Reductions Ahead Of Timetable

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON AP—The U.S. Command announced today it is running several days ahead of President Nixon's timetable for reduction of American forces in Vietnam.

A spokesman said American military strength in the country has dropped below the 384,000-man ceiling that Nixon ordered reached by Thursday. He said precise figures were not yet available but would be announced next Monday.

Since Nixon announced the First American troop withdrawals from Vietnam in June 1969, U. S. strength has been reduced about 160,000 men from a peak of 543,400 in April 1969. The President has announced that total American troops will be reduced another 100,000 during the next six months, trimming U.S. strength to less than 284,000 by next May 1.

Sources in Saigon have hinted that this may be accelerated and more than 100,000 men may be trimmed from the American force. Combat divisions are now being positioned in the interior of South Vietnam for the next phases of Nixon's withdrawal program.

The U.S. Command released an official weekly military strength summary today that said 384,600 American troops were in the country. But "departures since that date including Army and Marine units have reduced the total strength below the Oct. 15 ceiling of 384,000," a spokesman said.

During the past 24 hours units leaving Vietnam included detachments from the 7th and 11th Marine Regiments, the 3rd Brigade of the 9th Infantry Division, the 199th Infantry Brigade and the 2nd Squadron, 1st Cavalry.

Headquarters said American strength in Vietnam was at its lowest since Dec. 24, 1966, when there were 376,4000 U.S. troops in the battle zone.

The strength summary gave this breakdown as of last Thursday: Army 292,300; Navy 18,700; Marines 27,600; Air Force 45,900, and Coast Guard 100. This does not include about 22,500 Navy men of the 7th Fleet and 600 Coast Guardsmen aboard ships operating off the coast of Vietnam.

The U.S. Command also announced that an Air Force twin-engine OVIO crashed from unknown causes Monday in northwest Cambodia across the border from southern Thailand. The American pilot was killed.

The command did not specify the mission of the plane, but the OVIO is used to mark targets for bombers and for armed reconnaissance.

Headquarters also announced the loss of two American helicopters in South Vietnam over the weekend, killing one U. S. crewman and wounding another.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong commandos, in an unusual daytime attack near Phnom Penh, overran a Cambodian outpost Sunday and killed or captured most of the defenders.

A Cambodian military spokesman also reported a third straight night of attacks against Moat Kraeas Krao, a defensive position only five miles from Phnom Penh on the east bank of the Mekong. There was no report of casualties or damage.

Mideast Cease-Fire Hits Another Snag

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another standoff has developed in the Middle East over extension of the 90-day cease-fire along the Suez Canal.

Egypt said Sunday it would not extend the truce beyond its Nov. 5 expiration date unless Israel rejoins the peace talks at the United Nations. Israel repeated it would not resume negotiations until Egypt pulls back the antiaircraft missiles which Israel and the United States charge have been moved closer to the canal in violation of the cease-fire standstill.

An aide to Egypt's foreign minister, Mahmoud Riad, said Cairo's position did not mean "that Nov. 5 we are going to start shooting."

But he said that if Israel does not rejoin the talks begun under U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring, then the cease-fire is a commitment "we want to liberate ourselves from. That's all."

Israeli Premier Golda Meir told her weekly cabinet meeting Israel wants the cease-fire to continue, but it will not return to the talks until "the Egyptians and Russians take steps to restore the original position in the Canal standstill zone."

An Israeli public opinion poll showed 70 per cent of 500 persons queried favored suspension of the talks until Egypt pulls back the missiles; 23 per cent favored resumption of the talks despite the missiles, and 7 per cent had no opinion.

Meanwhile, Egypt's only legal political party, the Arab Socialist Union, began rallies to whip up enthusiasm for President-designate Anwar Sadat, who has been nominated by the party to succeed Gamal Abdel Nasser, confirmed by the National Assembly and will be elected in a plebiscite Thursday. The purpose of the rallies is to get a big turnout to demonstrate Egyptian solidarity in the wake of Nasser's death.

Dick Taylor Rites Today

Dick Taylor, 66 retired cafe operator, died at 5 a.m. Sunday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

A native of Montgomery, Tex., Mr. Taylor had been a resident of the Snyder area for the past 21 years. He was a member of the Baptist Church, and was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Air Force.

Funeral service was set for 2 p.m. today at the Bolger Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. Quinton Montgomery, pastor of Green Hill Baptist Church, was to officiate. Burial was to be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bolger Funeral Home.

Surviving are his wife; a stepdaughter, Mrs. R. R. Truly of Dallas; a stepson, Norman Winkle of Oklahoma City; four sisters, Mrs. Ruby Noble of Odessa, Mrs. Ruth Nash and Mrs. Violet Gibson, both of Waxahachie, and Mrs. Maud Johnson of Fort Worth; two brothers, L. M. Taylor of Odessa and Leonard Taylor of Fort Worth.

Pallbearers were Elmer Taylor, James Stewart, Frank Stephenson, Simon Best, Sam Tibbets and Lowell Prince.

Nixon Heading For Connecticut

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, on the latest leg of his effort to bring about Republican gains in the off-year election, headed today for Connecticut, scene of a potentially crucial Senate contest.

The President and Mrs. Nixon were bound for Hartford, the state capital, and a noon hour motorcade into the city where the chief executive planned a closed-door briefing for newspaper and broadcast executives from states ranging from Virginia to Maine.

Afterwards, Nixon and the First Lady were to entertain the news media representatives at a buffet.

The President, whose travels will pick up speed in the final three weeks of the off-year election campaign, also scheduled an appearance at Stamford, Conn., to dedicate an Italian-American community center on this Columbus Day.

All along his route through Connecticut, Nixon lined up Republican candidates to appear prominently with him.

Foremost among them was GOP Rep. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., candidate for the Senate seat of Democrat Thomas Dodd, who is running as an independent. Also in the race is the Democratic primary winner, the Rev. Joseph D. Duffey.

Duffey is national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Republican House members and mayors who might benefit from the Nixon coattails also were assigned slots in the Connecticut welcome for the President.

Nixon had planned to fly directly from his winter home in Key Biscayne, Fla., to Connecticut, but in a switch of plans, announced Sunday afternoon he was making an overnight stop at the White House.

A White House spokesman said the chief executive, who was not scheduled to leave Washington until late morning, wanted to be in his oval office early in the day to attend to unannounced business.

It was learned the president planned a talk with Eliot Richardson, secretary of health, education and welfare, about the administration's family assistance plan, which has been rejected by the Senate Finance Committee.

Before the autumn campaign is over, Nixon is expected to visit at least six other states. They are Texas, Tennessee, Florida, California, Indiana and Maryland.

In addition, there remains the possibility he will go to Illinois and Ohio and perhaps to such other states as Vermont and New Mexico before election day — principally in behalf of GOP candidates who might have a chance of whittling down or overturning the current 57-43 Democratic edge in the Senate.

Sgt. Winslett Earns Bronze Star Medal

Chief Master Sgt. Leonard W. Winslett, son of Mrs. Ruby Winslett, 2205 Thirty-second Street, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for distinguished service with the U. S. Air Force in Vietnam.

The citation, which accompanied the medal, reads as follows:

"Chief Master Sergeant Leonard W. Winslett distinguished himself by meritorious service as Superintendent, Electronics Branch, Installations Division, 485th Electronics Installation Squadron, Cam Ranh Bay Air Base, Republic of Vietnam, while engaged in ground operations against an opposing armed force from 14 August, 1969, to 20 July, 1970.

"During this period, Sergeant Winslett displayed outstanding technical skill, superior management ability and unsurpassed resourcefulness in insuring maximum results by emergency navigational aids maintenance teams throughout Vietnam. His unselfish dedication during this period also insured the successful installation of a multitude of vitally needed United States Air Force communications facilities, each indicative of the professionalism of Sergeant Winslett.

"The exemplary leadership, personal endeavor and devotion to duty displayed by Sergeant Winslett in this responsible position reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force."

UN Delegates Study Policies

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Two days before the beginning of the U.N. General Assembly's 25th anniversary summit session, delegates were still struggling today to finish two policy statements for adoption at the end of the session.

The assembly's Main Political Committee was arguing about rival Communist, Western and Latin American resolutions for a Declaration on Strengthening International Security. A vote tonight was possible.

In the Economic Committee, the industrial powers and the developing countries were battling over a declaration setting the goal for the Second U.N. Development Decade, 1971-80.

In the rival resolutions on security, eight Moscow-line sponsors scored "military occupation;" Australia, Belgium, Canada, Italy and Japan called for regional handling of regional problems; and 20 Latin American countries demanded disarmament and economic development.

In their draft for a development decade declaration, 89 developing countries sought a promise from the industrial powers to try to build up their official foreign aid to 0.75 per cent of their gross national product by 1972. The United States Britain, Australia and Japan proposed to eliminate that target.

The security declaration, the development strategy, a declaration on friendly international relations and a 25th anniversary declaration of faith in the U.N. Charter are all to be given ceremonial approval at the close of the summit session Oct. 24, just 25 years after the charter came into effect.

But efforts were deing made to have all four proposals ready before the opening of the session Wednesday morning so that the participants could devote the intervening time to 89 scheduled speeches.

Only the declaration on friendly relations is noncontroversial. It got the unanimous recommendation of the assembly's Legal Committee last month.

The United States, Britain, France, Italy, Guinea, Somalia and India registered reservations to various provisions of the anniversary declaration as it was approved by the 25th Anniversary Committee Friday.

A program of action to eliminate colonialism provoked even stronger dissent in the Anniversary Committee. Both the United States and Britain voted against it, taking particular exception to a provision declaring the continuation of colonialism a "crime."

The Anniversary Committee recommended that the assembly hold a special ceremony late Wednesday to adopt the action program and celebrate the 10th anniversary of its Declaration Against Colonialism. The assembly was to meet all day today to act on that recommendation and to let delegations record their objections to the action program and the anniversary declaration so that both could be adopted without dissent at the summit session.

At least 45 and possibly 48 heads of state or government will attend the commemorative meeting, which is being sandwiched into the assembly's three-month regular session.

Obscenity Law To Be Reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to review a federal law that prohibits the import of any obscene book, advertisement, photograph or drawing from abroad.

The law was declared unconstitutional last January by a three-judge federal court in Los Angeles. The Justice Department appealed to the Supreme Court in April for review.

A hearing will be held later this term with a decision expected by next June.

The law was challenged successfully by Milton Luros, a Los Angeles dealer, who won recovery of 37 photographs seized by customs agents in October 1969. Luros, returning from Europe, planned to use some or all of the photos in a hard cover edition of a book that describes sexual positions.

The federal court in Los Angeles said the law violates the freedom of people who would buy the book to review whatever they wish in the privacy of their homes.

The unanimous ruling relied on a Supreme Court decision of April 1969 that held possession of obscence films or printed matter in the privacy of a man's home cannot be made a crime.

The government's appeal asserted "there is no right of privacy regarding the contents of one's trunks at the borders."

Motor Grader Bid Accepted

County Commissioners this morning accepted the apparent low bid of $15,495 from Conslidated Equipment Company of Abilene for a motor grader to be used in Precinct 3.

The bid was with a trade-in. Other bids submitted included $18,750 from Plains Machinery, $20,840 from Patton, and $21,676 from Trainor.

Crash Fatal To R. E. Cooper

Rondall E. Cooper, 46, principal of Lamar Junior High School here, was killed early today in a one-car traffic mishap on Interstate 20 near Merkel.

It was reported that Mr. Cooper's automobile crashed into a concrete abutment and burned. He was en route to Abilene to pick up his father, O. L. Cooper, Sr. and had planned to continue on to Dallas where the senior Mr. Cooper had an appointment to see a doctor.

