Frisco Exodus Resembles Flight From Besieged City

GOV. PREPARES TO USE NAT'L GUARD TROOPS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 14 — Alarmed by threats of famine and possible violence, residents and visitors today started an exodus from the San Francisco strike area resembling flight from a besieged city in wartime.

Gov. Frank Merriam prepared to declare martial law over the densely populated region as labor leaders refused to call a general strike— outgrowth of the bloody and costly waterfront and statwide marine workers walkout. Half the city's union labor membership was on strike. Tohusands walked out in Oakland, across the bay.

National guardsmen, already patrolling San Francisco's waterfront, prepared to extend their lines over a 5-mile radius to break a blockade of pickets and assure delivery of foodstuffs to San Francisco and other bay region cities.

Gov. Merriam issued a court ultimatum. He said no woman or child should go hungry or face privation. He warned unless strikers ceased picketing highways 100 miles from San Francisco and stopping trucks carrying foodstuffs he was prepared to break the blockade by force.

Panic-stricken citizens stayed in their homes. Thousands of private automobiles were stalled for lack of gasoline. Street and cable cars were the only mode of transportation, still available.

Persons who still had gasoline in the tanks of their automobiles fled the city. Highways were crowded with private automobiles outward bound. Railroad ticket agencies were swamped with demands for immediate reservations. Food was scarce. Some restaurants discontinued printing menus.

Violence still was sporadic and not generally organized.

HOPELESS ATTEMPTS TO AVERT STRIKE MADE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 14 — Federal mediators and city officials made new but hopeless attempts today to avert a strike of 6,000 truck drivers at midnight Monday and a possible general strike later.

Police Turn on Gas, Rout Strikers

Tear bombs and gas guns played an effective part in routing the thousands of pickets and sympathizers who rioted in the San Francisco dock strike. The officers, wearing "tin hats," are shown in action during the melee, in which two men were killed and more than 70 wounded.

FARMER SHOT TO DEATH IN BARBER SHOP

LONGVIEW, July 14 — Johnnie Page, 35 western Harrison county farmer, was shot to death as he sat unarmed in a barber shop here today.

Officers held Ras Calloway, 50-year-old neighbor of Page, who said he shot the farmer because "he drew a gun on my mother last Sunday."

Calloway told questioners he shot when Page assertedly made a menacing move as Calloway entered the barber shop. He refused to amplify his reasons for shooting.

Officers found that five bullets entered Page's body. Witnesses said the shooting came without warning as a barber was shaving Page.

Only Arms Broken In 3rd Story Drop

WEATHERFORD, July 13 — Woodrow Littrell has no superstitions about Friday 13, but he thanked his stars today for the luck that miraculously saved his life in a headlong plunge from a third story window.

Littrell, 21, from Denton county, was roller skating last night with a group of conservation corps workers. He skated toward a window to rest. His hands missed their grasp and he plunged through the window, head downward.

Startled companions rushed to a paved alley below. His only injuries were fractures of both arms and severe bruises.

REPEAL SEEN AS LIVE ISSUE IN PRIMARIES

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, July 14 — Mississippi's refusal to repeal makes prohibition a live issue in the Texas primaries to be held two weeks from today.

If a majority of Texans, like Mississippians, still are for state prohibition, those who have been counting the state "wet" must revise their election forecasts.

Attorney-general James V. Allred is the endorsed gubernatorial candidate of leading drys. He announced himself personally dry and willing to leave the state's status to vote of the people.

E. K. Russell has been an out-and-out prohibitionist throughout his campaign "I cannot change my convictions on that," he said.

Maury Hughes and C. C. McDonald are recognized as wet candidates. McDonald directed the campaign for the beer amendment. Hughes tried to get prohibition repeal and a return to local option submitted as a proposed party pledge in the primary. Hughes' proposal was sidetracked by a sub-committee. The Governors Ferguson launched and are backing McDonald as Mrs. Ferguson's successor.

Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt was the bition clause of the state oenstitution.

Small Attitude

Sen. Clint C. Small, as a candidate for governor four years ago, said that prohibition was a fundamental principle that must "never" be disturbed. This year he is for submission of the liquor question but would repeal the law permitting race track betting.

Tom F. Hunter is accused by Candidate Hughes of being "dry in English and wet in Bohemian." He favors submission.

Effect of the prohibition issue on Allred's campaign is particularly interesting. Leading prohibitionists seem satisfied with his attitude. It is noticeable that it is other candidates that are making attacks on him for not padlocking places where hard liquor is sold.

Maury Hughes leads such an attack, picturing open saloons with whisky advertised and on display while Allred's campaign sign looks down upon them from a neighboring building. Small makes a similar attack on the attorney-general. Hunter, too, accuses Allred of failure to act.

Just what the attorney-general could and should do under the situation is much discussed.

Youth Reveals That Myers Visited Him

HOUSTON, July 14 — A fraternity brother of Neal Myers, wanted for questioning in the mystery death of Marian Mills, Oklahoma university co-ed, revealed today the wanted youth visited him here Wednesday.

"Neal called me from a filling station and I told him to come over to my house," the boy, a Delta Upsilon pledge, told Deputy U. S. Marshal Kearn.

"We talked for a while and he left hurriedly. It was not until several hours after he had gone that I learned he was in trouble."

The boy said Myers told him he was looking for work, and that he had tried unsuccessfully to get a job on a ship at the Houston docks.

Mexico Will Ignore Johnson's Remarks

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14 — The Mexican government refused today to make an international incident of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's speech, comparing the nazi "blood purge" to happenings in Mexico when Villa was rampant.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 14— Leir B. Reed, crack department of justice investigator in charge of the St. Louis bureau, was arrested by city police here today in connection with the slaying of the mother of four children during a fruitless raid last night.

He was ordered held under $5,000 bond to answer to any charge filed against him. Reed was one of the captors of George (Machine Gun) Kelly.

The woman, Mrs. Dessie Masterson, was shot to death as she slept on the floor of the home she occupied with her husband and children.

