Thrown Out By Justice Dept...

Clements Wants Judges To Redraw Districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Political motivation was behind the U.S. Justice Department's voiding of Texas' state Senate and House redistricting plans, top state Democratic leaders claimed today.

"A blatantly political act," State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle told a news conference about the Justice Department's ruling Tuesday that the remap plans weakened minority voting strength.

"The Justice Department is merely supporting the Republican Party in their suits they filed in an effort to increase their chances in the election," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hobby said the state would ask a three-judge federal panel in Dallas Thursday to ignore the Justice Department recommendations and adopt the Senate and House plans approved by the Legislative Redistricting Board.

Gov. Bill Clements, Republican, said Tuesday he hoped the three judges would draw up their own redistricting plan.

Both Hobby and Slagle criticized Secretary of State David Dean for suggesting to the Justice Department that the redistricting plans were unconstitutional. Both said the federal department relied heavily on Dean's recommendations instead of those made by the legally constituted redistricting board.

Clements told Attorney General Mark White to urge the judges to draw the districts for the Texas House and Senate. White represented Clements, a defendant in lawsuits by minority groups challenging the districts.

The governor bypassed another option — calling the Legislature into special session to again tackle the complicated process.

Secretary of State David Dean said White had the option to appeal the Justice Department decision to a federal court. White planned a news conference today to discuss the case.

Clements suggested the Feb. 1 filing deadline for the May 1 primaries be moved back to mid-March to allow the court to draw the plans. Quick action by the court would negate the need to delay the primaries, he said.

"This is the only way in which this task can be completed in time to avoid a delay of our May primary elections. Throwing it back to the Legislature or the Legislative Redistricting Board, which have tried and failed to come up with acceptable plans, would insure delay of indeterminable length and, undoubtedly, require court action," said Clements.

The lines vetoed by the Justice Department were drawn by the all-Democratic redistricting board. The board got that job after a state court threw out a House plan drawn by the Legislature in 1981 and a Senate plan vetoed by Clements.

Hobby, chairman of the redistricting board, said:

"After considering the plans for two months, the Justice Department could do no more than parrot incorrect statements made by the (Texas) Secretary of State (David Dean) in his inappropriate submission."

Dean, a Clements' appointee, sent the plans to Washington with a letter pointing out specific problems in black and Mexican-American areas.

Assistant U.S. Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds on Tuesday agreed there were problems with minority representation in Dallas, Harris, Lubbock, Bexar, Zavala, Crockett and El Paso counties.

He said the plans were "legally unenforceable" under the Voting Rights Act, which applies to Texas and other states which have a record of biases against minority voters.

Clements said redistricting inevitably is a political process.

"I would not rule out that there was some influence here with respect to a political situation," he told reporters. "Why would there not be? We're talking about elections and that is the political process."

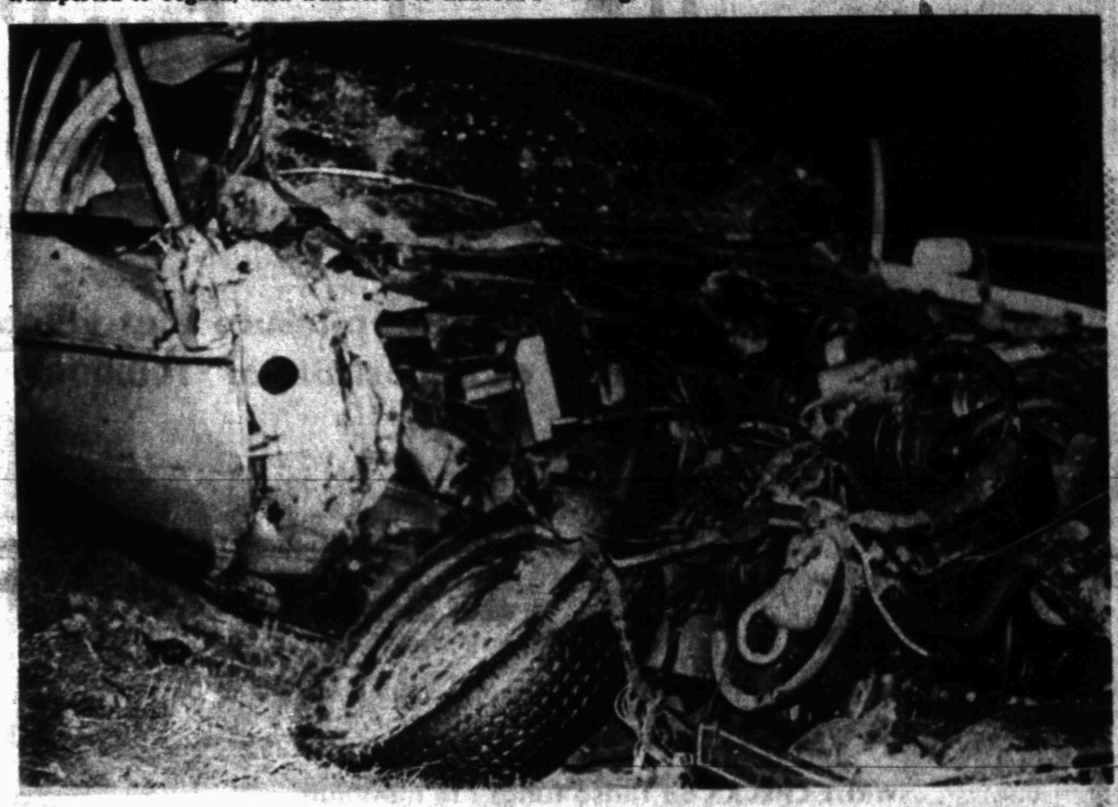

Reynolds noted that much of Texas' 27.1 percent growth during the 1970s was due to increased numbers of blacks and Mexican-Americans. Mexican-American population increased by 44.96 percent during the decade.

The plans submitted for federal review did not relect those minority gains, he said.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, a member of the redistricting board, disagreed.

THREE INJURED—One local woman and two truck drivers were seriously injuried in this accident at the intersection of U. S. 84 and the Ennis Creek Road around 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Tammy Merritt of Snyder, driver of the 1977 model Buick, was listed in stable condition Wednesday morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. According to a hospital spokesman, the full extent of her injuries had yet to be determined. Lonnie Hester of Buffalo, Tex., driver of the 1981 Ford truck, was transported to Cogdell, then transfered to Lubbock's Methodist Hospital by units of Scurry County EMS. Joseph Robison of Thornton, Tex., a passenger in the truck, was also taken to the Lubbock hospital. According to a spokesman for the Lubbock hospital, Hester was listed in serious condition this morning suffering multiple fractures and partial paralysis of the lower extremities. Robison was reported to be suffering back injuries and was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday morning.(SDN Staff Photos by Noble Bryant Young)

Haig Returns To Middle East

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig returns to the Middle East today for the second time in two weeks after telling Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko the military crackdown in Poland is poisoning East-West relations.

Gromyko apparently gave no indication that the Soviet or the Polish government would change their ways.

Haig was going to Jerusalem and Cairo for another attempt to generate progress in the deadlocked Israeli-Egyptian negotiations to work out a plan to give autonomy to the 1.3 million Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Polish Defectors

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish news agency PAP claimed today that U.S. intelligence experts are forming a group of Polish defectors near Washington in preparation for an anti-Polish propaganda campaign.

PAP, in a dispatch from Washington received here, said the campaign included a "mammoth anti-Polish television program to be broadcast worldwide, except for the United States."

The show, "Let Poland Be Poland," is to be beamed around the world by satellite next Sunday. It was produced by the U.S. government, and features President Reagan, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and other world leaders, as well as celebrities like Frank Sinatra.

PAP said "Polish defectors are reportedly being grouped in a high-security center organized in the state of Virginia under the auspices of the CIA and FBI."

Airlines Faces Hearing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwest Airlines is scheduled to defend itself before the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission on a complaint filed by the father of a teen-ager who allegedly became intoxicated on a flight, a spokesman for the TABC has said.

