Firemen's Auxiliary Will Help In TV Telethon

The Rockport Volunteer Firemen's Auxiliary will be helping United Cerebral Palsy during its annual Telethon on Feb. 22 and 23, on Channel 3. Mary Ankele will be in charge of the organization's telephone center in Rockport at the Chamber of Commerce building. The telephone number to be used to take pledges of contributions will be announced on the telethon. Mr. Bob Markos, telethon chairman for the area Cerebral Palsy group today pointed out the need for community support. We know that there are over 500 cerebral palsied children and adults in the Coastal Bend area. Many are not getting the special care and training they need. Our volunteer workers are trying to expand the program of services for those suffering from this crippling condition.

We know we can count on strong support from Rockport. The volunteers there have already showed that by their spirit of cooperation.

The proceeds of the telethon are used to provide special care and training for cerebral palsied children. The area volunteer group has asked that each person give generously during the telethon so that more services can be provided for more cerebral palsied people.

Anyone who could benefit from treatment and services offered by the Easter Society can contact Mr. Patton.

Community Not To Employ Sociologist

It has been decided not to employ a sociologist to deal with "youth problems" here.

Employment of such an expert for a specified length of time had been recommended by the Grand Jury recently after an investigation of drinking and drug use by a small group of local youths.

A citizens committee consisting of the Rt. Rev. J. William Hennel, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, the Rev. Lester G. Hill, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and James H. Sorenson, Jr., president of First National Bank, was appointed to investigate the possibility of employing a sociologist.

After an investigation the committee members reported to Aransas County Commissioners Court that they "concluded that the citizens of Aransas County are not aware of any pressing youths problems which would make the citizens attentive to the advice of any outside expert."

"Furthermore," the three men reported, "the committee does not have any first-hand knowledge of any pressing youth problems with which to educate the public."

Therefore, it was their opinion that money would be wasted to engage a sociologist at this time.

Other actions at the Commissioners Court meeting included:

—A letter was read from Hobart Huson, Refugio attorney, suggesting that his original contract fee of $8,000 for legal work on the Aransas-Nueces county boundary suit be amended and asking for extra compensation of $4,500 for services rendered in connection with the "fill in" between the channel and the mainland which was unthought of when the original contract was made. The commissioners agreed to pay Huson $8,000 now and the balance when the suit is disposed of.

—It was agreed to pay Olly Clinkscales, county employee, $100 per month plus insurance for the month of March. He was injured on the job.

—The commissioners agreed that easements be approved to permit the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District to lay water lines down along and across county roads where needed as shown on a plat. The District will bring treated Nueces River water to this area.

—Also considered was a request for a possible extended contract at the radar site at Aransas County Airport for an aviation mechanical and flight school. It was agreed to grant a 10-year lease or longer reserving the right to renegotiate every five years.

Bar Assn. Reviews Minimum Fees

The Aransas County Bar Association met this week at Key Allegro Restaurant to review the minimum fee schedule of the State Bar of Texas.

The attorneys present reviewed the recommendations of the State Bar and either accepted or modified the fees recommended as being the minimum ones to charge.

Miss Lola L. Bonner, president of the association, announced that the order of two copies of "How to Live-and-Die-with Texas Probate" had been received. The publication was prepared by the State Bar of Texas, and the copies are to be given to Aransas County Library as a gift from the Aransas County Bar Association.

A statement was issued by the State Bar that "the book has been stripped of necessary legal words and phrases and that every Texan who wants to avoid trouble and unnecessary taxes for his family should read the book."

Sam E. Wilcox pointed out there are several retired attorneys living in Aransas County who might be interested in joining the local bar association. Such persons are urged to contact Miss Bonner or the secretary, Weldon B. Cabaniss.

Those attending the luncheon meeting were Cabaniss, Ellis L. Clark, Wilcox and Miss Bonner.

