Why cable firm balks at returning WFAA

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

Radio station KBST owner Winston Wrinkle presented Big Spring Cable TV vice president Jim Lancaster with petitions to bring back WFAA programming in a meeting held late yesterday afternoon.

Wrinkle said there were about 800 names on the petitions, which had been gathered by the radio station and presented to Lancaster "to make him aware that the people of the city are very concerned about the deletion of channel 8."

Lancaster declined to comment this morning on what transpired during the meeting, but according to Wrinkle, Lancaster offered several reasons why he didn't want to bring back WFAA.

Wrinkle said the petitions asked that Big Spring Cable TV offer local viewers WFAA's 5, 6 and 10 p.m. newscasts plus "PM Magazine," which also airs in the evening.

"I asked if that was possible and he said yes, it is possible," Wrinkle recounted. "Then he went into the reasons why he didn't want to do it."

One reason, according to Wrinkle, is that Lancaster has a hunch people don't fully understand that if WFAA is brought back, it can only be broadcast when it isn't showing the same material as the local ABC affiliate in Big Spring, KWAB (a recent FCC ruling says that the cable company must honor the local station's request for non-duplication of ABC programming).

Lancaster, Wrinkle said, suspects that viewer complaints will increase when WFAA is switched off immediately after the cessation of original WFAA programming during the course of each day.

Another reason Lancaster is reluctant to bring back WFAA is the "unreliability" of microwave transmission, Wrinkle said.

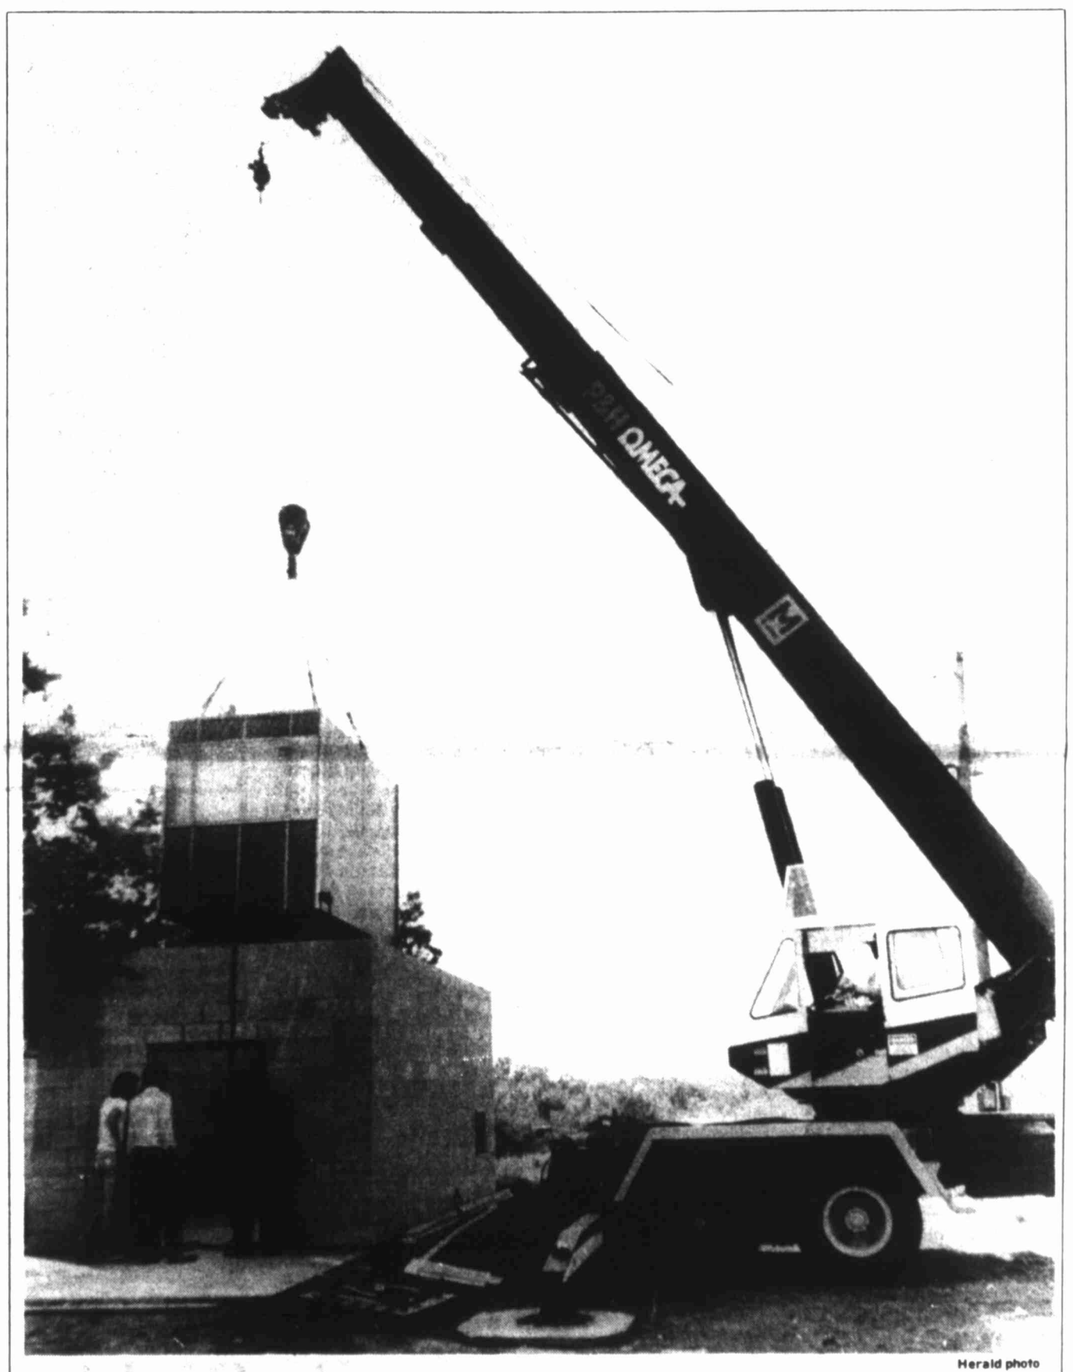

"They have over the years, during spring and fall thunderstorms, had some difficulty in bringing in the Dallas-Fort Worth TV stations," Wrinkle said. "We receive the Texas State Network on the same microwave system. It is true that during periods of thunderstorms and heavy heating and cooling that the signal gets lost sometimes."

He said it happens "one to five hours for two or three weeks a year" and KBST, in such a situation, picks up the TSN broadcast over telephone lines. It's unclear, Wrinkle said, whether a video signal can be picked up the same way.

Another reason Lancaster cited is the cost of bringing in WFAA, Wrinkle said. The cost of WFAA programming has gone up, according to George Batsche, president of West Texas Microwave, the company supplying Big Spring Cable TV with WFAA programming.

Lancaster indicated to Wrinkle that if the cost increase was "just four or five hundred dollars a month," then cost wouldn't be such an important factor, Wrinkle said. Batsche, however, told The Herald that the bill to Big Spring Cable TV is about $473 higher, from about $700 to the new cost of $1,173 per month.

Wrinkle said the meeting concluded without a commitment from Lancaster, and added, "He seemed reasonable about doing what could be done. But he wanted to know if people realize he can only switch in and out and not show WFAA full-time."

MARGARET RAY

The election's over, but a clerk's work continues

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The ballots have all been cast. The May 1 primary is rapidly becoming history. The work continues, however, for one figure behind practically every election in Howard County as County Clerk Margaret Ray prepares for the June 5 run-off.

The Herald talked with Mrs. Ray at her desk as the work of the county bustled on in the clerk's spacious office.

While elections are but one facet of a county clerk's responsibilities, they are a favorite one for Mrs. Ray.

"It's a challenge during elections — I enjoy them even though the week before I worry because I'm afraid something might go wrong," Mrs. Ray said.

A veteran of at least 120 elections — "That's a round figure excluding school, college and constitutional elections," Mrs. Ray said — the county clerk's job begins with holding absentee voting. This constitutional requirement is sometimes preceded, as in the case of the recent primary, by assisting the Democratic and Republican chairmen with preparation for the contest.

An absentee service not required by law is the opening of the clerk's office the Saturday prior to an election.

"I volunteer to keep the office open for absentee voting to make it convenient for the people we serve and to encourage people to vote," Mrs. Ray said.

DURING ELECTIONS themselves, Mrs. Ray makes herself available in order to assist not only the election judges in Howard County, but judges in other counties as well. Since she has eight years experience as clerk coupled with 19 years as chief deputy, Mrs. Ray has considerable expertise with the peculiarities of elections. Keeping up on the laws can be a problem, though.

"The Texas Legislature keeps you on your toes. Not a year passes when they haven't changed the number of the election laws. You have to keep abreast of the law changes," Mrs. Ray said. She held up a blue book entitled "Texas Election Laws" and added, "This is my Bible during elections."

While the office of county clerk places Mrs. Ray in the position of having an effect on everything from elections to birth certificates to probate wills, she maintains she is just "one of the little people." The office, she says, is an opportunity to meet with the public. "I don't want to be a powerful person. I try not to get involved in campaigning for candidates, whether Democratic or Republican."

The clerk works closely with both parties before, during and after an election. Helping both parties prepare election kits for the various precinct judges, certifying the election results following canvassing, recording the results and notifying the Texas Secretary of State of "who won what" are all part of the clerk's job. "I help with both parties in order to help make things run smoother, easier and faster on election day," Mrs. Ray said.

The discussion of election responsibilities was interrupted frequently by telephone calls as Mrs. Ray tended to the business of the clerk's office. While she has a highly-capable staff of deputies, many people like to get help and advice from Mrs. Ray when possible.

Asked what work goes on in the county clerk's office, Mrs. Ray replied, "We begin with life here and end with life and include everything good and bad in between."

Birth certificates, death certificates, mortgages, marriages, civil cases, misdemeanor criminal cases, probate wills and land purchases can all be found in the county clerk's office. Even cattle brands are registered in the clerk's office. The office is also the place for game and fishing licenses.

In addition to responsibility for these, Mrs. Ray's personal duties include serving as clerk for four courts: county, commissioners, juvenile probation and probate wills. "We just try to serve the public," Mrs. Ray said.

While her duties place her among the inner workings of county business, Mrs. Ray enjoys the simpler pleasures of the job.

