Americans sentenced

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Two Americans were sentenced today to 10 to 17 years in prison for the attempted murder of an Indian Embassy official. They said they were innocent and would appeal.

Steven Michael Dwyer, 28, of Wichita, Kan., and Victoria Sheppard, 31, of Maryland, also were ordered to pay the victim, Jyoti Sarup Vaid, $13,333 plus the cost of the three-month trial.

Vaid was stabbed in the neck and chest outside the embassy Feb. 7 by three assailants. During the trial, the accused admitted they were at the scene of the crime but denied any part in the stabbing. They said they were there because they wanted to get visas to enter India.

Both belong to Ananda Marga, an Indian religious sect whose leader is jailed in India on murder charges. Other members of the sect have been arrested elsewhere for attacking Indian officials and property to protest the arrest of the Anand Marg leader.

Judge Onofre Villaluz ordered the Defense Department and the Philippine constabulary to investigate members of Anand Marg, which claims a following of 50,000 in the Philippines, as possible "security risks."

Villaluz identified the group as an international terrorist organization with "diabolical ends."

The case revolved around a salary difference between the female deputies and other deputies.

Angola aid debated

Carter still to decide

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two outgunned African movements are fighting a lonely struggle against Soviet arms and Cuban troops in an attempt to topple the Marxist government of Angola.

U.S. officials have discussed the possibility of sending aid to the two guerrilla forces but President Carter has not yet decided whether to ask Congress to repeal a prohibition against any such action, White House spokesman Jody Powell said Wednesday in Washington.

Together the two guerrilla groups claim the political-tribal support of roughly half the six million people of one of black Africa's potentially richest nations.

They are the loosely allied National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, known by its Portuguese initials as UNITA, the stronger of the two movements; and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola.

They oppose President Agostinho Neto's Popular Movement or the Liberation of Angola which took power in a three-way civil war in 1975 with massive Soviet military support spearheaded by Cuban troops. The war broke out after Angola gained independence from Portugal.

Once the jewel of Portugal's African empire, "revolutionary" Angola today is in economic shambles despite vast wealth in oil, diamonds, iron and other minerals and a once booming coffee crop. There have been recurring but unconfirmed reports that Neto is in poor health with either a heart condition or cancer. He is 55.

UNITA is led by Jonas Savimbi, 44, who enjoys the strong support of his fellow Ovimbundu tribesmen in south-central Angola. The estimated two million Ovimbundu are the largest ethnic group in the tribally torn country, comprising about 33 percent of the population.

The National Front, UNITA's ally of convenience, is the oldest liberation movement in Angola, founded by Holden Roberto in 1954 and then called the Angolan People's Union. It was initially formed to advance the interests of the estimated two million Bakongo people in northern Angola, which remains Roberto's political stronghold.

The Bakongo overlap into neighboring Zaire and the Congo Republic and are descendants of the largest tribal kingdom in pre-colonial Africa.

Neto's Popular Movement draws most of its support from the estimated 1.5 million Mbundu people of north-central Angola stretching from Luanda, the capital, eastward. The Popular Movement clings to power thanks to the estimated 19,000 Cuban troops and some 6,000 Cuban, East European and Soviet advisers helping his Marxist regime.

Western intelligence sources recently described Neto as "desperate" but unwilling to seek a political solution to what is essentially a tribal war now in its third year.

Western analysis says UNITA has destabilized much of the southern third of the country. There also have been recent reports of heavy fighting in northern Angola.

At one point in the civil war in 1975, U.S. arms supplied by the Central Intelligence Agency were reaching UNITA and the National Front via Zaire, which provided bases for Roberto's movement. Savimbi insists on operating inside Angola without external bases.

UNITA also received direct South African military support for a period in 1975.

Savimbi and Roberto are believed to be still receiving secret support from South Africa, France and Zaire.

Savimbi has repeatedly called for Murder victim is oilfield worker

A body found partially buried under gravel 15 miles east of Andrews on the Big Spring highway has been identified as an Andrews County oilfield worker.

Richard V. Warren, Jr. of Arkansas, had lived in Andrews less than a week and was working for Western Oil Transport.

The body was identified by fellow employees. They first thought he had just drifted off to another area to work, but since the description fit the new employee, they decided to check it out.

A pickup belonging to Warren, who was 34 years old, is missing and believed stolen, according to Sheriff Bud Gregory of Andrews.

The pickup is being described as a Royal Blue Chevrolet El Camino with 1978 Arkansas tags DOY 227.

Western aid in the form of arms to match the firepower of the Soviet-supplied Popular Movement.

"No one can assure us that tomorrow (the Soviets and Cubans) will not intervene in another independent country," he remarked two years ago. "The face Russia is showing in Angola should be a warning to the continent."

Budget overdrawn

City dad's 'in the red'

By JAMES WERRELL

For the first time in many years, the City of Big Spring has extensively overdrawn its budget.

The city is overdrawn by $54,884.57 in its Water and Sewer Fund; $13,375.81 in its Housing and Community Development Fund; and $9,821.45 in its Airport Fund. According to Tom Ferguson, city finance director, overdrafts were a surprise in the first, taken care of in the second, and inevitable in the third.

"This is the first year that the water and sewer fund has been overdrawn since I have been working here (nearly four years)," said Ferguson. "It's just a matter of large, unforeseeable expenditures."

Ferguson explained that a digester for the Water Treatment Plant, costing over $30,000, represents most of the overdraw. Additional unexpected expenditures were incurred by water line improvements at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

"Our heavy water usage months are coming up, and water sales should help a lot in making up the overdrafts," said Ferguson. "In the meantime, money from the General Fund will be transferred to Water And Sewer to cover the difference. It will be paid back later," he added.

The overdraft in the Housing and Community Development Fund has already been covered by a check from the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"That overdraft was expected, and we got a check for $26,000 from H.U.D. Wednesday to cover it," said Ferguson.

Ferguson does not expect the Airport Fund to go into the black anytime soon.

"We just have a lot of expenditures for the airport that can't be avoided. For example, we just allocated $10,000 for fuel out there. The council will have to appropriate money from the General Fund to cover these expenses," he said.

When expenses were budgeted at the beginning of the fiscal year, officials knew it would be tight.

"We knew it was borderline. It is usual to go 15 or 20 percent over the budget. We will just have to cut back expenditures in areas where it won't hurt so badly," Ferguson concluded.

Offbeat: Bit unusual

NEW HAVEN (AP) — "Pomp and Circumstance" was played and the graduates wore black caps and gowns, but the diplomas handed out to 40 seniors at Yale University were a bit unusual.

They received "Bachelor of Arts and Leisure" degrees for learning what organizer Wilder Knight called "a practical skill." The skill? Juggling.

The "commencement," coming a day before the university awards degrees to 1,050 Yale seniors, was planned by Knight, a professional juggler, to show parents what their sons and daughters learned at Yale.

He told parents who had gathered after Yale's Class Day exercises that "after four years and $28,000 you may ask what your kids have learned. We really have no practical skills, except we can juggle."

Then, five at once, Knight's proteges tossed balls, tins and even bagels into the air.

Knight, a senior from St. Petersburg, Fla., even sent engraved invitations to his mock ceremony. He won't have to put his juggling skills to immediate use. He plans to study history in Sweden next year on a fellowship grant.

Procedure to have VA payments sent to bank quite simple

The number of Government checks which are lost or stolen each month could be reduced considerably if more people would have such payments made directly to their banks or savings associations.

According to J.D. Henderson, Veterans Service Officer for Veterans Affairs Commission, persons now in receipt of disability or death benefits from the U.S. Veterans Administration may have such payments sent direct to their bank for deposit into their checking or savings account.

The procedure to have VA payments sent to a bank is quite simple. It requires only that the veteran, widow, or parent who is receiving the payment contact their bank. All banks and savings associations have the U.S. Treasury forms necessary to request an electronic funds transfer of monthly benefits directly to a personal account.

The Treasury form must be completed showing the name of the person, the bank account number, and the name and correct mailing address of the financial institution where the payment is to go.

The banks will ask the individual for their VA file number and their social security number, and will complete the form for signature.

Following completion, the bank will send the form direct to the VA for action. All VA claimants should be certain the bank is aware of the proper VA office to which the form is to be sent.

Anyone who is not sure where their VA records are located may obtain such information by taking their next VA check to their local Veterans Service Officer or any VA office.

Coded information on the check itself indicates the location of the VA claim folder, which is also the office where the request for direct deposit must be sent upon completion.

Daniel in Big Spring to campaign again

Judge J. Neil Daniel, who led the ticket in the May 6 Democratic Primary for the Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals, was back in Big Spring Thursday to campaign for the run-off June 3.

He also visited the local Kiwanis Club, along with members of his club from Abilene. He once served as lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis.

Presently district judge of the 104th District Court in Abilene, he pointed out here "Qualification is the only issue and that covers many factors. Background, integrity, diligence, the ability to work hard, training and experience, along with common sense make up the qualifications of an Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals."

"I have been involved in the State Judiciary system for more than nine years and prior to that, a trial lawyer. Just as a candidate should have trial experience prior to becoming a district judge, appellate judges should have judicial experience as a district judge."

Daniel is a member of the State Adult Probation Commission appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas; and a member of the Bar-Press Relations Committee of the State Judiciary, all of which adds to judicial experience as a member of the State Judicial system. Daniel claims, "There is absolutely no substitute for experience, and being the only candidate for Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals with State Judicial experience, I feel that I am the best qualified candidate."

The candidate points out that decisions in the Appellate Courts are made from a different perspective. "I have served as a state trial judge, making decisions from that forum, and I anticipate a new challenge as an Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals."

Chicano youths to help clean park of litter

John Hilario, captain of the Big Spring Chapter of the Brown Berets, urges all chicano youths to join the Brown Berets in a litter drive which is being conducted Friday by the Beautification Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs.

"We'll meet tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. at the Westside Community Center," Hilario said. "We'd like all of the chicano youth to join us there."

Hilario said the group will then meet other members of the litter drive at 9 a.m. at the Old Settlers Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park.

The litter drive is being held to free public areas of Big Spring during "Fix Up, Clean Up Week."

Seven tourists killed in bus, truck accident

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Seven American tourists were killed and four seriously injured when a load of lumber broke free from a truck and sliced through their bus in the mountains of central Norway, police reported. The victims' names were not immediately available.

Witnesses said the truck skidded into the bus on a twisting mountain road Wednesday and that the wood broke free and rammed through the left side of the bus. They said the bus driver was able to keep the bus on the road, preventing it from plunging into a river bed below.

Police said the group, made up of 14 American couples, was headed for Tyin, a lake resort town about 100 miles northwest of Oslo.

One thing that is often overlooked when we pass out accolades among the young folks is the long, long road to a state championship in any of the University of the Interscholastic League events.

Ask Jan Whittington. She just won first place in the state among AAAA schools in prose interpretation.

To get to that level, you go a long way. Jan has worked on that particular event for three years.

During that time, she and all of the other speech students in various events enter scores of tournaments. They work for hours selecting selections, or in the case of debate — hunting and filing information.

Then they finally reach the district contest where they compete with some of the toughest high schools in the state. They advance from there to regional and from there — if they are in the first two places — to state.

When you get down there with the best in the state from every region, it is really tough. That's where Jan won and she was the only Big Spring High state level winner this year.

Out around the area, Grady had a winner in science, in Mark Tate and Garden City had a girl at state in typing in Darlene Schwartz. Forsan had the first and second place debate teams in Ron Roberson and Steve Cowley and Don Roberson and Carrie Poyner.

I don't know that there is any way to point out how hard these kids work.

Through the years in three different West Texas towns I have watched speech students, math students, science students and other rise early and stay up late in these events. And not just for Music students who make it to a district, regional or state level in band or choir spend hours working on their skills. They all are great. I've had another daughter who was all state in band.

But often overlooked are any of the literary winners. And this year in all the excitement of the contest when many folks were calling in results for the state contest from many surrounding towns, nobody called in any results on Jan. Apparently everybody thought somebody else had announced the good news that Jan was a state winner.

I must say for speech people, they were noticeably quiet, but we want to belatedly point out that this girl was best in Texas this year — and we're proud of her — out where I ride fence.

PLANTING TIME — Farmers were taking advantage of recent moisture to plant cotton. They were admitting more rain is necessary in the very near future to get the crop up. Albert Long, shown above, is planting his 2,400 acres with cotton and "hoping for more rain." Prior to the recent rains, most farmers had given up any hope of planting a crop this year.

Downing will address Big Spring Rotary Club

Members of the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club and guests will celebrate the first anniversary of the club's charter tonight at a banquet at the Big Spring Country Club.

Dinner speaker will be Delbert Downing of Snyder. In addition to being a Rotarian with over 30 years of perfect attendance, Downing is one of the most versatile after dinner speakers in the southwest. Downing was born on a farm and his love and respect for the land and for rural living seeps into his messages in a warm and often amusing way. He is a product of a one room school, small rural elementary schools, and Rice University.

Downing has been a chain store manager, a chamber of commerce manager, and is now a member of a livestock feed manufacturing family. He has always found time to contribute to the community in which he lives. He is an honorary Future Home-maker of America, a State Farmer, has received the Silver Beaver Award from the Boy Scouts of America. He is an honorary Lion as well as an active Rotarian.

He is an active layman in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) having served as president of the Christian Men's Fellowship of the State of Texas. Downing is sometimes called a humorist, sometimes a philosopher, and refers to himself as a country talker. His confidence in America, in his fellowman and in today's youth is stimulating.

A part of the evening's program will be a slide presentation on the first year of the club. The presentation was produced by Ron Cowling, Richard Lowstetter, the Rev. Bill Smythe, and Terry Wegman. Providing entertainment will be Ken Carney, Carrie Wheeler, and Van Johnson.