Charles McLead Presumed Drowned

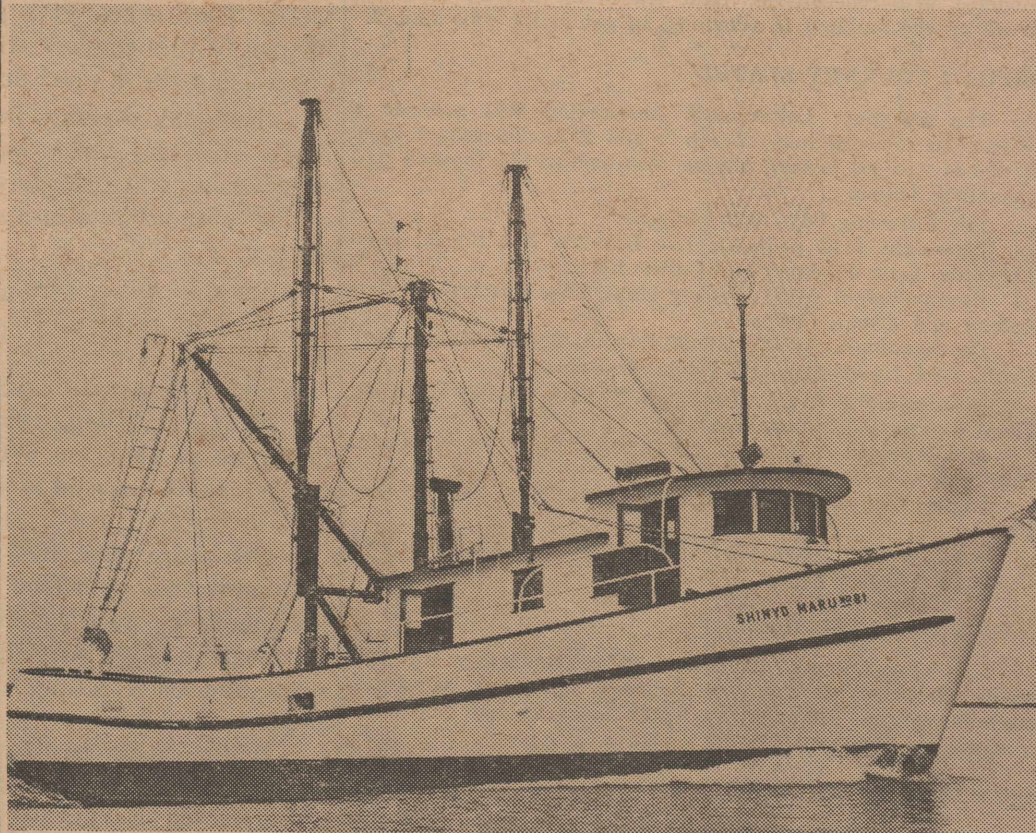

Charles McLead, about 35, captain of the 60-foot shrimp boat Charles Lawton which was lost in the storm early last Friday morning, is presumed to be drowned although his body has not been found.

The body of David Evans, 36, crewman on the boat, has been recovered.

At the time the storm hit, the men had been shrimping in the new cut, off Port O'Connor. The boat headed for the Port Aransas jetties and made last radio contact at 2:30 a.m. Friday.

Both McLead and Evans were experienced shrimpers and the boat was equipped with new life jackets, so it is assumed that the destruction of the boat happened so fast that the two men had no chance to save themselves.

The Coast Guard identified pieces of the boat found by National Seashore Rangers last Saturday as part of the Charles Lawton.

Christening ceremonies on Monday preceded a journey of 2500 miles for a fleet of five shrimp trawlers built for Shinyo Fisheries of Tokyo, Japan.

The ceremonies were for the "Shinyo Maru," one of the trawlers, and the 200th vessel built by Rockport Yacht and Supply Company (RYSCO) since the company started building boats here nine years ago.

John P. Mitchell, Jr., vice president of RYSCO, presided at the christening at the Rockport City Docks. Miss Yukako Ohta, daughter of the Consul General of Japan, christened boat No. 200 by breaking the traditional bottle of champagne across its bow.

Shinyo Fisheries is a subsidiary of Nippon Reizo Ka-bushiki Kaisha of Tokyo. Five steel-hulled trawlers bring to 16 the number of boats built for Shinyo by RYSCO since 1962. All 16 boats are powered by Diesel engines, and at least 10 have been General Motors Detroit Diesel engines supplied by Stewart & Stevenson Services of Houston, Corpus Christi branch.

Editorial

RESULTS

The personal notice classified columns of a newspaper are always of more than passing interest to readers. They're good reading, in fact.

In Albany, N.Y. one read: "I wish to announce that my wife, Frances, has given up smoking." It was signed Ken Ramsey.

The newspaper contacted Mrs. Ramsey, who said she had smoked two packs or more a day for 21 years.

Remarkable, isn't it, what results a classified advertisement will do!

VASSAR WILL NEVER BE THE SAME

For more than 100 years Vassar has stuck strictly to being a college for girls and an elite one at that. A Vassar educated girl was "it" in certain circles—and still is.

But times are changing. Beginning in 1970 the staid old girl's college becomes co-educational. Enrollment will be about 50 percent boys. This will make an amicable situation, indeed. The school won't have to set aside a special "Sadie Hawkins Day" by planning to admit 50 percent boys and 50 percent girls.

It is being conservative to say that some more drastic changes will be in the works. For example, the school administrator better start getting prices on mirrors for all dormitory rooms as well as the powder rooms along the corridors. And be prepared for the girls to be late for classes because they will have to have time to apply make-up.

CHICKEN BY THE POUND OR PIECE?

One of the recent great achievements in private enterprise has been the booming take-home retail business. The success of these places has been fantastic. They serve as a good example of what can happen in this country with good management, good advertising and a good product.

