. 1 after 27 years and 5 months with the company.

He joined the company in 1951 as a petroleum geologist after being graduated from the University of Colorado. During his tenure with the company he worked in the Roswell, N. M., office as well as the Midland office.

His area of work included the Permian Basin, the southern Rocky Mountains, and the Great Basin of Nevada and Arizona. He worked for the company in exploration and production.

While in Roswell, he served as president of the Roswell Geological Society, and as commanding officer of the Navy electronics unit in Carlsbad, N. M. He is a member of several professional organizations.

He will continue to make his home in Midland.

Operators final well

SAN ANTONIO — Gulf Energy & Development Corp. announced that its wholly-owned subsidiary, Gulf Energy Producing Co. and Patrick Gratton and othershave completed their jointly-owned No. 1-23 Taylor as a gas well in Cimarron County, Okla., and have found substantial gas reserves in Palo Pinto County in North Texas.

The No. 1-23 Taylor was drilled to a total depth of 4,810 feet and completed as a gas well in the Keyes Sand through perforation at 4,620 to 4,623 feet.

The No. 1-23 Taylor was flow tested with a flowing tubing pressure of 300 psig and a volume of 500,000 cubic feet per day. Gulf Energy Producing Co. is the operator and owns 25 percent working interest.

W. F. Hanagan

Hanagan is speaker

The Natural Gas Men of the Permian Basin will meet at noon Tuesday in the Midland Country Club. The speaker will be W. F. Hanagan, manager of natural gas sales and regulations for Cities Service Co. in Tulsa, Okla.

Hanagan's topic will be "Price Regulation of the Gas Producer."

The speaker attended The University of Texas and Oklahoma City University. He holds an L.L.B. degree.

He is a member of the Oklahoma State Bar Association and the Tulsa County Bar Association.

Hananga was a member of the founding committee of the Association of Petroleum Landmen and was a member of that organization's first board of directors. He is a past president of the Natural Gas Men of Oklahoma and a member of the Natural Gas Supply Committee, the American Petroleum Institute and the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

He has been active in matters relating to company gas production 20 years. His basic responsibility is for the sale of gas production and for compliance with regulatory directives.

Energy may fare better under 96th Congress

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram
Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The energy industry may fare a little better under the newly-elected 96th Congress than it has under the 95th and several previous Congresses.

Energy played little role in last week's elections because in most races it was not an issue, but the defeat of several liberal members and the general swing to moderates and conservatives tends to set the stage for more emphasis on supply and less on punitive actions against the industry.

For instance, it's unlikely the new Congress will give much consideration to divestiture of the major oil companies, nor to the establishment of a government oil corporation to get into drilling or other segments of industry operations.

President Carter indicated last week, after signing the energy legislation Congress passed in October, that he may again seek passage of a crude oil equalization tax next year as a move to slow down domestic oil consumption. However, there is little reason to anticipate that the Senate, which rejected that proposal last year, will look upon it with favor next year.

It is quite possible that the Carter Administration itself will be more cooperative with industry than in the past.

For one thing, the fight over the over-all energy package has ended so the Administration no longer needs to be critical of industry simply to get votes for energy measures the President had advocated.

More important, there is reason to believe that the Administration is aware that initially it gave too much weight to conservation and not enough to developing additional energy resources.

That is, the Administration is rejecting the "no growth" approach that was being advocated in recent years as the solution to the nation's energy problems. This, in turn, sets the stage for providing a better climate for energy development.

This shift in attitude will not be accompanied by any about-face in the Administration's energy-related actions, but there will be some change in tone.

All in all, it isn't so much what the Administration will do to help the industry but what it will avoid doing that would hurt energy development.

In similar fashion, while the new Congress will not make greater energy development a major goal, it will tend to be less critical of the industry and less likely to pass legislation further extending governmental controls over energy operations.

One reason it will be less involved with energy issues is that its attention will be focused on other issues, such as inflation, government spending, taxes, and so forth.

There may be some adjustments in the recently-passed energy package, but if so this will be aimed at making the legislation more workable and more understandable rather than a general overhaul.

For instance, there appears to be increasing concern over a provision in the natural gas bill that would load most of the gas price increase on industrial users so that residential and other small consumers would not face big increases in their gas bills.

The reason for the concern is that if this approach is used, sharply increasing gas prices for industrial users, they would be likely to turn to some other fuel and thus leave to consumers the full brunt of the transportation cost of gas supplies.

Such a fuel switch would likely be to oil, thus tending to increase rather than to decrease oil imports.

It has been pointed out that residential consumption of natural gas falls primarily in the four or five months of the year--the winter season. Therefore, if there is a substantial switch by big users who utilize gas the year around, much of the capacity of the pipelines would be idle for much of the year. This would sharply boost the cost of gas to the remaining customers, such as homeowners.

Laboratory plans told

DALLAS—Mobil Research and Development Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Mobil Oil Corp., will build a new research laboratory in Farmers Branch, Joe E. Penick, president of the company, announced.

The new facility will be built on 39 acres of a 155-acre tract in the Dallas suburb. The building is designed to house about 525 members of the exploration and production research group and the offshore engineering group.

The laboratory, designed by I. M. Pei and Partners, will have 327,000 square feet of office and laboratory space. Construction is scheduled to be completed in the fourth quarter of 1981.

"This new research lab will replace our present facility in Southwest Dallas," said Robert J. Watson, manager of the laboratory. "Our new lab will be modern, more functional, and designed to meet energy research needs of the future."

Development under way

AMARILLO — Mesa petroleum Co., as operator, announced that drilling has commenced on the first development well in the Beatrice field 12 miles off the northeasst coast of Scotland.

Initial oil production from the field is expected to begin in 1981.

Development plans, as approved by the United Kingdom's Department of Energy, provide for three platforms. A 32-well development platform and a production platform will be centrally located to develop the central and southern portions of the field. An 8-well "satellite" platform will be used to develop the northeastern portion of the field.

FERC regulations upcoming Monday

HOUSTON—Texas Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton said the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission is expected Monday to unveil proposed rules and regulations with which to implement the newly enacted Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

"It is my understanding that the FERC plans to meet on November 13 for the formal presentation of the proposed rules," Newton told a meeting of the Pipeliners Club of Houston.

Newton told the pipeliners that a seven-day period will be allowed for comment on the proposals draft.

"Then," he explained, "on or about Nov. 27, the interim rules will be adopted to take effect Dec. 1."

Industry and other interested parties will have a 60-day period in which to respond to the interim rules, he advised.

On the heels of the federal proposals, Newton advised his audience, the Railroad Commission plans to circulate a set of rules and procedures for Texas producers to use in complying with the new federal act.

"We plan to issue a preliminary set of procedural and substaintive rules designed to implement the (Natural Gas Policy) Act at about the same time the FERC issues theirs."

Newton reported members of the Railroad Commission staff, in recent weeks, have been working with FERC staffers to avoid both conflicts and confusions in the federal and state rules and procedures.

In these conferences, Newton related, "our approach was to persuade the FERC that it would be possible for the Commission, and consequently a producer, to utilize existing Railroad Commission records as the essential evidence to be used in making the various determinations" under the Gas Policy Act.

Newton ticked off a number of problems to be resolved in implementing the gas policy act.

"The Act, for example, defines stripper well gas as 'non-associated natural gas' but fails to tell us what 'non-associated' means," the Texas official observed.

Also, he reported, the FERC staff has recommended that "non-associated" be defined as one barrelsof oil or less per 60 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas. "The gas-oil ratio was reached through a process of "arbitrary but not random," he said.

Newton said members of the FERC are aware that such an arbitary figure has no basis in the realities of the gas industry and want help.

"I would suggest that they consider not using the ratio concept at all," Newton recommended and further observed:

"If, for example, a well produced 20 Mcf per day and one-half barrel of oil, it would not qualify as a 'stripper well' because the ratio would be exceeded. Yet, this is exactly the kind of well which must get stripper well prices if it is to be dept in production.

Walter Youngquist

Youngquist on programs

Walter Youngquist, a consultant to the Eugene, Ore., Water and Electrict Board on geothermal power resources, will speak to members of the West Texas Geological Society at two meetings this week.

His first appearance will be at the noon meeting at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday in the Midland Hilton.

The program will be "Geology of the Pacific Northwest." It will be a lecture and slide presentation of the Oregon-Washington geology where the total sedimentary section exceeds 50,000 feet and may be as much as 100,000 feet.

Youngquist is a geothermal councilor for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and a visiting professor of geology at the University of Oregon.

Youngquist also will be the speaker for the WTGS meeting Wednesday in the Ranchland Hill County Club. This event will get under way at 6:30 p. m. with a social hour. The dinner and program will start at 7:30 p. m.

His Wednesday topic will be "Over the Hill and Down the Creek," a lecture slide show based on his book of the same title. It will be a light-hearted presentaton of the life of a geologist in a Peruvian desert oil camp.

U.S. drilling shows half-year increase

DENVER, COLO. — Through the first six months of this year, 23,270 wells drilled for oil and gas were completed in the U.S., 13.4 percent more than were reported in the first six months of 1977, according to Petroleum Information Corp. headquartered in Denver.

Last year's first half total was 20,521 and the total for the entire year was 44,019. If the present rate of drilling continues for the remainder of this year, 1978 could become the first year since 1959 in which 50,000 wells were completed.

PI noted a 12 percent increase this year in the number of exploratory wells seeking new fields. The six month total for such wells was 3,404, of which 305 were completed as oil discoveries, 321 as gas discoveries. Thus, 18.3 percent of new field wildcats resulted in some sort of discovery. This success ratio has been maintained at favorable levels in spite of expanded exploratory activity.

Significantly, a 27 percent increase in the number of new gas wells completed was reported in the first half of this year. The total, 5,886 as compared to 4,646 in the first six months of 1977 reflects increased emphasis on gas prospects nationwide, PI said.

This year's total of completions also reflected a six percent gain in new oil wells completed.

Texas, with 8,273 completions through June of this year, has more than 35 percent of the nation's total, and ranks first among the states. Oklahoma, with 2,667 completions is second, and Kansas is third with 2,143. Louisiana ranks fourth, with 1,822 and California's 1,272 completions ranked it fifth. Together, these five leading states accounted for nearly 70 percent of the completion total reported by PI.

PI estimated that completions reported in the six-month period represent an expenditure of $5.2 billion for drilling and completion alone.

Kern County, Calif., with 977 completions reported, was the most active county in the United States. Osage County, Okla., a long-time producing county was second with but 244 completions.

Amoco Production was operator-of-record for 398 completions through June of this year, down from a total of 540 in the comparable period last year, but still ranked first among U.S. operators. Getty Oil was second, Shell Oil, third. Wells counted are those operated by these companies and the totals do not reflect non-operated wells in which they may have participated.

Larger companies—the 29 in the Chase Manhattan Bank "Group of Larger Companies"—recognized as major companies, drilled 3,604 wells duing the first half, or 15.5 percent of the total. Altogether, more than 4,840 operators were credited with completions during the six-month period ended June 30.

Reed survey counts 275 rotaries in Basin

In a weekly survey of drilling activity in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico showed an increase of 11 units at work over the previous weeks tally.

The survey, conducted by Reed Drilling Equipment, showed the two-state area with 275 operations going. Last week the survey counted 264 units and a year ago at this time 298 rigs were spotted making hole.

Leading the survey was Eddy County, N.M., with 28 units turning to the right. The previous weeks count showed 29 units working.

Lea County picked up second place this week as 27 operations were spotted, gaining seven units over last weeks tally of 20.

Pecos County, the West Texas leader, was the scene of 25 active rigs, decreasing activity by two from last weeks 27.

Crockett and Hockley counties each reported 10 rigs working, while Coke, Gaines and Howard counties were the scene of nine units working in each county.

Advertising And Publicity Sponsored And Paid For By Firms In These Columns

Ellen Peterson and Karen Tranum, Supervisors, and Donna Pollard, Accounts Representative, are scheduling extra holiday help for Midland businesses. Call Kelly at 682-9748 or come by their office in the lower level of the Midland Hilton to arrange for temporary help.

Call Kelly for holiday help

Most retailers - and all retailers' bookkeepers - dread the problems of hiring parttime and seasonal help to aid them during the holiday shopping rush. First there are the endless interviews, eating up managers' and department heads' time. Then the bookkeeping department has the hassle of dealing with all the extra paychecks and workmen's compensation, insurance, bonding, and tax forms. And it seems that no sooner do you get the new people sufficiently trained to be really helpful than the holidays are over and they leave you—with the possibility of unemployment clains against your firm at a later date.

Why wrestle with all that?

Why not call Kelly instead?

Kelly employees can be inventory takers, gift wrappers, Santa's helpers, product demonstrators, stockers, floor sales personnel, shipping and receiving clerks, or even extra bookkeepers. Just call Ellen Peterson or Karen Tranum (the Midland supervisors) at 682-9748 and tell them how many people with what skills you need and when you need them. Ellen and Karen will take it from there.

Then, sit back and relax! The Kelly hourly bill rate includes worker's compensation, FICA, unemployment, all state and federal taxes, all insurance, bonding, AND all that interviewing time! Plus, all Kelly employees are completely guaranteed; if, for any reason, you need a replacement, just call Kelly. Ellen and Karen can usually get someone for you within the hour.

"'Tis the Season to be jolly", not harassed. Call Kelly and Cheer Up!

Your Money Should Work As Hard As Your Vehicles

Your profits come from vehicle use, not ownership. In fact, we can show you how it's often more profitable not to own the equipment you use.

Leasing acts against inflation. Inflation guarantees that tomorrow's dollars will be worth less than today's dollars. So why pay for vehicles you will use in the future with today's high-value dollars? Leasing reduces inflation's effect on your equipment costs, because you pay tomorrow's cost with tomorrow's dollars.

Call today and let us show you how to put your dollars to work for you.

Girl's death in hospital ruled due to gas mixup

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A plumbing error in an operating room 16 years ago was to blame, hospital officials say, for the recent death of a teen-age girl given nitrous oxide — laughing gas — instead of oxygen.

Willise Janice Cox, 17, died Sept. 19 of anoxia — lack of oxygen — after a tonsillectomy at St. Joseph Hospital, a Shelby County medical examiner's report made public last week concluded.

The medical examiner, Dr. Jerry Francisco, said he has not signed a death certificate pending completion of an investigation. He said no criminal charges have been discussed.

Each of the hospital's 15 operating rooms has two sets of color-coded gas outlets — green for oxygen and blue for nitrous oxide, said spokeswoman Nora Caine.

The pipes used after Miss Cox' operation were installed incorrectly when the hospital was built in the early 1960s, she said, and not used until the girl's operation.

"The set that was working right was right next to the operating table," she said. "...They moved the table for some reason and that was the first time that set was used."

Country music man exports his product

By STRAT DOUTHAT

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP) — Everett Lilly is a friendly, soft-spoken man who has spent most of his life exporting a homegrown product guaranteed to set your toes a-tappin' and your hands a-clappin'.

Lilly plays country music. Not only does he play, but he also has a long history of introducing mountain music to faraway locales such as Boston and Tokyo.

"My brother and me — he's Michael B. Lilly — we went to Boston back in the 1950s," he said during an interview. "A friend from here that was living up there got us a year-long booking at the Hillbilly Ranch.

"Well, sir, we ended up staying for almost 17 years, and we played seven nights a week except for the times when we went to play at colleges, or in Japan."

At that time, Lilly said, many of the folks they played for had never heard traditional, acoustical country music.

"But they liked it, they sure did. And we played at a lot of colleges. Some Japanese fellers living up there (in Boston) taped our music and took it back home," he recalled. "They made a record out of the tapes and it was our sound, B.'s and mine, that opened the gates for everybody else that later went over there and played country music.

"We finally went over ourselves in 1973. Then, we went together one other time. I also went without my brother one time, so I've been there three times, all told."

Lilly said he and his brother learned to play music when they were growing up on Clear Creek, some 20 miles east of here.

"My dad played an old-time church organ but he didn't play a stringed instrument, so we had to learn by ourselves. My brother got a guitar when I was about 8 and my dad bought me a mandolin when I was 10.

"We learned a few songs and started playin' together. After that, we'd go from house to house, playin' for the neighbors. They would encourage us so we stayed pretty soon we started playin' in church and then after a while a theater owner heard of us and paid us $15 to play between shows."

The Lilly Brothers, as they called , split up in the early '50s. Everett then headed South and began playing with some up-and-coming musicians named Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs.

"I traveled with Flatt and Scruggs for a couple of years and then came the chance to go to Boston and play with my brother," he said.

Lilly and his family returned to West Virginia in 1970. His brother stayed behind in Boston, however, so Everett now makes music with his sons, Charles and Mark. A daughter, Karen, sings with the group.

"I don't play as much as I used to, though," he said. "I drive a school bus and I'm a pretty fair carpenter. I'm not afraid of work." Lilly has no intention of ever again leaving West Virginia.

Jim Townson

Townson appointed

Townson has 32 years of oil and gas drilling experience in the Permian Basin and was employed previously as operations manager for MGF Oil Corp.

Rowan starts platform work

HOUSTON — C.R. Palmer, chairman and president of Rowan Companies, Inc., announced an agreement with Marathon LeTourneau Company for construction of the self-elevating mobile offshore drilling platform "Rowan-Paris".

The unit will be capable of operations in water up to 300 feet and drilling depth of 30,000 feet. Marathon's facility at Vicksburg, Miss. is the construction site.

Total estimated cost of the complete drilling unit is $26,000,000.

The "Rowan-Paris", owned 100 percent by Rowan, is expected to be operational in the third quarter of 1980. The rig will be similar to two wholly-owned rigs, the "Rowan-Fort Worth" operating offsore Texas and "Rowan-Middletown" scheduled for first quarter 1980 delivery.

The new unit will have a cantilever feature to facilitate development drilling and workover capability over a production platform. Upon completion of the new unit, Rowan will own a total of 11 Marathon LeTourneau jack-up rigs.

L. S. Grubbs promoted

Larry S. Grubbs has been named division geologist in Midland for the Midland Division of Texaco Inc., according to an announcement by L. Weld Calahan, vice president, Producing Department-Central U.S.

He will assume his new position Dec. 1.

Grubbs was awarded an M.S. degree in Geology from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1964. He joined Texaco the previous September as a geologists in Wichita, Kan.

He advanced through several assignments in Ohio and Oklahoma before being named district geologist of the East Tusla District in Tulsa in 1973.

He was appointed to his present position, assistant division geologist, in Midland in 1975.

Controversy end closer

HOUSTON (AP) — The end of years of controversy and some $1.6 billion in lawsuits came one step closer when Coastal States Gas Corp. shareholders approved the transfer of LoVaca Gathering Co. to an independent company.

Friday's affirmative vote means a final resolution to the tangled problem could come by early next year, said Coastal chairman Oscar S. Wyatt Jr.

The transfer of LoVaca to its new parent firm, Valero Energy Corp. of San Antonio, is part of a settlement designed to terminate the damage suits filed by the gathering company's customers after natural gas prices began to skyrocket in 1973.

Further action by the Texas Railroad Commission and approval by holders of Coastal securities are needed before the proposed transfer can be implemented.

"I think there is no way the plan won't go through now," Wyatt said. "The LoVaca customers will never get another opportunity like this."

Under the proposed settlement, holders of Coastal common stock, except for Wyatt, would receive 86.6 percent of Valero's common shares as a share-for-share dividend. The remaining 13.4 percent would be issued to a trust for the benefit of Valero customers.

Almost all of the trust shares would come from Wyatt's interest as Coastal's largest shareholder.

George Radney

Manager announced

George Radney has been named general manager for Big Chief Supply in Midland.

He moved to the Tall City from Houston where he was assistant manager for Okite Industries. Prior to that assignment, Radney had been with two major oil well serving companies in the Permian Basin for several years.

Texas' gas yield down

AUSTIN — Texas oil and gas wells produced 595,164,715 Mcf of gas in August 1978, down 6.37 percent from field runs a year earlier.

Marketed gas production totaled 503,737,118 Mcf and reflected a 7.22 percent decrease from the August 1977 volume. Marketed production is the total gas to transmission lines, carbon black and plant fuel and lease use.

Gas exported from Texas in August totaled 246,662,629 Mcf and included 79,787,019 Mcf of imported gas.

Exports of Texas-produced gas in August totaled 166,875,610 Mcf and reflected a 2.24 percent decrease from the year earlier month. Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of American was the month's largest exporter, moving 77,485,265 Mcf of gas of which 43,204,717 Mcf was Texas-produced gas.

Texas gas production in August came from 195,770 oil and gas wells.

In July 1978, Texas wells produced 606,582,379 Mcf of gas. Marketed gas production in July totaled 514,202,589 Mcf.

Dr. Meyer will speak

ODESSA - The Permian Basin Section of the American Chemical Society will meet at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin Tuesday.

There will be a social hour from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., and the dinner and program will be from 7 to 8 p. m.

The speaker will be Dr. Edgar Meyer of the Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics of Texas A&M University.

Dr. Meyer will talk on "Computer Aided Modeling of Biochemical Reactions."

Reservations should be made by contacting John Cihonski at El Paso Products in Odessa, or Mike Robinson at UTPB.

Randall G. Cook

R. G. Cook appointed

I-R Compression Services, a Division of Ingersall-Rand Co., has announced the appointment of Randall G. Cook to the position of division engineer. He will be responsible for all of the division's major engineering requirements, and equipment specification and design.

He is a graduate of Texas A&M University and is a member of Tau Beta Pi, and the Gas Processor's Association. Most recently he was associated with Texas Oil & Gas in Dallas as compressor engineer. Prior to that, he was with Mobil Oil working in the Gulf Coast. Cook and his family will reside in Tulsa.

H. L. Blomquist III

Blomquist in land post

Harry L. Blomquist III has joined the Midland Division staff of Cotton Petroleum Corp. as division landman.

He was associated with Tartan Production Co. in Houston before joining Cotton Petroluem's Tulsa Division in 1977 as a landman.

He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen and the Permian Basin Landmen's Association.

Blomquist is a graduate of The University of Texas at Austin.

Log groups will meet

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society announced it will meet for a buffet lunch and program at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in the Midland Country Club.

The program will consist of two parts, the first a slide show compiled by the National Logging Society with the co-operation of the Tulsa Chapter of the organization. The title is "Exploring for Oil and Gas."

The second item will be a color and sound film, "Pipeline Alaska." It is a documentry following construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline. It was produced by a London-based independent filmaker, and won a Silver Screen award at the U.S. Industrial Film Festival in Chicago.

W. L. Fisher to give talk

William L. Fisher, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology at The University of Texas, will address the Permian Basin Geophyscial Society's meeting Tuesday at the Best Western Inn on Interstate 20 in Midland.

The presentation will be "Exploration Science and Public Policy: Conflicts in the Making."

The meeting will start with a social hour at 5:30 p. m. The buffet dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Fisher is a native of Illinois and attended Southern Illinois University. He received his graduate degrees from the University of Kansas. In 1960, he became a research geologist at the Bureau of Economic Geology, and in 1975 took leave from the university to become Deputy Assistant Secretary for Energy with the U.S. Department of Interior.

He subsequently was appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate as Assistant Secretary for Energy and Minerals, a post he held during 1976 and early 1977.

The speaker has lectured on delta systems in oil and gas exploration and on seismic stratigraphy as part of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists' Continuing Educati8on program since 1970, and in 1969 and 1970 was a Distinguished Lecturer for the AAPG.

Company originated

DALLAS—Max R. Dodson, president of Lone Star Steel Co., and Robert L. Wheelock III, chairman of Banyan Technology Corp. of Dallas, jointly announced the formation of Hydro-Sonic Systems, an autonomous organization which will engineer and market air pollution control equipment in the United States.

The Hydro-Sonic line of equipment was originally developed in 1969 by Lone Star Steel as a cost-effective solution to difficult air cleaning conditions encountered in the ferrous metals industries.

Wheelock said the new company will operate as a partnership to develop and market the Hydro-Sonic line of air cleaners in the fast-growing air pollution control market.

Hydro-Sonic Systems will be headed by Martin W. Kasischke, with marketing being under the direction of George W. Peak.

Sivalls Tanks buys land

ODESSA—Three recent property acquisitions have tripled the Odessa groundspace of Sivalls Tanks, Inc.

According to company president C. R. "Dick" Sivalls, two separate parcels of land adjacent to the original 21-acre East Second and Meadow streets site will be used to augment existing technical, manufacturing, training and parking areas.

One block measuring more than four acres stands west of the original property line. The other, directly across Meadow Avenue from newly completed central offices, covers more than five acres.

A mile away, on the south side of Highway I-20, stands the largest of the three—52 acres set aside for future expansion.

An oil and gas industry original equipment manufacturer, the company foresees no end to the demand for onshore and offshore surface production equipment.

Leonard Pipkin

Meeting scheduled

Leonard Pipkin, a certified public accountant and chief financial officer of Mallard Exploration, Inc., will be the speaker for the Petroleum Accountants Society meeting Wednesday.

The meeting will begin at 6 p. m. in the Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Leonard is a past president of the Petroleum Accountants Society of Midland and presently is serving as Midland's delegate to all Council of Petroleum Accountants meetings. He will lead a discussion of the actions taken during the October COPAS meeting in Midland.

Pipkin is a graduate of Texas Tech Univerity and a member of the American Institute of CPA's, the Texas Society of CPA's and the Permian Basin Chapter of the TSCPA.

Jay Miller honored

J. W. Miller, formerly of Midland, has been honored by the Society of Exploration Geophysicists with its Fessenden Award for 1978.

He was presented the award at the recent annual meeting of the association in San Francisco, Calif.

The award is made annually for outstanding technical contributions to exploration geophysics.

Miller, who once served as a city councilman in Midland, was given the ward in recognition of his imagination and inventiveness in developing multiplexed telemetry in field seismic systems.

He is a graduate of Rice University where he earned a master's degree in Electrical Engineering and Physics.

He began his professional career on a Magnolia Petroleum Co. seismic crew in 1948. In 1953, he helped organize Globe Exploration Co., Inc. After five years as a subsidiary of Shell Oil Co., Globe Exploration was acquired in 1969 by Miller and associates and rethe firm was reorganized as Globe Universal Sciences, Inc. In 1976, Miller acquired full ownership of the subsidiary of Globe Universal, known as GUS Manufacturing, Inc.,, which in 1977 became a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Anaconda Co.

Purchase deal talked

NEWPORT BEACH, CALIF. — Smith International, Inc., has reached an agreement in principle to acquire Willis Oil Tool Co., it was announced by Jerry W. Neely, president and chief executive officer of Smith International.

Willis Oil Tool is a specialized manufacturer of properietary control valves and related products for the oil and gas industry, with headquarters in Long Beach. The company's sales were $14.3 million in the fiscal year ended June 30.

Firms sign agreement

DALLAS — M.F. Schwenk, chairman and chief executive officer of Energy Resources Corp., announced the signing by Energy Resources and Aikman Oil Corp. of a definitive agreement providing for the previously announced acquisition of Aikman by Energy Resources.

The acquisition would be effected through the merger of Energy Resources Oil & Gas Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Energy Resources, into Aikman Oil Corp. in a transaction intended to qualify as a tax-free reorganization.

Upon consumation of the merger, Energy Resources would become the owner of 100 percent of the stock of Aikman, and, as the sole shareholder of Aikman, Energy would acquire indirect ownership of the 82.6 percent of Alta Loma Oil Co. owned by Aikman, the remainder which is publicly owned. A total of 276,000 shares of Energy Resources Common Stock would be issued to the shareholders of Aikman in the merger. Energy Resources currently has 1,883,449 shares outstanding. The acquisition would be consummated by the end of November.

Eddie Smart

Luncheon meet set

The Midland Operations Study Group of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME will hold a luncheon meeting at 11:30 a.m. Monday in the New American Legion Hall, 501 Airport Road, Midland.

The guest speaker will be Eddie Smart of Guiberson Division of Dresser Industries. Smart's talk will be "How to Select the Packer for the Job". The presentation deals with general packer types and their applications.

Smart earned a B.S. degree in Aerospace Engineering from The University of Texas at Arlington, and a M.S. degree in Boimedical Engineering from Southern Methodist University. He is currently an area technical service engineer for Guiberson Division.

William W. Owens

W. Owens will speak

ODESSA — William W. Owens, director of research for Amoco Production Co. in Tulsa, Okla., and a 1978-79 Distinguished Lecturer for the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, will speak at the Tuesday meeting of thePermian Basin Section of the SPE.

The meeting is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. at the Odessa Country Club.

"Improved Assesment of Reservoir Production Potential Through Application of Geologic and Engineering Studies" is the title of Owens' talk in which he will address technological advances in understanding the basic properties of reservoir rocks and the fluids they contain, as well as the character of the reserviors.

These include the assessment of rock properties in tight gas sands and the integration of geologic and engineering date for improved reservior description in waterflood and enhanced recovery projects. Results of studies on cores from three different tight gas productive horizons will be discussed, together with the manner of utilization of the data.

Owens graduated with the degree of Petroleum Engineer from the Colorado School of Mines in 1947.

He joined Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. (now Amoco Production Co.) in the research department, obtained an MS degree in Petroleum Engineering from Oklahoma University and continued with Amoco in various research and supervisory assignments in the areas of flow in porous media, formation evaluation, and well logging.

Houston in center

HOUSTON - Two-thirds of all domestic drilling is taking place within a 500-mile radious of Houston, the National Supply Co. reports in its recently published handbook on oil.

The area includes most of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and part of the Gulf of Mexico.

H.J. Haynes to get award

COLLEGE STATION — Standard Oil of California chairman Harold J. Haynes will receive the first Geosciences and Earth Resources Medal for Distinguished Achievement Wednesday during ceremonies at Texas A&M University.

The award is given by the Geosciences and Earth Resources Advisory Council, a group of a dozen leading industrialists and executives, for contributions to society in the field of earth resources through management, engineering or science, said Michael T. Halbouty of Houston, council chairman.

Haynes, a Fort Worth native and 1946 graduate of Texas A&M, is one of the members of the advisory council and has been cited by the university for his achievements through its 1972 Distinguished Alumni Award.

A fomer president of Standard Oil of California, he was elected to chairman of the board and executive officer in 1974 after almost 30 years of Standard service here and overseas.

Texas A&M Dean of Geosciences Earl F. Cook said Haynes was picked because of his dynamic leadership in discovery and development of energy resources through intelligent management within the structure of the world's fourth-largest oil company.

Leon Ford

Leon Ford in new post

LEVELLAND — Go Wireline Services, a Division of Gearhart-Owen Industries, has appointed Leon Ford district manager of its new cased hole facility in Levelland.

He will be in charge of the cased hole activities within a 60-mile radius of Levelland. Leon has been in the wireline service since 1955. He is a member of Society of Petroleum Engineers and the American Petroleum Institute.

API meeting set Monday

CHICAGO, Ill. - North American petroleum industry leaders will be on hand Monday when the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute opens in Chicago.

More than 2,500 persons are expected for the meetings in the Conrad Hilton Hotel Monday and Tuesday.

Speakers will include President Carter's special trade negotiator, Robert S. Strauss; Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson; John E. Swearingen, chairman of the API board of directors and chairman and chief executive officer of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, and Frank N. Ikard, API president who is retiring at the end of the year.

Other participants will include Jerome B. Wiesner, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and one time science advisor to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson; Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Robert A. Georgine, president of the Building and Construction Trade Department, AFL-CIO; and Thomas G. Ayers, chairman of the board of Commonwealth Edison Co.

Acquisition finalized

Olix Industries Inc. reported last week the finalization of the previously announced acquisition of Hightower Oil & Gas Co. Olix also announced the creation of Olix Energy Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary.

The two companies signed a letter of intent Aug. 28 for Olix to acquire Hightower in an exchange of stock and other securities, subject to approval of both companies' boards of directors. The estimated value of the transaction is $5 million dollars.

Hightower Oil and Gas will operate as Olix Energy Co., a subsidiary of Olix Industries Inc.

Kenn S. George, president of Olix, said "This purchase is consistent with Olix's philosphy of increasing its oil nnd gas assets, thereby enabling Olix to take a more significant and aggressive possition in energy exploration. Olix will continue to actively pursue the acquisition of oil and gas properties. George said the the management obtained in this acquisition was a 'decide plus' and included the following:

Wayne Hightower, president of Hightower Oil & Gas Co., was previously a regional manager for Union Oil Co. of California before becoming an independent oil operator in 1966.

Hightower is a director of the IPAA and Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Basil Kantzer, a member of the Hightower board of directors and a major stockholder, was formerly the president of Transwestern Pipeline Co. and is currently on the board of directors of Smith International, a major oil field products manufacturer.

Raybourne Thompson is the past managing partner of Vinson-Elkins law firm of Houston and has served on the boards of several large Texas corporations and is currently chairman of the board of Meyerland Bank in Houston.

Olix IndustriesEInc. is a Midland based holding company engaged in the manufacture of business and institutional furniture and in oil and gas exploration in Texas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas offshore.

PB Graduate Center presents more new courses

"Risk Analysis for Exploration Decisions" will be offered by the Permian Basin Graduate Center from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, with a luncheon break from 1 to 2:15 p.m.

John M. Cozzolino, Director of the Business Risk Education Center of The Wharton Schook, University of Pennsylvania will instruct.

There are no educational prerequisites for this program. All mathematical methods used are explained from basic concepts. All mathematical techniques needed are taught very efficiently based upon usage of hand calculators. Particpants must bring a hand calculator which is capable of performing the spcial mathematical functions called exponential and logarithmic functions.

A specially designed text and workbook is provided to facilitate the assimilation of all material covered.

The goal of the seminar is more than understanding: it is a working knowledge of concepts and techniques which can be used in the practice of risk management.

Dr. Cozzolino is an associate professor of statistics and operations research at The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. He has been a consultant at the Sun Oil Co. over an extended period since 1968. He received his education at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, including bachelor's, master's, and Ph.D. degrees. He has published articles on exploration and risk management in professional journals and has co-authored a textbook, Fundamentals of Operations Research for Management.

Fee for the course is $495.

"Oil Well Cementing" will be offered from 7-10 p.m. Tuesday at the PBGC Building in Midland and will be instructed by David Boes.

Discussion will enter on the what's, why's, and the how's of cementing and illustration of what is required and or what could occur to obtain or preclude good cement bonds. Various type cements and cement additives and their reason for use will also be discussed.

Boes received his B.S in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Missouri at Rolla. He has worked for Halliburton for the past nine years and is an active member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME.

Fee for the course is $30.

"Carbonate Petrography" will be offered by the Center from 7-10 p.m. Wednesday.

Dr. Sal Mazzulo, the instructor, received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Brooklyn College in New York and his Ph.D. from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. His varied work background includes one year as a research scientist for Texaco in Houston and three years with UTPB.

He was an independent consulting geologist in petroleum exploration specializing in carbonate depositional environments until July 1978 when he joined Union Texas Petroleum as a senior stratigrapher. He is an active member of AAPG, IAS, SEPM, and WTGS.

Fee for the course is $30.

The graduate center will offer "Unitization, Drilling Units, Forces Pooling," from 7-10 p.m. Thursday at the PBGC Building.

Marvin L. Wigley, the instructor, exploration land supervisor, Exxon Co., U.S.A., received his B.A degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and has attended law school at Tulane University and Jackson School of Law. He has been employed with Exxon since 1948. He is a member of Permian Basin Landmen's Association and is a charter member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen.

Fee for the course is $20.

Tiny watering device may help farmers in Brazil

By BRUCE HANDLER

PETROLINA, Brazil (AP) — A little clay thingamajig that's shaped like an astronaut's space capsule and costs about 20 cents could mean better and more prosperous lives for millions of dirt-poor peasant farmers in the misery-ridden drought zone of northeastern Brazil.

Government researchers here are working on a system for keeping farm crops well watered year round by means of a series of such capsules, which are stuck into the ground near the seeds and then connected by plastic tubes to a water storage tank.

The beauty of this system is that it appears to fit perfectly the needs and capabilities of the people who can most benefit from it: subsistence farmers who have no formal education, who still till the soil with hoes and jackass-pulled plows, and who are almost always broke.

The capsule arrangement is still in early research stages, but it appears to be far cheaper and more efficient than traditional canal irrigation. It requires no special knowhow or complicated equipment. It has no moving parts and doesn't need electricity or even wind or muscle power. The water comes out because of air pressure and gravity.

Brazil's drought zone, where malnutrition, disease and early death are part of the everyday scene, is one of the most miserable, depressed areas in the Western Hemisphere. More than 12 million people struggle to exist here, in a region that is bigger than Texas and California combined.

Many places here get less than 10 inches of rain a year. Some years they don't get any at all. When that happens — as it has with notorious regularity throughout Brazilian history — the government has to put hundreds of thousands of farm families on emergency "make work" relief programs to prevent them from starving to death.

Ambitious-sounding drought-control programs that Brazil has engaged in over the years have done little to change the basic situation.

At an Embrapa experimental farm outside the hot, dry northeastern town of Petrolina, watermelons and honeydew melons are now sprouting over the once-arid landscape, thanks to the easily manufactured 5-inch-high watering capsules. There are plans to see if the capsules can also be used to grow onions, tomatoes, table grapes and sugar cane.

Experts working on the project say it's much too early to start making pie-in-the-sky predictions about "saving the Northeast." But they say the initial results are highly promising.

"This system uses eight and a half times less water than traditional irrigation and at a fraction of the cost," said Aderaldo de Souza Silva, a young agronomist. "And this thing is so simple, any farmer can be taught how to install it. Also, all the components are made right here in Brazil."

Silva and his colleagues caution, however, that a lot more testing needs to be done. And they are aware that northeastern farmers have traditionally been very reluctant to change their ways or try new ideas.

Some basis for hope

Vacillation, a tendency to temporize and large doses of wishful thinking long have characterized the Carter administration's formulation and pursuit of fiscal and monetary policy.

It has been apparent all the while that the hard-eyed realists who operate in the world's money markets were not impressed.

In recent months, their votes of no confidence have resulted in a vast hemorrhage in the value of the dollar abroad. Foreigners holding dollars have been dumping them on the market in exchange for sounder German, Swiss, French, Japanese and Dutch currencies. Even Britain's less-than-robust pound sterling began to look attractive next to the sagging dollar.

Recently, the dollar's value sank to such unprecedented depths that the administration was compelled to abandon its graveyard whistling and do something.

Fortunately, the steps the administration took provide some basis for hope that the White House has been brought to its senses.

The dollar's chief affliction has been the chronic, worsening inflation plaguing the American economy. By steadily draining the dollar's purchasing power, the present 9.6 percent inflation rate rendered the dollar much less attractive than, say, the German mark which suffered from a mere 2-percent inflation.

The core of the administration's campaign to rescue the dollar is the Federal Reserve Board's dramatic increase of a full percentage point in the discount rate of interest it charges on short-term loans to member banks.

Despite the Fed's theoretical independence, the discount rate hike presumably reflected White House pressure. This unprecedented increase will hike interest rates throughout the economy and thus help curb the unwarranted and inflationary growth in both credit and money.

Inevitably, it will also restrain economic growth; a price that must now be paid.

Assuming it is maintained, this tight money policy will do more to reduce inflation than all the voluntary wage and price guidelines the White House can devise.

The other ingredients in the President's dollar-rescue operation — additional sales of United States gold reserves and the borrowing of $30 billion in foreign currencies to be used for the purchase of surplus dollars — — will help in the short run.

The key remains the Federal Reserve Board's tighter monetary policy.

If he is to restore fully the dollar's health, Mr. Carter will also find it necessary to reduce further the anticipated federal budget deficits of the next two years.

Following President Carter's announcement of the voluntary wage and price guidelines proposed as the antidote to inflation, the Dow Jones Industrial Average plummeted admidst panic selling.

After the news that the Federal Reserve was tightening the money spigot, the Dow scored its largest one-day gain in history.

But what must continue to be stressed if the dollar's health is to be fully restored is the fact that, as stated above, the anticipated federal budget deficits of the next two years MUST be reduced further. There is no other way for permanent cure.

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — There are signs of panic over the state of the U.S. economy. If you remain calm and assess the situation objectively, you will see that there is good reason to panic.

Not that panic helps, but like cussing, it does make you feel better sometimes. I used to work for a man who insisted that when he was in a panic the rest of us had at least better simulate panic because he couldn't stand to be in panic all by himself.

James Earle Carter, the latest actor to play the role of president, has plenty of company. I suspect the real reason he cancelled his press conference last week when the dollar was doing an imitation of the Dodgers was that he didn't want people to see his upper lip sweat.

James Earle continues to insist, of course, that the world's most astute and hard-headed money changers are wrong and that there is nothing weak about the dollar.

That is like saying to a housewife who has refused to buy an obviously rotten cabbage that she doesn't know anything about cabbages. You can say it, but nobody will believe you.

You know Carter is in a panic when a Democratic Administration starts talking about ignoring unemployment. You know George Meany, of the AFL-CIO, is in a panic when he advocates wage and price controls. You know we all have problems when you see, as I have recently, state officials kissing the rings of Japanese businessmen and begging them to invest some yen in the U.S.

Selling gold, however, is not going to help the dollar. Neither is raising the discount rate which will only push interest rates even higher and bring on a recession, if not a depression.

James Earle asked us not to laugh at his anti-inflation program and I have to agree it's not very funny. It's a farce, but it's not very funny.

Like most members of the lower half of the middle class, I've bitten all the bullets I'm going to bite, especially since Carter has the White House crammed with hacks, flacks and relatives all making 40 and 50 grand a year.

It's time for the ruling aristocracy in Washington to chip their teeth. There is a simple solution to both inflation and the decline of the dollar. End deficit spending and balance the budget. James Earle doesn't have the guts to do it.

And while I'm griping, I might as well say that I'm tired of these cosmetic tax cuts just prior to congressional elections. Those spotted livered skunks levied the greatest tax increase in American history — the social security tax increases — but they conveniently postponed them until after the elections.

Most of us, thanks to the social security increases and to inflation, will be further in the hole next year despite the cosmetic tax cut.

If you think times are tough now, wait until January when the social security increases go into effect along with the new minimum wages, both of which will be paid for (business pays half the social security tax) by price increases.

What's happened is that the hotshots have lost control of it. For years they've been manipulating the economy by playing games with the money supply. Well, the money supply is now out of control.

What we are seeing is reality calling their hand. They have squashed American industry, with over-regulation, high taxes, pro-labor laws, and stupid free trade policy. They have sucked up the private capital with deficit spending. They have financed our foreign competitors and also encouraged the multi-nationals to move their factories overseas.

Well, reality is saying it's time to pay up. The dollar is declining because some very smart people see that our economy is fouled up and that we have no leaders with the courage to un-foul it.

