Kentwood honored for performance

Kentwood Elementary School in Big Spring has been honored by the state of Texas for its consistently high performance on the TEAMS test.

The school was chosen based on its performance on the test over the past three years. Honored schools had to be at least 10 percent above the state-wide average.

Principal Andrea Clark said the notification came at the right time.

"Our students are preparing this week for the new test, the TAAS, which replaces the TEAMS. It's very timely to give them this boost while they get ready."

Clark and Sylvia Kirby, a third grade teacher, will go to Austin Oct. 27 to be honored at a ceremony at the state capitol.

Clark said the performance can be attributed to three groups — parents, teachers and students — all of whom have worked hard.

She also cited the work of Curriculum Director Helen Gladden.

"She searches diligently for the best materials she can find for us to use," Clark said. Assistant superintendent Murray Murphy said the award was "quite an honor."

Forsan ISD board to meet Monday

Forsan Independent School District board of trustees will have its regular meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in the superintendent's office.

Included on the agenda are the adoption of: an ordinance establishing a records management program; the annual performance report; and the audit report.

Trustees will consider bids on vehicles, fuel and milk, and will appoint the textbook review committee.

Rally for Richards scheduled Saturday

COLORADO CITY — Family members of gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards and State Sen. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, are scheduled to be at Fort Wood at 1:15 p.m. Saturday. Carriker will give brief comments.

The group, which will also include Kathy Dickson, wife of Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, and other area elected officials, will stop first in downtown Loraine at 12:30 p.m.

In other campaign plans for Richards, her daughter Ellen Richards and Nora Linares of the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be speakers at a political rally and barbecue in Lubbock Saturday.

Other local speakers there will also address the noon to 4 p.m. event at a home across from the Lubbock airport at exit 9 of Interstate 27. No admissions will be charged.

Democrats want more taxes on wealthy House GOP ignoring Bush

By ALAN FRAM

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — House Democrats rallied around a liberal budget plan today that lays new taxes on the wealthy. Divided Republicans, meanwhile, seemed ready to ignore President Bush's conclusion that a deep cut in the capital gains tax is dead.

"There was a very strong positive attitude on the part of members," Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., told reporters after a Democratic caucus. "There's a sense of unity."

The Democratic plan would boost taxes on wealthy Americans and offer a small capital-gains tax cut for middle-income families. It is one of many budget proposals sprouting all over Capitol Hill amid frustration over Bush's blurry position on taxing the rich.

House Republicans were honing a plan that would hold this year's spending to last year's levels. It would also cut the capital gains tax deeply while gently raising income taxes on the wealthy, a trade Bush likes but has said is unattainable because of Democratic opposition.

"We're doing a House Republican position," said Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla. "We're not developing a White House position. That's different."

At the White House, President Bush said he was optimistic a "sound budget agreement" could be found.

"It will take a little work," Bush said during a picture-taking session in the Oval Office with visiting leaders from the Soviet republic of Estonia. "Just stay calm — it will all work out."

But things were anything but calm in the Capitol. Besides the two partisan plans emerging in the House, the Senate Finance Committee was trying to piece together a bipartisan plan of its own.

House Republicans remained divided over whether their plan should include any tax increases at all. But they said their goal was to craft a package disproving Democratic charges that they are the party of the wealthy.

"We're not the party of the rich, we're the party of economic growth," said Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Texas.

The frenzy of budget-writing was aimed at finding $500 billion worth of tax boosts and spending cuts for the next five years that Congress could send to Bush by Oct. 19. The government's legal ability to spend money ends that day, and the president has vowed to allow a government shutdown like the one that occurred last weekend unless lawmakers send him a budget he likes.

Just a day after the full House Ways and Means Committee produced one plan, the panel's Democrats worked on another that raised income taxes on the rich and eased the burden on the poor and middle class. It contained no reduction in the capital gains tax, but Democrats said they might add one.

House Republicans crafted their own measure. It would lower the capital gains tax rate to 15 percent and boost the income tax rate on the wealthy from 28 percent to 31 percent. The capital gains tax — applied to profits on sales of property and other investments — now is handled the same as other income and has a top rate of 33 percent.

Bush said he favored the swap, but was giving up on it because of tenacious opposition by Democrats.

BSISD selects architect

By DEBBIE LINCEUM

Staff Writer

Big Spring Independent School District trustees approved the selection of an architect-advisor for its new building project in a regular meeting Thursday.

Tommie J. Huckabee of Huckabee and Donham, which has offices in Andrews, Midland and Stephenville, was contracted to serve as an advisor for the project. The contract states that Huckabee will be paid 6 percent of the building costs only if the project comes to fruition.

Superintendent Bill McQueary said if the project is abandoned at any point there will be no cost to the district.

"He's doing all of this on the premise that it (a bond issue) will pass," McQueary said. "If it doesn't, the district is not out one penny."

The first step for Huckabee will be a complete facility analysis of the district, including visits by architectural engineers. He will then bring that report to the board, McQueary said, after which the process will begin.

"We'll organize committees, involve the community, teachers, at that point," he said. "We feel like we know what our needs are, but we want the advice of some professionals."

At the meeting, Huckabee gave a slide presentation of schools his firm has designed in other West

Tourist center readied for travelers

Linda Roger, Convention and Visitors Bureau manager, and Wayne Farrington, operational manager of Rip Griffin Service Center, inspect the new tourist information center currently under construction at the truck stop. The space, which was formerly a maintenance closet, should be open by Thanksgiving and staffed with volunteers.

By BILL AYRES

City Editor

Nearly two years of hard work will culminate with the opening of the Tourist Information Center of Big Spring Tuesday, Oct. 16.

"The idea for the center was the brainchild of former Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Wayne Moore," said Linda Roger, manager of the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"Plans call for a memorial plaque to be displayed at the center to honor Wayne's efforts," she added.

The Information Center will be located in Rip Griffin's Service Center at the intersection of Interstate 20 and Highway 87.

Roger added that Rip Griffin's has donated nearly $2,000 in remodeling for the center. The service center offered space inside their business when the idea of building a location on their lot proved to be too expensive, Roger said.

Volunteers will be used to man the center from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Roger added that the center will have information available for travelers 24 hours per day.

Mamie Lee Dodds, who has been employed by the Convention and Visitors Bureau as volunteer coordinator, will be in charge of staffing the center.

Dodds said she had a list of 39 volunteers interested in manning the center. She had an orientation meeting Wednesday to set schedules.

Dodds said the response has been good, but that volunteers are still needed to help staff the center on the weekends.

"Most of the people who have volunteered are also RSVP volunteers as well," Dodds said.

"Volunteers will be depended upon to staff the Information Center until funds can be located to pay a full-time employee," said Roger.

The information center should help boost the local economy.

"Information Centers report that they increase local tourism by approximately 20 percent," said Roger. "The information received often convinces the traveler to spend the night, eat at local restaurants or take advantage of local attractions, shopping or events — which spells money for our local economy."

According to Roger, last year the motel/hotel tax raised more than $140,000 for Big Spring. "A 20 percent increase is about $28,000," she said.

It is estimated that this type of revenue is cycled in the local economy seven times, she added. "That would mean that a 20 percent increase in the motel/hotel tax could generate as much as $150,000 more for our economy."

In addition, she added, an increase in tourism would help the local restaurants, retail outlets and events.

The Convention and Visitors Bureau will host a Grand Opening of the Information Center on Monday, Oct. 15 beginning at 2 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

"We mailed out over 250 invitations," said Roger.

The Texas Highway Department has informed the Convention Bureau that signs informing travelers of the information center will be placed on I-20 and Hwy 87.

Newspapers call for gubernatorial debate

By The Associated Press

As the debate over a gubernatorial debate continues between the candidates, Texas newspapers are saying the voters deserve to hear the nominees before the Nov. 6 election.

Despite months of haggling, Democrat Ann Richards and Republican Clayton Williams have so far failed to agree to a face-to-face debate.

Each blames the other.

The Houston Chronicle noted that 1990 could be the first year since 1974 in which voters wouldn't be able to view a debate.

"Neither Williams nor Richards is entitled to be governor. But the voters are entitled to a fair chance to see them together and evaluate them accordingly," the Chronicle said.

Many other newspapers agree.

"This election shouldn't be decided by campaign ads, headlines and sound bites. The voters ought to have an opportunity to see the two candidates, face to face, discuss the issues facing Texas," said the Abilene Reporter News.

"Dear Ann Richards and Clayton Williams: It's high time you two quit playing hide-and-seek with each other on the campaign trail. Get together and give us some real insight into yourselves and how you would serve as Texas' next governor," said the Houston Post.

Williams has insisted that Richards sign a pledge to run only a "positive" campaign before he would confront her. Richards says that's just an excuse.

"For a man who takes pride in his banty-rooster image, even when it comes to fisticuffs, Clayton Williams is playing strangely coy about squaring off against a silver-haired grandmother," said the Waco Tribune Herald.

"If Clayton Williams expects the people of Texas to accept him as the fearless, fighting cowboy figure he likes to portray and to entrust him with the leadership position to which he aspires, he had better display the courage to face his challenger one-on-one in live, public debate," said the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Richards again this week called on Williams to debate her. Asked if she would sign the positive "pledge" he wants, she scoffed.

"The minute I sign some pledge, he's going to have another excuse," she said. "I think he is afraid."

Williams' press secretary Gordon Hensley said the Republican campaign believes Richards won't sign the pledge because she figures a negative attack is her only hope for victory.

Judge considers moving trial

EL PASO (AP) — A judge is considering moving the trial of a convicted rapist accused of killing six young women and burying them in the desert.

But attorneys for David Leonard Wood said Thursday they believe their client can indeed get a fair trial in El Paso, despite widespread news coverage of the case. Prosecutors did not object.

State district court Judge Peter Peca said he would file his own motion and make a ruling by Oct. 26 on whether the trial should be moved.

Wood was indicted in July on a serial murder charge that accuses him of killing six women whose bodies were found in a stretch of El Paso desert. The decayed remains of the victims were found in the desert between Sept. 4, 1987, and March 14, 1988.

The victims were between ages 14 and 23 and all had been missing at least two months before their bodies were discovered. All were buried in shallow graves within a half-mile of each other.

Horse racing back in Texas

MANOR (AP) — About 2,500 pari-mutuel racing fans attended the opening of Manor Downs, the third track to begin operating since horse race wagering became legal in Texas.

Bets totaling $126,838 were placed Thursday.

Although construction workers were still wrapping up some work when the track opened Thursday, the track's first pari-mutuel quarterhorse race ran shortly after the 1 p.m. post time.

Manor Downs initially was granted a Class 2 license by the Texas Racing Commission in the spring of 1989 and was scheduled to open later that year. But a series of financing and construction delays postponed racing until this month.

Officials at the track, located northeast of Austin, said it is scheduled to run a Thursday through Sunday program through Dec. 16.

Missouri jail escapee captured

WARSAW, Mo. (AP) — A man who escaped from the Benton County Jail by digging his way through a block wall was captured early today in Texas, a sheriff's deputy said.

Police in El Campo, Texas, recognized a car authorities believed 19-year-old Sterling N. Jarnigan had stolen and arrested the escapee after a car and foot chase, said Cheryl Lehmann, a Benton County Sheriff's Department deputy.

Authorities on Thursday in Great Bend, Kan., about 300 miles from Warsaw, found a car they believe Jarnigan had stolen moments after his escape. Another car, the one Texas authorities spotted, later was reported stolen from Great Bend.

Jarnigan was awaiting trial on charges of first-degree robbery, armed criminal action and kidnapping in Polk County.

Lawmakers rap board member

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas lawmakers told the State Board of Insurance to stop ignoring critical reports of the agency and criticized board member Richard Reynolds.

One lawmaker who has dealt with insurance problems for the past two years said Thursday the Insurance Board needs to improve regulation of the industry or face a takeover by the Legislature.

"If things don't get better at the State Board that possibility is going to start looming larger and larger," said state Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, a member of the Joint Committee on Insurance Regulation.

Williams brands Richards a 'liar' at appearance

DALLAS (AP) — Democrat Ann Richards says she's gaining on Republican Clayton Williams in the polls for governor, and she says that's because Williams' mouth keeps getting him in trouble.

The Williams campaign has been plagued by his comments about rape and being "serviced" by prostitutes.

On Thursday, he called Richards a liar during a rare joint appearance.

Williams used the appearance before the Greater Dallas Crime Commission to lash out at Richards for trying to link him to a federal investigation into alleged drug money laundering.

As a crowd of more than 1,000 filed into a ballroom at the Loews Anatole hotel, Williams told a companion about the planned confrontation, then walked to Richards' side of the dais and stepped up to her.

She extended her hand, but he refused to shake it.

"I'm here to call you a liar today," Williams said.

"I'm sorry, Clayton," Ms. Richards responded.

Williams interrupted: "That's what you are. You've lied about me; you've lied about Mark White and you've lied about Jim Mattox (two of Ms. Richards' primary opponents.)

"I'm going to finish this deal today, and you can count on it," he said.

Ms. Richards said, "That's too bad... not very sportsmanlike."

Richards defeated White and Mattox in a bitter Democratic primary.

When asked if he had indeed called Richards a liar, Williams responded: "Yes, I did. The truth hurts."

Asked why he refused to shake hands, Williams said, "A handshake is a sign of trust. I withdraw that trust."

"There is a line that she's crossed. The latest assault on my bank is so unreasonable that it's time to throw down the gauntlet."

Suspect arrested in Austin fire

AUSTIN (AP) — Police say a man charged with setting a fire that destroyed an apartment complex, killing a 15-month-old child and injuring nine persons, was angry over an uncollected $8 debt.

Bruce Wayne Campbell, 30, of Austin was jailed on $75,000 bail and charged with arson. The fire early Thursday morning ripped through the La Villita apartment complex and left about 50 people homeless.

Police believe the fire was sparked by a flare gun belonging to Campbell, who seen arguing with tenants over an $8 debt before the fire began, said homicide detective Michael Huckabay.

Police said they would continue searching through the rubble of the complex in search of others who were unaccounted for. They said charges against Campbell, a former tenant at the complex, may be increased to homicide.

Witnesses told police they had seen Campbell, who had been a boyfriend of a former manager at the complex, with a flare gun outside the apartments minutes before the fire broke out just before 2 a.m.

Firefighters said a flare gun fired into kerosene could cause such an intense fire.

The body of the 15-month old child was found Thursday afternoon. Witnesses said the infant was a girl.

The child's parents suffered burns and were in critical condition at Brooke Army Medical Center's burn unit in San Antonio, officials said.

They were first taken to Brackenridge Hospital in Austin where officials identified them as Emmett Jackson, 34, and Diathia Reeder, 35.

DALLAS — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards reaches to shake hands with Republican candidate Clayton Williams at a Dallas Crime Commission luncheon Thursday. Williams refused to shake hands, calling Richards a "liar."

The two candidates had not faced each other at the same event since mid-July.

"His campaign has not been able to shield him as much as they would like," Richards said. "When he talks he gets in trouble."

At a news conference Wednesday, Richards cited a newspaper report which said federal agents were investigating allegations against a Houston loan broker, Lloyd G. Williams Jr., who reportedly has done business with ClayDesta National Bank, the Midland bank owned by the Republican nominee.

Richards responded to Williams comment simply by saying, "I think it was unkind."

But she added: "I guess I don't understand what he means that I've been lying."

"I think it's important that Clayton Williams tell the people of Texas exactly what kind of businessman he is."

Williams' press secretary Gordon Hensley said Clayton Williams "has answered questions in a very forthright manner. He said he does not know the man (Lloyd Williams)."

Lloyd Williams, no relation to the GOP candidate, said Wednesday he had nothing to do with alleged money laundering and that he was puzzled by the inquiry. He also said he didn't know Clayton Williams

Tough air pollution laws adopted

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California has adopted the nation's toughest air-quality standards for household products, ordering a 45 percent cut in smog-forming pollutants from such items as hair spray, window cleaner and floor wax.

The order Thursday by the Air Resources Board will be phased in from 1993 to 1998 and could add up to 23 cents to the price of the 16 types of products covered, said Jim Boyd, ARB executive officer.

Products covered include engine degreaser, windshield washer fluid, furniture polish, room air freshener, laundry prewash, nail polish remover, insect repellent, oven cleaner, hair styling gel and mousse, tile cleaner and shaving cream.

When fully in force, the rules would eliminate about 45 tons per day of hydrocarbon emissions, an amount equal to the emissions of about 1.4 million vehicles. Currently the household products emit about 100 tons of hydrocarbons a day.

House votes not to restrict NEA

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Rep. Pat Williams won his House floor battle to rescue the National Endowment for the Arts from conservative attack, he happily lost a $1 bet to an old Montana cowboy.

Six months ago, Williams says, he was convinced that the federal arts agency wouldn't survive the political controversy over NEA support for arts projects that its critics consider obscene and blasphemous.

The Montana Democrat, a staunch NEA supporter, said an elderly cowboy in his home district bet that Williams would prevail when the issue reached the House floor.

Williams owes the cowpoke a buck.

On Thursday, the House overwhelmingly rejected a move to abolish the NEA, defeated a proposal to impose tough new anti-obscenity restrictions and embraced a bipartisan compromise that would leave the obscenity issue to the courts.

The compromise bill, drafted by Williams and Rep. E. Thomas Coleman, R-Mo., after months of intense negotiations, was approved on a 382-42 roll call vote.

Under the bill, grant recipients who are subsequently convicted of using their federal funds to create works that violate obscenity laws would be required to return their grant money to the NEA. Once they do, they would be eligible to apply for new endowment grants.

South is caught between storms

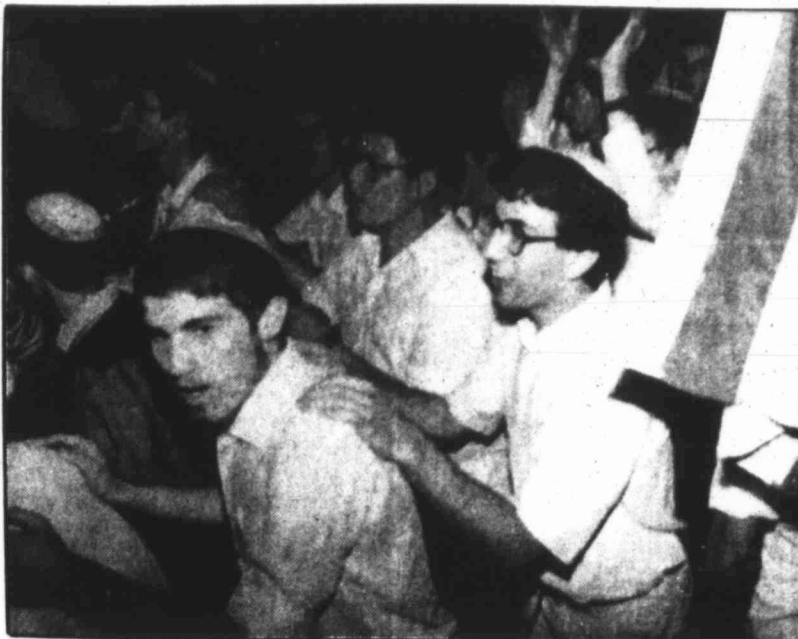

STORM DAMAGED DUGOUT

Hurricane Lili bore down on North Carolina's Outer Banks with gale-force winds early today, while remnants of Tropical Storm Marco moved in from Florida in a squeeze play that unloaded heavy rain on the South.

A hurricane watch was posted for the North Carolina coast, where seas swelled to 8 feet and some residents and tourists began to flee. Further south, officials declared a state of emergency in Augusta, Ga., where flood waters closed roads and engulfed houses.

"All of our roads are flooded," said Pam Smith, director of the Richmond County Emergency Management Agency in Augusta.

Political unrest swirls around religious sites

JERUSALEM (AP) — Marchers at Haram es-Sharif carried a symbolic coffin draped with an outlawed Palestinian flag. Jews, who call the site Temple Mount, swayed in prayer at the Western Wall nearby.

Again, the site revered by three religions is at the vortex of a political firestorm.

Tens of thousands of Jews heeded the Israeli government call Thursday to come to the Western Wall, also known as the Wailing Wall, to dance at the end of the Sukkot holiday and to support Israel's control of the holy site.

The area held holy by Jews, Christians and Moslems played host Thursday to political demonstrations after Monday's riot in which 19 Palestinians died from police gunfire.

At the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, built where Christ is believed to have been buried, Palestinians mounted a sit-down strike.

Women in traditional Palestinian black dresses decorated with embroidery sat in the courtyard of the church, while other Palestinians sat inside the white stone building. Earlier this year, the church was a focal point of Palestinian demonstrations over efforts by Jewish settlers to occupy a nearby hostel in the Christian Quarter.

On Monday, the violence took place when Arabs at Haram es-Sharif began throwing stones down on Jews praying directly below at the Western Wall.

Israeli police moved in tear gas, rubber bullets and live ammunition. By the time it was over, about 140 Arabs and 30 Jews were injured, in addition to the 19 Palestinians killed.

On Thursday, Arab Christian clergymen walked from the 11th Century church to Haram es-Sharif, which is Arabic for "noble enclosure." The clerics, who included Greek Catholic Patriarch Lutfi Laham and Anglican Bishop Samir Kafity, went for small cups of unsweetened Arabic coffee. They drank with Moslems in a traditional gesture of mourning.

The site is the holiest in Islam outside Saudi Arabia. The Western Wall, the remnant of the last ancient Jewish temple, is the most revered site to Jews.

World

Discord surfaces in ruling party

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — Members of the governing Conservative Party are showing signs of disquiet over Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's stiff-armed economic policies toward the rest of Europe.

"The worst thing for this country would be to behave as if our partners were all a bunch of clever foreigners who were somehow bound to beat us in any argument," Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd told delegates Thursday.

Hurd criticized what he called "sulky, defeatist, fog-bound" reluctance to cooperate with the rest of the European Community.

The EC is in the process of integrating economies to create a vast European common market by 1993. Mrs. Thatcher has opposed the more sweeping plans for economic and monetary unity across Europe.

The prime minister was to speak to the party conference later today, winding up the four-day session.

Security has been extraordinarily tight at the meeting to prevent a possible IRA attack.

Gunmen kill official, three guards

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Gunmen today killed the parliament speaker and three security men outside a downtown hotel. The attack came after the government warned that terrorists might strike to punish Egypt for its opposition to Iraq.

There was no claim of responsibility for the attack by gunmen on motorcycles, but the interior minister said he suspected Egyptian Moslem fundamentalists or foreigners.

Rifaat el-Mahgoub, 64, speaker of the People's Assembly and the second ranking politician after the president, was shot as he sat in the rear of his chauffeur-driven Mercedes, Interior Minister Abdel-Halim Moussa said. The gunmen then fled as other security men returned their fire, Moussa said.

The shooting occurred as el-Mahgoub's car drove by the Hotel Semiramis Inter-Continental, a block from the U.S. Embassy. The speaker was heading for a hotel about 1 1/2 miles away where he was to meet a Syrian delegation.

Moussa told reporters that four young assailants attacked el-Mahgoub's vehicle and an accompanying security car from two Suzuki motorbikes.

Three escaped on the bikes, he said.

The fourth ran into a densely populated area nearby and disappeared. He wounded two bystanders who tried to stop him, Moussa said.

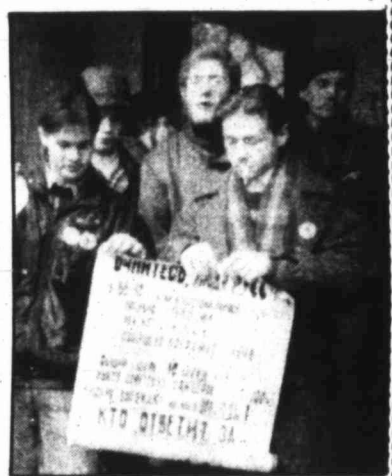

Russian man convicted of racism

MOSCOW (AP) — A city court today convicted a man of promoting racism and making insulting remarks against Jews, and it sentenced him to two years in a labor camp.

The emotional three-month trial of 54-year-old Konstantin Smirnov-Ostashvili highlighted fears of growing Russian anti-Semitism.

Supporters and opponents of Smirnov-Ostashvili heckled Judge Andrei Muratov repeatedly as he read a summary of the case of the verdict.

It was the first such case brought to trial under a law passed as the Soviet Union grapples with widespread ethnic unrest.

Pakistan must limit weapons

U.S. administrations have blown hot and cold over Pakistan's efforts — always denied in Islamabad, despite convincing evidence — to develop nuclear weapons. President Carter cut off all U.S. aid, then a modest $85 million, in 1977; the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan led to a restoration of aid in 1981, a much larger $3.2 billion over six years. In 1986, based on strong evidence, President Reagan threatened a cutoff, but with the Soviets still in Afghanistan, nothing came of it; indeed, Congress approved a six-year, $4 billion aid package in 1987.

Now, with the passing of a crucial deadline mandating an automatic cutoff of aid, there are good reasons for the United States to proceed:

- The Soviets are out of Afghanistan, and a diplomatic resolution of the civil war there now seems possible.
- Pakistan's experiment with democracy was cut short in August with the dismissal of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto and the installation of an interim regime dominated from the shadows by the military.
- Evidence that Pakistan is lying about its nuclear activities is so strong that the Bush administration failed to go through the charade of certifying on Oct. 1, as the law requires, that Pakistan has no nuclear weapons. Instead, the White House wants to fudge the issue by getting a congressional waiver to allow continued aid even without the fig leaf of certification.

