Ford and UAW Initial Most Costly Contract

DETROIT (UPI)—The United Auto Workers Union policy board meets today to consider the most expensive labor contract in the history of the industry, the one reached with Ford Motor Co. Approval was expected.

Ford and the UAW dramatically lifted a record 12-day news blackout just before dawn Sunday to announce they had agreed on a new contract that would fatten the average Ford worker's pay by $1,700 in the third year of the three-year pact.

The International executive board of the union today considers the contract before, probably approving it and passing it along to the workers for ratification and an end to the 47-day strike against Ford. The average auto worker is now paid $7,092 per year. The Ford pact would increase his pay to $8,798 in 1970.

Under the new contract, the average Ford worker's pay check will contain 48 cents per hour more in the first year of the contract. He currently gets $3.41 an hour.

The contract calls for a 20-cent-an-hour boost immediately with a 23-cent an hour cost of living allowance carried over from the old contract. The new pact further guarantees that the cost of living allowance will not dip below 18 cents should the cost of living fall.

Soviets Building Aircraft Carrier

NEW YORK (UPI)—A U.S. Navy announcement that the Soviet Union is building its first aircraft carrier produced fears today that the Kremlin may be planning to extend its military power beyond Russian shores.

The Soviet fleet will augment an already powerful navy that includes hundreds of men o'war and an impressive armada of nuclear-powered submarines armed with ballistic missiles. By itself, the addition of the carrier to the Russian navy was not seen as a major threat to American superiority on the high seas. The reasons for the Russian decision were viewed as far more significant.

More Mobile Force

The Russians have never had a mobile, worldwide strike force and aircraft carriers are vital for this type of warfare. The carrier construction, disclosed Sunday by Atlantic fleet headquarters in Norfolk, Va., indicated the Russian fleet was part of a shift from defensive strategy to a more mobile, aggressive stance by Kremlin military leaders.

News that the Soviet carrier is on the way to a Russian shipyard was announced by Adm. Ephraim P. Holmes, allied commander, Atlantic, for NATO and commander in chief of the U.S. Atlantic fleet, and his chief of staff, Vice Adm. William E. Ellis.

Residents Reluctant to Talk On Conspiracy Convictions

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (UPI)—The 96-piece Central High School Band was leading a homecoming parade around the Meshoba County Courthouse today. "Mississippi justice" took an historic turn and convicted seven men for the 1964 slayings of three civil rights workers.

The news from the Meridian trial 40 miles away stunned the adults of this town Friday. Hardly a man or woman over high school age watched the parade. Shopkeepers stayed inside, looking through front windows.

The seven men had been convicted by an all-white jury of seven women and five men on conspiring to kill Michael Schwerner, Andrew Goodman, both white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, a Negro from Meridian, on June 21, 1964. The bodies of the young civil rights workers were found in an Americans throughout the nation ended a weekend of demonstrations to support U.S. servicemen fighting in Vietnam Sunday night.

Hundreds of thousands took part in Operation Gratitude with parades, marches, speeches, vehicle headlights, house lights and an all-night vigil.

The few scattered scuffles stemming from the demonstrations occurred when demonstrators clashed with antiwar factions. No injuries or arrests were reported. Operation Gratitude was designed to offset the anti-Vietnam, antidraft rally in Washington, D.C.

The biggest expressions of gratitude were in New York City and Newark, N.J., where more than 100,000 took part in parades and many more watched from the sidelines, waving flags and signs to show they agreed with the marchers. "We are claiming the biggest grassroots movement in the history of this country," said Charles W. Wiley, executive director of the National Committee for Responsible Patriotism, which called for the demonstrations.

Police estimated 50,000 took part in patriotism parades Sunday in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx. Another 15,000 marched in a parade in the suburb of Hempstead on Long Island.

earthen dam on a farm near Philadelphia.

Eight other defendants in the case were acquitted and three others won a mistrial because the jurors could not agree on a verdict.

When the defense was summing its case, attorney Mike Watkins said the federal government was trying to prove "that there's so much hate and prejudice in Mississippi that we hate all outsiders."

Appeals to fight the "socialists" in Washington, to save Southern white women, and to keep white children away from Negro children had acquitted Mississippi's killers for years.

But on Friday the jury of white Mississippians found Chief Deputy Cecil Price of Neshoba and Imperial Wizard Sam Bowers of Laurel, head of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, guilty as charged.

Now there is talk that Mississippi itself may indict the 18 men, or at least the seven convicted, on murder charges in the case. State officials say they have balked at this because the FBI would not turn over its evidence until the Justice Department made its case.

The convictions, especially for Imperial Wizard Bowers, were a severe blow to the White Knights. On Nov. 13 Bowers and 11 reputed klanmen face another federal court trial, for the firebomb slaying of a Negro who led voter registration campaigns.

Exposed as hopelessly riddled by FBI informers during the long Meridian trial, the White Knights may well collapse as an organization of power in Mississippi if more convictions come in the second trial.

"There was a klan group in the state of Mississippi known as the White Knights and headed by Samuel Bowers," said John Doar, chief prosecutor in the Meridian trial, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division.

Unemployment In Pampa Hits Lowest Record

The Pampa office of the Texas Employment Commission has filled more jobs this year and has taken fewer unemployment claims than in any other year on record, according to Bill Ragsdale, local office manager.

Eligible unemployed workers in the Pampa area drew $20,396 in unemployment insurance benefits during the July-September quarter.

By way of comparison, Borger paid out $39,817 in the same period, Plainview, $24,380; Amarillo, $105,126; and Midland, $23,800.

Of the $20,396 total for Pampa $17,510 was paid out of Texas' unemployment insurance trust fund sustained by taxes paid by some 82,000 Texas employers under the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act. In addition, $2,886 was paid into the Pampa area from Federal funds to unemployed ex-Federal employees and ex-servicemen and $2,400 from the trust funds of other states to unemployed persons formerly employed in those states but now residing in Texas.

Statewide, a total of $7.6 million was paid to Texas' unemployed during the quarter under state and Federal UI programs, with $6.2 million of the total drawn from Texas' trust fund. In addition, Texas paid $377,230 to claimants formerly employed in Texas but now residing in other states compared to $812,200 poured into Texas' economy from the trust funds of other states during the quarter.

Houston led all Texas communities with $460,739 paid to claimants under all programs during the quarter, followed by San Antonio with $453,669, Ft. Worth with $377,066, Arlington-Grand Prairie with $356,727, and Dallas with $341,779.

PERSONAL REPORT

White House Reporter Gives Impressions

EDITORS NOTE: Merriman Smith, UPI White House reporter, has seen demonstrations for many causes over his 27 years covering the White House. He spent the past weekend watching the peace demonstrations. Here is his personal report.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If one personal impression came from rubbing shoulders and sometimes noses with the peace demonstrators here Saturday and Sunday, it was one of dismay at their apparent disregard for fact.

President Johnson, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker and Henry Cabot Lodge were "totally" liars, "bloodthirsty warmongers."

Demonstrators fawning on the sunny steps of Lincoln Memorial Sunday insisted that the press was "totally" wrong about the size of the crowd at their rally Saturday, due largely to "hawk" publishers or fear of Johnson. Reporters lied to their offices, then their offices lied even more.

