ALL GROWN UP

Baby Jessica turns 25, gains access to trust fund

By Betsy Blaney
Associated Press

Baby Jessica is all grown up. She's Momma Jessica now.

The toddler who tumbled down an abandoned water well and got trapped more than two decades ago turns 25 today, a milestone that gives her access to a trust fund of up to $800,000 donated by thousands of sympathetic strangers who spent 2 1/2 days glued to the television until she was free.

Jessica McClure Morales is now a contented stay-at-home mother of two, and her youngest is 18 months old — the same age she was when her accident drew the eyes of the world to this oil-patch city. She lives less than two miles from the site of the 1987 rescue.

"That's all Jessica has ever wanted was to be a mom and have a family," said her father, Chip McClure. "She's a good mom and keeps her eyes on her kids. She's certainly a doting mother."

McClure Morales has no memory of being wedged in the pipe or of the 15 operations that followed her ordeal, according to her father. A scar from her hairline to the bridge of her nose where her head rubbed against the wall of the well is still visible. She also lost a toe to gangrene because one leg was pinned above her head in the underground shaft.

These days, she and her husband run a mobile car- and truck-washing business out of their home, according to a recent interview she gave to the Dallas Morning News.

In October 1987, Chip and Cissy McClure were poor teenagers struggling to make ends meet during the depths of Energy industry fuels job growth

■ Midland boasts state's lowest unemployment rate as 'Help Wanted signs crop up.

By Mella McEwen
Oil Editor

Midland continued to add jobs in February as oil and gas activity fueled more economic growth.

The Texas Workforce Commission reported Friday that the Midland metropolitan statistical area (MSA) had an unemployment rate of 4.8 percent, down from 5 percent in January and 5.7 percent last February. Midland again had the lowest unemployment in the state, followed by Amarillo at 5.5 percent and Lubbock with 6.1 percent.

Odessa's unemployment fell to 6.6 percent from 7 percent in January.

"We're seeing some of the same symptoms we saw in 2008," observed Mike Hatley, president of the Midland Development Corp., referring to the period when unemployment fell below 3 percent and employers scrambled to hire enough staff.

"We expect the same hardships on some small businesses who can't keep up with the wage rate," he continued.

Noting that the commission's

Students get a feathery ballet treat

■ MISD third-graders watch a performance of 'The Firebird.'

By Georgia Temple

Thom Clower, who staged "The Firebird" ballet production presented to Midland Independent School District third-graders Friday at Midland High School Auditorium, asked those who were 9 years old to raise their hands.

Almost everyone in the audience did so.

Clower then told the students that he shared an experience in common with them. When he was 9 years old, he saw the production of "The Firebird" with his school group. He was so taken by the dance that he decided to pursue ballet as a career.

He began his training in Dallas with George Skibine and Marjorie Tallchief; studied at School of American Ballet in New York, Paris, Amsterdam and London; began teaching in 1974; and joined Dallas Ballet in 1978 for 11 seasons. He has been ballet master for Dallas Ballet and Hubbard Street and was artistic director of Ballet Dallas and Yuma Ballet Theatre. From 1A the oil bust. While visiting her sister, Jessica's mother left her in the yard while she went to answer the phone. Moments later, Jessica came upon the 8-inch well opening and fell inside.

Her plight captivated an immense television audience. Alone and 22 feet below ground, Baby Jessica sang about Winnie the Pooh.

It was "a nightmare that got worse and worse," recalled her father, now 42, who makes his living selling aircraft in Tyler.

When rescuers finally brought her to the surface, her head was bandaged. She was covered with dirt and bruises, and her right palm was immobilized to her face. The image was ingrained in millions of people's memories and won a Pulitzer Prize for Odessa American photographer Scott Shaw.

A 1997 poll taken by the Pew Research Center for the People and the Press found that coverage of Princess Diana's death earlier that year was rivaled only by Jessica's rescue in worldwide attention over the previous decade.

At the time of the accident, sympathetic strangers showered the family with teddy bears, homemade gifts, cards and cash.

McClure said his daughter has talked about first setting up trusts for her two children's college education. He said he's encouraged her to find a financial adviser.

"We've talked about it quite a bit," McClure said. "That's going to be a challenge. It'd be a challenge to anyone. She's a very settled and down-to-earth girl. She'll be fine."

Bank documents show the couple's home was purchased with help from the trust.

Carroll Thomas, Midland's mayor in 1987, said the city's reputation benefited from the rescue. Most people around the world had not heard of Midland back then.

"They had a good feeling about Midland because they read about it and saw how hard we were working," he said. "It went on so long."

About three years after the TV cameras left, Chip and Cissy divorced. Both have remarried. McClure Morales' mother, now known as Cissy Porter, did not respond to a phone message.

Throughout Jessica's childhood, both parents worked to give her a normal life, her father has said. In her later years of high school, McClure Morales lived briefly with her father in Tyler. In 2004, she graduated from Greenwood High School.

McClure said he and his ex-wife allowed their daughter to decide whether to talk to the media once she became old enough. She has spoken publicly just three times and declined interview requests from The Associated Press.

In 2002, she told Ladies Home Journal that talk of her "incident" bored her, and she took pride in her scars.

"I'm proud of them," she said. "I have them because I survived."

In the same interview, she disclosed that she suffers from rheumatoid arthritis, which was diagnosed just before she entered the 10th grade.

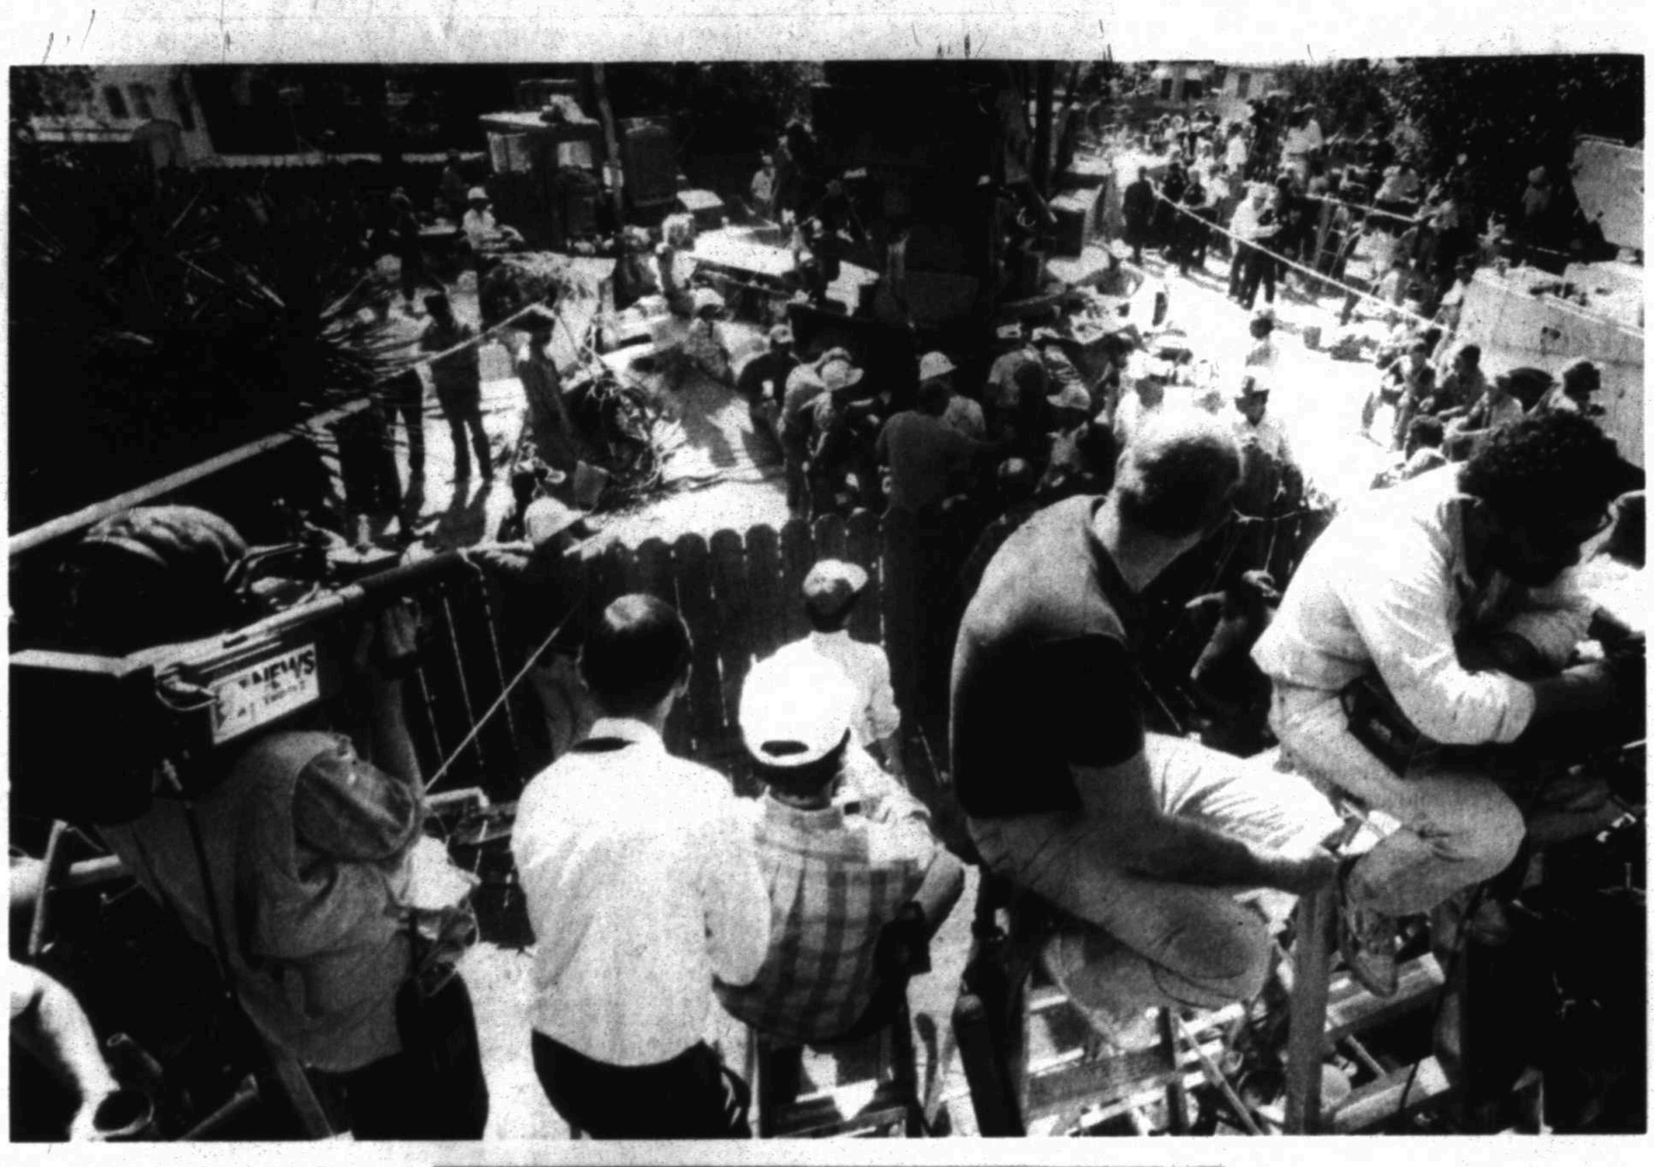
The ordeal "couldn't cage me then, why should it cage me now?" she told NBC in June 2007.

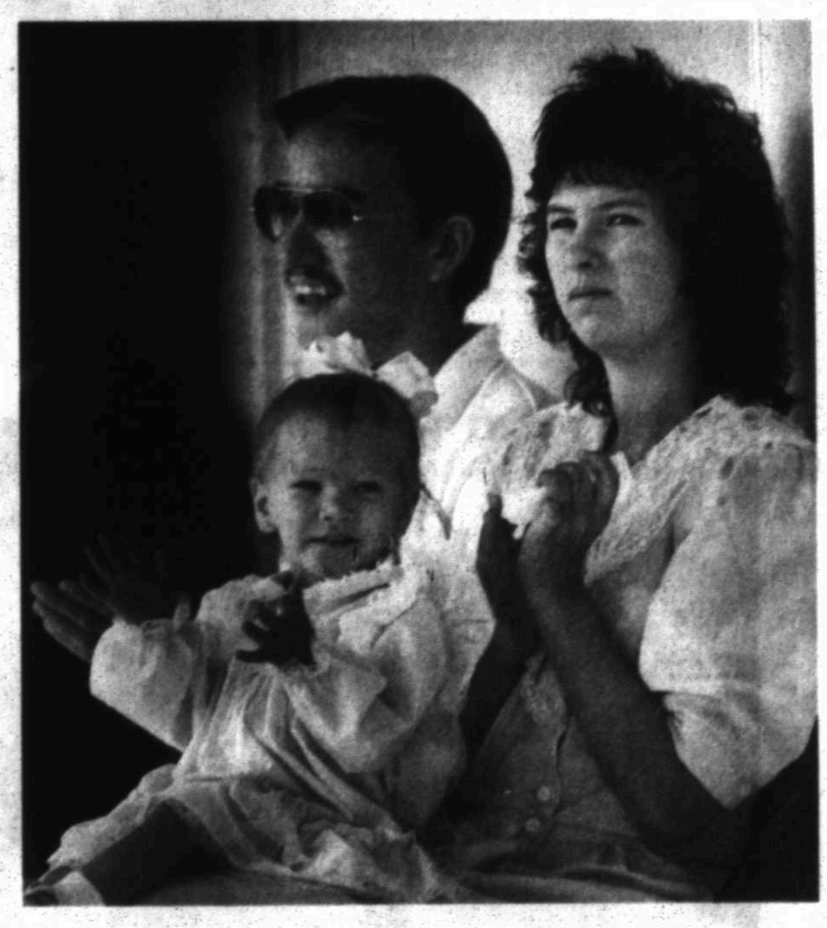
Even the family doesn't talk about it when they're together, McClure said.