LETTER SHOWS CONNOR BABY WAS KIDNAPED

HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 14 — Parents of 21-months-old Robert Connor have received a mysterious registered letter that virtually established the baby was kidnaped, it was known today.

Federal agents were in such complete charge at the Connor home, where the curly-haired blonde baby, clad in pink rompers, disappeared Thursday evening, that they received and examined all mail before the parents received it.

Charles Connor, the father, a moderately paid civil engineer employed by the state who has no money to pay ransom, obviously placed the case completely in the hands of the agents, depending on them to get his baby back alive.

Worshippers Pray as Slashed Boy Is Dying

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 14 — Charges of murder were filed today against a 13-year-old boy whose alleged victims, a boy of 16, died of stab wounds because worshippers at a religious meeting believed prayer more effective than medical treatment.

The accused boy, Garland Thrasher, was held in jail while officers continued investigation of the death of Theodore Newborn, 16.

Officers said Newborn was slashed with a small knife at a Pentecostal meeting 15 miles south of Texarkana. An artery in the boy's left arm was severed. Instead of taking the boy immediately to a doctor, worshippers prayed over him last night as he lay bleeding to death on the ground.

Two Boys Who Made Good Come Back to Cisco and Get Just What They Asked For

"M. C." a "home boy who made good", came back to Cisco Saturday and got just what he asked for —a decorated car, a parade and a band.

With him in the flag-decked open tonneau of extremely dubious vintage, was "E. O." another "home boy who made good," who had preceded "M. C." on his triumphant return to familiar streets and the friendliness of familiar faces.

"M. C." is Dr. M. C. Carlisle, two-bit mustache and all, who left Cisco three years ago for Boston and an advanced course in pediatrics, and later settled at Waco where he has an office in the tallest building in the city, the Amicable.

Wrote Carlisle to some of his cronies here:

"A good specialist in diseases of children is worth at least $50 a day, and you guys should appreciate how much I am doing for you in deserting my profession to spend several days out there. I want a parade and a band. All you have out there to offer a visitor in a fishing trip, or a swim, or a look at that big dam. Now I want the success I have made in my profession properly recognized."

"Pill Roller Elliott"

"E. O." is E. O. Elliott, a pill-roller whose profession is closely allied with doctoring. E. O. went to Colorado City shortly after M. C. left on his conquest of more learning.

Like Carlisle he demanded recognition of his success, and intimated that Cisco was a poor place in which to get it.

But former cronies of the visitors determined to justify their community with a New York welcome to the pair. W. J. Leach, Nick Miller, K. N. Greer, et al., commandeered an ancient Ford, stuck a flag in each corner, a sign on the back and a colored chauffeur with spectacles in the front seat. G. W. Collum, with a bob-tailed band and Harry Schaffer playing everything but the drums, waited in front of the chariot of honor. Two score or more other cars full of people likewise waited.

As the Katy pulled in, the bob-

NO CEREMONY TO MARK HOUR OF BEGINNING

There will be no ceremonies tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock when the Cisco State bank opens its doors for business.

"We're just going to throw the doors wide open and tell them to come and get it," said Guy Dabney, active vice president of the new institution which is the result of almost three years of continuous effort to re-open for business an institution that was closed in September, 1931.

Monday at 9 a. m. was formally set as the hour for the beginning of business when all of the necessary stationery was received from the supply house this week. A permit to do business in Texas, final official document required, bearing the signature of the state banking commissioner, was being framed Saturday to be hung in the office. A charter was formally issued by the state banknig department, following transfer of a RFC loan for $140,000 to the credit of the new bank in the Fort Worth National bank.

Officers

Officers of the new institution, which gives Cisco two banks, were elected at a meeting of the stockholders Saturday morning. They are: J. H. Reynolds, president; Guy Dabney, active vice president; F. D. Wright, vice president; J. D. Lauderdale, cashier and Tom D. Stark, assistant cashier.

State Bank Examiner McMillan was here Saturday to represent Comm'r E. C. Brand and the state banking department in the final details of arrangements for opening.

Monday, Mr. Dabney was informed Saturday, W. M. (Bill) Massie, vice president of the Fort Worth National bank, will be a visitor to witness the opening.

"I'm going to plant him in a chair in the front office here and forget him," said Dabney. "I know where the rest of us will be, and that there'll be no time for entertainment. But Massie can take care of himself in a bank."

Cooperation

Dabney spoke words of appreciation for those who have worked with him in the organization and plans for opening the new bank. Their faith, work and their intelligent cooperation, he said, was responsible for the success that had been achieved. He mentioned particularly J. H. Reynolds, who heads the new organization; J. D. Lauderdale, cashier who was Dabney's assistant throughout the almost three years of work; and F. D. Wright, who handled the complicated legal phases of the program.

While he paid especial tribute to these men, he also praised the cooperation of the depositors and the citizens in general and the stockholders of the old Cisco Banking company who had helped materially to further the cause to success.

60 Per Cent

When the new bank opens Monday, it was explained stockholders of the former Cisco Banking company will deposit in it a sum equal to 60 per cent of the total deposits in the closed bank. Each depositor will be mailed a deposit slip for that proportion of his or her deposit in the old bank, which will be subject to check in the new bank. The remainder will be made available as rapidly as the condition of the new bank permits.

The Cisco State bank was made possible through an Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $140,000 on assets of the former Cisco Banking copany, and other financing.

The bank has a capital stock of $50,000 with a surplus of $10,000.

The CHANGLESS CYCLE

SPRING is gone. Summer is fading. But their return is as inevitable as tomorrow's dawn. Next year they will be back again.

Then it will be the same changeless cycle. . . . Same April showers and burst of May flowers. Same old lawn mowing. Same donning of warm-weather togs. Same craving of new summer furniture. Same exciting vacation planning. Same hundred and one needs and longings.

Why not provide for such future certainties when the advantages are so much in your favor? Buying in August and September what you are going to need or want in June carries the wisdom of Solomon. Read the advertisements in this newspaper and see. Watch for the end-of-season sales. Compare the values with those of the season's opening. Prices are lower because merchants would rather clear out surplus stocks at bargain prices than carry them over until next season.

