

How ya gonna keep 'em on the farm?

It's not the money but the quality of life

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

They talk about things like the quality of life and they trace the bonds drawing them to the land through generations. They can look around daily and see farmers and ranchers facing financial ruin, and yet, with not much more than their optimism and their youth, vocational agriculture students at Pampa High School will tell you they want to stay in agriculture and make it their life's work. Bob Skaggs, vocational agriculture teacher at Pampa High School for nearly 20 years, says his students are bright. No one has fed them any lines or pulled the proverbial wool over their eyes. "Those people in production agriculture have sure made their sacrifices in the last few years," Skaggs said, "but there's something about the life and about the heritage. "Surely in the future, things will look brighter. That's the attitude of most youngsters in ag," he said. J.A. Marshall, director of vocational agriculture in Texas, said recently, "A lot of kids are involved in agri-business, but not in farming. Keeping agriculture growing is a matter of creating interest on the part of the students. "Some of them, they're going to farm if they can make anything at it," he said, adding, "I don't know of anyone who can buy and pay for a farm now. About the only way to get a farm is to marry (or it) or inherit one. "I really believe this," Marshall said, "we're going to end up in a few years with all this land and no one to farm it. "Once a boy leaves the farm and does something else, he won't go back."

It is an alarming prediction, but Skaggs is clearly no alarmist when he says things like, "These youngsters realize the need for the nation's food and fiber." But the teacher isn't looking at anything through rose-colored glasses either. "I think we'll force a lot of our young agriculturists completely out (unless the situation changes)," he said. "For youngsters who want to get into farming, the biggest concern is the money to get started. With the investment required, it's almost impossible for a youngster to have enough credit to get started even in dryland farming." When Henry Hamly, a third-generation farmer, wanted to start farming after he graduated from college in 1965 it cost him $9,000. "I was out of college and I didn't own anything but the shirt on my back," he said.

"I started all on borrowed capital." Today he said it would take between $150,000 and $250,000 for equipment and land to get started. "It (farming) has to be a family thing," he said. "The money's just not there. I don't know of one young farmer that has come in from a non-agricultural background and put together an economic unit of equipment and farm land." Hamly said his father encouraged him to be a farmer. "I think he would do the same now. He'd look at it from the standpoint of the type of life," he said. "If you want to look at the economics of it, you should never even think about farming to start with." Despite the bad turn things have taken, Hamly said he would encourage anyone who thinks they can make a go of it to farm.

"It's an excellent place to raise a family," he said. "And I think you'll find a lot of people today are not so much thinking about the money, but about the type of livelihood they're involved in. "It has been a good place for my family. We had made progress financially until the last couple of years." Hamly has three children — ages nine, seven and three — and he said when they're older he'll encourage them to stay with farming. "If I'm still in it, I imagine I'll be a little bitter." He is both philosophical and practical about the situation. "It's kinda funny," he said, "but there's the possibility of farmers going hungry and they're the ones raising the food. "The world is at the point we're on the borderline of surplus and famine at the same time. It could turn around overnight.

"The United States has reached a peak in farm production at this point and the world in general has pretty well reached a level of farm production. "The surplus, it ought to be a blessing in this country instead of hurting the farmers." Jim Morrison, a PHS senior, is the fourth generation of a ranching family. "I'm in ag because it's kinda what I like to do," he said. "It's being in the outdoors, just being outside and working with livestock. I like animals pretty well." The 17-year-old Morrison is in partnership on some cattle with two older brothers who are students at Texas Tech University. He hasn't settled on what he wants from the future yet, but he admits, "I'll probably end up going back to it." (See Young Farmers p. 4)

Nixon blames Martha for Watergate

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says that if Martha Mitchell's emotional problems hadn't preoccupied her husband John, "there would have been no Watergate." He said also that he "sure as the dickens" would have destroyed those damning White House tapes had he thought they contained criminal conversations. And he said he did not see or touch the tape with the 18½-minute gap. "If the tapes had been destroyed, I believe that it is likely that I would not have had to go through the agony of the resignation," the former president told David Frost in a television interview to be broadcast Sunday. Nixon added that he wished aide H.R. Haldeman had destroyed all tapes "except those that had major significance from a policy standpoint." The Frost show is the fifth and last in a series for which Nixon was paid a reported $600,000 and a percentage of the profits. The first four programs were shown over a special network of 165 stations in May. The last was bought by 55 stations for broadcast on different days locally between now and the end of September. C. Robert Zelnick, executive director of the shows, said at a media preview that he is not familiar with the financial arrangements, though he said he understands that Nixon will receive 20 per cent of any profits, as he did on the previous shows. Asked if this is the last of the series, Zelnick said, "I hope so." In the interview, Nixon appears serious and composed, although his replies are sprinkled with many "ahs" and "uhs." Nixon appeared eager to speak about the problems of former Atty Gen John Mitchell, his former law partner and two-time campaign manager who now is serving an eight-year prison term for his part in the Watergate cover-up. Nixon called Mitchell "too smart to ever get involved in a stupid jackass thing like Watergate." The discussion did not touch on Mitchell's reported approval of the Watergate burglary by agents of the Nixon re-election committee or Mitchell's conviction for lying about the break-in afterward. During the 1968 campaign, Nixon said, Mitchell's wife became so emotionally disturbed that Mitchell "had to send Martha away for about five or six weeks." When "the Martha problem" recurred in 1972, Mitchell refused to do it again, explaining tearfully, "I love her." Nixon recalled. The Mitchells later separated. Mrs. Mitchell died last year of cancer. Nixon conceded the tapes show that he joined in White House discussions that sought to make Mitchell the fall-guy for Watergate. But he said he wanted to tell Frost about his "feeling of compassion" for his old friend. "I'm convinced that if it hadn't been for Martha, and God rest her soul, if it hadn't been for Martha, there'd have been no Watergate, because John wasn't minding that store," Nixon told Frost, referring to Mitchell's role as campaign manager. He was practically out of his mind about Martha in the spring of 1972. He was letting Magruder and all these boys, these kids, these nuts, run this thing."

Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell's top assistant at the 1972 Nixon re-election committee — and the one who said Mitchell gave the go-ahead for the Watergate burglary — was one of the first insiders to expose the Watergate coverup to prosecutors. He served a short prison sentence. "Now, am I saying here, at this late juncture, that Watergate should be blamed on Martha Mitchell?" Nixon asked Frost. "Of course not. It might have happened anyway. Other things might have brought it on." Although the fifth show was patched together with leftovers from the earlier series, filmed in the spring, Frost opened it with the first question he had asked Nixon: "Why didn't you burn the tapes?" The former president replied, "First, I didn't believe that there was a reason to destroy them. I didn't believe that there was anything on them that would be detrimental to me." Nixon continued, "I didn't destroy them because I felt I had done so, it would have been an open admission, or at least appeared to be an admission. Well, I'm trying to cover something up."

Nixon also said he didn't think the tapes could be wrested from the White House, adding, "On the other hand, if I had thought that on those tapes — with the possibility, which there always was, that they would come out — that there was conversation that was criminal, I sure as the dickens would have destroyed them." Speaking of the 18½-minute gap in a crucial Watergate tape, Nixon said, "No incident has ever been so blown out of proportion to create an appearance of guilt as this incident." He said he believes the story told by his secretary, Rose Mary Woods, who has testified that she might have accidentally erased 4½-5 minutes — but no more — of conversation between Nixon and Haldeman that took place three days after the Watergate burglary. "Now as to who caused the rest of it, I simply can't say except that I don't know anybody who deliberately could have done it," Nixon said. A court-appointed panel of experts determined that the gap consisted of 5 to 9 consecutive, manual erasures. The panel indicated that the erasures had been made intentionally after the tape was subpoenaed. Nixon said he had sworn under oath that he was not involved in the erasure, and "if the group at the special prosecutor's office thought they could get me, after all the uproar about the pardon, on this issue, if they had other evidence, they would have tried." Frost said all reports indicate that only three people — Nixon, Miss Woods and aide Stephen Bull — could have had access to the tape. "I didn't do it because I never had access to the machine on which the experts said the accident or erasure occurred," Nixon replied. "I never saw the tape or touched the machines or put the earphones on or anything because she (Miss Woods) was able to complete her work on that machine." (See Nixon p. 4)

Here comes the bride followed by a lawsuit

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — Ruth Weiert married Phillip D. Miller Saturday, but her wealthy and prominent parents, who have sued their daughter and her new mother-in-law, stayed away and apparently left town. Ruth's nine brothers and two sisters stood by her, and Otto M. Weiert, who is in his 80s, escorted his granddaughter down the aisle at Immaculate Heart of Mary Roman Catholic Church. At one point the Rev. Farrell Olmstead halted the 40-minute ceremony so Ruth could present her bridal bouquet to Phillip's mother, Mrs. James D. Miller, and her new daughter-in-law embraced tearfully. "The church seemed to be full of love and support," said an invited guest who is a friend of both families and asked that her name not be used. "The Weiert boys were very supportive." Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Weiert Sr. charged in a suit filed last Tuesday that their daughter and Mrs. Miller caused them mental pain, anguish and humiliation by using the Weierls' names on the wedding invitations. They requested $10,- 000 damages and a court order directing that the guests be notified that they did not issue the invitations. The 225 to 250 guests half filled the church, and the ceremony was just the first of several festivities planned in the tradition of the Volga Germans who first settled Hays, a town of nearly 16,000 in western Kansas. A dinner for 225 guests, a reception and a dance were scheduled, but the bride's parents were expected at none. Their telephone at home went unanswered, and they apparently were not in Hays. Both families are lifelong residents and parishioners of the church. Lawrence Weiert built a fortune selling furniture and mobile homes, in land and cattle and other businesses. "I want to teach them a lesson," Weiert said of his reasons for filing the suit against his daughter. However, he did not elaborate beyond the issue of the names on the invitations. Ruth is an assistant manager at the Flying W Western Shop. Miller works as a pressman at the Hays Daily News.

Unions form coalitions

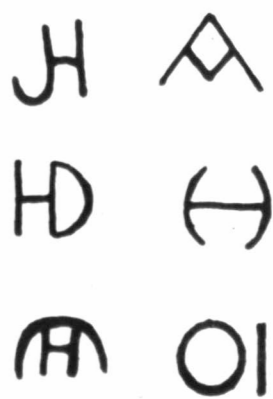

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. union leaders, assessing their legislative progress this Labor Day weekend, say they are forming new coalitions with civic, religious and civil rights groups to organize grass-roots support for common goals. The Full Employment Action Council, Americans for Justice on the Job and the Coalition for a Fair Minimum Wage are just three of these organizations. Although they have different names and different goals, their membership lists are virtually the same. The AFL-CIO and the action council have proclaimed this to be "Full Employment Week," seeking to stir public sentiment for new job-creating programs. Rallies, meetings, teach-ins, parades and petition drives are planned for Washington, New York and more than 50 other cities across the country. The campaign is aimed specifically at generating support for the Humphrey-Hawkins employment bill, a controversial proposal that would guarantee "a decent job at a decent wage" for every American willing to work. This has been one of organized labor's key legislative goals, but the bill has been stalled in Congress since last year, opposed by business groups, which argue it would be inflationary. President Carter has said he supports its basic principles but has not given it a firm endorsement.

However, more than 100 mayors and governors have joined in backing this week's demonstrations and — with the government's latest report of rising unemployment, especially among blacks — the pressure for congressional and White House support is expected to intensify. The Full Employment Council coordinating the demonstrations is headed by Murray Finley, an AFL-CIO vice president and head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader. The Humphrey-Hawkins bill is sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

FORUM...and against 'em

Let's hear it for industry

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Co-editor
Berl Springer, president of Southwestern Public Service, showed up for the recent luncheon hosted by Celanese where the two companies announced their joint venture to generate electricity by recycling steam from Celanese's coal-fired boilers when they become operational in mid 1979.

It's another big gold star for Celanese and a project which makes a fellow proud to share a portion of geography with the Pampa plant.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 homes can be provided with electricity as a result of the project. That's the excess after Celanese gets all the electric power it requires. And it's all to be generated by steam that otherwise would have been used only once in the chemical making processes pursued by Celanese.

"It's almost like double stamp day," Springer said, with timing and inflection that would be admired by many a stand-up comic.

He delivered other comments worthy of print when speaking of the Celanese-SPS partnership.

"It fits the National Energy Policy, if we have one," he quipped. Then he added, "It fits the basic objective of what we are all about... conservation of our energy resources... a common sense application of what we have available."

Note, in the added comments above, the absence of reference to any government urgings or meddling.

Springer revealed a healthy fear of Washington when he said, "What's going on up there, as far as SPS is concerned, there's very little good about it. We're looking at a political situation that's of grave concern to us."

He said the National Energy Bill will take away from SPS management the decision making responsibilities and "put them in the hands of some bureaucrat in Washington."

"This is serious business we're about. They will take away our free enterprise rights if we're not careful," Springer said.

He indicated that the partnership project came about, not as a result of government requirements, but in spite of governmental restrictions, red tape and regulations. He said that SPS and Celanese officials were able to bring about the metamorphosis of concept to reality, "because we got together in the good old American tradition of free enterprise."

One of the guests at the luncheon was U.S. Congressman Jack Hightower, D-Vernon. He made some nice, politically expedient comments, among which:

"I have never believed the bureaucratic planners in Washington have all the answers. It disappointed me to see they have so few answers and there are so many questions."

Part of the answer has to be many efforts such as this. That's close, Congressman, but no cigar. It isn't just part of the answer that will come from the free enterprise sector, it's all the answer. And after sitting in on that luncheon meeting the other day, I am optimistic I believe that the whole answer will be found by such companies as Celanese and SPS and the men who make them up. They'll do it in spite of all the restrictive, crippling, assume legislation that floats to the surface of that congressional quagmire of conflict, confusion and compromise.

"It wasn't too bad. We only got to the 'J's' before we found someone."

Nation's press

Labor 'reform' invites disaster

(Heritage Foundation "Communique")
President Jimmy Carter's July 11 announcement that he plans to endorse organized labor's proposed overhaul of the federal labor law was hailed as "an invitation for disaster" by Heritage Foundation president Edwin J. Feulner, Jr.

Feulner said The Heritage Foundation, while it does not endorse or oppose specific pieces of legislation, has concluded in several studies that the proposal outlined by the President "will be poor public policy, not in the public interest, and not in the interest of working people especially.

"The administration package is fundamentally a slightly toned-down version of a bill introduced earlier this year by Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey (D). That bill, H.R. 77, would allow union officials to organize workers without a secret ballot election, and would further facilitate union organizing through a variety of technical devices aimed at depriving workers of their freedom of choice, and employers of their right to oppose organization of their workforce."

The proposal is just one of many union-backed pieces of legislation which are being pushed vigorously by union lobbyists — and the Administration — in the 95th Congress.

Earlier this year, Big Labor pushed a "common situs" picketing bill in the 95th Congress. Heritage research, this year and two years ago when a similar bill was introduced, is given a great deal of credit for exposing the hidden purposes of the bill — to force non-union construction workers from their jobs.

Organized labor is also attempting to gain entry into the military, and is already hard at work trying to organize enlisted personnel on many military installations.

