Commissioners Court Pays Off Debt

Rambles
Over the County

J. W. L. COOK
The Leader's Rambling Editor

J. T. Harrison

Our first visit for the week, Dec. 1, was at the home of J. T. Harrison, who is living at present, 4 miles southeast of Wellington. Mr. Harrison is a new man in the county. He came here a few months ago from Cook County, Texas. Mr. Harrison tells us he will live the coming year about 3 miles east of town. He has bought some property in the city and will locate in Collingsworth County.

N. T. King

Our next place to visit was at the home of N. T. King, 5 miles southeast of town. Mr. King had stolen a march on us, as he had rented out his farm for next crop to Mr. T. L. Ward. Mr. King owns a nice home in the city and has moved into town. Mr. King had 100 acres of cotton this year. He is only counting on getting 16 bales. He is about done picking. According to Mr. King's count, it is taking about six acres to make a bale. This seems very short, but it is not a failure by quite a lot. Mr. King made more than one-half of a bale last year. His land is rather tight so the dry weather this year burned his crop badly. His feed was almost ruined. Mr. King is an old time subscriber and set his paper up one more year.

T. L. Ward

Mr. T. L. Ward, who has rented the N. T. King farm is a new comer. He has only been in the county since last August. He came here from Mississippi. He says he has been in five different states and likes this country better than any place he has ever been. We took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Ward. We found them to be a sociable and hospitable people, the kind that make the real good citizenship of the country. Mr. Ward was rather indisposed. He was suffering with gallstone trouble but was somewhat better at the time of our visit.

J. R. Reynolds

Our next stop was at the home of J. R. Reynolds, who lives 2 miles east of Fresno. Mr. Reynolds was raised in this county and is living on part of the old Reynold's home where he was born. Mr. Reynolds says he will get one-fourth of a bale of cotton to the acre. He says his feed is not good and has but little grain, but it will make very good feed. He has a good home and a fine piece of land, but the dry weather burned his crop. He gave us a renewal for the Leader another year.

Earl Reynolds

We went next to the home of Earl Reynolds, 9 miles southeast of Wellington. Earl is a brother of J. R. and lives at the old Reynold's home place. This old home is one of the first settlements in that part of the county. There seems to be quite a family that was raised on this old home. We have formed the acquaintance of four of the Reynolds brothers, John, Louis, J. R. and Earl. We went to the field and found Earl busy gathering. He says his crop is very short this year, but he will get through alright.

T. W. Kesler

T. W. Kesler, who lives 8 miles southeast of town, says he will only get about 12 bales of cotton on 80 acres. He has plenty of bundle stuff for roughness, but the grain is not very good. Mr. Kesler is farming the Janes place. He nas good land to cultivate, but the dry hot weather cut his crop short this year. After leaving the Kesler home we next stopped at the John Reynolds farm, which is some 12 or 13 miles southeast of town. We were not expecting to find him down in that part of the country as he lives in town, and is one of our nearest neighbors. Mr. Reynolds says he has a fairly good crop of both cotton and feed. He was busy gathering corn which seemed to be fairly good for this year. We went from the John Reynolds farm to the home of R. J. Holland, who lives about three miles northwest of Dodsonville. Mr. Holland has a fine home. He is a stock farmer. He has quite a lot of grass land or pasture as well as a good farm. Mr. Holland has about 100 head of fine Whiteface cattle. He has quite a lot of fine registered cattle and all are good grades that are not registered. Mr. Holland says he raisedfairly good crops of both feed and cotton. He has plenty of feed to run his stock with the exception of some cotton seed cake that he feeds to his calves. We spent the night at the Holland home. We had had a special invitation to spend the night with them. We enjoyed our night's rest. Mr. and Mrs. Holland have a fine home, well furnished and finished. They have their home lighted from a carbide plant and have a good water system with water running to all parts of the house and lots. They take the Wellington Leader and gave us a renewal to the Leader and Telegram.