So---what'll it be? . . . For next summer's lawn, a premium-quality mower at an ordinary-quality price. That long-desired rattan suite for the sun-porch. Some rustic furniture. Awnings. A new refrigerator at an irresistible price. Day by day, you'll find them all in the advertisements in this newspaper. The raincoat which last Spring seemed a bit high. Two or three linen suits at a genuine bargain --- to be hung away for next summer's torrid waves. A money-saving buy of summer underwear, pajamas, shirts, ties, knickers, sports shoes and stockings.

The award to the winer is a free seven- day trip trip to Chicago and the World's Fair with all expenses paid.

The first public announcement of details and rules governing the contest appear elsewhere in this issue of the News, but the knowing ones have passed the word along, and the younger set are already discussing available candidates and making their plans for the "battle royal" in the campaign for votes to elect their favorite. And well they may, for the award is well worth the effort. A seven-day free trip to the World's Fair with all the trimmings should attract more candidates than are running for governor of Texas.

Mr. Outhier told the News that "the contest will be conducted on the up and up. Every contestant, rich or poor, city or conutry, will be treated with the same consideration by the management."

Hose With Garters Attached Allow for Knee Action

Sure to make a big hit with girls who dislike garters is the newest hosiery innovation, knee-high stockings with lastex garter tops, worn by the two smartly dressed fence-sitters above. The attached garters grip the legs firmly, preventing wrinkles and crooked seams, and no matter how often the stockings are washed, the garters won't stretch a bit.

Clark Station Wins Grease Saie Award

A. V. Clark, proprietor of the Texas Service station at E avenue and Eighth street, has just been awarded a silver plaque, properly engraved, which was given by the world's famous Greasologist, Dr. Sid H. Gross.

This plaque is a permanent award and was given to the station making the highest ratio of grease selling to gasoline sales in the Dallas district, which includes most of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

It will be remembered that Mr. Clark won the district plaque about one year ago for the highest ratio of lubrication and since that time it has only been won in the Abilene district two times. This plaque was based on a one-month period.

Mr. Clark is justly proud of this permanent plaque of honor, because it is a distinction to come to a small station in so big a territory.

DEMOS PREDOMINATE

WOODSFIELD, O., July 14 — If the G. O. P. hopes to regain its power, it will have to seek fields more fertile than Monroe county. Seventy-one candidates, who have filed for state and county offices all are democrats. The only republicans who have filed are nine seeking posts as Republican committeemen.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

OLD Mother Nature must have realized the perfect harmony between peaches and melons when she arranged for these two delightful fruits to ripen and be in their prime at the same time. All types and varieties of melons blend invitingly with the peach in summer desserts, salads and cocktails. Ripe, full-flavored fruit should be chosen for the best results.

However, if a melon proves tasteless and perhaps under-ripe in spite of careful choosing, there are ways and means of developing flavor. If the melon is ripe but insipid, remove the seeds and brush the inner surface with lemon juice very faintly seasoned with nutmeg. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and chill thoroughly before using in any way. If the melon is for breakfast, it can be treated this way and chilled overnight. Another way, is to fill each half with a thin sugar syrup, delicately flavored with orange juice and chill over night. Pour off the syrup before serving.

Both peaches and melons which are slightly under-ripe can be used to advantage in the following recipe.

Peach and Melon Compote

One and one-half cups diced peaches, 1 1-2 cups diced melon, 1 1-2 cups granulated sugar, 2 1-4 cups water, 2 tablespoons ginger syrup, 2 or 3 pieces preserved ginger.

Make a syrup of the sugar and water. When about as thick as maple syrup, add syrup from preserved ginger and the preserved ginger finely minced. Bring to the boiling point and add peaches and melon. Simmer very slowly until the fruit is clear and the syrup thick. Chill and serve with a topping of whipped cream.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Fresh pink plums, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, toasted cheese bread, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Creamed sardines and eggs on toast, apple tapioca pudding, limeade.

DINNER: Casserole of lamb and vegetables, endive salad, muscovite of peaches and melons, milk, coffee.

Muscovite of Peaches and Melons

Two cups finely cut honeydew melon, 2 cups finely sliced peaches, 3-4 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3-4 cup powdered sugar, 3 sprigs mint, 1-2 cup whipping cream.

Choose perfectly ripe fruit. Crush mint leaves in sugar and combine with orange and lemon juice. Let stand until sugar is dissolved and remove mint. Add prepared peaches and melon. Turn into freezer and pack in six parts ice to one part ice cream salt. Let stand three hours or longer and serve topped with cream whipped until firm and slightly sweetened with powdered sugar.

This frozen dessert is unusual and delicious for a summer dinner.

MISSISSIPPI VOTES FOR PROHIBITION

Mississippians know what they want. According to incomplete reports in a statewide election they voted to remain bone dry—by a large majority. They voted down a legislative proposal for the creation of a state liquor commission to handle the traffic. All the interior counties returned majorities for the dry cause. Some few coastal counties voted for repeal. In Chicago the convention that nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner adopted a platform that states that voted dry should be given federal protection and law enforcement should be the policy all along the line. Furthermore, that a state that declared for commonwealth control of the liquor traffic should be protected in the decree of the majority and full enforcement of all laws.

This was a splendid recognition of the rights of a sovereign states to control its own internal or domestic affairs. That convention was controlled by democrats who believed in the rights of the state and they incorporated in their platform the tenets of the gospel dogma of states' rights "now and forever." And why not?

TEXAS TAX TOTALS TO U. S. DOUBLED

Texans are interested in tax payments to the federal government for the fiscal year 1934, ended June 30 as for the fiscal year 1933. According to figures made public by the bureau of international revenue Texans paid the federal government almost twice as much in taxes as for the previous fiscal year. These are the figures: Taxes totaled $60,591,954 as compared with $34,167,496 for 1933. According to the report a large part of the $26,334,458 increase is attributed to better business generally but New Deal taxes collected during 1934 under the agricultural adjustment act accounted for $10,070,720. Farmers in Texas, however, received about five times this amount in AAA rentals and benefit payments, the total being $49,040,156 up to May 31. General increases in income tax receipts from Texas and other states reflected a much greater national income in 1934 than in 1933.

