Have Their Secrets

WHAT do you know about canned peas, beyond the fact that everyone uses them and they are mighty good? Do you know that both wrinkled and smooth skinned varieties come in cans? Do you know that peas are packed by sizes and that these sizes are numbered from 1 to 6, number 1 being the smallest? And do you know that the smallest size is the most expensive because fewer of them are canned and it costs more to can them, and not because their flavor is superior? As a matter of fact, many housewives think that the larger sizes (3, 4 or 5) taste better, and some canners pack a flavorful blend of these three sizes called "run of the pod." You must take into account, too, the grades—Fancy, Extra Standard and Standard—in buying canned peas. The Standard grade is the one best adapted to such dishes as soups and purées.

Rich in Vitamins

Canned peas are rich in vitamins A and B, and their vitamin C content is higher than that in certain fruits. There are also valuable mineral salts—in the brine as well as in the peas—and this brine should never be thrown away but saved to use in soups and other made dishes. And don't forget that canned peas are a grand ingredient to use in vegetable salads. Here's a simple one in which they taste simply delicious:

Pea, Celery and Onion Salad: Combine the contents of an 11-ounce can peas and one cup diced celery, and marinate in one-fourth cup French dressing for about an hour in the icebox. Add one-half cup sliced onion, chopped onion, lettuce and serve. Makes six.

David Stowe of Council Bluffs, Iowa registered 215.5 of a possible 229 points in an intelligence test on entering Midland college. The score was equivalent to that of an American 38 years old.

After taking their second shellacking Saturday night from the Hornet cage team, the Brownwood quint turned homeward singing "If we never meet again, it will only be too soon." Joe Ned even sleeps in his football sweater. G. T. Moore scored 29 points in all in the Brownwood series. "All that glistens is not gold"—Shakespeare was evidently wrong when he penned that line, judging by the way the bracelets given to Map Post and Helon Chamlee are gleaming. Joe Satterfield and Gus Schloeman were the chumps. Hope the football boys get more to eat on the camp next summer than those at the banquet were served. Mrs. Reesing is to high school what crackers are to soup. Zack Fore mentioned the fact that he intended to give his gal a box of chocolates for Xmas and now every femme in school wants to be his girl—for Christmas. Overheard: I see in the papers where Gypsy Rosa Lee is going for society. What do you mean? Well, she has been giving a number of strip teas lately. She calls the signals and he breaks the rules. A woman needs face powder to catch her man and baking powder to hold him. Did the Home Economics Department clear thirty-five dollars from the football feed. Said the doctor as he gave himself a shot with the hypodermic needle, "I've got you under my skin." And then there are those guys who are waiting for television to become comedians. Mr. McLaughlin was seen strolling from behind the stage as Miss June Sevier finished her-(ahem)-dance. Sim-ile off the week: As nerve racking as riding with a cross-eyed bus driver. Coach Schwarz thinks that the Koch lass, (pronounced Cook) played an almost perfect game against Pearl last Saturday night. Virginia Burleson was squired by Fuzzy Voss last week end. The Seniors were glad to see the rings. And then Sidney Gregory thinks that "Gone with the Wind is a breezy story."

Editorial

Johnny went to Sunday School Sunday morning and came home very pleased with life as a whole. Reason: He had found a "honey" of a marble on the way home, and who wouldn't be pleased? Big Sister also went and came back well pleased and her reason was that that she had looked nicer, in her eyes, than anyone there.

A child is well pleased with a marble, but an older person is pleased with nothing less than a triumph over somebody else. A child is cruel in a thousand different ways but how many more ways the grown person is! Kindness and friendliness are two of the greatest things a person can possess. And a thoughtless child really is kinder than some grown people. Don't be unkind and unfriendly toward people, perhaps. (Continued on page seven)

Assembly

The assembly programs for the last three weeks have been most interesting since they have been about the fine arts. The first week was devoted to art appreciation. Mrs. J. P. Kendrick gave a very interesting talk on "The Last Supper," to the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades. On Thursday and Friday the fourth grade, under the direction of Miss Yongue, presented a program of living masterpieces of art. A discussion of a famous picture was given by a member of the class, and then the picture was dramatized by members of the class. Some of the pictures used were "The Song of the Lark," "The Boy With the Rabbit," "The Strawberry Girl," "Age of Innocence," "Interior of a Cottage," "The Torn Hat," "The Artist's Mother," and "The Angelus." Patti Ruth Stewart, Milda June Mann, and Elizabeth Ann Ricketts played piano solos.