"It seems a little surreal," he said. "In some ways, it seems familiar and recent. Other times, it seems like someone else a long time ago."

She married Daniel Morales in 2006. Their children are Simon, 4, and Sheyenne, the 18-month-old.

Jessica's low-key personality has helped her adjust over the years, her father said.





ABOVE: Local and national news reporters watch from ladders overlooking a fence-line as rescue crews attempt to free Jessica McClure in October 1987. The media focused on the 18-month-old's rescue for roughly 2 1/2 days. That attention drew an outpouring of sympathy from thousands of people across the world who donated money to a trust fund that McClure, who turns 25 today, now can access. The fund now has up to $800,000.

Oil hits highest levels since recession

By Chris Kahn
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Oil prices hit another post-recession high this week as economists said the world will keep consuming more petroleum even with this month's destruction in Japan and the wave of uprisings in North Africa and the Middle East.

Benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for May delivery settled Friday at $105.40 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. That was down 20 cents for the day, but oil still gained more than 4 percent this week. On Wednesday it hit $105.75 per barrel, the highest level since September 2008.

Retail gasoline prices have followed oil higher. The national average of $3.561 per gallon is the highest ever for this time of year. Pump prices are already above $4 per gallon in Alaska and Hawaii, and they're nearly there in California.

Fuel prices are pressing higher despite a comfortable surplus of oil in the United States. The Energy Information Administration said the U.S. has enough oil in inventory to meet demand for 54 days. The surplus was 49 days in the summer of 2008. The U.S. consumes about 19.3 million barrels of petroleum per day.

What's pushing oil prices higher is concern that global supplies will shrink this year as energy appetites grow around the world. The world is expected to use 88 million barrels of oil per day in 2011, up from 86.7 million in 2010. Meanwhile, uprisings in Libya, Yemen and other countries are threatening exports from a region that supplies 27 percent of the world's oil. War in Libya has halted most of its 1.5 million barrels of daily exports.

Analyst and trader Stephen Schork estimated that these worries have pushed oil higher by $20 per barrel in recent weeks.

On top of that, Barclays Capital noted that China's oil demand has jumped 15 percent this year. Analyst Sudakshina Unnikrishnan has raised her forecast for the average price of benchmark oil to $106 per barrel this year from $91.

Meanwhile, major oil producers like Saudi Arabia already have cranked up production to make up for lost Libyan oil. While this increases the flow of oil right now, it also cuts off spare production that could have been tapped later this year to meet increasing world demand. Spare production capacity, which was thought to be around 5 million barrels per day earlier this year, has since dropped to about 3 million barrels, Unnikrishnan said.

Traders carefully are assessing economic strength in the U.S., which consumes about 22 percent of the world's daily output. High oil prices could hurt growth. Government reports gave a mixed reading this week.

The U.S. said home construction has nearly come to a halt and that companies trimmed orders for long-lasting manufactured goods. But it also said gasoline demand keeps rising despite a 49-cent increase in the price of a gallon of gas since the year began.

On Friday, the Commerce Department said the economy grew at an annual rate of 3.1 percent from October to December, up from a previous estimate of 2.8 percent. At the same time, some economists have trimmed their estimates for growth in the current quarter, concerned that high gas prices will force consumers to cut spending elsewhere.

"We're waiting to see the economic recovery put down roots," Cameron Hanover analyst Peter Beutel said. "But you can find something bullish and bearish just about everywhere you look."

MDC board receives report from hopeful developer

By Kathleen Thurber
Staff Writer

The addition of a downtown green energy center that would have space for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, private businesses, apartments and a coffee shop is the vision of one developer.

Speaking to the Midland Development Corp. staff and board on Friday, Midland native Colleen Fuglaar, who now serves as vice president for California-based RTI Properties, said she hopes to turn the former Vaughn Building off Big Spring Street into the "Permian Basin Green Energy Center."

"It's a true public-private project," said Fuglaar, who said she envisions funding the project through grants, private investments and some public support.

MDC Chairman Robert Rendall said while the project was interesting, he was unsure what level of support they could provide because MDC investments need to be tied to job creation.

"It looks very interesting," Rendall said. "With the lack of commercial office space, I'm not convinced you couldn't tweak this a little more, raise rates for office space and finance it a little more traditionally."

Fuglaar said that in 2005 the company considered developing the building into lofts, but with the downturn that occurred shortly after, the project never came into fruition.

Looking at the Permian Basin as a center for energy and developing green energy, Fuglaar said she thought creating a center for technology development and smaller businesses focused on green energy — whether geothermal, wind or solar — would be advantageous for the region.

"The big advantage to green energy is jobs," she said.

Fuglaar said she plans to apply for federal grants aimed at green energy projects as well as other available funds. With Republicans taking control of the House, she said she wants to obtain federal grants as quickly as possible before they go away.

By getting UTPB involved, she said the company would be a more competitive applicant.

David Watts, president of UTPB, said the school certainly would be interested in occupying the first floor of the building as Fuglaar proposed, whether for classroom or other space.

But, he said with the state budget situation, UTPB would not have any funds to put toward the project. Any eventual agreement also would have to be approved by the board of regents, he added.

"I don't mean to bewail the university's financial situation, but we don't have funds to put into this project," Watts said. "I'm interested in the project but would need to show the regents the university's operating costs there would be covered."

In addition to what Fuglaar projected would be 6,000 square feet for UTPB on the first floor, she also said there would be space for a coffee shop. The second through fourth floors would be for parking, the fifth floor for a public conference center and the sixth through 10th floors for Class A office space, she said. On the 11th and 12th floors, Fuglaar said there would be apartments that would be available for short-term leases to professionals, and on the 13th floor there is a plan for a rooftop lounge and glassed-in restaurant.

Getting to that point will require funding, she said. Before the building — which she said likely could be purchased as-is by private investors for about $1 million — could be refurbished, it would need to be cleansed of asbestos. Re-development of the building is estimated at $16.17 million, and Fuglaar said the company would work to finance 50 percent of the project with grants.

In her initial budget projections, she included $750,000 she would seek from the MDC, though board members did not say if they would support such a proposal.

"As far as where the money comes from, it is up to the community," Fuglaar said.

In other business:

■ Board members unanimously approved making a budget amendment that will allow the MDC to pay the city of Midland up to $6 million for the development of a water line along Highway 191.

■ MDC President Mike Hatley reported it is in the midst of working with consultants on a downtown parking study and should have cost estimates by late April.

■ The board received the audit for the end of the previous fiscal year.

Ector County inmate dies in hospital

Odessa American

After being taken off of life support, an Ector County jail inmate died Friday morning at Medical Center Hospital.

Juan Carrasco, 33, was transported Tuesday afternoon to MCH after officials said he suffered an elliptical seizure while being booked. He was pronounced dead at 9:57 a.m. Friday, an Ector County Medical Examiner's Office representative said.

According to Sheriff Mark Donaldson, Carrasco was being booked on a misdemeanor theft by check charge out of Travis County when suddenly he "sat straight up and fell backwards, hitting his head (on a concrete floor)."

Carrasco was taken to MCH afterward, but supervisors at the detention center failed to notify Carrasco's family in the process. Naomi Carrasco, Juan Carrasco's mother, did not know her son was at the hospital until she was called by a hospital staff member almost 12 hours after his arrival.

Naomi Carrasco said she had tried several times to bond her son out Tuesday but was told it would take several hours, and that Juan Carrasco would be allowed a phone call when he was released. She never was told her son was taken to the hospital by the sheriff's office.

Naomi Carrasco, family members and friends gathered in the hospital's Intensive Care Unit about 7 a.m. Friday to sing Juan Carrasco "Happy Birthday" before taking him off life support.

Pentagon may add air power in Libya conflict

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Even as other nations begin taking a larger role in the international air assault mission in Libya, the Pentagon is considering adding Air Force gunships and other attack aircraft that are better suited for tangling with Libyan ground forces in contested urban areas like Misrata, a senior Pentagon official said Friday.

Navy Vice Adm. William Gortney told a Pentagon news conference that for the second consecutive day, all air missions to enforce a no-fly zone over Libya were flown by non-U.S. aircraft, and U.S. planes conducted about half the missions attacking Libyan air defenses, missile sites and ground forces. Qatar became the first Arab nation to join the effort, flying F-16s in support of the no-fly zone.

"The division of labor between the U.S. and our partners has largely evened out," Gortney said.

With the Obama administration eager to take a back seat, it remained unclear when NATO would assume command of the no-fly patrols. Also unclear was when — and even if — the U.S. military's African Command would hand off to NATO the lead role in attacking Libyan ground targets.

President Barack Obama spoke with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders about Libya on Friday afternoon amid criticism that he's failed to adequately consult with Capitol Hill on the U.S. military goals there.

Political pressure on Obama to spell out his Libya policy mounted Friday as a prominent Democrat expressed reservations about the wisdom of continuing the military mission.

Arrest warrants released for alleged sexual predator

By James Cannon
Staff Writer

ONLINE Read the arrest affidavits. www.mywesttexas.com

The arrest warrants for the Midland man accused of sexually assaulting women last week were unsealed Friday.

The documents detail how the man forced himself upon two women in the early hours of March 15 and how police eventually were able to catch the suspect.

Robert John Baker, 26, was being held Friday evening on a $1 million bond for a first-degree felony of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit another felony and a second-degree of felony of sexual assault.

The first incident took place a little before 8 a.m. March 15 at the Hunters Ridge Apartments on the 4200 block of Andrews Highway when Baker allegedly followed a woman home and forced himself into her apartment, according to the affidavit for an arrest warrant.

The victim said the man followed her home from Blockbuster and grabbed her from behind and forced his way into the residence. He began to fondle her underneath her clothing while he asked the woman for sex, the report read.

After the victim denied him, he continued to fondle her until she was able to get away from Baker and scream for help. The woman said he immediately stopped and ran away.

Police were able to pull video of the man walking back-and-forth in front of the Blockbuster on the 4300 block of Andrews Highway shortly before the assault took place, police said.

Police were able to get a positive identification on Baker. The woman also was able to pick Baker out of a photograph lineup.

But shortly after the first assault, Baker attempted to assault another woman at the Barcelona Apartments on the 4300 block of Lockheed Avenue, according to the arrest warrants.

The victim reported that a man grabbed her from behind and put his hand over her mouth. She said he then said his name was "Kurt" and it was OK, as he put his hand down her blouse. She eventually was able to get away from the man and began screaming, the report read.

Like the previous incident, as soon as the victim began screaming, Baker fled, according to the report. The second victim also was able to positively identify Baker as her attacker.

There were several other sexual assaults that are similar in nature that occurred during the preceding three weeks, and police believe they all might be connected.

There had not been an attorney chosen or assigned for Baker, as of press time Friday. If convicted of the first-degree felony of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit another felony, he could serve between 5 and 99 years. If convicted of the second-degree felony of sexual assault, he could severe up to 20 years in prison.

From 1A

annual data revisions had given a slight increase to Midland's unemployment rate, Hatley wondered if those figures still are accurate.

"I wonder if those figures aren't indicating what's actually going on," he said, pointing to the increasing number of help wanted signs cropping up around town.

According to the commission, Midland added 400 jobs from January to February, 100 each in oil and gas extraction and construction, in professional and business services, leisure and hospitality and in government. For the 12 months from February 2010 to February 2011, Midland has seen 2,700 more jobs for a job creation rate of 4.1 percent. The majority of those new jobs, 1,800, are in the commission's mining, logging and construction segment, followed by 400 in the professional and business services sector. Government recorded the largest loss, 600 jobs.

