

The Gay Philosopher

By J. W. S.

IT WILL INTEREST you to know that our Chamber of Commerce has a couple of committees which are much on the job these days. If their mission is accomplished, a plant to process surplus milk into cheese or other products will come to our town. Right now the outlook is definitely on the favorable side.

His rounds as a farmer, teacher, dairyman, civic worker and so forth, Mr. A. Z. Myrick is into the proposition. He promptly notified the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. J. L. Stafford's industrial committee had a meeting and made their plans. The other day, Mr. Stafford and Mr. Myrick and Manager B. A. Butler made a trip in connection with the proposition.

They're due to know something in a month. The committee's reception was such that we can be very hopeful.

PRESIDENT J. A. Robinson of the Cisco Country Club reports that the board of directors has approved a plan for the club to accept associate memberships from people who want only the privileges of the club house. The club already had associate memberships for golf.

The new associate memberships would carry full club-house privileges — just like the full memberships — except that you didn't vote in club elections. Club members and associate members pay monthly dues of $100 plus tax, and we understand the Congress is fixing to eliminate the tax. Three dollars a month is a small cost when you consider the worth of country club to the community. It costs $100 for a share of stock in the Cisco Country Club. When you buy a share of stock, it means you own part of it. The club owes little or no money and we'd estimate that the buildings and grounds are easily worth $5,000.

The charter, we understand, calls for 100 shares of stock to be sold. If you pay $100 for a one hundredth interest, you can have that $100 share is immediately $250.

Why should you belong to the club? Why should the community have a club?

You should belong to enable the community to maintain a club. It is a civic asset. A potential new citizen or business man would regard a country club as an important asset in considering moving here. The golf course is worth much from a recreation standpoint. It is important for the young people to have such advantages as golf courses, baseball fields, swimming pools, tennis courts and other such facilities.

It seems to us that maintaining a good country club is a proposition in which our community should be interested.

The club has voted to raise the dues from 75 cents to $1 per share after April 1. If you go out to play after 5 p. m., however, it will only cost you 50 cents.

Members pay no green fees. Members and guests, by the way, will have a family night supper at the club house tonight. President Robinson says they'd like to see a big crowd. Those who attend will take covered dishes of food. A game hour will follow.

IF YOU NOTICE any improvement in the public relations at the Press office, it's because Miss Ruth Lanham of our staff is one of 93 graduates of the public relations course that was concluded Thursday night at the First National Bank's community conference room. It was splendid in all respects, according to those who attended.

Mr. E. A. Willford, the instructor, made a fine impression. He came here from the Extension Service of the University of Texas to teach the course, which was sponsored by the Merchants Credit Association.

Mr. Roy Huffmyer, the amateur chef, baked up some tasty cookies and served them with hot coffee Thursday night. The bank furnished cold drinks to those who didn't like coffee.

The boys quartet sings novelty numbers and the Madrigal group has prepared light and classical numbers to be sung in the old Madrigal custom.

The extensive use of color and unique lighting, coupled with movement, gives the program added popularity.

Director Chambliss has studied under Mary McCormick, Louis Nicholas, Fritz Aebischer and other well known artists. He has degrees from Mississippi and University of Peabody College. He

The lights have been moved and other changes have been made in the general arrangement of the field. Home plate and the stands will be moved to the north east corner of the field.

NATIVE GALILEAN TO SPEAK IN CITY UNDER AUSPICES OF WSCS

It is a far cry from the ancient hills of Galilee, and the pastoral life of the people there, to the dynamic days of the modern present in civilized America, but those two extremes are covered in the span of life of Stephen A. Haboush, a shepherd from Galilee, who has brought to America the story of Galilee and Palestine, told as only one who was born there can tell it.

Mr. Haboush is a native Galilean. He was born on the hills about the Sea of Galilee, and in his youth tended his father's flock of sheep, just as every Galilean boy has done since the days when the Master walked among men. He came to the United States several years ago and worked his way through an American University. Recently he returned to the land of his birth and there personally took in full color motion pictures of the scenes and people of Galilee and Palestine. He returned to America with his unusual films and thrilling story. He has written for magazines and newspapers and spoken before great audiences in many of the famous universities, colleges, churches and schools in Canada and the United States.