A Heritage Foundation study has concluded that allowing union organizers to challenge command decisions would undermine military discipline and morale, and could have disastrous consequences — and seriously threaten America's military preparedness.

Organized labor is also pushing several so-called "campaign reform" schemes aimed at enlarging its already massive political clout. One proposal calls for taxpayer funding of all Congressional elections.

The Heritage Foundation study shows that the proposed federal funding of Congressional elections would result in millions of taxpayers' dollars being poured into lopsided races whose outcomes could not be affected by any kind of election reform, and would dramatically increase the political power of organized labor, since union officials would still be free to pump millions of dollars worth of "in kind" aid into certain races.

Another proposal being pushed by organized labor — the so-called "Universal Registration Act" — would allow voting by people who are previously unregistered to vote, provided that they show up at the polls on election day with some sort of identification.

A Heritage Foundation study has been highly critical of this proposal, and has widely publicized the fact that the bill would dramatically increase the opportunities for voter fraud.

The viewpoint in Heritage's study was confirmed on July 13 when two Congressmen, Rep. Steve Symms of Idaho and Robert Dornan of California, revealed at a press conference that they had no trouble at all obtaining numerous false identification cards that could be used by dishonest vote-grabbers on election day. The Washington Star splashed photos of the phony IDs across its front page. On the IDs were names of several of the "liberal" Democrats who are helping Big Labor push this bill — to their considerable embarrassment.

Praising the research efforts of Heritage, Senator Jake Garn of Utah warned that "the labor lobbyists are already swarming all over Capitol Hill pushing their pet programs."

For Sunday, Sept. 4, 1977

For Monday, September 5, 1977

Sept. 4, 1977

The coming year should be a fortunate one for you and you should enjoy a rise in status and social position. This will be due not only to what you are, but who you know.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day for you to be around those who can give your career a boost. You'll say and do all the right things and make a very favorable impression.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Use the indirect approach today. In the long run you will find it far more successful than a frontal attack.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are generally lucky today in all your involvements. You may even incur some residual benefits that will pay off later!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things done on your own will yield only limited returns today. You stand to make your big score in a concerted team effort.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although this is not a business day, if you have a good idea try to get the ear of your superior while it's fresh in your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may get a brainstorm today that's a little out of your line. It could be a gold mine if you get it to the people who know how to market it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're lucky today, but not in the way you expect. Something will be resolved in a manner different than you thought it would.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a touch for making fun out of everything today, even work. Whatever you lay your hands on turns out well and you'll enjoy it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Returns could come your way today in areas that you've given considerable thought to. Look for gains here, rather than in outlandish schemes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A person fond of you may give you a tip today that could make or save you money. Listen carefully. It'll be extremely worthwhile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Sources you expect the least from are apt to do the most for you today. You could even receive a gift from a secret admirer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If at all possible today, arrange to mingle with your most affluent contacts. Something very substantial may rub off on you.

Sept. 5, 1977

Take time this coming year to chart your course in advance. If you have a definite game plan and follow it, your chances of attaining your goals look promising.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Certain people you know are looking for an opportunity to say something derogatory about you today. Don't give them any fuel for their fire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Withhold your stamp of approval from theories or plans you know little about. If you talk about things you don't comprehend, others perceive this quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Business situations are extremely tricky for you today. Take nothing for granted. Examine closely anything you are asked to sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You tend to dive in before you know the depth of the water today. If you're asked to commit your efforts, know exactly what's entailed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Attempting to take on more than you can handle today will initially make you nervous. As a result you won't be able to do your best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Financial speculation in things about which you know little should be avoided today. Looking for a free ride will net you exactly zero.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Continuity of purpose is necessary for your success today. Switching objectives will yield nothing in the way of prestige or profit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ability to evaluate people and things could suffer a setback today. You could be led astray by concepts that are completely illogical.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take care today where investments or acquisition of high-priced items is concerned. You won't handle money with your usual deft touch.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Any instructions today to those you're in charge of must be particularly explicit. If not, misunderstandings and confusion will result.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Voice nothing about friends and associates today that you wouldn't say to their faces. Better still, refrain from participating in any discussions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Financial advice from well-meaning pals could be more harm than help today — even the words of those whose information is usually good as gold.

Something better than taxes

City and other governmental units all across the country are faced with the recurring problem of rising costs outrunning current tax revenues. The usual reaction to the problem is to increase taxes in order to bring the two back into balance. It seldom seems to occur to the political powers — that — be that such a "solution" has its limitations and that the time must inevitably come when the "public sector" (government) must curtail its spending like the rest of us when outgo exceeds income.

New York City, of course, is the classical example of a government trying to cure its financial ills via repeated tax boosts. The trouble with that approach, however, is that it has already reached and passed the point of diminishing returns; that is, each tax increase acts to cause both industries and individual taxpayers to locate elsewhere. Thus, the tax base is progressively eroded, revenues fall, and New York City teeters month after month and year after year on the brink of bankruptcy despite the repeated infusion of massive federal assistance.

Although the boost taxes "solution" is typical, there is a growing willingness of government officials around the country, possibly awakened by New York's sorry plight, to recognize that the "public sector" has been attempting to do too much and that the private, or productive market, sector should be allowed to do more.

Robert Poole, associated with the World Research, Incorporated's monthly publication "World Research INK," discusses this growing trend in the publication's August issue. As examples, Poole notes:

— A number of parks and recreational facilities in San Francisco have been contracted to private operators and are now being run at a profit, rather than a drain on the taxpayers. The Downey golf course, for instance, is now being maintained privately, at 29 per cent cost savings.

— Even fire protection and certain kinds of police services can be better provided by private enterprise, it is being discovered. Scottsdale, Arizona, contracts with a private firm to serve as its fire department, paying only half the cost per person for the same quality fire protection its neighboring cities receive from conventional government fire departments. And Houston, Texas, is just one of a growing number of cities that are hiring private guards instead of using tax-paid police officers. Market place guards even protect Houston's city hall and municipal court buildings, which are within a half block of police headquarters.

— Orange County, California, provides another example of the trend toward letting private enterprise furnish services formerly attempted by the "public sector." The county has contracted out its entire data processing operation to a private organization and expects to save $11 million, while getting better service than before.

— And, increasingly, "public" school cafeterias are being turned over to private enterprise operators to run under contract with great savings to the taxpayers. This is the case in Buffalo and Rochester, New York; in Madison and Racine, Wisconsin; also in Chicago. And, in Benton, Arkansas, would you believe it, the McDonald's hamburger chain is now operating "public" school cafeterias, turning a formerly money-losing operation into a profitable one.

In searching for ways to hold down taxes, Poole reminds city and other government officials, "private contracting is worth more than a casual look."

Is gold in them thar hills Hitler's?

By LARRY CALLOWAY
Associated Press Writer
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Ask New Mexico State Historian Myra Ellen Jenkins if the lost gold of Padre La Rue may have been cached at Victorio Peak and she'll likely answer: "Padre La Rue?"

In a recent article under that title, Dr. Jenkins debunks the legend of a French Jesuit priest discovering a fabulous gold mine in New Mexico in the late 18th Century and hiding the smelted gold before his death. This and five other legends advanced to explain a fabled treasure at Victorio peak she labels as "historical nonsense."

But she concludes the article with a tale of chilling implications, which she captions "Hitler's Gold or World War II Era Gold."

Without endorsing it as true, Dr. Jenkins relates the tale in Post office to be closed Labor Day

The U.S. Postal Service will operate on a normal holiday schedule on Monday in observance of Labor Day.

No residential, business, rural delivery or window service will be provided.

Special delivery service including delivery of perishables and holiday collection service will be provided as usual.

City, county, state and federal offices with the exception of the Gray County Sheriff's Office and the Pampa Police Department will be closed.

The Pampa News will print a morning paper.

Lawyer tells Tongson Park to stay out

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lawyer for Tongson Park says he has advised the South Korean businessman to "stay put" in South Korea where he is safe despite reportedly being indicted by a U.S. grand jury.

Park, who fled the United States last fall, is the focal point of investigations into allegations that the South Korean government waged a massive lobbying campaign in Congress.

Congressional sources said Thursday that Park was named in a sealed indictment handed down by a federal grand jury here. The Justice Department declined to either confirm or deny the accounts.

Park's attorney, William G. Hundley, said his client might go to London to face extradition proceedings, but not until he finds out more about the reported indictment.

the current issue of the New Mexico Historical Society quarterly in these words:

"Certain ranking Air Force officers periodically stationed at Holloman or Walker Air Force bases during the German Occupation period, possibly with the connivance of certain Congressional leaders and other high-ranking officials, used the 'Soldiers Hole' or other convenient hiding places on Victorio Peak to conceal their illegally 'liberated' loot."

With delicate logic she excludes this from the category of "historical nonsense" and suggests: "under the provisions of the Public Information Act, documentation to prove or refute its validity may some day be possible."

Questioned about this, Dr. Jenkins said, "I just threw it in." The article basically is her humorous account of representing the state Cultural Properties Review Committee as an overseer during the entry to the peak site by claimants last March.

"I never even heard that goofy story till I got down there," she said.

Her first reaction was "a loud explosion of raucous laughter," she said. But then she got to thinking about it.

"Obviously it can't be documented, but it does raise some questions," she said. And she suggested, as she did in the article, that official military records on the Army's activities at Victorio Peak over the years would be "fascinating."

Victorio Peak, a lone knoll surrounded by jagged hills in Hembillio Basin, is on state land that has been part of the Army's White Sands Missile Range for some 25 years.

M.E. "Doc" Noss, described by Dr. Jenkins as a "chiropractor of dubious veracity," claimed to have found gold stacked like cordwood in a cavern in the peak in 1937.

He spent much of his time until he was shot to death 12 years later raising money to reopen the cavern, which he said he inadvertently sealed with a misplaced dynamite blast soon after discovery.

The idea that military officers might have hidden gold in the peak after the war doesn't vindicate Noss. But it would be compatible with the story of former Air Force Capt. Leonard Fiege, who said he found gold bars in a recess in the peak in 1958. The Army only in recent years has officially acknowledged that on the basis of Fiege's story that he filled the entrance and couldn't find it a group was allowed three months in 1961 to search the area for gold.

Ova Noss, former wife of Doc Noss, stopped this "mining operation," as she called it, through a legal protest in late October 1961.

Dr. Jenkins said it was Fiege who led the expedition last March to the so-called "Soldiers Hole." Removing the fill over the entrance to this fissure in the peak and entering it proved to be the main activity of the searchers in March.

There was no treasure in "Soldiers Hole," but there was ample evidence it had been entered by previous searchers.

The Army in its three-year-old fact sheet says Gaddis Mining Co., which explored the peak for gold in 1963, bulldozed away part of the original Soldiers Hole.

In the context of mysterious Army activities at Victorio Peak, Dr. Jenkins speculated in conversation that most of the gold claimants represented by Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey are former military officers. Bailey has declined to name his clients.

As to the legends, in the article she disposes of theories that Victorio Peak was the hiding place of gold from the lost mine of Padre La Rue ("La Who?" She quip, from the booty of Apache Chieftan Victorio for whom the peak is named, of Jesse James, of a Wells-Fargo robbery, of the Emperor Maximilian and of the pirate Jean La Fite.

One claimant during the March entry showed her a map of the Padre La Rue mine in Spanish that she says was "a linguistic impossibility."

Davis' fate hinges on wife

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Despite high and low rumor, fact and fiction, the fate of millionaire Cullen Davis hinges almost solely on the credibility of his estranged wife, Priscilla.

The curvaceous, ice-blond jet-setter, says a defense attorney, is not unlike the mythical Tar Baby. "Once you've touched it you can't let go."

Thus, after 10 days of appearances, some stormy, Mrs. Davis will be back on the stand Tuesday for round No. 11 in her husband's capital murder trial.

Although overshadowed by lurid revelations, innuendo and intrigue, Davis is on trial for the slaying last summer of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

Testimony, however, has focused on the shootings of Priscilla and her live-in lover, Stan Farr, 30, and the dubious life-style of the free-wheeling friends with whom they associated.

Mrs. Davis was awarded possession of the mansion after the couple separated in the summer of 1974.

She has neither faltered nor wavered in her story that Davis was the "man in black" who shot her in the chest and killed Farr in a midnight ambush at the $6 million mansion in August 1976.

But while her basic story remains intact she has fared much less favorably under a relentless assault by the defense on her reputation and therefore her credibility.

Her antagonist, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, would have the jury believe that the only truth in her testimony comes each day when she identifies herself as "Priscilla Lee Davis."

Haynes has characterized her palatial home as a playpen for a wide assortment of shadowy figures, many of whom were loaned house keys by Mrs. Davis.

The crafty Haynes is particularly fond of questioning Mrs. Davis about her relationship with W.T. Ruffner, with whom she shared the mansion before her affair with Farr.

Ruffner, who is on probation for a drug conviction, was Mrs. Davis' partially nude companion in a suggestive photograph which the defense failed to get into evidence.

Ruffner wore only a red-and-white striped Christmas stocking.

A young man appeared in the courtroom late last week wearing a tee-shirt which said, "Sock it to 'em, W.T.," and promptly was escorted out into the hallway by a bailiff.

Haynes also sought to link Mrs. Davis romantically with Larry Myers, who spent some nights at the mansion before going to prison on a robbery conviction.

"You knew Larry Myers quite intimately, did you not?" Haynes asked.

"I beg your pardon!" Mrs. Davis snapped. "What do you mean, quite intimately?"

Haynes: "You were more than handshaking friends, were you not?"

Mrs. Davis: "No sir. We were not."

Perhaps more damaging, Haynes has inferred Mrs. Davis enticed a former husband into a sexual encounter to enhance a divorce action settlement, and that she attempted a similar ploy after separating from Davis.

With the jury out, Haynes told the judge he wanted to pursue a line of questioning intended to show that Mrs. Davis is a "woman capable of scheming, design and chicanery."

He would illustrate, he argued, that her motive for fabricating stories against Cullen Davis is personal greed.

Although State Dist. Court Judge George Dowlen has shut off much potentially inflammatory questioning, he has permitted Haynes a wide latitude in examining the state's key witness.

And it is the judge's continuing good humor that has defused several tense, almost explosive confrontations between opposing attorneys.

"This has been one of the most exciting days of my life," he quipped one evening after an unproductive day of heated arguments over admissibility of evidence.

It was Judge Dowlen who moved sternly but belatedly to put an end to angry exchanges and disclosures about a gun which surfaced in the case late last week.

Defense lawyers said they had been told the .38 caliber pistol belonged to one Horace Copeland and was the weapon used to kill Farr. Prosecutors contend the same gun that killed Farr was used in the slaying of Andrea.

Copeland, whose name has surfaced here as an acquaintance of Farr, was shot to death last month as he entered a Fort Worth apartment. No charges have been filed.

Charles Baldwin, the Fort Worth lawyer who said he got the gun from a client, said Farr told him before the mansion shootings he was afraid Copeland was going to kill him.

The defense said previously it would produce evidence indicating Farr was the only ended victim in the mansion shootings and that Mrs. Davis knew in advance that "something" was to happen that night.

Davis himself said Friday that "in our books, Copeland is a very good suspect."

Arabia calls for action to stop Jewish expansion

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Saudi Arabia called on the Arab nations Saturday to take concerted political action against Israel's plans to expand Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River. Syria proposed diplomatic and economic sanctions against Israel.