Figures tell the story. As for the farmer, he has ceased to be "the forgotten man"—since the coming of the New Deal civilization.

LOUISIANA RENTERS GIVEN RECOGNITION

Louisiana lawmakers are very busy these days. They have given final passage and sent to the governor a bill "to prohibit the seizure of cook stoves and cooking utensils for non-payment of rent." In other words, defaulting renters may hereafter find themselves with something to cook with as well as sleep on when their furnishings are seized for not meeting the rent on the first day of the month.

Kingfish I ordered the bill put over the top just as he ordered the taxing bill on the business of newspapers, public utilities and cotton traders sent to final passage in both houses of the Louisiana legislature. There is no power behind the throne in Louisiana Kingfish I is a United States senator. His governor takes orders. The majority of the lawmakers take orders when Kingfish cracks his big whip and he is the supreme political boss of all that he surveys under the skies of the Cypress state.

Gov. William H. Murray ruled Oklahoma in recent years. He named candidates for governor and all state offices. His slate was tossed into the political discard by a majority of the democrats of the Sooner state. Now the heads of all factions are together. They are for "peace and prosperity and progress" and backing E. W. Marland for the governor-Moses to lead his people out of the wilderness.

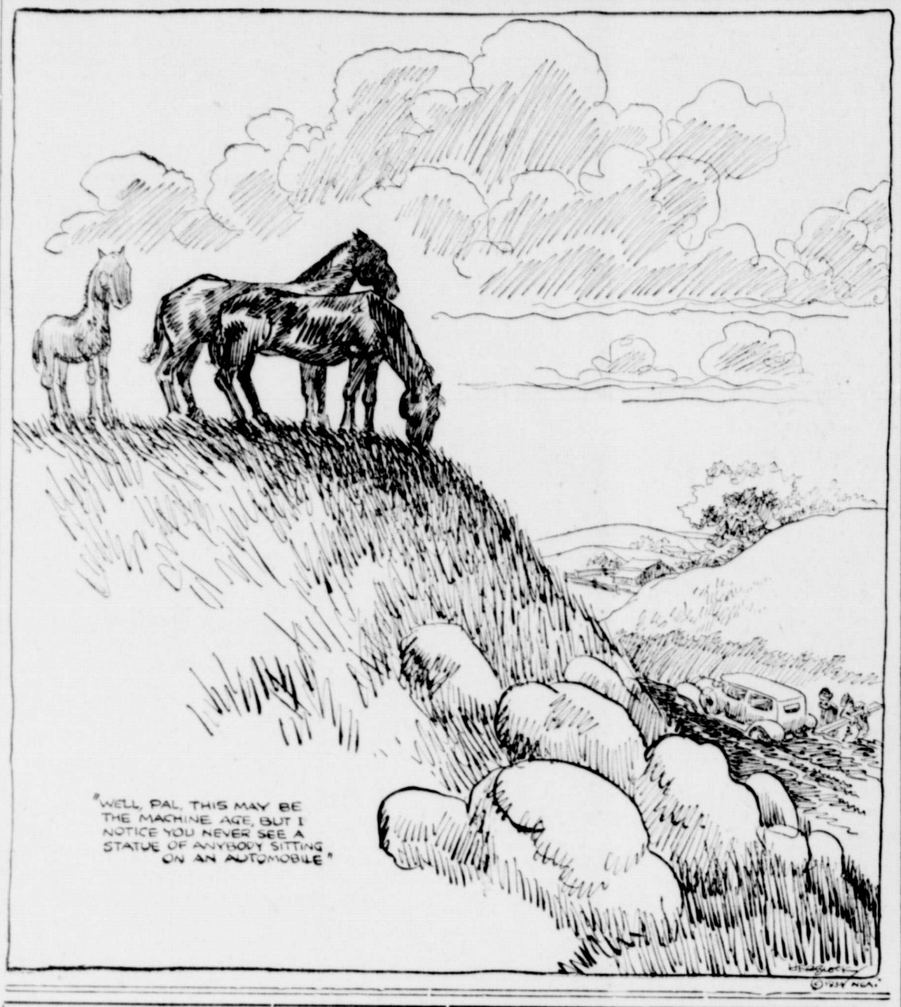

Kingfish I of Louisiana will meet his Waterloo some day. It comes to all political bosses. There is a Waterloo in the life of every man. Gov. Murray took it smilingly. He bowed to the verdict of his people. But Murray is a real sportsman and ever bows "to the wisdom of the majority."

GRAIN CROPS HIT A NEW LOW LEVEL

Wheat farmers of the United States will harvest only 483,662,000 bushels this year. Last year's crop totaled 527,413,000 bushels, and was the smallest since 1894. Corn crop for this year will approximate 2,138,137,000 bushels, compared to 2,330,237,000 bushels in 1933. An oats crop of 567,839,000 bushels is indicated by the July 1 condition of the crop. It would be smallest since 1893. Approximately 7,900,000 tons of sugar beets will be harvested, compared with 11,085,000 tons in 1933. The department of agriculture predicted a tobacco crop of 1,140,000,000 pounds compared with 1,396,000,000 last year.

Drouths are expensive, to say the least. There is a way to guard against them. Storage of flood waters in vast reservoirs or lakes will come some day. And in their coming the blight caused by the drouth will be banished. Now Washington predicts that some farm land that was taken out of production by the AAA is going back to work again when another planting season rolls around again. There is a reason why. First, the report predicting one of the smallest wheat crops on record and correspondingly small feed crops. Another report showing the smallest cultivated acreage of cotton since 1905.

VACATION POST CARDS

"And We Would Like to Know"

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Rep. William P. Cole, Jr., is the chairman of the special house oil investigating committee to ask officials of producing oil companies why oil prices failed to drop when congress passed no control legislation, "as it had been predicted they would." Rep. Cole is a Marylander and a democrat. His committee was named to study the oil problem from federal angles after the Disney control bill failed of enactment at the regular session of congress.