"I prefer working with people, helping someone find a deed they've mislaid, getting a birth certificate for somebody that needs one, just helping people," she said. She and her office have had ample opportunity to serve the people as the clerk's office has handled 400 more instruments — legal documents — than it had at this time last year. The county clerk's office is "not just an eight-hour day," Mrs. Ray said.

AS TALK CONTINUED about clerk's responsibilites, Mrs. Ray expressed her concern about the voting responsibility of people. Although she retained her job Saturday since she had no opponent, Mrs. Ray said, "I want people to vote. I don't want people to think I'm taking things for granted."

One reason for the poor turn-out, Mrs. Ray believes, is the number of elections. "I wonder if we don't have too many elections and people tire of

Britain bombs airfield again

By The Associated Press

Britain today reported more fighting around the Falklands, and Argentina said 400 survivors had been rescued from the General Belgrano, the cruiser torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine. That left 642 crewmen missing and unaccounted for in the icy South Atlantic.

British Defense Ministry spokesman Ian MacDonald told reporters in London, "There has been action which I don't have full details of yet." He did not say whether the clashes happened Monday or today. But he added: "I have no knowledge of British casualties."

Asked if the clashes involved rescue vessels searching for survivors of the General Belgrano, he said: "If Argentine ships are engaged in picking up survivors, we would not interfere with them."

The Argentines did not mention new fighting.

McDonald said the British armada "is continuing by air and by sea both by day and by night to enforce the total exclusion zone around the Falklands." The 200-mile zone was imposed last Friday.

The General Belgrano was sunk outside the war zone Sunday, and Argentina's Joint Chiefs of Staff announced in Buenos Aires today that 400 survivors have been picked up. It said those rescued were en route to Ushuaia, at the tip of the South American continent.

The Argentine Joint Chiefs of Staff said rescue work was continuing in the area where the General Belgrano —

Falklands

Argentina's only cruiser — went down, and that 15 rescue vessels were involved. The cruiser was hit 36 miles outside Britain's 200-mile war zone.

An earlier communique from the Argentine military said a search plane spotted "various" lifeboats. But the sinking occurred in wintry waters only 665 miles north of the Antarctic Circle, and a navy source said, "You cannot survive long in an open boat in those waters."

The Argentine government accused the British of a "treacherous act of armed aggression" because the cruiser was outside the British zone of exclusion around the Falklands.

British Defense Secretary John Nott countered that the attack was "quite correct" because the 13,645-ton Belgrano posed "a threat" to the Royal Navy armada blockading the islands Argentina seized from Britain April 2.

"We will continue to tighten the screw" to force Argentina to withdraw the estimated 9,000 troops it put on the islands, Nott told a news conference in London. He said Britain still wants a peaceful solution and the "minimum loss of life on both sides." But he warned Argentina to stop threatening our forces in the South Atlantic."

Britain also claimed its Lynx helicopters sank one Argentine patrol boat 90 miles north of the Falklands and damaged another early Monday after the boats fired on two helicopters from the carrier Hermes, the flagship of the British force. The British said their aircraft were not hit.

This brought the Argentine navy's reported losses so far to its only cruiser, one of its four submarines and one of its nine patrol boats sunk and one patrol boat damaged.

Bond denied in pot charge

A Big Spring man remains in Howard County jail following his arrest April 27 by city police for alleged possesion of marijuana. Five other individuals were arrested with Andy Peredez, 30, who lists his address as 1315 Kindle.

Peace Justice Lewis Heflin denied Peredez bond on charges of failure to appear and possession of marijuana.

In separate cases, Rachel Sue Marquez, 22, was released on bail after bond of $5,000 on a forgery by passing charge was set for the 183 Duquoin resident.

A Springlake man, Randell Russell, 31, was released on bail after bond of $8,000 was set on charges of driving while intoxicated and resisting arrest.

C-City chamber hires manager

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The chamber of commerce board of directors met here Monday night and voted to hire a full-time chamber manager.

According to chamber President Van Mills, "Several applications have been looked at and we've decided to offer the job to local resident Donna Watson, if she's still interested, and also contingent upon board approval."

In other business, Walt Staats reported on the chamber's bass tournament set for Sept. 11-12 on lakes Champion and Colorado City. Staats said 100 to 200 contestants will be on hand to vie for first prize of $1,000 and other prizes.

Additionally, the chamber board discussed an offer to bring a professional rodeo to Colorado City and plans also were made to hold the junior rodeo again this year June 30 and July 1-3.

The 1982-83 budget was adopted, calling for expenditures of $67,635, compared with last year's $51,359.

In wrap-up business, board member Murrel Blassingame announced this year's farm tour will be held Sept. 2, with Dr. Don Newbury, president of Western Texas College, as speaker.

Oklahoma prison escapee arrested

At 3:02 a.m. Monday Big Spring police officers arrested Johnny Wayne Davis, 21, a reported escapee from the Oklahoma City Federal Prison.

Davis was heading through Big Spring on West Highway 80 when officers identified the car he was driving as allegedly stolen, according to police reports.

Davis was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and officers recovered a 1976 Lincoln Continental reported stolen in Oklahoma. Davis remained in city jail this morning awaiting transportation back to the Oklahoma prison, according to police.

• Morty Morris reported Monday to police that sometime in March a $2,200 home entertainment center was stolen from 1711 Benton. The center contained a television, a stereo and an eight-track recording unit. Morris told police he knows who took the items.

• Morris R. Smith of Odessa told police that sometime Sunday someone he knows stole his 1952 Studebaker pickup from a parking lot at Second and Runnels streets. Smith estimated the value of the vehicle at $1,500.

• A 22-year-old woman reported to police at 12:10 a.m. Monday she was raped by a black male at 1014 Settles. Police said the victim did not know the rapist and she also refused medical treatment. Police said they have not arrested anyone in connection with the incident as of this morning.

, Zina Wood of Keaton Kolor on Gregg complained to police that sometime Sunday night someone broke a window and a screen at the business. Wood estimated the damage at $175, police said.

• James Hughes of Hughes Trading Post at 2000 W. Third told police that a person he recently had rented a television set to left town and took the set. Hughes said the television was worth $320 and the person owed $192.50 in rental fees.

• Larry Williams complained to police Monday that someone stole an ice chest, a bicycle and assorted tools from a house at 507 E. 14th sometime Sunday. Williams could not estimate the value of the items, police said.

• Colleen Ament, an employee at Sonic Drive-In at 1200 Gregg, complained to police that at 7:30 p.m. yesterday a person known to her used abusive language toward her.

voting. It is the only free thing we've got left," she said. "A low voter turnout can hurt a good candidate not only in the county but statewide as well."

Fewer voters also means each vote costs a little bit more, Mrs. Ray says.

"It costs just as much to hold elections for 4,000 people as it does for 12,000. The same set-up has the same cost." Election judges alone cost $5,064 this Saturday, not including the ballots, machines and other material, she said. In general election, the whole cost falls on the taxpayers.

"I figured the cost on just one precinct for Saturday and it was $9.57 a vote," Mrs. Ray said. "People should exercise their right," she added, her concern for the public showing once again.

Mrs. Ray is concerned about the people of the county, perhaps because she has lived here for 31 years or perhaps because she and her husband Edgar have made their home here. Their two daughters, Deborah and Michelle, call Howard County home as well.

The work may be difficult at times, the hours long, but for this county clerk, it is the people that make the difference.

John Hinckley's trial begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., "planned, thought out and calculated" his attack on President Reagan so thoroughly that he fired at the president from a shooter's crouch and had earlier practiced at a rifle range in Colorado, a prosecutor said today.

"This was not a random or thoughtless act," assistant U.S. attorney Roger M. Adelman told jurors in his opening statement at Hinckley's trial.

Adelman said Hinckley practiced at the rifle range with .22-caliber and .38-caliber handguns and, in a desperate act to impress teenage actress Jodie Foster, wrote in an unmailed letter that he would shoot Reagan to gain her attention.

The prosecutor told the jury that when Reagan emerged from the Washington Hilton on March 30, 1981, law enforcement officers blocking Hinckley's path suddenly turned away from the assailant.

"The coast is clear to assume his crouch position," Adelman said. "He began to fire. His first shot hit (White House press secretary James) Brady in the face.

"The second hit (Washington policeman Thomas) Delahanty in the back and lodged in his spine."

Adelman, who said jurors will see the shooting on videotape, said after a third shot went over Reagan's head, "Mr. Hinckley tracked the president of the United States with his pistol."

The next bullet might have hit Reagan, but missed, the prosecutor said, "because Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy threw himself in front to block the shot. He got it in the chest."

The fifth shot missed, Adelman told the jury. "The sixth shot, the last one, hit President Reagan in the chest and lodged in his lung near his heart."

Through Adelman's opening statement, which was to be followed by the first prosecution witnesses, Hinckley often looked down at the defense table and showed little outward emotion.

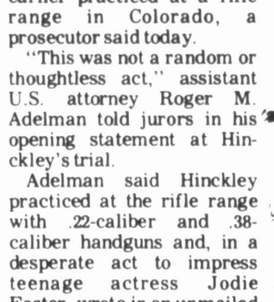

Before the prosecutor spoke, Hinckley was asked to stand and face the jury. Complying, he stood in a slouch.

The defense will contend that Hinckley was insane when he committed the shootings, and therefore not legally responsible for his actions.

Among the 12 jurors chosen Monday are a custodian, a garage attendant, two secretaries and a woman who has done graduate study in psychology.

As the jury was selected Monday afternoon, Hinckley's eyes followed each man's and woman's slow walk from a wooden pew in the courtroom to padded swivel chairs in the jury box.

Many of the final 12 — five men and seven women — were relieving juror candidates seated and then stricken by prosecutors and defense lawyers.

But Morton Blackwell, a presidential aide who serves as a liaison with the religious community, said a final decision has not been made on whether Reagan will endorse a proposed amendment on Thursday.

It was not clear which version Reagan intends to back.

Want 'prepared' summit this fall

U.S.S.R. holding out on m[illegible]g

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — A senior Soviet spokesman today ruled out a U.N. meeting next month between Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev and President Reagan and said the Kremlin was holding out for a "prepared" summit in Europe this fall.

"We are waiting for a clear and accurate reply from the American president" on Brezhnev's summit proposal, Yuri Zhukov, the leading commentator of the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, said.

Zhukov said Soviet officials heard that Reagan was considering Brezhnev's proposal to meet in Finland or Switzerland in October but that there had been no official acceptance from Washington.