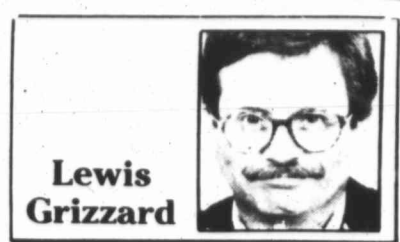

The initial response from Capitol Hill has been negative, properly so. Yet cutting all aid, military and economic, would hit Pakistan when its already weak economy is reeling from the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis, in which it has dispatched troops on the U.S. side. Such draconian U.S. action might close diplomatic doors that would not easily be reopened. Painful as the loss of U.S. aid would be, Pakistan can call on other sources — France is supplying a $1.5 billion nuclear power plant, and there are other willing sellers of raw materials and technology to help fuel its arms race with India, which already has a nuclear capability.

Washington would do better to stop military aid, roughly 40 percent of the U.S. aid total of $580 million, for an indefinite period. The next and crucial step ought to be a diplomatic offensive, ideally with Moscow's help, aimed at persuading India and Pakistan to sign the global nuclear non-proliferation treaty. Pakistan says it will sign only if India does, and so far India refuses. Wrong as Pakistan's secretive nuclear program is, it is no more so than similar efforts by others.

State Department officials argue that U.S. aid should continue for at least six months beyond Pakistan's Oct. 24 parliamentary elections, thus allowing time to obtain assurances from the new government. That's unconvincing: Pakistan's military, which is determined to match India weapon for weapon, is likely to retain effective power, whatever the outcome of the election.

Repeated U.S. warnings of an aid cutoff have been shrugged off in Islamabad on the correct assumption that they were hollow. Nothing less than tangible evidence of U.S. displeasure will have any credibility. At the same time, maintaining economic assistance at least temporarily would give Washington continued leverage with a country whose cooperation in arresting a frightening regional arms race is vital.

The truth about the Civil War

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

A number of my fellow Southerners have voiced their disapproval with the recent public television series, "The Civil War," because it gave only the Northern viewpoint of the war, which they believe to be wrong.

I, too, must join these dissenters, but for good reason. What really took place in the war, and why it was fought, has been passed down in my family as utter truth for nearly 130 years.

It came from my great, great grandfather, Gen. Beauregard Grizzard of the Confederate Army who invented the Rebel yell one day when his hand got caught in the sausage grinder.

The war, according to my ancestors, was not fought because of slavery or states rights.

It was fought to stop Northern men from wearing over-the-calf black socks and sandals with their Bermuda shorts when they visited Southern beach resorts, where most of the fighting actually took place.

The South had very strict ideas on wearing black socks and sandals with Bermuda shorts.

"Tackiest thing I've ever seen," said Jefferson Davis, who rose from a humble lifeguard's chair on Gulf of Mexico beaches to become president of the Confederacy.

Southerners objected to the long black socks because they made what leg you could see on Yankee men look even more sickly white than they already were.

And sandals were a religious thing to Southerners. Jesus could wear sandals, but nobody else could. So, in that way, the Civil War was a holy war.

The first shot fired was from a Ft. Sumter, S.C., cannon, aimed at a cruise ship taking Yankee tourists to Hilton Head Island.

No one was hurt in the initial skirmish, but the ship was turned back north and Hilton Head hotels refused to return advance payment for rooms and green fees, and so hostilities on a much larger scale soon broke out.

The South won many early battles, such as the Battle of Tourist Trap, Fla., near Daytona Beach, where Union troops were lured into Bob's Reptile Farm to pay 20 cents a head to see a live alligator and a dead snake.

Confederates surrounded the farm and took over 5,000 prisoners and burned their sandals, socks and Bermuda shorts.

The war began to turn toward the North, however, at the Battle of Panama City, Fla., where Union troops stormed a beachware store and took hundreds of beach balls, beach towels, suntan lotion, and lots of tee shirts with pelicans on them, dealing a deadly blow to the Southern economy.

The PBS series did acknowledge Gen. Robert E. Lee attempted to invade the North, but was stopped at the Battle of Gettysburg.

Not true. Lee did turn back at Gettysburg, but it was because his troops were complaining there was no place to get good barbecue.

The end of the war finally came in 1865 when Gen. Lee surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, a three-handicapper, in the pro shop of Harbour Town Links on Hilton Head, which had been captured by a large force of Union troops disguised as members of the PGA tour.

The North continues to hold Hilton Head today and many other Southern coastal resorts, and despite the blood that was shed by valiant Rebels, Northern men are still wearing long black socks with their sandals and Bermuda shorts on Southern beaches.

But we're still overcharging them for film, Indian moccasins, and tank tops.

Is 'several' more than 'a few'?

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

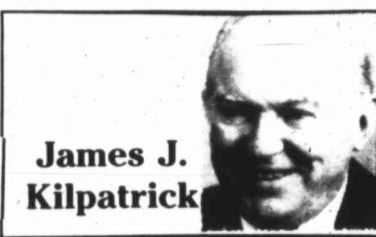

The Court of Peeves, Irks and Crotchets resumes its October session with a petition from Fred Carter of Riviera Beach, Fla. He asks the court to define certain indefinite numbers. He complains with much truth that standard dictionaries are of little assistance.

Shifting to its magisterial mode, the court will oblige. The smallest of the indefinite terms is "couple," as in, "Elizabeth borrowed a couple of books." A couple is two or three, but not more than three. In ascending order we have Elizabeth borrowing a few books (four or five), several books (six to 10), a number of books (more than 10) and many books (half the library). The court offers neither expert evidence nor established precedent in support of its ruling. This court pronounces its decree and is done with it.

Mrs. Alvin B. Nordhem of Savannah, Ga., objects to the foregoing usage of "done." She cites a statement this past May from Richard Gephardt, majority leader of the House: "We would like to get done before the Memorial Day break."

The court defends both itself and Rep. Gephardt on the grounds of idiomatic speech. The use of "done" in the sense of "finished" is at least as old as the English proverb that tells us, "Man may work from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done." The court approves the usage in cooking (the roast will be done in an hour), but disapproves it in the sense of tourism (last year we did Paris).

Jim McKinley of Aurora, Colo., is irked by the reporting of certain figures. He notes that many publications tend to present comparative data in a "to-from" sequence that befuddles the reader.

Example: The Associated Press reported a recommendation from the National Research Council that federal support of mathematics education "increase to $250 million annually from $133 million over three years." Complaint upheld! The better practice is to go from past to present, i.e., from $133 million to $250 million.

Gene Phillips, who is attached to the Third Armored Division, wherever it may be, has a constitutional complaint. The 26th Amendment, he observes, contains two absurd assertions. The amendment reads, "The right of citizens of the United States, who are 18 years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of age."

Taken literally, which is a novel way to take the Constitution, the language does indeed state that every citizen of the United States is 18 or older, and further, that even an infant American citizen has a right to vote. The court joins the complainant in wondering how this language got through both houses of Congress and three-fourths of the states without someone making the distinction between a restrictive and non-restrictive clause. But there it is.

The court affirms the complaint but finds trouble in rewriting the language for greater precision. Maybe the amendment could have been phrased to say that, "The right to vote of citizens of the United States who are 18 years of age," etc., but it has an awkward ring.

A couple of sentences ago I began a sentence with "But." The next case comes from W.R. Broocke of Winter Beach, Fla., who offers in evidence a recent column in The Miami Herald. The piece was only 15 paragraphs long, but no fewer than 16 of the 64 sentences began with but, and, or yet. Too many conjunctions! The court advises that no rule prohibits sentences beginning with but, and, or yet, but the device gets to be irritating in a hurry.

Thomas P. Bleakney of Seattle asks the court for a ruling in the arena of public speaking. In July a writer for the Post-Intelligencer penned a ceremony marking the opening of the Goodwill Games. He spoke of "Bob Walsh peering over the podium." This might have been the most engaging part of the show, but it seems unlikely. A podium is the little platform, maybe a foot high, on which an orchestra conductor stands. A good guess is that Walsh peered over a lectern.

The day's final petition comes from John E. Wray of Georgetown, S.C. He asks that the words "thixotropic" and "thixotropic," heretofore confined to texts on fluid dynamics, be admitted to the bar of common usage. So ordered. The term has to do with substances that change their viscosity dramatically under influences other than temperature. Examples include ketchup, mayonnaise, cornstarch, wet sand, Southern politicians, and filled soil that liquefies in earthquakes. The court finds it difficult to work "thixotropic" into a dinner table conversation, but the court is willing to try.

American is on death row for having drugs

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The American waiting at the door of death row in a Malaysian prison was not dealing drugs when he was arrested with a pound of marijuana nearly a year ago. He was toting around his medicine.

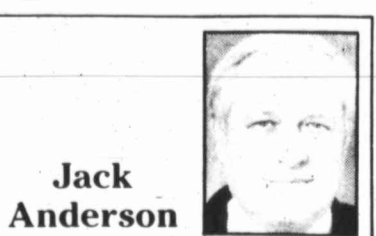

That is the controversial defense that Kerry Wiley's lawyer may use to keep Wiley from being hanged. The "medicinal purposes" defense has worked only three times in the United States. But Wiley is in a country that prides itself on enforcing the harshest drug laws in the world — a country that stamps on its entry permits, "Death for drug traffickers."

Wiley was arrested on Nov. 4, 1989, at a private home in the Malaysian capital of Kuala Lumpur. Police seized 1.1 pounds of "ganja." In Malaysia, possession of more than seven ounces carries a mandatory death penalty.

As we reported last month, Wiley, 35, does not fit the profile of a drug dealer. He is a computer scientist and former lecturer in California and Hawaii. He was arrested in the home of his mother's friend — a Malaysian teacher whom his mother met at a teachers' conference. Both of Wiley's parents are college professors.

If Wiley is convicted, he would be a first-time offender guilty of a crime that would likely get him a suspended sentence in the United States.

The stakes are higher in Malaysia, so Wiley has a celebrated lawyer in his corner — former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark. He and a doctor who has reviewed Wiley's medical records told our associate Jim Lynch about Wiley's past, much of which is likely to be repeated in the Malaysian court if Clark uses the medicinal defense.

At the age of 12, Wiley fell off a cliff while climbing San Jacinto Peak in California. He plummeted 60 feet and waited in semi-consciousness for hours before he was rescued. The local newspaper called it a "Christmas miracle" that he lived.

The fall damaged Wiley's nerves and left him with chronic pain, arthritis and muscle spasms. He endured painkiller after painkiller, but nothing worked. Clark says that ironically, Wiley "developed an aversion for drugs."

ment of choice for the kind of pain Wiley suffers." Grinspoon is the editor of "Harvard Mental Health."

In only three cases has a U.S. court returned an innocent verdict on the use of marijuana for medicinal purposes. Two defendants had glaucoma and one had multiple sclerosis. In many other cases, however, American courts have reduced the severity of sentences after hearing the medicinal defense.

Clark is quick to note that it has yet to be proved that the marijuana belonged to Wiley in the first place. But he is prepared to fall back on the medicinal defense. Clark, the attorney general under Lyndon Johnson, hopes the argument will touch at least one person, Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, a medical doctor himself.

But as of yet, Malaysia has shown no signs of softening the law for Wiley or anyone else. As Mahathir told us, "We think (drug dealers) are killers, because so many of these young boys who have taken these drugs are dying or dead. It's murder."

The question remains why Wiley would have risked carrying marijuana in Malaysia. Clark describes Wiley as a rugged individualist who was in Southeast Asia for an extended vacation to hike and study Buddhism.

He has been in prison since his arrest. Unless the case is dismissed, Wiley is scheduled to tell his side of the story in a Malaysian court next month.

Drummer beats out rhythms through success, tears

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Wright wanted a drum set, but his mother had money only for drugs. So one day he took the subway down to Times Square, flipped over a plastic bucket and began pounding it with battered drumsticks.

He hoped for coins, maybe $10 or $20. But as strangers watched this sinewy youth whale away — sweat pouring from his shirtless torso, tiny bits of wood and plastic flying — they proffered dollars instead of quarters.

By day's end, the kid from Harlem, who had never taken a music lesson in his life, had made $300.

That was about two years ago. He kept coming back, day after day, playing for hours at a time. He played faster and faster, built up his callouses and broke dozens of buckets.

He got some breaks: appearances in music videos by Phil Collins, Fine Young Cannibals and Jane Child, and a short documentary on public television.

This summer Wright, now 15, caught the eye of filmmaker Spike Lee, who featured him in a Levi's jeans commercial, playing his bucket and meeting his hero, drummer Max Roach.

But last month, at his moment of triumph, the drug scene claimed his mother's life.

Police say Marilyn Wright, 34, was waiting in line to buy drugs when she was shot during the attempted robbery of a drug dealer in her apartment building on West 138th Street. She died in the hospital 12 days later.

Detective John Grenawalt, who interviewed Mrs. Wright in the hospital, said there had been no arrest in her shooting. He added, incredulously, "To this day, I have yet to get a phone call from her family."

The family seems to accept her death as an awful — but not altogether surprising — consequence of her drug use and the neighborhood they live in. Larry and his grandmother, Margaret Cook, still live in the building.

Mrs. Cook was sitting on a folding metal chair on the sidewalk across from the building one day recently when she talked about her grandson. She is a slight woman who holds her arms close to her as she talks. Larry gave most of his money to his mother, she said. "As soon as he made it, she took it, and it was going to the dope man, might as well tell the truth."

When Larry's mother bought him a drum set for Christmas, "momma took care of it," the grandmother said. She chuckled at the absurdity. "I can talk about it. I can't hurt her now. She's resting."

After his mother died, Larry appeared at her wake with his drumsticks and a bucket and set them down outside the door of the funeral parlor.

"He didn't really realize what happened to his mom until he saw her laying down in a coffin," said Monte Detieger, 23, who befriended Larry a year ago and now is his manager. "When I saw him looking at his mom, he was crying. He was like screaming inside."

Drumming came early and easily to Larry. His mother used to say he began tapping on things when he was 3 months old; his uncle, Bernard Mercer, says the baby always headed straight for Mercer's tambourines.

"He was just crawling in diapers. He couldn't walk yet, or talk," the uncle said. "He'd bang on the TV screen. He'd bang on the wall, on the refrigerator, anything."

Larry himself remembers tapping on floors when he was 3. Later came table tops, garbage pail lids, trees, bottles, cups and eventually plastic buckets — the five-gallon size used to package wallboard compound and other products.

Many drummers could imitate his rhythms with a little practice, but Larry's listeners marveled at his speed and precision.

Since his mother's death, though, Wright has returned to school for the first time in two years and says he's saving his money. His goal, he says, is not to be in a band but to become a star soloist.

In the background is the memory of his mother and her fate. Mercer, his uncle, says that for all her troubles Marilyn Wright forged a special bond with her son; she was honest about her drug problem, and warned him to stay clean.

Mercer recalls the scene at the hospital, after she had been shot:

"As they were getting ready to take her upstairs to her room, she looked at all of us and said, 'Take care of my son.' Then she started crying with this real cry, like never... like she used to cry when she was a little girl."

Venus has sand dunes

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Magellan spacecraft has found sand dunes on Venus despite low wind and little loose sediment on the planet.

"They look a lot like sand dunes on Earth," said Ray Arvidson, a geologist from Washington University in St. Louis and a Magellan scientist at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

"This is a fairly rare occurrence on Venus," he said Wednesday. "This area just had a beautiful supply of sediment to be reworked into dunes."

Magellan's pictures revealed the dune field in an area of Los Angeles-sized meteorite craters. The field is 30 to 40 miles long, and each dune is hundreds of yards wide, Arvidson said. Magellan hasn't determined their height.

Magellan's images have shown Venus has very little loose sediment. That's because the planet lacks water to erode rock.

Surface winds on Venus measure only a few miles per hour, but the atmosphere is so dense that even such light winds can lift sediment, he said. Atmospheric pressure on Venus' surface is 90 times the pressure at sea level on Earth.

Arvidson said the sediment that was blown around to form the dunes may have stemmed from a meteorite impact that shattered or melted rock. Another possibility is that the meteorite was a water-rich comet, he added.

Magellan bounces radar off Venus to make pictures and maps of the planet, which can't be photographed with optical cameras because of its thick cloud cover.

The pictures have shown numerous volcanoes, volcanic collapse craters, long rivers of solidified lava, extensive faults, deep valleys and towering ridges.

Magellan began orbiting Venus on Aug. 10 after a roundabout trip from Earth of 948 million miles. The spacecraft was launched from the shuttle Atlantis in May 1989.

Officials receive revised version of Bible

By LYNN HAYES
Lifestyle Editor

The New Revised Standard Version of the Bible received a warm reception from local officials when they received copies from a Big Spring church women's group.

The Big Spring Unit of Church Women United recently presented first edition Bibles to members of the Big Spring City Council, Mayor Max Green, Howard County Judge John Coffey, Howard County Commissioners, and Bible class teacher Keith Gibbons.

"They were very receptive and seemed very pleased. The Bibles they received were first edition copies," said Jacque Mauch, historian.

The group was asked in September by Margaret Schafer, staff coordinator for the National Council of Churches in New York City, to join the National Bible Month celebration with a month-long Bible Festival. Schafer offered the women a chance to apply for a $100 grant to purchase the new Bibles.

Madeline Boadle, outreach coordinator, and Anna Smith, president, wrote a letter to the Council explaining they would like to apply for the grant to purchase the new Bibles to give to Big Spring officials.

After the letter was read in April to the Translation Committee in New York City, the group was one of only 50 units throughout the United States to receive a grant, Mauch explained.

"They were so impressed we got the grant," she said.

The women chose to give Bibles to city and county officials to show their support.

"We wanted our city and coun-Anna Smith, president of Big Spring Church Women United, presents the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible to Howard County Commissioner Paul Allen during the group's month-long Bible Festival. ty officials to know they have the support of the Christian women of Big Spring," Boadle said.

The women also presented the Bible to Keith Gibbons who teaches the Bible class at Big Spring High School.

"We especially wanted the Bible class teacher at the high school to have the new Bible so he'd be able to teach these young people the Bible."

Big Spring City Council members who received the Bibles were: Mayor Max Green, Tim Blackshear, Pat DeAnda, Corky Harris, Gail Earls, Sidney Clark and Chuck Condray.

"I felt good about it. I think it's (the Bible) good. I've enjoyed it. I was pleased they thought about us," said Earls said.

Howard County Judge John Coffey, and Howard County Commissioners O.L. Brown, David Barr, Bill Crocker and Paul Allen received their Bibles during a scheduled meeting Sept. 24.

"Personally I didn't see anything wrong with it (the presentation). It was a way of expressing themselves. It was a good gesture," Allen said.

The New Revised Standard Version was produced by a team of Bible scholars working since 1974 under the auspices of the National Council of Churches' Division of Education and Ministry. It updates the Revised Standard Version, using ancient manuscripts that were not available when that version was produced, according to a news release.

The new Bible received approval in May 1989 from the National Council of Churches Governing Board, a body that has a membership of 32 Protestant and Orthodox denominations, the news release stated.

Two major distributors of religious books have reported brisk sales of the new Bible. Augsburg Fortress Press, a Lutheran publisher, has sold out its first order of Bibles, and United Methodist-affiliated Cokesbury has ordered a third shipment from the publishers.

A committee of Roman Catholic scholars is reviewing the new translation for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said the Rev. Arthur Van Eck, associate general secretary for the National Council of Churches Division of Education and Ministry.

Approval by Catholic bishops could lead to publication of a "common Bible" containing the endorsement of Protestant, Orthodox and Catholic bodies, and publication of a Catholic edition intended specifically for Catholics, Van Eck said.

Under the leadership of Bruch M. Metzger of Princeton Theological Seminary, the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible has taken 16 years of dedicated work to complete.

"Since the Bible speaks clearly to every generation, this could well be the most important publication of 1990," he concluded.

The objectives of the study were for the local women to see the needs of the Filipino women in an empathetic light; to understand the indignity and unhappiness of women who are oppressed and degraded by poverty.

A difficult social ill plaguing the Philippines and other developing countries is prostitution. Nearly 20,000 Filipino women — also known as "hospitality girls" — through the streets of Manila's "red light" district.

The Philippine government says a family of four needs more than $5 per day to live above the poverty level. However a sugar worker makes about $1 a day, and an industrial worker may make as much as $2.75 per day. A "hospitality girl" may make as little as $2 or as much as $10 per day.

Linda Lindell, Spiritual Life coordinator, discussed John 8:1-11 for the worship, and compared the Bible story to the situation of the life of the Filipino women today.

The unit voted to send four cases of cokes to Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia.

The next meeting will be Nov. 5 in the church sanctuary.

Church urges

'oil-free Sunday'

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — The Church of the Brethren, one of the historic peace churches, has urged people to observe an "oil-free Sunday" on Oct. 21 to focus attention on the nation's dependence on foreign oil.

Alternate means of transportation to fuel-powered vehicles were recommended — walking, bicycling or using mass transit.

The Persian Gulf crisis is over oil resources, and "in this case it is clear that our nation is willing to go to war to keep the oil flowing," said David Radcliff, the church's peace consultant.

"From a Brethren point of view, all war is wrong. In this particular case, we are committed to making whatever lifestyle sacrifices are necessary to stop the country from going to war."

Roman Catholicism against Ku Klux Klan

NEW YORK (AP) — Cardinal John O'Connor told worshippers at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Oct. 7 that Roman Catholicism is "absolutely, unconditionally and unconditionally against membership in the Ku Klux Klan."

He referred to media reports of a rise in ultraright groups in New York.

Moslems edging into mainstream

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — Moslems, long isolated from America's religious mainstream, have started edging into it.

An initial step into working collaboration with Christians and Jews came last week as national Islamic representatives joined a major interfaith operation, Religion in American Life.

Dawud Assad, president of the Council of Mosques of the United States, said that in taking the step,

"we look forward to some good cooperation in the future" with "our brothers and sisters."

"We're at a new stage at which we cease to be a religion on the margins, but a religion of American people related to American life," said Gutbi E. Ahmed, director of the Moslem World League. "We're now ready to interact with the rest of American people, particularly in relation to its religious communities."

Leaders of other faiths, Protestant, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish welcomed the Moslem entry into the organization, which works to encourage regular worship and community service.

"This is an historic moment for RIAL and, I daresay, for America," said Rabbi Joseph B. Glaser, chairman of the group and executive vice president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

"It could be a turning point for

Bishop's plea

JERUSALEM — The Greek Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Luffy Laham, pleads with an Israeli policeman Thursday to be allowed into the Temple Mount to mourn the 19 Moslems who died in rioting. Eventually, the cleric and other Christian leaders were allowed to enter.

Moslems

our nation," he added. "We have broken a major barrier, and we hope, the beneficial effect may well ripple to other shores."

Religion in American Life was founded in 1949 and initially involved only Protestant denominations. It later included Roman Catholicism, making it inter-Christian, and subsequently enlisted Jews, making it a interreligious.

"Now, with the entry of Islam, we become a holy organization," Glaser said. "Holiness is inclusive — it knows no fences. Holiness is trust and is caring beyond one's parochial boundaries."

"Holiness is knowing that we are all God's children — and in knowing that the knowing God."

Moslems previously have been involved in interfaith theological dialogues, but not in interreligious activity on a national basis.

"We had not been able to join before because we would be drowned," Assad said. But, he said, Moslems now have organizational maturity and strength to facilitate interreligious cooperation.

The council Assad heads includes 195 mosques, worshipping centers in most major cities. He said there also are now more than 1,000 Moslem community organizations, some worshipping in basements or other makeshift places.

Noting Islamic roots in Judaism and Christianity, he said, "We who work together all are of the Abrahamic faith."

He said Moslem Scriptures, the Koran, "demands dialogue with people of the book (the Bible)," meaning Jews and Christians. "We also believe in all the book, the prophets, the gospel," he said.

No Islamic membership count has been made in this country, but estimates generally put the figure between 4 million and 6 million, although some estimates range considerably above that.

The Rev. Nicholas B. van Dyck, a Presbyterian and president of Religion in American Life, said starting Islamic participation shows what "may be news to many Americans" — that most Moslems support interfaith cooperation.

The group coordinates interfaith research and public information activities, including provision of worship directories in hotels. It also works to increase weekly worship, backed by public service advertising campaigns.

The current drive, under the slogan "Invite a Friend," involves projects in thousands of congregations.

For years, Islam in this country has been regarded a "foreign religion," and consequently Moslem immigrants "learned to live in their own substructure," Ahmed said.

However, he said the taking root in America of indigenous, black Moslems, of which he is one, and the presence of a second generation of younger American-born Moslems opened the way for cooperation with other faiths.

"The big difference is that we have had a wall around our lives in a Moslem ghetto, and now we see we are part of this society, that our future is here," he said. "This has never been faced by Moslems before."

The Rev. Steve A. Comstock, First Christian Church, Big Spring, second vice president; Sarah Wilson, San Angelo, third vice president; Karl Karrenbrock, Abilene, treasurer; and Mary Ann Wright, Sweetwater, secretary.

