Israeli Military Announces...

Warplanes Destroy Iraq's Nuclear Reactor Today

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked and destroyed Iraq's nuclear reactor outside Baghdad on Sunday, the Israeli military command announced today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from Iraqi authorities in Baghdad.

The French-built, 70-megawatt research reactor, said to be ready for completion this summer, had stirred controversy because its fuel could be used to make nuclear weapons.

The Israeli military said it would not explain the reason for the extraordinary action, carried out by Israeli warplanes against a target 600 miles from Tel Aviv.

"We don't wait for the reactor to be completed to destroy it," a military spokesman said.

Some 100 to 150 foreign experts were working on the reactor and reportedly were on a Sunday day off when the Israeli planes struck, the command said. It said all the Israeli planes returned safely, but it did not say how many took part in the attack.

The surprise attack against the Arab nation came during a period of heightened tensions in the Middle East because of Israeli objections to the presence of Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon.

Last Sept. 30, a week after the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war, the Baghdad atomic facility was attacked — but reportedly not damaged — by warplanes bearing Iranian markings. One report at the time said the planes were Israeli, but this was never confirmed, nor did Iran acknowledge that it staged the raid.

The Israelis said today the French reactor was scheduled to be completed in July or September.

If it was not yet operational and there was no fuel on the site, 12 miles east of Baghdad, Sunday's attack presumably did not spread radioactivity in the Iraqi capital. A smaller Soviet-built test reactor on the site was already in operation, but it could not be learned whether it was hit by the planes.

The $275-million, French-built Osirak reactor has been under construction since the mid-1970s at the Tammouz Nuclear Research Center. The Israelis have long demanded that France cease its nuclear aid to Iraq, and last summer an Israeli Defense Ministry official said that if diplomacy failed to block France's shipment of weapons-grade uranium shipments to Iraq, Israeli will be compelled to "consider its next step."

Monday update

Portillo Welcomed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is devoting an unusual amount of personal attention to Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo during talks aimed at establishing a cooperative relationship despite profoundly different approaches to turmoil in Central America.

After a ceremonial welcome at the White House today, the two leaders were to fly to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., for afternoon and evening meetings. A final meeting is scheduled Tuesday morning at the White House.

Lopez Portillo arrived in Washington Sunday and was met at Andrews Air Force Base by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Plans Changed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There have been some changes made in political campaign plans since Gov. Bill Clements said there would be a special legislative session.

A number of would-be candidates planned to make announcements after the end of the regular session or at least quietly begin campaigning for state and local offices for the 1982 elections.

Now, most of them will wait until after the special session to try to formally invite public attention to their campaigns.

"I got a break," said former Attorney General John Hill, a strong possibility as Democratic candidate for governor. "Now I've got two more months to think it over."

Supreme Court Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today gave female workers a powerful new tool in their fight for pay equal to the wages of their male counterparts.

By a 5-4 vote, the high court said that under federal law women in jobs held primarily by women can use a sweeping civil rights law to show they are being discriminated against in comparison to jobs held primarily by men.

In writing today's majority decision, Justice William J. Brennan emphasized that the court was not endorsing the controversial notion of "comparable worth" under which women would be paid the same as men even when their jobs are not virtually the same.

However, Brennan's opinion did open the way for a whole new class of women's wage-discrimination claims.

Back To Work

By The Associated Press

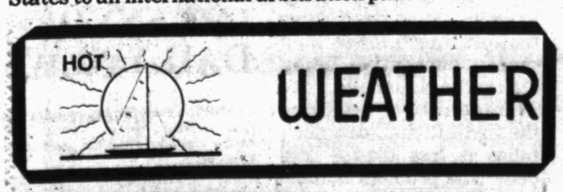

With a new contract in hand, thousands of union miners resumed digging coal today, ending a 72-day strike that halved the nation's coal production.

"The men are anxious to get back. They want to get caught up on their bills," said Elwood Maples, a United Mine Workers official in Rainelle, W.Va. "They're glad it's all over."

Supreme Court Refuses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to give speedy review to the agreement that led to the release of 52 American hostages from Iran.

The justices, without comment, turned down the appeal of a Texas-based computer company to halt the transfer next month of Iranian assets in the United States to an international arbitration panel.

Diplomats Seek Lebanon Peace

BEITEDDIN, Lebanon (AP) — With Saudi Arabia and Kuwait mediating, Syria and the Lebanese Christians and Moslems are discussing a peace plan for Lebanon calling for a nationwide cease-fire and removal of heavy arms from the major cities.

The Arab League emergency committee, made up of the Saudi, Syrian and Kuwaiti foreign ministers and the league's secretary general, began the peacemaking effort Sunday at this Lebanese mountain resort in an attempt to end fighting between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen in which more than 644 Lebanese have been killed since April 1.

A lull in the fighting was reported Sunday as the peace effort got underway.

Beirut Radio quoted Lebanese Prime Minister Shafiq Wazzan, a Moslem, as saying the ministers were giving top priority to efforts to arrange a cease-fire so the talks could continue in "complete security and stability."

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said a peace plan under discussion called for a cease-fire, the removal of heavy weapons from the major cities and discussion of Syria's role in Lebanon.

But reports from Lebanese sources said the Syrians posed a crucial problem for the Christians by demanding they publicly break their ties with Israel.

Bashir Gemayel, commander of the Christian Phalange Party's militia, made no mention of Israel after speaking with the mediators Sunday, but he did say he was optimistic.

Deputy Premier Gives Solidarity A Warning

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski gave the independent labor movement a strong warning in preparation for negotiations today to try to avert Poland's first strike in almost three months.

Rakowski said the Communist Party has exhausted the number of "reasonable compromises" it can reach with Solidarity, the independent labor federation.

"The limit on the patience of our allies has also been exhausted," he warned in a speech Sunday to a party meeting in Bydgoszcz, 140 miles northwest of Warsaw.

"Those who want to weaken our rule should bear in mind that they take the responsibility for what is going to happen to our state, to our nation. We are nearing a dangerous frontier and it is necessary not to strike."

A West German television network reported the Soviet Communist party's Central Committee had sent an "ultimatum" to the Polish Central Committee. It said the Polish committee would meet Tuesday to discuss its response.

There was no confirmation of the report in Warsaw or Moscow. PAP, the official Polish news agency, said the Polish committee would meet Tuesday to discuss plans for the party congress in July that is to accept or reject proposed political and economic reforms.

The Soviet media has recently devoted more and more space to criticisms of the growing liberalization movement among the rank and file of the Polish party and the efforts of party leaders to come to terms with the reformers. This has again raised the prospect of Soviet military intervention to crush the reform movement, just as a reform movement in the Czechoslovak Communist Party was crushed in 1968.

Rakowski, the government's chief labor troubleshooter, was scheduled to meet with union leaders today to try to get them to call off a two-hour warning strike Thursday in the Bydgoszcz region.

The strike was called to pressure the government into issuing a report on its investigation into the police beating of three union members in Bydgoszcz on March 19.

"The government expressed its regrets because of those events," said Rakowski. "...Two (provincial) governors were recalled, and the security of the union and its activists was guaranteed."

He suggested that Solidarity was raising the issue again to "harass the authorities, weaken them and bring them to their knees."

Youth Program In Operation

Up to 38 persons may be involved in the Summer Youth Employment Program here this summer.

That is the number of stations authorized for Scurry County through the West Central Texas Council of Governments.

Six youths began work this morning for the city. They are assigned to clean-up work and will be engaged in mowing on Deep Creek and in other areas, said City Manager John Gayle.

The program is for economically disadvantaged youth from 14 to 20 years old.

The city has been allotted 10 positions, but only six have been filled by the WCTCOG Manpower Office so far.

Other stations for the program, which will last for eight weeks, include Snyder Public Schools, Scurry County, the Snyder Police Dept., the Snyder water treatment plant, the Snyder Child Day Care Center, Scurry County Boys' Club, Scurry County Agricultural offices, the ASCS, the National Guard Armory, the Hermleigh Post Office, Hermleigh Public Schools, the Ira Post Office and Ira Public Schools.

Two Men Arrested For Marijuana Possession

Two men were arrested early Sunday morning at a residence in west Snyder for felony possession of marijuana, more than four ounces and for possession of a prohibited weapon, a 20 gauge sawed off shotgun with a barrel less than 18 inches long.

Acting on a tip, Sgt. Ed Neeley, Sgt. Wade Norris and officers Robert Harbin and Richard McCulley participated in the raid at 2409 26th Street which netted 16 bagged ounces of marijuana — found in a grocery sack — and the weapon which was discovered in a closet.

Sgt. Neeley estimated the street value of the marijuana at over $500. Taken into custody was a 31 year-old man and an 18 year-old man.

Late Saturday night, a 21 year-old man made the mistake of pulling up to a Monte Carlo and asking the female occupant to meet him somewhere to smoke a joint with him. The woman agreed to meet the man at Spanish Park but said she had to go by a friend's house first.

He had a surprise awaiting him. The woman he had accosted was Omega Vargas, chief dispatcher for the Snyder Police Dept., who said she drove to the station and told Sgt. Norris and Sgt. Neeley. The two hid in the back seat of Vargas' car and rode with her to keep her appointment.

As promised, the man was waiting for her when she arrived, with some marijuana. He was reported to have said "Where did they come from?" upon his arrest for misdemeanor possession of marijuana, less than two ounces.

In other activity over the weekend, police had a small spate of burglary complaints and minor accidents.

Officer Buddy Kinney worked a wreck at 900 25th Saturday afternoon. Involved was a 1974 Ford driven by Ricky Davis and a 1975 Mercury driven by Wendell Beane.