At the same time, an Israeli Cabinet minister said in Tel Aviv more settlements will be established in the next six months. He also predicted that in 30 years two million Jews will be living in territories taken over by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

Speaking at the opening session of a three-day meeting here of the ministerial council of the 30-nation Arab League, Foreign Minister Saoud el Faisal of Saudi Arabia said: "We have to adopt a plan of action against these criminal measures and be resolute in the face of this flagrant challenge that endangers peace and security in the region."

A similar appeal came from Mahmoud Riad, the Arab League's secretary-general.

"After 30 years of claiming they want peace with us, Israel finally has divulged its aggressive, expansionist intentions in an attempt to impose a fait accompli and deprive the Palestinians of their national rights," he said.

"We have reached the crossroads... It is now necessary for us to take definite political action."

The U.S. government has denounced the establishment of Jewish settlements as an obstacle to peace in the Middle East.

In a radio interview broadcast Saturday in Tel Aviv, the Cabinet minister in charge of Israel's settlement policy said more Jewish settlements will be set up in the next six months but he did not say how many.

The Jordanian government released a report in Amman on Saturday saying that since the 1967 war, the Israelis had set up 46 settlements on the West Bank and 30 in the Gaza Strip, Sinai and the Golan Heights. A government spokesman said the report was prepared for the Arab League.

Former leader linked to death

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, ousted as prime minister by a military coup and already under investigation for alleged corruption, was arrested Saturday in connection with the slaying of a political opponent's father, official Pakistan radio said.

A brief radio announcement said Bhutto was arrested under a law for murder and conspiracy to murder, carrying a maximum penalty of death by hanging.

The arrest threw an already tense and confused political situation into new turmoil. Leaders of Bhutto's party scheduled a meeting Sunday to consider their next moves.

Abdul Hafeez Pirzada, second-ranking man in Bhutto's

Pakistan People's Party and former finance minister, said an application for bail would be filed for Bhutto as soon as possible.

Sources said Bhutto was arrested at his home in suburban Karachi and flown to Lahore, where the slaying occurred and where his trial is likely to be held.

Ahmad Raza Kasuri, a former member of parliament and the son of the victim, had filed a complaint with police alleging that his father, Nawab Mohammad Ahmad Khan, was shot to death by federal security officers in November 1974 on the orders of Bhutto, then prime minister.

Crocodile kills boy

MIAMI (AP) — A 6-year-old boy fell into a crocodile pit at a tourist attraction Saturday and died after the reptiles attacked him, despite his father's efforts to force open the jaws of one animal.

"Doctors list drowning as part of the reason for death," the spokesman said.

Officials at the attraction were not available for comment.

Young farmers

"I don't like to be indoors," she said. "I want to major in animal science in college. There's a bunch of ag-related things I could go into."

"I'm not planning on being in farming," Tim Brantley said. He is a third-year agriculture student who moved to Pampa this year from Moore, Okla.

"But it (farming) is interesting and I'd like to know how it works," he said.

Brantley is mostly interested in sharpening his welding skills in the department's farm shop program at the school.

Regina Benyshek echoes the optimistic outlook of many of her classmates. She wants to work in some phase of agri-business.

"I think times'll get better sometime or another," she said. "I don't think anyone gets rich at anything."

For Berkeley Brainard and Lee Ann Shults, agriculture during their high school years is giving them a head start on some ag-related life after graduation and college.

"In attitudes and ambitions, I've always been amazed at the goals my students set for themselves," Skaggs said. "Regardless of their present financial standings, they always set high goals and the followup studies on former students are very encouraging. Most of them achieve the goals they set for themselves."

"Almost all of these younger farmers and ranchers in the area were in ag in high school," he said. "They are a very up-to-date, well-educated group of producers."

"As long as I've been around people in agriculture, they've been optimistic. I think that's what keeps them going."

"My parents, they tell me not to do it," Crickett Lowrey said. He's from a ranching family and he wants to be a rancher.

"They tell me it's a poor way of making a living. My dad tells me that every day, but cattle prices... can't be like this all the time."

Lowrey and his father are partners on 18 head of cattle. He is more decisive than many of his classmates, with his mind set on ranching and college about the only uncertainty on his horizon.

"The colleges, they don't teach you much about agriculture. You learn by doing ranch work," he said.

Babe scatters oil workers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Off-shore oil workers and coastal residents headed for high ground Saturday as a tropical storm named Babe took southern Louisiana by surprise.

Early Saturday evening, the ill-defined center of the storm was 35 miles southeast of Plaquemines Parish, the state's southernmost county, and 175 miles southeast of New Orleans, the National Weather Service said.

It had barely moved in three hours. Earlier, forecaster Elgin Landry had said that Babe's best chance to become a hurricane would come if it stalled over the Gulf of Mexico.

"We're simply cautioning people not to take this one for granted," said New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu as he directed preparedness operations in his city. "It's not a killer storm... but it's a very serious storm."

Spokesmen from Shell, Chevron and Exxon oil companies said they were evacuating workers from rigs in the storm's path.

A Chevron spokesman said 1,500 workers were evacuated soon after Babe's winds hit 45 miles an hour, the threshold at which the Weather Service called it a tropical storm and named it. Hurricanes must have 74 mile an hour winds.

A Shell spokesman said his company had shut down 11 drilling rigs and 30 to 40 production platforms. Those rigs and platforms, he said, produce 100,000 barrels of oil and one-billion cubic feet a natural gas a day.

Babe was born Saturday morning, three days after hurricane Anita passed south of the Gulf of Mexico coast.

Attorney generals try to stop canal treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The attorneys general on four states asked the Supreme Court on Saturday to order President Carter not to sign the proposed Panama Canal treaties until all details about the agreements are made public.

The attorneys general argued that although the United States will not be bound by the treaties unless they are ratified by the Senate, Carter's signature would amount to "sufficient moral commitment" to an agreement that could harm their states.

Carter is scheduled to sign the documents in ceremonies Wednesday, ending 13 years of negotiations with Panama over the future of the canal.

The two agreements would yield U.S. control of the canal to Panama by the year 2000 but guarantee the United States perpetual rights to defend the waterway against any threat.

When the chief state legal officers of Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana and Indiana asked the Supreme Court to intervene Saturday, their petition was stamped "received" by the court clerk's office.

A court spokesman said no decision will be made until Tuesday on whether to accept the petition and forward it to the justices, who are on vacation until mid-month.

The attorneys general said the treaties, as outlined so far, could hurt their states because of the higher rates they predict for vessels passing through the waterway between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Billions of dollars' worth of grain and other farm exports from those states are shipped through the canal each year, along with imported fuels on which their citizens are dependent, they said.

Higher shipping costs on exports would lower returns to farmers while higher ones on imports would raise prices to all consumers, they argued.

Weismuller has stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Weismuller, the Olympic swimmer who became the best-loved Tarzan of the movies, was in an intensive care unit after suffering a stroke, a hospital spokeswoman said Saturday.

"He is semi-conscious and in near-stable condition," said Joyce Rose, a nurse at Valley Presbyterian Hospital in suburban Van Nuys.

She said Weismuller, 73, entered the hospital last week. Doctors have not said when he might be well enough to leave, she said.

Weismuller was the most successful swimmer of his day, winning five gold medals in the 1924 and 1928 Olympics. He set 67 world records and won 52 national championships.

His fame and prowess brought him to films in 1931, when he became the fourth actor to play Edgar Rice Burroughs' vine-swinging man of the apes. His quiet manner and distinctive jungle yell helped make him the most popular of the movie Tarzans.

After making several of the films in the Tarzan series, he turned to television and starred in "Jungle Jim" for 10 years.

Weismuller made a fortune as a man of the jungle, but his business ventures — such efforts as Health-Hut food stores and Ungawa cocktail lounges — were generally unsuccessful.

"As a businessman, I'd have been better staying under water," he once said.

In recent years Weismuller has worked as a greeter at Caesar's Palace Hotel in Las Vegas.

Nixon

Crises," and that what interested Mao most was that he had made a political comeback.

"It's struggle that appeals to them," Nixon said. "It is triumphing over adversity."

The former president said in his own relationship with Henry Kissinger he was often left, by design, to appear the hard-liner with Kissinger taking the soft line. But, he said, people who think that "just don't know what each of us believed."

Nixon blamed some of his problems with the press on the fact that "I'm not a very lovable man" and added:

"The greatest concentration of power in the United States today is not in the White House. It isn't in the Congress and it isn't in the Supreme Court. It's in the media and it's too much, because it is too concentrated in too small a circle."

As examples, he specifically mentioned the Washington Post's ownership of an all-news radio and television station in Washington and Newsweek magazine; the three television networks; Time, Inc., and the New York Times.

Professor claims he broke code to John Wesley diaries

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A theology professor, who says his interest in the life of John Wesley was spawned by a discussion of Wesley's love life, believes he has broken the centuries-old code in the founder of Methodism's diaries.

Dr. Richard P. Heitzenrater, a professor at the Southern Methodist University's Perkins School of Theology, said he found the key to the code in a diary kept by a Wesley associate in the 18th century.

The professor said the discovery could give insight into Wesley's theological development.

During a class discussion at Duke, a professor related a passage from a Wesley diary that was partially in longhand, said Heitzenrater. "It related to Wesley's associations with a young female friend in Georgia and how it caused him to flee to England with a warrant issued for his arrest."

Wesley kept the diaries for 65 years, beginning in 1725 when he was ordained as a minister of the Church of England.

"But many volumes were burned and some were disassociated with the core of material surviving to this day," Heitzenrater said.

The professor began trying to unravel the code in 1967, concentrating on the first few years of the diaries.

"I don't think Wesley intended the general public to be able to read them. But while he was at Oxford he had a close association with several other students. All the members of the group used the same code in their diaries," he explained.

It was in 1969 that Heitzenrater, doing research in England, came across one of the diaries kept by a Wesley associate.

"It had in the front of it three pages of keys to symbols, abbreviations and signs — most of which a person could figure out by common sense," he said.

"It was that feeling that this is too good to be true," he said. "I felt good as I looked through it because many of the things I had guessed at were confirmed."

Wesley's diaries were an attempt "to keep a close watch on the development of his own life," said Heitzenrater.

"It was a typical puritanic approach, he felt if you keep track of everything you do, and you're careful about how you spend your time, you can chart your progress," the researcher said.

"It's list after list of questions. There's much introspective on the development of a Christian life. What he found was that he was spending six or seven minutes of every hour looking over the past hour to see what resolutions he kept and which he had broken," Heitzenrater said.

He added that Wesley went through "constant battles" during the period.

"While he was trying to work out his own salvation he became aware of his own sinfulness. He was working against himself," he said. "The struggle for him was the question, 'How do I know that I am saved?'"

Heitzenrater kept his diaries while working in England. They are all written in layman's longhand.

Gordon Liddy to be freed

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — G.

Gordon Liddy, who once offered to make an appointment with death if anyone doubted his code of silence, now has an appointment with freedom after 52½ months in prison.

The 46-year-old mastermind of the Watergate burglary is scheduled to be released Wednesday from the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury. He has served more time than anyone convicted in Watergate or Watergate-related cases.

He will walk through the medium-security prison, with its walls and guard towers, to his waiting wife, Frances, and five teen-aged children, apparently still determined not to discuss the aborted burglary at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington.

It was in 1972 that Liddy, one-time counsel to former President Richard Nixon's reelection committee, told then-White House counsel John Dean that he would allow himself to be shot on the street by a sniper if there was concern he would talk.

His silence cost him an additional 18 months in jail at a time when his children were growing up and his wife was running the household in Oxon Hill, Md., on her salary as an elementary school teacher. His oldest child, a daughter, Sandy, 18, is a student at the University of Maryland.

A judge imposed the additional prison time when Liddy refused to testify under immunity to a federal grand jury.

A day before his release, Liddy will appear before a U.S. magistrate in Williamsport, Pa., to take a pauper's oath and seek delay of payment of a $40,000 fine, removing the only obstacle to his freedom.

Liddy and six others were indicted on Sept. 15, 1972, on six counts of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. Liddy was convicted on Jan. 30, 1973, on all counts. He was sentenced on March 23, 1973, to a prison term of from six years and eight months to 20 years and fined $40,000.

He went to prison on Jan. 30, 1973, after his sentencing, because he was unable to make bail. He has been out of prison only 99 days since then, in late 1974 and early 1975, pending unsuccessful appeals that ended with the U.S. Supreme Court refusing to hear his case.

Judge John J. Sirica in 1975 refused Liddy's motion for a reduction of sentence, saying: "In short, this defendant has not shown the court the slightest remorse or regret for his actions, and has not given the court even a hint of contrition or sorrow, nor has he made any attempt to compensate for his illegal actions by trying to aid our system of justice in its search for the truth."

Liddy's silence carried to the point that in 1973 he refused even to give his name to a House committee investigating Watergate. He was convicted after a half-day trial on two counts of refusing to testify before a congressional committee and received a suspended six months sentence.

Of his six teammates on the Watergate burglary squad, all of whom cooperated with prosecutors and served less time, Liddy said: "They sold themselves for less time. I don't do that."

President Carter reduced Liddy's sentence to a maximum eight years last April, making him eligible for parole July 9. The Parole Board met in July and set the date of his release for Sept. 7.

In ordering the commutation, Carter said, "It has been made to appear that the ends of justice have been served."

Yantis appointment may spark feud

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe — courting a sure fight in the Senate over confirmation — has appointed Hugh Yantis as chairman of the State Board of Insurance.

Yantis, 63, has been executive director of the Texas Water Quality Board for 10 years and says he knows nothing about insurance.

The water quality board was absorbed into the new Texas Department of Water Resources last week, and Yantis was turned down for chief of the new agency.

Yantis said he was passed over because he is outspoken and lacks pliability when it comes to questions of principle.

Outspoken and controversial he is, with plenty of enemies in the Senate, which will take up his confirmation in 16 months. He replaces Joe Christie, who resigned Thursday to prepare for an almost certain race for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican John Tower.

Christie had urged Briscoe to put a woman in the job and had declared the chairman ought to be a lawyer with trial experience.

Yantis is a professional engineer with no legal background, but said, "I will have all the legal advice available that I will need."

Christie made a reputation as a "consumerist" while thoroughly antagonizing insurance companies with his efforts to hold auto and property rate increases to a minimum.

Yantis said his style as chairman will be to "keep a low profile and try to do it right. I have no preconceived opinions."

He said Briscoe told him he wanted an insurance board chairman with "honesty, integrity and enough strength of character to make the chairmanship have some meaning."

Briscoe appointed Yantis to a term expiring Jan. 31, 1981, in the $38,600-a-year job, but Yantis must be confirmed by the Senate to stay in the post beyond early 1979.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said Briscoe disregarded senatorial courtesy in appointing Yantis and promised to fight the appointment.

He said Briscoe advisor Ken Clapp told him Yantis probably would move to Seguin, in the district of Sen. John Traeger.

"I don't believe he has experience that lends itself to the regulation of the insurance industry," Doggett said, adding that Yantis has a "philosophy that favors regulating solely for the benefit of the regulated."