A native of Durant, Okla., Mr. Cooper had lived in Snyder for the past 12 years and had been associated with Snyder Schools throughout his residence here.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mr. Cooper is survived by his wife, Mrs. Joyce Cooper, a teacher at Stanfield Elementary School; a daughter, Arnetta Cooper of Lubbock; two sons, O. L. of Lubbock and Bid Cooper, a senior student in Snyder High School; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Cooper of Abilene; three sisters, Mrs. J. F. McLane of Anchorage, Alaska, Mrs. Keith Moore of Tulsa, Okla., and Mrs. Bob Perkins of Abilene; a brother, O. L. Cooper Jr. of Boulder, Colo.

Mr. Cooper was a member of the Methodist Church. He was married on Oct. 4, 1946, at Abilene to Miss Joyce Richardson.

Communique Says Men Alive, Well

MONTREAL (AP) — Terrorist kidnapers of a British diplomat and a Quebec Province official issued a new communique today saying both men are alive and well and that their release can be obtained if two of seven original demands are met by the government.

The new communique set no new deadline on the two men's lives and some here considered the language of the document more conciliatory than any since the kidnaping of British diplomat James Richare Cross last Monday and Labor Minister Pierre Laporte of Quebec on Saturday.

The new communique was issued within hours afer Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec broadcast an appeal for direct communication between the terrorists and the government.

The kidnapers, self-described members of the revolutionary Quebec Liberation Front, made these two demands:

— That 23 men either in jail or before the courts in connection with terrorist activities be granted safe conduct to Algeria or Cuba if they wish to go. Those accepting, should be allowed to take their wives and children.

— That police call off the intensive searches they have been conducting to find Cross and Laporte.

The Canadian and provincial governments have repeatedly rejected these demands.

Dropped was a demand for $500,000 in gold.

The new communique was accompanied by a letter from Cross to Premier Bourassa, who had called in a broadcast Sunday night on the kidnapers "to enter into communication with us." Bourassa said his provincial government wanted to set up machinery to insure the safety of Cross and Laporte.

Jury Selection Begins In Tyler

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Jury selection began today in the trial of two Longview men accused of last July's bombing of over 30 school buses parked on a Longview School District parking lot.

On trial are Fred L. Hayes, 43, and Kenneth R. McMaster, 42, charged with blasting at least 33 of 36 of the school buses last July 4.

Lawyers said the trial would last at least a week.

Panel Reports On Civil Rights Study

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has failed to live up to its own promises on civil rights, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said in a landmark study today. It laid ultimate responsibility on "... the quality of leadership exercised by the president ..."

Assistant Commission Staff Director Martin E. Sloane said the remark was not aimed specifically at President Nixon, but at "every president .... We've never had any period in the past when civil rights was enforced at any particularly good level."

In a 1,115-page report the size of the Manhattan telephone directory, the commission said minority groups still run into an equality gap in dealing with the federal government on a variety of levels, from hiring to housing and contract compliance and regulatory agencies.

The commission called generally for much tighter surveillance of the government's performance, with more money and manpower spent on enforcement of existing laws and orders.

"The great promise of the civil rights laws, executive orders, and judicial decisions of the 1950s and 1960s has not been realized," the report said.

Part of the blame was placed on government civil rights enforcement programs. The commission said have been almost uniformly stuck with second class status — too few staff, too little money, and not enough authority.

Strong remedial measures were called for, including a kind of civil service Philadelphia Plan, with deadlines to meet specific minority hiring goals, to "achieve equitable minority group representation at all wage and grade levels within each department and agency."

The study, largest ever done by the six-member commission and its staff, examined more than 40 federal agencies and programs to "try to pinpoint the status of civil rights enforcement in just about the entire federal government," Sloane said.

There was no immediate comment from the White House. But sources close to the administration called the report "very comprehensive and quite constructive," and said it would get "a lot of careful study," and "a lot of attention."

The commission criticized a wide range of federal departments and agencies, although crediting some with "marked successes."

Still, the commission said, it found "a number of fundamental weaknesses and inadequacies in civil rights compliance and enforcement that are common to most agencies ...."

These included, in addition to inadequate staff and funding:

"Undue emphasis on voluntary compliance and failure to make sufficient use of available sanctions ....

"Undue emphasis on a passive role, such as reliance on receipt of complaints ...."

Only Time Will Tell On Campus Report

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — William W. Scranton says only time will tell whether the recommendations of his Commission on Campus Unrest were "completely useful or not" in calming tensions and ending violence at colleges.

"I'm sure it has been somewhat useful already, despite sharp criticism led by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew," Scranton said in an interview. "Whether the administration and other political leaders and law enforcement agencies will take its recommendations to heart we have yet to see."

Scranton, 53-year-old former governor of Pennsylvania who tried unsuccessfully to win the Republican nomination for president in 1964, said he hopes "for the sake of America" that President Nixon won't condemn the report as Agnew did, and will take a more favorable position.

"Frankly, I don't know why he (Agnew) is saying what he is before the President ever gets a chance to study it," Scranton said.

"Is the vice president, in his criticism, speaking for the administration?" he was asked.

"I haven't the slightest idea," Scranton replied "You'd have to ask the administration."

Scranton noted that Nixon left on his European trip the day after the commission finished its work "and he told me he planned to read the entire report and that he wanted to see me again after he had that opportunity."

Scranton said Nixon told the commission not to worry if the report was controversial, that he expected it to be and that he didn't want any intellectual eunuchs around the White House, either on our commission or anywhere else. We felt very good about that."

Scranton emphasized "the report has not pointed at anyone, nor is it personal in any way but at the same time we felt it was important to say what is important to be known in America today, that there is a very deep chasm and a very deep critical problem and we must face it and deal with it."

He said he regretted that campus unrest has been injected into politics.

Scranton said that campus unrest had created such a deep chasm in America "that it is far more important than any political election, and I believe most Americans agree with that."

He denied charges that the report was dishonest, merely fed pablum to permissivists, or scapegoated Nixon.

"I think that is flagrant misinterpretation of what went on," Scranton said. "We worked extremely hard all summer long and came up with an honest report. We told it as we saw it.

Kornegay Claims Hoax

WASHINGTON (AP)—The tobacco industry said today the American Cancer Society may have perpetrated a hoax by reporting earlier this year that cigarette-puffing laboratory dogs developed lung cancers.

Horace Kornegay, president of the Tobacco Institute Inc., in a letter to Congress that the cancer society's report of Feb. 5 "may be one of the great scientific hoaxes of our time."

Cancer researchers reported 12 healthy beagle dogs, trained to inhale unfiltered cigarette smoke twice a day for two and a half years, developed lung cancers. Two of the cancers were described as similar to the type humans incur.

The cancer society said at the time the research "effectively refutes" claims that there's no link between smoking cigarettes and lung cancer. The research was described as the first to produce lung cancer in an experimental animal which inhaled smoke as humans do.

Kornegay said that eight months later, however, the research still has not been published in any professional medical journal.

He said at least two medical publications, the Journal of the American Medical Association and the New England Journal of Medicine, had refused to publish the study because it had first been released to news media and because of "unfavorable reviews by a dozen independent authorities."

Kornegay said one of the principal authors, Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, an official of the American Cancer Society, has since "publicly reduced the number of dogs claimed to have developed lung cancer from 12 to 2."

The tobacco industry spokesman also said that the cancer society has ignored four Tobacco Institute requests for examination of research methods and data used in the beagle study.

Kornegay said the tobacco industry "is funding more independent scientific research in the field of smoking and health than any other organization, governmental or private," and is prepared to put more funds into such research."

Day Care Center Session Tuesday

Bernice Beavers, regional licensing agent from Abilene, will speak Tuesday night at a meeting here of groups interested in setting up the newly-organized Snyder (Child) Day Care Center. The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church, according to Tom Smith, temporary chairman of the new organization.

All organizations, churches and civic clubs interested in the project have been urged to have representatives at the meeting. Miss Beavers will present pertinent information on setting up a child nursery and day care center.

The center here is being planned for pre-school children of working mothers in the low income bracket.

Three Pleas Are Entered

Two guilty pleas and one plea of innocence were entered in county court this morning.

Curtis Jose Clay pleaded innocent to a charge of aggravated assault on a police officer and was released after posting $1,000 bond. The offense allegedly occurred Oct. 10.

Stanley Cobb pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully carrying a pistol. He was assessed a $100 fine plus court costs. The offense occurred Oct. 11, and he was arrested by City Police.

Jimmy Ray Thomas pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and received a $100 fine plus court costs and a 3-day jail term. The offense occurred Oct. 10, and he was arrested by Highway Patrolmen.

Car Crashes Into Dwelling

City Police investigated a motor vehicle mishap in the 2600 block of El Paso at 1:06 p.m. Saturday.

Officers said the 1963 Model Chevrolet of Jimmy Lee Reynolds, Route 3, crashed into the J. L. Adams residence, 2600 El Paso. Damage to the house was placed at $500, and damage to the car was set at $75.

Security Measures Tightened

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tightened security provisions were in effect at airports across the country today to meet the threat of an announced "fall offensive" by the radical Weatherman group.

An anonymous Weatherman author in Chicago said the group was attacking "all institutions of American injustice" and would seek to free "all political prisoners" such as Black Panther leader Bobby Seale.

The statement was in an article copyrighted by the Free Press.

The Federal Aviation Administration said bomb threats had been made against airports from coast to coast but neither the FAA nor the FBI would disclose the names of specific airports. No bombs were reported found.

To meet the challenge, weekend leaves were canceled for security officers at many of the nation's airports. Elevators and offices, gates and doors previously left open were locked and patrols increased.

Details of the new security measures were generally kept secret. The Defense Department in Washington said military commands were alerted for possible sabotage attempts over the weekend.

Allen Asked To Direct Program

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton University says it is asking Dr. James E. Allen Jr., former U.S. commissioner of education, to direct an exploratory program in education and public affairs.

The announcement Sunday said Allen's nomination would be submitted to the school's Board of Trustees Friday.

Allen is presently serving as a consultant to the university's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. If his appointment to a two-year term in the new post is approved, he will be given the rank of professor and will be a guest lecturer in courses taught by other faculty members.

House Built For Pueblo

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — Groundbreaking ceremonies were held recently for the first private dwelling to be constructed at the ancient Taos Indian Pueblo in northern New Mexico. A three-bedroom home was constructed for Julian Romero, a pueblo policeman employed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Construction of the 13,000-square-foot frame house was made possible after the extension of electrical service to the pueblo.

The Taos Indians are known to have lived in the area since at least 1300 A. D.

Membership Has Increased

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — The member of independent black churches in South Africa has reached three million—more than a quarter of the total African population.

This figure comes from the Rev. C.F. Beyers Naude, director of the Christian Institute of Southern Africa and adviser to the African Independent Churches Association, whose churches split away from white demoninations.

Close Competition

EVERGREEN, Colo. (AP) — In each of the last four years the winner of the Colorado Open championship at the mountainous Hiwan course has won it by one stroke. Each title was captured by a different golfer.

Library Association Has Convention At Coliseum

District III of Texas Library Association held its annual convention in Snyder, Saturday, Oct. 10. Friends of Scurry County Library served coffee to some forty guests during the registration. Mrs. Eleanor Broman, Chairman of the Friends, was assisted by Mmes. Martha Cloud, Ena Carroll, Marian Love, and Mary Doak.

