Israel May Balk On Sinai Pullout

A-J News Services

TEL AVIV, Israel — Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin warned today that if the U.N. troop mandate in the Sinai is not renewed Tuesday, it might seriously affect implementation of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The Israeli cabinet Sunday rejected a U.S. proposal to replace the U.N. Emergency Force troops in Sinai with a U.N. observer force when the UNEF mandate expires at midnight Tuesday.

Under the terms of the treaty, Israel was scheduled to return more of the Sinai peninsula to Egypt Wednesday. The pullout is to be made from 2,000 square miles of territory in southwestern Sinai and is to be the second withdrawal since the treaty was signed in March.

If no U.N. forces will be present in the area Wednesday, Yadin said in an interview with the state-run radio, "that might create a serious problem about implementation of the peace agreement. We are in contact now with the United States."

Militarily, the Israeli withdrawal will give Egypt a land link between southern Sinai and north-central Sinai for the first time since the 1967 war, when Israel captured the entire peninsula.

UNEF, which derives its authority from the U.N. Security Council, monitors the peace in Sinai and verifies that Egypt and Israel adhere to the provisions set forth in the treaty and the Sinai troop disengagement agreement.

The observer force — officially called the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization — is responsible only to the U.N. Secretary general and was set up following the 1949 armistice agreement. American and Soviet troops paticipate in it.

Israeli sources gave several reasons for the cabinet's rejection of the U.S.-Soviet compromise proposal:

— UNTSO no longer is suitable since peace, not an armistice, exists between Egypt and Israel.

— U.N. forces should carry the weight of the Security Council so they cannot be withdrawn without its consent.

— The force should be composed of countries with which Israel has diplomatic relations. The Soviet Union and Israel have not had diplomatic ties since the 1967 war.

"In the interest of furthering the process of peace in Sinai, it is probable that Egypt will agree to Israel's request that no Americans or Russians will be present in the U.N. observer corps monitoring the situation in Sinai," Ghali said today during a visit to Geneva, Switzerland.

Meanwhile, Lebanese government officials said today it will bring a protest to the U.N. Security Council over Israeli air raids south of Beirut that killed more than 20 persons and injured at least 50 Sunday.

The spokesman said most of the casualties were Lebanese civilians returning along the Mediterranean highway from weekend picnics. He said rescue teams were still searching for more victims.

Israeli jets returned to the skies over southern Lebanon today, apparently on reconnaissance missions. Palestinian anti-aircraft cannon and missiles fired on the intruders but did not report any hits.

Energy Back In Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, whose reshaping of his White House staff is expected to consume less of his time than his Cabinet shakeup, is likely to return to work this week on energy issues.

"Now that the Cabinet-level changes have been made, there will be additional focusing of the president's attention on the Energy Mobilization Board and the Energy Security Corp.," White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday.

Proposals to establish the board, intended to cut through red tape to speed up development of energy projects, and to create the energy corporation to finance energy development, were sent to Congress last week. The Senate Energy Committee tentatively agreed Saturday to support the mobilization board.

While he has completed the firings that shook his Cabinet last week, the president is still looking for a new secretary of housing and urban development, a new Federal Reserve Board chairman and a new transportation secretary.

Some of the changes he is contemplating in his White House staff, although unlikely to add any new faces to the inner circle of advisers, may be revealed this week, Powell said.

And Hamilton Jordan, Carter's newly named chief of staff, said today that the president intends to widen "the circle of persons inside and outside government that will give him advice."

In an interview, Jordan was questioned about the number of Georgians advising Carter.

"The shakeup is not over. ..." Jordan replied. "It is not an unusual thing for a president to have people in the White House around him from their home state."

He added that the "influence of the Georgians on the staff — myself included — has been greatly exaggerated. My new responsibilities as chief of staff have been greatly exaggerated. I will not stand between the president and his Cabinet. I will not be the boss of the Cabinet. I will try to work to manage in a better way the affairs of the White House."

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a potential rival to Carter for the 1980 Democratic nomination, said today he doubts the Cabinet shakeup will help the chief executive and said it raises questions about the president's "grasp of the role of the Cabinet."

"I can't believe it's going to be positive," Brown said in a taped interview on a TV network. "The Cabinet is part of the institution of the presidency, and when it is shaken up with so little advance warning and with so minimal rationale, it can't possibly help the candidacy or the presidency of Jimmy Carter."

In another interview today, presidential troubleshooter Robert Strauss said Washingtonians have overreacted to

Texas Coast Warned Of New Storm

A-J News Services

Tropical Storm Claudette came back to life in the Gulf of Mexico today, packing 40 mile-an-hour winds and threatening to intensify during the day. Gale warnings were posted along parts of the Texas coast.

The storm, which had previously been downgraded to a tropical depression, lurked about 200 miles southeast of Galveston at 8 a.m. and was moving to the northwest at 12 mph.

Tides in Galveston were about three feet above mean sea level. Winds along the upper Texas coast were 15 to 20 mph and gusty.

Forecasters said Claudette was expected to turn more to the north and pick up forward speed during the day.

Gale warnings were posted from Freeport to Biloxi, Miss., and small-craft operators from Port O'Conner to Apalachicola, Fla., were advised to stay close to port.

In Lubbock, under partly cloudy skies, temperatures are expected to climb to the mid-90s this afternoon and Tuesday, with a low tonight near 70 degrees.

Early today scattered thunderstorms were reported in the northeastern Panhandle, moving to the southeast at 25 mph. The NWS said thunderstorm activity will continue in the Panhandle through Tuesday as a weak upper level disturbance pushes over the region this afternoon and tonight.

The extended South Plains forecast shows clear to partly cloudy skies through the end of the work week, with a slight chance of afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms.

Defense Chief Vows To Enforce SALT II

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown told the Senate Armed Services Committee today he would not hesitate to recommend terminating the SALT II treaty if the Soviet Union were detected in a major violation of its provisions.

"I would not hesitate to recommend to the president that we take whatever steps necessary to meet the threat — including, if need be, treaty abrogation," Brown said.

The defense secretary took the Carter administration's case for the strategic arms limitation pact before some of its toughest critics with the opening of hearings by the Armed Services Committee.

He told the panel that "we can adequately verify Soviet compliance with the provisions of SALT II. We will be able, by our own intelligence efforts, to detect a Soviet violation in time to react so as to block or offset any substantive military advantage that could result from the violation."

Brown also emphasized the administration's determination to spend whatever is necessary to modernize U.S. defense forces and maintain military balance with the Soviet Union.

"Our overall deterrent is not as weak as the pessimists would have us believe," he said. "It is not as strong as I would like it to be."

Noting that the strategic nuclear forces covered by the treaty "count for a relatively small portion of our defense expenditures," Brown said the agreement would free funds to upgrade other parts of U.S. defense forces.

Brown was the first of several administration witnesses scheduled to appear before the Armed Services Committee this week in support of the agreement.

While the panel does not have formal jurisdiction for the treaty, its views on the military significance of the pact will be influential in the Senate.

Formal jurisdiction lies with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which opened hearings two weeks ago and is continuing them.

Some of the treaty's most vocal critics are on the Armed Services Committee, including Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., John Tower, R-Texas, Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

In addition, the administration will be looking for indications which way the committee's chairmen, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., are leaning on the agreement. Both are regarded as extremely influential senators on defense issues.

In his opening statement, Stennis emphasized his concern over the effect the agreement will have on the military balance between the United States and the Soviet Union.

On the question of verification, Stennis said, "I do not trust the Russians and require full proof that we can detect any cheating on their part."

Tower made clear in his statement his opposition to the treaty as submitted by the administration and his belief that it must either be amended or rejected.

The Texas senator said the treaty would provide "numerous major advantages to the Soviet Union" and added that "where imbalances are allowed which impose unacceptable risks to United States security, they must be corrected."

Bank Raises Prime Rate

By The Associated Press

First National Bank of Chicago today raised its prime lending rate from 11.5 percent to 11.75 percent, effective immediately.

Banking industry analysts had predicted that commercial banks would have to raise prime rates following the Federal Reserve Board decision Friday to raise the discount rate from 9.5 percent to a record 10 percent.

The discount rate is the price the Federal Reserve charges member banks who borrow funds from the Fed. The higher the discount rate, the higher the cost of funds to banks.

The prime rate is the base level for interest banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers.

County Protests Road Fund Cut

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County commissioners today approved a resolution protesting a $54,632 budget cut in state road funds by Gov. Bill Clements.

"We, the undersigned, do hereby request the State of Texas return to Lubbock County its share of the Lateral Road Fund in the amount of $54,632," the resolution, passed this morning, says. "The funds will be used for improvement of Lubbock County lateral roads."

County Judge Rodrick Shaw said commissioners courts over the state were sent letters from Clements saying the monies would not be sent in 1980 because the state agency administering them, the Board of County and District Road Indebtedness, is being abolished next year.

"It bothers me because that $54,000 is more than a penny of our tax rate," Shaw said.

A statewide total of $7.4 million will not go to county governments next year as a result of the change under state "Sunset" legislation affecting some state agencies.

The commissioners this afternoon were to consider approving a $21,000-per-year assistant for county computer department head Bill McCullough, who asked for the assistant several weeks ago in a presentation on the increasing work load in the new department.

In other business this morning, the commissioners approved the hiring of Marty Davis, a Texas Tech University graduate in agriculture education this summer, as assistant Lubbock County Extension Service agent.

Blacks Urged To Train For Business Ventures

By DEBBIE STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Blacks should learn as much as they can in life to be able to work rather than be worked, a Dallas businessman told participants in the Black Consumer and Business Seminar here today.

"We must stop depending on the niceness of white folks," Dr. Anthony T. Davis told about 70 people attending the one-day seminar sponsored by the Lubbock Digest newspaper at the Memorial Civic Center.

Davis said blacks must learn to stand on their own two feet and that they must know more things to do more things.

The one thing that keeps most people poor, Davis said, is that any time they get extra money, either from a pay raise or other source, they spend it on personal luxuries.

"Stop spending your money on creature comforts," Davis, owner of three nightclubs, three shoe stores and several other businesses, told the group. "Learn to put aside your money so you can start saving it."

Davis outlined 20 steps to success and wealth, with the first being that people must learn to accept training as part of a step up the ladder. Davis said most people resist training to learn something new, but that education is necessary to get promoted in any aspect of life.

Davis said people must meet with each other within a business and then

Rosalynn Says Jimmy Healthy, Happy

HARLINGEN (UPI) — First lady Rosalynn Carter, knocking down attacks from two Republican senators, is stressing that President Carter "is healthy" and a "great leader."

On the second day of a four-day trip to Illinois, Arkansas, Texas and California, Mrs. Carter today tours a clinic for low-income families in Harlingen, a camp for emotionally and phssically disadvantaged in Fort Worth, and then attends a Democratic fundraising reception in Dallas.

The first lady went out of her way Sunday to defend her husband's health during stops in Arkansas — twice during a speech in Pine Bluff and again that night at the governor's mansion in Little Rock.

Last week, Senate Republican whip Ted Stevens of Alaska questioned Carter's mental health and suggested he needed a rest after the president dismissed five of his Cabinet members.

"He is healthy. He is happy," she told several hundred persons invited to an outdoor reception at the home of Gov. Bill Clinton.

"He is confident and optimistic about the future of America and so am I," she told the group, volunteers for a school immunization program.

In offering a justification for the changes Carter made last week in his Cabinet, Mrs. Carter said, "We need in Washington, in the White House, a very tight, good group that can work together."

"Most of these changes had been anticipated. Most of the people knew they were going to leave," she added.

Earlier at a self-help project in Pine Bluff, Mrs. Carter twice told a crowd of some 2,000 that the president is well.

"He is healthy. We're having a wonderful time at the Wite House," she said.

The first lady spoke briefly with reporters, amid displays of handwork done in the Ozark Mountains, and insisted she was not troubled by current criticism of her husband.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., Saturday called on Carter to remove his name as a potential nominee for the Democratic pary's 1980 standard bearer. Weicker labeled Carter "the one soft spot in our presidential system" because "we have no way of removing a president who lacks the capacity for the job."

Mrs. Carter shrugged off such attacks, saying "it doesn't bother me at all. I think he's doing a great job."

"He is optimistic and confident ... I think he's a great leader," she said.

Earlier Sunday, Mrs. Carter delivered a speech to the National Urban League in Chicago in which she complained that "we are losing our values."

Small Wood Box Helps Treat Retarded Youths

By CHRIS ANGELO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Six-year-old Jimmy is regularly confined in an empty wooden box. It's helping to make him better.

The "quiet room," about the size of a small closet, is being used to treat some severely emotionally-disturbed or retarded children.

Jimmy, which is not his real name, had a quiet room at the mental health institute where he spent a year. Now he has two — in his bedroom at home and in his classroom at a public school in Wisconsin.

He sometimes still has to spend a few minutes there, like when he flies into a tantrum instead of obeying his mother. He is always first given a chance to take a "time out," which means sitting quietly on the floor for one minute wherever his mother points.

Sometimes he just cannot or will not do that, not even for one minute. That's when he must go to the wooden chamber for two minutes.

Jimmy's quiet room at home, built to specifications of the Mendota Mental Health Institute at Madison, is six feet tall and about three feet by four feet square. It has an opening in the top for air and light but no lock. There's a clock nearby, which his mother watches.

Forcing a child into isolation in confined quarters is a procedure used across the nation in institutions and by parents and teachers of exceptional children. It strikes many people as cruel.

"Unless it's explained, (it) has the greatest potential to be misunderstood," says James Haessly, head of programs for the emotionally disturbed in Milwaukee Public Schools.

Quiet rooms should be used only in extreme cases, specialists say: children who have frequent temper tantrums when they can hurt themselves or damage things, children who are highly aggressive, hitting and biting other people, or children who are disobedient, rarely if ever following instructions.

Parents with severely-disturbed children support its use, said David Mikuleky, who has taught autistic children and does diagnostic work in the Milwaukee schools' autistic program.

"They're usually so desperate they are ready to try anything," he said. "The next step is to take the child out of the home."

That was the situation with Jimmy, said his mother, who asked not to be identified.

Before he went to Mendota, Jimmy was uncontrollable. At the age of 4, he did not understand language, banged his head against the wall and showed no affection. Under observation, he had 180 temper tantrums in four hours. He was diagnosed as autistic.

"This little boy was in his own little world, period, and he did not want to be interrupted," said his mother.

Now Jimmy is different, his mother says.

"He eats with a spoon and fork and does not dump things and does not throw his plate. He recognizes colors and numbers. He can put three-word sentences together. He can say 'I want' something."

He's also affectionate and on a good day he may have only one or two temper tantrums in a four-hour period, she said.

He usually takes his time out, something she and other mothers say they use at the grocery store, church or anywhere, and doesn't often use the quiet room anymore.

Time out, short for "time out from positive reinforcement," or a situation the child likes, is used as a last resort, said Richard Fox, associate professor in exceptional education at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

The quiet-room part of the method is phased out as the child improves, specialists say. Quick and consistent rewards for appropriate behavior are an essential part of the procedure.

Those who use time out warn about its potential for abuse.

"Unfortunately, some practitioners see time out as the magic bullet. They use it for everything," said Fox.

Among incidents of abuse was the case of two teachers in Butte, Mont., who were fired when a parent learned his asthmatic child had been placed in a small, poorly ventilated box. They were reinstated after a subsequent show of parental support.

"We're trying to develop a behavioral procedure that could be used anywhere," she said.

Pope Pleads For 'Boat People'

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — The plight of the Vietnamese "boat people" has attracted the attention of Pope John Paul II, who says the world should open its doors to the homeless refugees.

JOHN PAUL II

The pope's sentiments were conveyed in prayer Sunday at his vacation retreat here. He said he was praying that "our brother, often in the midst of mortal danger, find a land that accepts them."

There was no mention of the pope's upcoming visits to Ireland Sept. 29, and the United States, Oct. 2, but the pontiff took note of a sign in the crowd at morning mass that said "God bless Ireland, God bless Ireland."

Doctors Say Begin Should Recover

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin should recover completely from a clot that blocked the flow of blood to a small portion of his brain, doctors say.

BEGIN

Begin entered a Jerusalem hospital Thursday complaining of dizziness and vision trouble. Hospital director Dr. Assa Harel said he was confident the symptons would disappear completely.

He said Begin would be hospitalized for another 10 days. Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin has taken charge of the government during Begin's illness.

Crowds Greet Queen

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — Thousands of gaily dressed women singing traditional songs in the national language of Chichewa greeted Queen Elizabeth II when she arrived here for her first visit in five years.

The English monarch was accompanied by her husband, Prince Philip, and 19-year-old son Prince Andrew when she arrived in the fertile, prosperous nation of Malawi from Tanzania.

The royal entourage was to fly to the new capital of Lilongwe today, the second day of her trip to Malawi en route to the August Commonwealth conference in Zambia.

The queen told Malawi officials she is looking forward to the Commonwealth conference opening in Lusaka Aug. 1 because of the opportunity it will provide for joint consultation and cooperation among some 40 nations on social, political and economic levels.

Fastest Tub In Town

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — If anybody still had doubts after last year, they're gone now: Gary Deathridge of Australia has the fastest tub in town.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Deathridge won the 13th annual Nanaimo-Vancouver bathtub race Sunday in a record one hour, 29 minutes and 30 seconds — 10 seconds faster than the record he set to win the 1978 race.

Deathridge was the first out of the Nanaimo harbor in the 34-mile race across the Strait of Georgia. He said afterward that he did not have the same problem as last year when he was boxed in by other competitors leaving Nanaimo.

Residents Of Tent City Seeking Amnesty From Postal Service

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — The "mayor of Bolgerville" is jobless. So are the 25 residents of his town — a five-tent encampment on the grounds of the New York Bulk and Foreign Mail Center.

"Mayor" Ron Lenzo, elected by the tent-dwellers, was among the more than 200 postal workers fired July 21, 1978, for their participation in a five-day wildcat strike.

He and two dozen other former employees of the center set up the tent town on Friday — the day their unemployment compensation benefits ran out.

They named the encampment after Postmaster General William Bolger, who refused to grant amnesty to the fired strikers, and vowed to remain until they are rehired, a spokesman said.

Camp spokesman Kenneth Leiner, 26, of Jersey City says the fired employees are being used as "a lesson" to postal workers, who are barred by law from striking.

But he believes the demonstration and growing support for the fired workers will force postal officials to grant amnesty. He says they want only to return to their jobs and will not demand back pay.

"We don't have any plans to move," he said.

So far, the workers have been ignored. "We sent a delegation to meet with management at the Bulk on Saturday, but they turned us away," said Leiner.

Postal Service spokesman Walter Duka said Sunday there would be no comment on the demonstration.

And Alex Gallione, acting general manager of the bulk mail facility, said last week there were no plans to remove the demonstrators as long as mail service was not disrupted.

The center, which employs about 4,000 persons, processes half a million pieces of domestic bulk mail daily for New York City and its suburbs. It also distributes 70 percent of incoming and outgoing non-air foreign mail.

It was a tentative labor contract that workers said didn't provide enough money — 19.5 percent, including cost-of-living increases, over three years — while allowing excessive overtime scheduling.

About 1,000 workers joined the protest at Jersey City. Others walked out at a center in Kearny, N.J., and one near San Francisco. After a warning, postal officials fired 114 employees here, 16 in Kearny and 80 in California.

The tentative agreement was later turned down by workers in three of four postal unions. Negotiations were reopened. Binding arbitration was imposed and a contract agreement was reached in September 1978.

Federal Prisoners Lose Free Mailing Privileges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Question: Until this month, what fringe benefit did 26,000 federal prisoners share with 535 members of Congress and the president of the United States?

Answer: Free mailing privileges.

You guessed it. Since July 1, inmates of federal penitentiaries have been issued five stamps a month for letters to wives, sweethearts, judges, lawyers and the nation's newspapers.

After that, it's 15 cents apiece, with help for those who can't afford it.

Hastening the drastic cutback was a prisoner's presidential campaign and a mailing of 535 mimeographed complaint letters — one to each member of Congress. But the move had long been considered.

"Our postage bill was $800,000 a year. Then some fellows began to abuse the privilege and it went to $1,400,000," said Michael Aun, a Bureau of Prisons spokesman.

The most notable abuse was the fund-raiser conducted by a convicted hijacker with an eye on the White House. He showed little political savvy in writing newspapers for cash, even though letters to the press can't be opened by prison inspectors.

"We kept getting hot telephone calls from newspaper editors and owners," said Aun. "They demanded to know what the heck we were doing, letting this fellow run for president from jail."

Aun said prisoners who can't afford the postage still get stationery and franked envelopes to write lawyers and federal courts.

Board To Pick Energy Projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Mobilization Board proposed by President Carter would carry to federal, state, and local government agencies a simple message: make your energy decisions faster, or we'll make them for you.

As sketched Thursday by the White House, the board would consist of three members nominated by the president and confirmed by the Senate — just like the Cabinet secretaries whose activities they could end up supervising.

Their job would be to select "critical" energy projects for expedited processing through government review and permit procedures at the national, state and local level.

Before designating a project "critical," the White House said, the board would consider its capacity for reducing U.S. dependence on imported oil, the need for it in relation to other major national goals and its value in advancing new energy technology.

The synthetic fuel plants proposed by Carter for federal financial support would be prime candidates for the board's red-carpet treatment.

Shale oil production, unconventional natural gas production, major pipelines and refineries, new coal mines and even solar energy installations might be welcome applicants.

Nuclear power would be an exception, excluded from the board's domain because it already is regulated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The administration hopes to streamline the licensing of nuclear power plants through the NRC.

Despite its broad power, the Energy Mobilization Board as proposed could not become a simple rubber-stamp operation, assigning special status to every project that walks in the door.

It would be limited to selection of no more than 75 critical facilities at any time. If that limit is reached, a White House aide explained, a new project could be assigned critical status only when an earlier one is completed or drops off the list.

The board would be authorized to waive or change procedural requirements at every level, from federal to local, to meet the schedule it imposes. Its selection of projects and waiving of procedural requirements could not be challenged in court.

But if existing regulatory agencies did meet the deadlines set by the board, it could not overrule their decisions whether they approved or rejected a critical project.

And projects given fast-track treatment by the board still would have to comply with all legal requirements, environmental and otherwise, in force when construction begins.

Approval or disapproval of a critical project by government agencies or the board could be challenged in court only after the board determined that the permit-process had been completed. Earlier challenges would require board approval.

Court challenges, once finally allowed, would have their own deadlines. They would have to be filed within 60 days to an appropriate federal appeals court, which would have 90 days to render a decision unless a longer period is constitutionally required.

Appeals for Supreme Court review would have be filed within 30 days of a lower court decision and the high court would be "directed to expedite action on the appeal."

Legislation creating the board would be aimed not at altering decisions but at making faster ones.

If created, the board may face its greatest challenges in balancing the need for careful deliberation of a project against the desire to get it into production quickly during a time of growing energy shortages and rising construction costs.

Its job, in a sense, would be to allow just the right amount of time for wisdom — and no more.

Despite the impetus from the White House, there is no assurance the proposal will sail through Congress.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va. chairman of the Senate Environmental and Public Works Committee, sent a letter to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, asking him to delay action to allow time for full consideration of environmental considerations. The letter also was signed by Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and John Chafee, R-R.I.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Shari Gives Rules For Tag Games

By SHARI LEWIS

When I was a kid, I lived in a New York City project called Parkchester, in the Bronx. It was nice. The tall buildings were seperated by greenery, and cars were not allowed on most of the wide streets between the houses.

That's where we played. Jump rope. Catch. And most of all tag.

We had 57 varieties of tag: Slap tag, Japanese tag, wood tag, shadow tag, bears and cattle. What's bears and cattle?

Bears and cattle is a group tag game: You pick two "safe" spots, about 20 or 30 yards apart (say, a tree and a door). The kids (who are the cattle) race between the two safe spots. "It" (who is the bear) tries to tag the kids as they are running to and from the safe area. Each kid tagged by "It" becomes a bear, until all are captured. Then, the first one tagged takes a turn as "It."

Slap tag has only one safe spot (say, a fire hydrant). All kids line up about 20 or 30 yards from the hydrant. They hold both hands out, palms up. "It" walks up and down the line, and suddenly slaps the upturned palms of one of the kids. Then "It" makes a beeline for the hydrant. If the kid whose palm was slapped can catch "It" before "It" touches safety (the hydrant), then "It" remains "It" for the next game. If "It" isn't caught, then that other player becomes "It."

TODAY BRAIN TWISTER: Cut out these two shapes. How qickly can you fit them together so that they form a square? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kid's Only Club column.)

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a very irregular heartbeat. I went to a heart specialist and he put me through a bicycle stress test plus numerous other tests and then told me I had two heart skips — one dangerous and one not so dangerous. He put me on six Pronestyl capsules daily which took care of my problem for over a year, but now my heart skips nearly all the time and I'm still taking the six Pronestyl capsules.

I'm 5 feet 11 and weight 145 pounds and walk a mile or two every day and do your girth control exercises. I'd like to know if the effects of the Pronestyl wear off after you've taken it for so long. I'm 300 miles from the good doctor I went to and I do not know whether to try to get back with him or not. He is very busy. I would appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER — You really should see a heart specialist again and it would be simpler to see the one who is already familiar with your case. Many patients take Pronestyl for years and it is a good medicine to help prevent many of the heart irregularities, but a person's health status can change and according to your letter it's been over a year since you saw your doctor. I'm sure he would want to know about any change that has occurred in your condition.

The other point is that some medicines work better in controlling heart irregularities in some patients than others. We do have new medicines developed all the time. Your doctor may want to change your medicine if he sees you're continuing to have irregularities.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats And Tachycardias. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. While this letter will give you some useful information, it's not a substitute for your need to see your doctor. He may need to either change the amount of medicine you're getting or perhaps changes to a different medicine entirely, depending on what he finds on his examination.

Among the other medicines that may be used to control heart irregularities are Inderal and Norpace. Inderal neutralizes adrenaline or the heart's sensitivity to adrenaline. It is very effective in some cases. Norpace is a rather new medicine in the United States as it was used elswhere before being approved by the Food and Drug Administration. Its action is similar to Pronestyl in many respects.

As you've already been told, you can have heart irregularities that have nothing to do with heart disease and are not necessarily dangerous at all. The true significance of a heart irregularity has to be decided on the basis of the information gleaned from a comprehensive cardiac examination.

Many people who have irregularities of the heart require no medicine at all, particularly if the irregularities are not indicative of heart disease. In your case, since you are fairly active you might benefit by being sure you get enough potassium in your diet. People who exercise seem to lose some on a long-term basis. Orange juice or a banana a day will help solve the problem.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Fuel Is Up, Up And Away

CONSUMERS WORRIED about the high cost of petroleum products following the removal of all federal price controls on domestic crude oil might find it instructive to examine the gyrations in the aviation fuel market.

Aviation gasoline, refined for use in smaller piston-engine aircraft, and kerosene-based jet fuel, refined for use in larger jet and turboprop aircraft, have been subjected to price controls under various federal programs.

When the Department of Energy asked Congress this year for authorization to decontrol the prices of both products, it predicted that the action would lead to price increases that "will probably average 1 cent per gallon (for aviation gasoline)".

DOE PREDICTED the increase might be as much as 4 cents per gallon at some airports, but the nationwide average forecast called for aviation gas prices to remain at "less than 1½ cents per gallon through 1980."

For kerosene-based jet fuel, or kerojet fuel, said the department, "overall price increases resulting from (price control) exemption are not likely to exceed 1 cent per gallon."

At the time, airlines that held long-term fuel supply contracts with major petroleum corporations were paying 38 to 40 cents per gallon.

"In the first three months since decontrol went into effect, contract prices have spiraled upward...to 45 to 55 cents per gallon," writes syndicated columnist Robert Walters.

AIRCRAFT OWNERS whose fuel consumption is too low to justify a long-term contract, including most commuter airlines, must buy their aviation fuel on the open, or spot, market.

