Truman Ends Historic World Parley With Ringing Plea For Continued Cooperation

Charter Must Live, He Says

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26 — Statesmen of nations united in a will for peace signed a charter for a new world order today and brought to a close a momentous international conference.

In 63 days of deliberations, sometimes dull, at other times highlighted by recurrent controversy and hard won compromises, delegations of 50 countries had forged an instrument for keeping the world of the future free of war.

Last night they formally and unanimously approved their handiwork. Today they signed their charter. Tonight they exchanged friendly farewells and began scattering for home.

Truman Admonition

With they them took an admonition from President Truman to act now, to make the charter a "living thing," to seek immediate ratification of this new constitution for a world organization by the governments which sent them here.

The President's address officially concluded the United Nations conference late today. He spoke at a final plenary session in San Francisco's War Memorial Opera house.

But even after that, the charter signing went on. Twelve delegations still had to affix their signature to a historic document. It had begun exactly at noon, when China's eight delegates stepped forward one by one to a round, blue table in the auditorium of the Veterans building and inscribed their names in brush strokes and Chinese characters.

Other Delegations Follow

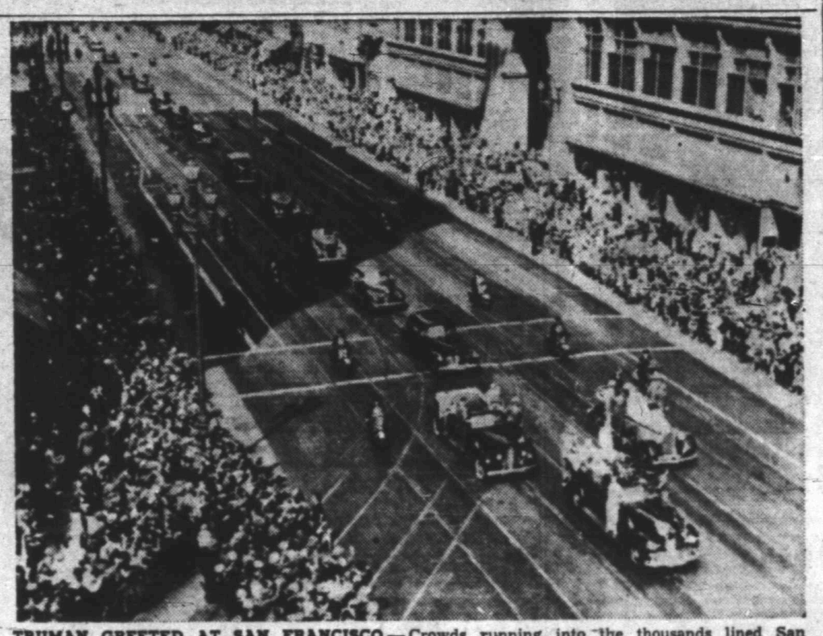

One by one, other delegations followed. The chairman of each spoke in his native tongue, a few brief words of appreciation of the significance of what had been achieved here at the Golden Gate.

Mr. Truman had started a

SALT LAKE CITY, June 26 (AP) — President Truman flew here tonight to rest between his San Francisco speech acclaiming the postwar peace charter and a homecoming celebration at Independence, Mo., tomorrow.

TRUMAN GREETED AT SAN FRANCISCO — Crowds running into the thousands lined San Francisco's Market street Monday to greet President Truman upon his arrival to address the final session of the United Nations conference.

Man Shot By Officers In Slaying Probe; Woman Brands Story Of Shooting A 'Lie'

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 26 (AP)—Mrs. Imogene Stevens, pretty, black-tressed wife of a paratroop major sobbingly challenged with "that's a lie" today testimony at a coroner's hearing that she gave no warning as she fired the first of three shots which killed a 19-year-old sailor.

The 24-year-old wife of Major G. Ralsey Stevens, III, who just before a 50-minute inquest into the slaying of Albert Kovacs collapsed in a courthouse corridor, excitedly broke in on the testimony of the sailor's brother, James, as the latter related before Coroner Theodore E. Steiber his version of how his brother was killed late Saturday night.

Held In Default Of Bond

In the county jail since that time, Mrs. Stevens is being held in default of $50,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Stevens sat tensely as James testified that he accompanied his brother, a Pacific naval veteran home on liberty, to call on Faith Coombs, a maid employed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milton, neighbors of Mrs. Stevens.

