Recount doesn't change outcome of Pct. 2 election

A recount of three boxes and the early voting box resulted in no change in the outcome for Scurry County Precinct 2 Commissioner.

However, both incumbent Roy Idom and challenger Linda Sellars picked up one vote each in the early voting box.

Idom's final total is 642, while Sellars' is 635.

Sellars asked for the recount Wednesday afternoon after coming seven votes short of Idom's total in Tuesday's general election.

Returns Tuesday night gave Idom 641 votes and Sellars 634.

A four-vote change in Sellar's favor would have resulted in her being named the winner.

Revised figures give Idom 307 early votes to Sellars' 280.

Idom won voting box 7 by 10 votes 284-274, and they each received 41 votes in box 6.

Sellars carried box 5 by 30 votes — 40-10.

The challenger said Wednesday that she did not really expect the outcome of the election to change in the recount.

"I just feel like I owe it to the voters to have the recount just to make sure," said Sellars.

THE SDN COLUMN

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If a window of opportunity appears, don't pull down the shade."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: Lynn Brisendine, in the Brownfield News, often is amazed by the number of pessimistic persons encountered each day.

It seems that their motto is "Don't Worry, Be Crabby."

--Always take time to stop and smell the roses. Sooner or later, you'll inhale a bee.

--If you don't like my driving, don't call anyone. Just take another road. That's why the highway department made so many of them.

--When I'm feeling down, I like to whistle. It makes my neighbor's dog run to the end of his chain.

--A handy telephone tip. Keep a small chalkboard near the phone. That way, when a salesman calls, you can hold the receiver up to it and run your fingernails across it until he hangs up.

Marshall Day, in the Gatesville Messenger, had a story we can't pass up.

During a recent public outing, Hillary sneaked off to visit a fortune teller.

In the dark and hazy room, peering into the crystal ball, the mystic delivered some grave news.

"There is no easy way to say this, so I'll just be blunt. Prepare yourself to be a widow. Your husband will die a violent and horrible death."

Visibly shaken, Hillary started at the woman's line face, then at the single flickering candle. She took a few deep breaths to compose herself.

Hilary simply had to know. She met the fortune teller's gaze, steadied her voice and asked the question:

"Will I be acquitted?"

Ninth Lord's Acre set for Saturday

Scurry County Coliseum will be the site Saturday of the ninth annual Lord's Acre Festival sponsored by the First United Methodist Church.

The doors of the coliseum will open at 11 a.m. and the festival will feature homemade food items, handmade arts and crafts, church cookbook, sidewalk artist, silent and live auctions, Kenneth Wyatt jewelry, Christian books and Christian shirts.

Children's activities will include jewelry making, sand and bead art, jumping air castle and free balloons.

Entertainment throughout the day will include the Kitchen Band from the Senior Citizens Center and 4 Giv'n, a gospel group. Singers will include Shareka Wofford, Meribeth Kahlich, Kathy Curry, Katie Curry and Rachel Cave.

Also to be featured are Reid Johnson's Magic Show and the Deep Creek Cloggers.

A barbecue dinner will begin at 5:30 p.m. Tickets are $6.50 for adults, $3 for children 6-12, and children under 6 eating free.

A live auction will begin at 6 p.m.. Items to be auctioned include a print and cross shadow box by Kenneth Wyatt of Tulia, a sculpture "family" by Veda Wyatt, Christmas tree skirts, hand-crafted computer desk and chair, birdhouses, Waterford Crystal Christmas tree ornament and large print NIV study bible.

Proceeds from Lord's Acre will benefit the First United Methodists Church's youth ministry.

The custom of the Lord's Acre event dates to Biblical times when "first fruits" of the land were brought as an offering to God.

In later times, farmers would dedicate a portion of their crop or livestock — thus the name Lord's Acre became identified as that particular portion designated to be given to the church.

Veterans Day events planned

The American Legion will have a flag raising ceremony Wednesday at its post in honor of Veterans Day.

The ceremony will take place at 9 a.m. and will be preceded by a pancake breakfast beginning at 6 a.m.

The breakfast will continue through 10 that morning.

A barbecue dinner will be served on Wednesday from 6 until 8 p.m., and all veterans and their families are invited.

The American Legion Ladies Auxiliary will be selling poppies today and Saturday at Wal-Mart and both Lawrence IGAs.

District garden clubs meeting set in Snyder

District VIII Garden Clubs of Texas fall convention begins this evening with pre-convention activities at the Wagon Wheel Ranch with Snyder Garden Club and Colorado City Garden Club co-hosting.

Saturday's activities begin with registration and coffee at the Student Christian Center at WTC. An executive board meeting is scheduled for 8:30 and the general meeting will convene at 10 a.m. State president Ina Brundrett plans to attend.

Troop 27 Boy Scouts, under the direction of scoutmaster Glenn Burns, will lead the pledge of alligiance to the American and Texas Flags. Mayor David Holt will give the welcome.

Following the business meeting, Sue Travis of Snyder will give the program.

Other garden clubs to be represented are Abilene, Stamford, San Angelo, Breckenridge, Del Rio, Haskell, Cross Plains, Rankin and Big Lake.

'Happiness' topic of WTC speakers

By Joyce May
Staff Writer

Knowing yourself. Working hard. Trusting in a Higher Power.