It should, perhaps, be pointed out that the take-home chicken stores have popped up just about everywhere and they have made a name for themselves without the assistance of any government agency.

Therefore, we were a bit dismayed upon reading that in the state of New Jersey the hand of the government is reaching out, seemingly trying to claw the take-home business, instead of helping it.

That state's department of weights and measures has gone to court to determine whether take-home chicken should be sold by the pound or by the "bucket, peck or box."

One store was fined $50 at Union City after a complaint was served by the state. The fine was for not complying with a state law requiring that chicken, meat and fish be sold by weight. The take-home store had been selling "buckets" of 12 pieces for $3.12.

Restaurants are not required to sell by the pound, because the food is consumed, or supposed to be consumed, on the premises. If it is taken out, it still isn't sold by the pound. But says Jerome Katz, deputy general, this law, in his opinion, does not apply to the take-home stores because the meat is not consumed on the premises.

That, it seems, is splitting the hair thinly.

The public is well aware of how many pieces of chicken are in a "box, bucket or peck" and if one store puts in too many wings the competition is keen in the business, and the next time a purchase is made the store that puts in too many wings may not be the seller. It all goes back to that old saw about the fellow who made the better mouse trap.

It smacks of bureaucracy in New Jersey.

EDITOR'S VIEWPOINTS

TV GAME

City officials were careful to explain that the portable television sets to be placed in four municipal offices would be used only when needed to keep abreast of urgent local news, such as natural disasters.

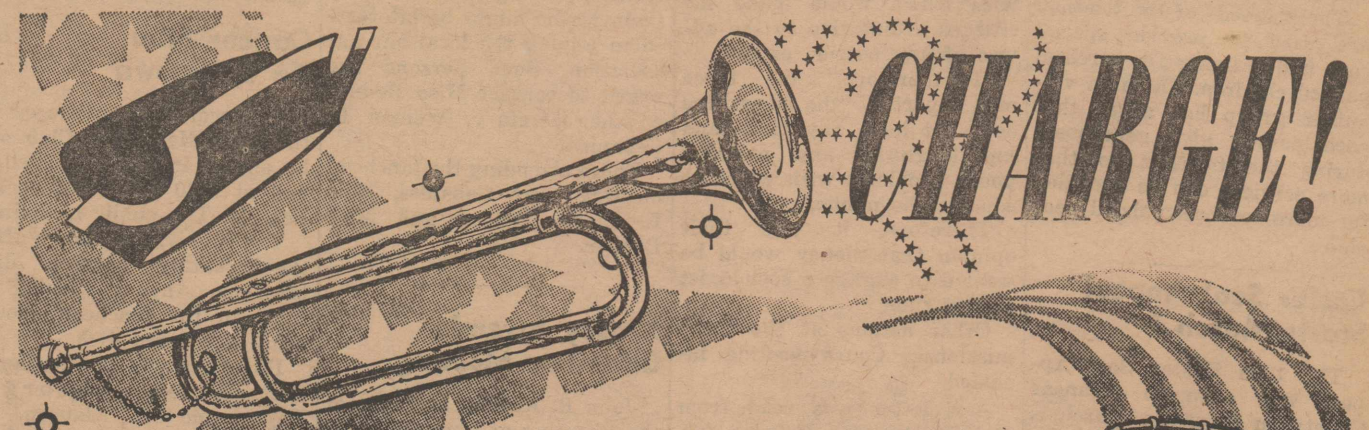

Citizens will understand, of course, that if they notice the sets are in use during the world Series that it just happened to be the time for a routine check on how the TV's are working.—Dallas Times-Herald.

NOTHING TO IT

A blonde coed who handles snakes in a Montreal serpent exhibit has revealed her secret for keeping the snakes, some of them very dangerous, docile and friendly with her. She tickles them under the chin, she said.

And then she remarked: "Most people think I'm a nut."

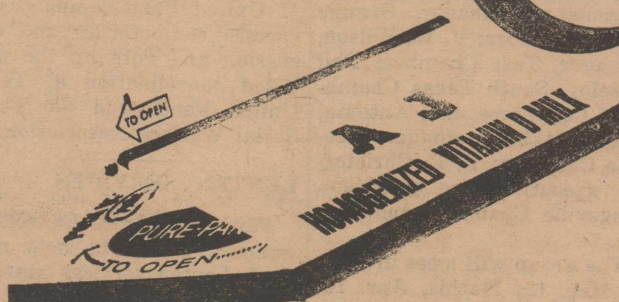

It is difficult to see how she arrived at any such conclusion. Don't most people tickle snakes under the chin when they want to keep from being attacked by the reptiles?—Dallas Times-Herald.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By VERN SANFORD

Black bass fishing is not expensive.

Sure you can make any participating sport costly. A golfer with the most expensive clubs a velvety leather golf bag and pockets full of super-duper golf balls can run up a bill at the sporting goods store. And an even bigger bill on the links if he's inclined to wager.

Likewise with the angler who has to have diamond-studded reels and rods with golden guides and all the fancy-pantsy gadgets that the fisherman can buy.

But, listen while I tell you of the least expensive sport you can imagine. It's black bass fishing with artificial worms.

Not live worms—they're a buck a can. Just plain ole plastic worms like Nick Creme makes over at Tyler. You can buy 'em for a dime apiece at most bargain counters and sometimes "two-fer."

But even at 10 times the price they are still the most economical baits you can use. And look what little you need to go with them! One weedless hook will last a long long time. Cost for hooks . . . about a dime apiece. Then you'll need a sliding sinker (another dime), or you can use the clamp-ons that run a third as much.

Besides your rod and reel, that's all you need—to have at it. Then if you lose a lure it's not a $1.50 popping plug but a ten cent plastic worm. And just think how many fish you caught on that artificial worm before you lost it in the brush or a lunker gobbled it and ran.

Doggone, man, there's just nothing that will beat plastic worm fishing! Besides, it's the most productive way. Takes a little patience, but not much. Shucks, you came out to relax, didn't ya? Then take it easy. That's the way to latch onto bass when you're fishing with the artificial worm.

Another thing, man, you can cast right into the middle of a lily pond, at the base of a weeping-willow tree, or into the darndest mess of weeds you've ever seen—and that ole worm and weedless hook comes slithering back, scratching bottom all the way, bumping logs and bouncing off rocks just like it was made to last forever.

Fact of the matter is—you sometimes get tired of looking at the ole gnawed-on worm and slap on a new one just for beauty's sake.

They're easy to put on—just like a live worm only they're not slimy. And if you're careful you can use the old wiggler again and again by cutting it shorter and shorter.

Now, how can you beat that? It's the best type of black bass fishing, and as the ole peddler always says — "The best for less." To which we might add—the most productive, too.

If you haven't tried plastic worm fishing—call the ace angler in your town (the guy who brings in the biggest bass)—and ask him how to rig your gear. You can bet your bottom dollar he knows.

QUARTER-MILLION MORE VEHICLES

There will be approximately a quarter-million more vehicles on the State's streets and highways this year, State Highway Engineer J. C. Dingwall said today.

During the 1969 registration year, indications are that more than 7.2 million motor vehicles will be registered in Texas, Dingwall said. That compares to almost 7 million registered in 1968.

Texas license plates this year have black letters and numerals on a white background. For the first time this year, all Texas license plates are reflected as a safety measure.

Registration began Feb. 1 at county tax offices and substations throughout Texas. Motorists have until midnight, April 1 to register and affix license plates to their vehicles.

"But we urge everyone not to wait till the last minute," Dingwall said. "By registering now motorists can avoid waiting in long lines during the last few weeks of the registration period."

State law requires each owner to register his vehicle in the county in which he resides and to present his title as evidence of ownership.

The vehicle title is one of four items motorists will need when registering. The others are last year's registration receipt, current residence address and correct ZIP code.

Making certain that the correct address appears on 1969 registration records can mean a big plus in convenience to vehicle owners next year.

Texas motor vehicle registration records are being computerized, and a new registration system for 1970 will speed up the registration process considerably.

Next year, vehicle owners will be mailed a special pre-prepared registration form. Owners will have only to bring the form to the county tax office or registration station, pay the fee and have the form validated with new license numbers.

Fees are the same this year as last year. Minimum fee for all vehicles including small trailers such as boat trailers, is $5.30.

Rates for passenger cars are: Up to 3,500 pounds, $12.30; 3,501 to 4,500 pounds, $22.30; 4,501 to 6,000 pounds, $30.30; More than 6,000 pounds, 0.55 per 100 pounds.

KAY AND DEBORAH BELL HONORED

A double birthday party was given by Mrs. Bobby Bell for her daughters, Kay, 12, and Deborah, 8. Kay and Deborah and their 24 guests were entertained with a skating party at Lawson's Roller Rink Feb. 15.

Everyone sat in a circle on the floor with Kay at one side of the circle and Deborah on the other side. After singing "Happy Birthday" Kay and Deborah opened their presents. On the birthday cake in one corner was written "Deborah" and there were eight candles; on the opposite corner was "Kay" and twelve candles. Refreshments of birthday cake and punch were served.

JOHN KINSEY

It was my privilege to attend the luncheon given Monday by Rockport Yacht and Supply Company following the christening of the 200th vessel built by the firm.

The invocation by the Rev. Lester G. Hill, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, was appropriate and beautiful. Judge for yourself:

"Lord, you have witnessed our fascination with the sea for centuries. The abundant wealth of the deep and the challenge of wind and wave have sent us to the seas and continue to focus our eyes toward the waters of the earth. "This day we seek your blessing on another boat launched to challenge the elements in search of the ocean's treasure. Bless, we pray you, the industry which brings business from Japan and the United States into joint venture and fellowship.

"May the boat which brings us together have pleasant voyages, fair winds, and come home to port with her holds loaded from her catch."

Babe Ruth, with all of his records, never realized one ambition, and that was to manage a major league team.

CIRCLE 1 AND 4 HOLD JOINT MEETING

Circle No. 1 and No. 4 of the Presbyterian Church held a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. Grover Traylor Feb. 13, at 10 a.m. There were 17 members and two guests present.

The circles held their business sessions in separate rooms. The circles then met together for the reading of the month's emphasis taken from the Presbyterian Women publication.

It was announced that on Feb. 27 at 10 a.m., the Women of the Church will hold an intensive Bible study at the Church. Following the Bible study there will be a covered dish salad luncheon and the rolling of bandages.

Mrs. L. V. Clark was moderator of the lesson which was "Jesus' Ministry in Galilee." The meeting was closed by the reciting of the Mizpah benediction.

The covered dish luncheon was then enjoyed. It was unanimously agreed that more joint meetings would be held.

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES HOLD MEETING

Circle No. 2 of the Ladies of the Presbyterian Church met Feb. 13 at the home of Mrs. Fred Hunt.

After refreshments had been served by the hostess. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Miss Lillie Fahr, with all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

Roll call was answered with a passage from the Bible. Mrs. C. G. Melton was moderator. There were 11 members present and one visitor, Mrs. Doris Shields of Dallas. Since the last meeting, 54 cards and 39 visits were reported by members. All present took part in the lesson. Mrs. Fred Cabbage had charge of the "Least Coin Offering."

The Circle was asked and are going to help with rolling bandages for the Neighborhood Cancer Crusade. Miss Lillie Fahr gave the emphasis. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. W. P. Petit on March 13 at 3 p.m.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Golf Is Big Business

Golf course construction and maintenance is big business in Texas—about $15 million a year.

On a national basis, investment in golfing facilities now stands at an estimated $2.12 billion.

It's figures like these that have brought increased emphasis on turf grass management in Texas A&M University.

Dr. George McBee of the A&M Soil Crop Sciences Department said teaching and research in this field focuses on turf production and management in parks, home lawns, recreation sites, cemeteries and industrial landscaping. But considerable effort is aimed at golf courses. Here is why:

National Golf Foundation figures show that the number of golf courses in the United States has risen from 5,691 in 1931 to 9,336 within the past few years. During that same period in Texas, course numbers jumped from 275 to 424.

The figures include private semi-private and municipal courses. All this is fine, the agronomist said, but there is the problem of keeping greens and fairways in good shape under the pounding and trompling of more feet, golf carts, maintenance equipment, and grass ailments than ever before.

The population in Texas is a little more than 10.8 million, which means there is an estimated average of 23,844 persons per golf course. In the densely settled area, that figure would be much higher.

McBee said not all these people are users, but such statistics indicate the importance of careful course management.

"Texas ranks 38th out of 50 states in number of people per golf course," he said. "This means we have about as much population as the courses will carry. In the big city areas, populations are often too high for available golf facilities."

The agronomist said golfing is heaving to a steady popularity increase in Texas. About 30 are currently under construction, some of them being built with the help of government loans.

Judge Miller's Charge To The Grand Jury

The Pilot was so impressed by the charge to the February term of the Grand Jury given by Judge John H. Miller of 36th Judicial District that permission was obtained from the judge to publish it: TO THE MEMBERS OF THE GRAND JURY:

You are now the Grand Jury of this County.

Your duty, under the law, is to see that indictments are returned against those who have committed crimes. As a practical matter, most of your work will be devoted to investigation of felony offenses which have occurred since the last session of the former Grand Jury.

In most cases the matters you will consider will be brought before you by formal complaint, delivered to you, or your attention called to violations of the law by the District Attorney, County Attorney or some other official. However, your investigative power is not by any means limited to matters presented by complaint, or brought before you by public officials. You may also, and should, investigate any suspected law violations concerning which any of you have knowledge, or concerning which you receive information from any private citizen.

When any suspected law violation is brought to your attention or notice, it is your duty to make careful investigation of it and determine whether an indictment should be returned. In making investigation it is your privilege to subpoena witnesses, place them under oath and interrogate them in secret in the Grand Jury Room. In making your investigation in any case you should do your best to get all the information possible before you make your final decision on whether to return an indictment and in no case should you ever indict any person unless you honestly feel, from the evidence before you, that there is a reasonable probability of guilt.

I further charge you that there may come to your attention notice of conditions that are not necessarily criminal in and of themselves, but which are unhealthy and likely to lead to serious violations of our penal laws. The Grand Jury, oftentimes by going into these matters, and by directing the law enforcement officers to take corrective action, will eliminate the undesirable conditions. If you believe any such conditions exist in this County, you should look into them thoroughly and make such recommendations as you deem necessary.

You may meet and adjourn at times agreed upon by a majority, but you may not adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the Court. Nine of your number constitute a quorum. Your District and County Attorneys will be available to assist you when you need them; however, it is imperative that neither they nor any other persons be present when you are deliberating upon, or voting upon whether or not to return an indictment.

You are further charged that all proceedings of the Grand Jury in the Grand Jury Room are secret and you should not divulge them to any person, except in a judicial proceeding when ordered to do so by a Court.

It is permissible for you to seek and receive advice from the court on the law pertaining to any matter before you. However, in so doing, you must not disclose the particular investigation before you, and you must propound any questions in writing.

I appoint James H. Sorenson, Jr., your foreman. The foreman shall preside over the sessions of the Grand Jury, conduct its business and proceedings in an orderly manner. He may appoint one or more members of the body to act as clerks for the Grand Jury.

Given this the 10th day of February, 1969.

JOHN H. MILLER, Judge, 36th Judicial District Aransas County, Texas.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—I have a stock sale to report. What form do I use and where can I get a copy?

A—Stock sales and other sales or exchanges of property should be reported on Schedule D. The net profit from these sales should be entered on line 5, Part II, of your Form 1040.

Copies of Schedule D are available at local IRS offices as well as many banks and post offices.

Q—My refund was held up last year. What can I do to avoid the same thing happening this year?

A—File a complete, accurate return and send it in early. Refund claims filed now can be processed and the refund issued in five to six weeks.

A major reason for refund delays last year was incomplete returns. Over one and one-half million returns were received with a missing or an incorrect social security. Other common errors were failure to sign the return and failure to include W-2 statements.

Missing supplementary forms, such as those to claim the sick pay exclusion or a moving expense deduction, also delayed some refunds.

Q—My paycheck has been smaller the last few weeks. Have the taxes gone up?

A—The Social Security tax rate for individuals increased from 4.4 per cent to 4.8 per cent in January. This may account for the increased withholding from your paycheck.

Q—A W-2 form came last week for my son who is now in the Navy. Does he have to file a tax return?

A—Yes, he does if his income was $600 or more last year. A return would also have to be filed to obtain a refund of tax withheld even if income was less than $600. However, if he is stationed overseas, he has additional time to file his return.

Taxpayers out of the country have an automatic extension from April 15 to June 16 to file 1968 returns. If your son is in Vietnam, his return isn't due until 180 days after he leaves that area.

Q—I am a widower. Does the fact that my nephew now makes his home with me allow me to file as head of household?

A—If your nephew also qualifies as your dependent, then you may be able to file as a head of household. Check your 1040 instructions for details.

Q—Social Security tax was taken out of my pay on both

DAVE EVANS DIES

Funeral services for Dave Evans, 36, whose body was found floating in the open seas out of Port Aransas Friday, were held Monday in Marshall Funeral Chapel. Burial was in Rockport Cemetery.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Annie Mae Evans of Rockport, and father, Bruce Evans of Lamar.

Other survivors include three brothers, Clifton, Alton and Gerald Evans; and four sisters, Mrs. Corinne Webb, Mrs. May Jean Mundine, and Mrs. Virginia Tanner, all of Rockport, and Mrs. Darlene Bush of Corpus Christi.

Evans' body was found about four miles east of Port Aransas by crewmen aboard the fishing vessel Glaski at mid-morning Friday. Evans was believed to have drowned during the storm which struck along the coast of South Texas early Friday.

The Value of Your Social Security

By Kathleen Walker

(Miss Walker is now serving this area as field representative of the Social Security Administration, Corpus Christi.)

Social security is big news today. Recent amendments have increased benefit amounts and expanded the coverage provided. Accordingly, taxes have been raised causing many people to wonder, "Will I ever get back in benefits what I pay in social security taxes?"

For most people, the answer is a unqualified "Yes." An employee who has paid the maximum amount possible every year since taxes were first deducted in 1937, will have paid $3016.80 by the end of 1968. A self-employed person who has paid the maximum every year will have paid $3829.20 by the end of 1968. Should this individual become 65 in December, 1968 and retire in January, 1969, he would be eligible for the maximum payment of $162.80 each month. If he had a wife 62 or older, she would receive between $61.10 and $81.40, depending on her exact age. If the worker had a wife and children the family could receive up to, $350.40 each month depending on the size of the family. Thus, the worker alone could recover his taxes in less than two years; with a family, he could recover them much sooner.

The picture for younger people is just as promising. A young person, age 22, starting to work in 1968 and working 43 years until he is 65 will pay $16,489.20 towards his retirement benefit (or $39,700 if you add 3% compound interest on the assumption that he would otherwise have invested this money as he went along). With the average male life expectancy of 13 years at 65 and with a wife also 65 (81% of men reaching 65 are married) the retirement benefits due the family would total $50,388—considerably more than the value of the contribution. Actuaries estimate that the young worker will get a retirement benefit worth from 15% to 20% more than their own contribution plus an interest allowance.

Suppose this worker does not live to 65. Suppose he dies at 35, leaving a widow and two children aged 3½ and 5½. Before his death, he would have paid $4789.20 in taxes. (If he had invested this amount, the value of the contribution at 3½% compound interest would be $6080). At his death, the family would be eligible for $434.40 each month. If the widow does not remarry and the children remained unmarried and stay in school until they are 22, social security would pay them $87,612.60 by the time the youngest child is 22—more than 14 times the worker's contribution. Had he been disabled at 35 and lived five years longer, social security would have paid some $85,000 in disability and survivor benefits. At the age of 60, the widow could again qualify for payments.

The system can operate this way for several reasons. The major factor is that the employer matches the individual's contributions, thus insuring a better retirement for his people. Furthermore, there are some people who contribute for a short while, but not long enough to become eligible for payments. Also a few die and leave no survivors eligible for monthly payments.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

BY VERN SANFORD

In the appointment of Federal Fish and Wildlife Restoration funds, derived from the excise tax on the sale of outdoor equipment, Texas receives maximum participation.

This money actually paid in by sportsmen on the purchase of guns, ammunition and fishing equipment. It is collected by the government and apportioned with a formula devised by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Out of the total distributed during a recent two-year period, some $14,000,000 went for wildlife work and about $6,000,000 for fisheries. Texas was one of four states receiving the maximum $695,100 for wildlife and $276,200 for fisheries. Others were Alaska, California and Minnesota.

When the program was initiated 25 years ago, the maximum available to any state was $150,000. This increase is just one indication of the growth of hunting and fishing as a participation sport.

Federal money is matched on the basis of 75 percent Federal to 25 percent State.

Texas, for the most part, has been able to use its entire apportionment in providing for better hunting and fishing. As a result Texas today has an outstanding wildlife and fisheries program, under the direction of biologists of the Parks and Wildlife Commission.

This has been largely responsible for the tremendous comeback of wildlife in Texas, and for providing the best fishing the state has ever known.

Basically it also has provided for a great deal of research which doesn't always appear on the surface.

But what is evident is the wonderful expansion program in management expansion areas.

Today these management areas are scattered widely over the state.

For instance, in the Big Bend Country of West Texas the P&W Commission owns and operates something like 100,000 acres of deer country. It is bordered on one side by the Big Bend National Park and on the other side by the Rio Grande.

Here wildlife is managed by the best known practices. In this connection each year a number of Texas sportsmen get free hunts, permitting them to take off the surplus game and keep the wildlife in balance.

Landowners in the area, watching progress of the management work, now are including wildlife in their plan of operation. As a result, West Texas today has more and better deer than at any time in this century.

Another of these projects is in Kerr County. Here, for nearly ten years, hundreds of Texas hunters have had the privilege of free trips to get their deer.

Down on the Texas coast, at Big Hill Bayou near Port Arthur, and at Sheldon, just out of Houston, resting and feeding grounds for waterfowl have been provided with the use of these funds.

Great strides in fishery management have been made particularly in the eradication of rough fish. A number of impoundments have restored game fishing to the fullest degree with complete kills. Other larger impoundments, through selective kills, have been able to up-grade their fishing.

It must be remembered that Texas has no large natural lakes. Every major lake in Texas is the result of a dam across some stream. Many of these are in Central and West Texas, where, a few years back they were practically devoid of game fish.

In fact, some historians say that black bass were not found west of the Colorado until the present century. This is easy to believe because there was no water to support them.

Now there are new and larger developments in East Texas. So the whole state is benefiting.

If you toss a beverage can into the water, either crush it, or fill it with water so that it will sink and not float around the lake to be hit by a speeding boat.

TAX DEDUCTIBLES CAN CONSIST OF CASH OR OTHER PROPERTY

Tax deductible contributions can consist of either cash or other kinds of property, according to Asa L. Crow, administrative officer in Internal Revenue in Corpus Christi. "Contributions must be made to qualifying organizations such as the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, United Funds, churches, non-profit schools and hospitals, and war veterans groups; but gifts to individuals cannot be deducted even though they are made to needy persons," he said.

Although outright gifts can be deducted, payments to charities for goods or services are not tax deductible even though some organizations may imply they are. Where there is a purchase of goods or services from a charity or payment for admission to a show, banquet or charity ball, the taxpayer is receiving something of value.

When admission is charged to attend a charitable event, only the part of the charge that exceeds the value of goods and services received may be deducted.

For example, if a tax payer pays $25 to attend a charity affair entitling him to dinner and entertainment worth $10, his tax deduction would be $15. This is true whether or not he went, since the right to attend is what counts.