Debbie Provence, 1902 Coleman, told officers Don Cheek and Tony Pantoja someone had stolen a 19 inch color television from the trunk of her car while it was parked in her garage. Value of the TV was set at $388. The burglary was reported at 6:32 p.m.

At 6:56 p.m., a minor accident was reported at 3101 Ave. K. Involved was a 1977 Ford driven by Maria Gutierrez and the Antique House owned by Ellis Bailey. Officer Bill Armstrong reported moderate damage to the vehicle. The damage rating to the business was undetermined.

Sunday morning, officer Pantoja received a report of a stolen air conditioner window unit from James Patterson at Patterson's Used Car Lot. The stolen air conditioner was valued at $150.

Haskell Franks at Hack's Grocery reported a burglary of a business at 9:11 a.m. Taken was $60 in currency, $20 in change and three cartons of Marlboros. Officer Pantoja said entry was apparently gained through a hole in the wall.

The first minor accident Sunday was at 4:34 p.m. at 37th and Dalton and involved a 1979 GMC pickup driven by Jerry Richardson and a 1978 Toyota driven by Linda Willis Holley. Although the Toyota had minor damage, there was none to the pickup. Taking the report was officer Armstrong.

The next mishap was at 2208 40th at 7:10 p.m. Officer Armstrong also worked that wreck. Involved was a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Pamela June Trice and a 1977 parked Chevrolet owned by Chevron Oil. The parked vehicle had minor damage but the other was moderately damaged. A wrecker was needed for the car driven by Trice.

College Board Meets Tonight

Scurry County Junior College District Trustees are scheduled to consider a draft contract with the Diamond M Foundation for operation of the Diamond M Museum and take tentative action on a proposed 1981-82 budget for Western Texas College at their regular meeting this evening.

The meeting is set for 5:45 p. m. in the conference room in the WTC administration building.

The board will go into executive session at the outset of the meeting to discuss personnel matters, after which it will take up its business agenda.

The college board and directors of Diamond M Foundation agreed in principle earlier to a proposal for WTC to assume responsibility for operating the Diamond M Museum for the next three years. A draft contract prepared by the college district's attorneys will be presented to the board at tonight's session.

Board members have been studying budget proposals prepared by administrators, and a proposed budget will be up for tentative approval tonight.

Also up for considerstion at tonight's meeting are some faculty promotions in rank, appointment of supervisory personnel for WTC apartments, appointments to the Retired Senior Volunteer Program advisory council and some policy revisions.

A proposal to add some bunk beds to selected rooms in the WTC dormitories to accommodate more students in the fall will be discussed.

Panels Planning 2 Major Events

Planning sessions for two major summer events have been scheduled for Tuesday in the Snyder Chamber of Commerce conference room.

The chamber's July 4th committee will meet at 5:30 p. m. The group hopes to finalize plans for all major events on the program for the annual Independence Day celebration in Towle Memorial Park. Wedge Turner is the general chairman of the July 4th committee.

The American Junior Rodeo Association National Finals Committee is scheduled to meet at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the conference room.

The AJRA committee, headed by Ralph Miller, will be working on plans for the National Finals Rodeo, which is scheduled for Aug. 10:15 in the Scurry County Coliseum.

unions and ethics

The fact that organized labor is representing a declining proportion of the working population in America has been worrying union leaders for years. There are many economic and social forces contributing to this trend, but one reason undoubtedly is the bad light cast on the entire labor movement by cases of corruption involving local and national leaders of some unions.

From Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, comes some advice that all unions can heed. He says they should pay as much attention to ethics in their own organizations as they do to contract negotiations with employers.

Fraser has good reason to bring up the matter right now. The executive board of the Teamsters union has voted to nominate Roy L. Williams to a five-year term as president. Mr. Williams recently was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to bribe a U.S. Senator.

Members of the Teamsters board may feel it would be unfair to deny Williams the presidency because of the indictment. After all, he says he is innocent and he is yet to have his day in court.

Nevertheless, this does not prevent Mr. Williams from doing his union — and the rest of the labor movement — a favor. He could urge the convention to hold his election in abeyance until he has a chance to prove his innocence. This would spare the Teamsters the embarrassment of electing a president who is under the cloud of criminal charges.

Fraser's concern for ethics in unionism was voiced as he prepared to bring the UAW back into the AFL-CIO, a significant step toward restoring unity to organized labor. The return of the Teamsters to the fold would help even more, but it was the issue of corruption that led to their expulsion from the AFL-CIO 24 years ago. The prospect for healing that old breach would improve if the Teamsters convention in Las Vegas sent a signal that times have changed.

New Peanut Classes Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is withdrawing its plans to merge three grade standards for shelled peanuts.

The revision, originally proposed in December 1979, included several new kernel size classifications and changes in the amounts of foreign material, undersize kernels and damaged, split or broken kernels allowed.

Sought by the industry, the proposed change is being dropped because sheller associations and the candy and peanut butter manufacturers have been unable to work out disagreements over the new standard, Food Safety and Quality Service Administrator Donald Houston said.

The decision, according to Houston, means current standards for shelled Runner, Spanish and Virginia-type peanuts will remain in effect.

"We'll consider proposing standards for shelled peanuts in the future if we receive a request to do so by a group representative of all segments of the peanut industry," Houston said.

Use of the standards and grading service is voluntary and is paid for by the industry.

Every time I make a commencement speech, I have to fight the impulse to dismiss the graduates and speak to the parents. I want to say:

Dear parents of the class of 1981:

You're on the horizon of a new world too... trying to shift gears into the next phase of your lives... a little scared, a little apprehensive, a lot in debt.

You have brought to full term a human being who, for all purposes, is educated, responsible, and ready to assume his or her place in the world. Are you ready to assume yours?

How many times has your child said. "When are going to stop treating me as a child?"

And you answered, "When you stop acting like one!"

It was a glib, slick answer and you knew it.

Have you been so busy talking for the last 16 years that you haven't listened to what you were saying?

"I WANT TO GROW UP!"

("What's your big hurry to get married? You're still a child!")

"YOU HAVE TO LEARN TO LIVE WITH YOUR OWN MISTAKES."

("Look, Daddy and I will pay to have your car repaired and you can pay us back later.")

"IT'S TIME YOU WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR YOURSELF."

("I've made a dental appointment for you Tuesday and picked up your cleaning. Put your library books out and I'll return them.")

"BE INDEPENDENT!"

("You can live at home. It's rent free. Just remember, dinner is at 6!")

"MAKE YOUR OWN DECISIONS."

("What do you mean you're not going to Grandma's? You haven't been there in two weeks. Get in the car!")

"WILL YOU STOP ACTING LIKE A CHILD?"

("Give me that shirt and I'll iron it right.")

"TAKE CHARGE OF YOUR LIFE."

("This is the time for you to get a job and not use your savings to travel around the country.")

In their way your children have been trying to be what you want them to be. For all of you, it's clumsy. It's painful. It's awkward.

When are they going to grow up?

When you allow to them to.

NEW YORK (AP) — The word for today is "demographics."

Never mind that Webster's Third Unabridged lists no such noun. It's rolling off the tongues and memo pads of just about every business and economic planner these days.

As you may well already be aware, the term refers to the makeup of the population of a given society, the changes taking place in the size and shape of that population, and the effects those changes are likely to have.

In the marketing business, a magazine whose readers are all 32-year-old upscale achievers with a median income of $65,000 a year or so is said to have "great demographics" for advertisers selling wine, stereo systems and vacations in the Lesser Antilles.

On a broader scale, businessmen and economists seeking to predict the trends of the 1980s have been devoting a lot of time lately to demography (a word which does appear in the dictionary).

Their main reason for doing so is a development that is fast becoming, if it has not already become, a great American cliche — the maturing of the post-World War II "baby boom" generation.

The spree of family formation that occurred after the war created a huge bulge that shows up in any graph depicting the American population — a tidal wave by comparison with all the other ripples on the chart.

At first, its importance didn't seem to be fully understood. When the baby-boomers started reaching school age in the 1950s and 1960s, the education industry became a national boom town.

By the mid-1970s, as the supply of students dropped off sharply, it was belatedly discovered that far more teachers had been trained and school buildings built than the nation could possibly need.

Meanwhile, the baby-boom bulge pushed inexorably ahead. Among a generation that grew up on the rallying cry "don't trust anyone over 30!" there are now a lot of 30th birthday parties being held.

While the colleges and school systems they left behind are still retrenching, businesses of all types and sizes have scrambled to get into position to ride the wave to wealth without getting drowned in the backwash.

As the baby-boomers age, the pessimists say, they will create new strains and stresses. What, for example, will happen to the housing market once they are past prime home-buying age? Will the country ever have the resources to support them all in retirement?

Today about one in every nine Americans is over 65. By the early 21st century, notes United Business Service, an investment and personal-finance newsletter, it could be as much as one in every five.

Whatever problems that creates, it will bring opportunities as well. For example, Money magazine suggested recently, even if there is an oversupply of doctors, more specialists in geriatrics will be needed than ever before.

No complete list is available, or even possible for that matter. But as a starting point, United Business service suggests, "drugs, health care, cosmetics, leisure-time and the communications industries should all benefit from the 'graying of America.'"

In 1871, the Great Chicago Fire occurred, claiming 250 lives and destroying $2 million worth of property.

WASHINGTON (NEA) —At no time since World War II — or prehaps since the Great Depression — have the nation's savings and loan associates been in as poor financial condition as they are today.

For the past 18 months, most of these so-called "thrift institutions" have been losing money — a lot of it. If something isn't done to stop the flow of red ink, many of them may be forced to cease operations within a year.

Take, for example, the 29 institutions in the St. Louis area that are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (About 90 percent of the nation's savings and loans are insured by that federal agency.)