Hatley said the MDC has not slowed its efforts to recruit new workers to the area, attending job fairs, assisting local employers at job fairs, and visiting military bases to recruit those leaving the military. Even during the economic downturn in 2009, he said, those efforts continued.

Low unemployment is an indication of a strong economy, he said, and has helped bring traffic to the MDC's "Make Midland Home" website.

The commission said Midland's workforce eclipsed 77,500, up from 75,485 a year ago, record highs for the MSA. Hatley said he expects that, as new workers or job seekers arrive to take advantage of the strong economy, housing may continue to be an issue.

"I think housing will be an issue, though not as critical as before," he said, noting that a number of new houses and apartment communities have been built since the economy peaked in 2008.

Statewide, the unemployment rate dipped to 8.2 percent from 8.3 percent in January.

While Midland had the lowest unemployment rate, the highest was in Edinburg-McAllen-Mission, 12.2 percent.

cer had attempted to make contact with Cagle, when Cagle took off westbound on Camarie Avenue, the report read.

Officers were able to locate the vehicle and eventually were able to make a felony stop. Police officers said they observed the driver "swerving all over the road," the report read.

When officers made contact, they said Cagle had a look of confusion on his face and was having a difficult time placing the vehicle in park. Cagle told police he had just purchased two cans of Dust Destroyer and that he was inhaling them.

He told officers he didn't remember stopping in the middle of the road or the encounter with the MISD officer but admitted to passing out. He also admitted to police that he was getting high inhaling dusters and that it sometimes causes him to black out, the report read.

Cagle told police he was inhaling the toxic chemicals as he was driving and admitted to being too intoxicated to be driving. The witness who alerted police to the incident also confirmed that Cagle was inhaling while driving, police said.

He provided a blood sample before being transported to a health department facility.

Cagle is being held on a $7,000 bond for the felony and misdemeanor charges. If convicted of the third-degree felony of evading arrest in a motor vehicle, he could serve up to 10 years in prison.

tumes and scenery by George Skibine.

"I travel all over the world," Clower told the audience. "I only let special companies do this piece."

Unlike previous school performances, "The Firebird" was not narrated, so Clower gave a brief summery of the story they soon were to see enacted in dance. The 1910 ballet by Igor Stravinsky is based on Russian folk tales of a magical glowing bird of the same name that is both a blessing and a curse to its captor.

Clower then introduced the principal dancers: Melissa Sandvig of "So You Think You an Dance" as the Firebird; Evan Swenson from Luminario Ballet and Helios Dance-Theatre as Prince Ivan (Tsarevich); Emily Chapman as Princess Tsarevna (the Beautiful); and Joseph Goodman from Paradise Ballet as Kostchei the Immortal.

Before leaving the stage, Clower complimented the work Midland Festival Ballet instructors had done in preparing the company and asked the students to tell their parents that MFB was presenting "The Firebird" and other works at Midland High School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. today and 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for children, seniors and students.

Dewhurst: Education, Medicaid can be saved

Associated Press

NEW BRAUNFELS — Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst said Friday that spending on public education can be maintained and even increased in the next two-year budget.

Dewhurst also vowed that the state Senate, over which he presides, would not agree to cut Medicaid reimbursement rates for nursing homes. The Republican lieutenant governor's vision is a far cry from the severe cuts headed for a vote in the House next week.

"We can still fund education, the Foundation School Program ... at the same appropriated level we're funding right this second, actually higher," Dewhurst said at a legislative conference in New Braunfels. Dewhurst also said that prisoners "will stay locked up," and he predicted that universities would face "minimal" spending reductions.

Dewhurst said staggering cuts can be avoided by selling state land, reducing certain expenses and raising other revenue but not increasing taxes. With the state facing a shortfall as high as $27 billion, Dewhurst recently announced the formation of a special committee aimed at finding "non-tax" revenue to help plug the budget hole.

The House, which will begin debating the budget legislation next week, is contemplating huge cuts to public education and Medicaid.

The House budget calls for the state to spend $77.6 billion of its own funds over the two years. Even after an agreement to make a limited withdrawal from Texas' flush reserve fund, the plan still would underfund public schools by almost $8 billion and Medicaid by $4 billion. The figures are contingent on passage of the plan to tap the reserve fund.

US rig count up by 18 this week

The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased by 18 this week to 1,738.

Houston-based Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 880 rigs were exploring for gas and 851 for oil. Seven were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago, the count was 1,444.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas gained 12 rigs, Louisiana gained eight, Colorado gained five, Arkansas and North Dakota each gained two and California and Pennsylvania each gained one.

Wyoming lost 10 rigs, Oklahoma lost three, Alaska lost two and New Mexico lost one. West Virginia was unchanged.

The rig count peaked at 4,530 in 1981, the height of the oil boom. The record low of 488 was in 1999.

Legal experts say ruling benefits child porn victims

Victims of child pornography around the country could have an easier time getting restitution from those convicted of possessing such images, according to a federal appeals court ruling this week in a Texas case.

But legal experts say the issue now may have to be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court because courts throughout the United States are split on how to award such compensation.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday ruled that federal restitution law doesn't generally require victims to specifically detail how an individual defendant has harmed them in order to receive restitution.

Other national appeals court rulings, including in Georgia and Montana, have upheld restitution awards against individuals convicted of possessing child pornography. But those courts interpreted federal law to require that victims show a more direct connection between what a defendant did and the harm victims suffered.

Willie Nelson may have to sing in court for pot charge

A West Texas prosecutor said that singer Willie Nelson can resolve marijuana possession charges if he agrees to plead guilty, pay a fine and sing "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain" for the court.

County Attorney Kit Bramblett told the Associated Press Friday that he recommended those penalties to Hudspeth County's Judge Becky Dean-Walker. Bramblett said the judge specifically demanded that Nelson appear in court instead of pleading by mail, a common procedure in these cases.

"She wants to meet Willie," Bramblett said.

Dean-Walker did not immediately return a call Friday.

Nelson was arrested for possession of marijuana on Nov. 26 at a Border Patrol checkpoint after an agent smelled an odor coming from the vehicle and decided to search it.

Nelson's spokeswoman declined to comment.

Ex-US diplomat calls reporter biased

By Will Weissert
Associated Press

EL PASO — A conservative former U.S. diplomat testified in federal court Friday that an ex-New York Times reporter at the center of an anti-communist militant's perjury trial is biased against Cuban-Americans, especially those who oppose Fidel Castro. He then lobbed identical charges at the Times itself.

Otto Reich was secretary of state for Western Hemisphere Affairs from 2001 until 2004, a top advisor on Latin America under President George W. Bush. He was called as a Cuba expert by attorneys for Luis Posada Carriles, a Cuba-born, ex-CIA operative who faces 11 counts of perjury, obstruction and immigration fraud.

Reich condemned the work of Ann Louise Bardach, who was a contract writer for the Times in 1998, when she interviewed Posada from Aruba, where he was hiding.

Based on 13 hours of conversations, Bardach co-wrote a series of stories with then-Times Caribbean bureau chief Larry Rohter, saying Posada "proudly admitted authorship" of a wave of bombings at Cuban tourists sites between April and September 1997 that killed an Italian man and wounded about a dozen other people, some seriously.

The article is essential to the case because Posada sneaked into the U.S. in 2005 and underwent citizenship hearings in El Paso, during which prosecutors allege he failed to acknowledge masterminding the 1997 Cuban blasts. They also charge that he lied about how he made it into the country, and about having a false Guatemalan passport.

Associated Press

Former New York Times reporter Ann Louise Bardach poses for a portrait on March 16 at the El Paso Federal Court in El Paso. Bardach is testifying about an interview she did with Cuban militant Luis Posada Carriles, who is on trial for immigration fraud.

Posada, 83, spent years criss-crossing Latin America and working to destabilize communist regimes, often with the backing of the U.S. government. He is Public Enemy No. 1 in his homeland, featured on propaganda billboards and considered the nemesis of Castro, the island's president until 2009.

Bardach spent six days on the stand for the prosecution and said Posada spoke to the Times because he wanted more publicity for the bombings in the U.S. press, and to clarify that they were meant to discourage tourists from coming to Cuba, but not kill anyone.

Reich — who also served as U.S. ambassador to Venezuela for three years under President Ronald Regan — focused on attempting to discredit Bardach.

Lead Posada attorney Arturo Hernandez said Bardach had testified that she was "really fair, really accurate and really conscientious."

Reich replied, "Based on what I have read, which is quite a bit, I would say she is none of those."

"Her writing consists of distortion, misstatement of facts and in some cases fabrication," he said. "My opinion is that she has a bias in general against Cuban Americans and anti-Castro Cuban-Americans specifically."

When asked about the paper Bardach conducted the Posada interview for, Reich said, "There is a bias in The New York Times. There is a bias against Cuban-Americans in general and anti-Castro Cuban-Americans in particular."

The prosecution offered repeated objections to the line of questioning, but U.S. District Judge Kathleen Cardone overruled nearly every one.

Hernandez then read from one of two major books Bardach has written on Castro and the Cuban-American exile community, "Cuba Confidential," in which she mentioned Reich's work at the State Department in an unfavorable light. He testified that she never attempted to contact him before the book was published.

In an email response, Bardach called Reich's statements "outrageous slander."

"Otto Reich's mud-slinging at reporters and media is well known. His list of prominent media victims is long and storied — going back to the mid-1980s," Bardach said. She added, "Over the years, I have contacted Mr. Reich for his comments by phone and fax, even offered to debate him. The offer still stands. He never responded."

New York Times spokeswoman Eileen Murphy referenced Bardach and Rohter's 1998 articles, when she said through one of the paper's attorneys that, "Otto Reich has not demonstrated any factual errors in the stories, nor has anyone else in the 13 years since their publication."

"Instead," Murphy said, "he has launched broadside attacks that are not worthy of a response."

A CIA agent until 1976, Posada participated indirectly in the failed Bay of Pigs invasion. He later served as head of the Venezuelan government's intelligence service and was arrested for planning the 1976 bombing of a Cuban airliner that killed 73 people. He escaped from a Venezuelan prison while still facing trial, however.

Posada helped Washington funnel support to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua in the 1980s, then, in 2000, he was imprisoned in Panama in connection with a plot to kill Castro during a summit there. He was pardoned in 2004 and turned up in the U.S. the following March — eventually prompting the current charges against him.

States look overseas for scarce execution drug

By Greg Bluestein
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Prison officials around the country have been going to extraordinary — and, in at least one case, legally questionable — lengths to obtain a scarce lethal-injection drug, securing it from middlemen in Britain and a manufacturer in India and borrowing it from other states to keep their executions on track, according to records reviewed by the Associated Press.

"You guys in AZ are life savers," California prisons official Scott Kernan emailed a counterpart in Arizona, with what may have been unintentional irony, in appreciation for 12 grams of the drug sent in September. "Buy you a beer next time I get that way."

The wheeling and dealing come amid a severe shortage of sodium thiopental, a sedative that is part of the three-drug lethal injection cocktail used by nearly all 34 death penalty states. The shortage started last year, after Hospira Inc., the sole U.S. manufacturer of the drug and the only sodium-thiopental maker approved by the Food and Drug Administration, stopped making it.

As supplies dwindled, at least six states — Arizona, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Nebraska and Tennessee — obtained sodium thiopental overseas, with several of them citing Georgia as the trailblazer.

Documents obtained through open-records requests show Georgia managed to execute inmates in September and January after getting the drug from Dream Pharma, a distributor that shares a building with a driving school in a grimy London neighborhood. Dream Pharma's owner has not returned several calls and emails for comment, and an AP reporter who visited the office last week was told the owner was not available.

Last week, however, the Drug Enforcement Administration seized Georgia's entire supply — effectively blocking the scheduling of any further executions — because of concerns over whether the state circumvented the law. "We had questions about how the drug was imported to the U.S.," agency spokesman Chevalo Truesdell said, declining to elaborate.

Federal regulations require states to register with the DEA before importing a controlled substance and to notify the agency once they have it.

Judge rules Texas Open Meetings Act constitutional

Associated Press

PECOS — A federal judge has upheld the Texas Open Meetings Act in a long-running case originally filed by members of the Alpine City Council.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Robert Junell Friday says the law doesn't muzzle the First Amendment right to free speech as had been alleged by a group of plaintiffs that included City Council members from Alpine and 11 other Texas cities.

Junell wrote that the state law protects "the compelling interest of governmental transparency."

Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott, the named defendant, praised the ruling as a victory for democracy and the First Amendment.

Junell held a bench trial on the issue last November after an appeals court reversed an earlier ruling.

Report: 230,000 displaced by Mexico's drug war

By Mark Stevenson
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — About 230,000 people have been displaced in Mexico because of drug violence, and about half of them may have taken refuge in the United States, according to a new study.

The Internal Displacement Monitoring Centre based this week's report on studies by local researchers, saying that the Mexican government does not compile figures on people who have had to leave their homes because of turf battles between drug gangs.