James, preceded on the stand by a state police lieutenant who testified that Mrs. Stevens had drunk at least ten beers before the shooting, said he and his brother were in the living room when Mrs. Stevens appeared and demanded that the explain their presence.

Albert, James said, replied that he had come to call on Miss Coombs, and Mrs. Stevens then told him that the maid was not at home.

They Hear A Shot

James testified that his brother remarked that Miss Coombs was upstairs. At that point, the witness said, the brothers glanced upstairs and then "I heard a shot."

In a high-pitched voice, Mrs. Stevens, daughter of a Pampa, Tex., policeman and mother of a six-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, broke in:

"That isn't so. He knows that's a lie. That isn't so."

Mrs. Stevens did not testify at the inquest because, said her lawyer, David Goldstein, she gave her version of the shooting to police soon after the slaying. Police Chief Otto Schmidt of New Canaan said that Mrs. Stevens had told him that she shot Kovacs, a Norwalk resident, in self-defense and that she had confronted the brothers because she thought they were intruders in her neighbor's home.

Admiral's Saddle To Be Ready For That White Horse

RENO, Nev., June 26 (AP)—Work on a Nevada saddle for Admiral Halsey to use if he rides the Mikado's white horse through Tokyo will begin immediately, the war finance committee of Washoe county reported today when measurements were received from the admiral's daughter, Mrs. Margaret Halsey Spruance, Thornby, Greenville, Del.

Mrs. Spruance, in her letter to the committee said "my mother and I think your idea of the saddle for the Mikado's horse is a wonderful one . . . unfortunately dad is too far away now to send a personal message."

The saddle will bear the name Halsey embossed deep in tan leather, will have a high tree, and will be trimmed in native Nevada silver.

The Reno Chamber of Commerce will make the presentation to the admiral, who has expressed a desire to take the Tokyo ride.

Big Welcome Awaits Gen. Hood Simpson

WEATHERFORD, June 26 (AP)—The largest crowd ever assembled in Weatherford is expected here tomorrow for the homecoming celebration honoring this little town's war hero, Lt. Gen. William Hood Simpson.

The Texas general, who led his Ninth Army almost to the gates of Berlin, arrived by plane at Fort Worth this afternoon. After a celebration there he and Mrs. Simpson were to go to the home of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Simpson, on the highway between Weatherford and Aledo.

Flags of Texas, the United States and all the United Nations were hung today in Weatherford in preparation for tomorrow's homecoming.

Rep. Fritz G. Lanham (D-Tex) of Weatherford was in the party arriving at Fort Worth and will be master of ceremonies here tomorrow.

EL PASO, June 26 (AP)—William F. Main, 28, injured in a gunfight with officers who sought to question him in connection with the slaying of an 80-year-old man, was in a critical condition here tonight.

Sheriff Alan G. Falby identified the man as a member of a wealthy Philadelphia family.

Body In Shallow Grave

The body of the old man was located in a shallow grave near Ysleta, east of here, and the victim's head was found today in a hotel check room.

The head was in a box which hotel employes said had been checked as laundry by a man last Saturday.

Main was wounded last night in a gun battle with El Paso county officers who had gone to his apartment to question him. Falby said he was shot through the abdomen. Hospital attaches today said he might not live.

The sheriff's department began its investigation of the slaying yesterday after a Texas and Pacific train conductor reported seeing two hands sticking from the ground on the right-of-way near Ysleta. Deputies dug up the body, and through a wallet the sheriff identified the victim as Edward Baker, 80, inmate of the El Paso county poor farm.

Falby said "a series of clues" caused him to seek Main, an ex-soldier, for questioning.

Falby said Main refused to surrender and opened fire. Falby and two deputies returned the fire, and Main was wounded in the abdomen.

No charges had been filed tonight.

July Tire Allotment Same As This Month

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Another 2,500,000 tires will be available for rationing in July.

The July allotment, the same as this month's, will go to "B" and "C" ration holders. "A" card holders, as usual, must depend on their present tires.

The June and July quotas are the largest since rationing began.

Truck and bus tire quotas for July were increased over June.

Civilians May Get More Clothes Soon

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—More civilian overcoats by November and more men's suits by January were predicted by the War Production board today.

WPB said military demands for woolens and worsted fabrics are declining to such an extent that the agency is considering reducing the 100 per cent freeze on worsted tops and on wool yarn before the respective expiration dates of July 15 and August 15.