Unfortunately, the hotshots will not pay the penalty. You and I will. We will face high taxes, high prices and high unemployment and the only thing we can do about it is vote against the no-goodnicks who have done it to us.

The real danger is that the same people who have created the crisis will use it as an excuse to strengthen power. People who aspire to be dictators love emergencies.

If they do, I may rebel, but in the meantime, I'm not going to worry about it. Over the years, I've learned not to worry about things over which I have no control. If you haven't developed this talent, may I suggest you start working on it. It may be the only asset you have left.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
New solar energy plan revealed

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — On the roof of Edgar Wuebbon's dairy barn near Hartington, Neb., sits a cluster of black panels honeycombed with copper ducts. The panels capture the sun's rays and provide hot water for Wuebbon's farm.

The modest solar heating system, which Wuebbon installed with the help of his son, cost $1,200 and should pay for itself in saved electricity in about seven years. Except for the few cents a day he spends to run the motor that pumps the water through the system, Wuebbon's hot water is free.

Thousands of other Americans, fed up with skyrocketing electric bills, are discovering that small-scale solar energy systems can do the job, whether it's heating water for tenements in New York City or warming greenhouses on the roofs of senior citizen centers in Chicago.

In striking contrast to these low-cost individual uses of the sun's free heat are the staggeringly ambitious plans of the aerospace industry to cash in on the energy crisis with a multibillion-dollar program to harness solar energy by means of giant satellites.

The satellites would contain billions of photovoltaic solar cells that would convert the sun's rays into electricity. This would then be transformed into microwaves and beamed down to earth. Each satellite would cover 50 square miles of space and weigh more than 100,000 tons.

Construction of the satellites would involve a massive earth-to-space shuttle, using launch vehicles five times the size of Saturn rockets. Development alone would cost more than $50 billion — enough to bring the aerospace industry juicy contracts reminiscent of the boom days of the Apollo program.

Under the plan, 60 or more of these solar energy satellites would be circling the earth by the year 2025; the total bill, experts estimate, could run as high as $1 trillion.

It would all be a mouth-watering pie-in-the-sky for the aerospace people. To push the scheme through Congress, they have formed a high-powered public relations organization called Sunsat.

Like the promoters of most grandiose visions that involve big money, high risk and dubious returns on the investment, Sunsat is counting on the American taxpayers to foot the bills. Already, Sunsat has inveigled Congress into putting up $15.6 million for initial research.

Recently, their briefcases bulging with reports, charts and colorful artists' renditions of satellites in orbit, the satellite lobbyists made the rounds on Capitol Hill, pushing for another $25 million in research funds. Their proposal sailed through the House, and a scaled-down version was considered by the Senate energy committee.

The scheme was put aside when the 95th Congress adjourned. But it will be reviewed in January. The chances of a sympathetic hearing look pretty good, since the chairman of the energy committee is Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. One of Sunsat's key members is Boeing Aerospace Co., a major employer in Jackson's home state.

Boeing's lobbyists have confided to Senate staffers that they hope to get more than $3 billion in federal funds over the next five years. The money would be used for what is known mysteriously as a "verification phase" of the program and would include construction of a prototype satellite in outer space.

Because of the current tax-cut fever, the Carter administration has greeted the satellite proposal with some skepticism. The Energy Department has come out against any further funding until the initial studies are completed.

But Sunsat has found understandable support in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Reduced to only one major program with the end of the big space-shot era, NASA's bureaucrats have visions of budgetary sugarplums dancing in their heads as they contemplate the multibillion-dollar, solar-power project.

Leading the fight against the Sunsat scheme have been retiring Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y. They feel the project is simply a gigantic pork-barrel boondoggle designed to prop up a sagging aerospace industry and an ambitious NASA bureaucracy.

Abourezk believes public money "could be spent more efficiently on developing small-scale, more diversified solar approaches." Other leading critics, like Garry DeLoss of the Environmental Policy Center, fear that the satellite project would preempt funds badly needed for land-based solar energy programs.

In addition to the financial doubts raised by the satellite program's critics, there is also the possibility that the microwave bombardment could endanger the health of people and wildlife. Each of the hundred satellites would aim its microwaves at a "rectenna" covering about 50 square miles of land. A buffer zone of at least 177 square miles would surround the rectenna sites, but there is some fear that even that much of a buffer would be insufficient protection against low-level microwave radiation.

The scientific community is divided on many of these questions. To the aerospace industry, this uncertainty is prima facie proof that more federal money is needed for research. Abourezk's wry comment on this logic is: "In Washington, projects have only two stages — too early to tell and too late to do anything about it."

NICK THIMMESCH
Will winners remember the conservative message?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — The citizenry sent an emphatic message to politicians this past week to be restrained and conservative. People don't want their dollars wasted or their lives upset by government programs. But two questions come out of this election:

1. Will the winners heed the message?

2. If they don't, will the citizenry remember and administer new punishment in 1980?

Sen. Charles Percy (R.Ill.) quickly admitted that he got the message and contritely promised to be more conservative. But Percy tends to be a liberal-Republican type of introspection anyway, and I thought for a moment on election night, that he was going to pray over the remains of his opponent.

Anyway, what of the Democrats who shrewdly grafted Republican arguments, and went about the Republic huffing and puffing, as they took oaths that would cut taxes and government spending, eliminate wasteful programs and reduce budget deficits, so help them Robert A. Taft? The Democrats, who are responsible for all these sins, had to campaign against them or lose, so they campaigned against them.

But do they mean it, these Democrats in conservative bunting, who eventually will make decisions on taxes, spending and wasteful programs? There are so many constituencies out there these days which demand more federal aid, more coverage, more money for themselves, and they go to the Democratic majority for all this.

There was New York Governor Hugh Carey, thumping at his victory celebration for the party which took people out of the breadlines and gave us all Franklin D. Roosevelt. Carey sounded like an anachronism, evoking images of the benevolent government taking care of the needs of every soul.

How much of this stuff still courses through the veins of elected Democrats? What will a liberal-Democrat like Sen.-elect Carl Levin of Michigan do, spit in the UAW's eye?

For my shrinking money, the most wholesome election was in Minnesota where the independent-minded citizenry turned the rascals out, the rascals being Democrats, and didn't fret that the new team was Independent-Republican.

But then Minnesotans showed good sense earlier when they voted down Rep. Donald Fraser's aspirations for a Senate seat, and actually booed Vice President Mondale at the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party convention. This election makes a monkey out of Mondale, Fraser and other liberals who think they can over-ride people's feelings.

The majority of Minnesotans like to run their boats where they want to, are pro-life, don't like arrogant, incestous politics (you appoint me, I'll appoint you). So Washington gets Rudy Boschwitz, a refugee from Nazi Germany and fiscal conservative, and David Durenberger, a thoughtful moderate, as senators; and Albert Quie, an experienced and eminently likeable politician, as governor.

Iowans also showed good sense in defeating Sen. Richard Clark, who like Fraser practiced a haughty liberalism in defiance of his constituents. Many Iowa Democrats are Catholics and Clark thought they would have to swallow his pro-abortion views. They didn't, and voted for his Republican opponent.

Politicians are usually lax in understanding where the public's mind is. Despite the accumulation of power in Washington (this vast stomach which sucks up nourishment provided by the real United States), people don't want their government to be larger, richer and worse.

They are leery of more federal involvement, including the Equal Rights Amendment, affirmative action for the Aleuts and other so-called minorities (whatever happened to Polish or Italian Americans?) and other meddlesome federal programs which Democrats have pushed for a decade.

So now that we have a chastened lot of elected politicians taking office next year, we must watch them to make sure the message really sunk in. Democrats and liberal-Republicans must know they can't get away with this stuff a second time.

Or can they? If the excesses of government continue, if spending and programs are not curtailed, if inflation continues to burn, will the same citizenry which elected this gang last week demand their ouster — and Jimmy Carter's too — in 1980?

After the mad scramble for the unused air route some company will advertise the only nonstop flight from Nashua, N.H., to Laramie, Wyo.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Texans waiting for demostration of long-sought Republican power

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Years ago, during a philosophical discussion in a small-town barber shop, a keen observer noted much of human activity was on the same level as his small dog's efforts in chasing cars.

"Even if he catches one," the sage remarked, "he won't know how to drive it."

For a long time, the Republican Party in Texas has been in much the same situation as that dog — trying to grab ahold of the machinery of state government, which has continued on its way, ignoring the yapping and leaving the challenger hot, dusty and defeated.

But now, against all previous experience, the vehicle has been caught, and folks are waiting to see if the catcher has really been a Grand Prix driver in disguise all along.

For the first time in 105 years, Texas will have a non-Democrat as governor, and no one is quite sure how the situation is going to work out.

Bill Clements' victory over John Hill came as a major surprise to many political observers — including Republicans.

In fact, Republican Party officials were glumly discussing rebuilding the party at one point Tuesday night, as returns showed Hill and senatorial challenger Bob Krueger pulling out ahead of their GOP opponents.

Certainly it was enough to be discouraging — after watching months of effort and the expenditure (in statewide and congressional races) of some $12,000,000.

Democrats, they complained, had stolen the issues — particularly the economic issues — from the Republicans, and the voters apparently didn't know what had happened.

But — whether fortunately or unfortunately — voters don't have to explain to candidates why they vote as they do, and the one sure fact in Tuesday's election is that more people turned out to vote for Bill Clements than for John Hill.

There are lots of theories on why Clements won. And it's a sure bet there will be lots of studying of Tuesday's results before the next elections, in attempts to prove those theories right or wrong.

But once Clements steps in as governor, he's not likely to have much time for hypothesizing.

Any new governor, regardless of party, is likely to quickly discover that (to paraphrase the old saying) he proposes, but the Legislature disposes.

That basic structure of Texas government — the so-called "weak governor" system — was an outgrowth of experience from the last period which saw a Republican governor in the state.

It is how well a governor can command public opinion and use extra-governmental arrangements — the force of his personality, if you like — that frequently determines how well he gets along with the Legislature and how much of the time he gets his way.

Now he is a politician — and if he proves as successful at that as he has as a businessman, he should do very well indeed.

Republicans remain a decided minority among legislators, although the party did increase from 19 to 21 places in the Texas House, and stayed at four in the Senate.

Which means, of course, that on a straight party-line vote, the Legislature could do whatever members want, with the governor effectively isolated, veto or no veto.

In the past, there haven't been a lot of party-line issues — but there hasn't been a Republican in the Governor's Mansion, either.

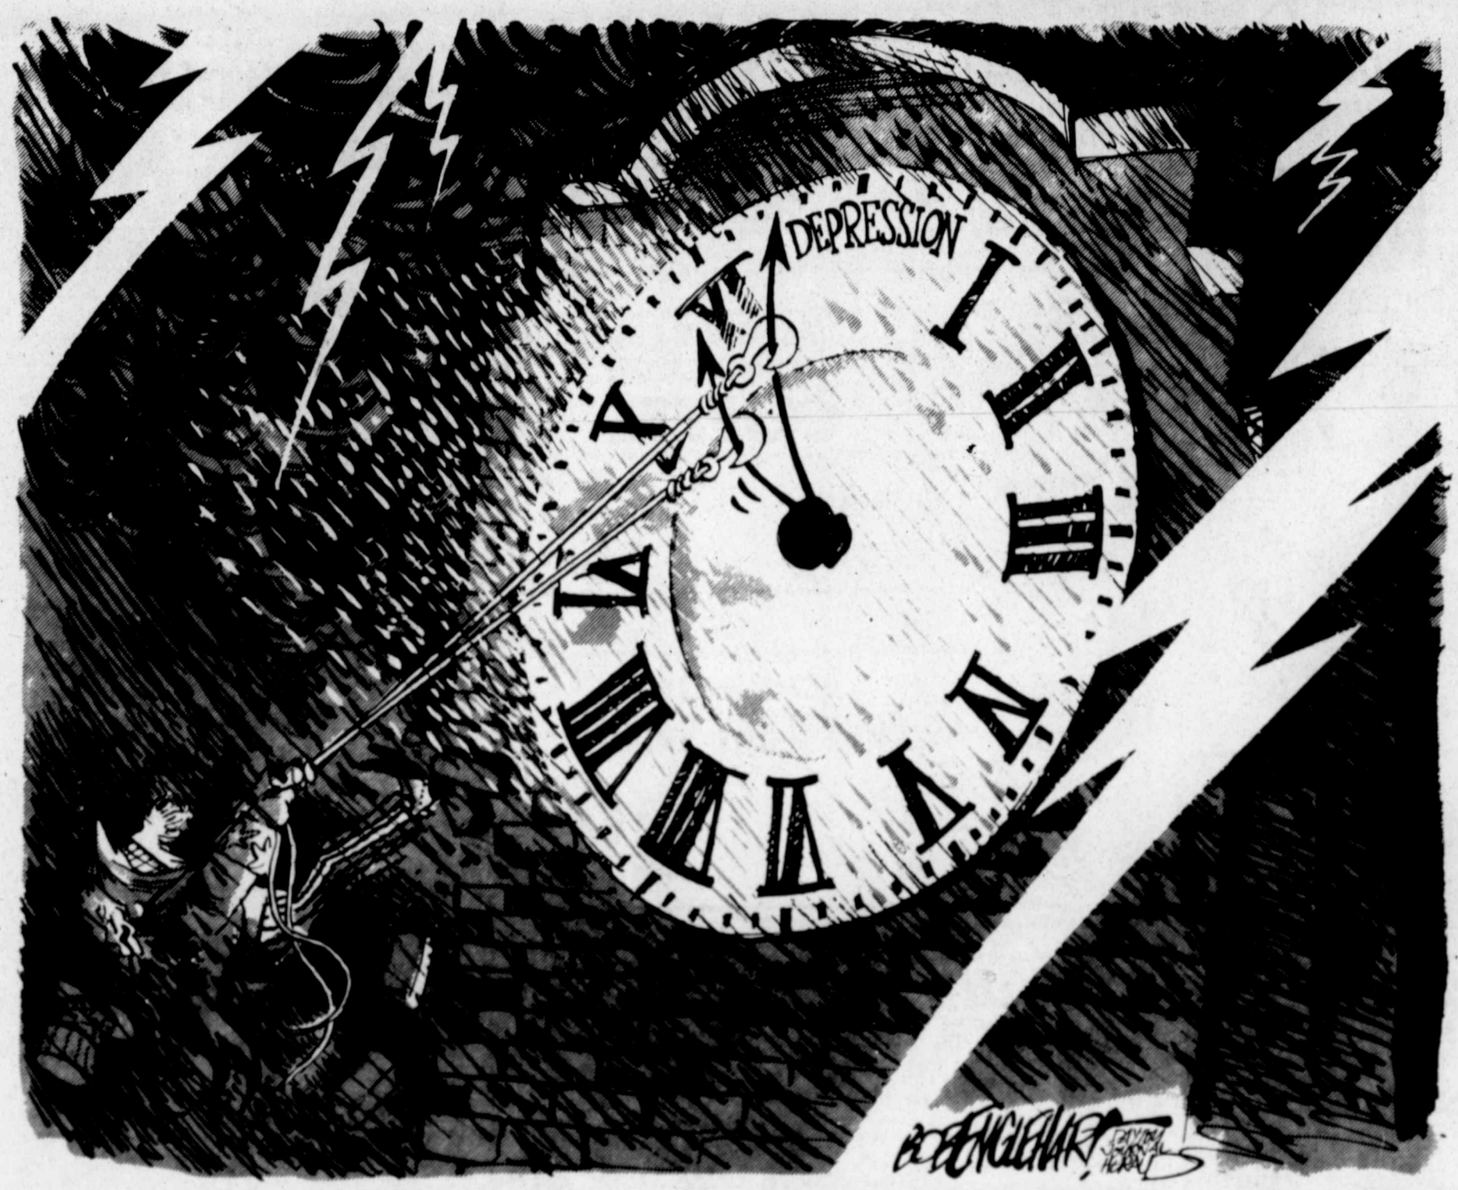

Indications are that Clements will get a fairly conservative group to work with in both House and Senate — so that the general tone of proposals from the executive and legislative leaders isn't likely to be greatly different.

If there is a consistent factor in what voters did on Tuesday, it would appear to be that they indicated they don't want to pay any more than they're paying for government.

That's likely to suit Clements and lawmakers just fine — although they aren't likely to agree on just what needs to be done, or how.

Nor is there likely to be any dramatic, drastic change — such as that feared by some state employees who saw Clements' initial proposals for eliminating 25,000 state jobs as a sort of ritual slaughter of the sort associated with the coronation of barbarian chiefs or Aztec emperors.

No, it seems there's no great cause for concern — because if Clements is clever enough to have grabbed hold of that car, he sould be clever enough to drive it, too.

POSITIVE THINKING

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A few months ago I appeared on a television interview program. The interviewer was a bright and sophisticated person who asked his questions briskly and cleverly. Finally, in that cheery tone that always signifies the end of the program, he said, "And now, folks, we have time for just one more question and, Dr. Peale, you'll have to answer it fast. You've got exactly 15 seconds."

I braced myself and he threw it at me.

"Are you a happy man?"

Well! I ducked at first, but then picked it up and answered with complete certainty, "Sure, of course, I am."

What about you? Suppose you were asked whether or not you are happy and given 15 seconds to answer. You wouldn't have time to think, to equivocate, to analyze or to explain. You'd have to answer yes or no. Your quick instinctive answer would probably be the true one because basically we know whether or not we are happy.

One of the great fundamental questions in life is this: Are you a happy person? What would your answer be?

According to psychologists who have asked this question of large groups of people, many answer that they are unhappy. Happiness somehow seems to elude their grasp, no matter how hard they try to be happy.

Some, more cynical than others, conclude that there is no happiness in life. Some actually reason that no one has a right to be happy in this mixed-up world (which Schopenhauer, the gloomy philosopher, called "that theatre of sin, suffering and death").

But the Great Philosopher who taught in Galilee and Judea long ago offered real happiness and His formula is a simple one. "These things have I spoken to you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full," He said.

What are "these things" to which the Great Teacher refers? Oh, things like love, forgiveness, unselfishness, goodness, overcoming self, mastering weaknesses, helping people. Have you noticed that you always get a warm glow in your heart when you do any of these? That warm inner glow is a pretty good sign that you are on the track of happiness. The more times your heart registers that glowing feeling the happier you'll be.

A friend of mine, a grumpy unhappy fellow, read one of my books in which I advocate trying "these things" Jesus gives as a happiness formula. My friend wrote a kind of doubting letter inquiring if this was really workable or was it just a nice pious platitude.

It so happened that he worked in a scientific field, and I suggested that he apply the scientific method to this material and see for himself whether or not it would work. He decided that for one month he would seriously try to live exactly as Jesus teaches. He made a thorough study of those teachings to work out a plan which he outlined in five steps:

1. I will be honest at all times.
2. I will forgive everybody.
3. I will empty out all wrong thoughts.
4. I will be kind and thoughtful to other people.
5. I will daily read God's word.

Every night he faithfully checked his "score." It wasn't easy going but he stuck at it. Now, even with imperfections in his "score," he declares, "This way of living has it over any I've known!" This method gradually has made this man a truly happy person.

His experience demonstrates that vital religious faith is the surest way to real happiness. His formula (honesty, forgiveness, right-thinking, kindness and spiritual guidance) is so effective that I tell of it here in the hope that those who are looking for happiness will give it a trial. I'm sure it will work for you too.

'Kiss' favored

To The Editor:

"Picture one lady punk," female, who writes to people about something she doesn't know one thing about. I happen to know a lot about the group, "Kiss."

For instance, that they are not on drugs and do not collect pictures of "little nude girls." None of their songs encourage sex. If the teen-ager idol is "Kiss," that's their opinion.

If there is one thing I hate more than anything is when an adult puts down our idols. Kids have feelings, too. That's my opinion and am sure lots agree that "Kiss" is the best rock group around.

I doubt it

To The Editor:

On a scale from one to ten on intelligence, I would be lucky to score a three, but all I hear and read makes me wonder how some of our so-called leaders are rated on sense...especially the horse kind.

Let's start with our leaders in Washington trying to give away our America and American way of life. We are moving out of countries on request after supporting them for 50 years (the Panama Canal giveaway). Watch Castro and Guantanamo Navy Base, it is next in the near future of government give-aways.

Furthermore, a supposedly smart federal judge says that the public school system (in Texas, too) must educate all the kids of all the people who are here illegally. He says that we have to do something to stop the spiraling cost of education. This doesn't add up to help keep cost down. Even our own Midland is needing another million to operate on and must now spend money for bilingual education, entertainment music on school buses, sex education, and the list goes on and on but gets farther from the three R's.

Health care...that brings us to the Midland hospital. Have you noticed the great number in our hospital who canot speak any English whatsoever. I think most of these are probably called "indigent care" people. They have even hired a person at the hospital to aid pregnant girls in their language so they will understand what kinds of freebies they can get. Now they are wanting to take on Odessa's indigent care people; makes great sense for Midland and Midland County property taxpayers to support such a wild suggestion, but they get wilder and wilder.

Ask Andrews hospital how they came out with Odessa. Then, after we give free lunches, bilingual education in grade schools, hospital care, premarital pregnancy care, and freebies, we send them to Midland College where they put enough gingerbread on buildings to cost enough to have built another building.

Now watch the county commissioners hold a bond election so that the county and city property owners have to pay for a north loop road, which they said we had the money for one year ago. Inflation? I doubt it.

A band booster

To The Editor:

Saturday we waited in great anticipation to see the rebroadcast of the Lee-Permian game and half time activities that took place at the game Friday night. Well, the whole game was televised but alas, on KMID-TV our band's half time show was even shorter than Permian's. Our kids and Mr. Ragsdale and Mr. Collins have worked super hard to be awarded the honor of being the Texas State Honor Band for 1978-79 and then to cut them off with advertising of a wrestling match is in my opinion unfair to say the least.

Our band needs this community's support as well as our great football team we have in the Rebels. Without the spirit of the band it would be pretty dull.

Then on Channel 7, KOSA-TV, they did a profile of both schools, praising Permian's band as being really hard workers and receiving many honors, which, by the way, I'm sure they deserve as they are very good. But then on Lee's profile there was not even a mention of our great band at all.

Just a little praise where it's well deserved and long overdue. Three cheers for the band directors, Mr. Ragsdale and Mr. Collins, and the Texas State Honor Band — Lee High School Rebel Band.

Note of thanks

To The Editor:

My special thanks goes to you and your staff for the support and interest in the Westside Optimist Club's youth projects and community service programs.

Our Flea Market this past weekend was a success due to your news coverage. These proceeds go back to our community for sponsoring youth programs such as Tri Star Basketball, Youth Appreciation Week, Respect for Law Week, and our Oratorical Contest.

Last Wednesday Lou Lindsey spoke to our club and opened our eyes to your duties and responsibilities to our community. Please extend to him our appreciation for the program well presented.

Still anti-'Kiss'

To The Editor:

A sincere, well expressed letter by 15-year-old Debbie Guerry appeared in last Sunday's Reporter-Telegram. It was a polite but energetic rebuttal of my October 29th letter about the rock group, "Kiss."

I was truly saddened, but also angry to see how this group has managed to convince such bright youngsters as Debbie that they are "the most decent band in the business."

Yes, I guess "Kiss" has the right to express themselves. But I personally can't buy the "hero" bit. I'm sure Mr. and Mrs. Lowery of Bloomington, Ill., cannot either. Their 17-year-old son died while trying to emulate the breathing fire trick of "Kiss." No one has the right to sell our youngsters a lie.

THE BIBLE

CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER AND ELIZABETH ROSS WIERSEMA

1. Tradition has it that Habakkuk was the son of the Shunnamite woman, whom Elisha miraculously raised from the dead. The Bible does not tell this, but records the prohecies as told by God to this prophet. What people were involved? Habakkuk 1
2. What angel proclaimed the coming of the Christ-Child? Luke 1
3. What gift of God, used all of the time, either justifies or comdemns us? Matt. 12:37
4. Tell the meaning of Emmanuel. Matt. 1:23
5. "The Lord is in His holy temple: let all the earth keep..." Habakkuk 2:20

ART BUCHWALD

By ART BUCHWALD
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The airlines are trying to make it up to people who have to pay more for flying in coach than those who fly on special thrift rates.

A barrage of newspaper, magazine and TV commercials are now informing us that the airlines really "revere" their "full-fare" passengers, and are making sure they get treated better than those on discount fares.

For one thing, the people who pay full coach fare will be seated in the middle of the plane just behind those in first class. The discount passengers will be placed in the rear of the craft where no one can see them.

The reason for the sudden decision to advertise the advantages of full fare, as opposed to discount, is that the airlines have had a backlash from businessmen who travel all the time and feel they're being taken for a ride. No one likes to sit next to a person who has paid 30 to 40 percent less to go to the same place and arrive at the same time.

I believe the airlines will have to do more than just seat the discount people in the back of the plane to placate the people who pay full fare. Stronger measures must be taken.

I foresee in the not too distant future that, after the coach passenger has been seated in the middle of the plane, the discount passengers will be loaded on board in leg irons. They will be driven to the back of the aircraft by a giant black-bearded man who is stripped to the waist and cracking a long whip.

Once in the back, they will be shoved down on wooden slats and chained to the bulkhead. The man with the beard will be their steward. He will walk up and down the thift section aisle shouting, "All right, you scurvy. There will be absolute silence in this section of the plane. Anyone who opens his mouth will get a taste of the whip on his worthless tourist back.

"Now this is the drill. Because we are flying over water part of the time, pay attention to these safety precautions. In case of the unlikely event of an emergency, a saw will be lowered from above you so that you can file off your leg irons and the chains on your wrists. There are emergency exits in the front of the plane. They may not be used until you pay a surcharge of $40.

"Once we are in the air we will be serving a delicious meal to passengers up front, consisting of vichyssoise, roast duckling with orange sauce, wild rice with raisins, and a Chateau Mouton Rothschild, 1969. As for you riffraff back here, we will pass around this wooden bucket of watery gruel, which the trusty will put in your slop bowls.

"Each passenger will be offered a choice of coffee, tea or milk. If he doesn't guess the right one, he will be hung by his thumbs from the luggage rack. One more thing, if any of you are planning to escape into coach class — forget it.

"This 747 has a snake-filled moat separating the cabins.

"All right, you miserable wretches. We're ready for takeoff. Are there any questions?"

"Sir, what is the movie playing today?"

CRACKKKKKK!!!!!! "Take that you penny-pinching cur. No one is entitled to a movie in discount class where the hell do you think you are — on some kind of vacation?"

Nation's colleges may be producing computer crooks

EDITOR'S NOTE — Numerous colleges are teaching courses in computer technology. But are they teaching courses in computer crime? Some experts say access to huge computer systems is also access to machines with a tremendous potential for wrongdoing.

By EVANS WITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — College students given large leeway in fiddling with computers may be learning the basics of computer crime, some experts say.

"We are creating new generations of computer criminals in our universities and colleges today because we are encouraging them to compromise computers and teaching them it's a game," says Donn Parker, the leading expert on computer crime who works out of SRI International in Menlo Park, Calif. For example:

—At universities in New York City and in Los Angeles, students altered their grades by defeating the security measures on universities' computer systems, where the scores were kept. In these two cases, the changes were detected, but there may be many other incidents that have gone unnoticed.

—At the University of Wisconsin at Madison, three students face criminal charges because they used a professor's computer time to make computer printouts of Snoopy and other non-academic subjects.

—During a student protest in the early 70s at Stanford University, students knowledgable about computers effectively shut down the school's computer center by submitting "phantom jobs" that kept anyone else from using the system.

—At most university computer centers across the country, late at night students gather around computer terminals, playing hour after hour of a "Space War" or other computer games.

Parker's dim view of computer games and his suggestion that professorial tolerance of computer "pranks" by students may lead some into more serious temptations is hotly contested by other academics.

"It's just not true to infer that universities are encouraging abuse and training computer criminals," says John W. Hamblen, chairman of the computer science department at the University of Missouri at Rolla.

"I don't think we're a bunch of crooks," says Jerry Engle, associate professor at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va.

Games like computer space war or computer chess are often encouraged to familiarize students with computer terminals and commands and give them a picture of the machines' potential.

But the games turn serious when students start to probe security measures designed to protect personal information stored in computers, look for weaknesses in its operations or play the games with the computer bill going against a professor's research project.

"There's a feeling that anything you can get hold of — the programs, the computer time — belongs to you" says Susan Nycum, a San Francisco attorney and expert on computer abuse. "There's no feeling that these things belong to someone else, that they have value."

And some students, she notes, don't see much difference between playing computer games or other, less innocent forms of intrusion. like forcing the system to fail. "The feeling is if I get inventive and find out how to crash the system, that's fine too, although it may cause serious problems for others," she says.

Mrs. Nycum and Parker say that too often, students are praised for their ingenuity rather than disciplined for various forms of computer abuse, and they add that computer science professors and computer center managers must share the responsiblity.

Many managers, Mrs. Nycum says, don't seek sanctions against students they find abusing the system.

"Instead of calling this activity to the attention of authorities,' she says, a computer center manager may hire the student. "He lavishly praises the student's smarts for finding this hole in the system.

Often it backfires, she adds. "To my personal knowledge, several times these people had to be fired. And they go back into the world with even more knowledge of the system, its weaknesses and what's in it."

Engle and Hamblen disagree.

"Sure, students will look for ways to crash the system," Engle says. "But it's usually a constructive thing. They share their knowledge of what's wrong with the system and may even suggest a fix."

Still, there's some support for academic concern with the ethics of computer use.

The difficulty has spilled over into Congress. A bill introduced by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., would make computer crime and abuse federal offenses. But the language is so broad that playing "space war" or using the computer to draw a Snoopy cartoon could draw a 15-year jail term and a $50,000 fine.

To date, computer ethics is rarely discussed in classes. "My guess is that a majority of computer science instructors do not treat in any serious way the ethics of the area," says Lance Hoffman, an associate professor at George Washington University.

And Engle acknowledges: "We are sending out students with technical expertise but there are issues far beyond the merely technical ones. These students are going into highly responsible jobs, being responsible for highly important systems — like a bank card computer."

Schools overcrowded

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Independent School District is being forced to rent space in some churches because of overcrowding and repairs under way on other facilities.

The school board Thursday approved the rental of the Faith Temple Church of God in Christ as a temporary classroom for 40 pre-kindergarten pupils now attending a nearby elementary school.

The district will use $5,000 in federal funds to pay the rent.

The board also plans to rent facilities at three other churches for 1,500 pupils at Franklin Elementary School which is being torn down for construction of a new school.

RINGING THE BELL

Blacks suffer political woes

With BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience in Politics: The conviction of U.S. Rep. Charles C. Diggs, Jr. (D-Mich) by a mostly-black jury on 29 counts of mail fraud and illegally diverting more than $60,000 worth of congressional employees' salaries to personal uses, just served as a warning to all our black elected officials, believes the Baltimore Afro-American.

There can be no doubt that we are still living in the era of Watergate—a time when all public officials are coming under constant scrutiny. If elected blacks are to survive this era, more than the usual care must be taken to assure conduct and personal responsibility in both fiscal and interpersonal affairs.

The Afro-American continues: "It is true, we need not be reminded, that black officeholders have never been given the special protective cover that white persons in office have. There is (and, indeed, always has been) a concerted effort to harrass black politicians, to lays secret plans for their downfall and to neutralize their effectiveness—if not eleiminate them."

To say this, however, is not to fall victim to the often-heard excuse that all indictments of our elected leaders are only racist ploys. As human beings, blacks have had our share of non-electoral. And even elected leaders who have placed personal gain, selfish ambition and deceitful concerns above service to the masses of black and poor people they are supposed to represent.

Black leaders at all levels cannot afford to think that racial commitment will substitute for rigorous compliance with the innuendoes of law: It may seem like too much to expect a "Jackie Robinson calibre" among all black elected officials, but indeed this seems to be what is required. We cannot afford to sacrifice the hopes and aspirations and influence of the black movement on the altars of personal carelessness or questionable deeds, believes the Afro. We do to.

"RIGHT TO WORK" Argument Draws Black Voters: By the time you read this, most of the elections in the nation will have been decided. And it was expected that especially in the larger cities of the nation, blacks would be drawn to the polls in larger numbers than usual because of the appearance of the "right to work" issue on the ballot.

A great number of national and regional civil rights leaders and black clergymen say that the interests of labor and the working people are closely tied with the interests and welfare of black people and civil rights.

These same leaders, however, are not unmindful of the fact, that all labor unions are not free of bias and discrimination. Some still do not accept blacks freely and give them an opportunity to advance. Yet there are many unions in which blacks have made steady advancement in job opportunity and in pay. And the beat goes on. How did you vote?

ON INFLATION: Public opinion polls have shown repeatedly that most Americans believe inflation to be the No. 1 national problem. And of course blacks with the lowest per capita income are suffering the most. We agree with bellriger, H.B. that "an undisciplined and selfish public will not respond to any measure short of compulsion, and will make every possible effort to circumvent voluntary controls...We must not forget that no nation in history has ever voluntarily abandoned runaway inflation."

A THANKSGIVING NOTE: We are so grateful for all of our readers friends of this column and even our critics. And we pray that at this Thanksgiving season we will all be thankful for the blessings of Our Father who will never put on us more than we can bear. And remember that no matter bellringers what condition you may be at this moment, there are those who are in much worse shape than you are. We then call all be thankful to the One from whom all blessings flow.

Exhibit features old buildings uses

By C.G. McDANIEL

CHICAGO (AP) — "Buildings Reborn: New Uses, Old Places" is fittingly the exhibition for the reopening of Chicago's Museum of Contemporary Art, itself buildings reborn.

The exhibition documents with before-and-after photographs and text the way American cities are saying "no" to the wreckers, saving substantial old buildings and putting them to new uses.

The exhibition which shows 52 reborn buildings in 48 states, will travel to 22 other cities under sponsorship of the Smithsonian Institution.

It was organized by Dr. Barbaralee Diamonstein, a New York historian and preservationist. It coincides with publication of her book, bearing the same title as the exhibition, which includes even more examples of how the past is being recycled.

Her work illustrates the nation's growing concern over destruction of its roots, the waste of natural resources and scarce energy and the high cost of modern construction with materials less substantial than those used in the past.

The museum itself originally was a bakery, then offices for Playboy, before the museum opened there in 1967. It was closed during the summer to give rebirth to still another building — an adjacent three-story former townhouse which has been remodeled and incorporated into the remodeled museum with a unifying and connecting facade.

Dr. Diamonstein's exhibit and book take particular note of how massive railway stations around the country have been saved and imaginatively adapted to new uses.

The Yuma, Ariz., train station became an arts center and the Italianate Mount Royal Station in Baltimore is now the Maryland Institute College of Art.

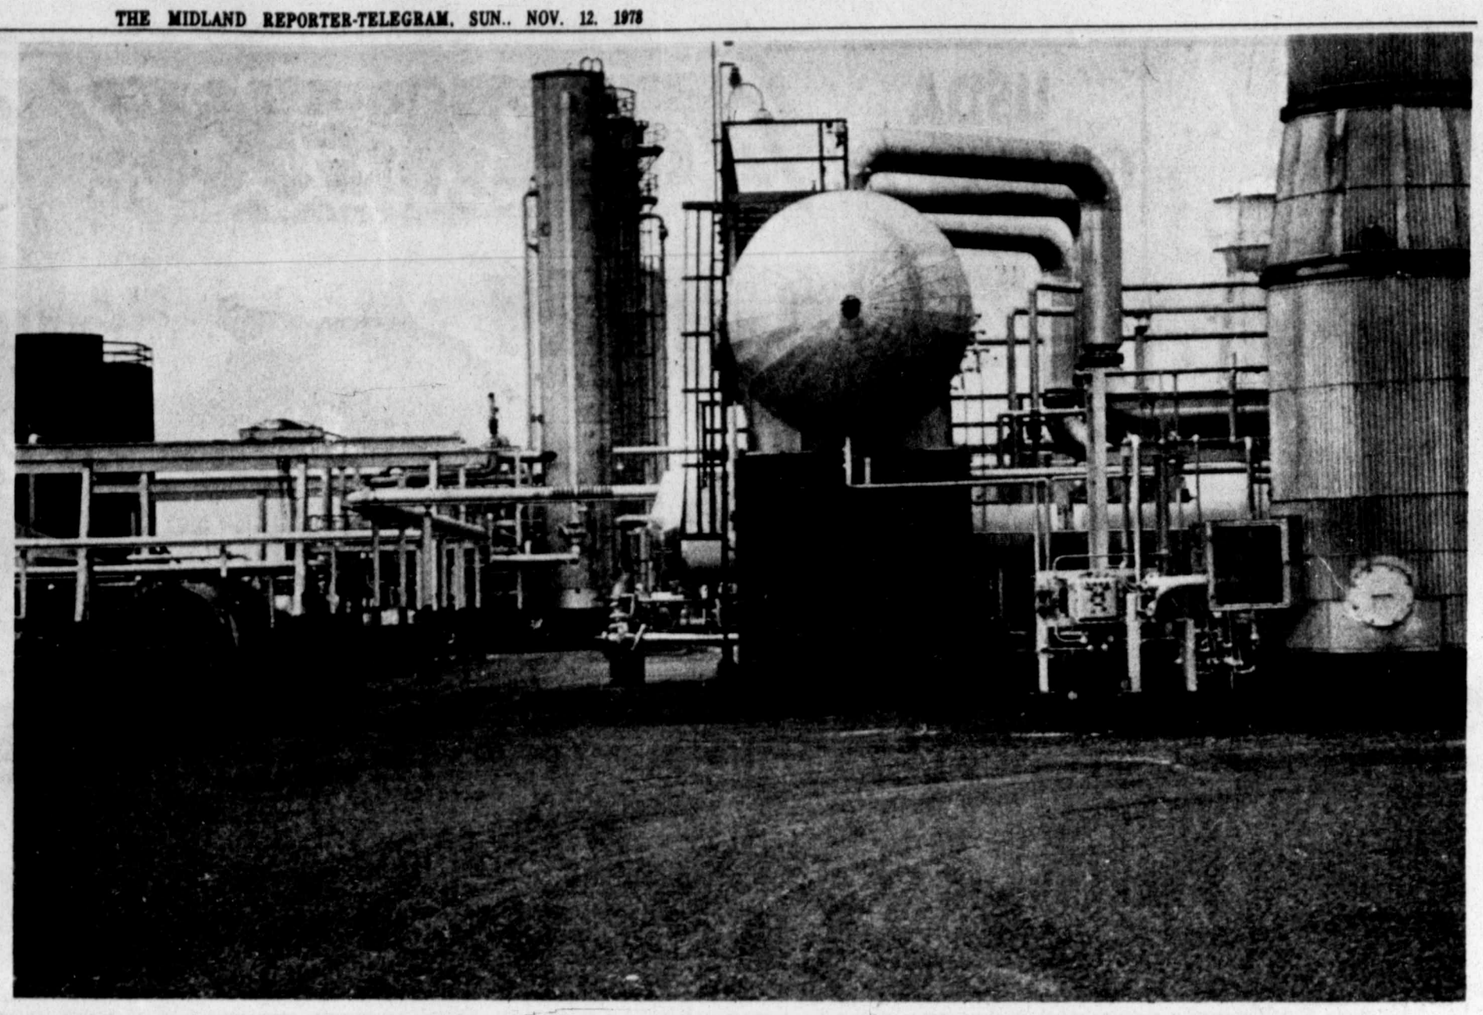

Gloucester, Mass., is one of a number of cities which have saved substantial old school buildings from destruction. That community remodeled its Central Grammar School into bright apartments for the elderly.

The waterworks and powerhouse in Columbus, Ind., was remodeled inside for an attractive center for senior citizens. And in Louisville, Ky., a bank and adjoining warehouse were remodeled to create Actors Theater.

One of the best known of the reborn buildings is the Ghiradelli chocolate factory in San Francisco, which became a popular tourist attraction after being remodeled to accommodate shops, restaurants, cinemas and offices.

Crane County Judge Charles Blue says the city of Crane is prospering well in a county which still enjoys the oil boom.

Crane's economy is petroleum-based, and this El Paso Natural Gas Co. plant near the Phillips Petroleum Co. gasoline refinery represents but one of the major plants at Crane.

In CRANE:

The crime rate is low. Little league baseball and the Lions Clubs are strong, residential building is flourishing and there are oil wells on the country club's golf course.

At the end of the road on the McElroy Ranch is a one of Crane's many pots of gold — oil pump jacks.

CRANE — "Everything is running smooth in Crane County," said County Judge Charles Blue.

If things were any better, he might be doing a song-and-dance routine.

There's work for those who want to toil for fair wages.

The "updated" school system has the backing of the town folks.

The town is enraptured with that "old-fashioned community spirit," the folks have a "progressive attitude," and just about "everyone is a middle-class American" here.

Or so says the Crane County Chamber of Commerce.

Residential building is flourishing.

And there are oil wells on the country club's golf course. An airport near by.

"To me, everything in Crane County is doing extremely well," said the 44-year-old judge, who's a former driller and tool pusher. "Unemployment is about 1.7 (percent)."

"And I personally just don't know of any problems in Crane County that we're not taking care of," said Blue, who has lived here since 1955.

He seems confident of Crane's, and his, future in this 795-square-mile county which generates close to $400 million annually in oil, gasoline and natural gas production and which has only one town: Crane. The town is 30 miles south of Odessa.

And just last week, Blue won election to another four-year term to the judgeship. He was unopposed.

Things appear to be going his way in this prosperous town of between 4,000 and 5,000 people.

"Of course, you're going to have (some) problems," the judge said. Among the annoyances have been some minor cattle rustling and some other theft, such as that of oil field equipment.

Blue and Sheriff Raymond Weatherby, who had walked across the hallway to visit the judge, mentioned the recent slaughter and rustling of a 875-pound Charolais steer — a 4-H Club project of 14-year-old Carolyn Donaway. Much of the town seemed concerned about tracking down the culprits, and the sheriff and Texas Rangers have some clues. A reward has been posted.

"I don't see any major problems in the future," said the optimistic judge. "I keep looking way down the road. My secretary says I look too far."

His secretary, Carrie Shanafelt, said her boss is just "great — best judge in the world." He reciprocated by saying she's a mighty fine person and worker.

Terry Neal, a trooper for the Texas Department of Public Safety, dropped into Blue's chambers.

"Crane County...has the best working personnel, totally," Blue declared.

"I'll say one thing," Neal said. "These people in Crane — you can't find any better group of people as far as law enforcement is concerned."

Blue said the trooper is "our kind of people. He's all business."

Another "our kind of people" is Bernice "Bernie" Campbell, the courthouse maintenance engineer, who used to work in the oil fields and who, at 67, is still "as strong as a bull." His "half bulldog," Pug, 7, is his constant companion.

"I'm the maintenance man — everything," Campbell allowed.

He's versatile, the judge said.