A very important part of the evening will be the installation of new officers. Ron Douglas will be installed as president; Rev. Smythe as vice president; Richard Lowstetter, secretary; John R. Fish, treasurer; and Mike Faulkner, sergeant-at-arms. Scott McLaughlin has served as president this past year with Corky Harris serving as secretary. New board members will be Mike Bruner, Terry Wegman, Jack Jones and Corky Harris.

Ralph McLaughlin, past district governor of District 573 will be the installing officer. Special guests will be Mrs. McLaughlin and Dr. and Mrs. Ray Tatum, of the Big Spring Rotary Club. The Rev. Smythe has served as chairman of the anniversary banquet and installation of officers.

Lions learn about three basic types of bonds

Downtown Lions got a briefing on bonds at their meeting Wednesday in the Cactus Room at Howard College.

Dan Wilkins of Edward D. Jones & Co., explained the three basic types of bonds — government, corporate and municipal — to club members. Bonds, he noted, are guaranteed rates of interest plus return of principal, and sometimes they are secured by properties (mortgage) and sometimes simply by good faith (debentures).

Prices paid for bonds, quite as much as specified interest rates, will determine the current and the maturity earning yield (earnings). Moreover, the type of bond may have a hearing, for municipals generally are not subject to federal income tax. This means that someone in a 50 per cent income tax bracket might find a 6 per cent municipal actually returned 12 per cent. Also, if bonds are bought at discount, at maturity only half of the increase to face value of the bond is subject to tax because the increase is a capital gain.

Still another quirk of the bond market, said Wilkins, is that when interest rates go up, bond prices go down, and vice versa. This doesn't

Hope celebrates 75th birthday

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Bob Hope's 75th birthday party attracted so many celebrities Wednesday night that comedian Mark Russell quipped, "Somewhere in Hollywood tonight there are two tourists from Alexandria wondering where all the stars are."

They came from Hollywood and elsewhere to celebrate at a noisy, happy party held in a local restaurant owned by a Hope relative. Earlier in the evening, Hope was honored by President Carter at a White House reception.

"I love him dearly," Dorothy Lamour said at the party. "That's why I'm here."

"I'd go any place for Robert," said Lucille Ball. Elizabeth Taylor Warner called him "one of the most unique people in the whole world."

TMA mulls coin-operated blood pressure machines

Coin-operated machines have added medical care to the long list of food, laundry, entertainment and other services they can perform. But doctors still are trying to decide whether or not coin-operated blood pressure machines will be a problem or a blessing, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) says.

Several factors cause some physicians to be concerned. For instance, the machine might have a mechanical malfunction and give bad readings. An inaccurate reading that was too low might cause someone with high blood pressure to think he or she was fine again and stop taking medication. An inaccurate reading on the high side could cause unnecessary concern and a needless visit to the doctor for a healthy person.

Machine manufacturers say they recommend regular maintenance on the machines but have no guarantees that the work is done, American Medical News says.

Human factors also can cause errors. A Canadian study says people with fat or large arms or hardening of the arteries may get inaccurate readings from even trained professionals using dependable equipment. The difference between the mechanical measurements and readings by trained people is that the trained person should be able to notice any variables and use this knowledge to interpret results.

Exercise, stress and many other factors are variables that can cause even a healthy person's blood pressure to rise temporarily. If a person gets a high reading once, it does not mean he or she has high blood pressure. A trained person can judge whether or not blood pressure needs to be checked in a variety of circumstances over a period of time.

Advantages of the coin-operated machines include easy access to screening and increased awareness of high blood pressure and its dangers. Since an estimated 23-25 million people in the U.S. have high blood pressure and more than a third do not know it, increased awareness about the disease is extremely important, TMA says.

People concerned about their blood pressure can see their physicians, use the coin-operated machines or contact some city-county health departments, local American Heart Association chapters, senior citizen programs and other groups that may offer free blood pressure measurements.

A quality kit for home use also may be helpful for people whose doctors have advised them about high blood pressure. TMA says. People purchase several million dollars worth of measuring devices for home use each year. Quality and accuracy can vary on these kits, so shop carefully. Medical supply companies should stock several brands often used in doctors' offices. Remember you may sacrifice quality and accuracy by buying a bargain-priced kit.

Readings also can be off if an untrained person uses a kit at home. Get a trained person to show you how to use the kit properly, TMA says.

Weather Thunderstorms prevail in West

by the Associated Press

Thunderstorms roamed over West Texas late last night, but dissipated early today and partly cloudy to cloudy skies were the rule over most of the west part of the Lone Star State and fair skies in the east.

Warm, humid air continued to feed northward over much of the state from the Gulf of Mexico.

The National Weather Service predicted another day of warm temperatures. The thermometer recorded readings in the 60s and 70s statewide before dawn, and afternoon highs in the 80s and 90s were expected.

But widely scattered thunderstorms are expected to move across western and southern sections of Texas this afternoon and evening. The Panhandle and South Plains can expect a few severe thunderstorms later today, the weather service said.

One company takes positive action

Sears has taken some positive action to contain the vulgarity of television by withdrawing its advertising from two video series — "Charlie's Angels" and "Three's Company."

The decision may indicate that, more and more, businesses that do business on a national scale are responding to objections raised by an increasing number of parents over the programs that are flooding the nation's living rooms in prime time.

Edward R. Telling, chairman of the board for Sears, Roebuck and Co., dictated letters to the three major networks earlier this month, stating:

"IN RECENT weeks we have become increasingly concerned by news reports that prime time television for next fall will risk offending a large segment of the public." Telling them retracted Sears' policy "not to have Sears advertising appear in television programs containing excessive violence or antisocial behavior."

"Since the adoption of these strengthened advertising guidelines early in 1977," Telling wrote, "we have removed 125 commercials from programs which are unacceptable under these guidelines. In our most recent complete review of television participation, it was decided to withdraw Sears commercials from the two additional series which have fallen below those standards."

Telling did not identify the programs by name but it was later reported in metropolitan daily papers that the two programs Telling found objectionable were the aforementioned series.

All readers may not be offended by such programs and some, indeed, might like them very much. The dramas depicting life styles most of us consider morally objectionable are bound to make deep impressions upon the children allowed to watch them, that such behavior deserves to be copied.

Doubtless, Sears officials acted because the public reaction has been strong and consistent.

"NONETHELESS, A number of organizations have announced studies of television programming, and we are disturbed still to have been identified among leading sponsors of violence or sex or television. While we do not agree with some of their findings, we do believe their expressions is a measure of discontent which merits thoughtful consideration."

Telling went on to say that Sears has agreed to help form a Business Advisory Council to the PTA's TV Action Center.

In the past, the television industry has ignored the public's demands as if listeners didn't matter. Perhaps officials in the medium understand this kind of protest better, the loss of potential revenue.

Biggest footprints

Around the rim

James Werrell

The third smallest county in the state has some of the biggest footprints around.

Tiny Somervell County is the home of the Dinosaur Valley State Park which contains a unique collection of fossilized dinosaur tracks.

As the State Parks and Wildlife Service tells it, the tracks were made during the Cretaceous period nearly 100 million years ago.

The region was part of an ancient, marshy, coastal plain, and dinosaurs, including the area left their mark in lime mud. Over the years, deposits of clay and silt were washed into the tracks.

AS THE WATER rose, it brought more layers of deposits, and the action of heat, pressure and chemicals turned the mud into limestone. After millions of years and a gradual uplifting of the land, erosion began to eat away at the layers covering the tracks.

This bed of limestone bearing tracks at the park is part of what is known as the Glen Rose formation.

During the 1930s, several of the larger tracks were excavated and placed on exhibit at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City and the Texas Memorial Museum in Austin. Other prints were plundered by individuals or spoiled by erosion over the years.

But plenty remains for the curious dinosaur hunter.

The tracks are located in a riverbed inside the park, but can easily be seen most of the year since the river is usually so low. Viewers can hike a trail down to the river, then cross on stepping stones to see the evidence of dinosaurs roaming the earth more closely.

The park also provides a spectacular overlook, 25 feet over the river which affords a great, birdseye view of the prints.

THREE TYPES OF tracks, representing the sauropods, theropods and ornithomys, may be seen along the riverbed. The largest, the sauropods, were plant-eaters, usually represented by the brontosaurus-like dinosaur also known as the thunder lizard.

No light-footed twinkies, these beasts left fossil prints 38 inches in length. The print is broad and four-toed.

The lighter, but fierce, meat-eating, theropods that walked on their hind legs left tracks about 25 inches long and 17 inches wide, indicating three slender toes with long, sharp claws.

The third type of track was made by the ornithomys, or duck-billed dinosaurs, which left blunt, three-toed footprints.

If you decide to go dinosaur hunting at the park, you will have the added bonus of a well planned, scenic campground. Fishing and swimming are also popular in the Paluxy River that flows through the park, and nature trails for hikers and naturalists abound.

Plus, even with the signatures of dinosaurs all around, you'll never forget you're in Texas with a resident herd of longhorn cattle grazing near by.

Why Wallace quit

Evans, Novak

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — As he has done throughout the past six years, George Corley Wallace stifled the tragic and courageous overtones that enveloped him when he appeared here May 18, just two nights after his stunning withdrawal from the U.S. Senate race.

Addressing a state convention of nursing home owners, Gov. Wallace instead used rough humor in explaining his surprise announcement in Mobile May 16. Saying that he is a teetotaler, the governor added: "I believe somebody put a drink in my iced tea that night, because the next thing you know I was making a speech and saying I'm not running for the Senate. So, now I don't know how to get back in."

THAT WAS just a joke, of course, and not the real reason. But neither was the serious explanation he gave newsmen here, as elsewhere since his May 16 announcement, that "I just don't think I'd feel right in Washington being surrounded by so many pointy-heads." Actually, this claim that Wallace would consider himself alienated as U.S. senator No. 100 is just a cover story.

The real reason is brutally simple: the assassination attempt of May 15, 1972, at a Laurel, Md., shopping center has belatedly removed George Wallace from the mainstream of politics. While the spirit is willing, the flesh is not. He has finally admitted to himself he could not meet the physical demands placed on him as a U.S. senator dragging around what he privately calls "my half-dead body."

That private admission concludes a six-year struggle by Wallace to stay alive politically amid first the torment of pain and finally the permanence of paralysis. To have admitted how hard that fight had been would have destroyed him politically. Besides, he has worried about discouraging other paraplegics (the reason he has been so obscure about explaining his withdrawal from the Senate campaign). But privately he knows he was paralyzed too late in life to ever become completely self-sufficient.

Political opponents and a few former allies have been painting a bleak picture of Wallace on the eve of a possibly losing Senate campaign: distraught because of his recent divorce, physically haggard and deaf rather than ever, living in the past, reliving his famous triumphs in national politics and showing little interest in current affairs.

THE WALLACE we saw here May 18 and in nearby Decatur May 19 bore no resemblance to that stereotype. His appearance and spirit were the best in years, his deafness no worse than usual. Still the master campaigner, he had been confident of winning the Senate election, an expectation shared generally by Alabama's political insiders.

As for living in the past, Wallace seems vitally interested in a broad spectrum of national events far removed from his current role as populist governor — battling the conservative state senate. With wit and enthusiasm, he discussed SALT, neutron weapons, inflation, tax reform, presidential style, the Midwest, Communist China, Joe Califano and, especially, turbulence in Africa and its impact on U.S. security and economics.

But Wallace in private conversation now repeatedly returns to that spring afternoon in Maryland that "was the end of me" in politics. Time and again he repeats the phrase, "If I was on my feet," in speculating on the might-have-beens. It truly would have been a different political world had Wallace not been in a wheelchair.

"IF I WAS on my feet," Wallace says, he would have been on the 1972 ticket, for vice president if not president.

"Let's be reasonable... if you won't allow me to make this most humble purchase..."

"Regrettably, you may force me to first... buy this."

The bladder has its own danger triangle

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please explain trigonitis infection? What causes it? Can it cause back pain, frequency of urination? What kind of doctor specializes in this, and why is it so difficult to treat? — M.R.

The "trigone" is the medical term for a triangle area of the bladder formed by the two ureters from the kidneys (ureters) and the outlet below (urethra). This area is a common site of infection, which is called "trigonitis." This distinguishes it from "cystitis," which is the general term for bladder infection.

It is particularly subject to infection from either below or above, from the kidneys and ureters above or from the urinary outlet channel below. Treatment depends on the infecting organism and its origination. Backache may occur with trigonitis, especially if the kidneys are involved. It is more common in females (as are all bladder infections) because of a shorter urethra which provides a ready pathway for invading organisms. A urologist specializes in treating such ailments.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can sinus infection interfere with hearing? What are the chances of my nasal polyps growing back? I had them removed by surgery, but understand I may have to go through this again in the future. — P.G.

Sinus infection may interfere indirectly with hearing. This happens when infectious material gets to a point adjacent to the eardrum or to the eustachian tube opening to cause swelling there.

To your second question about polyps, yes, they tend to regrow after surgery to remove them. "Regrow" may not be the proper term, though. Polyps usually grow in cauliflower-like clusters and at varying rates. If a very small polyp remains behind after surgery, it can be the "seed" of a new crop. This is not uncommon. Also, it is important to remove the basic cause of the polyps, such as an allergy or a bent septum — anything that tends to limit nasal drainage and thus promote polyp formation. For a discussion of this, see my booklet, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble." Send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had polio as a child. My left leg now is a little shorter than the other because the muscles there are a lot smaller. I'm told a health spa can help me rebuild these muscles so that the one leg will be the same length as the other. Do you think this is possible? I am 26, male, and am not handicapped by this. Your column is great, and I learn a lot from it every day. — B.D.