He accused the Reagan administration of failing to respond to Brezhnev's various proposals since 1981 for "limiting the arms race and disarmament."

Zhukov said Reagan's offer to meet Brezhnev for a "chat" on East-West issues was unacceptable, declaring "this is too serious a matter to be treated in this way."

Zhukov said a Brezhnev-Reagan summit must be "carefully prepared," and he cited the Soviet leader's summits with former presidents Richard Nixon in Moscow in 1972 and Gerald Ford at Vladivostok in 1974 as examples of meetings with careful groundwork.

Asked whether Brezhnev was in good enough health to hold talks with Reagan, Zhukov retorted, "You better not ask this question again because you have already covered yourself with shame. I have read too often in American newspapers that Brezhnev had died."

He did not specify in which newspapers he had read such reports.

Brezhnev, 75, dropped out of sight for nearly a month in late March and April, prompting considerable speculation about his health. Unofficial Soviet sources claimed he had been hospitalized but the government insisted Brezhnev was on a "regular rest."

Reagan visits victims of racist cross-burning

WASHINGTON (AP) — By the time he arrived for work in the Oval Office, President Reagan had already read the morning newspaper's account of how a cross-burning five years ago changed the life of a black family in suburban Maryland.

He wanted to do something about it, he informed his aides, and suggested that he visit the family to "tell them this isn't the way it is in America."

By mid-afternoon Monday, the details had been worked out and Reagan was in a helicopter heading for the College Park Woods ranch home of Barbara and Phillip Butler, both printers in the Government Printing Office.

Aides said the president had wanted to make the trip without reporters. Even though it was announced just minutes before he left the White House, a crowd of television cameras and neighborhood residents was there to greet him. So were the Butlers, having rushed home early from work.

Reagan spent about 20 minutes inside the tan brick home, listening to the Butlers' tale of how they have not felt at ease in their own home since they discovered the burning cross on their lawn on Jan. 30, 1977.

Just before departing, the president told reporters he thought "maybe I might just call attention to how reprehensible something of this kind is."

Reagan's visit came only hours after he had issued a statement supporting a Senate compromise to extend key provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The president had been sharply criticized by civil rights leaders for opposing an earlier version of the extension of the landmark civil rights statute.

The Butlers were vandalized repeatedly when they became the fifth black family to move into the middle-class neighborhood. The incidents culminated with the burning cross in 1977.

Worst violence since martial law i[illegible]

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The worst violence in Warsaw since the start of martial law bloodied the Polish capital as thousands of Solidarity supporters demonstrated in Polish cities for the second time in three days.

"They think they can still warm up the political climate as if they had not had enough," Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski told Parliament. "But if they think they'll achieve their aims, they are making a tragic mistake."

Police armed with rifles and clubs charged 25,000 people massed in Warsaw's historic Castle Square Monday for a rally called by underground Solidarity leaders.

The crowd screamed "Gestapo! Gestapo!" at more than 400 helmeted police and ignored their warnings to disperse, witnesses said. Water-cannon trucks pelted the crowd, and the police charged, firing tear-gas grenades.

Ambulances sped bleeding, beaten demonstrators to hospitals, but medical officials refused to say how many people were injured.

The government television service said the crowd attacked public buildings, smashed windows and burned vehicles. Witnesses said the rioters threw up barricades [illegible] and [illegible] Parliament.

Ann Landers recycling advice?

CHICAGO (AP) — Ann Landers says she has recycled 15-year-old letters in her advice column over the past 18 months, but will stop because the practice was questioned and "my credibility is all I have."

Miss Landers had said publicly in the past that the letters in her column were authentic. In print, she often chided Yale University students for trying to sneak phony letters past her.

A joint investigation by The Associated Press and the Pontiac (Ill.) Daily Leader found that from April 1981 to April 1982 there were 33 clearly identifiable examples of items that had appeared in Miss Landers' daily column in late 1966 and early 1967.

Editors of the more than 1,000 newspapers worldwide who buy her column and her estimated 70 million readers were not told she was recycling previously published letters, sometimes using only slight changes in wording and details like names and ages.

For example, in a Feb. 22, 1976, letter from "Irving's Wife" a woman said her husband was too attached to his mother, stopping at her home each morning for "coffee and a bagel" and each night for "some chicken soup or some chopped herring." His mother telephoned every night to ask: "Is Irving all right?"

ANN LANDERS
...needs 'credibility'

On Feb. 22, 1982, a letter came from "Millie in The Bronx" and the man's name was Sam. He stopped for "a cup of cocoa and some homemade coffee cake" and later for "a bowl of soup or chopped herring." Sam also got a nightly call from his mother.

In an interview Monday with an AP reporter and assistant publisher James Pearre of the Daily Leader, Miss Landers was shown 12 examples and acknowledged letters had been recycled. She said the practice was rare in her column and that she didn't think it "extraordinary or unusual."

"I think people read my column for advice, guidance, amusement...I don't think the reader cares. The important thing is to get the information out," she said.

"I feel if I get the advice out in a way that is useful or powerful, then I think the technique doesn't matter."

In a statement issued later Monday, she said it had not occurred to her that using recycled material would be considered deceptive. She said she would stop reusing old letters immediately.

"My credibility is all I have and I would never knowingly do anything to damage it," said Miss Landers, whose sympathetic personal advice column has been syndicated for 26 years.

For the record

The Herald committed a grave error Monday when the Associated Press story about Texas' Fifth Annual Pun-off in Austin was inadvertently cut. We cut the winning pun's punch line.

Because we have been besieged by calls from irate pun-lovers, we will run the winner, by a 24-year-old waitress named Biz Dana, in its entirety:

Joe is a young, married college student who has taken a part-time job driving a van for a kindergarten school. The bus is decorated with characters from a popular children's television show.

At work the first day, Joe makes his first stop. A fat little girl gets on the bus and says, "Hi, my name is Patty." He goes to the next stop. Another fat little girl gets on the bus and says, "Hi, my name is Patty."

Joe goes to the next stop. A little boy is accompanied by his mother. His mother puts the boy on the bus and tells Joe, "This is Ross. Ross is very special, so take extra good care of him."

Joe goes to the next stop and picks up Lester Heath. Lester sits in the back of the bus and picks at his feet.

Joe delivers the children to school and returns home, where his wife asks him, "Well, how is your new job?"

"It's real easy," Joe says. "It's just two obese Pattys, special Ross, Lester Heath picking bunions on a Sesame Street bus.

Grounding 'Ground Zero'

Despite the attention focused on them by the national media, recent "Ground Zero" exercises aimed at promoting a nuclear freeze turned out to be a flop.

It's just as well. The simplistic rhetoric of this campaign ignores the tough realities of the world we live in. One is that, since World War II, American's nuclear arsenal has been the main barrier standing between the Soviet Union, with its massive superiority in conventional arms, and its oft-stated goal of global conquest.

Another neglected fact is that the Soviets today are riding the crest of what most observers see as the largest strategic arms buildup in modern history — while we have been cutting back our arsenal. To "freeze" that situation would be to lock in a huge advantage for the Kremlin, with resulting leverage on countless Cold War trouble spots.

Yet another omitted item is that the Soviets have always opposed on-site inspection, and could hardly be expected to honor a "freeze" agreement if they signed it. There's a heap of evidence that they violated the SALT I accords — as well as global compacts barring use of chemical/biological warfare.

Add it all up, and the "Ground Zero" movement would seem to be well named: It makes zero sense, and should be grounded.

Around the Rim

Code of the road

It wasn't a bolt of lightning, but it might as well have been.

The good Lord gave me a lesson in the code of the road Sunday. Through His persuasion I have begun rethinking my position on helping troubled motorists and picking up hitchhikers.

I was returning from the Midland airport on Sunday, a cool day, a little bit wet. At least it was a little wet outside my car.

The temperature light went on while I was driving through the wilderness between Midland and Stanton. No gas stations. No water stop. No water in the car. I thought about trying to make it to the Stanton exit's gas stations.

Bad decision. After five minutes I started smelling something hot. With calm, cool and collected skill I pulled the car over, jammed on the brakes and almost ended up on the railroad tracks.

A quick examination under the hood showed that the radiator was bone dry. It had been filled up the day before. That means a leak.

The engine was smoking. You could have grilled a fatted calf on it.

IT WAS THEN that I decided I needed some help. Miles from a gas station without any water. Not even a puddle. The engine didn't look damaged, but I was afraid to push my luck.

So with the car's hood up and the engine smoking I stood on the side of the road and waved my arms frantically at passing motorists.

And as I have done many times, people drove past. Not only did they drive past, they changed lanes so they could get as far away from me as possible. I guess they were afraid the car would blow up. Or maybe they thought I had a bazooka hidden under my shirt and was going to blast them clear to Lamesa.

I was standing an inch off the road beside an obviously crippled car, waving my hands desperately like a castaway trying to flag down a passing ship. People drove past. I could have had a sick person in the back seat, breathing his last. People zoomed on by.

One funny guy waved back at me.

Well, I felt like my anger was righteous at the time, but I now see that it was really hypocritical. I am not in the habit of stopping for troubled people or picking up hitchhiker. I've always been told its dangerous. Somebody else will stop, I say. I'm in a hurry. I couldn't help anyway.

But that's all rationalization. Even if I'm not a mechanical whiz, at least I can stop and see if there's SOMETHING I can do to help. At least tell him a joke or something. It's lonely standing by the side of the road, trying to flag down speeding projectiles.

It's the same story with hitchhikers. Somebody else will stop. It's probably a mugger. Maybe it's Adolf Hitler thumbing his way from Argentina.

I REMEMBER two summers ago, three of us were driving to a Christian camp in Michigan. We were singing Christian songs and must have passed about seven hitchhikers. Christians are not supposed to be constantly afraid. We're supposed to help others before ourselves.

One of them was probably Jesus on his Second Coming.

I'd like to think that this little episode has changed my view, but I know the next time I see a troubled motorist I will probably be in a hurry or won't have any tools. There'll be some good reason for me not to stop.

By the way, a couple did finally stop. They were from Big Spring and went out of their way to make sure my car could get me back home safely. I got the idea they often stop when they see people in trouble.

I'm grateful. They spend a lot of their time making up for my own — and others' — thoughtlessness.

It's your problem

One of the things the American people pay their President and their legislators for is to handle the United States budget. It's a messy job and most of us are too busy to deal with it.

That's why there has been a lot of anger by the average citizen over the impasse between the administration and Congress.

Klondike, my milkman, told me, "I can't deal with it. Why is the President appealing to me?"