MRS. LAURA CAMPBELL TO SEEK OFFICE

Present County Treasurer Will Run For Office Again In 1926

Mrs. Laura Campbell has announced that she will be a candidate for the office of county treasurer in the 1926 elections. Mrs. Campbell has held the office of county treasurer since 1923. The money she makes from this position is the sole support of her family, her husband being an invalid.

Mrs. Campbell is a Texan by birth, and has lived in this state most of her life, although she lived in Hollis part of the time. She received the first year of her high school training in the Hollis high school. She completed her high school training in the Clarendon high school and graduated from Clarendon College two years later. She has been living in Wellington since 1920.

Mrs. Campbell says that one of the reasons she wants the job is because it is necessary for her to work in order to gain a livelyhood, but that she does not want the office just on sympathy of the voters. She says she has become acquainted with the duties of the county treasurer and that she has always tried to do her work justice. It is upon her past work that she intends to base her candidacy and upon the promise that this work will be continued just as faithfully in the future as it has been in the past.

Since learning that she would make the race, a number of Mrs. Campbell's supporters have called at The Leader to give a word about the work that she has done. They say that she has been the most efficient county treasurer that Collingsworth County has had in some time although there have been several very good ones before her. They further state that she is thoroughly acquainted with the entire working of the county system of government which is an essential qualification to one holding the office of treasurer because she comes in daily contact with all departments of the county work.

The office of county treasurer is one that entails considerable responsibility upon the holder. It is not only a position of trust but it is one that requires business ability. Mrs. Campbell has made a strong following by her work in the office.

YATES WILL HOLD PUBLIC AUCTION SALE ON DEC. 17

J. E. Yates will hold a farm sale on December 17 on his farm about a mile and a half southeast of the Lutie store. Mr. Yates is planning on moving to town and he intends to dispose of his farm property. The large list of stuff that he will offer for sale ranges from 10 hogs to large quantities of feed and maize with farm implements and stock included. Col. Bob Sammons will act as auctioneer and Odis Woods will be clerk.

HALL COUNTY WINS PRIZE ON CHICKENS AT POULTRY SHOW

Hall County won the county prize award on poultry at the Amarillo Tri-State Fair. Hall County is rapidly developing into a prosperous poultry section. Many flocks of the best strains are being developed in that county and are producing profitable returns. There were eighteen exhibitors from Hall County present at the poultry show exhibiting a total of 150 birds.

Mrs. Claude McKinney was operated on for appendicitis at the Baptist Hospital Monday. She is resting quitely after the operation.

Water Well Producing 200 Gallons

Council Going Ahead on Work with Sewerage

Coming Election Will Decide Method of Financing Sewerage System

The fourth of the new wells at the City pumping station was brought in last Saturday and is producing 200 gallons a minute. This increases the total available supply to 620 gallons a minute as compared with 100 gallons which has been the plants capacity heretofore.

The contract for the engineering on the waterworks has already been let to the Devlin Engineering Company of Amarillo. The contract for relaying the water lines will be let December 14.

Although the city council is proceeding carefully with the work, the work toward getting a sewerage system for Wellington is steadily advancing. The water question has been completely solved. The council is now waiting on the election which will be held December 22 to determine the method of financing the sewerage system.

Whatever way the election goes the town will have the sewerage system, for the Council intends to issue warrants in case the bond issue is not passed. The bond issue is simply a better method of financing the proposition giving the city a lower interest rate on its old debts and a wider margin of credit.

W. I. ATKINSON BELIEVES IN DIVERSIFIED FARMING

W. I. Atkinson, a cotton farmer and a land owner of the Quail community, came to the Leader office to place an ad in the classified Want Ad Section, as he was almost sure the ad would locate the lost article.

Mr. Atkinson says he has 300 acres of cotton on his place and has picked 80 bales and will get 20 or 25 more. He says he will make plenty of grain feed to run the place. Mr. Atkinson says he has been in Collingsworth County 35 years, and was engaged in hog raising from 1900 to 1920. He says there is money to be made raising hogs. He says for some reason he became interested in raising cotton in 1920, thought there might be more money in raising cotton than hogs. He says he has tried both, and is thoroughtly convinced that to take it one year with another there is more money and satisfaction in raising hogs than cotton. But he says a farmer should diversify to a certain extent and not try to raise all of one thing. Mr. Atkinson says he wants to buy all the hogs that his pasture will take care of.