I doubt this can be accomplished, from what you tell me. Permanent damage to the nervous system suffered in polio cannot be treated, and muscles served by the nerves involved are permanently weakened. However, muscles that are not affected may be developed to improve leg size. But don't expect the shorter leg to equal the other in length.

Before you go into any program of this sort you should consult a physician to evaluate your leg muscles. It would be preferable to consult the doctor familiar with your case and the records. Examination will show to what extent the leg muscles were damaged by polio.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Dear Editor:

I think Sunday's article, on Clean up the city, was a well needed article!

If people of Big Spring, would drive all the way from US 80 East through Big Spring and turn back down 3rd and drive all the way west to US 80 — They would see what our tourist see, when visiting our city.

It is not a very pretty picture. When a person has to push weeds out of the way to get into a business place, is time to trade somewhere else.

I think that these two streets are a disgrace to our city. Each and every citizen should take this drive, and note the firms and homes that let these weeds grow. You will be surprised at the ones that just don't care.

At one of our 7-11 stores a tourist was overheard saying, "Chicago the windy city and Big Spring the weedy city."

If owners of property and business firms on these two streets would clean up their own property, which wouldn't take long, the view tourist get, would be a much nicer story.

These streets also lead to Webb Base. Industries that come here to look for location are not blind. How do you think it looks to them? Weeds in this city are a disgrace. And the owners that let them grow, are a disgrace to our city. If every body cared, what a clean city we would have.

My personal "thanks" to you for such good coverage of Coahoma High School rodeo.

In the past, rodeo activity has received little or no coverage in comparison to other sports such as softball, baseball, basketball, football, etc.

These students work hard and have complete responsibility for putting on this rodeo and they deserve news coverage.

Carla Walker did a great job. Her article was proof that she has some common knowledge of what rodeo is about.

Dear Editor:

We would like to take some of your space, so we can brag on our postman for a line or two. Of course I have known him now for about 25 years. He and his lovely wife are some of the finest people I ever met when I first came to Big Spring in 1952. They would be very hard to beat as people to know. Back to the mail. I have seen this man hobbie in the ice, snow, rain, dirt and you ask him how he is, and he says "I'm just fine, how's all your family?" and I know not even he could be fine all the time, but when can a person tell which days are really fine. I can certainly depend on this fine man for a mail carrier. He is just so nice you just want to help him but of course you can't, that is just his job alone and he does make it as he has for many trips by our house in the past years. So of course I know every one must know who he is. He is Mr. Hendrick, a No. 1 postman on this route.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I became a Christian shortly after beginning a term in prison. I will be released soon, and I am afraid of the adjustment I will have to make when I get out. What can you suggest to help me keep straight? — P. M.

DEAR P. M.: Now is the time to prepare for your future — not when you are released and suddenly find yourself surrounded by temptations. You have taken the first step by inviting Christ into your life. He not only has provided for your salvation some day in heaven but also wants to help you right now.

I suggest you begin immediately to read the Bible carefully and prayerfully. You probably have a lot of time on your hands now, and you should take advantage of it to become grounded in God's Word. In Ephesians 6:17 we are told to take "the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." You will recall that when Jesus was tempted by Satan, He replied in every instance by quoting the truth of God from the Old Testament (see Matthew 4:1-11). That same resource is available to you. Satan will always try to make you believe his lies, but we know that God's truth is our only sure hope.

Church board probing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The board of directors of a southwestern Oklahoma Church of Christ boys' home that is under state and district investigations on allegations of child abuse said Wednesday the board is conducting its own probe and will resolve any problems.

Don Baucum, a Quanah, Texas, banker who is chairman of the 15-member board of directors for the Westview Boys' Home near Hollis, said the board started its own probe after being advised of the investigations by District Attorney Richard L. Dugger of Sayre and state Commissioner of Charities and Corrections Jack Stamper.

He said he and other board members met in Altus Tuesday night with Dugger to discuss the allegations, which included claims that some boys were beaten with a heavy paddle.

But Baucum said all who attended the meeting "agreed that everything discussed would be held in strictest confidence until we members met in Altus Tuesday night with Dugger to discuss the allegations, which included claims that some boys were beaten with a heavy paddle.

But Baucum said all who attended the meeting "agreed that everything discussed would be held in strictest confidence until we have had time to evaluate the situation."

Baucum said he believes some of the spankings administered by Westview officials "were a little severe, and I wish they had not occurred," but he said he also believes "they are isolated incidents."

Inflation might result from new society

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation isn't just too much money chasing too few goods. It may also be generated by the changing pressures, evolving attitudes and varying values of society.

Such as the demand for a cleaner environment, the quest for better health, the desire for more comfortable retirement, the incidence of crime, the tolerance of waste, the growth of government.

These added billions, unless offset by productivity gains, add inevitably to prices, although many Americans, legislators included, sometimes fail to see the association.

Edward Dennison, a Brookings Institution economist, estimates the cost of environmental and worker health and safety regulations, combined with a rising crime rate, reached $36 billion last year.

There is no mystery about the benefits, since they are so obvious: more concern for and sometimes better care of worker health, and markedly cleaner air and water.

N. Mexico governor eulogized

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — Former New Mexico Gov. John Burroughs was eulogized by state Supreme Court Justice Mack Easley as a person who "never pretended to know all the answers ... who had the courage to face hard issues."

Some 300 persons attended a memorial service Wednesday at First Presbyterian Church for Burroughs, who died Sunday at a Dallas hospital of a lung infection complicated by pneumonia.

Burroughs, a Democrat, was governor in 1969-70.

Easley said there are few "who have the attributes and depth of character that Burroughs had." He called Burroughs a "gentle, kind, loving man... basically a humble man who listened more than he talked."

Easley said Burroughs was fascinated by "people, life and the joy of living." He described him as "a loyal friend, perhaps too loyal, if that's a fault."

"The greatest and most glorious thing in his life was his family," Easley said. "Nothing came ahead of his family."

Secretary of State Ernestine Evans, who was Burroughs' personal secretary when he was governor, said, "I never met a kinder man. He was, perhaps, too kind to enter the world of politics."

John Anthony, a son-in-law of Burroughs, described him as "a true and constant friend."

Anthony said Burroughs' most enduring quality was a sense of "giving and self-sacrifice, friendship and loyalty, courage and perseverance."

The Rev. Irvin Winslow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, officiated at the service.

Expected to kill 10,000 persons

Hurricane may cause major damages

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, chairman of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council, has told the State Insurance Board the next big hurricane will do $1 billion in damage and perhaps kill 10,000 persons.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, testified Tuesday against a proposal to cut agent commissions on windstorm policies written in the hurricane pool from 20 percent to 10 percent.

"I believe losses from the next hurricane will be $1 billion instead of $300 million (in previous ones) because of inflation and because of growth," he said.

Schwartz said a major hurricane, striking a populated area with full force, could kill 10,000 persons because of difficulties in evacuating huge numbers of people in a short time. Directors of the pool, called the Texas Property Catastrophe Insurance Association, voted last winter to cut agent commissions as a means of discouraging assignment of policyholders to the pool.

The insurance board suspended the cut and called for hearings that began Monday.

The pool was created to spread among all Texas property insurance companies the risk of insuring buildings along the coast. For property landward of the Intracoastal Waterway, rates are the same as elsewhere in the state. Seaward, windstorm rates are triple unless — as in Galveston — property is protected by seawalls.

"We do have to depopulate the windstorm catastrophe pool. I just simply disagree you can accomplish the purpose by reducing commissions," he said.

Schwartz said agents in coastal areas earn their commissions when a hurricane strikes by serving as intermediaries between their customers and the insurance companies.

"They suffer the same losses, because they are living there, too. Their offices get blown away like anybody else's," he said.

He said losses in a hurricane could be reduced by imposing higher standards on construction than now exist. He blamed the real estate and builders' lobbies for defeating a bill to do that last session.

Sam Winters, the pool's lawyer, said in cross-examining Schwartz that the pool has no direct relationship with agents since it is not a company but a legislatively created consortium of companies.

"The catastrophe association can't hire them, it can't fire them, it can't do nothing. . . They (agents) have no contractual obligation to handle claims on its behalf," he said.

City and utility company battle

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)

— The City of Willcox and a utility company have accused the El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas of engaging in a series of maneuvers that meant gas curtailments and surcharges of $45 million dollars to natural gas consumers in four states.

The suit, which seeks damages in excess of $83 million, was filed Wednesday in U.S.

District Court. Joining Willcox as a plaintiff is the Arizona Electric Power Cooperative Inc., which buys gas from El Paso to generate electricity.

The suit says the surcharges were paid by consumers in Arizona, Texas, New Mexico and Nevada. But California consumers, it says, received fewer curtailments and surcharges. The action claims El Paso illegally set up delivery priorities, allowing it to send more gas to California customers than to customers in other states between 1972 and last June.

Walter G. Henderson, an El Paso vice president, declined comment on the suit, saying he had not seen a copy of it.

Four residents travel to Austin for Boys State

Four Big Springers will travel to Austin, June 7, for the 1978 session of American Legion Boys State.

A chartered bus will pick up the boys, 7 a.m. on that day, in front of the Howard County Court House for the trip to Austin. There they will join more than 900 other high school juniors chosen as delegates to the conference.

Those attending from Big Spring are: Michael K. Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brooks, 2908 Hunters Glen; Michael D. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Evans, 2614 Larry; James K. McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. McLaughlin, 803 E. 13th; and Barry T. Rosson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Rosson, 2605 Ann.

Delegates will converge in Austin and commence registration, 2 p.m. June 7, at Jester Center. Following an evening meal the new citizens of Boys State will assemble for orientation in their respective Boys State cities.

The program sponsored by The American Legion, State of Texas, is an annual event in which the organization teaches boys the responsibilities of citizenship in an actual "do it yourself" type program from which comes its motto, "Learn by Doing."

The approximate 920 boys will be housed in 21 Boys State Cities with each city further divided into two precincts, one for the Federalist and one for the Nationalist political party. Each Boys State City is named in honor of a Past State Commander of the Legion who is now deceased.

F.C. McConnell of Austin Post No. 76 is chairman of this year's program and Dr. Firman Haynie, also of Austin, is director.

The American Legion is stressing its belief that youth should be offered a better perspective on the practical operation of government; that the individual is an integral part of, commensurately responsible for, the character and success of his government. Boys State is an activity of high educational value, born out of a need for youth training in practical citizenship.

Boys State brings future goals within sight by developing civic leadership and pride in American citizenship; by arousing a keen interest in the detailed study of our government; by stressing the importance of maintaining our form of government and by bringing a full understanding of American traditions and beliefs in the United States of America to more than 28,000 youths throughout the nation who participate this year.

"Boys State is one of the outstanding youth training programs of the Americanism Commission of The American Legion," Holcomb stated. "Not only do the youths learn more about the functions of government but also they see the importance of the role played by each good citizen in discharging his basic citizenship responsibilities in voting. They soon discover how the quality of government is related directly to active interest of each citizen."

On Tuesday, June 13, the citizens of Boys State will visit the State Capitol and actually sit in chairs of the office to which they were elected and run the state government for a day.

Boys State enrollment this year brings the total to 21,959 high school juniors who have attended since 1940, when Boys State was first inaugurated in Texas.

Body of slain woman found

YORK, Ala. (AP) — Alabama and Mississippi authorities have called off their manhunt for two Oklahoma convicts wanted in the slaying of four Texans, an Alabama woman and the wounding of an Alabama policeman.

The massive search along the Alabama-Mississippi border was halted Wednesday night when authorities received word a car belonging to the slain woman was found in Oklahoma.

The woman, Stacie Virginia Beavers, was found with her throat slashed Tuesday morning in her home near Cuba, Ala., where she lived alone.

Officers said the 68-year-old retired school teacher apparently was killed Monday night as she returned from a church social. The escapees — Claude Eugene Dennis, 35, and Michael Lancaster, 25 — were traced by officers to the vicinity of the Beavers home earlier Monday night.

Two men who fit the description of the escaped prisoners were seen in Miss Beavers' car after the killing.

Stephens said the fugitives were "hemmed up for a while" Wednesday. But they managed to elude officers, he said, because "they're experts in the woods. They cover their trail."

He said the fugitive convicts are "thrill killers." Miss Beavers' death terrified residents along the Alabama-Mississippi border. Fearful of more killings, many kept pistols and shotguns loaded while others "moved in with relatives," said Stephens.

The escaped convicts also are wanted in the wounding of a Butler, Ala., policeman last week and for shooting at a state trooper. Trooper Maj. James L. Fuqua said the fugitives also may have been involved in other killings since their escape April 23.

Two men surrender

By The Associated Press
Police in San Marcos and in the Dallas suburb of Irving spent a tense Wednesday talking two armed men into surrendering during similar situations in which the men barricaded themselves behind locked doors for several hours.

Bob Collins, assistant U.S. Attorney for New Mexico, said Norbert Lynn Young, 27, of Hereford, will be returned to Albuquerque to face theft charges involving 72 stolen postal orders.

Young held an Irving SWAT team at bay for eight hours after locking himself in a motel room and threatening to kill his ex-wife and two-year-old son.

The New Mexico jail escapee surrendered about 8:30 a.m. after a telephone conversation with his attorney, Charles Fairweather of Amarillo, who had flown to Irving to negotiate with his client.

Irving police said they don't plan to file any charges. Young escaped from Taos County Jail Dec. 17. He had been arrested Nov. 27 following a high-speed chase by officers who wanted to question him about the Nov. 4 burglary of a post office at McAlister, N.M.