A TABC hearing officer will listen to arguments in the case March 5 at the TABC headquarters in Austin, officials said Tuesday.

The investigation of the airline began after a 14-year-old boy allegedly emerged intoxicated from a Southwest Airlines flight to Austin that originated in Lubbock Jan. 17.

The boy was picked up by Austin airport police and a complaint was filed against the airline by the boy's father, TABC officials said.

Hearing Officer Requested

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal master appointed to oversee court-ordered prison reforms in Texas has asked a judge to name another officer to represent the office at hearings, apparently including one in which the state attorney general seeks to fire the entire staff.

Special Master Vincent Nathan's request, made public Tuesday, asked U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice to appoint an independent special master "to serve as a hearing officer at those hearings which arise at the request of any party."

The request was filed Monday, the same day as Attorney General Mark White petitioned a federal court to fire Nathan and his monitors, saying they were encouraging unrest among the prisoners. It was processed Tuesday, court officials said.

"The special master has been one of the prime reasons for recent outbreaks of violence and the number of incidents that have occurred over the past months," White said. His motion sought a Feb. 1 hearing.

Many of our words take on broad meanings as we use them rather loosely to describe various items. For example, how many items do you associate with the word "narcotic?"

We suspect that most people use this word to identify many drugs, but all drugs are not narcotics. In fact, all "dangerous drugs" are not narcotics under pure definition and in the eyes of the law.

We read the other day that the general public puts such dangerous products as LSD and "angel dust" under the narcotics column, but instead they actually are classified as "non-narcotic" drugs.

Lawmakers have obviously been confused by this situation because there are laws regulating narcotic drugs that are much more stringent than those adopted to control LSD, angel dust, quaaludes, etc. Yet, the latter are much more feared and considered much more dangerous by those who deal with addicts.

Such things as morphine, heroin and codeine are classified as narcotics, and, since narcotics laws are tougher than those dealing non-narcotic drugs, a tafficker in morhpine may get a bigger court sentence than one dealing in LSD.

Burden Shifted To States...

'Bold Stroke' Does Not Allay Budget Concerns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's pitch for a "bold stroke" transfer of $47 billion in federal programs to the states is doing little to allay the concerns of lawmakers preoccupied with soaring deficits and the troubled economy.

Democrats and Republicans alike were quick to say the proposal Reagan outlined Tuesday night in his first State of the Union speech should not be allowed to divert national attention from coping with pressing economic problems.

The federal government, while shifting the burden of the programs to the states, also should turn over the revenue to pay for them, Reagan said. That would come from excise taxes on gasoline, tobacco, alcohol and telephones, plus the so-called windfall profits tax on oil.

Food stamps and welfare were among the programs Reagan proposed turning over to state and local governments. The switch would begin in October 1983, and be completed in eight years, Reagan said. During that period the programs would cost approximately $400 billion, according to administration estimates.

In exchange, the federal government would take over full responsiblity for the Medicaid program of health care for the needy.

Reagan conceded the nation was "in a time of recession," but said the tax and budget-cutting programs Congress enacted at his behest last year need more time to take hold. He cautioned against expecting a "quick fix."

That seemed to provide little solace for the many legislators — most of them facing re-election in 10 months — eager for something more than an admonition to hang tough.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called Reagan's plan to transfer more than 40 programs to the states "a brave courageous statement" that could be approved by Congress this year.

But Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Appropriations Committee, cautioned: "His success in achieving this remarkable program...will ultimately hinge on an economic rebirth in the coming year.

3rd Quarter Sales Over $80 Million

Gross sales during the third quarter of 1981 zoomed past the $80 billion mark, State Comptroller Bob Bullock reported, and $80 million of them occurred in Scurry County.

Bullock said that overall, gross sales exceeded those for the previous year's third quarter by $14.3 billion.

First, second and third quarter gross sales reached $228.1 billion for the state. The gross sales are the actual totals, including not only those subject to the sales tax, but all others as well.

Scurry led the counties of its population bracket in West Texas. Bullock reported that 451 business firms in Scurry County had sales totalling $80,026,021 for the third quarter of 1981.

Chaffee Refugee Populatior At Lowest Levels

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The Cuban refugee population at this western Arkansas military reservation slipped to its lowest levels since May 1980 with a degree of gloom and a sigh of relief.

The Justice Department sent 116 refugees to a federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., Tuesday. Another 88 were flown to a federal prison in Atlanta, leaving 30 Cubans and an infant American citizen at the camp. The child was born Dec. 22.

Mac Coffman, director of the Cuban-Haitian Task Force at Chaffee, said Tuesday night in a telephone interview, that three women, one man and the child are to be sent temporarily to a hospital in Washington, D.C. The other 26 refugees are going to a halfway house in the Northwest, but Coffman declined further comment on the location.

Coffman said the base was extremely quiet late Tuesday. The three women were in an observation area and the rest of the refugees were in one barracks. Staff members began closing out the used barracks and cleaning blankets and mattresses for storage.

"I think there is a degree of gloom," Coffman said. He said bonds developed between the refugees and some of the staff. To see the refugees headed for another institution instead of a sponsor was disappointing, he said.

Coffman said there also was a sigh of relief because the refugees' presence at Chaffee was no longer a football. Plans for their future had been tossed around often. There were reports that the refugees would go to Glasgow, Mont. Those changed to Fort Drum, N.Y., and then back to Glasgow, before Friday's Justice Department announcement that the refugees would go to prisons.

Republican President Reagan promised Gov. Frank White, also a Republican, that he would get the refugees out of Arkansas. White said the state had done its share. He campaigned against then-Gov. Bill Clinton in 1980 on the premise that Clinton did not stand up to the federal government to get the refugees out. White was criticized last week by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jim Guy Tucker of Little Rock for the same thing.

"My personal hope would have been that resettlement could have taken place," said Coffman, who has worked in refugee programs for several years and was at Chaffee in 1975 when it housed Vietnamese refugees. He said he would have liked to see the Cubans on their own, achieving for themselves.

The next transfer is to be Friday and Coffman said the base could be closed by Feb. 5.

The federal government began the move of the final 392 Chaffee refugees Saturday. It said housing the Cubans in the prisons would be cheaper than keeping Chaffee operating or using an old Air Force base near Glasgow.

Chaffee opened in May, 1980 as a relocation center for thousands of the Cubans landing on Florida shores as part of the Freedom Flotilla. At its peak, Chaffee housed 19,000 refugees. More thaan 25,000 of the 125,000 who came to the United States were resettled from the base.

Assessing fatty-cholesterol

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate any information you could give me on fatty-cholesterol in the arteries. What tests can show the blockage if any? My family has a history of atherosclerosis and I am very concerned. I am 55 years old, female, 5 feet 6 and weigh 130 pounds. I'm apparently in good health according to my family doctor. My last cholesterol was 249. I do smoke between one and two packs of cigarettes a week.

My mother is 82 and very senile, apparently from fatty-cholesterol blockage and I really do worry.

DEAR READER — People do inherit the tendency to develop fatty-cholesterol deposits in their arteries that lead to heart attacks and strokes. In these cases they inherit a tendency to have high cholesterol levels or high blood pressure.

Your cholesterol is not exceptionally high but it is not low enough to be considered optimal either, in the sense that your cholesterol level is unlikely to contribute to fatty-cholesterol deposits.

In recent years it has been shown that the significance of cholesterol levels often depends upon how much cholesterol you have bound in small fat particles (HDL) and how much is bound in larger fat particles (LDL). To assess your status your doctor may want to have these additional measurements taken.

The amount of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries tends to correlate with your cholesterol level, your blood pressure and if you smoke. Beyond this if you really want to see what is in the arteries you have to do an arteriogram. Dye is injected in the arteries to be studied and an X-ray shows how well the artery fills or if blockage is present. By the way, your mother could have senility problems on an entirely different basis from fatty-cholesterol deposits.