Fifteen of those institutions lost a total of $22 million in 1980, according to income and earnings statements recently filed with the FSLIC. Seven lost more than $1 million each, and Carondelet, one of the area's oldest and best-established institutions, lost $7 million.

If three of the St. Louis savings and loans continue to lose money at their 1980 rates, they will exhaust their total net worths and become at least technically insolvent by the end of the year. Several others may reach insolvency within 18 months.

Some savings and loans are bucking the adverse trends that are plaguing their industry. But all is not well even for many of the institutions that are still making money. Community Federal, the city's largest savings and loan with a net worth of more than $108 million, made $3.2 million during 1980 — but lost $4.5 million during the last half of the year.

St. Louis is not unique. The same problems are occurring across the country.

During the past 35 years, FSLIC-insured institutions have failed at a rate of fewer than one per year. But today the agency has 251 institutions on its "problem list" of those that must be watched closely because of their poor financial conditions.

Agency sources say that as many as 150 of these insitutions may be left with little or no net worth by the end of the year if they continue to lose money at current rates. And if these trends continue into 1982, another 100 institutions may be rendered insolvent.

The reason for this is quite simple. The cost of money to thrift institutions has far exceeded the rate of return that they are receiving from their loan portfolios. Savings and loans acquire money either by attracting depositors with interest rates comparable to other short- and medium-term investments or by borrowing from the federal government or larger commercial institutions, such as banks.

The savings and loans are being forced to offer sky-high returns to depositors, who now can get short-term government certificates at rates in excess of 15 percent. At the same time, the institutions are paying sky-high rates for the money that they are borrowing on the open market.

In addition, much of their income is from older loans made at fixed rates that are much lower than those currently being charged. Nationally, the average rate of return on the institutions' loan portfolios is less than 9 percent. The problem is most acute for older institutions that have a large percentage of loans made years ago at rates of 5 percent and 6 percent.

If anything, conditions are getting worse rather than better. A spokesman for the National Savings and Loan League estimates that thrift institutions lost $688 million in the first three months of 1981. He forecasts losses of $800 milion in the second quarter.

More pessimistic forecasters say that losses by the nation's thrifts may approach $2.5 bilion for the first half and $6 billion for the year.

This potentially disastrous trend could be reversed if interest rates drop sharply in the next few months. But no one expects that to happen. The next column will examine the far-reaching implications of one plan to rescue the savings and loans.

Your Birthday

June 9, 1981

This coming year you could be luckier than usual in ventures or enterprises which introduce new products or techniques. You might even conceive something potentially profitable yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be decisive in situations today which are important to you materially. For best results, get to the heart of the matter quickly by avoiding insignificant aspects. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll get high marks today in things which you enjoy doing, but your grades may not be so good if you are compelled to perform in areas not of your choosing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your financial prospects look encouraging today, but things may not turn out as profitably as they should owing to some strange circumstances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful today that you don't shower more attention on a new acquaintance than you do on a pal of long standing. Thoughtlessness could wound.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Others are likely to have more confidence in your ideas today than you will yourself. Your thoughts can be winners, but you must believe in them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be helpful to friends who seek your assistance today but, by the same token, be sensible about offering financial aid. It may be tough to collect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to get some very clever ideas today regarding ways to better your lot career-wise and financially. Unfortunately, you may fail to act on them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be introduced to someone new today about whom you've heard some petty gossip. Disregard these tales. Judge for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep persons out of your business dealings today who aren't directly involved in what you're doing. Even well-intentioned onlookers could gum things up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to lock yourself into impulsively conceived ideas today. Your first thoughts may not be your best. The more you study a situation, the brighter you get.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you apply your ingenuity today, you should be able to find ways to speed up the tasks which you have to perform. Experiment a bit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be hesitant to ask advice of wiser heads today if you are involved in something which you don't understand. They may have the answers you lack.

THIS MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE KICKING UP THEIR HEELS... THEY BOTH HAVE NEW FIGURES FROM PAT WALKER'S

Dear Pat Walker's,

I am one of the fortunates to enjoy the benefits of Pat Walker's. I want to take this opportunity to tell others of the enjoyment and satisfaction I received from my program.

Since starting I have lost 26¾ lbs. and 30 inches. The pleasure of seeing in the mirror a small, uniformly well developed figure, not an overweight 'hippy' one is immeasureable.

My husband's jokingly saying "I'll have to shake the sheets to find you." is just one other plus resulting from the program.

One of the greatest things is to be seen with my daughters, surprise people who even think I lie when I insist we aren't; all sisters, we're near the same size and look so alike.

As a result of this program, I feel good and am ready to do anything at any time. Being a 'Petite', not a 'Stout', is pure pleasure.

At last I enjoy all my outdoor hobbies, swimming, horses, volleyball and lots of others.

Peggy Bowen, El Paso

Dear Pat Walker's,

This is my personal report of one of the most exhilarating and enjoyable experiences of my life.

It seems I've always been overweight, particularly in the hips. I tried diets and various exercises without doing much good.

HALLELUJAH! Things happened. I lost 23 lbs. and 36 inches. I now wear size 7 dress and pants. I can live with and be proud of those figures at the same time. How pleasant it is to have friends find it hard to realize this is a 'NEW YOU', to have my husband so very pleased and able to carry me without fear of back injury.

Now I am not self-concious of my appearance when I am enjoying my hobbies, western dancing, horseback riding and working out-of-doors with flowers. They way I feel now I'm sure I'll be adding other pursuits.

I can never say or be grateful enough for the wonderful, helpful program and staff at Pat Walker's.

Darla Bowen Elder, El Paso

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Alan: "As a young player I never even saw most of the old-time greats. Why don't we do a few articles about them?"

Oswald: "The number one man of that group and of contract bridge itself was Ely Culbertson. His Culbertson system got more people interested in contract than all others combined. His new ideas revolutionized the game and some of his best were too advanced for the early days. Take today's hand as an example."

Alan: "If that's a Culbertson hand, I'm surprised. The bidding is modern. South's four notrump is Blackwood. North shows the missing two aces and South's six-club call is a grand slam force telling North to bid seven if he holds two of the three top honors in hearts. North complies and the grand slam is bid and made."

Oswald: "I said that Ely was ahead of his time. He was the first man to think of using four notrump to find out about aces. His Culbertson four notrump was too complicated, but Ely was too stubborn to change and Blackwood took its place. His grand slam force was not used after Blackwood because Ely did not play Blackwood. It took modern players to develop the bid thoroughly."

Alan: "I never realized how some of our most modern conventions were thought of way back before I was born. Ely must have been even more remarkable than I thought."

Harmful superstition?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 17 years old and have asthma. I am also allergic to a number of things such as long-haired animals, feathers, dust, mold and mildew. I get an injection for my allergies every two weeks.

My doctor told me I might outgrow the asthma as I got older but that was seven years ago and it is worse, if anything.

Several people have told me that sleeping with a Chihauhau dog will cure asthma. Supposedly the dog takes the asthma away from the person and eventually dies of it. Is this true? With my allergy to animals, would this be impossible for me?

Also, I heard that eating a tablespoon of honey every day will cure asthma. Will this help?

DEAR READER — You have been listening to a lot of uninformed people. If they happen to be selling so-called health products, beware, as they may be charlatans. The Chihauhau story sounds like a superstition and could be harmful to you.

There are several types of asthma and the type affects the form of treatment. Your history suggests that you have allergic asthma. A few people develop asthma for the first time in adult life and do not have an allergic component.

Your doctor was correct in saying that you might outgrow your asthma. About four out of five people who develop asthma during childhood do not have severe asthma as adults. According to some investigators, the number is lower than that. Perhaps in time your asthma may yet become less severe.

Meanwhile, I would like you to know a little more about asthma so you won't be confused by medical misinformation, so I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-6, Asthma. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

In some people, aspirin may precipitate an attack of asthma. In others, exercise can be a factor. However, most people, including children, can learn to exercise in spite of asthma. This is helped with medicines that prevent attacks in the first place, as opposed to medicines that relieve the attack once it has occurred.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My father recently suffered severe nose bleeds. After several unsuccessful attempts to stop the bleeding by packing and pressure, the ear, nose and throat doctor performed surgery and tied two arteries. What can cause arteries to act in this manner? The doctor says it's hard to explain why a nose bleeds. My father is 62 and has given up smoking since the surgery but was a heavy smoker for many years. Otherwise his health is fine.

DEAR READER — Most nose bleeds, particularly in younger people, are from irritation at the tip of the nose. The severe form you speak of is commonly caused by a cracked artery — one that has fatty-cholesterol deposits in it and has undergone some changes. It cracks and spurts blood. Often packs will control the problem but when they will not it is necessary to tie the arteries to prevent recurrent attacks.

When a person has a nose bleed, it is important to have him sit up. That decreases the pressure to the head and helps decrease bleeding. Also have him lean forward so the blood will run out the nose and not down the throat. Nose bleeds can be serious and should receive immediate attention unless they are definitely minor.

Sheepherders School To Begin

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Help Wanted: Person who likes solitude, can cook at high altitudes and doesn't mind living in a tin-covered wagon on the range for months with only a horse, dog and sheep for companionship.

A chronic shortage of American sheepherders throughout the West has forced many ranchers to turn to Peru, Spain or Mexico to find help.

But most wool growers would prefer to hire at home because of the expense and trouble involved in hiring foreigners. So, to fill the need, the University of Wyoming has begun the nation's only sheepherders school.

"It's pointed toward a number of people in this country who might be interested in this kind of thing," said Frank Hinds, chairman of the university's Animal Science Division.

Hinds said "field work" should be an integral part of the non-academic program to weed out those who aren't cut out to be shepherds.

"Some might have a romantic view of herding, who don't appreciate the solitude and work involved," he said.