Also elected to serve on the Lake Brownwood Board are: Brent Holt, San Angelo; the Rev. L. B. Cantrell, Midland; and the Rev. David Dickinson, Vernon.

Jehovah's Witnesses from Big Spring will soon be convening with members of some 20 other congregations of the West Texas area at the Chaparral Center, Midland College, in Midland, 3600 N. Garfield.

C.L. Lunsford, spokesman for the local congregation, explained that over 2,500 delegates are expected to attend this one-day session of Bible instruction and fellowship.

"Our program theme is, 'Become Holy in All Your Conduct,' based on the Bible text at 1 Peter 1:15," Lunsford said. "Christians should be concerned with being holy. It is a requirement if we want to be God's people and have a good relationship with him."

The principal address of the assembly will be delivered by a representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses, in Brooklyn, N.Y. His subject will be "Expanding Activities of Jehovah's Holy People."

The Central Area of the Christian Church, at their 1990 Area Assembly, elected new officers for the 1990-91 year. They are: the Rev. Denise Bloomquist, San Angelo, president; the Rev. Roger Bray, First Christian Church, Brownwood, first vice president;

Tumbleweed Smith to debut audio cassette

The new cassette, "Cowboys and Oilmen," includes the voices of several Big Spring residents.

Material for the cassettes comes from interviews Tumbleweed does for his daily syndicated radio show, The Sound of Texas.

Refreshments served and public invited.

Wife's confession still hurts after 20 years

DEAR ABBY: Prior to my marriage, my wife-to-be told me that she was not a virgin. (I was.) We now have been married for more than 20 years and have a wonderful family. My problem is that I have never forgotten that my wife did not wait for marriage before sharing her bed. Even though I have had counseling, I still feel pain in my heart when I think of my wife in the arms of other men. To this day, I would marry my wife again, but I wish that God would have granted her the wisdom to keep silent as to her earlier men. Please do not disclose the city I mailed this from, as I do not want to embarrass my family. — TORN HEART

DEAR TORN HEART: Please quit torturing yourself. Perhaps the following letter will do for you what counseling did not. Read it twice. Then read it again:

DEAR ABBY: I am happily married to the finest man who ever walked in shoe leather.

My childhood and adolescence was not a very pretty one. I had been sexually abused by family members and had been in four different foster homes by the time I was 17. I grew up very fast, if you know what I mean. I waited on tables to put myself through college. It took me five years, but I graduated — but I'm getting off my story. I met a beautiful young man who was studying for the ministry. We were exactly the same age. Within a year, he asked me to marry him. I thought I had died and gone to heaven.

We've been married for three years. On our wedding night, I told him I would answer any questions he had, and started off by telling him I wasn't a virgin.

He said, "As far as I am concerned, you were born the day we met. What you have done before we met has nothing to do with me." — I MARRIED AN ANGEL

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." LONDON — French couturier Pierre Cardin helps with his models during the photocall for an exhibition called "Past, Present, Future" in London. The exhibition traces the development of Cardin's haute couture from the 1950s to the 1990s and takes a brief look at what the future might hold. It is the first time a museum has honored a living couturier by dedicating an exhibition to him.

Exotic pigs are latest pet craze

By PAMELA COLEMAN
Plano Star Courier

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Vietnamese potbelly pigs, the latest rage in the exotic pet market, are more likely to wind up trotting through a litter box than sizzling in someone's frying pan.

So move over cats, step aside dogs.

Granted, these little porkers grunt instead of bark and clatter across tile floors while more common pets pad on soft paws. But pigs can be trained to use litter boxes and they do spin their whiplike tails in tiny circles when pleased.

And they'll do anything for food.

Since Keith Connell introduced them in the United States via Canada in 1985, approximately 6,000 pig lovers nationwide have snapped them up.

"People have loved pigs for thousands of years, but they got to be 700 to 1,000 pounds so they've never been able to have one until now," said Teri Olson, owner of Pee Wee Pigs, a Dallas-based potbelly pig breeder.

"You can read about them in papers and see them on television, but few people actually get to see one in person," Olson said. "This is an exotic pet. They're still fairly rare."

Meet Lena, Humphrey, Wilbur and Harry, a quartet of half-grown piglets.

These specially bred pigs are known for their delicate stature, sharp minds, sagging bellies and appealing (some say) snouts. Their characteristic bellies apparently developed genetically after eating water-soaked pond lilies for generations.

"You find yourself saying

PLANO, Texas — Terri Olson, owner of Pee Wee Pigs, feeds snacks to her Vietnamese potbelly pig Lena at her Plano, Texas, home.

things like, 'They look like pigs,' or, 'Quit being a pig,' when they're eating too many treats," Olson said. "You realize what you're saying is ridiculous, because they are pigs."

And that's an understatement. Potbelly pigs will do anything for a snack.

"They're definitely pigs," Olson said. "They will eat."

Favorite treats include grapes, apples and spinach leaves. But beware — they'll sample just about anything.

Lena, Olson's only female pig, runs under the household bird cage to catch any discarded seeds. And a quick glance at the back yard reveals a well-manicured lawn.

"They've helped me mow the grass for sure," Olson said.

Olson warns that the pigs should only eat half a cup of special pig food in the morning and half a cup at night and stay away from the junk food.

"It's real important not to overfeed them," she said. "If you do, their bellies will sort of drag on the ground."

Her pigs, which now hover around 15 pounds, will eventually more than double in size, to that of a medium-sized dog. We're talking 40 to 60 pounds of pig. But the animals' greedy eating habits also come in handy, making it difficult to misplace a pet pig. "If your pig gets loose from you, just get some food," she said.

And potbelly pigs, she says, are easy to train because of their unquenchable hunger.

"She learned how to sit in about an hour," Olson said, tossing a bright orange hunk of cantaloupe toward a gracefully seated Lena.

Another training hint: Never hit a pig. Use a squirt bottle for reprimands instead. "You can't believe how smart they are," she said.

Potbelly pigs typically live 15 to 20 years, and neutered males usually make the best pets. Non-neutered males have a strong odor, but once they're neutered, their temperament becomes more genteel.

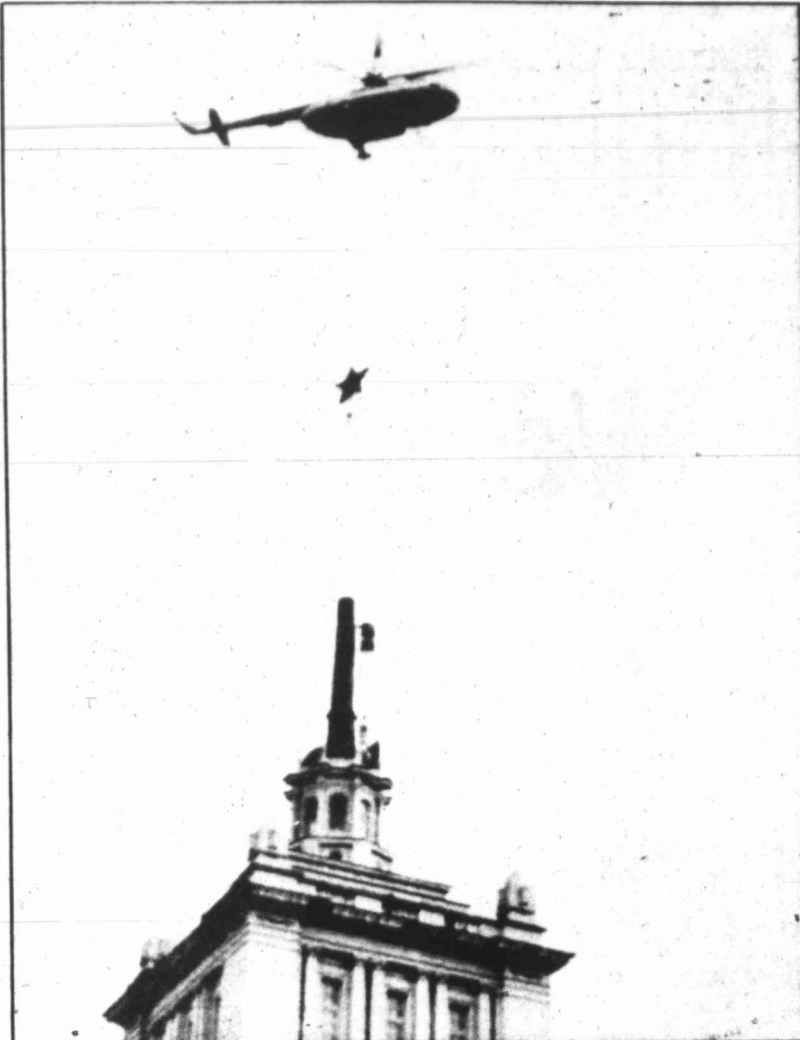

"People don't believe you when you tell them you have pigs," she said. "And they really don't believe you when you tell them you keep them inside."

As pets go, potbelly pigs don't come cheap. Females start at about $3,000, and neutered males start at $500.

"They all have their own personalities, just like a dog," she said.

But suffice to say that almost every potbelly pig loves to have its tummy tickled. "They just fall over to have their bellies rubbed," Olson said. "Harry's really very sweet. He'll roll right over."

A slightly bristly paunch it is, and one that should get a dose of mineral oil every few weeks. "That's about the only maintenance," Olson said.

Research shows coffee won't hurt the heart

BOSTON (AP) — Coffee drinkers, delight. A good cup of joe, or two, or three, won't hurt the heart, Harvard researchers reported yesterday.

In fact, coffee with caffeine, the often maligned chemical that gives the brew its kick, may turn out to be easier on the heart than the decaffeinated variety.

"It's amazing how coffee has a bad name when, the harder one looks at health hazards, the more difficult it is to find adverse effects," says Dr. Walter Willett of the Harvard School of Public Health.

His research, part of a huge study of healthy people, shows that those who drink several cups of ordinary caffeinated coffee every day do not raise their risk of heart attacks.

"This is a very reassuring study for something that people enjoy day in and day out," said Dr.

Harvey Wolinsky of Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York, an adviser to the National Coffee Association. The research was based on a survey of the coffee-drinking habits of 45,589 men. It was published in today's New England

Journal of Medicine. Those who suspected coffee was bad for the heart usually assumed caffeine was to blame. But the new research suggests just the opposite: Those who drink more than four cups of decaf a day have about a 60 percent higher risk of heart disease than do those who never drink it.

The researchers cautioned that view of preventing heart disease," he said.

Another recent study also raised doubts about decaffeinated coffee. Researchers at Stanford University found that people who switch from regular coffee to decaf increased their levels of low-density lipoprotein — the so-called bad cholesterol — an average of 7 percent.

You can tell him that "Everyone makes mistakes." You can say, "Don't pay attention to the other kids." You can even let him know he's not stupid. But that won't change the way he feels.

Where do you go when you're different from the other kids?

He's getting help at a center for children with learning disabilities. They got help from the United Way. All because the United Way got help from you.

Your single contribution helps provide day care for the child of a single parent, a reading program for an illiterate adult and a warm coat for a homeless man.

Or, in this case, therapy for a bright, six-year-old boy with a learning disability. He may never be the smartest kid in class. But he just might teach the other kids a lesson in determination.

It brings out the best in all of us.

Waterless yacht club holds regatta

BOLINGBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Their boats are cardboard, their coveted trophy is a pink flamingo and their annual regatta is held in a corn field. Bolingbrook Yacht Club members say they have just about everything discriminating mariners could want — except water.

With Lake Michigan some 30 miles away, residents of this Chicago suburb have formed a unique version of one of the lakeside city's most elite cliques.

"You make do with what you have," said Commodore Dennis Scott, head of the club jokingly named "Bolingbrook by the Sea."

The club was founded 10 years ago by residents of this "landlocked one-time farm community who wanted to shake the town's rube reputation."

"We went out and bought sails, some kazoes and other things we thought a yacht club should have," said founding father Terrence Little.

"And we got an official song. You may know it: 'By the sea, by the sea, by the Bolingbrook sea.'"

In their annual "regatta," Bolingbrook yachtsmen run, cheat and bribe their way through an obstacle course in a corn field, though the event also can be held on the Village Hall lawn.

"Bolingbrook should be proud," Scott said. "We are the originators of the sport and the largest corn field society in the world."

Gus the goose is a real party animal

ARRINGTON, Tenn. (AP) — Gus, a 4-month-old Canada goose, helps cut the grass, visits the neighbors and sometimes flies after the school bus.

"He's the original party animal," says Bill Carson, who adopted Gus from friends who hatched the goose on their water heater.

Gus will accompany anyone on a walk to get the newspaper. He helps mow the grass by eating clippings sprayed from the mower and sometimes chases the school bus when his friend Ryan Thigpen, 11, leaves in the morning.

Gus flies beside the bus, looking in the window. Carson — fearful the goose will be hit by a car — is trying to break Gus of that habit.

Content to live with humans, Gus ignores a large flock of Canada geese living in a small lake in Carson's back yard. He also ignores Dudley, a domestic gray goose who passes the day staring at his reflection in the shiny chrome bumper of Carson's truck.

About five months ago, a Doberman pinscher found an egg near the Harpeth River in Franklin, about 20 miles south of Nashville, said Diane Frazier.

"My uncle's dog, Duchess, was playing with the egg in the yard for some time," Frazier said. "My uncle thought it was a baseball."

Her husband, Mike Frazier, rescued the egg, put it in a paper bag and placed it on the water heater, turning it once a day until Gus hatched.

The Fraziers, who live in downtown Franklin, soon decided Gus would be happier in the country and gave him to their friend Carson, who lives in this small town about 10 miles east of Franklin.

MISSION RIDGE, S.D. — Teacher Steve Pickner raises the flag with his three students at the school where he teaches in Mission Ridge, S.D. State officials believe the three students may represent the smallest enrollment in the state

Enrollment triples to three

MISSION RIDGE, S.D. (AP) — Enrollment tripled at the Orton School this fall, but there is no risk of overcrowding. Three students now share the school's single classroom.

"Now I have someone to play with at recess," said Levi Tibbs, a fifth-grader who was the school's lone student last year.

His playmates are sisters Emily Hansen, a second grader, and Sheri Davis, who is in sixth grade. Their attendance at the 1918 schoolhouse has helped stave off its extinction.

"We considered closing it, but if we did, then we'd have to pay to board those kids in town or we'd have to pay mileage for them to be driven to school and home every day," said county school Superintendent Jerry Kleinsasser.

And that trip is no quick jaunt. The nearest town is Fort Pierre, a long hour's drive down 50 miles of bumpy, winding road that follows the rugged breaks of the Missouri River.

Locals call the area starkly beautiful. Outsiders call it desolate. Winters are harsh and snowy on the Dakota prairie, and the wind almost never stills.

"You can hear the coyotes fighting and jabbering all night long," said teacher Steve Pickner, 31, who lives with his dog in a rent-free mobile home on the school site. His nearest neighbors are antelope, grouse and rattlesnakes.

Pickner is in his first year as a teacher — he graduated from the University of South Dakota in August — and he has his qualms.

"I'd rather teach 50 kids in one class than three in different grades," he said. "That's 21 separate lessons I have to prepare each night, but it does keep me busy and helps pass the time out here."

It's hard to get used to the quiet after classes. "I look forward to Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays when the mail comes," Pickner said.

Occasionally, he helps mend fences at a nearby ranch that raises one of the nation's largest private buffalo herds.

Elementary Principal Elsie Baye says teachers rarely stay more than a year at Orton. "It's isolated," she admits, and the free housing is essential to lure teachers to such a rustic outpost.

Still, she persists in putting the best face on it: "Someone who is an artist or wildlife photographer would just love it there."

And as for the children, "It's a great educational opportunity. Our rural kids are usually good students. They get a lot of one-on-one."

In Orton's classroom — big and bright with three desks in the middle — two students sit together while Pickner tutors the third across the room.

An outdated computer sits in one corner; a television set that gets only one channel sits in another. The other classroom fixtures include an aging piano, an ant farm, a water fountain and a microwave oven where the kids and teacher heat their lunches.

Almost one-fourth of the elementary schools in South Dakota still have only one or two teachers. Legally, schools cannot be closed unless enrollment slips to fewer than five. And neither the kids nor their parents seem inclined abandon the small schools.

"It's funner than a big school," said Sheri Davis.

Operation Oasis enters its final week

Sponsors of Operation Oasis are wrapping up the loose ends as the project enters its final week, said 7-Eleven field manager Ray Lara.

Sending a "note with a Coke" to soldiers in Saudi Arabia celebrates its one-month anniversary today. A wrap-up celebration is being planned for the project on Saturday, Oct. 20.

"The people of Big Spring gave $13,500. And we beat Lubbock, that's important." — 7-Eleven field manager Ray Lara, about the city of Lubbock's challenge to Big Spring to collect more cases of the soft drink stores to turn in their totals, but some are going to have to wait. He said he expects to have tabulations by Tuesday.

Trucks are expected to arrive Saturday Oct. 20 to take the Cokes to Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock to begin their overseas journey. Lara said every individual, group, business and organization that donated to the project should gather about 10 a.m. at City Hall on that day.

Sponsors 7-Eleven, KBST and Southwest Coca-Cola Bottling will make the official presentation to Mayor Maxwell Green, Lara said. "I want it to be a huge sending-away party. I hope everybody will come out.

"We'll give (the mayor) official power to call Lubbock and rub their noses in the ground," Lara said.

The total of cases collected to be sent overseas "looks like it's going to be about 2,700," Lara said.

"That's a far cry from 10,000."

Lara said he is not disappointed that the city missed its 10,000 case goal for the project — an estimate of the number of soldiers deployed with Operation Desert Shield.

"The people of Big Spring gave $13,500," Lara said. "And we beat Lubbock, that's important." The city of Lubbock had officially challenged Big Spring to collect more cases of the soft drink.

Bowl-a-Rama in Big Spring will offer free bowling and shoe rental to participants Sunday between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Texas cities such as Andrews, Monahans and Kermit, McQueary said Huckabee's firm "knows how to build West Texas schools."

In other business, the board discussed the results of a survey concerning the possibility of disallowing smoking anywhere on the school campuses. Results showed that 43 percent of those surveyed wanted to retain some designated area for smoking.

McQueary said he thought many employees were only feeling "sorry for people addicted to (smoking)."

He said he would like to see the district go "smoke-free" for several reasons, including assurance of positive role models for the students and reduction of the health hazards.

A proposed time schedule begins in December, when all employees would be notified of the policy change. Smoking cessation sessions would begin in the spring of next year to help smokers kick the habit.

Aug. 15, 1991, is the proposed date to start the no-smoking policy. McQueary said he would place the issue on the agenda for the board's next meeting.

Trustees approved several bids for school purchases at the meeting.

Four pickup trucks will be bought from Pollard Chevrolet-Buick-Cadillac in Big Spring.

Athletic supplies, including swimsuits, track uniforms and equipment, will be ordered from various vendors for a total expense of $7,768.

The board approved the members of a textbook selection committee. The group includes 13 teachers and three administrators. Book subject areas to be under consideration include math, vocational studies, computers and biology.

A list of recommended books are expected to be brought to the board in March of 1991. Parents will have a chance to review books on the list before that date, McQueary said.

Budget

"The meter is running, but look, I can't dictate to Congress," he conceded.

That sent Republicans back to the drawing board.

"We've got to give our guys something to be for," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill.

The Ways and Means plan, and the Democratic and Republican alternatives, seemed headed for a clash on the House floor next week.

Things seemed less partisan in the Senate, where Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, refined his own proposal in an effort to draw GOP support.

The new plan dropped proposals to cut the capital gains tax and raise income taxes on the wealthy.

The latest version would limit itemized deductions for people with incomes over $100,000 a year; raise to $125,000 the maximum amount of annual wages subject to the tax that finances Medicare; and allow monthly premiums paid by Medicare beneficiaries to rise more slowly than budget summit negotiators had proposed last month.

The House Ways and Means Committee plan would impose a 3 percent income tax rate on the wealthiest Americans — the same tax rate already paid by those who are almost as well-to-do.

The rich would face a 10 percent surtax on income surpassing $1 million. The minimum tax paid by the wealthy after all exemptions and deductions, now 21 percent, would rise to 25 percent.

The plan also would increase the gasoline tax by 3 cents per gallon, 8 cents less than the full Ways and Means proposal. The federal tax on gasoline now is 9 cents per gallon.

Democrats also would limit cuts to Medicare beneficiaries to $10 billion over the next five years. That would be $7 billion less than the Ways and Means Committee's proposal and $18 billion below the budget summit agreement.

As a result, the Democrats would impose a lesser boost on the monthly premium that Medicare beneficiaries pay for doctors' coverage. The annual $75 deductible paid by participants for doctors' expenses would increase, but also at a lesser rate.

Officials still looking for Gray

Almost four months after his escape from a Snyder prison, convicted murderer Travis Dale Gray remains at large, officials said today.

"He's still out there," said Texas Ranger John Billings. "We've flagged every piece of information we can, and we're on this all the time." Billings said progress has been made in the investigation, although details cannot be disclosed. "Basically, he didn't make very many mistakes," Billings said. "In planning the escape, as in the (murder) of his (then) wife — both were planned out very well."

Gray, 31, was convicted of the 1987 murder of Tammy Lynn Gray after she reportedly drowned in Lake Colorado City. He was given a 40-year sentence, but escaped from the Price Daniel Unit in Snyder after serving two months.

Trial date set for Marlon Brando's son

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Attempts to reach a plea bargain for Marlon Brando's son broke down, and a judge set Christian Brando's murder trial for Nov. 5.

"Nobody's talking settlement now," Deputy District Attorney William Clark said after a brief hearing Thursday.

Clark said that last week Christian Brando's lawyer and prosecutors discussed a possible plea bargain after it became apparent Brando's sister, Cheyenne, was unlikely to testify in the case.

Clark said defense lawyer Robert Shapiro's proposals were not accepted.

But Shapiro told reporters the defense remains open to negotiations.

The 32-year-old Brando is charged in the May 16 murder of his half-sister's Tahitian lover, Dag Drollet, who was fatally shot at Marlon Brando's hilltop mansion.

In early statements to police, the young Brando said he didn't mean to kill the 26-year-old Drollet and suggested they were struggling over a gun that accidentally fired.

Prosecutors maintain the shooting was intentional and that Brando was spurred into a rage by his sister, who said Drollet had beaten her.

Superior Court Judge Robert Thomas said jury selection in the trial would begin Nov. 5. He noted he has received large amounts of mail indicating strong public sentiment in the case.

BIG SPRING HERALD, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1990

Friday Football Forecast

Compiled by Herald Sports Staff

Big Spring (0-0, 2-1-1) at San Angelo Lake View (0-1, 2-2)

District opener for the Big Spring Steers while the San Angelo Lake View Chiefs dropped their district opener, a 34-6 decision to Monahans last week.

The Steers are fresh and healthy coming off an open date last week. The Chiefs are hurting somewhat; leading receiver Kevin Dumas is nursing a sore ankle.

Lake View is in transition. They are learning the ways of new coach Bill Hicks. Just like last year however, the Chiefs like to throw the ball, but their defense is lacking. Look for quarterback Corey Stephens to air it out against the Steers, because Lake View won't be able to establish a running game.

Look for the Steers to stay on the ground. They won't have to pass because the Chiefs offense can't stop them.

Playing in front of the home crowd, Lake View will play the Steers tough for a half. But in the second half, Big Spring will simply wear the Chiefs down. The Steers take their first step in defending their district championship.

BIG SPRING 35, LAKE VIEW 12

Coahoma (0-2, 2-3) at Forsan (0-2, 1-4)

One can throw out the records in this Howard County rivalry. These two teams always mix it up. It will be the teacher, Forsan Coach Jan East, against the student, Coahoma coach Steve Park.

A win is a must in this league game. The loser can surely kiss hopes of making the playoffs goodbye. If you look at the game on paper, Coahoma should win handily. On paper the Bulldogs have too much size and depth. Fortunately for Forsan, this game isn't played on paper.

The Bulldogs will be sky-high for the Bulldogs, while Coahoma will be down because of its previous two district losses, games the Bulldogs felt they could've won.

It all promises to be very interesting. A Stephen East field goal at the end should do the trick. The student learns another lesson from the teacher in the Upset Special of the Week.

FORSAN 17, COAHOMA 14

Ozona (2-0, 3-2) at Stanton (0-2, 0-5)

The Stanton Buffalos are still trying to find their offense. The Buffs have tried two different offenses, moved a running back to quarterback and a wide receiver to running back. None of it has worked.

The Ozona Lions started off slow, but are picking up speed, trying to regain the form that took them to the regional playoffs last year. The Lions own district victories over Forsan and Eldorado. They smell playoffs again.

The Stanton offense will score, but not near enough.

OZONA 24, STANTON 12

Colorado City (2-2-1) at Crane (1-1-2)

This is the district-opener for both teams. The preseason polls have Crane picked to win District 6-3A, and Colorado City to finish last.

For the second straight week, the Wolves will be three-touchdown underdogs. Last week Colorado City upset Wylie 18-16, finishing the game with only 15 healthy players. This week they'll get a few of the injured ones back, but quarterback George Ramsey will miss the game with a concussion.

The Wolves will put up a gallant effort, but this week there will be no upset.

CRANE 27, COLORADO CITY 16

Wellman (4-1) at Sands (5-0)

District-opener for both teams.