Mrs. Roxie Angel gave the invocation and Mr. Preston Wilson extended the official welcome. The program was presented by Dr. Robert Clinton, President and Dr. Ben Brock, Dean of Western Texas College. Other speakers were Miss Vanita Lee, Field Consultant from the Texas State Library; Mr. Dick Waters T.L.A. Delegate at Large; Mrs. F.W. Harlow of Abilene Christian College, and Mrs. Geneva Dex, Vice-Chairman and Chairman elect from Brownwood Public Library.

Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Smith presented Travis Angel, Deweylene Stone and Dennis Williamson in a selection of fun-type songs, bringing the convention to a delightful conclusion.

Local library personnel attending were Kathleen Hale, Northeast Elementary, Elizabeth Beam from West Elementary, Phillis McGinnis from Stanfield Elementary and District Secretary, Beth Curry of North Elementary; Mrs. Mildred Tracy member of the Scurry County Library Board; Mary Nell Bullard, District Chairman, Frances Pitner, Faye Deene Campbell, Loel Forrest, Roxie Angel and Jearldene Anderson, all of Scurry County Library.

PRESENT PROGRAM — Dr. Ben Brock (left) and Dr. Robert Clinton gave an audio-visual presentation of "Planning Western Texas College" at the Texas Library Association Convention Oct. 10.

Stewed Apples

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Kids call this "lumpy apple sauce" and gobble it up!

Roast Duck Salad Bowl
Stewed Apples with Custard Sauce

6 medium (about 2 pounds) cooking apples
6 whole cloves
1 cup light corn syrup

Core, pare and quarter apples; slice each quarter into thirds. In a medium saucepan bring the apples, cloves and syrup to a boil. Simmer, covered, overmedium heat, until apples are tender and some slices still hold their shape—about 15 minutes. Remove cloves. Yields about 3 cups. Serve with custard sauce. Makes 6 servings.

GREETINGS — Vanita Lee, Field Consultant, brought greeting from the Texas State Library to the delegates attending the Library Convention, Oct. 10.

For a change in flavor, brown French toast in bacon fat instead of in the usual butter or margarine.

WELCOME — County Judge elect, Preston Wilson, officially welcomed the delegates of the Library Convention to Snyder, Saturday, at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Lady Hopes To Be Ordained

WESTMINSTER, Colo. (AP) — Mrs. Beverly Allert, 27, of this Denver suburb hopes to be ordained a minister in the American Lutheran Church soon.

She graduated from a seminary in 1969. Her husband, the Rev. C. William Allert, is pastor of a Lutheran church in Westminster.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Even if you think you are all thumbs, you can replace a broken window pane—if you have the glass cut to size.

And if you'd like to try your hand at cutting the glass, you can do that, too—providing you practice it first with some scrap pieces.

Assuming that you want to replace a pane without going to the trouble of learning the cutting technique, first measure the length and width of the channel into which the glass sets, then deduct 1-16th of an inch from each dimension, so that a too tightly held piece of glass doesn't crack or break if the opening warps or shrinks at a later time.

For a small extra charge, you can have the glass cut to size by the dealer who sells it. When you watch him do the cutting, you may regret that you didn't do it yourself; it looks so simple. But it really isn't. You have to try it several times to get the hang of it.

In removing the pieces of broken glass from the window, be sure to wear gloves. Without using too much force, take out any loose pieces. The remainder will come out by removing the old putty. In stubborn cases, you may have to soften the putty with a soldering iron.

You'll find tiny glazier's points imbedded in the wood. Take them out by pulling them with a pliers or flipping them with the blade of a screwdriver.

When the pane channel is clean, coat it with linseed oil or paint, a procedure that prevents the putty or glazing compound from drying out too quickly. Some glaziers line the channel with a thin layer of putty before setting the pane in place. Some don't.

In either case, reinstall the glazier's points—using new ones if necessary—and press long strips of putty in place on the outside of the window. Smooth it with a putty knife at an angle so that rain will roll off it. To make easy-to-use strips, roll a piece of putty between the palms of your hands.

To keep the putty knife from sticking to the compound as you work, dip it frequently into a container of water. If you decide to paint the putty—either for decorative purposes or to give it a protective coat—wait about 48 hours before doing so.

For the more adventurous, here are some tips about cutting glass: Hold the glass cutter almost vertically. Lubricate the wheel with some household oil. Apply firm pressure as you draw the cutter along the glass.

While wearing gloves, hold the pane on either side of the cut and flip your hands downward or place the glass on a flat surface with the line of the cut on the edge and break off the scrap. You may have to try it five or six times before you get a precise cut, which explains the caution about practicing first.

(Condensation, balky doors and windows, patching plaster and concrete, squeaky floors and stairs are among the more-than-30 household problems discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Plentiful Foods Are Best Buys

COLLEGE STATION — The best way to save money when doing the family food shopping is to check for the items in heaviest supply, reports Gwendolyne Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist.

Best beef values at retail meat counters include chuck roasts and steaks, ground beef and round steaks and roasts.

Pork values include hams, picnics, shoulder steaks, Boston butt or roasts, and end cut loin roasts and chops.

Fryers remain an excellent bargain in most retail meat departments, and Grade A large size eggs offer the best combination of quality and economy for the consumer's egg money.

Fresh fruit and vegetable items in good supply and at the most economical prices include apples, bananas, barlett pears, Tokay and Thompson seedless grapes, oranges, sweet potatoes, rutabagas, potatoes, celery, cabbage, carrots, hard shell squash, tomatoes and dry yellow onions. Bell peppers, corn, cauliflower and broccoli are moderately priced vegetables.

Price and supply should improve for grapefruit as the new crop comes to the market. Also, the first of the cranberries are appearing.

Alpha Study Club Meets

The Alpha Study Club met Tuesday, Oct. 6 in the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Mrs. Maurice Brownfield as hostess.

An interesting program was given by Mrs. Ben Coffey of Colorado City. She reviewed a book of poetry "While The Iron Is Hot" by Isabell Ratliff of Colorado City. Mrs. Ratliff autographed her books.

Mrs. Franklin Brownfield was also a guest from Colorado City.

Cooper-Church Amendment Is Still Unsettled

By ROBERT A. HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cooper-Church amendment to outlaw U.S. military operations in Cambodia has tied House-Senate conferees in knots for three months and cast a shadow over a $250 million foreign military credit sales program.

Congressional sources see only a slight possibility of breaking the impasse, although at least one refuses to rule out agreement during the waning days of this session.

The amendment is attached to the Senate's version of the foreign military credit sales bill, passed in widely-varying form by both houses and sent to a sharply divided conference committee in early July.

There have been only six sessions held in the intervening three months, just one of those since Congress returned from a 3½-week recess early last month.

And now Congress is getting ready for another recess beginning Wednesday for the approaching elections.

Then the first "lame-duck" session in 20 years begins Nov. 16.

Meanwhile, the program under which U.S. weapons and other military equipment is sold to foreign nations on credit or under guarantees is stalled. There has been no money since January because Congress didn't extend the basic authority for the program last year either. However, cash sales, which make up the bulk of the nearly $2 billion program, are continuing.

Smaller American allies, who say they can't afford cash for weapons, are left without a way to get them from the U.S.

One exception: Israel. A special provision was made in a separate military procurement bill for credit sales of aircraft and other equipment. President Nixon has already signed that measure, which sets no specific spending ceiling for the Israeli assistance.

Progress reports have been dim. The State Department, at the initial conference session, sent a memorandum urging the Cooper-Church amendment be stricken. House conferees are reported lined up with the administration while all but one of the Senate members on the panel voted for the amendment, adopted after extended debate in the Senate.

The amendment, sponsored by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, would prohibit funds for U.S. troops, advisers, air combat operations or support of Asian troops in Cambodia unless authorized by Congress.

It was proposed after President Nixon ordered U.S. troops into Cambodia last spring. A similar rider was defeated in the House.

The administration contends the amendment infringes on the President's role as commander-in-chief.

Man Charged With Murder

PRICE, Utah (AP) — Billy Mickelson, 31, of El Campo, Tex., has been charged with first degree murder in the death of his hunting partner near Price last week.

Sheriff Albert Passic said the body of Earl R. Smith, 62, also of El Campo, was found Wednesday on U.S. 50-6 near Price.

The sheriff said it appeared Smith had been struck by a car and dragged several hundred feet.

Mickelson was being held by New Mexico authorities in an auto accident near Bernalillo, N.M.

Growth in Kentucky's public colleges and universities the past decade has exceeded the national average considerably, the state Council on Public Higher Education reports.

Securities In Texas Decline

AUSTIN (AP) — Securities registered in Texas in fiscal 1970 declined for the first time since 1963, a University of Texas business report said Saturday.

Dr. Ernest Walker, UT-Austin finance professor, said the value of securities offered for sale decreased $330 million, or 21.5 per cent.

"The decline came as no surprise, since the market for securities during the year was extremely depressed," Walker said.

He added, "There is sufficient reason to believe that the worst is over insofar as the market is concerned."

Walker said approved applications from Texas companies fell 53.6 per cent, while those from other corporations declined only 35.3 per cent.

"One explanation of this difference is that the stock of smaller companies, such as most of the Texas corporations, is not as acceptable generally as that of larger corporations. As a consequence, small corporations are more hesitant about going to the market. In all liklihood, the volume of stock submitted for approval by Texas companies will be greater than that of other corporations once the market rights itself," he said.

He added that while there is evidence the volume of securities registered for sale will increase next year, "We should not expect a major recovery until the last half of fiscal 1971."

Orioles Take Two Game Lead In World Series

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cincinnati's sputtering Big Red Machine, overhauled twice in its own power plant by a relentless Baltimore wrecking crew, faced a total breakdown as the 1970 World Series moved today to the home town of the soaring Orioles.

The Orioles, buoyed by a five-run rally in the fifth inning Sunday, shaded the Reds 6-5 for a two-game jump in the best-of-seven series.

Game No. 3 Tuesday will match southpaw Dave McNally, Baltimore's 24-game winner, against Tony Cloninger, a journeyman right-hander who helped shore up the Reds' depleted pitching staff in the last two months—but has failed to complete any of his 18 starts.

"We're going to go at them again," Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench promised after the Reds, favored at the start of the series, blew an early 4-0 lead Sunday and absorbed their second one-run setback in as many days.

"It changes over now to their ball park and we're two-down, but I still think we can beat them. This ball club usually comes back. If we don't it's going to be a long winter," Bench continued.

So far the Orioles have made all the comebacks. They erased a 3-0 deficit before winning the opener 4-3 Saturday on Brooks Robinson's seventh-inning home run. And they struck back again Sunday to gain their 16th consecutive victory in a streak that began during the regular American League season.

It was the 42nd come-from-behind victory this year for the Orioles, who are driving to make amends for their stunning World Series setback at the hands of the New York Mets last October.

It also was the 42nd time they have won by the margin of a single run.

"People say we ran away with our division," said Harry Dalton, Baltimore's front office chief. "But we were in 55 one-run games out of 162. That's not what I call a runaway. It's just that we have played excellent ball against very tough competition.

"You can't say we smeared the daylights out of the Reds. We've just been a little better than them each day."

Returning to Baltimore's Memorial Stadium where they won 60 of 82 games, including the finale of their pennant playoff sweep over Minnesota, the Orioles are prohibitive favorites to capture the Series, possibly without a return to Cincinnati.

Boog Powell, the birds' hulking first baseman, slammed his second home run of the series to launch Sunday's comeback. But Frank Robinson, the former Reds' star who had hoped to excel before his old Cincinnati fans, was 0-for-9 in the two games.

But the Orioles were replete with heroes.

Catcher Ellie Hendricks, involved in a controversial play at the plate Saturday, sliced a two-run left field double to climax Sunday's fifth-inning explosion.