Mr. Atkinson is a subscriber to the Leader and has been for many years, every since there has been a paper in Collingsworth County and expects to be a reader of the Leader as long as he lives.

W. C. LOWRY THINKS THE FARM IS THE BEST PLACE TO LIVE

W. C. Lowry, a farmer 5 miles northwest of town, says he has 200 acres of cotton that will make 55 or 60 bales. He says he also has 75 acres of maize that will make about 45 tons of feed. Mr. Lowry says he has been in Collingsworth County for 13 years, of which 12 years was spent in the city of Wellington. He has been farming only one year and thinks the farm is the place, he says if he had gotten a good price for his cotton this year he would have been in much better financial condition.

Misses Plevina and Leila Stall went to Amarillo last week and stayed over to hear the concert given by the Sousa Band. Mrs. Stall says that they enjoyed the concert very much. Miss Plevina Stall is visiting in Clarendon at the present time.

Chas. Ogletree of Littlefield, Tex. was in Wellington visiting relatives and friends the past Saturday. He says his cotton is not much but he will make enough feed to run the farm for three years. Mr. Ogletree is an old timer of the Quail community and says Collingsworth looks good to him.

District Court In Midst Of Session

Two Of Most Interesting Cases Will Be Heard Next Week

District Court has been busy since convening. Besides the many civil cases which included thirty divorce suits, the grand jury has returned 33 felony bills and eight for misdemeanor.

Among the cases which will come up this week are those of the State vs. Jessie Lacy, colored, on the charge of murder. The case of the State vs. Pete Bean was changed to county court. In the case of the State vs. Fred Oakford the defendant was given a four year suspended sentence.

In the case of the State vs. L. C. Adlock and A. C. Burrows on the charge of the theft from the J. B. Ellis store, Adcock was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and Burrows was acquitted. Ruby Walker, colored, was given a five year suspended sentence in a whiskey case. Joe Williams, colored, was sentenced to two years for forgery.

The two cases that are attracting the most attention will be tried next week. The first of these is the case of the State vs. Horace Young on the charge of a statutory offense against his daughter. This case will be tried Monday, December 14. The second is the case of the State vs Bob Edwards et al on the charge of manufacturing and selling intoxicating liquor.

CHILDRESS GIRL DIES IN WRECK ON WELLINGTON ROAD

Miss Iva Lee Pennell was killed Sunday night on the Childress road near that place when the car in which she and Mike Milam were driving was overturned. The young people spent the afternoon visiting in Wellington and were returning home when the accident happened.

It was stated that the car Miss Pennell was driving was making good speed when it came to a car parked on the right hand side of the road without lights. Miss Pennell swerved her car to avoid a collision and turned it over into a ditch. She died almost instantly. Her escort is suffering from severe bruises and nervous shock.

WEST TEXAS STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE WINS HONOR

Canyon, Texas, December 5, 1925—A telegram received today from the President J. A. Hill of the West Texas State Teachers College announces that this college has been granted full membership in the Southern Association of Colleges, having been received by the unanimous vote of that body.

The Southern Association of Colleges maintains a very high standard, and it is difficult for colleges to gain admittance. Only eight Texas colleges were members before the meeting which took place in Charleston, South Carolina, last week.

Students who receive their training at the West Texas State Teachers College will not be rated upon exactly the same standards as students from the oldest college of the south. President Hill is much pleased with the acceptance of the college which he heads as it is proof of the high quality of work which it is doing.

MRS. T. V. REECES.

LOCKHART TO PLANT MORE PECAN TREES

A. S. J. Lockhart has just returned from east Texas where he bought a supply of paper shell pecans which he intends to plant for nursery purposes. If all the pecans he has planted come up, he will have about a thousand trees to distribute over the county. Mr. Lockhart already has 140 pecan trees on his farm. These trees are three years old and will be producers in three more years. Mr. Lockhart says they are no trouble after they grow three feet high and they are very hardy. These pecans are now selling for 50c a pound.