In any case, I am sending you The Health Letter number 15-2, Understanding Your Cholesterol, Triglycerides and Other Blood Fats. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you mentioned some different medicines to help severe pain when menstruating. My daughter, age 26, has been on different drugs for this, nothing seems to help. She gets so depressed and sick to her stomach. It starts about a week before with severe cramps. She is married, has no children and is on birth control pills. She has always had this trouble since she first started. She uses tampons. Do you think this is the cause? Her doctor didn't know of anything else to give her.

DEAR READER — There are many causes for painful menstrual cramps and the cause will affect the treatment. However, in recent years it has been discovered that many women who have painful menstrual cramps have an excess production of prostaglandins, a hormone formed in many tissues but also formed in the lining of the uterus that develops before the period begins.

Certain medicines inhibit the production of prostaglandins. These are Motrin, Ponstel, Naprosyn and Indocin. Many readers will recognize these as medicines used to treat arthritis. That is what the FDA has approved them for. But their ability to inhibit prostaglandins may also be why they relieve arthritis pain.

At International Ball...

Debs Favor Romantic Styles

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA)—The less romantic the world becomes, the more today's debutantes seem determined to create their own oasis of romance. Of the 53 girls who bowed at the recent 27th annual International Debutante Ball in New York, no fewer than half wore romantic, off-shoulder or strapless gowns, most of them lavishly ruffled or ruched. The other half went for covered-up Victorian or "Princess Diana" styles or chose full-skirted, conventional strap decolletage.

In past years, there was always a contingent of the international debs trying their best to look sophisticated. Yet, only one gown this year was in a slinky, bias-cut style. Even the slim gown worn by Bertha Di Barrow of Texas was embroidered all over in silver and its strapless top was cuffed in ermine. It had been designed by Ada Duckett, who does many of the gowns for the Miss America pageant.

Trends at the International Debutante Ball cut across 12 states, from coast to coast, and 15 foreign countries, so the romantic trend evidently rules wherever girls are still enjoying the privilege of glamorous balls the year they turn 18.

Not that debs nowadays are the sheltered hothouse flowers of yore. Most are in college, or working, or both. Many go to several balls in different countries or different areas of this country, so their white gowns get a good workout.

Mlle. Athenais de Rocheouart-Mortemart, representing France, wore a Dior creation of taffeta, bowed and ruffled to suggest a bustle. Anne Marie Scott, daughter of the superintendent of West Point and representing the United States as lead-off deb in the flag-decked, climactic procession, chose a romantic peasant influence, with a square neckline and lantern sleeves. Caroline Byrd Thompson of Ohio liked the same idea, but her lantern sleeves were detailed with pucker stitching.

The foreign contingent included Shirley Shimuzu of Japan, wearing a magnificent robe of gold, silver, pale green and red brocade over her white taffeta "Princess Diana" gown. The same influence marked the gown of Ava Chien of Taiwan, in white lace and chiffon.

Most surprising evidence of the "Princess Diana" trend came from Texas, whose debs at the ball have always adhered firmly to romantic fashions. Kathleen Quinlan Leede of Midland went all the way to London for her super-romantic tulle gown, laced with pink ribbons. It came from the Emanuels, the London designing pair who made Princess Diana's wedding gown.

Another kind of foreign romanticism appeared in the gown worn by Phillippines' Barbara Paras Barba, entirely patterned in silver sequins, with short sleeves of accordion-pleated tulle repeated in a thick hemline ruff. Scotland's deb, Amelie Drummond, wore her clan tartan across her gown.

C.A.R. Meets In Rotan

The Anne Pettus Shelburne Society met Jan. 17 in the Rotan home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy V. Hamric. Conrad Hamric, president of the Anne Pettus Shelburne Society, called the meeting to order. Wesley Hale held the flag and led the group in the pledge of allegiance and the C.A.R. Creed. Lyle Hale, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved as read. The group discussed the recent visit of T.S.C.A.R. state officers. Conrad reported he had written letters of appreciation to all who helped make the visit so enjoyable for all.

Mrs. Charles E. Atwell presented a most informative and enjoyable program on her visit to Tamassee DAR School in Tamassee, South Carolina. She showed pictures of the buildings and children who lived there. She told the group about the responsibilities of each child. Mr. and Mrs. Atwell had lunch with the children and house mother. The children prepare the meal and have full responsibility for managing their cottages. She encouraged each of the C.A.R. members to take time to visit when in the Tamassee area.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Atwell, Lyle Hale, Meg Field, Wesley Hale, Conrad Hamric, Travis Hale, and Mrs. Hamric.

The next meeting will be Feb. 14. Visitors are welcome.

If your family is planning a trip abroad and you will be carrying medicines, keep them in their original containers, with the name of the drug, doctor and pharmacy on each. Customs officers, says the Health Insurance Association of America, are trained to be on the lookout for illegal drugs and unless your medicine is clearly marked, you may be delayed.

Phil Feldesman, one of our most successful players of the 1960s, has not played any tournament bridge in the last dozen years. Here we see him in a rubber bridge game.

He bid the hand in typical rubber bridge style. In other words, he looked at his own nine top tricks and used Blackwood to find that his partner held two aces and a king. That gave him 12 tricks off the top and on the generally effective theory that any time you start with 12 you will get a 13th some way, Phil bid seven spades.

The 13th trick was there based on a play sometimes called a squeeze finesse.

West's king of clubs lead marked him with the queen so if West also held the queen of diamonds he would be the victim of a simple squeeze, but West did not hold that queen.

Phil cashed all eight spades while discarding two hearts, three diamonds and two clubs from dummy. Then he cashed his ace of diamonds.

West had to hold the queen of clubs and come down to two hearts. Now Phil knew that if West held the queen of hearts it would drop so that he simply took dummy's ace and king. East had been dealt just two hearts so his queen had to drop. If East had held three there would have been no play for the grand slam after the club opening.

Textile Industry Uses Less Energy

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's textile industry is cutting down on its use of energy, says an energy-oriented publication.

Energy User News reports that manufacturers used 17 percent less energy last year than in 1972 by adopting some 160 conservation measures, including waste-heat recovery systems, new boilers, improvements in air-conditioning controls and insulation.

PLACE IN TWIRLING EVENTS—Glenda Wallace, left, recently placed in the N.B.T.A. twirling competition held in Colorado City. Amy Chitsey, center, and Crystal Caye Church placed in the Colorado City competition and the Dallas Twirling Festival held in Terrell.

Heritage Center's Art Collection Gets Boost From Two Paintings

The legendary Humphreys began managing the 206,000-acre 6666 ranch near Guthrie in 1932, but he had worked on the ranch since 1918. He died in March of 1979.

Ryan, a former president of the Cowboy Artists of America, attended the presentation of his work. The painting was given by Fred Martin of Aspermont to the Ranching Heritage Association to help the organization begin its permanent western art collection.

Other pieces donated to launch the collection include a painting by Gerald McCann. McCann has done illustrations for "Pocketbook Western Magazine," "American Legion Magazine" and Phantom Books. His works are represented in such places as the King Ranch and the Lyndon Baines Johnson Estate.

McCann's untitled work presented to the Ranching Heritage Association by John T. Montford of Lubbock portrays the western frontier with trappers and a grizzly bear.

Unusual Plan

HOUSTON (AP) — Parishoners at Christ the King Lutheran Church are being asked to give to God the way modern Americans might prefer to give to Caesar — by plastic.

"We believe the contributions will be made more promptly because people will usually pay their credit card bills and then wonder if they have anything left over. Now they can put their pledge on the credit card and pay later," the Rev. Ed Peterman said.

It began earlier this month, when Texas Commerce Medical Bank, which handles the church account, designed special forms that can be dropped into the collection plate, said bank officer Richard Ramirez.

The forms contain the member's Visa or MasterCard number and authorize the church to deduct the contribution, Ramirez said.

Dear Abby

Man Changes Policy to Woo Would-Be Wife

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 52, have been divorced three years and live with my elderly father. Having no other source of income, I took a real estate course, got my broker's license and am making a modest living selling real estate.