The programs last week were devoted to speech arts. On Tuesday the pupils of Mrs. Crist presented a program, and Friday the pupils of Miss Diltz were presented. Both programs were very interesting and showed the importance of speech training.

The programs for this week are on the general theme of music. On Tuesday Miss Mayo presented Julia Ann Melbern and Patti Ruth Stewart who played piano solos. Everyone enjoyed the music very much. The students are looking forward to more programs of this type.

Christmas

Many of our rooms have been decorated for Christmas, and plans are being made by the other students. Each grade will have a Christmas program and tree Wednesday, December 23. The students have drawn names and each child will be remembered.

First Grade

The boys and girls in the 1Y class have been studying life on a farm. In art class the boys have been making animals to go on the farm. Bob Potts made a calf, Charles Milner made a pony, and Gerry Bob Gartman made a pig. The boys are also building a barn. George Painter and George Yongue are going to build the windmill. The girls are making a vegetable stand and are planning to make vegetables of crepe paper.

Miss Holmes has bought some new books for the class.

Personals

Gayle and Elmer Franks are new pupils in the sixth and seventh grades. They came to us from Plainview school.

Frances Reesing and Mabel Marion Brown have returned to school after an absence of several days with the mumps.

The new students in the sixth grade are Daisy Lee Hopson and Dean Hopson, students from Mountain.

Eva Jo Warren is a new pupil in the second grade.

Inez Clemons, Joe Harold Carter, Dorothy Lee Hord, John G. Paxton, and Claude Tutor have been absent with mumps.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish that we could convey to you, our friends, our tenderest thoughts of you, but mere words are not sufficient. Your kindness and love shown in so many ways in our sorrow, melt our hearts. We can only say, may our loving Father bless you and may we be of some service to you.

Tramp: Lady, I don't know where my next meal is coming from."

Mrs. Worley: "Well, this is no information bureau."

Miss Scott says some people would commit suicide just to get their name in the paper.

The faculty members of Gatesville High School plan to be present at the opening of the new home for the feeble-minded in Waco next Thursday.

Absent minded Prof. Brooks (hearing burglar downstairs): "Who's down there?"

Burglar: "Nobody."

Prof. Brooks: "That's strange. I could have sworn I heard someone down there."

Hornets vs. Tigers

Friday night, in the gym, the Waco Tigers and the Gatesville Hornets will clash in a basketball duel. The game will take place at 7:15 o'clock. Waco has a fine team and defeated Temple 45 to 16. The Hornets are ready and we assure you that you will see a good game.

The girls will also play a game but the coaches are not sure with whom it will be played.

Christmas Holidays

School will be dismissed December 23, 1936 to January 4, 1937 for the Christmas Holidays.

Brownwood vs. Gatesville

Last Friday and Saturday night the Brownwood Lions played the Hornets in two very interesting games. The Lions went to the State Meet three out of the four preceding years and were doped to win over the Hornets. Having a better team than the fans realized, the Hornets defeated the Lions by a score of 49 to 19. Believing that the Lions would come back fighting harder Saturday, the Hornets prepared for them. The Lions were defeated 38 to 15. During the two games, Brownwood made the total score of 39 and Gatesville made 87.

Football Sweaters Awarded

In chapel Friday morning, Mr. Brooks presented football sweaters to the seventeen lettermen, C. H. Wallace, Burl Davis, Joe Ned Brown, Harry Voss, Foy Wicker, Joe Baker, Joe Satterfield, Royce Davis, John Rufus Colgin, Lester Williams, J. C. Byrom, Neal Hinsley, Zack Fore, Byron Gilbreth, Roy Adams, Loyd Ivy and Clovis King. Mr. Brooks also presented Coaches Worley and Schwarz black and gold jackets for their splendid work as coaches.

Nicknames

Ruby Brown's nickname is "Oscar." Could it be her beau? Pauline Voss, the one that isn't a twin, is called "Ping." and they say Eustace Cox is a "Wart" and Knox Davis is a "Chicken." Ollie Bell and Nell Routh are both called "Nooky." Foster Hinson's nickname of "Runt," certainly suits him. And then there's "Sticky" Anderson and "Bougie" Hinesly. Ruth Bradford is called "Boots" and Yvette Graves, "Gravy." There's no doubt in my mind as to how Gladys Phillips and Frances McCoy got their name, "Red." How about you?

The Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club met on Wednesday, December 9, 1936. The minuets were read by Frances McCoy. Miss Durham had a short pantomime program in which several members of the club took part. Eloise Cook had charge of the program. She called on several members of the club for important speeches, songs, and etc.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club met Monday, December 14, with the vice president, Patsy Olsen, presiding in the absence of the president, Frances McCoy. The play which was supposed to have been given was postponed because two of the characters were absent. In place of the play a short business meeting was held. The club discussed what it would leave for the Home Economics department and voted to work toward a refrigerator for the foods department. Plans were discussed for raising money the next semester. The club adjourned to meet the following Monday, December 21, when a program will be given on "Christmas Customs in Other Lands." Vera Taylor, Sophie Voss, Beth Powell, Elfreda Apel, Bonnie Jo Malone and Lois Williams will have parts on the Christmas program.

'CHARGE OF LIGHT BRIGADE' BOOKED FOR REGAL

The thundering hoofs that dashed across the pages of history to be immortalized by the unforgettable poem of Alfred Lord Tennyson, sounds again thru Warner Bros.' stupendous screen version of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," which comes to the Regal Theatre Saturday nite 10:30 also Sunday and Monday with Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland in the featured roles.

Tennyson's verse deals only with the famous charge of the Light Brigade against the Russian artillery on the heights of Balaclava during the Crimean war—an action which forms only the terrific climax of the film story that is replete with thrills from start to finish, and presents a glamorous romance in which two brothers are rivals for the love of a beautiful girl.

The picture, heralded as one of the biggest productions ever filmed by Warner Bros., has an all-star cast of 20 noted actors in the important roles, and over fifteen thousand extra people. Scenes are said to be spectacular in the extreme, with border skirmishes, hand-to-hand fighting, and the soul-stirring charge of the Light Brigade. Scenes depict colorful interiors of the Palace of Surat, Khan, Amir of Suristan, with his Nautch dancing girls and slaves—as well as the mammoth exteriors of British walled towns.

Errol Flynn has the role of a young English officer stationed in India, who is betrothed to the daughter of his superior officer. During his absence, fighting on the frontier, however, his younger brother steals the love of his sweetheart and finally appraises him of the fact.

It is not until the eve of his departure to the Crimean War that his fiancée—a role played by Olivia de Havilland—tells him of her love for his brother, and her fear that the latter might be killed. His life wrecked the young officer promises that his brother shall not be submitted to danger and leaves for the Crimea, with only the thought of vengeance against Surat Khan—who was responsible for the massacre of British men, women and children.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

THE BRITISH people and their former ruler have bowed in sorrowful submission to a system of government at least part of which they would like to throw into the discard. As Prince of Wales, and during his 327 days' reign as King, Edward sought to modify the ancient governmental practices, customs and ritual instituted in essentially the same form as today on Christmas Day, 1066, when in Westminster Abbey William of Normandy was crowned king of a united England.

Since 1649 the rulers of Britain have been king in name only, the popularly elected House of Commons constituting the legislative body and itself choosing the executive body or cabinet.

And it was the cabinet, personified by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, which told Edward VIII he must choose between his throne and his love.

The main question projected during the royal controversy was as to whether a constitutional ruler may marry anyone he pleases. The outcome of the Edward-Simpson affair has shown that he may not. The choice of a wife or of a consort is an affair of state and is subject to the approval of the cabinet and of the Parliament, which represent the people.

There is no doubt that Edward a reformist in the true sense, expected to marry Mrs. Simpson and make her his queen, in the doing not necessarily defying tradition as altering it. And Mrs. Simpson just as confidently expected to be crowned queen of Britain next year.

When he was greeted with a storm of opposition by cabinet and commons, both of which secretly declared against a morganatic marriage before the British people were aware of the relations between their monarch and the American divorcee, Edward bowed to the tradition which he disliked so greatly and abdicated. For it was never the intention of this great ruler to bring about the reforms which he desired by any but constitutional methods.

Much has been in print recently about the failure of the British press, controlled almost exclusively by two members of the peerage, to inform the British people as to the facts of the case until the storm broke a brief fortnight ago.