Bill Bonde, executive director of the Western Range Association in Fair Oaks, Calif., welcomes such a program. His organization serves about 240 wool growers in 10 Western states who come to him regularly to find herders.

"There definitely is a need," he said.

Although it is easy enough to find foreign herders to take the jobs, hiring domestic herders is cheaper and simpler.

"There are a multitude of one-man operations who would welcome an American to do the job," Bonde said. "They can use as many as the university can turn out."

Bonde said sheep husbandry courses are offered elsewhere, but none teaches the skills of year-round herding.

Jessie Baker, executive director of the Wyoming Wool Growers Association in Casper, Wyo., also thinks the shepherd's school is a good idea.

"Very few people want to learn how to herd and stick with it," she said. "We do have people who want to herd for a summer, but it's not quite all that easy. Not just everyone can be responsible for 1,000 head on the range."

Hinds said that in his talks with ranchers he was surprised to find the needed skills had little to do with sheep.

"It's more related to having people who know how to cook at high altitudes, know how to handle their own housing and personal hygiene under conditions that are atypical," he said.

"Most of these people are living 30 to 60 miles out of town. They have these herders wagons, where there isn't running water and normal accommodations you find at home."

Bonde said the association gets job applicants from people who want to work at busy times, such as during the lambing season.

"But they don't want to go with the bands of sheep and stay in the hinterlands for the whole year," he said.

The shepherd gets up with the sheep at daybreak and beds them down at night, and for seven or eight hours in between "he does nothing," Bonde said.

He gets paid about $590 a month, plus room and board and health benefits.

"You take the ordinary kid on the street out of high school — they're not going to go into sheepherding unless they're working with their father," said Jim Popple of the Wyoming Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The result is that most Western sheep ranchers look to foreign labor. Popple estimated that half of Wyoming's approximately 300 sheepherders are immigrants, mostly from the Basque region of Spain. Of the some 800 foreign herders the Western Range Association has placed in the West, 60 percent are from Peru, 20 percent from Spain and 20 percent from Mexico, spokeswoman Bridget Rau said.

Bonde said those 800 represent only about 25 to 30 percent of all herders, but many of the domestic workers are hired as only seasonal help, primarily during lambing in the spring.

"The basic herding of sheep in America for the last 150 years has been done by foreigners," Bonde said.

Hospital Stay Can Be Hazardous To Health

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A hospital stay can be hazardous to your health if you don't know your rights and responsibilities, says a registered nurse who advises patients to shop around for health care and bring a friend or relative to act as an advocate.

"We have the same human rights inside the hospital as outside, but we've never exercised them," says Barbara Huttmann, who received her bachelor of science degree in nursing from California State University and has spent almost five years as a nurse in California hospitals.

Ms. Huttmann has written a book, "The Patient's Advocate: The Complete Handbook of Patient's Rights," to help guide people through the mysteries of hospital treatment.

"Hospitalization is a game of sorts, with its own set of rules and high stakes," writes Ms. Huttmann. "If you don't know the rules by which the game is played, you stand a good chance of losing."

In a recent telephone interview, Ms. Huttmann said the public can help improve the level of care — and cut costs — by comparison shopping. Unless the hospital visit is an emergency, she said, the patient should check things like room rates and prices for extra services. Find out, for example, the latest possible check-in time; you may be able to trim an entire day's stay from your bill.

Ms. Huttmann pointed out that hospitals are busy places. Nurses, for example, do not have "the time to do all they need to do. So they set up a priority list." The patient who has an advocate, someone watching out for his or her rights, gets higher priority, she said.

An advocate should be someone who can check on all the details the patient is too sick, too worried or too confused to do for himself or herself. An advocate can, for example, double-check on just which drugs or treatments have been ordered. An advocate can warn medical personnel about a patient's allergies.

The most important thing an advocate can do, Ms. Huttmann said, is "ask why until the answer is logical." The general public traditionally has been too reluctant to question doctors or ask about alternatives to surgery, she said. "We're intimidated by them (medical personnel)," Ms. Huttmann said, because "we let ourselves be intimidated by them."

Another "must" for advocates, Ms. Huttmann said, is to "be sure that all consents that are signed are accurate." If the form mentions a treatment or procedure that has not been discussed, ask about it.

Who is responsible for problems in the hospital? Doctors? Nurses? Administrative personnel?

"All of those," said Ms. Huttmann. "And the patient."

Why the patient?

"We don't monitor costs. We do abuse our bodies. Then we expect the doctor to wave his magic wand. We don't take any responsibility."

Admitted Rapist Sues Legal Authorities

HOUSTON (AP) — Like many convicts, John Lee Spinelli has turned from breaking the law to trying to practice it.

The balding 37-year-old has filed 30 lawsuits against various legal authorities.

From appearances, Spinelli could be a lawyer or preacher, for instance.

But actually, he is an admitted rapist, robber and kidnapper who faces several life prison sentences in California, 18 years in federal prison and who may eventually do a long stretch in a Texas prison.

About six weeks after he escaped from a California prison three years ago, he was arrested for a spree of rape, robbery, kidnappings and shootings in the Houston area.

"I did it — I was even on TV," he says.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed his conviction and life sentence last Wednesday. The reversal was based on a technicality — a single line was left out of the judge's charge to the jury.

On Monday, Spinelli will be transferred from his Harris County jail cell to federal prison to begin serving his 18-year term for bank robbery. After that, he'll be sent to California to continue serving his life sentences.

But Spinelli tries to look on the bright side.

"With all the technicalities I have on the case out there (in California), and if I am lucky, I might be out in 8½ years."

Spinelli, 37, has spent 14 years of his adult life behind bars.

"I am very comfortable in prison," he says. "I do get a charge out of taking them on."

He says Texas is violating state law by using inmates as building tenders and guards, a charge the prison system has consistently denied.

Health Officers LookForDoctor

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico health officials and Colorado authorities today were trying to locate a vacationing doctor who was exposed to a pneumonic plague victim.

Dr. Mark Hauswald, chief of emergency medicine at the Gallup Indian Medical Center, was believed to be on a camping trip in southern Colorado, possibly in the Silverton-Ouray area.

Hauswald helped treat a 28-year-old Cuba, N.M., man who later died from pneumonic plague, the contagious form of the disease. New Mexico health officials said as a safety precaution, more than 40 people who came in contact with the unidentified victim were being given antibiotics.

Michael Burkhart, director of the health services division of the state Health and Environment Department, said the state laboratory confirmed that the victim died last Friday of the pneumonic form of plague at the Gallup hospital.

"Because it was pneumonic, we've done extensive checking of close contacts and have a number of them on antibiotics as a preventive treatment," he said.

Ray Bayles, chief of communicable disease control at the hospital, said 43 people, including medical personnel and family members of the victim, had been given antibiotics as a preventive measure.

Burkhart said it's believed the victim contracted the disease from a flea and not from another person. "We know there has been a die-off of prairie dogs in the area. We feel it (the plague) is flea born," he said.

The contagious pneumonic form of plague can develop from bubonic plague, which is transmitted to humans by fleas from infected animals. Pneumonic plague can be transmitted from human to human, "like flu," Burkhart said.

He said, however, "We're confident at this point that in time that we have the contacts under surveillance, and they are being treated."

The last reported case of plague being transmitted from person to person was in California in 1925, he said.

Burkhart said the victim was seen at a hospital in Cuba on Wednesday. He was checked into the Gallup Indian Medical Center Thursday about 10:15 p.m. and died Friday at 7:15 a.m., Bayles said.

Health officials from the state Health and Environment Department, the Indian Health Service and the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., were in Cuba and Gallup to investigate the case, Bayles said.

Burkhart said state environmental personnel have been dusting the area around Cuba with a chemical in an effort to kill fleas. Dogs also were being checked for fleas, he said.

This is New Mexico's third confirmed case of plague in 1981.

A 70-year-old woman, also from Cuba, was diagnosed in May as a plague victim. She recovered, Burkhart said.

A 25-year-old rancher from southern Otero County, died Feb. 12 in an El Paso, Texas, hospital of plague. Health authorities said the young man, a part-time trapper, contracted the disease from skinning a bobcat.

In 1918, Kaiser Wilhelm II abdicated, and Germany became a republic.

Hundreds Die In Indian Disaster

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An attempt to save a cow, the animal held sacred by India's Hindus, may have contributed to the railway disaster that took hundreds of lives when a packed passenger train plunged off a bridge into a swollen river in northeast India, an Indian news agency said.

Railway Minister Kedar Pande said only 77 survivors had been found out of an estimated 500 passengers jammed into the nine railway cars. An undetermine number of people were riding the roof.

The chief minister of Bihar State, Jagannath Mishra, said the accident was the "biggest and worst in living memory" in India.

The United News of India said injured passengers reported the train jumped the tracks Saturday night when the engineer braked suddenly in a windstorm to avoid hitting a cow on the rusty tracks of a bridge over the Bagmati River near Mansi, 248 miles northwest of Calcutta.

The railway minister gave a different explanation, saying the train was "blown off" the bridge by a fierce gale. The Railway Ministry denied reports that the old 1,464-foot bridge collapsed and tumbled the train into the river.

"There has been no damage to the bridge or the tracks," said the ministry.

The train was en route from Samastipur to Banmakshi.

The United News said the engineer fled after the disaster.

Navy divers searched the roiling waters and recovered 46 bodies, Pande said. The Press Trust of India news agency said rescue workers had not reached six cars that were carried downstream.

Seven cars plunged into the river, while the locomotive and one coach were left hanging from the bridge.

Local authorities asked the army and navy to rush cranes and other salvage equipment to the scene in Bihar state.