"He has nowhere else to turn," I told him. "Reagan's offered to go the extra mile, but the Democrats won't let him walk it."

"What's the problem?"

"It's a question of philosophical differences, based on the fact that the Democrats want to cut the deficit and Republicans want to give everyone a tax cut."

"I thought the President said when he was running for office the Democrats were for big deficits and the Republicans were against them."

"He did say that, but now that he's seen the size of the deficit for next year, he's changed his mind."

"How big is the deficit going to be if Reagan's budget goes through?"

"The Democrats say $180 billion."

"How much will they settle for?" Klondike asked.

"Not one nickel more than $100 billion. Reagan has offered to split the difference, but Tip O'Neill said the deficit is not negotiable."

"Which figure do you like?"

"I've never been one for big government deficits," I admitted, "but I guess I could live with $110 billion if it would make everyone happy."

Klondike asked, "Why can't Reagan and Congress live with it."

"Because we've never had that kind of deficit before. The Democrats predict if Reagan doesn't slash defense spending and eliminate his 10 percent tax cuts, the deficit will grow to $216 billion in 1984 and $233 billion dollars in 1985."

"That's a lot of bread. What is Reagan's answer?"

"He says the only way you can cut the deficit is by getting the economy going again, and the only way you can get the economy rolling is to give everyone their tax cut and build a strong defense for America."

"It makes sense to me," Klondike said. "Maybe I might go along with a $150 billion deficit if that would make Reagan happy."

"But if we have a $150 billion deficit," I said, "that means the government will have to borrow money from the people and interest rates will soar and there won't be any capital left for getting the private industry back on its feet. At least that's what the Democrats claim."

"What does Reagan say to that?"

"He says the Democrats are just trying to make him look bad, so they'll win the 1982 elections."

"Why would they want to do that?"

"How do I know?" I said testily. "The question is, Klondike, what are you going to do about the U.S. budget for 1983?"

"Why is it my problem?"

"Because Reagan's thrown it in your lap."

Argentina expected U.S. support

WASHINGTON — Because of an incredible miscalculation, Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri thought he could count on U.S. support for his invasion of the Falkland Islands.

He got the impression the United States would back him, apparently, because he had made two secret commitments to the Reagan administration. One was to send Argentine military advisers to train anti-Nicaraguan guerrillas in Central America. The other was a promise to observe a grain embargo against the Soviet Union if President Reagan should ever impose one.

Galtieri mistakenly thought Reagan, in turn, would support Argentina in any showdown with the British. In fact, an Argentine diplomat reportedly cabled Galtieri from Washington several months ago, assuring him that Reagan would side with Argentina.

There was a failure of communication on both sides. The White House was completely unaware of the Argentine invasion plot, except for some straws in the wind that went unheeded.

The Central Intelligence Agency picked up a Buenos Aires press report on January 24, a full 68 days before the invasion, that Argentina "will take over the islands by force this year" if negotiations failed.

The CIA noted that "the Argentine government is again trying to use the issue of sovereignty over the British-ruled Falkland Islands to divert public attention from domestic strife."

As another secret report put it, "Argentina is increasingly taken up with its domestic problems. Like a dead star, it has a tendency to collapse inwardly upon itself."

But these faint warnings never got through to President Reagan's strategic planners who were completely surprised by the Argentine action. They have spent the last month feverishly trying to make up for lost time. Belatedly, they have deluged the White House with top-secret appraisals.

I've had access to some of these documents, including a top-secret Interagency Intelligence Memorandum prepared by the CIA.

HERE ARE THE latest forecasts:

—When the United States can no longer straddle the fence diplomatically, it will come down on Britain's side. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Undersecretary Lawrence Eagleburger and the president's special emissary, Vernon Walters, are all inclined toward our British ally. More importantly, Ronald Reagan is, too. "The personal relationship between Maggie Thatcher and the president is very, very close," one key White House adviser said.

—Latin Americans generally will feel betrayed by the U.S. decision to support the British penetration into their hemisphere. It will take months, perhaps even years, to repair the damage.

—Thatcher and Galtieri are both captives of national machismo to a certain extent, and thus will find it difficult if not impossible to work out a compromise. Both may wind up out of office as a result of the crisis. Galtieri is distrusted by Argentine naval leaders and even some of his junior army subordinates. They're already plotting to overthrow him once the crisis is settled, and may not wait even that long.

—The influence of the international bankers should not be overlooked. Argentina has more than $9 billion in U.S. loans, much of it due this year. The repayment could be jeoparidized if the United States eventually has to side publicly with Britain. American bankers would like to see the International Monetary Fund extend continued credit to Argentina to prevent it from going bankrupt as a result of the Falklands crisis. The lending agency could put serious pressure on Galtieri by threatening to withhold Financial support, which might effectively destroy the Argentine economy.

—If full-scale hostilities break out, Britain almost certainly will use its submarines against the Argentine fleet. The British must somehow overcome Argentina's superiority in the air and on the ground in the Falklands. The possibility of bombing the Argentine mainland cannot be overlooked, nor can the possibility of actual troop landings at several points on the islands themselves.

—A final, ominous note is the chance that Britain may feel compelled to use tactical nuclear weapons. The British fleet normally carries nuclear surface-to-air missiles, and Pentagon sources doubt they were unloaded before the Falklands expedition. The most likely scenario for use of nuclear weapons would be if the British fleet is in danger of being destroyed or forced to surrender.

Packwood's pledge

WASHINGTON — Trying to bury a bloody hatchet, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker has promised President Reagan that Sen. Packwood, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, will cease attacks on Ronald Reagan and Reaganism.

Baker, one of Packwood's closest political allies, insisted that any effort to replace Reagan's liberal hairshirt would lack the votes to depose him. But if Packwood continues to bloody Reagan's nose, Baker continued, Baker himself would lead the charge to oust him.

The president reluctantly agreed, but not with much confidence that Packwood would stop his attacks on Reagan policies. Packwood's criticism has infuriated Reagan and alienated Republican financial contributors. One result: Advance ticket sales to the Republican fund-raising dinner May 4 are more than $1 million under last year's off-year take.

WARNING DOBRYNIN

A sharp protest over Soviet conduct in the Falkland Islands crisis was delivered directly to Soviet ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin April 16 by Under Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger.

Eagleburger handed the veteran Soviet diplomat a formal note protesting high-voltage Soviet commentary against the U.S. and Great Britain. Anti-American charges dominated Soviet press coverage of the British-Argentine showdown in the South Atlantic. The basic accusation of the government-controlled media: The U.S. has teamed with Britain in a latter-day revival of colonialism. Behind the Soviet charge was this hope: to stir anti-Yankee sentiment throughout Latin America.

Since Eagleburger gave Dobrynin the note, Soviet press coverage has been quieter (which Reagan officials doubt will continue). But Eagleburger's private protest showed the high degree of Reagan administration worry that the Soviets might cash in on the struggle between two U.S. allies.

CARBAUGH TO THE RESCUE

Secretary of State Alexander Haig's surprising ally in infighting to form a new government in El Salvador following the national election there is none other than John Carbaugh, right-hand man of Haig's longtime foe, Sen. Jesse Helms.

Without fanfare, the ubiquitous Carbaugh slipped into San Salvador a few days after Roberto d'Aubuisson was elected president of the Constituent Assembly resulting from the March 28 national election. With the full backing of Haig and Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, Carbaugh used his influence in direct talks to persuade d'Aubuisson that the U.S. Congress never would accept a government without some moderate leavening.

Carbaugh's utility as an undercover diplomatic-political agent derived from his own credentials as Helms' top aide and his reputation as a conservative. The search for a new government in El Salvador continues, but Carbaugh's influence was decisive in delivering the warning to d'Aubuisson.

SUPPLY-SIDER CONABLE

One of the surprises of the protracted budget negotiations was Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, lecturing Democrats on the need to retain President Reagan's tax cut.

Conable, no supply-sider, was economic adviser to George Bush during his 1980 presidential campaign when Bush referred to Reagan's tax cut proposals as "voodoo economics." Although Conable loyally backed the Reagan economic program, the intensity of his support in the negotiations was unexpected.

Is it too late for mom?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am worried about my mother's salvation. She says she has always done the best she can, and hopes she has been good enough to get into Heaven. She says it is too late to do anything about it now in case she is wrong. Is she right? — Mrs. H.B.C.

DEAR MRS. H.B.C.: There is no more important question we can ask ourselves than this: Am I prepared to meet God? No matter who we are, the time will come when we will go out into eternity. There is no escaping this reality. Either we will spend eternity with God in Heaven, or we will be eternally separated from him.

I say this because the issue your mother faces is the most important issue of life, and she needs to realize this. No, it is not too late for her to make certain she is going to Heaven. But from what you say, she is trusting her own good works to get her there, and that is not enough.

The Bible tells us repeatedly that we are all sinners in the eyes of God, because we have sinned against him. God is holy and perfect, and furthermore, before I can get into Heaven, the Bible says I also must be holy and perfect. But I am not, and neither is any other human being. How then could God save us?

This is the wonderful story of the gospel. In his love, God sent his Son Jesus Christ to die on the Cross and take away our sin. By his death, he made it possible for me to be saved. As long as I trust my own good works I can never be saved, for I am never good enough. But the Bible tells us that we can be saved — through faith in Jesus Christ. By trusting him and what he did for me on the Cross, instead of trusting myself, I can be saved. "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith — and this not from yourselves, it is the gift of God — not of works, so that no one can boast" (Ephesians 2:8-9).

The greatest act of love you could do for your mother would be to point her to Christ, who alone can take away her sins and forgive her and make her ready for Heaven.

Special session 'flexibility'

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — That ol' "flexibility" that Gov. Bill Clements brags about has popped up again.

The governor uses that word to explain changes of mind.

He has displayed "flexibility" several times. For example, it was handy when he switched from critic to fan of the Reagan administration's proposal on illegal aliens.

His latest example came last week in the scheduling of a special legislative session for May 24.

The session will try to head off a possible tax crisis caused by a suit by several universities to force collection of the state property tax. Revenue from the tax gave 17 universities construction money before the 1979 legislature lowered the assessment ratio to almost nothing.

THE WEEK before calling a May session, Clements spoke strongly against any legislative action prior to a full trial of the lawsuit, scheduled for early June.

His legal advisors told him the legislature probably acted improperly in trying to abolish the tax without a constitutional amendment in 1979, he said, but they might be wrong. The state might win the suit — leaving the tax uncollectable and a costly special session unnecessary.