All very different answers to an age-old question — How do you find happiness?

The question was posed to four individuals from Snyder with varying backgrounds during a panel discussion Thursday.

The four — Drew Bullard, Nan Swanson, Roy Baze and Tony Wofford — were panelists brought together by Western Texas College's Psi Zeta Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa to address the issue of happiness.

The organization's honor topic this year is "The Pursuit of Happiness: Conflicting Visions and Values."

Bullard, a trustee on the WTC board and the owner of Bullard's Computer Solutions,spoke first. Bullard addressed some of the unconscious factors that affect a person's definition of happiness.

He reflected to his time spent serving in the Peace Corps in India when he realized other cultures are very different from the Western World's.

"The idea of romantic love is not even a concept in India." Bullard said.

Whereas, he continued, in America most people expect to meet, fall in love, marry and find happiness.

Also in India, Bullard said, individualism is not a concept.

"The idea that your parents would actually want you to leave the house and go live somewhere else is cruel.

"This is a concept we take for granted that is not found in another culture."

Along with unconscious forces affecting people's happiness, Bullard said, personal environment is a factor.

"How we were brought up, what our parents were like, first-born, second born, male or female...if you're going to form an idea of happiness you have to come to grips with these forces."

Bullard said some of these things people are not aware of.

"Happiness can be changing throughout one's life, influenced by factors we sometimes don't understand."

The bottom line, Bullard concluded, "Know yourself."

Rev. Swanson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, took the platform next, wrapping her theme around a take on country singer Johnny Lee's song, "Looking for Love (In All the Wrong Places)."

Swanson said most people look for happiness in all the wrong places.

"Sometimes the general thought is that the world is a hard place and that escaping from it brings us happiness."

That escape usually comes in the form of materialism, drugs, alcohol and/or wealth.

"Those lifts you get from those things are temporary lifts and have to be repeated again and again."

Money, she said, does not buy happiness.

"Money can buy the husk, but not the kernel."

In God is where Swanson found happiness.

"Of course, my take is that God gives life meaning and beauty and a sense of joy of the present moment and helps us by putting God and our fellow human beings at the center of our lives rather than being selfish."

Baze, former WTC board member and a retired vice president for Exxon Corp., was the next speaker.

In his address, he "painted a thumbnail sketch of his life" to illustrate how he has found happiness.

Baze began by saying that "happiness embraces many facets" and he chose to talk about happiness as it relates to employment.

He sketched out his life from his graduation from Snyder High throughout his times at the California air cleanup:

Oversize wagons, trucks will get treated like cars

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — California, the nation's most car-populated state, became the first to force most sport utility vehicles, pickups and minivans to meet the same pollution standards as regular cars.

The 12-member state Air Resources Board, facing federally mandated emission reductions by 2010, unanimously approved the rules Thursday after a final hearing. The new rules are likely to be closely examined by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Automakers said they cannot meet the tough new smog-control standards. But the air regulators said they can and must.

In California, there are 25 million vehicles on the roads. As in the rest of the nation, about half the new vehicles sold are the bulky variety exempt by weight from more stringent car-pollution standards because regulators used to regard them as work wagons.

The new rules apply only to new cars sold starting in 2004 and will be phased in through 2010, with re-evaluations scheduled every two years.

The rules would expand passenger car emission standards to all vehicles that weigh up to 8,500 pounds. That will include about 90 percent of sport utility vehicles and most pickups and minivans.

The rules would also create a new medium-duty class between 8,501 pounds and 14,000 pounds gross vehicle weight that would have nearly as stringent standards.

"I'm very disappointed in the outcome," said Samuel A. Leonard, an emissions expert with General Motors. "It just means we've got to put our engineers to work, put the catalyst companies to work, come back in two years and see where we are. It's all we can do."

Empress Josephine, divorced wife of Napoleon, died in 1814.

Health issues pressed

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Republicans quarreling about election setbacks, President Clinton sought to seize the political agenda with a health-care initiative Thursday as the impeachment momentum slowed in Congress.

Clinton said Americans are "tired of seeing Washington focused on politics and personalities,"

Upbeat after the Democrats' surprising victories, Clinton held an Oval Office strategy session with Vice President Al Gore and the top Democrats in Congress, House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt of Missouri and Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota.

Clinton said Congress' first order of business should be passing the patients' bill of rights, a Democratic formula to give people more clout to challenge decisions by health maintenance organizations. The measure was a Democratic battle cry during the campaign, along with higher education spending and shoring up the Social Security system.

The health-reform bill failed in the House this year by five votes; Clinton pointed out that Democrats picked up five seats in Tuesday's elections.

While Republicans bickered about the election results and pointed fingers of blame at each other, White House officials were careful not to gloat.

Annual recycling day set Nov. 15

The second annual America Recycles Day is scheduled Sunday, Nov. 15.

The initiative is sponsored by the Recycling Coaltion of Texas (RCT) and is designed to increase recycling and purchases of recycled products.

Forty-four states, the District of Columbia and two U.S. territories are organizing an estimated 5,000 events.

The event is based on the successful Texas Recycles Day, which has increased recycling rates for 90 percent of participating communities.

RCT, based in Austin, is the state's largest membership organization of recycling industry professionals. Its mission is to promote waste reduction through public policy advocacy, networking and public education.