POULTRY NOW BRINGS HIGH PRICES HERE

Cotton Slumps As Revenue Producer When Compared To Chickens and Turkeys

With live turkeys bringing nearly three times as much per pound as cotton the advisability of raising turkeys and chickens as side lines is becoming more apparent to the farmers of Collingsworth County.

This week live turkeys are selling in Wellington for 34c a pound. Chickens are bringing 20c a pound and eggs are 50c a dozen at the produce houses. Butter is 50c a pound.

Cotton on the other hand following the government estimate of 15,603,000 bales and an actual ginning report of 13,857,686 is low for the lower grades. This will cause many farmers to think more seriously about raising a certain amount of chickens and turkeys along with their cotton next year.

Cotton always will be the biggest money crop in Collingsworth County, and it is very probable that just as much or more acreage will be planted next year than in 1925, but cotton is not a real money crop unless a majority of the necessities of life are grown on the farm. The farmers who have four or five hogs, a few chickens, some feed and who produced some garden stuff last summer are in good condition, but the farmers who hired their crops planted, trusted mainly to cotton and then paid high wages to have it gathered are realizing little profit in proportion to the money they have invested.

An increased interest is being taken in all forms of diversified farming. Many farmers are getting a few hogs, but few are planning on going into the hog business on an extensive basis, for it has not proved profitable when conducted on a large scale in this county.

Many other farmers are planning on making a little surplus money from their milk cows, but the most favorable sign is the awakened interest in the poultry business.

OLD FIDDLERS CONTEST IS HELD AT MEMPHIS DEC. 4

The Old Fiddlers Contest was held at Memphis, Texas, November 4. Five men entered the contest. Hugh Roden of Wellington was awarded first prize in the violin contest, and received a violin valued at $50.00.

Roy Rogers was awarded first prize in the whistling contest. He received $15 in cash and a pair of gold cuff buttons valued at $5.00. He whistled "Mocking Bird", "Second Ragtime Anna" and "Turkey in the Straw." In the three selections he imitated 28 different birds. There were three entries in this contest.

Loral Holt of Wellington, was awarded first prize in the dancing (jig) of $10.00. There were three to enter this contest and they danced for 15 minutes.

R. H. CRANE MAKES GOOD FEED CROP

R. H. Crane, who lives 8 miles south west of town, has 45 acres of cotton that will make some 8 or 10 bales. He says he will make enough feed to run his place next year. He says he has been in Collingsworth County for two years, he came from Grayson County, south of Sherman. Mr. Crane says this is a better farming country than Grayson County. He says one man can cultivate more land in this county than he can in the eastern counties. Mr. Crane is living on Ernest Scott's farm. While in the Leader office Mr. Crane paid for a one year's subscription to the Leader and the Star Telegram to be sent to his address.

DAIRY SCHOOL WILL BE HELD IN CHILDRESS

A dairy school will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Hall in Childress Sautrday, December 12. At that time John R. Edmonds and Bruce Oats will speak at this meeting which is held with the assistance of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas.

$30,000 ROAD BONDS BOUGHT BACK MONDAY

Retired Bonds Will Be Sent To Wellington From Toledo Firm

The Commissioners Court of Collingsworth County has retired $30,000 worth of the $100,000 road bonds. Judge Templeton received a telegram Monday from Stranahan Harris & Oatis Inc. of Toledo, Ohio, saying that the bonds had been sold back to the county and that they would be sent to Wellington shortly.