Reports from the scene said more than 10,000 people went to the bridge, many of them weeping, to inquire after relatives.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

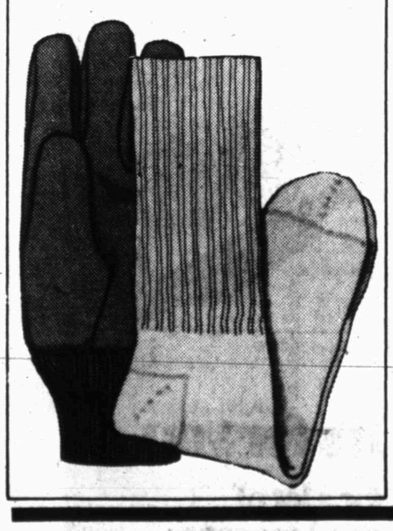

Diet Center states, and dentists agree, that fresh fruits and vegetables are a necessary part of a complete diet if healthy teeth are to be maintained. They provide a natural sugar (fructose) that does not attack the enamel of the teeth; and as they are chewed, help control plaque build-up. Chewing fruits and vegetables in their natural state is essential to a healthy jaw and proper teeth placement. In the past 20 years, the American public has changed eating patterns from natural foods, which require a great deal of chewing, to processed, prepackaged foods that do not exercise the jaw at all. Diet Center suggests that you keep fresh, raw fruits and vegetables on hand at all times. Clean them thoroughly and keep them in plastic bags in your refrigerator. When a snack is desired, eat an apple or a carrot. As a result, your teeth and your general health will be better.

Production Cutbacks Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — American agriculture is running the risk of serious production setbacks because of its increasing reliance on a limited number of crop varieties, a congressional report says.

The General Accounting Office, the investigating agency of Congress, also contends that the Agriculture Department is not doing all it can to minimize that risk, despite programs aimed at combating genetic vulnerability of crops.

Part of the GAO assessment drew strong objections from the department.

"Because producers use relatively few high-yielding varieties," the GAO report said, "the nation's crops are vulnerable to damage from disease, insects and adverse weather conditions which could limit crop production."

Noting that fewer than 10 plant varieties account for most of the production of major U.S. crops like wheat, corn and soybeans, the 35-page report said it is "widely accepted that crops are vulnerable if planting is dominated by a small number of varieties."

With plant genetic resources dwindling over the past four decades as farmers discarded low-yielding varieties for a few higher-yielding ones, the report said, it became more important for the government to maintain diversity as a defense against crop vulnerability.

But it said the National Plant Germplasm System, set up by the Agriculture Department seven years ago for that purpose, is too decentralized to get the job done, the GAO contended. The system, a combination of private and government operations at the state, regional and national levels, is intended to maintain genetic variability in crop seeds as a hedge against dominate strains becoming vulnerable to disease or pests.

But the report said the system has failed to keep track of changes in plant vulnerability in the United States and to adequately collect, store and evaluate the nation's plant genetic resources.

"Potential crop failures are a national and international concern," the GAO report said, "and the regional efforts have not added up to an effective national program."

In addition to what it called a lack of central control over operations, the report cited inadequate facilities within the system and absence of a long-range plan for dealing with the rising vulnerability of U.S. crops.

The Agriculture Department disagreed with the GAO's assessment of the system's management and its criticism of planning practices, although officials said they were beginning to develop longer-range plans than have been formulated in the past.

But they said assignment of a national coordinator for the system last fall provides the necessary oversight to maintain a national focus. They also pointed to plans for making plant genetic resources a high priority in future budgets.

They argued that a more centralized program might make states less willing to participate and reduce the resources they now contribute to it.

Harrelson Says Agents Killed Judge Wood

DALLAS (AP) — Convicted hit man Charles V. Harrrelson, named by federal authorities as a prime suspect in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood, claims that corrupt U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents killed the San Antonio judge.

Harrelson, in a Dallas Morning News copyright story, maintained he is innocent and challenged federal prosecutors to indict him.

"I want them to indict me right now — the next time the grand jury meets," Harrelson said. "I sincerely hope they get on with it. I want to go to trial and show the government has bamboozled this case."

The DEA agents killed Wood in 1979 because the judge was investigating them, Harrelson told the Dallas newspaper.

Those same federal agents control a multi-million dollar drug trafficking operation and tried to frame him soon after his release from state prison in 1978, he said. Harrelson was paroled after being given a 15-year sentence in 1973 for the 1968 slaying of Hearne, Texas, grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr.

Harrelson said the agents offered to cut him in on three half-million dollar armed robberies and offered to set him up in the cocaine and marijuana smuggling business.

"I decided it was a trap," he said. "I was offered 50,000 pounds of marijuana with no money up front. All I had to do was tell them where to deliver it."

Harrelson's story is too "ridiculous" to merit a response, a federal official connected with the Wood slaying investigation said.

Federal grand juries in San Antonio have been meeting for almost two years in connection with the Wood case, but no one has been charged.

Convicted drug smuggler Jamiel Alexander "Jimmy" Chagra has been targeted by the Wood prosecutors as the person who ordered and paid Harrelson for the murder of Wood.

Harrelson remains held without bond in Harris County Jail, where he awaits trial on state gambling, drugs and weapons charges.

FBI agents last week served Harrelson notice that his phone conversations from the jail have been monitored. Harrelson's attorneys have gone to court to try to get state gambling, drug and weapons charges in Houston dropped because of the illegal monitoring of attorney-client conversations.

State District Judge Thomas Routt ruled against Harrelson's argument, but the ruling is being reviewed by the Texas Criminal Court of Appeals.

"If these people (the prosecutors) will take a lie detector test and say they don't know about the tapes, then I'll take a lie detector test on anything they want."

Changes Proposed In State Constitution

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Seven proposed changes in the state constitution will be submitted to Texas voters as a result of the recent session of the 67th Legislature.

Four of them will appear on the Nov. 3, 1981, special election ballot while three are for the 1982 general election ballot.

Others may be approved in the special session that Gov. Bill Clements says he will call this summer.

The four to be voted on this November include:

HJR38, creation of a state finance management committee consisting of the governor, lieutenant governor, House speaker, and chairmen of the House and Senate committees dealing with taxes and appropriations. The committee would exercise limited budget controls over state agencies as directed in the general appropriations bill. It also would assist in distribution of any block grants received from the federal government.

HJR49, allows livestock and poultry to be exempt from property taxation along with some farm products.

HJR81, local option homestead exemptions designed to ease problems caused by the 1979 tax reappraisal law. If approved by voters, a city or county could exampt as much as 40 percent of a residence homestead for the first three years of market-value appraisals;, dropping to 30 percent for the next three years, and 20 percent for one year after that.

HJR117, would allow Leon County and other property owners who have defective titles but otherwise "clean" ownership of their land to keep it.

Cleanup Begins After Floods Strike Texas

By The Associated Press

Cleanup operations are underway in Southeast Texas after three creeks, fueled by nine inches of rain, roared out of their banks and forced more than 100 families to flee, closed roads and shattered two earthen dams.

"Everything is fine right now," Polk County Chief Deputy Rick Voelker said late Sunday after about 120 families had been evacuated from their homes along Kickapoo and Long King Creeks earlier in the day.

"We've had a pretty good bit of major flooding in the west part of the county near Kickapoo Creek," said Voelker. "There are some houses under water there, and we've had major flooding in Livingston."

Voelker said a Red Cross center had been set up at Goodrich High School where about 40 people were being housed after Long King Creek overflowed and forced about 80 familes from their homes.

Voelker said it was "hard to gauge" if the water along the creek had gotten any higher during the day, but said the floodwaters were expected to crest early Monday.

He said about 25 families remained in their homes in Goodrich, despite the rising waters.

"They are afraid of looting," he said, adding that the occupied homes were on high ground and in no immediate danger of flooding.

Voelker said there were no reports of injuries in Goodrich or along Kickapoo Creek, where about 30 families were evacuated. He said some homes along the creek were underwater early in the day and residents had taken refuge in a church.

In Livingston, Polk County Deputy Bob Grissom said water reached a depth of four feet and forced the temporary closing of U.S. 59 and SH 146 and flooding several downtown businesses.

Grissom said two earthen dams at a small lake near a subdivision broke and sent water cascading along Shoat Creek into Livingston. He said a third dam at the lake was not damaged and was holding the remaining water in the lake.

The Southern Pacific track was closed when several ties were washed away where the track passes through Livingston, Voelker said.

In nearby Tyler County, Chief Deputy B.J. Vardeman said a county road was closed after two or three camping trailers washed up on it. He said minor flooding was reported along Wolf Creek, where at least one store had two or three feet of water in it.

The National Weather Service is predicting that the Trinity River, which also flows through the area, will crest today at its 36-foot flood stage.

Dear Abby

Michelangelo's Greatness Unrelated to His Gayness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The question of Michelangelo's possible homosexuality was recently discussed in your column. Irving Stone, the biographical novelist, stated that he could not "find a scintilla of evidence to support the accusation that Michelangelo was a homosexual."

As an art historian, whose major focus has been on Michelangelo, I believe there is a great deal of evidence to the contrary.

For example, Michelangelo's own work is visual evidence that he was preoccupied with the nude male body. (Thirty-five of his nudes in "The Last Judgment" in the Sistine Chapel were given drapery in 1564 because they were considered "too suggestive.")

Michelangelo's contemporaries knew that he was more attracted to males than females. In 1533, when Michelangelo refused to take a new boy as an apprentice, he wrote, "If I were but to see him, I should pursue him not only into the house, but into bed."

All of this is irrelevant, of course, because Michelangelo was a great artist whether he was a homosexual or not.

DR. ROBERT H. WESTIN,
CHAIRMAN, DEPARTMENT OF ART,
UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA AT GAINESVILLE

DEAR ABBY: I haven't the slightest idea whether Michelangelo was gay or not, but I was appalled by Irving Stone's "defense" of Michelangelo in which he refers to that possibility as an "accusation," a "charge" and a "slander" — as though homosexuality were some kind of awful crime.