I've dated several men, among whom was a friend of my former husband. This man (I'll call him John) lives in another town. He contacted me after he himself was divorced and flew here to take me to dinner several times. He asked me to marry him, and after serious consideration, I refused. John is a nice man, but he has some unpleasant personal habits that I couldn't see myself living with the rest of my life. We parted company and I had no contact with him for over a year.

Last week I received an unexpected phone call from John's lawyer informing me that John had changed the beneficiary of his life insurance policy from his former wife to me!

The lawyer said John wanted to be sure I was taken care of in my old age since he knew I had no pension prospects (other than Social Security) and no other life insurance. John is 56.

I was surprised and touched. However, I still have no intention of marrying him. I haven't replied yet.

What do you make of it, Abby? What are my obligations, if any? Is it right for me to accept this gift under the circumstances? How should I respond?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: I think John is hoping that his unexpected generosity will so overwhelm you that you will change your mind and marry him. But since you have no such intention, tell him so. And if he still wants to take care of you in your old age with no strings attached, please let me know, and I'll start believing in Santa Claus again.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on your reply to "Good Ear in St. Paul," who asked which is correct, "I feel bad" or "I feel badly." You answered that "I feel bad" is correct.

Wrong! The word "bad" is an adjective and must modify a noun, such as a "bad day," or it can function as a predicate adjective in the sentence, "The day is bad."

When you ask someone how he feels, an adverb must be used to answer the question "how?" Then you add the "ly" ending to the word. Therefore, "I feel badly" is correct.

If you use my letter, please use my name. I teach English in Eau Claire, Wis.

TEACHER

DEAR SIR: Sorry, you are in error. Most verbs are modified by adverbs, but verbs that do not show action, but instead show a state of being such as "feel, become, seem, smell, taste, look, etc." are modified by adjectives. Hence, to describe how one feels, "I feel bad" is correct.

Although you requested that I use your name, I shall withhold it. If you felt "bad" before, you'd feel worse if I had used it.

DEAR ABBY: Add another Iowan who after switching from tight-fitting briefs to loose boxer shorts succeeded in getting his wife pregnant when all else had failed.

A year ago, I gave my husband three pair of boxer shorts for his 35th birthday. Nine months later I gave birth to Anne Michael (picture enclosed — our first!).

I guess the moral of this story is: "If you want fruit of the womb, forget Fruit of the Loom." Sign us . . .

To Play Tape Linking Man

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors said they planned to play a tape in federal court today in which City Councilman Jim Westmoreland discussed using bribes to influence the awarding of the health contract for city of Houston employees.

Westmoreland has not been charged in the case, but his name has surfaced repeatedly during the conspiracy and racketeering trial of a union official and a former Port of Houston commissioner.

Westmoreland has declined comment on developments in the case.

On a tape played Tuesday, labor leader L.G. Moore told two undercover FBI agents he feared that a Louisiana organized crime boss would interfere with attempts to bribe Westmoreland.

Moore said on the tape he was afraid former Port of Houston Commissioner John Garrett, who faces identical charges, would be frightened away from the scheme.

"The more people you get involved, like that guy in Louisiana, it really makes him (Garrett) jumpy," Moore said on the recording.

Ross Candidate For Vacancy

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chancellor G. Robert Ross, whose contract with the University of Arkansas at Little Rock expires June 30, is a candidate for president of North Texas State University in Denton.

The Arkansas Gazette in Little Rock reported today that Ross was one of five finalists and would visit the school Saturday, but the UALR chancellor would only say that he was nominated for the job and had promised not to divulge anything about the search.

Ross has been UALR chancellor for nine years.

Committee Looks For Chancellor

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A committee has begun searching for a replacement for Texas A&M University System Chancellor Frank W. Hubert, who says he will retire August 31.

Hubert had planned to retire in 1979 as dean of the College of Education but was persuaded by the regents board to accept the chancellorship after the resignation of Dr. Jack K. Williams.

Hubert, 66, told the A&M board of regents he has been planning for several months to leave the job he has held since October 1979.

"I will be pleased to occupy another office and to assist the new chancellor with an orderly transition," Hubert said. A four-member committee was appointed to choose a replacement.

State, Local Officials. . .

Divided Over New Federalism

By The Associated Press

State and local officials are divided over whether President Reagan's plan to transfer social programs to their control is a bold and overdue step or a move that could pit state against city and city against county.

A "bold initiative," said Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, a Republican. New Jersey's Republican Gov. Thomas Kean called it an "imaginative and innovative approach."

But California Gov. Jerry Brown, a Democrat, said the plan may be "a Trojan horse or shell game to shift intolerable financial burdens to local taxpayers." And Kenneth Gibson, the Democratic mayor of Newark, N.J., predicted his state would not be able to absorb all of the programs and "some of them are just going to disappear."

Vermont's Republican Gov. Richard Snelling, chairman of the National Governor's Conference, said the odds were about 50-50 on whether the proposal would strengthen the states or ruin them.

Most officials said it was far too early to calculate what impact Reagan's plan, if passed by Congress, would have on their states. Some said they might benefit from it. But others said there would be a shortfall.

Most local officials responding to Reagan's speech applauded the theory behind the president's plan to turn over some 40 federal programs — and the funds to pay for them — to the states. But others said what looks good on paper may not work in practice.

Big city mayors were particularly apprehensive about the impact Reagan's proposal would have on their cities.

"Those of us in the cities are very concerned that the thrust toward the states will ignite an urban-suburban conflict in most state legislatures in the country," said San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein. "The need is in the cities," she said, "yet in many states, control (of the state government) comes from the rural or suburban areas."

And Cincinnati Mayor David Mann worried "that the money will never reach us, that the money will be grabbed off to balance the (state) budget."

"The trouble is the legislature and its constitution," he added. "It's geared toward the rural and suburban areas."

New York Mayor Edward I. Koch said forcing the states to take over welfare and food stamps "would only increase further the existing differences in benefit levels among states — differences which already are too great."

And Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., said "with this proposal, we may see migration of the poor like we've never seen before."

Representatives of minority groups expressed particular concern about turning the power over people's lives to states that had abused those powers in the past.

"The new federalism means old state's rights," said the Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation PUSH. "Power was not taken from the states. The states forfeited those rights when they would not provide public accommodation, voting rights and care for children."

Tony Bonilla, head of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said "historically states have been part of the problem."

And Southern Christian Leadership Conference president Joseph Lowery called the new federalism "warmed over Confederatism. It is states' rights, which for us, meaning blacks, has always been implemented as states' wrongs."

But Tennessee's Alexander said "obviously the president has heard a very powerful voice....And that is people...saying 'give us back more control over the decisions that make the most difference to us, the decisions over our roads, our schools, our water, our sewers.'"

Although most officials could not gauge the impact on their state, some provided preliminary calculations.

Georgia state budget director Clark Stevens said the exchange of programs would put a severe strain on the state's budget in the short run. Georgia would be relieved of a $219 million a year Medicaid outlay but would be saddled with a $306 million food stamp bill and a $125 million outlay for Aid to Dependent Children, he said.

The TV networks want to take over another prime-time half-hour from your local TV stations; don't let 'em!

Usually, you get "better balance" in newscasts originated by hometown stations.

Most New York- and Washington, D.C.-based newspeople do not think as you do. You've suspected this but couldn't prove it — until now.

Pat Buchanan, having had a government-eye view of D.C. newspeople, was hesitant to criticize until Public Opinion magazine documented his darkest suspicions: that most of the media elite "look like WASPS and vote like Puerto Ricans."

For the Public Opinion profile S. Robert Lichter and Stanley Rothman spent an hour with each of 240 members of the "media elite"; reporters, editors, columnists, bureau chiefs, news executives, TV correspondents, anchormen, producers, film editors.

These are the people whose efforts color what you hear and read of public affairs, particularly of President Reagan and his policies.

Demands To Pay Taxes

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mikele Sikes is putting her money where her mouth is; she's demanding that she pay more taxes.

The 37-year-old accountant and office manager says her entire real estate tax bill, which had been running to $32 a month, has been erased by Florida's homestead tax exemption.

Novelist Charles Dickens was born in 1812.