At his weekly news conference, the governor stressed that his position on this had been the same for almost a year. He indicated exasperation with reporters who had trouble understanding his firm stand on this issue.

The next week, however, Clements flipped positions.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby had voiced a preference for a special session in May, and House Speaker Bill Clayton apparently agreed.

After a Monday, April 26 conference in Clements' office, the three officials announced unanimous agreement for a May 24 session.

The Legislature would propose a constitutional amendment to the voters in the November general election to wipe out the tax once and for all and to prevent collection of back taxes.

If the tax was reinstated and back taxes collected, the public would be hit with a $1 billion tax bill, Clements said.

SKIPPING OVER his 180-degree change in position, Clements said quick action was needed to put the question before voters in the November election. He said a 50-day lead time was needed before the election in order to have a constitutional amendment proposal on the ballot.

He also cited a likely delay in the trial. He said a later starting date could jeopardize his previous plan to call a special session after the trial but before the November election.

That explanation isn't sufficient, however. If the trial was going to be delayed, why not wait and call the special session for sometime in the summer? That would leave legislators plenty of time to propose the amendment for the November ballot.

On the surface, a summer session seems to make much more sense than a May one. The latter will come just before the June 5 runoff in which some legislators undoubtedly will be involved.

But underneath all this is a political pressure game.

Clements originally wanted a special session after the suit. A likely reason is that he wanted a tax-saving action close to the November election, in which he will be fighting to stay in the Governor's Mansion. He could claim he spearheaded a $1 billion tax saving for Texans.

Why did he change his mind on timing? Probably politics again.

THE THREE officials agree on what they want — a quick session for an amendment and an appeasing appropriation to the universities who would benefit from the tax. Hobby and Clayton probably convinced the governor that a may session was the best means to that end.

The legislators involved in runoffs are going to want to vote quickly and move back to the campaign trail.

Clements, Hobby and Clayton also figured that Sen. N.E. "Pete" Snelson might be in a runoff for land commissioner.

The Midland Democrat led the successful fight last year to block abolishing the tax without a permanent solution for construction needs at the universities, a couple of which are in his district.

Clements jumped at the possibility of putting Snelson on the spot during the runoff, when the senator would have to worry more about his state wide image than his district's campuses.

Hobby last week announced that he had asked Snelson to sponsor the tax-willing proposal. In the May 24 session. Snelson agreed, thus proving that Clements isn't the only politician with "flexibility."

21 percent voter turnout reported

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Only 21 percent of Texas' registered voters turned out to cast ballots in Saturday's primaries, according to Secretary of State David Dean.

The total vote was roughly the same as the vote in the 1952 primaries, Dean said Monday.

Dean, who had predicted a 29 percent turnout, said: "I am dismayed at the voter apathy as indicated by the final voter turnout figures."

A total of 1.4 million Texans voted Saturday. About 6.6 million Texans are registered to vote.

The Democratic primary drew 1.2 million voters. The GOP balloting drew 199,978 voters.

"The statewide voter turnout in the 1982 primaries equals the statewide voter turnout in the 1952 primaries of 1,356,392 voters, which represented 58 percent of the state's registered voters at that time," said Dean.

HC medical programs plan for health fair

Health care programs at Howard College will participate in the Community Health Fair to be held on Saturday, May 15, from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. at the Big Spring Mall, according to Barbara Holdampf, director of the Associate Degree Nursing program at HC and co-chairman of the Health Fair.

Howard College will have a recruiting booth set up at the fair handing out brochures and pamphlets on the health care areas and the programs offered at HC.

"Since 62 percent of HC students staff Big Spring hospitals, we feel our students play a big part in the health care field, and we would like to inform the public of what HC has to offer," said Miss Holdampf. "Because of our excellent show of students, we are given more and more scholarships from local professional organizations."

The programs participating in the fair will be the Associate Degree of Nursing program, a two-year program from which gradutes are eligible to write the National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Barbara Holdampf, at 267-6311, ext. 206.

Also participating in the fair will be the vocational nursing program, a twelve-month course from which graduates are eligible to take the State Board examination to become a licensed vocational nurse. Ramona Harris is director of the program.

One of the new health care programs at HC that will be participating in the fair is the Dental Hygiene program. Upon admission to the program, the student attends two years of courses designed to provide the educational and clinical training necessary for the practice of dental hygiene. The two-year curriculum leads to an Associate in Applied Science Degree.

Another new program at HC participating in the fair will be Medical Laboratory Technology two-year program.

Medicare inspects Root Memorial Hospital

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Root Memorial Hospital passed its recent Medicare inspection with flying colors, according to hospital administrator Ray Dillard.

"Some of the departments had no correction, some had one or two. Most of the 'deficiencies', as Medicare labels them, were directly related to the fact we cannot find registered nurses for complete 24-hour coverage," Dillard said.

Dillard noted the inspection cited 16 deficiencies, 13 of which had to do with the lack of RN's on the 3-11 p.m. shift. He said he is pleased with the results.

Student Teacher of Year named

Lorraine Langford, second year student at Malone-Hogan Hospital School of Radiology, was named Student Teacher of the Year at a faculty appreciation party held April 24, in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Buerk Williams. Dr. Williams is medical director of the school.

The Lila Brewster-Juanita Harrison Award is given annually to the second year student of the school who has demonstrated outstanding skill in teaching first year students.

Miss Langford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Langford, 1605 Sycamore. She graduated from Big Spring High School in 1980.

Presenting the award was Lila Brewster, one of the persons for whom the award was named. She and Juanita Harrison, both former school teachers, created a pyramid teaching concept for the school at the time of its founding in 1975, that called for second year students to teach first year students as a part of their training.

Graduates of the two-year school are eligible to take the national registry exam for radiologic technologists anywhere in the United States.

B.S. Music Study Club installs new officers

Mrs. Clyde Angel, guest of honor, officiated the installation of new officers for the Big Spring Music Study Club. The annual spring luncheon and meeting was held Sunday in the home of Mrs. James W. Cowan.

Mrs. Angel added humor to the ceremony as she presented each new officer with a flower and a witty poem befitting the duties of her office.

Newly installed officers are: Mrs. Bernard Zilberg, president; Mrs. Rudy Haddad, first vice-president; Mrs. Carl Bradley, second vice-president; Mrs. W.I. Graham, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Bobby Fishback, recording secretary; Mrs. Clyde Cantrell, treasurer; Mrs. Cleo Carlisle, reporter-historian; and Mrs. James W. Cowan, parliamentarian.

The club has adjourned for the summer and will meet again Sept. 8.

Students perform in Americanism program

A musical program of folk and patriotic songs was presented by the 12:15 musical group from Coahoma Elementary School during the Special Americanism Program held recently. The program was sponsored by the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary. William Johnson directed the music group.

Rep. Larry Don Shaw, Tom Spell, principal of Coahoma Elementary School, Gold Star Parents Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Moody, and the Gold Star Mothers Mrs. S. R. Nobles, Annie Smith and Mrs. M. Moore of San Antonio were among guests present at the event.

Refreshments were served from a table that carried out the theme of patriotism. The table was centered by a red, white and blue floral arrangement.

Term 'trace mineral' is misleading

The term "trace mineral" is misleading, says Cass Ryan-Crowe, a foods and nutrition specialist. It refers to the fact that humans need only small amounts of these minerals, rather than meaning that the mineral has an insignificant role in the body. Some of the trace minerals are zinc, copper, chromium, iodine, manganese, fluoride, selenium and molybdenum, she explains.

Dr. Ryan-Crowe is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Dear Abby

Girl grounded by lifestyle

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman who recently became friendly with another young woman who is a flight attendant with an airline. She is a very together gal with a warm and winning personality — friendly, charming, vivacious. She has it all.

She asked me over last Saturday so we could have lunch and take in a movie. When I got to her apartment, she was making the last of 14 telephone calls — mostly to married men.

She told me that she had just discovered that she had contracted a venereal disease, and she was calling every man she had been with for the last three or four months so he could be examined immediately and not risk infecting his wife or any other woman. I admired her concern and sense of "honor," if you can call it that, but I must admit that I was badly shaken.

Why am I writing this? To ask you to please warn every sexually active man, woman, girl and boy that no matter how "clean" a person looks, it's foolish to take a chance with a stranger.

This girl looks like the most immaculate, ladylike, discriminating, cautious person you would ever want to see. Please, Abby, print this. All it takes is one wrong guess.

SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: I'm printing your letter. A word to the wise is sufficient. And it may even help the foolish.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18, and my high-school graduation is coming up soon. I want my father to attend, but I don't want Linda. She's his second wife. I'm afraid if I don't invite Linda, Dad won't come.

He left Mom eight years ago to marry this no-good barfly. Mom makes us kids visit Dad on weekends. We hate going there because Linda is so hateful toward us when Dad is not around.

Mom never remarried. She says she's waiting until she has us five kids raised, but we think she's still in love with Dad. She's so much nicer than Linda. We don't know what he saw in her. We'd like to get Mom and Dad back together again. I think he still cares, but he's too bullheaded to admit that he made a mistake.

How can I get Dad to attend my graduation without his wife?

WANTS DAD

DEAR WANTS: If your dad is aware of your dislike for Linda, ask him to attend your graduation alone. (He may surprise you and accept.) If he's not aware, then the invitation should be sent to Mr. and Mrs., and it's up to Linda to accept or decline.

About getting your mom and dad together again: If your father "made a mistake but is too bullheaded to admit it," he will have to live with the consequences.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to comment on the letter from "Going Crazy," whose 7-year-old son still sucks his thumb.

I'm 27, and I still suck my thumb. My teeth are perfect and I've never had braces.

I have never felt the need to suck my thumb during the daytime. I am a sheriff's deputy and I'm very well adjusted. I find sucking my thumb at bedtime very comforting. It helps me to relax. You can lose a teddy bear, but you can't lose a thumb. Sign me....

Dr. Donohue

Sweaty palms a social downer

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently, I read about a woman suffering from hyperhidrosis, an extreme sweating problem. I am an 18-year-old and have had this malady my whole life. It is very embarrassing and I've restricted my activities and social life drastically in order to conceal my sweaty hands. Could you please explain just exactly what hyperhidrosis is, who it can effect, and how it can be cured? Please help me and any others who are suffering emotionally as well as physically. I sometimes feel as if I am the only one with this problem. I'm depending on your help and advice. — S.H.