For more information about the RCT, call toll-free at 1-888-258-3404 or visit the Web site at www.recycletx.org

'The Body' points to his mayoral term, but how did he really do?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jesse "The Body" Ventura climbed into the ring plenty of times as pro wrestling's feather boa-waving bad boy. The hulking governor-elect's lone bout with politics has been his four-year stint as mayor of suburban Brooklyn Park.

Ventura — who also has radio talk show host and movie actor on his resume — often pointed to that mayoral experience during his shockingly successful run for governor as the Reform Party candidate.

"I can do the job," he has said. "It's not like it's transplanting kidneys."

Despite his bravado, reflected in his new moniker, "The Mind," some in Brooklyn Park say he is merely a showman without a plan for running state government — a $12 billion enterprise that has 48,000 employees.

Even so, the gravel-voiced man who will be Minnesota's next governor has his political fans: those in Brooklyn Park who say it became a better place during the Ventura years.

"All in all, I think he did a good job," said City Councilman Joe Enge, who was Ventura's main ally on the council. "He made some changes that needed to be made."

Crime dropped considerably while Ventura, 47, was mayor, and economic development quickened, Enge said. He said Ventura helped raise public awareness about city government by working to put council meetings on cable television.

Although Brooklyn Park is largely run by a city manager, Ventura presided over City Council meetings. His vote was just one of seven and he had no veto authority, but he likes to brag about occasionally forcing City Council members to stay through the wee hours until they could reach decisions. However, some critics said his attendance was spotty.

Council minutes reviewed by the Star Tribune indicate that most of the votes during his tenure were routine and many were unanimous. Many were simply the zoning and development changes needed in a fast-growing suburb.

During Ventura's tenure, Brooklyn Park's general fuhd grew by more than 18 percent, mostly to pay for increased demand for city services. The average homeowner's property tax levy increased by more than 29 percent.

Ventura has made broad promises to review all state government programs, veto any new tax increases and make schools better.

Critics say he is long on talk and short on alternatives or tangible plans, and they suspect he plans to figure it out when he gets there.

State Sen. Linda Scheid, D-Brooklyn Park, thinks Ventura's ideas are simplistic but says he's a "willing learner." She was a fan of Ventura's wrestling but was unhappy when he was elected mayor in 1991. "I thought it was just awful and I told him so," she said.

And now?

"I've kind of had to eat my words," said Scheid, counting herself among those who think the suburb was a better place after Ventura's four years as mayor.

"I think he sincerely cares," she said. "Maybe things aren't as simple as he suggested. On the other hand, maybe we take ourselves too seriously. Maybe we all should ride motorcycles to work, sometimes."

Toward the end of his tenure in Brooklyn Park, Ventura's critics challenged whether he still lived in the city after he put his home up for sale and bought a new one elsewhere. But he survived an attempt to remove him.

LeAnn Larson, who owns a Brooklyn Park stained glass company called Pane in the Glass, believes Ventura wasn't qualified to be mayor and has no business being governor.

"I think it's embarrassing to live in Minnesota right now," she said.

Sweatshop...

Spurred by Kathie Lee scandal, White House offers pact

NEW YORK (AP) — A White House task force that grew out of the Kathie Lee Gifford sweatshop scandal has signed a pact with employers like Nike and Reebok to protect workers at overseas factories.

Human rights groups and a union sharply criticized the agreement — which would still allow employees as young as 14 to work 60-hour weeks, often for less than $1 a day.

President Clinton praised the deal, calling it a''historic step toward reducing sweatshop labor around the world.''

Under the accord, American manufacturers pledge not to do business with companies that use forced labor or require employees to work more than 60 hours a week.

Companies will prohibit hiring children younger than 15 except in countries where 14-year-olds can work legally. Contractors will be required to pay the minimum wage mandated by local law or the prevailing industry standard, whichever is higher.

A watchdog group, the Fair Labor Association, will oversee compliance and certify outside monitors to investigate factories.

Mrs. Gifford did not return several messages on Thursday seeking comment. The White House Apparel Industry Partnership was created in 1996 after it was discovered that Mrs. Gifford's clothing line was made in Honduran sweatshops.

Michael Posner, executive director of the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, called the monitoring ''a first step in establishing accountability that will change how the industry operates. The reality is, minimum wages are generally not high enough.''

The agreement follows ''recognized worldwide standards, not American standards,'' said Roberta Karp, co-chairwoman of the task force and general counsel for Liz Claiborne, whose apparel is made in 30 countries.

Nike, Reebok, Liz Claiborne and Phillips-Van Heusen helped negotiated the accord. Mrs. Gifford, L.L. Bean, Patagonia and Nicole Miller all have signed on.

Critics charge that wages earned by workers producing American goods in countries like Vietnam and Indonesia are too low to support a family.

''This is a step backwards. These companies will be able to market their products as sweatshop-free — without actually making changes to sweatshop practices abroad,'' says Michael Shellenberger, spokesman for Global Exchange, a San Francisco-based human rights group.

''How can you talk about eliminating sweatshops without making a commitment to pay a living wage?,'' said Mark Levinson, chief economist for the Union of Needletrades, Industrial and Textile Employees, a task force member that dropped out in opposition to the deal.