Had Edward's subjects, as were American newspaper readers and moviegoers, been aware of the progress of events since their monarch made the acquaintance of the belle of Baltimore, a solution more acceptable to both Edward and his people might have resulted from the crisis. If preparation can be made in advance of a storm, its effects are apt to be far less devastating than if it falls without warning from the sky.

The admirable British quality of "muddling through" was amply demonstrated by the love-provoked crisis.

Thursday the King announced his long-waited decision to abdicate and bills were at once prepared for passage by Parliament on Friday, to be signed by King Edward. When the King Emperor and was succeeded completed his signature, he automatically ceased to be King by his brother, the Duke of York.

Not to be outdone, all the dominions with the exception of the Irish Free State accepted the new situation at face value, accepting the new monarch without a demur.

In what other nations of the world, let us except the U. S. could such a change been effected in a peaceful and constitutional way? The French, Germans and Russians have peculiar habit of accomplishing the national desires by other than peaceful and constitutional means.

"The King is dead. Long live the King!"

"Let us rally behind the new King."

DOUGLAS WHITE'S FIELD PROJECT

I used six acres of medium heavy, black clay loam soil for my cotton project. The land did not die cotton and was not planted to cotton the year before. I ran the rows across the slope.

I turned the stalks under about the middle of November with a thrillie disc and broke about six inches deep using 8 mules, then I bedded the land about the first of April about six inches deep using a middle buster and four mules, spacing the beds about three feet apart. About the last of April I re-bedded using the same equipment and breaking the same depth. I planted Qualla cottonseed, 1300 pounds of seed cotton made on the average a 500 pound bale. I planted between the first and fifteenth of May, planting about one and one-half bushels of seed per acre. I planted seed about two and one-half to 3 inches deep. When the cotton came up and was large enough to plow I plowed it once before thinning it, spacing the stalks on an average of ten inches apart. I plowed it three more times to keep it free from grass and keep the cracks in the ground well filled. I plowed with a single row cultivator using 2 mules, plowing about every two or three weeks.

I harvested the cotton during September and October, and it yielded 1059 pounds of lint cotton, 890 pounds seed cotton, and 1721 pounds of cottonseed, an average of 223 lbs. of lint cotton per acre. When I ginned the cotton I sold the cotton seed and let them pay for the ginning. My total horse hours was 316, equipment hours 94, total expenses $75.04, total receipts $185.85, total labor income $121.02, labor income per hour $1.08.

Methodist Church

Christmas music is one of the most effective parts of the observance of Christmas. Music to the Christian is as essential to worship as to many of the 'old timers' who thought the eggnog something.

I found out long ago why we have music, for Jesus was born under the ringing sounds of an angelic choir.

In keeping with this ancient custom yet with modern music, the choir under the leadership of Miss Halbrook will render you some fine music next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

At 9:45 a. m. departmental observance of the season.

CCC ENROLLEES GATHER THE GRASS SEEDS OF CORYELL COUNTY

Since the establishing of meadow and pasture strips has been proved to be the most economical and practical method of controlling terrace outlets there has been a great demand for grass seed that can be used for this purpose. The Soil Conservation Service has been unable to purchase all of the different kinds of grass seed that are to be used on the SCS Projects and Camps and the Nursery Section of the Soil Conservation Service has authorized the Gatesville ECW Camp to gather seed from grasses that are common in this area.

Under the direction of Mr. W. E. McFarland of the SCS Nursery section, the CCC Enrollees have been gathering grass seed during the past week in several sections of the county. Some grass seed had been gathered before the recent authorization.

To date the Gatesville Camp has gathered 761 lbs. of Hairy Grama, 2152 lbs. Little Blue Stem, 307 lbs. of Canada Wild Rye, 69 lbs. Switch Grass, 55 lbs. Side Oats Grama and 40 lbs. of Virginia Wild Rye. Three hundred and fifty-three men were used to gather this seed.

All seed collection here is uncleaned and will be shipped to the Nursery Section to be cleaned, tested and sent out to the projects and camps that have asked for grass seed with which to establish pasture and meadow strips and re-seed pastures and land taken out of the cultivation.

Can he play in Every room?

Here he is—the pride and joy of the household. Full of vim and vigor, ready at all times to go places and do things. Moreover, he does—and you wouldn't want him to change the least bit. Like all children, he is a natural born explorer. The living room . . . dining room . . . bed room . . . kitchen—this is his limited world during the indoor winter season and he makes the best of it.