"Independent surveys put their number at around 230,000," according to the global report's section on Mexico. "An estimated half of those displaced crossed the border into the United States, which would leave about 115,000 people internally displaced, most likely in the States of Chihuahua, Durango, Coahuila and Veracruz."

While that number is far below the estimated 3.6 to 5.2 million displaced by decades of drug- and guerrilla-war violence in Colombia, the report suggested that people who had to flee drug violence in Mexico have received little support.

> "In Mexico, state and federal authorities did not acknowledge or start to respond to the internal displacement caused by drug cartels."
> — INTERNAL DISPLACEMENT MONITORING CENTRE

"In Mexico, state and federal authorities did not acknowledge or start to respond to the internal displacement caused by drug cartels," the Geneva-based organization said.

Mexico's Interior Department said it had no immediate comment on the report.

However, government census figures released this month support the idea of an exodus, at least in some areas.

The census, carried out in mid-2010, listed as uninhabited 61 percent of the 3,616 homes in Praxedis G. Guerrero, a border township in the Rio Grande Valley east of Ciudad Juarez. The area has suffered turf battles between the Juarez and Sinaloa cartels, and people in the town said gunmen forced them to leave.

A striking 111,103 of the 488,785 homes in violence-wracked Ciudad Juarez were abandoned, or about 23 percent, and almost one-third of the 160,171 houses in Reynosa were unoccupied. The figure for Mexico as a whole was 14 percent, and many of those, especially in southern states, may belong to migrants who went to the United States seeking work.

Part of the exodus, the IDMC report noted, was because of the indiscriminate nature of the drug violence, which has killed more than 35,000 people since President Felipe Calderon ramped up an offensive against drug cartels in late 2006.

Police in the northern city of Monterrey reported Friday that a local television host on a children's variety program was kidnapped and killed by gunmen and his body left on a roadside.

A cousin of host Jose Luis Cerda and a cameraman on his show also were kidnapped late Thursday and were killed.

Cerda used the stage moniker "The Cat" on the children's program known as "The Club." Police officials said the motives still were under investigation.

Cerda's blindfolded, bound body was found in a vacant lot. After police received a tip the gunmen might return to reclaim the body, police shooed journalists away from the scene and assailants carted off the corpse.

In the Pacific coast resort of Acapulco, state police said gunmen pulled up to a gas station and opened fire, wounding an employee and a policeman. Four other local police were kidnapped while stationed in their patrol cars nearby. There was no immediate word on their whereabouts.

Nor are foreigners immune to gang violence, which has branched into kidnapping and extortion. On Friday, Mexico's Attorney General's Office offered a reward of 5 million pesos ($417,000) for information on the kidnapping of a Swiss man, Olivier Tshumi, 49, who was abducted in the central city of Cuernavaca in December. He has not been seen since.

While the Mexican government has acknowledged the extent and brutality of the drug violence, it remains sensitive to outside comments.

On Friday, the Foreign relations Department issued a statement hotly rejecting statements made Thursday by Ecuadorean President Rafael Correa, who said that cartels "dominated entire territories" in Mexico.

Mexico denied that was true, and said it had "expressed to the government of Ecuador its surprise at such statements ... through appropriate diplomatic channels."

NM job market remains stagnant

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Federal labor statistics show most states have seen positive job growth over the past year, but New Mexico and several others remain on the negative side of the curve when it comes to the job market.

There haven't been any sizable layoffs in the past year by big employers in New Mexico, but business leaders say small businesses — from plumbing contractors and car dealerships to real estate companies and architectural firms — have been forced to lay off handfuls of workers, and those numbers are adding up.

"It's like a duck nipping at our ankles. It's a little bit here and a little bit there and before you know it, it becomes a big number," said Terri Cole, president and CEO of the Greater Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce.

One of those workers on New Mexico's unemployment rolls is Kathleen Cescolini, of Albuquerque, who has been without work for a year. Before being laid off along with 140 coworkers, she used to be an operator for a company that relayed telephone calls to hearing and speech impaired customers.

Cescolini went to two interviews Thursday and had three more scheduled Friday. She puts in about five applications a day.

"I've got skills. I've got computer skills, I've got communication skills. I just don't know what they're looking for," she said during a visit to the state unemployment office Thursday. "It's been hard. The stress level, the fear of being homeless. That's my worst fear."

The architectural firm Dekker/Perich/Sabatini was forced last year to trim its employees by about 90. Founder Dale Dekker said the company had never experienced an economic layoff in more than two decades of doing business but last year came down to matching expenses with revenues.

"This was pretty traumatic for us," he said. "It also had a psychological effect in that we're hesitant to get in that position again of hiring more people because we're not confident that we can keep them."

Dekker and others hope things will improve, but they acknowledge it will take time and that some job losses may never be regained.

The recession is more insidious and subtle than people realize, Cole said. It has forced businesses to become leaner and stronger and that has affected everyone, she said.

"The recovery is very slow and job recovery is even slower," Cole said. "The types of cuts that businesses had to make are cuts that made them more productive, and because they're more productive, it's highly unlikely they'll hire more people and go back to inefficient ways."

Roswell grandmother arrested on drug charges

Associated Press

ROSWELL, N.M. — A Roswell grandmother is behind bars after she allegedly gave a bag of heroin to her 10-year-old granddaughter to hide.

Police arrested 49-year-old Rosemary Jimenez and booked her on drug and felony child abuse charges.

KOB-TV reported detectives went to a Roswell apartment complex Thursday with a search warrant.

Police allege Jimenez managed to give the drugs to her granddaughter while handcuffed.

Jimenez is being held on a $10,000 bond at the Chaves County Detention Center.

FDA clears first melanoma drug to extend life

By Matthew Perrone
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration has approved a breakthrough cancer medication from Bristol-Myers Squibb Co. that researchers have heralded as the first drug to prolong the lives of patients with melanoma.

The federal health agency approved the injectable drug, called Yervoy, for late-stage or metastatic melanoma. The agency has approved only two other drugs for advanced melanoma, the last of which was cleared more than 13 years ago. Neither drug has been shown to significantly extend patient lives.

Known chemically as ipilimumab, the biotech drug only worked in a small segment of patients studied, and on average they lived just four months longer than patients given older medications. But experts say the drug is an important milestone in treating the deadliest form of skin cancer, which is often unresponsive to therapy.

"Clearly this is not a home run, but it's a solid base hit," said Tim Turnham, director of the Melanoma Research Foundation. "And because we see other things in the pipeline, we think this the first in a series of important new therapies for melanoma."

Ipilimumab is part of a group of targeted cancer medicines that harness the body's immune system to fight off cancer, rather than attacking the disease with outside chemicals like chemotherapy. The drug works by blocking a molecule linked to melanoma called CTLA-4, which interferes with the protective activity of white blood cells. When the molecule is blocked, the cells behave normally and help fight off cancer.

Yervoy carries several side effects related to its effect on the immune system, including: diarrhea, swelling of the colon, rash and fatigue. It can cause fatal immune system reactions. The most frequent severe reactions included inflammations of the colon and small intestine, liver, and skin, as well as nerve damage and endocrine disease. Those side effects usually occurred during treatment, but some occurred after treatment ended.

The FDA said severe to fatal immune reactions occurred in 12.9 percent of patients during clinical trials. The agency is requiring Bristol-Myers Squibb to create a risk evaluation strategy designed to identify and reduce the severe risks associated with the drug.

Mike Brockey of Frederick, Md., was diagnosed with late-stage melanoma in 2008 and tried both conventional and alternative medicines before starting therapy with ipilimumab last September. He received four infusions of the drug every three weeks through November, which is the recommended dosing regimen. Though the drug took time to work, he says his latest scans show that his tumors are inactive.

"This is the first time in two years I had a sense that anything was going in the right direction," Brockey said.

TRIPOLI

Qatar becomes first Arab country to fly over Libya

Tiny Qatar became the first Arab country to fly combat missions over Libya on Friday after NATO agreed to take command of the no-fly zone part of air operations against Moammar Gadhafi's regime.

French and British jets struck Libyan military targets around a besieged eastern city, as talks in the Ethiopian capital to find a way out of the crisis produced a statement from the Libyan government delegation saying the country was ready to talk with rebels and accept political reform, possibly including elections.

It not immediately clear what was behind the offer from Libyan negotiator Abdul-Ati al-Obeidi. Rebels, who were not at the talks, say they will not negotiate with Gadhafi.

JAPAN

Breach suspected at troubled power plant

Two weeks after an earthquake and tsunami triggered a crisis at a nuclear plant, the government said Friday there is a suspected breach at a reactor — another setback that would mean radioactive contamination at the facility is more serious than once thought.

Japanese leaders defended their decision not to evacuate people from a wider area around the plant, insisting they are safe if they stay indoors. But officials also said residents may want to voluntarily move to areas with better facilities because supplies in the tsunami-devastated region are running short.

The escalation in the nuclear plant crisis came as the death toll from the quake and tsunami passed the grim milestone of 10,000 on Friday. Across the battered northeast coast, hundreds of thousands of people whose homes were destroyed still have no power, no hot meals and, in many cases, have not had showers for 14 days.

SYRIA

Violence erupts around country, protesters shot

Violence erupted around Syria on Friday as troops opened fire on protesters in several cities and pro- and anti-government crowds clashed on the tense streets of the capital in the most widespread unrest in years, witnesses said.

Soldiers shot at demonstrators in the restive southern city of Daraa after crowds set fire to a bronze statue of the country's late president, Hafez Assad, a resident told the Associated Press. He said he heard heavy gunfire in the city center and later saw two bodies and many wounded people being brought to Daraa's main hospital.

He said thousands of enraged protesters snatched some weapons from a far smaller number of troops and chased them out of the Roman-era old city, taking back control of the al-Omari mosque, which has been the epicenter of eight days of protests in Daraa.

YEMEN

Leader offers to go if country in 'safe hands'

Facing growing calls for his resignation, Yemen's longtime ruler told tens of thousands of supporters Friday that he's ready to step down but only if he can leave the country in "safe hands," while anti-government protesters massed for a rival rally.

President Ali Abdullah Saleh spoke in a rare appearance before a cheering crowd outside his presidential palace in the Yemeni capital.

Three may be right number for attending school prom

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I am a female high school junior with many friends I love and a boyfriend I care for very much. A number of my friends are gay.

One girl, "Belinda," is a year older than I am. She told me a couple of years ago that she is a lesbian. I have done everything I can to help her and support her. Last year, Belinda shared that she loves me more than as a friend. She would like to take me to the prom this year, and I would like to go with her.

Because I am already involved in a relationship with a boy, should I not be Belinda's escort? If I go, how do I tell my parents? — LOYAL FRIEND IN OHIO

DEAR LOYAL FRIEND: It's time you have another talk with Belinda and explain to her that you like her very much as a friend, but not in the same way that she feels about you. Because you are already involved in a relationship, you and your boyfriend could (possibly) attend the prom with Belinda as a threesome — but you should not be her "date." If this turns out to be the solution to your problem, I'm sure your parents would have no objection to it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow. My husband and I enjoyed traveling all the years we were married. Since his death I've taken one trip to Florida alone. It was OK, but not the same, of course, without a loved one to share the experience. I really miss going places and seeing things.

My son and his family take lots of mini-weekend trips. I would love to be asked to go along occasionally. I am not sure if they don't ask me because they can't afford the extra expense of an additional person or because they want privacy. I can afford to pay my own way. I don't know how to let them know I'd love to be included once in a while.

I know there are trips for seniors, but I'm not good at mingling with new people. I have always been family-oriented. The discomfort of traveling with a group of new people would outweigh the fun for me. What do you suggest? — LITTLE BIT LONELY

DEAR LITTLE BIT LONELY: Mention ONCE to your son and his wife that you'd love to be invited to go with them on an occasional mini-weekend getaway — and that you'd be glad to pay your way. They may take you up on it. However, if they don't, do not bring it up again.

I strongly urge you not to restrict yourself in making new acquaintances. Find new interests now that you are alone. Fight the instinct to isolate yourself. If you don't want to travel with a group of strangers, ask some of your women friends if they would be interested in traveling with you. There are exciting times ahead for you, but you must be willing to assert some independence and reach out.

DEAR ABBY: How do you respond if you're dating a much older man and someone asks if he is your father? — THE YOUNGER WOMAN IN VERO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR YOUNGER WOMAN: You just reply, no, he's someone you're dating. Say it with good humor and without being defensive. If there is a large age discrepancy, it's a logical question.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 26, 2011:

This year, you will have a natural audience. You can lead or instrument changes. Responsibilities might feel demanding and sometimes drag you down. Friends remain a delightful source of great ideas and a change from routine. Partners can get caught up in the moment, feeling the heaviness of it. If you are single, you might not be as up for relating as in the past. Nevertheless, you'll meet some great people. If you are attached, help your sweetie lighten up. CAPRICORN makes demands.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Make calls and let friends know your plans. They might enjoy joining you. Your creativity flourishes. You can aggravate an older friend or relative far more than you realize. A partner might be rather uptight. Tonight: Could be a late one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Reach out for someone at a distance. Try to understand what is going on with a friend by imagining what it must be like to live his or her life. Invite this same person to hop in the car and go for a drive. Tonight: How about a movie?