"Really, you take an oil field man like Bernie...he can run everything (mechanical in the courthouse)."

In general, "things" seemed to be going very well in Crane.

The optimistic mayor, Don Chaney, acted as pleased as Blue with the present-day state of Crane. The town, named after 19th-century Baptist minister and educator William Carey Crane, was founded in 1927.

Its beginning was in the discovery of rich and plentiful oil and natural gas fields in this mesquite-covered, rolling prairie and hill country that's barely fit for sheep, goats and cattle. The land is too poor and the water is too scarce for farming.

"We don't have any unemployment," said Chaney, who is into his 10th year as the town's mayor. "If somebody wants to go to work," work is available.

The petroleum industry accounts for "about 99 percent" of the economy here, Chaney said.

Crane is the home-base for many oil-well serving and trucking companies and has several major refineries and gas plants, such as El Paso Natural Gas Co., Phillips Petroleum Co., Atlantic Richfield and Exxon. Major oil producers here are Getty and Gulf Oil companies.

Other revenue is generated by two steel foundries and ranching, such as that on the McElroy spread which is generously dotted with oil wells.

"We're doing real well," said Chaney, 62, a bank director and a retired grocer.

"We've got the best water in the state of Texas, according to analysis," said Chaney, "and that's not propaganda."

By February of 1979, the city of Crane "will be out of debt" by paying off bonds the city sold to finance those water wells more than 20 years ago.

"We haven't raised the water rates in 25 years — 20 for sure," Chaney said.

Like Blue, Chaney has confidence in Crane's future as long as those oil field pumping jacks are working.

Crane has "literally thousands" of oil and gas wells.

"It (Crane's prosperity) depends on the oil, how long it holds out," Chaney said. "We hope it lasts on and on. We get in new wells all the time. They're drilling all the time."

School board to hear recommended settlement in valuation controversy

A recommended settlement for the property valuation controversy with the Midland banks will be presented to Midland school trustees at their regular meeting Tuesday.

The banks had protested the assessment placed on their property by the school district for the 1977 tax rolls, and the two groups have been negotiating a settlement for some time, according to Dr. James H. Mailey, superintendent of schools.

Trustees also are scheduled to hear members of the Mexican-American Advisory Committee at the meeting. The group met Thursday night to discuss low minority student achievement levels on nationally standardized tests.

Trustees are expected to hear a report on results of ACT and SAT tests given recently to high school seniors in the district.

The tests are used by some colleges as entrance examinations.

In other business, the trustees are expected to approve letting bids for for the sale of used school buses and other vehicles and the purchase of a new bus.

Wisconsin driver offers silent warning to would-be speedsters

By TIMOTHY HARPER

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — When John Bass cruises down the highway at a sedate 55 mph, it takes a bit of courage to pass him — and the coffin he pulls behind his car.

"A lot of people come roaring up behind me at 70, but when they see the casket they laugh and then get behind and follow me," Bass says.

His grim trailer, which he built for $2,000 in his spare time, is a gleaming, metallic, light blue casket on wheels. It's trimmed in dark blue and chrome to match his customized car.

On the back, where Bass mounted brake lights in the shape of little coffins, is a sign. It reads: "Drive 55 or ..." followed by a skull and crossbones.

"Some people think it's kind of spooky, until they know the reason behind it," says the 27-year-old car salesman.

Bass was critically injured in 1972 when his car was hit broadside at an unmarked intersection by a vehicle going 100 mph in a 25 mph zone.

"I was laid up, out of work, for a year," he says.

Injuries forced him to abandon training to become a policeman and take up land surveying. He had to give that up, too, he says, when he developed arthritis as a result of his injuries.

Aftereffects still linger, including high blood pressure and a heart condition, he says.

"I can't get life insurance," he says. "I was told the best thing I could do was put money in the bank."

Bass, who is single, figures to be around a long time. But without life insurance, he worried about his burial expenses. So he made all the arrangements and bought the casket.

"I decided instead of just putting it away to use it for something," he says. "I was into customizing cars, so I decided to make a trailer out of it."

Inside the trailer are life-saving tools and a picnic cooler. The fur-lined coffin is stocked with a first-aid kit, red flags and flares — even oxygen.

It gets the message across, he says.

"Sometimes I go over 55, too. But it reminds me when it's back there. It reminds a lot of people and does a lot of good," he says.

As for critics who deplore his personal statement on traffic safety, Bass has a practical defense.

"I tell them that at least I'm getting some use out of it before I have to," he says.

Light quake reported

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake that registered 3.0 on the Richter scale Friday night shook the areas of Costa Mesa, Huntington Beach and Newport Beach, said Kate Hutton of the California Institute of Technology's seismology laboratory.

The 8:24 p.m. tremblor was centered one mile east of Costa Mesa, Cal Tech reported.

Police in Costa Mesa, 20 miles south of Los Angeles, said there were no reports of injuries or serious damage.

The Richter scale measures ground movement. A quake of 5.0 or more is considered major.

SAVE FOR TOMORROW

THE SYSTEM. The Solartech System is a hydronic solar heating appliance that requires an average size water storage tank. It provides instant heat for any room by turning on the thermostat, and instant hot water at any outlet by turning on the tap. The installation of a Solartech System results in an immediate reduction in heating cost. The system pays for itself, thus providing virtually free energy. Solar appliances are a serious investment for the future, so when you invest, be sure you come to the professionals—Solartech Systems.

• In addition to federal tax credits, the state of Texas exempts all solar energy equipment from state sales tax. Corporations may deduct amortized (60 month) cost of the solar systems from taxable capitol.

TAX CREDIT. The days of having no alternative to expensive gas and electricity for space and water heating have passed into history. Today, it is both practical and affordable to utilize the sun's energy for heat. Through legislation by the U.S. Congress, a substantial Federal tax credit is available to homeowners. This tax credit may be as much as $2,200.00 for the installation of a solar appliance in your home. This means your initial investment is substantially reduced, thereby shortening the pay-back period. Additionally, with conventional fuel costs rising at a minimum of 15% a year, solar energy is an attractive investment from "The Energy Source," Solartech Systems.

HOW THE SOLARTECH SYSTEM OPERATES. The solar appliance utilizes water from the city water supply. There it flows into the system to the solar panel thus absorbing heat, then on into the storage tank. The water is continuously recirculated from the storage tank back into the collectors, thus increasing the heat available for stored space and water heating. As desired, the heated water is drawn from the tank into the standard water system. Hot air is produced by forcing air through a heat exchanger which instantly warms the air for space heating. Sound simple? It is! Maintenance is low, you save time and energy, and enjoy the endless supply of heat from the sun. Solartech Systems engineers and designs this total solar appliance to provide affordable energy for you, today and tomorrow.

INSTALLATION. One design does not fit every application. Solartech Systems customizes the total solar system for each installation. This is done by a staff of experienced engineers who have designed over 250 applications now in operation throughout the Southwest. These systems are performing in homes, commercial buildings, office buildings, and even car washes. Ask us where. We would love to tell you. Solartech Systems are practical, affordable, and available. Just contact us or your local dealer. It will pay off for you in lower utility bills.

SOLARTECH SYSTEMS. Solar energy is becoming a major interest of today's consumer. As a consumer, you're looking for products you can depend on today and tomorrow which are backed by a solid, reliable company. Solartech Systems is just such a company. During the last two years it has expanded to meet the growing demand for solar appliances. With its staff of professional engineers, Solartech offers a quality, dependable system that you can afford today. Your system will be engineered for you by Solartech. It is installed, serviced, and warranted by your local dealer. Come to Solartech, "The Energy Source."

THE DEALER. When you choose a solar system, you want an experienced, reputable dealer to do the installation. Solartech Systems is proud of its dealers and the work they do. In Midland, Solartech is represented by Solar Innovations. Give them a call and see just how easy it really is to install a solar appliance to satisfy your needs. They can give you the specifics you're looking for and can assist you with your solar plans. Turn to the professionals at Solar Innovations. The company Solartech chose to stand behind.

Sanctions engender self-reliance in Rhodesians

By SERGE SCHMEMANN

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — They fix up old cars and appliances and have learned how to produce practically everything on their own — from clothes and radios to Monopoly sets to tequila.

It's a self-reliance Rhodesians have learned since economic sanctions imposed on them 13 years ago with the aim of bringing the white minority government to its knees.

Instead, the United Nations-imposed sanctions have made this small country among the most self-sufficient and thrifty in the world. White Rhodesians have not only survived, but thrived.

Not that sanctions have closed off all imports. A sympathetic South Africa has left the door open to oil and other essential products. But the sanctions curtailed exports and foreign loans, forcing stringent controls on the use of foreign currencies.

Gasoline is tightly rationed and foreign currency is increasingly channeled into arms rather than consumer goods. But even with the guerrilla war now costing a million dollars a day and forcing the closure of many firms, the major cities of Rhodesia have most of life's necessities and some of its luxuries.

In fact, Rhodesians' ability to improvise is nowhere more evident than in the defense industries, with local firms producing armaments ranging from copies of Israel's Uzi submachine gun to a fearsome anti-ambush vehicle called the Cougar.

"Sanctions are the best thing that ever happened to us," said 68-year-old Matem Kombol, a Yugoslav-Rhodesian, standing over vintage, round-tubed television sets he repairs and rents out at his small Salisbury shop.

Among his jobs is to open and repair TV tubes on antiquated sets, because there aren't any spare parts.

Across the street, Paula Niehaus and Greg Desimone revive battered washing machines and vacuum cleaners. No new ones have been imported in five years, although parts still arrive from South Africa.

"Most machines here are 10-18 years old," Miss Niehaus says.

"We've achieved more in 10 years under sanctions than in 50 before," adds Desimone. He admits, however, he sometimes hankers after a Japanese-made stereo to replace his locally produced hi-fi.

On the streets, about a third of the cars are pre-1965 British relics, purring smoothly with parts cannibalized from defunct machines or reproduced in Rhodesia.

Throughout the city, scores of shops advertise, "We Sell and Buy Everything" — and do, from odd cups and saucers to aging electric teakettles.

In liquor stores, bottles marked whisky, brandy and even tequila contain spirits made from cane and ingenious flavorings. The Monopoly game, pirated from the famed original was altered to replace American place names with Rhodesian ones, and quickly sold out as a collector's item.

Sanctions were imposed by the United Nations after Rhodesia's 260,000 whites declared independence from Britain in 1965 to preserve their privileged position over the 6.7-million black majority.

Demanding measures against the rebel colony, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared at the time: "We'll bring them to their knees in weeks rather than months."

Instead, he set off what is jokingly referred to here as an "industrial revolution," prompting the creation or expansion of scores of industries and a diversification of agriculture from its colonial concentration on tobacco, all of which in the long run could benefit Rhodesia's blacks after majority rule takes effect next year.

The punitive sanctions, in effect, forced Rhodesia to escape the fate of other former colonies which continued to base their economy on exports of raw materials and imports of finished goods. In Zambia, for example, over-dependence on the export of copper led to a major economic setback when the price of copper plummeted and foreign income dried up.

Aided by clandestine exports of minerals, farm products and manufactured goods, and by some deft evasion of sanctions, the Rhodesian economy enjoyed a real rate of growth of 7½ percent through 1974.

The price of Rhodesia's relative economic prosperity, however, has been the gruelling and escalating war by black nationalists determined to end by force the white domination that sanctions failed to finish.

Long annual service demanded of all able-bodied men 18 to 50, the growing flight of whites and the physical cost of the war are taking their toll on the economy.

"Sanctions helped us enormously to manufacture, copy and improvise," said Jimmy A.C. Girdlestone, an economist with the Association of Rhodesian Industries.

Girdlestone said Rhodesia's economic self-reliance was not so much the creation of new industries as a diversification of existing plants responding to new need and the closure of former markets.

A major spur, he said, was that being branded illegal by the world freed Rhodesia from the constraints of international patents.

"We learned by borrowing and stealing," he said. "Since we're illegal anyway, they couldn't take us to court for copying. We did it because we were desperate and because the world couldn't do anything about it."

In a process Girdlestone called "vertical integration," Rhodesia learned to make finished products from its abundant raw materials. Thus Rhodesians learned to make wire from its copper and yarn from its cotton.

"There were notable failures along the way," he recalled. "When we first made tomato ketchup, we forgot that it ferments until people flooded us with complaints of ketchup erupting out of the bottle when it was opened."

The quality of Rhodesian products is still often lower than that of the original. Most paper produced in Rhodesia, for example, is simply upgraded newsprint that deteriorates rapidly.

But in some fields, the achievements have been remarkable. Air Rhodesia's civilian fleet of Vickers Viscounts, for example, have been plying local routes since the early 1950s with exemplary punctuality. The backbone of the air force are Canberra bombers and Hawkker Hunter jet fighters, manufactured in Britain in the 1950s.

The thriving armaments industry recently added two new locally produced weapons, a short-barrelled shot gun and a 9mm carbine designed for use by drivers and farmers against guerrilla attacks.

The defense industry has also produced a wide range of bizarre-looking vehicles designed to defray landmine blasts while churning through forbidding bush. They have names like Leopard, Hippo, Cougar, Kudo, Rhino and Puma.

Black Fox nuclear plant delays to cost millions

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Public Service Co. officials calculate the minimum delay which could be caused by attempts to gain access to a General Electric report will add $10 million to the cost of the utility's Black Fox nuclear plant.

The cost estimate was contained in a legal brief filed Thursday by Public Service attorneys in a tug-of-war over the GE Reed Report.

The 1974 confidential study deals with GE's nuclear technologies. Opponents of the plant say it also addresses 27 safety-related items concerning GE's boiling water reactors.

General Electric is ready to provide two such reactors to Black Fox, if the plant gains final authorization from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

The commission issued a subpoena for the report last month after attorneys for Citizens Action for Safe Energy said the report was useful to the Tulsa hearings. The hearings are in recess pending outcome of an expected legal battle.

General Electric contends release of the report could damage its competitive standing in the nuclear industry by disclosing marketing strategies and product improvement plans.

Thursday, Public Service attorneys said a delay of at least one month can be expected if the licensing board denies GE's motion to quash the subpoena, GE files an immediate appeal and the appeal is granted.

"A 30-day delay at $338,270 per day represents a $10,148,100 increase in the cost of the Black Fox station," the brief stated. "This scenario represents, of course, the minimum delay and cost impact."

If disclosure of the report is ordered, Public Service attorneys argued, GE could be expected to appeal the matter through the courts in a process which "would likely exceed 18 months."

"If GE exercises its appeallate rights, the potential for delay must be measured in years," the brief said.

The Public Service brief also contended the Reed Report had already been reviewed by the commission staff and the staffs of several congressional committees.

"None of these reviewers sought to raise new safety concerns with respect to the subject matter of the Reed Report," the brief said.

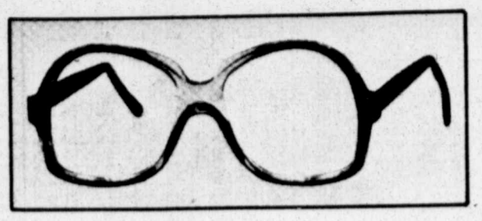

Public Service has scheduled placing the first reactor in operation in April and the second unit in 1986.

In a related development, about 100 of the 345 persons accused of trespassing during a protest at the Black Fox plant last month received an unofficial three-week extension on their deadline to post a $25 bond.

officials said the aren't hold strictly to the deadline to appear or make bond because of several "hardship letters" from the protesters.

Assistant District Attorney Rick Sitzan said more than two-thirds of he protesters have posted bonds. He said in late November he will ask the clerk's office to prepare a final list of those who have not posted bond and they will be subject to bench arrest.

Gem show draws near and far

"Opalholics Welcome Here."

Two folks at the Midland County Exhibit Building east of town demonstrate their technique of pouring sand of different colors into glass bottles and then carefully designing patterns.

The skilled artisans and rock enthusiasts, or lapidarists as they call themselves, come from all parts of the country to display their polished stones, jewelry and other wares.

During the two-day show which began Saturday and will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today, they have been answering questions, showing their homemade products and selling whatever people wish to buy.

The annual event attracts people from Colorado to Idaho and from Texas to California.

Both are in Midland this weekend displaying their four exhibits of polished stones while also visiting old friends.

The Skeathleys are both geologists. He's employed by Forest Oil Corp.

"My wife and I have been to gem and mineral shows across the country, and this one in Midland is one of the best there is," said the ex-president of the Midland group.

"Of course, this is because the local club teaches members how to cut and polish the stones. Consequently, members have a lot of pride when showing their displays," he said.

"With all of the geologists in Midland," Skeathley said, "the show is a natural."

Mrs. Skeathley taught silversmithing locally many years while her husband taught stone cutting and polishing.

Their students were Midland Gem and Mineral Society members.

"The show seems to get better each year," said Irma Cline, show chairman.

A total of nine dealers from eight states are participating, she added.

"What it comes down to is people sharing a common interest. In this case, we're 'rockhounds.' It's a hobby and something the whole family can do."

Stopping to look at turquoise mined from areas of the Southwest and in Mexico are Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Grant of Big Spring. The turquoise was among the many gems displayed at the 16th annual Gem and Mineral Show, which continues from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today in the Midland County Exhibit Building. Powell transfered to state hospital

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A condemned murderer trying to commit suicide by starving to death was transferred from Texas' Death Row to a state hospital for the criminally insane Saturday after prison doctors testified that continued force-feeding could kill him.

David Lee Powell, 27, has refused to eat since Sept. 26, after he was sentenced to die by injection for the machine-gun slaying of Austin police officer Ralph Ablanedo.

District Judge James F. Warren ordered Powell transferred from a Texas Department of Corrections hospital ward after hearing testimony Saturday from Dr. Ralph Gray, TDC clinical director and Dr. Terence Feir, chief of TDC Mental Health Services. Prison officials said Powell would be transferred to the maximum security Rusk State Hospital in East Texas Saturday afternoon.

"David Lee Powell wants to die," Feir told TDC attorney, Assistant Attorney General Bruce Green. "But he wants to die by being killed. He wants to involve as many people as possible and he wants to make it as protracted as possible.

"By forcing us to tube-feed him, he involves us in his dying process. If the tube-feeding fails, by not keeping him alive, in his mind, we have assisted in his death."

Feir said Powell, a former University of Texas honor student, is a "very bright, intelligent individual, able to make choices for himself. And he has a firm determination to die."

Prison doctors insert a tube through Powell's throat twice a day and pump a mixture of milk, sugar and raw eggs into his stomach.

Gray said the force feeding has caused a "serious tenderness" in Powell's esophagus and he was afraid continuation of the feedings might cause the esophagus to rupture.

"We are faced with a very serious dilemma," Gray said. "Continued force feeding could result in complications that could lead to his death. He's not bad now, but I searched in my mind and I decided I needed some kind of legal decision."

Powell, who weighed only 130 pounds when he transferred to TDC Oct. 6, has gained 20 pounds since the force feedings began Oct. 9. Gray said Powell is "malnourished at present, but quite clear mentally, and he is firmly determined that he will not eat."

TDC spokesman Ron Taylor said Powell refused the force feeding for the third time on Thursday, when he "hid his head under a blanket and wouldn't come out."

Prison officials said doctors have not tried intraveneous feedings because they take even more cooperation from the patient than tubal feedings.

Gray said he became concerned about possible complications from the tube-feedings when he read a newspaper account of a force-fed English prisoner who died from a perforated esophagus.

"It shook me a little bit, not that I didn't know this possibility existed," Gray said. "I decided it was time to alert others to the possibility."

"I know how rapidly we execute people at the TDC. I see Mr. Powell as a long-term inmate."

Dual suicide sparked by inflexible generation gap

By MARC ROSENWASSER

NEW YORK (AP) — A smoldering generation gap between traditional Chinese parents and two contemporary-minded teen-age daughters ended in tragedy late Friday as the girls jumped to their death from a six-story tenement roof.

Yuh Lin Hwang expected his teenage daughters, Betty, 17, and Jean, 13, to adhere to traditional values, work in his neighborhood Chinese restaurant, and give up Hispanic boyfriends, police said.

The Taiwan native had been in the United States for years, police said, but he clung tenaciously to the past. Neither he nor his wife spoke English.

Betty and Jean, a neighbor said Saturday, wore "jeans and sweaters," hardly conforming to their father's dress code. The two wanted to be like their friends in the increasingly mixed but predominantly white neighborhood on Manhattan's East Side, about a mile north of Chinatown.

On Friday night, the girls and their father quarreled when he came home and found their Hispanic boyfriends in the apartment, police said. Minutes later, the girls raced up to the roof, composed two notes, and jumped one after the other to their deaths.

Betty crashed onto the roof of a parked car and rolled to the sidewalk on 33rd St. Jean landed directly on the sidewalk. They were rushed to Bellevue Hospital, but both sisters died soon after arrival.

The suicide notes complained that the girls could no longer live under the strict family conditions, a source close to the investigation said.

The father operated a restaurant near his home. Betty was a student at Seward Park High School and Jean attended junior high school.

Despite bullet in head, runner finishes marathon

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Faster than a speeding bullet?

Not quite, but awfully determined is runner Dennis Rainear, who finished the final 16 miles of a 26-mile marathon with a .22-caliber slug lodged in his head.

Rainear, 26, of Midland, admits he's lucky to be alive after the bullet hit him as he competed Nov. 4 in the Grand Valley Marathon in Allendale, Mich.

The three stitches in his head were removed Friday, but police still don't know where the shot came from.

But what disturbs Rainear most, he says, is that "a silly thing" like the bullet probably kept him from finishing the race in 3 hours and thus qualifying for the famous Boston Marathon.

With the bullet flattened against his skull, Rainear completed the Allendale course in 3 hours and 9 minutes.

"It just about knocked me off my feet," he said. "I knew I'd really been clobbered, but I didn't know what hit me. By the impact, I assumed it was an object about the size of a brick."

Rainear, who took up running about two years ago, said he felt a giant thud and then had a ringing in his ears for three or four miles after the shot. There was no blood, he said, "just a giant goose egg."

"I went into the race keenly prepared to break 3 hours, because the last time I was so close," said Rainear. His previous best time was 3 hours, 31 seconds.

"I couldn't understand why I was feeling a little woozy. Then the doctor at the finish line looked at my head and said it looked like a bullet in there. Then my knees really started to get wobbly."

The bullet was removed at Grand Rapids Butterworth Hospital, and is still in the possession of police investigating the incident.

Rainear hopes to get it back. He says he has no idea where the shot came from, or if it was aimed at him.

"I'd hate to think that someone did it deliberately. I'm more apt to think it was just a silly accident.

"Several of my friends said they saw some people with shotguns along the course, hunting or something, but a .22 travels so far it could have been anyone."

"My finely tuned system helped to carry me through the race and probably prevented shock, although I guess I was going into shock by the end," he said.

Now Rainear is looking for another marathon.

"My first thoughts after the race were, 'Where can I qualify?' I was all prepared. I was sure I could knock 31 seconds off my time, and then this silly thing had to happen."

No worries over Thanksgiving berries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans who like a colorful, as well as tasty Thanksgiving dinner, need not worry about the availability of cranberries, the Agriculture Department says.

The department says the 1978 cranberry harvest set a record of 2.49 million barrels, 19 percent more than last year. A barrel is defined as 100 pounds of cranberries. Massachusetts production was estimated at 1,175,000 barrels; New Jersey, 220,000; Oregon, 91,000; Washington, 138,000; and Wisconsin, 870,000.

Mobil

is where the action is

Mobil Exploration Norway Inc. is operator of the "Statfjord field", the biggest oil field so far discovered in the North Sea. The first platform is already on location and is being prepared for drilling and production start-up; construction of the second platform is under way.

Mobil's Norwegian headquarters are located in the delightful harbor city of Stavanger which has a temperate climate throughout the year. The city has an excellent American School, K-12, comparable to the finest schools in the USA. Stavanger also provides a base for travel opportunities throughout Europe and Scandinavia, and is an ideal base for enjoying Norway's unspoiled mountains and fjords, both summer and winter. At present Mobil has approximately 600 employees of which 200 are working offshore. Due to further expansion we are seeking experienced qualified personnel for the following offshore positions:

DRILLING ENGINEERS

Design drilling programs; make recommendations on equipment selection, mud programs, casing and cement design, and directional drilling problems; provide on-site technical assistance to drilling and completion operations.

PRODUCING ENGINEERS

Prepare comprehensive plans and recommendations relating to production platform operations and well completion and workover programs for producing service wells; analyze and assist in the conduct of technical field operations; develop specifications and recommendations for production materials and equipment.

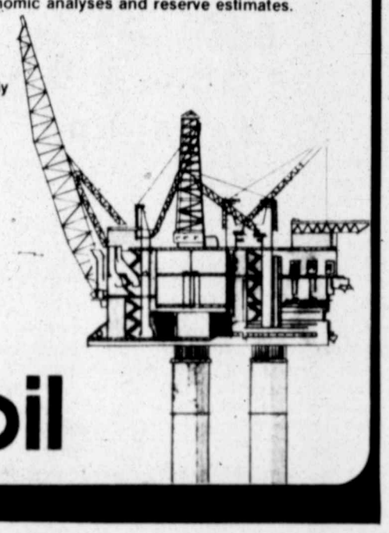

FACILITIES ENGINEERS

Provide technical advice on design, installation, commissioning and maintenance of mechanical equipment and facilities for production processing, storage, utilities and life support systems on offshore platforms.

RESERVOIR ENGINEERS

Carry out studies to recover maximum oil and gas, prepare field development/operating plans; conduct reservoir models; prepare economic analyses and reserve estimates.

The development of the Statfjord field is challenging the limit of present-day technology. We can therefore offer you a unique opportunity to test your skills and considerably enhance your professional growth. In addition we can offer you an attractive Compensation Package, including cost of living allowance, foreign service premium and paid annual vacation. Also, comprehensive employee benefit plans are provided as well as excellent furnished housing in a good social environment.

SCOPE FOR PERSONAL GROWTH AND CAREER DEVELOPMENT COULD INCLUDE SUBSEQUENT ASSIGNMENTS IN MOBIL'S EXPLORATION AND PRODUCING DIVISION AT OTHER LOCATIONS.

Please send your confidential resume to:

NOW INTERVIEWING EXPLORATION GEOPHYSICISTS

If Finding Oil Is Your Cup of Tea

At Tenneco Oil you'll do what you know best...find oil. And you can expect better income and plenty of financial backing of your ideas. It's a simple formula...one we have found to be successful.

Few companies can match our performance. Consider our accomplishments over the last 5 years:

- *30% compounded growth rate increase in G & G expenditures.
- *Gas production up 45% (industry down 11%).
- *Oil production up 10% (industry down 14%).
- *Operating income increased at a 34% compounded growth rate.
- *Capital expenditures increased at a 22% compounded growth rate.

If you like a results oriented environment with individual recognition, we have a place for you. We will be interviewing in your city December 6. Call for an appointment (713) 757-3189. Or if you can't make it then, complete and mail the coupon below, and we'll be happy to make other arrangements.

Chandelle is a Nice Place to Call Home...*

WHY BUY A CONDOMINIUM?

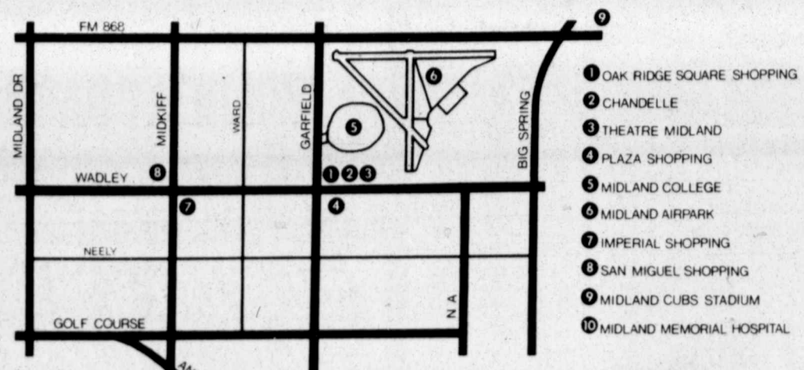

Condominiums afford quality living in prime locations. They allow the owner all the financial and tax advantages of owning a home without the headaches.

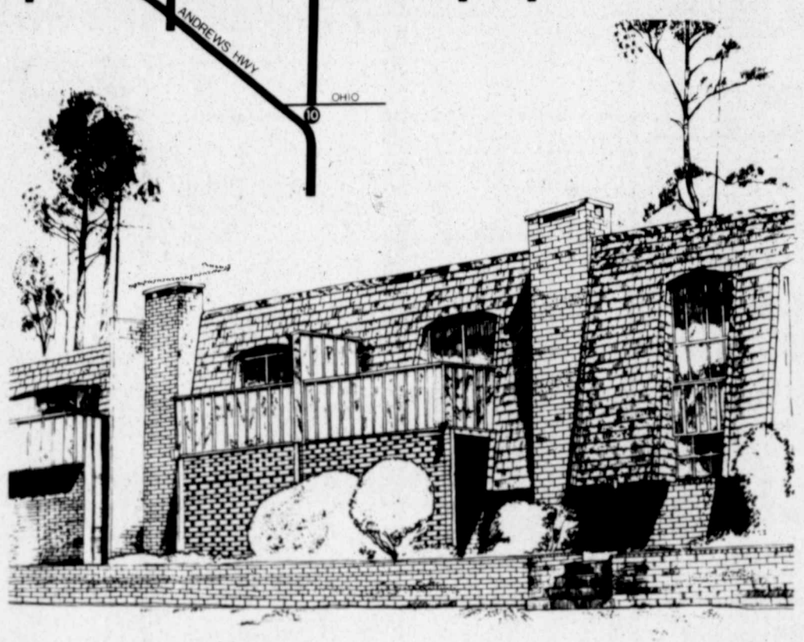

Condominiums are designed for a more flexible lifestyle. Most important, you have greater control over your housing costs when compared to renting.

WHY BUY A "CHANDELLE" CONDOMINIUM?

"CHANDELLE's" location at 2100 West Wadley is within minutes of downtown, theatres, recreational areas, shopping, restaurants, schools, churches, the college, and Airpark. At "CHANDELLE" you get an equity investment, the same tax breaks as a home owner, and greater control of your housing costs. "CHANDELLE" is the only real alternative people have to get away from the maintenance problems of home owning, and doing it with style.

Come out to 2100 West Wadley or call 684-7884 to find out why "CHANDELLE" is a nice place to call home. Models are open from 12:00 noon until 6:00 p.m. seven days a week.

Billy Sims of OU comes to sudden stop.

Houston topples Texas as Danny Davis sparkles

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The quarterback who taught the Houston Cougars "to think Cotton" had a lecture for his teammates in the decisive moments of their 10-7 Southwest Conference football victory over the Texas Longhorsns Saturday.

After Texas scored a touchdown to pull within three points of Houston late in the fourth quarter, the senior from Dallas came into the huddle and sternly announced: "This is what it is all about ... let's eat that clock."

DANNY DAVIS then took the Cougars on a time-consuming drive that preserved the vital victory which gives the Cougars a big step toward their second Cotton Bowl appearance in three years.

Davis, who wears a "Think Cotton" T-shirt, said, "After Texas made that last drive, I knew we had to get a first down or score or eat the clock."

It was Davis' quarterbacking that led directly to all of Houston's points although he didn't score himself.

Asked to compare the 1976 SWC champion Cougars and this team which is unbeaten through six games in league play, Davis said "there is no comparison between this team and the others because we don't have a Wilson Whitley and other players. We're not as emotional. But come game day, everybody does his job."

The Houston players did their job when they made a critical fourth-and-two play on the Longhorn 40-yard line late in the game.

"That wasn't really very smart," he said. "I was second-guessing myself before we even came out of the huddle."

YEOMAN SAID "Danny did an outstanding job on the drive but he has played much better. This wasn't really one of his best games. We only have two games left so we had better pay close attention to them."

Asked about the Cougars' march to the Cotton Bowl, Yeoman said "We have been marching since September but we didn't march very well against Memphis State."

Houston has won eight games since losing its opener to Memphis State.

Texas Coach Fred Akers said after the game that the Longhorns lost middle linebacker Lance Taylor for the year with a knee injury.

"He will have an operation Monday and is out for the season," said Akers. He added, "There were two awfully fine teams out there today. It was a physical game. It was a hard-fought game. Both teams wanted to win badly and this was their day."

The previous largest crowd for a game in the Southwest was 81,700 for Arkansas at Texas in 1972.

The largest crowd a professional team has ever drawn was 80,200 in the Cotton Bowl to see Dallas and Cleveland play.

There were only two threats in the scoreless first half.

TEXAS, NOW 6-2 for the year, drove from its own 49-yard line to the Houston 27 where a fourth down Randy McEachern pass fell incomplete. Texas passed up what would have been a 44-yard field goal attempt into a 10 mile-an-hour wind.

Houston, 8-1 for the year with only an opening loss to Memphis State marring the Cougars' record, appeared in trouble after Texas drove the ball 72 yards for its touchdown.

But Davis rallied the shaky Cougar offense for a long, time-consuming drive that ended when Texas' Ricky Churchman intercepted a Davis pass in the Longhorn end zone.

A big play on the long drive was a fourth-and-two call by Houston Coach Bill Yeoman at the Texas 40. Randy Love picked up three yards for a first down and the Cougars didn't turn the ball back over to Texas until there was less than three minutes to play.

MEMORIAL STADIUM is becoming a comfortable setting for the Cougars who shocked Texas 30-0 here in 1976. The Cougars were four-point underdogs going into this game.

But Houston showed its confidence from the start by winning the opening toss and taking the wind. Houston kicked off then held the Longhorns which they did most of the day behind raging defensive tackle Josea Taylor.

Nebraska upsets Sooners, 17-14 in showdown

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Nebraska ended six years of frustration Saturday at the hands of Oklahoma, defeating the top-rated and previously unbeaten Sooners 17-14 on short touchdown runs by Rick Berns and I.M. Hipp, and Billy Todd's tie-breaking 24-yard field goal with 11:51 to play.

The victory, Nebraska's ninth in a row following an opening-game loss to Alabama, thrust the Cornhuskers into the driver's seat for an Orange Bowl bid. They clinched at least a tie for the Big Eight title, taking a one-game lead over Oklahoma with one game left.

Todd's field goal marked the first time Nebraska had scored against Oklahoma in the fourth quarter since the Cornhuskers' classic 35-31 triumph in 1971 en route to a second consecutive national championship.

FUMBLE-PLAGUED Oklahoma, which bobbled the ball away six times, blew two scoring opportunities in the final 8½ minutes. Billy Sims, the nation's leading rusher, fumbled at the Nebraska 20 and again at the 3-yard line, the latter with 3:27 remaining. Nebraska then ran out the clock.

Sims, who was averaging 155.2 yards per game, carried 25 times for 153 yards and scored Oklahoma's touchdowns on runs of 44 yards in the first period and 30 yards in the third quarter. But he saw his national record-tying streak of three consecutive 200-yard games ended by a gang-tackling, hard-hitting Nebraska defense.

Sims' fumble at the Nebraska 20 with 8:10 remaining negated what would have been one of the most controversial calls in college football history.

Following Todd's go-ahead field goal, Oklahoma freshman Kelly Phelps was clobbered on a kickoff return by John Ruud and the ball squirted loose, Nebraska's John Lindstrom recovering near the Oklahoma 10. The officials, however, ruled no fumble and gave the ball to Oklahoma at its 19 although television replays clearly showed that Phelps had fumbled before he hit the ground.

NEBRASKA'S TOUCHDOWN came on a 5-yard run by Berns at 4:54 of the second period and an 8-yard dash by Hipp at 5:35 of the third quarter. Both tallies followed lost Oklahoma fumbles, the Cornhuskers driving 57 and 50 yards for their scores.

Oklahoma took a 7-0 lead on Sims' 44-yard run at 6:51 of the opening period. Hipp's touchdown put the Sooners behind for the first time all season. But Sims tied it less than three minutes later with a prancing, 30-yard gallop on the first play following a costly Nebraska penalty that erased still another Oklahoma fumble.

Nebraska began to dominate the contest defensively in the second period. Only once during the game did Oklahoma manage more than two first downs on a drive and the six lost fumbles were just too much for even the Sooners' explosive offense to overcome.

Nebraska began its game-winning drive at its own 43 late in the third period following an Oklahoma punt.

On the Cornhuskers' first series, Tom Sorley passed 21 yards to Frank Lockett on third-and-10. Nebraska maintained possession on the next series with another key third down play, a 12-yard run on a draw play by Andra Franklin on third-and-10.

That put the ball at the Oklahoma 24 and Nebraska again came through on third down, Sorley sneaking for 2 vital yards to the 13. Although a procedure penalty shoved the Cornhuskers back to the 18, Todd, who missed a 21-yard field goal on the next-to-last play of the first half, booted

WACO, Texas (AP) — Three fumble recoveries by Dan Hampton and Mike Massey and a pass interception by Jim Howard paced No. 16 Arkansas to a 27-14 Southwest Conference victory over Baylor Saturday.

A BAYLOR HOMECOMING crowd of 45,000 and a half dozen bowl scouts watched Arkansas raise its season record to 6-2, while Baylor fell to 2-7.

Jerry Eckwood capped a 67-yard second-quarter drive by scampering for a touchdown from the Baylor four-yard line and Eckwood and quarterback Ron Calcagni scored two third-quarter touchdowns after Baylor bobbled near its goal line.

Hampton, a 242-pound tackle, set up Arkansas' second touchdown by jumping on quarterback Steve Smith's wild pitchout at the Baylor 11. Calcagni scored two plays later on a nine-yard run.

Massey, a linebacker, caught Walter Abercrombie's fumble in the air and ran five yards to the Baylor 23. Eckwood punched over from the two.

Hampton also stopped Baylor's most promising first-half drive by diving on Anthony Laws' fumble at the Arkansas five.

Howard, a defensive end, picked off Smith's screen pass on a second play from the Arkansas two and raced to the Akansas 35 to stifle another Baylor drive.

Baylor scored two touchdowns in less than a minute late in the fourth quarter. The first came on a 46-yard pass from Smith to Mike Fisher. Baylor then recovered an on-side kick, and Smith threw nine yards to Ronnie Lee for another score.

AFTER ITS second touchdown, Baylor again tried an on-side kick, but it misfired when the ball went to an Arkansas lineman in the air.

Baylor linebacker Jerry Harrison recovered two Arkansas fumbles in the third quarter, but Baylor could not take advantage of them. The fumbles by Eckwood and Ben Cowins were the first this year by an Arkansas running back.

Cowins, a 186-pound senior, finished with 109 yards on 26 carries. It was the 15th game for Cowins to top 100 yards rushing.

Eckwood had 68 yards on 14 carries.

Arkansas' other scores came on field goals of 29 yards and 33 yards by Ismael Ordonez. The 29-yarder with 11:01 remaining in the first quarter, also was set up by a Baylor fumble, which nose guard Stan Freeman recovered at the Baylor 40 on the third play of the game.

It was the fifth consecutive game in which Arkansas had scored on its first possession.

ARKANSAS MOVED to the Baylor five late in the game, but Roland Sales fumbled and Baylor's Russell Slicker recovered to keep Arkansas out of the end zone.

A costly penalty ruined a chance for a Baylor score in the first half. Punter Luke Prestridge threw an 18-yard, fourth down pass to Raymond Cockrell at the Arkansas 26. Baylor was penalized 15 yards, however, for having an ineligible receiver downfield and Baylor was forced to punt.

Reeves guides Tech over Froggies, 27-17

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Ron Reeves hit split end Brian Nelson with two touchdown passes, and fullback James Hadnot romped for 164 yards and another score as Texas Tech pinned a 27-17 Southwest Conference loss on Texas Christian Saturday.

Hadnot's 23-yard burst early in the fourth quarter gave the Red Raiders their second touchdown in 16 seconds and broke open a close contest.

Nelson took a 25-yard touchdown pass from Reeves in the first quarter that gave Tech a 7-0 lead.

ATER TCU'S Greg Porter kicked a 23-yard field goal and Tech's Blade Adams booted a three-pointer from 22 and 19 yards, Horned Frog running back Jimmy Allen plunged over from one yard out to close Tech's lead to 13-10 in the third quarter.

Then, in a 16-second stand in the fourth quarter, Reeves hit Nelson with a four-yard touchdown pass and Hadnot exploded for 23 yards after TCU's Russell Bates fumbled the ensuing kickoff.

TCU quarterback Steve Stamp came off the bench to relieve Steve Bayuk and hit Micheal Milton on a nine-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter to end the scoring.

HADNOT'S PERFORMANCE gave him 1,025 yards for the season and left him only 41 yards off the Tech record, with three games remaining to play.

The victory raised Tech's record to 5-3 for the season and 3-2 in SWC play, while TCU fell to 2-7 and 0-6.

It was Hadnot's fourth straight game of more than 100 yards rushing and made him only the second player in Tech history to gain more than 1,000 yards in a season. He trails only Doug McCutcheon, who gained 1,068 yards for the Raiders.

Reeves added 79 yards to the Tech rushing attack and completed eight of 12 passes for 108 yards. Two of his aerials went to Hadnot, who picked up 27 yards on them.

BAYUK CAME into the game with 1,006 yards passing for the season but hit only two-of-nine for nine yards before leaving in favor of Stamp. Stamp hit four straight and ended with five-of-eight for 87 yards and the one touchdown.

TCU quarterbacks were sacked four times for 36 yards in losses with Tech linebacker Don Kelly credited with three of them.

Hadnot had only 66 yards at the half but gained 29 yards on a draw play early in the third quarter and went over the century mark late in the third quarter as the Raiders marched for what proved to be the winning touchdown.

He took a screen pass from Reeves and went 11 yards for a first down on the Horned Frogs' 30 on a crucial third and seven play. He scampered for 12 more to give the Raiders a first down inside the 20. Four plays later, from the four yard line, Reeves dropped back, rolled to his left, then looked back to the right and found Nelson all alone in the end zone for the touchdown.

SMU bombards Rice by 58-0

HOUSTON (AP) — Southern Methodist's Darold Turner rushed for four touchdowns and quarterback Mike Ford and Emanuel Tolbert continued to etch their names in the Southwest Conference record book Saturday en route to a 58-0 victory over Rice.

SMU, which ended a three-game losing streak, capitalized on three Rice turnovers in the first half and hapless defense by the Owls to spurt to a 38-0 halftime lead.

A FUMBLE by Rice freshman Weldon Meeks set up a 26-yard field goal by SMU's Ed Garcia and an interception by SMU's D.K. Perry led to a 34-yard touchdown pass from Ford to tight end Elton Garrett after only six minutes of the game.

Turner then took over the scoring avalanche with runs of six, one, one and one yards to stake SMU to its healthy halftime lead.