It is precisely because of this kind of bigotry that we will never know how many Michelangelos shared love with members of their own sex.

BOB IN BERKELEY

DEAR ABBY: How tragic that countless young men and women growing up gay are going to find out from Irving Stone's comments on Michelangelo that to be homosexual is something one is "charged with," and that one can be slandered by being called gay. And even in this day of liberation, the homosexually inclined 15-year-old has to decide whether she/he is: 1) criminal, 2) psychotic or 3) both.

Why did the "experts" Irving Stone consulted neglect to tell him that Michelangelo's nephew changed all the "he's" to "she's" in Michelangelo's erotic sonnets written to young men?

And how could Stone have not heard of Bracci, whom Michelangelo literally drooled for, is beyond me! Sign me . . .

AN ANGRY MINISTER WITH A DEGREE IN ART HISTORY

DEAR ABBY: Whether Michelangelo was a practicing homosexual we may never know, but what difference does it make? If it could be proven that he was, then what? Should we paint over the Sistine Chapel? After all, it shows God reaching out toward Adam — two muscular male figures almost touching! Heavens!!

When will society accept the fact that homosexuals are people? They are doctors, lawyers, clergymen, judges, teachers, artists. They are approximately 10 percent of the population.

Michelangelo was probably the greatest artist the world has ever known, and frankly what he did after he put down his brushes for the day is of no interest to me.

DISGUSTED IN OREGON

DEAR READERS: Alas, perhaps Irving left a few stones unturned.

Five Arraigned On Tax Charges

SEATTLE (AP) — A Tucson man and four others face arraignment here Wednesday on charges they conspired to defraud the government through the promotion and sale of phony income-tax shelters.

Hiram Conley was indicted in Seattle by a federal grand jury last week, along with four other men: Karl J. Dahlstrom of Bryan, Texas, described as the mastermind; and R. Bruce Ripley, David Morris and Gaze Durst, all of Seattle.

The five are charged in connection with selling the tax shelters in Washington, Alaska and Kansas through an organization called the American Law Association.

The indictment charges that the tax-shelter plan sold by the men included instructions and forms for the creation of what the five called "foreign trust organizations."

"These organizations, based on the advice of the defendants, were used by the purchasers to create sham transactions between themselves and the foreign trust organizations, thereby causing their taxable income to be greatly reduced," said John Merkel, the U.S. Attorney for Seattle.

Several of the defendants, including Conley, traveled to the Central American nation of Belize and the Turks and Caicos Islands in the British West Indies to execute documents, the indictment charges.

It claims that between September 1976 and January 1980, Conley and two other defendants gave Dahlstrom $527,000 in checks received from sales of the tax-shelter programs.

Conley is listed in the indictment as a former resident of Seattle and Anchorage, Alaska.

The island of Manhattan was formally surrendered to the British by the Dutch on Nov. 10, 1674. The island formed part of the Dutch colony of New Netherlands.

Lying at the mouth of the Hudson River, the island was strategically important to the British for control of the Hudson Valley. It enabled them to offer resistance to the French, whose American holdings then stretched from the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi.

In Tuesday's NBA Draft...

Dallas To Take Aguirre First

NEW YORK (AP) - Mark Aguirre is headed for Dallas, Isiah Thomas is bound for Detroit and the National Basketball Association draft hasn't even been held yet.

The NBA's 10-round draft doesn't begin until Tuesday morning but the first two selections in it will be Aguirre and Thomas. That became clear Sunday when the Mavericks announced they wanted the 6-foot-5, 212-pound forward from DePaul, then the Pistons followed that announcement by saying they would grab Thomas, a slick 6-1 point guard from NCAA champion Indiana.

Mavericks President DN Carter said Aguirre, a two-time All-America and 1980 college player of the year, "overwhelmed us in his interviews this morning. If he hadn't come in, Isiah would have been our No. 1 pick."

Detroit General Manager Jack McCloskey agreed with the Mavericks that Aguirre and Thomas were the class of this year's draft.

Aside from Aguirre, the strongest forwards appear to be Buck Williams of Maryland, also a junior who has bypassed his final year of collegiate eligibility; Al Wood of North Carolina; Danny Vranes and Tom Chambers of Utah; Orlando Woolridge and Kelly Tripucka of Notre Dame; Howard Wood of Tennessee; Albert King of Maryland; Jeff Lamp of Virginia and Mike McGee of Michigan.

Centers Herb Williams of Ohio State, Ray Tolbert of Indiana, Jay Vincent of Michigan State and Larry Nance of Clemson figure to be converted to big forwards in the NBA.

The top point guards, in addition to Thomas, are Darnell Valentine of Kansas; Franklin Edwards of Cleveland State; Clyde Bradshaw of DePaul; Frank Johnson of Wake Forest, and Mike Olliver of Lamar. Rolando Blackman of Kansas State, Charles Bradshaw of Wyoming, Tracy Jackson of Notre Dame, Ray Blume and Mark Radford of Oregon State and Boo Bowers of American are considered the best big guards.

Steve Johnson of Oregon State, an excellent short-range shooter, is considered the top center prospect, though he is not a good rebounder and there are doubts about his defense.

Bell Grand Slams Texas To Victory

ARLINGTON (AP) - Danny Darwin fired a four-hitter, Buddy Bell blasted a grand slam homer and Al Oliver cracked four hits, including three doubles, as the Texas Rangers bombed Toronto 9-0 Sunday.

Darwin, 7-4, struck out nine and walked four. Blue Jays' starter Jackson Todd, 2-5, took the loss.

Oliver doubled in his first three plate appearances. His fourth hit was a single in the seventh that moved Mickey Rivers, who had singled, to third. Rivers scored on Pat Putnam's single.

The Rangers scored five in the eighth. Mario Mendoza got on with an error and moved to third on Bump Wills' single. Wills stole second, Oliver was walked intentionally and Bell hit his homer off reliever Roy Lee Jackson. Sundberg drew a bases-loaded walk for an RBI.

Summing Stuns Belmont Field

NEW YORK (AP) - Luis Barrera, who has always taken a backseat to his younger brother, Laz, a Hall of Fame trainer, had his moment of glory Saturday when he beat the "Fat Man."

Succeeding where two of his nephew trainers failed in earlier triple crown races this year, Barrera's colt, Summing, sprang an upset in the $284,300 Belmont Stakes, ending Pleasant Colony's bid to become the 12th Triple Crown winner in thoroughbred history.

"I got the 'Fat Man,'" said Barrera after Charles T. Wilson Jr's Summing scored by a neck over Highland Blade in the 113th running of the 1½-mile race. Pleasant Colony, the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner and the 4-5 favorite in the Belmont, finished third, 1½ lengths further back.

Trainer Johnny Campo, the self-described "Fat Man", who predicted that Buckland Farm's Pleasant Colony would sweep the Triple Crown ever since he won the April 18 Wood Memorial, said:

"It was a terribly run race. Pleasant Colony wins the Preakness and he is just three-fifths off the track record. And now he comes back and runs 2:29? There is no logic to that. I don't think I trained him wrong. I just think the pace was too slow.

"Summing is no great horse but it doesn't look like Pleasant Colony is one either. When you have a great horse, you don't make excuses. They just go out and win. Don't blame Pleasant Colony. he's a good horse."

What Pleasant Colony ran into was a fresh colt in Summing, who passed up the Derby because of a skin disease and also skipped the Preakness. He had won the Hill Prince Stakes on the turf at Belmont May 6, then won the Pennsylvania Derby at Keystone on May 25 at odds of 36-1.

Error Plays Key Role In Houston 3-1 Defeat

HOUSTON (AP) - Though the stat sheet may say otherwise, Houston pitcher Bob Knepper blames no one but himself for his first loss in six decisions this year.

Knepper allowed only six hits Sunday in the Astros' 3-1 loss to the New York Mets, but an error charged to third baseman Art Howe played a key part in a two-run seventh inning and Knepper credits himself with the miscue.

After having trouble early on, Knepper retired 12 straight men before Hubie Brooks led off the seventh with a single. After an infield hit by Alex Trevino, Doug Flynn grounded back to Knepper.

The Astros left-hander threw to third base to force Brooks and Howe tried to get Flynn at first, but the ball scooted wide of first baseman Cesar Cedeno, allowing a run to score and putting Flynn on third.

Knepper feels like a throw to second might have started a key double play.

"It was a bonehead play on my part," he said. "I needed to get the two outs, no matter where I got them."

Winning pitcher Mike Scott, 3-4, helped his own cause by scoring Flynn with a sacrifice fly, and Dave Kingman's 13th homer of the year, an eighth inning solo shot, gave New York a 3-0 lead.

Knepper entered the game with a 1.05 earned run average, the best in the National League. He was charged with two earned runs Sunday to move his average to 1.15, still the league's best.

NINE YEAR OLDS

Cubs 15, Yankees 13

Thad Myers rapped a double and a single and Charlie Guynes knocked a triple as the Cubs defeated the Yanks over the weekend, 15-13. Winning pitcher Tracey Braziel also powered a double, and Stoney Hariman added a single for the 2-3 Cubs.

No hits were indicated for the Yankees.

FARM LEAGUE

Cubs 11, Braves 3

Jerry McNew collected three singles and Lee McCathern notched a double and two singles to aid the Cubs past the Braves on Saturday. Stacy Browning added a double and a single; Joe Fink lashed a double; Wade Spencer got two singles; and Brad Newman hit a single for the Cubs, now 6-1 and in second place. Newman, the WP, had 10 strikeouts in four innings.