Walters' research indicates the "spot" price today ranges from 75 to 95 cents per gallon, with an increasing number of reported cases where the price exceeds $1 per gallon. In some locations, the going rate is approaching $1.20 per gallon.

"We warned against believing the ridiculous projections of DOE," lamented Sens. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, John Durkin, D-N.H., and Paul Tsongas, D-Mass. "We warned (it) would violate inflation guidelines."

After grossly misinforming both Congress and the public, DOE now displays virtually no interest in aviation fuel prices and their impact on the economy.

Paul Scott:

Congress 'Digs' Synthetic Oil

WASHINGTON—Support is growing in Congress for the creation of a multi-billion dollar synthetic oil industry to combat the growing energy shortage and lessen U.S. dependence on oil produced by OPEC.

Although it has gone generally unnoticed, the House Banking and Currency Committee overwhelmingly, by a 39 to 1 vote, approved legislation calling for government measures to achieve a national production goal of "at least 500,000 barrels per day of crude oil equivalent of synthetic fuel and synthetic chemical feedstocks within five years."

IT IS DESIGNED to create a synthetic oil industry capable of producing 5 million barrels a day—about half the country's current import requirements.

Authors of the plan, now circulating in both the Senate and House, are Eugene M. Zuckert, former Secretary of the Air Force, Paul R. Ignatius, president of the Air Transportation Assn. and a former Secretary of Navy, and Lloyd Cutler, international lawyer and former State Department adviser and negotiator.

Under their proposal, the oil would be produced from sources such as shale, tar sands, heavy oils, coal and farm crops. In essence, it calls for the establishment of a government corporation to do what the U.S. has done before in other national emergencies.

During World War II, the government solved critical shortages of natural rubber, aluminum and steel by building plants operated by private companies under leases for management contracts.

Another method, developed and used during the Korean war, also could be employed. Under this plan, the government entered into market-guarantee contracts with private industry to build new aluminum, copper and nickel capacity.

THE PRIVATE COMPANIES under those "Korean-type" agreements obtained private financing, received five-year tax amortization certificates, and gave the government the option to buy, at specified or prevailing market prices, any part of the output that could not be sold to military or commercial users.

Through joint government-industry efforts, the nation would create a synthetic oil industry on a crash basis much the same way that it once created a synthetic rubber industry and doubled its nonferrous metal capacity.

Supporters of the Moorhead legislation, now pending in the House Rules Committee, say it is the best weapon that the U.S. could have to oppose the continuing raising of oil prices by OPEC.

While admitting that the initial cost of the program would be high—synthetic fuels are likely to cost between $5 and $10 a barrel more than presently priced imported crude—they stress that all the money spent on the program would remain in the U.S.

IN CONTRAST, the OPEC's latest price increase for oil will add about $22 billion to the U.S. oil import bill, which last year came to $43 billion. With the way OPEC prices are soaring, there is a good possibility that synthetic fuel costs will even be cheaper than oil within 10-20 years.

As for the overall cost of the project, supporters of the Zucker-Ignatius-Cutler plan estimate the one-time investment of roughly $20 billion for each million barrels of synthetic capacity or $100 billion for the entire program.

MAIN OBSTACLE TO the legislation at this writing has been the silence from the Carter administration.

Although the Democratic leadership in the House has endorsed the plan and asked President Carter to make the administration's position known, there has been no response from the White House.

If there is no word soon, the House is expected to act on its own with the Senate following quickly to move to create a synthetic oil industry.

This will be Congress's answer to the President's "equivalence of war" statement on energy.

Holmes Alexander:

Weak Carter Needs Congress

WASHINGTON—Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., was not yet a teenager when the super-secret Manhattan Project was planning the A-bomb, and he was just emerging from law school when NASA was formed to catch up with the Russian sputnik in space, but he has introduced a bill (S.1377) that is a close relative of the other two.

It is an energy measure that could reduce the Arabian Empire to smithereens as the A-bombing did to Japan, and could elevate the American status as a world power much as NASA did by surpassing the USSR in space activities.

"I hope..." the senator writes me, "you can...make an informative piece of information for your readers (and) reassure them that the government is beginning to move a little."

(1) The United States has no excuse to be importing half its petroleum. It's been known for years by the Interior Department, university geology departments and our cagey oil companies that this country is a dreamboat of self-sufficiency.

When the Asian rubber plantations fell captive in World War II, we invented synthetic rubber while the cries of alarm were still in the air.

When we needed uranium for nuclear purposes of many kinds, part of the argument for foreign aid was that this mineral was only available in the Belgian Congo.

But uranium soon turned up plentifully in the Colorado plateau and other western deposits.

(2) THE UNITED STATES has a constitutional system which, at least till now, will come up with a resourceful Congress if afflicted with a weak President, and will find a strong President when the Congress wobbles.

Domenici's bill will establish for synthetic and alternative fuels, the national equivalent of the Manhattan Project and NASA.

This Fuels Production Authority should have been undertaken 20 years ago, but it's better late than never if the country holds together until the 1990s.

The idea that we knuckle down to OPEC oil prices and undermine our economy with inflation, unemployment and environmental moles is absurd to the point of subversion.

As Domenici writes me (and, I hope, writes many others who report what anybody with time can discover):

"We have four trillion barrels of potential oils and tar sands in the Western Hemisphere, 160 billion barrels of potential oil from high grade oil shale in the western part of our country, billions of potential oil and oil equivalents from coal gas and coal liquids."

(3) Some demurrers, however, are in order to the establishment of a federal Production Authority.

There will be an immense increase in taxpayers' investment, additional regulations to entangle free enterprise and unconscionable spillover of public funds.

But the alternative is perpetual reliance on distant sources and eventually a breakdown of civil order such as we had during Prohibition and suffer from today in strikes, drug traffic and moral laxity.

We are in a bind that deserves some self-scrutiny at the very least. The American republic can make shift from time to time with weak Presidents.

But Congress in this case is 20 years late—if not too late in the wisdom of self-sufficiency.

Sylvia Porter:

Battle Of The Bump Leaves You Behind

WASHINGTON—Not since I became a frequent plane traveler many years ago have I arrived at airports as far ahead of my boarding time as I do now. I'm back to signing in or getting an assigned seat (if any) at least one hour in advance of scheduled flight time.

Not since my early days of taking planes for business meetings have I been so cautious about reconfirming a confirmed reservation at last 48 hours in advance, then reconfirming the reconfirmation 24 hours before takeoff.

What I'm trying to accomplish is beating the battle of the bump—the airline practice known as overbooking on a plane to compensate for the anticipated loss of passengers by the carrier due to no-shows or last-minute cancellations—leaving the plane with unfilled and unsold space.

Just about every airline does it.

U.S. GOVERNMENT authorities and other policing agencies are fully aware of it.

If you are ever overbooked out of your confirmed seat, you don't have to take it without recourse!

Federal regulations are clear. If a flight is overbooked, the airline can bump passengers only through a "priority boarding plan" which must be filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board. The plan is available for your inspection at the airline ticket counter.

If you are bumped, the airline must pay.

Under a system that went into effect last September, both voluntary and involuntary bumping are allowed.

If you voluntarily accept the bumping and give up your reservation for your particular flight, you are to receive cash for putting up with the inconvenience of altering your travel plans.

IF YOU ARE bumped involuntarily, you may keep your ticket for a later flight and you also must be compensated with a payment of from $37.50 to $200, based on the plane fare to your destination.

If you are bumped involuntarily and there is no other flight within two hours of your original departure hour, the airline is supposed to pay you double the cost of your fare.

Why would any traveler voluntarily offer to give up a confirmed seat for a later flight? Because when reimbursed, many do not mind the inconvenience of a change of plans.

Just in the initial four months that this program was in effect, nearly 16,000 people volunteered to give up their seats on overbooked domestic flights, while nearly twice as many were bumped involuntarily in the same period.

THIS PAST MAY, the CAB stiffened the bumping rules to make sure that you who are bumped for fare considerations (discounts) are advised of the new ground rules.

If you are not a full-fare passenger, you may now be bumped for the higher priority regular fare passenger on some airlines.

Each airline has its own bumping system filed with the CAB. And there are circumstances in which the carrier does not have to pay you for your being bumped. These include:

(1) If the airline substitutes a smaller plane with fewer seats; (2) If the airline flight is delayed or cancelled; (3) If you do not meet ticket or flight check-in deadlines.

If you volunteer to be bumped, find out these facts:

* How much money will you receive? Will the airline pay the out-of-pocket expenses you incur while you wait?

* Will you get a confirmed reservation on the next flight? This is vital during crowded holiday travel periods.

* Will you be given confirmed reservations on connecting flights to your final destination?

The overbooking rules apply to all trips originating or terminating at a U.S. airport.

Ask foreign carriers before you buy a ticket what are your rights if you are bumped, for some international airlines may not adhere to CAB rules on recovery of the price of your ticket.

YOUR PROBLEMS with overbooked flights often can be resolved at the airport. If you don't reach an agreement with a supervisor or service representative, get their names, keep a record of your out-of-pocket expenses and write the carrier when you get home.

Write the director of customer relations or consumer affairs. Type your letter and send copies of receipts that back your claims. Explain what happened, the results, what you expect.

For a helpful, free booklet on baggage handling problems, delayed or cancelled flights and your rights, write to the Aviation Consumer Action Project, P.O. Box 19029, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Berry's World

"Yeh, this is suite 953. What can I do for you?"

James J. Kilpatrick:

Bishop's Move Hard to Refuse

WASHINGTON—Under the rules of chess, a bishop moves only along diagonal lines. That was how Abel Tendekayi Muzorewa was moving about the world week before last. The prime minister of Zimbabwe-Rhodesia was seeking by indirection to find direction out.

He is a diminutive figure, not more than 5 feet 2 or 3, chocolate-brown, with eyes as sad as a Border collie's. He turned 54 in April, but he looks about 60.

An aide told me the bishop had looked just the same way for the past 10 years; if he can evade assassination by terrorists of the "Patriotic Front" who have publicly promised to kill him, the bishop probably will look the same way for another 10 years.

Muzorewa has something timeless about him; the eons of Africa are carved in his face.

WE MET IN a hotel room in suburban Arlington. The prime minister had arrived only a few hours earlier under circumstances remarkably different from the circumstances that surrounded a Rhodesian delegation last October.

At that time, Prime Minister Ian Smith was plainly persona non grata; Smith was grudgingly admitted to the U.S. only as a guest of Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

By contrast, the President himself initiated the Muzorewa visit. The White House telephoned Helms two weeks ago, suggested that the prime minister would be welcome, and promised Helms that the prime minister could be assured a one-on-one talk with the President himself.

Helms got on the phone to Salisbury. Muzorewa caught the next plane and met Carter at Camp David for 40 minutes of private conversation. Muzorewa, keeping on a proper diagonal line, would describe their talk only as "encouraging."

Then he moved off to meet with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London, and thence, on another path, back home to his Cabinet and Parliament in Salisbury.

IN MY OWN brief interview, I asked the bishop the predictable questions.

Back in April, The New York Times had said, quite accurately, that Muzorewa "is viewed among many of his countrymen as a hesitant, sometimes vacillating figure whose capacity for toughness is open to doubt."

The Times noted that immediately following the parliamentary elections, when his party swept to power with 44 of the 72 non-white seats, the bishop had confessed to being "frightened at the immense responsibility placed on his shoulders."

It had been widely surmised that Muzorewa functions as little more than a puppet of the white power structure.

The prime minister understandably bristled at thoughts so manifestly unkind. He shed fatigue in an instant. Indecisive?

He had consulted with his staff, concluded that an increase in the ceiling price on gasoline was urgently needed, and—snap!—he had pushed his bill through Parliament.

NOT TOUGH? HE was actively pressing the war against his guerrilla foes, and the war was going reasonably well. But were not white generals calling the tune? Of course! Could he make a black general overnight? Could he make a black general in five weeks?

His country's most urgent need is for the lifting of the UN sanctions. Relieved of that burden, he said, Rhodesia could sell her tobacco, chrome and manufactured products on world markets.

With sanctions ended, thousands of followers of Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo would lay down their arms—they could come home to jobs and to normal life.

MUZOREWA HAS TO pursue his goals obliquely. Carter's domestic problem is a tricky one—how to mollify a Southern white conservative, such as Helms, without mortally alienating Southern black liberals.

I obtained no confidences from Muzorewa. He had a tight mouth.

But it is probably not too far from the mark to speculate that the bishop will go home with an offer that Ian Smith and his colleagues would find hard to refuse—constitutional revision to diminish the number of white-only seats, new gestures of amnesty to the guerrillas, and Smith's personal abdication from politics, all bargained in exchange for Britain's letting her sanctions act quietly expire in November.

Muzorewa is a little guy in a clerical collar and two-toned shoes. He is inexperienced in politics and diplomacy, but he seems to be making all the right moves.

AMA May Change Referral Policy

CHICAGO (AP) — A committee chairman urged delegates to the American Medical Association convention today to let members of the doctors' organization study a controversial proposal to let physicians accept patients referred to them by chiropractors.

The AMA has previously labelled chiropractic "an unscientific cult."

Dr. James S. Todd, chairman of the committee that wrote the proposal, said that even if the proposal were rejected, the AMA's Board of Trustees would still recommend dropping the ban on chiropractor referrals.

"We are not asking you to accept this proposal. The only thing we ask is that you let it go before the membership so we can come back in December to make the final decision," Todd told a committee on the AMA constitution and bylaws.

The committee planned to announce Tuesday whether it would accept or reject the proposal. If accepted, the proposal would come up for final action at the AMA's meeting in Hawaii in December.

The proposal is part of a report by Todd's ad hoc committee on the Principles of Medical Ethics. It is among 61 reports and more than 150 resolutions before the AMA's House of Delegates at the five-day annual convention, which began Sunday.

The new ethics code would, among other things, drop a part of the Principles of Medical Ethics adopted in 1957 that says: "A physician should practice a method of healing founded on a scientific basis and he should not voluntarily associate professionally with anyone who violates this principle."

Since the AMA officially regards chiropractic as "an unscientific cult," the ethics code discourages doctors from accepting patients referred by chiropractors for further diagnostics such as X-rays.

Chiropractors in Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York have attacked the policy with lawsuits that charge it's illegal.

Fighting legal battles with chiropractors and with the Federal Trade Commission over a ban on physicians' advertising is costing the AMA $1 million a year, according to executive vice president James Sammons.

Litigation in the latest chiropractic suit filed in New York earlier this month is expected to run $400,000.

There are 20,000 chiropractors in the United States and they treat five million Americans a year. Chiropractic is a method of healing based on the theory that illness results from pinched nerves that can be cured by manipulating the spine.

While not addressing the chiropractic issue specifically, the proposed ethics code says: "A physician, except in emergencies, shall be free to choose whom to serve, with whom to associate, and the environment in which to provide services consistent with appropriate patient care."

Thus, it would leave it up to an individual doctor whether to accept a chiropractor's referral. The AMA Board of Trustees made a similar pledge with regard to Pennsylvania physicians in an out-of-court settlement of the chiropractic lawsuit there in May.

But not all doctors agree with the proposal. The Pennsylvania Society of Radiologists and the American College of Radiologists refused to join in the settlement. And resolutions pending before the convention would reassert that chiropractic is unscientific.

Exxon Corp. Reports Big Gain In Profits For Second Quarter

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company, today reported a 20 percent increase in second-quarter profits. It said the increase was primarily due to higher earnings from foreign operations.

Exxon, the first major oil company to report second-quarter earnings, said it made $830 million during the quarter, up from $690 million in the same quarter of 1978.

Earnings per share of common stock rose from $1.55 a share to $1.88.

Exxon said its earnings from United States oil and natural gas operations for the quarter and for the first six months of the year were below those of the same periods of 1978, but that overseas profits were higher.

Later in the day, Amoco said its profits for the quarter totaled $401.2 million, or $2.74 a share, compared to $294.2 million, or $2.01 a share, a year ago. Revenues in the quarter rose from $4.1 billion to $4.6 billion in the quarter.

For the first half, Amoco said earnings rose to $750.3 million, or $5.13 a share, from $567.7 million, or $3.88 a share, a year ago. Revenue rose to $9 billion from $7.9 billion.

Amoco also attributed most of the gain to better results in overseas operations.

For the first half of the year, Exxon profits rose 29 percent to $1.79 billion from $1.39 billion in the first half of 1978. Earnings per share climbed from $3.10 to $4.04.

For the second quarter, Exxon said its revenues rose 26 percent to $19.61 billion from $15.52 billion in the 1978 quarter. First half revenues climbed 25 percent to $38.41 billion from $30.78 billion.

Exxon said profits from petroleum and natural gas operations in the United States were $378 million in the second quarter, off 5 percent from 1978's second period, almost the same as the decline in the first quarter of this year.

"In the U.S., Exxon's costs have risen much more than selling prices," said Exxon Chairman C.C. Garvin in a statement. "As a result, U.S. refining and marketing earnings in the quarter were less than one-half those in the second quarter of 1978."

The company said high costs of domestic exploration efforts had cut into the quarter's profits, but did not give specifics.

One analyst, Eugene Nowak of the Wall Street firm of Blyth Eastman Dillon, speculated Exxon may have written off all or part of its $343 million-plus investment in leases and drilling in the disappointing Baltimore Canyon area off New Jersey.

Gold Establishes Mark; Dollar Continues Slide

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit a new high in Europe today while the U.S. dollar continued to decline.

"The dollar is just slipping lower for want of buyers," one dealer said.

Gold opened at a record $304.125 an ounce in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion mart, then eased to $303.625 by midmorning. The opening price was nearly $6 above Friday's closing price of $298.375

One London dealer said the dollar's shaky prospects dominated market sentiment.

"Some people are still not happy with the U.S. scene. They see gold as the thing to get into," he said.

The dollar got off to a bad start today in Tokyo, where the Bank of Japan's decision to boost its official discount rate by 1 percent to 5.25 percent sent the yen up. The dollar closed at 214.775 yen, down more than a yen from Friday's closing rate of 216.00.

Morning dollar rates in the major European money markets were:

Zurich — 1.6316 Swiss francs, down from 1.6430.

Paris — 4.2213 French francs, down from 4.2438.

Amsterdam — 1.9885 guilders, down from 1.9895.

Milan — 814.50 lire, down from 815.95.

In London, the British pound sold for $2.2940, up more than two cents from Friday's closing rate of $2.2725. Helped by Britain's North Sea oil and gas reserves, the pound has gained 23 percent on the dollar in the past year and 5 to 15 percent against leading European currencies.

Judge Assesses 26-Year Term To Leader Of Indian Protest

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A leader in the weekend of violence that rocked the Red Lake Indian Reservation in May was sentenced today to 26 years in prison for his conviction of assaulting federal officers.

Meanwhile, nearly a score of Bureau of Indian Affairs police patrolled the reservation after three nights of shooting and house-burnings.

In sentencing Harry S. Hanson Jr., U.S. District Judge Edward J. Devitt called the Indian leader's conduct "shocking" and said: "Mr. Hanson, you led a revolution of blatant lawlessness."

Devitt called Hanson "unworthy" to serve as a leader and said he had brought "disgrace on Indian people."

Hanson said he would appeal.

Devitt also imposed sentences of 16 years for Edward Dean Cook, 21; and 10 years each for Roland Gene Roy, 23; William Allen Stately, 19, and Thomas Peter Barrett, 20. They were convicted along with Hanson for an incident stemming from the takeover of the BIA Law Enforcement Center at gunpoint on May 19. A sixth Indian was acquitted of a conspiracy charge.

Five of the men were free on bond, but Hanson's bond had been revoked Friday after prosecutors said they feared he would not show up for sentencing.

Within hours of his jailing, snipers began firing on a temporary BIA police headquarters. The police returned the fire in a shootout that lasted three hours. No one was hurt.

In the latest incidents of violence, BIA officer Richard Rocha said, shots were fired in a residential area and a vacant house was torched about 11 p.m. Sunday.

However, Rocha said nobody was injured and fire officials extinguished the blaze before major damage occurred.

He said five or six units of two to three men each were making rounds on the reservation, the scene of a weekend of violence last May.

Shots also were fired early Sunday, and three houses burned down. But BIA officials called the area "relatively quiet," compared to the day before, when BIA police and snipers exchanged gunfire for nearly three hours.

An eight-member BIA special weapons team arrived on the northern Minnesota reservation Saturday to sweep the Village of Red Lake for suspects.

One of the homes burned early Sunday belonged to tribal council member Roman Stately Jr., according to BIA police. All the homes were vacant when they burned, said officials, and no one was injured.

Acting BIA Superintendent James Stevens said several shots were fired in the hours before dawn Sunday, but never more than three at a time and usually with 30-minute intervals between shots.

Unlike Saturday's incident, Stevens said, BIA police did not return the gunfire. BIA police engaged in a exchange of gunfire with snipers during two separate incidents Saturday and a television helicopter was hit by two bullets while filming from an altitude of 2,200 feet.

Stevens remained adamant in his conviction that the latest round of trouble on the reservation is not related to a political clash between two tribal factions.

"It's just a small bunch of criminals that don't want an ordinary peaceful community," Stevens said Sunday.

The dispute between tribal factions erupted into open warfare May 19 when six dissident tribal members seized the BIA Law Enforcement Center at gunpoint. In the three days of violence that followed, a half-dozen buildings and 45 vehicles were destroyed.

Cyclist Critical Following Fall

Keith Russell Bullion, 29, of Lorenzo was in critical condition today at Health Sciences Center Hospital after he apparently failed to negotiate a curve on his motorcycle and fell 70 feet into a canyon on County Road 73, five miles north of Slaton, Saturday afternoon.

Bullion suffered internal injuries, multiple fractures and lacerations in the accident, which reportedly occurred about 5:10 p.m.

A Department of Public Safety officer, EMS attendants from Slaton and some nearby citizens carried Bullion in a scoop stretcher up the tree-lined cliff to the ambulance. The rescue operation took about 25 minutes, said Sgt. Mike Savage, a Slaton policeman and volunteer ambulance attendant.

"It's a miracle, but when we arrived at the scene, Bullion was conscious," Savage said. He added that Bullion's father had been following him in a car and reported the accident immediately. "If it hadn't been for that, it could have been a long time before the injured man had been found," Savage said.

DPS reports indicate that Bullion was traveling east on the road when he failed to negotiate a curve and ran off a cliff.

Lubbock Man Arrested On Drug, Theft Charges

A 32-year-old Lubbock man, who was indicted in June on federal cocaine-trafficking conspiracy, has been charged by state authorities with possession of marijuana and theft of stolen property.

Scott Lamoreaux was arrested Saturday afternoon at 2808 Canton Ave., where, authorities said, he had been staying with a 24-year-old woman.

Five members of the Lubbock Task Force of the Drug Enforcement Administration Friday evening went to the Canton Avenue residence with a search warrant and found a large quantity of marijuana in the house, in a car parked outside the residence and growing in the back yard, according to reports.

The resident of the house, Karen Lisa Anthony and a visitor, Sandra Lee Cooper, 25, of 2554 N.E. Loop 289, No. 3706, were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana. Bonds of $5,000 were set for both women by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack.

Lamoreaux was arrested Saturday afternoon at the residence and charged with possession of marijuana. Authorities also found three firearms at the residence which were reported stolen by a Cloudcroft, N.M., man.

Lamoreaux was charged with theft of stolen property in connection with the weapons — a .357 magnum revolver, 16-gauge pump shotgun and a high-powered rifle.

Lamoreaux was released from Lubbock County Jail after posting a $50,000 bond set by Blalack on the possession of marijuana charge and a $25,000 bond set on the theft charge.

He was one of 14 persons named in a federal grand jury indictment returned June 7 alleging a conspiracy to transport cocaine from Ruidoso, N.M., to Lubbock for distribution.

Lamoreaux's trial on the federal drug charge is set for Sept. 10. He was released on a personal recognizance bond pending the cocaine conspiracy trial.

Suspects Gain Postponement In Carlsbad

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — A preliminary hearing for four men charged in the takeover of a room at Carlsbad Caverns National Park has been postponed until July 31.

The hearing was originally set today.

The four suspects, Eugene Hiram Meroney, 31; William Charles Lovejoy, 28; and David W. Kuczynski, 28, all of Odessa, and Dennis James Mark, 39, of Riesel, Texas, face felony charges of aggravated assault and kidnapping.

Assistant District Attorney Tom Rutledge said the decision to postpone the hearing was "in large part due to the fact that we have pending in district court a motion for writ of habeas corpus to determine as to whether the state has jurisdiction to even consider the matter."

"If the judge concludes that the state does not have jurisdiction, then the hearing would be superflous," he said.

There has been disagreement about whether the suspects should be charged with federal or state offenses in the case.

Abilene Man Hurt In Traffic Mishap

Charles Long, 33, of Abilene was listed in serious condition this morning at Health Sciences Center Hospital after being involved in a traffic accident in the 2400-block of 47th Street.

Details on the 10 a.m. mishap were not available at midday.

Electronic Mail Plan Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — You take a letter to a post office. A computer breaks it into "data bits" that are transmitted electronically, perhaps by satellite, to a distant city. A copy similar to the original is delivered with the next day's mail.

This scenario for futuristic mail won the support Thursday of President Carter.

Carter endorsed Postal Service proposals to combine new electronic means of communication with the traditional mail delivery. He said they "will provide faster mail delivery while reducing costs."

The basic concept of electronic mail is to avoid carrying the actual letter from the sender to the receiver. This saves the time and expense of handling and transporting the letter.

For those who want the original letter delivered, the traditional mail service would remain available.

Carter's position was in large part a victory for the Postal Service, which praised it as "welcome news."

Postmaster General William F. Bolger had said he would not commit any substantial investments to electronic mail systems until after getting a green light from the White House.

Carter did put a series of conditions on his approval, all of which Bolger accepted.

The president said the Postal Service should not do the actual electronic transmission and should instead contract with telecommunications firms for this. The mail agency already had said it wanted to do it this way.

Carter also concluded that the Postal Service should be forbidden from offering services that would use electronic means of delivery, such as through home television-like devices, instead of postal delivery.

Carter's conditions also included one saying Postal Service electronic operations should not be subsidized by revenue from traditional mail service.

The White House statement said the average price of an electronic message is expected to be nine or ten cents. This compares to the 15-cent charge for sending a first-class letter.

The electronic delivery systems are considered to be well into the future, but electronic transmission from city to city already is technologically feasible.

Mailgram, an existing service, is the first Postal Service entry in the electronic area. Western Union transmits the messages and the Postal Service delivers them.

Several other electronic services are being tested or considered. Under the proposed Electronic Computer Originated Mail, data from computers, such as billing information, could be sent electronically and then delivered in facsimile form by letter carriers.

An international version scheduled to be offered later this year is called Intelpost. Agreements on this service have been signed so far with the United Kingdom, France, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Argentina and Iran and other countries have expressed interest, the White House said.

Rivera Works Rediscovered

DETROIT (AP) — Carefully rolled and wrapped in plain brown paper 46 years ago and then forgotten in the museum's basement, giant drawings created by Diego Rivera for his famous "Detroit Industry" frescoes have been rediscovered by archivists assigned to the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The giant "cartoons," are now assigned for caretaking to the Graphic Arts Department. It is expected they will be the subject of a special exhibition in 1983, the 50th year of the frescoes' creation.

Rivera composed the 9-by-26-foot drawings in charcoal and pastel chalks to guide him through the concepts envisioned for the wet plaster of the four walls of the inner fountain court in the museum's main building. They represent about a third of the final design.

The drawings were thought lost in the intervening years. However, archivist Marilyn Ghausi recently was searching the basement for architectural drawings of the building and came upon the wrapped rolls.

150 Firemen Battle Underground Blaze

PARIS (AP) — Smoke from a burning underground textile storeroom roiled across the Champs Elysees for hours Saturday as fireman fought to control the blaze.