Ford, the nation's No. 2 passer, passed for 163 yards in the first half alone to move into third place for the most single season passing yards behind Rice's Tommy Kramer and SMU's Chuck Hixson.

FORD THREW a 69-yard scoring strike to Tolbert early in the third quarter for the receiver's 10th TD catch of the year. Tolbert now is tied with former Texas Christian receiver Mike Renfro for most TD catches in one season with 10 apiece.

Garcia added field goals of 37 and 28 yards in the second half to equal the school record for most field goals in one game. Backup quarterback Jim Bob Taylor hit Clement Fox for a 31-yard touchdown pass with 2:53 left in the game.

SMU evened its SWC record at 3-3 and now is 4-4-1¼for the year, while Rice dipped to 1-9 for the year and 1-6 in SWC games.

Rice receiver David Houser also moved up in the record book, pulling ahead of Baylor's Lawrence Elkins into third place on the all-time SWC receptions list. Houser finished with four catches for the day for a 147 career total.

Ford finished the game with 18 completions on 29 attempts for 315 yards. Ford now has 2,539 yards for the season, trailing only Kramer with 3,316 and Hixson with 3,103.

TOLBERT CAUGHT seven passes for 178 yards while Garrett finished with 67 yards on four catches. Turner finished with 81 yards on 26 carries.

Rice, playing one of its worst games of the season, never was in the game. Gary Nelson fell on Meeks' first-quarter fumble at the Rice 11 and the Mustangs were ahead 3-0 with 8:25 gone in the game.

Moments later Perry stepped in front of a Randy Hertle pass and returned it 18 yards to the Owl 45. From that point SMU moved to Turner's first touchdown run.

Teaff unhappy over turnovers by Bears

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor Coach Grant Teaff was asked Saturday if Baylor — averaging seven turnovers in each of its last three games — had about exhausted its quota of miscues, and he replied: "If we haven't, we're getting close."

Baylor, falling to No. 16 Arkansas 27-14, lost five of 11 fumbles and had two passes intercepted.

Arkansas lost four fumbles and had one pass intercepted but had enough offense to raise its record to 6-2 and inch closer to a possible bowl bid.

Representatives of seven bowls watched Arkansas take a 27-0 lead and hold off Baylor's fourth-quarter passing attack which produced two touchdowns.

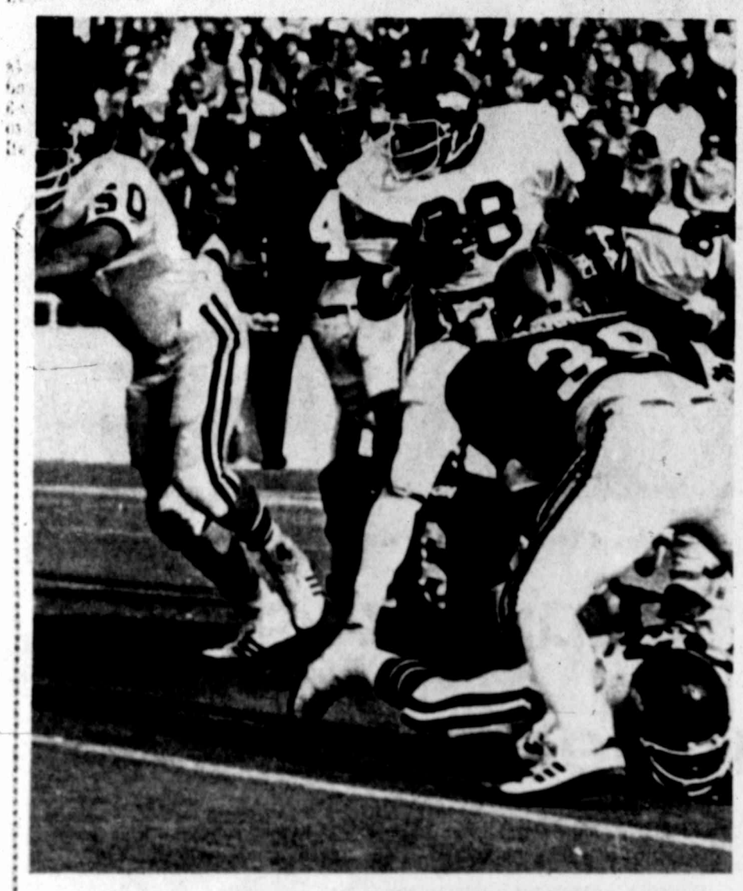

"We're 6-2," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. "That means a winning season. That's what we came down here for. The polls and bowl will take care of themselves. It's like getting married if you are a girl. You get all prettied up and wait for someone to invite you."

Arkansas halfback Ben Cowins said, "Since the Cotton Bowl is out, I'd kind of like to go to the Fiesta."

Asked repereatedly if he had any explanation for his team's mistakes, Teaff said, "Don't ask me. I just work here. This is most baffling and frustrating. I never had a more frustrating year in my life."

Baylor has won only two and lost seven including five losses by a total of 22 points.

Teaff picked out Arkansas defensive end Jim Howard's third quarter interception of a Baylor screen pass at the Arkansas 10 as a key play.

Ben Cowins, Arkansas running back, picks up short yardage Saturday during 27-14 vicotry over Baylor in Waco. The Razorbacks ruined the Bears' homecoming with the victory. (AP Laserphoto).

Angelo State claims grid title

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Angelo State quarterback Mark Embry passed for two touchdowns and 251 yards Saturday as the Rams clinched their first Lone Star Conference championship with a 44-17 thumping of Sam Houston State.

ASU ran its season mark to 10-0 and earned a spot in the first round of the NAIA Division I playoffs scheduled to begin at an undetermined site Dec. 2

Sam Houston State took an early 3-0 lead, but lost five passes to interceptions and saw the Rams recover three SHS fumbles as the Bearkats never got out of the starting blocks.

Sam Houston State fell to a 5-5 mark.

Three Midland teams nab wins

Three of four Midland ninth grade teams brought home victories this weekend as the 1978 ninth grade football season came to an end.

Austin White pelted Odessa Bowie, 22-8, while Edison Purple ran to a 30-0 win over Odessa Ector. The other ninth grade team locally to win was Edison Gold with a 28-14 decision over Odessa Crockett.

Odessa Bonham won the ninth grade Midland-Odessa championship with a 12-6 win over Odessa Hood in a big matchup Thursday. In the only other game played, Odessa Nimitz defeated Austin Orange, 8-4, in a baseball score.

Eighth grade action still has a week to go, but two Midland teams came out on top this week. San Jacinto won a big 32-7 victory over Goddard in a city battle at Memorial Stadium Saturday while Alamo defeated Odessa Bowie, 22-8.

Oklahoma struck quickly for its first touchdown, storming 70 yards in four plays. Kenny King bolted 17 yards and three plays later Sims uncorked a tackle-breaking 44-yard burst for the touchdown.

NEBRASKA SURVIVED its only two turnovers in the opening period. Oklahoma linebacker George Cumby intercepted a juggled pass at his own 47 but the Sooners were forced to punt. Berns fumbled at his own 13 one play later but, with a chance to take a commanding lead, Oklahoma gave the ball back three plays later when quarterback Thomas Lott fumbled at the 8.

That was the first of Oklahoma's six turnovers. They coughed the ball up at the Nebraska 43 and their own 28 in the second period and at midfield in the third period. Even the nation's second-ranked offensive unit was unable to overcome giveaways like that and the Sooners went down to their first defeat in 10 games.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The quarterback who taught the Houston Cougars "to think Cotton" had a lecture for his teammates in the decisive moments of their 10-7 Southwest Conference footb8all victory over the Texas Longhorns Saturday.

After Texas scored a touchdown to pull to within three points of Houston late in the fourth quarter, senior Danny Davis&came into the huddle and sternly announced: "This is what it is all about ... let's eat that clock."

Davis then took the Cougars on a time-consuming drive that preserved the vital victoy which gives the Cougars a big step⅗toward their second Cotton Bowl appearance in three years.

Davis, who wears a "Think Cotton" T-shirt, said, "After Texas made that last drive, I knew we had to get a first down or score or eat the clock."

It was Davis' quarterbacking that led directly to all of Houston's points, although he didn't score himself.

Asked to compare the 1976 SWC champion Cougars and this team which is unbeaten through six games in league play, Davis said: "There is no comparison between this team and the others because we don't have a Wilson Whitley and other players. We're not as emotional. But come game day, everybody does his job."

The Houston players did their job when they converted a critical fourth-and-2 on the Longhorn 40-yard line late in the game.

"That wasn't really very smart," he said. "I was second-guessing myself before we even came out of the huddle."

"Danny did an outstanding job on the drive, but he has played much better," Yeoman said. "This wasn't really one of his best games. We only have two games left so we had better pay close attention to them."

Asked about the Cougars' march to the Cotton Bowl, Yeoman said, "We have been marching since September but we didn't march very well against Memphis State."

Houston has won eight games since losing its opener to Memphis State.

Texas Coach Fred Akers said after the game that the Longhorns lost middle linebacker Lance Taylor for the year with a knee injury. Taylor will undergo surgery Monday.

Crimson Tide buries LSU Tigers, 31-10 with Ogilvie, Rurtledge

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Major Ogilvie scored two touchdowns and Jeff Rutledge threw for one and set up another as third-ranked Alabama buried No. 10 Louisiana State 31-10 Saturday in a televised Southeastern Conference football game.

The Tide, spurred by fourth-ranked Nebraska's upset of top-ranked Oklahoma moments before the game began, took charge in the second half.

Alabama overcame an early 7-0 deficit when backup quarterback Steadman Shealy raced 29 yards for a score one play after punter Woody Umphrey completed a fourth-down pass for 19 yards.

Alabama, beating LSU for the eighth straight year, opened the second half with Alan McElroy's 39-yard field goal and added a touchdown 6½ minutes later after recovering a fumbled punt at the Tiger 2.

It was the 16th straight conference victory for Alabama, now 9-1 overall and 5-0 in the SEC, needing a victory over Auburn in three weeks to capture its seventh league title in eight years.

However, No. 11 Georgia could earn the conference's Sugar Bowl berth by beating Auburn next week.

LSU now is 6-2.

Both of Ogilvie's scores came on 1-yard runs and Rutledge tossed a 1-yard scoring pass to Rick Neal. Rutledge set up Ogilvie's second score with a 53-yard completion to Keith Pugh at the Tiger 6.

LSU's scoring came on a 25-yard pass from David Woodley to Carlos Carson and a 29-yard field goal by Mike Conway, which cut Alabama's lead to 14-10 with four seconds left in the half.

The Tigers, however, had a 79-yard punt return by Chris Williams nullified by a clipping penalty and also lost Conway's 46-yard field goal to another penalty, both in the first half.

Alabama's defense, led by linebacker Barry Krauss, held LSU's Charles Alexander to only 46 yards rushing on 14 carries, his lowest production since his sophomore year when Alabama held him to 43 yards.

Meanwhile, Ogilvie hammered out 64 yards on 11 carries for the Crimson Tide, including runs of 20 and 12 yards on the Tide's first scoring drive and another 12-yard run on the field goal drive that opened the second half and gave Alabama a 17-10 advantage.

LSU stayed in the game with ball control during the first half, marching 58 yards for its only touchdown, a drive on which Woodley had a 15-yard pass before connecting with Carson inside the 5 on the 25-yard scoring play midway through the quarter.

It appeared LSU had built the lead to two touchdowns when Williams intercepted Rutledge's pass and weaved through traffic 79 yards for the apparent score. But clipping was detected and LSU was forced to start at its 15 instead.

The victory was Coach Bear Bryant's 23rd in a row over former pupils, the last setback coming at the hands of LSU's Charles McClendon, 14-9, in 1969.

The triumph was Alabama's seventh straight since losing to Southern California earlier in the year and the defeat ended a six-game winning streak on the road for the Bayou Bengals, who fell to 3-2 in the SEC.

Brigham Young wins crown

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Jim McMahon dashed for one touchdown and passed for a second to power Brigham Young to a 21-3 football victory over mistake-prone San Diego State and the championship of the Western Athletic Conference.

As conference champion, BYU, now 7-2 overall and 5-0 in league play, will play in the first Holiday Bowl in San Diego Dec. 22 against an opponent not yet selected.

The loss was a bitter one for SDSU, as the Aztecs rolled up 276 total yards to 178 for BYU, but squandered two scoring opportunities and gave up a touchdown after letting BYU recover an incomplete pass in the backfield.

SDSU fell to 3-5 overall and 1-3 in the conference. The Aztecs' only score came on a 37-yard field goal by Steve Duncan early in the second half.

McMahon raced 11 yards for BYU's first score on the second play of the second quarter, capping an 80-yard drive on which McMahon connected on five passes.

The sophomore quarterback, sacked six times and repeatedly hurried by SDSU defenders, also fired a 14-yard touchdown pass to Mike Chronister in the fourth quarter.

Rams upset Lobos in WAC tilt

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Larry Jones scored two first-half touchdowns and Alvin Lewis bolted 45 yards on a punt return for a third quarter TD Saturday to spark Colorado State to a 26-15 victory over New Mexico in a Western Athletic Conference football clash.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for Colorado State's Rams, while stopping New Mexico's win string at three in a row and shattering the Lobos' hopes for a share of the WAC crown.

Jones burst in from 15 yards out in the first quarter to put the Rams on top at 6-0. He came back in the second quarter with a three-yard scoring effort that broke a 6-6 deadlock and put Colorado State on top for good.

Kicker Mickey Barilla added fourth period field goals of 47 and 43 yards to ice the victory and lift Colorado State's season mark to 3-6 and up its WAC record to 2-4.

New Mexico fell to 6-4 and 3-2.

The New Mexico defeat combined with Brigham Young's victory over San Diego State Saturday gave BYU the WAC title and earned the Cougars the host spot in the first Holiday Bowl in San Diego.

Lee shocks 5-4A by qualifying for regional x-country

SAN ANGELO---The Midland Lee Rebels shocked the District 5-4A cross country meet Saturday with a third place finish, giving the Rebels a surprise regional qualifying berth that was not expected.

The Midland High girls tied Abilene Cooper for first place in the girl's run, with both earning regional qualifying berths.

San Angelo won the district title with 51 points while Odessa High was a distant second with 74. Lee Had 79 points, beating both Midland High with 90 and Big Spring with 102 points. Lee was not expected to finish ahead of either of those teams. It marked the first time in six years that the Bulldogs did not earn a regional berth as a team.

"We thought our best shot was a fourth place finish if we were lucky," said an elated Lee Coach Sam Volpe Saturday. "Big Spring, Odessa, Midland and San Angelo have all beat us in meets this year. Big Spring even had a cake on it with cross country champions written on it and they finished fifth. They won the meet in Big Spring last week."

Cooper's David Nelson won top individual honors with a first place time of nine minutes and 49 seconds while Lee's Steve Hooper, who has not competed in a meet in the last three weeks, finished second with a 10:04.

The key to Lee's third place, however, came from Keevin Harper's seventh place 10:20 and Jeff Ryan's 14th place 10:30. This is the first year for either to run in cross country competition, and this was the best showing of the year for the two runners. Volpe was especially pleased with their showing.

Other Lee runners were David Harwell, 11:00, 27th; Ramon Molinar, 11:06, 29th; Robert Samuels, 11:08, 31st; and Alan Jones, 11:44, 43rd.

Midland High was expected to be a shoe-in for a regional team berth, but Bob Glenn, the Pack's No. 2 runner this year, came up lame Wednesday and finished 25th with a 10:57. He had earlier run this same course at a 10:08 clip.

"No one feels worse than Bob does," Midland Coach Ed Nixon said. "He went out there and gave all he could. It was just one of those things."

Midland's Gene Tuttle placed third with a 10:09 to earn a regional berth as an individual. Other Pack runners were Kevin Yates, 10:38, 18th; Willie Ross, 10:41; 21st; William Hopper, 10:43, 23rd; and Edward Sotello, 11:05, 28th.

In the girl's division, Midland High and Cooper easily outdistanced the rest of the field with 45 points each. Big Spring was a distant third with 75 points.

Big Spring's Donna Diliberto, however, won top honors with a first place time of 13:03 while Midland High's Donna Repman was second with a 13:31. Lee's Holly Franz earned a regional berth with a third place 10:34.

Helping Midland's cause was Lisa Harrison with a fourth place 10:37 and Renee Ramsey was 11th with a time of 14:19. Other MHS runners in the field of 38 were Angela Ochoa, 14:39, 15th; Eleanor Scott, 15:03, 17th; and Mary Ann LaCaff, 15:15, 19th. Lee also had Geri Moore, 16:19, 25th and Vanessa Wood, 17:32, 32nd.

Midland High was the only local team with a unit in the junior varsity division. Kevin Wood led the way with a 13th place time of 11:35. Jerry Navarette was 16th with a 11:43 while Scott Dorris was 28th with a time of 12:48.

The regional meet will be held Saturday at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock at 10 a.m. The top three teams in each division and the top 10 individuals will earn state berths. The same qualifications were necessary to advance from district level to regional competition. The state meet will be held in Austin the following week.

Texas Lutheran posts 16-0 win

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — Kicker Jamey Cain booted three field goals in the first half Saturday to lead Texas Lutheran to a 16-0 blanking of Eastern New Mexico in non-conference college football duel.

Cain's field goals of 37, 26 and 24 yards in the first two periods gave his team a 9-0 advantage going into the second half.

Texas Lutheran added seven points for insurance in the fourth period when quarterback Russ Rinn hit B.J. McKinney with a nine-yard scoring strike and Cain booted the extra point.

Halfback David Reed paced Texas Lutheran with 90 yards on 20 carries and teammate Steve Brooks helped in the effort by piling up 80 stripes on 19 totes.

Eastern's Greyhounds were plagued by fumbles—They dropped and lost the ball six times.

The win improves Texas Lutheran's season record to 3-6, while Eastern slipped to 5-5 for the year.

Soviets top Indiana five

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The towering Soviet National basketball team, led by 7-foot-4 Vladimir Tkachenko and 6-10 Anatoly Myshkin with 16 points apiece, defeated Indiana University 68-55 Saturday night in an international exhibition basketball game.

The burly Soviets trailed only at the start of the game, when Ray Tolbert's six points helped the Hoosiers take a 14-8 advantage. The Soviets caught Indiana at 16 on a lay-up by Ivan Edeshko and took the lead to stay 30 seconds later on a 3-point play by Tkachenko.

The Soviets stretched their advantage to 11 points, 35-24, at the half, then built their lead to 19 points, 47-28, five minutes into the final period.

Indiana closed to 12 points midway through the period but the Soviets built the margain back to 16 and were never threatened the rest of the way.

The victory was the fifth in six games by the Soviets during their current tour of the United States. The tour continues Monday against Purdue.

MC's Collins takes first in fencing dual

Midland College's Steve Collins captured first place in a fencing meet with Odessa College on the MC campus Saturday while teammate Jerry Peterson finished third.

Big Sky contest cancelled

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — A Big Sky Conference football game scheduled Saturday night between Idaho and Idaho State was cancelled when an aircraft malfunction prevented the entire Idaho State team from getting to Moscow in time for the game.

Inez Discroll, University of Idaho ticket manager, said the decision to cancel the game was made about 5 p.m., Pacific time. The game had been scheduled to start at 6 p.m.

She said the ISU team departed Pocatello Saturday in two airplanes for the cross-state flight, but one of them developed engine trouble and had to turn back.

She said the plane couldn't be repaired in time to get the full team to Moscow in time for the game so the contest was cancelled.

She said Idahdo and ISU officials were trying to find a time the game c4ould be rescheduled later this year.

Rebel swimmers take boys, girls crowns

The Midland Lee boys and girls swim teams won the team titles in the respective divisions by big margins, but Midland High's Clay Spears was the individual star of the day as he was a triple winner in the Midland Invitational Swim Meet held at Maybee Pool Saturday.

Spears garnered his three golds with first place finishes in the boys 200 and 100 meter free style events and as a member of Midland High's winning 200 medley relay team. Spears won the 200 free with a time of 1:53.8 and turned a 51.80 in the 100 free. The medley relay team's winning time was 1:50.5.

Lee's Carey Carrens was a double winner for the Rebel boys, swimming one leg on Lee's 400 meter freestyle relay team and winning the 200 individual medley with a 2:08.9. Carrens also finished second to Spears in the 100 free with a 52.46.

The Lee boys won the team title by compiling 441 points, 101 points better than Midland's 340 points for second place. Abilene Cooper was third with 214 points and Odessa Permian fourth with 212 points.

Lee's girls team finished with a 337-277 points edge over second place Lubbock Monterey while Permian was third with 257 points. Midland High was just a single point behind Permian in fourth place.

Arizona captures 24-3 win over Oregon in PAC-10 game

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Larry Heater and Hubert Oliver combined for 334 yards rushing and three touchdowns Saturday to lead Arizona to a 24-3 Pacific-10 Conference football victory over Oregon.

Heater headed the Wildcat rushing attack with a 193 yards on 34 carries. He scored two touchdowns. Oliver finished with 141 yards in 23 carries.

After Arizona's Sam Giangardella recovered an Oregon fumble in the first quarter, the Wildcats scored on the next play when Heater ran 49 yards for a touchdown.

The Wildcats scored again in the second half after Corky Ingraham intercepted a Tim Durando pass and returned it 20 yards to the Oregon 16 yard line. Four plays later Oliver scored on a one-yard run.

On Arizona's next possession, Oliver romped 45 yards to the Duck 19 to set up Bill Zivic's 18-yard field goal. Heater tallied the final Wildcat touchdown on a five-yard run with less than one minute remaining.

The victory snapped Arizona's four-game losing string and improved its record to 4-5. The Wildcats are 2-3 in the conference. Oregon dropped to 1-5 in the conference and 1-9 in all games.

Tall City teams both drop grid games in 5-4A

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

For the first time this season, Tall City football fans didn't have a weekend victory to celebrate as both Midland High and Midland Lee went down to defeat, and it wasn't a very sweet way to set up the city championship this week between the two squads.

Midland High fell to Abilene Cooper by a big 26-0 score, and the loss didn't leave Coach Dennie Hays very happy.

"It was the only game of the year that we couldn't find one single phase of the game that we performed well in," Hays stated Saturday. "The kicking game was bad and both the offense and defense was flat. I don't think either team played inspired football and both of us were unemotional. Cooper was just more physical and they can beat us by just lining up. We have to play inspired football to beat them, and we sure didn't do that.

"Cooper didn't do anything offensively that we didn't expect. Their offensive line was weaker than we thought, but I still didn't care for some of their blocking techniques that they used against us. Defensively, they were a little better than we thought.

"I hope it was because our kids were looking forward to the Lee game, but Friday was a school holiday and I really hated that because it broke the routine. I got the impression that the fans and the kids just didn't care much. We just sort of went through the motions out there. Some of the blame has to go to the coaches. I guess we didn't have them mentally prepared to play the game. There just wasn't much to it. It was a pretty dull game.

"I have no idea right now how the kids will react to the Lee game, but the kids know they played bad. I don't think we have to tell them that. Lee is much like Cooper because they are big and strong. The cross town rivalry is also strong, and that will also be a big factor."

The Lee Rebels lost fourth quarter decision for the second week in a row. This time it was to Abilene High by a 23-14 count. Lee led 14-13 early in the fourth period.

"Every season you always seem to have one game in which nothing goes right for you and one game that everything turns your way. Friday's game with Abilene was one of those that nothing went right for us, and the game against San Angelo was the one game that everything went perfect," Lee Coach Gil Bartosh noted.

"Fumbles and penalties cost us the game, and they also set up their big plays. They had 140 yards on three big plays, and they all came after we had penalties to set them up.

"The kids kept trying, but it was a frustrating experience with bad things happening to you all the time. We would get Abilene in trouble and either fumble the ball or get a big penalty. We should have jumped to a 21-0 lead.

Lee had two touchdowns eliminated on penalties and that was a big factor in the contest.

"Stuart Laufer was called for offensive pass interference after catching a touchdown pass. The film shows that it wasn't offensive interference. Laufer was between two defenders and the one in front was crowding back and Stuart hit him with his elbows going up for the ball. It was a great catch, but Abilene gets the ball on the 20-yard line. That is the most severe penalty in football because we lose possession and it was only a second down play.

"Jeff McCowan scored once and holding was called. I don't see how they could call that one against Brian Briscoe. They had to be looking pretty hard to get that one.

"Abilene's goal line stand should have never happened either, but we did a poor job in that situation when we got to the one-yard line. We had a hole there, but our backs missed the hole.

Lee was assessed 105 yards in penalties, and when asked about the excessive number of flags by the officials, he replied, "I have no comment in that area."

Looking to the Midland High matchup this week, Bartosh said, "I think both teams will be emotional for that one. Everyone likes to win the city championship. After all it's a pretty long year around here if you don't win the game."

Southern Cal rips Huskies, 28-10

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Paul McDonald threw for two touchdowns in the rain and fullback Lynn Cain rushed for 128 yards on 25 carries Saturday as fifth-ranked Southern California downed defending Pacific-10 Conference champion Washington 28-10.

The Trojans' victory set up a conference championship showdown with ninth-ranked UCLA next Saturday and eliminated the Huskies from the Rose Bowl picture. Southern Cal is now 5-1 in Pac-10 play and 8-1 overall, while 19th-ranked Washington fell to 5-2 and 6-4.

McDonald, a left-handed junior, completed 12 of his 16 passes for 192 yards, including a stretch of 10 in a row. He led Southern Cal back from a 3-0 first quarter deficit to a 21-3 advantage at halftime.

McDonald hit Charles White with a 10-yard scoring pass early in the second period, made it 14-3 with a 19-yard touchdown strike to Kevin Williams, then set up Dwight Ford's 4-yard scoring run with his passing.

Split end Spider Gaines was one of the few bright spots for the Huskies as he caught a 72-yard scoring pass from quarterback Tom Porras in the third quarter and totaled 185 yards, 117 of those on three receptions and another 68 on a long run.

Washington had taken its early lead on a 43-yard field goal by Mike Lansford. The Huskies seemed to have some momentum when they got their third-period score that cut the margin to 21-10, but an 8-yard scoring run from White early in the final quarter gave the Trojans some breathing room.

Sul Ross tops Austin

ALPINE, Texas (AP) — Freshman quarterback Danny Daniel scored twice in the third quarter Saturday to break up a defensive battle and lead Sul Ross State to a 14-7 Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association victory over Austin College.

Louisiana Tech wins Southern League title

RUSTON, La. (AP) — Sophomore George Yates sprinted for three touchdowns, and Keith Thibodeaux threw for 194 yards Saturday to spark Louisiana Tech to a 24-10 college football victory over Arkansas State in an almost annual showdown for the Southland Conference title.

The victory, which snapped a six-game winning streak by Arkansas State, assurred Louisiana Tech of at least a share of the Southland title and gave the Bulldogs a berth in the Dec. 16 Independence Bowl at Shreveport.

Yates, a 6-foot-1, 190-pounder, scored on runs of 1, 3 and 66 yards and rushed for 138 yards — the first 100-yard-plus game for a Bulldog back this year. He carried the ball 25 times.

Louisiana Tech, 6-3, has won or shared the conference title six times since joining the Southland in 1971.

Thibodeaux, a strong-armed junior, threw for 162 yards in the first half, including a 42-yard strike to Yates which took the ball to the Indians' 4-yard line to set up Tech's first touchdown.

Four Thibodeaux passes for 68 yards featured an 85-yard drive which pushed the Bulldogs to a 14-0 lead. Arkansas State's only touchdown came on the second play of the second quarter when Gerome Miller fought Lavon James for a pass at the 30-yard line and went on for an 80-yard touchdown pass play.

Led by Ed Jackson, Ronnie Paggett and Jimmy Blackshire, Tech's defense dominated the second half. Tech turned the ball over three times, but Arkansas State's only points came on a 37-yard field goal by Dug Dobbs — his 17th of the season.

Florida State topples Tech

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Running backs Mark Lyles and Homes Johnson carried the offense Saturday night as Florida State pulled out a 24-14 victory over Virgina Tech.

Johnson's 3-yard touchdown with 10:20 to go in the fourth quarter, gave FSU the lead, and Lyles added a 1-yard touchdown run with 1:54 left. Johnson's run followed a scoreless third quarter and capped a 66-yard, 11-play FSU drive.

The Seminoles, eyeing a bowl bid, climbed to 6-3, while Virginia Tech fell to 3-7 with its fourth straight loss.

Tech ended 11 straight scoreless quarters in the second period on a 57-yard run by Kenny Lewis, who has 10 of the Gobblers' 17 touchdowns this season.

Army captures 29-26 win over Eagle squad

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Jim Merriken swept left end for 3 yards and a touchdown on the first play of the fourth quarter, enabling Army to complete a 22-point second-half comeback and defeat Boston College 29-26 Saturday.

Army scored first on Jimmy Hill's 3-yard run early in the first period, capping a 12-play, 66-yard drive. Boston College tied the score on a 16-yard sweep around left end by Anthony Brown, who gained 196 yards on 30 carries.

The Eagles scored in the second period on Tim Moorman's 42-yard field goal and a 3-yard pass from quarterback Jay Palazola to Tom Carr to take a 17-7 halftime lead. Boston College's Jeff Ryan blocked an Army punt to set up Carr's touchdown.

The Eagles opened the third quarter by going 83 yards in eight plays, including a 44-yard run by Brown. Dan Conway scored on a 2-yard run to make it 24-7.

The Cadets then scored 15 points within 23 seconds. Quarterback Earle Mulrane's 47-yard pass play to Merriken set up Hill's 1-yard scoring run, which was followed by a two-point conversion. On the ensuing kickoff, Boston College's Jerry Stabile fumbled and Army's Doug Lowrey recoved on the 28. Two plays later, Mulrane rolled left and passed to Clennie Brundidge in the left corner of the end zone.

In the closing minute of play, Mulrane deliberately gave Boston College a safety. The Eagles then drove to the Army 10 before Moorman missed a 28-yard field goal.

Army is now 4-4-1 and Boston College is winless in seven games.

ACU posts win

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — John Mayes tossed a 22-yard scoring bomb to Charles Tindol in the fourth quarter and Martin Perry booted a 25-yard field goal to lead Abilene Christian to a 10-7 Lone Star Conference victory over Southwest Texas State Satrday.

Abilene Christian got on the board first with Perry's field goal in the third quarter after a scoreless first half.

Drake wins, 24-21 over WTSU

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sophomore Rick Casko, making his first start for Drake at quarterback, ran 19 yards for a touchdown and set up another score with his passing as the Bulldogs beat West Texas State, 24-21, in Missouri Valley Conference football Saturday.

Casko opened the scoring midway through the first quarter, capping a 62-yard drive for Drake.

Tailback Dwaine Ball ran 1 yard for a touchdown to end a 71-yard, drive early in the second period. Ball took a screen pass from Casko 48 yards to the West Texas State 1 to open the second half and Wardell Wright carried in for the touchdown.

Kicker Mark Mendenhall added a 26-yard field goal in the fourth quarter for Drake, 4-6 for the season and 2-3 in the Valley.

The Buffaloes' first touchdown came on an 81-yard fumble return by tackle Elvin Keller on the first play of the second quarter.

Rickey Wright kicked field goals of 37 and 35 yards for West Texas State, and reserve tailback Kenny Davis ran 1 yard for a touchdown as the Buffaloes pulled to within three points with just over a minute to play.

But Drake was able to run out the clock to preserve the victory, as West Texas State dropped to 3-7 overall and 1-4 in the conference.

Missouri in waltz

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Running backs Earl Gant and James Wilder combined for rushes totaling 294 yards and Gant scored a school record four touchdowns, powering ground-hugging Missouri to a 48-0 runaway triumph over outmanned Kansas in Big Eight football Saturday.

Wilder, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound tackle-breaking sophomore, shredded Kansas' defense for 160 yards on 15 carries, thundering 21 yards to a the first of his two touchdowns late in the opening period.

Gant, a senior speedster, swivel-hipped his way to 134 yards on the same number of carries and embarked on scoring excursions of 11, 27, 16 and 30 yards.

Missouri's triumph snapped a string of three Kansas victories in the rivalry of the border schools, boosting the Tigers' record to 6-4 overall and to 3-3 in the Big Eight.

The Jayhawks, meanwhile, dipped to 1-9 and 0-6, their worst records since 1969. It was Kansas' worst shellacking at the hands of the Tigers since absorbing a 69-21 defeat nine years ago.

Wilder then broke up the middle to score from the Kansas 40 early in the third quarter, and Gant afterward cruised to his third and fourth touchdowns in the final 20 minutes.

Cyclones top Cowboys, 28-15

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Dexter Green persistently pounded out the yardage as he led the Iowa State Cyclones to a 28-15 win over the Oklahoma State Cowboys in a Big Eight football game here Saturday.

Playing in gusty, chilly conditions, neither team looked sharp through the mistake-ridden contest but Green, quarterback Walter Grant and cornerback Joe Brown capitalized on enough Oklahoma State mistakes to gain the win.

Green was the Cyclone workhorse, and scored two of the Iowa State touchdowns. Most of his yardage came in small chunks as he ate up the field and the clock.

Grant also did his part to gain the win, scoring the remaining two touchdowns on one- and two-yard runs. Green's points came on one-yard plunges.

The Cowboys, who are now 3-7 on the season, got all of their touchdowns from tough freshman runner Terry Suellentrop.

The Cyclones are now 6-3 for the season and both teams have three conference losses.

Warriors nab win

OAKLAND (AP) — Guards John Lucas and Phil Smith combined for 48 points as the Golden State Warriors beat the Indiana Pacers 116-111 in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night.

Lucas and Smith each scored 24 points and led five Golden State players in double figures.

Golden State ran off 14 straight points in the first quarter but squandered that lead and trailed by as many as four in the second quarter before taking the lead for good 37-35 on a Lucas drive. Golden State led by nine at halftime and 11 after three quarters.

Indiana's Alex English led both teams with 26 points while Edwards had 23, 13 of them in the last quarter. Teammate Mike Bantom also had 13 in the last quarter and finished with 21.

Parker and Robert Parish had 17 points. Parish led both teams with 13 rebounds.

Sugar Bowl likes Cornhuskers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Nebraska's 17-14 victory over Oklahoma Saturday quickened pulses on the Sugar Bowl selection committee, increasing the chances that the 44-year-old bowl might land the nation's top-ranked college football power.

Half of the matchup is already settled by an agreement with the Southeastern Conference that makes the SEC champion the host school.

As it now stands, Georgia and Alabama are tied for the SEC crown. Should they finish the season deadlocked, Georgia would be the Sugar Bowl host because Alabama has been to the bowl more recently.

Nebraska — barring an upset by Missouri — will be Big Eight champion and the Big Eight's tieup with the Orange Bowl sends the champ to Miami, Fla., for post-season play. That puts Oklahoma, top-rated until Saturday's upset, into the running for a Sugar Bowl berth opposite the SEC champion.

But Nebraska's victory probably also means that Penn State, an independent, will move up to No. 1 in the polls. That opens the possibility that the Sugar Bowl could land the nation's only undefeated big name school as the other half of the Jan. 1 game.

"Had Oklahoma remained No. 1, I'm sure Penn State would have wanted to go to the Orange Bowl," said Robert J. Fabacher, president of the Sugar Bowl. "It makes the Orange Bowl picture a little different now, so I suppose it changes the picture for us, too.

Oregon State stuns UCLA with 15-13 loss

The Bruins, favored by 16 points, suffered their first conference loss after six victories and fell to 8-2 in all games. Oregon State is 2-4 in the Pac-10 and 3-5-1 overall. It was the Beavers' first football triumph over UCLA since 1971.

The Bruins carried a 13-10 lead into the final period but the Beavers shut down the powerful UCLA running game in the final period.

A 41-yard punt by Oregon State's John Misko gave UCLA the ball inside its own 1-yard line. Four running plays gained nothing and punter Matt McFarland stepped out of the end zone for a safety to slice the Bruins' lead to 13-12.

Oregon State's Andy Bardosi returned UCLA's short free kick seven yards to the Bruin 43.

Moments later, on a fourth-and-1 play, Tim Sim gained two yards for a first down at the UCLA 34. Oregon State continued to move the ball to the 19 to set up Walford's final field goal.

An interception on Rick Bashore's fourth-down pass doomed any UCLA comeback hopes.

Walford's 32-yard field goal had given OSU a 3-0 lead early in the first quarter. UCLA tied it on a 29-yard field goal by Peter Boermeester and took the lead on Bashore's 6-yard run midway through the second period.

Boermeester's 35-yard field goal in the third quarter gave UCLA the 13-10 lead.

Tulsa comes from behind to take 27-13 victory

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Dave Rader's passing and Sherman Taylor and Paul Roberson's rushing led Tulsa University to a 27-13 come-from-behind victory Saturday over Wichita State in Missouri Valley Conference football.

Trailing 13-10 at halftime, Tulsa got its offense rolling and put together 68- and 77-yard back-to-back scoring drives late in the third quarter and early in the fourth period.

The Hurricane, now 9-2 overall and hoping for a bowl bid, went ahead with 47 seconds left in the third quarter when Don Hicks took a pitchout from Rader and carried it in from the one to cap the 68-yard drive.

Rader completed a 16-yard pass, Roberson ran for 33 and Johnson rushed for 18 in the go-ahead drive.

Tulsa, now in a first-place conference tie with New Mexico State with 4-1 records, got the ball right back on a pass interception at the Hurricane 23. Rader took to the air, completing passes of 11, 13 and 35 yards, before sneaking in from the one for a 24-13 lead.

Wichita is now 4-6 and 2-3 in the conference.

Memphis prevails

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Reserve quarterback Kevin Betts fueled a Memphis State comeback with a pair of fourth quarter touchdown passes and Judson Flint completed matters with a 72-yard punt return in the final three minutes as Memphis State downed Louisville 29-22 in college football Saturday.

The Tigers, trailing 22-7 after threee period, scored three touchdowns in the final period to hand Louisville its third loss in 10 games. Memphis State won its second straight game and is 4-5.

Alcorn wins

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (AP) — Halfback Willie Holmes burst for two touchdowns as Alcorn A&M blasted Prairie View A&M 28-7 in Southwestern Athletic Conference football action Saturday.

The tough Alcorn defense intercepted six passes.

The Alcorn offense spent most of the afternoon in Prairie View territory as the Braves moved their season record to 5-3-1 and their league slate to 2-2-1.

The Panthers remained winless in five conference starts and are 2-7 on the year.

Georgia Tech downs Falcons

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Senior tailback Eddie Lee Ivery exploded for 356 yards, setting an NCAA single-game rushing record, and scored on three long runs to spark big-play Georgia Tech to a 42-21 victory Saturday over Air Force in a college football game played in snow and 20-degree temperatures.

Ivery's rushing total, which came on 26 carries, broke the previous national standard set by Michigan State's Eric Allen in 1971.

The 6-foot, 200-pounder dashed 73, 80 and 57 yards for his three touchdowns, and his 21-yard romp late in the fourth quarter enabled him to eclipse the record.

Junior fullback Ray Friday added two more long runs — of 33 and 67 yards — as the Yellow Jackets rolled to their seventh straight victory and boosted their season record to 7-2. Air Force dropped to 3-7.

The Falcons, refusing to quit in a wild third quarter which saw them pull within 28-21, were stunned by Ivery's third scoring jaunt with 10:25 left in the game. Friday tacked on his 67-yard run four minutes later to ice the victory.

Stanford downs ASU behind Dils passing

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Stanford quarterback Steve Dils tossed touchdowns of 18 and four yards, setting a Pacific 10 Conference season records for scoring aerials, as the Cardinals held on to defeat Arizona State, 21-14, in a rain-soaked, regionally televised football game Saturday.

Dils' two touchdown passes, both in an opening drenched by rain, raised his season total to 21. The previous mark of 20 was held jointly by former Stanford passer Jim Plunkett (1969) and Washington State's Jack Thompson (1976).

Stanford, which had an 18-0 halftime lead, ran its season record to 6-4 and evened its league mark at 3-3. ASU dropped to 6-3 and 2-3 in the Pac 10.

Dils' first TD of the afternoon came with 6:32 left in the opening quarter, when hit split end Ken Margerum in the end zone with an 18-yard pass.

Dils tossed his second TD in the second quarter, connecting on a four-yard pass to tight end Marty Smith in the end zone on a fourth-and-goal play.

BAYLOR QUARTERBACK Greg Woods, who replaced Steve Smith as the starting signal caller for the first time this year, finds holding on the football a difficult chore after being hit by Arkansas noseguard Danny Phillips. The Razorbacks recovered the fumble.

Wisconsin ties Purdue in Big 10

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Mike Kalasmiki fired a three-yard touchdown pass to David Charles with 25 seconds left, then passed to Wayne Souza for a two-point conversion, capping a furious fourth-quarter rally which gave Wisconsin a 24-24 tie with heavily favored Purdue in Big Ten college football Saturday.

Scott Sovereen was short on a 50-yard field goal attempt with no time remaining for 12th-ranked Purdue, which at 5-0-1 in the Big Ten had its conference lead cut to half a game. The Boilermakers are 7-1-1 overall.

Wisconsin, 4-3-2 this season and 2-3-2 in the Big Ten, trailed 24-6 after Purdue's John Macon had scored on a four-yard run with 11:42 to play. Kalasmiki rallied the Badgers with a 45-yard pass to Ray Sydnor, which set up a Kalasmiki-to-Souza 31-yard touchdown pass play.

The Badgers got the ball back at the Purdue 37 after a 10-yard punt and a 20-yard pass interference call against Purdue cornerback Bill Kay set up a 32-yard field goal by Steve Veith as Wisconsin closed to within 24-16.

The Badgers forced another Purdue punt, which defensive tackle Kasey Cabral blocked and linebacker Dennis Christenson recovered for Wisconsin at the Purdue 12 with 1:33 to play.

On third down and goal to go from the three, Kalasmiki passed to Charles on a sideline pattern in the end zone.

Souza, surrounded by two defenders, then made a lunging catch of Kalasmiki's rollout pass for the tying two-point conversion.

Purdue's Mark Herrmann, who earlier had passed for two touchdowns, connected with Russell Pope for a 22-yard gain to the Wisconsin 34 with five second left. Sovereen then missed a 51-yard field goal attempt into a 16 mile per hour wind. Offsetting penalties nullified the play, which gave Sovereen another chance with no time left, but his 50-yard kick was short and wide to the right.

Notre Dame hammers Tennessee by 31-14

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — John Krimm blocked a punt early in the second half to set up freshman Pete Buchanan's first touchdown, which put Notre Dame ahead to stay Saturday and the Irish rolled to their seventh straight triumph with a 31-14 decision over Tennessee.

The victory boosted Notre Dame's record to 7-2 and kept the 14th-ranked Irish in line for a major bowl bid.