Dear Abby

Audiologist's Trust Is Sweet Music to Ears of a Stranger

DEAR ABBY: We have read your column for years, with its examples of acts of kindness and references to Iowa hospitality. This letter is about that hospitality.

During the week of Aug. 16-22, I was visiting my terminally ill aunt in Waterloo, Iowa. I am severely hearing-impaired. One of my hearing aids shorted out and left me virtually unable to use the telephone. I contacted several hearing aid offices before finding help. The person who came to my aid was an audiologist named Ron Potter.

When I contacted Ron and explained my situation to him, he came to my motel and inspected my hearing aid, but was unable to make the required repairs. He took me to his shop and fitted me with a loaner hearing aid. When I asked about my bill, he said, "No charge. Just mail the aid back when you get home."

I was in a state of shock. I couldn't believe that someone was trusting me, a complete stranger, with an item worth several hundred dollars. I mean, no deposit, no ID check, nothing! I persuaded him to make a copy of my driver's license and let me buy him lunch.

Yes, Abby, there are some good people left in this world. What really made me feel even better is the fact that I am black and Ron is white. Yes, we can get along!

DIAMOND B. BEARD JR.,
SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR DIAMOND: Although it may be out of season, I'm sure Ron Potter will be thrilled to see your "valentine" in the newspaper. And, may I add — your letter made my day!

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to the recent letter by "Linda of Howell, Mich.," regarding her son who decided to become a vegetarian. In addition to your suggestion that she visit her pediatrician, I thought you might like to know of the services that can be provided by a registered dietitian.

The initials R.D. indicate that a person has completed at least a four-year degree in dietetics or nutrition, a 900-hour internship in the areas of clinical and community nutrition and management, and has passed a national credentialing exam. Registered dietitians are food and nutritional professionals who provide counseling in maternal and sports nutrition as well as for vegetarians and individuals with heart disease, diabetes, eating disorders, and a host of additional medical diagnoses that are affected by a person's eating habits.

The American Dietetic Association is the world's largest group of food and nutrition professionals serving the public. The ADA is currently active in trying to get states, insurance companies and the federal government to allow for reimbursable "medical nutritional therapy," so that the public may benefit from health-promoting counseling to prevent and cure disease.

Thank you for the opportunity to inform you of the work of these professionals.

MARY M. BILZ, M.S., R.D.,
RUTLAND, VT.

DEAR MARY: I have mentioned the American Dietetic Association in my column in the past. Although it didn't occur to me that a registered dietitian might also be able to help the mother of the little boy who refused to eat meat because of the cartoon he saw on television, it makes sense that an R.D. could offer valuable input to mothers of picky eaters. Thank you for the timely reminder.

GOP picks Philadelphia to host 2000 convention

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Democrats and Republicans sipped champagne together after the GOP picked Philadelphia to host its 2000 national convention, which may pump $300 million into the city.

''It's an indication of just how far the city has come in the last half decade. Every Philadelphian — Democrat, Republican, independent — should be very proud tonight,'' Mayor Edward Rendell, a Democrat, said Thursday.

The GOP decision ended a yearlong push by Philadelphia's Democratic and Republican politicians to get the two major parties to hold their 2000 conventions in the City of Brotherly Love.

The GOP selection committee recommended Philadelphia over Indianapolis, New Orleans, New York and San Antonio.

''I guess its fair to say we're no longer a footnote between New York and Washington, D.C.,'' said Rendell — sporting a tie with the Republican elephant image — as he attended a victory party with Gov. Tom Ridge and Sen. Arlen Specter, both Republicans.

An organizer for one overlooked city did not play the role of the gracious loser.

''We offered more money, the best possible facility, a city of tomorrow, and a committed Republican mayor,'' said Mitch Daniels, a member of Indianapolis' organizing committee. ''They picked less money, a mediocre facility, a city of long ago and a Democratic mayor.''

The convention will be held in the First Union Center, which can seat up to 21,000 and was designed with television appearances in mind.

Ridge said that by selecting Philadelphia, Republicans were taking their message to urban Northeast areas not traditionally supportive of the GOP.

The Republicans' 1996 convention in San Diego generated an estimated $160 million for the city. Philadelphia officials expect up to $300 million in revenue from the thousands expected to show up from July 29 to Aug. 5, 2000.

The city has hosted eight political conventions, including the first Republican convention in 1856.

North-South hands. You are in four hearts. West leads the spade eight, his third-highest from a three- or four-card holding. (Leading third-highest from an even number of cards and lowest from an odd number is popular in the tournament world. Why? Because it often counts out the suit quicker.) What is your line of play? Now look at all 52 cards and try to find a winning plan.

The one-club opening is forced in Polish methods because to open one spade, one heart or one diamond requires at least a five-card suit.

It looks as though Grzejdziak must lose four tricks: one spade, one diamond and two clubs. But he found a beautiful deceptive play: He let West win trick one! He played dummy's four, and when East correctly contributed the two, Grzejdziak dropped the three.

True, West could have switched to clubs, but that didn't look appealing. Instead, he continued with the spade six. Declarer took East's jack with his ace, drew trumps, returned to hand with a diamond, and finessed dummy's spade 10. A club disappeared on the spade king, and the loser count was down to three: one spade, one diamond and one club.

Teen to be tried for capital murder

ANGLETON (AP) — A 15-year-old girl will be tried in juvenile court for capital murder in the death of her newborn baby girl.