Kevin Pruitt got the only hit for the Braves, a single. The Braves are 3-4 on the season.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Yankees 10, Indians 0

David Martinez slammed a double and a single; Kyle Guerry cracked two singles; and Mike Rieghoover had a double and one single to push the Yankees past the Indians on Saturday. Mark Velasqauez and David Milhonon also rapped a double each, and Bryan Thrower added a single.

For the Indians, Trey Tippen slapped a double and Lawrence Barerra hit a single.

GIRLS SOFTBALL

Becky Hernandez slammed a triple and two doubles and Susie Lee rapped three doubles as the Outlaws ripped off the Sly Foxes on Friday, 24-7. Leeann Pierce added a double and Dora Hernandez knocked two singles. Winning pitcher Lisa McNew and Wendy Hodge lashed a single each.

Getting hits for the Foxes were Renee Fulford and Debra Pace, two singles each; Vicki Lopez, a double; and Lisa Welch, a single.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Giants 8, Cardinals 4

Aided by doubles from winning pitcher Steven Mack and Bryant Mitchell, the Giants came up with five fifth-inning runs to get past the Cardinals 8-4 Friday. Isrrael Hinojos, Tim Beauchamp, John David Gilbreath and David Trevey added a single each for the winners.

Michael Long hit two singles for the Cards, while Terry Garza, Albert Zamora, Simon Guiterrez, John Pena and Tracey Odom hit a single apiece.

Nyambui Paces UTEP To Title

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - Suleiman Nyambui made his record-setting double look easy, and in doing so made Texas-El Paso's third straight national collegiate track and field championship appear inevitable.

In both the 10,000-meter race Friday night and the 5,000-meter run on Saturday, Nyambui toyed with his opponents - dropping back to chat with UTEP teammates, sprinting out to 20-yard leads, then resuming his fluid lope for mile after mile.

Nyambui's 20 points paced UTEP to a 70-57 margin over Southern Methodist, next best of the 58 teams scoring in the NCAA's outdoor championship meet. Nyambui led a 1-2-3-5 UTEP finish in the 10,000 and a 1-3 in the 5,000, with UTEP getting 40 points in the two events.

His two victories in the distance runs made the wiry Tanzanian the first athlete ever to register 10 individual championships in NCAA meets. Jessie Owens and Jerry Lindgren won eight apiece in their careers. Nyambui has another year of college eligibility.

"I am very proud of that," Nyambui said on learning he had broken the record first set by Owens in 1936.

He said that although he had not been raised with the legend of Owens, he learned to revere him by reading newspapers and books.

Nyambui wasn't the only athlete to draw comparisons with Owens through the meet.

Houston sophomore Carl Lewis won the long jump and the 100-meter dash on Friday - the only person since Owens to win a field event and a track event in the same NCAA meet.

Lewis was Houston's only winner in the meet.

ASU Stops Texas; Vies For Crown

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Arizona State Coach Jim Brock said after a 13-inning College World Series loss to Oklahoma State last Friday that the Cowboys "just plain beat" his top-ranked Sun Devils.

He doesn't expect it to happen twice.

ASU carries its 54-13 record into tonight's NCAA College World Series championship game against the third-ranked Oklahoma State Cowboys, 52-16. The Sun Devils earned a trip to the finals and another shot at Oklahoma State by whipping No. 4 Texas 12-3 in a nationally televised game Sunday.

"I fully expect to win this thing," Brock said after his squad pounded the Longhorns. "I can't recall a better Arizona State ball club than this one."

But Brock isn't writing off the Cowboys, who won the earlier meeting by an 11-10 score.

Arizona State pounded out a record four home runs to eliminate Texas. The 60-11-1 Longhorns fell behind 5-1 early and were overwhelmed with a six-run ASU eighth.

The Devils, who have totaled 111 home runs for the season, had round-trippers from Gib Seibert, Donnie Hill, Ricky Nelson and Bert Martinez. Hill and Nelson hit solo shots while Seibert and Martinez slammed two-run homers in the eighth.

Texas scored in the top of the first and added single scores in the sixth and ninth against Jeff Ahern and Randy Newman. Ahern picked up the his fourth win against two losses while Newman had his first save.

"I threw mostly fastballs," said Ahern, who went five innings. "They weren't hitting them so I kept throwing them."

Texas had little rest between games as the Longhorns had to go 13 innings Saturday night to beat Oklahoma State. That game ended in the early morning Sunday after four hours and 41 minutes.

"The (95-degree) heat was a big factor for Texas. Not getting much sleep and them coming out in this heat and humidity really wore them down."

Oilers Sign Holston

HOUSTON (AP) - Wide receiver Michael Holston, the Houston Oilers' first selection in the third round of the National Football League draft, has come to terms verbally with the club, general manager Ladd Herzeg announced Saturday.

The 6-3, 185-pound Morgan State graduate, the 10th receiver selected this year by the Oilers, caught 62 passes his senior year for 802 yards, with an average of 12.9 yards per catch. He also made four touchdowns.

"Mike's agent Ron Shapiro and him will be in town Monday afternoon to sign the contract," Herzeg said.

Former TSU AD Dies

HOUSTON (AP) - W.J. Wisdom, athletic director and coach at Tarleton State University from 1920 to 1943, died Saturday morning in a Houston hospital. He was 93.

Wisdom, who had been in ill health for the past few years, was instrumental in founding athletic teams at Tarleton State when it was known as John Tarleton Agricultural College.

Wisdom's junior college basketball teams were undefeated from 1934 through 1937, when they won 86 straight games, many against four-year colleges.

Over a seven-year span, his teams won 112 of 113 games. In addition to his basketball record, Wisdom also holds the best football coaching record at Tarleton, 73-35-15.

Wisdom was inducted into the Texs Sports Hall of Fame in 1971. The gymnasium at Tarleton was named in his honor in 1970 and he is to be inducted into the Tarleton Athletic Hall of Fame in October.

NAIA Sets Bat Finals

LUBBOCK (AP) - Defending champion Grand Canyon, aided by a home run by Dave Morris, moved into the championship finals of the NAIA World Series by defeating Azusa Pacific Sunday night, 12-3.

The Arizona team will play Winthrop at 6:30 p.m. today and if Winthrop wins, a second game will be played Tuesday in the double-elimination tournament.

Mike Villegas picked up the victory Grand Canyon while Dave Jensen took the loss for the California club.

In earlier play, No. 1 ranked Southeastern State watched a 9-4 lead dissolve as Winthrop scored seven runs on eight walks and two singles to take an 11-10 victory.

Southeastern, 61-7, trailed 4-3 going into the fifth inning, but got six runs, including a two-run triple from two-time all-America selection Alan Carwright, who also had a double and a home run in a losing effort.

Seventh inning singles by Don Skorup and Danny Poole and eight walks helped Winthrop, 44-12, defeat Southeastern. Steve Davis drew a bases-loaded walk to force in the winning run.

Mike Elliot drew the win in relief for Winthrop and Lew Kennedy was charged with the loss.

OBITUARIES

Hickman

Funeral service was held Sunday afternoon in the First Baptist Church in Haskell for Eugene Hickman, 64, a former Snyder resident.

Mr. Hickman died at 1:15 p. m. Saturday in West Texas Medical Center at Abilene following a brief illness.

The Rev. Mike McKinney, pastor of the church, officiated, and burial was in Willow Cemetery of Haskell, under direction of Holden-McCauley Funeral Home.

He is survived by his wife, Linnie; a daughter, Jane Ann of Dallas; a son, Gay Hickman of Snyder; a stepson, Vernay Teague of Haskell; one grandchild; three step-grandchildren and one step-great-grandchild.

Patterson

Ethel H. Patterson, 63, who lived at 4503 Denison, died at 8:15 p. m. Sunday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital following a long illness.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. David Robertson, pastor of First United Methodist Church, where Mrs. Patterson was a member, will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of the Colonial Hills Baptist Church. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Oklahoma, Mrs. Patterson had lived here since 1966. She was married on Dec. 2, 1935 at Tahoka, to E. T. (Pat) Patterson. He preceded her in death on Oct. 30, 1979.

She was president of Hillside Memorial Gardens.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. W. C. Graves of Snyder; a son, Mike Patterson of Bryan; her mother, Mrs. Vardie Hightower of Snyder; two sisters, Mrs. Bill Seale of Snyder and Mrs. Callie Mai Winslett of Ukiah, Calif.; a brother, Jim Hightower of San Jose, Calif.; five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Man Receives Stab Wounds

H.H. Buchanan received a knife wound to the chest Sunday night during what appeared to be a family dispute. Assault charges are expected to be filed today against a 30 year-old man in connection with the stabbing.

Buchanan was treated at Cogdell Memorial Hospital then admitted for observation.

The Sheriff's department is investigating the incident which occurred outside a residence seven miles southeast of Snyder.

Congress Begins Work On Another Tax Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, whose intense lobbying paid off with victory for his budget blueprint, has his work cut out for him in trying to lure Democrats to his side as Congress begins writing a tax cut package this week.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., the top-ranking elected Democrat in Washington, is conceding nothing to the president this time and is injecting a more personal tone in the rhetorical battle by charging that Reagan doesn't understand the working class "because he doesn't associate with those types of people."

"Right now, we have the votes," O'Neill said Sunday. "Can he (Reagan) take them away from us? Let's see."

The House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates tax legislation in Congress, begins drafting a tax bill Wednesday. But, as with the budget resolution adopted last month, the real battle will come on the House floor.

The committee is almost certain to reject Reagan's plan and send to the floor a Democratic proposal for a two-year reduction in personal tax rates.

Democrats hold a 2-1 edge on the committee, but just 27 Democrats voting with all Republicans on the House floor would give Reagan a victory.