There is an inspiration in the life and teaching of Stephen A. Haboush for everyone. His messages and travelogues bring to the material present the story of life in Galilee and Palestine as it was and as it is, the story of the Scriptures interpreted by one to whom the scenes of the Story of the four Gospels are his native land. He is the author of "My Shepherd life in Galilee" and in the book review of the Boston Transcript appeared this statement, "He enters into the feeling of the most famous bit of the world's devotional literature with insight and charm."

Mr. Haboush's Travelogue that he is bringing to our community in the near future is a distinct contribution to North American letters and to modern thought. It breathes the very life and mysticism of the ancient East. Part of it is delivered in native costume, the same costume worn by native Galileans in the days of the Bible story. Part of his dramatic story is delivered to the accompaniment of thrilling scenes and motion pictures in full color.

Many of the scenes that he will show in this program appeared in the National Geographic Magazine and leading religious periodicals.

He is to appear in person with Madame Haboush and two young men to present their Bible Land Musical Travelogue "On Sacred Soil" at the high school auditorium in Cisco on Thursday, March 25, at 7:30 p. m. under the auspices of the W.S.C.S. of the First Methodist Church, Rev. E. H. Lightfoot, pastor, announced.

Tickets are sold by the above organization at a reduced rate. At the door the night of the program the admission is higher.

A Cappella Choir Provides Program For Rotary Meet

The Cisco Junior College capella choir, under the direction of Jack Chambliss, presented a varied musical program for Rotarians at their regular meeting at the Hotel Victor Thursday.

The group was dressed in colorful western costumes rather than the conventional choir robes because the robes ordinarily worn in their program were destroyed in the fire that destroyed the administration building in January.

They began the program by singing "Oh Jesus Grant Me Hope and Comfort" by Stein and sang the following numbers in succession: "In Dat Great Gettin Up Mornin'" by Hairston; "The Battle Of Jericho" by Bartholomew; "Russian Picnic" by Enders; "By A Lonely River" by Brahms; "Country Style" by Simeon and "Deep River" by Burleigh.

Mrs. W. O. Wylie accompanied the group in some of the numbers at the piano.

Many of the numbers used at the program Thursday will be used by the choir on 30 appearances planned for March, April and May in West, Central and North Texas.

Prior to the choir program President W. H. McNally gave Rotarians a short report on the district conference held in Mineral Wells on March 7-8.

McNally attended sessions Sunday and Monday and told of the highlights of the meetings he attended. Other Rotarians attending the conference were Haywood Cabaness, Anton White, J. S. Stockard and E. P. Crawford.

President McNally said that April 8 had been tentatively set as the date for the annual ladies night banquet of the club.

Visitors at the meeting Thursday were Rotarians Hugh Wagoner of Odessa and Vic Behrens of Abilene. Other visitors were O. L. Stamey and Carlos J. Turner of Cisco Junior College.

How We're Protected Against Depression

WASHINGTON — There are good reasons for believing that whatever kind of economic ailment we are having — recession or dip — will not be transformed into any serious depression, according to Dr. Emerson F. Schmidt, Director of Economic Research, Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Our economy today has a number of built-in stabilizers which it did not have in the depression of the early 1930's. These stabilizers have already indicated what they can do. They helped to prevent the dip in 1948 from becoming serious.

Here are some of the stabilizers listed by Dr. Schmidt:

1. The farm price support program. A flexible support program would be much more desirable in the opinion of many farmers and most businessmen because it would provide a sensible guide to production and consumption and would spare taxpayers the necessity of having to buy surplus farm products at high levels. Nevertheless, the present rigid program can also exert a stabilizing influence by discouraging overproduction and thus helping to keep prices steady.

2. The unemployment compensation system. The system is backed by a trust fund of almost $6 billion, which provides payments (ranging up to 50 weeks in some states) for employees temporarily laid off.

3. The numerous private and public pension programs, including the federal government's Social Security system. These will continue to pay money to beneficiaries and thus help to keep up the flow of income.

4. The continued nature of most of our private debt. While debt has grown too rapidly for good economic health and has helped cause inflation, it is still only about half as much as it was in 1929, relative to the national income.

5. The volume of liquid assets held by individuals and businesses. The volume has grown from $65 billion before the war to an estimated $270 billion today. This means that the rush to get assets in a liquid condition, one of the characteristics of a downward slide, is not likely to be the kind of powerful deflationary force it was in the 1930's.

6. The quick reactions which occur in our tax structure, with its heavy reliance on the income tax. As employment and business drop off, the tax liability of individuals and businesses also quickly drops. Government revenues decline and the government is forced to borrow. The government has a wide range of choices as to how to borrow, and can do so in a way that will help maintain the money supply.