Fairweather said Young, with his ex-wife's consent, took his son from their Amarillo home about six weeks ago "but she didn't expect a five-to-six-week deal" and told Young she wanted the boy back.

"He (Young) said he was afraid to leave his son, but I told him 'He's going to need you all his life, not just now, so let's don't check it in just now,'" said the attorney.

It was the same song, second verse, in San Marcos about seven hours later.

John Koch, 25, kept 15 law enforcement officers at bay for nearly six hours before giving up about 8:50 p.m. Authorities found eight rifles and three pistols in Koch's house. He was charged with two counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. Bond was denied on one of the charges that involved shooting at police officers.

Koch had to be bound hand and foot when he began screaming and shouting during his arraignment.

Police said Koch apparently became angry at a woman who filed a weapons charge against him and went to her house about 3 p.m. where he fired several shotgun blasts into her pickup and wounded a neighbor's dog.

After extensive telephone negotiations with authorities, Koch gave up without further incident.

Wildlife unit calls hearing in San Angelo

San Angelo will be one of four public hearing sites in the United States, chosen by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service as part of an animal study to investigate the conflict between environmental concerns and predation of domestic livestock.

The hearing is set for 9 a.m. Thursday in the Angelo State University Houston-Harte Center Ballroom. Similar hearings have been slated during May in Idaho, Wyoming, and Washington, D.C.

The study is designed to examine predation problems affecting the western livestock industry and the environmental concerns and impacts associated with predator damage control.

The study will present options, including the consequences of instigation, or lack of instigation of various levels and methods of predator control.

The first draft report of the study may be obtained from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, P.O. Box 1306, Albuquerque, N.M. 87103.

Balls will be delegates to convention

Brigadier and Mrs. Robert Ball, commanders of The Salvation Army Big Spring Corps, have been named delegates to the Southern Territory Music Leaders' Conference to be held at Salvation Army southern territorial headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., June 2-3-4. The conference will celebrate the 100th anniversary of Salvation Army bands.

Started in England in the city of Salisbury in 1878 by Charles Fry and his three sons, Salvation Army bands now function in 83 countries including Japan, the Congo, India, Mexico and most English speaking countries.

Officers from Texas Division Headquarters of The Salvation Army in Dallas will participate in the Music Leaders' Conference Band. They are Major Raymond Cooper, Major Pete Costas, Captain Sharon Whitmyre and civilian Music Director, Rich Hoff.

Workshops will be held Saturday, June 3, on song leading, timbrel techniques, music therapy and brass and vocal music. Fifteen songs written by Salvationists in the Southeast will be presented, many of them by the composers.

Awards will be presented to the Music Leader of the Year and Musician of the Year in the Saturday afternoon session.

International celebrations of the event will be held in London, England in July at the Wembley Stadium.

PLANE HITS TRAIN — Leonard Lewis of DeQueen, Ark. died early Wednesday morning when the single engine plane he was piloting crashed into a railroad log car during an emergency landing. A passenger, David McMillan, also of DeQueen, was injured. Unknown trouble caused Lewis to look for a landing spot on the Weyerhaeuser Complex where he crashed.

Energy

Carter's plan minus crude oil tax?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's long-delayed energy package is heading down the home stretch, but it may arrive at the finish line without the crude oil tax the president calls the centerpiece of the program.

With agreement on a natural gas pricing compromise, House-Senate conferees have now reached basic accord on all parts of the five-section program except taxes.

And there have been increasing expressions of doubt among lawmakers that the tax portion can be enacted this year — especially as congressional elections approach.

The crude oil tax — the most controversial part of the energy tax section — is designed to make U.S. oil as expensive as foreign oil over a three-year period.

Senate negotiators reached an accord on the natural gas portion of the plan late Wednesday, voting 10 to 7 to accept a proposed compromise that lifts price controls from newly found gas in 1985.

House negotiators broke a six-month deadlock Tuesday when they approved the natural gas measure on a 13-12 vote.

Carter and the House wanted to keep price controls on gas, but the Senate had voted for deregulation after two years.

The compromise is a middle ground which congressional analysts say will cost consumers some $9 billion between now and 1985 in higher heating costs.

The deal was framed in lengthy informal negotiations among key conferees and Energy Secretary James R.

Schlesinger.

The negotiators will meet again June 6 to take up 33 relatively minor but unresolved issues on the gas legislation.

Lawmakers hope to get the gas compromise to the Senate floor — where it goes first — as soon as possible.

Police searching for radiation jar

HOUSTON (AP) — Police were looking today for a man who stole a container of radioactive material from a hospital-bound delivery truck Tuesday night.

Officials say they are afraid the thief may have inadvertently exposed himself to radioactive contamination.

Ron Waddle, technical director for the Memorial Hospital System, said a small amount of radiation was leaking from the container when it was found Wednesday in a northeast Houston apartment parking lot.

Although Waddle said the amount was too small to cause harm, six apartment employees underwent radiation inspection and were found to be free of contamination.

Waddle said, however, the man police are looking for should be checked for contamination since the substance can be deadly if handled for more than an hour. He said the material was still sealed inside a lead liner within another container when it was discovered in the parking lot.

A spokesman for E.R. Squibb & Sons in Princeton, N.J., who shipped three boxes of the material labeled "Rush, Radioactive Drugs" to Houston Intercontinental Airport Tuesday, disagreed with Waddle.

Joe Birbeck, nuclear medicine production manager for Squibb, said the material would only be harmful if handled for several hours. He said the stolen material was only valued at $350 and could not be used to produce drugs or bombs.

Farm No plans to hike beef imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration plans no action now to increase beef imports to help relieve spiraling prices at supermarkets, but some senior officials close to President Carter are thinking about it, qualified government sources say.

A reason for taking another look at the possibility of opening the door to more foreign meat is the Agriculture Department's latest prediction that retail prices of choice-grade beef probably will go up 16 percent to 18 percent this year, much faster than was anticipated a few months ago.

The increase is fueling a beefier boost in overall food prices than had been expected by the USDA and other administration experts.

The department is expected to announce soon, probably next week, a revised forecast on food prices. Sources say that the new report is likely to predict a 1978 food price increase of near 8 percent instead of the 6 percent to 8 percent range predicted in late March.

On Tuesday, the president's Council of Economic Advisors headed by Charles L. Schultz met to review the latest food price developments. The meeting, according to a source close to the council, did not involve major decisions nor break any new ground in administration food policy. The source asked not to be named.

Mainly, the source said, the council wanted to be certain that current food price outlook projections by the administration, including the USDA, were "on track" and not likely to be upended by a sudden, unforeseen development.

"It was purely a forecasting effort and to make sure everyone felt comfortable with the estimates now available, and they do," the source said.

Although the source said that the council tentatively agreed with USDA's food price revision now in the works and the expected prediction that an increase of around 8 percent is now likely for 1978, there was some feeling that another, higher revision may have to be announced later.

One major reason for raising the food price estimate even higher within a few months is the cattle situation. If cattle market prices do not level off soon — or possibly decline temporarily — there will be a continued, sustained increase in consumer beef costs.

Should this happen, according to the source, another revision in 1978 food prices probably will have to be issued pointing to an average increase this year of at least 9 percent.

Cattle are not the entire reason for food prices going up this year by any means.

Rent for $30 an hour

Range has machine gun

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — Want your mother-in-law to leave a week early? Take her to the Garland Public Shooting Range next Sunday and show her your expertise with a machine gun.

Maybe she'll get the hint.

Jim Day can rent or sell the equipment. It's Day's theory that people are sufficiently fascinated by the rat-a-tat-tat to lay out $30 for the privilege of hanging on to a bucking CIA-issued Ingram .45-caliber weapon for a few noisy minutes.

Day said of his first seven customers last Sunday, "Most of them are people interested in buying a machine gun. And most of them are prominent people."

The fact might cause authorities to wince a bit, but Day points out the average citizen can legally own an automatic weapon providing he or she has no criminal record or history of illegal activity. The process involves fingerprinting, a $300 one-time license fee and a check of criminal records.

A spokesman at the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau here said his office is "literally swamped" with calls each week from startled people who reported seeing their friends and neighbors with machine guns.

Day said he has taken more than 60 calls from people interested in buying automatic weapons since placing his classified ad last Friday. He is confident business soon will be literally booming as a natural reaction to the spread of international

He said bankers, lawyers and public officials are becoming more concerned about their potential status as possible kidnap victims.

Ex-combat pilot stops hijacker

MARION, Ill. (AP) — A former Vietnam combat pilot wrestled a gun from a would-be hijacker and shot her to death while his helicopter reeled out of control 600 feet above the ground near the U.S. penitentiary at Marion.

Allen Barklage, 30, of St. Louis said Barbara Oswald, in her mid-40s, also of St. Louis, had ordered him to land Wednesday night in an exercise yard at the maximum-security prison where some of America's most dangerous criminals are confined.

He quoted her as saying they would be carrying off three convicts.

Barklage said the woman chartered the helicopter in St. Louis under the pretense of flying to Cape Girardeau, Mo., about 35 miles beyond the prison, which is about 90 miles by air southeast of St. Louis.

Some 30 to 40 minutes into the flight, he said, she pulled a .44-caliber pistol and ordered him to fly to the prison.

Less than three miles from the prison, Barklage saw his chance.

"She was trying to open the doors and she switched her weapon from her left hand to her right hand," he said. "She put her finger on the trigger guard and not on the trigger."

"I let go of the helicopter controls and let it do whatever it wanted," he said. "I grabbed for the gun and we had a 10- or 15-second struggle."

The Bell Jetranger II helicopter was pitching and turning wildly, he said. It was so erratic, "that I shot four times — shot all five times but one misfired — and I only hit her once. And she was only two feet away from me."

Barklage righted the aircraft and set it down about 70 feet from the entrance to the prison administration building, which is linked by barred doors and a hallway to the main prison.

Leaving the helicopter with the dead woman slumped over the back seat, a bullet wound in her head, the pilot bolted for the administration building.

"I started running around looking for a guard. That was a mistake. The guards almost shot me because they didn't know what was going on," he said.

Independent oilmen adamant, report says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Independent oil operators are better educated than most, start drilling when they are young and do not give up easily, a University of Texas graduate student report indicates.

John Gunn of Dallas interviewed 16 independent operators in Midland and Dallas and found that on the average each drilled 21 dry holes in a row before striking oil.

The chances of hitting oil by "wildcatting" — drilling in areas where there are no producing wells — runs from one in seven to one in 10.

The figure for making a strike in developmental wells is in the 60-65 percent

Children of death suspects need place to live

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The three young children of a married couple jailed on capital murder charges have only the state to support them, says a Bexar County caseworker, who has asked a state judge to appoint a temporary conservator for the children.

John Averitt, 31, and his wife, Susan, 26, are charged with capital murder in connection with the March 20 shooting deaths of Mary Venus, 25, and Andrea Millican, 21.

The two victims, who were sisters, were found shot to death on a rural county road. The three children, two girls ages 5 and 2 and a 1-year-old boy, have been in the Bexar County Children's Shelter since May 13, when their parents were returned to San Antonio. The Averitts were arrested May 2 in Indiana by the FBI.

Texaco workers continue strike

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A wildcat strike by laboratory personnel continued into the fourth day today at the Texaco refinery at Port Arthur.

Pickets stayed at their positions outside the plant despite an injunction Texaco got against it from a judge. Texaco's contract with its employees prohibits a strike, but workers say their action is one by them as individuals and not as local union No. 4-23 of Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers.

The workers began their picketing in protest of what they called Texaco's "willful violation" of the work contract by assigning employees to non operating units without regard to seniority.

Company officials say they won't discuss the grievance until the pickets come down. The pickets say they won't stop until they get served with an injunction that names them as individuals instead of as the union.

Work continued at the plant today with supervisory workers again. The teamsters union is honoring the picket lines. Truck drivers are stopping at the Texaco gate with deliveries. Supervisory personnel then come outside the gate and drive the truck inside to be unloaded.

The pickets took their line down for short time Wednesday to let a NBC camera crew inside plant to conduct interviews pertaining to an explosion a year ago and safety conditions at the plant.

RED TAPE SUITS HIM JUST FINE — David J. Alwadish, 23, listens to phone caller in the office of the firm in which he is president, and the only employee. Alwadish, fresh out of college, had one of those strokes of brilliance which makes people wonder why they didn't think of it, and opened his own business. For a small fee, he'll register your car, get a duplicate drivers license, or do any of those wretched things that force a person to deal with an aggravating city bureaucracy.

Helps people deal with bureaucracy

Graduate makes business out of red tape

NEW YORK (AP) — The red-tape tangle in this town may run second only to the frustrating mess of Washington bureaucracy. That suits David Alwadish just fine.

David Alwadish, fresh out of college, has one of those strokes of brilliance that makes people say, "Why didn't I think of that?" and has opened a business.

It is based on an obvious premise:

Dealing with a large city's institutions, the Motor Vehicle Bureau say, pushes a normal person's threshold of patience to its limit, induces trembling, aches and fits, provokes thoughts of mayhem and self destruction and causes ulcers — and that's just for openers.

"Take the simple matter of registering your car," Alwadish said.

"You get there, puzzled. You stand in a line marked 'Information.' There you learn the other three lines you need to stand in and in what order. That's right. You stand in line to find out what other lines to stand in. Are you getting the picture?"

"Then you discover you don't have the right forms. They aren't filled out correctly. The clerk makes you feel stupid. You've wasted half a day. You go back to your office snarling."

"Hasn't something like that happened to you?"

Of course. There must be at least 8 million such stories in the Naked City, which is why Alwadish's success is assured.

For a small fee, anywhere from one to five dollars, Alwadish will register your car for you, or get a duplicate of the driver's license you lost, or fight your battle with the parking ticket computer, or, in short, do all those wretched things that make your heart sink when the soulless telephone voice says: "You'll have to come in." Click.