Doggett said that as director of the water quality board, the river authority wants to sell the water, which will be used for cooling, and the commission has approved the sale.

The Austin court said the Texas Constitution requires the attorney general to represent state agencies in all lawsuits.

Hill said he would appeal that ruling.

Hill sues to stop LCRA

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill has taken to court his fight to stop the Lower Colorado River Authority from selling water to a nuclear plant being built near Bay City.

Hill filed suit against LCRA and the Texas Water Rights Commission in state district court Friday.

The river authority wants to sell the water, which will be used for cooling, and the commission has approved the sale.

The Austin court said the Texas Constitution requires the attorney general to represent state agencies in all lawsuits.

Hill said he would appeal that ruling.

Texas storm 'overdue'

By The Associated Press
For six seasons now, Texans have kept a wary eye toward the Gulf of Mexico, wondering when the next hurricane might suddenly rise up and strike. There was a feeling among some veteran coastwatchers that Texas was overdue for such a visit.

Hurricane Anita, with winds of more than 100 miles per hour, became that unwelcome visitor last week.

But she certainly does not set precedent.

Other non-grata guests in the past have included the likes of such killing storms as Carla, Beulah and Celia.

Since 1818, at least 21 known hurricanes have clobbered portions of the Texas coast. Records — educated guesses at best — fix the death toll to date something over 8,000 with damages easily in the billions.

In 1953, the National Weather Service decided to give all tropical disturbances short women's names to avoid confusion when two or more storms were active simultaneously.

Men had a good laugh. But nobody laughed in September 1961 when Carla stormed ashore at Port O'Connor with 175-mile-per-hour winds. Before it was through 34 Texans died, 465 were injured and property damage was conservatively fixed at $300 million.

The most destructive Texas hurricane on record has no name. It was called simply the Great Galveston Storm of 1900. At least 6,000 unsuspecting coastal dwellers died in an age when hurricane warning systems were synonymous with how loud you could shout.

The list, before and since, is long and tragic. Five recorded hurricanes precede 1900. Fifteen followed including the great storms of 1915 and 1919 when 559 Texans died. The names only added a macabre glamour.

The intensity of the storms varied, but all spelled damage.

There was Audrey in June 1957 — the first storm of the season. Eleven Texans along the upper coast died. Property damage was initially put at $6 million. In Louisiana, some 500 died.

In July 1959, Debra arrived along the Middle Texas Coast almost unannounced. There was no loss of life. Damages were put at $6 million. The storm's lightning-like arrival prompted a heated editorial by the Houston Chronicle chastizing the weather bureau for not issuing extended warnings. Forecasters said the winds built quickly to hurricane force a short 40 miles of the coast and moved inland.

Carla smashed into the Port O'Connor area about 2 p.m. Sept. 11, 1961. Tides reached 18 feet. At least 34 died in Carla, the worst Texas hurricane dollar-wise, to date. Port O'Connor was devastated.

For almost six years, Texans watched and waited but the whirling winds stayed away.

Then on Sept. 20, 1967, Beulah shoved ashore just east of Brownsville with 150 mph winds. Thirteen died.

John C. doubts GOP

DENVER (AP) — Former Treasury Secretary John Connally says unless more Republicans are elected to office next year, the 1980 GOP presidential nomination won't be worth running for.

Connally declined to put himself in or take himself out of the presidential race, saying, "It's three light years away."

The former Texas governor spoke Thursday in Denver to nearly 200 people who paid $100 each to attend a fund-raising cocktail party sponsored by the conservative Business-Industry Political Action Committee.

The 60-year-old Connally said he is working on 1978 campaigns because there may be a move to split the party if the GOP doesn't improve its dismal position in terms of governorships, state legislatures and Congressmen.

Connally said he is in no hurry to run for office himself, but added, "I'm not saying I won't be a candidate."

He said he may set up his own political action committee in the near future, but added it's "not really, not at all aimed at securing the GOP nomination."

Peso pops tourism

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The impact of Mexico's peso devaluation had a substantial effect on Texas' tourism last year, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation says.

The department reported Thursday that a record $3.1 billion was spent by out-of-state visitors in Texas during 1976.

However, there were fewer Mexican visitors and they spent less, the department said.

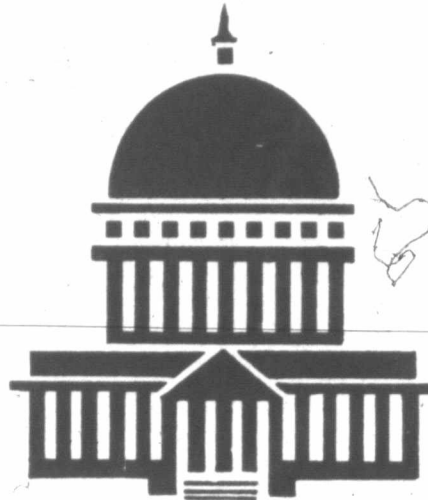

The statistics show a 37 per cent decline in auto travelers to Texas from Mexico, from a high of 1,222,000 persons in 1975, to 770,000 in 1976. These are not daily border crossers but visitors who stayed more than 72 hours in Texas and traveled more than 25 miles from the border.

In dollars, Mexican visitor spending showed a net decline of nearly $150 million, from $392.2 million to $245.2 million.

Despite the declines, Mexican travel parties remained among the most valuable visitors to Texas. During 1976 the average Mexican travel party spent $698 in Texas, while comparable parties from U.S. states spent only $331.

The department's annual tourist analysis, based on information received from the 17.2 million auto visitors from other states, showed that short-term visitors, those who stayed 29 days or less, amounted to 94 per cent of the tourist trade.

An important message to our customers.

The House of Representatives has just voted to raise the price of your electricity! And the Senate is looking at the same Legislation. These bills are going to cost you plenty — nearly $50,000,000 a year for the next ten years. That's almost half a billion dollars!

Who cares? Of course you care. And we care. That's the reason we want you to know what's happening in Washington.

Not only did the House vote to raise your electric bill, there's a strong chance you'll get less reliable service, too. The Government is trying to take over regulation of your electric company. That's right! A Washington bureaucrat will decide who gets electric power and how much instead of your state and local officials.

That means your electric company will lose control over how we operate our own power transmission lines and facilities. We might not be able to give you — our customers — first priority. The Federal Government could use some of the money you pay for your electric service to make your electric company build a transmission line for a government subsidized utility. You pay twice that way — in your electric bill and in your taxes. And you don't even get to use the line.

Let's not beat around the bush. The cost of doing business is going up. It costs you more for your electric service than it used to. But now when you pay your electric bill, you pay only what it costs to serve you, plus a controlled profit, so that we can keep updating our generation facilities and our technology to keep serving you better.

Well, if some Congressmen have their way, some people will pay less than their fair share of the electricity cost. Who will decide who gets the special rates?

You can bet it won't be you . . . or us . . . or our state and local government who know our needs best.

It will be some government official in Washington!

There's a whole lot more bad news in this legislation that has passed the House and is now being considered in the Senate. It's all part of Senate Bill 1469, Part E . . . and . . . Now for more bad news . . . Senate Bill 1472!

That's a dandy. It's the one that taxes you because some of your electricity is generated with natural gas. The gas users' tax is a case of the Government telling us to build coal-fired power plants faster than you can afford them.

It's as though the folks in Washington just woke up one day and decided there was an energy crisis and decided to try to right all the wrongs over night. The facts are that your electric company has been doing something about our diminishing natural gas reserves for more than six years. We haven't planned or constructed a gas-fired generation facility since 1971. And since that same time we've been planning to use coal as our primary generation fuel. We've just completed and put into operation Harrington Station — a coal-fired Generation plant near Amarillo.

But we need the opportunity to phase out the gas-fired facilities at a savings economical to you, our customers. New power plants cost money . . . cost you money, because you are our only source of money. We have a program that makes it possible for us to stop using natural gas to make electricity by 1995 at the latest.

It's a program you can afford. It's a program that will help alleviate rising costs. Sure, you'll pay more for electricity in the future. You'll be paying more for everything, but under our plan you'll pay a lot less than you'll have to pay if Senate Bill 1472 passes. $423,000,000 less between 1983 and 1990.

Why? Because Senate Bill 1472 says that even though we are building coal-fired power plants as fast as you can afford them, you're still going to be penalized, by almost a half billion dollars. Just because some staff member in Congress thinks you should build them faster. And remember it is your money that builds these new plants.

The Good News in all this is that your Congressman voted against raising your electric bill, voted against giving you poor service . . . but he was out-voted. Now what you can do is write your United States Senator (His name and address are printed below for your convenience) and tell him to vote against Part E in Senate Bill 1469 and against the gas users' tax in Senate Bill 1472. Why? BECAUSE YOU CAN'T AFFORD THESE BILLS. And that's a darn good reason. Let the people in Washington know that YOU CARE what they're doing with YOUR MONEY!

Thank you

Cooks gets probation, fine

Jimmy Wayne Cook, 27, of Tulsa, Okla. pleaded guilty Friday to entering a building on Starkweather Jan. 2, 1976 and taking a rifle and some jewelry.

His punishment was set at seven years probation and a $350 fine. The hearing was in 223rd District Court.

He told the court he was arrested here last Saturday when he came back from Tulsa to settle his affairs with this court.

The building was owned by R.E. Pittser Cook said he entered through an unlocked window at 10 p.m. that night.

He said he was arrested later and took officers to the merchandise which he had taken.

Asked if he were alone at the time, Cook said he was not, but rather not say who was with him since the other persons had nothing to do with crime.

Cook will be allowed to return to his job at Tulsa where he will report to probation officials as specified.

Judge Yarbrough quits

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court says it will rule Tuesday on the resignation of Don Yarbrough as a lawyer.

The court called upon the Harris County Bar Association's grievance committee to file a concurring motion to Yarbrough's resignation.

Such motions are requested in every resignation by an attorney where a complaint has been filed, the high court's clerk said.

The court did not say what it would do if the grievance committee fails to file a concurring motion.

Yarbrough, a former justice on the Texas Supreme Court, announced his resignation Friday. He said his reputation has been so "tarnished" he cannot practice law.

Yarbrough resigned July 15 as a justice on the high court to avoid a legislative hearing at which he would not be able to confront his accusers.

His resignation as a lawyer Friday makes a disbarment suit against him moot, he said.

He issued a brief statement through his attorney Friday that said: "I am not now practicing law. I have no clients. My reputation as a lawyer has been so tarnished by the Bar Association I cannot hope to return to the practice of law in the foreseeable future."

"I must turn to other ways of livelihood to support and feed my family. Therefore, it seems useless to me to put myself and my family through six hard weeks of trial and further abuse from the press to save my license to practice law."

"I have today resigned as an attorney and have asked the Texas Supreme Court to withdraw my name from the membership rolls of licensed attorneys in Texas.

"Since the trial of the disbarment case is scheduled to begin Sept. 8, I am filing a motion to dismiss that suit with the Houston court. I assume my resignation makes that case moot."

He was indicted after Houston District Attorney Carol Vance released secret tape recordings in which Yarbrough allegedly said two former business associates should be eliminated.

UT employes aided CIA in 'SOS

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The University of Texas says it has been informed by the Central Intelligence Agency that unnamed UT employes did research for the CIA in the 1950s or 1960s on altering human behavior.

The CIA, however, did not identify the school, and Associate Deputy Chancellor Bob Hardesty said UT has requested that information.

Hardesty said the CIA notified UT that the research was "designed to identify materials and methods useful in altering human behavior patterns. Although the more highly publicized portion of this activity concerned the testing of the various types of drugs on humans, most of the research did not involve such testing but rather only far less controversial investigations into aspects of human behavior and its determinants." Hardesty said CIA director Stansfield Turner told Congress last month that 44 colleges had been involved in the human behavior project.

Texas could get new welfare cash

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Acting commissioner Jerome Chapman of the Department of Human Resources predicted Saturday welfare is here to stay but -state medical programs may be taken over by the federal government.

Chapman, named temporarily to replace Raymond Vowell, who resigned, said President Carter's welfare proposals should provide millions of additional dollars for Texas.

Many more Texans also would be eligible for welfare under Carter's proposal, Chapman said.

In an interview on the radio program State Capitol Deadline, Chapman said:

"We'll never get to the point when the (welfare) programs aren't needed. They may go in a different direction. I think personally the day will come — it's a ways off yet — when we will have national health insurance or some type of federally administered medical program instead of being state administered."

He noted that the population of the aging is "growing dramatically" and more aid is being provided for children.

JFK buddy is critical

BOSTON (AP) — Kenneth P. O'Donnell, longtime aide and confidant to President John F. Kennedy, was in critical condition Saturday at Beth Israel Hospital.

His ailment was not disclosed. The hospital said O'Donnell's family requested that information on it not be released.

O'Donnell, 53, served as special assistant and appointments secretary while Kennedy was president. In recent years he has been a management consultant and public relations representative in Boston.

Dave Powers, another former aide to Kennedy, said O'Donnell was admitted to the hospital's intensive care unit Aug. 11.

O'Donnell long has suffered from arthritis. He was hospitalized in Cleveland five years ago after collapsing while promoting "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye," a book he and Powers wrote about Kennedy.

O'Donnell ran unsuccessfully for governor of Massachusetts in 1966 and 1970.

"These kinds of problems in our society will always be with us," he said.

On Carter's proposed welfare overhaul, Chapman said, "Frankly it might be good for Texas in terms that it would bring a good deal of additional dollars flowing into the state, which always stimulates the economy."

Asked how much more money, Chapman said, "Multi-millions per year."

"I think it is a program that will work in Texas in terms of meeting the needs of our very needy people," Chapman said. He added, however, that the "department as a whole and I personally have some real problems with the program because, I think, it holds itself out as an economic solution to a problem that is not going to be solved by economics."

Asked if Carter's proposal offered a guaranteed wage, Chapman said, "It's pretty close to a guaranteed income program. There is a bottom floor below which people will not fall."

Chapman said he would have "serious doubts" about accepting the job on a permanent basis and had not yet submitted his application.

Asked about rumors that several persons had turned down the commissioner's job, Chapman said he was unaware of the board making any offers.

The Department of Human Resources — the old welfare department — has 13,000 employes and programs totaling $1.2 billion a year.

Hereford stampedes Harvesters

By TOM KENSER
Pampa News Staff

To use an old adage, it was so close and yet so far. The scoreboard may have shown a final score of 31-20, but most everyone at Harvester Stadium Friday night had to feel that Pampa was within a couple of plays of roping the Herd.

Down by 6-0, the Harvesters struck for two touchdowns early in the second period, and the Pampa defense forced the Whitefaces to punt after four downs from their 27.

Quarterback Rick Dougherty promptly floated a 22-yard pass to tight end David Green, giving the Harvesters seemingly unstoppable momentum at the Herd's 42.

But Richard Wuest fumbled after a seven-yard gain to halt the Harvester hopes. With new-found life, Hereford marched back 65 yards in 10 plays for a 13-12 lead. What looked like a potential 13-point Pampa lead quickly transformed into a one-point Whiteface advantage.

And to rub salt into the wound, Hereford successfully converted on an ensuing on-side kick.

Seven plays later, Charles Reyne, who wasn't even close on his last extra point attempt, split the uprights for a 39-yard field goal.