Some 16 fire engines and 150 men were called to the fire, discovered early Saturday morning beneath the broad, tree-lined avenue. Fire officers said they were having extreme difficulty getting access to the burning basement of the textile store, and had to drill through the concrete walls.

Three firemen were treated for smoke inhalation but no other injuries were reported. Occupants of nearby apartments were evacuated.

Computers In Homes Foreseen

By The Associated Press

If you had a nice, little home computer, you could: perk the coffee before you got up, balance your checkbook, keep a running total of income tax deductions, and play a game of chess with someone even if you were home all alone.

You wouldn't have to remember anyone's birthday or when to service the car or the expiration dates on warranties. The computer would keep track of all this, and store all your credit card numbers as well.

Some pipe dream, you may reply. Maybe, if you were wealthy, with a degree in computer programming as well. Though it's natural to be skeptical about computers and you, in this case the skepticism may be misplaced.

According to a number of computer experts, the routine use of computers in the home is just around the corner. Today, a home computer system is available to the consumer at prices ranging from $600 to $1,000, depending on the sophistication of the system.

Edwin Schlossberg, co-author of a recent book on home computers, predicts that prices will go down as dramatically in the next 14 years as they have in the 14 years which have just passed.

"Fourteen years ago, a sophisticated computer cost $40,000," Schlossberg explained recently. "The same functions can be carried out in a computer available today for $1,400. And another one just as good will soon be introduced. It's going to sell for $695."

Manufacturing improvements are being made so fast in the computer field that by the time someone decides to buy a computer and chooses the one to buy, another one twice as good may be out.

Should you rush right out to your local home computer store to buy a computer? Even though nowadays in most areas, there really are such stores specializing in selling home computers to hobbyists and small businessmen, no you should not, according to the experts.

At present, specialized, technical knowledge is necessary to make a computer do the things you want it to do. Eventually, ready-made programs will exist for such tasks as balancing the checkbook, storing appliance serial numbers, monitoring home fuel consumption and functioning as part of a home burglary and fire alarm system. But today, an investment of several months would be needed to learn the language of the computer.

However, if the possibilities of computer use fascinate you, be aware that mastering the techniques of programming are within your capabilities.

Bill Dorsey, a computer hobbyist and a programmer, advises novice computer enthusiasts to begin "hanging around" home computer stores, asking questions and buying books, as well as reading publications about computers.

Look also for local hobbyist groups. Most cities have them. You will find that adult education courses in programming for fun and profit are becoming quite common as well.

With a little perseverance, you could be the first on your block to own and operate a home computer.

Retreaded Car Tires Generally Cheaper

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 30 million passenger-car tires were retreaded in the United States in 1978, according to the Tire Retread Information Bureau. In all, one out of five replacement passenger car tires is a retread.

The cost of a retreaded tire can be as much as 50 to 70 percent the cost of an equivalent new tire.

However, prices vary from region to region. One major factor is the availability of retreadable worn tire casings. Prices are generally lower where casings are readily available, industry sources report.

Right-Hand Man Jordan Now Carter Gatekeeper

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every president has his right-hand man, and Hamilton Jordan was Jimmy Carter's long before the president named him White House chief of staff.

Carter hadn't planned on having a staff chief in his White House. Instead, his top assistants were supposed to function as spokes of a wheel. But the wheel was squeaky, and the president decided he had to change his way of doing business as part of the effort to revive his leadership.

Jordan said the idea of naming him chief of staff had come up before, "but I resisted it, and the president was not convinced we should do it."

Carter's reasons dated back to his campaign days and to his experience as governor of Georgia.

Politically, there was an advantage to retiring the title and the role held by H. R. Haldeman as chief of staff to President Richard M. Nixon.

Carter's was to be an open presidency, and Haldeman has written that he purposely used his power as staff chief to build a wall around Nixon.

"I did not have a single chief of staff as governor," Carter said when he was campaigning for president. "I had, I would say, three or four persons who had equal responsibilities for different aspects of my own duties. And I would probably continue that approach as president."

Analysis

He tried it for 2½ years, but the Carter people now concede that what worked at the statehouse doesn't suffice at the White House.

Instead, the lack of a top lieutenant with the kind of power now delegated to Jordan seems to have erected another kind of wall isolating the president.

Carter's time and attention apparently were being diverted too often by internal disputes among administration aides and Cabinet members, and by other matters that really didn't demand his personal involvement.

The president said in his July 15 address to the nation that he had found himself speaking too frequently about matters of concern to the government and to Washington, and means to spend more time from now on listening to the people and addressing their concerns.

Now Jordan is to deal with the in-house differences that need settling. Jordan said that some decisions which in the past have gone to the president will, instead, be his to make.

Carter is said to have told the rest of the White House staff that from now on, they should act on Jordan's decisions as if they came from the president personally.

"There's been a tendency to take too many problems to the president, and to involve him in the details of problems that do not warrant his attention," Jordan said.

In addition, Jordan is to become a gatekeeper, deciding when Cabinet members and other presidential aides really do need to see Carter.

All of that lends itself to the comparison the Carter White House had sought to avoid, for Haldeman wrote of his role:

"Nixon was able to halt, through me, the unending flow of government officials who 'just had to see the president.' Time and again these 'urgent' meetings would turn out to be either meaningless ego trips ... or, worse; long, time-wasting discussions of some minor departmental gripe."

Carter seems to have encountered the same problem. He may have invited it when he said as a candidate that Cabinet members would have direct access to his office — and added that he wouldn't object if they came to him as advocates for programs in areas they thought were being neglected.

Meningitis Germ Found Contagious

BOSTON (AP) — A germ that causes the most common form of bacterial meningitis is contagious among young children, researchers have found.

"The bacteria, called Haemophilus influenzae Type b, causes about 8,000 cases of meningitis in the United States each year, as well as a variety of other illnesses.

A study conducted by the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta discovered that people infected with this bacteria can pass it on to children living in the same house, especially to infants.

The risk of catching the bacterial disease this way is 6 percent for youngsters less than a year old, they found.

"Physicians and parents should be aware of the risk of secondary disease in contacts under 6 years of age, and these children should be observed closely for early signs of illness," the researchers wrote.

Meningitis, an inflammation of the membrane that surrounds the brain and spine, is sometimes fatal.

The researchers followed up on 1,147 cases of meningitis in 19 states in 1977 and 1978. In these households, there were 1,687 children under 6 years old.

Within a month of the initial outbreaks, nine youngsters came down with diseases caused by the bacteria. Seven of them caught meningitis, one had epiglottitis, an infection of the throat, and the other had bacteremia, the presence of bacteria in the blood.

The risk of children under age 4 catching the disease was 2.1 percent. None of the victims in the study was over age 5.

The researchers said that doctors may want to give precautionary doses of antibiotics to young children who are exposed to the bacteria.

The study was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Arnold L. Smith of Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical Center in Seattle noted that medical textbooks report that meningitis caused by Haemophilus influenzae is not passed from person to person.

The new study presents "convincing" evidence, he said, "showing that the illness is contagious and that the associated cases also have a predilection to occur in infants and children."

Blood Pressure Lowered By New Drug

BOSTON (UPI) — Doctors testing a new drug may have found a way to decrease blood pressure and the danger of heart failure in patients with some types of heart disease.

People with congestive heart failure pump insufficient blood through their bodies, and their blood pressure goes up. Preliminary experiments at Albert Einstein Medical College in New York City show the new drug Captopril increases blood flow without elevating blood pressure.

Ten patients given oral doses of Captopril decreased their heart rate and blood pressure, said Dr. Thierry H. LeJemtel. The findings of LeJemtel and four other Einstein physicians were published last week in the New England Journal of Medicine.

LeJemtel explained that congestive heart failure results in the heart not pumping enough blood to the brain, lungs and kidneys.

"The heart has to work harder while the body is trying to maintain blood pressure," he said. "Consequently, there is an overshoot of blood pressure."

City Teen-Ager Perishes In Car-Cycle Collision

A car-motorcycle collision in the city shortly after 10 p.m. Sunday claimed the life of a 19-year-old man.

The 45-year-old driver of the car reportedly was booked into the county jail about 11 p.m. on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Ricky Peppers of 2428 E. 30th St., who was riding the motorcycle, died about 2:25 a.m. today at Methodist Hospital from injuries suffered in the accident at East Auburn Street and North Quirt Avenue.

Witnesses told police Peppers was traveling north on Quirt Avenue and the car was southbound on Quirt Avenue just seconds before the fatal accident.

The driver of the car was attempting to turn east on East Auburn Street when the two vehicles collided, throwing Peppers off his motorcycle, according to witnesses.

A police offense report states the motorist was arrested at the scene on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. The report adds that the man had been convicted twice in the past for DWI.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy said today he was withholding a ruling in the case pending further investigation. The fatality marks the 15th this year on city streets.

Peppers' body was taken to South Plains Funeral Home, where services were pending today.

Officials Probe Area Death

Lubbock Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy today was withholding a ruling in the death this morning of a 26-year-old Plainview woman at Health Sciences Center Hospital, pending results of an autopsy and an investigation by the Hale County Sheriff's Department.

Gloria de la Santos died shortly after 8 a.m. of head injuries. The woman was admitted to HSCH about 9:15 p.m. Saturday after being transferred from Central Plains Regional Hospital in Plainview.

Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue said the dead woman's husband reportedly told hospital staff members his wife suffered a stroke Saturday, and that he found her lying unconscious on the floor of the couple's living room.

Tue said his department did not know of the woman's admission to the hospital until this morning when LeCroy called him. He said authorities were investigating the incident.

LeCroy ordered an autopsy and is awaiting its results as well as the outcome of the Hale County sheriff's investigation before making a ruling.

Rollover Kills Hereford Girl

HEREFORD (Special) — Virginia Ann Martinez, 16, of Hereford was killed and two other persons were injured in a one-car rollover about 12:30 a.m. Sunday in the southeast part of Hereford.

Miss Martinez, who was a passenger in the car, was dead on arrival at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The driver of the car, Katherine Blea, 17, of Hereford was in satisfactory condition late Sunday at the Hereford hospital. Another passenger in the car, Bobby Castillo, 23, also of Hereford, was treated at the hospital and released.

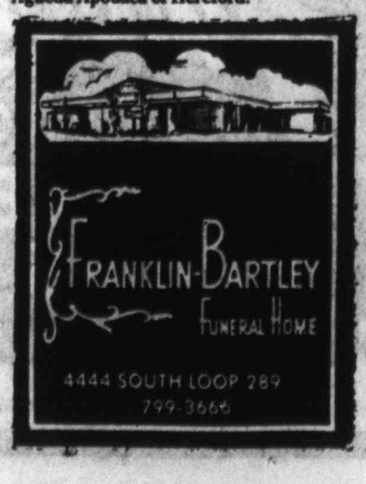
Reports show that Miss Blea, who was driving a 1976 Valiant, was eastbound on New York Avenue and attempting to pass another vehicle when she apparently lost control of the car. Police said the car struck the left curb, swerved back to the road, traveled over the right curb and rolled twice. Miss Martinez was thrown from the vehicle.

Services for Miss Martinez will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church here with the Rev. James O'Conner officiating.

Burial will be in St. Anthony's Cemetery under the direction of the Smith & Co. Funeral Home.

The Tucumcari, N.M., native had lived in Hereford for the past 5½ years. She had attended Hereford High School and was a member of the school choir. She was a Catholic.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fabian Martinez of Hereford; a brother, Dennis of the home; two sisters, Susie Gallardo and Beatrice Reyna, both of Hereford; and her grandparents, Vivian Martinez of San Jon, N.M., and Agueda Apodaca of Hereford.



THOMAS A. LOVELL

New Mexico Man Killed In Accident

Estevan P. Arenivas Jr., 22, of Lovington, N.M., was killed, and his wife and 2-year-old daughter were injured seriously in a one-car rollover about a half mile west of Lubbock Sunday morning.

Gloria Ann Arenivas, 19, was in critical condition today at Health Sciences Center Hospital with head injuries she suffered in the accident. Angela, the couple's daughter, was in serious condition at HSCH. She reportedly sustained a fractured leg in the accident.

Arenivas was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy, who ruled the death accidental. The accident reportedly occurred at 3:09 a.m. at Spur 327 and U.S. 62-82.

Arenivas, driver of a 1973 Pontiac, was traveling eastbound on U.S. 62-82 at a high rate of speed, failed to negotiate a curve and rolled over two and a half times, DPS reports said. Reports indicate the car came to a stop on its top, and that all three occupants were thrown from the vehicle.

Services for Arenivas are pending with Smith-Rogers Funeral Home in Lovington.

Arenivas had lived in Lovington for the past six years, moving there from California.

Survivors other than his wife and daughter include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Estevan Arenivas Sr. of Lovington; a brother, Lupe of Lovington; and a sister, Ramona Renado of North Carolina.

Carter Has Short Time To Change Image

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter is in much the same position as the captain of a ship on a collision course with an iceberg. He knows which way he wants to turn, but the time and distance required to accomplish it may make disaster inevitable.

Carter's first term still has 18 months to run, but in practical terms he has only seven or eight months left to save what appeared as recently as last week to be a sinking presidency.

Analysis

The polls say the public views Carter as a nice, honest man who can't get anything done. If he can't rectify that image before the primaries and delegate selection caucuses begin next winter, he is in clear danger of losing his chance to seek a second term.

Carter's weekend speech was the start of his effort to turn it around. The Cabinet shakeup that began Thursday was a continuation of that enterprise.

But like the long-range energy proposals he announced Sunday and Monday, the potential for political profit in the latest moves is limited by the element of time.

It would be all but impossible for Wonder Woman, let alone Patricia Harris, to make changes in the operation of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that would be noticeable to the public by next winter.

If the ocean liner parallel fits any part of the federal establishment, it has to be the diverse assembly of government functions that masquerade as a department under the name of HEW. Getting HEW to do something new is hard; getting it to change what it already is doing is the stuff of nightmares.

Nor is it likely that the change of leadership in the departments of the Treasury or Justice — or Mrs. Harris' Housing and Urban Development — will make any real differences in the way they are run. They will continue much as they have in the past.

Carter probably will get something out of the changes. He will have made it clear, certainly to the bureaucrats if not the public, that he is capable of sacking someone when he believes it is necessary.

Also, he will have removed, particularly in the case of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, some of the political drag on his chances for renomination and reelection.

But can the image of action take the place of the substance of accomplishment? The snow will be flying in Iowa and New Hampshire before the answer to that question is revealed.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In roles where you must exercise your authority, others will happily do your biding tomorrow because what you ask of them will be voiced pleasantly rather than as a command.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Should you get a strong hunch tomorrow, it may prove wise to heed that inner voice. Your intuition will be more accurate than usual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't pass up any opportunities tomorrow where you have a chance to mingle with your friends. Something propitious could result from the encounter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will be quite probable tomorrow that you could come up with a bright idea to put you a few paces ahead of your competition. Don't be afraid to test it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Treat all your experiences philosophically tomorrow. No matter what might pop up, don't let it rattle you. Your positive attitude will assure your success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A small profit is better than none. You'll not be disappointed tomorrow unless you expect more than you are legitimately entitled to.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of sidestepping difficult decisions tomorrow, meet them courageously. Being indecisive or wishy-washy is the only thing that could defeat you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than doing only what's expected tomorrow, produce a little extra. Your industriousness will not go unnoticed or unrewarded.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will be a fun person to be around tomorrow because you won't be apt to take yourself or life too seriously. Friends will be encouraged to emulate your actions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Artistic, creative, domestic do-it-yourself projects will afford you the greatest pleasure tomorrow. Be an imaginative putterer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Should you be required to put your salesmanship skills to the test tomorrow, it won't be hard to come away with the order regardless of how tough the prospect may be.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In business or financial matters you will have the ability tomorrow to size things up quickly and accurately. Small points won't escape your attention.

Annapolis Commuters Try New Water Taxi Service

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — With traffic-clogged streets and 17 miles of shoreline within its city limits, Annapolis is proving a receptive home to a new wate taxi service.

Instead of facing morning traffic, choking exhaust fumes, crowded parking garages, meter maids with poised ticket pads and soaring gasoline prices, Eastport commuters can walk down to piers on Spa and Back creeks and catch a boat to downtown Annapolis.

"It's simply a delightful way of commuting," said Paul Pearson, one of the commuters who rides to work on the 41-foot Mary Harper.

Pearson, the owner of the Maryland Inn, figures that the $1.30 round-trip commuter ticket saves him a bundle on parking fees and gasoline.

The Annapolis Water Taxi Service, begun last summer, is owned by Nick Roper and operated by Ken Keyworth and his wife, Cheryl Phipps, both licensed pilots.

Still a fledgling operation, the Mary Harper plies the waters of Spa and Back creeks twice in the morning and six times in the afternoon for the new wave

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Monday, July 23, the 204th day of 1979 with 161 to follow.

The moon approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo.

On this day in history:

In 1829, William Burt of Mount Vernon, Mich., received a patent for a device called the "Typographer," believed to have been the first typewriter.

In 1904, the ice cream cone was born. A St. Louis man called on a young lady, carrying a bouquet of flowers in one hand and an ice cream sandwich in the other. The girl fashioned one of the sandwich layers into the form of a vase and the cone idea caught on.

In 1973, Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox served subpoenas on the White House after President Nixon refused to turn over tapes and documents related to the case. He later refused to honor the subpoenas.

In 1974, the military junta ruling Greece turned the government back to civilian leaders.

A thought for the day:

English writer Samuel Butler said, "The man who lets himself be bored is even more contemptible than the bore."

Institute Displays 20th Century Art

BOSTON (AP) — The exhibition "20th Century Drawings from Massachusetts Collections" is on view through Sept. 2 at the Institute of Contemporary Art.

The show contains more than 100 drawings. The institute says it "provides an opportunity both to enjoy rarely seen works of such classics of the 20th century as Picasso, Klee, Gorky, Beckmann, Adolph Hitler began "The Night of the Long Knives," a purge of Nazi bureaucrats, in 1934. Among the 77 prominent officials killed were Ernest Roehm and Gregor Strasser. Hitler publicly acknowledged the murders two weeks later and claimed the right to kill for the benefit of the German Reich.

SPOTLIGHT ON... Family News

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

At a party the other night, the smokers and the non-smokers parted and lined up on either side of the room.

Splintering off these two groups were those who believed there was truly a gas shortage and those who didn't buy any of it.

Dividing again were those who didn't want to bring children into "a world without a Salt II agreement" and those who were willing to take the chance.

I figured I had a pretty good evening with a non-smoking woman who belonged to a grocery car pool and was pregnant.

I was wrong.

She turned out to be a tub freak. I am an orthodox shower person.

I had never actually talked to any length with a tub person before, but I knew all about them. They were the classic stereotypes. Without asking, I knew she drank Perrier, had knots between each of her pearls, still used bath powder, watched Dick Cavett, read Willa Cather, grew her own dill, and had a doll lamp by her bed.

I told her I couldn't work up enthusiasm for the soaking-in-a-hot-tub-jump-in-the-jacuzzi-last-one-into-the-family-tub-has-to-stand syndrome.

I had tried it a couple of times and pretended to have a good time, but the truth is I never know what to do with my hands. Also my body does not have the insulation to walk into a tub of boiling water without a blood-curdling cry coming from my lips.

She said she knew I was a shower person by looking at me. The type who couldn't stand to have a phone ring without answering it, used the same towel to dry my hair and body, slept with her watch on, put onions in every salad, collected swizzle sticks and threw change in the bottom of her handbag.

She said showers were fine if you were washing sand off at the beach, but frankly considered them the turning point of decadence in the 20th century.

"Whatever turns you on," she said and wandered off to another group.

May the phone ring the next time she has a jet spray in just the right place.

Farce Diets Melt Pounds, Inches Away

By MARIE PRESTON
Women's News Service

Monotony is probably one of the reasons dieting very often fails. Therefore, I recommend the following fun, foolproof diets, guaranteed to take off inches in places you'd forgotten existed:

THE BUBBLE GUM DIET: Chew four wads of bubble gum for breakfast — any flavor — for 20 minutes. Blow four large bubbles. Repeat for lunch, mid-afternoon snacks, and dinner. The bubble blowing action will eat up approximately 12 calories, and take one's mind off starvation. Continue this diet until pounds melt away, or until you begin swallowing the gum and eating the wrappers.

THE WINE DIET: This is a super fun diet. Starting at 8 a.m., pour the wine of your choice into a 6 ounce glass, and sip slowly, until you feel a warm tingle in the pit of your tummy. Do the same at 10 a.m., 11 a.m., noon, 3 p.m., 4 p.m., and every hour thereafter. (Note: it will get progressively more difficult to see the clock as the day goes on.) For diversion, mix with one-quarter Scotch or Gin. You are assured of shedding at least five pounds in one week with this particular diet. And even if you don't, you won't really care.

ROTTEN FOOD DIET: When food is unappetizing, the odds are you'll eat less. So, for breakfast, burn two slices of toast and top with green moldy cream cheese. Then, in a rusted, pitted pot, scorch hot milk. For a rotten lunch, eat a stale bologna sandwich with dark brown, curled edges (preferably two months old). Wash down with rancid orange juice with pits. And, for supper, pastina with grain bugs will do nicely. Insert two fingers down throat after each meal for best results.

THE LICK AND CHEW DIET: This marvelous diet can be applied to many differnt foods, which is why it's so desirable. For instance, lick a banana as many times as you like, then bite, chew and spit out. This flawless diet can be applied to spaghetti, bread, cake, and practically every fattening food. One can also combine the GARGLE DIET (gargling any of your favorite beverages) with the LICK AND CHEW DIET for added enjoyment.

WAX FRUIT DIET: Purchase an assortment of wax fruits, very colorful, very appetizing. With this particular diet, you need not stick to any designated time schedule, and, may eat as many wax fruits as you wish, whenever you wish, or until you develop severe wax poisoning cramps. (Wax is very filling, but sometimes a bit heavy.) Also, for those of you who feel wax fruits are too expensive, why not draw pictures of your favorite foods and eat them. Or, if you're not very artistic, eat the labels on cans and boxes instead.

FINGERNAIL DIET: Bite or chew on your thumb fingernail for breakfast, your pinky nail for lunch, and your index or middle fingernail for supper. For extra zest, dunk in mayonnaise or ketchup first. You should continue this diet for only two days, or until you have no more fingernails.

WATER DIET: Drink six glasses of water in the morning, 12 at lunchtime, 14 for supper. In between you can add ice cubes and a sprig of parsley. On Sundays, you're allowed one squeeze of lemon. Resume solids when your stomach begins sounding like Niagra Falls during a bombing, moss forms around your feet, and hornets and weeping willows start following you around.

ONE MINUTE DIET: Fill up your dish with any food of your choice; set timer for one minute. See how much food you can shove down your throat in that time. For dessert, suck on your toe. Good luck!

Young Woman Enjoys Career In Construction Business

By MICHAEL DONAHUE
Memphis Press-Scimitar

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The war that inspired the song "Rosie the Riveter" was over before Lisa Croft was born, but Miss Croft and Rosie have a lot in common. They liked to work with metals.

"When I was little, most girls had dolls," Miss Croft said. "I had locks and hammers and tools."

Miss Croft, who was wearing coveralls, a cap and a few grease smudges on her face, is a 22-year-old welder and riveter, the only woman working alongside four men at Collierville Welding and Supply.

"I do body work, pack wheels, carpentry, a little bit of everything that needs to be done. We have an aluminum welder I'm learning to use. I can use just about any machine in the shop."

A farmer's daughter, Miss Croft said she was offered the welding job recently while she was having some work done on her trailer.

She said she used to help repair the machinery on her father's 500-acre farm. "I learned how to fix it up, tear it up and get it back in running order. I figured if I could do it free at home, I could get paid somewhere else."

Welding takes patience and skill, she said.

"If you rush it, you'll spend all day trying to get it down to look slick. You have to measure, cut and angle it right. There's a fine hairline between two metals. The more space you leave between them, the harder it is to weld, to get the work stationary and do your welding."

Miss Croft said her mother isn't too pleased with her daughter's current vocation, but there may be something in welding's favor.

"Before I did this, I rode bulls in rodeos, so I guess this is an improvement," she said. She also used to tie goats in rodeos, but her mother wasn't in favor of that, either.

"She was dead set against me goat tying, but when she found out I was bull riding, she told me to go back to goat tying."

In addition to her welding, Miss Croft shows quarter horses, breeds horses, plays racket ball and raises dalmatians, bluetick hounds and pit bulldogs.

More than anything she likes to be outdoors but she plans to begin an indoor career in early fall when she enters Methodist Hospital School of Nursing.

Smooth Skin Summer Must

NEW YORK (Special) — The summer of brief clothes means a nice carefree feeling, but if you want to look good you'll have to baby your skin.

All that exposed skin has to be soft and smooth to carry off the great look of bared legs, arms, shoulders and back.

Pure gentle baby oil can keep all your skin in shape all summer long. It's the super skin softener that puts back the moisture summer sun and wind remove. It enhances tanned skin with a satiny glow, and makes pale faces soft as a babe's. Baby oil applications make dry flaking skin look smooth again.

After sunning and before bed rub some baby oil on your legs, shoulders, and those rough spots like heels, knees and elbows. Soften your sandal feet with a soaking of baby oil and warm water, or sleep with baby-oiled feet in clean white cotton socks for a special softening treatment.

But the easiest way to get all your skin softened at once is by adding some baby oil to your bath water.

If you're a shower fan try this routine that is popular with models for the same softening results. Wash in the shower as you usually do, then step out from under the shower and smooth baby oil all over your body. Then step back under the water and rinse. Dry with a fluffy towel and your skin will be as satiny as if you had soaked in a bath oil.

Family Patterns Change In U.S.

Today's middle-income family is as likely to produce a school dropout, drug abuser or juvenile delinquent as was the low income family of the 1960's, according to the American Medical Association.

Changing family patterns are taking a toll on children in all levels of society, and even those in so-called "wholesome" traditional families are no longer immune from social problems.

American families are also becoming less homogenous and more diverse, and those working with the mental health of children need to be aware of their individual cultural backgrounds, a guidebook for physicians states.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

What's a "spritz"? That's short for our fruit juice spritzer, a non-alcoholic, no-sugar-added blend of real fruit juice and sparkling water. Short on calories, too ... less than the calories of phony-flavored syrupy soda-pops that actually heat you up rather than cool you off!

Our "spritz" takes its inspiration from the well-known soda-diluted wine spritzers that combine wine and soda over ice. The wine spritzer was invented to meet the need for a long, cooling drink that's light on alcohol. By substituting any favorite fruit juice (or combination), you can invent your own Fruit Spritz that's long on cooling but short on sugar and calories. (Despite the absence of alcohol, a spritz made with a combination of fruit juices can be plenty spirited in flavor!)

The how-to of spritz-making depends on your preference. You can use fresh, bottled, canned, reconstituted, frozen or concentrated juices — singly or in combination — and mix them with your favorite sparkling water: club soda, snobby imports or seltzer from a soda-maker. If you hate to carry home heavy bottles — as I do — the simplest combination is seltzer from a soda-maker and undiluted defrosted juice concentrate from a small six-ounce can. During a heat wave, I like to keep a variety of small cans of defrosted concentrate in the refrigerator, to use as soda-making "syrup."

The fun of spritz-making is to invent your own combinations, but here are some basic ideas to start you thinking:

FRESH SQUEEZED SPRITZ
1 juice orange, squeezed
6-8 oz. sparkling water

PURPLE PASSION SPRITZ
¼ cup bottled undiluted grape juice optional: ½ of a fresh lemon, squeezed
6-8 oz. sparkling water
Combine and serve with ice. About 40 calories.

NECTAR SPRITZ
1/3 cup unsweetened canned pineapple, apricot, peach or mango juice
6-8 oz. sparkling water

APPLE SPRITZ
2 tbsps. undiluted defrosted apple or cider concentrate
6-8 oz. sparkling water
Combine and serve with ice. 60 calories. (Store remaining defrosted concentrate in refrigerator and use as needed.)