The teen-ager, who's been in custody since Sept. 15, allegedly killed her baby after giving birth in a bathroom of her family's home near Pearland.

Defense lawyers claim the baby died accidentally or was stillborn.

Gilbreath fuels SHS romp, 39-7

Snyder JV never gave Lake View a chance.

The Tiger defense registered six interceptions, three of them by Larry Gilbreath, fueling a 39-7 romp over the Chiefs Thursday night at Tiger Stadium.

Snyder failed to capitalize on its first two takeaways, fumble recoveries by Ike Crill and Corey Knipe.

Midway through the second quarter, the Tigers got on the board when Sam Avilas picked off an errant Lake View pass and raced 35 yards for the score. Ralph Ramon booted the extra point for a 7-0 tally.

Four minutes later, following Gilbreath's first pick off, Jessie Haines hit Seth Rosson with a 15-yard TD strike. Ramon's PAT was true again, extending the margin to 14-0.

Ramon got the job done on defense as well, making a leaping interception just before halftime to kill a Chief scoring chance.

The Tigers kept the pressure on in the second half.

Following a Billy Burleson interception, Tovares Brandon broke loose on a 38-yard touchdown sprint. The Ramon point after ran the advantage to 21-0.

Gilbreath struck again on Lake View's next play from scrimmage, snaring a Chief aerial which set up a 2-yard plunge by Crill for a 27-0 Snyder lead.

The Chiefs found the endzone with 5:13 left in the contest, but couldn't recover the ensuing onside kick when Snyder's Braden Doolittle corraled the ball to set up another Tiger scoring drive.

Norris Williams scampered in from 6 yards out to run the tally to 33-7.

Gilbreath capped the rout with 1:51 left on the clock when he picked off his third pass of the night and returned it 45 yards for the touchdown for the 39-7 final score.

Cowboys could sweep division

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — This year's Dallas Cowboys don't measure up in many categories to the best in franchise history, squads that won 14 NFC East titles and reached eight Super Bowls.

But halfway through this season, they do have a good chance to do something those teams never accomplished: Go undefeated in the division.

Dallas went 4-0 its first time through the East, outscoring New York, Washington, Arizona and Philadelphia 134-27 along the way.

The Cowboys open the second half of the season Sunday at home against the Giants. A victory over New York followed by another over the Cardinals in Arizona the following weekend would clinch at least a tie for the division title and the playoff spot that comes with it.

Should that happen, the Cowboys — who went 3-5 against the East last year — would be only two victories from the season sweep, with those games at home against the Redskins and Eagles, each of which has won just once so far.

Michael Irvin admits he's caught himself daydreaming along those lines, but every times he snaps himself back to reality by realizing the Cowboys are still just 5-3 overall — or, 1-3 outside the division.

"We really haven't put a whole lot of games together, back-to-back. Until we do that, we can't say we have a cushion," Irvin said. "There's a doubt we'll be in (the playoffs) until they start putting those Xs and Ys by your name in the standings sheet."

Fullback Daryl Johnston also said it's too early to be thinking about going 8-0 in the East, even if the other teams seem to be rolling over and playing dead.

Arizona is 4-4, but has been outscored 170-125. New York is 3-5 and lost last Sunday to Washington, which is 1-7. Philadelphia's only win came against Washington.

"You don't want to win to sweep them; you want to win to put yourself in position to do things at the end of the season," Johnston said.

Despite trying to think cautiously, Johnston considers the sweep a possibility, especially with three of the four remaining division games at Texas Stadium.

"That's one of the good things — a lot of the wins we've had in the division have been on the road. We have to go to Arizona, but then everybody else has to come here," he said.

"We've accomplished the hard part, now let's see if we can do the things we're supposed to do here."

Making it out of the division unscathed wasn't even considered possible in past years when the NFC East was one of the NFL's best, consistently producing several playoff teams. In the 1990s, four straight Super Bowl champions came from the NFC East.

But no team has won more than 10 games the last two seasons, with the Giants able to go from worst in 1996 to first in 1997.

How'd they get there? By going 7-0-1 against their division foes, the best record any team has ever had in the NFC East. New York was the division's lone playoff team and was bounced in the first round by the wild-card Minnesota Vikings.

Alou inks deal with Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Outfielder Moises Alou reached agreement with the Houston Astros on Thursday night and will not exercise his right to demand a trade to another team.

"I'm very pleased," Astros general manager Gerry Hunsicker said. "This is an extremely important player to this franchise. It would have been devastating to lose him."

Alou, who was traded from Florida to the Astros prior to last season, had three seasons left in a $25 million, five-year contract before agreeing on the new deal.

Because he was traded during a multiyear contract, baseball's collective bargaining agreement gives him the right to demand a trade during the 15 days following the World Series.

Hunsicker and Alou's agent, Bob Gilhooly, declined to give details of the new agreement with Alou, who had a career year with the Astros last season.

Alou had until midnight EST to decide if he would exercise his right to be traded. Earlier Thursday, the negotiating parties got permission to extend the deadline to 5 p.m. EST Friday.

Ira JH routs Wildcats, 32-18

WESTBROOK — After spotting the Wildcats 12 points, Ira Junior High decided it was time to play some football.

The Bulldogs posted 32 consecutive points Thursday night and held Westbrook to only six rushing yards en route to a 32-18 victory.