Notre Dame trailed 7-6 at the half before Krimm blocked a punt by Dale Schneitman and the Irish recovered on the Tennesse 16-yard line. Four plays later, Buchanan bolted into the end zone from the 2-yard line and Joe Montana threw a pass to Pete Holohan for two points and a 14-7 lead.

The next time Schneitman punted, Dave Waymer returned 46 yards for Notre Dame's longest punt return of the season and the Irish turned it into a 37-yard field goal by Chuck Male. Male earlier had kicked field goals of 24 and 37 yards around a 5-yard touchdown run by Frank Foxx which had given the Volunteers their 7-6 halftime edge.

Notre Dame clinched the outcome late in the third quarter when the Irish recovered a fumble by Jim Streater deep in Tennessee territory and Montana turned a broken pass play into a 5-yard touchdown run and a 24-7 lead.

Midway in the fourth quarter, Streater hit Phil Ingram with a 73-yard touchdown pass but that was offset when Notre Dame's Joe Restic intercepted a pass and returned 30 yards for the Irish's final touchdown.

McNeese edges past Lamar

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Chad Millet threw for one touchdown and ran for another Saturday as McNeese State nipped Lamar 24-23 in a Southland Conference game.

Millet ran for an eight-yard score and flipped a 44-yarder to Richard Ellender as McNeese built a 24-9 lead going into the final minutes.

Halfback Artie Shankle led the victorious Cowboys with 94 yards on 18 carries and picked up a touchdown on an eight-yard burst. The winners' other score came on a 22-yard field goal by Don Stump.

Auburn downs Mississippi State

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Jorge Portela kicked two first-half field goals Saturday to give Auburn a 6-0 Southeastern Conference football victory over a Mississippi State team never able to get the kinks out of its offense.

Auburn capitalized on a first-quarter pass interception and a second-quarter drive to set up Portela kicks of 33 and 26 yards.

Mississippi State blunted the Auburn offense after intermission but penalties and turnovers prevented the Bulldogs from putting together a scoring drive.

Running back Joe Cribbs, who gained 159 yards on 36 carries, helped set up both field goals.

Mississippi State shut the Auburn offense down after halftime as quarterback Dave Marler began hitting on passes, but the War Eagles cut off the deepest penetrations with interceptions.

California eases past Cougars

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Fullback Paul Jones put on a one-man offensive show with 120 yards rushing in California's 15-point second period and totaled 232 yards Saturday as the Bears beat Washington State 22-14 in the Pacific-10.

Jones, the junior who became the third leading all-time rusher in Cal football history with his performance, broke his own school record for carries in one game by toting the ball 46 times. The old record was 35 in last year's game against Missouri.

In the second quarter, Jones ran the ball on 17 of the Bear's 26 plays. On one touchdown drive, he ran 10 times for 62 yards and scored on a 1-yard plunge.

Cal got a 32-yard touchdown pass from Rich Campbell to Holden Smith and a 30-yard field goal by Joe Cooper in the quarter and led 15-0 at halftime.

Cal evened its Pac-10 record at 3-3 and is 6-4 overall. Washington State lost its fifth straight game to stand 1-5 in the conference and 3-5-1 overall.

Kentucky buries Vandy

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Rod Stewart rushed for two touchdowns while reserve quarterbacks Mike Shutt and Joe Young accounted for three others Saturday as Kentucky buried Vanderbilt 53-2 in Southeastern Conference football.

Kentucky, 4-4-1 overall and 2-2 in the SEC, settled the issue with a pair of first period touchdowns. Vanderbilt, 1-8 and 0-5, was unable to mount a significant drive until late in the third period. Even that effort went for naught when Vandy quarterback Van Heflin was sacked and lost a fumble at the Wildcat 40. Late in the game, Vandy was stopped at the Kentucky five.

North Texas tops NE Louisiana

DENTON, Texas (AP) — North Texas State's Joe Stevenson hurled four touchdown passes, three of them to wide receiver Charlie Murray, as the Mean Green romped to an easy 28-6 intersectional victory Saturday night over Northeast Louisiana.

The sophomore quarterback, making only his second start of the season, hit Murray eight times for 120 yards during the contest as North Texas raised its season mark to 8-2. Northeast Louisiana fell to 5-4-1.

The losers collected 291 total yards.

North Texas rushed for 277 yards, led by Bernard Jackson's 18 carries for 161 yards. The Mean Green threw for another 171 steps.

Stevenson connected with Murray on throws of 29, 18 and 22 yards. He also flipped a five-yard touchdown pass to tight end Ronnie Battle.

Maryland trips Virginia, 17-7

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Alvin Maddox slashed for two short-yardage touchdowns and Ed Loncar booted a 30-yard field goal that finally sent Maryland ahead as the 13th-ranked Terps escaped Saturday with 17-7 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over Virginia's Cavaliers.

The victory left the Terps tied with Clemson, a 13-9 winner over North Carolina, at 5-0 in the ACC and upped their overall record to 9-1. Virginia dropped to 0-4 in the ACC and 2-7 overall.

Maryland had come into the game hoping to score an impressive victory to remain in contention for a major bowl bid following last week's 27-3 pounding by second-ranked Penn State.

Brad Senft's recovery of a Virginia fumble on the Cavaliers' 21 set up Loncar's field goal that gave Maryland the lead for the first time at 10-7 with 6:47 left in the third period.

SFA captures easy win

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Stephen F. Austin quarterbacks threw three touchdown passes Saturday night to pace an easy 23-0 Lone Star Conference victory over East Texas State.

Herby Baker's 58-yard shot to Paul Hood opened the scoring.

SFA ran its conference mark to 3-3 and 3-7 on the season. East Texas State fell to 2-4 and 4-6.

Michigan romps over Wildcats

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Michigan Quarterback Rick Leach accounted for five touchdowns as the seventh-ranked Wolverines kept their Rose Bowl hopes alive with a 59-14 victory over Big Ten opponent Northwestern.

Leach, who established an NCAA record for career touchdowns, ran for three and passed for two others before turning the game over to his back-up.

Michigan used its powerful ground game, led by backs Harlan Huckleby and Russell Davis, to steamroll the Wildcats.

Michigan, now 8-1, scored the first two touchdowns, but Northwestern pulled to within seven points before the Wolverines put the game out of reach, and dropped the Wildcats to 0-9-1.

Michigan scored first, following a 71-yard drive that took 10 plays. Leach, who had been relying on the running of Huckleby and Davis, went to the left and scored the touchdown himself.

The Wolverines marched 75 yards on nine plays their next possession, and Leach hit Ralph Clayton with a 9-yard touchdown pass to put Michigan out in front 14-0 in the first quarter.

But, the Wildcats came right back and quarterback Kevin Strasser hit Steve Bogan with a two-yard touchdown pass just as the second quarter began.

Strasser also connected on a 3-yard TD pass to Sam Poulos on the 12th play.

Leach combined with Clayton on a 41-yard touchdown pass play, and carried the ball in from the 12 for his other first-half scores. Huckleby added another on a 2-yard run to give Michigan a 35-14 halftime lead.

Michigan State romps Minnesota by 33-9

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Quarterback Ed Smith flipped two touchdown passes to split end Eugene Byrd and sparked Michigan State's aerial attack Saturday as the 17th-ranked Spartans rolled passt Big Ten rival Minnesota, 33-9.

Smith, the conference's leading passer, riddled the Gopher secondary, especially in the first half, when he repeatedly found Byrd and flanker Kirk Gibson open on sideline routes for big gains. He hit on 25 of 40 passes for the day.

Meanwhile, a rugged MSU defense shut down the Minnesota attack, keeping the Gophers out of the end zone until a touchdown pass by quarterback Wendell Avery late in the game.

The victory kept alive MSU's hopes of sharing the conference championship, upping its record to 5-1 in the Big Ten and 6-3 overall. Minnesota dropped to 3-3 in the Big Ten and 4-5 overall.

Michigan State opened the scoring the second time it had the ball, moving 80 yards in 10 plays. Smith opened the drive with four straight completions and hit on six of seven passes on the march.

Smith went right back to the air the next time MSU got the ball and hit the first two tries. But then he missed three, and the Spartans settled for a 37-yard field goal by Morten Andersen and a 10-0 lead at the end of the period.

Clemson captures 13-9 win

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Fuller got fifteenth-ranked Clemson back on track when it counted and guided the Tigers to a 13-9 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over North Carolina Saturday.

Scouts from a half-dozen bowls watched the game.

Clemson tailback Lester Brown plunged a yard for the Tigers' only touchdown halfway through the fourth period after North Carolina had taken a 9-6 lead on a one-yard dive by running back Doug Paschal.

Clemson field goals of 46 and 24 yards by Obed Ariri had given the Tigers a 6-3 halftime lead. North Carolina's Jeff Hayes booted a 42-yard field goal.

The Tigers' victory, their eighth in nine games, came hard. North Carolina, which fell to 3-6, had an unexpectedly tenacious defense throughout the first three periods.

The key plays were a 24-yard pass play to split end Jerry Butler and a 21-yard run by Brown.

Penn State downs Pack

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Matt Bahr kicked four field goals and second-ranked Penn State needed every one of them to turn back 18-point underdog North Carolina State 19-10 Saturday and preserve the nation's longest major college winning streak.

With 3:38 left in the game, Matt Suhey returned a punt 43 yards for an insurance touchdown for the hard-pressed Nittany Lions.

Bahr, a professional soccer star, kicked field goals of 33, 32, 37 and 30 yards to give the Nittany Lions their 10th victory of the season and 18th straight over the two-year period.

The victory could lift Coach Joe Paterno's Lions into the No. 1 spot in the Top Ten poll since No. 1 Oklahoma was beaten 17-14 by Nebraska in a Big Eight Conference game Saturday. The Sooners and Penn State have been running 1-2 in the poll for the past month.

Bahr upped his season total to 21 field goals, tying the NCAA record set in 1975 by Temple's Don Bitterlich. He booted three in the third period to overcome a 7-3 halftime deficit.

Unranked North Carolina State, triggered by the running of Ted Brown, scored a touchdown on a 28-yard drive after an intercepted pass with eight seconds left in the first half, and John Ritter kicked the point to offset Bahr's 33-yard second-quarter field goal.

Brown, the sixth best rusher in the history of college football, had to argue with Coach Bo Rein to go for the last second touchdown after North Carolina State had sent the field goal unit onto the field.

Penn State reduced its deficit to 7-6 with 11:09 remaining in the third period on Bahr's second field goal of the game, a 32-yarder. The next time the Lions got the ball they again drove deep into Wolfpack territory with Bahr finally connecting from the 37 for a 9-7 lead. And before the quarter ended, the 165-pound North American Soccer League player collected a 30-yarder to make it 12-7.

The Wolfpack, 6-3, from the Atlantic Coast Conference, took advantage of another break to collect a 42-yard field goal by Ritter. Early in the fourth period, North Carolina State punted, but Penn State was offside. On fourth-down-and-two, Brown picked up the first down with a 10-yard burst to the Penn State 28. But State's defense, third best in the nation, held, and Ritter kicked his three-pointer to make it 12-10 with 13:31 left in the game.

Pittsburgh winner by 52-7

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ray "Rooster" Jones rushed for 169 yards and two touchdowns to lead a free-wheeling assault that carried 20th-ranked Pittsburgh to a 52-7 college football romp over West Virginia Saturday.

Jones, a 5-foot-10, 177-pound sophomore, had his most explosive day as a collegian as Pittsburgh, 7-2, turned its offense loose before scouts from the Tangerine, Hall of Fame, Holiday and Garden State bowls.

Jones' backfield mate, Larry Sims, rushed for a pair of touchdowns that helped Pittsburgh to a 21-0 halftime lead in the most lopsided game in the 83-year-old series since Pitt clobbered West Virgnina 53-0 in 1904.

The losers, 2-9, had their brightest moment in the third period when Dutch Hoffman threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to Steve Lewis, who tied a school record with the 104th reception of his career.

Pitt quarterback Rick Trocano, who hit 13 of 17 passes for 146 yards, dove 1 yard for a touchdown on the first series of the game.

Simms scored touchdowns on runs of 1 and 4 yards to close out the first half scoring.

"Rooster" Jones scored his touchdowns in the third quarter on runs of 3 and 10 yards. His later score was set up by his own 50-yard jaunt.

World net loop down to 2 teams

By The Associated Press

World Team Tennis is down to two teams following another wave of franchise foldings, but Commissioner Butch Buchholz insists the league still is alive.

"We're going to go ahead," Buchholz said Saturday from his home in St. Louis, after learning that the league's Seattle, New Orleans and Anaheim franchises had gone under, leaving the league with only the Phoenix and Golden Gate teams. Eight WTT franchises have folded since the end of last season.

"We anticipated this might happen," said Buchholz, "and we're implementing the restructuring of the league. We're hopeful we'll be able to go out and sell team tennis to several new parties who are interested in obtaining franchises."

Buchholz said he has received inquiries about franchises from Houston, Dallas, St. Louis, Tampa, Atlanta, Los Angeles and San Diego, among other cities.

"We have about 30 players under contract and will continue to negoiate with other top players," he said, although the inability to sign many of the top stars of tennis was one of the main reasons franchise owners cited in their decisions to call it quits.

"Yes there are problems, but we are optimistic we'll be able to go ahead," insisted Buchholz. "We're just waiting for all the shoes to fall and then we'll go ahead."

North Mesquite scares No. 2-ranked Garland

By The Associated Press

North Mesquite reached for glory, only to watch it slip from their grasp in an 8-7 loss to second-ranked Garland Friday.

Matt Marion's 52-yard gallop put North Mesquite on the board first, but the Stallions fumbled at the doorway to victory. Garland recovered one on their own five and another on their four-yard line.

With just minutes to play, Herkie Walls struggled into the end zone for a two-point conversion to cap a crucial 71-yard scoring drive and a face-saving victory.

Craig James lofted one scoring strike and ran for 238 yards and five other touchdowns as Houston Stratford, No 3 in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, trampled Houston Northbrook 54-12.

Arlington Lamar completed its first undefeated season Friday, rolling to a 21-0 win over Arlington Houston.

Galveston Ball upset Angelton, No. 9, 35-12. Tenth-ranked Midland Lee lost for the second week in a row, this time to Abilene, 23-14.

San Antonio Churchill, No. 4, downed Seguin, 12-0; sixth-ranked Odessa Permian clobbered San Angelo Central, 63-13; Tyler, No. 7, crushed Longview, 39-12; and Plano, No. 8, blanked Berkner, 27-0.

Coach Ray Akins' 10th-ranked Class AAA Gregory-Portland squad beat Rockport-Fulton 35-12 to earn its 10th straight trip to the playoffs.

Only Highland Park, from 1941-50, and Crawford, from 1956-65, had previously won or tied for the district Championship 10 years in a row. Highland Park was the only other team to go to the playoffs 10 consecutive years.

Beaumont Hebert, No 2, shutout Little Cypress, 16-0; third-ranked Fort Stockton trimmed Andrews, 21-14; Bay City, No. 4, bombed Sweeney, 47-0; New Braunfels, No. 5, ripped cross-town rival New Braunfels Canyon, 41-0; Carthage, No. 6, routed Chapel Hill, 23-0; Gonzales, No. 7, nudged Cuero, 14-12; Gainesville, No. 8, outmanned Bonham, 34-14; and Belton, No. 9, trounced Taylor, 55-0.

Travis Sanders rambled for 347 yards and four touchdowns to spark Port Isabel, No. 3, to a 51-37 victory over La Feria.

Newton, No. 1 in Class AA, downed Warren, 21-8; second-ranked Cameron edged Hearne 17-14; fifth-ranked Sealy strolled to a 29-0 win over Waller; Childress, No. 6, blanked Electra, 28-0; East Bernard, No. 7, crushed Palacios, 35-0; Mount Vernon, No. 9, drubbed Prairiland, 40-0; and 10th-ranked Hondo defeated Devine, 28-6. Fourth-ranked Breckenridge and West, No. 8, were idle.

San Saba bushwacked DeLeon Friday, handing the top-ranked Class A team its only loss of the season, 13-0. Second-ranked Lexington had its hands full with Flatonia, winning 19-14.

Iraan, No. 3, clobbered Grandfalls, 50-7; Lovelady, No. 4, routed Montgomery, 20-0; fifth-ranked Franklin crushed Mart, 40-0; and sixth-ranked China Spring pummeled Lorena, 75-0. Celina, No. 7;, beat Pottsboro, 9-0; Charlotte, No. 8, lost its third, 42-17 to Pettus; ninth-ranked Farmersville blasted Little Elm, 48-6; and 10th-ranked Holliday rolled to a 35-12 win over Archer City.

Billy Martin admits hitting sports writer in clubhouse

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Former New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin admitted Saturday that he slugged a newspaper reporter during an interview, but said "he challenged me to fight, no question."

"I'm sorry it happened. It's nothing to be proud of," Martin said of the incident Friday night during a barroom interview with Ray Hagar, 25, a sports writer for the Reno Evening Gazette and the Nevada State Journal.

Hagar told the papers' management Saturday that he planned to file assault charges against the feisty baseball veteran.

But Martin told the State Journal in an interview that Hagar "deliberately wanted me to hit him. His questions got bad at the end. He threatened to fight me. That's when I hit him."

Hagar, who was treated and released from a local hospital after the incident, said he was hit "several times" by Martin. The 5-foot-9, 170-pound reporter said the blows knocked off his glasses, chipped at least three teeth, left a gash above his eye, and almost knocked him to the floor.

"He was the quickest guy I've ever been in a fight with," Hagar said. "He hit me before I knew it. I didn't even get a punch in."

The interview was conducted in a bar at the Centennial Coliseum during halftime of the Reno Bighorns' opening game against the Las Vegas Dealers in the Western Basketball Association. Martin, a friend of Bighorns Coach Bill Musselman, was in town to promote the new team's first game.

Hagar said Martin was "cordial" as the interview began. But as the reporter started asking about Yankees outfielder Reggie Jackson, Martin got upset, Hagar said.

"He said that writers always twist things he said. He saw me writing things down and he wanted to see my notes," Hagar said. Hagar said he refused to show Martin his notes and held them behind his back as Martin reached around to grab them.

That's when Martin started slugging, Hagar said. He said he picked up his notes and walked out as others restrained Martin.

"I didn't know him, never punched a writer before," Martin said. "Why would I want to fight him? I threw it because I felt he was going to punch me."

Seattle Slew in east win

NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle Slew turned his farwell appearence into a one-horse parade Saturday by romping to a wire-to-wire victory in the $103,850 Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct.

The Tayhill Stables' 4-year-old colt, carrying the highest weight of his career, 134 pounds including Angel Cordero Jr., was clocked in 1:47 2-5 for the 1⅛ miles in scoring by 3¼ lengths over George A. Polk's Jumping Hill. Ruth E. Streit's Wise Philip finished third in the field of five, another 2¾ lengths back.

Seattle Slew, who in 1977 became the only horse to win the Triple Crown undefeated, took charge shortly after the gate opened. He beat off his only challenge down the backstretch when Jumping Hill, ridden by Jean Cruguet, who had ridden Seattle Slew in his first 13 career starts, drew within a length of Slew.

Top seed is upset

The Terriers, ranked No. 4, boosted their record to 13-3 and will advance to the finals against the winner of Wednesday's game between Columbia and Harwick.

Dragan Radovich had eight saves for St. Francis while Ray Hughes stopped six shots for the Panthers, who finished the season with a 10-4 record. Adelphi outshot the Terriers 17-15.

UTEP captures title in cross-country meet

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — University of Texas-El Paso, paced by the top four finishers out of a field of 120 cross-country runners, easily won the NCAA District 7 Cross Country Championship Saturday.

UTEP's Michael Musyoki led the pack from the opening gun and finished with a time of 29:44 while teammates James Munyala, Suleiomaan Nyambyi and Rodolpho Gomez jockeyed for position throughout the race for the remaining three top positions.

Wyoming's top two runners, Simon Kilili and Joseph Nzau, finished fifth and sixth.

Other top finishers were Richie Harris of Colorado State, James Rotich from UTEP, Micky Morris from Utah and Geir Kvernmo from Wyoming.

The meet serves as the conference championship for both the Western Athletic Conference and the Big Sky Conference. UTEP, with 18 ponts, had very little competition. Wyoming followed with 84 points, and Colorado State finished third with 112. Those three teams qualify for the NCAA finals in Madison, Wisc., next week.

Youngsters capture wins in Hong Kong net tourney

HONG KONG (AP) — Teen-agers Eliot Teltscher of the United States and Rathman Krishnan of India won quarter-final matches Saturday in the rain-plagued $75,000 Hong Kong tennis classic.

The 19-year-old Teltscher, who joined the Grand Prix circuit only four months ago, advanced to the semifinals with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over fellow American Butch Walts.

Kkrishnan, only 17 but already the top-ranked player in India, overcame veteran Australian Geoff Masters 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. This is only Krishnan's third major professional tournament.

Meanwhile, the tournament organizers announced the tournament would be extended by one day because of rain which has interrupted matches the past few days. The semifinals will be played Sunday and the final Monday.

The match between Krishnan and Masters, which was stopped by rain Friday night after only two games, resumed Saturday nearly 6½ hours behind schedule.

Krishnan — the son of one of India's all-time tennis greats, Ramanathan Krishnan — quickly broke Masters' serve, then held on to his own serves in winning the first set.

Masters fought back to win the second set, but the young Indian, playing with the calm and craftiness of a seasoned pro, thrilled the center court crowd with a series of sparkling shots and surged to a 4-0 lead in the third set.

The Australian made another comeback and tied the score 4-4. But Krishnan responded to the challenge, winning the next two games for the set and match.

Krishnan, who has been playing tennis since he was 7, will meet American Pat Dupre in the semifinals.

Teltscher, seeded eighth, never was hard-pressed by Walts in the last quarter-final match.

He won the first set in less than 30 minutes and completed the rout in less than one hour.

Both Walts and Teltscher played cautiously from the baselines and waited for each other to make mistakes. In the end, it was Walts who erred most.

Teltscher will meet sixth-seeded Hank Pfister of the United States in the other semifinal.

Turovers help Packers, hurting Cowboys in NFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Turnovers," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "That's what's taken them to their record." He was talking about the Green Bay Packers — but he could just as well have been talking about his own Cowboys, too.

The Pack, a 4-10 disaster in the 1977 National Football League season, is 7-3 this year and leading the National Conference Central Division, albeit by just one game. A ferocious defense which has forced 35 turnovers has been instrumental in the turnaround.

Conversely, the Cowboys, 12-2 during the regular season and, ultimately, Super Bowl champions, are a so-so 6-4 and one game out of the lead in the NFC East. And turnovers are just as instrumental. Last year they got the ball six more times than they gave it away. This year they've coughed it up 14 more times.

Both teams, at the moment, are skidding with two-game tailspins. One of them (barring an overtime tie Sunday in Milwaukee County Stadium) will get back on the track.

TODAY'S OTHER games are Pittsburgh at Los Angeles in a nationally televised night game, Houston at New England, Miami at Buffalo, Denver at Cleveland, the New York Giants at Washington, the New York Jets at Philadelphia, Atlanta at New Orleans, Tampa Bay at Detroit, Baltimore at Seattle, Chicago at Minnesota, St.&Louis at San Francisco and Kansas City at San Diego. Oakland visits Cincinnati Monday night.

"We have three huge toughies coming up in a row," Packers Coach Bart Starr says of Green Bay's meetings with Dallas, Denver and Minnesota. "The worst thing that can happen to you is to have self-pity and mope around feeling sorry for yourself. That's just what the other clubs would love to have you feel as you stroll into the stadium on Sunday."

Tackle Tim Stokes expressed confidence that Green Bay would upset Dallas. "I think the Cowboys are beatable," he said. "They're good. They're excellent — but they're like anybody else. They have their strengths and their weaknesses."

THE BIGGEST weakness has been early turnovers. A pair of fumbles against Minnesota resulted in two quick Viking touchdowns and a 21-10 triumph two games ago, then a pair of fumbles in Miami last Sunday helped the Dolphins build a 17-0 lead and a 23-16 victory.

Pittsburgh, at 9-1, is the winningest team in the league, but the Steelers are slender underdogs against the Rams, 8-2. One reason is that Los Angeles has allowed the fewest points (129) and the fewest average yards (217½) per game.

"The Rams have an excellent defense ... It's going to be tough working against that defense," says Steeler wide receiver Lynn Swann.

Both teams looked shaky last Sunday, Pittsburgh holding on to beat New Orleans 20-14 and Los Angeles edging Tampa Bay 26-23.

Both teams looked shaky last Sunday, Pittsburgh holding on to beat New Orleans 20-14 and Los Angeles edging Tampa Bay 26-23.

NEW ENGLAND, 8-2, holds a one-game lead over Miami in the American Conference East and is shooting for a club-record eighth straight victory. The Patriots and Oilers carved out 14-10 victories last Sunday, the Pats over Buffalo, Houston over Cleveland. The Bills have lost a whoppinh 17 straight games to Miami. The last time Buffalo beat the Dolphins was 1969, before any current players were on the roster.

Denver, 6-4, can take sole possession of first — for one day, at least — in the AFC West by beating the Browns since Oakland doesn't play until Monday night.

THE GIANTS and Washington have settled — for the time being, anyway — on stating quarterbacks. Joe Pisarcik will call New York's signals and Joe Theismann, ousted only a couple of weeks ago by Billy Kilmer, is back as the Redskins' No. 1 quarterback.

Oilers battle Patriots today

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Shock waves from the collision may ripple through the New England region today when the Houston Oilers' rock-ribbed defense bangs into the Patriots' top-rated National Football League offense.

"Their defense may be the best we've seen all year," says New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks, whose team is 8-2 and winner of seven straight games.

The Patriots have a tenuous one-game lead over the Miami Dolphins in the AFC East and Houston Coach Bum Phillips isn't expecting the Patriots to letdown.

"This is a game they've got to have to stay ahead," he says. "If they were way ahead, they might let up, but not with Miami right behind."

The Oilers, 6-4, don't figure to catch Pittsburgh in the AFC Central Division, but Houston is eyeing a playoff wild card spot. The Oilers have won three of their last four games.

Their four losses have been by a total of 29 points.

On the other hand, their six victories have been by a total of 25. Houston seems to specialize in winning or losing by a touchdown or less.

Both opposing quarterbacks are enjoying good seasons. Houston's Dan Pastorini, despite a complaint that the Oiler offense is too conservative, has been an accurate passer and New England's Steve Grogan's statistics are solid.

Pastorini has a 56.7 pass completion percentage with only eight interceptions. Grogan is only 218 yards shy of his best passing season — 2,162 last year — and 26 yards short of his best seasonal rushing mark.

Grogan's 371 yards nearly put him among the NFL rushing leaders.

Houston rookie fullback Earl Campbell has piled up 870 yards and a 4.9 yards-per-carry average and has become the Oilers' backbone on offense.

New England, meanwhile, has used a variety of runners, led by halfback Horace Ivory, and receivers, led by tight end Russ Francis, to either crush or sneak past every opponent in the last two months.

Allen may be next SF coach

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Allen, fired by the Los Angeles Rams last summer, is being considered as a future coach of the San Francisco 49ers, it was reported Saturday.

"There's no truth to that at all," said Joe Thomas, general manager of the National Football League team. "He hasn't been contacted by us."

The Palo Alto Times said in a story Saturday there was "an excellent chance" that Allen would be the 49ers' head coach in 1979 and that contact already had been made between the team and Allen.

Pete McCulley was fired as 49ers' coach Oct. 31 and Fred O'Connor is serving as interim coach. Allen rejoined the Rams this year after coaching the Washington Redskins several seasons, but he was fired after two preseason games.

Irwin nabs Aussie lead

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Veteran Hale Irwin of the United States regained the lead Saturday in the third round of the $100,000 Australian PGA Championship, moving two strokes ahead of his close friend, Graham Marsh of Australia.

The veteran Irwin, the opening day leader, fired a one-under-par 70 Saturday for a 54-hole total of four-under 209. Marsh, winner of several tournaments abroad but never a winner in his home country, had started the third round two strokes ahead of Irwin. But he slipped to a three-over-par 74 for a 211 score on the Royal Melbourne course and dropped into second place.

Bruce Devlin and Noel Ratcliffe, both of Australia, shared third place at 216, while little-known Americans Mike Krantz and Jeff Herrel were tied with three Australians for fifth place at 217. Herrel shot a 69, while Krantz carded a 73.

Herrel, from Atlanta, and Irwin were the only players in the 66-man field to better par.

Herrel earned $38,000 on the Southern minitour this year, but has managed only $900 in Australia so far.

"After my awful first round (78), Art Russell gave me a few tips and they seem to have worked wonders," said Herrel, who will be 27 Monday.

Irwin, meanwhile, who had an opening round 64, said the course has become progressively more difficult.

"You were fighting to scramble for pars on many of the holes today," he said. "The pin placements have become alarmingly difficult. The closing holes were really hard because the putting surfaces were so crisp.

Market may be settling

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — After a month of wild fluctuations, the stock market has shown signs of settling down in recent days.

And the depressed level at which the market has come to rest has many analysts comparing it to the depths of the 1973-74 bear market four years ago.

"In terms of their relationship to book values, earnings and dividends, stock prices are now in a range that characterized bear market bottoms in the past," the Value Line Investment Survey said in a statistical study of the market since 1920.

Standard & Poor's Corp. noted that a look at book values in particular shows that "rarely in modern history have common stocks had more in the way of tangible assets per share behind them than they do today."

Book value is a measure of what a shareowner would theoretically receive should a company decide to go out of business and divide up its assets among the holders.

With a typical company liquidation is not a likely prospect, of course. But securities analysts use book value as one basic determinant of what a stock should logically be worth — and so do corporate executives looking for takeover candidates.

"Low ratios of market prices to book values undoubtedly have been a factor in the recent rash of merger overtures," Standard & Poor's observed.

"Mergers are in vogue today because depressed (stock) valuations and inflated costs of new plant and equipment are encouraging expansion-minded corporate managers to favor acquisition of existing operations over internal development."

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed this past week at 807.09, off 16.02 from the previous week, leaving the average substantially below its composite book value, as estimated by Value Line, of $890 a share.

Other readings for the past week showed the New York Stock Exchange composite index off .77 at 52.72, and the American Stock Exchange market value index down 1.93 at 143.39.

"At 88 percent of book value on Oct. 31 this year, the Dow Jones stocks were about as low relative to book value as they had ever been at their very lowest prices of the past 40 years," Value Line analysts pointed out.

"In relation to earnings, stock prices are lower than at their nadirs in 1921, 1938 and 1942 and just about as low as in 1949. They are not quite so low as at their lowest price in 1974, however." Overall price-earnings ratios, now about 8 to 1, were about 6 to 1 four years ago.

Agreement not reached

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A U.N. conference on the transfer of technology between nations adjourned early Saturday without agreement. Industrial and Third World nations remain in dispute over future rules for the use of patents and licensing arrangements.

Undeveloped nations complain that Western companies who provide technical know-how to contractors in poorer nations often do so under agreements prohibiting research or other initiatives by those nations in the fields involved. Some Third World officials are demanding a new international law authorizing their governments to cancel such restrictive arrangements.

The conference, which had been meeting for four weeks, decided to meet again in the first quarter of next year.

Boverie in new post

Robert Boverie has been named vice president of trade relations for Furr's, Inc., reports Roy K. Furr, president of the firm.

Boveries' new position includes communicating information about Furr's to its suppliers and wholesalers, with an emphasis on maintaining proper relations between Furr's and its supporting companies.

A member of the Furr's board of directors, Boverie served as district manager of theOPhoenix, Ariz., Division three years previous to his appointment.

He is a graduate of Texas Tech University.

Matt Lutz, left, and Bill Jackson have joined Harvey Langston Realtors. Jackson has been a resident of Midland more than 20 years. Lutz has lived in the Tall City the last 18 months. Jackson has a masters degree from East Texas State University and Lutz is a graduate with a B.B.A. degree from The University of Texas at Austin.

Wheat cutback plans upcoming in December

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first indication of how much of a cutback wheat farmers plan on their 1979 output should come next month.

The Agriculture Department has scheduled Dec. 21 to issue a report on wheat production. It will show how many acres of winter wheat farmers planted this fall for the 1979 harvest and will include a preliminary estimate of next year's crop.

On Aug. 15, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced that wheat farmers will again have to abide by a 20 percent acreage set-aside rule to get federal price supports on their 1979 crop.

That means for every five acres of wheat they plant for 1979 harvest farmers must idle one acre of cropland. The same formula applied to the 1978 wheat crop. That formula contributed to a 12 percent reduction in the crop this year.

Since winter wheat accounts for about three-fourths of the total U.S. wheat production, the Dec. 21 report will provide farmers and government planners with a good indication of how the 1979 harvest may stack up.

The department did not issue new 1978 wheat production figures in its monthly crop report on Thursday, but earlier figures put this year's total wheat harvest at about 1.78 billion bushels, down from 2.03 billion bushels in 1977.

Wheat acreage was down 15 percent this year but higher average yields per acre helped offset the cutback in plantings.

The report Thursday said that by Nov. 1 about 97 percent of the 1979 acreage of winter wheat was planted, compared with 92 percent a year earlier. And, as usual, dry weather was a problem for the newly-seeded wheat in parts of the country, particularly in the plains.

This year's wheat harvest was the first in three years to be less than two billion bushels. Coupled with huge exports and stockpiles held off the market by farmers, this has meant improved prices this season.

Department experts say that over the entire 1978-79 wheat marketing year that began last June 1 prices at the farm nationally are expected to average in a range of $2.80 to $3 a bushel, compared to $2.31 in 1977-78.

Exports are expected to exceed one billion bushels for the seventh straight year and could be around 1.9 billion bushels, just slightly below shipments in 1977-78.

Coupled with domestic use, that means total wheat "disappearance" this season will exceed the 1978 harvest, meaning that stocks left over when the new marketing year begins next June 1 will be down from the 15-year high of almost 1.18 billion bushels last spring.

****

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been "a bad year for stamping out screwworms" in the southwestern United States, the Agriculture Department says.

Things started out well in 1978 but something went wrong with the department's battle against screwworms, larvae of screwworm flies which hatch from eggs laid in wounds of animals.

By this fall, New Mexico had 1,382 screwworm cases, compared with only 22 all of last year; Arizona 4,012 against 398; Texas 1,140 against 39; and California 154, compared to 9.

For years, USDA has been dropping sterile male screwworm flies from airplanes so that they mate with natural females. Those then lay eggs that don't hatch and, theoretically, reduce the population of the pests.

The department, in a report this week about the screwworm situation, says the weather was a problem this year. Pierre A. Chaloux of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said that last winter was warm and wet in Arizona and in Mexico's adjacent state of Sonora.

"That's the kind of weather screwworms love," Chaloux said. "They survived the Arizona winter, which led to a large population in the spring. That population grew out of control."

New concept announced

Eddie Mee, Midland representative for Investors Diversidied Services (IDS), has announced that sales of shares began this month in IDS Growth to Maturity Fund, a new concept in mutual fund investment which draws from the strengths of both stocks and bonds.

"The new fund gives the investor an opportunity for growth without many of the risks normally associated with equity investing," Mee said.

Mee explained that the investment objectives of the new fund are to conserve the value of the shareholder's initial investment, provide steady income and long-term capital growth. In seeking these objectives, IDS Growth to Maturity Fund will invest in discount bonds and common stocks,TMee added.

Debra M. Henderson

Henderson appointed

The appointment of Debra M. Henderson as an Allstate Insurance Co. agent recently was announced by District Sales Manager Bob Bacon.

She will be located at Midkiff Road and Cuthbert Street in Midland. She will also represent the Allstate Motor Club.

Prior to joining Allstate, Ms. Henderson was employed by Finance Systems.

Carriage recognized

Carriage Co. Realtors was cited for outstanding service to transferring Midland families at the recent 18th Annual Meeting of RELO/ Inter-City Relocation service held recently in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Patsy Bohanan, co-owner accepted a plaque recognizing the local real estate firm as a member of the "RELO Million Dollar Sales Club" for 1978.

Firm plans building

HOUSTON — Gibraltar Savings Association will construct a new headquarters office building in the Northborough office residential community.

The unique six-sided, 12-story office tower will be located at the corner of Greens Road and Northborough Drive with prominent exposure to Interstate Highway 45.

It marks the first project to be announced for the 440-acre Northborough development, a joint effort of Mark Lee & Associates, Inc. and Gibraltar Savings Association.

"The move to Northborough will allow us to fully centralize our statewide oprerations and give us the ability to better serve our Houston area customers," said E. N. Lallinger, president of Gibraltar Savings. Gibraltar plans to maintain a branch office at 2302 Fannin St. after moving to Northborough.

Gibraltar has a regional headquarters office at Midland, where a new Gibraltar building is under construction.

Report on employment one of brightest spots

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the few bright spots on the economic scene lately has been the government's report on employment. But with predictions of a slowing economy or perhaps a recession next year, some economists say that trend isn't likely to continue.

In its latest report, the government said unemployment last month was running at 5.8 percent, its lowest level since June and the second-lowest rate since August 1974. That was just before millions were thrown out of work byTthe last recession.

"Obviously the situation next year will not be good for employment," says Albert H. Cox, director of Merrill Lynch Economics Inc., a forecasting company. He predicts that unemployment will go from around 6 percent to 7.5 percent by the middle of next year and not recover much until early 1980.

Only a shade more optimistic is Michael Evans, president of Chase Econometrics. He calculates that unemployment will average 7 percent next year and peak about mid-year at 7.5 percent, improving afterward.

With roughly 100 million people in the workforce now, each one percent increase in unemployment translates into about 1 million jobless workers. There now are 5.9 million unemployed.

Not everyone sees unemployment worsening next year, partly because of offseting factors. There also is disagreement on whether a recession or a milder slowing of economic growth are likely in the wake of a complex goverment program to slow inflation and to help the dollar on international markets. That already has led to sharply higher interest rates. If credit remains tight for a long time, it could slow spending by companies for job-producing expansion and by consumers for the goods business produce.

Even pessimistic economists see a far milder situation next year than occurred in the 1974-75 recession, when the jobless rate exceeded 9 percent briefly. For all of 1975, the unemployment rate averaged 8.5 percent, and 7.8 million workers were without jobs.

If there is an increase in unemployment next year, economists say it's most likely to first hit workers in the housing industry, auto industry and machinery manufacturing because those industries are considered especially sensitive to swings in economic cycles.

Workers who are already having a difficult time finding jobs will also feel the pinch. Even though unemployment for all workers was below 6 percent last month, the rate for teenagers was 16 percent. For black teenagers it was above 34 percent.

Not everyone sees a substantial change in employment next year. Allen Gutheim, at the Wharton forecasting unit of the University of Pennsylvania, and Andre Glasberg, an economist for Manpower Inc., a temporary-employment company, both feel unemployment won't be much changed from the 6 percent level this year.

Both see a slowing of economic growth, but not a recession next year. But they also cite different factors in arriving at the comparatively optimistic outlooks.

Gutheim thinks the unemployment pressures may beneft from a slowing in the number of new workers seeking work. In recent years millions of women and teen-agers have joined the ranks of those working or looking for jobs. That has made it more difficult for everyone seeking jobs to find them.

At Manpower Inc., Glasberg considers political and psychological factors and concludes that business may not take steps that would substantially affect employment if they feel confident that economic swings may be mild and short-lived. Then too, he notes that mid-1979 "gets us to a time when political activity is picking up (for the 1980 elections). I don't think the administration will let things get too out of hand."

In business developments this past week:

—The dollar continued to improve against major foreign currencies but its gains were less dramatic than those in the days immediately following President Carter's Nov. 1 announcement of a plan to defend the currency. But worries over higher interest rates contributed to a down week in the stock market. For the week, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 16.02 points to 807.09. That nearly wiped out its 17.06 gain the week before.

—The Commerce Department said tighter credit conditions should reduce spending on construction by about 6 percent next year, after adjustment for inflation. The department forecast said housing construction should fall 17.5 percent to 1.65 million units next year from about 2 million units this year and in 1977. But it said that would be partly offset by increases in private industrial and commercial building. This year spending for all types of construction is increasing at a 4-5 percent rate after adjustment for inflation and last year it gained at about 6.5 percent.

—President Carter signed into law a watered down version of his energy bill. That includes provision for higher natural gas prices starting next month although regulations to define the prices are still being worked out. One controversial provision which was cut out of Carter's plan may be coming back next year. Carter said he hasn't given up on a proposal to raise oil prices through a tax that would be rebated to consumers.

—A 32-year-old computer expert, Stanley Mark Rifkin, was arrested in connection with one of the largest computer-related thefts ever. Authorities said a complex scheme involving computers and secret codes was used in the theft of $10.2 million from Security Pacific Bank in Los Angeles. According to authorities, about $8.1 million was transferred to a Swiss account and allegedly used to buy diamonds wholesale from the Russians. The diamonds now belong to the bank and their retail value is estimated to be about $13 million.

Albania ups attacks

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Communist Albania sharpened its attacks Saturday on former ally China by calling the recent Japanese-Chinese friendship treaty a "dangerous plot" to "turn China into a superpower."

Editorials in the Albanian Communist Party newspaper Zeri I Popullit said the Chinese concluded the pact with the aim of drawipg such industrialzed nations as the United States and Japan into a Chinese-Soviet war.

City logs decrease in building permits

Building permits for last week dropped considerably this week, with a total of $457,500 being recorded, compared to the $3 million issued the week before.

The year's total now has surpassed the $80 million mark with still about seven weeks to go this year. Total is $80,434,408.

Speed limit refused

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The upper house of the West German Parliament refused Friday to approve a mandatory 80-mph speed limit on four-lane highways.

The death rate on the West German autobahns, which-normally have no speed limit, is about 1,000 persons a year, about three times the rate of deaths on the 55-mph interstate system in the United States.

Restaurant scheduled

BIG SPRING — A new McDonald's restaurant is planned for Big Spring. Vic Moore, the new restaurant owner, said that groundbreaking and construction will begin this week at the site located at I-20 & Lamesa Highway.

Moore, who also owns and operates the McDonald's in Midland, stated that he has been planning the expansion to Big Spring for almost two years.

Deregulation action may give new options

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Federal action in deregulating the airline industry apparently will open additional options to Texans who travel by air.

Houston, Dallas, Austin, El Paso and San Antonio are--naturally enough--the cities which will benefit most in terms of direct air service.

But Texas Aeronautics Commission Carrier Regulation Division head Joan Holloway thinks the new routes will help air travelers in other cities as well, who have had to go through Houston or Dallas-Ft. Worth For most out-of-state flights.

The new routes also involve some interstate carriers who haven't operated in Texas before, she notes.