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ Relate on an individual level. People seem to be far more responsive. Have you not been giving certain loved ones and/or friends enough attention? A child or new friend could be more difficult than you anticipated. Now is the moment for diplomacy. Tonight: Add a little more spice to your life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Defer to another person and see what is happening behind the scenes. Be imaginative with a partner who might be more challenging than you are comfortable with. Tonight: Go with another's ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You are upbeat and spirited. An easy, laid-back approach allows greater give-and-take. Your ability to home in on a situation and pitch in needs to happen. Someone appreciates you being able to free him or her up. Tonight: Hanging out — no more, no less.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ Keep reaching out for a child or new friend. Though you might feel as if this person is standing on ceremony, he or she isn't. Understanding evolves to a new level. Your sense of humor emerges. Tonight: It's Saturday night!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ If you want to hang at home, it is a perfect day to do just that. You might want to invite a friend or two over. Make it easy. Whatever the project — taxes or visiting with friends — play it low-key. Tonight: You don't need to move out of the neighborhood in order to have fun.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ How you visualize a situation could change radically if you loosen up and relax. Sometimes you cannot see everything, and others must talk if they are bothered. Don't take someone's comments personally. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Imagine what it would be like if you felt totally free and as if you could do anything. Your sincerity makes a big difference to those in your immediate circle. Someone you care about could be pulling back. Trying to get this person back in could be impossible. Tonight: Your treat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Others would prefer not to have to say "no." Evaluate what you are asking for. There could be a gigantic backfire later. Note the power of kindness when dealing with a neighbor, sibling or friend. Let this person know you empathize. Tonight: All smiles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Sometimes, as extroverted as you are, or friend-oriented, you need to pull back and have some personal space. Whether you share some time with one other person makes no difference. Just opt for quiet and calm. Tonight: Not to be found, leaving others wondering.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ What you want to do is exactly what you need to do. You can be sure that one other person is involved as you look at plans and choices. What might start as a movie and a dinner with friends could become a veritable party. Tonight: Don't stop.

Hamilton sees more value in comeback

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

Josh Hamilton was putting on an impressive show, even hitting some balls more than 500 feet.

Except that was long before the slugger's spectacular display in the All-Star Home Run Derby at old Yankee Stadium, playing in the World Series or becoming the American League MVP.

Hamilton

Way before there was the inspiring comeback story of a former No. 1 overall draft pick who fell into the devastating depths of cocaine and alcohol addictions.

Well before the problems that could have kept him from ever playing again, ills that did keep him out of baseball for four prime development years.

The only person to see all those homers five years ago was the pitcher in the empty stadium at the baseball academy where Hamilton had to rake infields and clean toilets just to earn time on the field. When they were done, Hamilton and Roy Silver walked the outfield and beyond the fences picking up balls.

"I talked to him about what he could do if he could stay clean," said Silver, who shares Hamilton's Christian faith. "Him being an All-Star and doing the things that he has done physically are not the things that I'm most impressed with. What I'm most impressed with is his growth as a man."

The MVP trophy from last season, when he led the majors with a .359 batting average along with 32 homers and 100 RBI, is still in the Houston's Astrodome, left, once called the "Eighth Wonder of the World" is dwarfed by Reliant Stadium in Houston. The Astrodome will remain silent and empty as the 2011 NCAA Final Four is played next door at Reliant Stadium.

Idle Astrodome awaits decision on future

By Chris Duncan

HOUSTON — Elvin Hayes jogged down the dark tunnel and the massive crowd in the Astrodome erupted in cheers as he came through the giant green doors.

It was the late 1960s and college basketball, like everything else, seemed to be changing. Integration was taking hold and the sport's popularity was growing.

But it had never seen anything like this.

On Jan. 20, 1968, Hayes led the second-ranked Houston Cougars to a 71-69 upset of Lew Alcindor and top-ranked UCLA in what was billed as the "Game of the Century." The brainchild of Houston coach Guy Lewis, it was the first college basketball game played in a dome and the first regular-season game broadcast nationwide.

It was a television hit, drawing about 12 million viewers, and it lured 52,693 fans to the Astrodome, launching the era of domed stadiums as viable venues for major basketball events. It was such a success that the dome landed the Final Four in 1971.

"There will never be anything like that night," said Hayes, who scored 39 points in the victory. "You look up, and you just saw all those people.

GLORY DAYS UCLA basketball coach John Wooden, left, watches his players during a workout on Jan. 19, 1968 in Houston's Astrodome. UCLA played Houston the next day in what was called "The Game of the Century."

That was the most amazing spectacle that I've ever seen."

The Final Four returns to Houston later this week, but the host site is Reliant Stadium, the huge, sparkling home of the NFL's Houston Texans.

Next door, the Astrodome sits silent and ignored, a locked-up and lifeless monument to the city's sports and cultural history.

Hayes wishes the stadium could've been refurbished and opened for some kind of basketball-themed event in conjunction with the Final Four. Instead, the "Eighth Wonder of the World," hailed as an architectural marvel when it opened in 1965, is rotting inside as Harris County leaders ponder its fate.

It's more than just a building to Hayes, who refers to it lovingly, like a captain to his ship.

"I will always have a very special fondness for that building," said Hayes, now a radio analyst for Houston basketball games. "But when I pass by now, I also have a sadness. There's the dome just sitting there. All that happened inside, all she meant to so many people — it's all just a memory now."

And what a history.

The dome was the vision of former Houston mayor and county judge Roy Hofheinz, a flamboyant salesman who was part of a group awarded the city's first major league franchise in 1960, the Colt .45s. Hofheinz wanted a stadium that would protect fans from the searing summer heat, torrential downpours and bloodthirsty mosquitoes.

When it was finished, it included a Texas-sized apartment for Hofheinz beyond

A&M focused on matchup with Lady Bulldogs

By Kristie Rieken

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M coach Gary Blair settled in behind the podium and began fiddling with his smartphone.

Soon the smooth voice of Ray Charles was wafting through the room crooning "Georgia on My Mind."

Texas A&M wants another shot at Baylor, but for that chance Blair and the Aggies must first take care of Georgia in Sunday's Dallas Regional semifinal.

Baylor plays Wisconsin-Green Bay in the other game in Dallas.

"We are talking about Georgia this week," Blair said as Charles' 1960 rendition of that "old sweet song" finished playing. "There will not be another word mentioned about Baylor when we talk to our team. The fans talk about it, the media has to talk about it ... to sell tickets we need to talk about it, but as coaches we cannot afford that luxury."

The Aggies rolled their eyes and laughed when asked about Blair's musical offerings this week. That doesn't mean they don't understand the point he's trying to make.

"It's just like the Big 12 tournament where we had to beat two teams to get to Baylor, but it ended up happening," senior Maryann Baker said. "You can see the future of what you're trying to achieve and it just makes you that much more focused on the task at hand."

Kansas cruises past 12th-seeded Richmond

By Paul J. Weber
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Ramping up for perhaps the biggest game in school history, 12th-seeded Richmond huddled in the tunnel. That's when Kansas players came trotting past and the trouble started.

Shoves were traded. Words were exchanged and security appeared. It ended quickly without a fight and the Jayhawks went on their way.

Jayhawks	77
Spiders	57

The game itself wasn't much different.

Brady Morningstar scored 18 points and Kansas, playing like the dominant No. 1 seed in a historic NCAA regional full of underdogs, knocked off Richmond 77-57 on Friday night to move one victory from returning the Final Four for the first time since its 2008 championship.

"We were trying to get past, and they were shoving us," Kansas guard Mario Little said of the pregame encounter. "But we tried to let our play do the talking, and I think we did a good job in the first half."

There was no doubt about that.

The Spiders passed up open shots, bounced balls into the Kansas bench and found themselves down 31-9 with more than six minutes still left before halftime.

The Spiders looked jittery in the what was only the school's second round-of-16 appearance. The Jayhawks, meanwhile, were calm and confident in reaching a fourth regional final under coach Bill Self.

Justin Harper led Richmond with 22 points.

"We weren't able to slow them down in any way," Richmond coach Chris Mooney said.

Thomas Robinson had 12 points and 14 rebounds, and Marcus Morris scored 13 for Kansas. The Jayhawks have yet to be tested so far this tournament, winning by an average of nearly 18 points.

The Southwest regional is the first in NCAA history with three double-digit seeded teams. Kansas plays 11th-seeded VCU after the Rams beat No. 10 Florida State, 72-71 in overtime on Friday.

It's given the Jayhawks what appears — at least on paper — to be an easy-looking path toward the Final Four. The Jayhawks can make it to Houston next week without having beaten a seed higher than ninth-seeded Illinois.

Lady Chaps open WJCAC play with sweep

From staff reports

BORGER — The Midland College softball team kicked off Western Junior College Athletic Conference play on Friday with a doubleheader sweep of Frank Phillips College.

Debra Lovell sparked an MC comeback in the first game with a three-run home run as the Lady Chaparrals won 9-4. Then in the second game, the Lady Chaps had 13 hits to run-rule the Lady Plainsmen, 11-3, in five innings.

Despite scoring first in the first game, MC coach Tommy Ramos said his team got off to a slow start. That slow start almost cost the Lady Chaps (21-11, 2-0 in WJCAC) as Frank Phillips took the lead with a four-run third inning. Ramos said all of those runs were unearned as errors led to that big inning.

"I don't think our energy was at the high level it needed to be," Ramos said.

Lovell's three-run blast in the fifth not only gave MC the lead but also sparked the Lady Chaps, who scored four more runs in the seventh.

Lovell was 2 for 3 with three RBI, Diana De La Paz was 2 for 4, Katie Whitten was 2 for 4 with two RBI, and Angel Lopez was 2 for 3.

Yolanda Rios (13-4) got the win for MC.

MC jumped on Frank Phillips in the second game with three runs in the first inning and added two more in the second for a 5-1 lead.

"We hit the ball well and came out with some energy," Ramos said. "We established ourselves early and did a much better job in the second game."

Kayla Parra was 2 for 3, Kishti Kamaka went 2 for 2 with two RBI, De La Paz was 2 for 2 with three RBI, Meghan Macias was 2 for 3 with three RBI, and Hannah Raubolt was 2 for 4 at the plate.

Ramos added pitcher and Midland High grad Gabee Losoya (4-2) did a solid job of scattering the hits she did give up.

The Lady Chaps continue their Panhandle road trip today with a doubleheader at Clarendon College, beginning at 11 a.m.

Andrews boys, Big Spring girls win team titles at Relays

From staff reports

ANDREWS — The Andrews boys track team defended its home turf on Friday, winning the team title at the Max Goldsmith Mustang Relays at the Mustang Bowl.

The Mustangs scored 200 points to run away with the championship. Monahans was second with 158 points. Winning gold medals for the Mustangs on Friday were Lucas Marquez (3,200, 1,600), Jose Alaniz (800), Joey Prieto (110 hurdles) and Garrett Hadley (300 hurdles).

Meanwhile, the Lady Mustangs had to settle for second in the team standings as they couldn't quite keep pace with Big Spring in the girls division.

The Lady Steers won the team title with 193 points with Andrews scoring 123.5. Leading the Lady Steers' charge was their relay teams. Big Spring won all three relays with Bridgette Tuitt and Desiree Anderson playing key roles in each race.

However, Big Spring's dynamic duo of Tuitt and Anderson met their match in the long and triple jumps. With the two events featuring three of the best leapers in the region, Andrews' Callie Ives bested Tuitt and Anderson to win gold in the long and triple jumps.

Ives won the long jump with a mark of 18 feet, 5.5 inches, and then took the triple jump by clearing 36 feet, 11.5 inches.

Big Spring also got a gold medal performance from sophomore Carson Reibe, who won the 300 hurdles with a mark of 51.47 seconds.

Mudbugs score late to beat Jackalopes

From staff reports

ODESSA — Justin Aikins goal with 3:34 remaining in the third period proved to be the game-winner as the Odessa Jackalopes lost 3-2 to the Bossier-Shreveport Mudbugs on Friday at the CenturyTel Center.

With the win, the Mudbugs lock up the second seed in the Berry Conference for the Central Hockey League's postseason. Despite the loss, Odessa's magic number to clinch the fifth seed sits at one point.

Mississippi must win their remaining two games, combined with Odessa losing their final contest in regulation in order to pass the Jackalopes.

After a scoreless first period, Bossier jumped out to a 2-0 lead after Shawn Limpright and Brett Smith each scored in the opening five minutes of period two. The Jackalopes answered back in the period's final six minutes as Alex Dunn buried a wrist shot from the left circle, and Jeff Pierce connected on a one-timer between the top of the circles.