So you'll know who's leading you around by the ear, "not once in four national elections did even 20 percent of these people support the Republican party."

They went 4-to-1 for Carter over Ford, 7-to-1 for Humphrey in '68, 16-to-1 for LBJ over Goldwater and 81-to-19 for McGovern over Nixon.

Personally, they are not representative of us.

Only 8 percent regularly attend church or synagogue.

Eighty-six percent attend "seldom or never."

Fifty-four percent see nothing wrong with adultery.

And these news media people are becoming increasingly assertive; they think they run the country.

Specifically, they were asked, "Who directs American Society?" They placed business first, themselves second and unions third.

And when the question was rephrased to read, "Who do you think sould run the country?" they placed themselves first!

These media people believe in redistribution of income, government-guaranteed jobs, affirmative action.

Buchanan concludes there is no way the Reagan administration can get its philosophy across with such a preponderance of the media lying in wait to subvert and distort it.

This President is making himself available for more in-person TV interviews where he can try to clarify his policies but, vastly outnumbered, he never has "the last word."

Now the TV networks want to take over another prime-time half-hour from your local TV stations; don't let 'em!

Seal Is No Longer Ok

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The official seal of Allegheny College is no longer getting the seal of approval.

It's been around for 80 years but only now is the school finding out that the seal contains no fewer than 10 errors.

The seal is written in Hebrew and Latin.

"The desert shall rejoice and blossom like the crocus," is what the Hebrew motto — taken from the Book of Isaiah — is supposed to say, said Jan Dillard, director of public information.

'It actually says nothing. It's just nonsense," she said Monday.

The Latin errors were misspellings due to dropped letters, she said.

Professor Says...

College Term Paper Industry Should Be Policed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sam Fitch, a University of Colorado political science teacher, decided a term paper was worth an A-minus. He changed his mind when he read a virtually identical term paper from another student.

Fitch investigated and found that both students had bought the paper on a Latin American solidarity movement from Pacific Research, a Seattle-based company that ran advertisements in campus newspapers and offered "a solution at last to students' term-paper problems."

The company advertised a 336-page catalog of 10,000 research papers and also offered to do "research to order" on topics suggested by customers.

Academic officials have condemned commercialized ghost-writing of papers since entrepreneurs more than a decade ago first hired staffs to write research papers on thousands of subjects and then sold them to students across the nation.

Until then, fraternity house files could help some students plagiarize term papers and some off-campus merchants sold them, but this was on a far smaller scale than the mail-order companies operating nationally.

Pacific Research reported annual sales of $300,000 worth of research materials, Postal Inspector James A. Harbin said. Sales from the catalog were at $3 per page and customized papers went for between $8 and $10 per page.

The company was charged by the Postal Service with using the mail for making money through misrepresentation, and in an out-of-court settlement agreed to tell colleges the names of all students who have bought their products.

Leading efforts to end the market in term papers is Thomas Ziebarth, a Postal Service consumer-protection attorney who formerly taught evening classes at American University in Washington.

"Term papers were part of my teaching responsibility. It's a very valuable learning experience, but the callous, cynical buying of a term paper doesn't help anyone except the one getting the money. It is unfortunate that cheating can so easily be applied to term papers," Ziebarth said.

The landmark court precedent in this field was a 1973 ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Boston. Overruling a lower court, it said four term paper companies violated a law making it illegal to "obtain money...through the mail by means of false representation."

Previously, this law had been used only against mail-order schemes in which the seller misled the buyer, such as by advertising lotions that would "cure" baldness or that touted worthless diet pills.

But the court held that when a third person, such as a college professor, is misled, that is also using the mails to misrepresent.

Using this precedent, Ziebarth has won decisions or obtained what he called "favorable settlements" against more than a dozen other companies.

Since then, term-paper companies have made it more difficult for the Postal Service to bring the cases by being less blatant in their advertising, Ziebarth said.

"Some used to say, 'Let us know what grade you get.' They now are in the same business but they adopt a head-in-the-sand approach and don't say they are selling term papers, even though they know very well what the student wants.

"They use disclaimers like 'For research purposes only.' When we go before the judge, we have to show that the company knows what purpose it will be used for," he said.

Ziebarth said the Postal Service has most term paper cases decided by judges.

The last three cases have resulted in out-of-court settlements. Pacific Research agreed to furnish to any requesting college or faculty member the names of all students from that institution who have ordered their products. It also agreed to put into its catalog, order forms and ads a warning that any student who buys a paper from the company and turns it in as his own work may be breaking the law.

This sort of settlement also ended other recent Postal Service cases, making it easier for universities to catch students who turn in term papers they have bought instead of writing themselves. Ziebarth said this is "tossing the ball into the academic court. If the colleges choose to use the tools they have, they should be able to do something against the cheats in their midst."

Since the Pacific Research settlement last year, the University of Minnesota, University of Oregon, Marquette University and dozens of other schools have asked for and received the list of students ordering papers from the Pacific Research, Harbin said. "For those schools at least, our approach appears to be working," Ziebarth said.

The two students in Fitch's political science class had been seniors about to graduate, but each was suspended for two years. They may apply for reinstatement after the suspension is over, but their transcripts now read "suspended for academic dishonesty."

Fitch said catching the two was "very much of a fluke. The company obviously didn't intend for two students in the same class to use the same paper. Policing of academic honesty usually is very difficult."

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Shipmates of a tugboat worker who fell overboard into the Galveston Ship Channel say he hit his head in the fall and was wearing no lifejacket, Coast Guard spokesmen said.

State Of The Union Address. . .

Texas Lawmakers Comment On Reagan's Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Republican congressmen lauded President Reagan for his State of the Union address Tuesday night, but noted a growing hostility among Democrats and predicted that it will be hard to push the president's proposals through Congress this year.

Several Texas Democrats said it was obvious that the president dwelled only on the good things. He all but ignored the nation's $100 billion national deficit, indicating he was willing to live with it, they said.

"The comments I heard around me were, 'Boy, he doesn't say much, but he sure says it pretty.' As far as content goes, his speech didn't have that much content," said Rep. Richard White, D-Texas, of El Paso.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, of Stamford, the head of the conservative Democratic coalition that helped Reagan win passage of his economic program last year, was one of several Texas "Boll Weevils" who liked what Reagan said, however.

"The president had the easy part tonight. He did what he does best. His speech was masterful. He outlined a very clear road map of where he would like to see this country go. Now Congress has the hard part — making it go," Stenholm said.

In his speech — rejecting the idea of tax increases for 1982, calling for further cuts in spending, and recommending transferral of numerous federal programs to state and local governments — the president was interrupted 20 times by applause. Most of it came from the Republican side of the aisle.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said the president "has put together an imaginative and brilliant program of federal sharing. It restores decision making to the states and strengthens state government at the same time."

The long-range benefit of turning federal programs over to state and local governments, Tower said, will be that states probably will receive more money than they would otherwise, while proving less costly to the federal government as well.

"I think it is a very, very good program, and I believe that it will receive widespread support," Tower said.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, of Fort Worth said Reagan "spoke, as he usually does, in inspirational tones and terms. All Americans join him in his hope for a better future." But Wright said he wants to see much more information on Reagan's proposal of turning federal programs over to state and local governments.

"The one very serious significant omission from the speech was any plan to reduce the looming deficits which lie in the wake of the enormous tax cut and the deepening recession," Wright added.

"I want very much to cooperate with President Reagan, but I would like to know what he proposes to stimulate private employment and to reduce the deficit substantially," Wright added.

Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas, of Lake Jackson was delighted Reagan "stuck to his guns" against tax increases, but said he "would have been more pleased if he had emphasized more cuts and gone all the way and said we should go for a balanced budget immediately. That's what's necessary, I think, and that's what's lacking. Otherwise, I thought his speech was good."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas: "I'm not going to pass judgment on the president's proposed $47 billion transfer of federal programs to state and local governments until we can see more details. He only gave us a peek at it. ... I will be very interested in any proposal to turn highway programs over to individual states. Texas has historically gotten the short end of the stick on this. ... I was disappointed that the president made no mention of any effort to get Federal Reserve Board policies — which helped bring on the recession — more in line with administrative policies."