One of those is Allegheny Airlines, which was granted automatically its requested Houston-Corpus Christi route--and which has pending an application to serve Washington from Dallas and San Antonio.

Northwest has requested a Houston-Seattle route, while Hughes Airwest is seeking service between Houston and Salt Lake City and Tuscon, and between San Antonio and Salt Lake City and Tuscon.

Several carriers are expanding service, such as American, which asked for a D-FW to Palm Springs route.

Eastern, which recently received authority for an Austin-Atlanta route, added service between Austin and Houston.

Continental received authority for Houston-Denver, and has asked for several other routes: Austin-San Antonio, Denver-San Antonio, El Paso-San Diego, El Paso-San Francisco, Houston-Oklahoma City, Houston-Philadephia and Austin-El Paso.

Delta will serve Houston-San Francisco and Houston-Los Angeles.

Dallas-based Braniff originally asked for 490 city pairs, but reduced that request to 290, and has continued to trim the number.

Another round of request for new air routes--on a first-come, first-served basis--is expected at the Civil Aeronautics Board, and that, coupled with Braniff's final dicision, should see Texas with even more service.

In an interim report prepared for the 1979 Legislature, the House Business and Industry Committee has called for improved efforts by the State in the area of fire provention.

The report repeats earlier criticisms of the fire key rate system, which is under study by the State Board of Insurance--partly as a result of those earlier criticisms.

The key rate system, the report comments, "appears to be basically ineffective and does not reflect the actual fire defenses of a city."

"It's bases for evaluating a city have not been revised since the 1900's and are out of touch with the latest concepts in firefighting and prevention."

Moreover, the report contends, "the attitude of the State Board of Insurance in its administration of the key rate scheduled leaves much to be desired"--with lack of regular and current inspections cited.

It appears, the subcommittee which prepared the report concluded, that only six percent of the approximately 1,060 cities in Texas can expect to be re-graded annually.

Lack of incentive to homeowners to prevent fires also was cited by the report, which comments that "most major fires in the past have occurred in residential areas, but the key rate credits do not result in a lowering of homeowner insurance premiums."

Increased funding for the State Fire Marshal's office, stepped up efforts by cities and rural districts in fire prevention, and improved public education on fire safety are among the measures called for in the report.

"One glaring fact arises," the report says, "a large segment of the (Texas) population lies unguarded against the revages of uncontrolled fire which could be averted by simple consumer-oriented legislation and education."

City Council due to consider school zone, landfill problems

A discussion on school zone crossings and crossing guards could bring the most response from Midlanders when the City Council meets at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers at City Hall.

City Manager James Brown said not all elementary schools have crossing guards, and that is the reason for the item's inclusion on the agenda.

Dodson Street merchants have asked to review the traffic situation on that street.

Because of the small number of people going to the landfill on Sundays, the council will be considering closing it on that day.

The master controller for the downtown traffic lights has burned out, and the council will consider an additional appropriation to make emergency repairs in this signal system.

The council also will consider the request of architects for payment of certain expenses in connection with plans and specifications for the Exhibition Hall.

The selection of an architect for remodeling the Public Safety Building on East Texas Avenue will be on the agenda.

The Parks and Recreation Department should be asking the council to approve a resolution giving the OK to specifications and authorizing the advertisement of bids for reconstruction of Hogan Park road and construction of new parking lots and entrance road to the Pro Shop.

Finance Department is scheduled to ask the council's approval on awarding a bid to purchase four heavy-duty trucks for the Public Works Department and a bid to purchase a boiler to be installed in the Midland Regional Airport building.

The council will consider a request by Mustang Mud Company for sewer service outside the city limits.

The City Council also is scheduled to consider changing the regular meeting date in December to a different one to avoid meeting the day after Christmas.

The Aviation Department will be asking approval to hire another employee to perform information and paging functions.

A resolution to award or reject bids for construction of a settling bed at the water treatment plant has been included on the agenda by the Public Works Department.

Requests to change zoning and for specific use permits will be dominating the agenda, as the Planning and Zoning Department has 27 items listed.

Police nab non-prisoner

LEWES, England (AP) — When police captured Terry O'Neill, 46, going over the wall of the prison in this Sussex town recently they thought he was an escaping prisoner.

But O'Neill, who is homeless, was leaving after having broken into the prison the night before for somewhere to sleep.

Midland dealer fined

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A Midland cattle dealer has been fined $250 for shipping cattle interstate without brucellosis tests as required by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for shipments in his area.

Enos R. Howle pleaded guilty to the charge in the Federal District Court of Midland Oct. 16.

Paul Beacon, director of the cooperaive state-federal brucellosis eradication program with the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the charge involved a shipment on Aug. 11, 1976, of 29 cattle from a stockyard at Midland to a stockyard at Lovington, N.M., without brucellosis tests and a certificate showing test results.

Becton, a veterinarian, explained that brucellosis is a disease of mature breeding stock, and blood tests are essential for detection. Federal regulations require negative brucellosis tests 30 days before shipping breeding stock from areas of higher levels of infection.

The aim, he said, is to prevent the spread of this disease that can have serious economic consequences for cattle owners. Also called Bang's disease, brucellosis causes abortions, weak and dead calves, delayed self-production, and decreased beef and milk production.

Also, brucellosis can be transmitted from animals to human beings as undulant fever, creating occupational risk for livestock handlers and others, he said.

Two win paroles

Two persons sent to prison from West Texas have been paroled to Midland County.

The releases were approved by Gov. Dolph Briscoe upon recommendation of the state Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Antonio G. Hernandez, convicted April 10, 1975, in Midland County of aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon, was paroled to Midland County after earning six years and five months of an eight-year sentence, said authorities.

David W. Hubbard, convicted Nov. 18, 1977, in Midland County and Nov. 30, 1977, in Ector County of delivery of marijuana and burglary of a building, was paroled to Midland County after earning one year and eight months of a five-year sentence, said officials.

Plant moved

COVENTRY, England (AP) — Triumph Ltd. has moved production of the TR7 sports car from the company's Liverpool factory to Coventry.

More than 45,000 TR7s are to be built in the first six months of operations at Coventry.

Getting older and better

By SUSAN TOTH
R-T Staff Writer

Em Carnett is a woman who believes in getting better as she gets older.

The 50-year-old recreation superintendent for the city of Midland concedes people may get slower as they age, but contends they also get better as they go along.

"I don't believe in covering up your age," she said. "If you have grey hair, don't cover it — you worked hard for it," the grey-haired Chicago native laughed.

"Attitude is the whole thing," she said. "You have to feel good about yourself even though you're getting older.

"Don't worry about it, enjoy it."

One of the things she stresses as recreation suprintendent is that "you're never too old to learn something you want to do.

"You may be slower, but if you stick with it, eventually you'll always make it," she advised.

She has always been an active person. At 39, she was re-certified as an advanced lifesaver and is now the trainer for Water Safety Instructors for this area.

Five years ago, she returned to school to complete her bachelor's degree and is now working on a masters.

Jogging and tennis are relatively new additions to her list of activities. She's been jogging three miles or so every other day for the past 10 to 12 years, she said.

"It's something I would never give up. I do a lot of thinking and get some of my best ideas while I'm jogging. I solve a lot of people-related problems."

She compares the jogging habit to smoking cigarettes. "You can really get hooked on it," she said.

Most people give up the sport before they reach the point of making it a habit. "They won't stick through the pain," she said.

She calls herself a "health addict," but doesn't belive in dieting.

"I believe in the proper foods in the proper amounts," she said.

She avoids sugars and uses little salt or seasonings in the food she prepares. Proper cooking and the use of fresh vegetables, fruit and whole grain cereals are other health secrets she endorses.

"And I've never had a cup of coffee in my life," she noted. "I do drink tea, but I use the same teabag for days."

The former model said she always has been conscious of eating the right foods and staying in shape, but that awareness has heightened in the past 12 years.

"Health is the most important thing. How can you function properly without a healthy body?" she asked.

Her life-long interest in staying active led to her present position as head of the city's recreation department.

She worked as a part-time preschool teacher and summer recreation director for the city 12 years before taking her current job almost three years ago.

She is responsible for every aspect of the city's recreation program — from the original idea to the final cleanup.

She plans the budget, coordinates programs, finds places to hold events, hires employees and does public relations and advertising work for the department.

Recreation Department programs range from activites for pre-schoolers to managing the two senior citizens' centers in the city. "We try not to overlook anyone," she said.

She also holds on to teaching.

While some in her position do only executive duties, she feels teaching helps her stay in touch with people.

"I guess teaching is really my thing. I have a lot of patience. If someone really wants to learn something, I'll never give up. I don't get exasperated very easily," she said.

Organization and creativity are the keys to keeping her busy schedule going.

She keeps index cards on everything she does in her job. "It gets easier every year, because I just look at the cards to see what needs to be done," she said.

She keeps lists of everything, but claims she's not organized "to the point it would drive anyone crazy.

"But I do have to have orderliness in my life and my work."

Mrs. Carnett says that in spite of her penchant for order, she is still flexible. "I would like to be more flexible, but I will try something new. But I will go back to my way if it doesn't work."

She is often outspoken on how she feels things should be done. "I tend to take over if, in my opinion, my way is better. I'm trying to be more understanding of other people's feelings. I'm always striving to be a better person in my relationship with others," she said.

She is not competitive, she said, either in her job or in sports.

"In sports, I'm going to do it right if I do it at all. On the job, I like to work at one thing at a time and get it out of the way."

She also enjoys "stealing ideas — taking parts of things that went well elsewhere and putting them with something else."

Her job gives her an opportunity to use the creativity she's always felt she had.

She is the first woman to hold the position of recreation superintendent in Midland. Despite her obvious pride in the job she's doing, she considers herself a wife and mother first.

She holds to what she calls the "old-fashioned idea" that a mother should stay with her children to instill values and ideals while they are young.

Her son is in his second year at TCU, but was with her in her part-time jobs and worked in the family business since he was 6, she noted.

Discipline and direction are necessary for children growing up, Mrs. Carnett said. "No one is a good citizen automatically. That has to be instilled.

"With a stable family background, I think children can do or be anything they want to."

Her family "does a lot together," she said. "We're a very close family, but I feel we're close because we allow each other to do our own things," she noted.

Her family has always had an open-door policy, and that informality extends to friends as well.

"I love the informality in Midland," the 28-year resident said.

Her plans for the future are still flexible but will always include living in Midland, she said.

"I know my days are numbered in this job," she said. "They won't have a 60-year-old recreation superintendent. You get stale if you stay one place too long."

Although she does not plan to work full time forever, she said she will always be involved with people in some way — probably teaching.

"You never really know what you're going to do till you do it," she said.

"I used to think things were very permanent. Now I know everything changes and you have to learn to accept it.

"A lot of what's happened to me was not planned at all. I've been in the right place at the right time. Things just happened and then I pursued them and they turned out for the best in the long run in spite of how it seemed at the time," she said.

Morocco's ruler flies to Washington Monday

Moroccan officials said Hassan's talks with Carter would go "far beyond" Morocco's most immediate worry, the stalemated three-year-old guerrilla war with the Algerian-sponsored Polisario independence movement in the former Spanish Sahara.

The 47-year-old monarch is gravely concerned, the officials said, over the spread of Soviet and Marxist influence in Africa and the Middle East and is alarmed by what he sees as American blindness to possibly disastrous consequences.

Hassan, whose trip to Washington has been postponed five times over the past eight years, was asked in a recent French radio interview what he planned to discuss with Carter on the two-day visit. He replied:

"I think I will talk mostly about geography. I will take with me some maps of Africa, the Persian Gulf, the Arab world and the Mediterranean, and we'll do a little geography.

"If I succeed in explaining to my American friends how I see these maps, then I will consider my whole trip to have been very profitable."

Hassan knows he can expect no direct American support in his war with the Marxist Polisario guerrillas, which is costing his army some 1,000 casualties a year.

The guerrillas, based in Algeria and armed mostly with Soviet-bloc weapons, are fighting to reverse the February 1976 annexation of the former Spanish Sahara by Morocco and neighboring Mauritania.

The United States has provided hundreds of millions of dollars worth of military equipment for Morocco, including 31 F-5 fighter-bombers. Theoretically, this weaponry is under "restriction," meaning it must not be used against the Polisario.

Moroccan officials said the King intends to leave all talk of weaponry to experts. His main objective, they said, is to convince the Carter administration that Morocco legitimately "recovered" its Sahara territory from Spain and that the weapons restriction should be dropped.

Case against cereal firms facing yet another setback

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the government's major antitrust cases, a 6½-year-old assault on the cereal industry, is at a standstill and may soon suffer another setback.

The Federal Trade Commission has ordered a halt to the mammoth case it instituted in 1972 — a case that hinges on a theory that the leading cereal companies constitute a "shared-monopoly."

This contention, suggesting that U.S. consumers consequently pay a higher-than-necessary price for cereal, contrasts with usual antitrust assertions about individual firms exercising monopolies.

The FTC has held up further action on the cereal case because of a problem involving Administrative Law Judge Harry Hinkes, the man who has presided over the case since its inception.

The problem stems from Hinkes' retirement in September. He signed a "professional services" contract with the FTC calling for $46,800 through next August while he finishes work on the case and submits his opinion to the commission.

However, one of the companies accused in the case, General Mills, Inc., challenged the arrangement, saying it violates Civil Service rules. The commission suspended activity in the case while it considers the General Mills motion.

Hinkes had been expected to finish the trial next year. But if he is disqualified, substantial parts of the case might have to be retried at heavy cost and with major new delays. The FTC already has spent some $5 million on the case.

Whenever the cereal industry case is decided, it is expected to have a major impact on antitrust enforcement.

Lawyer for assassinations committee resigns in dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lawyer for the House Assassinations Committee has resigned to show his "dissatisfaction" with the panel's decision not to recall James Earl Ray.

Ray had been scheduled to testify before the committee for a second time Thursday. Ray confessed to killing Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. but later recanted the confession. He is serving a 99-year sentence for murdering the civil rights leader in April 1968.

Michael Eberhardt, the committee's assistant chief deputy counsel, said he resigned Friday, one day after the panel decided not to recall Ray. The committee, on a split vote, decided Ray could not provide enough new evidence to justify the expense of bringing him back to Washington.

Eberhardt refused to comment on his resignation or the committee's decision except to say he was dissatisfied.

"I am constrained by the circumstances and by an agreement I signed when I joined the staff not to discuss the substance of the hearings," Eberhardt said in a telephone interview.

Signs buy clean city

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — A radio station offered 10 cents each for used political campaign signs, and its offer rid the Oklahoma City area — and a town over 200 miles away — of more than 30,000 posters.

"The city is a lot cleaner," said John Scott, program director for radio station KATT. "It cost the station $3,200 to $3,300 but it was worth it."

The drive, which started at 2 p.m. Thursday and ended at 5:30 p.m. Friday, amassed a pile of signs 30 feet in diameter and 10 feet high. The signs will be carted off by Boy Scouts for recycling, Scott said.

The biggest collector brought in 1,700 signs, which netted a young man $170 for about three hours work, Scott said.

Museum of Southwest registrar keeps tabs on history

By ROGER SOUTHALL
R-T Staff Writer

For Sandy Hiller, Midland spells a rewarding and interesting new vocation in a stimulating new environment.

A newcomer here, Miss Hiller is the registrar at Midland's Museum of the Southwest and, as she sees it, both the job and the institution are pleasant and challenging.

A native of California, she had just received a degree in history from the University of California at Santa Barbara. She says that although she has always been interested in art and art history, she had no specific idea of going to work for a museum until she came here.

Then the opportunity came about to join the staff of the Museum of the Southwest as intern registrar. She took it, and presto — a new vocation! "And I like the job very much — I'm thoroughly enjoying it," she declared.

What is a museum registrar? In simplest terms, it's the person who takes care of a museum's collections — whether oil paintings or pottery or patchwork quilts—the person who quite literally "keeps up" with irreplaceable or otherwise valuable items owned by a museum when they're not on public display.

The registrar accomplishes his or her job by cataloguing the items, assigning them accession numbers and making careful note of their permanent locations for storage.

"In the past, this responsibility at the Museum of the Southwest has been largely assumed by volunteers, and they've done a very good, very conscientious job," Miss Hiller said.

spotlight on the arts

But, she noted, the museum collections are growing larger and more varied all the time, and the need for a professional registrar has become steadily more pressing.

A few of the many and varied permanent collections at the Museum of the Southwest are the Baroness Von Bornstadt collection of European and Oriental fans; the graphics collection given to the museum by the Midland branch, American Association of University Women through an annual purchase award; an outstanding collection of fine Indian artifacts given by Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Randle of Big Spring; the enomorous collection of Indian arrowheads and Indian weapons given to the museum by the late Col. C.E. Bissell and Mrs. Bissell; the Merritt Mauzey collection of drawings and lithographs, donated by the artist, and the museum's collection of oil paintings, with particular emphasis on the works of the Taos Society of Artists and other Southwestern painters — a collection which is constantly being expanded through donations by interested individuals and business firms.

Dozens — or even hundreds — of other items in the museum's permanent collections reflect the Museum of the Southwest's three-fold outreach to the public — fine art, area and regional history, and science and natural history.

The items range from antique musical instruments to an authentic old ranch chuck wagon, and from pieces of fine decorative art and furniture to geods and mineral clusters.

Miss Hiller is now attending The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, working on a master's degree in history and taking courses in museum science. She paid tribute to her boss, museum director Sam Grove who, she said, "has been very helpful to me in my job," and to Mrs. Grove, a professional librarian "who has been teaching me a lot about cataloguing."

At the present time, she and Ray have been working together on Ray's new exhibition, "Military in the Southwest," due to go on public view very soon in the upstairs display rooms of the museum's Turner Memorial Gallery at 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

Curtain going up at WTC

SNYDER — The Western Texas College theater department this week will raise the curtain on its production of "The Little Foxes."

The powerful drama by Lillian Hellman, now regarded as an American theater classic, will have performances at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. Nov. 19 in the Fine Arts Theatre on the WTC campus here. The production is being staged and directed by Jeanne Kobuszewski.

Tickets for all performances are now on sale in the WTC theater department and will be available for purchase at the box office in advance of each performance.

Dallas Civic Opera to open second production of season

DALLAS — Dallas Civic Opera's second production of its 1978 season, Giuseppe Verdi's "A Masked Ball," will open Friday night in the Music Hall at Dallas' Fair Park.

"A Masked Ball" is regarded as one of the finest works of Verdi's "middle period" of musical creativity.

Impassioned arias and superbly-crafted duets and ensembles abound in the opera, and for the first time in Verdi's creative output, a new element of humor of deftly blended with the more familiar passions of love, jealousy and hate.

The cast of the new DCO production includes Renata Scotto as Amelia, Beniamino Prior as Riccardo, Ruth Welting as Oscar, Biana Berini as Ulrica, Harry Dworchak as Tom and Nicola Zaccaria as Sam.

In addition to the opening performance at 8 p.m. Friday, "A Masked Ball" will be presented at 2 p.m. next Sunday and 8 p.m. Nov. 21.

Single tickets for the performances range in price from $3.50 to $23 and are now on sale at the Dallas Civic Opera ticket office at 3000 Turtle Creek Plaza, 214-528-3200.

Magic of the 1960's fading for singer Bob Dylan

By ROBERT HILBURN
The Los Angeles Times

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — For the first time in the 1970s, Bob Dylan isn't being heralded by critics as rock's messiah on his new U.S. tour. He has been rapped in city after city for tampering with the old arrangements and for having too slick a stage manner.

Time magazine called the "mocking show-biz turns" in Dylan's show "tiresome." The Chicago Sun-Times termed the concert a "sometimes depressing, sometimes exhilarating, sometimes funny cross between 'Name That Tune' and 'That's Entertainment!' "

After a decade of unprecedented acclaim, it was an unusual situation for Dylan. The obvious question I posed as we sat in a coffee shop before his show here was: How does it feel?

"They're crazy," he said, of the reviews, between sips of coffee at the counter. "You'll see the show tonight. You'll see the crowd and how they react. Then, read the paper in the morning and you'll see that whoever reviewed it most likely wasn't there or didn't see the same show — maybe he heard it on the telephone.

"The writers complain the show's disco or Las Vegas. I don't know how they came up with those theories. We never heard them when we played Australia or Japan or Europe. It's like someone made it up in one town and the writer in the next town read it. I don't know what the reviewer means half the time. I don't even care."

There wasn't so much anger as puzzlement in Dylan's combative manner as he spoke. The hostile reviews began this year when the 37-year-old singer-songwriter released his unwieldly, four-hour "Renaldo and Clara" movie. They continued with the arrival of the greatly underrated "Street Legal" album. Many of the negative notices complained about poor production on the record.

"People now listen to records on stereo sets worth 10 grand," Dylan said. "It costs them more to listen to the album than it does for people to record it. They listen to how it sounds rather than what it says.

"And those magazines. They write about the albums from skyscrapers, behind desks. They don't know what is in the hearts and minds of the people any more than they know what I'm thinking or what a subway conductor is thinking.

"It's not me who has turned into something else — it's a lot of those writers. They used to have some kind of rebellious spirit. They don't anymore. In the '60s, they didn't even know if they were reporters. They just wrote. Now, they've got top jobs. They don't listen the same way to the music."

What about the "mocking show-biz turns"? "I'm not trying to mock anything in this show," he replied. "We're not equipped to do that. We don't have any props. We're just up there playing my songs. That's all we've ever done.

"There are so many of these groups that get on stage these days with smoke bombs or people rising up on 12-foot shoes. I'm not into that. That's not my scene.

Sale continues

ODESSA — The annual fall antique show and sale continues through this afternoon at Odessa's Ector County Coliseum.

The show, presented by Continental Shows Ltd., offers a wide variety of wares, from cut glass to barbed wire, and from miniatures to massive furniture pieces.

The show will open at 1 p.m. today in Building A behind the main coliseum and is scheduled to close at 6 p.m.

Dancers at Midland Community Theatre are in rehearsal for the pair of dance evenings they will present Nov. 20 and 21 in Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. The concert pair will feature dance from American musical theater, including tap, jazz and modern musical comedy numbers. Tickets will be available at the Theatre Midland box office, 682-4111. (Staff Photo)

Pickwick Players Joe White, Karen Price and Nicola DeChaud, left to right, are pictured in a scene in "The Wind in the Willows," a play for children which will have a third and final performance at 2:30 p.m. today in Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. Reserved seat tickets for the performance will be available at the box office in advance of curtain time this afternoon. (Staff Photo)

Program slated

The Thouvenel Quartet, Midland's string quartet in residence, will present its second subscription program of the season on Nov. 19.

The ensemble is presenting its 1978-79 season programs in the recital hall of the new Fine Arts Building at Midland College.

Season tickets will be valid for the concert next Sunday, and single admissions also may be purchased at the doors before the start of the program. Concert time will be 8 p.m.

'Nuestro' publisher finds dispelling notions a Herculean task

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Lopez says he's used to bucking stereotypes. But as publisher of the first national circulation magazine for Latinos, he finds dispelling pre-conceived notions about Hispanic-Americans a Herculean task.

The magazine is Nuestro — the Spanish pronoun for "ours" — and it is written in English.

"One of the biggest jobs we've had is to convince potential advertisers that although our market is predominantly Latino, it is primarily English-reading," said Lopez, the son of Mexican immigrants.

Lopez said he got the idea for Nuestro while a student at the University of Chicago in 1968, but publication was not begun until April 1977.

"I knew from 1960 census data there were a lot of middle class Latinos; in 1969 a 5 percent sample survey for 1970 proved me right," he said in an interview.

"But there was nothing on language. It had always been assumed that if the Latino minority spoke Spanish — or was bilingual — they would read in Spanish, too," Lopez said. "Well, that's not the case."

Census data for 1970 showed 76 percent of the country's estimated 12 million Hispanic-origin residents were bilingual. But that only meant they answered "yes" to a question asking whether a language other than English was spoken at home.

Lopez and potential Nuestro backers commissioned a survey in 1973 of 250 Hispanic-origin residents each in Miami, Los Angeles, New York and the Houston-San Antonio area. He said it showed that those who read, read in English.

"What many forget is that at least three-quarters of Latinos in this country were born here," Lopez said. "They've been through American schools and have suffered from the stigma of being Spanish-speaking. And they've worked hard to join the linguistic mainstream."

Radio classics preformed by theater group

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The shows are radio classics of yesteryear, right down to sound effects and original commercials. They are even performed twice a night — the repeat for the West Coast, of course.

But you'll never hear them broadcast.

It's the "Variety Arts Radio Theater," whose 10-member troupe this month began re-creating on stage such goodies from network radio's heyday as "The Shadow," "Lights Out" and Ed Wynn's "Fire Chief."

It goes on here Tuesdays in the Tin Pan Alley Room of the non-profit Variety Arts Theater, an emporium founded last year by magician Milt Larsen to preserve the best of the past in variety entertainment.

Stars reunite in new miniseries

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gregory Harrison, currently starring in "Centennial," will co-star in the NBC miniseries "The Best Place to Be."

He will be reunited in the series with Stephanie Zimbalist, who played his first wife in "Centennial." The series also stars Donna Reed, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Mildred Dunnock, Betty White and John Philip Law.

Museum of the Southwest members Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cartwright inspect a colorful canvas by contemporary artist Robert Goodnough during a recent preview which opened an exhibition of American abstract expressionist paintings. The collection, from the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation of Houston, is on view in the museum's Turner Memorial Galleries at 1705 W. Missouri Ave., between 2 and 5 p.m. each Sunday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. There is no charge for admission. The Goodnough painting is titled "Devils In A Boat." (Staff Photo)

ENTERTAINMENT

Final showing of 'Charley's Aunt' today

ODESSA — The Globe of the Great Southwest will close its current attraction, "Charley's Aunt," with a performance at 2:30 p.m. today. Reserved seat tickets will be for sale at the box office in advance of show time.

The famous old farce-comedy by Victorian playwright Brandon Thomas is the next-to-final production of the Globe's 1978 "Jubilee Season."

The final attraction of the season, due in December, will be a new play, "Mary of Nazareth," by American playwright Agnes Sanford, who wrote "The House of Saul" which was presented during the Globe's Summer Festival last July and August.

Tryouts to fill parts in "Mary of Nazareth" will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Globe Theater at 2308 Shakespeare Road, on the south edge of the Odessa College campus.

All interested actors and actresses in Midland, Odessa and surrounding area are invited to come and read for parts in the play, said Charles D. McCally, director.

Russian virtuoso joining Midland-Odessa Symphony this week

Beethoven's famous Symphony No. 5 will share honors with Aram Khachaturian's Violin Concerto in the Midland-Odessa Symphony's next pair of season subscription concerts.

The events are scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in Odessa's Bonham Junior High School and 8 p.m. Tuesday in the auditorium of Lee High School in Midland. Tickets will be available for purchase before the start of each concert.

Joining the orchestra and its conductor, Dr. Tom Hohstadt, in the dual concerts will be acclaimed young violinist Mark Piskunov. The 19-year-old virtuoso, born in the Soviet Union, has performed in concerts and as a recitalist throughout Russia and western Europe, as well as in the United States and Canada.

Piskunov and the orchestra will be heard in the Khachaturian Violin Concerto. The orchestra will perform Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and a work by a 20th Century composer, Jacques Press.

New opera to open

CANYON — "Samuel," a new opera by West Texas State University faculty member Royal Brantley, will have a series of presentations this week by the WTSU Opera Workshop.

The presentations will be at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a final performance scheduled for 2 p.m. next Sunday. All will be in Branding Iron Theater of the WTSU Fine Arts Building.

According to composer Brantley, "Samuel" is taken from chapters 15 and 16 of First Samuel in the Bible and is set in Biblical Palestine in the time of Samuel's old age, circa 1000 B.C.

Brantley describes the opera as more of a hybrid. "The musical score is continuous, like an opera, and yet there is more dialogue than singing."

The composer explains that in the musical work, "the Lord goes through Samuel to pick the next King of Israel, who will be David."

All seats are reserved for the series of public performance coming up.

Adult admission will be $4, while children and area public school students may attend for $2.50 each. Tickets will be for sale at the box office in the theater lobby before the start of each performance.

Rock concert Saturday

Black Sabbath, a hard rock ensemble, joined by special guest star Van Halen, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in the new Chaparral Center at Midland College.

Four burglaries reported to police

Four burglaries were reported to Midland Police Department officers Friday.

Alvin Anderson of the 500 block of South Carver Street told police Friday night of the apparent theft of $1,500 worth of speakers and amplifiers from the Alexander Temple Church in the 200 block of North Tyler Street.

Police were told an unlocked door was used for entry and for exit.

Irene Garrett of rural Midland told police early Saturday her purse containing about $410 worth of jewelry and cash was removed from the trunk of her car while she was inside a night club Friday night. The club is located near South Midkiff Road. Police were told the theft took place between 8:30 p.m. Friday and 12:30 a.m.

The woman told police she locked her car trunk and later discovered the lock had been pried open and her purse removed.

Mike Martinez of the 900 block of North Baird Street told police late Friday night about $730 worth of property,including a shotgun, bedspread and a color television set, were removed from his residence sometime between 6:45 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Officers said entry and exit were gained by the removal of a glass window on the back door.

Calletano Galindo of the 1700 block of East Oak Avenue told police Friday night an estimated $378 worth of property was taken from his residence sometime between Tuesday and Friday.

Officers said they were told two rifles were taken in the reported burglary.

Safety seminar slated Tuesday

"Safety Expo '78," a one-day seminar, is scheduled Tuesday at Odessa's Holiday Inn on East U.S. 80.

The meeting is designed to help business and industry representatives in the Permian Basin region with the latest insights and developments in occupational safety and health.

The seminar is sponsored by the Permian Basin chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers, and the Texas Safety Association.

The seminar will begin with registration between 7:45 and 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. The first program will get under way at 9 a.m., and additional programs and discussions are scheduled through 3:30 p.m.

A luncheon is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Registration fee is $15, which includes cost of the luncheon.

Shoot to kill

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — The martial-law government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos has set up a strike force that will be allowed to shoot to kill in order to combat robber gangs in the Manila area.

"Their instructions are to arrest these hold-up men, but those who resist are to be eliminated," Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrila said Friday.

American monk away from it all

By DENIS D. GRAY

PA PONG MONASTERY, Thailand (AP) — Stephen Saslav, head shaven, a gaunt white frame in orange robes, sits statue-still on the floor of the prayer hall near the two dangling skeletons and a baby fetus preserved in formaldehyde.

Four in the morning and the candlelight flickers over the gilt images of the Lord Buddha. Saslav's eyes close.

More than seven years ago he had headed to Asia, leaving behind college, parents and fun weekends in his native New York City. Passing through Thailand Saslav thought he would sample the austerity of a Buddhist monastery "for six months, seven at most."

Seven years later he is under indefinite vows to abstain from sex, alcohol and possessing all but a few personal items. Having been ordained monk Santa Citto in this remote forest monastery, he has joined an increasing number of foreigners, chiefly North Americans, Western Europeans and Australians, who have come to the land of 25,000 temples and 220,000 monks seeking the Buddhist way to peace and wisdom.

Abbot Chah, charismatic, simple-living and widely respected, has attracted many of the estimated 200 foreign monks in Thailand to Pa Pong. Having started branch monasteries in France and England and planning a trip to the United States, Chah believes that a genuine interest in Buddhism is emerging in the West. The foreign monks say Chah has a rare talent in communicating its teachings despite his poor command of English.

The abbot has even appointed a 30-year-old American to head a nearby monastery. Gordon Kappell, a former helicopter pilot in Vietnam, and his fellow foreigners are said to be almost pampered by the local villagers, who in traditional manner drop to the ground and clasp their hands in veneration as the often towering Caucasians pass by with their shaved heads and eyebrows, bare feet and begging bowls.

Set off from the main roads and towns in Thailand's most underdeveloped region, Pa Pong Monastery encompasses 160 acres of tropical forest inhabited by wild birds, deer and squirrels. The monks live singly in simple wooden huts perched on stilts and reached by narrow footpaths through the trees. There is no electricity, no tap water and no sounds but those from the forest.

A day begins at 2:45 a.m. with a gong calling the monks to chanting, meditation and cleaning chores. When dawn comes the monks move out in single files through the countryside, walking up to 10 kilometers to gather offerings of food from villagers. This becomes their one and only meal for the day.

Everything — eating, resting, walking — is performed at a slower pace than in the world outside, the mind ideally focusing on the action of the moment to grasp its meaning and beauty. Conventional separations of day and night are purposely avoided, with the monks taking naps in the afternoon on rough floor mats in their huts and sometimes spending hours of the night meditating or talking with the abbot at the temple illuminated only by the moon.

Nuns living nearby perform a number of the daily tasks, including cooking, leaving the monks free for meditation, study or meeting with visitors who come for guidance.

SCORE business workshop slated

ODESSA — A one-day workshop for prospective business owners or managers, or for persons who are new in business, will be held Nov. 21 at Odessa College.

The workshop will be sponsored by The Odessa chapter of Service Corps of Retired Executives, Odessa College, the Odessa Chamber of Commerce and the U.S. Small Business Administration. Topics will include financial planning, sources of capital, business records, management and taxes and insurance."

Registration begins at 8 a.m. in room 107 of the Composite Technology Building.

Discussion leaders will include specialists in problems relating to small business, and emphasis will be placed upon the needs of people who are new to the business field.

"Management knowledge is essential for business success," said Holmes. "It is our aim to inform both current and potential business entrants of some of the problems involved, and the route to successful management."

Fee for the all-day program is $5 to cover administrative costs and all materials. Further information may be obtained by calling the Odessa Chamber of Commerce or writing P.O. Box 3626, Odessa, 79760.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Warmth essential for older persons

Dear Dr. Solomon: What with winter coming on, I'd like to ask you a question about heating. My mother, who is almost 80, lives alone, and she is a great one for keeping her apartment cool. She says it is much healthier. But can't this be a little dangerous for old people?—H.K.

Dear H.K.: I think I know what your mother means. Most American houses and apartments are overheated—which isn't particularly good for your health, or for your purse when the heating bills come in.

However, older people must be careful not to carry the cool-is-better approach too far. Because they are vulnerable to something we are just beginning to find out about—accidental "hypothermia."

Hypothermia is a condition in which the temperature deep inside the body goes down below what it should be—something like 95 degrees or less, instead of the normal 98 plus. A drop in skin temperature doesn't mean hypothermia, as it doesn't necessarily correspond to the body's internal temperature.

British studies indicate that at least 10 percent of older people are susceptible to hypothermia. Why it happens is not really known. It may be partly due to a lessened ability to recover from stress such as exposure to cold. Or, with age, the reaction of the nervous system which acts as a kind of thermostat may be impaired.

Older people, especially those over 75, should avoid lengthy exposure to even mild cold without adequate protection. And it is a good idea for them to keep the indoor temperature at least 70 degrees. That, incidentally, is not very high by American standards.

An important point is that an elderly person may not seem aware of the cold. The natural reaction to cold is to turn pale—because the surface blood vessels contract to cut down heat losses, and to shiver, because this generates heat. An elderly person may do neither.

Hypothermia should be suspected if any of these signs are present: bloated face, waxy or pinkish skin color, trembling on one side of the body without shivering, irregular and slowed heartbeat, slurred speech, very slow breathing, low blood pressure, or drowsiness.

Diagnosing hypothermia may require a special thermometer with a scale going below the ususal low of 94 degrees. They are a little hard to come by.

If the temperature does not go below 90 degrees, the patient can generally be treated at home. But under 90 degrees is an emergency requiring hospitalization.

Rewarming has to be done slowly—not more than one degree per hour—preferably in a hospital under a doctor's supervision. Rapid rewarming can be fatal.

So tell your mother to keep pleasantly snug this winter.

At the library...books only a beginning

But if your child needs a bit of intellectual stimulation or perhaps a breather from school work, chances are it's to be found in the children's department at the Midland County Public Library.

Many of the materials found in the second floor Young People's Department may be checked out and taken home, to school rooms or day care facilities, explains Young People's librarian, Joan Threlfall, who has worked in the department since 1963.

Puzzles may be checked out or worked with in the library, along with a film strip projector and 70 film strips, casette tapes, records, multi-media collections of cassettes with accompanying books or records and books, a sizeable paperback collection for school age children and adults with a low reading level (many of these contain a lot of information in an easy format), and, of course, a large selection of fiction and nonfiction books for all children spanning ages from pre-school to ninth grade.

In the library onecan listen to tapes through earphones from a cassette listening center or look at antique sepia colored photographs through stereoscopes, play with a variety of toys and blocks or put together a Puzzle Town.

Mrs. Threlfall also mentions special programs presented by or for the department.

There is the Story Hour every Tuesday from 10 to 11 a.m. presented by the Midland Junior Woman's Club. Day care centers, mother's day out programs and individual parents from throughout the city take advantage of the hour programs, which are both educational and entertaining. Averaging 150 to 250 children per week, children sing with Ruffles the clown and other costumed volunteers before listening to stories pertaining to a broad theme or learning some simple dance steps.

Also, there are tours for school children to acquaint them with the library and the department. Teachers can call in advance and make reservations.

There are special teacher loans on books in which a teacher is allowed 40 books for six weeks. And there is a summer reading club for children which offers a certificate or award to members reading 15 books (last summer 766 registered for the reading program and 256 received certificates).

What are the some of the favorite books and materials?

Mrs. Threlfall said that television has made an impact on popular selections—a record—book set on "The Incredible Hulk," and the classic book "Little Women," which was recently televised, are two. Nancy Drew and The Hardy Boys are still favorites, as well as a Walt Disney film strip of "Snow White," and films on the Abominable Snowman and dinosaurs.

All it takes to check out materials is a library card—children must be at least 6-years-old and be accompanied by a parent of grandparent.

While the library is supported by county funds, donations for memorials are accepted and the Young People's department is accepting donations for periodical subscriptions, said Mrs. Threlfall.

Sweet Adelines blend in old-fashioned harmony

The Desert Winds Chapter of Sweet Adelines now is preparing for its second annual show, "Harmonizing Westward," that will feature lots of good old-fashioned barbershop harmony by the Desert Winds chorus and the Andrews chorus.

In addition, a male barbershop quartet from Lee High School and a guest quartet from Houston, "The Natural Flair," which recently placed fifth in international competition, will be singing. Other performers will be Tom E. Johnson on the piano, hula dancers provided by the Dee-Ann Studio of Dancing and the Sash-A-Way square dancers. Emcee for the show will be Mike McLaren.

The show will be held at Midland Theatre beginning at 8 p.m. Nov. 18, and tickets are on sale and may be purchased at the door or from any Sweet Adelines member for $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children.

Director of the local chorus is Louis Pare and he is assisted by Mrs. Pat Woolard. Bill Cormack and Noble Canida will be guest directors.

Pare was born in New Haven, Conn. and studied music at Lafalette College in Altamont, N.Y., Prep College in Hartford, Conn. and Yale University. He began directing choirs in high school and college and also plays the violin. Pare taught a music education program in Roswell, N.M. at St. Peters School while stationed with the Air Force there. He directed the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America (SPEBSQSA) and also directed Sweet Adelines chapter there.

Pare has been a resident of Midland since April 1973 and is invovled in Boy Scouts, Explorers, Midland Community Theatre and the choir at St. Ann's Church, and he also has played in theatre productions of "Oklahoma" and "Annie Get Your Gun." He currently is employed with the Federal Aviation Administration as assistant manager in Midland Airways Facilities Sector involved in electronic systems for air navigations.

Canida, who was born in Kilgore, has a B.A. degree in music education and is a well-known choral director throughout Texas. He has been choir director in the school systems of Abilene, Midland, Levelland and Andrews, and also is an accredited judge and clinician and director of the Andrews Sweet Adelines chorus.

Cormack has lived in Midland for 10 years and is the coordinator of fine arts and the migrant programs for the Midland school system. He has been director of championship choruses at Tascosa High School in Amarillo and is prominent throughout the United States in the field of music. Although he is not involved with barbershop singing at the present, he has been very active in it for the past 28 years.

Sweet Adelines, Inc., is an international, non-profit organization formed of chapters in the United States, the Canal Zone, Canada, England, The Virgin Islands and Saudi Arabia, with prospective chapters growing in other countries. The purpose of Sweet Adelines is to teach and sing the American folk art of four-part harmony, barbershop style and, through performances, to encourage a universal appreciation of that music. This is accomplished by the creation and maintenance of choruses and quartets which promote the spirit of friendliness and harmony among women everywhere.

Barbershop harmony is different from any other kind of choral singing. First of all, it does not use instrumental accompaniment of any kind. Secondly, the music is based on one part—the lead—which carries the melody surrounded by three voices singing the harmony. The other parts are tenor, the natural harmony part sung high; baritone, the fourth note of the chord that weaves an intricate pattern through songs, and bass, the part that attracts the "hams" as well as those with low voices.

The Desert Winds Chapter was founded May 11, 1965. The current president is Carolyn Dixon. The chapter performs a service to the community by singing for nursing homes, community events, churches, clubs and conventions.

The local chapter is funded by membership dues, the annual show and donations received for singing. The money the chapter makes is used to pay for costumes, director's expenses to music school and a yearly donation to a local charity. This year it is hoped that the annual show will earn enough to pay the entire chapter's expenses to regional competition in March 1979.

The chorus does compete with other chapters in this region, and the Desert Winds would like to expand its membership to be able to win the regional championship and quality for international competition, this year scheduled to be held in Los Angeles, Calif.

The chapter meets at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church at the corner of Main and Illinois Streets. All interested women are invited to attend the next meeting and share the songs.

around town

By PATSY GORDON
R-T Lifestyle Writer

Around Town decided to go out-of-town for a day to Luckenbach.

Why?

Because of an Associated Press story appearing a few days ago in newspapers that reported civilization had crept into this tiny hamlet when Southwestern Bell had installed a pay phone outside the general store there. The news story invited readers to try calling the number to see who might answer.

So, this writer took them up on it and did just that. All day Thursday, with no luck. Finally, after a check with directory assistance, it turned out that the town had more than one telephone after all. The new one was not the first.

In a conversation with Marge Ottmers at the general store, the record was set straight. It seems that the pay phone was installed for the convenience of the people who were using the store's business phone for more than business. Not to modernize the town, at all.

Ms. Ottmers said she spent too much time going outside and back answering the new phone that she quit answering it after talking to numerous members of the news media who evidently read the same AP story.

The call to Luckenback also unveiled the fact that the town, which covers approximately 12 acres and has an official population of five people, is closing down its activities for the winter months.

The town was established in 1849, but only gained national prominence recently through the promotion of the late Hill Country humorist, Hondo Crouch, and the popular song by Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson.

The last dance until late winter or early spring was scheduled to be held last night.

Structures in the community include a dance hall,general store with a bar, a little rock house behind the store that is used occasionally for an art studio, an old cotton gin "across the creek which runs along the big creek," and a blacksmith shop.