"Right now I do all the work myself," Alwadish said. "The name of my business is Services Unlimited. I want it to be that, unlimited."

Big Spring State Hospital accredited for two years

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals announced recently that the Big Spring State Hospital again has been accredited for two years. An intensive on-site visit and survey of the facility and its various programs in February was conducted by Ethel Bonn, M.D. and Helen Huber, R.N., M.S.N., members of the JCAH survey team.

Having been established to deal primarily with general hospitals, the Joint Commission has gone through a series of changes in recent years to develop standards by which psychiatric-care facilities may be accredited. To meet the criteria, a facility must maintain high quality patient care in areas of treatment, environment, safety and general well-being of patients, as well as out-patient and support services.

The accreditation awarded to the Big Spring State Hospital includes the General Psychiatric Treatment program, the Alcohol and Drug Abuse program and, for the first time, the Adolescent program. The hospital's Alcohol and Drug Abuse program is among the top programs of this type in the State.

"Although this is an honor we are proud to receive for our hospital, it does not mean we can sit back for two years waiting to prepare for the next survey. This is an effort that requires continual observation, study, hard work and changes to keep the hospital operating at this level, but it is worth all the man hours involved to insure that our patients are receiving the best care we can provide," states BSSH Acting Superintendent Adolph Supak.

ABC producer gives writing scholarships

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like the weather, everybody talks about the shortage of good writers for television but nobody does anything about it.

Until now, Danny Arnold, executive producer of ABC's "Barney Miller," is making a small effort.

"Good writers are tough to find, and because I've been lucky with some students I thought it might help to give out some scholarships for comedy and dramatic writing," said Arnold.

He is setting up five $1,000 annual scholarships for students who will be selected from the 72 universities that offer theater arts programs.

"Television needs some people who have a little adrenalin flowing and are willing to work as hard as you have to to keep the quality high," said Arnold, who himself labors night and day over the hit comedy.

"The level of television is determined by a writer's enthusiasm, his creative energy and the work he is willing to put into it."

Working with Arnold are two 27-year-old writers he has developed, Tony Sheehan and Kenhold Weege. Sheehan is now producer and Weege is associate producer.

Arnold also has an arrangement with ABC to try out new writers. They are given assignments, and if it doesn't work out ABC picks up the cost. If the scripts are useable, Arnold pays for them.

Television's enormous appetite for material demands a regular influx of writers. Yet, neither the networks nor the studios seem to be willing to develop programs to encourage new writers. The writers Guild of America does have such a program for minorities.

"I don't think the major organizations are that interested in finding writers because their policy-making boards are interested in selling a product," said Arnold. "They're not concerned with what it takes to make that product, although they will put a successful writer under contract."

Arnold said young writers feel discouraged by the industry's attitude, he said. "The kids in college feel the business is not interested in them and that the doors are closed. I've tried to disabuse them of that idea."

Another discouraging factor is that television pays less than movies, the average TV writer makes between $40,000 and $50,000 a year, which is only one-fourth to one-half of what a movie writer gets for one script.

"The economics of TV is such that if you write a hit movie you don't reap the bonanza at the box office," he said. "And if you write a pilot that becomes a hit series you don't make any real money unless it stays on at least five years."

"Many writers start in television, but those who are really inspired quickly move on to movies, plays or books. The majority of the television writers are the journeymen craftsmen, who do a credible job, or less than credible. It's hard for them under the pressures of television to keep any great inspiration. It takes real dedication for the inspired writer to stay in television."

Goldwater has his problems

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — It wasn't really his fault — he hadn't flown such a contraption before, being an Air Force man and all.

So there were understanding chuckles when "Barry Goldwater, Maj. Gen., USAF (Ret)," misjudged his approach to a simulated aircraft carrier and dumped his simulated Navy jet smack in the simulated ocean.

The Arizona Republican senator was in Orlando to help dedicate the Navy Training Center's new Aviation Wide Angle Visual System Thursday. The AWAVS helps train Navy pilots to land on carriers at sea.

A bystander told Goldwater he was known as a "pretty accomplished pilot."

"I wouldn't say that," Goldwater grinned. "But I'd tell my wife that."

Crackdown on aide may 'do the job'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leon Jaworski didn't get what he wanted, but he says a watered-down threat to cut off U.S. economic aid to South Korea will "do the job," in getting testimony from a former ambassador about cash payoffs to congressmen.

Jaworski, special counsel for the House ethics committee, made that assessment after the House International Relations Committee voted 31-0 on Wednesday for a resolution that warns rather than promises to cut off aid if South Korea does not allow former ambassador, Kim Dong Jo, to testify under oath to House investigators.

In Seoul, the resolution was criticized by both the ruling and opposition parties.

The ruling Democratic Republic Party expressed "disappointment and indignation" at the "irrational pressure and threat" and said the resolution was a violation of an international agreement on diplomatic immunity. The opposition New Democratic Party said it regretted the passage of the resolution.

Jaworski reportedly told ethics committee members he has classified information that eight or more current House members may have received envelopes stuffed with $100 bills from the former ambassador.

Members said Jaworski told them at a meeting last week he could not release the names of the congressmen or the source of his information.

Carter winning one, losing one

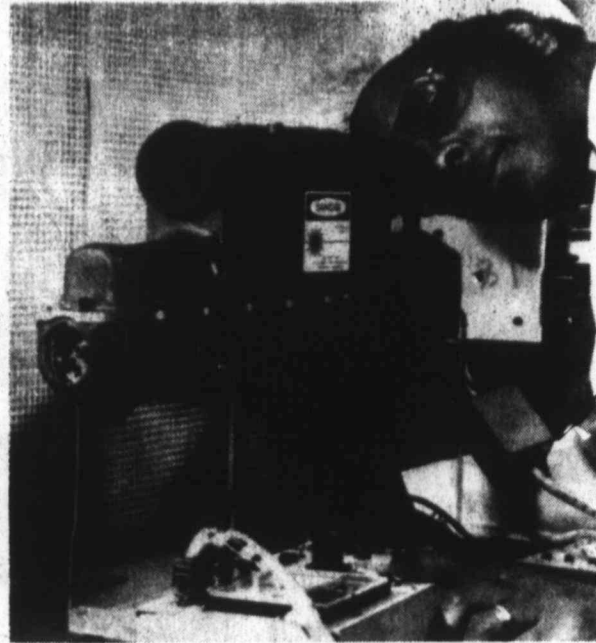

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea is gaining in Congress, but his policy against building big, costly nuclear aircraft carriers appears to be in trouble.

A $38 billion weapons bill approved by the House late Wednesday would authorize construction of a new nuclear-powered carrier at a cost of $2.1 billion. The administration had not proposed building any carriers this year, but said it would go along with a smaller, oil-fueled carrier costing $1.6 billion.

Similar legislation authorizing a new nuclear carrier has been approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The president also was turned down by the House on his request for funds to convert civilian jumbo jets such as the Boeing 747 to carry pilotless cruise missiles.

Mostly because of the enlarged shipbuilding program, the overall bill is

ON TARGET! — Engineer Douglas Chism peers through U.S. Army's new Laser Target Designator recently during testing at Hughes Aircraft Company's electro-optical and data systems group, at Culver City, Calif. The first such device to be produced for the army, the laser target designator can guide homing weapons to targets, mark troop positions, or mark sites for aerial supply drops. Hughes will manufacture 152 such systems for the Army and 25 more for the Air Force under a U.S. Army Missile Research and Development Command contract in excess of $15 million.

Army survey shows large drug usage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says drug abuse by enlisted personnel is widespread enough that it probably has an adverse effect on combat readiness.

Brig. Gen. John H. Johns told a House committee on Wednesday that a new Army survey found that 31.2 percent of enlisted personnel who were questioned said they used marijuana.

He said 7.3 percent of those questioned admitted using hard drugs, a category that includes heroin, LSD and amphetamines.

Johns, director of human resources development in the Army's personnel office, said 12.6 percent of the marijuana users characterized their usage as frequent, while the remainder said they used it occasionally. Of the hard drug users, 1.6 percent said they used them frequently.

Johns did not say how many soldiers were questioned, but he indicated the Army was confident the figures were statistically significant.

Appropriation bill cut

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post's Washington bureau today quoted Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, as saying he has succeeded in cutting $6.38 million from an appropriations bill to purchase the last land segment for the Big Thicket National Preserve.

The Post said Wilson was angry that Texas environmentalists, led by former U.S. Senator Ralph W. Yarborough, have been pressuring the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission to appropriate funds to create a state park in the thicket area.

Such action, Wilson said, is in violation of an agreement under which the original Thicket park legislation was approved in 1974 to establish a preserve of 84,550 acres.

French president presents proposal

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing of France presents new proposals to the special U.N. disarmament session today after the United States offered to provide early warning systems to head off conflicts and be the "eyes and ears of peace."

France for years has boycotted the 31-nation Geneva disarmament committee out of dislike for the Soviet-American co-chairmanship, and is calling for a new body of 30 to 40 members with a chairman elected for two years from among all the members except the big powers.

The Geneva disarmament committee, established by the United States and the Soviet Union, is linked only informally with the United Nations. But France says the body it wants established should be responsible to the main political committee of the General Assembly, sitting as a disarmament committee.

Giscard d'Estaing, who speaks on the second day of General Assembly debate, also is calling for a European conference on disarmament which would consider problems relating to disarmament "from the Atlantic to the Urals."

Vice President Walter F. Mondale told the General Assembly Wednesday that the United States was ready to be the "eyes and ears of peace" in areas of possible conflict by providing the countries involved with monitoring services like the aerial photography and ground detection devices now working between Egyptian and Israeli forces in Sinai.

Mondale said countries wanting such help should submit joint requests, preferably through regional organizations or the United Nations.

He also proposed creation of a U.N. peacekeeping reserve force of national contingents trained and earmarked for U.N. duty that Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim could use whenever the Security Council established a new U.N. force as it did for southern Lebanon last March.

He also charged that the Warsaw Pact nations had built up an almost 3-to-1 advantage in tanks in Europe over the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

And he said Soviet deployment of the SS-20, "a new, mobile intermediate-range ballistic missile... runs totally contrary to all this special session seeks to achieve."

By MARJ CARPENTER
John Poerner, Railroad Commissioner from Hondo, was in Big Spring Wednesday seeking re-election to the position, subject to the Democratic run-off on June 3. Poerner said his opponent, former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler "is an individual who disgraced the State of Texas."

Poerner, a former state representative from Hondo who was appointed to the commission last fall by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, referred to the 1969 censure of Sadler by the legislature because Sadler refused to cooperate as land commissioner in an investigation of a sunken treasure operation he had supervised.

Sadler, whose name is well-known throughout the state, had five land office employees quit back in 1969 after he ruled out min-skirts and long side-burns and coffee breaks in a personal crusade against "moral decay."

That same year Sadler choked Rep. Jake Johnson, a crippled legislator from San Antonio, when Johnson tried to witness the official inventory of treasure recovered from a Spanish galleon off Padre Island.

In January 1970, three months before the Democratic primary, Sadler

Chairman calls meeting to fill three vacancies

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman Calvin Guest has called a special meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee for June 1 to fill three vacancies on the nine-member Texas delegation to the Democratic National Committee.

Those who resigned, Guest said in a statement, are Jess Hay of Dallas, Alicia Chacon of El Paso and Joe Bernal of San Antonio.

Guest said SDEC members want to fill the vacancies prior to a June 9 meeting of the national committee in Washington.

The national committee is meeting to vote on delegate selection rules for the 1980 presidential nominating process.

was accused of choking a newspaper cameraman who tried to take pictures.

Poerner said Wednesday that he has been helped in the runoff by a primary campaign centering on improving his name identification across the state and by advice from fellow Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton who defeated Sadler in a runoff two years ago.

"Newton told me to go to the people of Texas and make them understand that your opponent is an individual who disgraced the State of Texas," he said.

Poerner, 46, was director of the Governor's Office of Educational Resources before he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the retiring Jim Langdon. Sadler is 70 and was elected to the railroad commission in 1938 and served one term.

Poerner, while in Big Spring, stressed the importance of working both at a state level and with Washington to solve energy problems.

He also said he would definitely be against a refinery tax which would run industry out of Texas and would work against it with whatever influence he might have.

He spoke on improvements in recent years in the railroad commission which has now obtained a computer service so that people out in other parts of Texas may get quicker information through the area offices.

Poerner expects a much lighter turnout June 3 statewide and is concentrating on areas that have local runoffs such as Big Spring.

Sadler has accused Poerner of a conflict of interest in holding oil, gas and lignite interests and Poerner said here Wednesday that he owns only land with mineral rights, but has no oil, gas or lignite interests.

"What I own is my land," he stated, "I have never purchased an oil or gas lease in my life."

He was accompanied to Big Spring by Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder.

French troops withdrawing from southern Zaire today

PARIS (AP) — French Foreign Legion paratroopers began their withdrawal from southern Zaire today, less than a week after recapturing the city of Kolwezi from invading rebels and aiding in the evacuation of trapped foreigners, the Defense Ministry announced.

Word of the withdrawal came on the heels of a Belgian proposal for an all-African peacekeeping force to ensure an uninterrupted flow of Zaire's mineral wealth to the West.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said the French garrison in Kolwezi would be replaced by Zairian army forces "reinforced by about 100 Moroccan troops."

The 600 legionnaires parachuted into Kolwezi Friday and Saturday. Four of them were killed in fighting with the rebels who overran the city nearly two weeks ago, the Defense Ministry said.