Relievers Tom Phoebus, Moe Drabowsky, Marcelino Lopez and Dick Hall checked the Reds after they cuffed 24-game winner Mike Cuellar for four runs, the first three in the opening inning as a result of two Baltimore errors and the other on Bob Tolan's homer in the third. Bench homered off Drabowsky in the sixth after the Orioles go-ahead five-run rally.

Brooks Robinson, non-pareil third baseman whose homer decided the opener after he made a spectacular stop to help quell a Cincinnati, took several more hits away from the Reds with his glove and singled home the tying run in the big fifth.

"I think the fact that we're down 2-0 and their No. 4 hitter is 0-for-9 shows the type of balance they have," said Reds' spark-plug Pete Rose, who has gone hitless in six trips to the plate.

"We don't have one big man on this club and that's what makes us tick," Frank Robinson explained. "When they stop one guy the others pick him up.

"And when we fall behind we don't get excited and we don't get down. We feel if we can get close enough we'll score when it counts and our pitchers will hold them."

That has been the pattern in both games as the Orioles short-circuited a Cincinnati team that was the scourge of the National League all year.

The Reds' frustrations peaked Saturday in the sixth inning when Bernie Carbo was called out at home by umpire Ken Burkhart on a high chop fielded by Hendricks at the plate. Sequence photos later revealed that Hendricks did not make the tag, that Carbo failed to touch the plate and that Burkhart, upended by the runner, was not in position to make the call.

There were no rhubarbs Sunday, but a guard was stationed near Burkhart after the partisan Cincinnati fans greeted him with a barrage of jeers as he took his position along the right field foul line.

Despite the Reds' predicament, no team has won the series in its 66-year history after losing the first two games at home—Manager Sparky Anderson believes the Machine will be heard from before it's over.

Dunbar Puts Down JV 10-0

LUBBOCK–Host Dunbar shut out the Snyder junior varsity Kittens 10-0 here Saturday afternoon.

Dunbar recovered a fumble at the Kitten 40 yard line in the first quarter and drove in from there.

The hosts kicked a 30 yard field goal, also in the first period, after recovering another fumble.

The Snyder team threatened but just couldn't get into the end zone.

The Kittens play Sweetwater there at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Miles Nips Buffs 44-18

MILES–Host Miles blasted Fluvanna 44-18 in a non-district Six-Man football clash here Friday night.

Fluvanna got its first touchdown following a blocked punt at the Miles 30 yard line in the first quarter. Randy Gill scooped up the ball and went all the way.

Larry White scored on a 45 yard end around play in the third quarter for Fluvanna. And the same runner shook loose in a 40 yard touchdown run in the fourth period.

Miles held a 12-6 lead after one quarter, 24-12 at halftime and 32-12 going into the final period.

Red Raiders Flail Texas Aggies 21-7

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer

Texas Tech assistant coaches Jack Fligg and John Conley can each take one bow compliments of head coach Jim Carlen. And the Tech offensive line gets a standing ovation.

The Raiders' offensive line, very suspect before the season started, never misfired Saturday in Tech's important 21-7 Southwest Conference football victory over Texas A&M.

"All the credit goes to my assistant coaches," Carlen said. "Coaches Fligg and Conley should get the credit for coaching the offensive linemen who did a good job."

Much of the talk preceding A&M coach Gene Stallings' post-game press conference centered on the Tech line.

"Did you see that Tech center," said one scribe. "He wasn't any bigger than me. But boy did he fire off that line."

"They all did," added another.

When Stallings arrived, one of his first comments was: "They're offensive line really comes off the ball. It's a good (offensive line) one."

The victory was an important one for Tech because it evened the Raiders' SWC slate at 1-1. Another loss would have practically eliminated them from the SWC race. It was A&M's SWC opener.

In the big thriller at Dallas Saturday, No. 2 ranked Texas won 41-9 over Oklahoma in the traditional Cotton Bowl duel, but it cost the Longhorns their clutch receiver Cotton Speyrer, who was lost for the season with a broken arm.

In other games, Texas Christian continued to falter with a 34-20 loss to Oklahoma State; Arkansas took a one-half game lead over Texas in the SWC with a 41-7 victory over Baylor. Rice and Southern Methodist took the weekend off to prepare for their SWC opener in the Cotton Bowl this week.

Texas A&M now faces the possibility of elimination from the SWC chase Saturday in a battle against TCU. Texas Tech plays at old nemesis Mississippi State and Texas and Arkansas take the week off.

The Raiders, rapidly gaining support as the up-and-comer in the league, left a definite impression on Stallings.

"I think it's pretty well understood that Texas and Arkansas are the top teams in the league," Stallings said. "And I think it's pretty well understood that Texas Tech is next behind them.

"They would compare favorably in my opinion with sixth ranked Michigan (which downed the Aggies 14-10.) They are both good football teams."

Carlen still isn't going overboard in his praise. He said: "We played pretty well, but we still had some breakdowns. We came out to do what we do best, and that is run, then if they stopped the run we would throw."

The loss of the slippery Speyrer definitely will have an effect on the Longhorns. It was Speyrer who made last second catches for victories over Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl last year and in the UCLA game last week.

"You don't lose a quality player like Cotton Speyrer and not be affected," Royal said. "I wish we'd won by a point and still had him."

Texas moved from a 14-3 halftime lead to turn the battle with Oklahoma into a rout.

Jim Bertelsen ran over from 9 yards out, tight end Deryl Comer scored on a 7-yard pass from quarterback Eddie Phillips, Phillips scored on a 10-yard run, Terry Collins bulled 13 yards for paydirt, Steve Worster ran three yards for a score and Steve Fleming crunched in from two yards out to cap the scoring.

Tech quarterback Charles Napper hit Johnny Odom on touchdown shots of 12 and 2 yards and Miles Langehenning hit from two yards out for Tech's other score. Steve Burks scored the Aggies lone touchdown.

Oklahoma State's sophomore quarterback Tony Pounds ran for one touchdown and passed for two more in the victory over the Horned Frogs. Danny Colbert's 89-yard punt return highlighted TCU's offensive performance.

Ashe Wins At Denver

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Arthur Ashe, the world's sixth-ranked player, picked apart Charlie Pasarell with well-placed drives and captured the singles championship of the annual Denver Invitational Tennis tournament Sunday, 6-2, 5-6, 6-3.

The Davis Cup veteran and Marty Riessen, bowed to Jan Fodes and Jim Osborne 5-6, 6-4, 6-5 in the doubles.

Ashe pocketed $4,500 for his singles performance and picked up $275 in additional prize money.

Polo Match Set

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — The Norman, Okla. team goes against Spokane, Wash. Monday in the National 12 Goal Inter-circuit Polo Championship at the Midland Polo Club.

In Sunday's opening match, the Wilson Ranch team defeated Dallas Lone Oak 11-2.

49ers Smash LA Rams, Redskins Scalp Lions

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco found first place in Los Angeles and Sonny Jurgensen found his arm in Washington.

San Francisco shut the Golden Gates on Los Angeles and thrashed the unbeaten Rams 20-6 while Jurgensen's arm suddenly came alive with three touchdown pitches that gave Washington a 31-10 stunner over the favored Detroit Lions in the National Football League Sunday.

"This was one of the worst games the Rams have played in five years," said Los Angeles Coach George Allen, whose team couldn't score a touchdown. "We made too many mistakes. There were too many times when we'd get something going only to have something happen—a fumble, or a penalty, or something like that.

"Maybe after 10 winning games in a row, it was inevitable that this was coming. When you lose, it sure makes you appreciate winning."

"We were throwing a little quicker," said Jurgensen, understating his revitalized passing prowess.

Jurgensen, the NFL's top passer last year, was off to a poor start for 1970. Prior to Sunday's success, he was ranked 10th in the league and was troubled with a sore arm.

The two upsets, plus Oakland's 35-23 victory over Denver Sunday, handed the last of the unbeatens their first losses of the year.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Giants won their first games. Pittsburgh buffaloed Buffalo 23-10 for the Steelers' first victory in 16 games and New York spanked Philadelphia 30-23 in a battle of all-losing clubs.

Elsewhere, Kansas City ambushed Boston 23-10; Cleveland turned back Cincinnati 30-27; St. Louis whipped New Orleans 24-17; Dallas clubbed Atlanta 13-0; Minnesota blasted Chicago 24-0 and Baltimore spilled Houston 24-20.

The Green Bay Packers are at San Diego tonight in a nationally televised (ABC) game.

San Francisco's bullish defenders gave Los Angeles quarterback Roman Gabriel a troublesome afternoon, dumping him three times.

"I didn't have much time to throw," said Gabriel, a usually reliable quick gun under fire. "But let's face it ... (John) Brodie was completing his passes and I wasn't."

Gabriel referred to the San Francisco quarterback, who drove Los Angeles dizzy in the 106-degree heat by running for one score and passing for another. Brodie, the NFL's top passer, completed 13 of 20 for 193 yards.

Jurgensen complained about the pain in his arm after his fine afternoon of 14 completed passes in 20 attempts for 225 yards.

It was quite an upset considering the Lions came into the contest unbeaten in three games, with the league's top rushing and defensive marks.

Daryle Lamonica threw four touchdown passes, three to Warren Wells as Oakland punctured Denver's early-season glory dreams. The Broncos, an NFL doormat for years, were off to their best start with a 3-0 record before Sunday's setback.

The Raiders, a powerhouse in 1969 off to a disappointing start, won their first game of the 1970 season with a rapid-fire offense that piled up 519 offensive yards.

Gene Mingo rifled a 49-yard field goal that broke a third-quarter tie and Preston Pearson scored from the two in the fourth period to give Pittsburgh its first regular season victory since the opening game of 1969 with Detroit.

Ron Johnson, a second-year pro from Michigan, had his finest day in the NFL, leading New York to victory over Philadelphia with two TD runs—the last the game-winner with 49 seconds left.

Robert Holmes scored two touchdowns for Kansas City, which spoiled the Boston debut of Joe Kapp, the Chiefs' Superbowl rival last year when he played for Minnesota.

Kapp replaced starting quarterback Mike Taliaferro in the third quarter.

Quarterback Bill Nelsen returned to the lineup following an injury and led Cleveland to a fourth-quarter touchdown over the fired-up Bengals, a big underdog.

Jim Hart's 49-yard touchdown pass to Jackie Smith with 5:38 left lifted St. Louis over New Orleans. It climaxed a wild fourth quarter during which the Saints fought back for a tie before the Hart scoring shot.

Mike Clark kicked two field goals in a torrential downpour and Craig Morton got back into action with a 12-yard touchdown pass to Lance Rentzel for Dallas.

Alan Page, a 265-pound defensive tiger, rambled 65 yards with a recovered fumble for one score and Gary Guozzo burned Chicago with a 17-for-31 passing day in the Viking victory, which proved costly for Chicago. The Bears' running ace, Gale Sayers, suffered leg injuries and could be lost for the season.

Baltimore lost a 10-point lead, then came back on a 31-yard TD pass by veteran Johnny Unitas with 46 seconds left in the victory over Houston's hard-hitting Oilers.

Wichita S. Will Play

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Wichita State University players voted 76-1 in a secret ballot Sunday night to complete the school's 1970 football schedule.

The action was taken in the aftermath of the Oct. 2 plane crash in the Colorado Rockies in which 30 persons were killed, including 13 members of the Wichita State team, athletic officials and fans.

Coach Bob Seaman said the first game would be played Oct. 24 against the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

The Wichita State homecoming gameagainst Cincinnati, originally set for Oct. 17 has been rescheduled for Oct. 31, pending word from the University of Cincinnati.