As many know, in 1913 during Judge Nicholson's administration the County voted $100,000.00 road bonds. The bonds are due in forty years, or in 1956, with option to commence paying them off in 1937 in $5000.00 blocks, and draw interest at 5 per cent. The annual interest on these bonds is $5000. At the time of the issue of the bonds a tax was levied to provide a sinking fund to accumulate money to pay off this issue. While the bonds drew interest at 5 per cent the sinking fund could only be let at 2 1-2 per cent which showed a loss, and, as the sinking fund had accumulated sufficiently to retire a block of these bonds, Judge Templeton began negotiations to retire a block of these bonds. After considerable negotiations, he succeeded in locating and getting an offer to buy $30,000.00 of these bonds at par, which he submitted to the Commissioners Court and it promptly bought back $30.000.00 of its bonds. The interest saved on this $30.000.00 each year is $1500.00 which is the annual salary of the County Judge, so in this one deal Judge Templeton saved his year's salary to the County.

It is quite frequent that we read where a county or city has voted a large issue of bonds, but it is very seldom that we read where a County has retired so large a block of indebtedness and especially so long before it became due. The option to commence retiring these bonds did not commence until 1937, yet the Commissioners have retired $30,000.00 of these bonds eleven years before the maturity of the option. This is unquestionably good business. If the present Commissioners Court had done nothing else, this act alone is sufficient to justify the confidence of the people in electing them.

Judge Templeton stressed two things in his campaign for County Judge, one was better roads for Collingsworth County and an economic business administration and the lowering of Collingsworth County's indebtedness instead of increasing it. These two things he has kept steadily as his objective. With the retiring of so large a block of the County's indebtedness and the splendid condition of the County's finance he has made good his program in piloting the County's financial policy.

The people will likely give Judge Templeton and the Commissioners Court great credit for their good roads work. It will be remembered that the County had no machinery or money to work the roads with when he went into office, and the roads were in poor condition over the County. The Commissioners Court purchased the right kind of road building machinery and formulated a systematic plan for building permanent roads for Collingsworth County. They first built the cardinal or main roads thru the County, then commenced on the lateral roads. Next year will be devoted to the lateral roads, and with the machinery the County now has, a great showing can be made. There has been more road building during the present year, perhaps, than in any year during the history of the County. The present Court seems to realize the importance of what good roads means to Collingsworth Couny, and are centering their efforts upon good roads. They are not going in debt or voting bonds or issuing warrants but are working within the limits of the County's revenue and building the roads under a strict economic policy.

The men who compose the Commissioners Court at the present time are: B. F. Ford, W. L. Cooper, H. I. Cagle and J. A. Coleman.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lewis of Wilcox, Arizona, are visiting Mr. Lewis' brothers, Gene and Ernest Lewis of Wellington. Ralph and Gene are twin brother, and they resemble each other so much you can hardly tell Ralph from Gene or Gene from Ralph.

You may be fond of football, yet you don't have any desire to take part in the line of scrimmage, at least with your street clothes on, no doubt, you have tried it. This thing of waiting on yourself in a grocery store, standing in line in a narrow space, having to put up your packages of potatoes, carrying a bag of flour, a pail of shortening, a piece of boiling meat, perhaps ruining clothes that cost more than the entire month's grocery bill will amount to, and when you reach the cash register the whirl of the machine produces a corresponding confused sensation in your mind, and you "fade out" of the place all tired out. If you actually came out ahead financially, you'd feel justified, perhaps. But we challenge your careful thought. You do not! It is natural for the Wellington people to get what they want, and they are fast learning that Snell's Grocery is the place to get the most for their money.

School began November 16. The teachers are: Miss Myrtella Mann, principal, she was a student in the Baptist College at Decatur last year; Miss Clema Muncie, the primary teacher has been a student in West Texas State Teacher's College at Canyon for the past two years.

School is progressing nicely, thirty students have enrolled and several more are expected after the holidays.

Mr. Winn, the county superintendent, visited us one day last week.

The boys have organized a junior basket ball team and they wish to say to the other teams in the county to get busy if they expect to win the championship—for the Wilnulcer team believes in the quotation: "Anything that it worth doing is worth doing well" and they do not fail to abide by it.

There were quite a number of young people that enjoyed a singing at Mr. Null's Sunday night.

Sunday morning Miss Clema Muncie attended church at Wellington at the Church of Christ.