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, of Dallas: "I thought it was interesting that he tried to sweep the whole issue of the deficit under the rug. I don't think we can tolerate a $100 billion deficit for one year, and I think we're going to have to make some changes in the personal income tax cuts we passed last year. I also have some real concern about his idea about transferring these programs back to the states. The wealthy states ... benefits and poorer states ...

More Reactions To President Reagan's Address

benefits, and we could have people moving to other states to get higher welfare benefits."

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, of College Station: "It was a strong reaffirmation of the president's basic economic program and an effective kickoff of Phase 2. The president effectively defined the terms of the debate in the second session of the 97th Congress. It's clearly between those who want to continue to control spending so we can give the American people the full tax cut we promised them, and those who want to raise taxes so they can increase federal spending."

Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, of Vernon: "I was glad to hear the president reaffirm his commitment to cut wasteful spending and weed out fraud and abuse. ... I regret that the president did not mention the growing farm depression and did not propose a solution. We must turn the farm economy around now. The destruction of agriculture and the small businesses of America must not be the price we pay for reducing inflation."

Rep. Bill Patman, D-Texas, of Ganado: "I keep hoping for some solutions to the problems we have in the economy. But what we heard was his reaffirmation of faith in what was done last year and which hasn't started working yet but which I sincerely hope will start working at least by the time he promised it would tonight, and that is July 1. The idea of controlling the deficits seems to be put on the back burner. He didn't talk much about that. He put his whole stack of chips on the program that was passed last year and his hopes that it will work."

Rep. Ralph Hall, D-Texas, of Rockwall: "I like his idea of reducing the federal work force by 75,000 or maybe 150,000, and I like the idea that he didn't retreat from the tax cuts. I like his continued pursuit of the strong national defense, and I like the fact that he's going to look at the entitlement programs. I've always appreciated the idea of returning more programs to the states, and I think his is a good solution, to do it over a 10-year period instead of overnight."

Rep. Richard White, D-Texas, of El Paso: I didn't think it was his best speech, personally. I agree with him in the essentials of cutting spending, building productivity and developing incentive, but when he got to the point of developing his new program, it ran through my head he wasn't selling it too well to Congress. His new federalism could lead to a lack of uniformity which will be good for some states but be a shambles in others and lead to people moving from state to state depending on which has the best benefits."

Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, of Lake Jackson: "I was very glad to hear the president restate his commitment to the four points of his economic recovery program and went further by saying it is having tangible results. I was ecstatic about his suggesting that programs needed by people be returned to the state and local level, where there can be greater control and closer scrutiny, to stop fraud, waste and abuse. I think his proposed urban enterprise zone could have great potential for certain areas of my congressional district, depending on how those zones are structured."

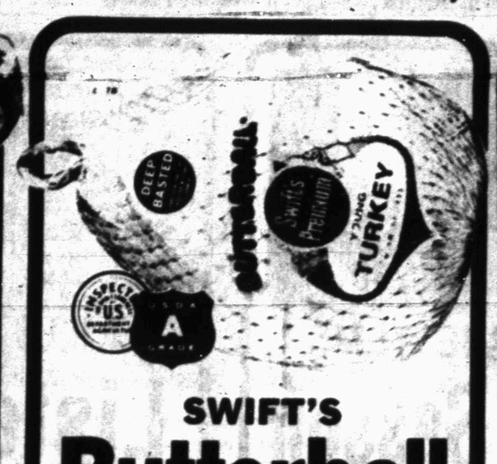

Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, of Dallas: "I was enthusiastic about the president tonight. The big strength, what hit home in Texas was when he said there would be no tax increase ... that the emphasis is on incentives for more savings. And basically when he got into the other ... his idea of facing up to returning ... of the government to the states. But did you listen to the speech. All the applause was mostly on just the Republican side of the aisle. It looks like he's going to be in for a rough session. Most of (the Democrats) were sitting on their hands."

President Reagan...

Follows Economic Plan Despite Deficit Prospects

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, refusing to try "to balance the budget on the backs of American taxpayers," says he has no intention of changing his economic policies despite the prospects of giant deficits.

Rejecting his advisers' call for higher taxes, Reagan told Congress Tuesday night that he was sticking to his tax-cutting course, predicting that it will put the nation back on the road to prosperity this year.

But in his first State of the Union message, Reagan forecast a record deficit (estimates at less than $100 billion (in fiscal 1982) and declining" over the next two years.

"Higher taxes would not mean lower deficits," Reagan said. "Raising taxes won't balance the budget. It will encourage more government spending and less private investment, slow economic growth, reduce production and destroy future jobs."

Reagan made it clear that he wouldn't revise his economic program despite a deepening recession that has pushed unemployment near its highest levels since World War II.

Reagan promised at the start of his presidency to balance the budget by 1983. One year later, he said he intends to reduce the deficits that now loom ahead by proposing further cuts in social benefits and other domestic programs, plugging $24 billion worth of business tax "loopholes" through 1984 and achieving other savings, such as selling off surplus property and speeding up sales of offshore oil and gas leases.

Proposed cuts in benefit programs — excluding Social Security — will total $63 billion over the next four years, he said.

Reagan did not detail any other budget plans for fiscal 1983, which begin Oct. 1, but one administration official said the president intends to lower the deficit by about $10 billion a year in 1983 and 1984. The new budget is scheduled to go to Congress on Feb. 8.

The largest deficit on record was set in 1976, when $66.4 billion in red ink was accumulated.

Reagan's refusal to seek higher taxes marks a major victory for Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and tax-cut advocates in the Treasury Department, who had been counseling the president against major new tax proposals.

By contrast, the president's decision is a serious setback for his senior economic advisers and some leading Republicans in Congress.

That warning was repeated earlier Tuesday by Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker, who warned that recently rising interest rates could quash an economic recovery unless the president and Congress act forcefully to keep deficits from soaring.

Volcker told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that "it's critically important that you take the opportunity you have" to keep the deficit from topping $10 billion, as some forecasts predict. Otherwise, lenders will be unwilling to cut interest rates to help spur an economic recovery, he said.

Test Results Are Negative

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Police say the slaying of an 18-year-old former cheerleader stabbed 38 times may have been the latest in a series of sexually motivated attacks and obscene telephone calls directed at blond cheerleaders.

Wesley Wayne Miller, 19, a graduate of Castleberry High School on the city's north side is charged with murder in the death of Letha Stratton, a classmate and former Castleberry cheerleader.

He remains jailed under $100,000 bond. In a copyright story, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said Miller has given police a statement saying he stabbed Miss Stratton with a knife from her own kitchen after a struggle.

In addition, police told the newspaper they have recovered physical evidence in the case, including some bloodstained clothng.

Laboratory tests showed Miss Stratton was not sexually assaulted before she died, police said Tuesday.

Police say Miller is a suspect in four sexual assaults, although no charges have been filed in those cases.

Four of the five victims — including Miss Stratton — were blondes, four were former cheerleaders and the fifth was the sister of a cheerleader, investigators said.

Texas Upset; Missouri Alone

by The Associated Press

With Jim Lemons away, the Texas Longhorns won't play.

With their coach in Oklahoma City because his brother was having surgery, the fifth-ranked Longhorns played one of their worst basketball games of the season Tuesday night.

The result was a 69-59 loss to Baylor that ended their unbeaten streak at 14 and reduced the Top Twenty to one undefeated team, Missouri.

"We're still 14-1 and there's a long way to go," said Texas assistant Coach Barry Dowd, who filled in for Lemons Tuesday night. "Baylor played well and Terry Teagle was just super."

Teagle scored 22 points, 18 in the second half when the unheralded Bears raced past the Longhorns.

Texas, second-leading rebounding team in the country, was beaten badly on the backboards, 48-26, mainly because Texas' sophomore sensation, Mike Wacker, injured his left knee in the first half and never returned.