A reminder that the Disney bill was sponsored in the house of representatives by Rep. W. E. Disney of Tulsa, Okla., and in the senate by Sen. Elmer Thomas of Lawton, Okla. Its enactment would have given virtual control of the oil industry in Texas and elsewhere to the federal government. Many influential Texans, including oil men and others, opposed the enactment of the Disney bill. First, the committee visited Bartlesville. Chmn. Cole was interviewed. Champions of the Disney bill had predicted cuts in both refined and crude divisions would come unless the Disney-Thomas bill was passed by the congress. Secy Ickes backed the bill to a finish.

President Roosevelt, when given the actual facts as to the actual conditions, refused to place the Disney measure on his "must" list. It died. But the Cole committee was appointed to make a survey as well as an investigation of conditions in the oil fields and report at the next session of the congress. Chmn. Cole has a mind of his own. Speaking of the predictions of the backers of the Disney bill of disaster to come, Chmn. Cole is quoted having said to Oklahoma press representatives: "We are unable to learn that such results have followed, and we would like to know why."

Rep. E. W. Marland is the democratic nominee for governor of Oklahoma. He attended the session of the committee held in Tulsa. This new Moses of the Oklahoma democracy also had a control bill which failed of passage. Marland was in Tulsa to greet the members of the Cole committee and Speaker Henry T. Rainey who planed it from Illinios to Oklahoma to extend greetings to his colleague.

Rep. Marland for years was one of the outstanding operators in the petroleum industry of Oklahoma. He offered as a candidate for governor promising to do his best to lead the democrats of that state "out of the wilderness" and pledged his best efforts to bring about a restoration of not only progressive development but peace and prosperity to his people. He bluntly stated to press correspondents, "the government should limit its intervention in the oil business to the fixing of production quotas among states."

A cordial welcome to the Cole committee. A cordial welcome to all visitors from afar. Texans only ask for a square deal along the lines of the fundamentals of democracy and ever uppermost a recognition of the rights of a sovereign state in the own problems and home control of the natural resource wealth of its people.

The usual quiet course of the summer season is being agreeably broken in Cisco this year with a number of cheering and unusual incidents. Most outstanding among these is, of course, the opening of the Cisco State bank tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. For three years Guy Dabney, J. H. Reynolds, Dick Lauderdale, Forrest Wright and those who worked with them plugged along, meeting and overcoming difficulty after difficulty, facing an almost hopeless situation, until most of the folks began to feel that nothing would ever come of it. But they say that a man is never down until he is out, and these were never down. All of a sudden, the whole thing broke into success, just as hard things always seem to do of a sudden, and tomorrow the new bank opens.

The men who made it possible are certainly to be congratulated. There is a lot of life in the old land yet.

In addition there is the reconstruction job on the eight miles of Highway 23 south to Romney, which will turn loose many thousands of dollars in wages; the building of the Cisco Gas corporation's new gas distribution system which will put $40,000 in wages in local circulation; the building of the Leeray cut-off road north to a junction with Highway 67, not to speak of a number of relief projects of lesser magnitude.

Business should be good in Cisco this fall, with these things doing.

The experience that Dr. M. C. Carlisle and E. O. Elliott had here Saturday ought to be a warning to ex-Ciscoans not to tempt the talents of the community too much. The boys facetiously asked for a bandwagon, intimating that Cisco was entirely without the facilities or the gifts to do justice to visiting nobility, and they got it full measure.

However, they took it like the good sports they are, and I must give them credit for that. As a matter of fact, the celebration that they received, as boisterous and clownish as it was, covered up a lot of real gladness, and was ample proof that they have many friends here who sincerely love them and would like to see them back here for keeps.

I understand that the mayor is looking through his neighborhood for the traitor who told me about his fence-crashing episode. I shall never tell, and so far, if my information is correct, the Mayor is far off scent.

Further information I have gained reveals that more trouble descended upon the magisterial head when the battery of the machine that backed through Connie Davis' fence gave up the ghost and left him on his feet. It is also said that a definite neighborhood campaign is under way to require him to paint the entire fence to keep it from looking splotchy.

C. C. Duff, science teacher for the Moran high school, exhibited one of nature's oddities in the form of a two-mouthed fish in the business district Friday. Mr. Duff, who had the fish, a sun perch, preserved in alcohol, said he caught the specimen while seining for minnows in a tank near Moran in March, 1933. This is a fish story, but the evidence is conclusive.

In reality the fish had but one mouth, with two sets of jaws opening into it. One opening was just above the other and each was a well-formed orifice.

AUSTIN, July 14 — Rapid opening of public works employment has injected an issue in the political campaign and started counter-charges of exploiting the former relief - rolls people who pay poll taxes this year. The agitation started when absentee voting became legal, and playing to and exploiting the relief work voters, and the negro vote was at once charged. It was said that thousands of men on the relief rolls have applied for jobs on the new public works projects all over the state, and that "inside" politics from some source formerly identified with the widespread payment of the poll taxes of men on relief, is sending these workers in steady streams to vote absentee ballots on the pretext of being called away to the public works employment before July 28.

The absentee voting pretext also was being used to get negroes' votes recorded, and affording no opportunity to challenge these ballots, it was said at Austin.

Absentee balloting in a volume of 300 votes a day at Austin — in the two ways, personally at the county clerk's office, and through the mails brought a sharp encounter here between individual supporters of Sen. Tom Connally and of Cong. Joe Bailey for the senate.

Each side claimed the other was "herding" absentee voters through the mill.

Adequate support and maintainance of a continued relief program has been made a chief plank in the platforms of C. C. McDonald and Clint Small for governor. Other candidates also promise adequate relief.

Last year, friends of the Ferguson administration repeatedly were credited with efforts to build a political machine out of the reliefset-up from top to bottom, and that poll taxpayers among relief or old civil works employes were being encouraged to qualify as voters under the theory that by so doing they were insuring their jobs.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY

"STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANE TERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town and especially AMY JACKSON that she can make a success of her life. Amy had been her best friend until HOWARD JACKSON broke the engagement Jane forced on him and married Amy. Unable to bear the sight of Amy's happiness, Jane obtains a job in a New York real estate office.