Other fruit spritzes to make with juice concentrate: pineapple, 65 calories; orange or tangerine, 55 calories; grape, 65 calories; grapefruit, 50 calories ... any true juice concentrate, NOT frozen sugar-sweetened punches or fruitades."

POLYNESIAN PASSION SPRITZ
2 tbsps. undiluted defrosted pineapple juice concentrate ¼ cup fresh orange juice
½ cup sparkling water
Combine over ice. 95 calories. (Or substitute orange juice concentrate and canned unsweetened pineapple juice; 90 calories.)

PINK GRAPEFRUIT SPRITZ
3 tbsps. bottled red grape juice
1 tbsp. undiluted defrosted grapefruit juice concentrate
6-8 oz. sparkling water
Combine and serve with ice. 55 calories.

CITRUS TEA SPRITZ
2 tbsps. defrosted undiluted orange or tangerine juice concentrate ¼ cup strong cold tea (homemade or instant, with water)
6-8 oz. sparkling water
Combine and serve with ice. 55 calories.

PEACHY PINEAPPLE SPRITZ
1 tbsp. defrosted undiluted pineapple juice concentrate ¼ cup canned unsweetened peach nectar
6-8 oz. sparkling water
Combine and serve with ice. 65 calories.

Lemon ice at only 40 calories a serving, chocolate ice cream at only 80 calories, five-calorie strawberry sauce, frozen fruit mousse — for these and more, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET FROZEN DESSERTS, in care of this newspaper, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

Clip 'n' Cook

CHILLED CHIVE 'N ZUCCHINI SOUP

2 medium or 3 small zucchini, quartered
1 can (13¾ oz.) chicken broth
1½ cup milk
1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 medium-sized carrot, quartered
1 tsp. salt
2 cartons (8 oz. each) plain yogurt
2 tbsps. chopped chives

Combine zucchini, broth, milk, oats, carrot and salt in blender. Cover; blend 10 to 15 seconds or until smooth. Combien zucchini mixture, yogurt and chives in large bowl; mix well. Cover; chill several hours. Sprinkle with additional chopped chives to serve, if desired. Makes about six 1-cup servings.

Note: additional milk may be added if soup becomes too thick upon standing.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠93 ♡AKQJ105 ◇KQJ107
What is your opening bid?

A.—Even though you are virtually assured of ten tricks in hearts, this hand does not merit a demand bid of two hearts. That action carries with it certain high-card requirements which this hand does not meet. An opening bid of one heart, followed by a jump shift in diamonds describes your hand accurately. Don't worry about one heart being passed out. With your distribution, that is most unlikely to happen.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A92 ♡AJ ◇AKJ53 ♣Q106
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ◇	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—You have already indicated that you wish to play the hand at no trump, so don't repeat the story. Partner's rebid of three diamonds says either that he feels his hand is unsuited to game at no trump, or that he is interested in slam. Either way, a delayed raise to three spades will give partner the opportunity to express his intentions without wasting bidding space unnecessarily.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ73 ♡Q10 ◇1063 ♣AQ105
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have a reasonably sound opening bid opposite a partner who not only opened, but jump rebid his own suit. In addition, your two honors in partner's suit represent considerable assets that have not yet been revealed. We cannot think of a hand partner could have for his bidding that would not offer excellent play for slam, so don't waste time. Bid what you think you can make—six hearts.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A62 ♡AK95 ◇K ♣AJ743
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	5 ♣	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—So far you have conducted an excellent auction—by bidding only one heart, you catered to the possibility of a misfit. Don't misstep now. Partner's jump to four hearts was not a close-out—on the contrary, it showed a strong hand, good enough for game opposite even a minimum opening bid. A small slam is sure, but you should fish for bigger things. Cue-bid five diamonds—your king of diamonds might open the door to a grand slam.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ1032 ♡AKQJ5 ◇AJ5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♠	Pass	Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You want to commit this hand to game. One possibility is to jump to four hearts. Unfortunately, that shows a two-suiter when, your hand is, in fact, a three-suiter. As an alternative, you could double, but that runs the risk that partner might pass for an inconsequential penalty. The only sure way to create a game force, while leaving all avenues open to exploration, is to cue-bid three clubs.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠104 ♡J1095 ◇AKJ9 ♣K92
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—With excellent intermediates and a secondary fit for partner's club suit, your hand is just too strong for an invitational raise to two no trump, despite the potentially fatal weakness in spades. Take the strain off partner by bidding the no trump game yourself.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠76 ♡A ◇AQ62 ♣AQJ1063
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's responses have done nothing to enhance your hand. For our money, we would bid three no trump. Nine tricks in no trump should be easier to make than eleven in clubs. If there is slam in the cards, partner must be able to bid again.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A62 ♡AQJ743 ◇5 ♣632
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ♡	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—From the auction, it sounds as if you have the wrong ace. It is all too likely that partner is void in spades and has a couple of fast club losers—after all, he did take the trouble to cue-bid diamonds, but not clubs, on the way to five hearts. So it seems right to pass.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of nine boys. Their father is dead. Rudy, 23, is my oldest. He married Agnes, a 15-year-old girl, because she said he got her pregnant. Their baby is two years old now and is the picture of the fellow Agnes went with before Rudy married her.

Their marriage is on the rocks because she is pregnant by a sailor she met when she went to visit her mother in Seattle. Rudy won't take her back because he's in love with a 21-year-old girl who has two babies and is expecting a third by a fellow who isn't her husband although she's still married.

Rudy gets unemployment. He runs all night and lies around my house all day. He acts real crazy. I never know if he's on drugs or just drunk. All right, so much for Rudy.

Jody is my 20-year-old. He got a 17-year-old girl pregnant but won't marry her because he says he's not ready to settle down yet.

Abby, I've been a church-going Christian woman and a good mother and I don't know how I could have turned out kids like these. If they hang around the younger boys, they will be a mess, too. Please help me.

A Mother Who Failed

Dear Mother: Don't feel guilty. If you've been a good mother, you haven't failed, your kids have. Let the older boys know they can't lie around your house all day. Your problems are too heavy to carry alone. You need to talk to an understanding, supportive person. Your clergyman is ready when you are.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: When would you say a person has reached middle age?

Forty And Curious

Dear Forty: When he (or she) climbs out of the bathtub and is glad to find the full-length mirror all steamed up!

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I have a lazy teen-age daughter who has to be reminded over and over again to write thank-you notes for gifts she receives at Christmas, her birthday and, more recently, for her high-school graduation. Now she has a new cop-out. She thanks people for their gifts by telephone. Her grandparents live 1,500 miles away and so do most of her aunts and uncles, so the calls aren't exactly free. She says she will pay for the calls herself, but so far I haven't seen a penny.

Her father was furious when she told us she was planning to thank everyone for her graduation gifts by phone, but we both agreed it would be better than not thanking them at all.

Daughter argues that a phone call is much more personal and gives her a chance to ask how they are and to tell them what she is doing, how the family is, etc.

Do you think a telephone thanks is proper?

Mother Of A Teen

Dear Mother: A written thanks is better. But a phone call is better than no thanks at all.

Watering Tips Improve Lawn

CHICAGO (NFS) — Think of your lawn as a sponge. Once that realization sinks in, so will the water you sprinkle on it. Especially right after a good rain.

That advise comes from Dick Brickman, president of Theodore Brickman Co., landscape architects and contractors in Long Grove, Ill.

"Water poured on a dry sponge will run right off," he said. "But give the sponge a chance to become damp, and it will soak up the water. A dry lawn is the same. Most of the water you apply by sprinkling will run off at first.

"It's better to sprinkle for a half-hour, then wait another 30 minutes before resuming sprinkling. This will give the lawn a chance to become moist, and it will absorb the water more readily."

The best time to water your lawn, oddly enough, is right after a heavy rain. Most of the rain will run right off into the street, but some will remain to moisten the lawn. Water your lawn right after that, and the water will be absorbed without a pre-soaking.

Gasoline Fears Drop National Park Attendance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Travel officials hope increased gasoline supplies will reverse a dismal summer and prompt motorists to begin taking vacations by car.

So far, attendance at national parks is down by between 10 and 30 percent and business is off from 5 to more than 20 percent for operators who depend on highway travelers for their livelihood, according to official figures.

"Those percentages of business decline for many are the difference between survival and bankruptcy," said William D. Toohey, president of Discover America Travel Organizations Inc., an umbrella group for the U.S. travel industry.

"Las Vegas has a heavy dependency on automobile travel and businss is down," said Toohey. "Many of the attractions in the theme (big amusement) parks are having varying degrees of difficulty with attendance. Certainly the highway-oriented motel systems are."

The National Park Service expected an improvement in visitors during July, especially since the parks had gasoline. But it didn't materialize.

Yellowstone Park visitors, down 33 percent in June compared to 1978, dipped 35 percent in the first two weeks of July.

It was even worse in July at Zion National Park in Utah, down 46 percent, and Acadia National Park, Maine, was off 50 percent, reported parks information officer Tom Wilson.

"We've been down generally from 10 to 30 percent in most of the big parks," he said.

Figures for June showed Carlsbad, N.M., down 14 percent; Cape Hatteras, N.C., even; Gettysburg, Pa., down 30 percent; Great Smokey, Tenn.-N.C., down 13 percent; Olympic National Park in Washington state, down 18 percent; Shenandoah, Va., down 35 percent; Capital Reef in Utah, down 31 percent; Rocky Mountain in Colorado, down 18 percent, and Yosemite in California, down 17 percent.

"None of the major park areas had any significant shortage of gasoline," said Wilson. "Most of the camps and lodges do fill up. It's the outlying motels that apparently are taking the real beating."

Toohey said, "The perception of the problem has been far worse than the reality. Gasoline has been available on the interstate highway system."

Toohey is optimistic about the second half of the summer because of reports of a general improvement in gasoline supplies.

"I think travel is so much part of the life style of American people ... and I think if the people have an assurance they can get gasoline, they'll get back on the vacation pattern," said Toohey.

But, Toohey said, the next day, Carter's chief domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat appeared on television and denied the president opposes vacations by car.

Nicaraguan Rebels Plan Somoza Trial

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's revolutionary government is going to request the extradition of dictator Anastasio Somoza to face trial for war crimes, but it says there will be no wholesale execution of his supporters like those after the revolution in Iran.

There will be "no death penalty in Nicaragua and no executions ordered by the courts," the new chief justice of the Supreme Court, Roberto Arguelo Hurtado, told reporters Sunday.

"It is possible there may be excesses — including executions — before we can get regular courts organized," said Arguelo. "But they will only be personal vendettas or just plain hate between people, and any executions will not be authorized."

The chief justice said his court would appoint new judges for the lower courts as soon as possible. Until that is done, he said, justice is being administered by three-member military-civilian tribunals authorized to maintain public order and try persons accused of civil and war crimes.

"Later, each of their sentences will be reviewed to determine if they should stand or go to a higher court," Arguelo said.

One of the five members of the junta heading the government, Sergio Ramirez Mercado, told a news conference the government was going to ask the United States for Somoza's extradition and was preparing the charges against him.

He said the ousted dictator, who fled to an estate he owns in Miami Beach and is now yachting in the Caribbean, was "responsible for the destruction and the deaths of thousands of Nicaraguans." He also accused the deposed president and his associates of taking "every last cent out of the national bank reserves." And he said Somoza is plotting to return to Nicaragua with an army.

The chief justice said members of the national guard who have taken refuge in Red Cross centers would be given safe conduct out of the country if they are cleared of war crimes charges.

"Each case will be reviewed to determine if any are guilty of war crimes," he said.

Ulrich Bedart of the Red Cross said the relief organization has about 3,000 to 4,000 national guardsmen and their families in its custody, and "every day we are getting information about more."

He said there have been no reports of reprisals against guardsmen by Sandinista guerrillas. But he said there were reports of reprisals against guardsmen by civilians, and he refused to discuss them.

Sandinista sources reported two truckloads of pro-Somoza gunmen fired automatic weapons Saturday night at the Hotel Camino Real, where the five members of the junta and the 18 cabinet members they named are staying.

The hotel is on the eastern outskirts of Managua near the airport and is surrounded by Sandinista guards. The sources said the guards returned the fire of the gunmen and drove them off, but two of the guards were wounded.

"The war is still not over," Ramirez commented. "We are not going to tolerate resistance from the Somocistas. We will not tolerate it from the ultra-left or the ultra-right.

"Our attitude so far has been very soft toward the repression of Somocistas. We have permitted national guard members and officers refuge and safe conduct out of the country. But if the shooting continues, we can't tolerate it."

Sunday afternoon, all five junta members traveled in a heavily guarded, 10-car caravan to Managua's Monimbo district, where about 5,000 cheering persons lined the streets.

Monimbo was the scene of a clash between residents and the national guard in February 1978 following the assassination of anti-Somoza newspaper publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro. Chamorro's murder led to demonstrations, general strikes and two Sandinista uprisings, the second of which ended the 42-year-old Somoza famil dictatorship.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Thomas O'Donnell said the United States is prepared to provide massive aid to Nicaragua, but will be careful to avoid any suspicion of intervention.

"We are awaiting a green light from the Nicaraguan government and the Red Cross," he said. "We are not going to do anything that would lead to the slightest suspicion of American intervention."

Israel Demands Force In Sinai

demned the attack as "an ugly crime against innocent civilians" and urged other nations "to act to stop Israeli aggression against a U.N. member-state."

Israel said its planes attacked Palestinian "terrorist concentrations," but the Palestine Liberation Organization said only three guerrillas were killed.

The government spokesman said the U.S. government would be asked to put pressure on Israel to halt its attacks. Similar appeals in the past have brought no results.

A witness to one of the raids Sunday evening said it caused "enormous damage." Residents in Beirut heard the distant thuds of rockets hitting the Palestinian towns of Damour, Haret al-Naameeh, Sarafand and nearby targets 12 to 20 miles south of the capital.

Provincial officials in Sidon said Syrian MiG jets scrambled to meet the intruders and "chased" them away. They said the Israeli pilots apparently did not want to tangle with the Syrians.

A brief Israeli communique said all planes returned safely.

It was the first Israeli air raid in Lebanon since June 27, when Israeli and Syrian jets clashed in the skies over Damour in their first dogfight in five years. Israel said its U.S.-made F-15s, in combat for the first time, downed five of the older and slower Syrian MiG-21s in that encounter. U.S. intelligence put the Syrian toll at six jets.

WAFA, the Palestinian news agency, said Israel used American-made F-4 Phantom jets in Sunday's attacks. The United States complained about Israel's use of F-15s in the previous raid, claiming the Israelis violated a pledge to use the planes only for defense.

Israel has repeatedly hit Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon, claiming the raids are aimed at heading off guerrilla forays across the border.

Carter Still Trying To Fill High Posts

"We haven't kept it in perspective as well as the people across America have," Strauss said. "The president said all along that he was going to restructure his government."

Carter, in a meeting with several reporters Saturday, made clear that he wants to see some stability returned to White House operations, after nearly three weeks of uncertainty. It was also made clear that Carter knows what changes he thinks should be made to strengthen the staff and increase the diversity of his advisers.

Reporters also learned that the overriding theme in the Cabinet shakeup was loyalty, a point stressed Sunday by Jordan, who said:

"Once the president makes a decision on policy or a piece of legislation, it is the responsibility of people in government to support that action or leave the government."

Carter clearly felt that Joseph A. Califano Jr., whom he fired as secretary of health, education and welfare, had been working at cross-purposes to presidential goals.

It was understood that the president expects his Cabinet members to be team players and that if he had made an error in the past, he felt it was in waiting as long as he did to use dismissals to make this clear.

It was also understood that Carter was dissatisfied with Califano's record on Capitol Hill, where the president feels the HEW secretary was unable to achieve legislative success for programs in his area.

But a member of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill's staff said that "with (House) members, Joe Califano got along fine. They all liked him." The staff member asked not to be named.

In separate interviews Sunday, Califano and Jordan renewed their dispute over what Carter had told the HEW secretary when he fired him.

Appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program, Califano reiterated that Carter had called him "the best secretary of HEW," said he was being let go because of friction with the White House staff and said the Cabinet had to be put in shape for the 1980 re-election campaign.

But Jordan and the president himself contended that Carter had made no such comments.

Carter made his views known to reporters under ground rules that he not be quoted directly.

From the meeting, it appeared that Carter had no qualms about the actions he took and felt they were carried out as rapidly as possible.

His work this week on energy will be directed at heading off congressional sentiment that would lead to what Powell said was "a year-by-year review and authorization process for every single energy program."

"The reason for proposing an independent corporation was to remove the threat of politics as usual, log-rolling, pork barrel considerations," the press secretary said.

"There is a great attraction associated with $140 billion (the sum Carter expects his energy proposals to cost over 10 years) and there is a great temptation ... to fund it through the (conventional) appropriation process," he said.

Powell said this could lead to spending the money "on projects that have to be located in a particular state or district," rather than "on the most urgent or effective projects."

The president spent his first full weekend in the Washington area since late April.

Tobago's Beaches Safe As Oil Slick Disperses

BON ACCORD, Tobago (AP) — The immediate threat of pollution to Tobago's beaches from the collision of the supertankers Atlantic Empress and Aegean Captain four nights ago appeared to be over today.

Currents and winds broke up the oil slick and carried it away from the island. There was no longer any significant leakage from the Aegean Captain, and the other 1,000-foot ship was towed out into the Atlantic to let the fire aboard burn itself out. Then the crude oil still aboard was to be transferred to other tankers.

The $45-million, Greek-owned Atlantic Empress was reported a "total loss;" 27 of the two ships' 75 Greek crew members were missing and feared dead, and five of the 48 survivors were injured.

The total amount of oil lost could not be determined yet, but it appeared to be less than half the record 54 million gallons spilled when the tanker Amoco Cadiz was wrecked just off the French coast last year.

The two supertankers were reported carrying about 70 million gallons each. The Aegean Captain, which was damaged in the bow, reportedly lost about 4 million gallons. A spokesman for the Mobil Oil Co., the owner of the oil aboard the Atlantic Empress, estimated the maximum spillage from that ship at 20 million gallons, "and much of that was burned away," he said.

A Trinidad-Tobago official said an inquest would begin this week to determine the cause of the collision late Thursday in the open Atlantic 20 miles off the northeast tip of Tobago.

The collision set both ships afire. The blaze on the Aegean Captain was put out during the weekend, and the ship was towed stern first to a point 10 miles off Tobago to be inspected by officials of the Trinidad-Tobago coast guard. They were to determine if it would be safe to bring the ship to the Trinidad dockyard for emergency repairs to the crushed bow.

The Atlantic Empress was hit amidships and four or five of its 20 cargo tanks were believed ruptured. The fire aboard it was still burning today, and no attempt was being made to put it out. Mobil officials explained that it posed no significant danger to the ship and was helping the pollution situation by burning off escaping oil.

The blaze was "considerably smaller" late Sunday, they reported.

Mobil ordered three smaller tankers from Beaumont, Tex., to siphon off the oil remaning in the Empress when men could be put aboard her. Oil company sources said the pumping operation might take two weeks.

Meanwhile, the hulk was being towed slowly out into the Atlantic. By noon Sunday it was about 30 miles offshore.

A Mobil spokesman said the Empress appeared to be a "total constructive loss," meaning it would not be worth rebuilding and would be scrapped.

Mobil spokeswoman Susan Force said the oil slick from the Empress was about 60 miles long and two miles at its widest while that from the Aegean Captain was about 25 miles long and two miles at its widest.

She said they were being swept westward into the Caribbean, passing at least 10 miles north of Tobago, then swinging toward the island of Grenada, 100 miles to the northwest. But she and cleanup experts said the sun, the currents, and wave and wind action were rapidly dispersing the oil, and it posed no immediate threat to any shoreline.

Businessman Tells Secret Of Success

accomplish what they say they will do as individuals.

"Stop sending a committee to do what one man or one person can do," he said.

To go into business, Davis said, people must realize that they must accept taking a risk and must "stop thinking that you can cinch everything you want to do."

Davis told the gathering during a question-and-answer session after his speech that a person has to have "guts" to go into business on his own, no matter how much education he has.

Other steps on the way to success included by Davis are that nobody is really happy unless he is working and that people must want and know how to win.

"Don't believe it when you hear, 'I'll be so glad when I can retire' because nobody is happy unless they've really got something to do," Davis said.

Davis advised the group to coach their employees' work rather than criticize and to praise a person's work rather than the person himself to avoid an appearance of favoritism.

About 80 percent of the blacks in Lubbock probably don't know the basic facts and statistics about their city, Davis said, and pointed out that they must get this information and use it to their advantage.

"Know the facts behind about what you want to talk about," he said.

Davis said people must keep a positive mental attitude and start thinking about their futures now because "you have to plan and buy in advance."

Davis advised blacks to do the opposite of the majority — to take people by surprise for a change instead of just following along blindly.

"You must also stop trying to do it all by yourself," Davis said. He told husbands they should tell their wives and families what they are planning to do in business or otherwise, so the families can mentally follow them.

Work with others but do it smartly, Davis said, and make sure everything is working to your best interest.

Davis said people need to be informed by reading more than one newspaper.

"Anyore who thinks they're getting all the news from one paper or from TV or radio is a fool," he said, adding that people need to read at least one out-of-town newspaper and a good news magazine weekly.

Davis advised seminar participants to start listening to those around them now and to learn to use the system to work for them.

"You'd be surprised what you can accomplish if you plan your day," Davis said, adding that people must learn to finish whatever they set out to do.

Davis said those who want to get ahead should dress appropriately for the occasion, but said people should not try to sell themselves to everyone.

Workers should realize that the more time they have off, the more they must work at a later date, Davis said, and told the group not to be afraid of work.

He also said people should get the price they want for the work they do, though.

"There are those who tell you that money isn't everything, but don't be afraid to ask for it and use it," he said.

Right Tire Inflation Helps Cut Gas Use

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent survey by the Illinois Institute of Technology found that 50 to 70 percent of tires checked were underinflated during the summer and 60 to 80 percent had the same deficiency during the winter.

Not only is proper inflation crucial to the performance and safety of tires, says Firestone's director of consumer affairs Jack B. Scarliff, it also helps lower gas consumption, since underinflation increases rolling resistance.

Scarcliff said air pressure should be checked at least monthly, and preferably weekly, with an accurate gauge.

Adams' Loss May Hurt Transportation Overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sudden and unexpected loss of Transportation Secretary Brock Adams may demonstrate the policy perils of President Carter's mid-term Cabinet shakeup.

Adams is the architect of an ambitious overhaul of the nation's transportation programs that is trumpeted by Carter as a crucial element of his 10-year energy conservation campaign.

But even before Adams' departure, White House budget officials were trying to figure out how to wiggle away from Carter's pledge of $16.5 billion in additional aid for transit and auto improvements.

"We were confident we could block these attempts to weaken the president's program; but with Brock gone, I'm just not certain," a department official said over the weekend. He asked not to be named.

The departure of other Cabinet officers will inevitably bring policy adjustments, but transportation issues are considered particularly sensitive right now because the president's political future may ride on implementation of the energy program unveiled last week.

"(Former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph) Califano's anti-smoking campaign may go down in flames under Mrs. (Patricia Roberts) Harris, but frankly, it's not a priority in Congress or at the White House, so who'll notice?" an Adams aide said Saturday.

Mrs. Harris, now housing secretary, was nominated to replace Califano at HEW in last week's Cabinet shakeup.

Even at the White House there were concerns Friday that the president's goal of holding oil imports at 1977 levels would be impossible to implement without a more efficient transportation system such as the one proposed by Adams and endorsed by Carter.

The Transportation Department was not a happy place when Adams' feud with Carter's chief of staff, Hamilton Jordan, broke out into the open Friday and resulted in Adams' quitting one step ahead of the hangman.

Conversations with department officials who asked to remain anonymous found not only sadness over Adams' dismissal, but fear that the policy initiative launched earlier in the week by Carter would suffer.

In his Kansas City, Mo., energy address, Carter announced: "I have earmarked $16.5 billion in new funds for the next 10 years to improve buses, subways and other mass transit, and to build more fuel efficient automobiles."

The statement, one of the most tangible elements of Carter's complicated energy plan, was greeted by a burst of applause, but just two days later the Office of Management and Budget started backing away, saying some of the funding would not be additional money.

Adams was preparing to fight for the transit initiatives when the Cabinet shakeup cut short his tenure. Jordan called Adams to the White House and told him the president wanted him to stay in the Cabinet, but several top aides — including Alan Butchman, the number two man at the Transportation Department, and assistant secretary Terry Bracy — would have to be disciplined or fired.

Adams wasn't about to fire his trusted lieutenants, and he made a public statement that raised questions about Carter's commitment to his transit programs and to continuity of a strong Cabinet-style government.

The next day he quit, effective immediately.

Carter's shakeup strategy apparently did not call for Adams' dismissal, and no successor was nominated. An interim replacement, Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor, will have to pick up the pieces.

However, Claytor has been far removed from energy and transportation issues while at the Pentagon and may take the bulk of his temporary tenure just to become familiar with the department and pending legislation.

"I'm worried that we're about to blow a marvelous opportunity to overhaul the transportation programs," says an Adams aide. "It's a great time on (Capitol) Hill. Congress is enthusiastic about improving the mass transit systems, about the need to develop an energy-efficient car.

"I like to think that we're far enough along that these programs won't suffer. But taking Brock and Terry out of the picture certainly won't help." The aide asked not to be named.

Bracy was in charge of guiding transportation legislation through Congress, and Adams felt that far from a reprimand, Bracy deserved White House accolades for his congrssional successes.

But Jordan reportedly told Adams that Bracy was too independent and had antagonized colleagues elsewhere in the administration.

Ironically, in an administration where legislative victories have been more the exception than the rule, the Transportation Department has achieved an enviable record, including airline deregulation and the long-sought meshing of highway and transit funding and implementing new waterway user fees.

"Terry's not always a pleasant guy to work for, but he's innovative, one of the best idea men in the government," said a co-worker. He was part of Adams' team that came up with the transportation initiatives in the Carter energy program.

One department official worried privately Friday that Adams' departure will hinder his much-publicized campaign to have Detroit "redesign" the automobile to prepare for the gas-short decades to come.

"We all know that Detroit never would have started making small cars except for the demands of the clean air law," he said. "And where would we be if Detroit wasn't making any small cars today?"

Shakeup May Improve Carter's Fortunes

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

That, suggests a governmental official, is the position in which President Carter finds himself after taking aim at his Cabinet last week.

But unlike the buffalo hunter, who will know immediately whether his shot was good enough to save his life, this official says Carter and the rest of us may have to wait several months to learn whether the president's work was sufficient to save his political life.

"We're still seeing the round come out of the barrel," said the official, a Carter ally who requested anonymity.

The president's view is that the Cabinet shakeup and the pending White House staff realignment are intended to improve the work of his administration, removing, among others, the Cabinet members who were not team players and who were unsuccessful in legislative efforts.

He is adamant in stressing that political considerations did not play a part in the diverse events that began almost three weeks ago at Camp David when he canceled a planned energy speech.

Carter made his views known to a group of reporters invited to the White House over the weekend.

But one government official, who is unlikely to be affected by Carter's intensive evaluation of the administration's performance, said he felt the president's re-election concerns were "absolutely" behind the sudden shifts.

Analysis

He and others said the staff changes are intertwined with the president's fortunes in 1980, when the nation will go to the polls and issue its own report card on him.

"You have to put your four-year presidency into the next 180 days," said this official, who also asked not to be named.

His message was clear: During the six months before the presidential primary elections begin, the president must prove that, with some new faces and revised White House operations, he can overcome the inefficiencies and political gaffes that have plagued his first 30 months in office.

After the next 180 days, the president will have just a few more months, during the early primary elections, to get the public's response.

"He's been going down," the official said. "He'll go down some more." But around mid-September, by this forecast, the president's political fortunes will turn around, barring any unforeseen difficulty.