Dowd went to his bench to try to replace Wacker but couldn't find the help he needed. The Bears then proceeded to double Texas' rebound total and outdistanced the Longhorns in the final five minutes.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 12 Arkansas escaped with a 64-63 victory over Texas A&M and No. 17 North Carolina State held off Georgia Tech 49-40.

Top Twenty

Darrell Walker raced downcourt and hit a 20-foot jump shot with two seconds to play, rallying Arkansas over Texas A&M.

The winning shot came after A&M's Rudy Woods sank a free throw with eight seconds left to give the Aggies a 63-62 lead. But Woods missed his second shot and Walker sprinted to the winning goal, giving the Razorbacks their second one-point victory in four days. They had beaten Houston 67-66 last Saturday.

North Carolina State built an early lead behind the outside shooting of Dereck Whittenburg and held off stubborn Georgia Tech. Whittenburg finished with 20 points, while forward Thurl Bailey added 12.

Felines Pop Tors; Test Pecos Next

Coach Ken Housden's Snyder Felines sacked up another District 2-AAAA victory here last night, thumping Lamesa 70-53 in varsity action.

The girls, now 3-1 in second-round district play and 10-11 for the season, travel to Pecos Friday as loop wars continue.

"It looks like we've got it rolling now," said Housden. "I hope we can keep it up."

Snyder's girls are still in the loop race, though first-round winner Andrews would have to lose two games to allow the Felines a shot at any playoffs. Andrews defeated Odessa Ector last night, 91-47.

All was not good news for the Felines last night however, as shortly before game time senior ballplayer Tammy Merritt was involved in an auto accident. She was taken to Codgell Memorial Hospital and is currently listed in stable condition. Details of her injuries were unavailable from the hospital.

"We'd like to send our best to her," said Housden. "We wish her a speedy recovery and hope she gets along real well."

Michelle Townsel cracked the Golden Tornadoes for 24 points and Brenda Anderson added 15 as the Felines had little trouble last evening. Pam Perceval, who led in the rebounding department with 11, also had 11 points. Tracey O'Day scored 7.

Snyder worked to a 14-12 lead in the first quarter and extended it to 33-22 by halftime before blowing out the Tornadoes 23-10 in the third period. Lamesa won the fourth, 21-14, but the Felines had already assured the victory.

Eighth Pair Beats Roby

ROBY -- Snyder eighth grade boys Gold and Black teams defeated Roby here Monday night in doubleheader basketball action.

Snyder Gold defeated Roby seventh grade 31-26 as Tony Romero scored 7 points, Corey Miller and Robert May 6 points, Guy Garrett 5, Joe Pyburn 4 and Jeff McGuire and Tim Curfman 2 apiece.

Don Osborn scored 10 as Snyder Black topped Roby eighth grade 59-31. Jackie Anderson scored 7 for Snyder, while Jimmy Hunter, Ricky Hunter, Mike McWilliams, Bobby Scott and Reggie Price had 6 each, Justin Webb had 5, and Steve Parker and Tim Mitchell had 2 apiece.

Hawkins paced the visitors, now 1-3 in second round play, with 18 points. Strawn had 12.

In other play here Tuesday, Snyder junior varsity got 16 points and 13 rebounds from Penny Wolfe to fashion a 39-24 victory over Lamesa. Wendy Lunsford added 12 points and Cari Housden scored 6.

Ford Named Coach Of Year

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) The Football Writers Association of America has named Clemson's Danny Ford the 1981 Coach of the Year.

Ford won by the second-largest margin in the 25-year history of the association with 197 votes. Hayden Fry of Iowa received 45 votes and Washington's Don James was third in the balloting with 21. Jackie Sherrill of Pittsburgh had 12 votes and Miami's Howard Schnellenberger had 10.

Snyder Plays Well, But...

Lamesa Gets Hot, Burns Cats

LAMESA -- It was shades of Scurry County Coliseum revisited here last night as Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes picked one quarter - in this case the third - and turned it into a game-winner.

The Tors, behind 21-20 at halftime, stuck up 17 third-quarter points to slip past Snyder 47-39 in a crucial District 2-AAAA contest. In their meeting earlier this season in Snyder, Lamesa had outscored the Tigers 20-4 in the second period enroute to a 57-42 victory.

Last night's loss gives Snyder an 0-2 record for the second half of district play, and all but knocks them out of any chance at a fourth consecutive loop title.

"Mathmatically we're still in it," said Coach Larry Scott, whose Tigers host Pecos on Friday night. "We're still going to play all of our games and the unofficial 50 percent to play to win. It's not any big secret our chances are not too good (for getting back in the race). But our kids aren't quitters. We've played three tough ballgames in a row on the road now and I'm proud of the way the kids have gotten after it," he added.

Snyder played as well as it could last night. The entire game came down to shooting percentages in the third period. The Tigers had taken the first quarter 8-6 and were leading by a point at intermission before Lamesa got hot. To make matters worse, Snyder went cold.

"Their shots fell and ours didn't. That's about it," said Scott. "I thought we played well. We were getting good shots, but they just weren't falling in the hole. There's not much you can do about something like that."

Snyder had held Lamesa standout Victor Spencer to five points at halftime and was out-shooting the Tors 36 percent. But the 6-0 junior notched seven points in the third period as Lamesa' shooting picked up to a near-65 percent clip in the third period while Snyder's fell to .333.

Lamesa outscored the visitors 17-6 in the period to take a 37-27 advantage, then hung on through the fourth for the eight-point victory.

Shooting was perhaps the only difference in the game. Snyder handled Lamesa's on-again, off-again fullcourt press with little trouble all through the game, and won the battle of the boards 26 to 22.

Lamesa scored first for a 4-0 lead, but baskets by Brad Robertson and James Caldwell eventually tied the game 6-6, and D.W. Lofton made it 8-6 at the first-quarter buzzer.

The lead changed sides five times in the first half - four times in the second quarter. Caldwell and Lofton paced Snyder's offense, while the 20-plus footers of Arredondo kept Lamesa in the game.

In the third, Spencer got his seven and Bill Cheeks slapped up six to lead the Tors. Lamesa got eight straight points mid-way through the period.

Caldwell hit a pair of charity shots to open the fourth period and Snyder got two back-to-back chances to cut Lamesa's lead, but was unable to convert. Lamesa eventually walked its lead out to 43-29 before Keith Wallace and John Wilson scored consecutive buckets for Snyder.

Spencer's 16 points led all scorers for the game. Arredondo scored 10 and Cheeks added 8.

For Snyder, Lofton had 12 points and Caldwell 11. Caldwell also had three blocked shots on the night. Wilson scored 6 points.

In earlier action here, Lamesa junior varsity defeated Snyder's Cats 59-52. Lamesa had a 20-point lead in the third quarter, but Snyder rallied to win the fourth period 20-9 in trimming the margin.

Trey McWilliams banged in 19 points for Snyder, while Whit Parks had 12.

Westerners Challenge NMMI Broncos Here

Western Texas College's Westerners and the Broncos of New Mexico Military find themselves in the same shape today, but both are looking to turn things around here tomorrow night.

The teams, both 2-7 in Western JC Athletic Conference play, vie here Thursday at 8 p.m. in Scurry County Coliseum.

NMMI comes in at 9-13 on the season, while Western Texas is 10-12. One of the Broncos' nine wins came back on Nov. 30 when they defeated the Westerners 89-72 at Roswell, N.M.

New Mexico is averaging 80.2 points and allowing 81.2, shooting .479 from the floor and .626 from the charity stripe.

Western averages 77.7 offensively and 76.9 defensively, while hitting .530 in field goals and .662 from the line.

Despite its record, NMMI has one of the top rebounding teams in the conference. Mark Walker, who pulled down 26 boards in one game this season, is averaging 9.5, while J.C. Baty takes off 8 and big 6-8 Leroy Paris averages 7.8.

Baty leads the Broncos in scoring with 18.4 points per outing. Walker averages 12.8.

The Westerners are led offensively by Darren Lee's 19.6 points and 8.6 rebounds. Derrick Grow is averaging 14.3 points, while Dwayne Hunt is getting 13.6 points and 5.4 boards.