The Pampa coaches and players were further distressed by the loss of halfback Rudy Roland who was taken to the hospital for X-rays of what turned out to be a bruised ankle. Roland had 34 yards on six carries when injured mid-way through the second quarter, and nearly broke a couple of nine-yard runs for long gains.

Each team was forced to punt away their first possessions in the third quarter, but Herd quarterback Kelly Kitchens, got things going on Hereford's nest drive. With two completions to Greg Brockman, he moved the Whitefaces down to the Harvester 37 where fleet-footed Paul Bell took a pitch around the right side and cut back against the Pampa secondary for the score.

Bell (5-8, 160) rushed for a game-high 163 yards on 31 carries, with most of his yardage coming around the Pampa defensive ends.

But the Harvester offense was invigorated by a move of starting quarterback Steve Young to halfback and the insertion of Rick Dougherty to quarterback. With Young and Todd Chumbley picking up some tough inside yardage, Pampa scored on a 55-yard drive to begin the final stanza.

The march culminated in a pretty 14-yard touchdown pass to Green who got open on the down-and-out pattern on the seven, and raced in for six.

Now down by only a field goal, the Harvester defense came to life and held the Herd to four downs. The excitement of the home-town fans was quickly dissipated into muffled sighs, however, when Kerry Adair fumbled the Reyne punt and it was recovered by the Herd's Dalon Rameriz.

Bell ran through the Pampa defense for an eight-yard score four plays later. "Their outside game killed us," said Pampa mentor John Welborn. "We had trouble making the tackles on Bell at the line of scrimmage. If you let a fast guy like that get to the open field, he's going to make some yardage."

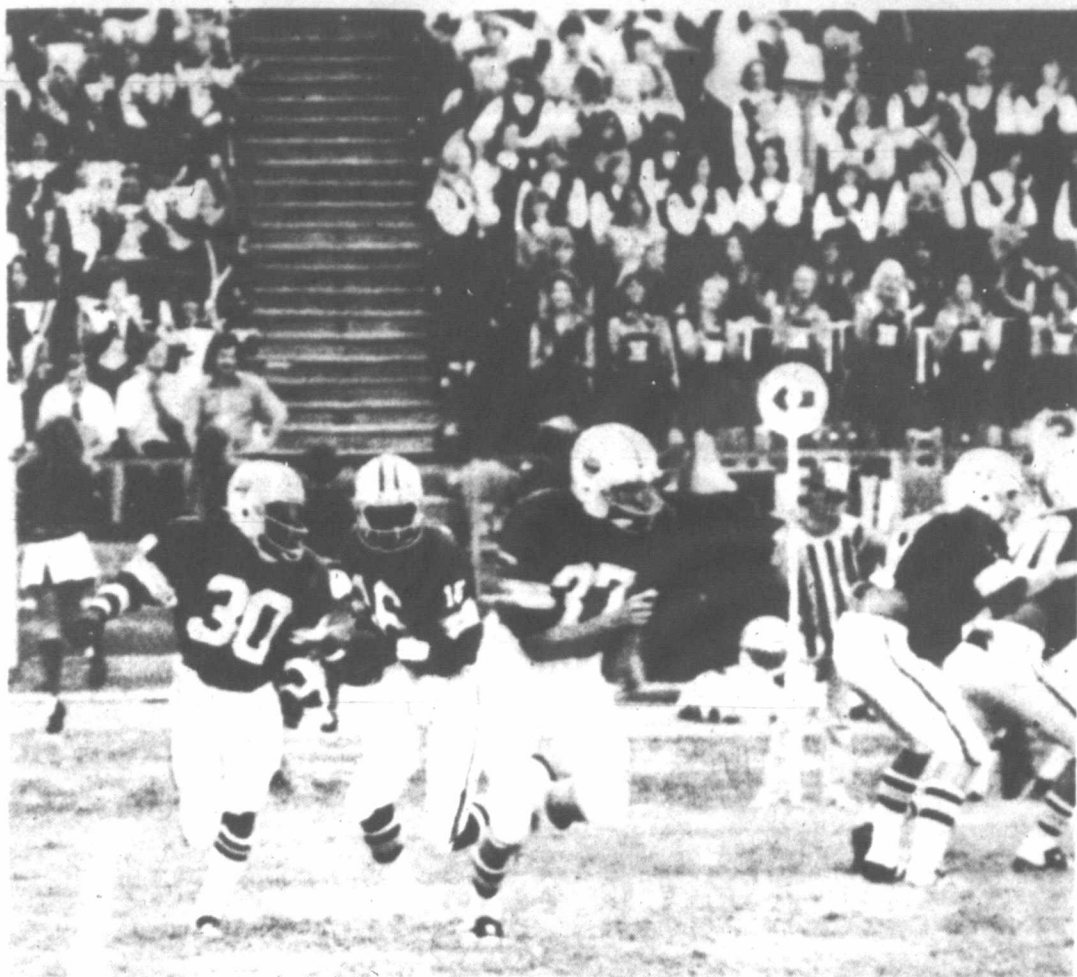

Welborn said that Hereford was a much more physical team than Pampa on the lines and at linebacker, and that maybe the Harvesters took the Herd too lightly after watching films of Tascosa outplaying them.

"Hereford may have been a little underrated. I think if we played them several times, it could go either way," Welborn said.

Kitchens aided Bell with 45 yards rushing, and accounted for all Herd passing including five to Brockman for 73 yards, and three to Chris Hill for 59 yards.

Chumbley and Dougherty gained 59 and 58 yards rushing respectively to lead Pampa backs, while Gary Dumas and Green each had three pass receptions.

Roll out the Green

Fullback Todd Chumbley (37) and halfback Rudy Roland (30) look to block onrushing linemen as quarterback Steve Young (16) rolls out to throw one of nine passes he attempted against Hereford in the Harvesters' 31-20 opening-game loss Friday night. Young completed four passes for 43 yards and rushed for 47 yards in the contest.

US relay team sets mark

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — The United States 400-meter men's relay team overcame a wet track and a shaky last baton hand-off to set a world record of 3:03.23 in the World Cup track and field meet Saturday night.

It was the first world record of the star-studded world team competition and came after a day of rain, on a chilly evening which made records seem unlikely.

The American quartet—Bill Collins of Houston, Steve Riddick of Philadelphia, Cliff Wiley of Baltimore and Steve Williams of San Diego—knocked 16 of a second off the mark of 38.19 that had stood since the triumph of another U.S. team at the Munich Olympics in 1972.

Williams, the anchorman, said he was startled to find himself all alone when he took the baton for the last leg.

"I didn't run as fast as I could because I was looking at the clock," Williams said. "If we ran it again, I think we might do it in 37 seconds flat."

The United States almost claimed another world record when Mike Tully, 20-year-old UCLA student from Long Beach, Calif., won the pole vault at 18 feet 4 1/4 inches, then narrowly failed in a spectacular attempt at a world record of 18-8 1/4.

On his third record bid, Tully cleared the bar but failed to get his arms clear and topped the pole.

The record of 18-0 1/4 is held by American Dave Roberts.

With one day of competition left, East Germany led the United States by one point in the men's events. The East Germans had 81, the U.S. 80, West Germany 75 and Europe 70.

Earlier, Reinhard Kokot of East Germany upset Olympic champion Alberto Juantorena of Cuba in the men's 400-meter race, but after a long delay, officials ruled the race a false start. It will be rerun Sunday.

Juantorena stopped two steps after the starting gun went off, and looked back before resuming running. He was able to salvage third place, but was booed and jeered by the near-capacity crowd of 50,000 in Rhine stadium.

The Cuban, a gold medalist in both the 400 and 800 meters at Montreal, started arguing with the officials as soon as the race ended.

American record of 2:37.82.

The Americans won 11 of the 14 events. In addition to Miss Bogdanova's victory, the Soviets took the men's 100-meter breaststroke and the men's 400-meter medley.

Hot Wadkins catches erratic Weiskopf

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, seven shots back with nine holes to play, stormed home in five-under-par 30 and tied Tom Weiskopf for the second-round lead Saturday in the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

Wadkins, who ended a long, frustrating slump with a play-off victory in the recent PGA National Championship, capped his round of four-under-par 66 with a spectacular bunker shot that found the cup for a birdie on the 18th hole.

Weiskopf, who once appeared on the verge of a romping runaway, had a wildly erratic 68 that included bogeys on four of five holes coming home, followed by birdies on the last two holes.

American swimmers lead Soviets

LENINGRAD (AP) — Fourteen-year-old Tracy Caulkins won the 400-meter medley and set an American record in the 200-meter breaststroke despite finishing second Saturday as the American swimming team took a 102-62 lead over the Soviet Union after the first day of a two-day meet.

Miss Caulkins captured the medley in 4:54.12, then established the American record in the 200 breaststroke while finishing behind the Soviets' Yulia Bogdanova. Miss Caulkins was timed in 2:37.28, breaking the

Two tie at T O' T

West Texas State golfer Bill Turner and Lad Larson of Tulsa, Okla. each shot a four-under-par 67 to split the $100 day money as first-day championship medalists of the 40th Annual Top O' Texas Golf Tournament which began Saturday at the Pampa Country Club.

The pair nosed out John Goodwin of Amarillo and Borger's Jim Harren who finished with 68s.

Pampans Wiley McIntire, Steve LeCone and PCC champ Less Howard were among six golfers at 69.

Defending Top O' Texas Champion Barry Frost stumbled in with an even round 71 after making the nine-hole turn at four under. Harry Aureli of Brooklyn, N.Y., who is in the fourth flight, scorched the PCC course with a 29 on the front nine, making birdies on 1, 2, 6, 7, 8, and 9. He finished with a 66 but is ineligible for the championship flight prize money.

The tournament continues today with the higher flights scheduled to tee off at 8 a.m., and the championship golfers teeing it up at 12 noon. Cuts will be made for the championship and first flights to narrow the field for the final 36 holes on Monday.

The putting contest will be decided beginning at 4:30 p.m. today. Eddie Duenkel of Pampa is leading in the contest which has a three-day-and-night expenses paid trip to Las Vegas as first prize.

PHS volleyballers win

The Pampa girls' volleyball team returned home from a successful road trip Saturday night after winning the Borger Tournament which included teams from Borger, Perryton, and Dumas high schools.

The Harvesters beat Perryton 15-1, 15-2, Dumas 15-8, 15-3, and Borger 14-8, 15-10 in the round-robin tourney.

Thursday night the varsity and junior varsity teams opened their seasons by sweeping matches at Dumas, with the varsity winning 15-5, 15-0, and the JV coming out on top 15-2, 15-4.

The Harvesters volleyballers are scheduled to play their home opener Tuesday night against Hereford. The varsity contest will immediately follow the 6:30 JV contest.

They will also play against teams throughout the area in the West Texas State Tourney Friday and Saturday.

Meeting set

There will be a second organizational meeting for the Pampa Men's Flag Football League at the Pioneer Flame Room Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. For more information contact Herbert Wilbon, 5-1028 or 9-2118.

Bucks lose QB, game

VEGA — White Deer lost its No. 1 quarterback to a pre-game freak injury which might have been an omen as Vega completely manhandled the Bucks 56-0 Friday night.

Shane Grange stuck his hand through the glass locker room door on his way to the field, and needed 15 stitches to close the wound.

"He's not 56 points difference," said White Deer coach Mike Purcell "but you could see the air go out of the kids when they knew Shane couldn't play."

Vega picked on a porous Buck line for 443 yards rushing, led by Leonel Ramos who tallied scoring jaunts of 10, 3, and 24 yards. Rob Groves scored twice to aid the Horns' attack.

White Deer was led by senior Tim Simpson who made 12 tackles and picked up 75 yards rushing.

Phillips blanks Canadian

CANADIAN — Phillips broke two long plays for touchdowns and held Canadian to six yards total offense in the second half to whip the hosting Wildcats 15-0 Friday night.

Canadian played Phillips even until two minutes to go in the first half, a fourth-down piling on penalty gave the Blackhaws new life. Tony Guillott took advantage of the break to score on a 25-yard pass from Jeff Yarbrough for the initial touchdown.

Late in the third period, Tim Hendrick broke a trap play for 51 yards.

Canadian couldn't execute its passing game to come from behind, and quarterback sacks led to a safety when the Wildcats tried to punt out of the end zone.

Dennis Sullivan led Blackhawk rushers with 74 yards while Hendrick added 62 on 11 carries. Canadian fullback Kelly Flowers was the game's leading ground gainer with 117 yards on 19 carries.

Broncos buck past McLean

CLARENDON — Kelly Choate tallied three touchdowns, and Billy Gardner two as the Clarendon Broncos romped over McLean 49-0 Friday night in both team's season opener.

Choate got things going early with a 34-yard punt return through the Tigers' defense. He tallied the final two Clarendon scores on a 60-yard touchdown pass from Dan Brandes in the third period, and a five-yard run in the final frame.

Gardner scored on runs of three and 30 in the victory.

McLean's offense never got untracked, managing only 63 yards total offense and completing only one of 11 pass attempts.

by Tom Kensler, sports editor

Dietl echoes revived WTSU spirit

West Texas State's personable Athletic Director Dick Dietl dropped by The News last week while in town to set up a Pampa fund drive for WTSU athletics. Glen Courtney is the Pampa chapter organizer.

Dietl has done a remarkable job since coming to Canyon from Drake where he was sports information director. It's only been a few months since the rumors were flying that WTSU was going to drop football. But as of last week, Dietl was happy to report that season ticket sales for the Buffalo games were only 250 short of the all-time record.

The previous record of 3,800 was set in the Mercury Morris-Duane Thomas days of the late 60s. Last year, only 1,900 season passes were sold.

With renewed Buffalo football interest on campus and in Amarillo, Dietl projects a total attendance of 200,000 for the six home games.

"We only had 74,000 last year, and that figure of 200,000 might be a little high, but if we can get the 200,000 it would sure take some pressure off our fund drive," he said.

"We want to get off the critical list and do that we have to raise $300,000 through the Buffalo Clubs. Two hundred thousand dollars is the break-even point, but we want a cushion so we won't have to ask for money from the same contributors next year," Dietl said.

Dietl is apprehensive about the upcoming NCAA Mid-year Convention in January. He feels that the NCAA members will accept the proposal to split the Division One category into two classifications, Div. I-A, which would be the so-called "super powers," and Div. I-AA which could be termed "all you others."

A similar proposal was withdrawn before a formal vote last year, but Dietl said new provisions have been added to make the division desirable for some of the smaller conferences.

Under the latest proposal, Div. I-AA conferences would be guaranteed two television appearances in every two year period.

"Our conference is the one that is going to get hurt by the split," Dietl said. "The other conferences such as the PCAA and Big Sky are never on TV so they are getting something new."

But the Missouri Valley Conference has been on television a couple of times a year, so we won't be gaining any additional revenue."

Dietl fears that a drop to I-AA would hurt recruiting and scheduling, so he expects all MVC members to vote "no" in January. But he is sure they'll be outvoted.

Jim Hogan, junior high track coach, is planning to return to the Rockies next year as counselor for the Colorado Adventuring Distance Running Camp.

Hogan brought nine Pampans to the Camp for a two-week session, July 31-Aug. 12. Although a counselor along with Bill Crowell of Westcliffe, Colo. and Bob Roncker of Ohio, Hogan was given only room and board for the camp which cost the participants $50.