Mike Mole took just his second loss since joining Odessa with 20 saves. Ryan Munce for the Bugs stopped 27 in the win.

Sebastien Thinel picked up an assist in the game to raise his league-leading point total to 109. Todd Robinson also added a helper to extend his point streak to 16 games.

The Jacks and Bugs close out the regular season at 7:05 p.m. Saturday, by wrapping up their home-and-home series at Ector County Coliseum.

Lee's Thomas sits in 2nd in San Angelo

From staff reports

SAN ANGELO — Lee sophomore Libby Thomas shot an 80 and is in second place in the medalist standings after the first round of the District 3-5A girls golf tour at San Angelo Country Club on Monday.

Thomas was four strokes behind San Angelo Central's Kathryn Cummings, who shot a 76 and was six strokes ahead of two other players that each shot 86. Thomas shot a 38 on the front nine, but followed up with a 42 on the back as Lee coach Blain Huddleston said one of her knees began to bother her.

"You could see it was swollen, but she's a fighter," Huddleston said. "She told me, 'Coach, I'll be all right and I've got do what I have to for the team.'"

Meanwhile, the tough San Angelo Country Club layout took its toll on the teams competing in the district golf tour's first round as San Angelo Central's team score of 355 set the pace. Odessa Permian was in second at 370, with Odessa High third at 382 and Midland High in fourth at 383. Lee was in seventh after a 407.

The Lady Bulldogs had their share of struggles as senior Shelby Jones was the lone MHS player to break 90, with an 89 as Tamra Duncan shot a 93, Brittany Inglish 101, Madeline Coffman 101 and Rachel Eyler 100.

"That course is probably the toughest one we play during the year," Midland High coach Rick Sample said. "But I really don't think our kids competed. We had two girls of our junior varsity team shoot better than some of our varsity girls. We are not happy with that, but we are not going to panic and will regroup."

For Lee, qualifying for the regional tournament becomes an even bigger hill to climb as Thomas was the only Lady Rebel not to have a triple digit score on either of their two teams.

"(The course) was rough on them," Huddleston said. "But our putting was horrible. We'd give ourselves a chance but we were three-putting every time I turned around."

The tour's second round is set for Tuesday at Hogan P ark Golf Course's Quail Course.

Roughecks eke out win

From staff reports

ODESSA -- It took some timely plays on both sides of the ball for the West Texas Roughnecks to come out on top of the Amarillo Venom on Friday.

West Texas quarterback Arkelon Hall hit DeWayne Hogan for a 2-yard touchdown with less than 3 minutes to play, giving the Roughnecks the lead, but it was an interception by Anthony Eeck — his second of the game — at the Roughnecks 5-yard line in the final seconds that secured a 37-34 victory against the Venom at Ector County Colliseum.

Hall ended up throwing for 134 yards and three TDs on 18 of 30 passing, out-dueling Amarillo's dual-threat signal-caller X'Zavier Bloodsaw. Bloodsaw threw for 133 yards and rushing for 65 more, but also three interceptions.

The game was tied 14-14 at halftime and went back and forth throughout the second half. Bloodsaw had a 2-yard TD run to give the Venom a 34-30 advantage with 5:59 to play.

Hall's game-winning TD pass to Hogan came with 2:21 left on the clock. It was Hogan's lone reception of the night.

West Texas returns to action at 7:05 p.m. Friday with a visit to the Wichita (Kan.) Wild.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL TODAY

DISTRICT 3-3A
ABILENE COOPER AT LEE

When/where: Noon today, Ernie Johnson Field

Records: Cooper 8-12, 1-2 in District 3-5A; Lee 13-9, 2-1

Last game: Abilene Cooper 14, San Angelo Central 4 (6); Odessa Permian 10, Lee 5

Notes & Quotes: After a 2-0 start to District 3-5A play, Lee ran into Odessa Permian's high-powered offense on Tuesday. The Rebels led 5-1 at one point, but once the Panthers caught a break, they made the most of it, scoring all 10 of their runs in their last three at bats. "We allowed the momentum to shift their way by committing a couple errors," Lee coach Hector Limon said. "Once they drew a little blood in that inning they were unstoppable. The momentum was so strong in their favor there wasn't anything we could do about it." ... Not only did Lee suffer its first district loss on Tuesday, so did San Angelo Central in an upset loss to Abilene Cooper, which was previously winless in district. As a result, just two games separate first-place Lee and Central from last-place Odessa High in the standings. "We're all piled up there right in the middle," Limon said. "The top and the bottom are right there with the middle. There isn't much room between wins and losses. Everyone has at least one loss and everyone has at least one win. There's a logjam." ... Not only has Cooper had a wild card effect on the standings, after two years in Class 4A, it's a bit of a wild card for coaches in the Permian Basin, who haven't had a chance to scout the Cougars. "We just have a couple of things on report, but as far as me seeing them, I haven't been able to," Limon said. "It can affect you negatively if you don't know the little quirks that make them go, that can be detrimental if you just don't know much about them. It's when you've seen them a few times that helps you from a scouting perspective and we haven't been able to scout them as well as we would like." ... Coming off its first district loss and knowing Cooper is capable of run-ruling one of best teams in the district, Lee won't be tempted to overlook the Cougars. And as their home victory against Midland High last weekend proved, the Rebels feed off playing at Ernie Johnson Field. "Being at our place is really big for us coming back from the Permian game," Limon said. "Not just knowing the surface, but knowing how the field plays with wind conditions and so far, those things are big."

Next game: Odessa High at Abilene Cooper, 4 p.m., Tuesday; Lee at San Angelo Central, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday

MIDLAND HIGH AT ABILENE HIGH

When/where: Noon today, Abilene

Records: MHS 13-9, 2-2 in District 3-5A; AHS 8-11, 2-1

Last game: Midland High 27, Odessa High 2 (5); Brownwood 7, Abilene High 5

Notes & Quotes: Midland High needed a victory in the worst way on Tuesday against Odessa High. The Bronchos would probably say the Bulldogs beat them in the worst way, outscoring the Bronchos by 25 in a five-inning run-rule. The Bulldogs jumped out to a 14-0 lead in the first inning and put the game away with 11 more runs in the fourth. Meanwhile starting pitcher Coby Tomlin held the Bronchos scoreless until the third and limited them to just two hits going into the fifth as he picked up his fourth win of the season. "We needed the win bad," MHS coach Barry Russell said. "We needed to get back to what we thought we could do. Obviously 27 runs, I don't think anybody expected that, it just snowballed and blew up, but we were starting to feel a little pressure. Now we're through a third of the season and we need to get after it the next two-thirds." ... Michael Cristiani proved he's recovered from a hamstring injury in the game, going 3 for 3 with a triple, five runs and five RBI. With Cristiani back at first base, Russell can be more flexible with his defensive alignments, allowing Shane Sawyer to remain at third or pitch and Keith Fritschen to play in the outfield or at third when Sawyer pitches. "With Michael, it gives us a lot of different looks," Russell said. "We got to play some young kids when he was out, which really helped and he's done such a great job at first. He's by far our best defensive guy there. It gives us a chance to do some things with Keith and Shane." ... Russell changed up his batting order on Tuesday, but said it would probably continue to rotate depending on who pitches, considering most of his pitchers start elsewhere in the field. ... With Abilene High back in District 3-5A, the old baseball rivalries have come back to life. In 2008, before realignment separated AHS and Abilene Cooper from the Midland and Odessa schools and San Angelo Central, the Eagles won the District 3-5A championship against Midland High at Zachery Field. So the history of the match ups that take place in 3-5A always have added intrigue. "They won the last district championship the last time we had it," Russell said. "They beat us here on our field for the district championship. If we'd won, we would have been tied with them. Then I graduated from Cooper, so Abilene's kind of a fun place to go back and get after it with those guys. All these schools in this district are rivals."

HAMILTON

box on a desk at Hamilton's home. He will soon get his AL championship ring from the Texas Rangers after the first World Series in their 50-season history.

Yet those aren't the most valuable prizes for Hamilton in his comeback. Nor is the $24 million, two-year contract the outfielder got from the Rangers this winter.

Hamilton got something much more personal and eternal out of his horrid journey from clean-cut teenage baseball phenom to a drug addict with his life spiraling downward out of control.

"If none of that stuff would have happened, I wouldn't have had a relationship with Christ like I do now. I wouldn't see things like I do now, I wouldn't want to," the 29-year-old Hamilton said. "I was always a good person, but that doesn't get you where you want to be all the time, and ultimately doesn't get you where you need to be."

His priorities now are God, humility, family, sobriety and baseball — in that order.

Hamilton was still suspended from baseball, had been estranged from his family and gone through at least eight stints in drug rehab by early 2006 when he arrived in Clearwater, Fla., at the old spring training complex of the Philadelphia Phillies where Silver and Randy Holland run their academy.

The nearly $4 million record signing bonus Hamilton got when Tampa Bay drafted him No. 1 overall in 1999 was long gone.

"At that point in his life, he had no identity beyond the field. And that's not a good place to be," Silver said. "Just dealing with reality like a man, using his reality for maturity purposes, getting back with Katie and being a husband, being a father, that allowed him to maximize his potential at work."

Since making his major league debut with Cincinnati in 2007, eight years after being drafted, Hamilton has hit .311 with 93 homers and 331 RBI in 468 games. He has been an All-Star starter in each of his three seasons since being traded to the Rangers.

While he is doing the kind of things on the field that were expected when the can't-miss prospect was drafted, he is really just now getting into the routine of major league baseball. He played only 23 games above the Class A level before going to the Reds.

"I missed some valuable years, and those were supposed to be my learning years," Hamilton said. "Now I'm having to play catch-up. ... I feel like I've obviously grown as a player."

Hamilton went four years without even playing a game, beginning in July 2002 when he went on the disabled list in the minor leagues after surgery on his left elbow and shoulder. By then, the tattooed slugger was already caught up in the drugs that would contribute to being off the field three full seasons.

It wasn't until July 2006, months after his time as a groundskeeper at The Winning Inning baseball academy, that Hamilton was allowed by Major League Baseball to play in minor league games. He hit .260 with no homers in 15 games at Hudson Valley, a short-season Class A team for Tampa Bay.

When the Rays left him unprotected off their 40-man roster that winter, Hamilton was acquired by the Reds through the Rule 5 draft.

Hamilton went to Sarasota, Fla., about a month before spring training, and was working out one day with a group that included Joey Votto, then a Reds minor leaguer who was the NL MVP last season.

"They're taking batting practice and Josh is making Joey Votto look like a high schooler with the display he's putting on," said Wayne Krivsky, then the Reds' general manager. "He's hitting balls where no one's ever hit balls before. ... He's just wearing it out."

Krivsky, now a special assistant to New York Mets GM Sandy Alderson, still laughs recalling the report he got that day from the Reds scout who was watching the workout: "I just watched Herman Munster take batting practice."

Hamilton hit .292 with 19 homers in 90 games for the Reds, a breakthrough season despite two stints on the disabled list.

"You saw the ability, and the raw ability. It was scary what the guy could do in batting practice, the displays of power, and his throwing arm and everything else," Krivsky said. "You saw a guy that was a little rusty, but at the same time, you could visualize this guy really being good in a matter of a year or two."

Yet, pitching-desperate Cincinnati traded Hamilton that winter for young starter Edinson Volquez and left-handed reliever Danny Herrera.

Krivsky, speaking by phone recently from the Sarasota stadium where four years earlier he was part of an introductory news conference with Hamilton, said the Reds "agonized" over that deal and were not looking to trade him. But they had several young talented outfielders and needed pitching.

Volquez went 17-6 with a 3.21 ERA that first season with Cincinnati and was an All-Star like Hamilton, who wowed everyone in New York in the first round of the Home Run Derby with 28 homers. Hamilton hit .300 and led the AL with 130 RBI.

In 2009, Hamilton was limited to 89 games primarily because of an abdominal muscle strain. It was also that year before spring training that he went into an Arizona bar to have dinner and ended up drinking for the first time in 3 1/2 years.

HIGH SCHOOL SOFTBALL TODAY

ABILENE COOPER AT MIDLAND HIGH

When/where: 2 p.m. today, Audrey Gill Sports Complex

Records: Midland High 12-12, 3-2 in District 3-5A; Abilene Cooper 11-12, 2-3

Last district game: Midland High 7, Abilene High 2 on March 19; Odessa High 3, Abilene Cooper 0

Notes: The Lady Bulldogs took a break from 3-5A play on Tuesday and beat Class 2A Alpine, 11-1, in five innings. The break came at a good time for the Lady Bulldogs who have found some confidence after winning last week against Abilene High in extra innings, and with a win today can stay in the playoff chase and the race for the district title. ... Freshman Stefani Baeza and sophomore Jeannie Freeman each pitched in Tuesday's game and allowed five hits in the five innings. Overall this season, four different pitchers have seen time in the circle for the Lady Bulldogs. Senior Kelsey Hoppel has pitched 15 of Midland High's 35-plus innings in district play so far this season. Hoppel has a 2-1 record, and has nine strikeouts and allowed nine hits in three games. She also has yet to allow an earned run. But who pitches today will likely again be a game-time decision. ... The Lady Cougars garnered five hits, none of extra bases, in Tuesday's loss to Odessa High, which was their second straight during the District 3-5A season. ... Today's game ends the first half of the District 3-5A schedule.