The Sands Mustangs are riding high, ranked No. 7 in the state. The Wellman Wildcats are picked to give Sands a run for its money for the district title.

Wellman relies on all-everything halfback Wade Rowden. Sands relies on a nasty defense. One man isn't enough to beat that defense.

SANDS 36, WELLMAN 22

Dawson (2-3) at Grady (4-1)

Another league opener. Dawson has played surprisingly well considering it only returns three players from last year's 2-8 team. Defense has carried the Dragons so far this year.

The Grady Wildcats are on a roll, having won four in a row. The Wildcats' offense and defense is equally balanced. That will tell the story.

GRADY 40, DAWSON 20

Klondike (3-2) at Loop (1-4)

The Klondike Cougars are howling mad after dropping a 26-25 decision to Borden County last week.

Maybe they took B-County too lightly. They learned their lessons, as the Loop Longhorns will find out in this league opener.

KLONDIKE 48, LOOP 31

Hermleigh (2-3) at Borden County (2-3)

Borden County got star running back Jimmy Rios back and made wonders on both sides of the ball.

Tonight Rios and the Coyotes will work some magic on the Hermleigh Cardinals.

Italians take Knicks to wire

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Gerald Wilkins wiped some imaginary sweat off his forehead and heaved a sigh of relief that could be felt throughout the NBA.

The New York Knicks needed a 3-pointers by Wilkins with eight seconds left in regulation time to avoid an embarrassing loss to Italian champion Scavolini Pesaro.

"It definitely has to rank as one of my very big shots," said Wilkins, whose 24 points helped the Knicks overcome Scavolini 119-115 in overtime in the McDonald's Open on Thursday.

"We were supposed to win, no matter what. When I hit the shot it was like ... phew," he said, wiping his forehead.

The victory margin of four points was the smallest for any National Basketball Association team in seven McDonald's Open games. NBA clubs won the first six games in Milwaukee, Madrid and Rome by an average of 20 points.

The Knicks, who play European champion POP 84 Split of Yugoslavia in Saturday's championship game, trailed by five points in the last two minutes of regulation time.

"If we had lost the game, which we were very close to, it would have been one of our team's and the NBA's most embarrassing moments," said Knicks coach Stu

Jackson.

Patrick Ewing scored 34 points, grabbed 17 rebounds and blocked eight shots for the Knicks, most of whom were sluggish.

"We had typical shortcomings you find in a first game," Jackson said. "We turned the ball over, missed free throws and shot poorly."

It was a combination of the Knicks being sloppy and a pair of NBA castoffs, Darwin Cook and Darren Daye, teaming for 64 points for Scavolini.

Cook, who used to play for New Jersey and Washington in the NBA, finished as the game's high scorer with 35 points. Daye, a veteran of three NBA teams, had 29 points.

"Teams can't come over here and think it's going to be easy when they play us," Cook said, speaking on behalf of European basketball.

After Wilkins tied the game at 107 and sent it into overtime, Scavolini scored the first six points of extra session. But Ewing then took control, scoring six points to lead a 12-2 Knicks surge for the victory.

Guard Velimir Perasovic had 24 points and Toni Kukoc, a second-round draft choice of the Chicago Bulls this year, added 23 to lead POP 84 to a 102-97 victory over Barcelona. The Spanish champion, which was led by 28 points from Jose Ortiz, plays Scavolini on Saturday.

Very expensive football tickets

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A price range between $25 and $125 makes comparison shopping seem in order for Oklahomans wanting to buy scalped tickets to Saturday's Oklahoma-Texas football game.

Oklahoma-Texas scalping is "the best it's been in five years," according to one man who advertised his tickets in The Daily Oklahoman on Wednesday and wants $100 each for tickets near the 25-yard line.

"We've sold to brokers in Dallas because they can't find them."

But the market report changes when it's the buyers talking and not the sellers.

People who wanted tickets badly enough to advertise for them said they have been hearing prices no higher than $75.

The asking price for a seat in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas on Saturday is nowhere near what it's been in some zenith scalping years. In 1984, a pair of tickets on the 35-yard line was advertised for $450.

Wildcat on the loose

HERMLEIGH — Grady Wildcats junior running back Baldomir Cortez (8) finds lots of running room against the Hermleigh Cardinals defense in action last Friday which Grady won 73-30. Tonight Grady will host the Dawson Dragons in the district opener for both teams.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Nick Anderson scored 31 points and Jerry Reynolds added 15 to lead the Orlando Magic to a 111-97 NBA preseason victory over San Antonio.

Anderson, who hit 11 of 20 shots, moved into the starting lineup for the second-year expansion team after Orlando traded veteran guard Reggie Theus to New Jersey during the offseason.

Rod Strickland led the Spurs with 15 points Thursday night, while David Robinson, who played just 18 minutes, was one of three San Antonio players with 11 points.

San Antonio, the defending Midwest Conference champion, jumped out to a 19-8 lead.

Rookie forward Dennis Scott came off the bench to hit a pair of 3-pointers and two jumpers in a three-minute span to ignite the Magic on a 17-5 run to open the second quarter. He finished with 13 points.

The Spurs got within 84-77 in 10:03 remaining, but Scott hit a 3-pointer and Morlon Wiley added a layup to extend Orlando's lead back to double figures.

While Orlando coach Matt Guokas played his starters and top reserves most of the game, Spurs coach Larry Brown opted to go to his bench during much of the second and fourth quarters.

PLANO (AP) — Dallas Cowboys offensive guard Nate Newton was arrested in this Dallas suburb last month on a charge of driving while intoxicated, a newspaper reported today.

Dallas Cowboys Pro Personnel Director John Wooten said he was not aware of the Sept. 10 arrest, but team spokesman Rich Dalrymple said Newton acknowledged the incident when questioned Thursday by the Plano Star Courier.

The newspaper learned of Newton's arrest from police records and court documents.

Newton declined comment, but he did tell Dalrymple that he was intent on having his day in court.

"He is a responsible person," Dalrymple said.

Coach Jimmy Johnson may not have known of the incident, the Cowboys spokesman said.

"The coach has stated publicly that players are treated the same as any other member of society — they go through whatever hearings are required. It is a matter to be handled by the authorities," Dalrymple said.

Any action by the team would depend on the outcome of the court action, he said.

Plano police clocked Newton traveling 72 mph in a 40 mph zone about 2:40 a.m., said Sgt. Kirby Miller.

According to the police report, Newton's car was swerving and he ran a red light.

Smoke was coming from the rear of the red 1990 Ford station wagon because Newton apparently had been driving with the parking brake engaged, Miller said.

Newton failed a field sobriety test, Miller said, but the 6-foot-2, 300-pound athlete was throughout the ordeal.

"He was very cooperative," Miller said today.

Miller said Newton declined to take a blood-alcohol test.

According to police records, Newton told them he had been to an suburban night club, where he had "two or three beers."

Steers junior varsity whips Chiefs

The Big Spring Steers junior varsity kept its hopes alive for a perfect season as they blasted the San Angelo Lake View Chiefs 48-8 Thursday night at Memorial Stadium.

The Steers led 14-0 after the first quarter play and never looked back. With the win Big Spring moves to 5-0 for the season.

The Steers first score of the game came when Dewayne Edmonds scored from one-yard out. Oscar Cervantes booted the extra point, giving Big Spring a 7-0 lead. Big Spring's second score of the game came later in the quarter. Tailback Oscar Valencia scored on a 34-yard run. Cervantes' extra point made the count 14-0.

In the second quarter Valencia scored again, he took a pitch from quarterback Clay Klatt and scored from 45 yards out. The PAT was no good and Big Spring led 20-0.

The Steers made it 28-0 at the half. Klatt hit wide receiver Pat Martinez with a 27-yard scoring strike. The two point-conversion was a pass from Klatt to Martinez.

The third quarter began with fullback Darius Hill scoring on a 17-yard run for the Steers. The extra point was no good. Big Spring led 34-0. Also in the third quarter, quarterback Derrick Smith connected with wide receiver Cervantes for a 24-yard scoring play. Cervantes added the extra point, giving Big Spring a 41-0 lead.

In the fourth quarter the Chiefs scored their only touchdown of the game, and added the two-point conversion. The score broke a streak of 11 quarters the Steer defense hadn't been scored on.

The final score of the game came when Hill rambled 63 yards to paydirt. Cervantes' PAT ended the scoring for the game.

Both Big Spring quarterbacks had good games. Klatt completed six of eight passes for 98 yards and one TD. Smith was two of two for 40 yards and one TD.

Defensively, Jason LeGrande, Cervantes and Shane Kotora recovered fumbles.

GREENWOOD 12, STEERS FRESHMEN B 0

Greenwood scored a touchdown in the second quarter, and added an insurance one in the third quarter in downing the Big Spring Steers freshmen B team here Thursday night.

Greenwood's first score came when Big Spring fumbled at its own one-yard line.

Big Spring coaches said center Mike Pence and quarterback Toby McQuay had good offensive games. Defensively, linebacker Ronald Allen played well. The freshmen B team falls to 1-2 for the season.

STEERS FRESHMEN A 34, SAN ANGELO LAKE VIEW 12

San Angelo — Quarterback Richie Thompson threw two touchdown passes leading the Steers freshmen A team to a win over San Angelo Lake View here Thursday night.

Thompson threw 10-yard scoring strikes to tight end Ricky Gonzales and Mike Oliva. Oliva also kicked two extra points.

Also scoring for the Steers were tailback Josh Jones, on an eight-yard run; a three-yard run by tailback Ed Guerrero and a seven-yard run by fullback Keith Martin. The Steers also got a two-point conversion on a pass from Jones to Tyrone Banks.

Cornerback Oliva picked off a pass and returned it 35 yards. Big Spring coaches credited linebacker Louis Bustamante and cornerback David Akin with having good games. Playing well offensively were Thompson, guards Brian Loveless and Jeremy Smith and Gonzales.

The freshmen A Steers are now 4-1 for the season.

Their next game will be Thursday in Lamesa at 6 p.m.

FORSAN 24, COAHOMA 7th 0
COAHOMA — The Forsan junior high team ran its record to 4-0 by whitewashing the Coahoma seventh grade here Thursday night.

"We didn't block, we didn't tackle; we didn't do much of anything right," said Coahoma coach Jim Williams.

Forsan will play the Coahoma eighth grade Thursday in Forsan at 5:30 p.m.

O'Meara leading Vegas golf

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Robert Wrenn's strong play in the Las Vegas Invitational very well could be a simple matter of mental attitude.

Wrenn was a playoff loser last year in this tournament, which features play with three-man amateur teams through the first three of five rounds.

Now, through two rounds of the five-day, 90-hole, $1.3 million event that offers $234,000 to the winner,

PGA

Wrenn is tied for fourth, three strokes behind leader Mark O'Meara.

"I enjoy playing with the amateurs," Wrenn said Thursday after an 8-under-par 64 at the Las Vegas Country Club.

"Some pros don't. Some put up with it, kind of like a necessary evil" that frequently produces some wildly erratic amateur play and long, slow-moving rounds.

"I enjoy it," Wrenn repeated. "The amateurs keep me loose and relaxed. It's kind of like playing around with your friends back home."

While many of the other touring pros were fretting and fuming about the amateurs, Wrenn reeled off a pair of consecutive eagles at the Las Vegas Country Club.

"First time I've done that," he said.

O'Meara also seems to have an affinity for the pro-am format. He scored his second consecutive victory — and third of his career — in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am earlier this year.

He, too, toured the Las Vegas course in 64 and was two strokes in front of the field with three rounds to go in the chase for a $234,000 first prize.

"I had a little letdown early in the week" in the wake of a 19-under-par victory last weekend in San Antonio, O'Meara said, "but by the time we started playing I was ready to go again."

He scattered nine birdies across his card and completed two rounds at 131, 13 under par.

The 156-man professional field will be cut to the low 70 scorers after they complete a rotation over each of three desert resort courses today.

It appeared a score of 4-under or 5-under par would be required to make it. And that puts the year's No. 2 and 3 money-winners, Payne Stewart and Wayne Levi, in trouble.

Americans leading International play

CELY, France (AP) — Americans took charge in the first round of the LPGA World Championship.

Cathy Gerring and Cindy Rarick shot 3-under-par 69s Thursday. One stroke behind the leaders in the 16-player invitational event was Dottie Mochrie.

The top money-winner this year on the American tour, Beth Daniel, was tied at 71 with European Tour star Marie-Laure de Lorenzi of France.

"This is perhaps the best-conditioned course we've played on all year," Gerring said of the 6,155-yard Cely course. "There's nothing to complain about except the sand. If you fly in there, you're dead. But I played great, except for that one hole."

Gerring had seven birdies, one bogey and a triple bogey that resulted from a ball plugged deep into sand at the par-4 13th. Gerring, winner of two events this year, is fifth on the LPGA money list with $363,493.

Rarick said she was pleased with having only one bogey. "It was a gorgeous day for golf and, if you read the greens, the course is so perfect it lends itself to scoring," said Rarick, who has three top-five finishes but no victories this year.

Chris Johnson was a late replacement for Nancy Lopez, who pulled out to be with her husband, former major league infielder Ray Knight, as he undergoes knee surgery.

Johnson shot 72 Thursday. The field includes two other non-Americans besides de Lorenzi — Britain's Trish Johnson, who shot 72, and Japan's Ayako Okamoto, who shot 73.

CELY, France (AP) — Scores Thursday after the first round of the $325,000 LPGA World Championship on the par-72, 6,155-yard Cely course (American unless noted):

Cathy Gerring	34-35-69
Cindy Rarick	34-35-69
Dottie Mochrie	37-33-70
Danielle Ammaccapane	34-37-71
Marie-Laure de Lorenzi, France	37-34-71

LAS VEGAS — Mark O'Meara looks at a shot Thursday giving a round of 64 that put him into the 36-hole lead of the $1.3 million Las Vegas Invitational.

Coody wants win in front of home crowd

ABILENE (AP) — Charles Coody feels like he did in 1971, and that could be bad news for other golfers in the $300,000 Gatlin Brothers Southwest Senior Classic.

Coody, a resident of Abilene who helped design the Fairway Oaks Country Club where the tournament starts Friday, is coming off a three-stroke victory at the Vantage Championship in Clemmons, N.C. He won more than $200,000.

Coody said this week has been "a lot like the week after I won the Masters. I was home that week and a lot of my friends were coming by and congratulating me."

Although Coody has served as director of the Fairway Oaks course for nine years, he has never played particularly well on the course.

"I won't make excuses," he said. "I just haven't played well here."

Coody is the second-leading money winner this year with more than $629,000.

Newest Texas race track opens

MANOR (AP) — About 2,500 pari-mutuel racing fans attended the opening of Manor Downs, the third track to begin operating since horse race wagering became legal in Texas.

Bets totaling $126,838 were placed Thursday.

Although construction workers were still wrapping up some work when the track opened Thursday, the track's first parimutuel quarterhorse race ran shortly after the 1 p.m. post time.

Manor Downs initially was granted a Class 2 license by the Texas Racing Commission in the spring of 1989 and was scheduled to open later that year. But a series of financing and construction delays postponed racing until this month.

Officials at the track, located northeast of Austin, said it is scheduled to run a Thursday through Sunday program through Dec. 16.

Two other Class 2 tracks — Bandera Downs north of San Antonio and G. Rollie White Downs at Brady — and one Class 3, at the Gillespie County fairgrounds in Fredericksburg, all have conducted parimutuel racing.

Last fall, G. Rollie White Downs became the first to open in Texas since race track betting became legal in 1987. But financial problems kept it closed this year.

Manor Downs officials say their proximity to Austin will help make the track a success. And horseplayers aren't the only ones sniffing big bucks. Business owners in the area are looking for an economic boost that they hope will make winnings from the daily double look like chicken feed.

"This place will be a gold mine," says Bob Fox, marketing director for the track. "It'll be Austin's Disneyland. We think it will become one of this area's biggest attractions."

Fox's high spirits are shared by many hotel owners, restaurateurs and other business owners in Austin and Manor. The Austin Hilton and Towers has already begun advertising "bridle suites" in the track's catalog.

The big advantage to having Manor Downs close to Austin is that racing enthusiasts are more likely to come to a large urban area to do their betting, officials said.

The track has existed since 1976, but only for spectator horse racing in which betting was not allowed.

"The opening of the track will be a tremendous plus to the economic climate here," said Andy Norton, owner of the 290 Cafe, which has served motorists on the highway near Manor since 1948.

Louis Brown, owner of one of the city's five gas stations, is excited. "I do think it will mean bigger business for all of us," he said. "If everything goes right, the visitors will spill over into our businesses. I feel real good about it."

Nancy Boatright, Manor's city secretary, said the Manor City Council expects "a lot more sales tax to be generated from stores when people come to the track."

Yankees make coaching changes

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees have fired pitching Billy Connors and will dismiss batting coach Darrell Evans shortly, published reports said Friday.

A Yankees spokesman called the reports in the New York Post and New York Daily News "speculative."

"We have not announced anything," the spokesman said. "It hasn't happened yet."

However, both newspapers said that Connors was gone, while the Daily News said that Evans would be next.

A's — what a team

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — They have a 27-game winner, the most feared reliever in baseball, a former Rookie of the Year, and the National League batting champion.

This lineup that looks like the nucleus of a pennant contender is actually a list of players the Oakland Athletics did not need in their clinching victory that sent them on a third consecutive trip to the World Series.

Bob Welch, the leading candidate to win the AL's Cy Young Award, did not pitch, neither did Dennis Eckersley, who had 48 saves this year. Walt Weiss was injured and did not even dress for Oakland's 3-1 victory over Boston Wednesday that completed a four-game sweep.

Only Willie McGee, the NL batting champ who came to the A's in an August trade, got to play, and all he did was pinch-run.

"If it takes 10 years, people are going to sit back and say, 'Wow, what a team that was,'" said Oakland infielder Mike Gallego.

It should not take that long.

The A's can field a lineup consisting of eight former All Stars with 33 selections between them — Mark McGwire at first, Willie Randolph at second, Carney Lansford at third, Rickey Henderson, Jose Canseco and McGee in the outfield, Terry Steinbach catching with Harold Baines as the designated hitter.

Add to that a pitching staff with nine All Star selections.

Only at shortstop, where Weiss, who just happens to be the 1988 American League Rookie of the Year, are the A's unable to place a former All Star.

And this is a team that keeps getting better. Weren't the A's considered the best team in baseball two years ago, before adding Rickey Henderson? Wasn't it the same this spring, before Oakland acquired Randolph, Baines and McGee?

"You look at what the Oakland did down the stretch, picking up Willie McGee and Harold Baines," said Boston's Mike Greenwell. "They picked up Willie Randolph earlier. Those three guys kicked our butts. I gotta tip my cap to their front office for getting them. They rolled the dice and came up sevens."

Sweeping the Red Sox capped Oakland's three-year domination of the American League. The A's have won 306 regular-season games the past three years, won their division by 13, seven and nine games respectively over the last three years. They then rolled into three straight World Series by winning 12 of 13 playoff games.

There have been two four-game series sweeps since the playoffs were expanded to a best-of-seven format in 1985. The A's have both, this year's and a 1988 sweep of the Red Sox.

"With the capabilities of this ballclub, it's like everybody expects to win," said Oakland reliever Rick Honeycutt, who saved the clinching game by getting the final three outs. "After you win the World Series, teams are gunning for you. Every day is a challenge. This team has to turn it up a notch. It can't just go through it."

Even though it may look that way.

The A's have power — Canseco and McGwire combined for 76 home runs and 209 RBIs. Rickey Henderson's 28 homers don't pale too badly.

The A's have speed — Henderson led the way with 65 stolen bases as Oakland outstole its opponents 141-73 this year.

The A's have pitching — Oakland has had the league's best ERA three years running, a trick not turned since Baltimore won the title five times from 1969-73.

Pirates try to remain alive

Smith is scheduled to start tonight for Pittsburgh in Game 6 of the National League playoffs against fellow left-hander Danny Jackson with the Reds leading the best-of-7 series 3-2.

In seven previous starts against the Reds this season, Smith has given up 20 runs and 54 hits in 47 1-3 innings. Some pitchers haven't lasted seven starts in a career.

Smith was the losing pitcher in Game 3 when the Reds beat him 6-3 on a three-run homer by Mariano Duncan and a two-run shot by Billy Hatcher.

"This will be my eighth start of the season against Cincinnati, and that can be bad," Smith said Thursday night. "They're familiar with what I throw, and it's a negative."

Smith made four starts against Cincinnati for Montreal, losing twice. After being acquired by the Pirates on Aug. 8, Smith was 2-0 in two starts against the Reds.

He was 6-2 in 10 starts for the Pirates, yielding only nine earned runs in 75 innings. But in Game 3, he gave up five runs in five innings.

"I'm glad to have another chance," Smith said. "People would remember that one time and forget how well I pitched this season."

Smith, who is eligible for free agency, spent five seasons with the Atlanta Braves and was 1-12 in 1989 before being dealt to Montreal.

"When you're on a losing team, you become a defensive pitcher," Smith said. "I would have liked to have seen what I could have done with a full season with the Pirates."

The prospect of the Nasty Boys — a trio of Cincinnati relief pitchers — coming in the game has the Pirates a bit defensive at the plate.

"I don't think we need a miracle or anything, just some big hits," Bobby Bonilla said.

The Pirates didn't get many big hits from their big three of Andy Van Slyke, Bonilla and Barry Bonds in the first five games. The trio combined to go 12-for-55 (.218) with no homers and five RBIs.

"My loss in Game 3 showed that sometimes when the big guys don't come through the other guys have to pick you up," Smith said. "I shut down the middle of their order, but Duncan and Hatcher come up with home runs."

Eight times in postseason history a team has rebounded from a 3-1 deficit — and Pittsburgh has done it twice, in the 1925 and 1979 World Series.

"We just have to pull a Kansas City," Van Slyke said. "They were down 3-1 to Toronto in the playoffs and 3-1 to St. Louis in the World Series."

Van Slyke was on the Cardinals when the Royals rallied to win the last three games of the 1985 World Series.

"My personal opinion is that you've got to take what you did during the year and throw it right out the window," Van Slyke said. "My one experience in postseason play told me that the regular season means nothing. I think if you're a good club, you're going to come up on top and you're going to win."

Jackson, who like Smith has a history of arm trouble, was the winner in Game 3. He gave up two runs and seven hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Baseball Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Baseball's spring was ruined by a labor dispute and the same thing could happen this winter.

The annual winter meetings scheduled for December in Los Angeles could be in jeopardy unless Major League Baseball reaches an agreement with the minor league baseball.

For the most part, the meetings are a week in the winter when baseball can steal some of the sports pages from football, basketball in hockey.
But since the elimination of trade deadlines, the meetings have become a peddlers' mart for free agents.

Commissioner Fay Vincent said this week that major league owners want the minor leagues to pick up a larger portion of the tab for their operation, estimated at $7 million a season.

A failure to reach an agreement would change the face of minor league baseball. Instead of having teams scattered throughout the country, the setup would be similar to an instructional league with players based in Florida and Arizona.

Vincent would rather keep baseball in minor league towns, but not without economic changes.

Strike?
Speaking of umpires, the contract with the major league umps expires after the season.
This time, negotiations may include the growing perception that umpires are becoming too confrontational.

"I'm sick and tired of the media telling me we're going after players," National League umpire Eric Gregg said. "We tell the young umpire coming in that if a player is in your face, go after them.

"Our job is harder because the media goes after you with instant replay."

Blame it on Rijo
Sometimes a player can help the other team without realizing it. In the 1988 playoffs, Mets right-hander David Cone wrote a column for the New York Daily News and was critical of Los Angeles reliever Jay Howell.

The Dodgers posted the story on the bulletin board in their clubhouse and went out and beat up on Cone in Game 2. In this season's playoffs, Cincinnati right-hander Jose Rijo provided Pittsburgh with some inspiration.

After the Reds took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-7 series on Tuesday, Rijo proclaimed it was "over."

It wasn't over, because the Pirates won Wednesday night to send the playoffs back to Cincinnati.

In another bit of controversy
... If Cincinnati reliever Rob
Dibble had a vote for the Cy Young Award, it appears he wouldn't cast it for 22-game winner Doug Drabek.

"Throwing all those breaking balls up there," Dibble said shaking his head in disgust.
"Doug Drabek, nothing but breaking balls."

Dennis Eckersley leads all current A's in career complete games. ... Oakland is the first team to win a championship without hitting a home run since the Cincinnati Reds beat the Chicago White Sox in 1919.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruce Springsteen will join Bonnie Raitt and Jackson Browne for a concert next month to raise money for a non-profit group that is waging a lawsuit accusing the United States of involvement in the drug trade.

It will be Springsteen's first official concert appearance since 1988, when he participated in the Amnesty International world tour.

Tickets ranging from $25 to $100 go on sale Sunday for the Nov. 16 concert at Shrine Auditorium.

The fund-raiser will benefit the Washington-based Christic Institute, which monitors law and public policy.

The concert will help finance a lawsuit alleging U.S. officials sanctioned illegal gun and drug sales to

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Willis doesn't want to forget his humble beginnings, so he still pays rent on a rundown Manhattan apartment.

"To me, it's a reminder of where I came from. That's one memory I don't want to lose," Willis said in the Oct. 14 issue of Parade magazine. Before there was "Moonlighting" or "Die Hard" and "Die Hard 2," Willis supported himself in New York by working as a bartender and security guard.

He earned a combined $10 million for the two "Die Hard" movies.

LONDON (AP) — The Duke and Duchess of York have new digs, Sunninghill Park near Windsor Castle.

The duke, Queen Elizabeth II's son Andrew, and his wife, Sarah, along with their two daughters, completed the move Thursday.

Andrew took time off from his job as flight commander of the Royal Navy frigate Cambletown to make the move.

The Stanton Kids In Charge program, now in its fourth week, prepares children to be independent and safe while home alone after school.

With more than 71 per cent of mothers working now, and with no after-school day care available in Stanton, Martin County Extension Agent Kathryn Burch said there is a need for a program like Kids in Charge locally.

"Lots of kids go home and stay by themselves till 5 or 6 (p.m.), until their parents get home. There is no after-school day care in Stanton," Burch said.

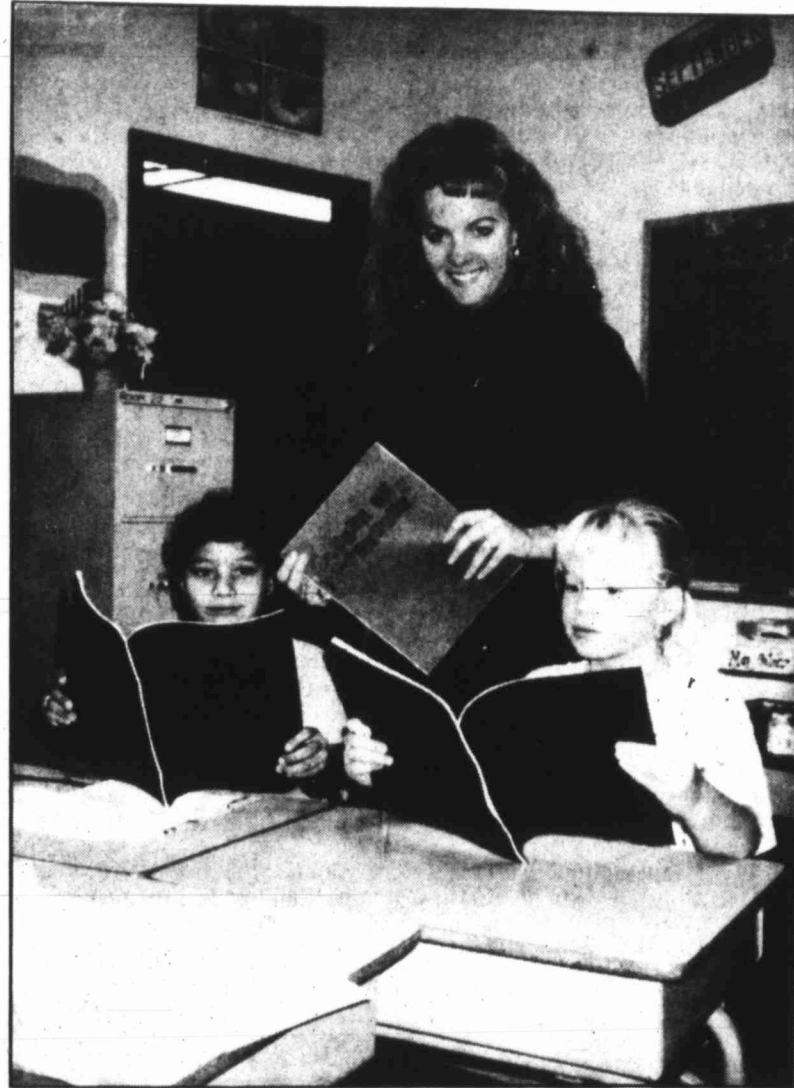

"We have 72 kids in the program. That should mean we have 72 families, because I don't think there are any twins. All the fourth-grade classes are participating," said Burch, adding that there are four fourth-grade classes in the Stanton Elementary school.

The curriculum chosen by Burch to support the Kids in Charge program is from the 4-H School Enrichment Program, but is not the one currently used in Texas. She said this one was chosen because it best addressed local needs.

"We did a search and this was one that best met the needs in our community. There's a whole session on study skills, doing chores and homework. And there's a whole deal about fear."

"We wanted those components every day because they may never have a stranger at the door or a fire or an emergency, but every day they may have fear, time management or chores to be done. We wanted something they're going to use," Burch explained.

"The curriculum is developed for the third through fifth grade, which makes the fourth grade good. I'm real pleased that's the level because by the time kids are in the fourth grade they're more responsible," Burch said. The Kids in Charge program is completed at home with the parents. There are parent books with activities for the parents and children to do to complement the classroom instruction. The teachers offer one lesson a week during health time and Burch said she contacts parents to offer encouragement and support for doing the activities at home.

Gaye Hull, mother of fourth grader Rainnie Hull, Nicholas, 12, and Jeremy — who's in the second grade — said she likes the program and believes it's been good for her children.

"This did him (Nicholas) more good than her (Rainnie). She hasn't gone through the fears he has. She doesn't get as scared. He panics more," Hull said.

Jo Coggin, a kindergarten teacher in Stanton and mother of fourth grader Ryan, said she and her son likes the program.

"This is good background for what to do in an emergency. I go over the rules with him if he comes home when no ones here," Coggin said.

Burch said the Kids in Charge program is not a solution to the problem of children home alone, but educating children to be responsible and prepared for an emergency are the best tools possible to deal with the situation.

"This is a stop-gap measure at best until we solve the problem," Burch said.

The seven-week program presents sections titled, "Coping with Fear," "Fire and Weather Safety," "Getting Along with Others," "Nutrition," "Being Responsible," "Medical Emergencies" and "Personal Safety."

Burch said that with a pre-test on nutrition, 85 percent of the children knew what a nutritious snack was and could choose one that was safe.

Papers urge debates

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the debate over a gubernatorial debate continues between the candidates, Texas newspapers are saying the voters deserve to hear the nominees before the Nov. 6 election.

Despite months of haggling, Democrat Ann Richards and Republican Clayton Williams have so far failed to agree to a face-to-face debate.

Each blames the other. The Houston Chronicle noted that 1990 could be the first year since 1974 in which voters wouldn't be able to view a debate.

"Neither Williams nor Richards is entitled to be governor. But the voters are entitled to a fair chance to see them together and evaluate them accordingly," the Chronicle said.

Many other newspapers agree.

"This election shouldn't be decided by campaign ads, headlines and sound bites. The voters ought to have an opportunity to see the two candidates, face to face, discuss the issues facing Texas," said the Abilene Reporter News.

"Dear Ann Richards and Clayton Williams: It's high time you two quit playing hide-and-seek with each other on the campaign trail. Get together and give us some real insight into yourselves and how you would

St. Lawrence gala held Sunday

By PEGGY LUXTON
For the Herald

ST. LAWRENCE — This year's St. Lawrence Fall Festival was Sunday in the St. Lawrence Catholic Church Community Center building.

It was a day of feasting, games for children, raffles and an auction with proceeds — which average $40,000 a year — benefiting the church, its mission and the communities involved.

The success of the festival is a result of a community-wide endeavor involving about 200 families. The famed German sausage is the mainstay of the mid-day meal served to the public.

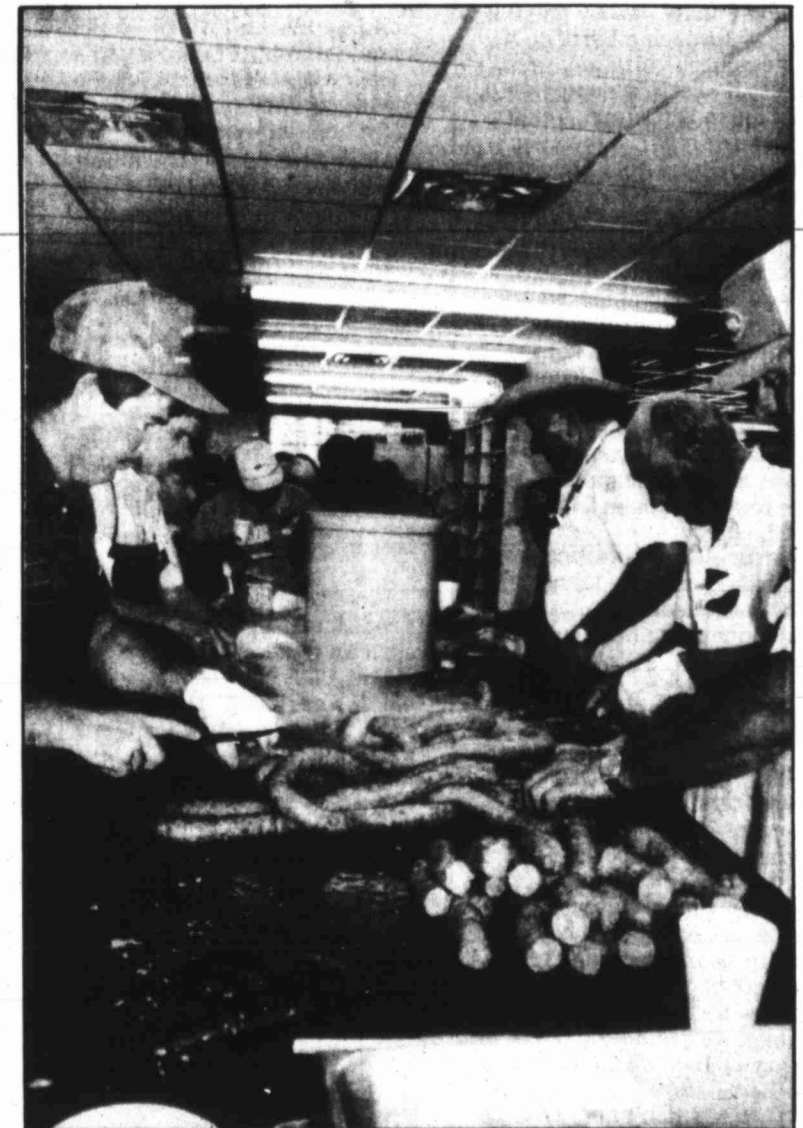

The menu was supplemented by barbecued beef, mashed potatoes, green beans, pinto beans, cole slaw, peppers, pickles and onions. And, of course, the vast array of more than a hundred different homemade desserts.

The recipe for the German sausage was contributed by Alfred J. Schwartz. His grandfather's unchanged recipe has been used to make the sausage for all of St. Lawrence's 40 Fall Festivals.

The men of the community were in charge of making the sausage. The sausage was live-oak smoked for 20 hours before about a ton of it was cooked for the hungry festival patrons. The remainder of the sausage was sold to the public.

After the meal, kids enjoyed a carnival while the adults played Bingo or purchased raffle tickets for such items as a trip to Las Vegas, a deer rifle, or a hand-stitched one-of-a-kind quilt.

Homemade baked goods and handmade crafts were for sale. The auction of donated merchandise

Stanton Junior High's seventh and eighth grade teams played against Ozona junior high in Thursday night action. The Buffalo seventh graders came away with 12-0 win, while the eighth grade dropped their its game, 31-12.

Seventh grade game

The Stanton seventh grade got things rolling when George Cox returned a punt 35 yards to the Lion 15-yard line. Cox later scored from 20 yards out. The two point attempt failed and Stanton led 6-0 with 3:53 left in the first half.

Ozona tried to move the ball, but the Buffalos' defense managed to hold the Lions at bay. Cory Harbison scored with 4:59 left in the third quarter and again the PAT try failed as the Buffs increased their lead to 12-0.

The seventh grade improved its record to 2-1.

Eighth grade game

Two undefeated teams collided Thursday night with the Ozona Lions bringing their perfect record into Buffalo Stadium against the 2-0 Buffs. The visitors took a 31-12 win.

The contest started with the visiting team driving the ball for the first score of the night as they added the two-point conversion and led 8-0.

Stanton tried to move the ball, but an interception gave the ball back to the visitors. The Buff defense stopped the Lions and forced them to punt. Stanton took over on their own 38-yard line. From there, Stanton quarterback J.J. Ortiz found Billy Joe Marquez and he carried the ball to the Lion 18-yard line. Jerrele Lee later found the end zone and scored from the three. The PAT try failed and Ozona's lead was cut to 8-6 with 3:56 left in the second quarter.

Quincy Brown found the end zone again for the home team as he scored from the Lions' 35-yard line.

The PAT failed again and Stanton led 12-8 with less than two minutes left in the first half. After being pinned deep in their territory the Buffs settled for a safety and the lead was cut to 12-10 with seconds left in the half.

The second half was all Ozona as they scored 19 points to put the game out of reach to keep their undefeated mark at 5-0 while the Buffs fall to 2-1.

serve as Texas' next governor," said the Houston Post.

Williams has insisted that Richards sign a pledge to run only a "positive" campaign before he would confront her. Richards says that's just an excuse.

"For a man who takes pride in his banty-rooster image, even when it comes to fisticuffs, Clayton Williams is playing strangely coy about squaring off against a silver-haired grandmother," said the Waco Tribune Herald.

"If Clayton Williams expects the people of Texas to accept him as the fearless, fighting cowboy figure he likes to portray and to entrust him with the leadership position to which he aspires, he had better display the courage to face his challenger one-on-one in live, public debate," said the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Richards again this week called on Williams to debate her. Asked if she would sign the positive "pledge" he wants, she scoffed.

"The minute I sign some pledge, he's going to have another excuse," she said. "I think he is afraid."

Williams' press secretary Gordon Hensley said the Republican's campaign believes Richards won't sign the pledge because she figures a negative attack is her only hope for victory.

travelled to Ozona to take on the Lions and suffered a 34-0 loss. Junior varsity coach Rob Young praised Lorenzo Marquez for a fine job he did at quarterback on offense and Drew Harbison for his defensive play.

"Despite the score, I feel that the kids played their hearts out. We don't have quite the numbers to throw at people. When you see at least 38 kids on the other team compared to our numbers, we just learn and play hard," Young said.

Grady Junior High defeated Dawson Junior High 41-18 in six-man action Thursday night at Welch. The Wildcats got things started with Tommy Hewitt scoring his first of two touchdowns of the night. The first score came from the two-yard line while the other came on a interception return.

Alson in the scoring act was Scott Peel, Matt Hale and Chris Hewitt for the Wildcats. Timmy Garza added a 55-yard punt return as the Wildcats poured it on the Dragons. Grady improves its record to 2-0.

to prepare for their age level.

Stacie Redder, a fourth-grade teacher and the coordinator of Kids in Charge in Stanton, said the program has been very successful and that children are learning from the lessons.

"This works. I use it from my special education children to the (gifted and talented) program children," she said.

Redder said the program was tested when two children were approached by people in vehicles.

"The children knew to run and tell a teacher," said Redder, adding that the incidents were reported to the authorities.

Redder also said that the children enjoy the lessons and the activities in the program.

"The kids really like it. All the lessons have group involvement games, which teach things like trust, what to do in an emergency, how to get along with siblings."

"And the teachers like it because it teaches many of the essential elements required by the state to teach."

"The parent's activities include planning an escape route in case of fire and who should be in charge when they're (the parents) not home. The students learn safety rules about answering the phone and answering the door," Redder said.

Anyone interested in obtaining the Kids in Charge Program booklets should contact Burch at the county extension office.

Potent Steers spoil the 'view, 49-6

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Steers covered a lot of ground in a short time and soundly defeated the San Angelo Lake View Chiefs 49-6 Friday in Big Spring's district opener.

Big Spring rolled to a 35-0 halftime lead while moving the ball on the Lake View defense at will. The blow-out gave Steers coach David Thompson a chance to empty his bench. The reserves played for most of the third quarter.

The Steers fielded a balanced offensive attack, amassing 522 yards, and were virtually unstoppable in the first half. The Steers had the ball six times and scored five times.

Their first half scoring drive read like this: one play, 80 yards; six plays, 81 yards; four plays, 55 yards; one play, 86 yards; and six plays, 25 yards.

Leading the Steer brigade was tailback Jermaine Miller, who rushed 15 times for 167 yards, including TD runs of 80, 6 and 13 yards. Wingback Neal Mayfield also had a big game, carrying 13 times for 74 yards, scoring on runs of 1 and 5 yards. Mayfield also caught two passes for 117 yards, including an 86-yard scoring pass.

Quarterback Gerald Cobos played a strong game also. He completed 5 of 6 passes for 155 yards.

The Steer defense also played a sterling game against the dangerous Lake View offense. The Chiefs, playing without leading receiver Eric Dumas, managed only 19 yards rushing and 79 yards passing. Lake View quarterback Corey Stephens was pressured throughout the game and was sacked twice by Fernando Alvarez. Also registering quarterback sacks were Frank Garza, Freddie Williams and Allen Baker.

About the only things Big Spring did wrong was having a punt blocked and being whistled for 15 penalties for 130 yards.

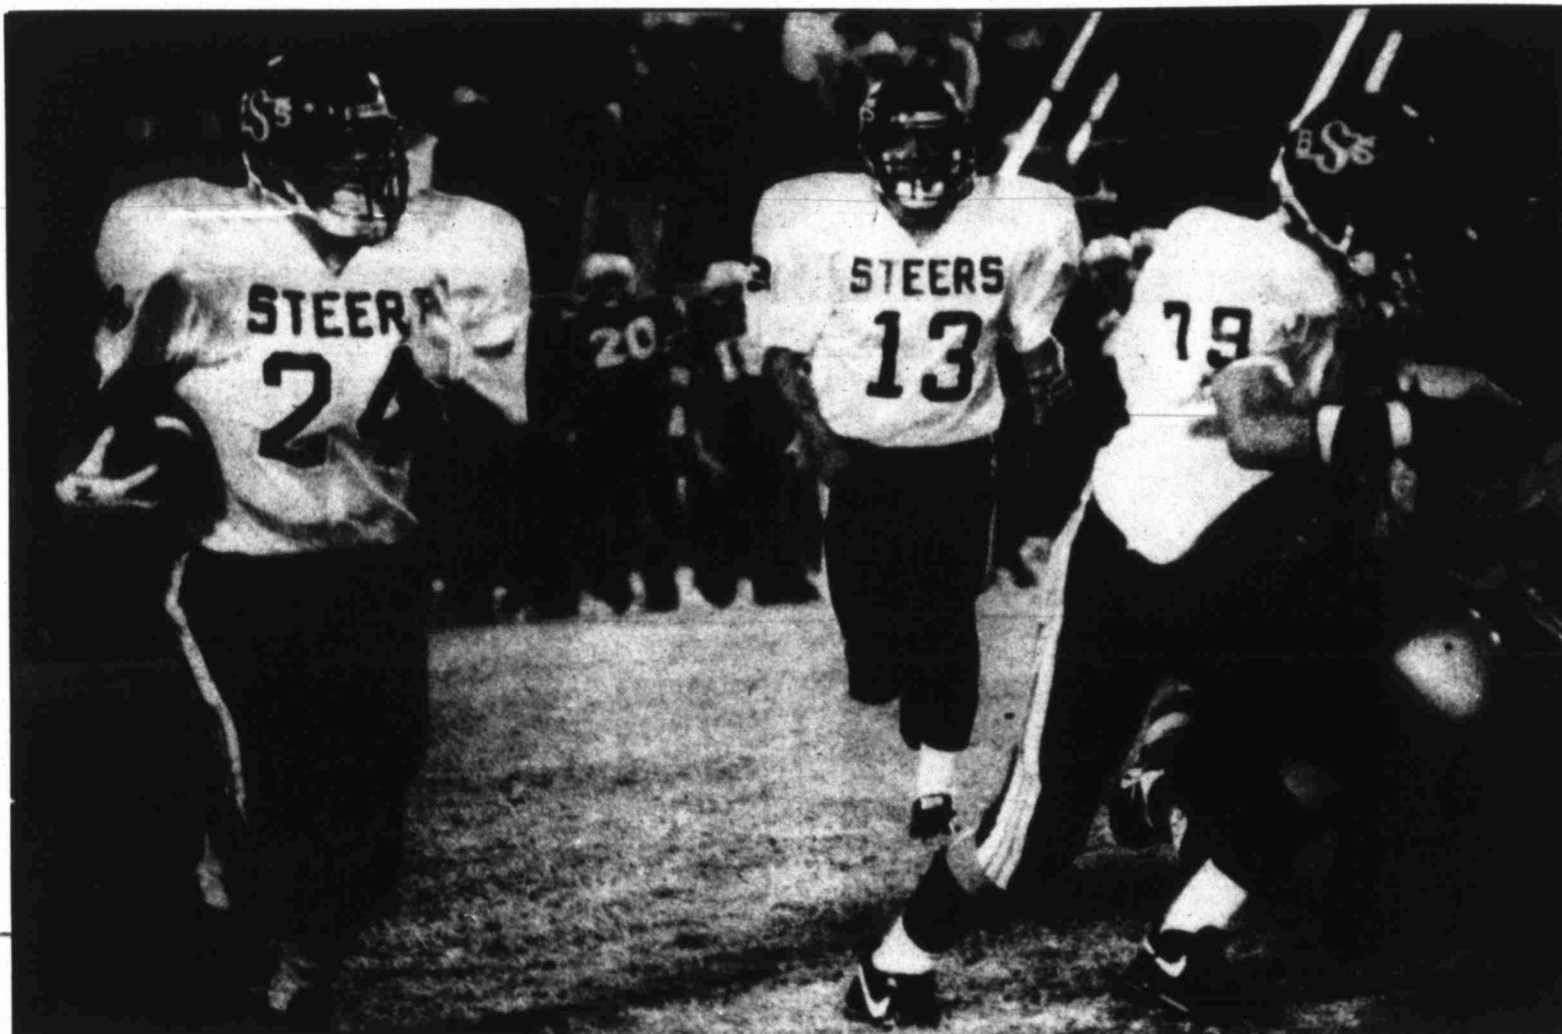

Lake View's Robert Walker's punt block set up the Chief's only TD early in the third quarter. The Chiefs capped it off with Stephens throwing a 14-yard scoring pass to Walt Harris. Linebacker Felipe Saiz blocked the extra point.

Steers coach David Thompson was pleased with his team's performance. "I think we played pretty good," said Thompson. "As a coach you always find something wrong. We had way too many penalties, but our intensity was good. The kids played hard."

"I think we had a little letdown at the start of the third quarter. The kids took up the slack when Freddy (Rodriguez) got hurt. We threw and caught the ball well; we put pressure on Stephens all night long."

Big Spring lost Safety Freddy Rodriguez late in the first quarter. He suffered a sprained ankle after intercepting a pass and returning it 35 yards, which was brought back as a result of a clipping call.

went 80 yards on the first play from scrimmage. Mayfield's point-after kick put Big Spring up 7-0.

This was followed by a scoring plays of: one-yard run by Mayfield; a six-yard run by Miller; an 86-yard pass from Cobos to Mayfield; and a 13-yard run by Miller.

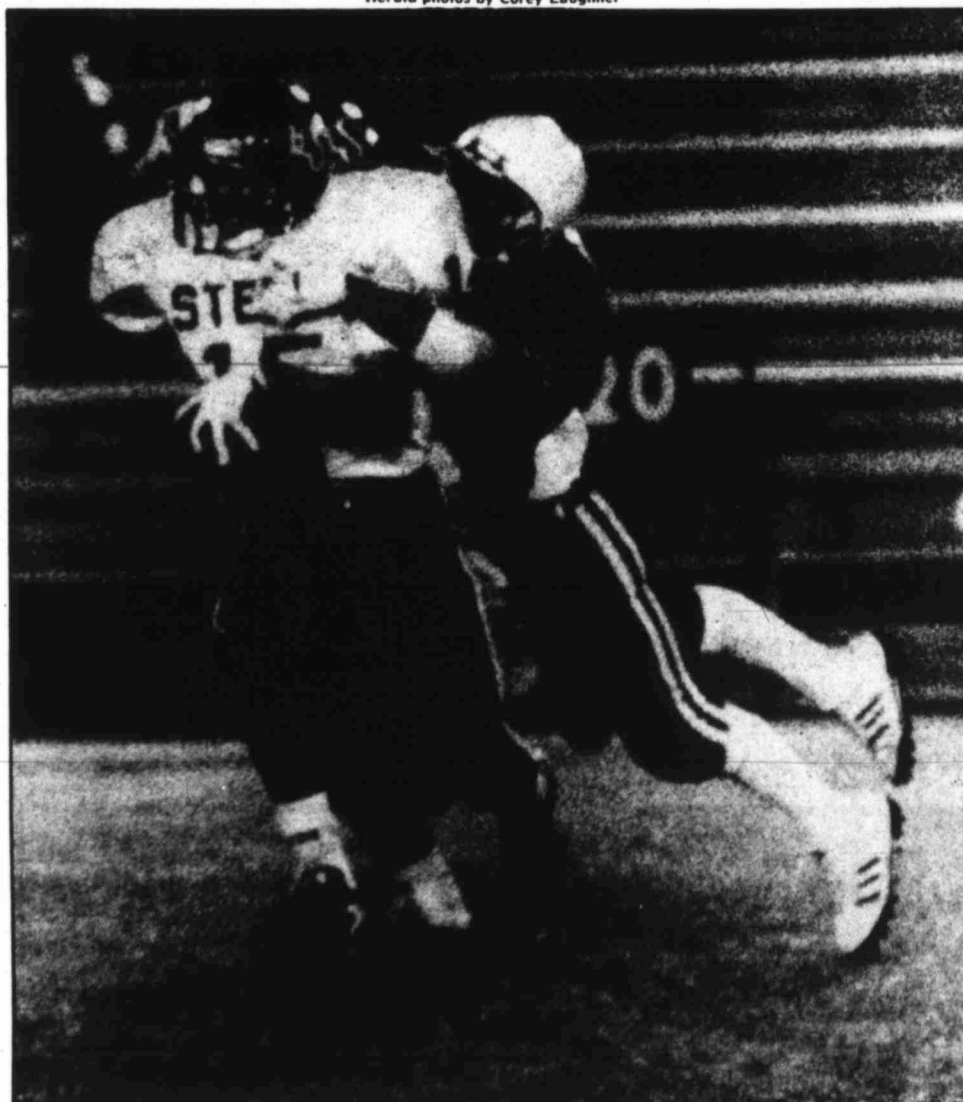

The Steers finished it off in the fourth period.

Mayfield scored from five yards out and fullback Steven Robles bulled in from four yards out.

The Steers, with a 3-1-1 record, will play Ft. Stockton Friday at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Lake View, 0-2 in district play and 2-4 overall, has an open date.

Kerry Burdette blossoming after bench time

Sports Editor

Kerry Burdette is a young lady making the most of her senior year.

Burdette, a senior spiker on the Big Spring High School volleyball team, has blossomed into a steady performer for the Lady Steers. The Lady Steers are 4-4 in district play, a half-game out of second place behind Andrews, and face a stern test this afternoon when they play league-leading Pecos on the road.

Burdette has been patiently waiting in the wings for this moment. Although she's a three-year letter winner, this is her first year to see any action. "I sat on the bench for two straight years, this is the first year I've gotten to play," said Burdette.

She admits it was very frustrating, and even had thoughts of quitting. "It was very frustrating because there were underclassmen playing in front of me. It wasn't the players themselves that bothered me; I had nothing against the players, they were good players. It was just the ranking.

"I really thought about quitting. I like basketball better than volleyball; I thought, 'Why am I sitting here when I could be practicing basketball?'"

She said it took the support of her teammates to prevent her from bypassing her senior year. "My teammates kept me going, they told me not to quit, they told me I'd get to play. So I decided this year to make the best of it. I've played all my life, went through basketball and volleyball offseason, so why quit when I've gone this far?"

This season Burdette's play has been a gleaming spot in the Lady Steers' bid to reach the state playoffs. Although she's only 5-6, she has become a force at the net for the Lady Steers. She played what she says was her best game in Big Spring's win over Sweetwater Tuesday night.

She didn't spike very often, but when she did she was deadly. She downed four of five kills in the three-game match and came through with two blocks. She ended the match by taking a set from Teveyan Russell and driving it into the heart of the Sweetwater defense.

Lady Steers coach Lois Ann McKenzie calls Burdette the most improved player on the squad. "Kerry has worked real hard. I think she had put her time in on the bench, and this year she was going to start," said McKenzie.

"If everybody had her attitude and desire to play, then you could win all the time. It's very seldom she gets down; I think once this year she got down on herself. She's our unsung hero, she plays real consistently. She doesn't shine like some of the others, but she plays the most consistently of any kid I've got."

Burdette says she has a lot of lost time to make up. "I guess it took time for me to progress; meet the standard that it took to play. I got tired of sitting on the bench. It's like I've got so much locked up inside of me, I wanted to let it go."

Although Pecos is undefeated in district play, Burdette has no doubt the Lady Steers can beat the Lady Eagles — and with good reason. In the Seminole tournament Big Spring beat Pecos 15-5, 9-15, 15-9. In the team's first district meeting, Pecos beat Big Spring 15-3, 15-5.

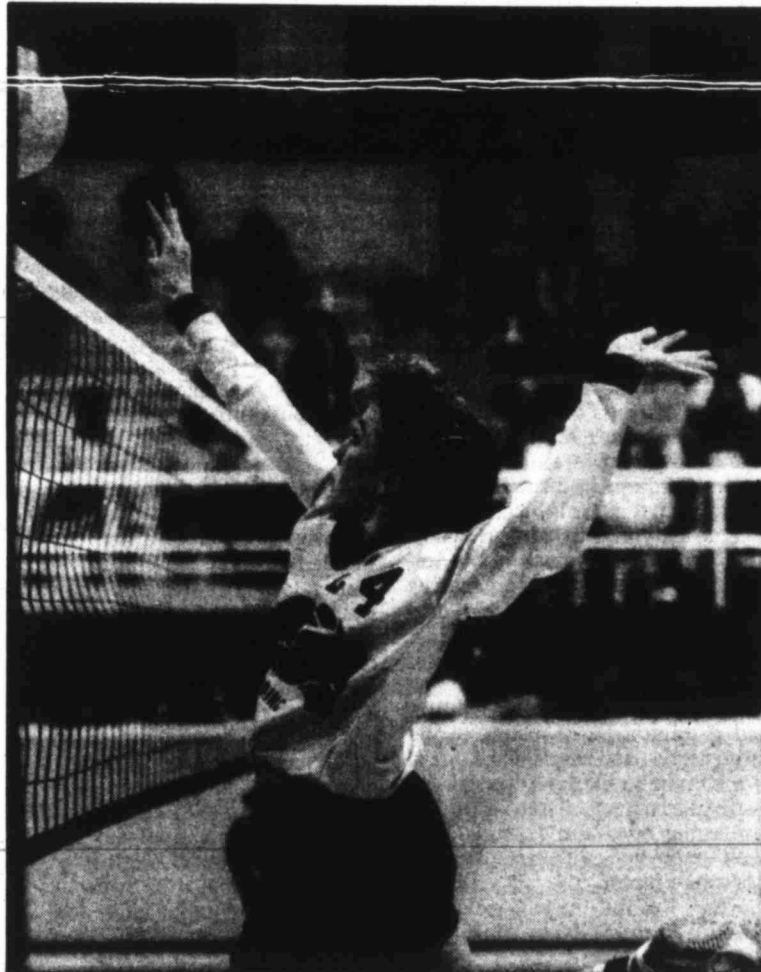

"We have a really good chance to beat Pecos," said Burdette. "If we play as a team, and leave our attitudes in Big Spring, we can accomplish that."

One of the main problems for the Lady Steers will be containing Pecos hitter Sophia Terry, who had a great match the last time the two teams met. In that match Terry downed 11 of 15 spikes and registered nine blocks.

"When we played them in Seminole, we blocked her early and she got shook. When she played here she was unstoppable," said McKenzie. "We'll probably go with a three-man back and hope we can pick them up. She (Terry) jumps so well, she can decide in mid-air what she's going to do."

Burdette said the current surge of the volleyball team is making people take notice. "People are finally realizing volleyball does exist in this town, not just football. People are realizing we are just as good as anybody else and we can go to the state playoffs."

Schott gives series a genuine shot as woman club owner

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — Seeing her perched atop dugouts across America like some beaming, blissed-out mother hen, it is hard to know what to make of Marge Schott.

"When I first told Pete (Ueberroth, the former commissioner) that I was going to sit in the stands, the first thing he said was at least take some bodyguards — if only to handle the kids on beer."

"But I told him," the owner of the Cincinnati Reds recalled with a widening grin, "if I can't handle that, I might as well give it up now."

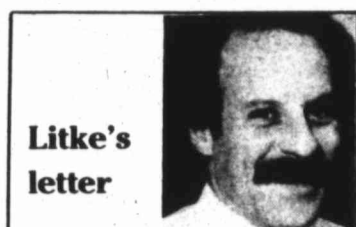

According to a very unscientific survey, one third of the nation believes Marge Schott should be back home finishing the dishes or turning letters on "Wheel of Torture"; another third that she should join baseball's other owners, and at the very least, hide in a skybox; and the final third that she is absolutely perfect right where she is.

However you cast your vote, get used to getting an eyeful of her. Because Tuesday night, as she dusted the ashes off her lap and turned toward the exits at Three Rivers Stadium in the wake of the Reds' third straight National League playoff win, Marge Schott stood within an eyelash of becoming one of the very few women ever to run a team as far as a World Series.

"My feelings have been hurt a lot of times. One of the nice things about my getting into baseball is that it gave a lot of people in the fraternity — and that's what this is — a chance to blame a woman for everything. . . . Intuition is something you can't smell, you can't touch, you can't taste, but you can make fun of."

"Well, I'm the one who's close to fulfilling my life's ambition. Women," she said emphatically, "can win. I'll find a way to wear that (championship) ring."

She became a limited partner in the team in 1981, general partner of the ownership group at the end of 1984, and president and chief executive officer six months after that. To say she has put her stamp on the team since then is to say too little.

Although Pete Rose was field manager from the beginning of her tenure until he was banished from the game last year and eventually replaced by Lou Piniella, she displayed a Steinbrennerian bent by going through general managers like other owners do suits before settling on Yankee organization man Bob Quinn late last season.

As she talked during the late innings of what would end as a 5-3 Reds' victory, a steady stream of devotees made the pilgrimage to her seat, even here in enemy territory, asking her to autograph shirts, caps, programs and almost any other acceptable surface. If this is not quite the owner-as-rock-star (the polka, after all, seems better suited), there is no denying she has some charisma as well.

At the moment, however, all she had was a bad case of nerves. Jay Bell led off the Pirate eighth with a homer to left center to bring Pittsburgh within 4-3. And as starting pitcher Jose Rijo gave way to Randy Myers, she reached into her bag for another cigarette, lit it and began alternately frowning, wringing her hands and fingering the gold religious medal attached to a charm bracelet on her left wrist.

In what seemed like an eternity, Andy Van Slyke flied out, Bobby Bonilla was gunned down trying to stretch a double into three bases, Barry Bonds singled and stole second, but went no further after Sid Bream struck out swinging.

"Good boy, Randy," Schott stood up and shrieked as Myers came within earshot.

"There are hard days," she added, turning to one side and beaming at no one in particular, "and days when this seems like Disneyland."

Chess, modesty and Ivy return

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Stories you might have missed:

It seems some members of the New York Mets, with nothing else to do now that postseason play is underway, attended a match at the world chess championship between two Soviet masters — champion Garry Kasparov and former champion Anatoly Karpov.

"Gee, that was quick," one Met person was heard to say after the match in which each player had 2½ hours to make 40 moves. "That rule would have cut the time of the Boston-Oakland game in half. Let's tell the commissioner."

Each Red Sox batter stepped out 40 times in a futile bid to upset the rhythm of Oakland pitcher Bob Welch in the second game of the American League playoff.

"I'm sure the chess rule will be adopted at least for the playoffs and World Series next year," said a spokesman for baseball. "It would greatly reduce the length of the games, and I think television would be willing to limit commercials to 300 a game."

There are a lot of red faces from anger and/or embarrassment in the MFL (Modesty Football League) because of the presence of women sports writers in locker rooms after games.

One of them caused a stir by charging that she was sexually harassed by New England Patriot players while conducting an interview in the locker room. Then coach Sam Wyche of the Cincinnati Bengals barred a woman reporter from his club's dressing room.

The issue is so unsettling it has been suggested that all reporters be banned from the locker rooms and that all interviews be held in a special room. Of course, with members of the media outside the locker rooms immediately after games, they also would be out of mind.

Changes, however, might not be necessary. A sometimes reliable source says the MFL is considering an offer from an unidentified clothing firm that would pay players $500 each for wearing its suits or sports outfits in the locker room within 10 minutes after a game.

Since the players wouldn't have time to shower, the source said, they could get another $50 apiece from a perfume company called He-Men Have Scents (address unknown) for wearing its best-selling fragrance, "Sudden Death in the Rain."

In the 50th anniversary year of the Fifth Down game between Cornell and Dartmouth, the Big Eight paid tribute to the Ivy League by having Colorado and Missouri stage a re-enactment.

Cornell scored a touchdown on the extra play and apparently won that 1940 game 7-3, while Colorado used the fifth down to beat Missouri 33-31 on the final play of the game last Saturday.

Cornell gave the victory to Dartmouth in that kinder, gentler football era. No way, said Colorado in this age in which wins translate into national rankings and lucrative bowl game appearances.

There is no truth that the re-enactment was staged as inducement to Ivy League teams to play Kansas, 1-3-1, which is 0-1-1 in the conference this season and 5-29-1 in the five previous years.

Bulldogs put the bite on Buffalos, 32-3

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

FORSAN — On this particular night at least, the Coahoma Bulldogs proved the adage about bigger being better.

The Bulldogs, using superior size on both sides of the ball to their fullest advantage, plowed through the Forsan Buffalos, 32-3, in a clash of Howard County teams here Friday night.

Coahoma's first District 6-2A win belonged to the 'Dogs' offensive line: tackles Mike Knowles and Allan Grant, guards Brian Scoggins and Lee Coleman, center Drew Bell and ends Matt Coates, Kenny Lowery and Mark Arguello. This group consistently blew open gaping holes in the Forsan defense.

The most obvious beneficiary of the line's prowess was Coahoma running back Shane Walker, who led all rushers in the game with 156 yards on 27 carries. Mike Mendez added 50 yards — all in the first half — for the Bulldogs.

Coahoma quarterback Brent Elmore also benefitted from excellent line protection. Although he rarely went to the air, Elmore made the most of his attempts, hitting four of eight passes for 48 yards and two touchdowns.

"The kids got after it," Coahoma Coach Steve Park said of his team's effort. "(Forsan) was young, and we had the size. The offensive line did a good job of blocking."

After holding the Buffalos on their initial possession, the Bulldogs went right to work, aided by Rusty Ginetti's 21-yard return of a Stephen East punt.

Setting up shop at the Forsan 30, the Bulldogs took four plays to score. Walker did the honors from one yard out, and Coahoma led, 6-0, with 8:24 left in the opening quarter.

The 'Dogs got into the scoring act again on their next possession, driving 66 yards in nine plays. The scoring march was highlighted by runs of 15 and 18 yards by Mendez and was capped when Walker went around left end from 28 yards out. Mike Hernandez's PAT kick gave Coahoma a 13-point lead with 2:56 left in the first.

Forsan's misery continued on the ensuing kickoff when Gilbert Rodriguez fumbled the kick and Elmore recovered for the Bulldogs on the Buffs' 21. Seven plays later, Elmore found Matt Coates all alone in the end zone for a six-yard touchdown and a 20-0 lead early in the second quarter.

The Buffalos, who had been held to a measly 11 yards of total offense in the first quarter, suddenly got their attack untracked after Elmore's scoring pass, responding with their only scoring drive of the night.

The march was aided initially by a personal foul penalty on the Bulldogs that gave Forsan its first first down of the night. Rodriguez then atoned for his earlier mistake by gaining another first down on fourth-and-one and with a 13-yard ramble down to the Coahoma 29.

The drive stalled there, however, and East was called upon to try a 42-yard field goal. The attempt was good by a yard or two, cutting the Coahoma lead to 20-3 midway through the quarter.

That, however, was the high-water mark for the Forsan attack. After the teams traded possessions, Coahoma cranked up its scoring machine for a fourth time. After recovering a Forsan fumble, the Bulldogs drove 55 yards in only three plays.

Walker highlighted the drive with runs of 25 and 18 yards before Elmore tossed his second TD pass of the night, an 11-yarder to Arguello that made the score 26-3, Coahoma, at the half.

The teams settled down in the second half, with the only score coming when Stephen New capped a 59-yard drive with a one-yard TD plunge.

"We didn't make any adjustments in the second half," Forsan Coach Jan East said. "We just came out and did the things we were supposed to do in the first half."

"The problem we're going to have from here on out is that we're going to be out-manned," East said in reference to Forsan's size disadvantage. "Everybody's just got more athletes than we do... I think (Coahoma) just physically whipped us on the line of scrimmage."

"This got the kids' heads back up," Park said of the win. "Now, we've got to win out and hope for good things to happen."

Coahoma, now 3-3 overall and 1-2 in district play, returns to action next Friday when they host Eldorado in the Bulldogs' homecoming game. Forsan, 1-5 and 0-3 for the year, travels to Wall next Friday. Kickoff time for both games is 8 p.m.

Ozona Lions still perfect in district, drop Buffalos

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

STANTON — The Buffalos hosted the Ozona Lions in their third district game of the 1990 football season, with the visitors taking home a 29-14 win Friday night in Buffalo Stadium. The Lions improved their tally to 3-0, while the home team fell to 0-3 in district play.

Ozona quarterback Danny DeHoyas found Mingo Perez to cap a six-play, 57-yard drive after a Lonnie Martinez interception at the Buffalo 25-yard line to end all hopes for a Stanton win. Placekicker Ruben Borrego added the extra point to increase the Lion lead to 29-8.

The visitors received the opening kickoff and set up shop at their own 33-yard line. Borrego took the opening handoff and spun around for a first down after a 17-yard pickup. On fourth and two yards for a first down, the Buff defense stopped the Lion threat and forced the visiting team to punt.

The Buffalos began to move the football through the visitors' defensive line as Buff quarterback John Paul Barry broke through the middle of the line for an eight-yard gain. Stanton pushed its way through for a first down with the ball resting on their own 36-yard line. After a couple of losses and a penalty for motion, the Buffs found themselves at their own 21-yard line. The Lions forced the home team to kick the ball back to their offense as they began play at the Buff 49-yard line.

Ozona's Borrego paced the visitors and began to move the ball into Buffalo territory and a first down. Junior safety Kenny McCalister intercepted a Lion pass at his own eight-yard line stopping an Ozona attack.

With less than three minutes left in the opening stanza, disaster struck for the Buffs as Lion Aristeo Duenes recovered a Buffalo miscue at their own four-yard line to set up the first score of the contest.

Three plays later, Michael Ybarra plunged in from the one-yard line with 2:56 left in the quarter, as the PAT went wide to leave the score at 6-0 in favor of the visiting team.

The Lions kicked off to the home team and from there the Buffs appeared to begin to move through the defensive unit of the visitors. Senior running back Garry Don Thompson gained a tough three-yard to pick up the all-important first down keeping the drive alive.

Barry found sophomore Sherman Bryand for a five-yard toss as the Buff drive kept moving the home team into scoring position. After failing to move the ball, the home team had to punt.

The Lions started on their own 36-yard line and from that point never looked back as DeHoyas hit Perez for a 38-yard pass setting up another possible score for the visiting team. On second down and ten yards to go for a first down from the Buffalo 15-yard line, DeHoyas went right looking for a receiver and tried to hit Perez again, but McCalister stepped in front of the receiver and swiped his second interception of the evening in the endzone, stopping another Lion drive deep in their territory.

The Buffalos took the ensuing kickoff and returned it to their own 26-yard line. Barry found McCalister for a 33-yard gain moving the Buffs for their first threat of the contest.

Barry found McCalister again for another 15-yard toss as the Buffs kept moving closer to paydirt. Bryand found the goalline from the three-yard line as the home team cut the visitors lead to 9-8 with Barry hitting junior Jim Bob Kelly for the two-point PAT with 2:29 left in the first half.

The Lions were not through; they moved the ball on the air and on the ground. DeHoyas found Martinez for a 40-yard toss and completed the drive with a five-yard pass to Randel Wilson with 23 seconds left in the quarter. Borrego missed the PAT and Ozona built a 15-8 lead as first half play ended.

On the musical field

Under sunny skies Friday, the Big Spring High School Steer Band was putting the finishing touches on the halftime show it would perform that night. To the casual listener, the strains of George Gershwin's "Summertime" were quite pleasing.

But Ed Gellner was not a casual listener — nor was he pleased. "We've got to build that crescendo over the last eight beats, folks," he says over his bullhorn. "It's just not happening. Can we try it again?"

Gellner, who is in his first year as director of the Steer Band, then watched passively from the stands as the band went through the final stanzas of the Gershwin tune before dismissing his charges for the afternoon.

"Well, it's been tough," he said about his first year at the helm,

"but things are starting to come together ... I have a lot of good kids in this band. A lot of them are working real hard for me."

If Gellner sounds just a bit anxious, it might be because district marching contest is but two weeks away. "We put the show together last week, so basically, we've got two more weeks to get everything in shape," he said. "It's more in the kids' hands than anyone else's."

The show the Steer Band will present to the University Interscholastic League judges at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa Oct. 27 will have a distinct jazz flavor.

The band will open with "Winds of Sonora," an original composition by Jay Dawson, and finish with Boz Scaggs' "We're All Alone," Sonny Rawlins' "St. Thomas" and the aforementioned

"Summertime."

The Steer Band began its marching season with August workouts. Since school began, band members are averaging about seven hours a week in practice — not including Friday nights and halftimes.

Gellner, who directed at Class 5A Round Rock before coming to Big Spring, admitted that coming to a smaller school demanded some changes to his teaching methods.

"It's different — it really is," he said of the change. "I'm adjusting, though."

Aside from having fewer students in the band compared to Round Rock, Gellner also has to deal with students who have more than one extra-curricular activity.

did," he said. "Here, a lot of the kids have different (activities) . . . I've even got about seven varsity football players (in the band)."

But, he also said that directing a smaller band can have its advantages.

"I lost 16 (students) out of 168 (to no-pass, no-play requirements)," he said. "I felt real good about that; it could have been a lot worse. That's about 10 percent of the band; at Round Rock, I always figured to lose about 20 percent."

Gellner also said he has been pleased with his charges' efforts so far.

"We've got good leadership from our drum majors, Stacey Hawkins and John Paul Stephens," he said. "They really help hold things together and make it all swing."

Hawkins, a senior who plays flute when she's the band's field director, said that she enjoys being in the band.

"I love it," she said. "I like it all — except for the bad parts (like) when people don't listen or do what they're supposed to do; when they don't work hard."

Everyone says they want to go to state (marching competition), then some of them don't want to work for it."

Naquai Horn, a senior percussionist, said she enjoys the "family" atmosphere of the band. "I like that aspect of it; belonging to a group."

Horn said the long hours "can be a pain, but if you're dedicated, you just pick up and go from there. We seniors of the group need to press forward and set an example."

She wishes more people would stick around for the halftime show instead of heading off for the con-

Junior percussionist Gena Grizzard also likes the family atmosphere of the band:

"Everybody works hard together and makes a team," she said.

"I hope we make it to state," Grizzard added. "We're doing good so far."

Gellner also would like the band to reach the state competition, but shies away from making that an expressed goal for his group.

"I'm a one-game-at-a-time person," he said. "My main goal is for the band to get a first-division (rating) at district competition."

"I want them to do the best job they can," he said of the Steer Band. "I tell them, 'If you take care of business, everything else will take care of itself.'"

Borden in control; injury ends contest

By BILL AYRES
City Editor

An injury to a Hermleigh player in the second quarter forced the Cardinals to forfeit the game to Borden County at the half Friday night.

The Borden County Coyotes held a commanding 31-point lead at the end of the first half, leading Hermleigh 44-13.

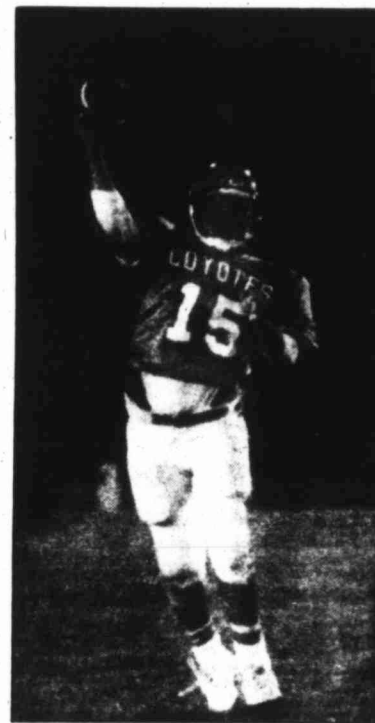

"I really hate to win a game that way," said Borden County head coach Bobby Avery. "Their player suffered an injury to the ribs and they decided, since they didn't have enough players, it would be better to forfeit."

Shane Kemper, Borden County quarterback, gave the ball to John Paul Harris, sophomore running back, who took the ball in from one yard out. Shannon Smithie kicked the PAT to put Borden County up 8-0 with eight minutes remaining in the quarter.

Wildcats slay Dragons in scoring fest

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

The Grady Wildcats slayed the Dawson Dragons at Tunnel Field, 66-54, but the victory was hard fought and tightly held.

Both teams played well, but the Dawson Dragons adopted a do-or-die attitude in the second half that nearly earned them a victory. The Wildcats held their lead, although as the clock ticked away, that lead closed in more and more.

"We dominated the first half, they dominated the second half. We were overconfident in the second half, and Dawson wouldn't quit," Grady coach Leandro Gonzales said.

The Dawson Dragons head coach, Kevin James, was delighted with the way his team played, despite the loss. Dawson is now 2-4 for the season.

"I'm tickled to death with this game. This was a moral victory for us and I feel real good about it. We're a pretty young football team, but we've got good young kids," said James, adding that there are only four seniors and one junior playing.