Jane is clever and soon is making an excellent salary. She has an affair with ROGER THORPE, who is married. Later she tires of him and when he offers to bear the expense of their child she dismisses him contemptuously.

In her desperate plight Jane turns to Amy for help. Howard is touring Germany and Amy comes to New York. She stays until the baby is born and then, horrified because Jane insists on giving her daughter away, agrees to take the child with the understanding that Jane never shall reclaim her.

Howard returns and completely approves of Amy's taking the baby.

In New York Jane opens her own real estate office. She receives a letter from her aunt and decides to go to Marburg to supervise some business affairs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

JANE tapped the letter she had been reading. There was only one important deal on hand and that could not be closed for another three weeks. It would be a good time to make the trip to Marburg.

While she was thinking it over Mrs. Andrews, her secretary, came in—a stoutish, competent widow who had endeared herself to Jane by her passion for detail, her imaginative vacancy and her super-respectability. Mrs. Andrews brought instant confidence to clients who hesitated before Jane's youth and good looks.

"Mr. Sears is on the phone," reported Mrs. Andrews. "He's a little tight, and of course he's begging you to hurry."

"I'll talk to him" said Jane, taking the phone. "Yes, Mr. Sears, this is Miss Terry. I'm so glad you called up. I've been after the title guaranty company this morning and they tell me they're pushing the search and we may be able to close a week ahead of time. That's fine, isn't it! But you'd better keep the reservations you have. There might be some hitch, though I don't anticipate anything. These forms have to be gone through. If we neglect them we might find ourselves tied up in the courts."

She hung up the telephone with a sigh. "I've told him all that a dozen times a day ever since this deal started," she said. "Disgusting person! Just because he's Roland Carlhin Sears and his papa and his grandpa and his great-grandpapa had a lot of money he thinks he can run the world in circles. I don't know whether he's worse drunk or sober. Wait, Mrs. Andrews. My aunt is sick and I ought to go to Marburg to see her. My feeling is that I'd better get it over and be back here in plenty of time before the Sears closing date comes along. I might even leave tonight."

"I'll see what accommodations I can get for you and if they're all right. Then I'll write your aunt and call your maid for your packing directions."

MRS. ANDREWS reported that a compartment was bought for the express, that Miss Rosa Terry had been telegraphed to, and that Jane's maid was on the telephone.

"The black suitcase and the little fitted case," commanded Jane. "Put in the dark red cloth, the brown lace with the short sleeves, and the black satin with the gold embroidery, the black satin slippers with gold buckles and the brown slippers. See that all the toilet things are in the fitted case and my negligee and pajamas and those traveling slippers. Put in only my best underclothes, the French ones, and plenty of stockings and handkerchiefs and gloves. I'll wear my mink coat and carry my cloth one."

It might, she thought, turn warm and she would look ridiculous in fur. But if the weather should stay cold and stormy, she didn't want to miss the chance of showing off that beautiful dark mink coat in Marburg.

It was not until she was actually on the train that she had time to think about Marburg and it came to her overwhelmingly that she might, if she wished, see her child. She was not sure that she did wish it. Perhaps it might be better to avoid it. The memory of Amy's contempt came back, too, but it was not so serious by a hundred times as it had been at first. "Poor old sentimental Amy," thought Jane, "She was so furious with me. I hope she's over it by this time—I believe I'd like to see that child. It must be 2½ years old now, talks and walks, I suppose. And I don't even know what they named her. I don't know what she looks like."

There was no one to meet her at the train in the morning and she was glad of that. Much easier to take a taxi and rattle uptown without forced conversation, and with a chance to look at the old town and see how little it had changed. A few more automobiles and a new movie house seemed to be the only additions to the familiar scene. Fortunately it was still cold enough for the fur coat. The elms along the campus waved in a raw wind. Patches of snow lingered on the winter-dull grass. Evily, dark and troubled, met her at the door. Miss Rosa, she said, was feeling mighty low. The house was over-heated and there was a stuffy sickroom odor, faint, persistent. Otherwise all was the same; Jane might have stepped from the massive crowded well-kept rooms the day before.

TIME had marched on with Miss Rosa. She clutched at Jane and wept feebly. Her once solid and roseate flesh was flabby and waxen. Her carefully touched-up hair showed an inch of white against the scalp. But after her first tears she rallied. "I'm not really sick," she protested.

Jane's presence was a tonic. Almost at once Miss Rosa declared that she was going to get up and get her clothes on and go downstairs for lunch. After that they'd summon young Trainor and Jane should deal with him. In the meantime Jane might look at the suggestions young Trainor had made about Miss Rosa's affairs, to know what he'd been up to.

Jane found that she could not concentrate on young Trainor's letters. The wind, the tossing trees made her restless. She had better, she thought, go for a walk and blow away the fatigue of the train and the staleness of the house. She put on her hat and the fur coat and went out, walking up toward the college, feeling strange and alien in the unaltered scene. The gray stones of the buildings fused with the gray sky. Students hurried back and forth along the paths with the effect they had always had of busy, aimless insects. Even the curtains at the windows of the president's house were the same dingy gold rep she and Amy had thought so ugly. Now the name of Amy had intruded. It was impossible to walk this way, to see these things without the sense of Amy's lost companionship. And swiftly, surely, Jane determined to go and see Amy, to see the child.

Now that her resolve was made to see Amy, she could not wait until the next day. In the late afternoon when Miss Rosa had retired for a rest before dinner, exhausted but exhilarated from witnessing Jane's rout of young Trainor, Jane put on her dark red dress, because she knew that was the most becoming thing she had with her. She loosened her hair a little around her face, rubbed her lips with scarlet, touched jasmin perfume behind her ears.

A plan was beginning to stir in her head, a plan which would make her seem to them the person she constantly tried — and never quite succeeded—to seem to be herself, fine and sweet and disinterested, ready to make up for past omissions with generosity that would have a touch of nobility.