O'Neill said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" that "I don't think we've lost 10" conservatives to the Reagan camp.

"If the vote were tommorrow, we could win it," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "The quicker we can get to the floor, the better off we're going to be, to be perfectly truthful, tbecause I know the power of the presidency."

O'Neill learned about that power in the budget battle after Reagan's personal lobbying campaign helped draw 63 Democrats to vote with unanimous House Republicans and seal a victory for the administration.

James A. Baker III, the White House chief of staff, acknowledged Sunday that "the budget fight was tough but doable. We think that the tax fight is tougher but nevertheless doable."

Speaking on CBS's "Face the Nation," Baker disputed O'Neill's head count. "We have, according to the counts of the members of the Conservative Democratic Forum, some 15 to 20 members of that group who are firm for the president's tax package," Baker said. "I think in the final analysis we will prevail."

White House counselor Edwin Meese III, responding on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, called O'Neill's comments "absolutely untrue" and added, "I don't think the speaker really believes what he's saying."

Labor Day Drawing Set...

Couple To Raffle Home

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Want to buy a $115,000 house for $100?

In what real estate ads would call "a unique opportunity," John and Carilyn Redman are trying to raffle off their 13-year-old brick, Cape Cod-style, five-bedroom house in the Washington suburb of Fairfax, Va.

The Redmans had tried to sell the house since January, but like many other Americans, they found that high interest rates have scared off buyers.

So they had an idea: They would raffle it off at $100 a ticket.

On Monday, 2,000 tickets at $100 a shot went on sale at the Annandale (Va.) Boys Club, which is sponsoring the event.

The drawing will be held on Labor Day.

Redman said that after tickets are sold he will take the first $115,000, his asking price for the house, and the boys club will get eveything above that — $85,000 if all tickets sell.

And there's an added bonus for taking the chance. Because the club is a registered non-profit, charitable organization, the price of the raffle tickets is tax deductible.

Redman, 37, is a U.S. patent agent who decided he could offer his wife and four children a better quality of life in a smaller town where the air is cleaner, the cost of living is less and the commute to work isn't so frustrating.

"I love my job here, and I love my neighborhood," Redman said. "But it was the 45-minute commute in between that I couldn't take. And we couldn't afford to move closer in."

The couple first started thinking about moving last summer, when they vacationed in New England and saw houses which were bigger and more attractive than their own — at prices they could afford.

"We figured that if we could afford that kind of house somewhere else, what are we doing here in D.C.?" Redman said.

Housing prices in the Washington metropolitan area are among the highest in the country. The average price of houses sold in Fairfax City in 1980 was $83,100, according to city spokesman Tom Welle.

When he returned from vacation, Redman contacted numerous organizations that employed patent examiners. Last fall, he was offered a job with the Army in Fort Monmouth, N.J.

"I went to visit and it wasn't dirty. The air was clean," Redman said. "We said 'Sure.'"

So they put their own house on the market — all five bedrooms, sun room, wall-to-wall carpet and air conditioning — and there it sat, month after frustrating month.

TSTA Officials Claim Clayton Interfered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas State Teachers Association officials say Speaker Bill Clayton should have kept out of TSTA's conflict with the rival Texas Classroom Teachers Association.

Clayton gave much of the credit for educators' successes in the 67th Legislature to the politically more conservative TCTA, which pulled out of the TSTA last year.

He and three other legislators participated in a TCTA news conference on Tuesday and said the TCTA scored big because it was more willing to compromise than the larger and more militant TSTA.

"It is regrettable the speaker has injected himself into our organizational rivalry. What he said was not true. It is preposterous for anybody to claim the TCTA was responsible for passing all the legislation. The TSTA is five times larger," said Dora Scott of Houston, TSTA president.

TSTA claims 95,000 members while TCTA says it has 29,000. Ms. Scott said 80 percent of TCTA's members also belong to TSTA.

John Donaldson, TSTA's chief lobbyist, suggested Clayton's motivation might be connected to TSTA's defeat of the speaker's team on a pay raise amendment and its successes in last year's legislative campaigns.

"I am not always sure what motivates the speaker. ... Perhaps we negotiated a little too tough. .. Had we not held in there, I suspect we would not have gotten the pay raises the teachers sought," said Donaldson.

He said 80 percent of the legislative candidates endorsed by TSTA won their elections.

Ms. Scott said TSTA intends to suupport legislative candidates in the 1982 elections.

TCTA was a division of TSTA and followed the larger organization's lead in the Legislature until the two organizations split last year, partly over TSTA's decision to lobby for collective bargaining rights for teachers.

Annette Coote, TSTA public information director, said the TCTA representative assembly had endorsed collective bargaining for five years and repudiated that position only this year.

Both TSTA and TCTA claimed credit for legislative approval of increased teacher salaries, group health insurance for teachers and a "fair dismissal" bill.

The pay raise amounts to 8.5 percent a year, plus experience "step-ups" bringing the package to 26.6 percent.

"Had we been as 'compromising as some teacher organizations, salary increases would be 6.8 percent instead of the approved 8.5 percent plus increments per year. ... TSTA believes there is little room for compromise when we are facing a very real teacher shortage in the mid-1980s," Ms. Scott said.

Hash Is Very Unusual Game

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The San Salvador chapter is no longer heard from and the one in Peking has been disappointing, but growing numbers of Hash House harriers are running and drinking around the world.

The Hash, as members call it, is distant cousin to a game from Victorian England in which a pack of "hounds" try to follow a trail of paper left by a "hare."

As adapted by a few British colonials in tropical Malaya in 1937, the beer at the end of the run became important — some say more important — than the run itself.

It's not likely to become an Olympic event, but the Hash has grown rapidly in recent years. There are at least 221 chapters in 51 countries compared to 100 groups in 25 countries in 1978, says John M.B. Duncan of the mother chapter in Kuala Lumpur. World membership is at least 20,000, he says.

"We haven't heard from the people in San Salvador for six or eight months. That's defunct for sure," he says of the Hash in strife-torn El Salvador.

The Chinese capital posed different problems. "They seem to have come to a stop after one or two runs. It apparently was hard to explain why they wanted to scatter paper around Peking. We also heard that crowds of the curious gathered and runners had to stop and describe what they were doing and shake hands before they could resume."

The founding chapter, one of five in the Kuala Lumpur area, has 120 members who pay monthly dues of $6.52.

They run after work each Monday, covering five to seven miles.

The hare and a helper scout the area in advance. A good trail keeps the pack together for the first three-quarters of the run.

Clever laying of "checks" to confuse and slow the harriers is necessary for a satisfactory event, Duncan says.

The paper trail ends abruptly at checks. It must resume within a radius of 100 yards, but the continuation may be hidden from the searching harriers by trees or undergrowth. Leaders of the pack shout "checking" and fan out to discover where the trail resumes. When found, the cry "on, on" rallies the runners.

The original rules gave the hares a 10-minute head start. If the pack overtakes them while they are scattering paper, the hares are supposed to be stripped of their shorts and left to fend for themselves. This has not happened in recorded Hash history, says Duncan, and in fact the hares are given plenty of time to plan a crafty trail.

For the past 10 years migration to the western part of the United States has been on the increase. In the past five years the increase has amounted to 53 percent. In the South or Sun Belt, migration has decreased by 25 percent, according to U.S. census data.

Private Plane Makes An Emergency Landing

DALLAS (AP) — A private plane skidded into a major intersection today after making an emergency landing just east of Love Field, authorities said.

One of the two men aboard the plane suffered "a scratch or something," but no other injuries were reported, said police spokeswoman Vickie Eicker.

The pilot was identified as Robert Starr, 38, of Dallas, and the co-pilot was Robert McMillan, 30, of Arlington, police said.

The twin-engine Piper Navajo, owned by Dallas Piper, had taken off for Oklahoma City and Tulsa, "but about two-thirds of the way down the runway, the pilot lost the power in the left engine," Ms. Eicker said. "He was already about 150 feet off the ground and the landing gear was already back inside the plane."

The modern dentist's chair was invented by Waldo Hanchett in 1848.

Lefever Raps Percy For Rejecting Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ernest W. Lefever today criticized Sen. Charles Percy's handling of confirmation hearings that resulted in Lefever's rejection by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and his withdrawal as President Reagan's nominee for human rights chief.

Interviewed on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" show, Lefever said Percy, the committee chairman, had "joined with strong opponents from the beginning in attempting to block this nomination."

He said Percy failed to support Reagan, the president of his party, and to allow a debate of the human rights issue. Instead, Lefever said, the hearings under the Illinois Republican's chairmanship focused on charges leveled by "fringe group" opponents who mounted a "campaign of slander and falsehoods" to derail the nomination.

"When these highly organized groups put out these false charges, honest people started to chase phantoms instead of looking at the president's policy and the actual record of the president's one and only nomination for the policy," Lefever said.

Lefever did not identify the groups he said had created "an image, an untrue and grotesque image" that led to his rejection by the committee Friday on a 13-4 vote, with Percy joining the opponents. A few hours later, Lefever withdrew as Reagan's nominee to be assistant secretary of state for human rights.

Among the charges, which Lefever denied today, was that he showed less concern for human rights violations in authoritarian countries than by the Soviet Union and other communist regimes.

Court Upholds Convictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact the murder convictions and death sentences of two Texas Death Row inmates.

The justices turned down appeals filed on behalf of Muriel Don Crawford Jr. and Doyle Edward Skillern.

Crawford was convicted in the Oct. 22, 1975, shotgun slaying of Edith Whitfield. Police said she was killed during the robbery of an Amarillo grocery store by Crawford and David Mabra.

Skillern was convicted in the Oct. 23, 1974, shooting death of Patrick Randel, a narcotics agent for the Texas Department of Public Safety, whose body was found in Five Oak County.