Seaman, who was named to replace head Coch Ben Wilson who was killed in the crash, said "Cincinnati is having transportation problems but we are making an effort to change the date of the game."

Games with Utah State and Southern Illinois were cancelled following the plane crash. The plane that crashed was taking part of the team and others to Utah at the time of the tragedy. A second plane loaded with more Wichita players and fans landed safely.

Seaman said the team will wear black jerseys the remainder of the season in remembrance of those who were killed.

The jersey numbers worn by the plane crash victims will be permanently retired.

If she wants to pick up the tab, let her

By Abigail Van Buren

(c) 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a wealthy widow who picks up the tab for an escort, 20 years her junior, who couldn't possibly afford to take her to the places she's accustomed to going? I am sure in his line of work he could never treat her on his salary.

There can't possibly be any romance in this combination, but he is attractive, flatters her, dances with her and she seems to enjoy this setup while he is taking her for all she's worth. Meanwhile, all her friends are laughing at her behind her back. It is really pitiful.

Why can't some women realize that there is more dignity in sitting home than buying an escort?

ON THE SIDELINES

DEAR ON: I take it you are sitting home. Perhaps this woman also sat home long enough to have concluded that she didn't like it. All that is necessary for a successful relationship is that two people "need" each other. She needs him. And he needs her. And as long as they aren't hurting anybody, who am I to judge them? And who are you?

DEAR ABBY: I am terribly upset about something I saw today and would like your opinion. In the supermarket this morning I saw a young mother with a cart full of groceries and three children. One toddler was riding the cart on top, and another on the bottom, then there was a little girl [about 5 years old] walking beside her, whining about something. The mother leaned over and gave that child what must have been an unmerciful twist of the ear, then the little girl began crying in earnest, whereupon the mother screamed "SHUT UP!"

I cannot stand to witness cruelty. I just stood there not knowing what action I should take, if any. If I said something to that mother she might have told me to shut up and mind my own business, denied that she had hurt the child, and taken it out on the child later. I am still worried.

In cases like this, should a witness interfere?

SANTA BARBARA

DEAR S. B.: There is a lot to be said for minding one's own business, but cases of outright cruelty to children [or animals] should not be ignored. A few soft-spoken words into that mother's ear may help: "I know how irritating children can be, and I see you have your hands full, but please don't physically abuse a misbehaving child." And if she tells you to mind your own business, you're nothing out.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, when I was 29 years old and the mother of six children, I was the matron of honor at my sister's wedding. My husband sulked for a long time over it because, as he put it, "You were too old." [I have a nice figure.]

Well, the same situation has come up again because another sister is getting married and she wants me to be her matron of honor. Now I am 31, and my husband is really mad. He said that several people [whom he refuses to name] told him they thought it was unfair for him to have to sit by himself with our six children while I do the matron of honor bit again. Can you help me? No matter what you say he will still be against it, but since I've agreed to be matron of honor anyway, it might help my conscience a little. PAT

DEAR PAT: The word from here is, do the matron of honor bit, and don't let your conscience bother you. P. S. I hope your husband grows up before your children do.

DEAR ABBY: Like everyone else, I never thought I'd be writing to you, but when I read about the Cherokee Indian who said he could smell a poisonous snake at 40 paces, I couldn't restrain myself.

My husband is a herpetologist [a scientist who studies reptiles], and he says a venomous snake has no odor other than during the mating season; and then only the females have this odor in order to attract and excite the male. Furthermore, most nonpoisonous female snakes give off the same musky odor at mating season as the venomous snakes.

Most people's notion that snakes have an odor comes from their experience with poorly cleaned zoo cages.

Puerto Rico Mopping Up

By PEGGY ANN BLISS
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Bulldozers gouged through mud and debris in Puerto Rico today. Red Cross emergency stations were scattered through the island. Neighborhood brigades broke out brooms and mops, and others searched for bodies.

A campaign was on to clean up the destruction of floods resulting from six days of torrential rain that left few residents of the island untouched, 50 persons dead or missing and damage estimated at $50 million.

Some of the evacuated thousands began returning to their homes, uncertain what they would find. Some were lucky.

"We lost only 14 chickens," said Andres Perez, who recently moved his family into a one-room wooden house in Sabana Seca near San Juan. Shoes were lined outside in the first sunshine in more than a week. A little girl filled and refilled rubber boots, trying to wash red mud from her legs.

Bricklayer Miguel Lebron had taken neighbors to safety in his pickup truck. "This stuff will never come off the clothes," he said, showing the muddied aftermath of his efforts.

Firemen and civil defense volunteers hoised and mopped streets and homes in San Juan.

Trucks loaded with muddy bedclothes splashed by houses with mattresses piled on their flat roofs. A pretty young girl stood with her dog and six new puppies as her father mopped. He began the task Friday, but much remained to be done.

A television broadcast raised $150,000 in cash and $200,000 in pledges Saturday for relief work. Gov. Luis A. Ferre asked President Nixon to designate the U.S. Commonwealth Island, a disaster area and to allocate $10 million to disaster relief.

A town in central Puerto Rico, Jajome Alto, recorded 36 inches of rain during the spell, and seven other communities more than 20 inches. Many roads and highways remained blocked by debris from landslides and flood waters.

Sugar cane, Puerto Rico's major crop, was the hardest hit, the chairman of the House Agricultural Committee said. He estimated that crop damage in the southern portion of the island will total more than $40 million.

A. R. Robinson Dies Sunday

Alton R. Robinson, 59, former Snyder resident, died Sunday in the Hamilton County General Hospital in Hamilton.

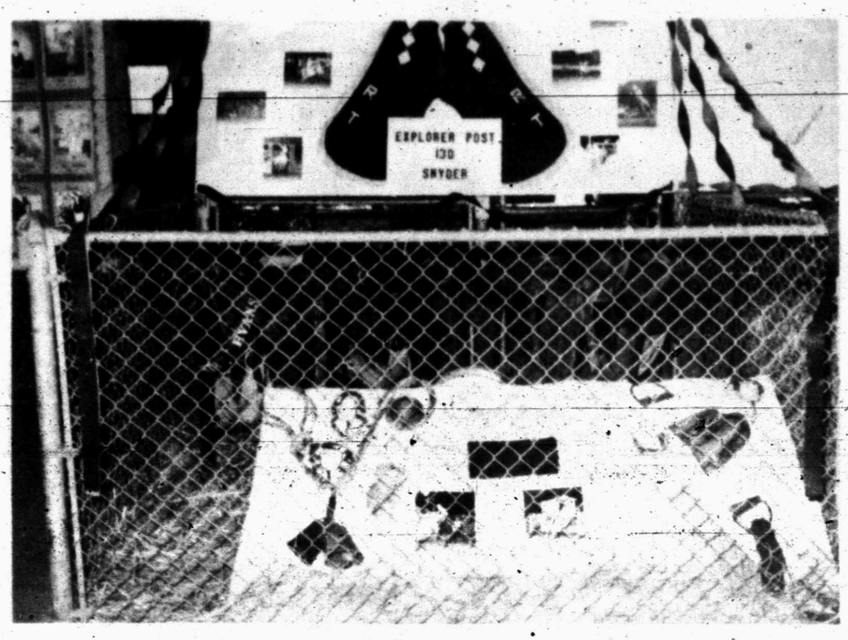

Mr. Robinson had moved to Hamilton from Snyder early in 1969.

Funeral service has been set for Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Riley Funeral Home Chapel in Hamilton. The Rev. George Gaston will officiate. Burial will be in the Oakwood Cemetery.

Mr. Robinson is survived by his wife, Kay Robinson of Hamilton; two daughters, Mrs. Marilyn Godfrey of Stephenville and Mrs. Ann Weaver of Dallas; a son, Reed Robinson of Yoakum; three brothers, Bill Robinson of Hamilton, Lewis Robinson of Carthage and Frank Robinson of Tacoma, Wash.; and three grandchildren.

Testers Tested

CHICAGO (AP) — Job seekers who have faced a barrage of aptitude, intelligence quotient and other tests now can apply under new guidelines from the Equal employment Opportunity Commission.

Under the new guidelines, the testers must now submit to a test showing that their techniques accurately predict whether or not the job applicant can perform the job.

They are designed to avoid charges of racial, sex or other types of bias.

Commerce Clearing House said that while tests may still be used, they must be validated. This means that the tests must show they accurately measure some skill, knowledge, aptitude or characteristic that is relevant to the job in question.

Charles DeGaulle Enjoying Retirement

PARIS (AP) — Visitors to former President Charles De Gaulle say he is enjoying himself in retirement at his home in the little village of Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises, in good health and mentally keen.

In a weekend radio interview his brother-in-law, Jacques Vendroux, said:

"I had the impression of a man perhaps even more alert physically than in the last months of his presidency and also of a man who expressed himself with more freedom."

De Gaulle resigned the presidency in April 1969. The recently-published first volume of his memoirs sold 250,000 copies in three days and is in a second edition of 150,000.

F-310 TESTS BY INDEPENDENT RESEARCH LABORATORIES

In the more than 15 years of research and development that resulted in F-310, hundreds of scientific tests have been conducted to assess and evaluate the additive's quality and performance characteristics. The following four test programs are the most recent and most definitive in presenting F-310's effectiveness in reducing total emissions from automobiles and thereby contributing to cleaner air.

Scott Lab Tests

Scott Research Laboratories is a nationally recognized research company and testing laboratory engaged in air pollution studies.

To determine the effectiveness of F-310 in cleaning up dirty carburetors and Positive Crankcase Ventilation (PCV) valves — and thus reducing exhaust emissions — Scott conducted 13 controlled tests in San Bernardino, California during 1968 and 1969.

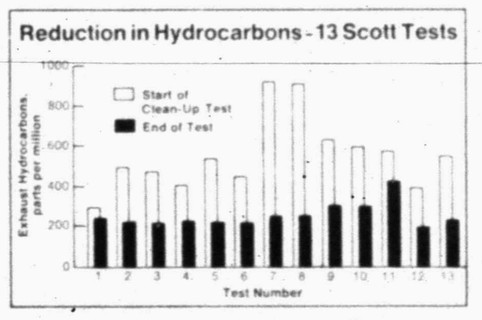

The cars were all 1966 to 1969 models with V-8 engines and automatic transmissions, equipped with standard exhaust emissions control packages and PCV systems.

The cars drove stop and go for 5,000 to 20,000 miles on a non-additive gasoline typical of some of the poorer quality (deposit-forming) gasolines sold in the Los Angeles area.

This low quality fuel was used purposely to speed up the dirtying process and to provide a more severe test for F-310.

When thoroughly dirtied (idling roughly and stalling), the cars were switched to Chevron with F-310, and driven approximately 2,000 miles. Clean-up was achieved and engine operation returned to normal.

The results: Hydrocarbon emissions were reduced an average of over 50% in these very dirty engines. Carbon monoxide emissions were reduced by an average of more than a third.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's Cars

This test program was conducted in February, 1970. Six cars (three 1968 and three 1969 models) were selected by the County of Los Angeles Mechanical Department. The cars were chosen from three different locations in order to include all types of driving — stop-and-go, idling, long-distance, and high speed. All cars had been driven 30,000 miles or more, and all had very dirty engines.

Careful measurements of exhaust emission levels were made at a Federal Government laboratory on all cars before the test.

The cars were then switched to Chevron with F-310 and returned to service for as little as 678 miles and as much as 2,093 miles. Then emission levels were checked again.

The results: Unburned hydrocarbons were reduced by an average of 24%, and carbon monoxide by 42%.

Orange County Test

This test program conducted between March and July, 1970, involved 53 vehicles selected by officials of the Orange County, Calif., Department of Transportation from its fleet of more than 1,000 cars and trucks. The

The results: Unburned hydrocarbon emissions dropped an average of 12.4% and carbon monoxide emissions dropped an average of 27.5%.