There are, according to Ms. Ottmers, 200 people living in the Luckenbach area that used to come into the town proper to get their mail when there was a post office.

Ms. Ottmers is a great niece to Benno Engel, who sold the store to Crouch and Kathy Morgan. Ms. Morgan is the mayor of Luckenbach and Ms. Ottmers was born and raised in this Hill Country community.

Despite all the modern new gadgets, indicating economic growth in the community, Luckenback probably will remain for some time a place "Where everybody is somebody"...

His job goes from rags to riches

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Remember that disheveled old shirt that you felt so comfortable and secure in? Remember how your wife stole it from you and tossed it in the Goodwill box at the supermarket?

"....It's kind of like buying a grab bag. Sometimes you find a fur coat..."

Ever wonder where that shirt went?

Chances are it might have wound up here — among the 75 tons of used garments, antique clothing and just plain junk that Jim Johnson's employees sift, sort and sell each day.

"They used to call it rag grading," Johnson said. "Now it's sophisticated — recycling old clothing."

Fourteen years ago, tired of selling tires, the East Texas native was steered into the used clothing business by a friend. He bought out a store here for $400 and paid $45 per month rent.

"Sales are about $6 million per year," he said with the slow drawl of one who grew up in the Lufkin "suburb" of Shawnee Prairie.

"Most of it costs us five cents per pound. We've got stuff that sells for 87 cents per pound," he said.

There's usable clothing.

"Now who'd throw them out," Johnson asked, hoisting a pair of garish red-striped pants from a barrel. And there are rags. Twenty-five grades of rags.

The bottom of the line stuff is de-buttoned and de-zippered and made into rags. Johnson is a member of the prestigious-sounding, International Association of Wiping Cloth Manufacturers.

Nothing is thrown away.

"Where should this be?" Johnson said to an employee as he picked up an errant sock in the warehouse.

The warehouse is a mind-boggling maze of ceiling-high bundles of last year's clothing.

"The best clothes go to my Mexican customers," he said.

The other-than-best garments go to Bangladesh, Pakistan and impoverished African nations.

The goods bring varying prices. Boys shirts and bathing suits destined for Africa go for 50 cents per pound.

Then there's the puzzling situation concerning used military clothing. Army khakis go for 23 cents per pound. Navy blues bring 48 cents per pound.

Most of the wool garments go to Italy. Johnson said Italians reweave the wool into new material that is sold as new clothing in the United States. That process is illegal in this country, Johnson said.

The antique clothing king said the huge bundles he buys always have some surprises.

"You get a conglomerate mixture. It's kind of like buying a grab bag. Sometimes you find a fur coat or a Hollywood suit," he said.

Blue jeans are big sellers these days and Johnson said Dutch and Japanese buyers are always on the lookout for wearable denim.

Autumn is the busiest season for Johnson's 300 employees.

"The kids go back to school and all the old stuff is thrown out. The quality is better in the fall," said Johnson, unstylishly clad in dotted shirt and checked pants.

Johnson said that it's not easy to get started as a rag man. He said it's the kind of business that requires continuous investment — and he doesn't seem to mind.

Future general?

CARBONDALE, Ill.--Carleta Asbury wanted to sign up for a class in military training when she was a high school freshman, but her father wouldn't let her.

Today, she is the cadet commander of the Air Force ROTC unit at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

She said she eaxpects to graduate and be commissioned as an Air Force officer in 1979. She plans a career in the service and wants to go all the way to general.

Check finish

AUBURN, Pa. (AP) — Furniture expert John Burke advises buyers of furniture that the first thing to look for is the last thing — the finish. Burke, of Reneer Films here, says, "In any piece of furniture, the finish is really the true indicator of the quality that went into the product."

Religion shares holiday card spotlight with animal themes

NEW YORK (AP) — The resurgence of interest in religious themes which set a trend in last year's Christmas greeting continues unabated this season, according to a spot survey of the nation's greeting card publishers.

Early Americana, the culinary arts and a veritable who's who in the animal kingdom rank as the most popular subjects for this year's greetings, closely followed by Santa as a marathon runner instead of the jogger he was last year.

'Christmas greeting cards generally reflect the tenor of the times," said Harry J. Cooper, executive director of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

"The months of negotiation prior to the summit meeting at Camp David focused puic attention on an international quest for peace. In part this may account for many cards that combine the themes of peace with the traditional scenes of the Nativity."

Commenting on Santa as a marathon man, Cooper said, "A vast number of Americans are literally running away with themselves. Our national mania for marathons has Santa in this role, although many publishers continue to depict him as an all-around sports buff."

Siamese cats and kittens, raccoons and koala bears abound on greeting cards. On one, Santa drops in on a peaceable animal kingdom where, allegoricaly, the beasts of the forest live in harmony.

The traditional staple of scenic, snow-clad landscapes continues in the lines of many publishers. These cards sell extremely well in urban areas to Cooper, who believes that city dwellers like them because the subjects evoke a remembrance, for many, of childhood in the country.

Home cookery is depicted in many sketches and paintings of holiday kitchen scenes. This reflects current widespread interest in the culinary arts, several publishers believe.

A Supreme Court ruling last year that permits physicians, lawyers and other professionals to advertise their services finds many customers in this category ordering personalized greeting cards on which the names of the sender is imprinted.

Some physicians, for instance, will be sending cards on which they name members of their staff or clinics with which they are associated. Invariably, this group eschews a "commercial" message, adhering to professional decorum.

Spanish-language cards are abundant in many urban areas, andCcards designed specially for blacks reflect influence and a strong sense of self-identity, industry spokesmen note.

Palsy victim good fighter

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — When Jason Pisano's parents want to buy him a gift they tend to stay away from the ordinary.

For Jason, a 6-year-old cerebral palsy victim, a real cool present would be a sweat suit, a Muhammed Ali T-shirt, a pair of boxing gloves and the like.

Jason is an avid boxing fan whose bedroom looks like a gymnasium. On one side of the room hangs his green satin boxing robe with his "ring name," Jumpin Joe Jason, written on the back. On the opposite side, his boxing gloves hang on the walls, just above punching bags, weights and an exercise mat.

He has acquired the knack of boxing with his feet. He is learning how to swim, and he plays baseball by holding the bat with his knees.

His mother says Jason hopes to have some kind of sports career, if not as an athlete then as a trainer.

The $1,500 scholarship was established by friends of Boyle, longtime Associated Press columnist, after his death in 1974.

Orphan crow is tamed, becomes part of family

By GERALD S. GOLDSTEIN
Providence Bulletin

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) — Quoth the raven of Edgar Allen Poe: "Nevermore." Quoth the crow of Jay Knowles: "Wow!"

Jay, 9, is a soft-spoken fourth-grader who does very little quothing. He doesn't have to because he's got a mouthpiece — a crafty, jet-black crow named Petey who follows him around town and has been known to ask his friends, "Where's Jay?"

Quoth Jay's mother, Arlene: "He (Petey) can drive you crazy — he rattles and rambles all day."

Despite that, there isn't a member of the Knowles family who hasn't grown fond of the bird since Jay's father, Gerald, plucked him from a nest 18 months ago and brought him home as a pet for his son.

Aside from saying "Wow!", Petey has learned to communicate in some unusual ways, especially since the Knowles' yard includes two dogs, two goats, 10 ducks and 35 chickens.

After 18 months with the family, Petey not only blurts out phrases like "Let me in" and "See ya," but also crows like a rooster, baas like a sheep, whistles and laughs.

Mrs. Knowles recalls that one morning Petey landed on the roof of a neighbor's house and set up such an animated conversation that she thought a gang of children was playing in the yard.

Petey spends his days outside — he waits for the school bus each afternoon atop a 40-foot tree near the house — and comes indoors to a cage each night.

Petey also follows Jay everywhere, often hitching a ridé on the handlebars of his bicycle. Recently, he fluttered over the soccer game where Jay was playing until he had some close encounters with the ball and had to be taken home.

The crow's diet consists mostly of fish and table scraps, but hamburger and scallops are his favorites. He has also been known to raid the chicken house for eggs.

THIS WATERFORD® ADVERTISEMENT RAN IN 1790.

Way back then, Waterford inspired odes on the part of the people who wrote advertisements. Like this one:

The shop is now completely stored which choicest glass from Waterford— Decanters, Rummers, Drams and Masons, Flutes, Hob Nobs, Crofts and Finger Basons. Proof Bottles, Goblets, Cans and wines. Punch Juggs, Liquers and Gardevins.

Today, we might add this couplet:

Crystal Lamps and Chandeliers— Shining Lights that have no peers.

In any case, every piece of Waterford crystal is still blown by mouth & cut wholly by hand, with heart. A legend in our time. A legacy for your heirs.

Rita Davis, David Diffie repeat vows

SAN ANGELO-Rita Nell Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monte E. Davis of San Angelo, and David Paul Diffie, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Diffie of 4701 Leisure St. in Midland, were married in a double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church at San Angelo.

The Rev. Harold G. Odum officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Attending the couple were Bill Diffie, brother of the bridegroom, of Houston, and Donna Samuelson, sister of the bride, of Odessa. Bridesmaids were Carolyn Davis, sister of the bride, of Canyon, and Dixie Parham of Rankin. Groomsmen were Dr. Bob Barkly of Odessa and Steve Troy of Houston.

Organist was Mary Gibbs. Soloist was Gwen Hodapp of San Angelo and guitarist was Spencer Elliot of El Paso.

The bride wore a candlelight gown designed and created by her. The dress featured a bodice and hood of angel hair bridal lace, with the lace also repeated at the sleeves. Bias cording accented the bodice and hood. The bouquet was a cascade arrangement of butterfly orchids and roses designed and made by Ann Dunn, sister of the bridegroom.

Reception was held in the Wood Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. David Paul Diffie

Following a trip to the Texas Hill Country, the couple will reside near Rankin.

The bride is a graduate of Texas Tech University and is county extension agent for Upton and Reagan Counties. The bridegroom was graduated from Tech and is an accountant for Midland College.

Leasa Jo Hale becomes bride of James Tenison

Leasa Jo Hale and James Charles Tenison III repeated double ring wedding vows at 2 p.m. Saturday in St. Ann's Catholic Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Hale of 1704 W. College Ave. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tenison Jr. of Dallas.

Attending were members of the immediate family. Usher was Jerry Johnson of Midland. Organist was George DeHart.

The bride wore a gown of antique ivory chiffon designed in a Gibson Girl motif featuring a deep yoked bodice and high neck of scalloped Chantilly lace. The full chiffon sleeves were caught at the wrists by cuffs of lace. The full chiffon skirt flowed to a sweep train.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white gardenias and an assortment of brown, beige and candlelight silk flowers which were accented by touches of chocolate brown Baker fern.

Reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

Following a trip to Fort Davis, the couple will reside at 2200 S. Lamesa Road.

The bride is a graduate of Midland High School and is employed at Texas Electric Service Co. The bridegroom was graduated from Sul Ross State University in Alpine and is employed by the Midland Police Department.

Words on statue convey message

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — "He's not heavy, Father, he's m'brother.. ."

Throughout the years, the words have become firmly linked with Boys Town.

Until recently, the message the words convey was depicted in stone outside the Boys Town visitor center here. A statue showed a boy carrying his little brother piggyback.

The work, created in about 1948 by Ira Correll, was fashioned from soft stone, vulnerable to the elements. This year it was taken inside and a new bronze sculpture offering a modernized version of the two boys was created by Enzo Plazzotta, an Italian artist.

Chapter plans annual event

The Col. Theunis Dey Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will have its annual "I Hate to Cook" sale from 10 a.m. to noon Thursday in the home of Mrs. Jerry Stengl, 2209 Country Club Drive.

Casseroles, baked goods, frozen foods, coffee and cookies will be featured.

In charge of the project are Mrs. Edwin Watts, chairman, and Mrs. Joe B. Warren, Mrs. Donald Ewan and Mrs. Ben Black.

The sale benefits the genealogical section of the Midland County Public Library, Children of the American Revolution chapter, Junior American Citizens, veterans' project, American History Month, Constitution Week and presentation of American flags.

Fashion designer becomes almost near-conglomerate

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion Designer Scott Barrie is so successful that he has transformed himself into a near-conglomerate.

He divides his designs into the Barrie Jeans Co., Scottie Playwear, Scott Barrie Blouserie, something called Scottie and, finally, Scott Barrie period.

All of these enterprises hired models to flounce up and down a runway here on Thursday, showing off the mostly bizarre clothes Barrie is offering for next spring.

Scottie Playwear offers some simple, utilitarian terrycloth slacks and very short shorts. Barrie Jeans Co., produces some blue jeans that resemble blue jeans (though they taper to a conclusion about two inches above the ankle bone). There are also some pretty wrap-around sun dresses.

But the bulk of Barrie's spring designs holler Notice-How-Different-I-Look.

For instance, spring fashion gospel according to Barrie proclaims that the pedal-pusher is back. For nights — black sequined pedal-pushers worn with a matador jacket that has full, gathered shoulders.

For the daylight hours, Barrie is offering one-piece floral pedal-pusher playsuits with elastic around the bodice and string straps. (The model called upon to make this creation appealing decided to do so by skipping onto the runway. She tripped.)

For spring evenings, Barrie also offers a dress that drops to mid-calf in the back. In front, however, the hem screams to an abrupt halt three inches above the knee.

Most of the New York designers next spring will offer slightly longer than knee length skirts for days that have subtle, but indisputabe, slits up one side, to expose a good deal of leg. They are sexy.

Fashion show slated

The Youth Department of the Wayside Church of God in Christ will have a "Fall Fashion Revue" at 3 p.m. Nov. 19 in the Midland Hilton.

Fashions will be shown by Alyce Owens, Career Girl, Cherry Orchard, Dunlap's, Marilyn's, S&Q Clothiers and Sears Roebuck and Co. Special prizes will be donated by Midland merchants.

Hair stylings for the models will be by Barbara's Boutique.

Ranchland Hills showplace of clubs

By WANDA MOUTON
R-T Lifestyle Editor

What began in 1949 as an Army barrack in a pasture of golf holes has developed today into a showplace of country clubs.

Members of the Ranchland Hills Country Club are exuberant over the recent completion of a two-year project on renovating the club and surrounding area.

Jerry Willenburg, club treasurer, has been close to the project since its beginning and says that the unique remodeling has attracted the attention of country club members and owners, plus architects, interior decorators and others involved in club construction business throughout the United States.

"The members wanted a warm atmosphere, a club that would resemble the comfortable mood of one's own home," said Willenburg.

Hoch has designed the interiors of many country clubs, but a project like Ranchland Hills is a first for him, he says. "Most clubs choose a contemporary style, but this club wanted something different," he says.

The 29,000 square foot facility has been designed with the member's wants and needs in mind," said Hoch.

"For example, I visualized the ladies locker room as a sun porch and filled the room with wicker and rattan furniture," he explained. The room is designed to look like the 1920's, with Gibson Girl prints, antique postcards framed in glass and other old pictures on the walls.

The ballroom, with seating for approximately 500, contains a richer look of walnut furniture, mirrored ceilings, wooden beams and suede wallcoverings.

One of the more unusual rooms is the Fan Room, in which Hoch combined two types of fans to create a theme.

He first collected a variety of fans from all parts of the world, including Oriental fans, ceiling fans and handheld fans used in earlier days to keep cool when there was no air-conditioning.

Hoch also found various prints and photographs of athletic fans, including football, baseball and wrestling fans to carry out the theme.

Many features of the new decor are unique. A lounge is covered with wallpaper, handmade in Taiwan, that is made of actual tree leaves. Many of the doors feature figures etched in glass. Furniture in the Golf Pro Shop is adorned with gold-painted golf balls. Stained tin from an old barn in the East covers one bar. And doors of the Tennis Pro Shop have tennis rackets for handles.

"Overall style would be considered a combination of Victorian, Early American, Italian classic and the old West," said Hoch.

Many of the items, including cabinets and movable shelves, were handmade by the craftsman in his shop.

In addition to the interior work, new plumbing, air conditioning and heating were installed for convenience and economy, according to Willenburg. Other extras include complete landscaping and new tennis facilities.

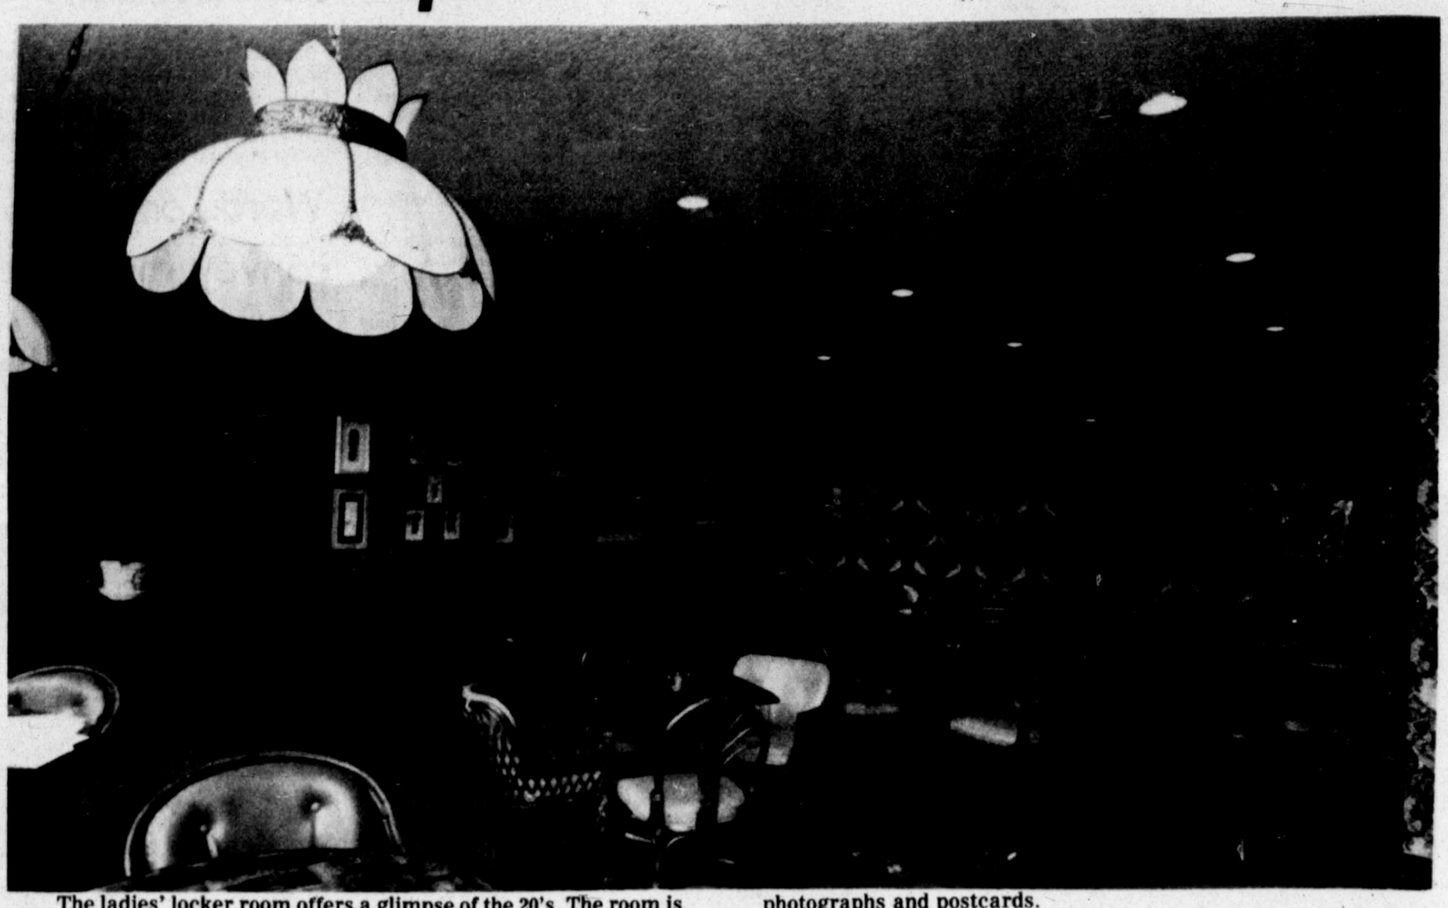

"The makeover has been a joint project of our 650-plus members," said Willenburg. Heading the $1,600,000 project were the club's officers and board of directors, including Lynn Lott, president; Tom Thagard, vice president; Doug Henson, secretary, and Willenburg.

Directors are Al Boudreaux, Jack Campbell, Ira Johnston, John Keesey, Frank Key, Bill McWilliams, Claude Mitchell and Bob Sevin. Manager is Dave Cook.

This is the most extensive remodeling done on the country club in its history. Begin as a simple building and a nine-hole golf course in 1949 by owner H.L. Winkler, the building has since been renovated only once. That was in 1962 and architect for that project was Homer Pace of Midland.

Winkler sold the club to the members in 1973 and plans were made soon thereafter to update the decor.

"Before this remodeling project, we weren't really a complete country club without tennis courts, a lounge and dance floor, and up-to-date facilities," said Willenburg. "Now we are."

The ladies' locker room offers a glimpse of the 20's. The room is furnished in wicker and rattan and features antique prints, photographs and postcards.

DEAR ABBY

Those helping hands get a knuckle-rap

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please say something to well-meaning friends and relatives who insist on crowding into the kitchen to help serve a meal even after you have said no, thank you, to their offers.

They block the passageways, the stove, the refrigerator and cabinets, and they think they're helping you. I've worked many hours preparing a good meal, but before I get it served, I'm ready to go to bed

When a hostess refuses my offer of help, I retreat, return to the other guests and keep the conversation going. How I wish everyone would do me that way. Sign me. . .—NO HELP WANTED

DEAR NO HELP: There's a wonderful poem by Susan Sawyer that you might want to hang in your kitchen. It's been in my column, but apparently it's time for a re-run.

PLEASE STAY AWAY FROM MY KITCHEN

"Please stay away from my kitchen
From my dishwashing, cooking and such;
You were kind to have offered to pitch in
But thanks, no, thank you so much
Please don't think me ungracious
When I ask that you leave me alone;
For my kitchen's not any too spacious
And my routine is strictly my own.
Tell you what: You stay out of my kitchen
With its sodden, hot, lacklustre lures—
When you're here, stay out of my kitchen
And I promise to say out of yours"

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a dynamite guy. His friends say he has an IQ of a genius.

What's an IQ?—LEONA

DEAR LEONA: An IQ is the number which is supposed to indicate a person's level of intelligence. It is one's mental age (as shown by intelligence tests) multiplied by 100 and divided by one's chronological age.

Shanna Post married to John Latham

Shanna LaDon Post and John Ronald Latham of Abilene were married Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Wilshire Park Baptist Church. Officiating the double ring ceremony was the bride's brother, the Rev. Keith Post.

Parents of the couple include Mr. and Mrs. Melton D. Post of Midland and Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Latham of Tulsa. Okla.

Attendants for the bride included Sammie Paul of Midland, maid of honor, and Gaye Reed of San Angelo and Kim Shields of Midland, bridesmaids.

Gary Davidson of Midland was best man for the bridegroom. Groomsmen included Jake Eckert of Midland and Jim Blair of Abilene. Stephen Post of Midland, the bride's brother, and Chris Rodgers of Fort Worth were ushers.

Flowers girls were Amy Edwards and JoAnne Pettiet, both of Hurst, and Troy Edwards of Hurst was ring bearer.

Mrs. John Ronald Latham

red miniature carnations, ivy and baby's breath.

Music was provided by Janice Cates, organist, and Donna Padgett, soloist.

After a brief wedding trip, the couple will reside in Abilene.

Texas girl gets award

ARLINGTON (AP)- Kindra Brooks, a 12-year-old sixth grader, was awarded a Certificate of Merit for having saved the life of her 4-year-old neighbor. It is the highest award given by the Red Cross for such an act.

It was a year ago when Miss Brooks spotted Brian Nutter hanging on the garage door at his home. She took him down with the help of her baby-sitter, and gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. She learned the technique in a Red Cross swimming class.

Retriever prefers water

The dog, belonging to Dave Meek, dives head first to the bottom of her master's 10-feet-deep swimming pool to fetch a swim fin or scuba mask.

Meek said Sierra, who is 9 months old, took her first big plunge about five months ago when a fin landed in the pool and she dived three feet to retrieve it in the shallow end. She progressed to the deep end and dives deeper yet at a lake, he said.

Don't overwater

Do your potted geraniums fail to bloom? There are a few tricks to getting them to do it. Ordinary rich garden soil and a red clay pot are necessary. The clay pot allows a plant to breathe through as it is porous. Geraniums must have plenty of sunlight and good drainage. They will grow tall and scragly without it but they will not bloom. Never overwater. When you do water, water well.

German wines among best

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The story of German wines is a fascinating study in inconsistency, made all the more intriguing by the soaring demand for these fragrant white wines in the United States.

For one thing, the Germans devote less than 2 percent of their agricultural land to vineyards, planting an area that covers less than 1-20th of the vine acreage of France.

And yet, according to Frank Schoonmaker's "Encyclopedia of Wine," bible of the wine lover, Germany manages to export more white wine to the United States than do the French, long regarded as the undisputed leader of the wine field. And the outflow is steadily increasing. In 1977, imports of German wines to the United States jumped about 20 percent.

Today about 85 percent of West Germany's grapes produce white wine, but back in the 16th century much German wine was red and the greatest overseas customer then was England, which is not looked upon as a nation of wine drinkers.

Perhaps the most famous of German wines is Liebfraumilch, yet it has become one of the most misleading names in the industry. By West German law, the name Liebfraumilch may be applied to any wine from vineyards in Rheinhessen province.

Scarbrough to be speaker

Jack B. Scarbrough, co-ordinator of mid-management, Midland College, will be the guest speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the Permian Chapter of the National Secretaries Association(International). The meeting will be at noon in the Midland Hilton. The topic of the speech is "Management-Development of People."

He searches for tidbits of our social history

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The manifesto of women's liberation might have been writen yesterday.

"Too long the male sex usurped to themselves the title of lords of the creation; enacted laws and enforced statutes at large, without consulting or considering women worthy of being their coadjustors," it reads.

"Thus situated, a body of ... women resolved to erect a parliament of their own, and represent themselves in the character of real women."

The date on the tract? March 31, 1796.

Dennis D. Tyrer of Raleigh found it in that day's edition of the North Carolina Minerva and Fayetteville Advertiser.

Tyrer's hobby is studying the old newpapers of North Carolina. He searches for tidbits of what he calls "the social history" buried in their pages.

To be sure, the native of Great Britain often finds the mundane, such as wedding announcements of 100 years ago that sound as if they came from a newspaper of today. "But like good music, it kind of grows and develops with you," he said.

Tyrer said he is constantly amazed by both the contrasts and similarities to modern life and the subjects that concerned newspaper readers in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Consider the essay "Man and Wife" that appeared in the Wilmington Centinel and General Advertiser on Aug. 13, 1788.

"If you see a man and woman with little or no occasion, often finding fault, and correcting each other in company, you may be sure they are man and wife.

"If you see a lady accidentally let fall a glove or handkerchief, and a gentleman who is next to her tell her of it, that she herself may pick it up, set them down for man and wife."

"See," said Tyrer, "people complain about the same things in marriage today as they did in 1788."

'Light color of shingles cannot be retained'

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I recently moved into a house which has light cedar shingles on the outside. I did not want them finished with anything, but now have decided they should be covered with a wood preservative. However, I like the light color of the shingles and want to keep them that way. Is there any wood preservative which will retain the original color of the shingles?

A. — Any kind of finish, even if it is called "clear," will darken the wood slightly. The shingles may even darken more over a long period of time. Even if you did not put any preservative on the shingles, they would change color over the years, usually to some shade of gray or tan.

Q. — Last year we had an underground sprinkling system installed around our house, since we have quite a large amount of grass that must be taken care of. It works fine, but a leak developed this year. I believe the pipe used is polyethylene. Is there some special way to repair this or is it done the same as with a plastic hose?

A. — The repair is basically the same as with a plastic hose. Find the leaky area, cut it out with a sharp knife, making straight cuts on either side of it. Go to a hardware store, lumber yard or building-supply establishment, taking along the piece of pipe that you have cut out. This will enable the dealer to determine the kind of plastic pipe installed around your house, because different types must be repaired in slightly different ways. Generally, though, the repair is similar to that made on a plastic hose, calling for the use of one or more couplings.

Q. — A few months ago you had an article about the correct way to apply lacquer with a brush. I did not save the clipping, but used lacquer recently. The finish came out very bad. It was all wrinkled. Can you tell me what I might have done wrong?

A. — While it is difficult to be certain, there are two possibilities. One is that you may have made the mistake of applying the lacquer over a painted surface, in which case the lacquer would have acted as a kind of paint remover and caused the paint to wrinkle. The other is that you brushed out the lacquer, which must be applied quickly and then not gone over again. In either case, try rubbing the wrinkled finish with lacquer thinner to smooth it out. But be careful. Lacquer thinner is flammable and volatile and must be used where there is plenty of ventilation and no exposed flame, such as a pilot light.

The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

Artist will be speaker

Carolyn K. Walker, artist from Colorado City, will give a painting demonstration at a meeting of the Midland Palette Club at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the club building, 604 N. Colorado St.

Mrs. Walker will do the demonstration in "mixed media," a combination of pastel and oil, on a primed masonite panel. Landscape with buildings will be the subject of the painting.

Mrs. Walker has painted and taught art a number of years and now teaches painting workshops. She has taught throughout Texas, New Mexico and Nebraska and plans to teach in Oregon in the spring. She is teaching assistant to Jan Herring, nationally-known artist, in Cloudcroft, N.M., during the summers. She also conducts her own workshops in Cloudcroft in the summer. In 1979, she will be teaching a workshop the first two weeks in June and a workshop the last two weeks in July.

She has won several awards for her work, including best of show. Her paintings have been entered in state competition in the Texas Fine Arts Association. Her paintings now are hanging in the Midland Woman's Club through the first week in December.

Couple wed at sea

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (AP)-Patricia Holland married Clyde North recently at, as their marriage license says, "40 degrees and 22 minutes latitude; 71 degrees and 30 minutes longitude."

The two wed in the middle of Block Island Sound, aboard Clam Cake, a boat belonging to friends.

"Happy events like a wedding are even happier close to nature," said the Rev. William Spencer Litterick, pastor of the Central Baptist Church in Jamestown, who performed the ceremony.

Galleria gala slated

An old-fashioned Christmas dinner, Santa, Mrs. Claus, elves and a showing of Koslow's furs will be featured at the "Christmas Galleria" to be sponsored by Act IX, auxiliary to Midland Community Theatre, at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Midland Country Club to benefit the theater.

Guests will arrive at the Elves Village to wander among the booths and Christmas scenes, while listening to carolers dressed in turn-of-the-century costumes.

Guests can arrange to pay for services of elves wrapping and delivering Christmas gifts and Santa making telephone calls or visits to households.

Cornish hens and wild rice will be featured at the dinner preceding the showing of exclusive furs from Koslow's of Fort Worth.

Koslow's will be showing the furs in the Midland Hilton from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sturday. A percentage of all sales will be donasted to the Community Theatre.

Requests for invitations should be referred to Mrs. Chris Scharbauer, 683-3061.

Auxiliary meets

The Women's Auxiliary to the Midland County Medical Society met at the home of Mrs. Garland Lang, 100 Neely Ave.

The program was "A Fashionable Christmas with Holiday Foods and Entertaining" presented by Mrs. Judy Germany, Midland County Extension Agent-Home Economics.

ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

Bedspreads and draperies of damask and raw silk, lush brocades and cut velvets woven on hand looms are typical of Italian imports reflecting what the textile trade believes is a trend to natural fibers: cotton, wool and silk.

Forty exhibitors recently crossed the Atlantic for a New York City trade showing called Texitalia Casa '78. In addition to ornate bedspreads and draperies, they presented creations in upholstery fabrics, household linens, carpets, wall-to-wall floor coverings and wall coverings -- at prices medium-high to high.

"In home furnishings today, the fashion emphasis is on natural fibers," says Italian Trade Commissioner Lucio Caputo. "But synthetics are also used because of practicality and the easy care features they add to such products as table linens, bed linens, curtains and draperies."

Household linens have become "a fashion area," Caputo says. "The trend is for natural colors in linen — soft, suffused beiges. There is also an emphasis on the romantic Victorian prints of the 1800s in tiny patterns."

Wool blankets were shown by the Italian group for the first time in the United States. Previously, they were produced chiefly for domestic consumption.

The blankets featured natural stripes in alpaca or cashmere, and pastel plaids and stripes in wool. The accent was on warm shades of earthy tones from natural to brown.

In draperies and other decorating fabrics, silk, linen and cotton fibers dominated, but acrylics and polyesters also were used.

Imaginative weaves abounded. A flame stitch was popular for upholstery fabrics as were small boucles in tiny patterns and natural colors. Appliques on both smooth-finished and embroidered fabrics indicated still another trend. Overall, there was an increase in jacquards, brocades, damask and velvet.

This was evident in the collection by Lisio of Florence. Many of the patterns for upholstery fabrics, bedspreads and draperies were styled after ancient designs and paintings and applied to "lampas," an elaborately embellished fabric woven with a double warp.

One called "Ornato" comes from an antique ceramic vase of Hispano-Arabic inspiration in the 15th century. A brocade, "Bisanzio" design, was copied from a fabric of the 7th century used for wrapping relics in the "Sancta Sanctorum" of St. John Lateran, Rome, and depicts the allegoric haloed rooster of earlier Christian times. Still another design reproduces the detail of the garment of Flora in Botticelli's painting, "Primavera."

The shift in fiber preference is borne out by recent export figures. In a 1977 expansion of U. S. imports of Italian textile goods, Caputo says cotton figured prominently, representing over $22 million, and silk imports rose to $15 million, doubling the 1974 volume.

At the exhibit of Seteria Bianchi, Louis Minella drew out some silk samples and said, "These silks are from one of the last silk mills in Italy. We do a large business in silk goods to Japan which, in the old days, used to be one of the largest producers.

"What's happening in Italy is the same thing that happened in Japan. The sons and daughters of farmers are now going into factories and working on television sets and other hard goods."

Minella said, "Silk was previously used for vestments for the clergy. We even used to furnish silk for Bishop (Fulton J.) Sheen's mantello when he was on television. But that was before the so-called church reformation.

"Now," he sighed, "it's polyester; now they all have to look poor."

"The pope's robes are made of heavy satin, moire for the inauguration — moire like this," he said, fingering a sample. "Only heavier and pure white."

Minella said that prior to the election of a pope, the tailor, Gambarelli — not knowing who will be elected — must make garments in three sizes. After the sudden death of Pope John Paul I, the tailor rushed his staff around the clock for three days to complete three new vestments for the election of the next Pope.

With mild understatement, Minella said, "That's the first time that has happened."

Woman becomes police officer

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP)-Her father and uncle died in line of duty, but that didn't stop Claire Marie Schroeder from becoming a police officer herself. The 25-year-old woman became Waltham's first female police officer recently.

In 1970, her father, Patrolman Walter Schroeder, 42, was killed answering a holdup alarm at a bank. Then in 1973, a bullet felled her uncle, Detective John Schroeder, 55, during a jewelry store holdup.

Another uncle retired several months ago as a deputy police superintendent in Boston. And yet another uncle has been on the police disabled list after being shot and wounded during a break at a high school in 1974.

Miss Schroeder said that while the family tradition of police officers exposed her to the work and possibly influenced her, "I feel I would have become a police officer regardless."

Teachers swap jobs

CLINTON, Mich. (AP)-Nancy DeLisle is an American teacher who wanted to work and study abroad, but never before had the chance. David Walker is a British teacher who was in the same situation.

Now the two will have the chance. They'll trade their jobs for one term.

Miss DeLisle, 28, will work in the Parklands Infant School near Nottingham, England.

Walker, 26, will replace Miss DeLisle as a first grade teacher at Clinton Township's Huron Elementary School.

Each teacher's salary will continue to be paid by the home district, and each will occupy the other's apartment.

According to Miss DeLisle, it all began when Rosemary Grabowska, headmistress of the Parklands School, visited here to lecture on the British concept of open-classroom, non-structural primary schools.

"I spoke to her later and told her how much I would be interested in working temporarily in England in a school like hers," Miss DeLisle said. "She told me that she had spoken often of coming to America."

Business meet held

Mrs. Lucian Lindsey provided the horticulture exhibit, a Pothas ivy.

Plans were made for a Christmas luncheon Dec. 5 in Lancaster Garden Center. Instead of a gift exchange, members will donate gifts to the Great Southwestern Care Center in Midland.

All members were urged to attend the District I, Southern Zone, Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., meeting to be held Monday in the Midland Woman's Club.

Mrs. J. A. VanAuken, member of Pyracantha Garden Club, will present a program on flower arranging at the zone meeting. Pyracantha club will furnish the table decorations for the luncheon.

House mortgages in some areas can depend on rates of interest

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

How much does the rise in interest rates on home mortgages affect the sale of houses? Authoritative opinions range from "greatly" through "considerably" to "not very much."

The truth is that, from a personal standpoint, the answer is embodied in the reply to another question: How badly do I need a house?

If you have been transferred by your company to a different area, you will be in the market for a house whether the interest rate is 9 percent or 10 percent or 11 percent.

Ditto if you cannot get a suitable job where you live but can somewhere else. Ditto if your family has outgrown its presen residence and need. larger living quarters. Ditto if the size of your family has shrunk and a smaller house is required.

Ditto if your income has risen sharply and you feel the need to live in a more expensive neighborhood. And ditto if the rate of inflation has sliced a piece off your fixed income and you must live in a less costly house with smaller monthly payments.

While these conditions seem to cover nearly everyone who moves, they actually don't. Hundreds of thousands of families who don't fit into any of these categories normally change residences for one reason or another. They include those who feel their present neighborhoods are deteriorating, those whose maintenance costs are increasing every year because their houses are suffering the ailments of old age and those who feel the urge to move every six or seven years even when there is no particular reason to do so.

When interest rates on mortgages go up or mortgage loans are hard to obtain (the two are not necessarily the same), these hundreds of thousands of families often withdraw from the home-purchasing market. Some of them sit tight, waiting for a more opportune time to make a move. Many, especially those in older houses and including those who need larger living quarters, decide that it is wiser to spend $8,000-$10,000 on remodeling projects than buying other houses. That is why the home remodeling business is having its biggest boom year in a long time.

Thus, houses don't sell as well on the average in days of high interest rates on home mortgages, as now. But where people need houses, the interest charges seem to have no effect. Banks, savings and loan associations and other lending institutions continue to have large backlogs of loan applications in certain areas of California and Texas and other places where burgeoning industries have created huge demands for more housing.

Stumped for idea? try his-and-her vaults

By MICHAEL GRANT
Copley News Service

I am not "up" on furs, and so don't know why, with each model, "fur origins" must be mentioned. But they must, apparently, and most of those on page 10 are from Russia. They should offset the wheat deals easily enough in the balance of payments.

The most striking of the lot is a white floor-length number in natural Russian lynx bellies, $150,000. With the coat comes a scarf, fashioned from a lynx itself, the whole thing, worried expression and all. Too hot. Besides, I couldn't let her wear it anywhere; she'd have Burgundy down it before we got to the hors d'ouevres.

I thumb through catalogs like Neiman's, and I see things happening. Lead crystal decanters ($115) slip through fingers and shatter themsleves against floors.

I look at a chocolate blazer of gloveweight lambskin ($250), and I see the head of a finishing nail, protruding in wait from a doorjamb. On crystal goblets I see the greasy fingerprints of small children; on silver, tarnish.

It takes some of the fun out of catalog-browsing, but then it puts it back in, when I remember how few are my worries. I can begin then to truly admire all these things we are not likely to find under our tree, this year or next.

Neiman's his-and-her gifts this year are vaults, located in a carefully guarded cavern dug deep into the granite heart of the Wasatch Mountains of Utah. Corporate records are stored there usually, but Neiman's suggests leasing one ($90,000 for the 50-year lease) for the safekeeping of "the real jewelry, a very rare vintage Bordeaux, a golden ingot or two . . ."

ERA happy with results

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment say they are happy with the results of Tuesday's elections. Stop-ERA chairwoman Phyllis Schlafly counters: "I think they're dreaming."

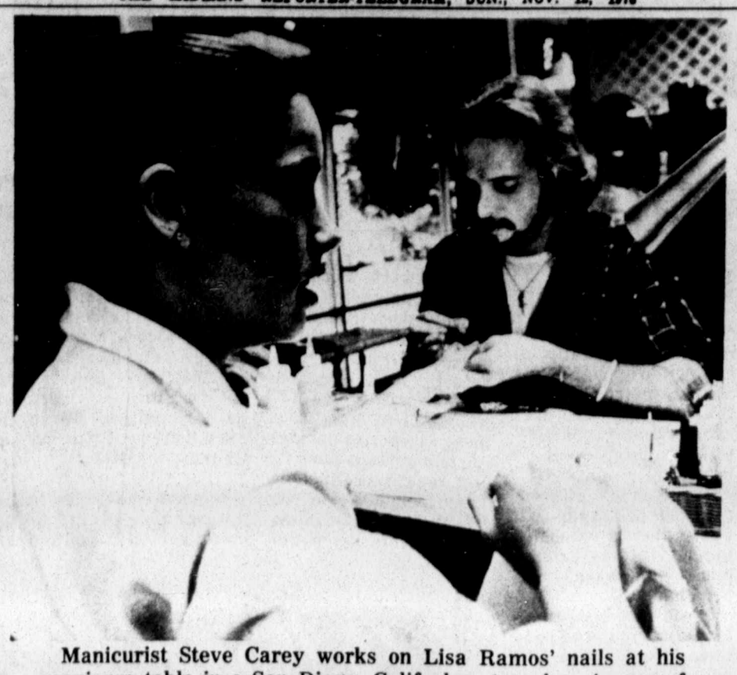

"We are very, very pleased at the strong showing by candidates who support ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment," Mildred Jeffrey, head of the National Women's Political Caucus, said Thursday.

The caucus said candidates which it endorsed won 35 of 47 state Senate races and 71 of 96 state House races in seven states that have not ratified the ERA.

Mrs. Schlafly, however, said, "We feel we gained in every legislature."

The Equal Rights Amendment, which would prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex, must be ratified by 38 states to become part of the Constitution. It has been ratified by 35, but the legislatures of Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee voted to rescind their action. The Justice Department says it will be up to Congress to determine whether those later votes have any legal effect.

The 95th Congress extended the time period for ratification to June 30, 1982, but ERA backers are hoping for ratification by the original deadline of March 22, 1979, in order to avoid an expected court challenge of the extension.