With the president making clear that loyalty will be rewarded, this official said, "the political operation (at the White House) must be feeling pretty good."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said on Saturday it was too early to assess the political impact the Cabinet shakeup will have on Carter's chances for re-election.

"The election is 18 months away and presidential strengths and weaknesses can change rapidly," the West Virginia Democrat said. "I don't think President Carter should be written off by anybody."

But he said Carter would be "ill-advised to run against Congress ... (because) Congress has been cooperative," Byrd said.

One backfire from Carter's efforts to reshape his Cabinet may come not from the new form it takes, but the sudden way in which Carter and his top aides made the shifts.

"What they're doing is probably the right thing," said one lobbyist whose advice Carter often seeks. "How they're doing it is sort of difficult to understand."

"If the people believe it is to take control of the government, that's OK," said the lobbyist who asked not to be named. "If it is seen purely as political, aimed at 1980, that's a bad scene."

As in most speculation about Carter's chances in 1980, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., must be figured into the equation.

Kennedy and ousted Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. are friends, but Califano says this relationship had nothing to do with his being fired.

But Califano gave a curious response to a question asked on a television interview program Sunday about whether he would campaign for Carter.

"I expect him to be nominated and I expect to support him," Califano said, an answer identical to that of Kennedy when asked if he would be a presidential candidate.

'Average Americans' Questioned On President's Recent Speech

By The Associated Press

One week after President Carter told Americans the nation suffers a "crisis of confidence," some members of Congress and political figures say they are not so confident of his leadership.

Within days of Carter's address on the nation's energy and inflation problems, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal were out of office — two of the five Cabinet officers fired or allowed to resign in a major administration shakeup.

But what did some of the "average Americans" — people like those the president consulted before he spoke and acted — think?

The Associated Press asked seven Americans what they thought of the president's speech. A week later, the AP went back to six of those people — one man was on vacation — and asked what they thought of Jimmy Carter now.

COAL MINER

CHESAPEAKE, W.Va. — Coal miner Grant McGuire says President Carter stopped cleaning house too soon. "I think we need to clean house at the White House all the way from the doorkeeper to the head honcho," he said.

McGuire, 52, a miner for 33 years and a lifelong Democrat, had said he was encouraged by the president's decision to limit oil imports. But now he's discouraged. The president has said little about his plans for coal and has endorsed nuclear power.

Carter "is not too much interested in coal," he said, "He's not pushed it. He's spent too much time with these firings and hirings."

McGuire said he had voted for Carter. "I figure he did the speech and the firings and hirings because he wants to stay in (office). I would say he knows he's weak and hes trying to make changes."

RETIRED BUSINESSMAN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — "I think this business with the Cabinet is strictly a political move to show his strength," said Marriott Nadler, 69, who retired here from New Jersey in 1975.

The president, Nadler said, is trying to show people he can be strong because he has been criticized for weakness. But he gives Carter low marks for the effort, particularly his decision to name Hamilton Jordan the White House chief of staff.

"I think it was a lousy political move," he said. "If you were a top executive of General Motors or a top professor and they asked you to come in and take over a Cabinet job, would you want to report to Hamilton Jordan?"

Nadler, who ran a small chain of dry cleaning stores before he retired, characterized Jordan as "a real Washington playboy."

"I think any Cabinet that he's (Carter's) going to have now will be inferior to the Cabinet he had." Nadler said

GASOLINE DEALER

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. — "What's showing now is his inability to be president, the pressures are bringing it out," said Charles Matties, past president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers.

Matties said he thinks the president's Cabinet changes were designed to weed out independent thinkers, and he called the appointment of Hamilton Jordan as chief of staff "an insult to the nation."

"Jimmy Carter is so insecure right now ... he's bringing in the 'yes' men," said the four-term Republican member of the state House of Representatives.

Matties, who is a member of the Connecticut Gasoline Retailers' Association's board of directors and a director of the Petroleum Congress' executive committee, had characterized the president's speech as "the usual missionary talk."

"The man is not qualified to be president. the error we made in the last election is now coming into full view,"

MISSOURI FARMER

OSAGE CITY, Mo. — Jim Hofmann was initially pleased with the president's energy-inflation speech, but now he's having second thoughts — particularly about an Energy Mobilization Board that Carter proposed to speedup energy programs.

"I guess the one thing that didn't hit me that night was he is getting the government deeper into the energy problem," said the Osage County farmer who raises cattle, corn and alfalfa on a 500 acre spread. "I'm a little disappointed that the government isn't turning this over more to private industry."

Hofmann says the President's Cabinet changes might have been better received if he had mentioned them in his speech.

"This week would have gone a lot better if he had not had those firings," he said. Noting Carter's emphasis had been on getting a handle on energy, he said the Cabinet shuffle didn't "add another drop of oil to the nation's energy needs."

OIL EXECUTIVE

LOS ANGELES — "Carter talks about image and confidence, things like that, when the real problem is substance," said David Button, manager of economic planning and policy for the Getty Oil Co.

The president, he said, lacks substance. And what is "incredible" Button said, is that Carter asked for advice at Camp David, acted on the advice, then fired many people who gave him that advice.

"The logic is incredible, and it becomes even more incredible if you believe that the theme behind all of his actions concerns enhancing his image. Carter's image is very transparent. When you look through, there's nothing there. There's no substance.'

Accountants Take Sides In Rulemaking Squabble

By PHILIP GREER
and MYRON KANDEL

There's a battle running through the stodgy accounting world, with both sides claiming — as accountants often do — that it's the other guy who's copping out.

The dispute, which some say isn't serious and others claim reveals the lack of backbone in the profession, centers around who should make the rules of auditing corporations, what rules they should bother with and whether or not rules should take the place of professional judgment.

Although the public hasn't heard much about the argument, it could affect the way corporations give information to the public and how much investors, would-be investors, lenders and even employees can rely on the facts and figures they receive.

The names of the two sides are a mouthful in themselves — the Accounting Standards Executive Committee of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AdSec) and the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB). A meeting held earlier this month could help resolve the dispute, although it isn't likely to end it.

The differences have their roots back in 1972, when the FASB was created to take over functions of the Accounting Principles Board (which is best known or formulating the Generally Accepted Accounting Principles that accountants still use to defend their decisions). The FASB, whose members had to quit their jobs to come aboard, saw itself as a policy-setting group, more concerned with overall outlines of the practice than with day-to-day problems.

The accountants said the FASB had to deal with their practical needs, so a screening committee was set up to advise the board on "emerging issues" that needed its attention. The FASB says now that the screening committee is ineffective and the AICPA says its suggestions are being "trash-canned."

An official of the FASB told us the accountants are harping on "narrow" issues that they should be able to settl themselves. A well-known observer o the profession says many of the sugges tions deserve to be trash-canned and that the dispute reflects a lack of commitment to the public.

Arthur Wyatt, a partner in Arthur Anderson & Co. in Chicago and chairman of AdSec, says he doesn't consider the problem serious, "although other people have characterized it that way. "Wyatt agrees that the screening committee "really hasn't worked very well" and adds that the reason is the difference in the needs of accountants and financial executives who make up most of the membership.

"Accountants tend to like guidelines," he says, "while executives tend to like as few rules and restrictions as possible. They tend to view the problems as narrow unless they affect their own industry and then they become very important."

Wyatt also says that there's a feat at the FASB that the AICPA is a competitor in the rulemaking process. The institute has published "accounting guides" and "auditing guides" which it would like the FASB to take over, but the board argues that they deal with problems the accountants should resolve on the job.

The FASB has agreed to adopt the AICPA's guides, subject to an ongoing review, to give them more force in the profession. Wyatt says he'll go along with that at tomorrow's meeting, although "I don't want to have a moratorium on this thing for 18 months and then find out it doesn't work. The board hasn't shown the ability to push things out fast enough and accountats need answers in 120 days or so. The board isn't the most efficient organization that's ever been created, although it's gotten better over the last year or so."

Abraham Briloff, a professor of accounting at City University of New York and a long-time critic of the profession, says the FASB's high-level outlook is new to him, but he adds "if the FASB is devoted to ideals and concepts much of what comes to it shouldn't come. These problems should be handled by the parish priest, not brought to the Vatican."

Briloff says that the reason the accountants insist on rulings from the FASB is that they're unwilling to stand up to their own clients. "They're afraid to tell them that the things they want won't fly," he says, "So they go to the board or to the AICPA for a ruling. What they're really doing is buying time for their clients. They're getting billions of dollars a year for their abilities and they should use them."

The FASB and the AICPA have had other problems. The accountants claim the board knuckles under too easily to the demands of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Then, too, a few months ago, the FASB put out a proposed paper on accouting for the effects of inflation. The AICPA said its experts couldn't figure out what it said.

Crime Line Hailed As Success

Crime Line Inc., founded by Mayor Dirk West little more than three months ago, rapidly is becoming the most effective crime prevention project in the city's history.

Since April 10, 19 informants have supplied information to the hotline (741-1000), resulting in the clearance of 33 felony cases from police files, West said.

The cases cleared from the unsolved ranks range from rapes to attempted murder. The tips also have been instrumental in recovering more than $100,000 in stolen merchandise.

When Crime Line Inc. was founded, West said, "I had no idea as to what results to expect. But now I can report that never before in the history of our city has a crime prevention effort yielded such great results, and we are just getting started."

West also announced that several "Crime Eye" cameras now are being operated in convenience stores and other businesses in the city. The cameras, hidden from sight, also are crime prevention tools — the second prong of the mayor's attack on the rising crime rate here.

Contributions to the reward fund may be made to Crime Line Inc., P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, 79408. They are tax deductible.

In this week's "Spotlight Crime," a reward of $500 is offered for an attempted capital murder incident that occured at 10:25 p.m. July 12, 1979.

In this case, police are seeking a fugitive, Roger Earl Timmons, a black male, who is charged with attempted capital murder in connection with the incident. He also is wanted for burglary of a habitation.

The incidents occured a half mile east of Quirt Avenue on 114th Street. Sheriff's deputies received a call that a burglary was in progress at the address and apprehended one suspect inside the house. Another suspect aimed a rifle at a deputy before escaping. Two other suspects also were arrested in connection with the burglary.

Crime Line also is offering a $300 reward for information leading to the arrest of Marlin Ray Sasser, 6 feet tall, 175 pounds, with brown hair, who is charged with the burglary of a warehouse from which $91,000 in herbicides was stolen. The 46-year-old white male also is wanted for felony theft in Swisher County and burglary and theft in Briscoe County.

Six felony warrants alleging theft are outstanding against Erasmo DeLeon, a Mexican-American who is 22 years old, 6-foot-2, with an Afro style haircut. His Texas driver's license number is 1981021. A $300 reward is being offered for information leading to his arrest.

A $300 reward is posted for information concerning a burglary on June 15, 1979, at 2207 9th St., Apt. B. There was no sign of forced entry. However, intruders removed a B&O receiver, B&O tape deck, four B&O speakers, one Teac reel-to-reel, one hand reloader, one Sony 19-inch color television set with remote control, one Sony Beta Max video recorder, one HBO control box and one Apple II home computer. All of the items were engraved with the number 464-90-2802.

Towing Service's Drivers Keep Long Hours During 'City Week'

By SUE MORRISON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Saturday night of "city week" at Interstate Towing Service resembles a company picnic — the service counter is piled high with food, children ride their bicycles around the building and through the wrecking yard, and the drivers and their wives reminisce about experiences and adventures in the towing business.

The scene is re-enacted every six weeks with the arrival of the towing service's turn on the police department's wrecker rotation list. For one week, the "wrecker of the week" hauls and stores vehicles that are involved in wrecks and that the police impound.

And Saturday night is most likely to be the busiest night of all, with more people out on the streets and seemingly more people pausing for refreshment in bars or at private parties.

Here is how a recent Saturday night at Interstate Towing Service went:

It starts with a call about 8 p.m. for a wrecker to pick up a car that was involved in a collision in a residential area.

Manuel Sanchez, the driver on call from 5 p.m. Saturday to 8 a.m. Sunday, arrives at the scene, confers with a police officer and hooks up a car to his wrecker, making sure the steering wheel of the car is secure so the car won't weave out of control during the drive back to the wrecking yard.

He is back on the road with the car in tow in less than 10 minutes.

Sanchez returns to the wrecking yard and immediately is surrounded by youngsters on bicycles, who ask him about the wreck.

He unhooks the vehicle and fills out a report and charge sheet, wading among the excited children and absent-mindedly answering their questions.

Sanchez returns to the office and decides not to finish the Mexican food, now cold, he was eating when he was called to the wreck.

Things seem to settle down for a while, so Jerry Hix, another driver, decides to call it a day and go home with his wife, Tommie, and their son, Jimmy Don.

About 10 p.m., another call comes in on a van-car collision. Sanchez arrives at the scene, and soon Dave Renfro and his wife, Sue, pull up in another wrecker. The two men hook up the wrecked vehicles and then sweep the area clear of glass and twisted metal.

By the time they get the wrecked vehicles parked in the yard, there is no time to complete the necessary paperwork because another wreck has occurred.

When they bring in the two cars from that wreck, it's almost midnight, and Mrs. Renfro suggests to her husband that they go home. He chuckles and replies there is no need for that because the bars will be closed soon and that means more wrecks.

So Mrs. Renfro naps in an office on one of the beds that is used by drivers to catch up on sleep during the few quiet times of city week.

Renfro is right. There are six calls between 1 and 2 a.m., which means owner Bob Shannon goes to a wreck and Hix has to be called from home to help the other drivers. He arrives at one scene to find his services aren't needed after all.

It starts to rain, and the waiting drivers shake their heads, knowing from experience that wet roads mean more wrecks.

The younger children in the office begin to drift off to sleep, but 15-year-old Bobby Shannon declares he is going to stay awake all night.

About 3 a.m., Renfro returns from a call, saying another wrecker had been at the scene, even though it was a police, non-preference impound.

"I got the car, though," the burly, former trucker says.

About 5 a.m., things are quiet once again. Renfro wakes his wife and they go home, and the Shannons go to sleep in his office for a few hours.

Johnnye Langwell, the night dispatcher, has arrived to make sure no calls are missed, and young Bobby Shannon stays awake, keeping Langwell company and making sure not to miss any excitement.

At 5:30 a.m., Sanchez finally has been able to catch up on all his reports and charge slips and falls asleep in the cab of his wrecker, ready for another phone call that will send him out somewhere in the city to haul another car.

A long night in the towing business has ended.

Bob and Janice Shannon are proud of their business. Their three sons, Bobby, Dale and Randy, are familiar with the work because, Janice explained, "We've always done everything as a family."

The Shannons also own a trucking company. Mrs. Shannon explained that one reason the couple began the towing service was because of increasing costs for independent truckers.

The towing business is not without its problems, though. "Pirate" companies sometimes try to tow off vehicles before the police designated "wrecker of the week" arrives.

And sometimes there are so many calls that a driver towing one vehicle is told by his boss to "drop" it into a parking lot until he can return for it later. He then goes to another call. If a wrecker of the week does not answer a police dispatcher's call within 30 minutes, the police will call back. If the wrecker is judged too slow in answering the call, another service will be alerted.

An average haul will cost car owners $28.50 — $18.50 for the haul and $10 for hooking and unhooking the vehicle. After 5 p.m. and during weekends, a tow truck driver receives a 30 percent commission for each haul, making his average after-hours income about $9.

Signal Alerted Plant Workers

TEXAS CITY (AP) — "They ran." That's how most workers at Amoco's Texas City refinery managed to escape two tremendous explosions that injured 14 Saturday, according to Amoco's Pat Donovan.

Miss Donovan said the workers ran because a safety siren went off seconds before the blast.

"It alerted our people there was a leak, and they evacuated the area," she said. "I don't know how much warning they had. It was a minute or less."

The two blasts were caused by a leak of either propane or butane gas, according to plant officials. The explosions were so strong residents reported shattered windows as far as 20 blocks away from the Gulf Coast refinery.

Plant manager Larry Durland said three of the 14 injured workers were hospitalized.

Experts Mapping Oil Spill

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Scientists and Coast Guard experts today will try to complete a chart showing the exact location of a massive oil spill in the southern Gulf of Mexico.

The oil is spurting from a blown-out Mexican oil well in the Bay of Campeche, off the coast of Mexico. It has been spreading into the Gulf of Mexico at a rate of 30,000 barrels a day, since the well blew out June 3.

The Coast Guard and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration have set up a command post here to monitor the spill, concerned that the oil might threaten the Texas coast.

Their observers have been flying a specially equipped airplane over the Gulf the past week, hoping to discover whether the spill is moving and if so, in what direction.

Spokesman Richard Griggs said the aerial reconnaissance has spotted several smaller patches of oil which apparently have broken away from the main oil slick, but said there's no way of knowing how many of the small patches there are.

Thursday the United States and Mexico jointly airlifted about 450 small Kemps Ridley sea turtles from their normal spawning grounds to Galveston, to get them out of the way of the spreading oil.

25TH ANNIVERSARY TIME FOR JANITORIAL SERVICE COMPANY

Hughes Firm's Quarter-Century Service Record Cited, Saluted

Hughes Services, Inc., is marking its 25th Anniversary!

"Thanks for making this quarter-century milestone possible," is the sincere word from owners and staff of the firm known for its full janitorial services in Lubbock, Amarillo and throughout the South Plains and Panhandle.

Twenty-five years in business, marked by growth and refinements in service capabilities and scope, have been made possible by the confidence and trade of an appreciative clientele . . . and we believe by the Hughes organization's concept of service, integrity and attention to the needs of the day.

"Again, thanks, from the bottom of our heart."

Actually, today's Hughes Services, Inc., with its spacious, modern quarters at 101 Sherman Ave. in Lubbock, with a fleet of service vehicles and its multiple services, is quite a change from the modest beginnings of the time-honored firm.

First Days Recounted

George Hughes, a Texas Tech sophomore in 1953, had then been working part time with a janitorial service firm. In 1954 he borrowed $15 from his father and branched out into business for himself, with the then Snelling Sewing Machine Co. as his first customer at $4.50 a month!

"I soon had so many customers I had to drop out of school," George recalls.

Growth has been the situation ever since. The firm outgrew its initial quarters on 19th Street and moved into a building on Avenue M in 1965.

Then, within a few years, the firm purchased a larger building at Sherman and Clovis Road and after completely remodeling it, expanded still further.

Added buildings and modernization have followed, still at 101 Sherman.

In 1970 the HUCO Products Co. was formed, at the same address, for supply of best in janitorial equipment and related needs. Both organizations serve throughout a vast northwest Texas area.

Now a Major Business

Hughes now employes some 175 personnel, with janitorial services afforded and with contract work also involved, with furnishing of trained personnel to companies that wish to do their own supervision. Facilities people, carpenters and electricians are among the contract personnel available through Hughes.

To graphically pinpoint the growth of Hughes Services from its modest beginning 25 years ago, it has been noted that sales last year exceeded $1 million. that year alone.

Meet the Staff

George C. Hughes is president, as well as founder, of the organization. Craig Hughes, nine years with the firm, is special projects manager; Bill Jones is market manager and marks four years tenure; Sammy Rodriquez, eight years, is operations manager; June Lange, 11 years with the firm, is office manager; and Louise Urenda, nine years with Hughes, is Amarillo manager.

HUCO Products Co. is headed by Robert Hughes, president; and Donna Strange, bookkeeper. Robert has 17 years experience in the field, with Donna a firm member for three years.

Professionalism and capabilities, together with a genuine interest in service to every customer, is a hallmark of the staff.

"All supervisors came up through 'the ranks' of our organization and actually performed our cleaning services themselves, so they know full well just how each operation should be done, George Hughes emphasizes. "Our new employes are carefully screened and tested to be sure they meet our standards before they are hired. We believe we have the best personnel of this type anywhere."

Specifics Cited

"May we work for you, too?"

Gary's Frozen Foods Products Label Sure Solution When Goodness Desired

"Have you noticed how with every sunny, balmy day the urge to picnic seems irresistible? And how very good those picnic meals can taste! And how much enjoyment there is for the entire family and for friends!"

(It is no secret that folks for years have depended upon these products, not only for out-of-doors time, but also as ingredients for nutritious meals for the student, as example.)

"Shouldn't you find out for yourself how this and other of this Lubbock firm's fine products fit into your menu for the finest in nutritious food? Discover how Gary's provides the best in barbeque, corn dogs, super dogs, custom cooking and more. (Yes, Gary's is glad to custom prepare meat, throughout the year.)

Or one may simply discover that the Gary's Frozen Food label in a favorite grocery or supermarket opens the way to variety and nutritious goodness.

Select from Gary's Barbeque Flavor Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs, Gary's Bar-B-Que Beef brisket in bar-b-que sauce, and Gary's super dogs. Whether the occasion is a festive meal, a Sunday dinner or even a backyard snack, picnic or a birthday party, one can profit from dependence upon the home-owned, home-operated Gary's Frozen Food firm and its products.

The Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is newest of the Gary's family of labels, and it is oh-so-good. A beef, beef suet and textured vegetable protein product, it is a new experience in delicious eating. Keep it frozen, and just heat to eat.

This new product is available in the area, distributed to retail stores and to institutions. Look for the label.

Consisting of batter mix around a frankfurter, partially cooked in pure vegetable oil, these, too, are easy to prepare. Simply thaw, remove from bag, place in 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or deep fat fry.

Also, one can still get the delicious Gary's Barbeque Beef brisket in a favorite grocery or supermarket.

The many quality products and services from Gary's has made possible the continued growth of the firm, thanks to loyal customers who appreciate good food and Gary's sincere desire to please.

The barbeque brisket, super dogs and other quality items from Gary's Frozen Foods, 109th Street at South University Avenue, make many a West Texas meal something special — whether for a special event or simply a change of pace.

Business & Industrial Review

Jack 'n Jill Donuts, In Two City Locations, Prove Popular

"Aren't you glad there is a Jack 'n' Jill Donuts shop and coffee bar in Lubbock?"

Actually, there are two Jack 'n' Jill shops in the city, each marked by lots and lots of characteristics that make for the utmost in snack-time enjoyment.

Patronage is invited at either, whichever is the more convenient to you . . . at 5009 Quaker or 38th Street at Slide Road.

One year ago, on July 12, Wayne Pierce opened the first Lubbock Jack 'n' Jill unit at the 50th & Quaker location. Enthusiastic customer response came fast, and such was the success of the venture that Wayne, a lifelong Lubbock resident, established the Slide unit with opening on May 15 this year.

Always Fresh

Donuts always are fresh at Jack 'n' Jill, with both morning and afternoon baking. After all, isn't a light, fluffy donut appreciated at any hour of the day? (Hours at both shops are 6 a.m. until 10 p.m., Sundays through Thursdays, with a later 11 p.m. closing on Fridays and Saturdays. Folks have learned to appreciate great donuts and coffee in the afternoons and evenings, just as for a waker-upper, and Jack 'n' Jill maintains business hours accordingly. Why deprive anyone, throughout the day, of a Jack 'n' Jill donut with its secret recipe!

Local Ownership

Wayne Pierce, owner of the Lubbock facilities, is a graduate of Monterey High School and attended Texas Tech. His wife, Shellie, is a Texas Tech graduate. Wayne was former manager of Ray's TV & Appliance.

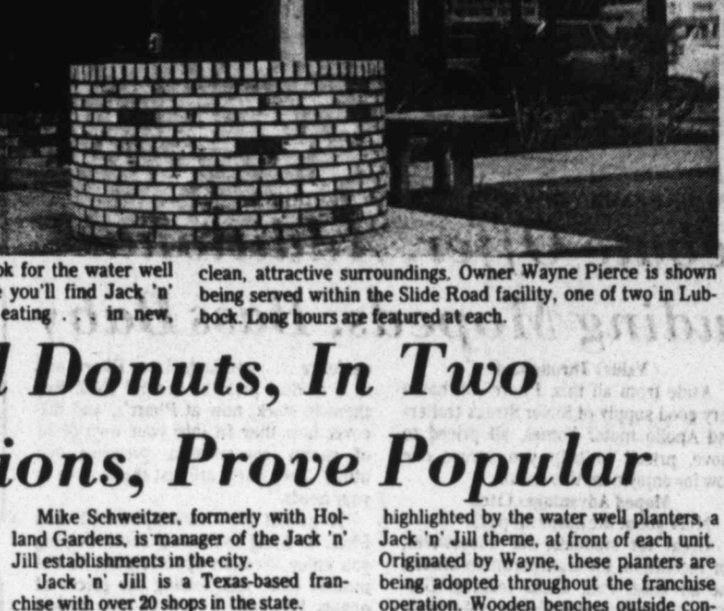
Pierce employs 24 staffers in the two stores here, contributing to the community economy and aid of students who work their hours in with their schooling.

As neat and friendly and warm as is the atmosphere within the Jack 'n' Jill units, first favorable impression likely is gained, however, by the unique and attractive landscaping and architecture highlighted by the water well planters, a Jack 'n' Jill theme, at front of each unit. Originated by Wayne, these planters are being adopted throughout the franchise operation. Wooden benches outside contribute to the invitation to visit Jack 'n' Jill, visiting, talking or musing . . . while enjoying the most delicious donuts and coffee imaginable.

"Get the idea that we like Jack 'n' Jill? You will, too, upon your first visit there . . . so don't delay, enjoy the atmosphere, friendliness and good eating provided from early 'til late . . . at Jack 'n' Jill in Lubbock."



A-1 Nursery's Price-Breakers Include 'Shade Trees Discounted 50 Per Cent'

"You've been wanting a fruitless mulberry? Then wait no longer, for at A-1 Nursery 350 of these are included in the big Price Breaker event in which all shade trees are marked at 50 per cent off!"

Or the extra nice 4 1/2-in. pot geraniums, regular $2.50, at 89 cents each.

Peppers and tomatoes are a fantastically low 5 cents each!

Multi-trunk Yaupon Holly, regular $22.50 each, in five-gallon size, are $7.88 each, or two for $15.

All roses, while they last, are 30 per cent off.

All 10-in. planted hanging baskets (new shipment) are $6.99 (compare at $12.50).

Japanese boxwood, 1 gal., is $1.59, two for $3.

Where is all this:

At A-1 Nursery, 7500 82nd St., phone 792-6070, open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily on weekdays, and 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays.

A-1 has a tremendous selection in every department, well worth the drive to view and select . . . and save.

Area residents have long benefitted from the landscape design, installation and maintenance services of A-1, plus such benefits as the new shipments and low early-season prices.

For more than two decades, area residents have been assisted by Winfred Self, owner and operator of A-1 Nursery, since 1973 at its present expanded quarters.

Everything in the modern nursery is coordinated for the best in products and services. A complete line is stocked including trees, shrubs, vines, fertilizers, insecticides and numerous other nursery supplies.

The knowledge of Self and his experienced crew possibly is the biggest asset of A-1, however, as hundreds of customers can attest to the superior help there through the years.

"Come on out and see for yourself how A-1 Nursery can meet your individual preferences and needs.

SACHS MOPEDS JOIN PHARR'S FAMILY OF VALUE, PLEASURE PRODUCTS

Pharr Tells Rebate Offer, Additional Products Including Mopeds, Bass Baby

Each or all of three key announcements from Pharr Trailer Sales & Service can be of immediate benefit to you as a person concerned with economy, new pleasure and convenience:

(1) Pharr, at 1702 Clovis Road in Lubbock, has been named distributor and dealer for the fantastic Sachs Mopeds (providing up to 150 miles per gallon!); both the Westlake and Balboa models are stocked.

(2) Up to $400 direct factory rebate from Coachmen RV Co. is the offer expiring Aug. 1. (This rebate is in addition to the savings already posted by Pharr on the very good selection of '79 Coachmen travel trailers and motor homes stocked at the big Lubbock facility.)

(3) Pharr also has stocked the Bass Baby boats, weighing just 60 pounds and great for fishing in tight areas. This revolutionary plastic and styrofoam unit works great with a trolling motor, and it can be carried on top of the RV, auto, within the vehicle or tied on the side! And the cost . . . just $345!

Values Throughout

Aside from all this, Pharr still has a very good supply of Silver Streak trailers and Apollo motor homes, all priced to move, priced to help you secure one now for enjoyment this season.

Moped Advantages Cited

More about the Sachs Mopeds:

Great for students, for housewives, for recreation, for transportation around the air base, etc., Sachs features German engineering excellence. (Mercedes and Mopeds, Porsches and pumps, Volkswagens and washing machines . . . they all have one thing in common: Sachs. Yes, Sachs quality is part of hundreds of Europe's most prestigious products.)

Each model weighs just 95 pounds, and features include two-cycle air-cooled engine, automatic clutch transmission, pressed steel frame, 2.00 x 17 tires, and Bosch magneto ignition. Available speeds are 20 mph to 30 mph.

Low Cost

"For new economy, pleasure, convenience . . . get Sachs from Pharr, and at a modest price of around $500! See these in stock, now at Pharr's, and discover how they fit into your own plans of energy conservation, pleasure and utility. They likely are just the answer to your needs."

It cannot be over-emphasized that Pharr is doing something about helping you enjoy vacation opportunities to the utmost, also, still holding the prices of quality RV units to a level that makes sense . . . and savings, whether selection is Coachmen, Silver Streak or Apollo or the parts and accessories for each.

(Not only is a large stock of travel units maintained at the Lubbock Pharr location (at the Amarillo Highway — Clovis Highway "Y" on Avenue Q), but those living in the Odessa-Midland area are invited to rely upon the Pharr facility at 1820 E. 8th St. in Odessa, managed by Jerry Pharr.

In any event:

Sunshine Value Days At Bowman Feature Month-End Super Buys

Bowman, already making news for the value-minded with its Hot Summer Specials for July, comes through this week with special Sunshine Value Days, effective through July 31, featuring super specials.

So . . . with only a few days left in this month, one should not delay in selecting from Bowman, the building materials supermarket and home and garden center, 8301 S. University in Lubbock.

Style-Master latex house paint (white only) for only $4.88 per gallon!

Armstrong vinyl, regular $3.69 per sq. yd., is marked down to $2.79.

Insulation

A truckload of savings is featured in genuine Owens-Corning Fiberglas insulation, with the 3 1/2 in. at just 11 cents per foot, and the 6 in. at 18 cents per foot. One also gets a free Owens-Corning pink ice chest with purchase of 10 or more rolls of this insulation.

Lawn and garden needs come in for due attention at Bowman, with many, many values.

Trellis units for home and garden, 4 x 8, are $6.99.

For Lawns, Garden

Or 50 pounds of Zipp lawn fertilizer at $5.99.

Bermuda grass seed, regular $4.29, is $3.99, and 3 cu. ft. bags of bark, soil conditioner and mulch are priced at 3 for $9.

Ortho Weed B-Gon bars, regular $9.99, are $6.99. Wonder Gro potting soil, 50 lbs., is marked at $3.99; and Ortho Sevin garden dust is 4 lb. for $1.99.

Five-gallon shade trees, regular $19.95, are marked at $10.99, and include red bud, maple, locust, ash, cottonwood and flowering crab, among others.

Departments throughout the big Bowman facility are represented in the July values.

Energy Savers

Special emphasis is focused on energy savers for the home, and items are listed here at random to indicate the economy enabled by Bowman for home energy saving, building, remodeling, etc.

Of immediate interest and usefulness are the Leslie-Locke turbine vents (with wind brace and adjustable base) at only $20.19. These specifically save operating cost of air conditioning, saving monthly electric costs, remove humidity from the attic and stop shingle buckle caused from temperature pressure.

Garage door weatherstripping, 8 ft. is just $2.79, and MD Low-Boy threshold, the ideal way to seal underdoor gaps, is just $5.85, 36-in.

The Leslie Locke PTR-12 powered ventilator is just $29.99; and gable triangular louvered vents are available at $14.29.

Boise Cascade kitchen cabinets, built to last a lifetime, are marked at 20 per cent off regular price, with free estimates and kitchen planning available.

CHANCE'S STOCKS MOWERS, TILLERS, EDGERS, MORE

Riding Mower Price Markdown Among Benefits From Chance's

Imagine . . . the famous Ariens riding mowers are available and on sale at a time when they are most needed, stocked at Chance's Lawn & Leisure and priced at savings of $100 and more!

Chance's, at 3604 50th St., phone 799-7072, recently was named West Texas and New Mexico distributor of the Ariens line of quality lawn and garden equipment, and the customer response has been great!

(This line is not a replacement, but rather is an addition to the fine products already stocked by Chance's.)

A very good selection presently is enabled also in the quality Trimmer reel mowers, Power-Trim edgers, Ariens 2 hp roto tillers and other products for season needs.

Reel Mowers

The Trimmer line of reel-type mowers is especially good for hybrid grasses, Tex Turf., etc. The free wheeling of the Trimmer allows operation of the cutting reel without forward movement of the mowers, permitting cutting "free hand" under shrubs and in close places.

Edgers

Select from Model 200 or Model 300 Power-Trim edgers, ruggedly built to give extra years of trouble-free service. Check these among the features that merit serious consideration:

One can choose a Power-Trim that suits both lawn-trimming needs and the budget! Heavy-duty Briggs & Stratton 4-cycle engines are the power source; solid rubber tires are on all models; easy-to-use positive locking controls are featured, and all models are equipped with dirt deflectors. The cutting blade is adjustable to any angle for easy edging along base boards, fences of flower beds. A curb-hopping front wheel on Models 200 and 300 rides a 6-in. curb when edging! And for trimming . . . just turn blade flat, and mow! No more hand-clipping grass and weeds around clothes poles, beside fence or wall. The Power-Trim is the professional way!

Ariens: Rugged Throughout

The Ariens riding mowers, now at big savings, feature heavy-duty frame and fenders, positive action steering, "flex-n-float plus" mower, disc-o-matic drive that makes changing speeds simple, sure and smooth; rear-mounted engine, single-lever cutting height adjustment, safety interlock-key switch, mower deck design for greater cutting lift, and pneumatic tires.

Ariens riding mower attachments include rear grass bagger/weight kit, rear grass collector, snow blade, leaf mulcher, tire chains, electric start kits and more.

Other Units

Other quality products of special interest during the summer season, and stocked selectively at Chance's, are rotary mowers by Lawn Boy, Snapper, John Deere and Toro; Roto-Trim electric edgers, and Billy Goat lawn vacuums and blowers.

"We service what we sell" is another important consideration at Chanee's, open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays.

For equipment enabling expert care of lawn and garden, with ease and at economical cost, the tremendous selection at Chance's Lawn & Leisure invites comparison. Check now at Chance's, 3604 50th St., phone 799-7072; there's even more than ever in the big stock!

Optical Store & Boutique Presenting Latest Dispensing Innovations, Aids

"We know that we can serve you within one or more of our departments at the Optical Store & Boutique, just south of 50th & Slide! We welcome your visits and believe you will appreciate the professional yet friendly service and the truly relaxed atmosphere provided."

"We especially direct your attention to the following situation:

"Have you too often found yourself in this predicament . . .

"Upon selecting new frames for your eyewear, hoping of course to get those frames that look the very best on you, desiring frames with which you would be pleased day in and day out, you have found that selection was difficult because in trying them on, with your present glasses 'off', you just couldn't see to select intelligently?"

The Optical Store & Boutique, just south of 50th & Slide, has done something about this!

New video tape equipment has been installed to enable one to be photographed with the various frames, then the tape is played back through a color television set to enable one to see exactly how the frames look upon him or her!

Doesn't this make sense?

"We at The Optical Store & Boutique think so, and we believe we are the first optical company in Lubbock to offer this brand new innovation to optical dispensing.

"We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique.

There are several services and aspects that should come in for special note at this time, however.

"With accelerated outdoor activity of the season well underway, sunglasses are advised. One should guard against harmful sun rays when exposed, and The Optical Store & Boutique is a great source of optical-quality sunglasses, with no prescription necessary for these. You'll like Ray Ban sunglasses.

Aside from the optical services, a "Plant Corral" has been established by the same business, and one is invited to check for healthy, beautiful indoor plants in the Corral at the same address.

"Our Boutique is Unique" actually is the motto but nevertheless an understatement of the services and products of the Optical Store & Boutique, phone 792-0901.

Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize:

(1) Children should have an eye examination annually,

(2) Adults should take the same step every two years;

(3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended;

(4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical "Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities, with you benefitting.

(We want to see you keep your frames in good repair; and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!)

"And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"

A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) the Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Designer Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures), a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness.

One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Fustenberg, Oscar de la Renta and other top designers.

Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex.

And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor deominates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty.

Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany.

"See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

UNIVERSITY PINES PURCHASE ADVANTAGES TOLD

University Pines Value Factors Conducive To Home Ownership

"Through likely already impressed with the desirability of a home in University Pines, have you fully realized the several unique advantages of a home there?"

We refresh your memory with the following:

(1) There is plenty of 10 per cent FHA and VA mortage money available for homes in University Pines.

(2) First Manufactured Homes, builders of each University Pines unit, is a member of the Homeowners Warranty Program (HOW) affording a 10-year transferrable warranty. (Not all builders have qualified for HOW, and First Manufactured Homes has met the strict requirements of such participation.

(3) Homes are available in the big, convenient development in the mid-$30,000 price range. Truly a University Pines home is affordable, modern in every respect, attractive and designed to be enjoyed . . . and many special advantages are standard in these energy-efficient homes.

Model Home

(4) The model home is at a new location, 2905 94th St., for viewing and inspecting seven days a week, open from 1:30 p.m. until 6 p.m. daily.

(5) Solar heated residences are being built through grants in University Pines, too; and full inquiry and inspection is invited.

"Shouldn't a new home in University Pines be yours?

Located adjacent to 91st Street and University Avenue in south Lubbock, the University Pines development provides new and economical possibilities for new-home acquisition and enjoyment, for young families "getting started" or for anyone recognizing and appreciating value.

Henry Huneke, Lubbock builder for more than 20 years, is president of First Manufactured Homes, Inc., and Norman Dowdy is sales manager. Each invite inquiry at the 9602 University Ave. office, phone 745-1533.

Among advantages of the homes in the planned 500-residence development (with over 300 already occupied) are standard features including full carpeting, kitchen appliances, refrigerated air, smoke detectors, two baths and numerous construction innovations lending to comfort, energy saving and convenience, with quality foremost. Options are available.

The homes involve about 1,280 square feeet.

Factors "built in" to enhance the value of each University Pines residence include energy efficient construction, with a large amount of insulation enabling R-30 attic and R-22 rated walls; storm sashes on windows, styrofoam sheeting on the outside, built-in vapor barrier on exterior walls, and with all openings into ceiling, windows and doors sealed with foam. Actually there are 14 specific energy-saving factors in the building program of each of the homes. These must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Isn't it refreshing to find homes available in today's economy and life style that are within a reasonable price range, yet affording comforts to be appreciated and even envied? Henry Huneke and his staff and co-workers understand Lubbock and South Plains preferences and recognition of quality, and they build accordingly, as would one good neighbor for another.

"Come on out, to the development and to the offices at 9602 University, and learn full details too numerous to pinpoint in a written story. Learn of the more-than-adequate standard features of each three-bedroom home and of the options available at modest cost. But foremost, note the quality of workmanship, the consideration of today's needs, and the sensible pricing structure. It is all part of the First Manufactured Homes way of serving, and being a good member of the growing community.

(Inquiry also in invited regarding solar heated homes in the same addition, some of which still are available.)

Advantages Of Purchasing Full-Size Auto At Present Time Cited In Report

"Because of the widespread panic to buy small cars, this could well be the best time ever to purchase a good, full-sized car," emphasizes a local dealer member of the Lubbock Independent Auto Dealers Association (LIADA).

"Dollar for dollar, a two year automobile probably is the best buy on the market," reports Charles Furr, president of LIADA. "This car normally sells for about 50 per cent less than a new one, yet it has three-fourths of its useful life left. Right now the used car buyer, if he is looking for value and not size, can take advantage of a situation that may not come around again."

"In some instances, the retail price of small (used) cars has jumped nearly 40 per cent in the past six months; at the same time the prices of used mid-size and full-size cars are down sharply. This is where the smart buyer can really get a bargain."

'Prudent Consideration'

"And the money to be saved by buying a good used large car over a small new car is even greater," Furr says. "The prudent buyer should consider the total cost and not just miles per gallon. If you drive a small car 12,000 miles a year, it will take many years to recoup the extra money the car costs — if you ever do. Meantime, the small car is not as comfortable as a large car."

The association president said that buyers generally fall into two categories: those who can't afford new car prices, and the discriminating purchaser who is looking for the best possible buy in safe, comfortable transportation.

The National Independent Automobile Dealer Association has 8,500 members and is currently fighting a proposed Federal Trade Commission regulation that would warrant all used cars with an inspection that "could add up to $300 or so to the price of the car, and not add one cent to its real value," an officer of LIADA said. "Our figures indicate this regulation could cost the American people over $1 billion a year, thus adding considerably to inflation as well as depriving some individuals from affording a used car."

"When you consider that used car transportation is essential to a large segment of the driving public, this regulation would hit them the hardest, and could force many to give up owning a car."

Auto Corral, B & B Auto, Baines Motors, Billy's Auto Sales, C.W.F. Investments, Duncan Motor Co., Eaton Motor Co.; Ed Wilkins, insurance; Fenner Tubbs Co. (used car department); James Mears Motor, Joe L. Smith Motor, Kelly Motor Co., Lubbock Auto Auction, M & M Auto Sales, Murl Rice Motors, Poindexter Motors, Snodgrass Maner Co. and R.W. Workman, honorary.

Each is dedicated to fair dealing and subscribes to the following meaningful code of ethics:

(1) We will have a general duty of integrity, honor and fair dealing toward the general public.

(2) We will comply with all city, county, state and federal laws and shall endeavor to keep ourselves informed of those laws governing our business.

(3) We will not intentionally injure the business reputation of another member or competitiors.

(4) We will employ truth and accurance in advertising and selling.

(5) We will stand behind any guarantee given with sale of a motor vehicle.

(6) We will not perform any act which would bring disrepute to the motor industry.

(7) We will expose or halt, where found, any scheme designed to deceive or defraud the automobile buying public and aid in prosecuting those guilty of such acts.

(8) We will constantly strive to improve business methods to the end that the public will be better served.

(9) We will encourage the American system of free enterprise.

'LELLEM WELCH STOCKS PLUMBING PARTS YOU'VE BEEN SEEKING'

Lellem Welch Assisting With 'Parts By Literal Thousands'

"It still amazes me," says Richard Welch, "the number of people who come into our store at 1401 Avenue J and say 'I never knew you were here. I'm sure glad I found you and now I know where to come for plumbing, heating or cooling parts."

That's what Lellem Welch Inc. is all about — helping people find the right plumbing part.

"In this world of rising costs, it's more necessary than ever that we learn to do many things ourselves. Many of us are doing things we have never done before and many do not know how to do what we need to do ourselves.

"So, we at Welch, who started out as a plumbing repair company (and we still do repair), have become storekeepers because we found people looking for some place they could shop and receive good, solid advice about their plumbing problems.

"At Welch we learned to listen to the customer, since he is asking for advice or parts he really knows very little about. Whether the problem be big or small, we try to give as much time and personal attention as possible to each customer to solve their problems."

To do this, it is necessary to have several thousands of the many different plumbing parts necessary for repair. For example, in stock are faucet parts for over 160 different faucets. The sales people at Welch are qualified, licensed plumbers and therefore are aware of the many parts that are interchangeable. Many times a customer is told a certain part is no longer available, and in some cases this is true. But many times they are repairable because they can be interchanged with other manufactured parts.

When it becomes necessary to replace a worn out item with something new, Welch makes it a policy to sell only the merchandise from long established companies and suppliers. "The availability of repair parts is a major item in our decision to handle and sell any merchandise.

"Some of our major items are:

"State Water Heaters, for both gas and electric, from 6-gallon mobile home sizes to as large as necessary to do the job.

"Eljer Plumbing Fixtures along with Payne Heating, and Bradley Faucets.

"Naturally we can't forget wrap-on heat tapes and insulation for cold weather, along with April Air Humidifiers and Space Guard Air Cleaners. This is only a part of what we stock."

Special July-Long Sale Prices Spell Added Spring Crest Draperies Values

"Thanks for the response to our July Sale at Spring Crest Draperies."

With just a few days left until end of the month, and end of the sale, there still is time, however, to take advantage of the significant specials posted at Spring Crest at 5302 Ave. Q, in Briercroft Shopping Center, Lubbock, and at the Spring Crest store, under same ownership, at 2613 Yonkers, in Plainview.

Among the specific sale values at each of the two stores are:

All fabrics at 20 per cent off;

Mini blinds also at 20 per cent off (Mini blinds are now carried with the new decorator valance);

Selected bedspreads at 10 per cent reduction;

Crestrand sheers at a whopping 30 per cent off;

Woven woods at 10 per cent savings; and

Free Estimates

Free estimates are a feature of the Spring Crest stores that are open 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, closing at an earlier Saturday 2 p.m. hour.

"Something special for every room un your home" is the promise and the reality at Spring Crest, and when this "something special" is available at marked-down prices without sacrifice or quality, then why wait?

Such values make it exceptionally easy to secure "something better for your home," affording a great opportunity to get acquainted with Spring Crest . . . with the products and services afforded, and with the home ownership and management.

Ben and Brenda Powell are owners, and they are most appreciative of the trade and friendships accorded.

Furthermore, aside from their beauty and simplicity, they are competitively priced.

There is 10-year warranty on drapery hardware.

Only three to four weeks delivery time is involved for the custom made drapes.

Also available are woven woods, shades, shutters, custom bedspreads and the Classique metal blinds.

Drapery hardware is stocked for the "do it yourself" trade, too, with its simplicity lending itself to ease in installation.

Crestrand, the alternative to sheers (the elusive sheer that is different and popular) is stocked. It is beautiful, unique and thoroughly different.

Visa and Master Charge purchase plans are welcomed at Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock and Plainview.

And remember this:

"No matter what your style, Spring Crest can dress your windows better; these custom draperies add elegance to the most formal setting, but also can be the perfect finishing touch to a casual room. These unusual draperies are formed by threading a spring steel pleater through a narrow hem at top of the material. Result: a drapery that hangs beautifully with rounded, supple folds rather than the sharp, still edges of conventional pinch-pleated draperies."

Tuftwick Reaffirms Policy Of Pricing Carpet 'Well Below Suggested Retail'

"Did you realize that no matter the cost of carpet to the dealer, Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., sells at $3 to $4 per yard under suggested retail to substantuate its claim of 'the carpet store where your dollar buys more'?"

In considering carpet purchase and installation, six factors are emphasized among the many that invite reliance upon Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., Slide Road at Brownfield Highway in Lubbock.

"Consideration of each of these, one by one, could well profit you in immediate savings and long-time enjoyment of your carpeting."

(1) On July 1, all carpeting prices increased to the dealer, Tuftwick reports, with another increase looming later in the month. However, Tuftwick had a large supply on hand before that date, with still more arriving that was ordered before July 1, and all before this date is being made available at the old price! A large shipment has just been placed on the showroom floor enabling a great selection at inflation-fighting Tuftwick prices.

(2) Always, no matter the cost of carpet, Tuftwick sells at $3 to $4 per yard under suggested retail.

(3) More for the money in carpet is provided than ever before; let the folks at Tuftwick show this in graphic detail.

(4) Carpet is a great energy saver as a prime instrument in insulation. And energy savings means dollar savings.

(5) Expert installation is assured.

(6) All labor is guaranteed.

These are just some of the reasons that Tuftwick stands tall in its field. A visit to the big Tuftwick store in southwest Lubbock will reveal even more reasons for selecting and purchasing all one's carpet needs there.

"Longtime recognition of Tuftwick Carpet, Inc. as a headquarters for attractive pricing, utmost in value, and always a wide selection is a matter of general knowledge.

"But in appreciating Tuftwick for its inflation-fighting prices, have you realized that this big firm at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock includes the most elegant wool carpets, even custom made for your own situation, along with its wide choices in other materials and grades?"

Finest 100 per cent wool carpet from Philadelphia Carpets, even in custom colors, is available at Tuftwick . . . so "let us custom make your carpet" is no idle claim there.

"Seriously, if you can't find the color you need, as example, consider custom carpet manufactured especially for you.

"Imagine . . . the exact color or any imaginable color, from the softest, most delicate color of your favorite rose to the deep rich auburn shade of your Irish setter! The exact style, weight and texture . . . even the exact shape, seamless and to 25 ft. width and 60 ft. length, can be yours!

"And you can purchase only what you need. Philadelphia Carpts make your carpet to fit each particular room, seamlessly when the room is within the above size specifications.

Carpets of imported wools assure elegant beauty and natural soil resistance. Consider Flambeau, Presentation or Supremacy from Philadelphia and Tuftwick, now; you can thus have as good a carpet as is available on the market."

Tuftwick prides in the wide selection of quality carpet kept in stock at its southwest Lubbock store.

Business & Industrial Review

EARLY-BIRD SPECIAL — Shop Woolco's Early-Bird Special all this week, from 9:30 to 10 a.m., with this week's feature being Coleman fuel priced at just $1.33 per gallon (limit 2). Woolco invites attention to new Early-Bird Specials each week, each representing exceptional savings. Staffmember Jay Payne is shown with the Coleman fuel display within the store.

Camping Enjoyment Given Boost With Woolco's Special Pricing, Selection

Among the savings are special cooler prices There is a Coleman 12-gal. cooler, with matching 1-gal. jug, for the low price of $28.88! This blue and white poly-lite cooler and jug combination regularly sells for $35.99.

Also there is a 17-gal. cooler on sale for $36.88. This is a three-way cooler to be used horizontally or as a refrigerator with left or righthand door. Normally selling for $42.94, this represents a distinct bargain at the lower price.

Lanterns are included in the good buys, too. The Coleman single-mantle unit is on sale now for only $14.88, down from an already-low price of $16.82.

Then another great buy is the Primus single-mantle propane lantern, already marked down to $12.88 but now on sale for the low, low price of $9.66 at Woolco!

FINEST CAMP STOVES — FROM COLEMAN

Camp Stoves

Two particular camp stoves offer great savings. The Coleman two-burner camp stove is now on sale at $17.88 (usually priced $21.99); and the Coleman three-burner stove for the larger camping family, regularly marked at $36.47, is on sale at $29.88.

The one-gallon cans of Coleman fuel, already low priced at $1.97, are on sale at $1.58. The propane cylinders are on sale at $1.58, regularly selling for $1.97 to $2.07.

A really great savings is offered on the Coleman 9 ft. 8 in. by 7 ft. 2 in. American Heritage tent with 100 per cent polyester sidewalls. This tent regularly sells for $159.99, but is now on sale for $105.99!

There are many other great savings for the outdoor camper at Woolco, contributing appreciably to actual overall savings in your camping trips yet to be enjoyed this year and for seasons to come.

GREAT COOLER SELECTION, PRICING — Raul Perez calls attention to Woolco's impressive selection of coolers for camping, travel and picnics. Check the accompanying story for specific dollar savings in coolers.

Police Capture Five Suspects

Five persons, including two juveniles, found themselves in police custody early this morning after they allegedly tried to steal more than $200 in city property.

City policeman John E. Blythe said he was on routine foot patrol near Maxey Park Community Center at 30th Street and Oxford Avenue about 2:40 a.m. when he heard voices at the center.

Using binoculars, Blythe saw two of the suspects climb a fence and run to a car containing several other persons. One of the suspects reportedly was carrying something as he ran to the vehicle.

Blythe said he got into his patrol unit and was able to block the suspects' car before it left the scene. Inside the vehicle the officer found property, including garden tools and two 5-gallon cans of gasoline, which reportedly belongs to the city.

The two juveniles, a 16-year-old boy and a 15-year-old girl, were turned over to juvenile authorities. Two other male suspects, ages 17 and 19, and an 18-year-old woman were taken to the county jail.

In other activity, a 20-year-old Lubbock man was arrested on suspicion of failing to stop and render aid after he allegedly left the scene of an accident in which he was involved.

The mishap occurred about 12:10 a.m. today at Sixth Street and Avenue Q. The motorist was taken into custody several minutes later at Third Street and Avenue P.

The collision did not result in serious injuries, according to police.

Ricky Lopez, 19, of 118 Ave. W told police a man shot at his car Sunday afternoon after he and the man got into a shouting match at Mackenzie State Park.

Lopez said he and a companion were traveling in the park when the suspect pulled his vehicle in front of them and started cursing him. Reports indicate the two men shouted at each other and then Lopez drove out of the park.

The complainant said that at U.S. Highway 87 and Erskine Street he noticed the suspect was shooting at his car, but the bullets missed their target. The motorist, however, stopped his pursuit of Lopez after he reportedly lost control of his car and struck a median.

A Levelland man told police he was robbed at gunpoint after he accepted a ride with two black males on East 19th Street about 5:15 a.m. Sunday.

Coy Dewayne Karnes, 33, said the men pulled a gun on him and took his wallet, which contained $240 in cash, in the 3900-block of Idalou Road. He said the suspects fled south on Olive Street in a light-colored car.

Karnes described the suspects as 18 to 25 and thin. He said one of the men was short and was wearing a dark plaid shirt and dark pants. He described the second suspect as tall and wearing a red plaid shirt and dark pants.

Police also investigated an assault incident that began about 11:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lubbock Speedway and ended about 2:30 a.m. Sunday at a residence in the 5600-block of 45th Street.

John Franklin Bain of 5520 48th St. told officers that he was talking to some friends at the speedway when a middle-aged white male drove up, began talking to him and then pointed a 12-gauge shotgun at him. A Lubbock County sheriff's deputy, who also was talking to Bain, grabbed the shotgun from the suspect, reports show.

The deputy told the victim that because a pregnant woman and a youngster were with the suspect, he would not arrest the man. However, the deputy advised Bain that if he wanted to file a formal charge against the suspect, he could go to the criminal district attorney's office.

Police reports indicate that Bain and the suspect met about 2 a.m. Sunday at a bar on 34th Street. Bain told police that someone began throwing bottles at him while he was sitting in his pickup truck in the club's parking lot, and he left going west on 34th Street. Reports show that when Bain left, the suspect chased him and tried to run him off the road before following him to a house in the 5600-block of 45th Street.

Reports indicate that Bain got out of his vehicle holding a rifle and began walking toward the suspect, who pointed a gun at him. Bain told police the suspect took the rifle from him and drove away.

Bain described the suspect as 36 to 45, tall and of medium build with sandy hair.

In other activity, Mary DeLeon Mojica said that she was putting her children into her car in a parking lot at 70th Street and University Avenue about 11:30 p.m. Saturday when a young man pushed her into the car and grabbed her purse, containing $17 in cash.

After the incident, Mrs. Mojica said the suspect jumped into a car that headed south on University Avenue. She said the suspect was a white male, 14 to 17, of medium height and build and with blond hair.

A 45-year-old Lubbock man remained in county jail late Sunday in connection with a break-in at the Plains Laundry, 310 Ave. P, about 8:55 p.m. Saturday. Police recovered $600 worth of uniforms during the incident.

Reports show that police answered an alarm at the laundry and arrived to find a broken window and a pile of clean clothes under the window. Canine officers were dispatched to check the building and found the suspect hiding under some clothes, reports indicate.

Police reportedly ordered the suspect out of the clothes cart, and he refused. However, when one of the police dogs jumped into the cart and nipped the suspect on the right shoulder, the suspect gave himself up to officers, reports show.

A 21-year-old woman reported that she was at a laundry at 2524 Parkway Drive Saturday morning when a black male approached her, held a broken bottle to her throat and told her not to scream. However, reports show that the woman began screaming and fighting with the suspect, and he fled. The woman said the suspect was 18 to 25, and of medium height and build.

Frances L. Bell of 1829 E. 25th St. complained that someone took $1,400 worth of goods, including a stereo, TV and clothing, from her home Saturday night.

Ex-Board Chairman To Testify In Clemency-For-Cash Trial

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — With a second government witness denying he bought his way out of prison, Tennessee's clemency-for-cash trial today entered its second week in U.S. District Court.

Among those waiting to testify today was Charles Traughber, a member of the Tennessee Parole Board and its former chairman.

The government conceded in a letter to defense lawyers late last week that Larkin Bibbs Jr. denied "making payoffs and members of his family have denied making any payoffs in connection with the case."

As a result of the letter, lawyer John Dugger — representing defendant Charles Frederick Taylor — asked Judge Charles G. Neese to strike all testimony concerning Bibbs.

Taylor, a former member of ex-Gov. Ray Blanton's security staff, is one of five men and three former aides to Blanton on trial for allegdly conspiring to sell pardons and reduced prisen sentences. The indictment alleges the offenses occurred during most of Blanton's four-year term — which ended Jan. 17.

Others on trial are T. Edward Sisk, Blanton's former legal counsel; his ex-tradition assistant, Charles Benson; a Nashville lawyer, Dale Quillen, and William A. Thompson, a Chattanooga night-club operator.

Bibbs was released from prison in December 1975 after serving four months of a 10- to 15-year sentence for second-degree murder.

Before the trial began last week, the prosecution said convicted murderer William Scharff had retracted his grand jury testimony concerning Quillen.

Scharff pleaded guilty to perjury July 12 and a year was added to his life sentence for the murder of a Knoxville police informant.

The Bibbs letter contradicts portions of the 49-page indictment alleging that Thompson said in October 1975 that Bibbs' release from prison would cost $15,000.

The indictment said Bibbs' case was referred to the parole board by Sisk.

Sirhan Sirhan Will Petition For Release

SOLEDAD, Calif. (UPI) — Sirhan B. Sirhan, the convicted killer of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, makes another appearance before a three-member parole panel this week, but there is little likelihood of a reduction in his sentence.

Sirhan, 35, a slender Palestinian immigrant, will appear before the Community Release Board Tuesday for a hearing on his scheduled parole date of March 1, 1985. The session will be at the California Training Facility in Soledad, 100 miles south of San Francisco.

The hearing is a matter of routine because he has, according to law, an opportunity to plead his case before the panel once a year. However, authorities say there is little chance he will be freed at this time or at any time before 1985.

George Roberts, Sirhan's lawyer, said despite his client's good behavior and improved mental health he was only given a four-month reduction in sentence last year.

"I don't know whether they can bring themselves to give him that four-month credit or not ...," the Pacific Grove, Calif., lawyer said.

"Everybody wants to make political hay out of somebody else's misfortune. Obviously it's the Kennedys' misfortune and Sirhan's misfortune. There are opportunists out there who want their name in the paper and beat their breast and say, 'This man should never be let out.'

"I guess they realize that, if they gave the man any consideration, the publicity would overwhelm them."

Kennedy was killed in Los Angeles on June 6, 1968, moments after winning the California Democratic presidential primary. Sirhan was said to have been enraged because of Kennedy's support of arms for Israel. Los Angeles judge sentenced Sirhan to death after a jury conviction.

Three years later his punishment was reduced to life imprisonment after the California death penalty was ruled unconstitutional. Sirhan's sentence was further reduced in 1976 to just over 16 years under a new policy by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. to set specific release dates for all convicts serving "indeterminate" sentences.

UFO Signal Tower Slated

MT. RAINIER, Wash. (UPI) — The New Age Foundation says aliens from space have been afraid to land at its special airport so it will build a signal tower to help allay their fears.

The foundation built the landing strip 13 months ago on its 14-acre headquarters near the Mt. Rainier National Park.

"They are afraid of us," said Wayne Aho, a leader of the group. "They know about the earth's great stock of nuclear weapons...

"With this signal tower, we can convince them of our friendly intentions."

Aho said a pyramid-shaped metal device will be affixed to the top of the tower to transmit thought energy provided by members of the group.

Foundation members, he said, will gather in a circle around the tower and clasp hands, forming a giant battery that will send friendly thoughts skyward.

It was above Mt. Rainier in 1947 that an airline pilot reported the first modern flying saucer sighting.

Aho said at least one benefit could accrue from contact with alien travelers.

"When we learn the secret of their energy sources, gas station lines will end on Planet Earth," he said. "They've got to refuel, but did you ever see a flying saucer pull up at a filling station?"

FIRST SINCE 1961 — The first passenger train since 1961 pulled to a stop recently in this Adirondack Mountain village after a benefit run through 100 miles of wilderness. A private company hopes the train will become a major tourist attraction, carrying passengers to Lake Placid for the 1980 Winter Olympic games. (AP Laserphoto)

Residents Celebrate Return Of Passenger Train Service

TUPPER LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Residents of this small Adirondack Mountain village turned out with a train-shaped cake and a buffet dinner to meet their first passenger train since 1961.

The diesel-powered Adirondack Railway Corp. train from Utica was a half-hour late pulling into a grassy field Saturday, but no one seemed to mind.

"We'll take it again, sure," said Imogene Edvenson, one of 250 passengers who donated $35 each to the Central New York Heart Association for the special excursion. The train is scheduled to begin regular service August 31.

Miss Edvenson, who moved to the central New York community of New Hartford from Iowa "where everything is flat," said she had seen "lots of trees, lakes, ferns, rocks — it was beautiful" as the train moved through the "forever wild" mountain ranges.

Bob Jones of Utica remembered other trips. "My grandfather worked on this railroad and my father worked on this railroad and I worked on this railroad, before they did away with it," the former stationmaster and telegrapher said.

Operators of the restored rail line hope it will become a major tourist attraction, with an added boost coming from thousands of potential passengers traveling to the 1980 Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, 30 miles to the west. When the line begins full-scale service, it will run from Remsen, near Utica, to Lake Placid.

Although Adirondack Railway President Frank Menair and Olympic organizers expect to move thousands of spectators a day into Lake Placid during the games, the railroad is expected to make it or break it with a combination of excursions, package tours, and tourists.

The Penn Central Railroad, which had abandoned its unprofitable Adirondack Branch in 1972 after no trains had run for years, had started removing sections of track for scrap when the newly-formed Adirondack Park Agency, a state agency that oversees the six-million-acre Adirondack Park, stopped them and helped persuade the state Transportation Department to acquire the track.

The APA's economic impact study on the restored line predicts that business in the park area could go up by almost $6 million a year as once-thriving railroad towns are opened up to tourists again.

The train line, built in 1892 as the Mohawk and Malone, could supplement the summer boat and winter snowmobile traffic that residents and summer tourists now depend on.

When the train is running again, there will be special baggage cars for skis and snowmobiles, according to the Thompsons' son, Scott, Menair's publicist and tour-booking agent.

It will cost about $24 for a round trip coach seat on the five-hour, 20-minute trip from Utica to Lake Placid, or $888 to rent a whole coach. Prices will be higher during the Olympics.

The cafe car, now being restored at a cost of $500,000, will have glowing mahogany tables, a carpeted floor and deep arm chairs, Thompson said.

Most of the rolling stock, which Menair's company must get and pay for on its own, comes from junkyards and private owners in almost unrecognizable shapes, and can be restored only after checking photographs of the originals in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

The line was originally hacked through the mountains for Dr. W. Stewart Webb, a wealthy physician, who reportedly found it difficult to get from his Manhattan home to his 200,000-acre estate in the western Adirondacks.

Psychic Wrong On Niagara Disaster

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Niagara Falls is still intact. So is the Maid of the Mist tour boat. As for the psychic's prediction, it was a bust.

Sunday was not a day that would go down in history. The disaster never happened. July 22 will soon be forgotten.

Tourists flocked to Niagara Falls Sunday — it was the biggest turnout of the season. They wanted to see if a Connecticut psychic was right: That a retaining wall would collapse at 4:56 p.m. on July 22 and sink a tour boat filled with deaf children.

But the self-proclaimed psychic, Pat St. John, who had been in the honeymoon capital for three days last week, insisted Sunday night she was not wrong about her prediction.

"My only error was July 22," the Bridgewater, Conn., housewife said. "I still feel that it's going to happen at 4:56 p.m. within the very near future. I wish I could back down and say I was wrong, but I don't feel I'm wrong.

"I think it was a brave thing for anyone to get on the boat," said Mrs. St. John, 33, who spent the day at her home. "I wouldn't get on it."

Interest in Mrs. St. John's prediction intensified when a seismic alarm imbedded beside the Falls in Terrapin Point's rocky subsurface sounded on July 13, indicating a shift of at least a quarter of an inch.

The point was closed to tourists while geologists conducted a six-day examination of the outcropping, which offers a fine view of the large, Canadian Horseshoe Falls.

The viewing area was reopened after three seismic alarms were overhauled and it was determined that any rockslide would be preceded by an adequate warning.

While disclaiming any belief in the psychic's prediction, most of the tourists visiting the falls said they were curious.

Larry and Yvonne Waher of Niagara Falls said they gave up watching the fights on television to come.

Fourth Suspect Charged In Woman's Kidnapping

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A fourth man was arrested early today on federal charges of kidnapping and extortion in connection with the abduction of a banker's wife whose husband paid $300,000 for her release.

Three men were arrested Sunday following Joan Dedrick's release 42 hours after she was abducted from her West Milford home on Friday.

Mrs. Dedrick's husband paid the ransom following tense negotiations with the kidnappers, including a 21-hour period when the abductors were out of contact.

The FBI said the fourth suspect was arrested at 1 a.m. today at his home in Paterson. He was identified as Gaetano Allesandrello, 23.

The three suspects arrested Sunday were identifed as Guillermo Jesus Caceres, 22, Angel Humberto Cedano, 22, and Salvatore Lacognata, 23, all of Paterson.

All were scheduled to go before a U.S. magistrate today, the FBI said.

Caceres and Cedano were arrested Sunday at a Paterson tenement staked out by the FBI. Lacognata was arrested later in front of his home. All were held without bond in the Metropolitan Correction Center in New York.

Caceres and Cedano were seized moments after Mrs. Dedrick, 46, met reporters on the lawn of the couple's home, authorities said. Also at the news conference was her husband, executive vice president of the Franklin Bank in Paterson.

"I'm home, I'm home," said Mrs. Dedrick.

"She was released exhausted, but not physically harmed," said Dedrick. "This is a joyous occasion for all of us."

Mrs. Dedrick arrived home about 6 a.m.. Neither she nor the FBI would reveal details of events following her abduction Friday morning.

Search Eyed For Bodies

MARION, N.C. (AP) — McDowell County officials may have to cover 10 square miles of mountain land in search of six bodies which may be buried there if the man who tipped them won't point out the graves.

A bond hearing was scheduled today for Danny Parton, 29, who is charged with two counts of first-degree murder stemming from his tale of having killed eight women and burying them in shallow graves.

The charges were filed Friday after Parton, of North Cove, led deputies to the isolated, three-foot-deep graves of two women.

He told officials, "There are six more." But Saturday, Parton told authorities there were no more bodies. A steady rain all weekend prevented searchers from going into the area.

McDowell County Sheriff Bobby Haynes said searchers would wade into the heavily-wooded area as soon as weather permitted.

Parton has not recanted his confession of killing the two women whose bodies were found Friday. One of the women has been identified as Cathy Mosley, of Gaston County, who lived with Parton for more than two years. The other woman was not identified.

Lack Of Transportation Hurts Grain Producers

By United Press International

"You can watch the kids climb to the top. And you can watch the birds having a feast," said college student Mike Kepka, 20, who earns tuition tending winter wheat.

Everywhere in the great Midwest, the nation's breadbasket, there is grain this harvest season. And virtually nowhere is there ample transportation.

In Perryton, 4 million bushels of grain valued near $16 million dollars have soaked up rain during the past week. Minnesota's elevators are running 30 days behind in shipping and the northern harvest hasn't even begun in earnest.

There isn't a grain elevator along the St. Francis branch line from Hstings, Neb., to Oxford, Kan., without some wheat on the ground. And the grain sorghum crop is sitting idle in south Texas elevators because every available cargo ship is involved with moving perhaps one of the greatest wheat harvests in U.S. farm history.

"The birds and the mice are having a feast at our expense," Kepka said. "Earlier this week we had 67,000 bushels just sitting out there taking in the sun. We're waiting for more (railroad hopper) cars to arrive. And the farmers are waiting for us to clear the elevators a little bit so we can haul in some more of their wheat."

This year's Texas crop was estimate at 133.5 million bushels as of mid-July. If the figures prove accurate, the harvest would easily surpass the record 1975 crop by more than 2 million bushels.

Some Texas farmers report yields of 50 to 60 bushels per acre when 20 is considered good. In Oklahoma, there are rumors of 100 bushels per acre.

"It's kind of like fishermen's stories," said Mike Kubick, vice president of the Oklahoma Wheat Commission. "How much you brag depends on how much the landlord gets and how much you owe the IRS."

Meanwhile, the 1979 Kansas wheat crop is forecast at 385.2 million bushels, the largest on record. Oklahoma is expected to exceed 216.6 million bushels, more than 40 million over last year's production.

The entire U.S. winter wheat crop could reach 1.56 billion bushels by the end of harvesting, an increase of 25 percent over last year.

The bumper American crop comes at an opportune time for the nation's farmers, because world production is expected to fall 7 percent this year and the Soviet Union has indicated it plans to import at least 20 million tons of U.S. wheat.

But the main stumbling block, what keeps wheat farmers from rejoicing over what appears to be a windfall, is transportation. There is a major shortage of railroad cars capable of transporting grain to ports, thus the overflow of wheat onto bare ground at Dorrance and dozens of other Midwest communities.

"We'd like to get some help from the railroads. They could bust their tails a little bit harder for us if they wanted to," said a Hooker, Okla., elevator manager as he surveyed the 280-foot-wide, 100-foot-long mountain of grain his million-bushel elevator cannot hold.

"Spoiled wheat gets to be like a product shoplifted out of a store. I don't know whether us, the farmer or consumer's going to get hit, but somebody's got to take the bill."

Thermostat Ruling Setting New Trends

By United Press International

Light lunches are in. So are cold beer and shirtsleeves. Out are suit coats — except in the hoity-toity places.

One week since taking effect, President Carter's order raising thermostat settings to 78 degrees appears to be establishing some new trends in the nation's restaurant business.

Most restaurateurs surveyed by United Press International during the weekend said they were losing business — or would be soon.

Monk's Inn in Miami reported a 5 to 6 percent decline in business and said at least 40 customers a day complained of the heat.

"It's very uncomfortable. The biggest complaint is they feel they aren't relaxed any more," said Manager Henry Burgos. "I believe in conservation all the way but there are certain instances where they have to bend."

Several restaurant owners reported increased sales of "cool" or "light" foods such as salads. Others said customers were eating less — apparently because the heat reduced their appetites.

Proprietor William Eaton of the Redwood House near the Los Angeles Civic Center said business definitely took a downturn since his restaurant turned up its thermostat. But he said beer sales were up — And he increased his beer supply.

Maybe just enough to cry in. Eaton said Carter's thermostat order "won't save a plugged nickel" because planners failed consider such factors as reduced air conditioning forcing restaurant refrigerators to work overtime.

The manager of the Draw Bridge Restaurant in Des Moines, Iowa, reported business off sharply and said about a third of his customers complained about the heat. He said the warmer atmosphere could create a health problem.

"The complaints have been so bad I have had to turn it down," he said. "We set it at 78 and as it (the restaurant) fills up the temperature goes up. By keeping it so hot you're making an active environment for bacteria."

In Washington, D.C., customers at the posh Rive Gauche were putting up with the heat, though chef-owner Michael Laudier said they were definitely complaining about it.

Laudier said the restaurant had not relaxed its dress code but that men were loosening their ties, or taking them off completely, during dinner.

In Miami, King Arthur's Court, the only restaurant lith a strict dress code, upped its thermostat and dropped its requirement that men wear jackets.

Operators of New York's swank eateries were reluctant to discuss the possibility of their customers sweating but allowed that some perspiration was inevitable.

"We've been able to control the humidity," said Alan Lewis, the director of Windows on the World at the top of the World Trade Center. "If you keep the humidity at a comfortable zone they don't feel the higher temperature."

Coal Officials Complain About Carter's Timing

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UP) — While the Carter administration's new energy program gives coal a much-needed push, industry officials are grumbling that it's awfully far down the road.

"The biggest problem is timing," national strip mine industry spokesman Ben Lusk said after the White House outlined its program to fuel producers last week.

"The president and the coal commission are talking 1990. Everybody used to be talking 1985. We think they could be talking 1980, if they'd get on the stick and go after it," said Lusk, chief of the Mining and Reclamation Council of America.

Edwin Wiles, president of the West Virginia Coal As ociation, agrees that the plan "is clearly aimed at something 10 to 12 years down the road."

"I perceived Carter to be saying we're going to move expeditiously in converting oil-fired plants to coal wherever possible," he said. "But when you get to the detail of the program you don't find that at all."

Both men noted the lack of a timetable for specific utilities' conversions from oil to coal.

"There are at least 70 power plants that could convert to coal tomorrow," Lusk said, "and by that I mean 60 to 90 days."

For ailing metallurgical coal — about half of West Virginia's total production — industry officials project only residual effects from what they heard from the White House.

"Anything that increases the demand for coal generally should show some beneficial effects on the coal market," Wiles said, "especially if the economy — the automotive industry, the steel industry — picks up and improves."

With the steel market in a slump, metallurgical coal producers have been selling their coal on the utility market for lower prices than it ordinarily commands, and thousands of West Virginia miners have been laid off.

One problem the industry hasn't faced is fuel shortages, a situation which officials don't expect to change.

While acknowledging that predictions were difficult because of low production due to an unhealthy market and routine summer vacations —"It takes someone with a clearer crystal ball than mine," the West Virginia Coal Association's Dan Fields said — industry officials expect there'll be enough fuel to go around.

"If we need it, we can buy it," said Lusk, who stressed that he doesn't want to see any more federal intervention in fuel allocations for the industry.

It's the surface portion of the industry that's most affected by the fuel situation, with gasoline and diesel fuel used in equal parts on strip mines, Lusk said.

Rally At Atomic Plant Site Ends Peacefully

The weekend event attracted about 4,500 persons with folk singers, speeches, workshops and alternative energy displays in a dusty meadow three miles from the construction site of the $2.6 billion plant.

Previous demonstrations organized by the Clamshell Alliance, a loose coalition of anti-nuclear groups in the Northeast, have resulted in more than 1,500 trespassing arrests.

But construction continues at the coastal plant, about 40 miles north of Boston, and there are increasing differences within the alliance on how to stop it and close seven other atomic power plants already operating in New England.

"As Seabrook goes, so goes the rest of the country," said Walter Simm, a 47-year-old nuclear engineer from Pittsburgh. "The Clamshell has led the way, and if that group cannot agree on what actions should be taken to stop Seabrook, the confusion can damage the entire movement."

The rift developed when a Boston group, the Coalition for Direct Action at Seabrook, announced it hoped to occupy the site Oct. 6.

The coalition says it will follow the long-established Clamshell policy of nonviolence, but hopes to have "large, very large numbers of people dedicated to getting into the plant and staying there," said Harvey Halpern, coalition organizer.

Many members of Clamshell and other groups insist the plan will lead to violence that might taint or damage the movement.

Sports World Shocked By Five Deaths

By The Associated Press

The sports world was visited by tragedy this weekend with the death of five of its members.

The St. Louis Cardinals were in mourning today following the sudden death of tight end J. V. Cain, presumed to be a perfect physical specimen, due to cardiac arrest suffered in practice.

Cain, a sixth-season National Football League veteran, collapsed Sunday nidght while running a pass pattern drill at Lindenwood Colleges, the team's training camp site. He died about 90 minutes later despited cardiopulmonary resuscitation efforts.

Steve Curran, team spokesman said Cain collapsed at about 8:30 p.m. while the Cardinals were engaged in a no-contact drill watched by hundreds of spectator fans.

The 6-foot-4, 225-pound athlete, St. Louis' top draft choice in 1974, had just completed a no-contact pattern, he said. When he fell to the ground, Dr. Bernard Garfinkel of the team's staff went to his aid and began administering the cardiopulmonary procedure until joined by a life support team.

Curran said the 75-member Cards squad was stunned by what happened.

"When they (players) saw that CPR was started, it just got dead silent," Curran said. "A lot of people on the sidelines bowed their heads in prayer. At one point, Coach (Bud) Wilkinson had the players on a line in prayer. They kept yelling, 'Come on, J. V., come on, J. V.' There were tears. It was very emotional."

Preceeding that was the death of Greg Winchell, a Pan American Games silver medalist in the 100-meter breaststroke. The husky 6-foot swimmer from Wilson High School in Long Beach, Calif., who won his medal early this month, succumbed Sunday from injuries suffered in a traffic accident a week ago.

Winchell's coach, Bob Gruneisen, had regarded him as one of the nation's top prospects and a possible gold medal winner in the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

Another of the weekend's victims was Wayne Souza, a University of Wisconsin football player, whose body was recovered Sunday from Lake Monona in Madison, Wis., near the spot where he was reportedly seen swimming on Saturday.

Football also lost former New York Giants and Tulane running back Eddie Price to a heart attack Saturday night at age 54. The native of New Orleans, who was stricken while playing with his grandchildren, had spent six seasons for the Giants before injuries forced his retirement in 1955.

Probably the most well-known of the five was boxer Tony "Two-Ton" Galento, who also suffered a fatal heart attack Sunday morning. The stocky, beer-guzzling bartender from Orange, N.J., knocked out 59 of his opponents and still holds the record for the fastest knockout — four seconds of the first round.

The 69-year-old heavyweight and one-time contender to the title, was one of his sport's more colorful figures, usually carrying 235 pounds on his 5-foot-9 frame. He retired in 1944 after 15 years in the ring with an 88-20 record.

The highlight of his career came on June 28, 1939 at Yankee Stadium when he knocked down Joe Louis in the third round before being put away by Louis in the fourth. His customary pre-fight wail, 'I'll moida da bum," so infuriated Louis that the Brown Bomber later admitted that Galento was the only man he ever tried to kill in the ring.

In addition, Abbott Hunter, 74, the father of Catfish Hunter, died Sunday following an extended illness. The New York Yankees pitcher missed his scheduled starting assignment Sunday to return to his parents' home in Hertford, N.C.

Disputed Calls Mar Lubbock Open Final

By JOHN EUBANKS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Questionable calls, believes Paul Nunley, can go either way during a close match. But that belief was hard to accept Sunday during the finals of the Men's Championship Doubles of the Lubbock Tennis Open.

Nunley and his partner, Stacey Foster were defeated by Brett Hall and Doug Davis, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, in a match that had its share of close, or what was termed by Nunley, "questionable calls."

One questionable call, in particular, during the early going of the second set, clearly went against Nunley and Foster.

Nunley, however, refused to believe the call or any other close call, was reason for the defeat."We didn't lose our poise (from the calls)," Nunley explained, "They just kept plugging away."

After Nunley and Foster breezed through the first set, 6-1,. the momentum began to shift in the second set. "The (first) set was too easy," Nunley explained later. "They didn' seem to be trying."

Hall, the least tempermental of the four, had a somewhat different explaination of the first set.

"We just weren't warmed up," Hall said. "I, for a fact, am a slow starter."

Both Hall and Nunley did agree, however, that the final two sets were decided by how well each team reacted to the opposition's serve.

Hall had a little more difficult time during his Men's Championship Singles match with No. 1 seed Bill Matyastik, who defeated Hall 6-2, 6-2 for the title.

Hall was as gracious in defeat as he was in victory.

Matyastik said he just had a near-perfect day.

"This was the best tennis I have played in quite awhile," he said. "I didn't give him much of a chance to get into the game."

Matyastik continued to exhibit fine match play with partner Kathy Kuhne in the Open Mixed Doubles. The pair defeated Mark Hamilton and Joneen Cummings 6-1, 6-2 for the title.

In other matches Sunday, third-seeded Vicki Kerr defeated No. 4 seed, Sonja Hutcherson 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 to win the Championship Women's Singles.

News And Notes From The Oaks

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry has some good news and some bad news for 'Poke fans. The good news is that the Dallas passing attack should be one of the best in the NFL again this year. The bad news is that the running game and defense must improve a lot before reaching Super Bowl standards.

Actually, Landry was a surprisingly happy man late Saturday after the NFC champs completed their first full scrimmage of summer camp at California Lutheran College. Landry signed autographs for a horde of youngsters, posed for dozens of amateur photographers and gave newsmen a frank evaluation of the initial stage of preparations for the season.

Could this really be the computer-turned-coach who was called, a decade ago, the "great stone face?"

It was Sir Thomas, sure enough, and he never did deserve those jibes about his lack of expression or emotion. Landry basically is a very dignified, serious man, but he has a quick wit and good sense of humor around friends. He never will replace Lou Holtz in the one-liner department, but how many comedians does football need?

LANDRY'S TEMPER WAS tested a bit toward the end of the scrimmage when hundreds of the enthusiastic Thousand Oaks fans, who consider the Cowboys "their team" because the 'Pokes have trained here since 1963, poured out of the stands and onto the field before the action was over. Every kid south of Santa Barbara wanted Cowboy autographs, it seemed.

But Landry made a personal plea for order and, after a few moments of uncertainty, the crowd retreated back across the sidelines. It was a victory for diplomacy, although some of the assistant coaches muttered that they would have summoned the gendarmes.

LATER, LANDRY TOLD newsmen that he was pleased with the performance of his troops in the scrimmage, despite the fact that the veterans had worked out for only three days before the skirmish.

"It was pretty smooth, everything considered," Landry declared. "There weren't a lot of fumbles and penalties and no one got seriously hurt."

That was one of the biggest reasons for cheers, along with the accuracy of Roger Staubach's passes to Drew Pearson, Tony Hill and Tony Dorsett. They didn't play a lot, but they looked very sharp.

"We knew we could throw," Landry said. " We better be able to, because we've been working on it at Dallas since May!"

"The running game and the defense will be spotty for a while," the mentor admitted. "It always takes some time to get our offense smoothed out and we have some new people on defense."

LANDRY IS WALKING the narrow line between optimism and pessimism at this early stage of the new season. He obviously believes the Cowboys have Super Bowl potential, with such class players as Staubach, Pearson, Dorsett, Hill, Randy White, Harvey Martin, Cliff Harris and Charlie Waters on the team.

But he also is aware that the 'Pokes came up short in the Big One against the Steelers last January and new problems have developed in the defensive line. There is no feeling of complacency in the Cowboy camp.

Landry does not share the views of some other Dallas officials on this crop of rookies, either. Just a week ago, Vice President Gil Brandt said this might be the best group ever. Not so, said Landry after another week of evaluation.

"This bunch of rookies is somewhere between the 'Dirty Dozen' of 1975 and an average group," Landry explained. "They are somewhere in the middle, but whether they are closer to the top or the bottom will be determined by how they perform the next few weeks."

Showdown time for the rooks starts Saturday when the Cowboys battle the Oakland Raiders in the pro football Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio. Landry will not be smiling or posing for photographers.

Another Team Enters Tight AL Race

By United Press International

Your attention please. Ladies and gentlemen, there is a horserace in the American League East.

"We have had to play well because Baltimore is playing super," Manager George Bamberger said Sunday after the Milwaukee Brewers swept the Cleveland Indians 14-5 and 5-3 to pull within five games of first-place Baltimore.

The victories gave Milwaukee a 10-game winning streak and extended the club's record since June 13 to 27-9. And Larry Hisle, the best hitter on the team, is returning soon from a shoulder injury.

"If we can stay hot for the next 10-day homestand when we play New York three times, Baltimore three times and five games against the Red Sox, we could really tighten this race up," added Bamberger.