Pasadena Tests

This 297-car test program conducted during the Spring of 1970, was the largest and most definitive of its kind ever attempted. It was scientifically designed to tell us what would happen if the entire California car population used F-310.

Emission tests were conducted in the Pasadena California area by Olson Laboratories, an independent testing organization. The cars used were selected at random, by zip code area, based on a cross section of the California car population, according to the California Department of Transportation registration figures. The only requirement for participation in the test was that the cars had not used any Chevron gasolines since December, 1969.

The cars were given a mechanical check at the Rose Bowl Stadium and measured for exhaust emission levels. The drivers were asked to drive as they always had — but using only Chevron gasolines with F-310. A return check-in date was established based on how long each motorist estimated it would take to drive approximately 2,000 miles.

Upon completion of the 2,000 miles, the exhaust emission level of each car was again measured by Olson Laboratories. These levels were then compared against the emissions levels taken at the beginning of the test.

The results: Chevron with F-310 achieved an average reduction in hydrocarbon emissions of 13.9%, and an average reduction in carbon monoxide emissions of 11.6%.

The significance of this test is in its size and scope — 297 cars representing a profile of the total car population in the State of California. And in its implications for the future in the urgent campaign to reduce air pollution.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

MEXICO CITY.— . You hear about the rainy season in Mexico. A good percentage of tourists have had personal encounters with it. But dwellers of some regions of North America generally are unfamiliar with rain except for what Mexicans would classify as scattered showers.

Here, for instance, the season starts in June. It may start spring training with some warmup rains along in April and May.

After that the season becomes official. In tropical regions of Mexico many tourists would be appalled. Veracruz State, for example, has had as much as 72 inches of rain in a month.

Even in Mexico City, 7,400 feet up in the mountains, a one or two inch fall is considered light. Five inches and up, within a few hours, is considered a healthy rain.

Many parts of the tropics are soggy during the June-September wet season and rains of 10-12 inches in a single day are not uncommon.

The general pattern, however, is a bright and cloudless sky when you wake up each morning. By noon; it's fuzzy and shortly after, the thunderheads roll in. You may get several inches one day and virtually none the next. Maybe it will deluge, for two or three days in a row.

Left to its own devices, the wet season can bring misery and ruined crops. Properly harnessed, it means full reserviors and ample hydroelectric power from rivers.

Mexico has projects to take full advantage of the never-failing season.

One of the first steps has been to drain swamp areas, where overflowing streams have created health-menaces. Much of this swamp land, rich with generations of decayed vegetation, has been reclaimed and put under cultivation.

The stepped-up agricultural production has brought about the building of new roads and rail lines. Growing communities in these reclaimed regions have created a need for more electric power.

Mexico, for instance, was lopsided in the fact that about 75 per cent of its population lived at altitudes of 5,000 feet or above. This was believed due to the fact that tropical zones were mosquito-ridden and not conducive to good health.

The government conducted a multi-million dollar project to de-bog areas and induce people to resettle them.

A partial solution to date has been the construction of a system of levees and drainage spillways that channel the excess flow into reservoirs or the the sea.

One thing engineers would like to figure out is how to move surplus water from the eastern climes to arid west coast and northern regions. Often, the Atlantic side is open to navigation of types while Pacific and northern areas swelter in drouths.

It creates double problem; flooded farms on the Gulf coast while other areas badly need irrigation. The tropical storms frequently disrupt communications. Highways and railroad tracks are under water and all the traffic in and out is held up for several days.

Actually, there is little discomfort for visiting tourists. When the afternoon rains start they duck into shops and restaurants to wait out the storm. As soon as the rain blows over, sight-seeing and shopping can be resumed.

Office Affairs Are Unfair

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain

Dear Joyce: My boss is having an affair with one of the girls in our office. Of course, it's supposed to be a big dark secret, but she's such a blabber mouth that she can't wait to give us a blow-by-blow account after each episode!

The affair isn't the problem per se, but the fact that she's the last to arrive in the morning, first to leave in the evening, extends lunch hours into the cocktail hours and to top it all off — my boss makes the rest of us correct HER mistakes and then berates US if we don't do it right. Well, that's the problem! Got any suggestions? — NO NAME, Pittsburgh

Since your boss's idea of a good personnel code is affair play — which causes you grief — one solution is apparent: change jobs. But if there are reasons why you want to ride it out (such as good pay, seniority or you only plan to work another year), take comfort in the fact that office romances tend to cool after a period of time — he tires and fires, she gets a guilty conscience and quits, his wife or her husband blows the whistle, HIS boss finds out, etc.

However, if you want to hasten that day along, consider an approach which recognizes that if he knows YOU know what a jerk he's being, he can't afford to keep you around. First, keep a record of the dates and times of each instance of unfairness in case you need to cite chapter and verse. Then, with 2 or 3 of the other girls, ask to speak to your boss privately, along these lines: "We are sure you'll be distressed to know that Sally Siren has been making false statements about you which hurts your good name, and which we are sure are untrue. Because we think so highly of you, we feel it would be disloyal to remain silent any longer." Then explain, as delicately as possible, what big mouth has been saying. If you handle it right — appearing to be on his side and not putting him on the defensive — he will believe you. He will be madder than a hatter at his playmate and dismiss her. You will then have the delicious satisfaction of having outwitted this babe who counts her office time in man hours.

Dear Joyce: This is in regard to the letter from the woman who earned extra money as a telephone surveyor. I believe telephone interviewers or solicitors come close to the criminal act of disturbing the peace, or trespassing. Proof of this is manifested by the fact that with no phone, a citizen is not disturbed. But when a phone is installed, harassment soon follows.

I am a busy bachelor who doesn't enjoy unnecessary disturbance. Five years ago, when my phone was installed, soliciting calls were quite numerous. Now, the word must have spread: "Don't call R.C.G., or you'll be sorry!" The calls now average only 1 every 2 months. I figure, if solicitors and interviewers are so inconsiderate and audacious as to exploit their arbitrary desires upon the public, that it would be an equitable act of quid pro quo and social decorum for the public to "tit for tat." (This reader went on to explain his method of discouraging calls, which is unprintable.) — R.C.G., Phoenix

If you're hung up by phone solicitors, you can always hang up. Or get an unlisted number. I don't know how you earn your living, but if you found yourself jobless, homebound or handicapped — and the telephone became your paycheck — would you feel the same way?

* * *

What bugs you about your job? I'd like to know. (If I print your letter, I won't use your name.) Send your gripes to Joyce Lain, in care of this newspaper.

ed Chevron with F-310 air pollutants would nds of tons in a single day.

eem to think that's significant. We think it is.

A recent test conducted in Pasadena, California, demonstrated that the use of Chevron gasolines with F-310* could result in the decrease of thousands of tons of exhaust emissions every day from America's car population.

297 cars, using 21 competitive brands of gasoline, and specifically selected to be representative of the total California car population, were tested for exhaust emissions by an independent research laboratory.

Then they were switched to Chevron with F-310, driven by their owners approximately 2,000 miles each, and tested again.

The automobiles showed an average reduction of 13.9% in unburned hydrocarbon emissions, and a drop of 11.6% in carbon monoxide emissions.

If Chevron with F-310 were used in all the cars in Los Angeles County alone, reductions of this size would have the effect of cutting back these emissions by over 1,000 tons per day.

This single test alone is conclusive proof of the effectiveness of F-310; and it strongly refutes the Federal Trade Commission's recent charge that F-310 makes no significant contribution to the air pollution problem.

The FTC says that F-310 is similar to competitive additives and that it will not significantly reduce automobile emissions of carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons, and that claims made for the additive have not been proven or fully substantiated by reliable testing.

The FTC accusations are grossly in error and unfounded.

F-310 is in fact new, and different. The U.S. Patent Office has approved a U.S. patent on F-310 in gasoline. Patents are awarded only for new inventions. Competitive oil companies have made similar claims for the effectiveness of their detergent additives, but no one has come forward with independent proof that we have seen.

F-310 does significantly reduce automobile exhaust emissions of carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons. Proof of this is provided in results of tests which are covered in detail on the opposite page.

The testing of F-310 is accurate, scientific, and reliable. F-310 has been extensively and repeatedly tested in the laboratory and in the field, utilizing independent automotive testing laboratories and testing procedures widely used and accepted throughout the automotive research field. Chevron Research Company has spent years in the development of F-310, and in testing to prove that it does exactly what we say it does. F-310 is undoubtedly one of the most thoroughly tested and documented additives in gasoline history.

Because the FTC's allegations may tend to lessen confidence in F-310, we are taking strong and immediate action against these accusations.

We will continue to advertise and market Chevron with F-310, and continue to let the public know the exceptional ability of this additive to reduce automotive exhaust emissions of unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide. We have complete faith in our product, its superiority, in the scientists and laboratories who have helped develop and test F-310, and in the remarkable results it has achieved: F-310 is, in fact, a genuine and significant contribution to air pollution control.

Store-To People Ratio Is Falling

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The store-to-people ratio is falling sharply, in case you haven't noticed. Most likely you have, though, even if you haven't identified the change in those terms.

In 1958 there was one retail store for every 97 Americans. By 1963, customers had to content themselves with a ratio of one per 110. And now there is only one store for every 121 persons.

The change is illustrated by the development of larger department and discount stores, supermarkets that sell many products that once were the staples of hardware or drug stores, and large drive-in restaurants in place of "diners."

Most noticeable by their declining numbers are the old mom-and-pop stores that used to sell groceries or candy or newspapers. Now their business has been swallowed by larger units, many of them belonging to chain stores.

Audits & Surveys, a large market research organization, keeps close watch on the trend and can report that the process of attrition is intensifying. Last year 14,000 stores disappeared, bringing the five-year toll to 52,000.

Retail units this year total 1,698,300, says A&S, compared with 1,712,100 in 1969 and 1,750,000 in 1965.

The A&S census claims that there are now 4,200 full line discount stores in the United States, compared with 2,200 in 1966, in the same time the number of department stores rose to 4,500 from 3,100.

The biggest loser of any category is the food group, which suffered a loss of 6,700 stores in one year, bringing the total down to 298,900 units. Supermarkets are the reason, of course.

And the oldtime drug stores, selling only medication and probably ice cream, sodas and cosmetics, is in a slow but steady decline. The trend now is to fewer but larger stores with wider merchandise selections.

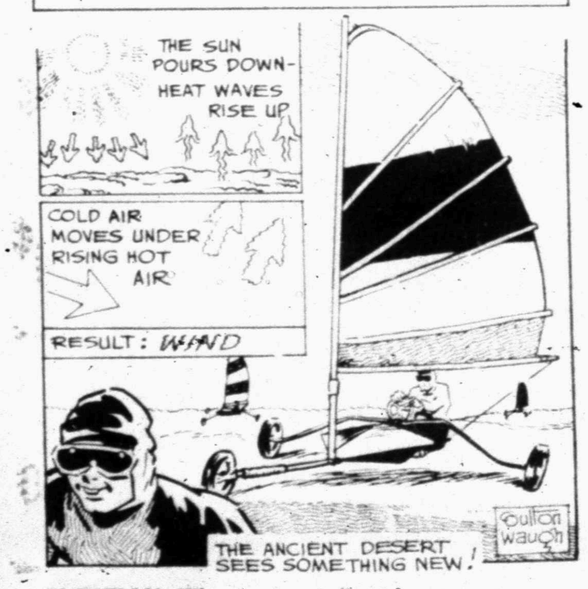

There may be, as A&S points out, only 57,400 drugs stores now, but it is often difficult to find the aspirin behind the breakfast counter, greeting cards, clothing, luggage, plastic flowers, jewelry, hardware and yards of beauty aids.