The French troops abandoned their pursuit of fleeing rebels Wednesday night, although five or six companies of rebel forces equipped with heavy weapons remained in an area about six miles west of Kolwezi, the spokesman said.

"Maintenance of security in the Kolwezi area from now on is up to the Zaire army," he said.

The paratroopers will spend about three days withdrawing by road to Lubumbashi, the capital of the province, where they will be allowed to rest before being flown back to France, the spokesman said.

Lubumbashi is about 200 miles southeast of Kolwezi.

Meanwhile, Belgium urged the creation of a Western-supported all-African peacekeeping force to prevent another attack into Zaire's Shaba Province and guarantee the continued flow of ore from the mineral-rich region.

As anyone who watches sports on TV will attest, the networks have mistaken America's true love of legitimate sports competition for some form of insatiable, illicit and promiscuous craving for any activity in which a person or team attempts to do something faster, higher, longer or more often than some other person or team.

At first the networks attempted to meet this need by providing additional legitimate sports programming, such as ABC's decision to expand the World of Sports to Sunday, and by other networks' entrances in to the market for weekend sports viewers with CBS's Sports Spectacular and finally NBC's Sports World.

At the same time, the three commercial networks have taken to filling the airwaves with all forms of absurd "sports" programming. For example, Superstars, Celebrity Superstars, SuperTeams, Battle of the Sexes, Celebrity Battle of the Sexes and Battle of the Network Stars, to name a few.

Since ratings indicated that the market was not yet filled to saturation with programming, the networks decided to schedule more sports programs. The rub was, there were no more legitimate sports to cover.

Undaunted by this minor problem, the networks decided to get involved in promoting "legitimate" sports events, such as tennis and boxing. Suffice it to say that TV's attempts to maintain the delicate balance involved in televising events which they also promoted resulted in various federal investigations.

Many of these programs were created and produced for sale to the networks or stations by individuals who are TV's answer to the inventors of the pet rock and Other Things We Cannot Live Without.

Since the ratings for these shows are high enough to insure that the onslaught of the programming will continue, what then is the point of this column?

The answer is that since I cannot stop these shows I would like to suggest (if not produce) an entry in this "World of Sports."

The idea for my program came to me when I heard that one of the networks was covering the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleader tryouts.

I knew I would have to act fast before some enterprising entrepreneur latched onto my idea, so immediately I began to formulate "The Challenge of The NFL Cheerleaders," a program in which teams of ten representatives from each NFL team will compete in the SuperBowl of Cheerleading.

Tentatively, the events will include compulsory moves, freestyle disco dancing, marathon high-kicks and, to add the requisite tinge of intellectualism, finalists will be asked stimulating questions by NFL linemen selected at random.

Judges, although unsigned at this printing, will include Bert Parks, Russ Meyer, Kathy Rigby, Charo, those loveable cameramen who cover football for ABC and of course, Photo Lab Danny.

So there you have it, fans, the perfect program to fill that void between the NFL Draft and the start of the exhibition season.

WILLIE MISSES MAZZILLI — New York Mets' Lee Mazzilli slides into first with a bunt single in eighth inning action in Pittsburgh Wednesday. Pittsburgh Pirates' first baseman Willyer Stargell tried a dive toward the bag, but was late. The Pirates won the game 6-5 with two runs in the bottom of the tenth inning.

Atlanta pros confident

ATLANTA (AP) — "It doesn't take but two or three good ones and you are back in business," says Lanny Wadkins, the 1977 PGA champion.

"I guess you have to be patient," he added. "I'm just not playing well. The only consolation is there is plenty of the year left."

Wadkins, who ranks only 63rd on this year's PGA money list with $23,702, hopes to turn around his game today against an elite field which begins play on the $200,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Hale Irwin, winless this year but one of only eight players with more than $100,000 in earnings this season, is one of the top contenders for the $40,000 first prize.

PLAYER PLAYS ATLANTA — Gary Player, who had wanted to play the British PGA this week, blast from a trap on the third hole of the Atlanta Country Club Thursday. The Atlanta sponsors would not release The Master's champ to play elsewhere.

Irwin won this event in 1975 and 1977. There was no Atlanta Classic two years ago.

Other strong challengers include Jack Nicklaus, Masters champion Gary Player, U.S. Open winner Hubert Green and Tom Watson, this year's leading money winner who is seeking his fourth victory of the season. Player also has won three titles this year, all in a row.

Irwin set the tournament scoring record in 1975 with a 17-under-par 271 on the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Nicklaus also owns consecutive Atlanta Classic victories in 1973 and 1974 and he won on the this course in 1976 in the first Tournament Players Championship.

NBA serves seconds

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Washington Bullets Coach Dick Motta says he plans no major changes for tonight's second game of the National Basketball Association championship series against the Seattle SuperSonics, although two of his top players have offered a suggestion.

Forwards Elvin Hayes and Bobby Dandridge say a bigger role for reserve center Mitch Kupchak could be the key to unclogging the middle and opening up Seattle's defense.

Hayes and Dandridge, the Bullets' top two scorers, who combined to average 39 points per game during the regular season, managed just three baskets in the second half in Sunday's 106-102 loss to Seattle in the opener of their best-of-seven playoff final. Part of the reason, say the Washington forwards, is that Seattle's 7-foot-1 center Marvin Webster, was able to slough off Bullets' pivot man Wes Unseld and clog the middle.

"It's nothing new," said Dandridge. "Other teams just leave Wes alone and have their center double-team us inside. If Wes can't be more of an offensive threat, we should use Mitch things inside."

"They can't gang up on us when Mitch is in there," agreed Hayes. "When he has the ball at the top of the key, they have to respect him because he can hit that shot."

But replacing Unseld, who excels at rebounding and setting picks but is a weak outside shooter, with Kupchak, who is more aggressive offensively, is not the answer according to Motta.

"We won't try anything different," he said. "People have been playing us the same way all year. We didn't see anything new on Sunday. There were no surprises. In maybe 60 of our 82 games, teams played us that way — fronting Hies and Dandridge and popping off on Unseld."

Motta says the answer lies with the Bullets themselves. "We have capability to counter the things Seattle did," he said. "I'm not worried about Seattle. When the Bullets play right, nobody can beat us. Half of the time, we're our own worst enemy."

Bullets guard Kevin Grevey, who suffered a sprained ankle late in Sunday's game but expects to play tonight, feels that playing before the expected capacity crowd of 19,035 at the Capital Centre should help Washington.

Rangers nudge Twins, 3-2

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — New relief ace Mike Marshall proved his humanity Wednesday night when he allowed his first run and lost his first game as a Twin as Texas edged Minnesota 3-2 at Met Stadium.

Al Oliver singled home pinch runner Bobby Thompson with the winning run in the 11th inning.

"I walked a couple guys I shouldn't have on close pitches," Marshall said. "They got a cheapie. I jammed him (Oliver), but he got it out there and you've got to give him credit."

In five earlier relief appearances over eight innings, Marshall had allowed only four saves and one win. When a reporter suggested that record had to end sometime, Marshall replied,

"I don't worry about things like that. You've just got to keep pitching every game each day."

With one out, Mike Hargrove walked and was replaced by Thompson, who stole second. Bobby Bonds also walked before Oliver delivered the winning blow, his third hit of the game. He also drove in the first Texas run.

Marshall relieved starter Paul Thormodsgard in 10th. Ranger Coach Billy Hunter said, "When you win, you're happy. Al Oliver is hitting well now. What we need is a couple of guys to help him. We've got a couple of guys hitting. What I'm trying to do is get them to do it together."

Pinch-hitter Craig Kusick tied the game for the Twins in the bottom of the ninth with a two-out home run off Paul Lindblad and Lindblad, 1-0, relieved starter Dock Ellis in the seventh and had retired five Twins in order when he yielded Kusick's first home run of the year. However, Oliver's hit made him the winning pitcher.

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the 9th inning when John Lowe opened the game with a single, stole second and scored on Oliver's side. Bump Wills made it 2-0 in the fifth when he lofted a 3-2 pitch just inside the right field foul pole for his fourth home run.

The Twins got their first run in the bottom of the fifth when designated hitter Glenn Adams doubled and scored. Hosken Powell's single.

Harris has Charlie Brown night

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Several San Francisco Giants were in the running for goat-of-the-game honors.

The Candlestick Park fans were booing Manager Joe Altobelli and also the pinch-hitter he sent to the plate, Vic Harris, in the sixth inning. You'd think the Giants had lost, rather than won, eight straight home games.

Then Harris turned the boos to cheers, delivering a pinch-hit, two-run single that made pitcher John Montefusco and the Giants 2-0 winners over the Houston Astros Wednesday.

"I love the fans. But I'd hate to think I had to do what they wanted after I've spent 30 years learning about this game," Altobelli said with a smile later. "I love my wife, but she doesn't know too much about baseball either."

There were earlier boos for Mike Ivie, who dropped a fly ball in left field, and catcher Mike Sadek who dropped two foul pops.

Montefusco, 4-2, had allowed only three hits and had struck out seven batters through six innings. The critical fans didn't know he was bothered slightly by a pulled back muscle.

"It's just a strain in the lower back, I'll be all right for the Dodgers," Montefusco said. "But when the time came to pinch hit, I could understand the move."

And it was good to see Vic get the game-winning hit."

Gary Lavelle pitched the final three innings to record his seventh save.

Houston's starting pitcher,

Floyd Bannister, left after five innings because of tightness in his arm.

Runners were on first and second base, through an error and a walk, went Harris went to the plate, with one hit in his previous 33 at-bats, to face reliever Ken Forsch, 1-2. After a wild pitch advanced the runners, Harris looped a single.

"It was a big lift for me because I felt I hadn't been contributing offensively," said utility player Harris. "I was in a slump because I was pressing a lot."

With their ninth straight victory at Candlestick, the Giants protected their one-game lead in the National League West.

Buffalo loses $2 million

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Rich Stadium, the $23 million ballpark the taxpayers of Erie County bought for the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, operated at a deficit of about $2.5 million last year, an audit shows.

The audit showed the Bills, whose attendance averaged 39,700 per game last year in the 80,020-seat stadium, took in $3.7 million in ticket sales, paying the county a $406,799 slice. The Bills and the county split $86,428 in concession fees. The county, which paid $3 million on loans it took to construct the stadium, also got $65,324 from parking receipts. It was the lowest return the county has received since the ballpark has been in operation.

Browner to Canada

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals and University of Washington center Blair Brown have reached verbal agreement on a National Football League contract.

General Manager Paul Brown said the final signing of Brown, a first-round draft choice, will be Saturday. Meanwhile, the agent for Cincinnati's first first-round pick, Ross Browner, is scheduled to visit the Bengals' office soon, following reports the big defensive lineman may sign with a Canadian team.

"It doesn't concern us if he goes to Canada. He'll be back in a year or two anyway. Not only is Canada a foreign country, but there is the NFL pension plan and several other benefits to consider," Brown said.

"We'd like to have Browner but if he went to Canada, it wouldn't be a life or death matter," Brown said.

Mariucci already there

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — Former Northern Michigan quarterback Steve Mariucci says he has signed a contract with the Hamilton Tigercats of the Canadian Football League.

Mariucci would not disclose the terms of his contract with the Ontario club, but said "it was too much" to resist.

Mariucci was last year's NCAA Division II total offense leader. He gained more than 6,000 yards passing during his college career.

As a sophomore in 1975, Mariucci led the Wildcats to the Division II national championships.

Concepcion uses new Latin stance

CINCINNATI (AP) — Shortstop Dave Concepcion is hoping the "Latin American" batting stance he brought back from his native Venezuela this spring will help him finally get his coveted goal, a 300 season.

The Reds shortstop hit 371 in the Venezuelan winter league using the stance and batting coach Ted Kluszewski is all for it.

"You see a lot of Latin American hitters batting that way," Kluszewski said.

Concepcion said he adopted the stance because he had a tendency to pull away from breaking pitches thrown by right-hand pitchers.

"Closing the stance keeps me in there," said Concepcion, in the midst of an eight-game hitting streak during which he has collected 17 hits in 34 at-bats. He has boosted his batting average from .271 to .323.

"The guys got on me about hitting .371 in Venezuela with my stance. They aren't getting on me now," he said.

"The one thing I want to do is hit 300. It is the one thing I have not done," said Concepcion, whose best effort was .287 in 1973. He is now in his ninth year with Cincinnati.

Concepcion has been primarily known for his fielding. His idol, Luis Aparicio, is the only shortstop from Venezuela to hit 300.

Kluszewski has been credited with developing Concepcion's gradual improvement at the plate.

"I never get on a guy's stance. If he believes he can hit out of a stance, let him go at it. If it doesn't work, he'll change. But I don't want him thinking about his stance up there. I don't want to take away from his concentration on the ball," Kluszewski said.

Concepcion is 19 hits away from 1,000 for his career.

"I just want to get it as fast as I can. Of course, I'd like to get it at home with 50,000 people there. I'd like to get a standing ovation just like Pete Rose," he said, referring to Rose's reception after his 3,000th hit.

Cards break losing streak

Giants hold onto first place in NL West

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals were beginning to talk to themselves...but nothing happened until John Denny started listening.

"I told myself, 'Enough is enough!'" the lanky right-hander said. And with that he baffled Montreal with a two-hitter that, coupled with Ted Simmons' two-run single in the third inning, carried the Cards to a 2-0 victory that halted their 11-game losing streak.

In the rest of the National League, Chicago vaulted past Philadelphia and into first place in the East with a 10-inning 6-4 victory over the Phils. San Francisco held its one-game lead in the West with a 2-0 victory over Houston, Cincinnati shaded Atlanta 5-4, San Diego slammed Los Angeles 9-3 and Pittsburgh beat New York 6-5 in 10 innings.