Soft touch at fingertips

By LUCRETIA STEIGER
Copley News Service

Glittering rows of mirrors in the beauty salon reflect the hairdressers, some male and some female. And at the manicurist's table, a slender plaid-shirted figure representing what might become a trend: a male manicurist. Yes, male manicurist.

The picture of Madge the manicurist advising customers to soak their fingernails in detergent is just that — a slightly out-of-date picture.

For one thing, the manicurist might be a man, and for another, soaking in a Ph balanced shampoo solution now is regarded as better for the nails.

But what might be more difficult to understand is why men are turning to this predominantly female profession.

"I was tired of making $2.50 an hour and this seemed like an easy job," says Santiago, a one-name manicurist in training at a beauty school of cosmetology in Chula Vista, Calif. "You don't sweat, you don't get tired and I was tired of driving a delivery truck.

"There's a big demand for manicurists, especially male. I feel that being male makes me different, that I kind of stand out. I love it." Santiago, 20, will complete several hundred hours of training next week, then go to Hollywood to take the state board licensing test required of all California manicurists.

Joey Muna, a manicurist in La Jolla, Calif., who began work about a year ago, considers manicuring "an art form."

"I'm an artist, too, I paint," Muna said, "and I think that women like a man to fix their hair or their nails."

Steve Carey, 22, who believes that he was the first male manicurist in San Diego, Calif., four years ago, said he gives out 10 manicures a day, five days a week, and could do more if he had time. Each manicure takes about an hour.

He got into the business when a friend at high school persuaded him to attend beauty school. He enrolled at a college of beauty, then decided he'd rather work as a manicurist. Now, he said, he "might as well have a degree as a psychiatrist, too," the way women confide in him at the salon.

"It's a good thing they talk to me, we have a friendly basis. But there is the strain some women put on you; you're responsible if her husband left her, that sort of thing. Sometimes it can get a little heavy."

Underlining all such conversations is his professional skill at "making them look nice" through the luxury of a salon manicure.

"It's creative work," Carey said. "Sometimes they'll come in a mess and walk out looking nice, and you did it for them. That makes you feel good." He will make house calls if someone is ill but he prefers working at the salon with all equipment handy and good lighting.

He gets over the hurdle of telling girls at parties that he's a manicurist by laughing first, since he knows they're going to laugh. "That gets it over with, and anyway, what does a manicurist look like? That old stereotyping thing ..."

Men were first to have their nails polished, hundreds of years ago in China. And the curved, gold-sheath fingernails some of them wore then may come back in style as women become more interested in the state of their fingernails, Carey said.

To have good nails, he recommends the same procedure he uses at the salon except for the professional wrapping; taking the old polish off, filing and shaping, pushing back the cuticle, then soaking in water with Ph balanced shampoo. He then wraps the tip of the nail with a special paper, "like the paper in tea bags," coated with glue. This protects and strengthens nails and lasts about two weeks. The hands and forearms are massaged with lotion to aid circulation, and then several coats of polish are applied to the nails.

Offenders taking part

CRAB CAY, The Bahamas (AP) — People boated to this isolated speck of land have an average of seven felony charges against them, but this is no Devil's Island. In fact, they sometimes cry when forced to leave.

Crab Cay, 10 acres of land tucked away in the Berry Islands, 145 miles east-southeast of Miami, is the site of a rehabilitation center for teen-agers that stresses cooperation instead of punishment, independence instead of confinement.

"These are repeat offenders when they get here," said Patrick McCourt, a spokesman for the Deerfield Beach-based Florida Ocean Sciences Institute, which runs the program. "They're delinquent kids; they're not Harvard candidates."

Although there is no electricity here — flashlights must be carried to the outhouse at night to scare away the scorpions — the teen-agers seem to like it.

Dave, a 17-year-old, was assigned by a judge to the program earlier this year — "when I was wild and foolish" — after being charged with selling marijuana to undercover police officers. Now, said Dave, not only has the program changed him, it has also changed the way he is treated by hometown police officers.

"They used to check me out and harass me," he said. "Now, when they see me, they smile and say 'Hi, Dave.'"

The program, supported in part by public funds, includes schooling and job-training, primarily in marine-related fields. Reading is stressed.

Most of the training comes at the institute's Florida headquarters, where students earn points that can be accumulated until they qualify for a trip to Crab Cay.

The teen-agers also learn about scuba diving, water safety, first aid and dangerous marine life.

"The whole idea is to teach them responsibility, and there is no better way to do it than diving," one instructor said. "They have to take care of themselves and they have the buddy system. They have to look out for someone else's life, too."

Harry Simmons, a program official, said many of the teen-agers arrived thinking they were going to be stuck in the middle of nowhere.

"When it's time to leave, though, they don't want to go," he said. "Most of them leave with tears in their eyes."

Meets set

Midland League of Women Voters has scheduled two meetings for Tuesday. A morning meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Sheila Billingsley, 905 Country Club Drive. The other meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Judy Schmidt, 29 Carol Lane.

Network wanted

CHICAGO (AP) — A major children's television advertiser has asked the Federal Communications Commission to create a single, high-quality children's television network for Saturday mornings.

Kenneth Mason, president of Quaker Oats Co., proposed on Tuy that the Saturday morning period between 9 a.m. and noonbe made uniform on all threeorks with broadcasters and advertisers cooperating to create the single network.

He suggested that each network produce 10 three-hour time periods a year. All the networks would broadcast the same shows simultaneously. Programs broadcast on the other 22 Saturdays of the year would be repeats.

Mason ad by carrying the same programs at the same the networks would be able to schedule "fine programs" and they would be protected from losing viewers to the others.

Mason said the restructuring would give the FCC a chance to come to grips with the issue of the enormous influence of television on the minds and spirits of children.

Mason also suggested that commercials be clustered into an intemission period insterrupting programs frequently.

"This was supposed to be our dream house. The living room ceiling is eight inches too high. The kitchen ceiling is six inches too low. I hit my head on the cupboards. The hall archway is a foot too narrow. ...

"We hate the place. We absolutely hate it. You work hard all your life. You retire. You come to sunny California, and you come to this ...

"We're disgusted and as soon as we sell it we're going to leave California!"

Those were the words of Randle Wetherholt who moved to San Diego, Calif., from Michigan with his wife last May to retire. They could be the words of anyone who has had construction problems.

Wetherholt can't sell his house right now because he is locked in a legal battle with his contractor. Wetherholt won't pay $2,400 for a patio he claims wasn't built to his specifications. The contractor slapped a lien on the house.

"It's the principle of the thing. I won't pay for something because it wasn't what I asked for," Wetherholt said.

His complaints were that his house didn't conform to the plans and he is fighting in the courts.

As disillusioned as Wetherholt was, many people don't have his luck. They never see the house or room addition they paid for because they're never built.

One woman, who lives with her 91-year-old mother, signed a $37,000 contract (her life savings) for a room addition. At the contractor's insistence she paid $5,000 down a year ago, then another $5,000, then $6,000, even though work had barely begun.

The contractor is now under arrest and awaiting hearing. And the woman is out $16,000.

There have been many felony arrests for remodeling fraud in the United States this year.

One builder was arrested on 17 counts of fraud and owed several families nearly $100,000 for work uncompleted they had paid for.

Another couple of men opened a construction office. Business boomed. Each bought Cadillacs, new homes and were paid high salaries. But before the business was a year old, it was insolvent. They are being sought on 10 felony counts.

A deputy district attorney specializing in consumer fraud said building complaints are particularly high now — perhaps because houses are so expensive many people are improving or expanding their old houses instead of buying new ones.

"These contractors start out as honest, capable workers. They don't start out stealing. But they begin their own business and they are undercapitalized. They grow too fast. Pretty soon it's a matter of robbing Peter to pay Paul," said one deputy district attorney.

As time progresses, they use the money from future projects to pay for current ones. And when hit with a construction slowdown, such as that caused by the rains this winter, their shaky financial system collapses.

One young couple is now scraping to make ends meet as they gradually repay a $7,000 bank loan. They gave the money to a contractor they never saw or heard from again.

There are some preventive steps which a consumer can take to protect himself:

1. Never give a contractor a large down payment before the job starts.

2. Beware of a mechanic's lien. You may pay the contractor, but if he doesn't pay the subcontractors he has hired, they may file a mechanic's lien forcing you to pay them. So you end up paying double.

To protect against this, have all subcontractors sign lien releases before they start work. Or have the contractor furnish you with the subcontractors' lien releases.

3. One safeguard can be to put your money into a fund control plan administered by a lumber company or lending institution. (Banks and savings and loans generally limit fund control services to very expensive projects, like building a home, whereas lumber companies will handle smaller home improvement amounts.) The fund control pays the contractor and subcontractors in stages as vouchers are presented showing completed work. It also secures lien releases.

There is a fee for this service. (One company charges $95 for any project up to $10,000 and $30 for each $1,000 thereafter.) But find out if the fund control you use sends inspectors out to the site to check the work. If not, it is a good idea to keep tabs on the fund control disbursements.

4. Although it costs money — roughly 10 percent of the project cost — a consumer can demand that his contractor get a performance bond. Since it is expensive, a bond covering 50 percent of the project value may suffice since part of the project is apt to be completed before default.

Incest still shrouded in shame

By DIANE CLARK
Copley News Service

Susan Forward's story begins like this:

"I understand incest not only as a psychotherapist but as a victim. When I was 15 my father's playful seductiveness turned into highly sexualized fondling.

"This is a difficult admission for me to make, but even more painful is the fact that I enjoyed my father's attentions.

"I felt enormously guilty about my participation in the incest, as if I had been responsible. I know now I was not. It was my father's responsibility as an adult and as a parent to prevent sexual contact between us, but I didn't understand that at the time."

"Incest is rampant and epidemic," she said during a recent interview. It was after treating more than 300 cases of incest and concluding, on the basis of published studies and surveys, that one in 10 women has had some kind of incestuous sexual contact that Forward decided to write a book on the topic.

And she had to face the agonizing decision of whether or not to tell her own story.

"Until the book I had only told a psychiatrist. It was very, very hard for me. It is still very hard for me to talk about it ... the first thing I had to do was tell my mother.

"But I can't ask other people to break through unless I'm willing to talk about it myself. It just had to be done."

Forward's book, "Betrayal of Innocence," published by J.P. Tarcher Inc., talks about the problem and the case histories of several real victims.

"I think that we have to break through the secrecy," added the author, who has found the door closed to her on many shows and newspapers that will interview authors on controversial topics.

For instance, television's "AM Chicago" welcomed her warmly on the show while "AM Los Angeles" wouldn't hear of having her appear. Tom Snyder, who normally airs hot topics, turned her down flat. Mike Douglas show producers shunned the idea, but Dinah Shore is considering it.

"There are many shows that say 'We won't touch it.' They've got to stop having that attitude ... It's not some freaky low-class guy who runs around in a raincoat," Forward said.

She pointed out that a lot of her cases of incest turned up by accident when people came to her for marriage or other counseling. She estimated that one in five of all her clients has incest in his or her background.

For instance, in a sexuality group session with nine members of a women's group — all upper-middle-class women who appeared well-adjusted — seven admitted to having sexual contact of an incestuous nature as children and in four cases the incest experience was severe.

Forward defines incest as "overtly sexual contact between people who are either closely related or perceive themselves to be closely related." This definition would include stepfathers because they function as a father figure.

There are certain misconceptions about incest that Forward is anxious to dispel based on her extensive case studies.

— Incest is not rare. It is very common. Various studies show that one in four American women are victims of sexual molestation before age 18 and, according to one study, 38 percent of these molestations are incestuous.

— The aggressor is not a psychotic monster. "Most of them are the guy next door ... the average, middle-class, hard-working, law-abiding, church-going man next door."

— A child doesn't lie about this type of thing. "Children may lie about other things, but they don't about this. Maybe in one case out of 100,000 does a girl make up a story about her stepfather to get rid of him. Believe a child."

— The child is never responsible for incest no matter how seductive the child may be. The adult is responsible because the adult is in the decision-making role.

— Incest is not a sexual act. While it may be on the surface, it is not the need for sex that drives most to the act.

"They turn to the child because the child adores them. No girlfriend or wife can give the kind of acceptance a child gives. The person can't feel the sense of total power except with a child. He sexualizes this need for power," Forward explained.

— Mothers who suspect but refuse to admit what is going on will be sorry. "The rage these young victims feel against their mothers is frequently greater than the rage against their fathers because their mothers didn't put a stop to it," Forward said.

Incest guilt can manifest itself in physical symptoms — migraine headaches, upset stomach, depression, skin disorders and disabling aches and pains. These are usually the first problems to disappear when the patient gets counseling, Forward said.

No matter how innocent the child, guilt follows — and it is especially severe if the child took any enjoyment in the act, Forward maintains. Of her own experience, she said:

"I was flattered by my father's attraction to me ... As my guilt feelings accumulated my self-image deteriorated. I felt like a 'bad girl.' I began to punish myself unconsciously, most prominently by marrying an unloving man (Forward's former marriage) instead of pursuing the acting career I had dreamed of since I was five."

"I finally sought professional help, and after only a few sessions of psychotherapy I made that connection. With time I put the pieces together and my life began to take a constructive direction. I divorced my husband; I learned to stop punishing myself, and I began to like myself.

"I forgave him (her father) long before his death. That was important to him, but even more important to me. I could finally put the experience behind me."

Views on kids given

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Loss of freedom was the most often mentioned disadvantage of having children, while most frequently listed advantages in a University of Michigan survey were "love and affection and the feeling of being a family," "stimulation and fun," "expansion of self" and "having someone to carry on after you have gone."

The findings were reported by Lois Hoffman and Jean Manis, researchers with Survey Research Center, a unit of the U-M Institute for Social Research. They interviewed more than 1,500 married women between the ages of 15 and 39 and the husbands of about a third of the women.

'You don't love me!'

By ERMA BOMBECK

Few columns over the past 14 years have gotten the reader response as the one called, "You don't love me!"—that old chestnut kids lay on you when you say "No."

It struck a chord with millions of parents who take their jobs seriously—parents who resist the luxury of laying back saying "Yes," when they should have the guts to say "No."

We've all been there. The slammed doors, eyes brimming with tears. The rejection. The threats. The secret phone calls. The hysterics. The nights when sleep would not come. The mornings of despair when you ached for just one sign of understanding.

What promoted this was a letter from Joyce Winchell of Wauskesha, Wis. she was cleaning out a drawer recently and came across a parody on "You don't love me," written by her daughter Susan, a student in St. Cloud, Minn., to her mother. It's a parody we'd all be proud to find.

"I loved you enough to forgive you when you punished me for something I didn't do.

"I loved you enough to go to church each Sunday because I would have disappointed you had I not.

"I loved you enough to respect your opinion.

"I loved you enough to listen to your 'old-fashioned' ideas in hopes of learning something from them.

"I loved you enough to spend too much money, for too short a time, to come home and see you.

"I love you enough to understand that the things you did for me were in my best interest.

"I loved you enough to hold my tongue when I knew the words 'I hate you' might have slipped out.

"But most of all I loved you enough to leave you in an effort to be on my own. That was the hardest part of all."

Women's rights called medieval

Marijke van Hemeldonck, chairwoman of the Women's Work Committee in Belgium, calls her country's divorce law "the most medieval in Europe, along with Spanish and Portuguese laws." Belgium is the only European country where women and their doctors can be jailed for abortion, and the only Common Market nation with no woman Cabinet minister in charge of women's affairs. One breakthrough: women volunteers were accepted into the armed forces three years ago and now number 2,652 out of about 85,000.

A series of British laws beginning in 1969 has allowed women to enter into legal contracts in their own right, guaranteed them equal pay, given both parents equal rights to their children and safeguarded the jobs of pregnant women. "No-fault" divorces are now easy to obtain in Britain.

France liberalized its abortion laws in 1974, and that took the sting out of the Women's Lib movement, particularly since the French constitution already guarantees equal rights for women. But a women's group called Choisir (Choose) is active, focusing at the moment on tougher penalties for rape.

In 1970, the "Dolle Minas" or "Mad Minas," a Dutch feminist group named after 19th-century suffragette Wilhelmina Drucker, burned corsets, pinched and wolf-whistled at men, and pinned pink ribbons on men's toilets to protest the lack of similar facilities for women.

"We stopped all that foolishness after a few months when we realized that you have to be very serious about the problems women face," one member said. The group has set up women's discussion centers instead and current demands include more and cheaper day-care centers and legalized abortion.

In January, women in the Netherlands' armed forces will have equal status with men, including combat roles. No other Western European country does this.

Swiss men had their authority shaken in 1971 when women for the first time were given the right to vote on national issues. Proposed changes in the law would recognize illegitimate offspring as legal heirs, and wives will be able to take jobs without their husbands' approval.

In West Germany, the authoritarian marriage code dating back to the turn of the century is no longer. Housewives are entitled by law to 3 to 5 percent of thewr husbands' net income as "pocket money," and mutual consent after a one-year separation is now grounds enough for divorce, after which property is divided 50-50.

Try Almond corn for football snacking

When the action gets tense and the snacking gets heavy, be sure that you're reaching for foods that have good nutritious qualities.

Almonds are a wonderful choice, right out of the package or roasted or toasted to enhance their great taste. Roasting almonds is easy. Just spread almonds in a shallow pan coated lightly with butter, margarine or salad oil. Heat in a 350-degree oven stirring now and then, until almonds color slightly (they will get a little darker after you take them away from the heat) about 5-10 minutes. When you want to toast almonds follow the same process, but use an ungreased pan.

Almonds are sensatinal by themseles, but they also go well with many foods. Mix with raisins and coconut, or serve with a variety of cheeses and fruits for snacks you can feel good about serving.

One combination you may not have tried is almonds and popcorn. These two favorites complement each other in Almond Indian Corn. The delightful seasoning will have everyone reaching for another handful.

Almond Indian Corn uses whole unblanched almonds, but there are a variety of other convenient forms for all your special needs. Almonds are handy not only for family snacks, but they're so versatile that you can use them in casseroles, soups, salads, and a variety of main courses. You can depend on this high quality nut in all your favorite recipes.

ALMOND INDIAN CORN

2 cups whole natural (unblanched) almonds, toasted
2 quarts freshly popped corn
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup melted butter
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon seasoning: toasted onion or mild garlic dip mix, or lemon-pepper, or seasoned salt

Mid-life crisis offers growth

By CLIFF SMITH
Copley Syndicate

The truth that many men deny is that they are struggling with — or destined to struggle with — a "mid-life crisis" far worse than the one women face.

The victim typically is in his 40s or early 50s. He is a driven individual near the peak of his career. His financial commitments are heavy. He is starting to worry about younger competitors in his field and feels compelled to work ever harder to stay ahead.

He has neglected his family and old friends. He never has enough time. He becomes increasingly indifferent to sex — at least with his wife. He misses his children, who have grown and left the home. He becomes depressed.

The crucial choices such a man must make can spell the difference between calamity and successful transition to a happier life.

"A developmental step at mid-life is necessary for everyone," explained Dr. Richard W. Anderson, a Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation psychiatrist. "The fact that the step is a crisis for many doesn't necessarily mean that it has to become a calamity. Rather, it can be an opportunity for growth.

"The choice one must make is whether he is going to really live, often with a new set of values, or simply stagnate and barely exist for the remainder of his life.

"The changes (that one must make) may be external, such as a change of job, residence or marriage. But, most often they are internal and consist of a modification of one's dreams and values."

He explained, for example, that one positive change men can make is to make a careful inventory of their position in life.

"A man must realize that he can't be the president of the company, a Nobel Prize winner or chairman of his department," he said. "Then, he has to reconcile this with what he has accomplished and what he can do in the remaining years left to him.

"Only by thinking this through carefully can he integrate it into his own life structure so that his subsequent conduct is not just more appropriate in the eyes of others but also more satisfying to him."

One common misconception, he said, is that the decline in sexual prowess perceived by troubled men is a normal "male menopause."

"Actually, there is no such thing as a male menopause," Anderson declared. "We now know that hormone levels in the male decline gradually from about age 15 but that they continue in healthy individuals throughout life.

"The unrest and distress sometimes seen in mid-life is not the result of any sexual decline but rather the result of a need to reassess one's values and priorities in life.

"Scientists now realize that the 'impotency' men commonly experience in their 40s and 50s is usually caused by depression associated with the onset of the mid-life crisis.

"Depression knocks the fun out of everything, whether it be eating, sleeping, travel, work, the arts or sex. We usually find that when depression is conquered, with new medications that have become recently available or through counseling, potency soon returns."

The faulty coping strategy that some men choose in their crisis, Anderson said, is to opt for escape by divorce and seek companionship and a sexual reawakening with a younger woman.

"This approach is almost certainly doomed to failure," Anderson warned. "That is because as the couple grows older they don't fit; they make a poor social fit in relation to the family that they have destroyed.

"We all know of successful December-May marriages but many of them fail."

New mower available

You may not have finished cuttin our lawn for this season, depending on where you live, but next season there will be available a lawn mower on which the blade is replaced by monofilament lines.

The manufacturer, Toro, reports the machine trims grass, weeds and othgetation with the efficiency of steel blades but with the greater safety of flexible-line trimmers. It mows a 20-inch swath, about the same as popular brand steel-bladed mowers.

Vice President Kendrick B. Melrose says the 20-inch electric Lawn Mower-Trimmer mechanism has two counter-rotating discs powered by separate heavy-duty motors. Attached to each disc are two monofilament lines that can be advanced and trimmed to proper length automatically as the lines wear down. The flexible lines extend 1½ inches beyond the outside width of the mower wheels, permitting the machine to function as a trimmer as well as mower.

Low-profile housing permits easy use around shrubs and along fences and building foundations. It weighs 30 pounds, has a collapsible handle to facilitate storage, is quieter than gasoline-powered mowers, has fewer moving parts and will cut grass to one to three inches. The price reportedly will be under $150.

The Minneapolis-based company will also offer new flexible-line trimmers; and a garden hose with attached reel and built-in sqeegee weighing less than four pounds that Melrose says "will make the ordinary garden hose obsolete." The hose is a urethane inner liner with Dacron cover.

Toro will also offer a solid-state controller for automatic underground irrigation systems; an eight-pound, electric cultivator-weeder designed to get rid of weeds and aerate the soil; a tiller; and will enter the chain saw market.

Antique Quebec furniture becoming increasingly hard to locate

Similarly the rickety chairs, handplaned tables and other items from Quebec's pioneer past, some of them colored with beet or carrot juice or with soot and animal fat, can no longer be picked up by the truckload for a pittance in rural Quebec.

For this society, which as recently as five or 10 years ago was literally throwing out historic furniture or chopping it up for firewood, has embarked on a binge of preservation and "antique" collection.

Although antique dealers are grumbling at the way prices have risen, the provincial government is increasing its cultural affairs department budget to buy and restore historic properties in a bid to make Quebecers aware and proud of their past.

The payoff may be in the changing attitudes and tastes of Quebecers, suggests University of Laval psychologist Bernard Pocreau.

The stereotype of the middle-class Quebec buyer of chrome and plastic decor who rejected Canadiana is giving way to a new interest in traditional wooden furniture.

"People perceived themselves as worthless ... and their environment and situation as without value," Pocreau explained in an interview.

It was only normal, then, in a society whose leaders had encouraged French-Canadians to stay on the farm, whose strong religious beliefs had encouraged them to accept their earthly state, for Quebecers to covet the trappings of the richer classes.

"There was an identification with the dominating class and the chrome furniture and plastic which represented (for poorer Quebecers) success," Pocreau said.

"Now there is a feeling of strength which people are aware of. The feeling of weakness is disappearing and being replaced by a feeling of sureness in belonging to a culture."

> "People perceived themselves as worthless...and their environment and situations as without values."

The upshot of this search for Quebec's roots, however, has caused major price increases for the few pieces of antique or Canadiana furniture remaining in Quebec, dealers say.

Pickings in rural areas are now relatively slim, they report, and the sturdy pine tables, chairs and the massive free-standing cupboards or wardrobes command high prices.

Farmers, whose children are bused into city schools where they see such old furniture refurbished in expensively decorated houses, no longer clear their barns of such items at bargain prices.

Max Bouzigon, a cabinet maker specializing in restoring antiques for a Quebec City dealer, says items which could have been purchased for just $60 only a few years ago now bring $200.

"You can still find things, but most of the good items are gone and you have to accept a lot more restoration," he says.

Andre Ladouceur, who operates a furniture-stripping and refinishing business in Quebec City, says some of his clients are showing up with supposed antiques which, when stripped of their coats of paint, turn out to be plywood.

Ladouceur balks at the purist approach to antiques which requires that they be finished with bee's wax and not be repaired with modern materials.

"Let's face it, not everything our forefathers did was perfect, since they didn't have the same materials available as we do today," says Ladouceur.

Chemical and liquid plastics can provide a more durable finished product, he maintains.

Claude Fortin of Hull, Quebec, president of "Furniture of Yesteryear," says business has doubled every year since he began making and marketing the reproductions four years ago.

Teacher bugged

Hardy is the local school district's science coordinator. Last week, he was quoted in newspapers as offering a penny a head for 5,000 sow bugs for a schoolroom observation. He said Thursday he now has 7,000.

The sow bug, also known as the pill bug, potato bug or wood louse, is a docile, squishy insect with two bent antennae and 14 legs. It crawls under wood piles, garbage cans and rocks. Its scientific value lies in how easily it can be observed reacting to environmental changes — it curls, straightens, moves quickly or slowly, depending on whether it is hot, cold, wet, dry, hungry or stuffed.

"People brought them in from all over," said Hardy, 44. "One lady from Edmonds brought in 1,700 yesterday. We paid her $17" out of the district's science materials budget, he said.

About 3,000 students in 25 elementary schools study the bugs each year, he said.

Thanks to his current bumper crop, Hardy says he's "not going to have to call for sow bugs for another year or so."

Escape slick

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Authorities are having trouble getting Tommy Adams into court to stand trial on escape charges. He keeps escaping.

Adams,27, was to appear Thursday in Fayette District Court on a second-degree escape charge, but he escaped. He was captured a short time later, charged with first-degree escape, and lodged once more in the Fayette County Detention Center, said Col. Eugene Harper of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Adamswas being held on the original escape charge for Mercer County authorities, Harper said.

MercerCounty Jailer Cleo Baker said Adams was being held in jail on a first-degree burglary charge when he escaped the first time.

"He's slick," Baker said.

THE WINE DRINKER

New rules sell consumers short

By TOM GABLE
Copley News Service

When it comes to appellations of origin, the new regulations from the U.S. Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms don't go far enough in both giving consumers valuable information and in preventing wineries from blending in wines from lesser areas.

When a French wine says Margaux on the label, 100 percent of the wine inside the bottle came from that specifically delimited area within the Haut Medoc area of Bordeaux. If it was blended with wine from elsewhere, the label would have to have the larger appellation of Bordeaux.

But under the new regulations from BATF, a winery using the appellation of Napa County on its label can have a blend that is 75 percent from the Napa Valley and 25 percent from Palm Springs, Cucamonga or Catalina. The 75 percent requirement applies to labels that show an appellation of a country (U.S. or foreign), a state, county or the foreign equivalent, such as commune in the Haut Medoc of Bordeaux.

If a winery decies to be more specific and use a viticultural area on the label (Alexander Valley in Sonoma County, or Napa Valley in Napa County), 85 percent of the wine must come from that region, which still allows for a lot of blending from lesser appellations.

Perhaps it is being too much of a purist to suggest more stringent geographical requirements. Some wineries will indeed use 100 percent wine from their appellation. But the proposed rules, which must be complied with by Jan. 1, 1983, will enable wineries to cut the higher-priced batches with filler wine of unknown origin.

Combined with the 75 percent requirement for varietal labelling, this means a Napa County Chardonnay could have 50 percent Chardonnay from Napa County, 25 percent Thompson Seedless from Napa and 25 percent Chardonna from Bakersfield. This would fit the 75 percent varietal designation and the 75 percent appellation of origin requirement.

To qualify for the use of a more specific viticultural area will require a petition to BATF, according to the new regulations. Public hearings will be held to determine the boundaries of these viticultural areas. Teh petitions must contain evidence that the name of the area is well known and specific on boundaries; that there is historical or current evidence of the boundaries; that the area is distinguished from others by geographical features such as climate, soil and other physical features; and that the area can be marked off based on U.S. Geological Survey maps.

The regulations allow multi-state, multi-county and multi-area appellations, if they have gone through the petition process and been approved. Thus, a winery using the term "North Coast Counties" or "Central Valley" or "Southern California Counties" must have qualified the appellation with BATF before putting it on the label. This also means that a winery that bottles wine in one state from grapes grown across the line in a neighboring state can use the place of the origin of the grapes as the appellation, instead of the vague term of "American" which is now common.

The tightest part of the BATF regulations covers thes multi-state and multi-county appellations. When a combination appellation is used, 100 percent of the wine must come from the counties or states listed on the label.

In an ideal world, the label on a bottle of wine will tell a person exactly what grapes were used in the making of the wine, where they came from and what interesting viticultural, geograhic or enololgical considerations contributed to the final product. This does not mean ingredient labelling—just grapes, appellation and basic winemaking information.

I've always admired Ridge Vineyards and Veedercrest, among otehrs, for their specific label information. It is nice to know, without a doubt, that I am drinkinZinfandel from the Lodi area, with 13.1 percent alcohol, only trace elements of residual sugar, and 0.7 percent total acids, plus a complexity from aging in French oak barrels. It helps develop a benchmark by which to judge all other Zinfandels, other Zinfandels from the Lodi area and the intensities of the various components of the wine.

The new BATF regulations are a step closer to such a goal, but still a bit short of requiring enough information to make the wine-drinking experience as educational as it is gustatorial and convival.

Bug power

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — And now — bug power. Standard Oil of California has plunked down $13 million for 24.7 percent of a Berkeley company that harnesses tiny bugs for industry.

Peter Farley, head of the Cetus Co. estimated that the company is worth about $55 million and employs 160 people.

The company, said Farley, demonstrated to the big corporations that Cetus had the ability "to work with micro-organisms in a way that is useful in a number of chemical activities."

For example, he said, micro-organisms convert ethylene into ethylene glycol, an ingredient of antifreeze. They also are used to boost the recovery of oil from the ground.

J.D. Bonney, a Standard Oil vice president in charge of planning, described Cetus' work as a commercial search into "the mysteries inside bugs" and how they work their magic for use in industry.

Price tags stayed on

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Cindy Brashears says the diamond engagement ring and silver wedding band Jim Sheldon gave her before they broke up are hers, but not the debt a jewelery store says Sheldon owes.

She has filed suit against Shubach Jewelers for the $369 value of the jewelery.

Her petition says the couple broke off their engagement, but she kept the rings, then decided to exchange them for other merchandise.

She charges that the proprietors of Shubach's made an oral promise to exchange the rings, but kept them and refuses to give her anything in return.

She was unaware, she said, that Sheldon owed money on the rings and had made a security agreement with the store.

How Does One Clean A Chimney?
VERY CAREFULLY.
Why does one clean a chimney? There are a number of reasons but mainly because they get dirty. When chimneys are dirty, the fire doesn't burn well. Dirty chimneys sometimes emit offensive odors. When dirty the damper cannot close properly, which causes a loss of heat in the winter and air conditioning in the summer. And last but not least, when chimneys are dirty they sometimes catch on fire (which immediately causes an emergency and a disaster).
When should a chimney be cleaned? When it is not in use of course-you can't clean one with a fire in it. If you wish to be completely safe, have your chimney cleaned after 2 1/2 to 3 cords of wood is burned in it.

VISIBLE WOMAN

Founding mothers gain recognition

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

Historians who are struggling to fit women into their rightful place in history have had to fight a lot of battles, and they've won a few. Little by little, the gruelling and courageous work of our founding mothers gains recognition.

There are some questions, however, some unsettled issues, on which women historians may have to call a truce. Time and tradition may have covered the tracks of women too thoroughly. Such a truce may be the story of Anna Catherine Zenger.

John Peter Zenger's name is solidly entrenched in history, law and journalism textbooks, and is even part of a display on printing and journalism at the Smithsonian Institution. Ann . . . well, Anna Catherine's story is a little different. Though Benjamin Franklin called her "The Mother of Freedom," only a few scholars are even aware of her contribution.

The Zengers lived in pre-revolutionary New York City, where he was a printer. The colony, as early as 1735, had begun to feel the strangling fingers of a colonial governor around its neck.

Zenger, with the backing of some friends, began to publish a newspaper exposing the illegal and repressive administration of Governor William Cosby. As a result, John Peter Zenger went to jail, and thus began one of the earliest battles between government and the press.

Zenger won, and because his case was so well publicized, freedom of the press eventually won its place among the basic liberties of this nation.

But that was only part of a complicated story. Zenger, a poorly educated immigrant, wasn't the author of the offensive material, nor would he reveal the name of the author. He was watched at home by the governor's agents, and after his imprisonment, was denied the use of pen or paper, and guarded closely. Still, the author couldn't be identified, though Ana Zenger continued to publish the newspaper.

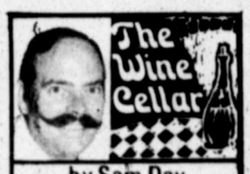

Some historians say she was the writer of the editorials which finally brought Governor Cosby to his knees. She was a well-educated woman, known for her high moral standing and lively imagination. She founded the first Sunday school, and for many years taught the classes. She became the first known woman editor during the months her husband lay in prison. And later, many years after the trial, when her husband died, she continued to publish the New York Weekly Journal. She wrote and distributed tracts under her own name, and eventually her talent as a writer became known. But it was never publicly admitted that she wrote the newspaper. Why?

It was imperative that the editorials be taken seriously. Few readers even suspeced the printer's wife of writing the material, and they may have taken it all too lightly had they known. Colonial governors were know for their harsh treatment of women who stepped out of line, and Zenger would never have exposed his wife, once he had been arrested. She would have, no doubt, replaced him in jail. And last of all, it would have cast shame on the whole Zenger family, had it been known that Anna had been capable of so unladylike of an act.

Kent Cooper, a former wire service executive and New York historian makes a strong case for her in his book, Anna Zenger, Mother of Freedom (Farrar, Straus, New York,) but for most historians, the evidence is not strong enough.

With time, effort, and dedication, those who follow women's history may be able to unravel the story of Anna Zenger. Those who knew the truth are gone.

The Wine Cellar

by Sam Day

White wines should be served chilled, but there are different degrees for different whites. Light wines and wines like dry white Portuguese should be refrigerated and served quite cold. Finer whites, like white Burgundies or good German Hocks or Moselles don't need to be served as cold. If stored at the optimum 50-55 degrees, they need to be chilled for only fifteen minutes to reach their peak of taste. Champagne also needs only fifteen minutes in the refrigerator. The bubbles should be cold but not frozen.

For tastes of distinction IMPERIAL LIQUORS, 3209 W. Wadley, offers the beverages of distinction from fine wines to domestic and imported beers to domestic and imported champagnes. Korean born, she's now all-American

By HERB PROBASCO
Omaha World-Herald

CRETE, Neb. (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Susan Manley says she's never given a thought to what life might have been like growing up in her native Korea.

At 11 months, she came to Lincoln as the adopted daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Manley, and she is now in her senior year at Crete High School.

She works as a nurse's aide at a Crete nursing home and is planning a career as a teacher of the blind.

Susan is not reluctant to talk about her heritage, but it's obvious that she doesn't think of herself as anything but Nebraska-variety American.

Her mother confirms this and adds that Susan's married brother, Kelly, also born in Korea, feels the same way.

"This is home. This is where they belong. They don't think of themselves as anything different," says Phyllis Manley.

She quickly added that the children had known other Korean-born children and had had the opportunity to learn informally about Korean culture.

But the children have never taken a great interest in anything Korean, she said.

"Kelly once told me: 'You think about this (things Korean) more than I do.'"

Susan and Kelly are less than a year apart in age. Each was left in the city hall in Seoul by their Korean mothers, said Mrs. Manley. Twice a day, Harry Holt, of Holt International Children's Services, would go to city hall to pick up infants for adoption, she said, adding that Kelly and Susan were among those infants.

Kelly was brought to the United States in 1960 and Susan in 1961, Mrs. Manley said.

Holt, who with his wife Bertha began the international adoption program in 1955, visited the Manleys in 1964, only a few weeks before his death in Korea. He was on his way to place an infant girl with a family in South America when he stopped in Lincoln, where the Manleys at that time were active in a group of families with adopted Korean children.

Susan Manley says she has known prejudice, mainly when she moved back to Lincoln with her family from Scottsbluff.

Her mother confirmed that there have been instances of name-calling, both with Susan and Kelly and with two younger adopted girls, Joy and Becky. But the children have always been encouraged to forgive, Mrs. Manley said.

Their lack of interest in things Korean may be due to the fact that Susan and Kelly's father is deeply into frontier American history.

Bob Manley is a former history professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and was later chairman of the social sciences division of Hiram Scott College in Scottsbluff.

For most of his career, he has combined teaching with music, accompanying his talks on American history with an ever-present guitar.

He now heads SRI Media Productions, a Lincoln firm that produces audio-visual materials on histories of Nebraska and neighboring states.

He and his wife have four other children, not adopted, who are grown.

Early this year, the Manleys moved to Crete and exchanged country life for a house in town "where things are that they (the three girls) enjoy doing."

For Susan Manley, that's where life is. And it is of little consequence that as a fragile Korean infant she was a part of a unique chapter in international human relations.

Accolades pour in for Betty Ford, autobiography

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Kissinger said Betty Ford "gave class to the White House," Flip Wilson called her "First Mama" and Tony Orlando said it doesn't "take cosmetic surgery to make a beautiful woman."

The accolades poured in for Betty Ford, wife of former President Gerald R. Ford, guest of honor at a black tie dinner celebrating publication of her autobiography, "The Times of My Life."

Her recent facelift was the No. 1 topic of conversation as Mrs. Ford, in a chiffon dress of sunset hues, circled the hotel ballroom. Some 200 people turned out, including Nelson and Happy Rockefeller, Mrs. Bob Hope and Art Buchwald.

"I think she looks beautiful, but then I thought she was beautiful before," said Ford.

"She has done a fabulous public relations job for plastic surgery," said Princess Luciana Pignatelli Avedon, who has had her nose and eyes surgically altered. "I look at it as a form of upkeep. When your house needs repairs, you fix it, so why not repair your face? It's the opposite of being a slob."

"She looks exquisite," said Mrs. George Feldman, whose husband is a former ambassador to Malta and Luxembourg. "She has always been a beautiful person inside but this has been a great lift for her, so to speak."

Former Secretary of State Kissinger, who served as master of ceremonies, in a lengthy repartee — mostly about himself — said, "Betty Ford and I have a lot in common — an uncommon reluctance to see our name in print."

He spoke of his forthcoming book, saying he opened with the words, "I was born in a log chalet that my father built," a parody of the first sentence of Richard Nixon's memoirs.

The mostly Republican gathering laughed when Kissinger declared that there was no truth to stories that the Republican party was dying. The Young Republicans had doubled their membership, he said, since raising their minimum age to 70.

Later, Mrs. Ford danced a soft shoe with Pearl Bailey, who said, "Your book is about the times of all our lives."

Orlando, the entertainer who suffered a nervous breakdown last year, said Mrs. Ford was "a constant light of hope for me. When I asked her, 'What do I say?' she said, 'Tell the people the truth.'"

Designer goes daring

HOLLYWOOD — It's party time. And the Greeks have a word for it. Stavropoulos.

Harking back to his earlier days in Greece the soft-spoken continental, now from New York, has reaffirmed his heritage as well as today's longing for the glamorous feminine look. He has designed a dazzling collection of floating chiffon gowns, sequined and jeweled for the season's holidays.

A newcomer to the western cities' tour, the veteran couturier first showed a demure lace over chiffon in soft shades of blue. The combination of high neck and high price — $3,000 — met with only slow applause.

"Testing," he said wryly.

"I have designed the daring dress," said Stavropoulos in heavy accented tones. "My customers have had enough of the dull dress, the safe dress. I think everyone is in the mood for glamour.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Sun., Nov. 12)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day has good aspects for planning the future wisely. Make a point to keep as cheerful as possible when in the company of friends and relatives. Be poised.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the duties ahead of you and then handle them with precision and cheerfulness. Show increased devotion to mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may feel limited in some way, but this could be an illusion, so carry through courageously with your original plans.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to be of help to your loyal friends, but do so objectively. Not a good day for social pleasantries since you have too much to do.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Anything of a civic nature requires action after you have thought it out well. Try to establish more harmony at home.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You need information that will help you advance in career matters so make the right contacts. Show more consideration for others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure that you carry through with whatever you have agreed with others and maintain goodwill in the process.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to what close ties have to say, but don't reach any definite decisions as yet. Discuss the future with trusted friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact family members and bring more happiness into their lives. Also, see what you can do about pleasing your true friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study new ways to have greater abundance in the days ahead. Try to be of greater service to others now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The day is best spent in outside activities, since the situation at home is rather trying now. Avoid one who imposes on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Strive to have more harmony with family members. Sidestep those persons who have given you trouble in the past.

PISCES (Feb. 29 to Mar. 20) Show that you are sensible in the handling of money. A good time for planning to have greater income in the days ahead.

(Mon., Nov. 13)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This day brings you considerable concern where money and possessions are concerned, so use caution during daytime. The evening finds the aspects lift and you have unusually good judgment where all matters of a business or personal nature are concerned. Good judgment is now yours. Expand.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study carefully problems concerning practical matters and by evening you solve them. Don't force your views on others during the day and then tonight you advance in your endeavors.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You find it difficult to gain your goals, but later, all works out much better for you. Take time to improve your appearance in some way.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Something you have in mind could bring you more worry, so forget about it. You have a delightful time socially this evening, but be sure to be with congenials only.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Avoid a friend who is having troubles during the day, since you can help only in the evening. Some personal wish will not materialize until evening. Get routine work done early.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) An outside affair cannot be handled wisely until evening. Take no risks where community affairs are concerned. Avoid one who has an insulting tongue and could hurt you with others as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have fine ideas now but wait until another day to put them in operation. Be prompt in paying bills and built up your credit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study into commitments you have made and then you know best how to perform them. Don't argue with loved ones during the day. Evening then becomes a mutually happy one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more understanding of others and calm during the day. A pesky civic matter becomes an opportunity to advance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to get much done but delays occur during the day. You are not feeling quite up to par so take necessary health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) After your work is done, get into the right kind of recreation that pleases you most. If loved one is irritable, try to please. Avoid one who is trying to come between you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find the right answers to problems at home early. Don't talk over new interest with others at this time. Entertaining at home brings you unexpected rewards.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to be most accurate in whatever you do and then conditions become easier. Not a good day to have talks with associates.