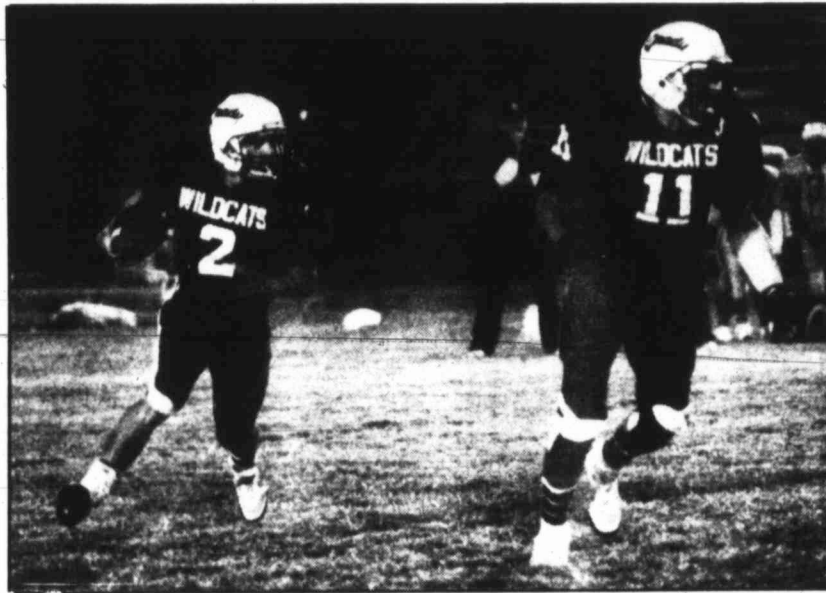

Grady made the first score of the game with its first possession of the ball, and the first quarter ended with Grady scoring 20 points to zero for the Dragon. A total of 31 yards in three scoring attempts gave the Wildcats the lead over the Dragons and Grady scored again immediately into the second quarter with a 45-yard pass from Len Garza to Danny Valle, bringing the score to 28-0.

The Dragons made their first score when Andy Martinez received the kickoff and ran 75 yards for a touchdown. The point-after brought the score to 28-8, and Grady scored on its next possession.

scored with two runs by Roel Cruz, 51 yards and 10 yards, for the touchdown, bringing the score to 34-14.

Next Grady scored against the Dragons with a 45-yard pass and the score was 40-14.

After the half, the Dragon's appeared to be fired up to win, and they scored 40 points in the last half.

"At half time we told them they could play for pride or lay down and quit," Dawson's coach James said.

Coach Gonzales agreed that the Dragons played to win the second half.

"Dawson just didn't quit. I'd have to commend Dawson's team for not quitting," he said.

Dominating the second half, the Dragons scored first with a 30-yard pass from Cruz to Andy Martinez. Martinez kicked the PAT, bringing the score to 48-22.

Grady fumbled twice in the next possession, but recovered and pulled out the scoring drive with a 70-yard pass from Garza to Gilbert Cortez, and the score was 54-22.

Next the Dragon's scored, with a 65-yard pass from Cruz to Martinez, bringing the score to 54-28, with less than one minute to go in the third quarter.

Grady scored again within that one minute, a 9-yard carry by Joel Morales, and the score was 60-28.

Into the fourth quarter, the Dragons lost possession of the ball through an interception by Morales on their own nine-yard line. But two plays later, the Dragons' Sanchez recovered a fumble in the end zone, bringing the score to 60-34.

The ball was traded back and forth between the teams for the next several plays. The Wildcats fumbled and Dawson recovered, then Dawson's pass was intercepted by Grady. Grady fumbled that recovery, giving the Dragon's possession of the ball on their own two-yard line.

Raul dela Rosa carried the ball for the score, 60-40.

With four minutes left in the game, Grady again scored when Cortez carried the ball into the end zone, gaining more than 20 yards rushing on the scoring drive. Grady was now ahead 66-40.

drives, bringing the Dawson team close to winning the game.

The Dragons passed for a total of 65 yards in their next scoring drive, capitalizing on the Cruz-Martinez advantage of speed and accuracy.

Next the Dragons scored on a 56-yard pass by Cruz to Martinez, and again, with only 18 seconds on the clock, Cruz passed to Michael Vera for the final scoring drive of the game.

Martinez carried the ball 10 times for 80 yards and Cruz received 5 passes for a total of 180 yards.

"He's a senior, but this is the first year he's ever played high school football," James said about Martinez.

Grady's Cortez carried 10 times for 78 yards.

The Wildcats gained 469 total offensive yards during the game, and the Dragons gained 396 yards.

Riverside 28 Pecos 20

EL PASO — The Pecos Eagle traveled to El Paso to tangle with the Riverside Rangers in non district play Friday night, with the Rangers coming out 28-20.

Outstanding play by the Eagles included Chris Machuca with 4 carries for 64 yards, and Brian Gonzales, with 123 yards passing.

The leading rusher in the game was the Rangers' James Acosta running for 223 yards on 8 carries and catching 8 passes for a total of 110 yards. Acosta also made two of the Rangers' TD's.

With 10:58 to go in the first quarter, James Acosta received a 76-yard pass from Eddie Zamora for the first score of the game. Rene Lara ran for 2, making the score 8-0.

Second-quarter scoring was led off by David Lerma for Riverside on a halfback option play from Tury Valasquez. The extra point attempt failed, making the score 14-0. Pecos was finally able to get on the scoreboard with 9:04 left in the half on a 15-yard run by Dominique Tallez. The pass for the extra points missed the mark, and the score at the half was 14-6, Riverside.

In the third quarter, with 2:37 to go, Tallez scored with a 94-yard interception return.

With 1:47 to go in the third quarter, Pecos fumbled the ball in the endzone. The fumble was recovered by Sammy Martin for the Rangers, leaving the score 16-14 going into the final period.

The Rangers' James Acosta made the first score of the fourth quarter with 5:35 left in the game, running 22 yards for the TD. The kick was no good, leaving the score at 20-14.

With 4:49 to go, Tallez made the next Pecos score on a 9-yard run. The kick failed, and the score went to 20-all.

The final score of the contest was made by Johnny Anaya of Riverside, receiving a 42-yard pass from Eddie Zamora. Acosta ran for two, and the final score was 28-20, Riverside. The Riverside Rangers now stand at 3-3 for the year. The Eagles move to 2-3 for the season and 0-1 district.

The Eagles will play the Andrews Mustangs in Andrews next week in their second district game.

Sweetwater 21 Andrews 17

A 55-yard drive in the last 1:29 of the third quarter put the Sweetwater Mustangs out front in their 21-17 victory over the Andrews Mustangs.

Sweetwater got on the board first in the first quarter after a 55-yard drive. Running back Randall Lepard went in from 9 yards out: the PAT by Gregg Ruffin was good.

Andrews fumbled the kick-off on its 39, which was recovered by Sweetwater. Four plays later, Ruffin took the ball in from the one. Ruffin followed the touchdown with a successful PAT to put the Mustangs up 13-0.

In the second quarter, Andrews used a guard-run play that resulted in a 38-yard scoring run for Matt Good. The PAT by Eric Perucca was good to cut Sweetwater's lead to six.

With three seconds remaining in the half, Perucca kicked a 32-yard field goal to put the score at 13-10 at the half.

Andrews took the lead with 8:12 remaining in the third quarter on the same play they used in the second quarter: guard Jay Sawyer ran 44 yards for the score. Perucca added the PAT to put Andrews up 17-13.

The final score, by Sweetwater, was on a fourth down play. Ruffin went in from two yards out for the touchdown. Sweetwater elected to go for two points, and was successful on a pass from Ruffin to David Hall. No scores were made by either team in the final quarter. The game ended with Sweetwater out front 21-17.

The leading rushers for the game were: Chris Garrett of Andrews, who had 90 yards on 13 carries and Randall Lepard of Sweetwater, who had 71 yards on 14 carries.

Mustang defense pitches another shutout

By CHARLES POISALL
For the Herald

ACKERLY — The Sands Mustangs, living up to their reputation as a great defensive team, shut out the Wellman Wildcats in Ackerly Friday night and chalked up their first win in District 5-A six-man football, 36-0.

The Sands "Pony Express" did all of its scoring in the first half. Coach Randy Roemisch's Mustangs now sport a record of six wins and no losses overall, 1-0 in district play.

The Wellman Wildcats dropped to 4-2 overall, 0-1 in district.

The Mustangs received the opening kickoff in the first quarter and proceeded to drive 52 yards for their first touchdown in less than a minute and a half of play. Quarterback Aaron Cowley completed passes to end Adrian Zarate and back Charles Rhodes in the drive, which also featured gains on the ground by Rhodes and back Eric Herm.

Herm carried over from the one-yard line for the score. Junior back Pank Grigg booted the two-point conversion.

The Mustangs stopped the Wildcats on their 23-yard line on the first Wellman possession and took over the ball on the Sands 23 after a punt by back and kicker Kurtis Labadie. Grigg carried the ball to the Wellman 37 for a first down. Cowley and senior end Brandon Riddle then joined for a 43-yard pass and run to score the second Mustang touchdown. Again Grigg's kick was good for the two points and the pony express led 16-0 with five minutes left in the opening quarter.

After gains by junior back Wade Rowden of Wellman that netted one first down, senior quarterback Cody Harred lofted a pass that was intercepted by Cowley, who ran the ball back to the Wildcats' five-yard line. Grigg then needed only one play to score through the line and the Mustangs had a 22-0 lead. For the third time in a row, Grigg's kick was good, upping the score to 24-0 with three minutes and 36 seconds still to play in the first period.

Backs David Covarrubias and John Young starred on defense for the Mustangs during the next Wellman possession. The Mustangs took over on downs on their own 25.

Early in the second quarter, Cowley completed a pass to end Clay Parker and then another good for a six-yard touchdown, to Riddle. Grigg's kick this time was wide to the right, but the Mustangs now led 30-0.

The Mustang defense forced the Wildcats to punt on the next Wellman possession. But on the following series by the Mustangs, a fumble in the Sands backfield was recovered by Labadie for the Wildcats.

The Wildcats then reached the Mustang 30-yard line on carries by fullback Balo Quinones and Rowden. But the threat was stopped on the Mustang 15 when Rhodes intercepted a Harred pass, and the Mustangs again had possession of the ball.

The ensuing drive saw gains on the ground by Herm and Grigg and a pass from Grigg to Cowley that took the ball to the Mustang 39.

Then came the most spectacular play of the game. Cowley teamed with Riddle for a 41-yard completion that took Riddle over the goal line for what would turn out to be the final score of the game.

Again Grigg's kick was wide, but the Mustangs led 36-0. That score held at halftime, which came only 17 seconds later.

Entertaining at the half were the Sands cheerleaders, led by Priscilla Franco. Other members of the team include Jade Johnson, Luci Schuelke, Linda Barnes, Michelle Howard and Becky Barnes. Mascot was Leann Maxwell.

The two teams battled back and forth in the middle of the field during the third and fourth quarters. The game settled down into a defensive struggle as Coach Roemisch substituted freely with his Mustang players and Coach John Cornelius of Wellman made adjustments in the Wildcat defense.

"We knew we had to stop their option plays so we made some changes at halftime," said Cornelius after the game. "Primarily we moved our ends farther outside on defense. This worked pretty well for us in the second half."

"Our team played well in the first half," said Roemisch. "In the second half we wanted to play some of our younger players — freshmen and sophomores — to give them some experience under game conditions. Also, we didn't see any need to try and run up a big score on the Wellman Wildcats."

Hermleigh drive that began on the Cardinals' own 10.

The Coyote offense moved into high gear, taking the ball from their own seven and marching down field to the Cardinal three in five plays. Kemper rolled to the right, looking for Cole Vestal in the end zone, only to have the pass picked off by Felix Martinez of Hermleigh.

There was 3:37 remaining on the clock when Hermleigh began its second offensive drive. A stubborn Coyote defense gave up 39 yards before forcing the ball on downs.

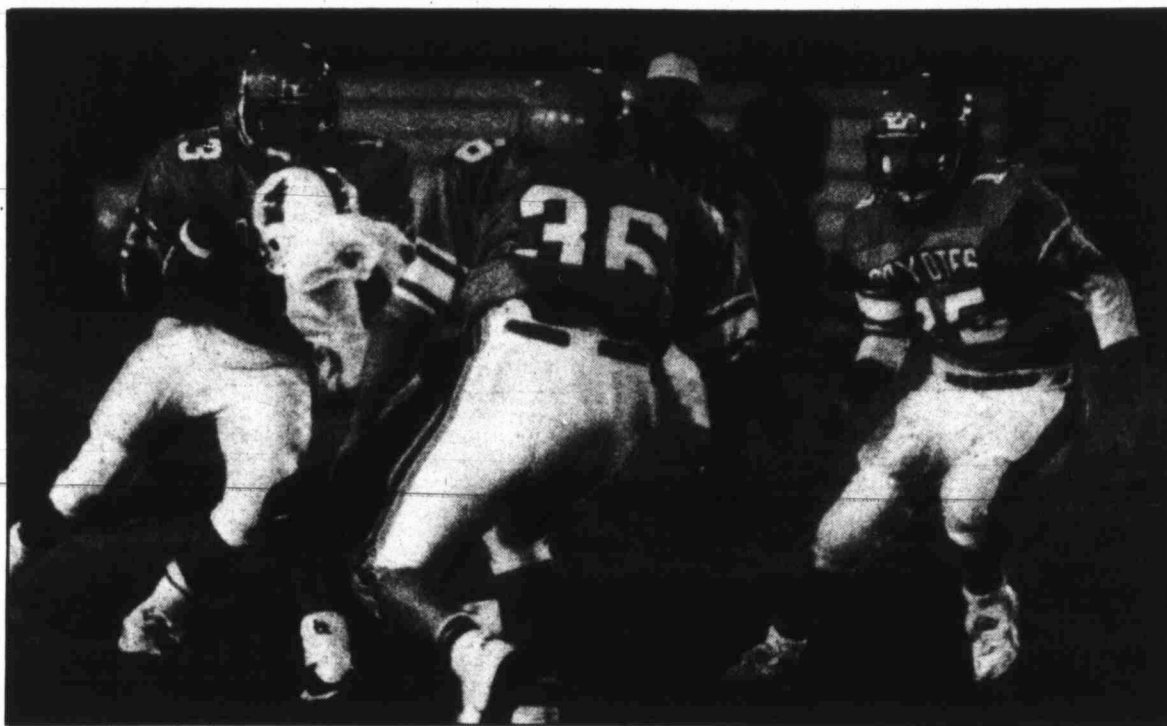

The Coyotes had the ball on their own 35, completed a pass to the Cardinal 20, as time ran out.

It took Borden County six seconds in the second quarter to add another score. Kemper handed off to Vestal, who ran 15 yards. As Vestal was about to be tackled, he lateralled to senior running back Jimmy Rios, who ran 10 yards for the score.

Smithie added two more with a successful PAT kick, to put Borden County up 16-0.

The Cardinals were unable to break through the Coyote defense. Hermleigh was able to pick up 37 yards rushing before turning the ball over to Borden County on downs.

There was 7:33 remaining in the half when the Coyotes began their drive for a third touchdown. It took Borden County three plays to move the ball from their own 23. Kemper handed off to Rios, who then passed to Paul Sturdivant, who sprinted 40 yards for the score. Smithie added two more points, to put the Coyotes up 24-0.

Hermleigh tried a few fancy plays on its next possession. Four plays later, the Cardinals succeeded in getting on the board. Andrew Sanchez handed off to Chris Velasco, who went up the middle from five yards out for the score. The PAT attempt was blocked by Borden County, but a Cardinal player picked the ball up and passed it to Buddy Atkinson, who was open in the end zone, to make the score 24-7.

Seconds later, the Coyotes answered Hermleigh's score with one of its own, when Rios took the kick-off 58 yards for the touchdown. The snap on the PAT was fumbled, putting the score at 30-7 with 5:15 remaining in the half.

The only punt in the game added six more points to the score for Borden County. Rios fielded the ball on the Coyote 10, moved to the outside and sprinted 70 yards for the score. The PAT kick went wide, to put Borden County up 36-7 with 2:30 showing on the clock.

Hermleigh answered with a run back on the kick-off. Sanchez took the ball on the 13 and ran it all the way back for the score. The PAT kick failed, to put the score at 36-13.

Three plays later, with 1:42 remaining, the Coyotes put the final points on the board. Kemper handed the ball to Harris, who had to dash from one side to another to find a hole, went in from 34 yards out. The PAT by Smithie was good, putting Borden County out front, 44-13.

"Our boys played great," said Avery. "I didn't think we would score that easy. We executed well. We draw out every play on the board to score and that's what the boys did."

Avery said he tried some new players on the kicking team. "We thought we would give them a chance to get some experience," said Avery.

"One player deserves recognition. Paul Sturdivant showed us he could catch the ball. He did a good job. He's not normally in pass patterns," said Avery.

Next week the Coyotes will play Ira in what Avery said would be "a tough district game." He added "if we win, it will put us in a good spot in the district."

The Coyotes are 3-3 for the season and 1-0 in district play.

The leading rusher for Borden County was Jimmy Rios, who had 40 yards on 6 carries. Coyote quarterback Shane Kemper completed 6 of 8 passes for 148 yards.

Reds hold off Pirates, 2-1, for NL pennant

CINCINNATI (AP) — For the Cincinnati Reds, it's goodbye to Pittsburgh's Killer B's and hello to the mighty Oakland A's.

The Reds brought a championship and cheers back to their town again Friday night by beating the Pirates for the National League pennant.

It was another display of pitching, defense and timely hitting that gave the Reds a 2-1 victory in Game 6.

The World Series comes to Cincinnati starting Tuesday night when Dave Stewart is expected to start against Jose Rijo.

Ron Oester, the remaining link to the Big Red Machine of the 1970s, led off the seventh inning with a single off Zane Smith. Barry Larkin popped out on a bunt attempt, but Billy Hatcher's single moved Oester to third.

In a surprising move, Manager Lou Piniella then pinch-hit Luis Quinones for Paul O'Neill. O'Neill was 8-for-17 in the series.

Quinones, 0-for-7 lifetime against Smith, delivered with a single to drive in Oester and send the Reds to their ninth NL pennant. Quinones was 13-for-36 as a pinch hitter this season.

The Reds' championship comes only a little more than a year after Pete Rose was banned from baseball for gambling. Piniella and general manager Bobby Quinn came in and turned the Reds into winners again.

Two of the Nasty Boys, Norm Charlton and Randy Myers, finished the job started brilliantly by Danny Jackson. The other Nasty Boy, Rob Dibble, struck out 10 of the 15 batters he faced in the series.

AP-DS-10-12-90 2324EDT
Perhaps fittingly, Dibble and Myers, the latter with three saves, shared series MVP honors. The Nasty Boys, including Charlton, pitched 16 2-3 innings, giving up six hits, one earned run and striking out 20 to guide the Reds to the World Series for the first time since 1976, when Cincinnati swept the New York Yankees.

With one out in the ninth, Barry Bonds walked and Carmelo Martinez followed with a drive that right fielder Glenn Braggs caught at the top of the wall. Myers fanned Don Slaught to end the game, as fireworks exploded above Riverfront Stadium.

The expected pitching duel between Jackson and Smith eventually materialized, anyway. Jackson was just short of perfect for the Reds, giving up one run and one hit in six-plus innings.

To almost everyone's surprise, the Pirates announced several hours before the game that reliever Ted Power would start instead of Smith. But after the first inning, it looked like Manager Jim Leyland should have started a different shortstop and second baseman instead.

to third when catcher Slaught's throw went into center field for an error.

Larkin held at third on Hatcher's groundout to first and Power walked the hot-hitting O'Neill. Eric Davis then hit a potential inning-ending double play to short, but second baseman Jose Lind could not make the relay to first.

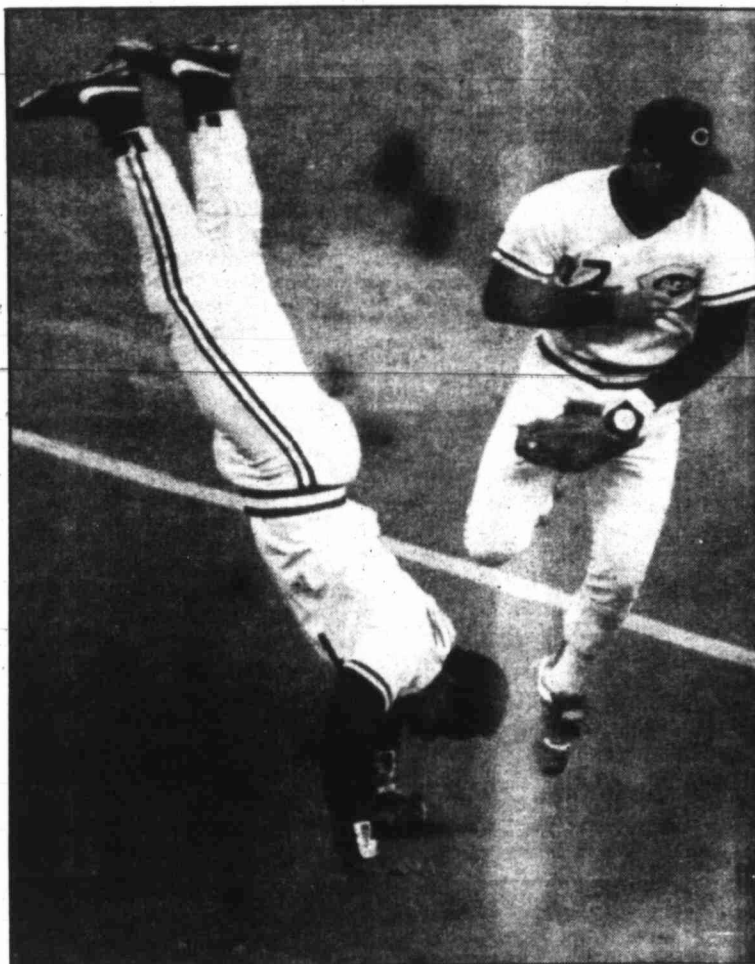

It was an ugly inning in a series dominated by one spectacular defensive play after another. During the season the Reds were 39-13 when they scored in the first inning.

Power, who saved Game 1, made 40 appearances during the season without making a start. The last pitcher to start a postseason game who worked exclusively in relief during the season was Philadelphia's Jim Konstanty in the first game of the 1950 World Series.

Power, a former Red, entered the game with an 0-4 lifetime record and 6.75 ERA against Cincinnati.

Larkin singled with one out in the third and Smith, as originally billed, finally got in the game. Hatcher followed with a hit-and-run single to send the runner to third but first baseman Martinez came home with O'Neill's grounder to nail Larkin at the plate.

Bell bobbled Davis' grounder for his second error to load the bases. Chris Sabo then ended the inning when Andy Van Slyke caught his fly ball just in front of the 404-mark in dead center field.

Spartans trying to stay alive

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michigan State coach George Perles wants his Spartans to understand that each day brings a new challenge — an old rival, maybe, but a new challenge.

Michigan State (1-2-1) travels to Ann Arbor to meet No. 1 Michigan (3-1) on on Saturday in a game with renewed importance.

The Wolverines are playing for a Rose Bowl bid and possible national championship. Failing to live up to high expectations, the Spartans fell out of the rankings with losses to Notre Dame and Iowa, and now are struggling to stay in the Big Ten chase.

"The first thing we have to do is go back to basics and fundamentals," Perles said. "You have to make sure you're doing those things well and then just get into your game plan ... understanding that every Saturday is a new challenge."

Michigan State's biggest challenge may be to stop the running of Jon Vaughn, who has 672 yards and six touchdowns and averages 168.8 yards per game.

Michigan averages 481 yards per game, 304 of them on the ground. The Spartans average 376 yards in total offense, 202 on the ground.

"Our line has had some time together," Wolverines blocking back Jarrod Bunch said. "That extra year is what's made them so good right now. But anytime we play Michigan State it's always been a hard-hitting game. I think it's going to be a real tough game Saturday."

Tico Duckett has rushed for 489 yards and two touchdowns for Michigan State.

The Wolverines won their last national title in 1948. Michigan is trying to become the first team to win three straight Big Ten titles outright and the first to play in three straight Rose Bowl games since the Wolverines did it after the 1977, '78 and '79 seasons.

The rest of Saturday's schedule has North Carolina State at No. 2 Virginia (5-0); Kansas at No. 3 Miami (3-1); Texas vs. No. 4 Oklahoma (5-0) at Dallas; Vanderbilt at No. 6 Auburn (3-0-1); No. 9 Florida (5-0) at No. 5 Tennessee (3-0-2); Missouri at No. 7 Nebraska (5-0), and Air Force at No. 8 Notre Dame (3-1).

Also: Purdue at No. 11 Illinois (3-1); Colorado State at No. 13 Brigham Young (4-1); Iowa State at No. 14 Colorado (4-1-1);

No. 15 Clemson (5-1) at No. 18 Georgia Tech (4-0); No. 16 Southern Cal (4-1) at Stanford; No. 19 Oregon (4-1) at No. 17 Washington (4-1); No. 20 Texas A&M (4-1) at No. 12 Houston (4-0); No. 21 Arizona (4-1) at Oregon State; Ohio State at No. 22 Indiana (4-0); New Mexico at No. 23 Wyoming (6-0); No. 24 Mississippi (4-1) at Georgia, and Wisconsin at No. 25 Iowa (3-1).

Last year, Texas beat Oklahoma 28-24, and that doesn't sit well with this year's Sooners, who have abandoned the wishbone for a pass-and-run I-formation.