After Westbrook registered two touchdowns, Michael Allen got Ira on the board on a 10-yard run. Eric Dickethoff tossed to Allen for the conversion, trimming the deficit to 12-7.

With under a minute remaining in the first half, Dickerhoff picked off a Wildcat pass at the Westbrook 35-yard line. The Ira eighth grader scampered into the endzone two plays later from the 17 and Jess Wall ran in the extra point for a 14-12 Bulldog advantage.

The Bulldogs kept rolling in the second half.

With Westbrook threatening on its opening possession, John Gainer snared a Wildcat pass to thwart the drive.

Ira captalized when Dickerhoff hooked up with Jake Barnes for a 57-yard touchdown, extending the margin to 20-12.

Only a minute later, after Dickerhoff intercepted his second aerial of the night, Jess Wall plunged in from 4 yards out for a 26-12 tally.

Wall posted Ira's final score of the contest with a 32-yard scamper in the fourth quarter.

Westbrook capped the scoring with just under three minutes left on the clock for the 32-18 outcome.

Wall led all rushers with 79 yards on seven carries, while Dickerhoff was 3 of 8 for 77 yards through the air.

Blue Devils head up preseason hoops poll

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

Recent decade-ending seasons have started well for Duke, and this one isn't any different.

The Blue Devils were voted No. 1 in The Associated Press college basketball Thursday, just as they were in the 1978-79 and 1988-89 seasons. The only other time Duke was a preseason No. 1 was 1991-92, when it stayed on top all season on the way to a second straight national championship.

In 1979, the Blue Devils lost in the second round of the NCAA tournament, while 1989 saw them reach the national semifinals. With three starters back from a team that went 32-4 and fell one game short of the Final Four last season, a lot is expected from this Duke team.

"I'm very comfortable with high expectations," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "I have very high expectations for myself and my team all the time. It is when you can't achieve high expectations that pressure comes in."

The Blue Devils, who were No. 1 for seven weeks last season, received 34 first-place votes and 1,747 points from the 72-member national media panel.

Duke has five players back who averaged at least 7.6 points per game last season, led by senior guard Trajan Langdon, a two-time all-Atlantic Coast Conference selection, and sophomore forward Elton Brand, who impressed a lot of people despite missing 15 games with a foot injury.

"This year's team has a chance to be a special basketball team," Krzyzewski said. "I think that is fun, not pressure."

Connecticut, which has five starters back from its regional final team that went 32-5 last season, was second with 25 first-place votes and 1,734 points, 82 more than Stanford, which has all its starters back from the team that went 30-5 and reached the Final Four. The Cardinal received 12 first-place votes.

Defending national champion Kentucky (35-4) was fourth with the only other No. 1 vote and 1,509 points, and was followed in the top 10 by Michigan State, Maryland, Temple, Kansas, Tennessee and Utah.

North Carolina, which was No. 1 in the final poll last season, was 11th, followed by UCLA, Oklahoma State, Washington, Cincinnati, Purdue, Xavier, Arizona and Arkansas. New Mexico and Syracuse tied for 20th and the rest of the Top 25 was Indiana, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Texas Christian.

The Pac-10 (Stanford, UCLA, Washington and Arizona) and Atlantic 10 (Temple, Xavier, Rhode Island and Massachusetts) led the nine conferences represented in the preseason poll with four teams each. The ACC, Southeastern Conference, Big Ten and Western Athletic Conference had three teams each.

SHS junior out of ICU

LUBBOCK — After successful open-heart surgery, Snyder junior Adam Beck has been released from the intensive care unit and is recovering in Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

The operation, performed Thursday morning to repair a hole the size of a 50-cent piece in the Snyder athletes heart, was termed successful, according to Beck's stepfather Michael Howard.

"The surgery went very well," Howard said. "He got out of ICU at about 10 this morning and they've weaned him off the breathing machine he was on. The doctors said he should be out of the hospital in four or five days."

The hole, discovered during tests Wednesday morning, was patched with a piece of tissue from the pericardium, the membranous sac which contains the heart.

The right side of Beck's heart, which had expanded from the normal size of 20 millimeters to 55 millimeters, was responding well, according to doctors.

With proper recovery, the Tiger athlete should be working out again as early as January.

Deformed frogs, may be linked to chemicals

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Deformed frogs may be linked to the use of agricultural chemicals, a Canadian researcher suggests.

"From an epidemiological perspective, it's quite obvious that there is a problem in sites subject to pesticides," said Martin Ouellet of McGill University in Montreal. He has examined almost 30,000 frogs along a 150-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence River Valley during the past seven years.

Ouellet has noted the association between deformed frogs and agricultural chemicals in previous years. But until this year he was not convinced he had seen enough evidence to establish a strong link.

"It's not just a small-scale problem here now," he said. "It's everywhere, everywhere there's an association with pesticides."

Scientists internationally have reported a sharp decline in the numbers of frogs, toads and salamanders in many locations. Numerous explanations have been proposed, including water pollution and increased ultraviolet radiation from the sun because of a thinning ozone layer around the Earth.

Deformed frogs were noticed first by schoolchildren in 1995 as they studied a farm pond near Henderson, about 55 miles southwest of Minneapolis. Finding the deformities' cause is important because scientists believe amphibians may be an early barometer of environmental problems.