In the near future we hope to entertain you with a program.

What Girls Marry

THE GIRLS OF the West Texas State Teachers College have decided what kind of men they want to marry. The average girl at that institution, says the Amarillo Globe, wants a man who is not a petter, who does not drink, who is well educated, cultured and refined. Such a qualification is certainly no reflection upon the aspirations of the young ladies attending the college. Undoubtedly some benevolent instructor has been admonishing them to hitch their wagons high. Such hopes would be splendid if there were any such young men. There are young men who meet part of the requirements, but Jesus Christ is the only one who could meet them all, and he was so perfect that he had no need for woman.

Now there is no sin in aiming high, but more happy marriages might be made and kept if both parties, especially the women, entered the bondage knowing that they were going to live with an ordinary human from whom all the glamour and most of the glory would fade in the first nine months.

In the matter of salary, two per cent of the girls can subsist on $1,000 a year while twenty-four per cent want their husbands to earn $2,400 and fourteen per cent want their husbands to earn enough to live comfortably, which is always just exactly $10 a month more than any man can make. On their part eleven per cent of the girls wanted no children. Certainly it is a per cent want only two children. Certainly it is a woman's privilege to say how many children she will have, but why can't the poor hen pecked men say how much they will make.

If the girls wants were actual realizations it would be a rather sad affair—a give and take proposition with the girls doing most of the taking. But the happy part of it—for the men at least—is that those girls will marry the men they can get and then try to make the best of it.

The President and Farming

MONDAY PRESIDENT Coolidge made a speech on the agricultural situation. The three principal points of his speech were: He thinks the farmers must help themselves. He believes in co-operative marketing and an extensive educational program. He is opposed to a revision of the tariffs and to price fixing on farm products.

While the President's remarks are sound, the hopeful note in it comes from the indication of a general economic trend rather more than from anything the President intends to do to help the Farmer. He said: "I believe the past history of the relative trend of prices between farm products and other commodities is of tremendous significance. The surplus lands of the country are exhausted. The industrial population is outstripping the farm population. Manufacturing is expanding. These must come to the farmer for their food and their raw materials."

In short the only real improvement in the farm situation that he sees is one that will take years to effect. What the farmers want is immediate improvement. That brings it back to a question of helping themselves. Farmers in different states must help themselves in different ways, but the farmers in Collingsworth County can help themselves now by paying more attention to the cow, sow and hen.

There was a loud knock on the door of the factor's quarters. Then the blood of French soldiers and gentlemen in the veins of Denise St. Onge flamed in her face—proved itself. With a firm step she went to the door and opening it, looked proudly into the eyes of Louis Laflamme.

The free-trader had made his threat good.

"Mademoiselle St. Onge, I have come to talk with you."

"It is evident, monsieur."

Laflamme stepped inside and, as she retreated, closed the door, following her into the living-room.

"You will pardon me if I throw off my coat," he said.

"I do not desire trouble here in my father's absence," she protested with a confidence she did not feel, "but I shall send Charlotte to call our men and force you to leave this post."

Laflamme laughed, as he paced the floor nervously. "Your men? You might better call on your women to aid you. Two of your brave retainers are under guard now, in the trade-house. We couldn't find the others, if you have them."

It was clear to the girl, who gallantly fought with her fear of Laflamme's purpose in coming to the post when she was alone—helpless, that he controlled the situation, and would be heard.

"What have you come here for, monsieur?" she began.

The bold face of the trader flushed as he gazed at the girl whose memory had taken his peace of mind. The hardness of the mouth softened, in the dark eyes was the look of a boy as he answered:

"It is a story you have heard before, mademoiselle. But I am here to tell it at a time when you will be wise to listen. This is a ruined fur post. Your father will be forced to leave in the spring. What does that mean to you?"

"I have nothing to say," she answered, sitting with chin cupped in hand, face averted.

"Oh, do you mean to say that you prefer selling yourself to that storekeeper, Lascelles, to living in luxury in Montreal, Winnipeg—?"