Drop 12th in 17 games to Brewers

Oakland loses first place

By The Associated Press

Another funny thing happened to the Oakland A's Wednesday night...they fell out of first place in the American League West.

Maybe Bobby Winkles knew something when he quit as manager of the amazing first-place A's Tuesday, because they continued a slide that has seen them lose 12 of 17 games, the latest a 7-1 decision to the Milwaukee Brewers.

Coupled with California's 4-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox, it pushed the Angels into first place, five percentage points ahead of the A's, who had been on top since April 25.

The Cleveland game at New York was rained out.

Chris Knapp hurled a four-hitter and Don Baylor and Bobby Grich homered to lead the Angels over the White Sox on the field and over the A's in the standings.

The A's lost for the 12th time in their last 17 games when Milwaukee's Mike Caldwell pitched a six-hitter and Robin Yount drove in three runs for the Brewers.

Caldwell gave up a double to Mitchell Page in the first inning and didn't allow another hit until the sixth. He lost his shutout bid when Page homered in the ninth.

GONNA GETCHA AL — Minnesota Twins first baseman Rod Carew (left) lunges to put the tag on Texas Rangers Al Oliver who was trying to get back to first base from second after a long fly ball hit by Ritchie Zisk was caught by Hoskin Powell and relayed back to Carew. The double play was in the first inning of Wednesday night's game, won by the Rangers 3-2 in 11 innings.

"We have to juggle and hope we're lucky," said Jack McKeon, who took over when Winkles quit. "We've seen two pretty good pitchers the last two nights (Caldwell and Jerry Augustine). Left-handers are going to give us trouble."

"There isn't any pressure on us," said Page. "We're not supposed to be a first-place club. We just hope we finish higher than we did last year."

Royals 6, Mariners 5

The Royals pulled it out with two runs in the ninth on Tom Poquette's bases-loaded grounder and Hal McRae's sacrifice fly. Kansas City erased a 4-0 deficit in the fifth on Amos Otis' two-run homer and Clint Hurdle's two-run double, but the Mariners took a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the fifth on Juan Bernhardt's homer.

Golf tourney draws a crowd

Twenty teams from four golf clubs participated in a Two-man Scramble Tournament Tuesday morning at Big Spring Country Club. Citizens Federal Credit Union, State National Bank, Security State Bank and Big Spring Hardware donated prizes for the event. Snyder, Lamesa, Comanche Trails and Big Spring Country Club played in the tournament.

The team of Julie Shirey (Big Spring C.C.) and Ethel Patterson (Snyder C.C.) won first place in "A" Flight. Second prize went to Peggy Marshall (BSCC) and Lynne Keys (Snyder C.C.) and third place was won by team of Dorothy Bell (BSCC) and Bobbie Hargrove (Snyder C.C.).

"B" Flight winners were: First-Beverly Taylor (BSCC) and Susan Mack (Snyder C.C.); second-June Wacker (Comanche Trails) and Billie Mills (Snyder C.C.); and two teams tied for third: Mauris Jones (BSCC) and Gertrude League (Snyder C.C.) and Nell Jones (BSCC) and Maurine Vaughn (Lamesa C.C.).

Finnie Seale of Snyder won a "car" for being closest to the pin on the 13th green.

Gene Garber's first offering after he hit slugger Dave Kingman with a pitch — propelled the Cubs one-half game ahead of the Phillies in the East.

The Cubs tied it 4-4 in the ninth when, with two outs, Steve Ontiveros and Dave Rader singled and Greg Gross slashed a triple down the left field line.

Reds 5, Braves 4
The Reds stayed within a game of San Francisco by scoring three runs in the eighth inning against Atlanta, the decisive one scoring when reliever Mickey Mahler walked Joe Morgan with the bases loaded.

Consecutive doubles by Dave Concepcion and Dan Driessen off Jamie Easterly and Mike Lum's pinch single off Adrian Devine tied it, then Pete Rose, Cesar Geronimo and Morgan walked.

Padres 9, Dodgers 3
Tucker Ashford and Oscar Gamble teamed for five hits and five runs batted in — each one hitting a homer — to lead a 12-hit San Diego assault that carried the Padres past Los Angeles and dropped the Dodgers two games behind the Giants.

John D'Acquisto bailed winner Gaylord Perry out of a bases-loaded, nobody-out jam in the fifth without permitting a run, then two-hit the Dodgers the rest of the way.

Pirates 6, Mets 5
Willie Montanez drove in four runs with a first-inning single and home runs in the top of the eighth and top of the 10th innings.

But Rennie Stennett, who had singled for a run in the sixth, drilled a two-run single in the bottom of the 10th to win it for the Pirates.

Midland shut out; San Anton pulls away

By The Associated Press

Tight pitching highlighted three of the four Texas League games Wednesday night, including a 2-0 shutout by Jackson's Larry Prewitt over Midland.

Prewitt evened his record at 2-2 and moved his club into second place in the eastern division, allowing the Cubs only four hits. His teammates jumped on loser Ron Davison, 3-3, in the first inning when Kelvin Chapman singled, Chapman swiped second and scored on Mookie Wilson's double.

Midland got an insurance run in the eighth when Bobby Bryant's grounder scored Bud Cardwell from third.

In San Antonio, Mike Tennant was busy taming the Shreveport Captains. Tennant, 4-1, fanned nine and walked none en route to a seven-hit, 3-1 victory. Reliever Randy Brandt took the loss.

Felix Rodriguez drove in the Captains' only run in the fourth with a single. Then, Tennant went back to work and stuck out the next 12 batters. San Antonio's five hits and three runs all came in the sixth inning.

El Paso's Dave Steck, 5-4, claimed a 5-1 victory over Tulsa with some help from Steve Whitehead, who hit a two-run blast in the second inning. The victory snapped El Paso's four-game losing streak.

Bob Clark ended any rally hopes the Drillers might have entertained with his own two-run homer in the sixth.

Don Kainer, 3-3, took the loss and Tulsa dropped to third place in the east.

An eighth-inning, six-run blitz by Amarillo clinched a close 6-4 decision over Arkansas.

Jim Beswick's bases-loaded triple sparked the fireworks after Arkansas starter John Fulgham surrendered four consecutive walks and had allowed one run. Before the eighth, Fulgham has not walked a man. He was relieved in the eighth by John Littlefield, 3-4, who took the loss.

Boxer to face Xmas murder rap

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — North American Boxing Federation featherweight boxing champion Mike "Cyclone" Ayala has been indicted on charges of attempted murder in connection with the December 1977 shooting of another boxer.

Ayala, 19, a former national Golden Gloves champion, is free on $10,000 bond in connection with the shooting of Gilbert "Machete" Galvan, 26, of San Antonio.

A Bexar County grand jury returned the indictment Wednesday.

Ayala and Galvan, a lightweight boxer, had trained together and boxed on the same card in 1977.

Galvan was shot in the head and back on Christmas night, but survived his wounds. Police said the shooting followed an argument between the two boxers.

Ayala has won the North American Federation featherweight title since being charged in the shooting. He scored a first-round TKO over Ronnie McGarvey of Baltimore, Md. here on March 18 after the Texas Boxing Commission refused to bar him from fighting.

No trial date has been set, but Ayala is scheduled to defend his title here June 6 against Eliseo Cosme of Mexico City.

Boxes are outlet for creativity

By DUSTY RICHARD

"Well, it's better than drawing with Crayolas in the hall," said Susan Lewis, when asked why she painted unique boxes which will be exhibited at the Texas Arts and Crafts Fair in Kerrville this weekend.

"I just can't help myself; I don't know why, but my creativity has to find an outlet."

She first became interested in art while in college, where she studied under Josiah Landus Merrill Baird at Texas Western University, now known as University of Texas at El Paso.

"I played the piano in high school, but it wasn't as satisfying as art, so I changed to design at his suggestion. After a three-year study program, I received a degree in interior design," she said.

She did the interior design in her home, located at 1508 Dayton. It is simple in a classical Oriental style, and is filled with her works of art. Situated beside a canyon, the many windows and sliding-glass doors make it breezy and cool even on hot summer days.

The stark geometrical lines of her home are reflected in her work, which ranges from hooked rugs to mosaics and from the painted boxes to "graphics" painted on walls. These are lines painted in two or three colors down the hall to the children's bedrooms, combining a sense of motion with space.

Mrs. Lewis, born and raised in Big Spring, is married to Bob Lewis and has two children, B.Z. (Brian Zack), who is 10, and Kevin, 13½, who will be the third generation of her family to attend Big Spring High School this fall (The first two were her mother and herself). The Lewis' also have a black and white dog, Shelby County Texas, affectionately known as Shelby.

Besides her art work, Mrs. Lewis lists among her activities belonging to a local garden club, volunteering twice a month at the Pottor House, and helping her husband with Orange House

Productions, radio production, business in which he broadcasts a syndicated radio show called "Sounds of Texas," tapes commercials and does filmwork and after-dinner speaking, under the name Tumbleweed Smith.

Mrs. Lewis started painting boxes about nine years ago, she said, and sold them both locally and in an out-of-town gallery, but gave this up when her parents, Jim and Clara Zack, needed help with Zack's, a ready-to-wear clothing store that they owned. She worked there for eight years until her parents retired.

Prices of the boxes, which will be on sale at the arts and crafts fair in which she will participate, run for $25 to $150.

"I have thirty of them now; I haven't sold any for a year because I needed all of them to display at the fair," she explained.

She estimated that it takes her 12 hours or more to complete one box.

Although she doesn't make the boxes, she said, everything else in the decorating process she does by hand.

"I buy the raw boxes, then paint and refinish them."

Her boxes come in all shapes and sizes, the smallest being about two and a half by three inches. She has painted boxes that are square, triangular, rectangular, octagonal, and other shapes; some have pointed edges, some are rounded; a few have sliding tops, others have rounded tops like treasure chests; some sit flat, while others have "feet."

Besides being unique and original, each is a one-of-a-kind object d'art.

"I couldn't make two copies if I wanted to," Mrs. Lewis said.

Among the various themes of the boxes, which are painted on every side, even the bottoms, are boxes called "Gods of the Earth," with an American Indian motif; "Wild Flowers," the inspiration for which she got from her husband's last interview trip; "Live Oak," one of the more delicate designs; "Cornflowers in the IRIS ETC.—is the home of the original, one-of-a-kind triangular box on the table in this picture. Mrs. Lewis said that this is one of her favorite boxes. The mosaic, which does not show up well in this black-and-white photo, is of a man playing the guitar. Mrs. Lewis has several of her mosaic designs in her Oriental home.

Sun," which is actually a card box; and "Box Box," which, indeed, bears the word "box" all around it.

These boxes, said Mrs. Lewis, are meant to be displayed rather than used. Although actually substantial, they give the impression of fragility, and of course, each is signed "Hapi Box by Zack." Other of Mrs. Lewis' works are signed "Hapi Design by Zack."

"I wanted to show my work at the fair because Bob, my husband, is on its board of directors, and because it is a very prestigious affair," said Mrs. Lewis.

She said that she informed the directors that she'd like to enter, and they sent her application forms. After filling out the forms, she sent them, along with slides of her work to the directors, and was picked to be one of 200 exhibitors out of 600 applicants.

"So I neglected my family to make enough of these boxes to exhibit — they're very special to me. I've worked on them for a year," Mrs. Lewis said.

She had to have so many, she explained, because not only did there have to be enough to show at the fair, which will take place Saturday, Sunday and Monday, but also enough to sell, which is a requirement for exhibitors.

"I'm quite honored to be exhibiting at this fair — there will be artists there like Denver Pettit, the violin-maker, — he doesn't compete or sell his work, just displays it, because he's so good," she said.

All the artists at the fair are native Texans, Mrs. Lewis added.

After the fair?

"If I have any boxes left over — any that aren't sold at the fair — I have an individual who has made an offer for them, but I'd rather not talk about it. I haven't made a decision about that. Selling my boxes is like giving away a special litter of puppies."

BOXES, BOXES, BOXES — Susan Lewis displays some of the 30 boxes she will exhibit at the Texas Arts and Crafts Fair in Kerrville Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The fair is family-oriented, and there will be a learner's tent where children can participate in all kinds of crafts. Mrs. Lewis said that it takes her about 12 hours to paint and refinish a box, which she then sells for $25-$150. Behind her is a rug she hooked while attending college. It reflects the shirt of the guitar-player in the mosaic shown in the other picture.

On Memorial Day

Picnic season soon to start

Memorial Day is often considered to be the start of the picnic season. End of the school year celebrations and the early weeks of summer give you plenty of opportunity to enjoy the outdoors.

Dairy Council, Inc. nutrition consultants suggest that you plan your outdoor meals around the four food group system developed by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Using the USDA's system can take the guesswork out of determining if your family has a nutritious meal. The system is based on servings from the milk, meat, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals groups.

Besides nutrition, the storage and keeping qualities of your menu should be considered. To keep things cool as well as eliminate weight, freeze several half-gallons of milk the night before. Use them in your cooler to protect other perishable foods. By the time you're ready to eat, the milk will have melted and be the right temperature.

Prior preparation is the key to an enjoyable time outdoors. Vegetables and fruits can be washed and cut into bite-size pieces the night before. Carrots, celery, green peppers and cauliflower are all excellent choices. Whole fruits and vegetables such as cherry tomatoes, apples and oranges are good selections.

Traditional hamburgers and hot dogs can be dressed up by the addition of different toppings.

Enriched breads and buns easily provide the needed nutrients from the breads and cereals group. Why not pack crackers to ward off hungry appetites while the meal is being prepared.