Next: Midland High at Odessa Permian, 6:30 p.m., Tuesday; Odessa Permian at Abilene Cooper, 2 p.m. Saturday, April 2

LEE AT ABILENE HIGH

When/where: 2 p.m. today, Abilene HS

Records: Lee 16-8, 3-2; Abilene High 11-11, 1-4

Last district game: Lee 5, San Angelo Central 1; Odessa Permian 17, Abilene High 4

Notes: Tuesday's victory against San Angelo Central marked the first time this season, the Lady Rebels had won two straight games in District 3-5A play. But with the victory against the Lady Bobcats, Lee is hoping to keep its winning streak going. Plus, Tuesday's win was the first for Lee on the road during 3-5A play. ... Lee may have found some consistency in the circle, for now, as sophomore Emily Hardaway will start today's game against the Lady Eagles. Today will be Hardaway's fifth district start as she is 3-1 and has won her last three starts after losing to Odessa High to open the District 3-5A season on March 8. Hardaway is 3-1 in district play this season with a 0.48 earned run average and 16 strikeouts. Freshman Kylee Olivas started against Odessa Permian. ... Tuesday against Central, Lee had eight hits and also took advantage of three San Angelo Central errors. Senior Rebecca Long was 2 for 4, with a leadoff triple where she later scored. It was Lee's only extra base hit of the game. ... Since beating Odessa High on March 12, the Lady Eagles have lost three straight games and find themselves with a hill to climb to get back in the playoff race. Abilene High mustered four runs and seven hits against Odessa Permian, but a six-run third inning proved to be the Lady Eagles' undoing in a run-rule loss.

Giants, Bills, Panthers, Jets alter ticket plans

By Barry Wilner
Associated Press

The New York Giants and Jets, Carolina Panthers and Buffalo Bills made changes to their season-ticket plans this year to account for the lockout, with the Giants taking the biggest step by not requiring renewals until the labor stoppage ends.

According to a survey of all 32 teams by the Associated Press, 17 teams are not changing ticket prices, nine are raising them, four are decreasing them — and two are both raising and decreasing, depending on seat location.

May 1 normally is the due date for full payment by Giants season ticket-holders. Not this year, barring a settlement beforehand of the dispute between owners and players.

The Giants and Jets shared the $1.6 billion cost for the New Meadowlands Stadium that opened last season. They also required personal seat license fees for most fans.

For 2011, the Giants are not raising ticket prices, while the Jets are having a 2.3 percent average increase. The Jets added a payment alternative that defers 50 percent of the total amount due until a training camp date is announced.

The Panthers added a fourth payment option for fans: 10 percent of the renewal price due up front and 90 percent due upon the signing of a new collective bargaining agreement.

Buffalo extended its series of payments by one pay period and adjusted payment terms so that 50 percent of the account balance is not due until the league announces games will be played. Fans then have a two-month period to make the remaining payments.

MEN'S NCAA TOURNAMENT ROUNDUP

East Regional

NO. 2 NORTH CAROLINA 81, NO. 11 MARQUETTE 63: At Newark, N.J., North Carolina is back and put the whole package — offense, defense and toughness — on display while dismantling Marquette.

Just a year after missing the NCAA party, the kids from Chapel Hill stole the show at their East Regional semifinal.

KENTUCKY 62, OHIO STATE 60: At Newark, N.J., Brandon Knight knocked down a jumper with 5 seconds remaining as the fourth-seeded Wildcats stunned top-seeded Ohio State 62-60 on Friday in the East regional semifinals.

Senior center Josh Harrellson held his own against Ohio State super freshman Jared Sullinger, scoring 17 points and grabbing 10 rebounds as the Wildcats (28-8) advanced to play North Carolina on Sunday for a trip to the Final Four.

Southwest Regional

NO. 11 VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH 72, NO. 10 FLORIDA STATE 71: At San Antonio, Bradford Burgess made a layup off an inbounds pass with 7.1 seconds left and Jamie Skeen blocked a shot at the buzzer, giving Virginia Commonwealth a 72-71 victory over Florida State in overtime in a Southwest Region semifinal Friday night.

In the first NCAA tournament game between teams seeded 10 and 11, the lower seeded Rams blew a nine-point lead by scoring only three points in the final 7:37 of regulation. They never trailed by more than four all night, but found themselves down 71-70 when Burgess scored the kind of basket that will live in NCAA tournament lore.

school history and the first since 2009 with a goal of earning their first-ever trip to the Final Four. No. 2 seed Texas A&M (29-5) has just five losses this season and three of them have come against the No. 1 seeded Lady Bears. The most recent meeting in the Big 12 tournament championship ended with a 61-58 Baylor win after the Aggies led 12-0.

But first, Georgia, a team the Aggies have never met before.

Blair loves a good story and regales anyone in his path with his colorful tales. He shared one this week that veered away from basketball, but stayed on the subject of Georgia.

He told of a 10-year-old Aggie fan with cancer who he has been corresponding with for the last month. He held up a picture the little girl had sent, posing in front of a wall that displayed a team photo Blair had given her.

The girl, bald from chemotherapy but smiling broadly, also included a note.

"Thank you for the team picture," she wrote. "Gig' em."

The girl, who lives in Georgia but whose parents attended Texas A&M, is reason Georgia has been on Blair's mind long before he was game planning for the Lady Bulldogs.

"It's sort of apropos that we would be playing Georgia," Blair said. "It's pretty neat. Sometimes things work out."

The Aggies won their first two tournament games by an average of 31 points. They expect a much tougher fight from Georgia, a program coach Andy Landers is taking to the round of 16 for the 19th time.

"This basketball team has worked very hard for this moment, but instead of enjoying the moment, you have to seize the moment and make sure it doesn't pass you by," Blair said. "Because technically, all we've done is ... gotten to where we're supposed to be and now the problem is getting to that Elite 8."

His team doesn't seemed daunted by Georgia's tournament history and the players got a boost by their dominance in their first two tournament games.

"We're confident going into Georgia," Baker said. "We're not taking them lightly, but we're the two seed we're supposed to take care of business."

The only time Texas A&M reached the regional finals was in 2008 when they lost to eventual champion Tennessee. Point guard Sydney Colson was a freshman on that team and often thinks of that squad as A&M's best ever because they went the deepest in the tournament.

right field as well as a one-lane bowling alley, barber shop, chapel and other unusual rooms.

"He had a room with a Caribbean theme, and another one with a bar and a lot of novelty items," said Tal Smith, one of the original employees of the Colt .45s. "Everything he did was colorful. He was very creative, he liked to have fun and he added some flavor to everything he did."

The signature of the space-age building was the $2 million scoreboard that flashed a gaudy light show after the team, renamed the Astros, produced home runs and victories. The display featured fireworks, snorting bulls with Texas and U.S. flags on their horns, and a galloping roper trying to lasso a calf.

The NFL's Oilers played there, too, as did Elvis, the Rolling Stones, Madonna, Pink Floyd and Paul McCartney over the years. Ali fought here, Earl Campbell ran over defenders here, Nolan Ryan's fastball went over 100 mph here.

It was the site of Major League Baseball's first indoor game. It hosted the "Battle of the Sexes" tennis match between Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King, and served as an emergency shelter in 2005 for refugees from Hurricane Katrina.

"It's sort of the building that put Houston on the map," said Dave Bush, a spokesman for the Greater Houston Preservation Alliance.

Out of necessity, the dome also christened the one-of-a-kind surface called AstroTurf.

The floor was originally sodded with Bermuda grass, but baseball players complained that they were losing fly balls in the natural light that came through the translucent panes in the ceiling.

Hofheinz ordered the panes painted opaque, but the limited sunlight killed the grass. Hofheinz sent Smith in search of a solution and he got a tip that a prep school in Providence, R.I., had installed a synthetic material called ChemGrass in a playground there.

Smith, now the Astros' president of baseball operations, flew to Providence to see it for himself. He then called Hofheinz to say he might have found the answer. Hofheinz was sold, and the turf was installed on the infield in time for the start of the Astros' 1966 season.

The dome, named in a nod to the space program's huge influence on Houston, also wowed architects and provided a template for other stadiums, including the Superdome. It was the first domed sports venue, the first with air conditioning, and was spacious enough to fit an 18-story building under its 208-foot high roof.

"The Astrodome stretched state-of-the-art construction and design practices to new dimensions," said Stephen Fox, an architectural historian and author of the "Houston Architectural Guide." "It has exceptional historical significance, as the model for a new generation of sports stadiums."

But the dome long ago gave way to those newer stadiums, adorned with retractable roofs and updated luxury boxes. The scoreboard was removed in 1988 after Oilers owner Bud Adams demanded it be replaced by 10,000 seats. Nearly 10 years later, the Oilers moved to Tennessee.

The Astros opened play at Minute Maid Park in 2000 and the rest of the Astrodome's major tenants and events were gone by 2003, including the city's giant annual rodeo.

The dome offered one last testament to its staying power in 2008, when Hurricane Ike roared across the city. The storm tore holes in Reliant Stadium's retractable roof, and blew off doors, causing flooding at ground level.

The Astrodome, meanwhile, survived with virtually no damage.

The dome cost about $35 million to build, while "I would love to see her stand, I would love to see her stay. But sometimes in America, we tear down our history, and that's sad, Hayes said.I just appreciate her."

passport to TEXAS HISTORY

Journey deep in the heart of Texas history

By Tracy Hobson Lehmann
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — Pity the history teachers whose lessons were met with my glazed expression.

The tangle of names, dates and places never penetrated a brain geared to visual learning.

The picture of the past becomes clearer to me when I'm in places where history unfolded and where I can envision life "back then."

So the Passport to Texas History seemed a good field trip for this native Texan who's fuzzy on the Lone Star State's back story.

The program celebrating the 175th anniversary of the Texas Revolution is the brainchild of the Texas Historical Commission. It entices visitors to key locations of the revolution with the promise of a commemorative gift for those who collect stamps from seven sites by the end of the year.

Determined to make the trek a learning experience and not just a stamp-collecting drive across South Texas, I consulted Stephen L. Hardin, history professor at McMurry University in Abilene, who has led private tours of the battlefields and points between. Much of his expertise is laid out in "Texian Iliad," a military history of the fight for independence from Mexico, and he's the kind of historian who gets revved up about his subject.

On his advice, I strayed from the passport map and began my tour in Cost.

Though the little community outside Gonzales seldom shows up in history texts, it was here on the Guadalupe River that the cannon kerfuffle between Mexico and the Texians turned into war. As I surveyed the land, I could imagine the defiant Texians raising the "Come and Take It" flag and firing the cannon at Mexican troops as they came over the slight rise.

I was intrigued by the Texian spirit and the army built through the 1835 brand of social networking — messengers on horseback. But at the Gonzales Memorial Museum, my focus turned to the history of the cannon itself as I listened to stories told by curator Oliver M. Davis.

Please see HISTORY/2C

Passport to Texas History gives visitors a back story on the Lone Star State with such sites as: Above left, Presidio la Brahia, the 1749 fort that suffered the heaviest losses of the revolution; Above right from top down: A statue of Stephen F. Austin in San Felipe; the "Come and Take It" cannon that started the revolution at the Gonzales Memorial Museum; Washington-on-the-Brazos State Historic Site; and the Alamo in San Antonio. There are lots of good reasons to get out of bed in Boerne

By Kathleen Scott
San Antonio Express-News

Boerne is the kind of place folks go to forget about schedules — to remember what it feels like to sleep until you're rested, rise to meals you'll dream about later and energize your mind.

If you're lucky enough to be there on the second weekend of the month, as my sister and I were, you can enjoy Market Day artisans in the morning, browse interesting shops in the afternoon and do a gallery and wine tour at night — all without getting in a car.

Don't miss: Boerne Market Days features artists, craftsmen and vendors with interesting and unusual wares. We couldn't resist The Gypsy Couture's stylish women's wear, sold from a decked-out airstream trailer, TheGypsyCouture.com. Second Saturday and Sunday 10 a.m.-5 p.m., BoerneMarketDays.com.

The Second Saturday Art & Wine Tour offers free sights and sips at galleries and wine stores. Signs outside identify venues, maps are available inside.

Second SaturdayArtAndWine.com/Galleries. We particularly enjoyed meeting the artists at Carriage House Gallery of Artists, 110 Rosewood Ave. CarriageHouseGalleryOfArtists.com, 830-248-1184.