"You may insult me, monsieur. I have no means of defending myself," she broke in, coldly.

Then Laflamme lost all self-control, and stormed:

"Insult you? Oh, yes! But that is the truth, is it not? You do not love this man, do you? To save your father's future you have agreed to marry him—this man you despise! Oh, I know! He's not fit to look at you—you beauty!"

White-faced, the girl sat with eyes on the floor—silent, as if she did not hear.

"True, you think you hate me now, but you would change," he ran on talking as if to himself. "You may have heard hard things said of me, but I swear to you, if you will marry me, Denise St. Onge, I'll show you what love is. I'll make your father independent—make you," his voice broke with emotion, "yes, make you happy! I've loved you ever since you played for us that night at Albany—years ago."

Laflamme stopped and looked down with a gesture of helplessness at the woman of stone in the chair. Then he heard the low words: "You forget, monsieur, someone who is still at Ogoke."

"I know how that looks to you," he defended, "but that was over, years ago—years. I've given her a home—couldn't turn her out. But she hates me, tried to knife me, wanted to run away with that American, Steele, this October! She put on black the day she heard he had been drowned on the way home."

There was a long silence, then: "Why were you afraid to have him reach Nepigon?"

Laflamme started, then laughed. "Afraid to have him reach Nepigon? That's funny! He got some supplies and went on. What do you mean?"

Then the girl countered: "Your Indians are not faithful to their master, monsieur. We learned that you had Monsieur Steele ambushed after stealing his ammunition, and forced him to go to his death."

"Do you believe that?" demanded Laflamme, puzzled.

"Is it true?"

"No!"

The room was again silent while the man, famed for his cold nerve, his resource, bit his lips in impotency before the icy calm of this strange girl who so obsessed him. Then he played his trump card.

"So you insist on casting your lot with that rat at Albany? Then it is for me to save you from yourself. I have brought an extra sled. Pack your clothes at once!"

The girl rose to her full height and met his cynical look with resolute eyes, but in her heart was fear.

"You do not dare!" she cried. "They would hunt you from Fort Hope, from Albany, from Nepigon House. In three weeks the police would be at Ogoke. But before the police teams arrived, do you know what they would do to you? They would burn you in your trade-house! You do not dare!"

With open admiration Laflamme watched the play of color and emotion in the face of the frightened girl who confronted him.

"If you'd flush that way when I say I love you," he cried, "I'd give all I have in the world. Why, girl, I'd sell my soul, if you'd look at me, just once and say you loved me!"

"I despise you!"

The sting of the words cut like the lash of a whip. His self-control, already at the breaking point, crumbled.

"Despise me, do you?" he snarled. "Dare me to do my worst? Suppose I take you at your word? Mon Dieu! I'm mad enough about you to do anything! Who it is, then, you love?" He thrust his passionate face close to hers. "You hate me—you don't want Lascelles! It must be that d—d dead American you're mooning about! Well, he's at the bottom of the Jackfish, and he forgot you before he had been at Ogoke two hours—forgot even your name when he saw Rose!"

She faced his anger proudly, contempt in her bloodless face, until he mentioned Steele, then slowly her knees gave way and she sank in a chair.

"It was that American!" he stormed. "Pity I didn't finish him myself!"

Then something on the table caught his eye—held it! His face went dark with his sinister purpose when, with a quick movement, he seized the violin, raised it above his head, and brought it down with a crash on the table, then dropped it to the floor and trampled it under his feet.

With a groan the girl fell to her knees and, gathering the splintered shell of the violin to her breast, moaned over it as a mother over a stricken child.

At last he had reached her.

At the sound there was a guttural exclamation from the door, and with lifted knife, a wild-eyed Ojibway woman threw herself upon the surprised Laflamme. Leaping back, he caught and parried the thrust with his forearm, then, with his uninjured hand, wrenched the knife from the maddened squaw and hurled her across the room to the floor."

While they huddled there on the floor—the girl, the light of whose life had been ruthlessly snuffed out, and the woman of the dark skin, who understood—dog-bells jingled in the clearing as two sleds took up the river trail.