Virginia, idle last week, throws the nation's most prolific offense (41.4 points per game) at the Wolfpack. North Carolina State has allowed just 9.7 points per game, sixth in the nation, but that's after playing the likes of Appalachian State. North Carolina State beat Appalachian State 56-0 last week.

Tennessee leads its series with Florida 13-6 and has an offense that averages 41.6 points per game. The Vols are 4½-point favorites despite playing a team that has had its air attack rejuvenated under coach Steve Spurrier.

All eyes on Frogs

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The eyes of Texas and Oklahoma are on the Cotton Bowl, but the Texas Christian Horned Frogs are the ones drawing the most stares around here.

The Frogs will draw a good crowd of their own 35 miles away in their quest for a fifth victory overall and a 3-0 mark in the Southwest Conference.

Texas Christian, three spots away from being nationally ranked, takes on Rice in a noon regionally televised game at Fort Worth's Amon Carter Stadium.

The Frogs lost to Washington State in their opener, and haven't lost since, defeating Missouri, Oklahoma State, Southern Methodist and Arkansas.

The Frogs (4-1 overall and 2-0 in the SWC) were an eight-point favorite over the Owls (2-3 and 0-2).

Another big Southwest Conference matchup pits No. 12 Houston (4-0, 3-0) at No. 20 Texas A&M (4-1, 1-0). Kickoff is at 4 p.m. in the Astrodome.

In other conference games, Southern Methodist (1-3, 0-1) visits Baylor (2-3, 1-1) in a 1 p.m. game and Arkansas (2-2, 0-1) plays host to Texas Tech (1-4, 0-3).

The Texas-Oklahoma game kicks off at 3 p.m.

Baylor was listed as an 18-point favorite over the Mustangs, who lost 14-7 last week to Division II

North Texas. Houston was a five-point pick over A&M, which snuck past Tech last Saturday 28-24, and Arkansas was an eight-point pick over Tech as the Razorbacks try to recover from last week's 54-26 debacle at the hands of Texas Christian in Little Rock.

Texas Christian has captured the nation's fancy with its comeback victories and the drubbing of the Razorbacks. More than 2,000 fans greeted the Frogs at Meacham Field at 1 a.m. when TCU returned from the Arkansas upset.

But Frogs coach Jim Wacker said he worried that his players would still be celebrating when they face off against Rice.

"We told the team they could enjoy the Arkansas victory until Monday," Wacker. "It was fun. But at a certain point you have to put it in the record books and move on."

Rice's last victory over TCU in Fort Worth came in 1986 and the Frogs have won six of the last eight meetings, including three in a row.

Rice gave Houston a 22-20 scare before falling and lost 26-10 to Texas last week.

The Aggies will be trying to keep their hex on Houston's run-and-shoot offense. A&M has beaten the Cougars the last two years when Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware was at quarterback for Houston.

Injured boy vows to play baseball again

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 13-year-old boy critically injured this summer in a collision with a baseball teammate vowed he will regain strength and return to Little League play.

Jason Barnhart, of Azle, hit his head against a teammate's knee during a June 2 game and suffered injuries that have hospitalized him at Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center since. He was released from the hospital Friday.

"I'm going to play baseball, again," he said. "That's for sure."

Jason's father, Greg Barnhart, remains optimistic that his son, whose spirits remained high throughout the summer, will recover enough to play the game. "He's already improved so much," he said.

Jason's parents said the boy is active but cannot yet run.

Warren Marks, a pediatric neurologist and co-director of the hospital's Neuro-Rehabilitation Program, also expressed optimism.

"Whether he'll return to the way he was before, we don't know," Marks said. "We do know his condition should improve. Usually we see improvements in children with brain injuries in the first six months to two years. But we don't set limits on how much they can improve until they stop improving."

Doctors feared the boy wouldn't survive in the weeks following the accident when they discovered bleeding in his head.

"It was pretty tough and go," Marks said. "It was about 50-50 for a while."

Sally Barnhart, Jason's mother, said he has improved steadily since mid-July surgery repaired an aneurism on the brain and placed a shunt — a small tube that drains fluids — inside his skull.

Insurance will cover Jason's medical bills, now nearing $200,000, Greg Barnhart said.

Three fund raisers have collected $15,000 to help pay for Jason's full-time home supervision not covered by insurance.

"We've only been in Azle for six years, but I want to be buried here," Greg Barnhart said. "These people have bent over backwards to help us."

Storms systems join, drench southeastern part of country

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
Associated Press Writer

Hurricane Lili and the remains of Tropical Storm Marco locked pincers on the South on Friday with a combination of powerful winds, heavy surf and drenching rains. At least 10 people have died in the storms.

Lili lurked off the shore of North Carolina, a weakling among hurricanes, spinning harmless 8-foot waves into the Outer Banks. Its winds were clocked at 75 mph — barely over the hurricane threshold of 74 mph.

But the convergence of Lili and Marco, plus the dying remnants of Tropical Storm Klaus, brought a third day of rain and dangerous flooding to parts of the coastal Southeast.

"We got so much rain, so fast. ... We've never had anything like this," said Pam Smith, director of the Richmond County Emergency Management Agency in Augusta, Ga., whose west side was swamped by floodwaters.

In South Carolina, where floods Thursday carried caskets out of a graveyard, state climatologist John Purvis said some places had the most rainfall in a century.

At the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., forecasters said Lili appeared to be veering to the north sooner than expected, decreasing the threat of a direct hit on the mid-Atlantic coast.

At 9 p.m. EDT Friday, Lili's center was near latitude 32.2 north and 72.1 longitude west, or about 290 miles southeast of Cape

"We got so much rain, so fast. ... We've never had anything like this," — Pam Smith, director of the Richmond County Emergency Management Agency in Augusta, Ga., whose west side was swamped by floodwaters.

Hatteras, N.C. It was moving northwest at nearly 15 mph.

"It poses less threat to the East Coast now," said Herb White, of the National Weather Service in Raleigh, N.C. "Now it's projected to parallel the coast a little farther out."

Forecasters said gale-force winds could extend 75 miles inland along the route of the storm.

Tourists in North Carolina packed ferries to flee the Outer Banks, although the most noticeable signs of the storm were waves big enough to thrill surfers.

"I'm a little bit nervous, for my parents' sake," said Tom Sherer, 18, of Coinjock, N.C., who was riding a skim board on the waves. "They're sort of worried."

"Worried we're going to get hurt," added 16-year-old Mike Vernon of Currituck, N.C.

The real danger for the time being lay farther south, in Georgia, where four people drowned in rising floodwaters that ravaged the Augusta area. The floods were blamed on the remnants of Tropical Storm Marco, which blew north out of the Gulf of Mexico on Thursday.

The victims included an 80-year-old man who drowned as he and his wife struggled to leave their car at a flooded railroad track north of Augusta. Coroner Thomas King said the man was swept away in the floodwaters; his wife managed to escape.

Three people drowned in Jefferson County, about 50 miles southwest of Augusta, sheriff's Deputy Mark Williamson said.

On Thursday, three people drowned in South Carolina, while one person drowned and two died in storm-related traffic accidents in North Carolina.

In Augusta and surrounding Richmond County, officials closed all roads and declared a state of emergency, Ms. Smith said.

"All of our roads are flooded," she said. "People are trapped in their homes. People are hollering out for help through their windows. Some are on the rooftops. There are people in their cars floating down the road."

Emergency officials began evacuating families in the Augusta area early Friday morning.

Ms. Smith estimated that several hundred people had been moved from their flooded homes by boat or four-wheel-drive vehicles by afternoon. About 100 had been taken to a shelter, and the remainder stayed with friends or family, she said.

Gunfire kills prominent Egyptian, four guards

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Gunmen killed the parliament speaker and four security men outside a luxury hotel Friday, days after the government warned that terrorists might strike to punish Egypt for its opposition to Iraq.

There was no claim of responsibility in the slayings. Officials said they suspected either Moslem fundamentalists or terrorists from Iraq.

Police stepped up security in Cairo and placed airports on alert following the shootings.

Rifaat el-Mahgoub, 64, speaker of the People's Assembly and the second ranking politician after the president, was shot in his chauffeur-driven Mercedes as the car passed the Hotel Semiramis Inter-Continental, said Interior Minister Abdel-Halim Moussa.

Moussa said two assailants attacked el-Mahgoub's vehicle and an accompanying security car from two Suzuki motorbikes, while two others shot from the roadside, their rifles earlier hidden in bags.

Three escaped on the bikes, and the fourth ran into a densely populated area nearby and disappeared. He wounded two bystanders who tried to stop him, Moussa said.

The minister said two security men were killed in el-Mahgoub's car and another in a security car traveling behind him. A brigadier hospitalized with eight gunshot wounds later died, police said.

A Soviet-made hand grenade and four homemade explosives were found on the roadside near the hotel and defused.

The shooting occurred a block from the U.S. Embassy. El-Mahgoub was being driven to meet a Syrian delegation at another hotel about 1½ miles away.

The incident happened a day after a national referendum to decide whether President Hosni Mubarak should dissolve parliament and call new elections.

Moussa warned before the vote that Iraqis and other Arabs had infiltrated the country to destabilize the government through terror attacks, including assassinations. Egypt has led Arab opposition to Iraq's Aug. 2 occupation of Kuwait.

The interior minister said Friday he suspected the attackers were foreigners or local Moslem fundamentalists, but refused to elaborate.

The state-owned Middle East News Agency quoted a security officer at Cairo airport as saying all airports were on a high state of alert to prevent the assailants from slipping out of Egypt. Security checkpoints were set up along Cairo bridges and near the scene of the attack.

The shooting occurred shortly before Moussa was to have briefed reporters on the outcome of the referendum. Results showed 93 percent of Egyptians voting approved Mubarak's proposal and the president later issued a decree dissolving the assembly and calling for elections on Nov. 29.

CAIRO, Egypt — Egyptian forensic and security teams inspect the Mercedes car of Egyptian Parliament speaker Rifaat al-Mahgoub, 64, who was shot by assassins in downtown Cairo Friday morning. The bodies of al-Mahgoub and two security guards are still inside the car.

Mubarak scheduled the referendum because the nation's highest constitutional court had declared illegal the election laws under which the parliament was seated.

Because Mubarak has not named a vice president, Egypt's constitution considers the speaker of the People's Assembly the second-ranking official after the president. El-Mahgoub, 64, had been speaker since 1984.

Security Council votes to condemn Israel

AMMAN, Jordan — Palestinian men dressed in army fatigues raise the Palestinian flag during a Moslem rally attended by tens of thousands of Moslems on Friday.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council voted unanimously Friday to condemn Israel's security forces for killing 19 Palestinian demonstrators and asked for a U.N. investigation into the deaths.

The U.S. vote in favor of the resolution was a rare departure from the usual American practice of defending Israel from censure in the council.

After five days of arduous bargaining, America and the non-aligned nations on the 15-member council agreed on the compromise resolution, thus avoiding a U.S. veto of a harsher PLO-backed alternative resolution denouncing Israel.

The compromise on the final resolution indicated the non-aligned movement had split on the issue and was not wholeheartedly in the camp of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

A U.S. veto would have endangered the fragile U.S.-led coalition against Iraq, which includes Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Morocco and other Arab moderates who say Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza is as illegal as Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said his government would reject any effort by the council to send a team to investigate, saying it would infringe on Israel's sovereignty over Jerusalem.

Israel captured the Arab sector from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war and later annexed it.

The council president for October, British Ambassador Sir David Hannay, said "I would very much hope they will cooperate; I think that it will be extremely counterproductive from their point of view if they don't."

A PLO representative said the organization was still unhappy with the resolution.

"We feel that it will not have the positive necessary repercussions in the occupied territories," said the PLO's alternate permanent observer, M. Nasser al-Kidwa.

"Unfortunately, we are expecting Israel to continue oppressing the Palestinian people," he said.

Palestinians on the Temple Mount, also known as Al Haram Al Shareef, were hurling rocks down on Jews praying at the Western Wall, or Wailing Wall, when police intervened and began shooting.

Israel's government confirmed 19 deaths, but Palestinians say the toll was higher.

SSC funds slashed by 23 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the House and the Senate cut 23 percent from the superconducting super collider's 1991 budget Friday as part of Congress' deficit-reduction effort.

The size of the cut stunned the atom smasher's supporters and threatened its long-term survival.

Members of the House and Senate appropriations committees cut the collider's budget by $75 million to $243 million. The committee freed $25 million that had been set aside for later use on the collider, an action that reduced the effect of the cut to $50 million.

The cut will delay the collider's completion, now scheduled for 1998, and raise its cost, proponents said. And both those factors will harm its support in Congress.

The collider, housed in a 54-mile underground ring to be built south of Dallas, would be used by scientists to study subatomic matter.

The appropriations conferees had been asked to cut $750 million from the 1991 appropriations bill for energy and water projects. The atom smasher, still in the beginning stages of construction, is 10 percent of that savings.

Fired mechanic kills at workplace

WOODLAWN, Md. (AP) — A disgruntled former employee opened fire at a car dealership Friday, killing a fellow auto mechanic and the general manager and wounding another man before turning the gun on himself, police said.

Employees said Wilton Reed, 25, of Baltimore, was fired Wednesday when he refused to work on a car that had been returned to the dealership's service shop.

Baltimore County police spokesman Jay Miller said Reed walked into the service shop just before noon, and fired on his former co-workers with a 9mm pistol.

A veteran mechanic, Robert Daughton, 35, was killed outright, and the general manager of the dealership, William Bishop, 46, died of his injuries several hours later at University of Maryland Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore.

The service manager, John David Laird, 35, who fired Reed, remained in critical condition at the hospital Friday night, Miller said.

Animal activists protest noise ban

CAMP BLANDING, Fla. (AP) — Animal activists protesting a state-sponsored deer hunt this weekend will challenge a new hunter-harassment law by making noise to try to frighten off the deer, their attorney said.

"We think it should be proper to make noises in order to alert the deer of possible harm," Boca Raton lawyer Barry Silver said Thursday.

The activists, who have a state permit to gather on a roadside, also will protest the permit's noise restrictions, which Silver said violate free-speech rights.

The activists were to gather Saturday outside the Camp Blanding Wildlife Management Area while the hunters are inside. The annual Youth Deer Hunt, in which parents and guardians teach children aged 8 to 15 to hunt safely, is sponsored by the state's Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Lt. Jim Huffstodt of the game commission said protesters will be in a designated area about one-quarter to one-half mile from the nearest hunting site.

Huffstodt said game officers will enforce a state law that took effect on Oct. 1 that prohibits interfering with hunting, trapping and fishing.

Silver said the protesters consider the law vague, unconstitutional and unfair. "It seems to us unfair not to be able to protect an animal."

Kodak guilty of infringement

BOSTON (AP) — A federal judge Friday ordered Eastman Kodak Co. to pay Polaroid Corp. $909.5 million for infringing on instant camera patents, ending a 14-year legal battle. Analysts said it was the largest such award ever.

However, U.S. District Judge A. David Mazzone ruled that Kodak did not willfully infringe on Polaroid patents for instant cameras and film when it entered the business in 1976.

Polaroid had sought $12 billion in damages, about four times Kodak's estimated profits in instant photography.

Kodak Chairman Kay R. Whitmore said in a statement the award would be paid from profits and would have "no material financial impact" on the company. He said Kodak was pleased Mazzone ruled the infringement was not willful.

Trudeau urged Jane to leave NBC

NEW YORK (AP) — Doonesbury creator Garry Trudeau says he urged wife Jane Pauley to "walk away from NBC altogether" when she was edged off the "Today" show in favor of Deborah Norville.

Trudeau wanted to satirize the morning program in his irreverent comic strip because "it had a formal, Kabuki-like quality... that would have been a natural for me," he said in a rare interview in the Oct. 15 issue of Newsweek magazine.

But Pauley's broadcast career appears, in retrospect, to have benefited from her move. And Trudeau says writing about his own family in his comic strip would be "a violation (as well as) infinitely banal."

Pauley has wrestled with the same conflict between public and private lives. She told People magazine last week that she'd love to interview her husband, "but a) he would never do it, and b) I would not ultimately do it. But I know it's a neat story."

Peewee still hanging around locker rooms

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The last time some people saw Dan Monahan he was a wimpy high school student named Peewee, peeking through a hole in the girls' locker room in the 1981 movie "Porky's."

Monahan is still hanging around locker rooms. This time, he's not acting.

The hot-to-trot nerd in "Porky's" and two sequels has given up acting to be the sales representative and promotions director of the Northern Indiana Basketball Corp., Fort Wayne's new franchise in the Continental Basketball Association.

"It's still entertainment in a sense, and yet it's different," Monahan said Monday. "That's what I need."

The team, as yet unnamed, begins CBA play in the 1991-92 season.

Sick child gets wish

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — An eighth-grader who is battling cancer got her spirits boosted when rapper M.C. Hammer met with her before a concert.

"He was really, really nice," Robyn Best said after talking to Hammer Thursday night at Rochester's Community War Memorial. "The kids at school are not going to believe this."

The meeting was arranged by Annette Coley, a secretary at Strong Children's Critical Care Center.

Coley wrote about Robyn to local radio station WDKX, which forwarded the letter to Capitol Records and Hammer.

Curfews, roadblocks block Arabs

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel used curfews, roadblocks and water cannons Friday to stop thousands of Arabs from attending prayer services at the Temple Mount, where police killed 19 Palestinians earlier this week.

In the occupied territories, troops shot and killed two Palestinians and wounded at least 10 in clashes with stone-throwing youths, Arab reports said.

Also Friday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Israel would reject any effort by the U.N. Security Council to send a team to investigate the Temple Mount deaths, which occurred Monday.

Shamir said a U.N. investigation would be an infringement on Israel's sovereignty over Jerusalem. Israel captured the Arab sector, which contains the Temple Mount, from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war and later annexed it.

Iranian nabbed in palace yard

LONDON (AP) — An Iranian trying to give Princess Diana a silver clock because he admired her climbed over two fences and through rose bushes before being nabbed on the lawn of her Kensington Palace home, police said Friday.

The princess was home at the time of Ali Kashabi's entry into the grounds of the palace shortly before midnight Thursday but was "not disturbed" by the incident, said a Buckingham Palace spokeswoman.

Kashabi said it was the second time he had been arrested in the Kensington Palace area in as many days. He said he was arrested for drunkenness on Wednesday night but was released.

Kashabi told Horseferry Magistrate's Court that he decided to give Princess Diana the silver clock after writing several letters to her but receiving no reply.

"I just wanted to see Lady Diana. I think that she is a very beautiful lady and I admire her," he said.

Yeltsin may get safer vehicle

YELTSIN RECOVERING

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin, who made his political comeback by railing against official privileges, found himself facing the issue Friday on his first day back at work after a car crash.

Yeltsin, limping slightly, officially resumed work at the Russian republic parliament by opening a committee meeting. He had been hurt in a road accident Sept. 12 near his office and had been recovering at home, Tass reported.

The accident stirred debate in the Russian parliament over giving the republic leader a special car for safer transportation. He had been riding in a Soviet-built Volga sedan.

Soviets begin anti-crime campaign

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government Friday announced it was taking urgent steps to fight organized crime and black marketeering, which have spread rapidly as private businesses have opened across the country.

The decree by the Council of Ministers, or cabinet, said law enforcement agencies will receive better "material and technical supplies" and new staff, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

In addition, special units of the KGB will be set up to combat organized crime.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev had promised on Wednesday that he would propose "tough measures that will represent a powerful weapon in the hands of law enforcers and authorities."

O'Meara threatens 90-hole PGA record

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A combination of ideal playing conditions, some friendly little resort courses and the need for aggressive play have put the PGA Tour's 90-hole scoring record in jeopardy.

Mark O'Meara, the man with the best chance of breaking the 27-under-par 333 mark in the 5-day, $1.3 million Las Vegas Invitational, really isn't interested.

"It's not out of the question," O'Meara said Friday after he'd completed three of five rounds in 18 under par.

"But that's not my concern.

"My concern is just staying close enough to have a chance to win Sunday afternoon.

"To do that, I have to continue to play well, play aggressively, shoot low numbers.

"I've played well for three days," O'Meara said after a 67 at the Desert Inn had completed his rotation over three courses in 198, 18 under par.

"But there are still a lot of guys in contention in this tournament," he said.

Even more than usual, said Bob Tway, who held second at 199 after a 65 at the Desert Inn that was highlighted by an eagle-3.

The final two rounds are scheduled at the Las Vegas Country Club, the easiest of the three courses used for the first three rounds.

"Now we're going back to the Country Club and if we continue to get these kinds of playing conditions, the guys are going to light it up," O'Meara said. "With the possibility of so many good scores, that just means there are that many more guys with a chance to win."

Ben Crenshaw, defending champion Scott Hoch and Wayne Levi, the only four-time winner on the American tour this year, are not among them. All failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

John Cook, with a third round 66 at Spanish Trails, was third alone at 200, only two strokes back with two rounds to play.

He was followed by Emyln Aubrey (202) and Canadian Richard Zokol (203). Aubrey shot 68 at Spanish Trail, Zokol 66 at Desert Inn.

Phil Blackmar, with a 68 at Spanish Trail, Loren Roberts, 70 at Desert Inn, and Kirk Triplett, 68 at Desert Inn, were next at 204.

O'Meara scored his second victory of the season last week with a 19-under-par performance in San Antonio.

"There's no specific thing that has come around," he said of the hot streak during which he has played his last seven competitive rounds 37 under par. "My swing is just a lot better over the last six months."

But, he said, there are times he finds a special groove.

"My kind of game is one that can just click on, boom, and all of a sudden I start to stiff it," he said.

Kiwis advance at Dunhill

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — With teams traveling halfway around the world in pursuit of $1 million, Ian Woosnam figures there must be a better way to decide the winner of the Dunhill Cup.

Woosnam watched in disappointment Friday as poor play by teammates Mark Mouland and Philip Parkin helped unseeded New Zealand eliminate seventh-seeded Wales 2-1 to reach the semifinals. Woosnam won the opening match of the series on the Old Course.

New Zealand next plays third-seeded Ireland, the 13-8 favorite. The Irish beat Spain in the second round 2-1.

The other semifinal pits fifth-seeded England, a 2-1 winner over Scotland, against eighth-seeded Japan, which blanked France 3-0.

Wales' loss came on the heels of first-round eliminations of the top two seeds, the defending-champion United States and Australia.

And it had Woosnam, the top money-winner in Europe this season, eager for a change in the medal-match play tournament, where one bad round can take a three-member team out of the running for the first prize of $100,000 a man from the $1 million purse.

"I think they might want to think about changing the format, perhaps into a round-robin," Woosnam said.

The current knockout event hurts the best teams, especially those — like the Americans and Australians — who have to travel the farthest, he said.

"If, for example, we had been having to go to Australia to play, I would not have wanted to go for one day if the others in the team were not playing well," Woosnam said. "And that must work in reverse for some of the teams coming here just now."

Even the winners conceded that the knockout rule carried extra pressure.

"It's a very nerve-wracking format," Ireland's David Feherty said.

With each stroke counting, a player can't concede holes or get aggressive once in the lead, the Irish captain said.

"When you get ahead, it's not like match play," Feherty said. "You become tentative, and it's ridiculous to be aggressive. The man behind has nothing to lose."

England's Mark James, who won the decisive match by one stroke against Scotland, said that eight seeds in a 16-team field was too much.

OU quarterback hopes to make point to Horns

DALLAS (AP) — There's nothing tougher than a renegade Texan.

And that's what the Texas Longhorns will be facing on Saturday when they meet the fourth-ranked Oklahoma Sooners and quarterback Steve Collins of Ennis.

Collins was recruited and dropped by the Longhorns. He didn't like it.

"They did get me tickets for the OU-Texas game," he said. "They told me later they weren't going to recruit me anymore. Texas never appealed to me anyway."

Collins is being pushed by freshman Cale Gundy, who came off the bench to rally the Sooners to a 31-17 victory over Oklahoma State last week.

Collins, a sophomore, is adept at running the option.

"Last week's game didn't shake my confidence," Collins said.

Gundy is a better passer so if the Horns stop the Sooners' patented Wishbone offense on Saturday then Gundy might be in the game.

"I throw the ball better but Steve is the best runner," Gundy said. "In fact, he'd make a good tailback."

Pete Gardere's touchdown pass in the last two minutes defeated the Sooners 28-24 last year.

Before Texas' surprise last year, the Sooners hadn't lost the annual Red River rivalry in the Cotton Bowl since the Longhorns were victorious in 1983.

Texas coach David McWilliams said last year's win gives the Horns hope again.

"Psychologically, you feel better about going in against them knowing that last year you beat them," McWilliams said. "Most of the guys on this team have been in this game and knows what kind of a game it will be."

For the 24th time in the 45 years since World War II, Oklahoma enters the game undefeated. On seven occasions, Texas has spoiled the Sooners' perfect record. The 3 p.m. CDT game will be nationally televised (ESPN).

Johnny Walker, who caught the winning 25-yard touchdown pass with 1:33 remaining, said the Sooners are thinking national championship if they can get past Texas.

"This is a very, very big game for OU," he said. "They've got a great shot at the national title if they beat us."

Texas is 2-1, losing to Colorado but defeating Penn State and Rice. Both Gardere and Walker return to take on the Sooners again.