"I thought it would be great training for the cross country runners, besides being a lot of fun," Hogan said.

"But we kept up a very demanding schedule."

probably running an average of 10 miles per day up and down the mountains."

In between the cross country running, the 20 boys and two girls participated in white water tubing, horseback riding, orienteering (finding a landmark by compass), and boulder climbing. "The kids really looked forward to those activities after running for 10 miles in that altitude," Hogan said.

"The altitude training really has helped these kids," Hogan said. "Oxygen depth increases when training in the thin air, and the hills around here are nothing compared to those mountains. The slower Pampa kids are running a lot faster after going through that two week camp."

Either the University of New Mexico training table has excellent food or Rik Moore is finding that fall practice enlarges the appetite, because the former Pampa running back has gained about 10 pounds since joining the Lobos in mid-August.

Moore, now 205, is running as the third-string tailback and has hopes of making the traveling squad for the Lobos' opener against Hawaii.

Groom wins opener

CLAUDE — Junior Neil "Snake" Wieberg ran the opening kickoff back 80 yards for one score, and returned a Claude punt 70 yards for another to lead the Tigers to a 34-15 victory Friday night over the Class A Mustangs in the opener for both teams.

Wieberg, a master of the open field run, also caught a 30 yard Chris Black pass for a score and picked off two of the 41 passes that Claude threw up in its aerial circus.

As usual, the Groom offense was highlighted by a strong running attack led by fullback Kent Reed who managed 128 yards on 25 carries. Tailback John Krizan added 64 yards on 11 totes, including touchdown runs of 15 and 21 yards.

Groom coach Russell Roberts was pleased that the defensive secondary only gave up two touchdown passes. "Anytime a team puts the ball up that much, it is going to complete some and eventually score," he said. "The game was marred by numerous penalties including 21 whistles on Groom for 220 yards. "The refs told us after the game that they wanted to call the first game close so the boys knew they wouldn't get away with anything," Roberts said.

I agreed that most of our penalties were deserved, but it made for a sloppy game, and we didn't get through until eleven," he said.

MSU nips North Texas St.

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Transfer kicker Dave Marler booted a 30-yard field goal Saturday to provide the Mississippi State Bulldogs' winning margin in a 17-15 triumph over stubborn North Texas State.

Sizzling 90-degree-plus heat put a blanket on the offense, and the 10th-ranked Bulldogs' only touchdowns came on 80-yard sprints by halfbacks Len Copeland in the first quarter and James Jones in the last.

Bulldog fumbles set up both touchdowns by the Mean Green Texans. The first came at the Mississippi State 18 to set up a second-quarter score and the last at the Bulldog 22 to set up a fourth-period marker.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

PROSPECTUS

First losing season of the Don Shula seven-year regime has stung the head man of the Dolphins. On top of that there's been a drug hassle involving couple of defensive linemen. But Shula's one of most resourceful men in football, and on paper Miami shouldn't be a loser. Whatever complacency there has been dispelled. Look for Dolphins to be challenging again.

Shula

OFFENSE

Quarterback: Some muttering that long-time leader Bob Griese may be on block. But that would assume young Don Stock is ready to take over, and that's not the case—yet. Rating—B

Receiving: They have exciting trio of breakaway threats in Nat Moore, Freddie Solomon, and Danel Harris, with canny Howard Twilley for spot duty. The tight ends feature Andre Tillman for blocking, Jim Mandich to make the big catches. Rating—B+

Running: Nothing like the Csonka-Kick-Morris days. Benny Malone and Norm Bulaich, the starters, have long history of chronic injuries. There's some planning to shift Moore to the set back position in certain situations for speed. Rating—B-

Offensive Line: Strong as always in the middle, with all-pro Jim Langer at center, highly respected Bob Kuechenberg and Larry Little on each side, though first two had injuries in '76. Tackle spots are up in air because of physical problems. Rating—B

DEFENSE

Defensive Line: Real problem here because injury specter haunts and Billy Stanfill and personal problems could eliminate tackles Randy Crowder, Don Reese. Really no expectations Manny Fernandez can come back. One solid man in end Vern Den Herder. Rating—B-

Linebackers: Wiped out a year ago by knee injuries. Now expect big things from Kim Bokamper, first round draftee in '75, just as Larry Gordon proved real find. And Steve Towle looms as team leader in middle. Bob Matheson still on hand. Rating—B

Secondary: Another surgery sector. Awaiting results of knee repairs to safeties Charlie Babb, Dick Anderson, Barry Hill and corner back Tim Foley. Getting Ken Ellis helped, and Jeris White, Curtis Johnson are capable corner backs. Rating—B

Kicking, Special Teams: Garo Yepremian and Larry Seiple go back to the Super Bowl triumphs and retain the strength and accuracy in their legs to insure good place kicking, punting. For the return units, receivers Solomon, Harris excel. Rating—A-

PREDICTION

They can't possibly have same rash of knee injuries that hit last year. And you don't associate Shula with a loser. He's got couple of places to shore up. Maybe draftee A.J. Duhe will relieve defensive line problems. Still, no higher than third in AFC East.

Evert advances at Forest Hills

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Martina Navratilova and Virginia Wade, the two leading contenders for Chris Evert's throne, scored second-round victories Saturday at the $462,420 U.S. Open Championships. The second-seeded Miss Navratilova, the Czech expatriate who now resides in Dallas, beat 22-year-old Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis 6-4, 6-1.

Ms. Wade, the Wimbledon champion from Britain who is seeded third here, returned to straight tennis following her opening-round sideshow against Dr. Renee Richards and clobbered Maggie Riley, a qualifier from Dallas, 6-4, 6-0.

They thus join Miss Evert in the third round of the women's chase for a $33,000 first prize—the same as the men get. Miss Evert, seeking her third consecutive U.S. Open crown, lost just one game in winning her first two matches earlier this week.

Lefors loses

LEFORS — Running back Vincent Venhaus ran for one touchdown and two conversions to lead Happy to a 24-0 win over host Lefors Friday night.

Venhaus tallied 110 yards rushing on 17 carries for the night to lead the Cowboys. The Pirates had trouble mounting a sustained drive because of numerous penalties and mental mistakes.

"I'm not taking anything away from Happy's defense," said Lefors assistant coach Bob Rapp. "But we really played a poor offensive game with too many missed assignments."

"I hope it was partly due to nervousness and not lack of ability," he said.

Floyd Cotham led Pirate rushers with 55 yards on 14 carries.

Wheeler blanks Shamrock

SHAMROCK — Dell Ford picked up 104 yards on only seven carries, including touchdowns of 42 and 45 yards to lead the AP's No. 1 ranked Wheeler Mustangs to a 27-0 whitewashing of Shamrock Friday night.

Ford's first-quarter run was a quick opener off right tackle, outrunning the secondary to paydirt.

In the second quarter, wingback Duane Childress, who made a couple of long punt returns, caught the Irish off-balance on a trap for a 29-yard score. The final two touchdowns came in the fourth stanza with Marvin Grimes and Ford doing the honors.

Grimes picked up 94 yards on 23 carries for the evening, while Childress aided the Mustang cause with 55 yards on five totes.

Despite the shutout, Wheeler coach Preston Smith was disappointed with the Mustang's defensive effort. "They had a couple of short drives where they got a few first downs in a row. We didn't shut them down like I wanted," he said.

Petroleum may peak out in Free World

-By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer
HOUSTON (AP)—The chairman of the American Petroleum Institute says there is need to acknowledge the probability the availability of petroleum will peak out in the Free World in the 1985-1990 period.

"The conservation measures initiated by President Carter may help us bridge the critical period, we see arising in a few years," said Maurice F. Granville, who also is chairman and chief executive officers of Texaco Inc.

He added, however, that conservation alone is not the solution to the energy problem.

"What are needed are new supplies from tertiary recovery, tar sands, oil shale, heavy oil, nuclear fusion, additional contributions from coal and nuclear power and, of course, more exploration and development of conventional oil and gas, all requiring tremendous investments by the energy industry," Granville said.

"What is also needed is a sense of urgency about phasing into the forthcoming era of petroleum inadequacy. Given the long lead times necessary for developing any energy source, this nation must get on with the job now. Timing is critical."

Granville was one of 74 industry executives, scientists, and engineers taking a look toward the end of the century in articles contributed to Petroleum 2000, a special edition marking the 75th anniversary of the Oil & Gas Journal.

Granville said the peaking of Free World petroleum availability means increasing pressure will come to both conserve energy and to more rapidly exploit coal, nuclear, and other alternative energy sources.

"However, it is recognized that most of the exotic alternate energy sources that will become our ultimate renewable energy supplies will not really be able to contribute to the overall energy picture in a significant way until after the next century begins," he said.

"Petroleum liquids and natural gas will still play a dominant role as energy sources at least until then."

Granville said this nation is fortunately well endowed with the alternative basic energy resources of coal and uranium.

"But they must be developed in a time frame that will allow them to contribute in ever increasing quantity as petroleum liquid avails peak out and certainly well before we must look to more exotic energy sources," he said.

"As we approach this century's end, other energy sources will make possible the increasing use of petroleum for more desirable purposes. The decreasing use of petroleum as a stationary or furnace fuel will permit its great versatility to be used increasingly as a base for producing transportation fuels, lubricants, and petrochemicals."

Granville said there also is need to acknowledge that the rapid growth of the petroleum industry is nearing its end.

"At the same time, we must recognize there are still substantial opportunities in downstream activities," he said.

"These activities will be directed less toward volume and more toward efficiency and the production of products of higher value."

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of parents who let a 17-year-old boy hang around their house all day and half the night seven days a week? The boy is our son. Jerry has been going steady with this 15-year-old girl for nearly a year, and he has practically lived at her house all summer. He says her folks have never asked him to go home, so he just stays.

I say they should kick him out at midnight. We're so afraid that all that time together will lead to an intimacy the kids can't handle.

Two years ago, our 19-year-old son ran off and married a 17-year-old girl, and five months later, she had a nine-pound "premature" baby. We don't want a repeat of that with Jerry. He has another year of high school ahead of him.

Can you help us?

WORRIED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Don't expect the girl's parents to discipline your son. That's YOUR job. Set some rules and curfews for Jerry and see that he obeys them. In the meantime, your husband—or perhaps your older son—should have a man-to-man talk with Jerry. An ounce of prevention is preferable to a nine-pound accident.

DEAR ABBY: First let me explain that I have four children (two still in diapers), a nine-room house to take care of, and no one to help me. When my husband comes home from work, he always asks, "What did you do all day?"

Abby, I could sock him! How should I answer him?

BOILING

DEAR BOILING: Don't answer him. But tomorrow, do absolutely NOTHING! And when he comes home and finds the beds unmade, breakfast and lunch dishes in the sink, the laundry basket piled high with unironed clothes, and not a trace of supper started, if he asks what you did all day, say, "You're always asking me that. Well, today, I didn't do it!"

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I gave my granddaughter a gift of cash to be used for a trip to Europe, which is what she said she wanted more than anything else in the world.

While planning the trip, she met a young man and decided that she didn't want to leave him, so she didn't go, but she kept the check.

She married the fellow and became pregnant immediately. Now they have a child, and another one on the way, so it appears that the trip to Europe is off indefinitely.

My granddaughter claims the check that I gave her is deposited in the bank "drawing interest" for that trip—someday.

I feel that since the money was not used for the purpose it was intended, she should return it to me.

I need your opinion.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Don't ask her to return the check. If you gave it to her for a trip to Europe and didn't stipulate she had to use it within a specified period of time, it's hers to use whenever she's able to go.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB — What should my blood pressure be? I am 51 years old. I have been taking Hygroton for a long time now. Are there any side effects? The doctor I go to seems to think I'll have to take it the rest of my life.

DEAR READER — There is a common misconception that your blood pressure should be 100 plus your age. The truth is that if your blood pressure stays on the low side you will have a better chance for a long and healthy life. That means your blood pressure should be below 140 over 90 for the two readings for optimal health.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure, to give you more information on what controls your blood pressure and what it means. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Hygroton is a diuretic that helps to flush out sodium from your body and with the sodium some water. This action helps to lower the blood pressure some in many individuals with moderately elevated blood pressure.

The Health Letter I am sending you explains that if you have any excess pounds of fat, elimination of it will often lower your blood pressure. Avoiding coffee, tea, and such stimulants plus avoiding obesity and getting regular exercise often go a long way toward controlling mildly elevated blood pressure. If that doesn't do the job one of the mild diuretics often helps.

When taken in moderate amounts and the person gets enough potassium, as from drinking a couple of glasses of orange juice a day, these medicines have few if any side effects.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to clean a velvet chair and also how to get yellow from a linoleum floor. Thank you. —MRS. G.W.

DEAR MRS. G.W. — The yellow on your linoleum floor may be a wax buildup so I suggest that you remove the wax to see if that is all it is and then re-wax. A bit further on you will read an answer concerning your chair. —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My three-year-old light blue velvet sofa and chair are soiled (no stains or spots) and the cost of a professional cleaning job is prohibitive, but all the upholstery cleaning products on the market have the warning that they are not to be used on velvet. Any suggestions? —DORIS.

DEAR DORIS and MRS. G.W. — Furniture covered with velvet should be cleaned professionally and in the cleaner's own workshop as they use cleaning agents that cannot be safely used at home. Sorry but I have not been able to get any encouraging information concerning doing this at home. —POLLY.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Aaron Smith
Smith-Cates vows

Patricia Ann Cates of Las Cruces, N.M., and Mark Aaron Smith of Albuquerque, N.M., were married in an afternoon ceremony Aug. 13 in the University Presbyterian Church in Las Cruces. The Rev. Robert Scott officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Cates of Pampa, was attended by her sister, Stacy Bruce of Silver City, N.M., as matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Melinda Bullington, sister of the groom, of Albuquerque.

Attending the groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smith of Albuquerque, was Randy Rackley of El Paso as best man. Groomsman was Frank Thompson of El Paso and Virgil Bruce of Silver City was usher.

Musical selections were by the church organist and vocalist was Timothy C. Hoiles of Pampa. Assisting at the reception at Howard Johnsons were Lorraine Marsh, Kathleen Meskill and Jacqueline MacDougall.

The bride selected a formal gown of white Qiana knit designed with a Queen Anne neckline of scalloped Venice lace and a lace-banded empire bodice. Long, full Angel sleeves were trimmed in lace and her softly-gathered A-line skirt was completely unadorned. The skirt fell to a simple hem which swept to back fullness and cascaded into a full chapel length train. She wore a matching wide brimmed hat designed with a lace crown banded in satin and trimmed in lace.

The bride is a senior home economics major at New Mexico State University and is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. She is also a Sigma Alpha Epsilon Little Sister.

Smith is a junior geology major at NMSU.

Following a wedding trip throughout the Southwest the couple will be at home in Las Cruces where they will attend classes at NMSU.

Pampa News Staff

Sallie Brock Harris was afraid much of the history of the Texas Panhandle would die with the people who made it. So she spent three and one half years compiling and writing "Cowmen and Ladies: A History of Hemphill County."