Shopping: We saw more unique stores than we could visit, but it was fun to try. Housewares, art, jewelry, gifts, women's wear, books, food and drink. We loved the art at J.R. Mooney Galleries of Fine Art, 305 S. Main St., JRMooneyGalleries.com, 830-816-5106; and the furniture and home wares at Melissa Jeffrey Home, 346 S. Main St., 830-331-1393; and Calamity Jane's Trading Co., 404 S. Main St., CalamityJanesTradingCo.com, 830-249-0081.

Culinary art: Bear Moon Bakery & Café serves fresh-from-scratch, made-with-love baked goods, soups, salads and sandwiches, and showcases a local artist's work each month. 401 S. Main St., BearMoonBakery.com, 830-816-2327.

Little Gretel's Sunday Brunch is a good reason to get out of bed. Czech kolaches from an Old-World recipe, care in every bite. The Poached Egg on Crab Cake drizzled with a decadent hollandaise sauce and served over house-made Vienna brioche was sumptuous. 518 River Road, Lit-

HISTORY

From 1C

The little cannon — proof that not everything is bigger in Texas — went missing for a century then turned up after a flood and was in a private collection until the late 1970s.

In Goliad, the equally fascinating lesson turned to architectural history as park ranger Jasper Pino demonstrated how keystones hold up arches. As we explored the various styles of keystones around the Mission Espmritu Santo compound, my attention was diverted by a toad that poked its head from a hole in the ground.

I knew then I wouldn't be reciting many names and dates, but I was learning. That was reinforced when we spent a stretch of time marveling at a parade of harvester ants carrying leaves to their nest. Heading east to explore where settlers staked claim to land, declared sovereignty and fought the quick final battle, I contemplated their travels and the landscape they would have seen. I thought about people, not names and dates. No doubt those folks, too, had spent their share of time focusing on nature, even if more for survival than intrigue.

We did collect all the stamps on the Passport to Texas History, and while there's no test at the end of this lesson, I think I could ace one. More important, I think this history lesson stuck.

SIGNIFICANT SITES

San Antonio Express-News

The Passport to Texas History commemorates the 175th anniversary of the Texas Revolution with visits to significant sites. While seeing those locations, check out other places that also figure prominently into Lone Star history.

SAN ANTONIO: Collect passport stamps after exploring the Alamo — where Texian defeat on March 6, 1836, fanned flames of the revolution — and at the national park center at Mission San Jose, established by the Spanish in 1720 to teach Indians about agriculture and Christianity. The church is closed until late summer, but the visitor's center and grounds remain open.

See the Alamo diorama at the History Shop on Houston Street for perspective of the battle and the compound before the city sprang up. Appreciate the span of the battlefield by walking from the Alamo to San Fernando Cathedral, where Santa Anna raised the red flag of no quarter, marking the beginning of the Alamo siege.

Carve out time, too, to visit missions Concepcion, Espada and San Juan Capistrano and the Espada Acequia, all built in the early 1700s.

COST: See the monument on the Guadalupe River where the first shot of the Texas Revolution was fired on Oct. 2, 1835. A large bas relief monument stands on Texas 97, about 7 miles southwest of Gonzales. A smaller marker at the actual site is 1.5 miles north down Spur 95 behind the monument.

GONZALES: Get your passport stamped at the Gonzales Memorial Museum after seeing the "Come and Take It" cannon that started the revolution and other artifacts, such as Sam Houston's signature.

Visit the collection of 19th-century and early 20th-century buildings at Pioneer Village. See the marker at St. Joseph and St. Louis streets where the "Come and Take It" cannon was buried as Texians amassed forces. And stop by the Sam Houston Oak, about 10 miles east of Gonzales on U.S. 90A, the general's headquarters after burning Gonzales.

GOLIAD: Collect a passport stamp at Presidio La Bahia, the 1749 fort that suffered the heaviest losses of the revolution.

Adjacent to the fort is the birthplace of Ignacio Zaragoza, the Mexican army general who defeated the French in the Battle of Puebla. Also within walking distance are the statue of the Angel of Goliad and the Fannin Memorial Monument, burial site of the 342 men killed in the Goliad Massacre.

At Goliad State Park, see Mission Espiritu Santo and exhibits about mission life and architecture.

FANNIN: About 9 miles east of Goliad off U.S. 59 is the Fannin Battleground State Historic Site, where Col. James Fannin surrendered at the Battle of Coleto Creek.

SAN FELIPE: Get a stamp at the site where Stephen F. Austin established his colony in 1823 and issued land grants to the Old 300.

WASHINGTON: Have your passport stamped at Washington-on-the-Brazos State Historic Site after seeing Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was adopted on March 2, 1836. See the exhibits in the park visitor's center and next door at the Star of Texas Museum.

Step back in time at Barrington Living History Farm, where interpreters live life as it might have been on Anson Jones' plantation in the 1850s. Jones' home is reconstructed at the farm, where interpreters in period costumes raise livestock and crops, including cotton.

LA PORTE: Get a stamp and a 360-degree view of the San Jacinto Battleground at the San Jacinto Monument. See exhibits and walk the battleground.

At The Dodging Duck Brewhaus, humor infuses the menu but the fresh-brewed beer, food and wine list are seriously good. My chargrilled salmon burger was served on a sweet cheddar jalapeno bun that begged me to order a second. 402 River Road, DodgingDuck.com, 830-248-3825.

The Creek Restaurant offers fine dining overlooking Cibolo Creek. Our appetizer crab cakes were beautiful and rich in crab, but the star of the night was an entrée of roasted quail with granola stuffing and brandy raisin reduction sauce. I wanted to lick the plate but didn't want to embarrass my sister. Save room for the house-made desserts. 119 Staffel, creekrestaurant.com, 830-816-2005.

Staying over?: We enjoyed Ye Kendall Inn's convenience to shopping and dining. Rooms and suites are in historical buildings, including the honeymoon suite in a 1905 church. My sister and I stayed in the charming Victoria Suite, which featured the bonus of a claw-footed bathtub. Rates range from $109 to $249. 128 W. Blanco St. YeKendallInn.com, 800-364-2138.

Time to spare?: Stop by the Visitors Center and pick up a Historic Walking Tour Map so you can see the town's 141 historical buildings, some from the 1850s. Second Saturday tour list also available. Galveston gets Magic cruise ship

By Harry Shattuck
Special to the Houston Chronicle

Even as construction continues, Carnival Cruise Lines has revealed innovations for its Carnival Magic, destined to become the first new ship based year-round at the Port of Galveston later this year.

Signature features planned for the 130,000-ton, 3,690-passenger Magic include cruising's first ropes course, an outdoor weightlifting area, an expanded aqua park with a 500-gallon "water dump bucket," a two-level miniature golf course and a lighted court for basketball, volleyball and other sports.

The ropes course will allow passengers to move about in nets suspended above an upper deck, with the sea 150 feet below.

Also new: two-bathroom, five-berth staterooms designed for families (plus numerous other stateroom configurations), a half-mile promenade circling one deck, an Italian trattoria and an island-inspired pub serving Jamaican firecracker chicken wings, Bahamian conch salad and a private-label draught beer.

Built in Italy, the Magic will be introduced May 1, then will sail in the Mediterranean until mid-October when it commences an Atlantic crossing to Galveston, its full-time home port. The Magic will become the largest cruise ship ever based in Texas.

Carnival has introduced a website at carnivalmagic.com with virtual tours, contests, conversations, deck plans and other information about its newest ship. Reservations already are being accepted.

Carnival Magic will replace the 3,114-passenger Carnival Conquest in operating seven-day cruises from Galveston to the Western Caribbean and Bahamas.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
No wonder my male co-worker can afford a new convertible. He's making $6000 more than I am! Wondering how I know? Some yahoo in HR accidentally emailed a department salary memo to the entire company instead of just to the president. I knew women were underpaid, but this is ridiculous. I'm going job shopping and need to know how a woman can get the big bucks and a new convertible. My only solace is that I'll look better with the top down since I still have all my hair!

Cash: Well, if you're looking for a new job, there may be a new opportunity in your HR department!

Carry: You have to love the age of technology. An error like that just didn't happen with paper memos.

Cash: As for your salary discrepancies, you are correct in thinking there are differences between men and women. According to the US Census Bureau, women are generally paid about 30% less than men, and that's unfair.

Carry: A situation like this happened when I worked for a large company several years ago. Except our HR "yahoo" emailed the amounts of the manager's Christmas bonuses. It became a merrier Christmas when the company restructured the program to give bonus checks to everyone in the company.

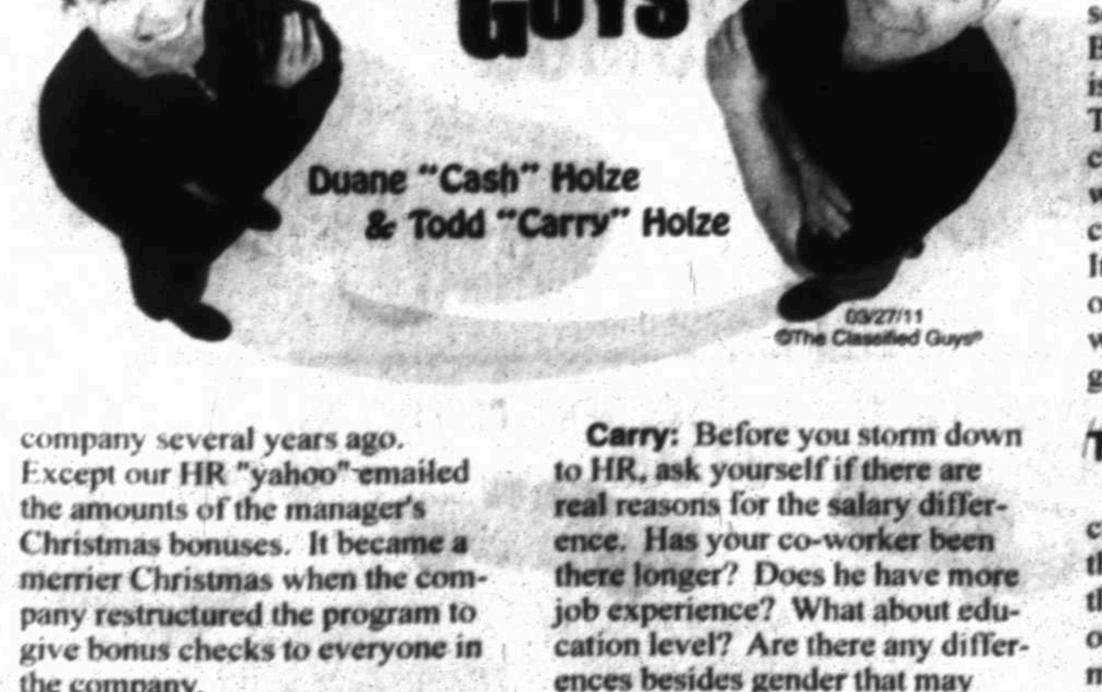
Cash: Your company may take action to rectify this new dilemma as well. Before you jump ship, make an appointment to talk with your HR department. Since your salaries are now public knowledge within the company, you can openly discuss the discrepancies.

Carry: But be prepared to wait. After this incident, there may be a line at the door.

Cash: They may also be short-handed after firing the "yahoo".

Carry: Before you storm down to HR, ask yourself if there are real reasons for the salary difference. Has your co-worker been there longer? Does he have more job experience? What about education level? Are there any differences besides gender that may contribute to the salary difference?

Cash: If gender is the only difference and your company does not rectify the situation, then maybe a new job is in order. For your next interview, do what is recommended for any professional, male of female. Know the salary range of the job you are applying for. With that knowledge, you'll know if you are being offered a reasonable salary.



Fast Facts

Daycare Dad

We all like to ridicule the Mr. Mom image of Dad under piles of laundry, and kids running and screaming around the house. But today, the stay-at-home Dad is more popular than ever before. There are an estimated 2 million children who spend more time with their Dad than any other care provider, including Mom. It's also estimated that there are over 100,000 stay-at-home Dad's who care for the kids while Mom goes to work to pay the bills.

Two Weeks Notice

The average American changes his or her job every three and a half years. Although, the number of years spent at any one company does vary between men and women. Since 1983, the proportion of men who stay at their job for more than ten years has continually declined. Conversely, the number of women who stay on the job for extended periods of time has increased during the same time period.

Math Wiz

When I was looking for a job, I answered every ad, even ones where I wasn't qualified. So I was surprised when an accounting firm called me for an interview, considering I had no experience as a CPA. The interview went surprisingly well until the gentleman asked me, "What's 12 times 7?"

Stunned by such a weird question, I quickly replied, " 82." Later I realized my answer was incorrect and thought the job was lost. However, two weeks later they offered me the position.

On my first day, I asked the HR manager, "You realize that my answer was completely wrong."

"I know," he laughed, "But out of all the interviews, you were the closest."

(Thanks to Lucille P.)

- Parking:
