To Vietnamese mother

Son to be yielded

FOREST CITY, Iowa (AP) — Doan Van Binh — 4-year-old centerpiece of an emotional legal battle — is going home with his Vietnamese mother, 18 months after the John Nelson family thought they had adopted him.

Doan Thi Hoang Ahn, 33, left her home in Great Falls, Mont., on Sunday and planned to pick her son up at the Nelson home today.

The foster family had asked that she stay with them for several days before taking Binh home with her. "Unless she can spend some time with us and find out what Ben has been going through, it's going to be very difficult for him," Nelson said.

But Mrs. Doan told reporters that she expected to return with the child Monday evening. "He will be going home," she said.

She said she couldn't take time away from her nurse's aide studies and couldn't arrange babysitting for her other children.

The Nelsons, meanwhile, said the child told them, "I want to stay home," and, "I love Bobby. I don't want to leave Bobby," an older child of the Nelsons.

"Ben doesn't understand what's going on — and that's the biggest problem," said Nelson. "He trusts us and thinks we are his mom and dad."

Legal records show that Mrs. Doan escaped to Saigon with her seven children from their home in the central highlands during the last days of the Saigon regime. Her husband was killed in the final days of the war.

Mrs. Doan, fearing she too would be killed, left the children with the Friends of Children of Vietnam Orphanage in hopes they could escape. But she refused to give her consent for their adoption.

Six of the children were brought to the United States, and some were placed in foster homes. She quickly regained custody of five, but the Nelsons kept Binh. The other child is in France, and diplomats are negotiating for the child's return.

Mrs. Doan began her fight to regain custody of her son when she arrived in this country as a refugee on Aug. 5, 1975.

The Nelsons, who have two children, began adoption proceedings for Binh in May 1975. But the Iowa Supreme Court ruled last month that he must be returned to his mother.

"Two good homes are available to Binh," the Iowa Supreme Court said in its ruling last month. "Someone must be hurt."

Roloff motion is overruled

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Dist. Judge Charles Mathews overruled a motion today to move the state's suit against evangelist Lester Roloff out of Austin.

Roloff's lawyers immediately asked for a delay in the trial to appeal Mathews' ruling, and the judge recessed the hearing for 2½ hours before responding to their request.

Cafe shooting fatal to two

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men were killed and another critically wounded early today in a robbery-shooting at a Houston pizza parlor, police said.

Shortly after closing at midnight, police said, the restaurant was visited by two men who tried to order a beer. The manager told them the restaurant was closed, but the men then pulled pistols and demanded money.

Authorities said after forcing their way inside, the gunmen opened fire, shooting three people in the head. The dead were identified as assistant manager Scott Sorell and his friend, Robert Charles White. Manager Jim Hambrick, 18, who had been on the job just two days, was listed in critical condition at a local hospital.

Hambrick had hidden the night's receipts, about $500, in the back of the restaurant, police said. The gunmen ransacked the restaurant but could find only some small change from the cash register.

Presidential race

Rhetoric worsens

By the Associated Press

Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter said today he will "bend over backwards" to avoid a low-level campaign as he and President Ford enter the final two weeks of their battle to win the White House.

In an impromptu interview with television network reporters at his Plains, Ga., peanut warehouse, Carter was asked if he thought the campaign, which has featured increasingly heated rhetoric in recent days, might descend to the "gutter level" before reaching its climax on Nov. 2. Carter replied that the American people would not approve of such tactics and expressed confidence that both he and Ford would avoid them.

Both presidential candidates are slowing the pace this week to get ready for Friday's third debate and the final 10 days of the campaign, when both will be on the road in a last effort to win voter support.

Ford, after attending church Sunday, spent a chill, gray, and rainy afternoon at relative ease in the White House. He met with several Cabinet officers and economic advisers to talk about urban revitalization programs.

Ford intends to stay in Washington until Thursday night, when he will go to New York for the Al Smith dinner, a traditional event for presidential candidates. Then it will be on to Williamsburg, Va. for the final face-to-face, nationally televised meeting with Carter.

After the debate, Ford will keep moving in a blitz of as many as 14 states until he votes in Grand Rapids, Mich., on Nov. 2.

Carter will be somewhat more active this week, but he, too, is easing the pace that may have caused his voice to crack at a rally in Columbus, Ohio Saturday night.

He rested at home in Plains, Ga. after teaching Sunday School at his Baptist church. He told his class that after returning home Saturday night, he read the Bible and "went down the list in my mind of those who I felt have hurt me. I asked God to give them special blessing."

Carter didn't say whether he included Ford and Republican vice presidential candidate Bob Dole among them.

Then he went home and looked after eight-year-old daughter Amy while his wife, Rosalynn, was campaigning in the Midwest. Carter planned to end his respite this evening with a trip to Tampa, Fla. He was to spend the night in Miami, and campaign there, in Winston-Salem, N.C., and in New York on Tuesday. Then it will be back to Plains for two more days of rest and study for Friday's debate. His present schedule does not call for him to attend the Al Smith dinner in New York.

While the major party candidates relaxed, some of the candidates of other parties received national attention Sunday.

Gen. Brown may be in the soup again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon spokesman today declined to confirm or deny the accuracy of an interview in which Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is quoted as saying that the Israeli army is more of a burden than an asset to the United States.

The Pentagon spokesman said Defense Department officials "are reviewing tapes made with the knowledge of all participants" in the interview. "Until the tapes have been reviewed, we have nothing further to say."

Brown was interviewed April 12 by cartoonist and writer Ranan R. Lurie, who wrote the article being published by King Features Syndicate.

In the interview, a syndicate spokesman said, Brown was asked whether he regarded the Israeli army as a burden or an asset for the United States.

Reportedly, he replied that, put in those terms, "it's just got to be considered a burden."

Alan Woods, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs, said interest in establishing the accuracy of the interview was intense at the Pentagon because "anytime General Brown is quoted on that subject, we get excited."

General Brown was personally reprimanded by President Ford in 1974 after he told a Duke University audience that Jews had undue influence in Congress and controlled banks and newspapers in the United States.

More tanks available

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. tank production is increasing significantly, and the Army — gradually recovering from a tank shortage — no longer objects to new sales of tanks to Israel.

Pentagon officials predict the production of new M60 tanks will reach a level next year sufficient to handle both the Army's armor buildup and foreign sales requirements.

The Army's changed attitude emerged in interviews with key officers following reports that a new arms package for Israel includes about 120 M60 tanks. The package was approved by President Ford more than a week ago, catching many military officials by surprise.

A shortage in the Army's tank stocks developed from two main causes: the emergency shipment of more than 800 tanks to Israel during and after the Mideast war three years ago, and a long-term production shrinkage to as few as 30 tanks a month.

When the Army complained in the aftermath of the 1973 war, it was given a commitment by Pentagon leaders that its tank stocks would not again be raided and that new M60s would not be diverted to Israel or other foreign countries until production levels had been increased substantially.

In addition to Israel, the United States has promised about 25 M60s to Saudi Arabia, Iran, Jordan and Italy have received M60s in the past.

The Army currently has 6,300 prime tanks, but its planners calculate that it needs nearly 14,000, including a reserve for expected battle losses in event of a war in Europe.

The Army now projects that it will reach its goal in about four years. Included in the total will be the Army's advanced XM1 tank, now under development as the main U.S. armor striking weapon of the future.

Production of M60 tanks already has risen to 76 a month, with 100 a month anticipated by February and a final level of 120 new tanks monthly by January 1978.

Army tank specialists say production of about 80 tanks a month will keep the U.S. Army on its buildup schedule. That would leave a cushion of about 20 tanks a month for foreign deliveries next year and about 40 a month in 1978 and beyond, they say.

States. Last summer, Ford nominated Brown to a second two-year term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The Israeli army was also on the mind of former Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger on Sunday. He criticized Ford for selling new weapons to Israel but not considering an arms sale to China.

Schlesinger, appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers" said the recent sale of sophisticated new bombs and missile guidance systems to Israel was a "sudden, abrupt, pre-election assessment which has not been coordinated with the Defense Department."

Secretary of State Kissinger has denied that the arms sale was intended to help sway Jewish voters for Ford.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: HC withdraws support

Q. Why has Howard College withdrawn support of the Community Concert Association after so many years of backing. Isn't it the responsibility of the college to promote and encourage cultural endeavors whether or not their students benefit?

A. Dr. Charles Hays, college president, answered, "Howard College reluctantly withdrew financial support from the Community Concert Association due to necessary fiscal cuts and escalating costs. It was imperative that a re-evaluation be made of expenditures for student activities that were needed, wanted and used by the students. Since a minuscule portion of our student body attended the concerts, even with continual promotion and encouragement on campus, it was evident that this financial support should be put into other activities."

"Last year, in a last effort to save this benefit to our students and continue with our financial support, a request was made to the Concert Board to schedule programs more relevant to the students' interests. One program, The New Christy Minstrels was arranged; however, it could only be scheduled on January 5 when the College was between semesters with all the students off campus for the mid-year break."

"Our faculty, staff and administration are very interested and supportive of the Concert Series. We will continue to support the Concert Association in other ways such as conducting student and employee season ticket sales and by encouraging and promoting the concerts on campus."

Pollsters say, of election

Could go either way

Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter holds a narrow lead over President Ford, according to several national polls and surveys.

The Carter lead is well within the margin of error in most of the polls, meaning that the race is nearly even and could go either way.

An NBC news nationwide telephone poll of 1,600 households found 1,388 where members were considered likely to vote. Of those, 42 percent were for Carter, 40 percent for Ford and 1 percent for minor candidates. A total of 17 percent were undecided.

The poll was taken Oct. 12-14, after the second Ford-Carter debate.

Two surveys of electoral votes were released, one by Time magazine and the other by the Newhouse newspapers and the Chicago Daily News.

The Time "soundings" said Carter led in 23 states and the District of Columbia, with a total of 280 electoral votes; Ford could expect 129 electoral votes from the 17 states he is leading in, with the remainder in states too close to call.

The Newhouse-Chicago Daily News survey said Carter led in states with a combined total of 218 electoral votes with Ford leading for 87; 233 were found up for grabs. A total of 270 electoral votes is needed to win.

Last week, George Gallup Sr. said his latest survey, conducted between Oct. 8 and 11 after the candidates' second debate in San Francisco, showed Carter leading Ford by 6 percentage points, 48 to 42 percent. Gallup's previous survey, taken just prior to the second debate, showed Ford had drawn to within 2 points of his Democratic opponent, with Carter leading 47 to 45.

A second poll, conducted by CBS News and the New York Times, showed the independent vote returning to Carter's column after a shift to Ford following the first debate. The CBS-Times survey also reported Midwestern Roman Catholics returning to the Carter camp following a flirtation with Ford.

The CBS-Times poll of 1,761 registered voters showed Carter with a 60-40 margin in the South and a 58-42 edge in the Midwest. But in the East and West, Carter registered uncertain 51-49 margins, according to the survey.

The closeness of the race in the West was also illustrated in the results of the California Poll, a statewide telephone survey of 1,230 registered voters on Oct. 7 and 8.

3 Yanks claim nobels

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Three Americans were named today to receive the 1976 Nobel Prizes in physics and chemistry, giving the United States a clean sweep of the Nobel scientific awards this year.

Burton Richter of Stanford University and Samuel C.C. Ting of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology shared the physics award for "pioneering work in the discovery of a heavy elementary particle of a new kind."

The Royal Academy of Sciences awarded the chemistry prize to William N. Lipscomb of Harvard University for his studies "on the structure of boranes, illuminating problems of chemical bonding."

"This is one thing that never happens in most physicists' lifetime," said Richter, 45, who got the news as he was waking up in Stanford, Calif. "I'm delighted, pleased and stunned and surprised."

Ting, 41, received word in Geneva, Switzerland, where he has been working at the European Nuclear Research Center. "I am obviously very, very happy," he said. "And that, yes, that is all," he added after some hesitation, then broke into hearty laughter.

Each award carries prize money of $160,000. Richter and Ting, who worked independently of each other, will share that amount. The awards will be formally presented by King Carl XVI Gustav at a ceremony in Stockholm on Dec. 10.

Last week, two American virologists, Baruch S. Blumberg of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and Carleton D. Gajdusek of the National Institute for Neurological Diseases, won the medicine prize, and economist Milton Friedman the prize in economics.

The prize for literature is to be announced on Thursday. The peace prize is not being given this year.

Richter and Ting were cited for discoveries in the exploration of the smallest components of matter, smaller than atoms and their nuclei. Richter did his work at Stanford and Ting at the Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island.

The two men met at Stanford on Nov. 11, 1974 and found that their research teams had discovered the same elementary particle, called the "J Particle." They published separate scientific reports on the discovery within a week of each other.

"The significance (of my discovery) is that we have learned something more about the structure of the universe," said Richter. "In terms of practical application right now, it's got none. But like all discoveries in science, it has always happened before that the more man learned about the universe, the more he could do."

The work of Ting and Richter also confirmed the existence of a new property, called "charm," in the particles of the atomic nucleus. It is a property which, like the physical property of energy, is neither conserved nor destroyed in particle reactions.

Two leaving

Tom Ferguson, city finance officer and Harry Nagel, city manager, will attend a meeting in Dallas Thursday concerning the new revenue sharing regulation.

Democrats are expected to hold their nearly 3-1 domination nationwide.

In Washington and Vermont, women are vying to join Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut as heads of states. Both races are regarded as close.

Dixy Lee Ray, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and State Department official, won Washington's Democratic nomination in a blistering fight with Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman last month.

She is facing John Spellman, executive of the state's largest county and the favorite of retiring Gov. Dan Evans, the nation's senior GOP governor.

In Vermont, the Democratic nominee is Stalle Hackel, who beat the organization choice in a three-way primary. She was a utility lawyer who then headed a state employment security agency for 10 years before becoming state treasurer two years ago.

Her opponent is Richard A. Snelling, a sports equipment millionaire who is now majority leader of the state House. They've been sparring on taxes and state economic development. Some Democrats have declined to support their nominee, saying she is too conservative.

Illinois is the only one of the 10 most populous states with a gubernatorial contest this year. James R. Thompson, a Republican and former U.S. attorney in Chicago, is favored over Michael J. Howlett, the current secretary of state and candidate of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's Democratic organization.

If Thompson wins, he'll be propelled into prominence, at least temporarily, as a possibility for the GOP national ticket in 1980.

Thompson has contrasted his record as a prosecutor of politicians and organized crime figures to what he has cast as Howlett's image as an agent of the Daley organization.

The candidates have clashed over taxes, with Howlett promising no new levies and Thompson saying he can't promise what might or might not be needed. The Chicago Sun-Times' straw poll of selected areas in the state shows Thompson leading Howlett by 60.9 percent to 39.1 percent.

Utah Republican Atty. Gen. Vernon B. Romney has a slight edge on polls over Scott M. Matheson, who is bidding to succeed three-term Democratic Gov. Calvin L. Rampton. Democrats in Utah are worried about defections because of the sex offense trial of U.S. Rep. Allan T. Howe and his refusal to drop off the party's ticket.

Col. Spannaus is man caught in the middle

Webb is a hot issue. Like most hot issues, everyone is clearly on a side, everyone knows what they want. There is no clear figure in the argument who can speak to both sides, explaining the truth of the Air Force to Big Spring, and effectively presenting Big Spring's view to the Air Force.

Col. Harry A. Spannaus is the commander of the 78th Flying Training Wing. He is the man in charge of Webb Air Force Base. He is also, as much as anyone, the man in the middle.

Spannaus defines his position like this: "I work for the Air Force and I support their decisions. But I also support the worries of the community and their concern over Webb."

Spannaus admits problems with civilian personnel at Webb. He said that Webb is now functioning with 55 civilian openings, with an additional 26 expected to open either through transfer or retirement.

"But we're doing a good job with what we have," he said. "We're working hard, but we're not working an unusual amount of overtime."

Spannaus said if the base runs short of civilian manpower he could rely on temporary ATC help, "but I don't anticipate that happening," he said. "We've got too many people working at Webb who want to make Big Spring their permanent home."

Spannaus said his greatest problem right now is lack of training in critical skills.

"But I think some people are jumping the gun in departing from Webb," he said. "I can't argue with security, but I think we're going to be here for a considerable period."

Spannaus said he cannot offer "reassurances" to newcomers at Webb. He puts his faith with General Roberts at ATC headquarters, and the general's promise not to draw down Webb. Spannaus quotes Roberts as saying, "there is no other way." Then what kinds of alternatives does Spannaus see for Webb?

He believes that Webb can function at its present level, with its present number of students. He said he does not think the present number of civilian employees is out of line. He said Webb is not already condemned.

That means there are three alternatives for the base. The first is closure after public hearings and environmental impact review. The second would mean continuing at a presently stabilized level. The third, a return to former levels of activity and employment, could only occur with the closing of one or two other bases.

"Webb was formerly programmed to operate at a greater capacity," said Spannaus. "But there were figures which indicated Webb was overbalanced. The U.P.T. and RIF actions were taken to level the balance."

Spannaus publicly supports the Air Force position that cuts in manpower are necessary to free up funds for weapons research.

"I think it's intelligent to change the system to increase efficiency so the money saved can go into the defense of our country."

He calls equipment like the B-1 bomber, the F-15 and F-16 fighters, and AWACS "not just nice to have, but necessary to our defense."

But Spannaus seemed to give as much support to the town as he could when, in answer to "who speaks for Webb," he replied, "The civilians and the community."

Can't win game she created

BALTIMORE (AP) — The woman who invented a feminist parlor game called "Herstory" admits she's never won it, and she adds, "When men play, I usually place third or fourth."

But Sharon Donovan, 32, said she's content to let others succeed at the game, which started as an assignment for a course on "Sex Roles and Social Inequities."

"Herstory" is similar to most board competitions, Ms. Donovan, who prefers that designation, said in an interview. Players roll dice and move a designated number of spaces, with the winner the first to reach the block marked "Herstory."

Along the way, they pass over squares marked "Vote," "Exit from Home," "Go Home" and "Go to Work." There are special cards marked "Pay Checks," "Awards Certificates" and "Style Bulletins."

The board is sprinkled with drawings of items associated with women, like pots and pans, and with tools of predominantly male trades, such as the T square used in carpentry.

The game can be played either by older children or adults answering questions about women in history, or by younger children simply moving through the board and skipping the questions.

She said many of the questions concern figures important to the history of the women's movement, but who may be little known, such as the suffragette Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

Ms. Donovan said that while she was studying at the University of Maryland-Baltimore County five years ago, she wanted to come up with a simple game to teach children about women in history. So she took apart another child's game and painted the "Herstory" steps over the board.

She got an 'A' on the project, but promptly filed it in a desk drawer. In 1973, hearing that Ms. Magazine was interested in developing nonsexist toys, she brought it out again and redesigned it with the help of an artist and a Baltimore teacher friend.

Thinking it "looked beautiful," they sent the game to the magazine, but Ms. called a few days later to say that, although the game looked good, it didn't work.

"We hadn't played it," Ms. Donovan said with a laugh. When they did try it, she said, "it was so boring."

Arms taken in heist

The Howard County Sheriff's Department is investigating the burglary over the weekend of the Saragera Ochoa residence at Rt. 2, Box 36, Big Spring. The theft was reported today at 8:30 a.m.

A considerable number of arms were taken from the residence, including a .410 shotgun, a 12 gauge shotgun, a 30-30 Winchester, a 30-06 rifle, and a .22 caliber rifle. The thieves also got 100 rounds of 30-06 ammo.

Also missing from the home was a portable TV, two piggybanks containing change, a set of wedding rings, a Timex wristwatch, and a CB radio.

Sheriff A. N. Standard said the "considerable" theft could very likely be connected to two earlier incidents involving the loss of welding equipment and the loss of a stereo.

In this case, the resemblance is that both homes were left vacant over the weekend, and the thieves appeared to know the interior of the homes well.

Standard said the County has several persons under investigation.

For missing cargo ship

Little hope held out

NEW YORK (AP) — Coast Guard officials hold little hope that a Panamanian cargo ship reported missing with 37 crewmen in the infamous Bermuda Triangle section of the Atlantic Ocean will be found afloat.

A search was to resume at dawn today for the crewmen of the 590-foot Sylvia L. Ossa, carrying iron ore from Brazil to Philadelphia.

The ship was last heard from on Wednesday, about 140 miles due west of Bermuda, when she radioed that heavy weather and gale-force winds were forcing her to reduce speed. The 15,028-ton ship is owned by the Omnium Shipping Corp. of New York.

U.S. Coast Guard officials said Sunday they found an oil slick, a lifeboat, a coil of rope and "a sign board with the letters OSSA on it" near the ship's last reported location.

No vessels in the area reported receiving either a distress message or the traditional "Mayday" signal from the missing ship.

The triangle, an area bounded by Norfolk, Va.,

Puerto Rico and Bermuda, has for years been a subject of mystery and speculation in tales of ships and planes vanishing during calm weather and of ghost ships drifting, the fate of their crews unknown.

The official government position has been to discount any theories of malevolent powers at work in the waters.

"We don't recognize any geographic area off the southeast coast of the United States that is popularly referred to as the Bermuda Triangle," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

"The United States Coast Guard is not impressed with the supernatural explanations of the disasters at sea. It is our experience that the combined forces of nature and the unpredictability of mankind outdo science fiction stories many times each year."

Officials have also attributed the triangle's reputation as a swallower of shipping to the fact that, because of its location, the region is one of the heaviest traveled areas in the world.

An air search was conducted Sunday by two Coast Guard long-range search aircraft and one Navy plane over 8,200 square miles beginning from the Ossa's location at the time of last communication.

Ships in the area were alerted, and an Argentine vessel later picked up a lifeboat with "Sylvia 6, Panama" painted on its side.

Use of spray pays off for Florida grower

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Florida peanut farmer's experience with grinding bugs in his blender may be the answer for other farmers who are unsuccessful in beating pests with chemicals, reluctant to use chemicals on food crops or just tired of paying the price for them.

A copyright article in this month's Organic Gardening and Farming magazine describes the success of Frank Batey, who got his approach from Gainesville, Fla., pest-control specialist Mike Sipe.

Sipe, in turn, had read an article outlining the process in the magazine almost four years ago, the publication said.

What Batey did was collect samples of the pests eating up his crop: cabbage looper, stink bug, army worm, velvet-bean caterpillar, granular cutworm and others. He said he then ground them up and mixed about 5 cubic centimeters of the juice with 25 gallons of water to apply to the fields with his fungicide solutions.

That works out to about four ounces of juice in 1,500 gallons of spray. A half-pound of the worms provided enough basic ingredient for a spray to cover his 74 acres.

"So effective has the method been over two years that, in 1976, his third year, he didn't even have to spray the bug juice on his fields," the article said.

Batey said that he had been spending about $2,000 a year for chemical pesticides on his land and a 39-acre section he sharecrops nearby.

In the first year of using the juice, the magazine said, Batey's average yield was about 5,300 pounds of peanuts an acre, compared to yields of 2,000 to 3,000 pounds reported by others in Alachua County.

The latest USDA crop-production report indicates that 1974 statewide peanut yields in Florida were 3,100 pounds, second only to Georgia's. This year the indicated yield in Florida is about 3,000 pounds an acre.

Sipe told the magazine he thinks three factors may be responsible for the ground-up bugs killing their uncaptured fellows:

—Some of the pests in the collected cupfuls are bound to contain viruses, bacteria, fungi and other disease organisms that could trigger an epidemic among live bugs.

—The odor of the solution, similar to the odor of a bug-infested field, may attract the pest's natural enemies.

—The substances in the insects' bodies that trigger their responses to distress may be released in the blender and, in the spray, may repel the species once on the fields.

Batey said it took only three or four days after spraying the juice on the sharecropped acres for "most of the worms (to be) hanging dead from the leaves or ... in the rows."

The Agriculture Department continues to push wheat into export channels to try to help boost the domestic price and prevent a price-softening surplus next summer.

At the end of last week, for example, the department announced an increase of $16.8 million of wheat and wheat flour to its Food for Peace credit-sales agreement with Indonesia. That amounts to about 120,000 metric tons out of some 57.9 million produced.

The change also added about 50,000 metric tons of bulgur — parched, crushed wheat — to the pact, for a new total of $40.4 million worth of the commodities.

It also announced the signing of a new $31-million line of credit for Peru to finance sales there of $25 million worth of U.S. feedgrains and $6 million worth of U.S. soybeans. That's about 250,000 metric tons together.

Press is barred

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The trial of John Harvey Adamson, 32-year-old dog breeder charged with the bomb murder of newsmen Don Bolles, opens today with reporters and the public barred from the jury selection process.

More than 100 prospective jurors will be screened closely by both defense and prosecution as they select 12 jurors and eight alternates to try the man accused of luring the 47-year-old reporter to his fatal rendezvous last June 2.

No reporters or spectators will observe questioning of the prospective jurors, part of the move to forestall defense attacks on undue publicity which could prejudice its case.

There is also the matter of security for Adamson, held without bond since his arrest last June 13, the day Bolles died.

Both police and judges agree that no murder in Arizona has aroused the intensity of feeling nor the news coverage which has attended the Bolles case.

Presiding Superior Court Judge Frederic Heineman, regarded as a no-nonsense jurist who maintains tight discipline in the courtroom, has said he hopes to complete jury selection within two days.

Land use planning bill is opposed by Bentsen

Directors from the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District were in McAllen last week, attending the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation District Directors. Left to right — Kenneth Kuykendall, Cherokee, Texas Association President; W. L. Wilson Jr., Big Spring, chairman; and Leon Sterling, Snyder, member, Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation Districts Board of Directors; and Charles Wood, Lubbock, Texas Association vice chairman.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen told the conservation leaders that many well-meaning laws are passed by Congress with no practical value except to extend the bureaucracy.

The key to most legislation, the senator told the 36th Annual Texas Soil and Water Conservation District convention held in the McAllen Civic Center, is whether or not it is voluntary.

Bentsen also said he believes a land use planning bill is wrong and that he is opposing such legislation.

Bentsen, keynote speaker of the three-day convention, which got underway Tuesday afternoon, was introduced by Dee Brune of Sealy, association president.

Other conservation and legislative leaders addressing the three-day convention were Representative Bill Clayton, Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives; General James M. Rose, executive director, Texas Water Development Board; David A. Witts, attorney and general counsel, Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association; Mel Davis, administrator of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Washington, D.C. and Dee Brune, president, Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

During one business session the directors elected Kenneth Kuykendall, Cherokee, president; and Charles Wood, Lubbock, vice president.

Helping sell city's virtues

Flash on the screen goes the image of the big spring, a place where man has gathered as far back as 1300 B.C.

The big spring was a crossroads for Comanche Indians, as the detail drops out of the picture to send the mind reeling back in time.

With that perspective, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce's new slide and sound presentation on our community has begun.

THE PRESENTATION is done professionally by the Terry Young Corp. of Austin, which also has done one for Odessa, Edinburg and South-west Texas State University.

The presentation itself cost $3,000, and it is intended as an overview of Big Spring which could be used for almost any purpose from industrial development to the encouraging of tourism to the recruitment of doctors. About 1,200 slides of the community were taken for the presentation, and about 250 are used in the 14-minute show.

The presentation touches on a little of the town's history, its role as a medical center for West Texas, its place as a regional shopping center, and puts lots of emphasis on quality of life concepts such as the 70 churches, the homes of Big Spring, the parks, golf courses, Scenic Mountain and the lakes.

It deals with education, industry, and goes into particular discussion of transportation from the highway crossroads to the railroad center.

The presentation mentions the 800 motel rooms and the restaurants, saying, "You haven't had a steak until you've been to Big Spring."

The presentation also makes some "do" about the weather here: the 231-day growing season, the 265 days of sunshine, the second lowest humidity in the state.

The only area that the presentation does not touch upon is Webb Air Force Base, and because of the present uncertainty about the base, Industrial Manager Tom Roy said that it was decided not to include Webb since anything that could be done would be out of date before the presentation can be shown.

If the community is successful in its fight to save Webb, slides on Webb can be added to the presentation.

ALTHOUGH THE presentation is designed to show nonresidents something about Big Spring, the chamber is anxious for Big Spring folks to have a chance to see it.

Letters will be mailed to organizations encouraging them to contact the chamber and set up a showing.

Young said that he had expected that a presentation on Big Spring might be difficult to make. He said that his firm had been accused of carrying its own tree limb around with the photographer when the presentation on Odessa was done.

But the natural beauty of Big Spring, its mountains, its parks, made this presentation a very easy one to put together, he said.

As chamber President J. D. Nelson noted after seeing the presentation:

It gives you a very good feeling about living in Big Spring.

—J. TOM GRAHAM

Finally on Canal

William F. Buckley, Jr.

PANAMA CITY — I met in due course with the military arm, and put the question there to experienced men-at-arms: How, primarily, would the United States meet a challenge to the Panama Canal mounted by the Soviet Union? The answer, as expected, was: By the use of our navy and air force. These are the instruments by which we would abort, say, a shipload of Cubans, or even Russians, dispatched (presumably with the acquiescence of the government of Panama) to take control.

THERE ARE TWO other forms that a threat to the Canal might take. Against the first — a missile fired into one of the locks, there is no defense. We don't plan ABM installations for the Canal. The second is espionage, combined with guerrilla activity. Expert technicians confess that there was no way in which with any sense of assurance U.S. inspectors could examine very crevice of a huge tanker for the purpose of sweeping it clean of explosives. By the same token, short of posting marines arm to arm on two sides, over the entire length of the Canal, infiltrators could not be detected. And even then, guerrilla forces could dent the line at least temporarily, or lob, through mortars or whatever, an explosive into the lock.

Now bear this in mind. The Panamanian interest in the Canal is in very large part, national pride. But it is also in part the desire for income. They look on the Canal as their principal natural resource, and in a way it is. Remind a Panamanian that the United States paid for the Canal, and he is all prepared to smother you with counter arguments, some of them plausible, some sophistical. Among the former is the little known fact that for centuries before the Canal was built, the Panamanians portaged freight from one ocean to the other, charging approximately two per cent of the value of the freight — an enormous charge, by current standards.

The estimate is that current tolls add only one-third of one per cent to the cost of goods, sold, say, in America, produced in Japan. Now it is the clear intent of the Panamanian government, having "nationalized its primary resource" in the same sense that Venezuela nationalized its oil and iron deposits, to increase the toll charges perhaps as much as 200 per cent. The resulting increase in the cost to consumers of products that pass through the Canal would not be great. Many of the carriers, on the other hand, have the protection of considering other routes (it is as close to New York from Manila going through the Suez Canal), and the alternative of using rail from, say, San Diego to Mobile.

The point here is that Panama is not likely to acquiesce in the destruction of a canal which it looks to for several hundred million dollars of income. It is plausible to assume that Panama would side with the United States in defending the Panama Canal against, say, the Soviet Union.

THE RESIDENTS of the Canal Zone are suffering a sundering morale crisis. Incredibly, this is less the result of Panamanian importunity than of United States neglect. The myth is that the Panamanian Americans lead a hedonistic life. An hour with representatives of that community brings home the sacrifices they endure.

He finds money-saving prescription

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For about eight years I have been taking a medicine for heart palpitation. A few months ago I went to a hospital for tests. When the nurse brought me my heart pill I noticed it was a small white one instead of my usual green one.

I was afraid to take it, but the nurse assured me it was prescribed by my doctor and it was for my heart. When my doctor visited me I asked him about this and he said it was okay, that there was not that much difference in them. So when I had my prescription filled I called the doctor's office and asked the nurse if I should get the new one instead of the usual. She asked the doctor and he said it didn't make any difference. So I got the white one. It was much cheaper and I have been taking it ever since.

NOW I'M wondering if it is the same medicine and if it will do the same work. Or should I go back to the more expensive green pills? — Mrs. M.V.H.

You are not the first or last person to find a less expensive medication by accident.

I don't know what the medicine you are taking is, but you will often find identical medicines in different colors and containers. I suspect yours was of the digitalis group. Many drug companies market this very commonly used medicine.

Your doctor probably did not specify brand name when he prescribed for you in the hospital, but used the generic (non-trade) name for the actual drug. The hospital was using a less expensive brand.

You were sensible to switch, but even more sensible to ask your doctor about it first. Often a medicine made by one company will contain other substances your doctor may or may not want to include. Sometimes doctors prescribe brands they have come to trust, even while knowing other brands contain the same ingredients.

It might behoove patients once in a while to ask their physicians if there is another brand of a specific medicine that is less expensive.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had several hairs on my chin. On advice of a dermatologist I had them removed by electrolysis by an operator he recommended highly. They grew back again. I had them removed by electrolysis two more times and they came back in the very same places. Please comment. — Mrs. E.D.

You apparently have very deep hair follicles that the electrolysis's needle cannot reach. After three times I would call it quits and resort to clipping the offending hairs. Hairs will not grow where the follicle has been successfully removed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 24 years old, 5-foot-3 and weigh 130 pounds. Four years ago I weighed 183 pounds. I have stayed between 125 and 138 for the past two years. I can't seem to lose any more weight. Any suggestion? — P.T.

In my opinion you have already scored a major victory and should be congratulating yourself instead of looking for any more immediate weight loss.

You may be a few pounds over your ideal weight (depending on your frame), but I'd advise you to concentrate now on staying within the weight range you mention — with emphasis on the low end of it.

If you've been able to maintain the weight you say you have for the past two years, you apparently have used an effective program. Stick with it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I eat a lot of sauerkraut. Someone has told me the acid in it will take the lining off my stomach. Is this true? — Mrs. M.H.

Your stomach (if normal) is perfectly capable of handling all the sauerkraut you can eat.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am in my late 70s and am exceptionally healthy as proved by a complete checkup at a medical center. I have also had eye and dental examinations and everything was okay.

However, I have a problem none of the examiners could solve, namely the formation of ugly brown spots on my hands and wrists. The doctor suggested makeup to cover the spots, but he had no way to prevent or bleach them so they would be less conspicuous.

I would surely appreciate any suggestions on the subject. — Miss F.T.

You got the best advice available on the subject. Congratulations on your good health. Be thankful you've reached the age for "age" spots, which are pigment in the skin that appear with time.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I notice you frequently encourage people who are ill by saying that God can use their illness to draw them closer to Himself. This is certainly true. I have been in pain for many years, but God has used this to draw me closer to Himself, and I rejoice in this. — H. S.

DEAR H. S.: Thank you for your inspiring note. Yes, it is true God can use even the most difficult circumstance in life to draw us closer to Himself.

I have met many people whose outward situation was difficult because of sickness or poverty or some other problem, and yet they reflected the joy of Christ. On the other hand, I have met many people who outwardly had everything — health, fame, money, etc. — and yet they were among the most miserable people I knew. It was Christ who made the difference.

I think one reason for this is that people who apparently have few outward difficulties are inclined to trust themselves rather than God. But we must learn to trust Him in every circumstance of life, good or bad.

We can learn from the Apostle Paul's example of trust in God: "I have learned to be content whatever the circumstances. I know what it is to be in need, and I know what it is to have plenty. I have learned the secret of being content in any and every situation, whether well-fed or hungry, whether living in plenty or in want. I can do everything through him who gives me strength" (Philippians 4:11-13, New Int'l. Version).

Politics at work

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

Everyone has written a serious political rim this go around but me, and I would like to try now. After this, I promise . . . no more serious stuff at least for another four years.

FIRST OF ALL, I'm not going to try to persuade you to vote for the candidate of my choice. By now, you've probably got your mind just about made up, and I doubt if 90 per cent of the people in America will vote differently Nov. 2, from what they would today.

Secondly, I'm not going to sing the praises of the candidate of my choice, because the candidate of my choice isn't even in the running. But I won't even try to ameliorate the position of the man I have decided to vote for.

I'll just say that, believe it or not, the Webb situation has had a lot to do with my choice.

So much of the time in politics, as in any other situation that involves the power plays of a number of "big" people floundering around with the lives and futures of "smaller" people, the group of "small" people with the least clout, politically speaking, get their faces ground into the mud in favor of the bigger political block.

This has been the case with Webb. We all know the story of Webb by now. If you don't, then you have only been reading the comics and sports in this newspaper. The base is a good base. There's very little wrong with the operation or maintenance of it. Every once in a while someone will mention sandhill cranes as a problem, but there is no urban encroachment, and other bases have two runways, and other bases have the capabilities of training more pilots than we supposedly need.

BUT WEBB, and that other ATC base in Alabama are being closed instead of other ones because the area around them and us allegedly doesn't have a big enough block of voters to worry about if the politicians make them mad. If that sounds like sour grapes on my part, then it is. That's my true evaluation of the situation and not even Marj Carpenter could dissuade me.

For budget purposes, some bases might need to be closed, I don't know. And I wouldn't be mad if Webb was being closed for that one innocent reason alone.

"Big Spring doesn't have that much political power to warrant consideration," someone on Capital Hill, no doubt, said.

Big Spring represents the common man to me, the majority of the people in this nation who haven't gotten the consideration they deserve from a President as long as I've been alive.

And that's why I am voting CHANGE, why Lloyd Bentsen is going to do without my vote, why Omar Burleson will be doing likewise, and why that very nice, but do-nothing man in the White House will also be minus one vote.

Carter may not become a great President, but he will be someone different who'll at least take a shot at it.

WASHINGTON — Behind their fashionable walled villas high above Port-Au-Prince, American AID officials are in an absolute tizzy over our criticism of their lifestyle.

We questioned whether they should draw hardship pay for distributing aid to the hungry people of Haiti. They are supposed to help develop the impoverished nation and to feed its malnourished millions.

THEY MANAGE to do this in a style that is the envy of stateside tourists who pay premium rates for a few days of similar pleasure in Port-Au-Prince. For as we reported last August, the AID officials live in tropical luxury. They swim in private pools, are waited on by gracious servants, belong to exclusive private clubs and attend lavish cocktail and dinner parties.

To help them endure the tribulations of such an existence, they collect "hardship" allowance — a bonus of about 15 per cent above their regular salaries. They also draw generous housing and educational allowances so they can live in the grand manner and put their children through special schools.

Our reports infuriated the AID bureaucrats, who kept the wires burning between Port-Au-Prince and Washington as they speculated on ways they might repair their image.

Donor Lion, a high muck-a-muck temporarily in charge of Latin-American aid assured his minions in Haiti that the home office was "taking issue with Anderson's column."

Lion pledged that headquarters intended "to demonstrate to AID field personnel our continuing support of their efforts." He requested "as much information as possible" from Haiti "to respond to Anderson and to congressional and other inquiries concerned over Anderson's charges."

Yet try as they might, the AID contingent in Haiti couldn't refute the facts that we reported. Their responses were cabled to Washington by U.S. Ambassador Heyward Isham, who made a valiant effort, at least, to present all the mitigating circumstances.

"It is true," he acknowledged in one cable, "that some Americans live in comfortable houses with swimming pools." But he contended that there simply was too little housing "that would be acceptable by American standards, except those owned by wealthier Haitians. Many of these are built with swimming pools."

ACTUALLY, SOME middle-class houses are available in Port-Au-Prince. Our reporter, Hal Bernton, stayed in one. But these homes might not be adequate for families.

Dear Editor:

A lot of political rhetoric is evident at this time of the year. I think it's time we look at some facts as supplied by the U.S. Department of Labor as to how the people have fared during the last seven and one-half years of the Republicans in the White House.

1. A 64 per cent increase in consumer prices — (3½ times what it was during the years of Kennedy and Johnson)

2. The highest interest rates since the Civil War.

3. An accumulated budget deficit of $172.8 billion — nearly 3 times higher than the Kennedy-Johnson years. In fact, the Nixon-Ford deficit is higher than the total deficit the last twenty-five years.

4. Wholesale prices for farm products and feed up almost 80 per cent in 7½ years — 10 times the amount of increase from 1960 to 1968. Ford says he will run on his record. Let's don't let him hide from it.

The Ford Record

1. The worst housing slump since World War II caused by high interest rates and his bankrupt housing policy. Fewer than one half the housing units are being built that are needed and this has put prices out of reach of the average family.

2. Ford ignored warnings and concentrated on being an inflation fighter — Remember the WIN button??

Remember his tax increase proposal for average families? If that had become effective, as he proposed, things would be worse.

3. We have a 50 per cent increase in unemployment from the day he took office until today. It is unemployment, not congressional spending that causes the budget deficit. Ford admits in official reports required by law that there would be no deficits if unemployment had not risen, but he refuses to recognize the need for federal pump priming to put people to work who in turn pay taxes. No large corporation today would exist if it were not for deficit spending. They all sell stock, issue bonds, etc., to raise capital to become more successful. All realize one must spend money to make money. Wage earners are our country's greatest source of income from the taxes taken from their pay checks.

The Republicans propose a free market plan by dismantling all legitimate regulatory agencies; at the same time the public is hearing more, daily, about the corruption now existing in the many multi-National Corporations. Their platform provides for new tax breaks for the corporations, widens tax loopholes for the wealthy and opposition to a National Health Insurance to make the doctors' lobby happy and medical bills higher. The platform even provides a way for ending juvenile delinquency by providing a "Sub-Minimum Wage for Youth", trapping them in low wage, dead-end jobs.

Ford said in his news conference on the evening of Oct. 14 that his integrity meant more to him than being President and criticized Carter for errors and inaccuracies, but he failed to name a single error and inaccuracy speaking only in broad generalities. Ford is not trustworthy.

Jerry Ford publicly promised the leaders of the American Labor movement and made the same promise to the general public that if a Situs picketing bill should pass the U.S. Congress he would sign it. Then after the labor movement spent its time and money appearing before the Committees of both Houses answering all questions and the bill was passed, Jerry Ford showed how much one can rely upon his word by vetoing the bill. It matters not whether you or I supported this bill, it's the fact that Jerry Ford lied to the American people. We do not have to listen to his rhetoric; his record speaks loudly that he can not be trusted.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

MEAT COOKING KNOW HOW

Various kinds of meat...beef, pork, veal, lamb...can be grouped into two broad classifications of cooking methods. One group will be tender when prepared with dry heat, such as uncovered in an oven, on a broiler grill, over a charcoal fire, or in an uncovered frying pan. The other group will require moist cooking in order to be tender. Moist cooking includes braising, stewing, pot roasting and cooking in liquid. It's important to know which method of cooking is required for each cut of meat purchased. If you have any questions on the cooking method, just ask the meat man behind the counter. He'll be glad to tell you.

Generally, meats that require moist cooking are the more thrifty cuts, such as chuck roast, stewing beef, round steak, flank steak, rump roast, short ribs, corned beef and beef shanks. Cooked properly, these meats are very flavorful and delicious. In preparing pork of any kind, always keep in mind that it should be cooked well done for safe eating. A good cookbook will list the method and time required for cooking the various cuts of meat.

Some basic meat cooking methods are explained here:

ROASTING: Season meat with salt and pepper; place fat side up on rack in open pan. Insert meat thermometer, if desired. Do not add water and do not cover. Roast in slow to moderate oven (300° to 350°F.).

BROILING: Set oven regulator to broil; place meat on grill about 2 to 5 inches from heat. Brown on one side; turn and brown other. Broil to desired doneness. Season after cooking to help retain meat juices.

PAN-BROILING: Season meat and cook uncovered in heavy, ungreased or lightly greased frying pan. Brown on both sides, pouring off fat as it accumulates.

PAN-FRYING: Season meat and cook in small amount of hot fat in skillet, turning to brown both sides. Do not cover.

BRAISING: Brown meat on both sides in small amount of hot fat in skillet. Season with salt and pepper. Add small amount of water or other liquid; cover and simmer on top of stove or in the oven till done.

BOIL: Brown meat first, if desired, in heavy pan. Season with salt, pepper, etc., cover with liquid. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer, covered, till tender.

Three are shot to death

Violence claims 20 lives

By the Associated Press

At least 20 persons died violently in Texas over the weekend, including a popular Houston father-son broadcasting team and their wives who died in a plane crash Saturday.

The Associated Press began tabulating the deaths at 6 p.m. Friday. The counting stopped at midnight Sunday.

A total of 10 persons died in traffic, three were shot to death, two perished in fires and one was stabbed to death.

The plane crash near the South Central Texas town of Snook killed Dewey Compton, 50; his wife Curtis Perry Compton, 49; their son Ronnie Compton, 25; and his wife Sara Hart Compton, 27; all of Houston. The Department of Public Safety said the cause of the crash had not been determined. Dewey and Ronnie Compton originated farm programming from KTRH radio in Houston.

Some of the other fatalities:

A head-on car-truck crash Saturday near Newcastle killed three family members en route to see a young relative play in the Southern Methodist-University of Houston game in Dallas. The dead were Dennis Ray Briles, 44; his wife Wanda, 42; and Mrs. Briles' sister, Elsie Kittley, 66, all of Rule, where Briles was high school principal. The Briles' son, Art, is a split end for the Cougars. The DPS said the car collided with a tank truck on U.S. 380 in Young County.

A two-car crash Friday night on a farm road near Whitney claimed four lives. The DPS identified the victims as James Hattox, 48, and Electra Tatum, 68, both of Whitney; and two Dubuque, Iowa, residents, Roland Hall, 62, and his wife Madge Hall, 73.

Officials said Mattie Pope, 84, died of smoke inhalation Sunday in a Fort Worth residence where she had taken a lamp to bed with her to helpkeep her warm. The lamp ignited the mattress, investigators said.

A bizarre shooting in the Fort Worth suburb of Haltom City Friday night claimed the life of Don Eugene Hilcher, 36, of Fort Worth. Police said Hilcher was shot in an argument that began on the citizens band airwaves and also left another man in critical condition. Police said the men had been arguing on their CB's and challenged each other to a fight. Officers said the two men fought beneath a freeway underpass and a third man fatally shot Hilcher as he drove away.

A 29-year-old San Angelo man was fatally stabbed there early Saturday. He was identified as Justin Wayne Trammell. Police said the stabbing followed an argument.

A fire at a Grand Prairie residence Saturday killed Ruby Inez Crisp, 47, whom authorities said was a visitor at the house. Fire officials said the blaze apparently started when the woman's mattress caught fire while she was smoking in bed.

Criswell has new critic

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Dale Cowling, pastor of Little Rock's Second Baptist Church, says he considers the Rev. W. A. Criswell's criticism of Democrat Jimmy Carter's Playboy Magazine interview a cheap shot.

Cowling is a supporter of Carter. He said Saturday at a news conference he was dumbfounded by the reaction to the interview.

Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, has condemned Carter for being interviewed by Playboy.

Cowling said if the same article had appeared in a Southern Baptist publication "it would have been hailed as one of the truest statements Gov. Carter has made on Christianity."

Child study club meets

The Child Study Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Bob West, 2605 Apache, with Mrs. Don Adams serving as co-hostess.

Mrs. Martin Landers presented a program entitled "Recent Trends in Teaching Children in Elementary School." After her presentation, she displayed various media and explained the new techniques used in the classroom today.

Mrs. Landers has been a school teacher for 32 years, fifteen of which have been in Big Spring. She was listed in Who's Who in Texas Education in 1975. She has a bachelor degree from East Central College, Ada, Okla., and masters degrees from Baylor and Southwestern Baptist Seminary.

After the program, refreshments were served to eighteen club members.

The next meeting will be Nov. 10 in the home of Mrs. Spencer Wolfe, 2604 Cactus.

Club honors

Mrs. Forest

Mrs. Clint Forest was honored on her birthday during the Tuesday morning meeting of the Friendship Breakfast Club at the Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Melvin McFall opened the meeting with the devotion.

The room was decorated with a Halloween theme. A witch figure centered the table. Candles served as place favors.

Each member present gave a thought on friendship. Mrs. Justin Holmes served as hostess. Mrs. Holmes will again be hostess during the Nov. 9 meeting at the Holiday Inn. Names for the Christmas party will be drawn during the meeting.

The meeting closed with the club prayer.

OWC slates Thursday meet

Members of the Officers' Wives Club (OWC) will meet Thursday for coffee in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas Company. Janice Rebenalt, home economist from Midland is presenting the program.

There is no charge for this event hosted by the OWC. This cooking program will demonstrate converting recipes to the metric system of measure.

The OWC board will meet at 10 a.m. Oct. 28 in the officers' club. All elected officers and committee chairman are required to attend.

Members unable to attend are asked to notify the president, Leila Meacham, at least 12 hours in advance and inform her of whom their representative will be.

Teen's warning: Keep it clean

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from HEAVY-HEARTED DAD whose pregnant daughter wasn't even through eighth grade, I had to write. This is for all teenage girls whose boyfriends try to pressure them into going all the way:

I'm 16 and my boyfriend is 18. Sure, we go parking and make out, but when he mentions fourth base, I set him straight right away.

My feeling is this: We have our whole lives ahead of us, so why take a chance on ruining it when we're young? If your boyfriend says, "If you love me, you'll prove it by going all the way," tell him to get lost. Keep a level head and don't ever go so far you can't turn back. It's not worth it. Sign me...

A FIRM "NO"

DEAR FIRM: Congratulations! Fifteen years ago I wrote a book, "DEAR TEENAGER," but the chapter "Should I Prove My Love?" is still sound advice for teenagers. And here it is:

Girls need to "prove their love" through illicit sex relations like a mouse needs a hat rack.

Why not "prove your love" by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas? Or playing leap-frog out in the traffic? It's about as safe.

Clear the cobwebs out of your head: Any fellow who asks you to "prove your love" is trying to take you for the biggest, most gullible fool who ever walked. That proving bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented!

Does HE love YOU? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants whatever is best for you. But now figure it out. He wants you to:

Commit an immoral act...
Surrender your virtue...
Throw away your self-respect...
Risk the loss of your precious reputation...
And risk getting into trouble...

Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? This is the laugh of the century. He wants what's best for HIM...he wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense.

Love? Who's kidding whom! A boy who loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. If you want my opinion, this self-serving so-and-so has already proved that he DOESN'T love you.

The predictable aftermath of "proof" of this kind always finds Don Juan tiring of his sport. That's when he drops YOU, picks up his line and goes casting elsewhere for bigger and equally silly fish.

At times, still another version of this modern tragedy occurs, as indicated by this letter I once received:

DEAR ABBY: I went steady for seven months with a boy I thought was the most wonderful person in the whole world. I thought I'd always stay decent. After a while we weren't satisfied with just kissing.

He asked me to prove my love. I thought as long as we planned to be married in a few years, what would it matter?

I gave in to him, Abby, and I found out it mattered a lot. He lost all respect for me. He started going with other girls. He even talked about me to other boys.

Please print this for all the girls to see. Maybe it will help someone who is tempted to prove her love like I did.

Women's lib slow to catch

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Like blue jeans and the latest rock records, ideas on women's liberation have drifted into Brazil from the United States and Europe.

But when they get here, they run up against a wall of complacency from an upper-middle-class female population, plus a feeling among career women who support liberation goals that once a woman has children, she has to put her career behind her.

"The women's movement in Brazil is nonexistent," explained Mrs. Ana Lucia Marinho Gambuzzi, a 26-year-old lawyer. "Most women are comfortable and satisfied. They don't really care."

She takes her career seriously and points out that there were more women than men in her law class at a prestigious private school here. She also declared that once you have children "you are being unrealistic if you think you can go on rising in your career."

Gerusa Pereira, a hotel sales manager in her late 20s, said of women's liberation: "I don't think it will work. I believe a woman can be a great professional and she can compete equally with a man, but sooner or later she is going to meet someone who pulls her away from her career."

As the cost of living increases, many middle-class women in Brazil are working to help support the family. But career goals are limited and these women tend to gravitate toward such "women's jobs" as teaching or secretarial and clerical work.

Women point out that it has only been in the past 20 years that it became automatic for middle-class girls to go to universities, and that only recently have they started to get jobs after graduation.

"Five years ago there were women who had degrees as lawyers, psychologists and economists, but they were all working as secretaries," Ms. Pereira said.

As in the United States in the 1950s, the vast majority of middle-class women in universities or jobs are killing time until they marry or have children. Ms. Pereira said it was rare to find a woman who planned a career and went out and pursued it "because she gets hit so many times and she can't take it for very long."

Scarf prints add excitement

COLLEGE STA'ION — Scarf prints, an exciting new fashion fabric look, create garments with individualized uniqueness, Mrs. Becky Culp, an area clothing specialist, points out.

"The 'scarf look' includes large square or rectangular panels with border designs around the four outside edges. Often the design includes a prominent design along the center, spreading toward the borders," she said.

Mrs. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Scarf prints are usually a medium to lightweight fabric and are available in a variety of fibers and blends. One or more companion, smaller scale prints or solids are often available to coordinate with scarf print fabrics sold by the yard."

The specialist suggested placing scarf panel borders to emphasize certain garment design details such as two borders meeting at the center front or back.

Red Machine takes two

CINCINNATI (AP) — Catfish Hunter was complaining about the mound in Riverfront Stadium. It was too hard, he said, and he couldn't dig a hole.

So Fred Stanley, New York's shortstop, dug one for him and Cincinnati's Tony Perez buried him.

The result was a 4-3 Cincinnati victory in Game Two of the World Series on a chilly Sunday night, giving the Reds a 2-0 advantage in the best-of-seven series, which shifts to Yankee Stadium Tuesday night.

Hunter had been battered around by the Reds in the second inning and had almost been chased in the third. But now it was the ninth and the Yankees' ace was mowing them down.

There were two outs, one away from sending the first Sunday night World Series game into extra innings.

Up came Ken Griffey, who has made a career of beating out infield hits. He sent a chopper over Hunter and the mound. Stanley charged in and fired the ball — right into the Cincinnati dugout behind first base. Griffey got the extra base to move into scoring position.

Up came Joe Morgan — and right to first he went, compliments of an intentional walk. One doesn't pitch to baseball's most dangerous hitter if one doesn't have to.

And up came Perez, who has made a career of turning men in scoring position into runs.

One pitch was all it took — the one that had been getting him out all night. It was a fastball. It came to the plate fast and headed into left field even faster.

And just as fast was Griffey, tearing home with the run that gave the Reds a victory.

"Being down two, I don't think they can win four of the next five," Griffey said of the Yanks, who have managed to do just that twice before. Among their 29 World Series titles are two — in 1956 against Brooklyn and 1958 against Milwaukee — when they came back from losses in the first two games. It's been done only four other times.

"We're down, but we have a very good chance of bouncing back," said Yankees' Manager Billy Martin. "It's happened before and it can happen again."

It appeared that what happened to the Yanks in the first game, Saturday's 5-1 loss, was happening again Sunday night. That is, the Reds jumped all over New York pitching for clothesline hits, some of them for extra bases, and the Yanks were stranding runners left and right, squandering opportunities to make a game of it.

In the second inning, a double by Dan Driessen, a run-scoring single by George Foster, a double by Johnny Bench after Foster was thrown out trying to steal, a walk to Cesar Geronimo, an RBI-single by Dave Concepcion and a sacrifice fly by Griffey had the Reds in front 3-0 and 54,816 fans roaring.

In the third, singles by Perez and Driessen and a walk to Geronimo had Hunter on the ropes again — but he squirmed out of the jam by fanning Concepcion.

"When he got away from us in the third," Reds Manager Sparky Anderson said, "I thought he had us for the rest of the night."

He very nearly did. Except for a fourth-inning triple by Morgan and an eighth-inning single by Bench, Catfish was untouchable.

Meanwhile, the Yanks were starting to touch Fred Norman, the Reds' little left-hander.

They nudged him for a run in the fourth on singles by Thurman Munson, Chris Chambliss and Graig Nettles, but let him off a one-out-and-two-on hook.

Anderson gave him the hook in the seventh as New York scored twice to tie at 3-3. Willie Randolph's single and Stanley's double scored the first run and when Roy White also singled, Norman was gone. Jack Billingham came on and gave up Munson's grounder that sent Stanley home with the tying run.

Now it was the ninth. The fans were clapping — perhaps to keep warm as well as to generate some heat from the Reds. The temperature was in the low 40s.

Concepcion fled out.

Pete Rose fled out. And Griffey very nearly grounded out — but not quite.

"He's got 38 infield hits," Stanley said of Griffey. "I know he can run. He would have been out on a good throw. His speed had everything to do with the play. If I don't hurry, he's safe anyway. The best thing I can do is get the ball, get rid of it and hope I get off a good throw."

He didn't. The ball and Griffey crossed first almost simultaneously. But the ball shot into the Reds' dugout and Griffey was waved to second by umpire Bill Deegan.

"It hit a hole where the gate is lower than the stands, so he went to second," Martin said. "He wouldn't have gotten to second normally."

Morgan was up next. "Catfish was having pretty good luck with Perez and I'd rather pitch to him than the other guy," Martin said of Morgan. He conferred with Hunter. "He had it in his mind to walk Morgan," Catfish said of his manager, "and I wanted to do the same thing."

Rose summed up the quandry brilliantly. "You've got to walk the best hitter in baseball to get to the best clutch hitter in baseball," he said.

And Morgan chimed in: "I wanted to hit. But I'm glad Tony was up there. He delivers."

GAME WINNING HIT — This was the scene in the bottom of the ninth inning when Cincinnati's Tony Perez singled to left field scoring Ken Griffey and the winning run Sunday in the second game of the World Series. Reds won 4-3.

Dudley still optimistic

The Howard College linksters "faded" on the last nine holes to take a fifth in weekend tournament play in Roswell, N.M.

"This is probably the worst we could play and still be optimistic," said Coach Jerry Dudley.

Playing conditions at the tournament were nothing to write home about. Skies were overcast. Temperatures were in the 40s. Some rain fell. And the wind blew at a continuous 25 miles per hour.

Dudley did have good words for Odessa's effort on the greens. "Odessa played outstanding, coming from seventh at Clarendon to first at this tournament," he said.

The next conference matches will be held at Ranchland Hills in Midland on Oct. 28, and at the Odessa Country Club on Oct. 29. These two tournaments will conclude conference action for the fall semester.

Those three teams included Pat Weaver and Howard Hall, Ray Mize and Dwayne Glover of Dallas, Jack Cook and Hal Battle of Midland. ## Weekend gridiron action hot and heavy

Cards fly over Cowboys

Really, Jim Hart, nobody ever thought the St. Louis Cardinals were a fluke. Except, maybe, the Dallas Cowboys.

No more, though! Dallas was on its way to its best start since 1969, when the Cowboys went 6-0. They looked unstoppable. Roger Staubach and Drew Pearson appeared to be an unbeatable combination.

Somehow, though, Hart and the Cards' defense figured a way to stop them, ending the longest winning streak in the National Football League this season and take away sole possession of the lead in the National Conference East Division.

Hart overcame two interceptions, which stopped potential scoring drives, and completed 22 of 33 passes for 346 yards and three touchdowns, including two to Mel Gray, one a 54-yarder, as the Cardinals edged the Cowboys 21-17 Sunday.

The victory left the Cardinals and Cowboys with identical 5-1 records and enhanced St. Louis' chance of capturing its third straight NFC East crown.

"I don't think anybody can say we're a fluke now and can't be considered a favorite to win another division title," Hart said.

The Cards weren't quite able to contain Staubach, who completed 21 of 42 passes for 250 yards and two TDs — one an 11-yarder to Pearson. Still, they sacked the Dallas quarterback four times for 21 yards in losses.

"We just didn't capitalize on the chances we had," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "But you've got to give them credit. They had the chances, and they made the most of them."

The New York Jets play at New England Monday night.

Vikings 24, Giants 7
Fran Tarkenton threw two scoring passes — including a 41-yarder to Chuck Foreman — and completed 21 of 30 attempts for 288 yards as the Vikings became the NFL's only undefeated team at 5-0-1.

Foreman rushed for 83 yards and caught eight passes for 118 yards.

Steelers 23, Bengals 6
The Steelers, 2-4, broke a three-game losing streak and remained alive in the American Conference Central Division race, while handing the division-leading Bengals their second loss in six games.

Franco Harris carried the ball a record 41 times, gaining 143 yards and scoring twice. Harris' yardage made him the top rusher in Steelers history, with 4,485 yards.

The Steelers were playing with rookie Mike Kruczek at quarterback in place of injured Terry Bradshaw. Kruczek kept the ball on the ground most of the day, completing only five of 12 passes.

Chiefs 20, Dolphins 17
Kansas City, 2-4, won its second straight when Jan Stenerud kicked a 34-yard field goal with 12 seconds left in overtime. Stenerud admitted he wasn't thinking just of this game but was mullying over past history. He was thinking back to 1971, when he missed a 31-yarder that led to a double overtime loss to Miami in the playoffs. The Dolphins now are 2-4.

49ers 33, Saints 3
Gene Washington caught his 51st career touchdown pass, and San Francisco, 5-1, maintained its lead in the NFC West at the expense of New Orleans, 2-4.

The 55-yard scoring strike from Jim Plunkett gave Washington 5,817 career reception yards, making him the most productive 49ers pass catcher ever. The 49ers lost their other wide receiver, Willie McGee, who suffered a broken leg.

Raiders 17, Broncos 10
The AFC West-leading Raiders, 5-1, came from behind on a 46-yard Ken Stabler-to-Cliff Branch touchdown pass and Pete Banaszak's one-yard TD plunge in the third quarter.

Stabler completed 16 of 20 passes for 175 yards against Denver, 3-3.

Cots 31, Bills 13

Bert Jones unloaded two touchdown passes in the fourth quarter — a nine-yarder to Glenn Doughty and a threeyarder to Don McCauley — as Baltimore, 5-1 and leading the AFC East, beat Buffalo, 2-4.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson continued to work himself into form after an inactive preseason, carrying 20 times for 88 yards.

Chargers 30, Oilers 27
Bo Matthews caught a 42-yard touchdown pass from Dan Fouts and scored the winning TD in the fourth quarter on a one-yard plunge to lift San Diego, 4-2, over injury-plagued Houston, also 4-2.

Redskins 20, Lions 7
Washington, 4-2, and coming off two straight setbacks, capitalized on two interceptions in breaking open a game that was scoreless at halftime. Pat Fischer's interception set up one of two Mark Moseley field goals, and Joe Lavender's theft set up Mike Thomas' threeyard scoring run, as the Lions dropped to 2-4.

Rams 20, Bears 12
Trailing 12-10, the Rams, behind backup Ron Jaworski, scored on a 72-yard drive, capped by Lawrence McCutcheon's 18-yard run, and Los Angeles, 4-1-1, rallied to beat the Bears, 3-3.

Seahawks 13, Buccaneers 10
Jim Zorn completed 11 of 29 passes for 167 yards, including a 15-yard touchdown pass to Sam McCullum, as Seattle, 1-5, gained its first regular-season NFL victory over winless Tampa Bay in a battle of expansion clubs.

Packers 28, Eagles 13
Green Bay, 3-3, won its third straight as Lynn Dickey passed for 226 yards, including scoring bombs of 44 yards to Ken Payne and 69 yards to Will Harrell.

Browns 20, Falcons 17
Greg Pruitt scored two touchdowns, on runs of one and two yards, and gained 191 yards on 26 carries for Cleveland, which evened its record at 3-3.

BEHIND A WALL OF MUSCLE — St. Louis Cardinals running back Jim Otis (35) goes for a gain of three yards behind wall of St. Louis Cardinals offensive muscle during 4th quarter against the Dallas Cowboys, Sunday in St. Louis. St. Louis won, 21-17.

Good idea that paid off

with Marj Carpenter

The Gala is on the 28th of October this year. It's an invitational benefit that annually raises a good deal of money for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

The driving force of the three-year-old event is Jan Morgan. She got an idea three years back and put it to work. She planned the first one which was held at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

There were furs and jewelry sold and everybody had a big time and the rehabilitation group received a good chunk of cash.

LAST YEAR, the event grew. It was held at the Big Spring Country Club and western art was added. Again the profits for the rehab center were fantastic. Invitations just went out for this year's Gala. It's scheduled on Thursday, Oct. 28 from 6 to 10:30 p.m. at the Big Spring Country Club. Music will be furnished by the Jack Gannon Trio of Dallas for the black tie event.

John Tauben of Dallas, wholesale furrier and importer of diamonds will again hold a showing. The artists showing this year include an impressive list from Texas, New Mexico, Minnesota, and Oklahoma.

Joining together as hosts for the big event this year, in addition to the Kent Morgans are the Rich Andersons, the E. H. Bouliouins Jr., the Roger Browns, the R. B. G. Cowpers, the D. L. Dorlands, Mrs. Doris Chalk Cole, Mrs. Will P. Edwards Jr., the A. K. Guthries, Miss Marie Hall, the Jerry Idens, Mrs. R. D. Kilgore of Lamesa, the George McAlisters, the K. H. McGibbons, the Lorin S. McDowells III, the Toots Mansfields, Gene Mikeska, the E. L. Powells, the Arlis Ratliffs, Drs. Virgil and Nell Sanders, the John Taylors, the Clyde Thomases, the Gary Turners, the R. H. Weavers, the W. L. Wilsons Jr., the Jerry Worthys, and the Winston Wrinkles.

This year, the first Concert Series program, the Polish National Symphony Orchestra is also Oct. 28. I think Big Spring's big enough for both. I hope that if there are those who have concert tickets who plan to attend the Gala, they will give their tickets to somebody else to help fill the concert hall.

Or to those who hope to attend both, the Gala lasts until 10:30 p.m. Possibly, you can attend the concert and then the end of the Gala. This is going to have to be individual decisions.

There is also the possibility of going to the Gala first. They serve dinner at 7:30 p.m. The concert starts at 8:30 p.m. So you can make them both that way.

BUT, BEING one of the people that thinks both events are really worthwhile and great events, I hope it will work out for everyone.

John Reichert of Springfield, Ill., agreed. Reichert planted pumpkins on about four acres of land this year. He is selling most of them at his own garden market for prices ranging from 59 cents to $3.

"Pumpkins are more scarce," he said. "Not that they didn't do well. There just aren't as many. They are good in quality."

Reichert blamed dry weather during the summer for the smaller supply. He said that the pumpkins he didn't sell at his own store went to supermarkets at a wholesale price of $50 a ton, up from $40 a ton last year.

According to the USDA, Illinois is the country's largest pumpkin producer, followed by California and New Jersey. About 80 per cent of all pumpkins are sold in October.

Those who choose to go to half of each will have a fantastic evening. Those who choose to give concert tickets to some friends will bring joy to those friends.

It's going to be a fun night in Big Spring.

Pumpkins in short supply

By the Associated Press

Would-be ghouls, ghosts and goblins may find fewer pumpkins than usual in stores and roadside stands this Halloween, but a spot check shows there should still be plenty of the bright orange vegetables to carve into jack-o'-lanterns.

There have been scattered reports from individual growers in the Midwest that this year's pumpkin supply was down. But the U.S. Department of Agriculture doesn't keep statistics on over-all pumpkin production. And one USDA spokesman noted that rumors of small crops are common just before big selling seasons.

While the federal government has no way of keeping tabs on the pumpkins that are sold at roadside stands, usually only a few miles from where they are grown, it does measure the number of pumpkins at 41 major terminal markets.

The 1976 figures are not yet complete. But a smaller crop would be a reversal of a trend. From 1974 to 1975, for example, the amount of pumpkins by weight, unloaded at the terminal markets, increased from 27.6 million to 29.8 million pounds, a boost of about 8 per cent.

(Note: These figures include only what are known as fresh market pumpkins; they do not cover the millions of pounds of pumpkins and squashes used for processing in canned and frozen foods.)

Retail prices of pumpkins vary, but they are generally higher than last year. Cost depends on size, with the big pumpkins favored for jack-o'-lanterns usually ranging in price from $2.50 to $4.50.

Checks with growers and sellers indicated that the pumpkins that are available are top quality.

"The size is excellent this year," said Gerald Huber, a Starlight, Ind., grower. "Our size over-all is probably bigger than it has been in the last five years."

Huber said, however, that the acreage devoted to pumpkins in his area has decreased as farmers turned to other, more profitable crops. "The volume is way off," he said.

John Reichert of Springfield, Ill., agreed. Reichert planted pumpkins on about four acres of land this year. He is selling most of them at his own garden market for prices ranging from 59 cents to $3.

"Pumpkins are more scarce," he said. "Not that they didn't do well. There just aren't as many. They are good in quality."

Industry at the crossroads

Makes you feel good

by Tom E. Roy

Industrial Manager, BS Ch. of Commerce

When company comes to your house, you like to know if they enjoyed their stay. If it is evident that they did have an enjoyable visit, it makes you feel really good. Well, it looks like Berkley Homes have enjoyed their stay and does it ever make you feel good!

The news of their expansion was certainly well received, for several reasons. It is always nice to see someone enjoy success, but in this case it has a deeper meaning. We have suffered enough bad news for the time being, and it is encouraging that a company like Berkley has enough confidence in our future to make such a decision. Evidently they feel like we will continue to be a progressive, growing city although faced with the possibility of Webb closing, and they are willing to "put their money where it counts" so to speak.

The Berkley announcement draws attention to what has been said many times but bears repeating. Existing industry is the catalyst for future growth. If our existing industry enjoys success, it helps our economy immediately and makes Big Spring more attractive to prospective industry. And evidently, our existing industry is enjoying a good deal of success. We have added over 200 new manufacturing jobs in the last year from all of our present industry. That is the equivalent of one major new employer being added to the economy. Other firms have expanded besides Berkley Homes, and the future seems fairly rosy for additional growth this year. We at the Chamber of Commerce will do everything we can to insure that our existing industry can fulfill its potential.

Ready for some more good news? We have just received our slide presentation, and everyone seems very pleased with the results. It will be a very valuable tool in industrial development as well as many other endeavors. It is brief, to-the-point, and very professional looking. If any civic organizations desire to see the slide presentation, it would make an ideal program and we will be glad to arrange it.

Bill would aid border

McAllen, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Alan Steelman, R-Tex., said Sunday he will introduce a bill in the next Congress to bolster small businesses on the border that suffer "economic injury" as a result of such moves as the devaluation of the Mexican peso.

He said he had drafted such legislation prior to the congressional recess, but there was not enough time to act on it. He said he will introduce it in January.

In remarks prepared for a news conference, Steelman said he had written President Ford, asking that a presidential task force "evaluate the situation." In his letter, Steelman said, "Gross revenue of American retail businesses have decreased significantly as a result of the peso's devaluation. The devaluation. The devaluation has had particularly disastrous effects upon American retail businesses near the Mexican border."

He urged in his remarks that until Congress can act, money be made available from the Economic Development Administration to assist small businesses "which have suffered substantial economic loss."

"The economic interests of American small businesses along our borders can be safeguarded" through an amendment to the Small Business Act, Steelman said. "The administration would thus be permitted to assist small businesses which are substantially injured by our neighboring countries, and no longer would the success of American small businesses located in border areas be so dependent upon the changes of laws of another country."

Famed sleuth pops up in New York tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sleuth, the whole sleuth and nothing but the sleuth are on display tonight at NBC. We have reference to a two-hour TV movie called "Sherlock Holmes in New York."

While Sir Arthur Conan Doyle didn't compose the plot, his three most famous characters are all in this opus, which I'd bet will be hailed by Baker Street Irregulars and civilians alike.

Roger Moore plays Holmes, Patrick MacNee is Dr. Watson, Holmes' aide-de-camp, and John Huston checks in — with fine, malevolent gusto — as Holmes' archfoe, the nefarious Professor Moriarty.

The game's afoot in 1901, and as usual involves Moriarty's unrelenting effort to publicly humiliate and destroy the famed detective who seeks to have him fitted with a hangman's cravat.

All this is quickly established when Holmes visits the good professor's digs near the London docks and informs him he's just demolished Moriarty's infamous crime organization.

"Blast you, Holmes, blast you," Moriarty growls, not at all mollified that Holmes can't get anyone in the gang to fink on their boss and put him in the slammer for keeps.

After displaying some lethal office gadgets, Moriarty whips out a gun.

But he doesn't use it, snarling, "I will destroy you. But in my own fashion."

Said fashion, he adds, will be "the crime of the century" he'll pull off before Holmes' very eyes with the idea of humiliating history's most famous detective in the eyes of the world.

BEFORE — This is the pre-renovation picture of the future Northside Day Care Center near N.E. Seventh and Goliad. The "after" picture will not be ready for about a year, according to Paul Hood, building trades instructor at Big Spring High School (far left, kneeling). In the coming year, starting around Thanksgiving, the two high school trades classes pictured above will help to pull off the transformation. Those students working on the project are: Johnny L. Davis, Danny L. DeLeon, Robert Delgado, Robert Fitzgibbons, Jay Holcombe, Lawrence R. Lozano, John W. ## Burt Reynolds is improved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds, hospitalized over the weekend with chest pains, was expected to leave the hospital today.

The 40-year-old movie star entered the cardiac care unit at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Saturday night, spent a comfortable night and was improved Sunday, a hospital spokesman said.

Reynolds gained extensive publicity after appearing in a nude centerfold in "Cosmopolitan" magazine. He has starred in such movies as "Deliverance" and "The Longest Yard."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 19, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds you with increased resourcefulness and you can easily gain your objectives. Later you need to guard against fraud by unsuspecting persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Rising early is wise since the planets are favorable and you can accomplish a great deal. A co-worker is more cooperative now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can carry through with some creative work today and make substantial progress. Work on any hobbies you may have.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle important business matters early in the day. Study all aspects of a new venture you have in mind. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't neglect correspondence and make an effort to communicate well with others. Sidestep a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Spend more time on a new project that could add to present income. Check on your surroundings and make necessary repairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take steps to improve your vitality and well-being. Contact friends early since they are likely to be busy later in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Consult a trusted adviser who can be of help to you where some personal matters are concerned. Engage in more interesting pursuits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact close friends as early as you can and gain their help for some aim that means much to you. Don't argue with a foe.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get in touch with a higher-up early and get the backing you need for career advancement. Avoid temptation toward extravagance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have new ideas that should be worked on quickly since they can benefit you greatly. Don't rely on regular sources of data now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to understand closest tie more and come to better accord. Avoid arguments, especially in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure to carry through with contracts made and establish more harmony with associates. Try to reconcile with one who opposed you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she should have a fine education, preferably directed along troubleshooting professions, since there is the ability to handle problems in a most expeditious way. Give good spiritual training early in life. Sports are a must here.

Now—$1 enrolls you in the new Physicians Hospital Plan that lets you choose your plan and renewal rate. It pays you cash benefits from the very first day you're in the hospital— $900 a month ($30 a day).

We guarantee to issue you this insurance—regardless of your age, health or family size. Then you can renew for as little as $7.55 a month—depending on your age.

- Pays cash benefits from the very first day of hospitalization.
- Pays $900 a month cash—$30 a day—for you, your wife and children.
- 50% cash increase for cancer and heart attacks.
- New sicknesses and accidents are both covered immediately.
- No limit to the number of days you can collect cash benefits.
- Cash benefits paid direct to you—to spend as you wish—unless you tell us otherwise.
- Guaranteed renewable for life.
- Pays over and above any other insurance you may have—including Medicare.

These days, one of the most scary things about going to the hospital is the final bill. Inflation has driven up the average price of hospitalization in the United States to $130 a day according to the American Hospital Association. So even if you already have basic hospital insurance, it only covers part of the cost. You have to come up with the rest.

Meanwhile, if you're hospitalized for any length of time, your income may stop. And those bills will keep piling up at home—rent, loans, mortgage, telephone, utilities, credit card and all the rest. Pretty soon, you could find most of your savings are eaten up. You could even wind up deeply in debt.

Now for the good news. Physicians Mutual Insurance Company—run by doctors since 1902—has created this new Physicians Hospital Plan to help give you and your family extra protection against the high cost of hospitalization. Here's how it works—and why you should enroll now:

$900 a month—$30 a day—cash!

Hospital rates are usually the same for everybody. That's why this policy pays the same $30 a day cash benefit when you, your wife or any of your children are hospitalized for any covered sickness or accident. Compare these benefits with other policies that pay reduced benefits for dependents.

50% increase in cash benefits for cancer and heart attack: $1350 a month, $45 a day.

No one likes to think about getting cancer or having a heart attack. But it happens all the time. About 53 million Americans now living will eventually have cancer. That's 1 in 4 persons. And it's estimated that nearly 4 million people have a history of heart attack. We sincerely hope you never have to collect. But if you should, daily benefits are increased 50% if you or any covered member of your family are hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease) or heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion).

Double benefits for you and your wife!

When your wife is covered and both of you are hospitalized at the same time due to accidents, your daily benefits are increased. That's right, you get twice the regular cash benefit—$360 a month ($120 a day) to help you through this emergency. By the way, hospitalization doesn't have to be due to the same accident: you and your wife could be injured in unrelated accidents.

*American Cancer Society **American Heart Association

If you have any questions about this policy call 800-228-9100 toll-free from anywhere in the Continental United States. (Nebraska residents, call 402-558-8900 collect). Our Customer Service staff is ready to serve you from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Central Time, Monday thru Friday.

Pays you maternity benefits, too!

You'll collect full benefits—$30 a day—for hospitalization due to pregnancy or any pregnancy complication, if coverage includes your wife and if your policy has been in force for 10 months or more. There's no added cost to you!

No waiting period for accidents or new sicknesses.

You're covered the very minute your policy is issued and put in force for new sicknesses—and accidents. That means you could be rushed to the hospital a few minutes after you get your policy—and be able to start collecting your $30 a day benefits immediately, starting that very day!

You get lifetime coverage and benefits.

There's no limit on the number of days for which you can collect cash benefits. You can be hospitalized as often as necessary and stay as long as you have to—knowing that your $30 a day benefits cannot run out. Our plan will pay you benefits for as long as you're hospitalized—even for life!

Pays cash benefits in addition to any other insurance you have.

Remember, this is extra, supplemental protection. Your benefits are paid over and above any other insurance you may carry—including Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Major Medical and Medicare. This policy is designed to help you make up the difference between your total hospital bill and what your other insurance will pay.

Your benefits are not taxable.

Your benefits from your Physicians Mutual Policy are not taxable by any level of government. They are not subject to state or Federal income tax.

Your policy is guaranteed renewable.

Don't forget, this extra protection is yours as long as you want to have it and pay your premiums when due. We cannot drop you or cancel your coverage because your health changes, or because you're a few years older, or because you've submitted a number of claims. On the other hand, you can drop your policy on any renewal date. Also, your premium can never be increased unless premiums are raised on all policies like yours in your entire state.

Please note these exceptions.

Pre-existing conditions (health problems that became evident or were medically treated before the effective date of the policy) are not covered for one year from the date the policy is issued. Half-benefits ($15 a day) are paid for up to 4 weeks confinement due to mental disorder. Not covered is hospitalization for alcoholism, drug addiction or any condition covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Law benefits. Confinement in nursing homes, Federal hospitals, or the self-care, extended-care or convalescent units of hospitals is not covered. Pregnancy or any consequence is covered only if husband and wife are both covered.

Backed by Physicians Mutual—the company run by doctors since 1902.

From its founding in 1902 until 1962, the Company specialized in health insurance for physicians, surgeons and dentists exclusively. Then, recognizing the growing need for insurance to supplement basic hospital coverages, Physicians Mutual began making such protection available to the general public. And was one of the first companies to do so. Today, our various policies protect over 1,000,000 Americans in all walks of life.

Remember, you're doing business with a company that delivers what it promises. Last year, we paid claims totaling over $48,000,000 on all policies. That's a return of over 70% of premium income paid out in benefits to policyowners—one of the highest in the entire insurance industry.

Physicians Mutual Insurance Company is a mutual insurance company headquartered in Omaha, Nebraska. It is not affiliated with any national, state or local medical association.

We can't say "No" to you.

Don't worry, we guarantee to issue you a policy. You will not be turned down because of your age, health or size of your family.

As soon as we receive your Enrollment Form, we will issue your policy (P350/360 Series) and put it in force. From that day on—even before you receive your policy in the mail—you're covered for new sicknesses and accidents. Naturally, we can issue only one policy to you on a guaranteed issue basis.

If you're already a Physicians Mutual policyowner and would like information about additional coverage available to you, please write for details.

You can enroll in this new Physicians Hospital Policy right from this page. All you need do is fill out the short Enrollment Form and mail it together with $1—which pays for your first month.

No salesman will call or visit you.

Now—Physicians Mutual gives you a choice of extra protection plans and options.

1 First, choose the insurance plan that fits your needs best.

Individual Plan

Choose this plan if you're single or only want to cover one member of the family. Pays you $900 a month cash—$30 a day—when you're hospitalized for a covered sickness or accident.

Husband-Wife Plan

Designed for the married couple without children or whose children are grown and no longer dependent. Pays $900 a month cash—$30 a day—when either of you is in the hospital for a covered sickness or accident. Maternity included at no extra cost. And benefits double when both husband and wife are hospitalized at the same time due to accidents.

All-Family Plan

Offers protection for the growing young family. Covers you, your wife and all your eligible dependent children—including future additions. Pays the same $900 a month cash—$30 a day—for every insured family member. Maternity covered at no extra cost. And benefits double when both husband and wife are in the hospital at the same time due to accidents.

One-Parent Family Plan

Created especially for the single parent with children. Covers you and all eligible dependent children. Pays $900 a month cash—$30 a day—when you or an insured child is hospitalized for a covered sickness or accident.

2 Second, choose the monthly premium option that fits your budget best.

Remember, your first month's premium is $1. That's right. You can actually select the monthly renewal rate you want to pay for this extra protection. Read over the terms and rates for Option A and Option B. Then decide which is right for you.

Pays you cash benefits from the very first day of hospitalization for either a covered sickness or accident. This option gives you maximum protection. There's no waiting period; your coverage starts immediately upon hospitalization.

A Special Invitation to Folks 65 and Over.

Physicians Mutual warmly welcomes your enrollment in this new extra protection hospital plan. And we guarantee to accept you regardless of your age and health.

Perhaps you're thinking that because you have Medicare, you don't need additional coverage. Not so. Despite its many fine features, Medicare does not cover all of your hospital expenses. That's why our new plan pays you daily cash benefits to help meet expenses—and for every day of your hospital stay, regardless of how long it might be.

No rate increase at age 65.

We also know most older folks are on a fixed and often limited budget. So, instead of raising rates when you become 65, we pay half-benefits ($15 a day) for the first 60 days of hospitalization after age 65. You get the full $30 a day cash benefits after that. And your monthly premium continues to be the same as when you first enrolled in the plan.

So, you'll have cash coming in when you're laid up in the hospital—regardless of how long you may have to stay. Enroll today in this new, extra protection hospital plan.

Your policy comes in this handsome vinyl wallet.

It's a convenient way to keep your important personal papers in one place. With your policy, you also receive a Claim Form. It's easy to use and assures prompt processing of your claim when an accident or sickness puts you in the hospital.

Money-Back Guarantee

We will send you your Physicians Mutual Hospital Policy (Form P350/360 Series) by mail. When you receive it, read it through. You will see that it is honest, direct to the point and easy to understand. If for any reason you decide that you do not want this protection, you may return the policy within 30 days and we will promptly refund your dollar.