Yet for a moment, when Howard opened the door, and since there was no light in the hall and the late afternoon was dark, she waited doubtfully, she forgot her role. "You don't know me?" she said.

But in another instant she caught back her intended note. "I'm so glad to see you," she said, agreeably, conventionally. "Is Amy at home? I'm Jane Terry—"

To her relief he answered in her own line. "Of course! I couldn't see you in that dull light." He snapped on an overhead lantern, opened the living room door. "Come in, do. Amy's upstairs—she'll be down—"

Jane made her entrance, talking on with determined ease. "I came rather suddenly because of Aunt Rosa. She's been so miserable since she had the flu, and I'll be here such a short time—and I wanted to be sure to see Amy—" She stopped, she was staring at something on the floor by the sofa, a rag doll sprawling abandonedly among some blocks. Her ease, her elegance deserted her. Those things must belong to her child. Her own child!

"I want to see—my baby—" she whispered, involuntarily.

BLANTON TELLS COUNTY VOTERS OF HIS RECORD

EASTLAND, July 14.—Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, campaigning for re-election, addressed a large audience assembled on the south side of the Eastland county courthouse lawn here Saturday night. He was introduced by J. Frank Sparks, Eastland attorney and president of the Eastland county Blanton-For-Congress Club.

Mr. Blanton' speech here was the 58th he has delivered since he returned from Washington at the adjournment of congress, 17 days ago, and was the eighth speech delivered in Eastland county.

As at other places over his district Judge Blanton told of his record in congress, emphasizing the waste he has been able to stop and the saving he has effected for the people by his systematic fight on bad bills.

He especially explained the banking measures, including the national bank guaranty law, which he assisted in passing, dwelling to some extent on the anti-crime law passed by the last congress, and said that even more legislation favorable to the masses was in prospect for the next congress.

Says Opposite True

His vote in passing the independent offices bill, which also included government employes and veterans' pay cuts, was explained by the speaker who stated that it was being charged that he voted to raise his own salary when as a matter of fact just the opposite was true.

As at Ranger and Olden, Blanton said that it was being charged that he had promised 20 or more people in Eastland appointment as postmaster in order to get their votes. He branded this as untrue and pointed out that as soon as vacancies were declared in postoffice in his district he made appointments promptly. He challenged anyone to produce evidence in Eastland that he had promised the Eastland postoffice to anybody.

He explained that he had secured appropriations for postoffice buildings for Eastland and Ranger, along with numerous other towns in his district and that as soon as preliminary matters of sites, etc., were out of the way the building would be constructed.

In the outset of his speech the congressman praised President Roosevelt as one of the greatest friends of the masses this country has ever produced.

At Olden and at Ranger Friday movements to organize Blanton-for-congress clubs were launched immediately after the speaking. These clubs are to become affiliated with the Eastland county Blanton-for-Congress club of which Frank Sparks of Eastland is president.

Blanton expressed his appreciation for the support heretofore given him in this and adjoining counties and entered a plea for a solid vote in the coming July primary, promising in return the same loyal and faithful service he has been rendering the people of his district.

July 16, 1934

The next few days show interest in hazarious ventures and radical changes. Better things may come from this impulse than is evidenced at the present time. The first of this is shown this morning. Good judgment also is manifested this morning. This is no evening for a party. Better stay at home.

BIRTHDAYS

You use forethought and have the qualities of a statesman. You must be careful of money from Sept. 2 through Sept. 12. The first of March, 1935 is as good as Sept. is poor. Socially good August 11 and 12.

Hughes Says Reform Must Come to Texas

TYLER, July 14 — Social, economic and political reforms envisioned in the new deal must be made in Texas to effect a complete recovery, former State Democratic Chairman Maury Hughes of Dallas, candidate for governor, declared in an address here Friday night.

"The president's heroic fight for recovery goes on," Mr. Hughes said. "The battle is being waged on all fronts. Next winter, we can expect new legislation designed to hasten economic recovery.

"I am extremely fortunate in having the confidence of the president. As chairman of his NRA advisory board for Texas, I traveled the state explaining the new deal. I did it at a personal sacrifice, but gladly.

"As chairman of the state democratic executive committee, I urged solid party support for his policies and he has gotten it in this state.

"But the president has said that the states must not sit idly by and depend on the federal government to do everything. The new deal contemplates every man putting his shoulder to the wheel. The president needs behind him governors and legislators of unselfishness and courage who will be good soldiers in this great cause. He must have help to succeed.

"Nobody but the selfish complain of his courageous efforts. It behooves all of us to get squarely behind him, because he is doing his best for the masses."

RURAL CENTER IS FEATURE AT SHORT COURSE

COLLEGE STATION, July 14—A rural work center, designed to show the Texas Relief commission's plan for small manufacture as a method of long-time rural rehabilitation, will be one of the new features of the 25th annual farmers' short course ta Texas A. & M. college July 30 to August 3.

Texas extension service officials in announcing the course said erection of work center buildings already has begun on the campus. The center will consist of three buildings including a main building containing a canning kitchen, work room and an office library; a syrup mill, and feed and grist mills.

Among the things to be manufactured in the work center during the short course will be syrup, meal, screens, shelves, chairs, tiles, baskets, ropes, mattreses, comforts, rugs, bedroom linens, grape juice, tomato juice, peanut butter and breakfast foods. There also will be demonstrated meat cutting and curing and conversion of logs into different useful articles.

The work center will be a concrete demonstration of the rural work center as it can be made if members ofa community so desire, according to extension officials. Any Texas community, they pointed out may receive public assistance in establishment of such a center by cooperating with the Texas Relief commission.

The community must furnish vacant houses which can be made habitable in return for free rent privileges by families brought in from the cities or taken from the relief rolls of the community. In addition the community must donate land for the rural work center.

The immediate object of the plan is to take families off the relief rolls and to make them self-supporting by means of manufacture of small products. The center also will be open to other members of the community.

"My Fords Have All Been Honest Cars"

Figures from Ford V-8 owners show 272,815,970 miles of steady running, without a penny for repairs

THE true story of motor-car value is Written-on-the-Road. There a car reveals its character. There it shows what it can do.

Figures from 34,954 Ford V-8 owners show a total of 272,815,970 miles without a penny for repairs. Their letters are further proof of Ford V-8 economy and dependability.

"I transport school children," writes a Ford owner in Minnesota, "and see plenty of tough going. In three years and eight months I have never missed a trip nor have I been late. My Fords have all been honest cars."

"Never Been Late in the Ford V-8"

Another Ford V-8 owner writes: "A friend of mine was planning on buying a new car but was considering another make. To prove to him the economy of the Ford V-8 we made a 59-mile run. The gas used was exactly three gallons, measured for the run. It is needless to tell you that my friend now owns a V-8."

A salesman writes: "I drive about 1500 miles a month. I have not spent five dollars for repairs on the five Ford cars I have used. In more than 100,000 miles I have had no motor trouble."

A police officer writes: "To date I have operated my Ford V-8 for seven months and have driven 15,000 miles — most of which was done at speeds up to 88 miles per hour. I have not paid out one penny for repairs or replacements of any kind."

Fleet owner says Ford V-8 is "the most economical car to operate."

A business man writes: "I am interested in a corporation operating eleven cars in the same price range as the Ford. Five are Fords and six are other makes.

"Our experience over a two-year period shows that the Ford is the most economical car to operate and it is our intention to replace the six other cars with Fords.

"I have had better results and been better satisfied with my Fords than with cars costing much more."

No words of ours about the Ford V-8 could be half so convincing as these letters from owners showing what the car is doing in actual service. We invite you to drive it and let it tell you its own story of performance, comfort, safety and economy.

Article 5110 says in addition to all other remedies, the attorney-general is authorized to enjoin the violation of any article dealing with intoxicants.

Dry or Wet

But is Texas dry or wet? Wets cite the vote for the 3.2 beer amendment adopted last August. They point to the numerous local option elections in which former dry territory permitted beer sales under that amendment.

Drys draw a distinction between the beer amendment and repeal of the prohibition against hard liquor. Many drys in the state legislature voted for submission of the beer amendment.

Abuse of the beer amendment, leading wets admit, has hurt their cause. Before the amendment became effective, chiselers began its sale over protest of the wet advocates. Now, hard liquor is sold in all the leading cities along with beer.

In most places it is done openly. After a minor liquor gang war, San Antonio ordered hard liquor sales stopped. The whisky bottles went under the bar instead of upon it. San Antonio grand juries did not indict for liquor sales. They used to but no conviction ever resulted.

Officers in other places say convictions are impossible to obtain, partly because of the harsh fact that conviction under present law means a prison sentence.

There is a reason why we have won the Engrave Silver Plaque from Dr. Sid H. Gross. We do more lu brication because our friends testify as to the efficie cy when we have done a satisfactory lubrication jo for them.

tailed band struck up "The Eyes of Texas", and those of Carlisle popped out as he came gingerly down the steps to the grins of the train crew and the laughter and glad hands of a crowd of friends. His face was so red that the color of his hair faded into the general landscape.

He and Elliott, who had arrived a few days ahead of him, were escorted to the car, paraded up and down D avenue, and at the chamber of commerce W. J. Leach presented them a giant wooden key, emblematic of the civic hospitality that was theirs. The ceremony was a formal interlude in an hour of band blaring and horn tooting and laughter, but the two carried off the key to their chariot, and Sec'y Spencer of the chamber of commerce was left wondering whether or not he was to get it back. It sems to be something of a relic.

The welcome, they admitted, was quite a demonstration that the visitor should be careful of what he orders from Cisco. He might get it.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

NEW YORK—Frank O'Doul, famous hitter of the Giants, cannot see of what service a golf professional could be to a baseball club.

O'Doul, who also is the best golfer in the National League, was discussing Charley Lacey's suggestion that major league outfits engage teachers of the royal and ancient pastime to instruct players how to hit properly.

"The same fundamentals hold good whether you're swinging a bat or a brassie," contends Lacey, who led the field in the first round of the National Open at Merion recently.

O'Doul disagrees—believes the games are incompatible.

"I remember reading in a manual that women often attain true golf form, quicker than men because most of the latter, having played baseball in their youth, prefer to start with the same style of swing," asserts O'Doul.

Swings, Targets Different

"IN baseball you hit a rapidly moving ball with elbows bent. In golf, you hit a stationary target on the ground, and, at the time of contact, the left elbow should be as straight as a ramrod.

"While Ty Cobb played golf during the off-season, he argued that it spoiled batting eyes. This is not true, as Sammy Byrd, Babe Ruth, Jimmy Dykes and other very fine golfing ball players have demonstrated.

"The late Miller Huggins forbade the Yankees to play golf in season for a more logical reason. He feared some of them would play it to excess, and leave too much of their energy on courses."

Helpful Relatives

REMEMBER Bill Terry inquiring last spring if the Brooklyn club was still in the National League? Well, by now, Memphis Bill knows very well that the Dodgers still are lying around handy—with their epidemic of injuries making them handier than ever for the New York outfit.

Were the Flatbush Funsters in the Arkansas State League, where they may properly belong, sailing might not be so smooth for Terry and his Giants, who might otherwise now be puffing along at the head of the second division instead of leading the loop. If you scan the records, you will find that the Dodgers have been mighty kind to the Terriers thus far this season.

Subway Series Preview

NEW YORK addicts, hoping for the first five-cent fare world series since the Yankees and Giants held a monopoly on the fall show in '21, '22, and '23, will get an idea of what it would look like when the American and National League All-Stars again have it out at the Polo Grounds on July 10.

The hodcarriers of the two aggregations, Vernon Gomez and Hubbell, are almost certain to start, with Bill Dickey catching the Castilian. The contest will afford a comparison between the remarkable first basemen, Lou Gehrig and Terry, and the powerhouses, old Babe Ruth and young Mel Ott. Travis Jackson may also break in somewhere along the route.