The Brewers — forgotten in a race that features the excellence of Baltimore and the implied threat of the New York Yankees — had 18 hits in the first game and Paul Mitchell hurled six strong innings before tiring in the seventh inning of the nightcap.

Cecil Cooper drove in five runs with a pair of homers and Sixto Lezcano knocked in four in the opener with a double and a two-run homer, while Sal Bando, Buck Martinez and Jim Wohlford supplied the offensive power in the nightcap.

Pirates 5-3, Braves 4-2

When last year's late-season rush for the National League East crown came up short, Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner decided to test a new strategy for this season — take first place early and let the rest of the division chase his Pirates.

Well, the Bucs have waited until after the All-Star break and still find themselves trailing the first-place Montreal Expos, who split a doubleheader with the San Francisco Giants Sunday.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, was battling the element and the Atlanta Braves. After five hours of rain delays, the Pirates sloshed to a sweep to move within a half game of Montreal.

"It could well be a four-team race down to the wire," said Expos Manager Dick Williams. "The only advantage we have is playing the final series of the season against Philadelphia at home. I hope we're a part of it by then. We have good balance so we should be there."

Ellis Valentine had three hits, including a homer, and scored three runs to lead the Expos in their nightcap romp. Bill North drove in three runs with a homer and a double to lead the Giants in the opener, giving Vida Blue his first triumph since June 9.

"The last few weeks we were having trouble but now we got it back together again," Valentine said. "We were trying to muscle up but now we're more relaxed. It's got to be Pittsburgh we're most concerned about. They have the power and the pitching."

Don Robinson provided the power and the pitching for Pittsburgh in the first game of its double-header, picking up his sixth win in 11 decisions and helping himself with a two-run single during a three-run second. Mike Easler's pinch-hit, two-run single in a rain-delayed sixth provided the winning margin.

In the second game, also interrupted by rain, Jim Bibby combined on a seven-hitter with Kent Tekulve and powered a two-run homer to send away 30,000 happy but wet fans.

Yankees 4, Mariners 0

Don Hood, a pre-game replacement for Catfish Hunter who returned to North Carolina after his father's death, allowed three hits before leaving after 4 1-3 innings with cramps in his left calf. Jim Kaat, 2-1, allowed only one baserunner the rest of the way. Thurman Munson drove in two runs to drop Rick Honeycutt to 6-7.

Orioles 4, A's 1

Eddie Murray cracked a tie-breaking homer to trigger a three-run eighth and Steve Stone, 7-7, tossed a seven-hitter. Murray, hitting .419 over the last 12 games, hit his 13th homer to lead off the eighth and hand Rick Langford his 11th loss in 16 decisions. Oakland's Dave Revering hit his seventh homer.

Red Sox 6, Angels 5

Bob Watson singled home Fred Lynn with none out in the bottom of the 10th after Dwight Evans tied the score with a dramatic three-run homer in the ninth. Lynn led off the 10th with a single off loser Mark Clear, 10-3, and Carl Yastrzemski walked before Watson followed with his game-winning hit to center field to give Bill Campbell, 3-3, the victory.

Tigers 1, White Sox 0

Jerry Morales singled home a run in the second and Milt Wilcox — fighting to regain a starting job — combined with Aurelio Lopez on a five-hitter. Champ Summers walked with one out in the second, stole second with two out and came home when Morales lined a sharp single to center off loser Randy Scarberry, 1-4.

Twins 13, Blue Jays 1

Glenn Adams had three hits, including his eighth homer, to spark a 17-hit attack that carried Minnesota to its 10th victory in 11 games with Toronto this season. Pete Redfern, 5-0, gained his first victory as a starter this season by striking out nine and allowing five hits in seven innings. Otto Velez homered in the seventh for the Blue Jays' run.

Royals 7, Rangers 6

George Brett hit three home runs and Willie Wilson singled in Al Cowens from third base in the ninth to snap a 6-6 tie. Dan Quisenberry, 1-0, was the winner while reliever Sparky Lyle, 4-7, took the loss. Richie Zisk hit his ninth home run of the season for Texas.

Cubs 1-8, Reds 12-4

Larry Biittner's bases-loaded single in the sixth inning snapped a 4-4 tie and led Chicago to its split. Dave Concepcion drove in five runs with his second grand slam of the season and a single to lead the Reds to a triumph in the opener.

Astros 7, Cardinals 6

Jose Cruz's infield single scored Julio Gonzales with the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning and enabled Houston to snap a five-game losing streak with a victory over St. Louis.

Phillies 5, Padres 2

Mike Schmidt belted his major league-leading 33rd home run — a two-run blow — and Nino Espinosa and Tug McGraw combined on a six-hitter, leading Philadelphia over San Diego.

Dodgers 4, Mets 3

Rickles Rides Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — There was a new judge presiding on the bench when the Red Sox' kangaroo court was called to order — comedian Don Rickles.

In town for a weekend nightclub appearance in nearby Framingham, Rickles took charge of the session, in which players are fined small sums for alleged indiscretions on and off the field, when he visited the Fenway Park clubhouse.

"I've been watching you Torrez. You stink," said the man sometimes called the Merchant of Venom. "... I'm putting in an extra dollar for you so they can buy you a new arm. That's it. Rub your legs. Take care of them. The arm's already gone."

Second baseman Jerry Remy, a former California Angel and currently on the disabled list, got it next.

"Hey, Remy," Rickles called. "The Angels really miss you. See you're having another great year. Hurt again."

Rickles himself was fined $2 for wearing no socks, but fined Captain Carl Yastrzemski $20 for missing a first pitch and for wearing the same clothes three days in a row.

"Just hose Yaz down," suggested Rickles, who even had a few barbs for his old friend, Don Zimmer, the Red Sox' manager.

"I've left three tickets to Don Zimmer for my show," he said. "Two are for Don and his lovely wife. The other is for his stomach."

"You guys had better win," he added. "Think about it, Don. If you don't win, they'll all be going about town in Cadillacs and you'll be driving a cab ... All Zimmer does is burp and spit tobacco in the dugout."

Ballestros Wins Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Severiano Ballesteros, 170 pounds of Spanish muscle and bounce, destroyed the best America could throw at him and won the British Open Saturday.

"It was fun," said Seve exuberantly after his victory. "I wanted to win for Europe."

His one-under-par 283 for the 72 holes was three strokes better than Jack Nicklaus and Ben Crenshaw and was accomplished in conditions far different than those in which the golfer from Spain usually plays.

With 40-mile-an-hour winds gusting down the back nine, and in temperatures that never topped the mid-50's Ballesteros refused to play for safety on Lytham's narrow fairway flanked by tall, thick rough.

On every hole he went for length, he generally found himself way off line, yet almost always Lady Luck was at his side to give him a favorable lie.

In an Open in which the scores were high and the temperatures low, Ballesteros was the only player who finished with sub-par figures. Nicklaus, Crenshaw, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and Tom Watson all failed to conquer the Lytham St.Annes course, a jinx layout for Americans.

Not since Bobby Jones won here in 1926, has an American taken a British Open played at Lytham.

At one time Irwin looked like he would do it as he finished the third round with a steady 2-under-par to lead the field into the final round.

Brewers Force NBC Showdown

Sporting World Becoming Filled With 'Ugly Americans'?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Whatever happened to the great American spirit of sportsmanship?

Who tossed the dagger that slew Grantland Rice's immortal lines, "When the one Great Scorer comes to write against your name ... it matters not whether you won or lost, but how you played the game?"

Who snuffed out Baron Pierre de Coubertin's theme that the joy of Olympic sports lies "not in winning but in taking part?" What of the Duke of Wellington's and General MacArthur's exhortations about the value of the "fields of friendly strife?"

Bosh! Sentimental rubbish, you say, reviewing some of the events that have occurred in the last few weeks.

At Wimbledon, Jimmy Connors loses a semifinal tennis match to Bjorn Borg, brushes past sedate All-England Club officials, slams the door of his limousine while snapping, "You can take this tournament and stuff it."

A week later, Jimmy's pal, Vitas Gerulaitis, normally a very nice kid, loses a tennis match at Forest Hills to Poland's Wojtek Fibak. Instead of walking to the net for a traditional handshake, the playing pro of Studio 54 wheels, picks up his rackets and flees the premises.

"These young American players — they not only do not act like gentlemen, but not like people. They grow up in a way that they only know to win. They never learn to lose. They act like robots. They have no manners."

In Seattle, the New York Yankees take a drubbing from the lowly Mariners and Lou Piniella, with a short temper fuse but normally affable, throws a glove at baseball's famous "Chicken" and singes the bird's feathers with searing epithets.

A couple of days later, Reggie Jackson breaks up Nolan Ryan's no-hitter in the ninth and gestures to the press box as he rounds first. "Bush," says Rod Carew. "And I'm going to tell him when I see him."

But the coup de grace of Yankee arrogance and lack of class is saved for the Pan Am games in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where our awesome red, white and blue forces run rough-shod over smaller and weaker rivals of the hemisphere.

First, with his team leading the Virgin Islands by 35 points, Knight berates an official so vigorously he is thrown out of the game. He draws a reprimand from the International Amateur Basketball Federation.

He subjects one of his players, Isiah Thomas, to a brutal tongue lashing in front of everyone, later grabs the youngster and continues the tirade all the way to the locker room — an ugly, demeaning act.

Knight objects strenuously when a group of female players wander in on his practice session 10 minutes before schedule and he gets into a hassle with a Puerto Rican cop. Bobby says the cop stuck a finger in his eye, the cop says he was slugged. Both bring charges.

As if this isn't enough to shatter international relations for eons, the Indiana firebrand puts on a distressing exhibition after the American basketball team has beaten Puerto Rico for the championship 113-94.

Big deal. The USA, birthplace and capital of the hoop sport, a nation of 230 million, whips a little island of 2.5 million. Okay, Bobby, go blow your horn.

Riding the shoulders of his victorious players, the coach raises his fist in a show of defiance. Later, he says, "The only people on this whole goddamned island I care about are my players."

It isn't a scene to make an American proud. At least, Captain Mike O'Koren of North Carolina recognizes the sensitivity of the occasion. Before the medals are given out, he calls his mates around him and cautions, "Listen, we represent a lot of people. Let's not have any nonsense."

It gives us pause to wonder: It is 1979. America, do you know where your children are?

Streakin Six Takes Win

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (UPI) — Streakin Six outdueled Sages Belle Star Sunday to capture the 16th running of the Rainbow Quarterhorse Futurity and the winner's share of $173,285 from the rich purse of more than half a million dollars.

Streakin Six, a colt, and Sages Belle Star, a filly, hooked up midway down the 400-yard race with the fast finishing Streakin Six getting his nose in front at the wire.

It turned out to be nearly a $100,000 nose victory since Sages Belle Star picked up the second place money of $79,216. A longshot, That's Rainey, finished third and collected $40,598.

That's Rainey took the early lead, but after the horses hit the half-way mark, it was obvious that the race would be between Streakin Six and Sages Belle Star, who came into the race with the second and third fastest qualifying times from last week's trials. The top qualifier, Denim N Diamonds, was no factor, getting away poorly and finishing sixth.

Ridden by California jockey Danny Cordoza, Streakin Six covered the 400 yards in 20.17 seconds and returned $4.80, $3.40 and $3.20. Sages Belle Star paid $4.00 and $3.40 while That's Rainey paid $6.60 to show.

The victory was the third in a row for Streakin Six, who is owned by the Tom L. Burnett Cattle Co. of Fort Worth. Coming into the race, however, Streakin Six had earned a modest $8,066.

Sages Belle Star finished second for the third straight time since shipping to Ruidoso Downs from Texas early this spring. The filly, owned by J.H. Crouch Jr. of Midland, now has earnings of more than $131,000 with four victories and three seconds in seven starts defeat Dessie Samuels and Becca Rasor, 4-6, 7-6, 7-6.

Following the top three finishers were Call Me Smooth, Chick's Charger Bar, Denim N Diamonds, The Wheel Horse, Easy Manuever, Pa Pa Wheelie and Nine Ohs.

In Open Men's Singles play, top-seed Kenneth Coulter beat No. 4 seed, Rick Roach 6-2, 6-4, and in open doubles Coulter paired with Ralph Davis to defeat Danny and David Voss, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1.

Competition in the women's open singles was cancelled because of a lack of participants. But in Women's Doubles play, Carol Timmons and Evonne Berryhill defeated Mary Rastetter and Lynn Barton, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Long Putt Gives Team Victory

Mark Jarrett and Guy Conine teamed up to capture the Hillcrest Country Club men's partnership championship flight honors Sunday with a two-day total of 133 — but the victory didn't come easy for the duo.

After 36 holes three teams — Jarrett and Conine, John Farquhar and Dub Malaise and Rex Robertson-Clif Baggett were deadlocked at 133. But on the first hole of the three-way, sudden-death playoff, Jarrett sank a 35-foot birdie putt from the fringe of the green for the victory.

Robertson and Baggett, who had led with a 67 Saturday, shot a 66 Sunday but Jarrett and Conine managed a 65 — after an opening 68. But the best round of the tournament came from Farquhar and Malaise, who carded a 63 Sunday after turning in an opening round of 70.

Farquhar was largely responsible for that score.

He shot a personal round of 64, and was nearly perfect until the 18th, where he bogeyed the final hole.

"John shot an incredible score Sunday," said Hillcrest pro Richard Whittenburg. "That may have been the best round I've ever seen anybody have at Hillcrest."

Four Teams Vie For Title

Four area teams will compete for the District 2 Little League championship today and Tuesday at the Buster Long Field, located a block north of the South Plains Mall.

The Northwest All-Stars, champions of Area I, will meet the Area III champion, Shallowater, today at 5:30 p.m.

Dixie, winner of Area II, will meet Cooper, champ of Area IV, today at 7:30 p.m.

The consolation game will be Tuesday at 5:30 p.m., while the final will be the same day at 7:30 p.m.

The winner of the tournament will meet the District V champion July 28 in Snyder. The winner of that tournamant will advance to the 16-team State Little League Tournament Aug. 5-6-7 in Waco.

Racquetball Meet Deadline Today

Lubbock racquetball enthusiasts interested in competing in the YMCA Racquetball Tounament this weekend had better move fast. Today is the deadline for entering the tourney.

Applications will be accepted until 6 p.m. tonight at the YMCA, located at 1601 24th St., for the tourney that will feature competition for men and women in several different divisions. The fee is $9 per person and $16 for athletes wishing to compete in both the singles and doubles play.

Play starts on Thursday, July 26, and will culminate with the championships on Saturday — all competition will be held at the YMCA.

Dow Jones Off 4.52 To 823.55

NEW YORK (AP) — Fears about the dollar's slide in foreign exchange trading pushed stock prices down today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 4.52 to 823.55 at noon.

Last week, the decline of the dollar prompted the Federal Reserve to increase the discount rate, putting more pressure on interest rates. Analysts say they are concerned that the continued fall of the dollar may cause the Fed to further tighten credit.

The dollar continued to slip in foreign exchange trading today while the price of gold, a traditional refuge for investors in times of monetary uncertainty, rocketed to a new high in Zurich of $304.125 an ounce before falling slightly at the close.

The NYSE composite average of more than 1,500 common stocks was off .27 to 57.62 at noon. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .36 to 195.01.

Volume on the Big Board in the first two hours of trading was a moderate 10.79 million shares, compared to 11.18 million in the same period of Friday's session.

Among NYSE volume leaders, IBM fell 1⅛ to 68⅝, Collins & Aikman dropped ⅜ to 9¼, Kaiser Aluminum was off ¼ to 18⅛, Heublein was unchanged at 25⅞, Studebaker Worthington rose 2⅛ to 44 and Charter Co. rose ⅝ to 36⅛.

Exxon, which reported earnings lower than those anticipated by many analysts, fell ½ to 52.

Comic Phyllis Diller Celebrates Birthday

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Phyllis Diller celebrated her 62nd birthday this week with four cakes on which she distributed 62 candles.

"One cake couldn't support all those candles," she cracked, somewhat winded after blowing out the small conflagration.

"It was either split up the candles or melt the cake. I keep telling myself I'm really only 35 because I take birthday control pills. And I want you to know 1980 holds no fear for me. When I was 19, I looked 80.

"My face lift eight or nine years ago changed my whole life. I look better now than the day I was born.

"Bob Hope says I was so ugly when I was brought into the world the doctor slapped my mother. Bob's a dear friend. He also told me I look like an azalea bush pruned by a Japanese gardener who was still sore about the war."

Phyllis, the country's premiere female stand-up comic, says the second half of her life has been a great improvement over her struggling early years.

She lives in a 22-room mansion in Brentwood on a manicured acre of sweeping lawns, towering trees and lush flower gardens. Her home is a showcase of antiques.

When she was 37 and breaking in as a comedienne, collection agencies were battering at her door, attempts were made to repossess her furniture. She was struggling to support her three children.

"Now the kids are all grown and married and I'm single," she sighed contentedly. "I even have two grandchildren.

"The grandchildren bug me. I'm sick and tired of having them play connect the dots with my liver spots. Can't you just see the little rug rats playing that game on the back of my hands?

"But I'm happy. A few years ago I worked almost every day of the year just for money to put the kids through college. I was so busy I had meters running all over the world. Today I work only six months a year and I'm better paid for it, too.

"The face lift didn't affect my career but it changed my private life. I feel better because when you look well it does your spirit good."

"This is my 25th anniversary in show business," she said. "My first gig was at San Francisco's Purple Onion. I wasn't a stand-up comedienne because I was working with props — hat and glasses and canes — the sign of an amateur.

"There's no such thing as a good young comic because you have to learn in front of an audience. You can't be good until you get there. Also, when you're unknown there's a little bit of hate from the audience.

"I was good but my first show was a bomb. The only joints that would accept a female comic in those days were gay places. Non-gay male audiences were hostile. They still are.

"Men hated me in the beginning. I was a threat because I was invading a man's field. I was the first female stand-up comic which is very different from great comic actresses such as Lucille Ball or Carol Burnett who work ensemble, but never alone on stage.

"To this day I won't do my act unless there are women in the audience. Women are the first to laugh when I poke fun at high fashion, cooking, kids and driving. Then the men laugh, too.

"But the gays laughed from the beginning. They welcomed a freeh approach and new material. They were the nucleus of the joints in San Francisco in those days. But it was tough getting a break in straight clubs."

She has earned as much as $170,000 in a single week in Las Vegas. These days she appears with a dozen symphony orchestras a year, plays 12 concerts and accepts as many supper club dates as she chooses.

Next month she will tour Australia for a month, then head for London for a TV Special, afterwards playing clubs in Houston and Fort Worth.

"I don't think I'm being pretentious in calling myself the top female stand-up comic in the world," Phyllis said, "joan Rivers sits on a stool during her act."

Phyllis, who writes most of her own material, still uses jokes about Fang, her fictitious husband. She isn't, however, considering a third marriage. She dates several men now, none of whom is in show business.

Blind Teen-Ager Expert Automobile Mechanic

NEW MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — Blind since birth, Allan Lincoln has used his touch and hearing to earn a reputation as one of the best mechanics at the town high school.

"When you're working on a car you don't see anything anyway, so you may as well be blind," says the 19-year-old New Milford High School senior.

Lincoln had planned to make a career in electronics until he and an older brother tore apart a car engine.

"I got my hands in it and liked it," he said. "You get in direct contact with the parts.

"In mechanics I can feel the relationships, and by feeling things I can tell what's wrong. In electronics it's an unseen relationship. It's all instrument work," he said.

Lincoln spent some time working in a summer machine repair workshop for blind students in Albany, N.Y., but he said he would rather learn with students who are not handicapped.

He has received most of his training in the local high school where his classmates call him "probably the best mechanic in the school."

Having a blind student in auto mechanics class took some getting used to for teacher Richard Kosier.

Kosier recalled that during one of their first encounters he told Lincoln that the way to solve a problem was to "look and see." The instructor recalled, "I got really shook up. I thought, 'I just destroyed him.'"

But Kosier found Lincoln unruffled and discovered that the student often uses the same terminology.

"I don't think of him as handicapped," Kosier said. "He's a lot better off than some students with all of their faculties. He takes life seriously. He faces his problems. Other kids are off doing their drug trips or their driving trips.

Archaeologist Wants Shipwreck Reconstructed Off Florida Keys

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Sonny Cockrell, an underwater archaeologist from Florida, says he regrets that treasure-hunters have stripped most of the ships that sank along Florida's coast before 1800.

But the outspoken Cockrell says he's got a plan to guarantee that future generations will have a chance to see an underwater wreck — he wants to reconstruct a shipwreck off the Florida Keys.

Historians estimate that about 5,000 ships may have gone down in the shallow waters along Florida's coast, victims of the powerful Gulf Stream and erratic disturbances that swept the vessels onto sand bars and sharp coral reefs.

So what Cockrell wants to do is move some old cannons from a wreck near Fort Pierce down to a still-undetermined site in the John Pennekamp State Park near Key Largo, and rebuild a wreck on the sea floor.

Cockrell says there are 30 to 50 iron cannons on the ocean floor off Fort Pierce, where the Spanish fleet went down in a hurricane in 1715. The nine salvaging firms working under state contract to remove much of the valuable artifacts, gold and bronze cannons from the fleet apparently have little interest in the cannons, Cockrell says.

"We're not taking them away from the contractors, we're just moving their location," he says. "The problem that's come up is that these cannon are being stolen, so we're just moving them to Pennekamp to protect them. We should put them where people can see them."

Cockrell figures that sport divers and owners of the glass-bottom boat companies that work the area will do the police work, making sure nobody tampers with the new tourist attraction.

"Ideally, for authenticity, I would like a spot where there is a ballast heap already," says Cockrell. "If not, I will construct a ballast pile, and put in an anchor, an anchor chain and the cannons. Obviously, we couldn't put in guns or swords or knives because they would be stolen.

"We wouldn't want to do it in a fragile area. We have to do it in an area where the increased traffic wouldn't damage the coral reef."

Cockrell says he doesn't expect much opposition from the salvaging firms, which under state contract get 25 percent of any of the treasure they bring up. The state gets the other 75 percent.

But Cockrell faces a bigger problem. The Legislature didn't provide any money for his new program, which he estimates would cost $28,000.

Associated Marine Institute of Tampa, a non-profit company, has offered to donate $10,000 worth of equipment, boats and manpower if the state can come up with room, board and other expenses, he says.

Writer Talented At Packing

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Almost everyone has a sideline specialty, a minskill that he or she does better than anyone on the block or at the office. Some excel at bowling, knitting, fly-casting, body surfing. Others are magicians at contract bridge, paneling a playroom, unfreezing pipes, painting miniature masterpieces on hard-boiled eggs or the back windows of panel trucks.

Mulligan's Stew

I pack. I pack quicker, better, oftener, more compactly than anyone I know. In two decades of shuttling about this globe, I have become a virtuoso of the valise.

Customs inspectors regularly admire my deft logistical preparations and hesitate to disturb them. Doomed day after day to sifting through still another load of woebegone wetwash masquerading as tourist baggage, they recognize skill when they see it.

"Nothing to declare, sir? Very good." Just the sight of my neatly folded cravats arrayed in a row above the carefully creased pajamas brings a smile to their faces and an approving chalk mark to my impediments.

"The art of packing is the last lecture of wisdom," said James Stephens, the Dublin bard, in "The Crock of Gold."

I suupose I nurtured this extraordinary expertise back in the Depression days when I went off to Scout camp and learned the hard way that a Macy's shopping bag in a thunderstorm is no substitute for the official knapsack.

But my laboratory of advance luggage technology was the old Army duffle bag, that oblong tube of green canvas with a single narrow opening at the top clasped by a padlock. No matter how you filled it, what you were looking for was never anywhere near the top.

World War II supply specialists had designed this cumbersome carryall so that there was no light at the end of the tunnel, unless you were hunting for your flashlight which invariably had made its way to the bottom. The duffle-bag was intended to be draped from the shoulder, like a golf bag, but it always hit you in the back of the knees, when it wasn't pulling your hip or shoulder out of joint.

If you could stuff a duffle bag so it stood erect on a railroad platform without toppling over into the path of a baggage cart or an oncoming train, the Gladstone bag and the two-suiter were kid stuff ever after.

This is not going to be one of those travelogue disertations on the advantages of plastic shoe bags and drip-dry fabrics. Personally I have found that the American passion for quick drying, wrinkle proof, permanently pressed apparel has no validity outside the continental shelf. When alien laundresses get through boiling it, beating it on the rocks, running it through their monstrous mangles, your miracle fabric double knits automatically assume the contours and coloration of your old Army duffle bag.

Never leave home without your eyeglass prescription to replace the pair that are sure to get crushed by the crowds in Westminster Abbey or the beer stuge and the auxiliary pair that most certainly will fall from your pocket in the Customs hall or be left behind on the hotel bed table along with the postcards you had promised to send the gang at the office.

Always carry a shaving lotion bottle full of dry vermouth so you can order gin or vodka on the rocks and fashion your own extra dry martinis rather than suffer the heavy hands of the barbarians. Where the dry martini is concerned, everyplace beyond Sandy Hook Light is the Third World, and there is no second.

I now shoulder one of those European passport cases, even though they invest the bearer with the look of a tramway conductor off his trolley or a postman in drag. Mine is always fitted out with extra pens, extra passport photos, a few antacid pills in preparation for the scheduled airline meal, a length of nylon cord and some strong plastic tape to repair the ravages of the baggage handlers.

From Horst Faas, AP's Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer, I learned the value of tucking a pair of wire cutters into one's toilet kit. They come in handy if the hard rock band in the hotel garden has its amplifiers beneath your window or if there is a speaker system blaring canned music in the corridors.

A clothes brush, a shoeshine cloth and a sewing kit are necessary travel tools in this uncouth age of virtually vanished serfdom. The experienced traveler soon learns that one suit and a blazer jacket with several pairs of slacks constitute a compact, versatile wardrobe. The two piece safari suit passes for both a business suit and national dress in most of the Third World and the environs of Rockefeller Plaza.

And, oh yes, power shortages being so frequent everywhere these days, carry along a transistor radio to find out what's going on and a flashlight to light your way down to the bar from the 44th floor when the elevators fail.

Singapore Launches Courtesy Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration is surveying the nation's aircraft manufacturers to determine whether they used possibly defective aluminum plate from Reynolds Metals, an FAA spokesman says.

"The problem now is to determine the scope of the problem," spokesman Fred Farrar said Thursday. "It could be nothing — it could be big."

The Navy advised the FAA of the possible defect July 13 and the FAA sent letters to manufacturers Monday asking them to determine whether they used the challenged materials and how, Farrar said.

An FAA team is assessing the situation, he said.

The possible defect involves soft spots in aluminum sheets 1¾ inches thick or more, Farrar said, adding, "There are some soft spots in some plates — possibly all the plates. We don't know."

He said the plates involved are so thick that makers of small planes likely would not be affected, adding, "We suspect it would be larger ones."

Farrar said manufacturers were being asked to check back to January 1977, however.

Reynolds officials said they were advising all the company's plate customers of the problem. But they declined to say how many customers would be affected, although one source who asked not to be identified said there were more than 100 firms involved.

Farrar said he did not know how long it would take the manufacturers to provide the information needed.

A spokesman for the Grumman Corp. said inspectors at its aircraft plants have not found any defective aluminum. Cessna Aircraft Co. said it had not purchased any plate from Reynolds.

Merit Changes Smoking.

'Enriched Flavor'™ cigarette sparks whole new taste era in low tar smoking.

Not too long ago, smokers believed that if a cigarette had less tar, it had less taste too. Low tar cigarettes simply didn't taste very good.

Then along came MERIT and a whole new taste idea called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And in three short years, smoking changed:

1. No other new cigarette in the last 20 years has attracted so many smokers as quickly as MERIT!
2. MERIT has swept past over 50 other brands in record time.
3. MERIT is continuing to attract high tar smokers—the most taste-conscious smokers of all!

It's clear: MERIT taste is changing attitudes toward low tar smoking.