Hyperhidrosis (excessive sweating) can affect anyone. It usually happens in otherwise healthy individuals.

There are 2 to 5 million sweat glands on our body, and they pour out fluid when we get too hot or undergo emotional stress. People with hyperhidrosis react strongly to heat-producing factors or emotionally-stressful situations. I can understand your dilemma.

I said that most people with such sweating problems are healthy. I should have qualified that. The first thing to do is be sure you do not have one of the diseases in which sweating is a sign of hidden infection — Hodgkin's disease, Cushing's disease and diabetes, for examples.

I am sure you have tried ways to control this. I am going to suggest one you may have missed. Use a preparation of aluminum chloride on your hands at night. Check with your pharmacist. Drysol is one of the preparations containing this. Wash it off in the morning. Use it nightly for the first three weeks, then once a week. It works best if you do not wash your hands before putting it on. Cover your hands with a plastic wrap. I hope it works for you.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have finally found the courage to write you. I have a uric acid condition that has resulted in gouty arthritis. I've read articles, and they state that the crystals are in the blood and that it cannot be controlled. Could you advise me if this is true? Will kidney dialysis be done for me? — E.L.

Whoever said that is incorrect. The crystals are not in the blood, they are in the joints. That's what causes the pain — gouty arthritis. Only the forerunners of the crystals are in the blood — the uric acid. The crystals form in the joints from that acid.

Your source is equally incorrect in stating that the blood level of uric acid cannot be controlled. There are quite effective medicines to handle the situation, and I am glad you are under treatment and are taking the appropriate medicine. You will find your blood level of uric acid lowered the next time your doctor cares to test it.

I have not heard of doing dialysis for gout. Find a new medical information source. You may find some interesting references to this condition in the booklet "Gout: The Modern Way to Stop It." Other readers can order a copy by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 50 cents for printing and handling and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

GOP plan for treasurer's post foiled

Neptune won't give up nomination

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The plan, the Republicans say, was to put Millard Neptune on the ballot as the only GOP candidate for treasurer, and then replace him after the primary.

The problem with the plan, Neptune says, is he is not going to give up the nomination he won Saturday in an unopposed race.

"They can't do anything about it unless I die or resign," Neptune said Monday.

Texas Republicans scrambled to get a treasurer candidate on the primary ballot after incumbent Democrat Warren Harding got in trouble with the law just before the filing deadline.

Wayne Thorburn, state GOP director, confirmed Monday that the party was shopping for bigger-name candidates to replace Neptune and Donald Hebert, the Waller farmer who was unopposed for the Republican nomination for agriculture commissioner.

If Neptune and Hebert withdraw at least 45 days before the November general election, state election law allows the State Republican Executive Committee to pick a nominee.

Neptune, 71, said he initially planned to step aside for a better-known candidate. But now, he says, forget it.

"That was my plan in the first days of the campaign. I now do not intend to step aside," he said.

Neptune said he is in the race to stay, "unless there would be some absolutely great candidate come along who has the same philosophy about the office that I have."

He said he had some names in mind, but he would not disclose them and he said he doubted any of them would be interested in the race.

Neptune will face the winner of the June 5 Democratic runoff between Harding, who is charged in an indictment accusing him of using state employees for campaign work, and former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards.

Thorburn said several names — including Rep. Frank Hartung, R-Houston, and Paul Wrotenbery, former budget aide to the governor — had been "kicked around" as possible Neptune replacements. Hartung is in a June 5 runoff for a state Senate seat.

Hebert indicated Monday he still would be receptive to a candidate switch.

"I'm going to do what I feel is best for the Republican Party chances of capturing the office," Hebert said in a telephone interview from his Waller farm.

Braniff, American announce 3-for-2 ticket promotion

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines and Braniff International have renewed the airline fare war with a three-for-two ticket promotion that cash-strapped Braniff started and American quickly matched.

A spokesman for American, whose management has complained bitterly about Braniff's low fares, said American was starting its latest promotion "to meet a competitive response."

The two Dallas-based carriers went head to head in similar two-for-one promotions earlier this year, which Braniff also initiated.

Under the new Braniff promotion, passengers buying two round-trip tickets to any of nine cities can purchase a third round-trip ticket for $1 to any mainland Braniff destination, spokeswoman Betsy Hickman said.

Unlike the earlier two-for-one promotion, however, the third ticket cannot be used at the same time as the first two, she said.

The three tickets must be purchased by May 10.

The first two tickets must be used between May 15 and Aug. 15. The third ticket is good from Aug. 16 to Nov. 15 and the flight must originate from the same city as the first two flights.

American's promotion is similar, but unlike Braniff's, tickets do not have to be paid for until two weeks before the flight, said Robert W. Baker, vice president for passenger sales.

And the third ticket is free on American and must be used between Sept. 8 and Dec. 8. The American promotion is good only in cities where it competes with Braniff.

For flights May 15 through May 28, tickets must be bought by May 14, Baker said. As in the Braniff promotion, reservations for all the flights must be made by May 10.

American is not requiring passengers to pay for the tickets immediately, because "previous free ticket promotions resulted in long lines at travel agencies and at airline ticket offices," according to a statement.

Dallas police force gets new chief

DALLAS (AP) — A 17-year veteran of the Dallas Police Department takes control of the 1,968-person force today.

Assistant Police Chief Billy Prince was appointed Monday to the department's top spot, succeeding Glen King, who resigned March 17 after suffering a heart attack.

"Prince is our first choice," City Manager Charles Anderson said. "He is a top police professional and top flight manager who understands productivity and has a commitment to affirmative action."

Prince, 39, joined the department in 1964 and served as lieutenant, captain and deputy chief before being appointed assistant chief in 1979.

The Duncan, Okla., native said the new job would be "a great challenge for me. I'm looking forward to it. We've got a few problems, as any large organization does, but I view problems as an opportunity."

He said his top priorities in office will be correcting morale problems and easing the high turnover rate of officers. Prince said he believes that his experience in the department will help him in dealing with any problems.

"I intend to represent the police officers when they need my support," he said. "But I'll do my best to represent the entire city as well. It is extremely important to have the confidence of the whole community."

The new chief has received a master's degree from North Texas State University and a bachelor's degree from Sam Houston State University.

Dick Hickman, president of the Dallas Police Association, said he thought Price would have the backing of the men in uniform.

CHS honors athletes

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

COAHOMA — The Community was introduced to an enthusiastic new athletic director and athletes in five sports were honored at the Coahoma High School All-Sports Banquet here Monday night.

Senior Gayla Paige was named the Most Valuable Girls Athlete and junior Bruce Walker the Most Valuable Boys Athlete to highlight an evening of awards. Scholarship awards went to Paige and senior Ricky Martin while Aaron Stoker was named the Outstanding Booster for 1981-82.

The ceremony introduced athletic director Ray Hudson to Coahoma sports fans and he responded to his new duties by urging his audience to "think about the tradition and spirit implanted in this place and get down on your hands and knees and be thankful for it."

"Think positive ... let's make Coahoma number one in everything we do," he continued. "People, we are going have to get on it and not lay down."

Each coach in the sports of tennis, golf, track, basketball and football introduced his teams and gave a brief description of the past season. Highlights for Coahoma were district championships in both girls basketball and track, coached by six-year coach Billy Gordon who resigned his position last week to enter private business.

The Most Outstanding Players in each sport were recognized. Robbie Ritchey was recognized as most valuable in basketball, Candy Henery in tennis and Tobie Henery and Vicky Buchanana shared the award in track for girls sports.

In boys sports, Glen Hinsley was named the top player in footblal, Bobby Joe Tucker in basketball, Tony Uranga in track and Ricky Long in golf while co-champs in tennis were Royce Renfro and Tommy McDaniel.

Paige recently took second place in the 100-meter low hurdles at the Region I-AAA meet in Lubbock and was an all-district election in basketball. Martin was an all-district choice in basketball, leading the team in several categories including field goal percentage.

Gregg Meeks coached the Coahoma tennis teams, and reported his teams came a long way during the season with 11 members of the junior varsity and varsity squads.

Lester Titsworth had only four golfers and two of those were freshmen. "They tried the best they could and that's all you can ask for them," he said of his athletes.

Gordon coached his girls to a fifth straight district championship in track and especially praised his seniors for their dedication. Of the nine seniors he had in basketball, all nine participated in track. The team advanced 10 to regions and four have gained state berths — Paige in the hurdles, Buchanan in the discus, Tobie Henery in the long jump and Becky Creech in the high jump.