The book has been published by Staked Plains Press in Canyon and Mrs. Harris will be honored at an autograph party from 2-5 p.m. Sept. 11 in the White Deer Lands Museum, 116 S. Cuyler. Hostesses will be Mrs. Fred Hobart, Mrs. Clinton Henry and Mrs. Fred Thompson.

"I wrote the book because 50 or 100 years from now these years from 1887 to 1976 would be lost and no one would know how all this came about without a record to go to for the authenticity of who came, when and what for and in what manner of accomplishment," Mrs. Harris said.

She started the book in 1974 and did much of her research at the Canadian Library.

"I just said I wanted to see what they had in the files," Mrs. Harris said. "They just turned me loose."

During her research she found histories written by Hemphill County pioneers during the 1930s for an historical fair. She was allowed to check them out to make copies of them.

Mrs. Harris moved to the Panhandle from Mangum, Okla., in a covered wagon in 1908. She was graduated from Canadian High School and attended summer normal at West Texas State Teacher's College in Canyon before teaching at Gageby from 1924-25.

She attended Wayland College and then moved to Collingsworth County where she taught from 1926-27 when she married Bonnie F. Horton. They moved to Mobeetie and she taught English and Spanish at Mobeetie High School in 1927-28.

Horton died in 1940 and Mrs. Harris moved with her two children to Canadian where she worked as a bookkeeper for various firms until she became a deputy sheriff and tax collector in 1944.

She was remarried in 1947 and returned to Mobeetie one year later. In 1955 she was elected assistant county superintendent of schools in Wheeler County, a post she had for 10 years.

She was named chairman of the Wheeler County Historical Survey Committee in 1963 and served in that capacity for seven years before resigning for health reasons. She started the Wheeler County Museum and led the celebration of the county's 90th anniversary in 1969.

In addition to her writing, Mrs. Harris is leading an effort to restore the jail at Old Mobeetie.

She traces her interest in history back to the 1940s when she worked in Canadian.

"When I was working in the sheriff's office I always loved to read old records and the history of things," she said. "Every time I had a minute, I'd go to the basement of the courthouse and read old records. Finally someone asked me why I didn't write a history."

That was all the encouragement she needed and she started seven years research on her first book, "Hidetown."

She said "Cowmen and Ladies" is 347 pages and has more than 500 old photographs from the Canadian Museum and the library. The book was edited by her daughter and copies began coming off the presses in July.

"A lot of copies were ordered in advance in January," she said.

Copies of the book are available from her at Box 189, Wheeler, or from the Staked Plains Press in Canyon. Mail order copies are available for $19 including tax and postage or books may be purchased in person for $18.38.

Mrs. Harris said she expects to have another autograph party in Amarillo later this year.

What's up in crime

Among the millions of Americans who have moved to California, Arizona, Florida, and the other growth states in recent decades, there seem to have been a generous share of crooks, judging from FBI crime statistics reported in The World Almanac. The 10 states with the highest number of crimes per 100,000 population in 1975 were:

State	crimes per 100,000
1. Arizona	8,341.5
2. Nevada	8,152.5
3. Florida	7,721.2
4. California	7,204.6
5. Michigan	6,800.7
6. Oregon	6,752.2
7. Colorado	6,675.5
8. Delaware	6,668.7
9. Alaska	6,196.6
10. Washington	6,104.9

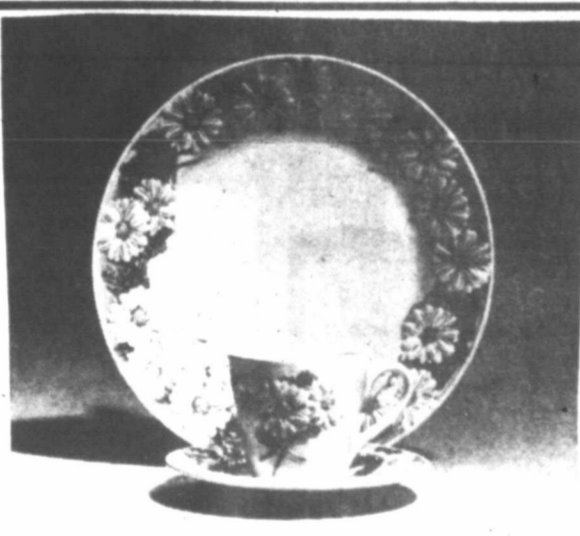

These are overall totals, including violent crime as well as property crime. The following category leaders show a more balanced geographic distribution: murder, Alabama, 16.0 (per 100,000 population); rape, Nevada, 47.1 (robbery, New York State, 51.6; assault, Florida, 399.6; burglary, Arizona, 2,529.9; larceny, Arizona, 4,747.7; and auto theft, Massachusetts, 1,571.1.

Homemaker news

By ELAINE HOUSTON
County Extension Agent

We tested a recipe for fried pies last week that was really easy and delicious. We had some dried apricots from Mr. H.D. Garrett in Lefors that we wanted to sample so we decided to try the fried pie recipes. The dough recipe was in the file and it sounded simple. It makes fifty nice size fried pies so a busy homemaker could make a batch for the family to sample and have plenty left over to put in the freezer to use in school lunches or when company drops by. Prepare and cook the pies — package and freeze or freeze before cooking.

I prepared the dough recipe the night before and cooked it the next morning. Try it and let me know if you like it, too.

Fried Pie Cust

- 5 cups flour
 - two-thirds cup shortening
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 large can evaporated milk
 - 4 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 2 whole eggs
- Mix dry ingredients. Add shortening, combine with beaten eggs and milk. Mix thoroughly. Place in greased bowl and let stand in refrigerator 2 to 3 hours or overnight. Pinch out balls the size of a large marble and roll very thin (about as thin as paper). Put cooked dried fruit filling on one side then lap over having edges of dough wet. Pick edges together with fork. Fry in deep fat then put on rack to drain or place on brown paper. Yield 50 pies.

The filling could be stewed, dried fruit, preserves, applesauce, or pie filling.

Insulate Attic
We have received some very good information with instructions for insulating the attic. You can cut your utility bills by insulating an unfinished attic. It takes a few tools, the correct amount of insulating material, strict safety precautions and several easy preparation steps. If you are considering this do-it-yourself project, let us send you a copy of the information. It tells how to select materials, how to measure, safety precautions and installation.

Home Demonstration Clubs

The home demonstration clubs are beginning to meet regularly again. Now is the time to join a club. We have eleven clubs so one is bound to fill your needs. If you aren't a member you are missing something. By not being a member of a home demonstration club, you are missing the opportunity to grow and develop as a person.

Your realm of friends will be broadened as you meet monthly with your local club. The educational experiences, and opportunities are many and varied to meet your interests. As a club member you will be able to share and develop your homemaking talents with other members. Membership is open to anyone regardless of race, color, creed, or national origin.

Existing clubs meet at various times and days. If you are interested give me a call. Or, if you want to help form a new club, let me know, the program in September will be "Fall Fabric Trends and Techniques." October — "Low Calorie Foods." November — "Festive Foods" and December is the Christmas parties. Call me soon so that you, too, may be a member of this active group of women.

Age doesn't worry her

Rosalynn Carter

"I'm too busy to think about my age," says Rosalynn Carter, whose 50th birthday is August 18. "If I were sitting around and just worrying about getting older, it might bother me, but I've never had time for that. I take after my mother, who looks much younger than she is because she worked all her life, was active and didn't depend on anyone."

Rosalynn Carter wasn't always as self-confident as she now appears. In fact at the outset of her husband's political career, she preferred to watch from a distance rather than face crowds and make speeches.

Mrs. Ricky Don Welch
Former Rebecca Lynne Hall

Welch-Hall wedding

Miss Rebecca Lynne Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hall of 1300 D. Foster, became the bride of Ricky Don Welch of 520 Yeager in a ceremony read at 7:30 p.m. July 29 in the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly in Pampa.

The Rev. Gene Allen, pastor, officiated. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Allen Wells of 206 Isham and Johnny Welch of Cleveland, Okla. Mrs. Gene Allen was organist, with Miss Heidi Allen as vocalist.

The bride's maid of honor was Karla Smith of Amarillo. Bridesmaids were Karla Rhotem of Miami and Darla Welch, sister of the bridegroom, from Cleveland, Okla.

Candlelighters were Janet Hall and Gayla Larkin, with Christy Hall as flower girl.

Melody Dennis, two-year-old cousin of the bride, was miniature bride.

Rice girls were La Chandra and Rhonda Hall, cousins of the bride, from Liberal, Kan.

Best man was Joe Morgan of Michigan. Groomsmen were Kevin Hall and Steve Carter, both of Pampa.

The bride wore a formal gown of white bridal satin designed with A-line skirt attached to a high waisted satin band. The bodice featured an overlay of lace which matched the long lace sleeves. The bride wore the pearls her mother wore at her wedding 19 years ago. Her floor-length veil was fashioned of white illusion and attached to a headpiece of daisies.

The reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Kathy Dennis, Virginia Welch and Brenda Hall assisted as members of the houseparty.

The couple now live at 520 Yeager following a wedding trip to Amarillo.

The bride will be a senior student at Pampa High School this fall. She is now employed at Highland General Hospital. Her husband, a graduate of Pampa High School in May, is employed at Atlas Construction Co.

BANGOR PROGRAM

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — The Bangor Symphony will open its 1977-78 season with a Chamber Series Concert in Portland Hall given by the symphony's chamber orchestra.

Among attractions in the chamber series are Astor Magna, a group that performs on original instruments, the Bangor Symphony String Quartet, the Down East Players and the Portland String Quartet.

The full orchestra will include among its repertoire in the coming season Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" and Verdi's "Otello."

Mrs. Scott Sharman
The former Phyllis Hunter

Sharman-Hunter wedding

Miss Phyllis Hunter, southwest of Pampa, and Scott Sharman of Albuquerque, N.M., were married Aug. 13 in the First Baptist Church of Pampa with the Rev. Claude Cone officiating. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hunter, of Pampa. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sharman of Albuquerque.

Special music was presented by vocalists Debbie Kehnick and John Glover. Norma Goad as organist.

The bride's maid of honor was Gay Thames of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Linda Hunter, sister of the bride, and Jane Novacek of Omaha, Neb.

Candlelighters were Lisa Hunter, sister of the bride, and Michelle Lance of Mena, Ark. Flower girl was Angie Belt of Texarkana, Ark. Leslie Sharman, sister of the groom, registered guests.

Jim Sharman, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Steve Garrett and Gary Tipton, Albuquerque. Ushers were Joe Hunter, brother of the bride, and Dub Ruoff of Albuquerque. Ringbearer was Greg Estes of High Springs, Tex.

For her wedding, the bride chose a formal gown of candlelight chiffon with an A-line skirt and full length train. The bodice and sleeves were accented with Venice lace. The veil was made by her mother.

The reception was in the parlor of the church with Karen Hunter, Janice Warren, and Gloria Holt assisting at the brides table. Cindy Sharman and Lynn Ruoff assisted at the groom's table. After a honeymoon, the couple will be dorm counselors at Caprock Hall, Wayland Baptist College in Plainview.

Red River sets fest

Red River's fifth annual Aspencade and Square Dance Festival has been set for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 at the mountain resort.

The autumn festival, an outgrowth of the annual Arts and Crafts Fair, traditionally is scheduled to catch the peak period in the aspens' change from the green of summer to the reds and golds of autumn.

Included in Aspencade's schedule of events will be two evenings of Square and Round dancing Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 at the Red River Community House. Noted regional callers Roy Johnson and Sid Perkins of Amarillo will alternate duties from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. with round dance instructors - callers Les and Alberta Grumke, of Amarillo, supervising round dancing activities.

A highlight and predecessor of Aspencade, is the annual Red River Arts and Crafts Fair, Oct. 1 and 2. The annual affair gathers the works of some of the finest artists and craftsmen in northern New Mexico. Featuring the works of resident and non-resident artists, the judged show and sale is the culmination of summer arts and crafts activities in the area. The show is open.

One vacancy for every 6 applicants

Vet hopefuls beat at college doors

EDITOR'S NOTE — Job prospects are fairly bright for at least one group of college graduates — doctors of veterinary medicine. Trouble is, there are only 22 vet schools in the country, which makes prospects dim for getting in.

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer
URBANA, Ill. (AP) — A desire of young people to return to the land, and an awareness of yet another profession open to women, is putting the squeeze on the nation's veterinary schools.

Officials say there are six fully qualified applicants for each vet school vacancy, compared with three for each medical school opening.

At the University of Illinois last fall there were 500 applicants — more than double the number in 1970 — for 76 vacancies in the veterinary school. Even more might have applied, but the school actively discouraged prospective students and didn't consider anyone from out of state.

"We really feel that with such a large demand by Illinois residents that we have to accept Illinois applicants first," Dean Richard Dierks said in an interview.

Dierks says this attitude prevails among officials of the nation's 22 veterinary schools, making the prospects dismal for would-be animal doctors in the 26 states with no veterinary schools.

Oddly, it is mostly the folks in wide-open cattle country who are being shut out of the profession. Between the Pacific Ocean and Iowa only California, Colorado and Washington maintain veterinary schools. Washington shares the costs with Idaho and Oregon.

To ease a similar situation in the South, four new veterinary schools have opened in the past five years: At the University of Tennessee, Mississippi State University, University of Florida and Louisiana State University.

The vacuum in states without vet schools is drawing graduates from states like Illinois, where about half of the 1976 class moved out of state. However, officials say some of these young vets may be going through a voluntary internship and eventually will return home.

Dierks says there is an obvious need for veterinarians in every state, but the stumbling block is money. "It costs $40 million to $50 million to start up a plant from scratch, and $5 million to $8 million to maintain it each year. States without a large population base just can't afford the expense," he says.

Why the incredible interest in the veterinary profession? Dierks believes it's because of "the whole movement back to the land, out of the city — a generation of young people wanting to work in ecology, energy or nature."

"Well, I've always worked with livestock on the farm, and I like them," says Tom Rogers.

17, of Clinton, who will enter the University of Illinois this fall as a freshman. "Veterinarians get pretty high pay, too. But it means rotten hours and rotten work if you don't like animals."

"You've got to remember, too, that one-third of our entering class the last two years has been female," says Dr. H.S. Bryan, assistant dean of admissions at Illinois.

"Part of the reason for the pressure is that females have discovered the profession now. Before, this was an all-male field."

Bryan says a survey of the entering class of 1976 showed that "81 per cent of our successful applicants were not farm-reared." Thirty per cent came from large cities.

The American Veterinary Medicine Association, based in Schaumburg, Ill., is financing a manpower study to see whether the job market for vets will support a mushrooming number of graduates.

"The answer is about a year away," says Dr. R.L. West, the association's director of scientific activities, "but we know the (job market) demand is considerably less than the demand to get into the colleges."

At Illinois, Dr. Bryan says he expects the "usual two or three solid job offers" for every graduate.

Starting salaries for vets average $17,500, but Dr. Bryan says that a big-city pet doctor can make up to $200,000 a year after expenses.

Schools are adding about 2,500 veterinarians a year to a work force estimated at 30,000. Of the existing professionals, says West, about 9,300 are in small animal practices, mostly treating pets in cities.

Another 9,000 are small-town practitioners with a clientele of pets and farm animals, and 1,800 treat only farm animals. The remainder work for regulatory agencies, the military or schools.