Statistics Contradictory

The peace people said it was "official" that the crowd was over 250,000. Police and reporters accustomed to crowds week after week thought 50,000 was generous and this included untold numbers of sightseers and teenyboppers from the Washington area.

"With no provocation at all," scores and, according to some of the more enthusiastic, "hundreds" of peaceful people were "brutally clubbed by rifle butts" at the Pentagon. "Wave after wave" of peace marchers collapsed under "gas attacks." Uniformed army troops, veterans of Vietnam, threw down their rifles and hurled their helmets aside in shame or autumn flowers in her long disgust to defect to the flower people, but only to be seized by other soldiers, "brutally clubbed and thrown into prison."

Another myth among the hippies, peace marchers and assorted allies was that the press failed to cover the Pentagon after dark Saturday and thus missed seeing the brutality they said raged well into the dark hours of Sunday morning.

One reporter who spent the long, cold night in the Pentagon parking lot with the demonstrators protested.

Question Reporter's Veracity

"I was there the whole damned night, outside with you people, and what you're describing (about the press and defecting troops) is pure fiction. It never happened."

A pretty young girl with golden hair smiled patronizingly and murmured, "We would expect you to say that."

Two girls who said they were from Columbia University in New York took up this theme rather suddenly, swearing they had seen the actual defection of troops. But when one of the demonstration leaders called for witnesses to prepare a tape recording for submission to Washington and New York newspapers, the girls demurred. It seems they were looking in other directions at the time but unnamed companions "saw it all."

"But you just said you saw this yourself," a reporter said. "I know the truth," said one of the young ladies, "more than anything you'll get from those brutes at the Pentagon."

Demonstration Was Largest in History

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The huge Pentagon building, nerve center of U.S. defenses, resumed business as usual today after enduring a weekend siege by antiwar protestors.

The antiwar demonstration, biggest of its kind in the capital's history, ended early today when U.S. marshals arrested and hauled off to jail a last-ditch band of 240 men and women who refused to leave when a rally permit expired at midnight.

The massive protest, begun on a picnic-like note Saturday with more than 55,000 persons gathered at the Lincoln Memorial for an orderly rally featuring speeches critical of President Johnson and the Vietnam war.

But it turned ugly late Saturday afternoon when a minority of the demonstrators—about 1,000 at the peak—clashed with marshals and troops in an effort to storm the doors of the Pentagon.

Under strict orders to use "minimum force," Pentagon guards sought only to protect the building from invasion.

Security forces did not interfere with the decision of several hundred demonstrators to dramatize their dissent by encamping through Saturday night and Sunday on the broad steps leading to the main entrance.

Some of the demonstrators had hoped to hang around until rush hour this morning and form a human barricade around parking lots to keep the building's 27,000 employees from driving to work. But the Defense Department wasn't having any of this.

Promptly at midnight, an officer advised the remaining group of demonstrators that their permit for a constitutionally guaranteed "peaceable assembly" had expired.

Given A Choice

He said they could choose whether they wanted to ride back to Washington in buses, or to jail in vans. Thirty-four took the bus ride. The remaining 240 went to jail.

Most of the demonstrators drifted away Saturday night to head back to homes as far off as Texas and California. Fewer than 300 were maintaining the peace vigil in the chilly darkness at the Pentagon late Sunday night when officials warned them through bullhorns to be off the grounds by midnight.

Paper Employee Fatally Shoots Six Co-Workers

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (UPI)—A technician at a paper mill, described as respected citizen and school board member, "all of a sudden and calmly" shot and killed six of his co-workers and friends today, state police said.

The suspect, identified as Leo Held, was captured in his home town of Lock Haven, Pa., after following a blazing gun battle with state and local police.

Held was the object of a massive manhunt after killing five persons at the Hammermill Paper Co., where he was employed, wounding a woman at the Piper Aircraft Co. airport office, and killing a neighbor, state police said.

Police said they converged on Held after he shot and killed Floyd Quiggle, 27, in the victim's bed, and wounded Quiggle's wife, Donna, 26, after breaking into their home.

State police said Held armed himself with more ammunition from Quiggle's gun cabinet, then shot it out with authorities before he was wounded in the leg, and hand, and forehead and apprehended.

He had shot his way across the street to his home and into his backyard before he was gunned down.

Held was taken to Lock Haven Hospital where three of his victims at Hammermill had been pronounced dead. They were Donald Waldon and Aken Barrett, Jr., both of Lock Haven, and C.H. Edwards, Mill Hall, Pa.

The two others killed at Hammermill were described as "so badly shot they were left for the coroner."

State police Cpl. Richard Leach said Held, a laboratory technician employee of Hammermill for 15 years, shot and killed his "friends."

U.S. Jets Bomb Viet Naval Base

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. jets bombed the major North Vietnamese Nui Dong naval base for the first time in the war and pounded the rail yards in the port of Haiphong nearby, American spokesmen said today.

Navy pilots reported Sunday destroying a PT boat, dry docks and fuel stores at the key base and bombing the Haiphong train center, seven miles away, so hard that smoke shot a mile high.

Hanoi radio claimed ground fire shot down two of the American bombers. U.S. spokesmen gave no report of lost aircraft. But they said the Navy fliers hit seven anti-aircraft sites in Haiphong, North Vietnam's second largest city and its main import center.

In South Vietnam, where Air Force B-52 Superfortresses today dropped their huge loads of bombs on guerrilla hideouts near Saigon and in the Central Highlands, American ground forces reported little action.

C of C Banquet Set For Tuesday

Plans have been completed for the annual membership meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce tomorrow evening in the Robert E. Lee Junior High School Cafeteria.

The speaker will be Dr. Charles Allen, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Houston, recognized as one of the nation's top after-dinner speakers.

New officers and directors of the Chamber will officially begin their terms at the conclusion of the meeting.

E. E. Shelhamer, retiring president, will preside. Jerry Whitten will play dinner music with the colors being presented by the Adobe Walls Council of Boy Scouts of America, followed by the singing of the national anthem by Mrs. Louise Richardson, and the invocation by the Rev. Dan Cameron, pastor of First Baptist Church.

Special entertainment will be provided by Bill Davis, baritone, new choir director at Pampa High School.

Members of the Top O' Texas Club will serve as table hosts, along with their wives; and will also be in charge of reception at the door.

Sunday, except along the northern coast where GI's killed 43 Viet Cong in scattered action. They said the relative quiet was because the troops spent the day close to cities and towns, protecting Vietnamese who trooped to the polls and elected their 137-member house of representatives.

But Saturday, according to a delayed report from the battle field, government troops led by U.S. Army Special Forces Green Berets killed 98 Viet Cong in a day-long series of fights only 10 miles northeast of Saigon.

U.S. jet strike planes strongly supported the Green Beret units, bombing and strafing some Communists only 50 yards from American and South Vietnamese troops. Two Americans were wounded in the encounter and the government troops suffered "light" casualties.

London Police Clash With Protestors

LONDON (UPI)—Police on horseback galloped through screaming crowds outside the U.S. Embassy Sunday night to break up one of several foreign protests to support the anti-Vietnam demonstration in Washington.

More than 50 persons, mostly policemen, were injured in the London clash which involved some 3,000 demonstrators. Officials reported 47 arrests.

Elsewhere, about 2,000 persons marched peacefully through Goteburg, Sweden, while an estimated 1,500 staged demonstrations in 37 places in Tokyo to protest the war in Vietnam.

Hundreds of London bobbies moved in when marchers attempted to approach the doors of the U.S. Embassy.

A cordon of policemen around the front of the building was twice driven backwards by a shower of sticks, stones and firecrackers before the squadrons of mounted officers thundered into the seething mass, scattering and separating the crowd.

Despite the large numbers of demonstrators, there were few incidents reported in Tokyo.

Bob Price Distressed Over Statement About Marijuana

According to a UPI story, "Marijuana is no more dangerous than alcohol," Dr. James L. Goddard, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, said yesterday.

Rep. Bob Price said today that members of his House Republican Task Force on Crime are profoundly disturbed and deeply distressed by the pronouncement reportedly made by Dr. Goddard.

Goddard's statement concerning the possession and use of marijuana was ill-advised and imprudent," Price said.

Price joined the Republican group in the following statement: "His office is one of high public trust. His responsibility is to stand between the people and the threats which impure foods and dangerous drugs pose to the well-being of the American society. The mischief of his remarks is chiefly that, if not clearly understood, they tend to legitimize, glamorize, and popularize the possession and use of an unlawful commodity by our nation's youth. Today's parents have problems enough.

"Dr. Goddard's remarks are more consequential than those of a private citizen. They tend to assume the authority and the expertise of the office he holds. Whatever his private, personal views may be, the man who holds such an important public responsibility has some duty to refrain from expressing their publicly, particularly when his views are at odds with the statutory law of the land. It is not his function to crusade against laws he may not like but rather to enforce laws Congress may enact.

"We believe the President, as a concerned parent himself, will disavow the Goddard statement."

60TH YEAR

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Be fair, and give the other side of the question of whether to institutionalize a Mongoloid child. There are so many who say, "All the retarded child needs is to be kept at home, and assured that he is loved."

But, Abby, have you ever seen a mentally deficient child who has grown to adulthood? A 30-year-old man who still makes baby noises, but must be shaved, bathed and taken to the bathroom? He is not very "lovable." Oh, his mother "loves" him all right, but her heart aches and twists as friends try to conceal their embarrassment. And the terrible shadow of "What will happen to him when I am gone" looms ahead and grows darker with the years.

Not all mentally deficient children are so seriously retarded that they would be better off in an institution, but once it becomes established that he must be cared for as a baby all his life, the sooner he is placed in a reputable institution, the better.

When our doctor suggested that I place my child in an institution, I cried, "I CANNOT put my child in an institution? What will she think?"

The doctor replied, "She wouldn't care. She wouldn't know the difference."

And it's true. She has been there for 19 years. She is safe and happy there. I let her go when she was young enough to adjust. I love her, as I love my other children. And I have no regrets.

BEEN THERE.
DEAR ABBY: I have a problem and no one in my family can come up with an answer. My brother has been separated from his wife and two children for over five years. He lives in the same town with them, but is now living with another woman. He and this other woman have just become parents of a baby boy. My problem is, how do I receive this poor little innocent child? Do I just ignore the precious baby and pretend he doesn't exist?

I do not live in the same state with my brother and am not in contact with him, but as far as I know there is no divorce in sight so it will be some time before he can make things legal with the woman he's living with, if that's his plan. I don't know what in the world they are thinking of. Surely not of that poor innocent child. How in the world should I handle this mess? I don't want to do anything to hurt my brother's legal wife and children, but what about the illegitimate baby?

PERPLEXED
DEAR PERPLEXED: As I see it, the "mess" is your brother's and the woman with whom he is living. Their child isn't "illegitimate" — his parents are. Since you are not in contact with your brother, you probably shouldn't "do" anything.

DEAR ABBY: Although this problem might sound funny to some people, it is serious to me. My boyfriend has a very course beard. He shaves just before he picks me up, but by the end of the evening his face is like sandpaper. Needless to say, it sure does tear up my face. Right now, he is in the service, so I see him only a few days at a time, then my face has three months to heal, but what am I going to do when he gets out of service and we decide to get married? Must I go around with a face that is irritated and burning and practically bleeding?

Possibly one of your readers (men who have had this problem, or women who have found a solution) can help me.

HAMBURGER PUSS
DEAR PUSS: I will pass on to you any suggestions I receive from my readers. In the meantime, easy on the check-to-checking.

12 Civilians Killed During Viet Election

SAIGON (UPI)—Officials today counted votes cast in South Vietnamese elections for a House of Representatives—the final stage in the electoral process toward representative government—with indications already that an opposition would emerge.

Despite terrorism that took 12 civilian lives, 73 per cent of the nation's registered voters went to the polls Sunday, chose from bewilderingly long lists of candidates and cast their votes for a house of representatives to complement the senate elected earlier.

Among likely oppositionists was a former Trotskyite barred from the senatorial election because of alleged "pro-neutralist" leanings. Unofficial results indicated the man, Ho Huu Tuong, would win in Saigon. The government was scheduled to release official returns Thursday.

Tuong is a follower of militant monk Thich Tri Quang, whose name was in the news during the election with the self-immolation of one of his disciples, a young nun. The woman was the third in 19 days to sacrifice her life in Tri Quang's crusade against a more moderate Buddhist faction.

The voting was for 137 representatives out of 1,172 candidates. A total of 5.8 million voters turned out, officials said. But in Saigon, only 57.8 per cent of the electorate bothered to vote. And in the nation overall, the 73 per cent figure was considered low in view of government pressure in many areas which casts suspicion on nonvoters. Much higher turnouts were recorded in the earlier elections also designed to give Vietnam a representative leadership—elections for hamlet and village officials, for the constituent assembly which wrote the new American-style constitution, and for the senate, president and vice president.

HERE'S HOW IT'S DONE—Vallon L. Voight, left, state consultant for the Texas Education Agency, is shown talking to custodian Floyd Leroy of Baker Elementary School about a few day-to-day problems of custodial service. Voight is in Pampa to make recommendations and evaluations on plant and custodial service of Pampa schools.

Education Consultant Inspects Pampa Schools

Vallon L. Voight, consultant for the school plant service of the Texas Education Agency, was in Pampa today to make evaluations and recommendations on building and custodian service for the Pampa Public Schools.

Last year he conducted a school for principals and custodians here designed to point out problems administrators face in setting up custodian service, and problems and solutions for custodians.

He is an expert on the maintenance and care of school buildings. Dr. John Dameron, superintendent of Pampa schools pointed out, "and works on a square foot basis to determine efficiency and the desired ratio between what a custodian should be able to clean and the work load—he presently faces. He'll make recommendations, in other words, on whether we have too many custodians in one place and not enough in another, and help us to get a better ratio of work load and better efficiency."

Voight pointed out that a generation ago the work of a school janitor was fairly simple and generally required no education or special training to perform. "But now a man is called a 'custodian' because he has expensive buildings and equipment in his care and his job calls for either technical training or high aptitude to deal with special heating, ventilating, refrigerating, and air conditioning equipment," Voight pointed out.

Voight will be making his custodian evaluative study this morning, and will meet with school principals this afternoon to make recommendations.

Counselors Give Progress Tests At Junior Highs

Achievement tests for seventh graders start today in Pampa Junior High School and Wednesday at Robert E. Lee Junior High School.

The tests, called the Science Research Associates exam, measure achievement in Math, language, spelling, reading, science and social studies.

The test is not graded, but is scored to let students parents and teachers know the strengths and weaknesses of students in these areas, Mrs. Essie Mae Walters, Robert E. Lee Junior High School, said.

In addition to letting us know strengths and weaknesses in these areas, it helps us compare progress of our students with other students in the United States, she said.

Total testing time is five hours, which is given in two days of examinations, she said. Mrs. Walters and Pernal Scoggins, Pampa Junior High School counselor, are administering the tests.

Junior High School Bands To Enter Marching Contest

Pampa Junior high school bands will compete in the Region I University Interscholastic League marching contest in Canyon Tuesday. Pampa High School Harvester band will also compete Oct. 31 in Canyon on the 3A and 4-A level competition.

In the first contest, Junior high school bands and all class 2A bands will perform from the North Zone of Region I, which includes 20 Panhandle counties.

To be eligible for the top band sweepstakes award, a band must win first division in the marching contest and a first division in both concert and night reading contests held in the Spring. Last year, all three bands, Pampa Junior High School, Robert E. Lee Junior High School and Pampa High School, won the sweepstakes award.

Cecil Darby is Pampa Junior High band director. Joe DiCosimo is Robert E. Lee Junior High School band director.

Both Junior high school bands will enter with 80 students in marching events. Pampa High School will enter 80 in the high school competition. About 15 Class AAA bands, and all 4AAA bands from Lubbock, Plainview, Amarillo, Borger and Pampa will enter the event Oct. 31.

Shot in Arm Is Help to Browns

By United Press International
Frank Ryan's shot in the arm has boosted the Cleveland Browns' into the National Football League title picture.

Ryan, the Browns' strong-armed quarterback who has been plagued by ailments all season, came down with a painful shoulder bruise in the course of Sunday's game against the Chicago Bears and repaired to the dressing room with the teams locked in a scoreless tie.

When he returned after getting a pain-killing injection, he was a new man and the Browns soon became a new team, striking for 24 points in the last 17 minutes for a 24-0 victory.

plays, hitting Gary Collins with a nine-yard pass at 13:36 of the stanza.

After Leroy Kelly raced 22 yards for another touchdown and Lou Groza booted a 24-yard field goal, Ryan and Collins teamed up for a six-yard scoring strike.

Rookie quarterback Jim Hart led the Cards to a 48-14 rout of Philadelphia. Green Bay walloped New York 48-21, Baltimore was deadlocked by Minnesota 20-20, Los Angeles rallied to tie Washington 28-28, Dallas edged Pittsburgh 24-21, San Francisco stymied New Orleans 27-13 and Detroit beat Atlanta 24-13.

Hart threw four touchdown passes, including two Jackie Smith and cornerback Pat Fischer returned an interception

60 yards for another TD in the shockingly easy St. Louis triumph.

Elijah Pitts rushed for three touchdowns and set up another with a halfback option pass as the revitalized Packers crushed the Giants behind an awesome ground game.

New Pass Mark
Johnny Unitas, who surpassed Y.A. Tittle's career pass completion record with 2,131, flipped a three-yard scoring toss to John Mackey with 6:30 left in the game to earn the Colts their second tie in two weeks.

Baltimore, which leads the Coastal Division with a 4-0-2 mark, fell behind 20-13 on Joe Kapp's 11-yard pass to Red Phillips midway through the period before Unitas marched the Colts 60 yards for the tying

TD. The Rams, who hooked up in a tie with the Colts last week, pulled out another tie against the Redskins on Roman Gabriel's six-yard pass to Bernie Casey with 65 seconds left.

Craig Morton's third touchdown pass, a five-yarder to Pettis Norman in the last 24 seconds, salvaged the Cowboys' fifth victory in six games and left Dallas two games ahead of Washington in the Capitol Division.

John Brodie's two touchdown passes carried the Forty Niners from a 13-10 third-quarter deficit to a victory over the Saints and a pair of fourth-quarter scoring strikes by Karl Sweetan, starting his first game of the season, sparked the Lions over the winless Falcons.

Longhorns, Rice In SWC Feature Contest

United Press International
The Texas Longhorns, everybody's pick to finish first in the Southwest Conference, and the Rice Owls, almost everyone's pick to finish last, meet this week in Austin. The winner could wind up in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

The surprising Owls came up with their third straight win last Saturday against SMU 14-10—quenching some of those last-minute Mustang heroics in the process.

And Texas picked up its first league victory against one loss at the expense of Arkansas 21-12 thanks to the running of junior Chris Gilbert.

Other than the Rice-Texas contest, which will be played under the lights, two more conference games will be untelevised. Baylor will try for its first league win against resurgent Texas A&M in a day game at College Station and Texas Tech and SMU, both 1-1 in league play, will meet at night in Dallas.

Arkansas will meet Kansas State at Little Rock and Nebraska will travel to Fort Worth to take on TCU in a pair of non-conference encounters.

Rice's potent offense stuttered somewhat against the pesky Mustangs, but the Owls' defense came through where so many have failed in the final minutes. SMU's Mike Livingston, returning after three weeks on the injured list, moved the Mustangs to the Rice three with less than two minutes to play, but the Owl defense came up with a crucial interception to win the game.

The win put Rice in undisputed first place with a 1-0 league mark, ahead of A&M (2-1), SMU (1-1), Tech (1-1) and Texas (1-1). Arkansas is 1-1-1 following its loss to Texas, Baylor has a tie in its only outing and TCU is 0-2.

Texas reached the big game with Rice by whipping Arkansas in one of the more lackluster games of the Longhorn Razorback series.

Gilbert, although he set a University of Texas career rushing record in only his 15th game as a Longhorn, fumbled four times to keep Texas from wrapping up the game early. But he scored three times, and that was enough to down the inexperienced Razorbacks.

A&M had little trouble downing TCU, which continued its nearly two-year-old string of not scoring a touchdown at home. The Aggies used the passing of Edd Hargett, along with a 100-yard return of a pass interception by Billy Hobbs, to floor the Frogs.

Texas Tech once again could not come up with the early season magic that saw the Raiders jump to a 2-0 record. John Scovell was bottled up by the rugged Seminole defense, and Tech spent most of the day in its own end of the field.

Amarillo High And Monterey In North Battle

By RON CROSS
There is an old familiar name atop the North and South zone standings after two weeks of play and familiar names are also at the bottom of both zones.

Amarillo leads the North with a 2-0 record with last year's champ, Monterey second at 1-0. In the South 1966 zone winner Tascosa is tied with Lubbock for the top spot with both owning 1-0 records.

Pampa and Borger are tied for last in the North with 0-2 records while Plainview is last in the South at 0-2 after a good pre-season start.

Amarillo, ranked fifth in the state, tumbled Pampa 41-0 last week to become the only unbeaten club left in District 3-4A with a 7-0 record.

Palo Duro upset Lubbock Coronado Saturday night 9-7 in a South zone game to end the Mustangs winning streak at six and put the Coronado zone record at 1-1 while the Dons went to 1-1.

Something will have to give in the North zone this week when Amarillo and Monterey do battle Friday night in Lubbock.

The winner may well be the North zone champion. Monterey is 4-3 for the season and downed cross-town rival Lubbock 13-0 last week.

In another North zone battle Pampa will have its best chance of the season to win a ball game when the Harvesters go to Amarillo to meet Caprock.

The Longhorns hit paydirt for the first time last week when they routed Borger 22-13 in a league game.

The Horns are 1-0 in zone play and 1-6 for the season while Pampa is 0-7 and 0-2.

In South zone action Friday night Coronado will try to snap their one-game losing streak by meeting Lubbock high (1-6-1) in Lubbock and Tascosa and Palo Duro play in Amarillo.

A win by the Dons would put the South zone in a four-way puzzle.

In a non-league bout Friday Borger will be out to break a two-game slump by hosting Plainview who has also lost two straight contests.

Palmer Leads U.S. to Win

HOUSTON (UPI)—The British Ryder Cuppers, finding the Americans as bold on the putting green as the Minutemen were at Lexington in 1775, were ready to go back to England today to improve their putting and their golf courses.

Arnold Palmer, the first American Ryder Cupper to go 5-0 in a one match and Gardner Dickinson, who joined him at 5-0 less than an hour later, led the U.S. team to a 23½ to 8½ victory over the British.

"It was the best Ryder Cup team I ever played on," the 38-year-old Palmer said after beating Tony Jacklin 3 and 2 and coming back to whip Brian Huggett 5 and 3.

The Americans, constantly charging the pin, won nine and tied three in head-and-head competition the final day. The British, who played conservatively and left many puts short of the cup, won only four—two by Neil Coles, and one each by Peter Alliss and Huggett.

It was the most lopsided victory since the U.S. team won 9½ to 2½ in 1951 when there were only 12 matches instead of 32.

"We've got to go back to our country and get greens more heavily watered so we can stop our shots and get more grass so our greens are slower," commented Dai Rees now playing captain of the British team.

Rees said the inability of his team to charge the cup and to hit their second shots near the flag were the two main factors in the downfall.

Pair Tie For Grid Selections

Chico Ramirez, 1966 staff selection champ, came off a long drought Saturday to tie for the Pampa News Weekly Football Selection title.

Shocker football coach Ed Lehnick had another good week (as usual) as both he and Ramirez guessed correctly on 18 of 25 picks. Lehnick moved into second place for the season just one game behind General Manager Bill Power.

Power, who missed nine games in 1965 for the season and Lehnick is 88-36.

Ramirez earned his tie by being the only selector to guess New Mexico State would down the West Texas State Buffaloes while Lehnick correctly guessed Palo Duro would beat Lubbock Coronado.

White Deer Hosts Wheeler on Friday

White Deer and Wheeler take time out from conference football wars Friday night to play an interconference game at White Deer but everybody else will be busy trying to improve their District standings.

The Bucks (6-1) host the Mustangs (5-2) in what could be a game that will be repeated later in the season when regional playoffs start.

White Deer is tied with Gruver for the 1-A lead with two wins and no losses each while Wheeler is atop of the 2-A standings with a 2-0 mark with Clarendon second at 1-0.

After downing Canadian 21-7 Friday night, the Bucks are the team to beat in 1-A and Canadian can do White Deer a big favor Friday when they host Gruver in a 1-A battle.

The 'Cats (4-2) and 0-1 in league play can stay in contention with a victory over Gruver (5-2) on their home field.

Stratford (4-3) and 0-1 in league play goes to Sunray (0-7) and 0-2 in District 1-A for a conference encounter.

In District 2-A the race can settle into a three-way battle between the same teams that tied for the league championship last year.

McLean (3-4) and 1-1 in league play goes to Silvertown (4-3) and 0-1 in 2-A for a conference battle and Clarendon (4-2-1) hosts Claude (4-3). Claude could help Wheeler with a victory.

Clarendon, McLean and Wheeler all tied for the 2-A championship in 1966. McLean is 1-1 in league play after losing 9-8 to Clarendon last week and Claude lost their second in a row, 28-12 to Wheeler.

Lefors and Groom open District 5-B play Friday with Lefors (1-5-1) coming off a tie with Vega to host Follett (0-6) and Groom (1-6), who broke into the win column for the first time last week with a 30-14 victory over Silvertown, hosting Booker (3-2) in a homecoming game.

Miami (0-6) hosts Morse in an eight-man District 5-B game and Perryton (6-0) and 1-0 in league play hosts Hereford in a district clash.

Oilers Surprise KC

By United Press International
The Houston Oilers' offensive team is dangerous only when it's sitting on the bench.

The surprising Oilers, who seem to have their offensive and defensive units mixed up, again called on their "high scoring defense" Sunday to stun the defending American League champion Kansas City Chiefs 24-19.

Kansas City coach Hank Stram was shaking his head Sunday after the Chiefs "won" the statistical battle—and lost the game.

"That team is unreal," Stram said.

But Houston coach Wally Lemphig just laughed. "I'd rather be lucky than good, we still haven't astounded anyone on offense but the defense was great again. If we ever put together some offense, we're going to knock somebody's ear off."

Trades Backfiring On Normally Swift Hawks

By United Press International
What's wrong with the Chicago Black Hawks?

It seems that all their pre-season trades have weakened the club so much that not even the great Bobby Hull is able to get the team moving.

Hull, the most prolific scorer in the National Hockey League, registered his sixth goal of the season Sunday night, but it went in vain as the Los Angeles Kings, one of the league's expansion teams, hammered the Hawks 5-3 and handed them their sixth straight setback.

The Kings, who are undefeated after five games, got a standout performance in the goal from Terry Sawchuk, who recorded 39 saves, including 20 in the third period when the Hawks made a determined effort to catch up.

put San Diego ahead 14-7 at halftime. Hadl then tossed passes of 66 yards to Post, five yards to Willie Frazier and 67 yards to Lance Alworth in the second half.

Dick Post ran for two TDs and John Hadl threw three TD passes as San Diego blasted Denver to remain the only unbeaten team in the AFL.

Nemah Wilson gave Denver a 7-0 lead with a 40-yard run with an interception. But Post ran an interception. But Post ran eight and two yards for TDs to Boozer.

when the Kings broke the game open with a four-goal outburst. Bill Fleet, Brian Kilrea, Lowell Macdonald and Brian Smith each tallied in the period.

Two other expansion teams didn't make out Sunday night against their established opponents. The New York Rangers blasted the Pittsburgh Penguins 6-4 and the Detroit Red Wings edged the St. Louis Blues 1-0 in other veteran-expansion games while the Philadelphia Flyers beat the California Seals 5-2 in another contest.

Orland Kurtenbach scored a pair of goals and Vic Hadfield added one goal and two assists to lead the Rangers' assault on Pittsburgh.

Paul Henderson blasted a third-period goal past a surprised Glenn Hall to give the Red Wings their victory. Goalie Roger Crozier turned back 30 shots for the winners.

It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

FDA Censors Medic Press

Freedom of expression, a corollary of the right to own and control property, should be one of the most jealously guarded rights in the United States. It arouses the resentment of many Americans when some branch of the official hierarchy has the effrontery to assume the role of censor.

It appears now that censorship of a serious nature is being imposed upon the medical press by the powerful Food and Drug Administration. Writing in "Clinical Therapeutics," Walter Modell, M.D. of the Department of Pharmacology, Cornell University Medical College, says: "Certain recent actions of the FDA... violate basic principles of science and education."

The FDA has now taken the stand that in this country it is the sole arbiter of drug dosage and that its pronouncements on this subject are inviolate. In this vein it has already acted to prevent authors from publishing articles citing dosages which do not coincide with those appearing in current FDA-approved package stuffers.

The implications of this unprecedented FDA program of dialogue and communication has long been accepted as essential to all scientific progress and to medical progress as well.

It has been established as essential to the safe and effective use of drugs. Differences in opinion and practice are aired publicly in order to gain knowledge and understanding from discrepant views and observations.

The Seeds of Socialism

Under the guise of providing services that would not otherwise exist, government, at all levels, has been entering areas of commercial business in competition with private citizens. The last generation of U.S. citizens has grown to maturity as the federal government assumed a dominant role, either regulatory or proprietary, in all manner of enterprises.

Government in business on a massive scale has become a fact of life. Yet few, other than those who are faced with government competition, have any conception of what it means to be confronted with government as a competitor until they have to face such competition themselves.

A case of investor-owned industry that has been a victim of government as a competitor is the small package-carrying business. It must compete with parcel post—a commercial enterprise of the Post Office Department. Not long ago in the small shipments field, REA Ex-

A Word About Veterans Day

Throughout recorded history, and no doubt for hundreds of thousands of years, before that, it has been a tragic fact that the best of the young men have had to carry the burden of fighting the battles and the wars in which their families, their tribes or their nations have been involved. In the United States today, every person, every family and most especially those with children know well that civilization has not yet progressed far enough to lift this burden from its young people who now fight on an Asian battlefield in defense of the ideals and principles for which this country stands.

During the November 11 observance of Veterans Day, the nation will pause to honor those veterans, living and dead, who have served in the U.S. armed forces in time of war. It is especially fitting at this time that they be so honored. World War I, as our older citizens will remember, was thought to be the war to end all wars. November 11 was originally set aside by Presidential Proclamation as a time to commemorate the termination of hostilities in that war which came on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918. In 1926, Armistice Day was established as a national holiday.

But, the armistice did not last. Since that time many millions of American servicemen have fought this nation's battles on every continent of the earth. In recognition of this fact, the meaning of Armistice Day was broadened in May of 1954 when Congress decreed that this November day should be known as Veterans Day with a broader significance recognizing all those who have served this country in time of need. The nation will remember them and carry the hope that time will bring the day when the world will see the signing of the final armistice so young men may give their energies rather than their lives for the building of a better future.

A thought for the day—Mark Twain said: "Grief can take care of itself, but to get the full value of joy you must have the memory of somebody to divide it with."

CAN RIGHTS BE SUSPENDED?

I had a fascinating conversation with a professor the other day. This professor is a rarity. He favors capitalism and a free market. And whenever you find a professor like this these days, you have to treat him with great respect. Anything in scarce supply is apt to have high value, and when an item as rare as a pro-capitalist professor comes along, you very nearly have to treat him with reverence.

So we got on famously. He contended at the outset that every man has an absolute right to his own person and property. I like to talk to people who have positive views. This professor did. Thus, as often happens, we found ourselves in basic agreement and went along making a verbal duet of our mutual adherence to the doctrine of individualism, private property, and private control of the means of production.

Then we got into the area that often is tricky going for capitalists. What happens when a given individual forgets the absolute right of another to his person or property and performs a trespass? The professor contended at this point that the erring individual has lost his rights, and anything you want to do to him to even the score is justified.

I reminded him that his position was now in direct contradiction to his earlier stated position that all men have an absolute right to their persons and properties; for, by the argument the professor advanced at this point, the absoluteness of the right didn't exist.

The professor even went so far as to say that there is nothing wrong with stealing or killing, provided only that it occurs under the correct circumstances. Thus it seemed to me that he was engaged in trying to uphold two contradictory doctrines. On the one hand he claimed to favor the absolute right of each individual over his person and property, but on the other hand he made it clear that the violation of the person or property of another is not wrong, provided only that it occurs in a certain prescribed manner.

I am not at all certain but what this ambivalence in the minds of many persons who profess to be pro-private property, may be at the base of our philosophic unrest in this country. This professor and I used this analogy: A man is walking through a dark alley and a second man comes up behind him, shoves a gun in his back, and demands his money. At this point the robber is in a position to get the money, one way or another. He can take it from his victim live, or he can take it from his victim dead. It is clear that he is in a position to take the money. In this circumstance, we supposed, the victim would hand over his money, rather than his life AND his money. You always get out of experiences like this as cheaply as you can.

But the victim clearly sees and identifies the robber. Thus it happens on the following day that the victim recognizes his molester on the street and, now in broad daylight, confronts him, saying: "You're the man who robbed me last night of my money. I want that money. Give it back to me."

But the robber smiles knowingly and says: "I can't return it even if I would, for I have already spent it."

Is the victim now within his rights if he pounces upon the robber, wresting items from him which seem to him to equal the value of the money taken?

I contended that the victim had no right over the property of the robber, but that his rights were limited to the actual money which had been taken from him. If that money was gone, the victim had suffered irreparable damage.

My professor friend saw nothing wrong with the idea that the victim might now rightfully produce his own gun, shoot the robber, and thus even the score.

It's an interesting problem. While very few of us are robbed in dark alleys these days, since most of us have enough sense to stay out of them, the fact is that most of us are robbed rather constantly by the government.

If the professor's analogy holds, then the man who is robbed through the taxing process, having clearly identified his tormentor, has the right to use force against the government to take back things of any nature that he believes are the equivalent in value.

Frankenstein has become a part of the English language to describe any diabolical individual or character. The original was the chief character in a novel written in 1818 by a gentle girl. She was Mary Shelley, wife of the English poet, Percy B. Shelley, and how she ever dreamed up such a monster we will never know. Incidentally, Hollywood has made a fortune on horror films about Frankenstein and never had to pay a royalty on any of them. When Mrs. Shelley created her malicious character, copyrights were unheard of. So was Hollywood.

Today's smile: A bride greeted her husband as he came home from work with a tearful eye and said: "I've spoiled your dinner and I'm truly sorry." Her hubby said: "Don't worry about it. What did you do?" She explained: "I didn't read the directions closely and found out afterward that you have to add water to those dehydrated foods."

Our spendthrift Uncle Sam tosses around billions as loosely as if the money was confetti. Well, just consider a billion dollars. If reduced to $1 bills it would take a stack 212 times as high as New York's Empire State Building. And some genius figured out that if you started to spend it at the rate of $1 a minute, year around, at the end of 1,062 years you'd still have about $264,000 left. Uncle Sam has found a dozen ways to spend it faster.

Thoughts while shaving: Back in Prohibition days the Chicago Crime Commission published a directory of the "public enemies" of that city. Now they're bringing the work up-to-date with a new one that lists today's racketeers. It's a sort of Social Register of the lower crust. You don't hear very much these days about the police giving a suspected criminal the "third degree." That's probably because such intensive questioning has been declared "verboten" by the Supreme Court. The original "third degree" was the highest degree that could be given to Freemasons in England. In America the term had a very different meaning. . . . You're really getting along in years if you can remember when you gave a telephone number to an operator and she completed your call by connecting you with the number given. And you're practically ancient if you can recall when the operator was called "Central." Many popular songs were written about those phone girls, including a tear-jerker of World War I days, "Hello Central, Give Me No Man's Land."

And speaking of the good old days reminds us that a dietitian, who did considerable research on the subject told us the colonists could drink more liquor than we moderns without getting cockeyed. She attributed their capacity to their diet, which was simple and contained a high vitamin B content. It was that vitamin B that gave them a greater margin of safety in imbibing. . . . The San Francisco (Calif.) EXAMINER headlined a story: "Union Chief's Court Upholds Slander Suit." Of course, it was undoubtedly a union suit.

$5.5 Trillion in Public Owned Oil Shale Periled By Policy Hassle Over 'Mineral Claims' Grab

WASHINGTON

Interior Secretary Udall is being closely watched by two influential Senate committees on what he is going to do about the mysterious filing of thousands of "mineral claims" on the fabulously rich shale oil lands owned by the federal government in three Rocky Mountain states—Colorado, Wyoming and Utah. One Oklahoma alone reportedly has filed some 20,000 claims on an estimated 4 million acres. These and other claims cover virtually all the U.S.-owned shale lands in one Colorado county.

At stake in this little-known situation is the fate of a potentially fantastically rich prize. A 1965 report of the Oil Shale Advisory Board estimated the recoverable oil shale in the three states at around 2 trillion barrels, and possibly as much as 2.6 trillion barrels. At $2.77 a barrel, this oil would be worth at least $5.5 trillion, and maybe as much as $7 trillion.

Of this colossal natural resource, approximately 1.6 to 1.7 trillion barrels belongs to the U.S. government. That is 25 times as much oil as has been extracted by the American oil industry in its entire history.

This stupendous holding could produce from $600 billion to $725 billion in royalties. Such an income could more than pay off the national debt now in excess of $350 billion.

Secretary Udall is on the spot because of a behind-the-scenes clash over how to proceed to legally challenge the thousands of ostensible "mineral claims" filed on the government-owned shale lands in the past 18 months.

Between May 1966 and May 1967, the Oklahoma alone filed more than 2,500 claims in one Colorado county, covering some 411,000 acres, or more than 65 square miles. Of these claims, 130 were filed after Udall issued an order withdrawing shale lands from filing in January of this year.

The two Senate committees keeping a sharp eye on this dynamite-loaded matter are Interior and Insular Affairs, headed by Senator Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and the Anti-

Trust and Monopoly Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Philip Hart, D-Mich. Both committees have conducted hearings and questioned Interior Department officials and other witnesses.

THE TACTICAL DISPUTE—Crux of the backstage legal controversy is whether, to challenge the rash of "mineral claims" piecemeal or en masse. Interior Solicitor Frank Barry, one-time law partner of Udall, favors carefully investigating each claim separately, and then deciding what steps to take. He contends some of the claims may be genuine, and is against condemning them all out of hand and launching a mass legal attack.

Such a deliberate course was vigorously opposed by former Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill., at an Interior Committee hearing. Douglas has long been interested in preserving the government's interest in the immensely rich shale oil lands. In 1965 he sought legislation assigning the income from this resource to paying off the national debt. In disputing Barry's plan, Douglas argued it would "take forever and a day." Also, that from an examination Douglas himself made of hundreds of these filings, there is reason to believe a large majority are not authentic "mineral claims" but aimed at acquiring ownership of the government's oil.

Both the committee and Udall were urged by Douglas to send investigators to check the filings. So far, neither has done that.

In a sharp exchange with Barry, Douglas contended that under the Mineral Act of 1872, the Oklahoma's claims are "basically phony and fraudulent." In support of that charge, Douglas pointed out:

"The law requires that the four corners of each claim be staked out as and when it is located. An examination of these (Oklahoma's) claims will show that the uniform pattern was for him to claim that he located 31 or more quarter sections in a day. It is physically impossible for any man to walk around each one of the 31 quarter sections and stake out each of the corners."

"That would be impossible enough on level ground in the summer. It's even more obvious it would be completely impossible in the heart of the Rockies in December, January, February and March when these claims were filed and the snowfall is very heavy. Can you imagine this claimant being up and down the mountain sides staking out the four corners of every quarter section."

"The Act also requires that a claimant must make a bona fide discovery of the mineral he is claiming, and that a total of $500 in labor and or improvements be spent on each claim within a five-year period. Can this claimant maintain that he has made a genuine discovery on each and every one of his 20,000 claims?"

Sharp Politics And $250 Flats

(The Wall Street Journal)

Since New York City's rent control program has been in effect for almost a quarter of a century making it the only major U.S. city clinging to this "temporary" wartime device, you might think that the Alice-in-Wonderland quality of the thing by now would have given way to a semblance of reality. It has not, however. For every time steps are taken toward decontrolling any of the approximately 1.4 million apartments still under rent curbs, the city administration recoils from the political implications of a free market in rental property. There are, after all, more tenants enjoying artificially depressed rents than there are landlords suffering under artificially depressed incomes.

The other day, for instance, the economic absurdity of continued controls came up for another airing.

To go back a couple of years: Under the city's gingerly approach to decontrol, in 1964 apartments renting for more than $250 as of April 1, 1960, were decontrolled. At the time, Rent Administrator Frederick Berman said that apartments containing families with two parents and at least two children would not be decontrolled. Now the administrator says that controls will be lifted from the approximately 7,000 apartments renting, as of April 1, 1965, for $250 per month. This time, though, exemption from decontrol is to be extended to families with only one parent and at least two dependent children. And Mr. Berman says he will consider also protecting from decontrol families harboring aged persons.

Plainly, the number of occupants or their family relationship has no logical connection with a landlord's recurring tax bills and maintenance costs. No matter if his costs rise, the rent does not. To be sure, families with more dependents may have higher living expenses than others. But their income may be higher, too; indeed, there is no limit on what families may earn and still remain in controlled apartments.

Now if certain families, regardless of income, enjoy special low prices on their living space, why isn't it just as reasonable to let them enjoy special prices at department and grocery stores as well? Because, obviously, the stores unlike the landlords are under no compulsion to subsidize their customers.

Not only does rent control illustrate the danger of permanent control, it also demonstrates how sharp politicians can turn property owners into an extension of municipal welfare agencies. Which may be good politics, but represents a governmental misuse of private property that in any other context would be regarded as intolerable.