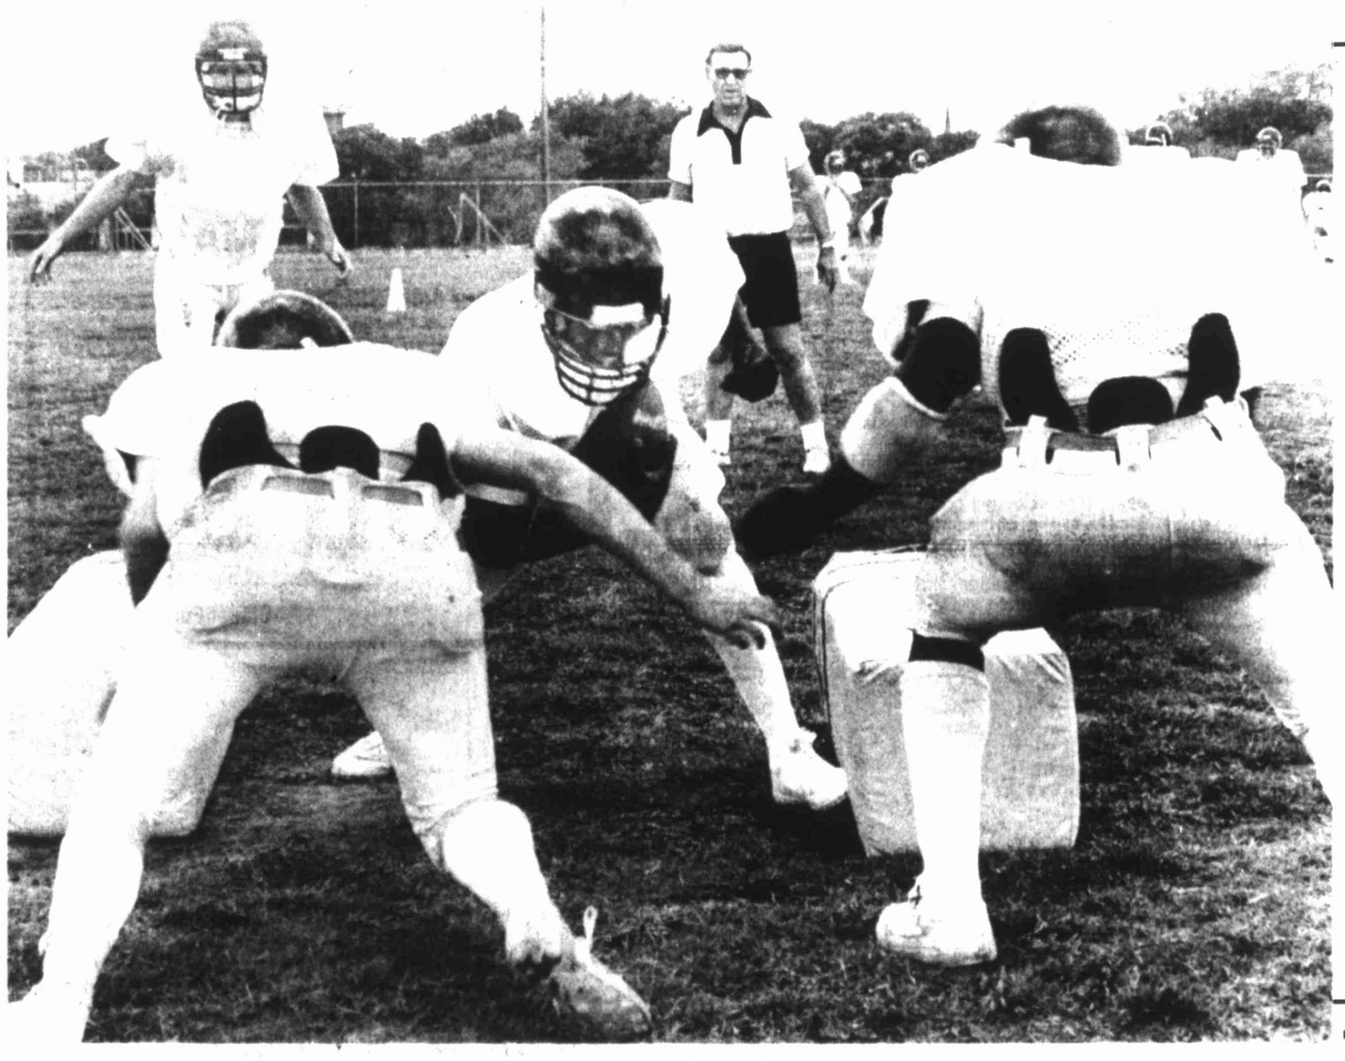

The Bulldog track squad was third in district as Brad Fryar set a school record in the 400 meters and the 1,600 meter relay team also set a new school standard.

The Bulldogette basketbal team was 24-4 and advanced to the regional tournament, losing to eventual state contender Comanche. Gordon said his squad exemplied the word "team" more than any team he had previously coached.

It was a long year for boys basketball but coach Doug Harriman thanked his team for playing with itensity every game, saying, "We didn't win district but they are no less champions."

The football squad was 3-6-1 last season but landed many players in all-district positions. A highlight was a tie of state playoff participant Kermit.

"The value of football can't be measured in the won-loss column," Harriman said. "We had 23 young men that played hard for Coahoma."

Four inducted into NBA Hall

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Frank Ramsey, the "Sixth Man" of the Boston Celtics, was still shaking his head in disbelief as he lined up with the likes of Willis Reed, Hal Greer and Slater Martin to be installed in the Basketball Hall of Fame.

"I've got to be the only sub in the Hall of Fame," said Ramsey, who totaled 8,738 points coming off the bench during a nine-year pro career during which the Celtics won seven National Basketball Association championships.

Also inducted Monday were Winston-Salem State Coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines, the winningest active coach in basketball with a 683-299 record; Alva Duer, executive secretary of the NAIA from 1949 until his retirement in 1971 and the late Everett Case, former coach at North Carolina State.

Danny Biasone, who as owner of the old Syracuse Nationals, revolutionized the pro game in 1954 by persuading the other owners to institute the 24-second clock, received a specal award as an outstanding contributor to the game.

"I couldn't believe it when I opened my mailbox. I thought I got the wrong mailgram," recalled Ramsey, 52, who returned to his hometown of Madisonville, Ky., after his playing days to become a banker and farmer.

"We never played for stats, we played to win. "Heck, I would have sat on the bench all year to get those seven titles."

For Reed, the big, quiet center who came out of tiny Grambling College to lead the New York Knicks to the NBA championships in 1970 and 1973, the words "team play" were the key.

"The people I played with, my teammates, put me here," he said."You don't make halls of fame in a team sport by youself and I played with some of the best from the time my high school won the state championship."

Reed is now coaching at Creighton University.

Flanagan back on track for O's

By The Associated Press

Mike Flanagan was just too strong in the early going this season.

On Monday night, he was just too good.

"The last four times I've pitched, I've felt too strong," Flanagan said after facing the minimum number of batters in firing a three-hit shutout for his first victory in four decisions as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Seattle Mariners 6-0.

"In those games, I felt so strong that I tried to overthrow. Tonight, I felt smooth. It was just a matter of slowing myself down."

Rich Dauer and Gary Roenicke backed Flanagan's pitching with home runs. Dauer hit a two-run homer off rookie Mike Moore in the first inning and singled a run across in the fifth, while Roenicke connected for a three-run homer off Larry Andersen in the eighth.

Red Sox 6, Twins 2

Two-run homers by Dave Stapleton and Rick Miller powered red-hot Boston to its fourth consecutive triumph and 12th in the last 13 games, while Chuck Rainey and Bob Stanley combined on a five-hitter. Stapleton's inside-the-park homer capped a four-run first inning after Carl Yastrzemski's two-run double erased a 2-0 Minnesota lead, Miller's homer followed Rich Gedman's double in the fifth.

American League

Angels 5, Indians 4

Don Baylor drove in the tying run with a seventh-inning double and then hit a ninth-inning sacrifice fly for the winning run, while Andy Hassler and Don Aase combined for 71-3 innings of sparkling relief. Rod Carew led off the ninth with a single off Dan Spillner and Fred Lynn walked. Carew went to third on Reggie Jackson's fly ball and scored on Baylor's drive to deep center.

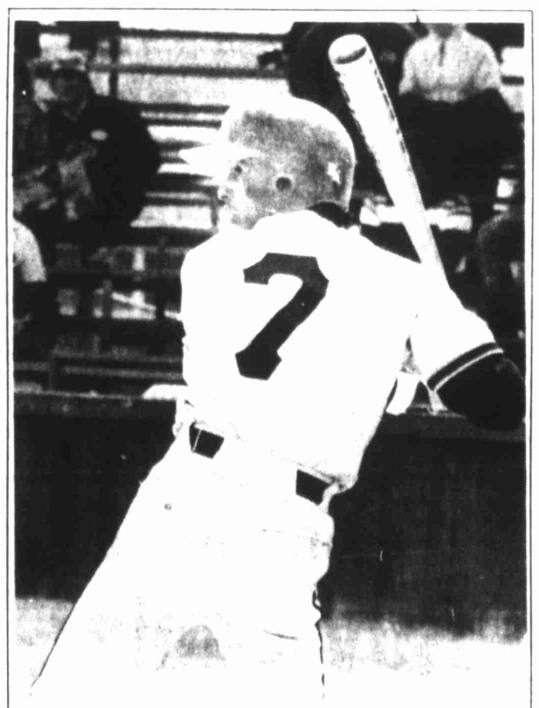

A's 5, Yankees 2

Singles by Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas drove in the tying and lead runs as Oakland rallied for four runs against Tommy John and Rich Gossage in the eighth inning and went on to its fifth consecutive victory. The A's had managed six hits and one run until pinch hitter Jeff Burroughs opened the eighth with an infield hit. Rickey Henderson walked and Murphy, who drove in Oakland's first run with a third-inning triple, singled to score pinch runner Jimmy Sexton with the tying run.

Henderson scored when Armas greetzd Gossage with a bloop single.

Royals 3, Brewers 2

Greg Pryor's home run and Hal McRae's two-run double gave Kansas City a 3-0 lead against Mike Caldwell in the sixth inning. Paul Splittorff carried a four-hit shutout into the seventh, then gave up a two-run homer to pinch hitter Larry Hisle, who hadn't played since April 17 because of a sprained wrist and an eye infection.

Phillies looking like old selves

By The Associated Press

A little knowledge can be a dangerous thing, and Philadelphia rookie Bob Dernier is getting smarter with every game.

Dernier stole his sixth and seventh bases of the season in the first inning, then doubled home the go-ahead run in the fourth as the Phillies defeated the San Francisco Giants 5-3 Monday night.

The victory was Philadelphia's second straight, representing the first time the Phillies had won games consecutively this season. Dernier's second stolen base came on the front end of a double steal with Pete Rose, and he and Rose scored the first two runs of the game on Gary Matthews' single.

"He can run, and he likes to run," Rose said of Dernier. "When he learns more about the pitchers, he'll be stealing a lot more bases."

The winner was Sid Monge, who worked five innings, giving up three hits in relief of Dick Ruthven. Ed Farmer preserved Monge's first National League victory.

National League

Mets 6, Dodgers 3

Hubie Brooks drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the 12th inning as New York ended a six-game losing streak at Dodger Stadium. Brooks' line single scored George Foster and Joel Youngblood to snap a 3-3 tie. Another run scored on Ron Gardenhire's fielder's choice.

Ed Lynch, 1-1, the fifth Mets pitcher, picked up the win with two scoreless innings of relief.

Rick Monday and Pedro Guerrero homered for the Dodgers.

Expos 8, Padres 2

Gary Carter and Chris Speier eached homered, and Bill Gullickson hurled his first complete game of the season for Montreal. Gullickson struck out 10 and scattered seven hits, waiting out a rare 22-minute rain delay at San Diego in the top of the seventh.

Braves 10, Pirates 4

Atlanta continued its string of road victories, winning its ninth straight without a loss, and 43-year-old Phil xniekro picked up his first victory of the season.

Niekro, who started the season on the disabled list with a rib injury, was relieved with one out in the sixth after giving up three runs on six hits.

Claudell Washington backed Niekro with a three-run homer, and Glenn Hubbard also had three RBI. Niekro drove in a pair of runs with a double.