Levi to close 7 U.S. factories

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Levi Strauss & Co. will shut down seven factories over the holiday season, trying to decrease its stock in the wake of dwindling demand.

In December and January, more than 4,000 workers will be sent home in Texas, Georgia, Tennessee and North Carolina, the San Francisco-based company said Thursday.

However, the plants are scheduled to reopen in February and workers will receive 90 percent of their pay through unemployment, supplementary compensation, vacation and holiday pay, Levi spokeswoman Tamara Churchman said.

The factories that will temporarily shut down are in McAllen, San Benito, Brownsville and Wichita Falls, Texas; Valdosta, Ga.; Mountain City, Tenn.; and Murphy, N.C.

Doctor sued over AIDS misdiagnosis

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A woman who claims her doctor mistakenly treated her for AIDS for 2½ years testified Thursday she was stunned when a second doctor said she didn't have the virus.

"It was just hard to believe after having gone through everything and everything I had been told," Charlene Riling said. "Is all this false hope? There was definitely some question in my mind about it."

Riling, 40, said Dr. Karen S. Dufour treated her from November 1989 through May 1992 for a variety of problems that Dufour wrongly thought were related to HIV.

Riling, from Hartford, said she told Dufour she was HIV positive. She said a counselor at the New Haven Health Department told her so after performing a blood test and Dufour never confirmed the diagnosis.

She acknowledged that a colleague of Dufour's offered to administer an HIV test but she demurred.

When Riling went to an AIDS specialist in May 1992 for further treatment, she was flabbergasted by his determination that she did not have AIDS.

The lawsuit accuses Dufour and her practice of negligence. Riling also claims the doctor prescribed drugs that would otherwise be dangerous to a person not suffering from AIDS-related illness.

During the time that Dufour was her primary care physician, Riling was treated on several occasions for problems related to dementia, said she lost much of her muscle function and suffered mouth sores, severe headaches and other maladies wrongly attributed to AIDS.

Under cross examination, Riling acknowledged that before she went to see Dufour, she had lied to several other physicians about her HIV status. While believing she was HIV positive, Riling said, she told those doctors she did not have the disease because she had not yet accepted the diagnosis herself.

It was later determined that she had a severe case of colitis and a sinus infection. She also contends in the lawsuit that some of her symptoms were caused by the drugs used to treat AIDS.

Kellogg introduces line of cholesterol-lowering foods

CHICAGO (AP) — Kellogg Co. is hoping to put a little snap, crackle and pop back into its sales with a line of foods aimed at health-conscious consumers.

The 21-item Ensemble food line, touted as reducing bad cholesterol that leads to heart disease, is expected to hit supermarket shelves in five Midwestern states by March and be rolled out nationwide by fall 1999. It includes frozen entrees and muffins, bread, dry pasta, baked potato crisps, cookies and a ready-to-eat cereal similar to General Mills' popular Cheerios line.

"(It marks) the beginning of a new era for people who are in pursuit of improved health and well-being, foods that will actively help reduce the risk of disease and manage specific health conditions," said Arnold Langbo, chairman and chief executive of the Battle Creek, Mich.-based company.

All contain soluble fiber that studies show can reduce cholesterol when taken with a heart-healthy diet. The claim was recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration, allowing Kellogg to market the line after two years of research and development.

Many companies have seen "healthy" products succeed in focus groups and research, only to gather dust on store shelves. Kellogg's Heartwise cereal flopped several years ago, and Campbell Soup Co.'s Intelligent Quisine fared no better this year.

Critics argue many of the products must be taken over an extended period of time. Kellogg's new product line, for instance, requires consumers to eat three servings a day over three weeks before "bad" cholesterol falls by about 9 percent.

Those effects can be negated if that person eats other unhealthy foods and drinks.

Livingston will seek to unseat Gingrich

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Livingston, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, notified associates today he intends to challenge Newt Gingrich for speaker, GOP sources said.

These sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said aides to the Louisiana Republican had been spreading the word that a midafternoon announcement would bring a formal declaration of candidacy.

Earlier today, Rep. Steve Largent of Oklahoma announced he would challenge Majority Leader Dick Armey of Texas in the leadership elections later this month.

Livingston has a recent history of last-minute changes in political plans, however. Earlier this year, he came within a few hours of announcing plans to retire from the House, only to decide at the last minute he would stand for an 11th term.

Livingston's scheduled announcement and Largent's challenge came quickly after this week's election reversals for the House Republicans.

Largent, a member of the conservative, rambunctious group of lawmakers first elected in 1994, said in disclosing his plans to try to unseat Armey: "I think the question that is before our conference today is whether we retain the crew of the Titanic or we look for some new leadership."

In reply, Armey issued a written statement saying the election results "were a wake-up call for all of us," and indicated he would seek a new team as No. 2 Republican in the House.

Gingrich's office offered no immediate comment, although the speaker has been on the phone for two days with members of the rank and file attempting to bolster his support for a new term.

White House ponders impeachment letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a congressional subcommittee prepares to consider what constitutes grounds for impeachment, more than 400 legal scholars are issuing a report saying the case against President Clinton falls short.

Republicans plan to counter at Monday's hearing of the Judiciary Committee's Constitution subcommittee with their own scholars endorsing the impeachment inquiry.