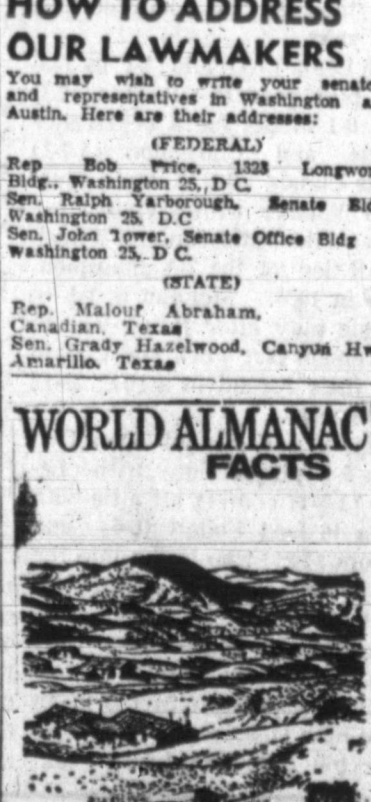

who wish to terminate their association with the armed forces by going underground. . . . We encourage those who emigrate to build international support for the draft resistance unions, and to work for an end to American oppression."

PREDICTIONS—Britain and Egypt will resume diplomatic relations within a month. Agreement on that has been secretly reached between Cairo and London, and the details are in process of being completed. . . . Retired Lieutenant General James Gavin, who coyly denies he has presidential ambitions, will publish a book in January expounding, among other things, a program for solving big city problems. He will also deal at length with his anti-Vietnam war views. . . . Israel will send one of its top war heroes to Washington as its new ambassador. Major General Yitzhak Rabin, chief of staff in last June's meteoric victory over the Arab countries, will replace Ambassador Avraham Harman. Rabin, who masterminded Israel's remarkable triumph, has never held a diplomatic post. His whole career has been as a soldier. . . . Admiral Hyman Rickover, outspoken "father" of the Navy's nuclear-powered sub fleet, will be given a fourth two-year extension of action duty. Now 67, the famed nuclear expert would have to retire in January, but at the urging of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, President Johnson has agreed to continue Rickover in his all-important work for two more years. . . . Brazil has agreed to ship 15,000 tons of uranium to France in exchange for French assistance in developing uranium deposits. The two countries have quietly made a deal on that.

Best Buys in Color TV Now at Johnsons

Color television is not new. It has provided families with the utmost in evening entertainment for the past several years. The first innovation in color television was unique, and many Americans skeptical, and rightly so. But since the first set was introduced to the public, many things have changed. The American public has become accustomed to the idea of owning a color set, and after shopping around, have found them to be modern, beautiful, and very dependable. Then after just a short trial period in their home, they quickly learned that color was just what they wanted. The evening around the TV was changed immediately. The movies are being produced in color, along with the major percentage of the rest of the programs. It gave the children a deeper insight into what exactly was going on.

For the past several years, Motorola has continued to do research and improve their color televisions. Their latest innovation was engineered to make the TV repairman a stranger at your house. Separate circuits that work without tubes are contained in 10 solid modules. This construction principle, using solid state electronics, is designed for maximum operating reliability. It eliminates hundreds of chances for human error in manufacture, and is specified in most space electronics and computer systems. This gives their customers better sets, better for their money.

The all solid transistor design gives you instant sound and an automatically color-purified picture in about five seconds. You get faithful color reproduction of the broadcast signal. It is the color set of the future available right now only at Johnson Radio and TV, 307 W. Foster St. See it soon.

For any television or radio problems, you'll be better off calling MO 5-3861, than trusting some fly-by-night repairman. The technicians at Johnson Radio and TV cost no more, and they guarantee satisfaction. Give them a call today. Tomorrow you'll be glad at the money you have saved. Examine their complete line of Motorola and Norge Products, too. They are made to suit you.

Check Car Now For Safe Winter Driving

With the advent of winter, comes the awesome and dreaded winter driving. Icy streets, rain, sleet and snow all add to the hazardous driving, so why should the average motorist, especially the women, be plagued with car trouble. Car manufacturers have provided the latest aids to make winter driving as comfortable as possible. But when the driving sleet and heavy morning traffic begins to wear on the mother's nerves, there's too much to contend with, without worrying about the car failing to start, a flat tire, no spare, poor acceleration and other mechanical difficulties.

The personnel and employees of Montgomery Ward in Coronado Center, in conjunction with the National Safety Council, recommend a thorough pre-winter check-up and tune-up. This customer service can be a preventive measure. It will provide the wife a comfortable feeling of safety and automobile reliability on those freezing mornings. Faulty, worn plugs can mean extra gas consumption, poor starting, and many times roadside stops in a strange town for needed repairs.

To insure the safety and reliability of your car or pickup this winter, drive by Montgomery Ward, ask their staff of automotive experts to give your car a complete going over, checking the antifreeze, installing new plugs and points, and putting your car into tip-top shape. While there, you can get your state inspection sticker and also shop in their store for the family. Their auto service department has the facilities to correct any problems your car might develop from a minor adjustment to a major tune-up. Check their complete line of tires and batteries. Every owner would rather have his car serviced by trained personnel that will watch for trouble spots and recommend repairs rather than waiting until some cold winter morning and have to call someone to give them a ride, or push. Your fan belt will be checked and they will see that everything is operating properly. This means the owner drives a safer, more dependable car at all times, knowing preventive repair cuts down on customer cost.

So when winter comes, your car will start easily and run smoothly, and you can thank your service man at Montgomery Ward. Chances are, they had a lot to do with it. A satisfied customer is their most important asset.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The first of ABC-TV's "Theatre Nights"—a two-hour television adaptation of the well-known play and movie "Johnny Belinda"—arrived Sunday night, and an auspicious debut it was.

The affecting story of the Nova Scotia farm girl who grows into a beautiful, wise and courageous young woman despite adversity was given new life by a fine cast that starred Mia Farrow.

As Belinda, Miss Farrow, was most touching in an expert performance directed by Paul Bogart. Her reflection of the inner beauty and dignity that marked Belinda's growth as a human being was often very moving, and above all natural.

Expert Director
Perhaps the chief reason for the surprising impact of the play—despite the fact that its story has long been common knowledge—was that Director Bogart succeeded in having his performers subjugate themselves wholly to their roles, thereby enhancing the tale's believability.

There were three male leads, and each complemented Miss Farrow perfectly. As the new town doctor who teaches Belinda sign language and lip-reading, makes her aware of herself as a human being and later falls in love with her, Ian Bannen underplayed his role with convincing effect. As the gruff but loving father who, like the rest of the town, thought he had a "dummy" in his hands—and who later became touchingly proud of his daughter's progress—Barry Sullivan offered another of the excellent portrayals one has come to expect of him.

Carradine Outstanding Villain
And as the unscrupulous young fisherman who rapes Belinda, makes her pregnant, lets the town think the doctor is responsible, and then tries to take the baby away from her, only to be shot and killed by her, David Carradine was an outstandingly tragic villain. Ruth White and Carol Daniels were also splendid in supporting roles.