"Out-of-pocket" expenses incurred in rendering services without compensation to charitable organizations can also be deducted as contributions. This includes amounts paid for transportation as well as reasonable payments for necessary meals and lodging while away from home rendering such services.

However, a taxpayer may not deduct expenses incurred while attending a church convention unless he is an official representative—being a member of the church is not enough.

Under certain conditions, a taxpayer may deduct the most of maintaining a full-time 12th or lower grade student in his home. The student must be there under a written agreement with a qualified organization and must not be the taxpayer's dependent or relative. He may be foreign or American.

Publication 526, "Income Tax Deductions for Contributions," is available free from IRS offices and explains limitations and other provisions relating to contributions. In general, deductions must be itemized and the total amount of contributions that can be deducted is limited to 20 percent of the taxpayer's income. An additional 10 percent is allowed for donations to churches and certain schools, hospitals and publicly-supported organizations.

Taxpayers taking deductions for donations of property valued at more than $200 must attach a statement to their tax returns giving the name and address of the organization, the date the donation was made, a description of the property, when and how it was acquired, fair market value and other information detailed in the IRS publication. All deductions made for contributions must be backed up by receipts or other evidence of payment.

Building stones taken from quarries are limestones, sandstones, granites, marbles and slates.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

MAN VERSUS BEAST

Hot-tempered Brown, seeing a neighbor's Airedale frolicking on his lawn, took out a pistol and fired a fatal shot. Sued later for damages, Brown protested that the dog had been "trespassing on my private property."

But the court held him liable anyhow. The judge commented: "A dog should not be the object of target practice simply on the grounds that it was outside the custody of its master."

Generally speaking, you are not justified in killing someone else's domestic animal merely because it is trespassing on your premises. Nor is killing justified by other annoyances of a similar petty character.

For example, a court held that a man had no right to kill a dog for walking across his freshly-painted porch. And another court reached the same conclusion when a man killed a dog for chasing his pet cat up a tree.

But the life of a domestic animal is not sacrosanct, either. If the animal inflicts damage that is sufficiently serious, this fact may justify his aggrieved victim in striking back.

Accordingly, a court ruled that a suburban home owner could not be blamed for slaying a cat which had a long record of raids on his hen house.

This right of retaliation is usually recognized even if the animal is one which comes under the protection of the local game laws.

One community had a game law forbidding the killing of "monkey face owls." But a farmer who killed one of these creatures was exonerated when he pointed out that this particular owl had done away with more than 100 of his chickens.

Of course, the strongest justification for killing an animal arises when it is menacing not just a person's property but his own or his family's safety.

Thus, by centuries-old doctrine, the law puts its stamp of approval on the killing of a dog that is rabid. The right to kill a mad dog belongs to every man, because a mad dog is every man's enemy.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Most anglers take along an extra spool of line for emergencies. And it's a great idea. Usually this "spare" is unexpectedly needed to replace the line on your favorite reel . . . or to add more line to the reel spool.

More often than not the need for line is real urgent. Often you run short of line or your supply runs out at a most inopportune time. Sometimes it happens right in the middle of the lake.

Adding line to a spool while afloat is no problem for Gene Aderholt. Gene is an Austin angler who has fished most of his life. He's used to solving his own problems.

Ever try to rewind a spool of line while afloat in your boat? It's not easy even if your buddy is with you to hold the spool. And it's tougher yet if the water is rough. Besides you're wasting a lot of yours and your partner's fishing time.

It's a real problem if you're alone, in the middle of the lake. Or at least we thought it was.

But Gene has the answer. It's a neat, fast trick . . . if you know how! And Gene does.

He runs the end of the fresh new line thru the guide at the tip of his rod—then on down the rod through the bail of his favorite open-faced Mitchell 300 spinning reel. Next he ties this new line to the reel spool—or to the left-over line that's still on the spool.

Gene then gives the crank a turn of two to see that the line "spools on" properly—and quick as a flash, he's all set to fill the spool.

Question then is how he's going to single-handedly keep the line tension just right to "spool on" properly.

Gene does it so easy it's amazing. He simply tosses the new spool of fresh line (now tied to the reel spool) . . . far out over the water. Then he begins to turn the reel crank. What happens is almost unbelievable at first . . . that is until you realize what resistance water has.

As Gene turns the reel handle the floating spool of fresh line begins to rotate. Resting flat on top of the water the floating spool spins as the reel handle turns. Resistance of the water is enough to keep the line at just the right tension.

In a jiffy Gene's new line is transferred from the fresh spool to the reel spool, and Gene's back in business again.

He refuels that reel so fast it's hard to realize that the transfer has been accomplished . . . almost before it started. It doesn't take Gene three minutes to do the entire job and get back to fishing.

In fact Gene has convinced this angler that his emergency method beats the old two-person, pencil-in-a-spool idea all hollow.

Try it next time!