* * * * * * *

Late that afternoon, St. Onge reached the fork of the Stooping river, but the spruce, dready blue with shadow, gave bac his call, unanswered. He turned into the mouth of the stream and took the Portage lake trail, searching the silent shores for the camp of Michel, but the headman was not there.

"This is very strange," he said, and cut his wood to camp alone.

Deep in the night, St. Onge waked in his blankets, as his dogs gave back the husky challenge to creatures whose scent the freezing air had carried to their nostrils. But the drowsy man did not know that two sled teams were passing below him on the Wailing River trail.

CHAPTER XIV

On the night of Little Jacques' return to Portage lake the four men sat by the fire planning their future movements. It had been a week since the beast had howled or visited the traplines in the district, for David had arranged with the uplake hunters to relay the news of his appearance immediately.

"I'd give ten years of my life if that old bird would sing up there on that ridge this evening," said Steele.

"You'll get your chance before we're done, don't worry. How would you like to draw a bead on your friend Laflamme this evening?"

The Ojibway shook his head. "W'en I tak' Laflamme's trail I feex heem wid de han'. I use no gun on heem. Eef I got nol' dat Black Baptiste, too, I break sometin' more dan hees fing—"

"Leesten!" interrupted Michel.

Out over the silent forest drifted a faint call like the voice of some furred night hunter. The four figures at the fire stiffened. Again the call, louder now, rose on the biting air.

"Where is it?" asked Steele, in doubt of the direction.

Then, when they were convinced that yet another night they were to roll into their blankets, disappointed, baffled, a long wail from the ridge behind the camp brought them to their feet, every nerve alive.

TIGHT FEELING

Telling how he obtained relief from very disagreeable symptoms of stomach trouble, Mr. Charles T. Wintz, of R. F. D. 4, Huntington, W. Va., made the following statement:

"I began taking Black-Draught about fifteen years ago. I would have gas on my stomach that just pressed and seemed to shorten my breath, and I would have all kinds of feeling. My head would ache and I was in a very bad fix.

"I had tried remedies that didn't seem to do me any good. I saw Black-Draught advertised and sent for it.

"After taking a few doses, I knew it was helping me. It seemed to break up the gas, and the tight, bloated feeling disappeared, and I was like a new man. I would not be without Black-Draught. I can eat anything I want to. If I get dizziness in the head, Black-Draught relieves it."

N. C. TENNISON WILL MAKE FOURTH OF BALE TO ACRE

N. C. Tennison, a farmer living 3 and 1-4 miles southwest of town, says he has 120 acres of cotton and will get about 30 bales, he already has 21 bales picked. Mr. Tennison says he gathered about 30 tons of maize from 30 acres of which will be plenty of feed to run the place.

Mr. Tennison says it surely does pay to advertise in theLeader, as he placed a small ad in the classified want ad section and had several inquiries after the advertised milk cows were sold. He says if he had anything to sell or wanted to buy anything he would place a want ad in the Leader.

Black Cyclone To Show At Rialto

Rex, the only wild Horse Actor in the world will be shown at the Rialto Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, December 16 and 17. Black Cyclone, the picture in which he stars is considered one of the greatest pictures of animal acting in the world.

Born in the wild lands, self taught, his instinct tells him that man is his enemy. He seeks a mate and having found her woos her with every equnie wile. Killer, an unconquered wild horse defeats him in battle and runs off with his beautiful lady.

That would make a sad ending for a magnificent picture, but it is only the beginning of the picture. The struggle of Rex to win back his mate, how he came under man's care and his finally great battle with the Killer provide even more thrilling action.

And the remarkable think about the picture is that Rex was once a real wild horse, and that for a number of years he was considered unmanageable but finally succumbed to kindness and became obedient to a man who made him one of the greatest actors in Picturdom and that includes everything from Rin Tin Tin to Mary Pickford. This picture shows at the Rialto December 16 and 17.

Dr. Worley is a very sick patient at his resident this week.

For tailoring work call 82.