Most colleges have eliminated pre-vet programs. Bryan says Illinois dropped its program three years ago because "too many qualified people were not getting admitted (to the College of Veterinary Medicine) ... and it caused heartaches beyond anything we could cope with."

Tom Rogers, named Illinois Star Farmer of 1977 by the Future Farmers of America, has enrolled in animal science.

"You keep your grades up, cross your fingers and hope for the best," he says. "If I can't get in, I'll still have a useful degree, and I can go back and farm."

One state without a veterinary school is Wisconsin, where dairy farms are a major industry.

Albert Beaver, academic planner for the University of Wisconsin, says that about 400 Wisconsin students are enrolled in some type of pre-vet program. Their only hope to become veterinarians is to win one of 17 spaces available to Wisconsin residents each year through a reciprocal agreement with the University of Minnesota. "Students get counseled out" of enrolling, he says.

State officials are considering several options to improve the situation, Beaver says, including paying Minnesota up to $12,000 per student to increase Wisconsin's allotment in the vet school from 17 to 35.

The legislature also is considering building a veterinary school in the state. Using some existing facilities, it would cost at least $25 million to build, Beaver says, and $4 million to $5 million a year to operate.

The University of Wisconsin is not endorsing the proposal, he adds. "While there is a need for a veterinary school in the state, we have other resource needs that are just as pressing."

Stop selling Texas worms!

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A Texas firm has been ordered to stop selling worms in Oklahoma.

State Securities Administrator Bruce Day issued the order against Royal Earthworms and two of its McKinney, Tex., officers Thursday.

He said the company has been offering earthworm growing investment programs in which the worms are sold to purchasers for prices substantially higher than wholesale. Royal has allegedly offered an option contract to purchase all worms raised from the original stock.

What's up on the job

More Americans are employed in the manufacturing area than in any other broad field of endeavor, although the government takes a healthy percentage of the work force, here are the rankings:

Field	Per cent of work force
1. Manufacturing	23.9
2. Wholesale and retail	19.1
3. Government	16.1
4. Services	14.8
5. Transportation	5.7
6. Finance, insurance, Real Estate	4.7
7. Construction	4.4
8. Agriculture	3.9

TEXAS TALK
By Roy Howard

How're you gonna keep 'm down on the farm is still the unanswered question among USDA demographers with farm population dwindling more rapidly than they'd care to admit. But that hasn't kept rural America from experiencing a moderate boom. Between 1970 and 1975, rural areas grew by more than 3 1/2 million people. While more Americans are putting down roots in rural areas not many of them are farmers. Many say they like the country and lifestyle, but even this sentiment is being tempered by a variety of things: many rural people use more gasoline than city folks and with gas prices the way they are, it doesn't seem practical to move to a smaller community. So... the rural migration from the city could roll to a stop because of a shortage of gas.

rector of the CIA. Frank Flaherty (Robert Vaughn), the President's top aid, isolates him and strikes fear among the White House staff. In his first major decision, the President escalates the war in Southeast Asia by ordering the bombing of a neutral country. He issues orders that no word of the action is to leak out. It leaks anyway, and Monckton and his staff look for a way to cover themselves, the President claiming the press is out to get him. (2 hours)

TV Star Scene

Citing ill health, Esther Rolle has asked to be released from Good Times and been granted the release. Executive producers for the show said, "We will not replace Esther with another actress. We will deal with her absence in a way we believe is both dramatic and realistic. The Evans family structure will be maintained, altering it to fit the new circumstances." Sounds like the kids will become orphans this fall. You'll remember John Amos was killed off on the series last season when he quit the show... ABC and Gabe Kaplan will take a shot at NBC's Big Event in the late fall when the Welcome Back, Kotter star heads "Gabriel Kaplan Presents the Small Event." Special guests on this special which spoofs specials are Cindy Williams, Sid Caesar and Fred (Fernwood Tonight) Willard.

Baa Baa Black Sheep, which was shot down somewhat prematurely last season by the brass at NBC, is back in the air, thanks to the efforts of series' star Robert Conrad. The return date hasn't been set, but production has started, which points to an early season replacement post for the WW II flyboys... Robert Blake is the guy that hates the "suits" but it seems he'll be joining the tuxedo set as host of this year's Emmy Awards. The outspoken actor will control the podium on Sept. 11, when NBC airs the show, beginning at 9 p.m. (EDT). He is also nominated for Best Actor in a Series.

Masterpiece Theatre will launch another 52 weeks of new programming on October 30, following the conclusion of the currently-running "Dickens of London." Among the shows and stars set to light up the PBS schedule are: "I, Claudius," the rise and fall of 25 B.C. Emperor Claudius. Derek Jacobi stars as the stutterer who came to rule the world.

Also featured are John Hurt and Stan Phillips. Tolstoy's greatest novel, "Anna Karenina," will come to life in January. Heading the cast are Nicola Pagett (Elizabeth on the first "Upstairs, Downstairs" series), Eric Porter (Soames of "The Forsyte Saga") and Stuart Wilson of "The Pallisers." Later, there will be Jane Seymour, of NBC's "Seventh Avenue," co-starring with Leo McKern and John McEnery in a spine-tingling murder mystery, "Our Mutual Friend." Plus, "Pol-dark" will swashbuckle his way through 16 new episodes. Not a bad line-up at all.

Fans of J.R.R. Tolkien's classic, "The Hobbit," will have a special treat this Thanksgiving, when NBC airs a new animated version of the happenings in the mythical land of middle-earth, on Nov. 27. Voices for the film were provided by a number of well-known actors. Orson Bean speaks for Bilbo Baggins, the little Hobbit around whose adventures the story revolves. John Huston is Gandalf, the Wizard. Smaug the Dragon is Richard Boone. Other voices are Otto Preminger as the Elf King, Cyril Ritchard as Elrond, chief of the elves, Hans Conrard as Thorin Oakenshield, leader of the dwarves, and Brother Theodore, night club monologist, as Gollum, the creature of darkness. The original soundtrack for the show was done by Glenn Yarbrough, lead singer of The Limelighters.

Jose Ferrer is set to star in CBS' mini-series, "The Return of Capt. Nemo," based on the character from Jules Verne's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." Additions to other mini-series are: game show host Peter Marshall and Michael Constantine to "79 Park Avenue;" Anthony Franciosa, Michelle Phillips and Jessica Harper to "Aspen."...

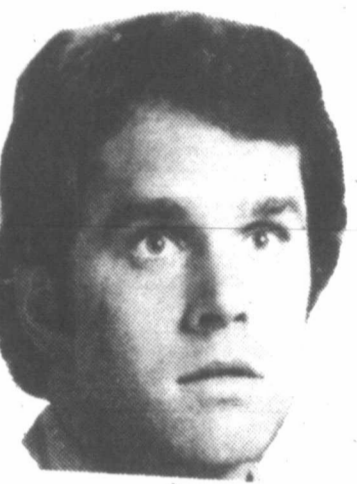

TV Dialogue

STARSTRUCK— How old is Mark Hamill? Is he married? Does he have any movies planned for the near future? Also, I heard he was in an accident. When, where and where can I send a get well card? Susan Joy, Fort Collins, Col.

Although he looks to be about 16, Hamill is 26 years old. He's single. At the moment, he is working on a picture for Metro, called "Stingray." Starring with him in this contemporary car chase comedy are Annie Potts, Richard Schall, Eugene Roche, and (those of you who tuned in to The Partridge Family, take note) Danny Bonaduce. Save the get well card for a relative, Hamill was in a car wreck, but it was months ago. He's since had plastic surgery, and looks nearly as good as new.

AIRES— How old is Paul Michael Glaser and when is his birthday? Also, I heard there were hundreds of Playboy bunnies used for the first episode of Starsky & Hutch, is this true? I also heard that there won't be any violence on the show. If they're cops, how can there be no violence? Luke McCann, Troy, N.Y.

First things first. Glaser is a 34-year-old Aires, born March 25th. Bunnies reproduce at a rapid rate, but a hundred is way too many. The show which was filmed in Hawaii employed about 25 or so curvaceous cuties from the Playboy fold. That, in itself, tells you that the show is concentrating on some other things besides violence.

HOT SINGLE— Why did George Harrison, once one of the Beatles, just get divorced from his wife Pattie. Could you print a recent picture of him, I want to see if he's still very cute. G.F., Longview, Wash.

The divorce was automatic, after their two year separation. One reason is Pattie Boyd Harrison fell in love with Eric Clapton, legendary guitarist and good friend of George's. George didn't seem to mind the new coupling since he was wandering a bit himself, and that was that. Unfortunately, I don't have a recent photo, but I can tell you he's as sunken-cheeked as ever... has a moustache at the moment and is sporting a healthy tan. He's probably not as "cute" as in the early '60s, since he's now in his mid-30s, but judging from your handwriting, it wouldn't seem you were old enough to have known George back then.

RUNNING— CBS announced it was having Logan's Run on this fall. Who is playing Logan? Are they using the same cast as from the movie? What has happened to Michael York and Jenny Agutter from the original?

A young actor named Gregory Harrison is playing Logan in the series, while Heather Menzies is taking over the Jenny Agutter role. Michael York can currently be seen in "The Island of Dr. Moreau," and Agutter is looking for work I would assume. At the moment she hasn't been announced for any TV series or feature films.

New era more fact than fiction

Space shuttle: dream castle in the sky

EDITOR'S NOTE — The recent test flight of the space shuttle brings us one step closer to a new era of orbiting factories and power stations. Work is under way right now on these concepts, once considered only the stuff of science fiction.

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Before long, we may be building castles in the air.

They won't have turrets or moats, but these castles will seem just as dream-like. They will be outposts in space, perhaps factories where men manufacture medicine or industrial products, or power stations beaming energy back to earth.

While the test flight of the space shuttle was capturing national attention last month, efforts were already under way on the ground, with less fanfare, to design and develop the space castles the shuttle will help build.

The fabrication of structural beams in space would be the first step in the construction process. It would be too expensive and difficult to carry beams into space in launch vehicles.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration-Marshall Space Flight Center recently awarded a $110,000 contract to the General Dynamics Convair Division of San Diego, Calif., to study the space fabrication of beams — "a study that will become part of the ground work in NASA's long-range plans for industrialization of space for the benefit of man."

NASA also has recently awarded a $700,000 contract to Rockwell International's Space Division in Downey, Calif., to study further the possibility of a satellite solar power system for sending electrical energy back to earth.

At the Grumman Aerospace Corp. in Bethpage, N.Y., engineers are building a ground demonstration module for beam fabrication under contract with NASA-MSCF.

Detailed design and feasibility studies also are under way at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory and Ecom Inc., according to Peter E. Glaser of Arthur D. Little in Cambridge, Mass., who first proposed the concept in 1968.

The industrial team working with Arthur D. Little includes Grumman for structure and transportation, the Raytheon Co. for microwave components and Spectrolab Inc. for solar cells.

At the Third Princeton-American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics Conference on Space Manufacturing Facilities, Princeton University physicist Gerald K. O'Neill reported that NASA has recently made grants to support research and development of two mind-boggling concepts.

One of them is O'Neill's idea for what he calls a "mass-driver," a new way to propel matter. It is a series of catapults that would be built on the moon, and filled there with lunar surface material. The catapults would hurl this stuff toward a more specific spot in space where it would be caught. There the abundance of minerals in the lunar soil would be extracted chemically and used to construct solar power stations or a space habitat. The second grant is for a study of such chemistry.

A demonstration model of a mass-driver has been built at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. If such an idea comes to reality it would make the moon a springboard into deep space.

A design for an orbital factory for processing and manufacturing with lunar materials was presented to the Princeton conference by Gerald W. Driggers, research engineer at the Southern Research Institute in Birmingham, Ala.

And beyond this, Princeton physicist Brian O'Leary, a former astronaut, proposes that a mass-driver propulsion system for a space tug could be used to capture metal-rich asteroids coming close to the earth. The asteroid metals would then be used for space construction.

In mid-August, a scientific group met at the University of California, San Diego, and recommended that NASA begin a program aimed at mining the moon and asteroids, perhaps by the year 2000.

A first step would be to launch an unmanned spacecraft into lunar orbit to assess the amounts of various metals and minerals, examining nearly all the moon's surface. Asteroids could be examined for mineral content by telescope, the California workshop recommended.

One proposed space system would be a group of solar energy collectors in a geostationary orbit 22,300 miles up. In such an orbit, the station would always appear from earth to be in the same place.

The station would beam energy by microwave to an earth receiver, where it would be converted to electricity and fed into existing power grids.

But there are technical, economic and environmental questions.

"The environmental effects of the proposed system are expected to be within acceptable limits," Glaser of Arthur Little wrote in the February issue of "Physics Today."

"The effects on birds and on aircraft flying through the beam are projected to be negligible, but they should be experimentally determined."

Over 30 years, such a station could produce electricity at a cost of 27 mills per kilowatt hour, compared with an average 35 mills per kilowatt hour from earthbound nuclear or oil plants, Glaser says.

Glaser also believes that the costs of developing such a system — perhaps $44 billion — would be repaid if 60 power satellites were operating by the year 2014.

Donald Rapp of the University of Texas at Dallas called Glaser a "dreamer" and said, "The costs projected by Glaser are mostly wishful thinking."

And John Zinn of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory said, "This proposal looks like just one more aerospace industry boondoggle to me."

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK
My neighbor, Wanda Weir, was complaining to me the other day about her son. "That kid is going to drive me crazy," she said. "Everytime I turn around he wants to be paid for what he does. Do you know what he had the nerve to give me my last Mother's Day? He gave me a chintzy little plaque made out of library paste and toothpicks that he made himself."

"I think that's rather sweet," I said.

"From a 19-year-old boy?"

I know how Wanda feels. Our son's middle name is, "Do I have to use my own money?"

Some years ago, in a burst of parental insanity, we initiated the "allowance" system at our house. We thought it would be an incentive to do a good job, instill a first and working knowledge of how our free enterprise system works, and give him a feeling of financial independence. We didn't know then he was saving up for a down payment to buy Nevada.

What do we get for our $2 a week?

We get the table cleared whether we are still eating or not. I have had my coffee cup snatched from my mouth while my lips were still blistering.

We get a decision-maker who decides that the remains of a $6 sirloin should be tossed down the disposer while a peach seed floating in a bowl of syrup should be saved in the refrigerator.

We get a garbage hustler whose open lid policy has attracted dogs who have taken buses to get to our garbage can smorgasbord each night.

Every week, his money goes into the bank, giving life to a new adage, "It is better to receive than to give." Whether it's gum, a movie, a poster, a record, there is always the perennial, "Do I have to use my own money?"

Yesterday, we stopped in front of an ice cream parlor and I could just anticipate his next question. So I said to him, "I do not think you realize that it costs parents $147.154 to raise just one child. That includes education, health expenses, clothes, housing, food, and the potential salary of a mother who might have worked but stayed at home to raise the child. There is some sacrifice involved. Of course, we wouldn't have it any other way. But think about it. Imagine that in a lifetime your father and I will have coughed up $147.154 on your behalf."

He was silent for a moment, then got out of the car and went in for the ice cream. When he returned, he handed me a cone and said, "I only got one dip each for us. I didn't think you could afford two dips each."