He doesn't know that the toy soldiers left on the other side of that closed door that leads to the unheated living room mark a cold and health-threatening spot. He hasn't learned that a sudden change of temperature, such as going from a heated room into a cold one, makes it easy for him to "catch cold." If he knew these things he would urge you to give him the protection of healthfully warm temperatures in every room this winter.

ROADS AND CATALOGUES

On this subject of roads! The great fear of merchants in small towns and rural districts are the dreaded CATALOGUE. It is our belief that catalogues don't follow paved highways; they take to the "deep and muddy," where the people can't get out to do their shopping; they must buy by catalogue.

One instance we have heard about Mississippi, by a Mississippian, is this: Some years ago there were few or no schools for the tenants, negro and white, on the plantations in that state. One Julius Rosen—"something", then president of one of the big mailorder houses, SRCo., to be exact, found there were no schools in this particular part of the state. He built them. As soon as the people, both children and adults, were able to sign their names, literature was sent to them, SRCo. catalogues were given them in turn. They couldn't get out of the muddy Mississippi roads for the mud, but Uncle Sam's mail could, and their money, orders and correspondence went to SRCo. and Julius was paid handsomely for his philanthropy.

The schools have not been built here, but truck loads of catalogues are brought in to help the folks in Coryell County who are mud-bound.

Again it is our belief that as cement appears catalogues disappear.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Although Americans knew Wednesday, November 4, who their chief executive for the next four years would be, complete returns on the national election are not available. Tiny Rhode Island is the only State which has not submitted its complete returns. Litigation there has kept the voting machines locked up, preventing an official count.

The Roosevelt lead over Landon in the complete count from fortyseven States is 11,069,699 for the total vote of 45,812,155. For the various candidates the vote was as follows:

Roosevelt	27,751,612
Landon	16,681,913
Others	1,378,630
Lemke (Union)	891,858
Thomas (Socialist)	187,342
Browder (Communist)	80,181
Colvin (Prohib.)	37,609
Aiken (So-Labor)	12,729
Scattering and void	168,911

In percentages, as compared with 1932, the parties stacked up this way:

	1936	1932
Democratic	60.7	57.3
Republican	36.4	39.6
Others	2.9	3.1

The stalemate in Spain's fratricidal war of brother against brother may not be broken before next spring unless the mediation efforts of Britain and France bring unexpected results.

The elements—snow, ice, cold winds, fog and rains—have driven both factions to revert to defensive warfare. Artillery duels and frequent bombings of Madrid by rebel planes have comprised the offensive efforts of both rebels and defenders for two weeks.

Trenches on both sides are frozen, poor visibility has prevented intensive use of aircraft by either side.

The United States substantiates the assertion by both sides that foreign governments are lending aid in troops and supplies. The following figures on foreigners fighting in the revolution are provided:

With the rebels, 300 Irish Fascists, 14,500 Italians, 20,000 Germans.

With the loyalists: 6,000 French, 800 Italians, 1,200 Germans, 800 Belgians, 200 Poles and a scattering of Russians, Mexicans, Cubans, Algerians and Czechs.

There is little remaining doubt but that the caucus of Democratic representatives will elect Sam Rayburn of Bonham floor leader of the new House of Representatives.

The fact that Rayburn has been a consistent Administration supporter and possesses one of the shrewdest brains in Washington is enhanced by the fact that of the two leading contestants for the leadership, he is the logical choice.

He is the logical choice because he can better act as a liaison officer between executive and House and because he is better liked by the new members of the House than is John J. O'Connor, New York's entry in the race. The President was in November given a decisive mandate to continue his reform and recovery policies for a second term; he should not be hindered in seeking to justify that magnificent vote of approval by hostile leadership in either the legislative branches.

President Roosevelt will make no public declaration for either Rayburn or O'Connor, nor is it likely that he will privately seek to influence the result. Vice President Garner has thrown his powerful influence in favor of his fellow Texan and in the doing cinched his election.

Administration financial experts may be expressing concern over another depression next year, but this country is now experiencing a boom comparable to the enviable days of 1929.

Merchants the country over are in the midst of the biggest Christmas trade since the crash. Mail order houses and manufacturers can't fill orders pouring in for Christmas goods.