Nineteen scholars are listed as witnesses to debate the what the Founding Fathers meant when they wrote that "high crimes and misdemeanors" would be grounds for impeachment.

Democrats requested the hearing, saying the Republican-controlled committee should decide what constitutes an impeachable offense before investigating Clinton's conduct in the Monica Lewinsky matter or other charges probed by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr.

One of the Democratic witnesses, Georgetown University law professor Susan Low Bloch, was releasing a letter today signed by 400 legal academicians arguing that Clinton's behavior does not warrant impeachment.

"The lower the threshold for impeachment, the weaker the president," they wrote to committee members. "If the president could be removed for any conduct of which Congress disapproved, this fundamental element of our democracy — the president's independence from Congress — would be destroyed."

Several Republican witnesses were expected to counter that argument with one of their own: Congress cannot allow a president to remain in the White House office who has displayed a pattern of behavior that makes him unfit for office.

5 arrested on cocaine charges remain jailed

Five people remain in jail this morning after being arrested on cocaine possession charges.

Search warrants were served at 11:51 p.m. Thursday at 1107 21st Street and two subjects were arrested.

Ismael Herrera, 44, of 1107 21st, was taken into custody for possession of cocaine with intent to deliver, a first degree felony. His bond has been set at $50,000.

Also arrested was 21-year-old Robin Christina Thurmond of 1107 21st for possession of cocaine with intent to deliver. Her bond has been set at $25,000.

According to Sheriff Darren Jackson, approximately 15 grams of cocaine was found.

At 9:31 a.m. this morning, deputies served a search warrant at the Royal Mobile Home Park and three subjects, all of Lot #478 at the park, were taken into custody.

Arrested were 17-year-old Mustafa Burks, 18-year-old Fathima Burks and 25-year-old Tiffany Sneed, all for possession of cocaine, a state jail felony, and misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

As of noon, bond had not been set for the trio.

According to officials, 1.3 grams of cocaine was found as was 104 ounces of marijuana.

Jackson said the searches were part of an on-going investigation coordinated with the West Central Texas Interlocal Task Force.

"This is the third house and we are continuing to target drug offenders," he said.

Farmers to receive loan assistance pay

The USDA Farm Service Agency has begun making $1.2 million in payments to Scurry County farmers to offset losses resulting from low commodity prices.

Joe B. Hefner, the county's executive director for the Farm Service Agency, said the income loss assistance payments are part of a relief package designed to help farmers whose livelihoods are on the line because of low prices.

"The payments will make the difference for many family farmers who can now plan for a spring crop instead of a spring auction," said Hefner.

The payments will be issued only to those farmers who were eligible under the 1996 Farm Bill for fiscal year 1998 final Production Flexibility Contract (PFC) payments, sometimes referred to as market transition payments.

A total of $2.8 billion is being provided in relief payments to farmers across the country.

Congress appropriated $3.057 billion in relief payments, but $200 million was mandated for dairy farmers.

As a result, individual farmers will be receiving about 49.72 percent of their total fiscal year 1998 payment.

Hefner said farmers do not have to file an application to receive the payments.

"They will be automatically paid to eligible farmers," added Hefner.

Hefner said additional announcements about other provisions in the relief package, including disaster relief, will be made in the upcoming weeks.

Officers take two subjects in Thursday

One subject was taken into custody Wednesday for outstanding warrants while alcohol and drug-related charges sent a second subject to jail.

Officers arrested a 17-year-old female at 9:28 a.m. on an outstanding warrant for failure to wear a safety belt.

At 9:44 p.m., a 35-year-old male was taken into custody by officers in the 800 block of 26th Street for public intoxication and possession of drug paraphernalia.

In other activity, an incident report was filed at 11:50 a.m. at the Royal Trailer Park in reference to someone breaking into Laura Manlief's mailbox.

An offense report for Class C theft was filed at 4:57 p.m. at Town and Country in reference to a gas drive-off in the amount of $36.73.

Happiness subject of WTC speakers

University of Oklahoma earning his petroleum engineering degree and from his time in the military on through his 34 years with Exxon, which was originally Humble Oil.

He told his story to relate how important a person's work or job affects his or her happiness.

"Being happy in the work or job you have is a major step towards happiness in your life."

Baze went on to describe what he considered to be "key ingredients in the recipe for happiness in life."

"One, I don't think there is any substitute for hard work. Whatever your work assignment — do it the best you can."

The second ingredient, Baze said, is "to be ethical, be honest and be fair."

"A good supervisor can never please all employees. A good supervisor can always try to be honest and fair."

To summarize, he said, "The job you undertake in life can be a major component of happiness or unhappiness."

Rev. Wofford, pastor of Word is Life Church, was the final panelist.

"I have to share with you my life — that is, how I measure happiness," Wofford began.

He spoke briefly about growing up in Los Angeles and said he was there during the 1965 riots.

"I've seen some things and been through some things and all that has brought me to where I am now."

Wofford told of a time when he was "really down and out," not knowing what direction to turn.

"I really didn't have a sense of balance, of where I wanted to go, so what I did, I began to petition God. I began to seek God, to ask him, 'What is my purpose? Why am I here?'"

He said when he did that, organization came into his life.

"I believe if you want to find the answers to the pursuit of success, happiness, you have to go back to the one who made us."