Cardinals 9, Cubs 4

Darrell Porter's two-run homer, his first since April 7, sparked a five-run rally in the St. Louis seventh inning. Keith Hernandez and Dane Iorg had RBI singles in the inning, and another run scored on Cubs catcher Jody Davis' throwing error. The victory was the third in nine games for St. Louis.

Doug Bair, who relieved Bob Forsch to start the seventh, earned his second victory for St. Louis.

Abilene is now 17-8 on the year while Central moves to 12-16.

SWC teams prepare for tournament

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The four top baseball teams in the Southwest Conference will clash in the post-season tournament, which starts May 14 at Pat Olsen Field in College Station.

The tournament — featuring the University of Texas, Houston, Arkansas and Texas A&M — will run through May 16 with two games each of the three days. A seventh game, if needed, will be played May 17.

Texas, which wrapped up its 55th SWC title with its 9-7 victory over Texas Tech in Lubbock last weekend, is the tournament's defending champion.

The Tech-Texas series was shortened by rain and the loss dropped the Red Raiders from their fourth-place tie with Texas A&M.

Had Tech won Sunday, the Raiders would have taken the fourth tournament position and Arkansas would have been host for the tournament in Little Rock.

Arkansas and Houston will open the tournament Friday afternoon and the Aggies will meet Texas, which is looking for its fourth straight tournament championship. The Longhorns swept the Aggies in their three-game regular season series.

In 1980, Texas won at Olsen Field with victories over Texas Tech and two wins over Arkansas.

Start
average billing
before you start your air conditioner.

Electricity is costing more this year mainly because the fuels to make it cost more.
Our Average Billing Plan can help, because it "averages out" your electric bills. You still pay for all the electricity you use, and your payments will still vary from month to month. But in high-use months you pay for less electricity than you use, and in low-use months you pay for more than you use.
Many customers find this helps ease the impact of high summer air conditioning bills. Our average billing plan is available to both residential customers and churches.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 5, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds it possible for you to impress others with your charm. But later some of them may feel imposed upon. Maintain kindness throughout the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The morning is likely to be a happy time for you, but later the tide turns, so remain steadfast and do nothing unwise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to come to a fine understanding with associates. Friends can give you important data you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Follow the good advice of a business expert. Look to new outlets that could give you added income in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take the time to improve your appearance and get rid of that feeling of being inadequate. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to the aid of a friend who is having a difficult time now. Attend to your duties with enthusiasm. Think along constructive lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget your hunger for pleasure now and stick to important business matters. Make your environment more comfortable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle career duties in a positive manner but don't step on the toes of co-workers. Postponing civic affairs is wise now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could receive a message that is to your liking, but don't let it interfere with regular routines. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle routine chores early in the day for best results. A heart-to-heart talk with loved one clears up uncertainty.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) First converse with associates and then do the work expected of you. Sidestep one who opposes you. Express happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Come to the right accord with fellow workers and be sure to do your share of the work. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend your obligations even though some of them may be an unpleasant task. Budget your money expenses wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she should be give a good education along practical lines in order to have security and prosperity later in life. The field of investigations is fine here. Be sure to give good ethical training early in life.

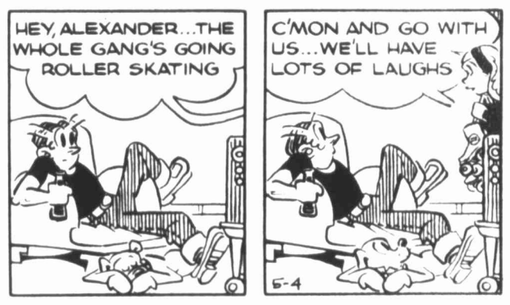

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

INVENTION CONVENTION — Chris Berger, right, of Pittsburgh, and his sister Alexandra Berger, demonstrate the Soundwagon, a small plastic van that plays a long-playing record by driving around in circles on it, Sunday at a conventkon for inventors in Pittsburgh.

Inventors push automatic fly swatter, card shuffler

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Inventors who swear they have what the world is clamoring for are gathered here to peddle such creations as an automatic fly swatter, an automatic card shuffler and a portable road block.

Eighty booths of inventions of all sorts were previewed Sunday as manufacturers and distributors opened a five-day convention as part of a technology show called Technomart '82.

"We have household products, industrial machinery, fashions, new games, lawn and garden items and educational products," said Jane Kostik, manager of a trade show sponsoring the North American Invention-New Product Exposition.

"Inventors are a unique group of people. They're very determined," she added. "They all have an idea that they think will probably make them a million dollars."

Inventors paid up to $800 a booth to show off their contraptions in hopes that some businessman will buy, license, manufacture or market their ideas.

There's a gadget that is supposed to peel oranges in 30 seconds, a skateboard made for snow, a typewriter keyboard that plays music, a timer-clapper that scares away pigeons, a soap holder that keeps soap dry, a bionic marble that claims to communicate with people through mental telepathy, an automatic way to keep oil in your car and a desk made for use in an automobile.

There's also a toy sound wagon that plays music by driving on top of an album record, swimwear made with signs of the Zodiac, breakfast cereal storers, a folding baby changer for diapering and improved safety pins.

V. Lopez Rome of Huntington, Calif., invented a device that enables a person on a bicycle to take a drink by sipping through a retractable hose. He got the idea after a biker in the Olympic games lost a race when he reached back for his water bottle.

"There has to be a better way. That's what inspires people," Rome said.

William Houser of East Brunswick, N.J., got a brainstorm for the His & Hers Auto Lug Wrench when a woman with a flat tire awakened him in the middle of the night with a knock on his door.

The device loosens wheel nuts with less force.

"Somebody's got to come up with something better," Houser said.

Telly returns to television

NEW YORK (AP) — Telly Savalas, who played evil, maniacal characters in the movies before he became a tough good-guy cop on "Kojak," returns to television tonight in a role in need of some softening and a play in need of some subtlety.

"My Palikari," an original 90-minute play for TV, is this week's offering on PBS' "American Playhouse," the series of American dramas, comedies and musicals.

The concept, along with Savalas' debut on public TV, were encouraging signs. However, the story lacks impact, is devoid of dramatic tension and warmth, and never gives viewers a chance to touch the characters.

Savalas plays Pete Panakos, a restaurant owner from Greece who has chased the American dream since 1918. It's now 1953, and Pete is returning to Greece and his mother and brother for the first time in 35 years.

Humanity isn't part of Savalas' repertoire, which further damages a character too broad to be believable anyway. Pete is very Greek. He likes to dance and hug a lot. He talks a good game about family and the simpler life of his homeland, but his idol is really the American dollar.

Pete takes his prized 1953 Buick on the boat to Greece. Once there, he tries to absolve his guilt over the long separation with gifts and money. Constantly downgrading his family's poor lifestyle, he's obnoxious and insensitive, a regular Ugly American of the imported variety.

Meanwhile, his son, Chris, reluctantly comes along for the summer sojourn. He loves baseball, and has no interest in his father's former life. Played in a monotonous, humorless manner by Keith Gordon, there's nothing likeable about this teen-ager.

When Chris first arrives in Greece, he says disdainfully: "It's nice. It's kind of like Brooklyn."

Of course, once in Greece, Pete's 35-year-old memories don't match reality or his new attitudes. Just as predictably, Chris gains an appreciation for the simpler way of life, although there isn't any explanation for this beyond a Greek girl friend.

Is Hance breaking away from Boll Weevils?

WASHINGTON (AP) — What Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, of Humble said about some leaders of the Democratic "Boll Weevil" coalition over the weekend wasn't as revealing as what he didn't say.

Fields, a strong supporter of President Reagan, said the president should stop "wasting his time" trying to negotiate on the budget with House Speaker Tip O'Neill and seek support from the conservative Democrats who backed him a year ago.

"I've said time and again that I truly admire those conservative Democrats — many of them from Texas, such as Charles Stenholm, Jack Hightower, and Phil Gramm — who put principle above party and supported Republican efforts to curb the growth of federal spending," Fields said.

Conspicuous by his absence from Field's admiration list was Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, of Lubbock, the Democratic sponsor of Reagan's tax cut legislation in 1981.

Hance has criticized Reagan several times lately, including a charge in a Fort Worth speech a few weeks ago that Reagan, like President Carter, suffers from not having been an elected official in Washington before assuming the presidency.

"You can't play the game if you don't know the game," Hance said, or words to that effect.

Hance drew sharp criticism from moderate Democratic colleagues last year for the leading role he played as a co-sponsor of Reagan's tax cut legislation that carried despite the opposition of the Democratic leadership.

All indications are that Hance will be aligned with party leaders this time around.

After the president went on national television Thursday night, Hance was asked if he felt the administration would put pressure on him for his support again this year.

"No, I don't think so," Hance said.

"Last year, many people wanted the basic foundation of the president's program enacted. This year, as the president admitted, there are going to have to be adjustments. Any time you make major changes in government or private business, you have to make adjustments."

Hance's West Texas district voted for Reagan by a margin of more than 70 percent in 1980. When the president urged the people last summer to support him by calling their congressmen, his office was deluged with 1,100 calls — beginning as soon as the speech ended.

Reagan made a similar plea during his speech Thursday night. The response was far different, however, reflecting Democratic predictions that Reagan has suffered a decline in popularity as the economy has continued to decline.

Grocery bills drop slightly

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Supermarket bills dropped by almost 1 percent last month, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. The decrease was the second monthly drop this year.

The AP survey is based on a list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food items, selected at random, and first priced at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked at the same stores on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

—The marketbasket bill declined at the checklist store in eight cities during April and rose in five cities. On an overall basis, there was an average drop of eight-tenths of 1 percent last month. The marketbasket bill also declined during February.

—The April picture was much brighter than the March one. During March, the marketbasket bill increased in nine cities and decreased in four, for an average overall rise of six-tenths of 1 percent.

—The marketbasket bill has increased at the checklist store in nine cities during the first four months of the year and decreased in four cities. Overall, there has been a 1.2 percent increase since the first of the year.

—Almost one-third of all the items checked went down in price last month; only about one-fifth of the items decreased in price during March. One-fourth of the items surveyed increased in April, compared to more than one-third in March.

—Chopped chuck and eggs were the items which showed the most widespread price drops last month. The price of both decreased at the checklist store in nine cities. Eggs prices have been declining for several months, reflecting seasonal production increases, but the lower prices for hamburger were an exception to the general trend of higher meat prices.

—The AP found higher prices for pork chops, which increased last month at the checklist store in seven cities, and for detergent, which went up in six cities.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list when the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.