Thursday night begins a new practice for Westerner and Duster games. WTC officials have invited the administration, faculty, staff and students of Hermleigh, Sweetwater and Ira to the game.

At Other Nuclear Plants...

Steam Generator Pipes Will Cause Problems

ONTARIO, N.Y. (AP) — The nation's chief nuclear power regulator says he thinks steam generator pipes will continue to cause problems at facilities like the R.E. Ginna plant, which was brought to a "cold shutdown" after a rupture caused a radiation leak.

A plant spokesman said officials hope to get their first look at any damage inside the steam generator Saturday.

"There will be no major benchmarks (in the recovery effort) before we physically inspect the steam generator," said John Oberlies, chief spokesman for the plant's owner, Rochester Gas & Electric Co.

The plant, which stands on the shore of Lake Ontario 16 miles northeast of Rochester, was brought to a cold shutdown — a state of low pressure and temperature — Tuesday afternoon, about 31 hours after a number of tubes ruptured within one of two steam generators.

Three bursts of radioactive steam lasting a total of two minutes were released into the atmosphere Monday and 11,000 gallons of mildly radioactive water spilled into a sump in the basement of the plant's containment building.

Oberlies said no traces of radiation were found Tuesday outside the plant gates. Traces had been detected Monday.

With cold shutdown, temperatures in the reactor's primary cooling system dropped to about 200 degrees Fahrenheit at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, and the pressure was lowered to about 15 pounds per square inch — the same as that in the atmosphere at sea level. Heat removal systems were kept on to cut the temperature to 140 degrees.

The normal operating temperature of the reactor is about 600 degrees, with water under pressures of 2250 psi.

The radioactive water was to be pumped out of the containment building basement today and transferred to tanks. Eventually, the radioactive elements will be removed and sent to a disposal site.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Nunzio Palladino said Tuesday night on public TV's "McNeil-Lehrer Report" that he thinks there will be steam generator tube problems at other nuclear power plants.

"We have been having trouble with steam generator tubes, due to corrosion," Palladino said. "As (NRC Regional Administrator Ronald) Haynes reported, we've had three other incidents that have had releases comparable to or greater than this incident." However, Palladino said it was unlikely any future incident would be worse than the Ginna incident.

Radioactive water heated by the nuclear reactor runs through a network of pipes in the generator, which is filled with non-radioactive water that drives the plant's powerful turbines after it turns to steam.

Normally water from the two systems does not mix — only heat is exchanged — but in the Tuesday's incident at the Westinghouse-designed Ginna plant, one of the tubes carrying radioactive water burst and leaked into the non-radioactive water.

At least seven American nuclear power plants have been shut down at least briefly since November 1980 because of tube leaks, according to NRC records, and the Ginna plant has a history of corrosion in the type of tubing where the leak occurred.

Artist Asks For Freedom

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has given the Justice Department 20 days to respond to a defense attorney's motion to vacate an 11-year-old conviction that has left an artist jailed here without bond.

Eric Rusmisel, who fled to Canada to avoid a five-year prison sentence, has drawn support from Ottawa Mayor Marion Dewar and Canada's ambassador to the United States in his efforts to win his freedom, federal officials said.

Acupuncture Success Varies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In the early '70s, after the flower children lost their bloom, the Haight-Ashbury Free Medical Clinic was a haven for heroin addicts.

A decade later, trappings of the hippie culture amuse tourists on Haight Street and the clinic still cares for addicts. But now there's a new type of treatment available to end the tragedy of addiction — acupuncture.

"I don't think acupuncture is a panacea," says Gregory L. Johnson, a sociologist who investigated the value of acupuncture during an 18-month, federally funded project involving 460 heroin addicts.

"Acupuncture offers a chance to break out" of the traditional approach of replacing heroin with other drugs such as methadone and tranquilizers, Johnson said during an interview at the clinic.

Acupuncture also helps those addicted to Valium, a frequently prescribed tranquilizer.

Addicts who used acupuncture "demonstrated dramatic improvements in sympton relief and mood-states, especially in the area of withdrawal pain, depression, and anxiety," concluded Johnson and co-researcher John A. Newmeyer.

Acupuncture "worked as well as pills on short-term (addiction) and maybe better for those highly motivated," Johnson said.

Acupuncture is about 35 percent cheaper than drug therapy combined with counseling and 50 percent cheaper than methadone treatment, the researchers said.

The $170,000 trial yielded some disappointment. Addicts who chose acupuncture were "significantly more likely to drop out" of the treatment than those taking medication. Six months after treatment, usually given for 21 days, just 5 percent of addicts were still off heroin.

Two out of three patients who originally used acupuncture requested medication upon their return to the clinic.

"Despite their endorsement of acupuncture's effectiveness, most clients discontinued treatments because of its inconvenience relative to pills and the perceived pain of the needles," Johnson and Newmeyer said.

"We're really fighting people's liking for pills," Johnson said.

The acupuncture needles, usually inserted in two points in the outer ear in a 30-minute session, transmit a nine-volt electric current which deadens pain impulses.

The treatment is painless, although the thought of sticking needles ⅛-inch deep into the skin disturbed some clients, said Susan Lo, an acupuncturist who tends to 40 to 70 patients a day.

Two areas of research gave birth to the study, conducted from October 1979 to April 1981. One was the work last decade of H. L. Wen, a Hong Kong neurosurgeon, who is credited with discovering the pain-killing effects of acupuncture on addicts withdrawing from heroin.

The other inspiration came from recent neurological research which indicated that acupuncture triggers pain-suppressing substances in the brain known as endorphins.

The Haight-Ashbury project found that acupuncture was more likely to help better-educated, employed clients who lived outside heavy drug-use areas than those with criminal records and surrounded by other addicts.

Construction Workers Die

HOUSTON (AP) — Two construction workers have died in separate industrial accidents, authorities said.

E. Joseph Dunn, 21, a material handler, was crushed Monday by a falling pipe, authorities said. They were uncertain whether the pipe slipped from a hoist or Dunn slipped and caused the pipe to fall.

An unidentified Pasadena iron worker apparently slipped and fell 34 stories down an elevator shaft while working at a high-rise luxury condiminum project Monday.

The death was the second at the site in the past four months. A 33-year-old construction worker died in September when he fell five stories down the shaft, authorities said.

Thomas Alva Edison was granted a patent on the phonograph in 1878.

Local Company Charges Theft

Snyder police officers are investigating a theft of services complaint received Tuesday afternoon.

Officals with Lone Star Gas called police and requested that they file charges in reference to a direct gas connection they found in the city. Residents of a house on 34th St. had been using the connection to avoid paying for the natural gas they used.

Local police officers also investigated a minor hit and run accident reported around 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. According to reports, a 1976 Chevrolet owned by Patrick Kenny of 1914 Coleman Avenue was struck by an unknown vehicle which fled the scene.

Snyder police officers also arrested two subjects on public intoxication charges Tuesday evening.

Youth To Stand Trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A 15-year-old boy whose companion was shot to death during an alleged holdup of two off-duty police officers has been certified to stand trial as an adult on aggravated robbery charges.

Diet Center Rated High

The third annual Franchise 500 released by "Entrepreneur Magazine" for 1981 (January '82 issue) places Diet Center, Inc., in the 9th position overall in the country. The magazine maintains a continuing study of more than 1,200 franchisors in 31 fields.

For the second consecutive year, Diet Center, Inc., is ranked No. 1 in the weight controlfitness centers category representing continued growth and leadership in that area. The rating is based on "Entrepreneur's" proprietary mathematical formula assigning values for experience, market acceptance and growth rate. This weighed-rating system is applied to all franchising companies on which data is available.

Diet Center, Inc., founded 11 years ago, has over 1,400 active franchises with 300 more scheduled to open. Diet Center, Inc. is planning to expand its international operations with additional Canadian Centers and with possible entry into other foreign countries.

Americans are losing nearly 1 million pounds per month on the program. Through follow-up studies, Diet Center, Inc. has determined a loss maintenance success rate of nearly 60 per cent compared to a dismal four per cent national average for dieters.