Among the common complaints about large stores is that they are impersonal and that assistance is hard to get. Customers cannot help but to observe that while products become more complex, assistance becomes less available.

By contrast, some shoppers prefer the anonymity and the freedom to choose afforded by the larger stores, feeling that the closer examination that self-service sometimes permits is a shopping plus.

Somehow, however, it seems that an even more revealing survey of retailing would be to measure the ratio of sales people to customers. Therein may lie some explanation for today's irritated consumer.

Junior Editors Quiz on WIND

QUESTION: What causes wind?

ANSWER: Wind may be a gusty, uncomfortable force at times, but think of the immense value it has been to mankind. No wind and there would have been no power to belly out the sails on the Santa Maria. And how could Columbus have stumbled across America as he strove to sail westward to the fabulous countries of the East? Our diagram shows that the heating of the earth's surface, in a general way, causes wind. But we must remember that the earth, because of its rotation and other factors, is unevenly heated by the sun. So, winds blow from many directions. Perhaps it is this which makes sailing so fascinating, since the sailor must constantly adjust his craft to changes in the wind. We illustrate a kind of sailing craft which had been experimented with many years ago, but has only recently been perfected: sailing boats on wheels (think of a rubber-tired ice boat and you'll get the idea). A fleet of such craft were recently raced across the Sahara desert. Pilots report speeds up to 60 miles an hour and a feeling of excitement which they say is "out of this world."

Ever wonder why there are 12 people on a jury? One explanation is that in olden times court astrologers selected jurors and decided there should be one for each sign of the zodiac, so that all types of mentality should be brought to bear on the verdict.

Some authors do their best writing under the pressure of having to meet a deadline. One of them was O. Henry, the pen name of William Sydney Porter. He usually wrote under the pressure of an empty stomach. To meet one editorial deadline he wrote his most famous short story, "The Gift of the Magi," in less than three hours.

Gov. Smith Endorsed By Santone Paper

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Gov. Presto Smith has been endorsed for re-election by the San Antonio Express and News.

"It is established fact that a governor needs two terms effectively to implement a program," the newspaper said in an editorial Sunday.

"With a November election and a January session of the legislature," the newspaper said "a first-termer without obvious organizational support in the legislature is bound to suffer endless frustration, to the detriment of the state's business."

The newspaper said a second term for Smith "is in the best interests of Texas in general and Bexar County in particular."

Smith "has demonstrated a necessary concern for this community that was too long unable to establish essential state services here for a great many Texans," the Express and News said.

The newspaper said Smith was "decisively instrumental" in establishing the University of Texas Medical School here, and he "continues to be committed to development of services and facilities necessary for proper educational and job opportunities for the million-plus Texans in the San Antonio-Bexar County area."

Flag Ordinance Is Approved

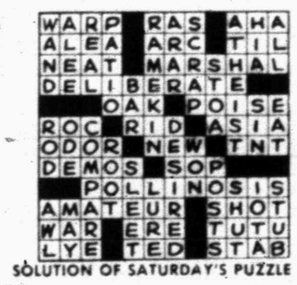

FRIDLEY, Minn. (AP) — The City Council will give second and final reading Oct. 20 to an ordinance that would make it a misdemeanor to fly the flag of a nation engaged in an armed conflict with the United States.

The council in this Minneapolis suburb of 30,000 persons voted 3-2 earlier this week on the first reading of the ordinance.

The ordinance, boosted by Mayor Jack Kirkham, would also make it illegal for anyone to hoist or lower a flag from a public place without due authority or permission.

Kentucky's circuit judges and Court of Appeals judges have voted approval of a fair trial-free press code proposed by the Kentucky Bar Association. The voluntary code is aimed at assuring non-prejudicial news coverage of judicial hearings.

Sophia Loren Is Robbed Of Jewels

NEW YORK (AP) — An armed gang forced its way into the 22nd-floor apartment suite of film star Sophia Loren Sunday and robbed her of jewelry reported to be worth $600,000.

"I was shaking," Miss Loren told newsmen hours after the 7:30 a.m. robbery. "They came into the bedroom, you know while I was asleep."

One of the gang "had a big moustache and kept saying, 'Give me the big stuff! Give me the big stuff!' " she recalled.

Minutes after the four-man gang entered the Hampshire House and handcuffed four employes, they had collected the jewelry and strolled back out the front door to escape.

With them went the Italian star's personal, uninsured jewelry that she valued at $500,000 and a reported $100,000 worth of insured jewelry on loan from Van Cleef & Arpels.

Six hours later two teen-aged brothers found part of the loot in a brown paper bag along a curb in West New York, N.J.

Two months ago jewels reportedly worth $600,000 were taken from actress Zsa Zsa Gabor in an elevator at the Waldorf Towers. Police said they were investigating to determine if the crimes were linked.

Police gave this account of the Loren robbery:

The four gunmen, one dressed as a chauffeur, entered the lobby of the luxury cooperative apartment house on Central Park South about 7:15 a.m. and at gunpoint demanded the keys to Miss Loren's suite.

Four employes were handcuffed and the night manager and a bell captain were ordered to go to Miss Loren's apartment with two of the gang. There they rang the bell and said they were checking a gas leak.

Inez Bruscia, 41, secretary to Miss Loren, answered the door but became suspicious, screamed and tried to slam the door. The men pushed past her and one struck her on the head with his gun.

One man entered the bedroom and took the jewelry after twisting Miss Loren's hair to show he meant business.

Miss Loren, who had been here for about a month to publicize her new movie, "Sunflower," had planned to leave today but her plans were now said to be uncertain.

Carlo Ponti, her husband, was in Milan, Italy, where he had gone for his father's funeral. He said the death and the robbery made Sunday "the most tragic day of my life."

Miss Loren went to police headquarters Sunday night and spent 2½ hours looking at photographs of known criminals but said she recognized none.

She told newsmen she did not hold the robbery against New York.

"New York can't be judged by one act of crime," she said, "because criminality exists all over the world."

Plastic Used To Replace Sand

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — Robert W. Layer Jr., an architect who is active in environmental activities in the Fox Valley area, is experimenting with ground plastic as an ingredient in concrete.

Involved in a research project sponsored by the Society of the Plastics Industry, Layer mixed 150 pounds of ground polyethylene scrap plastics as an experiment.

The scrap was used as partial replacement for sand.

Tests showed the plastic-concrete mix was 10 to 15 per cent lighter in weight. Although still wet, poured the material was still workable with a trowel. And subject to vibrations from machinery and heavy equipment, it did not crack.

Layer said the mixture is known as "plascrete" and will remain in the public domain because he and his fellow scientists do not plan to seek a patent on the substance.

TRAFFIC DEATHS HEADS LIST

29 Killed In Weekend Violence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic deaths headed a grim list of weekend violent deaths in Texas.

The Associated Press tabulation stood at 29 dead early today for the weekend count, including 18 in traffic mishaps. Muldiple deaths attributed to fires also added to the toll.

The AP count started at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

Mrs. Jean Whitworth, 44, of Fort Worth died Sunday when she fell from a tractor and was struck by one of its wheels at Covington in Hill County. Authorities said the victim fell when the tractor hit a bump.

Paul Edward Beal, 35, was stabbed to death Sunday in a Houston tavern following an argument. Police questioned a man, 46.

Harley White Jr., 34, of Gladewater was killed and four other persons received injuries when a car overturned on U.S. 80 just west of Gladewater Sunday.

A semi-trailer rig crashed into a sign standard on Interstate 35 in San Antonio, killing Marshall E. Felder, 34, of Houston Saturday night.

Harold A. Nelson, 29, of Magnolia was killed Saturday night when his car veered out of control about two miles west of Tomball.

Two men who were sleeping in a Houston apartment house died Sunday when flames swept the frame building. The victims were Aulda Ruffins, about 50, and Robert Wiley, 25.

Calvin C. Roan, 44, of San Antonio was killed Sunday when his car and a truck collided in Southeast Bexar County.

A shooting at a birthday party in Houston Saturday night took the life of Robert M. Walker, 47. Police said the gunfire followed an argument over the volume of a record player.

Robin Tallie, 17, of Nixon was fatally injured Saturday night when her car ran into a ditch off U.S. 87 at Pandora in South Texas.

Gary Morris, 47, of Quitman was killed Sunday and 10 persons suffered injuries when the car in which Morris was riding and a small plane collided on U.S. 80 west of Grand Saline. The pilot told officers he was attempting to land during a rainstorm.

Wattie Caldwell, 29, of Houston was killed Sunday when his car and a freight train collided in Houston.

An argument at a party in San Antonio ended Saturday night with the stabbing death of Enrique Semersky, 34, of San Antonio.

Juliano Fernandez, 11, of Fort Worth was shot to death Sunday while playing in the yard of her home. Police began an investigation.

A Mesquite woman, Carole Newman, was shot and killed Saturday night, police said, by another woman. The shooting occurred in an apartment complex in the East Dallas suburb.

George Porter, 70, became Houston's 131st traffic death of the year Friday night when he was run over by a car. Police were holding the driver of the car which struck Porter.

Emilio Deque of San Antonio was shot to death in a west side bar early Saturday and officers jailed one man while searching for a second man.

Three youngsters, from one to six years of age, died in a Dallas fire late Saturday while three other children were rescued from the blazing house.

Authorities identified the young victims as Wilbert, 4, Deknise, 6, and Jacqueline Hogg 1. Firemen said the parents were not at home when the fire started.

A car overturned near Corsicana Saturday, killing three Houston people and seriously injuring another. The dead were Carl A. McQueen, 24; Barbara Domino, 23, and June M. Lundy, 28.

Nancy Jones, 19, of Pleasant Grove, a passenger in a car, died Saturday in Dallas when the vehicle and a train collided.

Manuel R. Rincones, 44, was killed in a three-pickup truck accident near San Antonio early Saturday, police said.

A 62-year-old Marshall man, Zalius Edwards, drowned in Toledo Bend Lake near Center Friday night. Searchers found his body Saturday morning.

Benjamin F. Pennington, 72, of Eustace in Northeast Texas, was killed Saturday in a car-pickup truck wreck near Eustace, police said.

Fires Break Out In Quincy

QUINCY, Fla. (AP) — Fires broke out in areas north and west of here Sunday night capping a weekend of racial unrest following the shooting of a Negro by a black patrolman.

Fire engulfed a shade tobacco barn in Mt. Pleasant and a blaze broke out in a lumber treatment plant near here. No injuries were reported as a result of the fires.

Sources indicated that arson was suspected.

Police patrols were beefed up after 300 blacks went on a four-hour rock throwing spree Saturday night which the Highway Patrol said left mainly shop and auto windows broken in a one-block area.

The violence erupted after the Negro policeman shot a black man three times, officers said. But they remained tight-lipped on details of the shooting.

The wounded man, identified as 35-year-old Harry Chestnut of Gretna, was in satisfactory condition at a local hospital.

Cannibals of the South Sea Islands used forks—but only to devour their victims. Their religions cult did not permit them to eat human flesh with their fingers.

BUSINESS and INDUSTRIAL NEWS

CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY — Construction work on a new facility for Les Francis Chevrolet Company already is underway. The new facility will be located south of the east traffic circle. Les Francis, owner of the firm, expressed appreciation for the support local patrons have given him. Les Francis Chevrolet is "The Company who cares."

Les Francis Chevrolet Building New Facility

Les Francis Chevrolet Company will be observing its sixth anniversary on Oct. 22, and Francis wants to take this opportunity to thank all of his many loyal customers for their support and patronage.

"We try to express our appreciation through every phase of our dealership operation," he added, "and make believable our slogan, 'The Company who cares.' "

Francis stated that Snyder is not only "home" but a truly great place to live. The progress that has taken place in Snyder in the last six years has been phenomenal.

"We are in the process of growing with Snyder by building a beautiful new facility," he said. "We will have the most modern dealership possible both in design and equipment."

The new building will be located at the highway interchange east of town across from Snyder Motor Inn or south of the traffic pattern on the Colorado City side of the highway. It will be easily accessible from Thirty-seventh Street or the East Highway. The new Les Francis Chevrolet plant will be ready for operation about the first of December and will be built by Wadleigh Construction Company.

Let the folks at Les Francis Chevrolet Co. handle all of your automotive needs—from parts or repair work to a new or used car.

NY Buildings Hit By Bombs

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A federal office building, the Monroe County office building, two churches and a private home were hit by bomb explosions within a 25-minute period early today.

These were the fifth and sixth government buildings in the country to have been struck by such blasts since Thursday.

The explosion against a subbasement window at the four-story county building twisted heating ducts, ruptured water pipes and knocked out windows and some chunks of concrete from the wall. County officials estimated damage at $100,000 in the granite building.

One man was cut by flying glass but no serious injuries were reported.

The storefront churches—the New Bethel C.M.E. Church and the Greater Bethlehem Pentecostal Church—and the government buildings are in the city core. The private home, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. William Harkin, is several miles away in northwestern Rochester.

All of the blasts occurred outside the buildings as, police said, sticks of dynamite were either thrown or placed next to them by persons who then sped off by car.

The radical Weatherman group has announced a "fall offensive" to "attack the enemy around the country." But there was no immediate indication of who might have been responsible for the Rochester bombings.

Radicals have claimed to have done the bombings on the West Coast Thursday of an armory, a county courthouse and ROTC facilities at the University of Washington in Seattle.

A courthouse in Long Island City, Queens, N.Y., was heavily damaged by an explosion Saturday. It was preceded by a warning from a telephone caller who said a bomb was about to go off and had announced, "This is Weatherman calling."

The federal building in Rochester, which is to be replaced by a structure under construction a few hundred feet away, was the target Sept. 6 of vandals who ransacked offices of the FBI, Selective Service System and the assistant U.S. attorney.

Police estimated at least half a dozen sticks of dynamite were tossed against a basement window of the federal building.

Post office facilities in it were damaged extensively. Windows on one side and on two nearby buildings were broken.

Both churches suffered cracked plaster and broken windows and a hole was blown in a wall of the Greater Bethlehem Church.

The blast at the private home dug a hole in the front lawn, damaged the porch and shattered the windows.

Two Men En Route To Vietnam

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two San Antonio businessmen are enroute to a 10-day tour of Vietnam to visit with troops of the Army's 1st Cavalry Division.

Their mission: To let the men know that "not all of the people of the United States are burning the flag, their draft cards, or ROTC buildings."

Retired Col. Frank J. Culley and Reserve Col. Don H. Walton, who left for Vietnam over the weekend, said they hope to meet with as many of the division's 15,000 men as possible.

Both men are retired officers of the division and are longtime members of the 1st Cavalry Division Association, which sponsored their trip.

Walton, who served four years of active duty with the division and 24 years in the reserves, was recently named president of the cavalry association.

Culley is vice president of a local chapter of the association. He spent two years in Vietnam as part of the state department's U.S. aid program following his Army retirement in 1963.

Bush Says Democrats Wrong

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Republican senatorial nominee George Bush says the Democrats are wrong in accusing him of being in favor of federal registration of firearms.

A statement from Bush's headquarters in Austin said: "To say that I favor federal registration or federal licenses or federal permits absolutely distorts my attitude, my approach, my actual record.

"I would urge the vast Bentsen (Democratic opponent Lloyd) research team to be more careful with the facts. It is kind of sloppy research to have their candidate saying that I voted for a law that I didn't vote for.

"Let's try to solve the problem—not just kick the other guy," he said.

Meanwhile, Bentsen told the Texas Association of Broadcasters meeting in Houston:

"Hopefully, the congressional reform legislation now pending will put oil on some of the creaky joints of Congress. But unfortunately this legislation does not correct one of the worst evils of all—the secret session.

"More than a third of the congressional hearings are presently conducted behind closed doors. Most of these hearings have no bearing at all on national security.

"So where classified information is not at stake, secret committee meetings should be eliminated. There is simply no justification for closing most of these meetings to the press and the public."

British Engineers Are Eyeing Modern Mobility

EDITOR'S NOTE — Travel is a tricky lure, often offering more headache than happiness. Traffic. Crowds. Getting there is not half the fun, but all the pain. But, some are thinking of the future and how to ease the problems of more people, pollution—and traffic.

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — A robot taxi ... an airplane substitute that "flies" at an altitude of half an inch ... a moving sidewalk with fast and slow lanes.

These are some of the projects British engineers are working on to ease the traffic crush in modern society.

They hope these inventions of the future will not only take the headache out of travel but also do it more safely and with less noise and pollution than the transport used today.

The robot taxi is a four-passenger car that would be guided along elevated roadways by a computer. It's something like a cross between a regular taxi and a subway.

Passengers would then sit back and let the car take them nonstop at 20 miles an hour to the station they chose.

Unlike subways, there'd be no long waits, no stops along the way, no changing trains and no sardine-type crowding. And, unlike normal taxis, the robot cabs would be cheap, wouldn't get jammed in traffic and their electric motors would be quiet and pollution-free.

As long as the computers directing the taxis don't break down, there shouldn't be any traffic accidents.

"Large towns can't absorb any more increases in car traffic," says a spokesman for Britain's Transport Ministry, which is developing a robot taxi system called Cabtrack.

"If we don't want the expense of rebuilding the town to fit the car, we can develop a new form of transport with minimum adverse effect on the urban environment."

Cabtrack still needs years of tests before it proves workable. Its network of elevated roads and stations would be expensive to build, but its developers claim it would be cheaper than building new highways.

For trips up to 500 miles, another British invention in the works is the Tracked Hovercraft, designed to zip along at 250 miles an hour on a cushion of air half an inch or so above a metal rail imbedded in a concrete track.

The craft could get passengers from one big city to another without the delays of airplanes — congested airports and that long trip from airport to city center.

And it would do this without the noise and air pollution of planes. Like the robot taxi, it would use quiet electric power — but in a radically new type of motor.

The motor uses the principle of magnetic repulsion, like the familiar classroom science experiment in which like poles of magnets repel each other.

In the case of the Tracked Hovercraft, electricity passing through wire coils at the bottom of the chassis creates a magnetic field. In this field, the metal rail and the vehicle floating above it repel each other.

Since the rail can't move, the vehicle does. And it accelerates fast, like a plane, since there is no surface friction to overcome.

A Tracked Hovercraft able to carry 100 passengers is scheduled to be tested this year on three miles of elevated track near Cambridge, England. It will need many more tests to prove it will work.

Another invention in the works here is an advanced moving sidewalk that might save downtown areas from the noise, fumes and paralysis of snarled auto traffic.

Billed by its developers as "a town dweller's dream," it would take standing passengers along a moving belt at 10 miles per hour through an all-weather, air-conditioned, transparent tube built on stilts.

It would get them between busy points such as train stations and office buildings quickly, cheaply, quietly and without polluting the air.

Like the robot taxi, the moving sidewalk risks adding to the blight of city centers with its obtrusive platform running 10 feet above the street.

Unruly Weather Invades Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vicious, unruly thunderstorms rumbled across Texas early today accompanied by gusty winds, tornado watches and generous amounts of rain.

The Weather Bureau issued a tornado watch for most of the upper Texas coastal counties at 11:35 p.m. Sunday and it remained in effect until 4 a.m. today.

No tornadoes were reported during that time but Sunday funnel clouds were spotted near Bridge City, China, Lakeview, and Pasadena in Southeast Texas.

A twister dipped down at Bridge City, damaging 28 mobile homes in two trailer parks and injuring eight persons Sunday. An Orange Memorial Hospital spokesman said the injured received cuts and bruises.

Texas counties placed under tornado watch early today included Sabine, Wharton, Brazoria, Chambers, Fort Bend, Galveston, Hardin, Harris, Jasper, Jefferson, Liberty, Matagorda, Newton, Orange and Tyler.

During the tornado watch period early today, large sections of the state also were placed under severe thunderstorm watches—mostly in the South Texas areas.

At the height of the violent activity, 54 counties were under severe thunderstorm watches.

The greatest threat was in an area along and 70 miles either side of a line from 30 miles northeast of Waco to 60 miles southwest of San Antonio.

The San Antonio area got heavy rain and hail shortly after midnight. There were reports of golf-ball sized hail and gusty winds.

But the severe weather started to decrease as dawn approached.

The early morning activity followed a night of violent weather and weather-related accidents.

A small plane attempting to make an emergency landing during a rainstorm collided with a car, killing one man and injuring 10 other persons near Grand Saline Sunday. One man was injured near Sargent in Southeast Texas when a small twister overturned a camping trailer.

Heavy downpours in the Beaumont-Port Arthur areas Sunday flooded underpasses as forecasters recorded 6.75 inches of rain at the Jefferson County airport.

The weather also burst windows in downtown Port Arthur, knocked down utility lines and uprooted trees.

Police at Texas City said "what appeared to be a tornado" hit the city's port area and ripped open the top of an oil storage tank and toppled a large crane used to load ships.

Do Part In Crime Fight

DENVER (AP) — George Downer and his wife, Evelyn, twice did their part in fighting crime in a six-month period.

In their automobile they chased and caught a 17-year-old suspect soon after a service station was held up.

Earlier Mrs. Downer, awakened by a noise, saw two men on the roof of a pool hall near her home. She telephoned police while Downer went to investigate. Officers arrived in time to arrest two men.

TELL Blasted By TWC

DALLAS (AP) — The real reason for a state senator's plea for an overwhelming vote for open saloons is "to enable the liquor lobby to get looser laws," a leader of Texans Who Care charged here Friday.

TWC Leader James M. Dunn of Dallas said in a letter to pastors across the state that Senator Joe Christie of El Paso has attacked the intelligence and integrity of churchmen.

Christie, chairman of Texans for Enforceable Liquor Laws, told a press conference in Austin Thursday that correcting factual errors "seems to have no effect on paid prohibitionists."

TELL has described Texans Who Care as "a new front for conservative Protestant churches." Dunn noted, however, that TWC is composed also of doctors, judges, businessmen, professional athletes, college presidents and citizens from many backgrounds.

In his letter to preachers, Dunn said that Christie's charges of poor research are groundless.

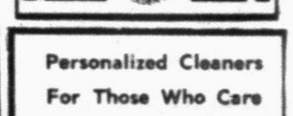

"An analysis which is thorough, honest and carefully footnoted has been made available to all pastors, editors and legislative candidates," said the TWC leader.

"Where is the research to which he (Christie) refers?" asked Dunn. "He has kept it carefully hidden." Christie had said in his press conference Thursday that TELL had made a concentrated effort to back up all information "because we want this election to be decided on fact."

Dunn said that the Senator's slap at "paid prohibitionists" is interesting "since TELL has hired George Christian, former press aide to Lyndon Johnson as a 'paid' advocate for open saloons.

"Christie says that TELL is spending over $200,000 to persuade Texas to return to open saloons," Dunn noted, "but they cannot buy the voters.

"People are not overlooking the local-option aspect of this issue. Folks know that the effects of alcohol cannot be contained by county lines," he said.