HAMBURGERS WITH CHEESY TOPPERS

2 pounds ground beef
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 teaspoons salt
8 sandwich buns, split, buttered, toasted
2-3rd cup evaporated milk
1 tablespoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon pepper
Cheesy toppers
Combine ground beef, evaporated milk, bread crumbs, onion, salt and pepper. Shape to form 8 patties. Broil, pan fry or grill hamburgers 7 minutes on one side, turn and cook 5 minutes on other side or to desired doneness. Serve on buttered toasted buns with assorted cheese toppers.

CHEESE RELISH
2 packages (3-oz. each) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup sweet pickle relish

2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Beat together all ingredients until smooth. Spread on hot hamburgers. Yield: 1 cup

CHEEDAR TOPPER
½ cup (1 stick) butter, softened
1 teaspoon fresh lemon

juice
½ teaspoon pepper
1 cup (4-oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese, at room temperature
Beat butter and pepper until light and fluffy. Blend in Cheddar cheese and lemon juice. Spread on hot hamburgers. Yield: 1½ cups.

Unwed father has obligation to son

Dr. Wallace: About a year ago, I took a girl out. We got involved and she became pregnant. Now we are not married but have a 4-month-old son.

The mother has agreed to raise the baby by herself. I offered to help support my son but she would not take the money. After many months of begging she finally agreed. Now the opposite has happened. She quit her job and now I'm supporting both her and my son.

The baby doesn't have my last name and never will. Do I have to support him and should I support her? — Dan, Sidney, Ohio

Dan: Morally you should support your son but his mother is another story. A call to the Legal Aid Society will give you your legal rights.

Dr. Wallace: My parents were born in Mexico, and while they can speak English, Spanish is the language spoken at home.

In our school, we have many students who were born in Mexico and are learning to speak English. Whenever possible, I speak to them in Spanish to help me not to forget that language. Yesterday at lunch, I was talking Spanish to one of the Mexican students when an English teacher approached us. She was so mad her face was red and the veins were sticking out of her neck. She yelled at me for speaking Spanish and said the Mexican students would never learn English if they kept speaking Spanish all the time. What right does a teacher have to tell me what language I can speak at lunch? — Rosa, Marysville, Calif.

Rosa: Absolutely none. The teacher had good intentions but bad manners.

It's true, it would benefit the Mexican students to speak English as much as possible. In the same vein, you should speak Spanish frequently to maintain your bilingual gift. Why don't you help the Mexican students speak English and they will help you improve your Spanish.

If this incident occurs again, talk to your principal.

Dr. Wallace: I enjoy all of the current rock music and rock singers.

My parents bought me a stereo for my birthday and I've got some of the latest hits on eight-track tapes. Now that I have the stereo and tapes, my parents get upset when I play them.

Either I'm playing my stereo too loudly (even though it's in my room), or they don't like my selections. Usually it is both.

When I asked them what kind of music I should play, they suggested folk or country and western (ugh!). Don't you think I should be allowed to listen to the type of music I enjoy? — Alex, Ontario, Ore.

Alex: Yes, I agree you should be permitted to listen to your type of music provided that the volume does not disturb other family members.

Why not surprise mom and dad by securing a tape of 1969 hits available at most music stores, and let that be the next stereo sound they hear. It might bring a smile to their faces and rock 'n' roll to your ears.

Doctor Wallace: I'm on an exercise, diet kick and I'm losing weight. I'm into tennis and I was wondering if you can tell me how many calories I burn up in an active tennis match? I really hustle so make that count high. — Olivia, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Olivia: A "red hot" tennis match will burn up around 175 calories. That's the equivalent of about three slices of bread.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 24-cent-stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. R. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Mother Jones leads march

Few people have done, or are likely to do, as much as Mother Jones did for the rights of workers. She traveled the country supporting workers in their strikes. She organized a group of miners' wives in Pennsylvania to drive off strike breakers with mops and brooms. In order to make her point about child labor, Mother Jones marched a group of factory children 145 miles to confront Theodore Roosevelt. — from the Virginia Slims Book of Days.

Grandparents: Your Love Is Spoiling!

DEAR ABBY: What happens to parents when they become grandparents? Mine are too young to be getting senile, but they certainly don't show nearly the good judgment in handling MY children that they did when they raised me.

My parents ruled their children with an iron hand. No back talk, we did as we were told, and if we forgot our manners, we heard about it. We weren't permitted to eat between meals, and we had to be in bed with lights out at a certain time, and no nonsense.

But you should see the way they handle our children! All rules and regulations laid down at home are out the window at the grandparents' house. The kids whine and beg until they get their own way. They talk back, and are fed soft drinks, candy and cookies—all they want at all hours. And they don't have to nap or do anything they don't want to do.

I love my parents, Abby, but I wish they'd realize how tough they are making it for me when they do this. It's difficult for children of any age to tell their parents anything, so even though this is from Iowa, I hope you won't think it's too corny for your column.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA

DEAR CEDAR RAPIDS: There's a kernel of truth in almost every corny letter. Let's hope your parents have ears, too. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old, not married, and I work to support myself. I'm not bad looking and live a fairly normal, happy life, but I'm beginning to wonder if maybe I'm foolish to work the way I do.

What I'm trying to say is, I have a girlfriend who works part-time—like maybe four afternoons a week. She has had three husbands, and now she's single again. She has boyfriends for everything. One pays her rent, another lets her drive his car, another painted and papered her whole house and she bragged that all she gave him was lunch and a few daughterly kisses.

She sees the rent-payer on weekends, and she also has a truck driver staying with her off and on when he's in town. I don't know how she gets away with it. Shouldn't someone tell these chumps the score?

BABE IN BHAM

DEAR BABE: Don't worry about the chumps. Some men don't care what the score is as long as they're in the game.

DEAR ABBY: My teen-age daughter is a mess! And the sad part of it is, she does it to herself. She is a very bright girl, and God gave her a pretty face, but she ruins her appearance by wearing her hair in a frizzy unruly mop and letting her posture go.

I've told her that if she would cut off half that mop and practice holding her stomach in and her shoulders back, she would be attractive, but she doesn't listen to me. Should I continue to nag her? Or should I leave her alone? She's losing out because she's such a mess.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Leave her alone. If she's as bright as you say she is, she will soon realize she is losing out (if indeed she is) because of her appearance, then she'll do something about it.

Animals will live care free

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Animals used in future space experimentation will live in almost maintenance free containers during their trips into space, a space agency engineer says.

"We will try to do as much by automated fashion as possible so that the experimenters don't have to spend three-quarters or all their time taking care of the animals," said Cletis R. Booher, an engineer in the Life Sciences Project Division at Johnson Space Center.

"The basic problem in zero gravity (weightlessness) is how to get rid of waste matter and how to provide food and water in a way they can get to it."

The basic containers being developed for the early experiments will be for rats only but later systems could be developed for larger animals, Booher said.

"We should be able to feed it, water it, and take care of the waste production," he said. "They (containers) will be configured so you can keep track of food and water intake of each animal."

Booher spoke Wednesday at one of a series of mini-seminars at JSC on the final day of a two-day conference on life sciences and possible medical applications to space research.

About 350 doctors and scientists attended the event to see what experiments might be feasible when the space shuttle program gets underway in the 1980s.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston co-sponsored the conference.

The objective of the container is to eliminate handling of the animals except during experimental procedures.

Booher said there would be a surgical facility aboard the space lab that would allow experimenters to dissect or operate on laboratory animals.

"There is a lot of experimentation, particularly when you talk about calcium loss, bone degradation and muscle degradation," Booher said.

"If the experimenter wanted to see what happens after a couple of days of exposure to zero G, they could either examine or dissect the organism at various stages of the flight."

The containers would accommodate 24 to 36 rats for up to 32 days, Booher said. Animals would be visible without opening the units and the cages would be interchangeable to accommodate different sized animals.

PLO vows

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization has pledged to end its armed presence in southern Lebanon, pull out non-Palestinian volunteers in the area and peacefully coexist with U.N. peacekeeping forces there.

It said it acted to help "bring about a total Israeli withdrawal from the south and re-establish Lebanese sovereignty in the region."

The accord was reached Wednesday night in a three-hour meeting between Premier Salim el Hoss and a six-man PLO delegation headed by Arafat at the premier's suburban villa.

Hoss said a three-man military committee will be set up soon to oversee on-the-spot application of the agreement in southern areas.

The committee will be made up of representatives from the PLO, Lebanese security forces and the Syrian-dominated Arab League that polices an 18-month-old civil war armistice in the rest of Lebanon.

Trade commission bans restrictions

There now are restrictions on price advertising in 40 states. The commission's staff, in writing the new regulation, said prices are 25 percent to 40 percent lower where advertising is allowed.

Under the regulation, an ophthalmologist or optometrist would be required to give a customer a copy of his eyeglass or contact lens prescription, allowing the patient to shop around using advertising as a guide.

Three professional groups dispense eyeglasses. Ophthalmologists are medical doctors who treat eye diseases, perform eye surgery and prescribe glasses. An optometrist, who is a graduate of an optometry school, examines eyes and fills prescriptions. An optician, with the least required training of the three, fills prescriptions written by his counterparts.

The American Optometric Association, opposing the commission regulation, argues that the ultimate effect may be a reduction in the quality of glasses as corners are cut in production to meet price competition.

Optometrists stand to lose the most from the regulation. If prices are advertised and customers encouraged to shop around, then the optometrists may lose some businesses to opticians.

The Opticians Association of America favors the regulation, which optometrists are expected to challenge in court.

The commission proposed the regulation in 1976 after surveys of eyeglass prices showed variations of up to 350 percent in the same city for identical glasses.

The New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs found that prices for an identical frame with single-vision lenses varied in the state from $16 to $55. Other studies showed variations of up to 250 percent in New York City and 300 per cent in Ohio.

The commission staff found that the price differences hurt the elderly most. More than 93 percent of the population over 65 wears eyeglasses, it estimates.

Some 112 million Americans, or about half the population, wear either glasses or contact lenses. Consumers spend more than $4 billion per year on eyeglasses and examinations, the commission says.

New poll indicates Carter couldn't win

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, whose popularity has dwindled steadily since he took office, could not now defeat Gerald R. Ford or Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in a run for the White House, according to a new poll.

A separate study by the Brookings Institution concluded Wednesday that the president has been courageous in proposing major changes in federal programs. But the study said Carter's first 16 months were disappointing because he has not accomplished much.

The poll, conducted by Louis Harris and Associates for ABC News, indicated that if a presidential election were held now, 48 percent would favor Ford, the 1976 Republican candidate, compared to 43 percent for Carter. Nine percent of those polled had no opinion.

A contest between Carter and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan would be closer, according to the poll. Reagan, who lost the 1976 Republican nomination to Ford, was the choice of 47 percent, compared to 46 percent for Carter.

But Kennedy, a Massachusetts Democrat, could whip Carter in a race today for the Democratic nomination and then beat either Ford or Reagan, the poll indicated.

The latest poll gave Kennedy a 60-35 percent margin over Carter, a 52-43 lead over Ford and a 54-42 margin over Reagan.

ABC News said the poll has a 3 percent margin of error. It was based on about 1,500 telephone interviews last week with those who said they voted in 1976 and with a few persons, too young to vote in 1976, who are now over age 18.

Claudia Townsend, associate White House press secretary, said the administration would not comment directly on the poll or the Brookings study.

Alaskan town wants to ban alcohol sale

NOME, Alaska (AP) — A church-backed group, working on the premise that alcohol is the root of health and crime problems in this hard-drinking Gold Rush town, has gotten a proposition on the ballot that would ban the sale of liquor.

Disgruntled opponents of the proposal say the town has to live up to its wild and woolly past to keep the tourists coming.

The Rev. John Shaffer, minister to both the Presbyterian and Methodist churches here and prime mover of the proposition, said Nome has one of the highest alcohol consumption rates in the world — about four gallons a year for every resident over the age of 15. That is 57 percent above the national average.

Nome also has a suicide rate 10 times the national average, and Shaffer said alcohol is partly to blame. Bill Dann, executive director of Nome's hospital, does not endorse the ban but said, "Alcohol usually figures in our suicides, homicides, emergency room visits, child beatings and wife beatings."

Shaffer organized a petition drive that gathered 264 signatures, 40 more than were required in this predominantly Eskimo town of 2,500 people. The proposal was certified Wednesday, and voters will make their decision in October.

"I think Nome will become a ghost town," said Albro Gregory, publisher of the Nome Nugget. "There won't be any tourism, property values will go to hell and taxes will go up skyhigh."

Gregory said taxes from liquor sales provided $89,600 of the $443,500 collected from sales taxes in Nome in 1977 — 20.2 percent of the total. In a compromise effort, two bar owners, a local minister and two other citizens have formed a committee to try to find ways to reduce alcohol abuse without banning it.

Advisory group to decide on fate of eight agencies

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Undertakers, employment agencies, architects, surveyors and landscape architects had a right to be uneasy today about the future of regulation of their businesses and professions.

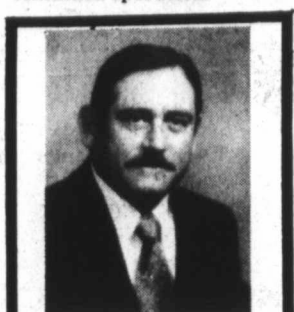

The Sunset Advisory Commission planned to make tentative recommendations on whether eight state agencies should be eliminated or continued.

Among them were the State Board of Morticians, the Texas State Board of Landscape Architects, the Board of Examiners of State Licensed Land Surveyors, the State Board of Registration for Public Surveyors, the Texas Private Employment Agency Regulatory Board and the State Board of Architectural Examiners.

The commission won't take final action until this fall.

Regulatory boards up for action today, and members of the professions and businesses they oversee all have testified before the commission in favor of continued operation.