The big concerns have come across with a flood of pay hikes and extra dividends. Motor vehicle registration is at a new high. The Travelers Insurance Company finds that, by the end of this year, motor car registration will reach a total of 22,277,000 vehicles. This will be an increase of six per cent over 1930, the highest previous year.

Automobile factories are still running at high speed. Obsolete vehicles are being rapidly replaced and the registration is expected to further increase under the impetus of dividends and Christmas bonuses.

The railroads are receiving their share of the cash which is flowing in all channels. Benefiting from increased comfort and lower fares, they expect their best Christmas trade since 1929.

The Associated Press reports a fifteen per cent increase in football attendance over the country at large this season. Significant is the fact that the biggest increase here was in the South, where the gain was thirty-two per cent.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this method to thank our good friends and neighbors for their kindness shown us during the recent illness and sudden death of our darling mother, Mrs. Rebekah Bond. We also wish to thank those for the lovely floral offerings.

May God's richest blessings be on each and everyone of you when trouble and sorrow come to you such as we have just experienced.

JUILLIARD SCHOOL TO HAVE EXTENSION CENTER AT T.S.C.W.

Denton, Dec. 17.—Outstanding recognition came to Texas State College for Women (CIA) with the recent announcement that the Juilliard School of music of New York had designated the institution as its only extension center for 1937, and that master classes would be conducted in Denton during the week, March 15 through 20. Dean Ernest Hutcheson, probably the outstanding piano teacher in the nation, will personally conduct these classes.

Invitations will be sent to all music teachers in the southwest. Professor William E. Jones, director of the T.S.C.W. music department, states. In addition this year these teachers will be accorded the privilege of bringing with them their advanced students.

Last year the Juilliard School sent Den Hutcheson to Denton to conduct both master and individual classes as an experiment. Teachers from all over the south west attended, and the experiment was pronounced successful and it was decided to repeat the performance this year with a greatly enlarged program. One feature of particular interest in the 1937 program will be a series of concert classes.

"Something for All the Family"

"Aside from its purely business and emergency uses, the telephone is something that every member of the farm family can use and enjoy. It keeps Mother in touch with her friends and neighbors and the social activities of church and school. The children plan their dates and parties, and visit one another by telephone. And, of course, they all profit by its time and money saving services. If you are thinking of a gift for the whole family, and haven't a telephone, get one."

Basketball

Fresh from their impressive conquest of the famed Brownwood Lions, the Hornet cagers take on the Waco High Tigers in the local gymnasium tonight. Waco high has an even more impressive record than the Lions. Due to a larger student body Waco boasted of some of the best basketball teams in the state during the past years. Dealing in highly specialized training every year they put on the court a smoothly working machine that is interesting to watch.

Gatesville has gotten off to a late start, due to the football season, but is improving with every practice session. Their double-header defeat of the Brownwood Lions showed that improvement all of which will be needed tonight.

Gatesville is due to have a better basketball season than they had in football. Most of the boys on the squad are from the rural districts where basketball is a major sport, and all have played it since they were large enough to dribble a ball. When time comes for active high school competition they are all well grounded enough in fundamentals that, with adequate coaching and polishing up, they can become highly capable players.

There is no reason why Gatesville should not build up a good basketball reputation. From the rural districts surrounding the town come boys who like to play basketball and are equipped with all the physical requirements.

Playing in the "big time" with larger schools like Brownwood and Waco is the best way to build up such a reputation. If the Hornets can take on such teams and defeat them then the spectators will begin to sit up and take notice.

Little is known about the present strength of the Waco

Tigers. The season has not advanced enough to put out any definite dope, but it is sufficient to say that they always put a good team on the hardwood.

Football

With football season waning and only the championship games left to be played, the heroes of the gridiron have all been carefully judged and simmered down to those few remaining men placed on the mythical "All-American Teams."

There are as many All-American selections every year as there are recipes for Christmas eggnogs. Every sports writer of any national renown whatsoever always has to pick his own team with the result that there are so many teams that any football player of any ability at all can usually get his name on at least one selection.