Most of these same stabilizers were in operation during the 1940 dip. The index of industrial production (seasonally adjusted) slipped from a 1940 peak of 105 to a low of 94 in 1942. Unemployment rose from the low level of 1940 to a peak of 41 million, or 44% of the civilian labor force in the worst month of 1942, and to a peak of 47 million in February, 1945.

One thing that perhaps distinguishes the present economic downturn from its predecessors is that its causes have been apparent since early 1937. What happened was that when the Korean war broke out the government adopted a policy of encouraging the expansion of our economy based on the fact that if a third world war came we would have surplus capacities for turning out steel, aluminum and other vital products.

While building up these extra capacities, we generated large incomes on the part of business, employees and almost everybody else and this income was readily spent for houses, goods, services and all the rest. We had "guns" and over more than the normal "butter" at the same time.

It does not seem reasonable to expect, therefore, that all this expanded industrial base should now in peacetime be operated at full capacity. That was not the intention. In fact, the contrary was intended. The government's plan was to have this expanded industrial base standing by, ready in case of an emergency. The theory was that even with these facilities standing by, we could still operate at a proper level.

How do you move from this kind of expansion into a period of normal prosperity without cutting back output and employment? That is a definite, difficult job which we now face. Well, times fiscal and monetary policies on the part of the federal government can smooth the way. Meanwhile, business will accelerate research and new product development and step up sales and promotion effort.

Even if the current dip should continue further than is now indicated, we will recover from it. And the population growth, the new technology and new products backed by a sound but flexible monetary and fiscal policy — all clearly indicated for the future — will bring us to new heights of prosperity and human well-being.

Placement of Plant Food Gives Best Garden Yield

Applying plant food to vegetable garden by placement method.

Plant food has done wonders for gardens in recent years, bringing inferior areas to top production and improving the soil through the roots and residue which remain to decay and increase the humus content.

Amateur gardeners who seek efficiency must use high fertility in their gardens, which permits them to reduce the cultivated area and the work of caring for it without decreasing production. Savings are also made in all garden supplies.

In small areas nothing can be saved by having the soil tested to determine its plant food needs. A balanced commercial plant food, containing all needed elements, if used in sufficient quantity will bring any average soil up to proper fertility.

One hundred pounds of plant food costs more than a day's work by a hired gardener, but it is worth several times as much in the increased yield and the reduced labor which it will bring.

Methods of applying commercial plant food to the soil which have been worked out by extensive research place a high value on what is known as the "placement" method.

It has been found that too much plant food, especially nitrogen, in the soil near the seed may retard sprouting, especially of tomatoes, cucumbers, radishes and many flowers. It is not needed at first, since the seedlings are unable to use it until they have made true leaves. The "seed holes," which develop first in most plants, do not perform digestive functions. Food should be nearby, however, because it is needed as soon as true leaves form. If plant food is mixed with the soil beneath the seed or to one side of it at root level, separated from the seed by unfertilized soil, the roots will find it when they begin to grow and need it.

Another factor involved in the "placement" method is the "drainage" capacity of the soil. Some soils lock up certain food elements so that they may be difficult for the plant roots to obtain all of it. If fertilizer is concentrated as in the "placement" system, the soil may lock up all it can hold and there will be plenty left for the plants.

The placement method which is believed to insure maximum effect from plant food at a minimum cost, or all soils including the poorest, is used as follows in the vegetable garden:

Prepare the soil by grading or plowing, rake it smooth, and decide on the layout of rows. Stretch the line which marks the first row. On each side of this line two or three inches away make a shallow trench with the corner of the hoe blade, say three inches deep. Then sprinkle plant food in these trenches, using two pounds per 100 feet of row, in each trench. Cover with soil, and provide to make the seed drill and sow seed midway between the fertilizer trenches.

How do you move from this kind of expansion into a period of normal prosperity without cutting back output and employment? That is a definite, difficult job which we now face. Well, times fiscal and monetary policies on the part of the federal government can smooth the way. Meanwhile, business will accelerate research and new product development and step up sales and promotion effort.

A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger.—(Proverbs 15, 1.)

With so much of hate and unhappiness in the world today, and so much of grief in any man's life, the kind deed, the encouraging word that any one of us can give to another these days is so little but so precious. They cost us nothing—but of what great value!