The original All-American team picked by Walter Camp back in the dim dark days of football, started something that is looked forward to eagerly by every fan at the close of the football season. Grantland Rice, noted sports authority, carries on for dear old Walter now, and his choice, appearing in Collier's Weekly, is considered the most authoritative. Here are the men he picked, and to whom goes the highest award in college athletics, a tiny gold football, the Walter Camp Trophy:

Tinsley end, L. S. U.; Widseth, tackle, Minnesota; Starcevic, guard, Washington; Wojciechowicz, center, Fordham; Reid, guard, Northwestern; Daniell, tackle, Pittsburgh; Kelley, end, Yale; Baugh, quarterback, T. C. U.; Frank, halfback, Yale; Bulvid, halfback, Marquette; Francis, fullback, Nebraska.

The only school to have two men named was Yale, with Kelley and Frank. Tinsley, Frank and Francis were named the outstanding players of 1936.

Probable Starting Lineup for Tonight

Waco—Haynes and Field, forwards; Watkins, center; Gatewood and Neundorfer, guards. Gatesville—Turner and Moore forwards; Gilbreath, center; White and King, guards. Game called at 7:15.

SYNOPSIS

Ossie Merrill, star fullback of Bellport High School and Paddy O'Riley, second string quarterback, are rivals for the affections of the pretty cheer leader, Cheers Reynolds. Merrill goes to Sierra College in California while Paddy enters a small eastern college, Green Ridge. Three years later, Ossie is All-American at Sierra, Paddy is still a second stringer. They come back to Bellport for summer vacation. With Paddy is his class mate, Dutch Schultz, Green Ridge fullback. The band is playing at the station when they arrive—but not for them. Ossie is arriving on another train!

CHAPTER III

Dutch and Paddy got off the Westbound train at Bellport just a few minutes before the Eastbound, bearing Ossie Merrill, was scheduled to arrive. They found the town's band and most of the citizenry gathered to welcome the football hero from Sierra, but nobody paid the slightest attention to the men from Green Ridge.

"Welcome O-S-S-I-E," puzzled Schultz, as he studied a big banner hanging across the station entrance. "Funny way to spell O'Riley."

"Yeah. Just a quaint local custom. Mind waiting?"

"But we're here, and nothing happens."

"Aw, cut it. Ossie Merrill plays football at Sierra. I hear he's going to be All-American full back next year. You're a full back too, aren't you, Mr. Schultz?"

"Not the kind that hangs around the outskirts and then falls on the ball with his number to the press box," grunted Dutch, who read the sports news, despite all "is pretended ignorance."

"Ossie doesn't know it," continued Paddy casually as he found a seat on a baggage truck, "but he's going to help me find out something." His eyes searched the crowd, then he added, "I don't see her. Maybe she's cured."

"Who? The flounce who dishes out the ice cream cones?"

"What are you talking about?" Paddy jumped as if a pin had pricked him.

"Just what you've talked about—in your sleep! Tsch! Tsch!"

"In my sleep! Look Dutch, be a good guy—tell me what I said."

"What?" Schultz was smug. "Sneal on your subconscious. It would never speak to me again."

Paddy's protest was cut short by a train whistle. A few moments later the Eastbound Express pulled in. On the observation platform stood Ossie. Beside him was a very pretty girl dressed in the height of fashion.

A babble of voices welcomed him. The town band struck up "Bellport shall shine tonight." Ossie bowed right and left. When the din had died away somewhat he held up his hand.

"Thanks, folks," he called. Then he pushed the girl forward. "Now say hello to a real celebrity, Miss Florence Taylor, en route to New York for the opening of her latest—and only—motion picture. Miss Taylor is a baby film star—get her autograph before the train pulls out."

"I guess it's still Merrill, the ladies' choice," sighed Paddy.

But Dutch was not listening. Instead he stood staring open-mouthed at the girl on the platform.

"Creepin' Jeepers!" he murmured at last. Then, to his friend he added casually, "You don't think I've got any technique with women, do you? Want to see me knock that one off?"

"Say, you can't just go up to a perfect stranger!" Paddy was alarmed.

"Can't I? Watch me!" Dutch started through the crowd. Reaching the observation car railing he pushed aside the amateur autograph hunters and held out one of his white shoes.

"Sign here, Florence," he commanded. "It's the only thing I could find."

"Why! Why!" The girl abruptly dropped her film star pose. "Imagine you turning up here in the middle of the great American desert! Why you big APE!"

"I see she knows your name," interrupted Paddy.

"Are you really an actress?" Dutch still could not believe his eyes.

"Well, they pay me for it every week," grinned the girl.

"Paddy," Dutch dragged his friend forward, "meet the former belle of Pasadena High. Florence Taylor. She's in the movies now. Flossie, meet Paddy O'Riley. But remember—he's on the second team."

"Not if I were coach," laughed the girl. Then, as the conductor shouted "Board!" she bade a hasty farewell to Ossie, who had stood by too dumbfounded to speak.

Dutch stared fixedly after the departing train until Paddy snapped his fingers in front of his friend's eyes. "Hey! You remember me, don't you," he shouted. "I'm your host, Mr. O'Riley. Better put on your shoe. You'll get athlete's foot."

"I might remind you," Susie was saying to Cheers some hours later at the Sweetery, "that a watched boy friend never boils."

Her sister pretended to ignore the remark, but she turned from the window and turned on the radio so loud that it made the dishes rattle.

"Funny thing, Cheers," Ossie began again lamely. "I never remembered Bellport being so kind of—shriveled. Guess the place hasn't changed though—I probably have."

"If Ossie Merrill wants to see me," she couldn't help answering at last. "He knows my address."

"For three years he forgot to remember it—even on a post card."

Cheers' reply was cut short as the front door flew open and Paddy entered, his dark face wreathed in grins.

"Boy! Peace and quiet at last!" he shouted over the radio. "You could hear an elephant drop in here."

Cheers, who had turned expectantly as the door opened, tried to hide her disappointment that it was not Ossie who had appeared.

"Take off that coat and get into your apron," beamed Susie.

"Not so fast, my good woman," he indicated Cheers. "Who's the beautiful stranger?"

"Nobody you know," laughed the girl. "But you'll like her. I'm glad to see you, Paddy, but," she nodded toward Dutch, who had edged through the door also, "do football players have caddies?"

"Who's calling me a cad?" Dutch ambled forward, grinning.

Hardly had introductions been completed when there was another interruption. The great Ossie himself ducked into the Sweetery, mainly to avoid a crowd of admiring small boys who had been following him down the street.

"Hello, Cheers . . . Susie," Ossie was very, very friendly, but a little distant.

"Hello Ossie," Cheers' voice was weak. "How are you?"

"I'm fine. How are you?" Cheers was too fussed to know that she was repeating. "How are you?"

"As a casual observer—I'd say you were both fine," grunted Paddy.

"Oh, hello there," Ossie struggled with his memory for a moment. "You're O'Riley, aren't you?"

"Yeah." Paddy was annoyed. "Accent on the 'rile.'" He turned to Dutch and added, "Here's a long-promised treat. This is Austin Merrill. Ossie, this is Dutch Schultz."

"Glad to know, you, Schultz. You play at that—what's the name of that little college?"

"Green Ridge!" The answer was flat.

"Oh, sure, now I remember." Ossie was honestly embarrassed.

"That's just dandy. Now we're famous," snapped Dutch. Then to Paddy: "Say, if you're going to have lunch and make that train . . ."

"Be seeing you," Ossie said to Dutch after the others had bid him farewell.

"Any time," growled the husky player. "Swords or dirty looks at twenty paces."

Ossie couldn't quite ignore this insult. "Say, O'Riley," he called as the two friends reached the door. "Has Green Ridge got a mascot?"

"Why?" Paddy was wary.

"Well, Princeton has a Tiger and Yale a Bulldog. I thought maybe Green Ridge might have a jackass."

STRIP CROPPING AND CONTOUR TILLAGE INCREASE IN POPULARITY

Popularity of Strip Cropping and contour tillage is ever increasing in the Gatesville Camp area which is substantiated by many favorable comments made by both cooperators and non-cooperators. One statement in particular was made by Dr. Blankenship recently of the Moheim community a cooperator of the Gatesville Soil Conservation Service. Dr. Blankenship has been a strong advocate and user of terraces since the system ten years ago. He secured agreements with the Soil Conservation Service at Gatesville on two farms which have been strip cropped under the supervision of the service. He states that after observing the installation and efficient working qualities of strip cropping and contour tillage as a control for sheet erosion which he states is by far his predominant erosion loss, he is planning to eliminate or level down the terrace systems on four other farms which are not under agreement, and substitute strip cropping and contour tillage. He states that farm records indicate that maintenance of these terrace systems have been very expensive. In view of this and also the fact that strip cropping coordinates in a much more practical way with farm and tillage operations and other features equally as important he states he has no alternative choice.