HUTSON CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed the nomination of John B. Hutson of Maryland to be undersecretary of agriculture succeeding Grover B. Hill of Texas, who resigned.

Senate Moves For Ratification

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The Senate made its plans today to receive from President Truman next Monday the historic San Francisco world charter and a drive was started immediately to get it ratified by August 1.

Meantime, Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, issued a statement from his sickbed at Bethesda, Mo., naval hospital hailing the charter as "one of the greatest milestones in man's upward climb toward a truly civilized existence." He appealed to all the United Nations to ratify it as soon as possible.

Truman Speaks Monday

The Senate's majority leadership revealed that:

1—The President will address the Senate at 11:30 a. m., CWT., Monday as he formally turns over the document designed to set up a world organization to promote peace.

2—The foreign relations committee will hear from two of its members who were delegates to the San Francisco conference just how the charter proposed to work. Chairman Connally (D-Tex) is scheduled to address the entire Senate Thursday of this week. Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich),

Marine Loses Last Breeches To Japs

NAHA, Okinawa (Delayed), (AP)—Marine Pvt. Bobby R. Hollman, 20, of Corpus Christi heard the swish of a Jap artillery round just in time to duck his head into a shallow shell hole.

There was an explosion. Then Hollman, uninjured, straightened up and exclaimed: "Dammit, my last pair."

Shell fragments had torn away the seat and right leg of his trousers.

Hollman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Hollman of Corpus Christi.

The story was told by a Marine war correspondent.

B-29s Pound Badly Needed Jap Refinery

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Wednesday, June 27.—Nearly fifty B-29s struck the Utsube river oil refinery, Japan's principal producer of aviation gasoline, in a precision demolition attack before midnight last night.

The raid followed by half a day the greatest Superfortress demolition pinpointing of Honshu industries in which nearly 500 of the sky giants blasted 10 targets with 3,000 tons of bombs.

Southwest Of Nagoya

The Utsube refinery is located near Yokkaicht, 18 miles southwest of Nagoya on Ise bay. Since the destrutcion of fuel centers at Tokuyama and Otaks on May 10, the Utsube plant was the enemy's largest remaining producer of aviation gasoline.

Army, Navy and Marine airpower ranged far over the western Pacific in other scattered blows at enemy shipping and ground installations.

Search Mariners of Fleet Wing One sank a medium freighter-transport in the Yellow sea and two luggers south of Kyushu Tuesday, fleet headquarters announced today. Another small Japanese cargo ship was sunk by search Privateers of Fleet Air Wing 18 in waters south of Honshu.

Liberators Lash Kuriles

Liberators struck the Kuriles again Monday, bombing installations at Kurabu on Paramushiro. Marine fighters and bombers ranged over the Sakishima group of the southern Ryukyus, the Marshalls, the Palaus and Yap.

The Marianas-based B-29s, escorted by Army Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima, smashed at aircraft gun and shell factories in the Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe areas of Honshu in the earlier (Tuesday) raid. They struck from medium height.

All targets had been hit in previous fire bomb and demolition raids by Superforts of the 21st Bomber command, some as recently as last Friday, in opening phases of the U. S. Air force's campaign to level Nippon's war industries.

Second Largest Raid

The raid yesterday was the second largest, from the standpoint of number of targets, of all Superfortress blows at Japan. On April 26 the big bombers struck 11 Kyushu island air bases in attacks to reduce the power of Nipponese raids on U. S. shipping and ground forces at Okinawa.

The attacks were but a foretaste of the 1,000-plane a day bomber raids on Japan promised by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the U. S. Army Air force.

Majors Field To Be Placed On 'Standby'

GREENVILLE, Tex., June 26 (AP)—Majors Field, a fighter pilot training base operating under the Second Air force, will discontinue that training soon, going on a "standby" basis, Col. Herbert M. Newstrom, commanding officer, said today.

A group of officers from the 72nd Fighter Wing, Colorado Springs, Colo., are here to work out details of the transfer of personnel. No announcement has been made of the new mission of the base.

Part of the present personnel will be retained for assignments under a new program, Newstrom said. Col. Fred C. Gray, who is to take over command of the field Friday, is here conferring with Majors Field officials.

Liquidation Is Near For Nips On Luzon

Remnants Compressed Into 20-Mile Corridor And Pressure Increasing

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Wednesday, June 27—Liquidation of the last Japanese stronghold in Cagayan valley, northern Luzon island in the Philippines, is near with the Nipponese compressed into a 20-mile corridor between American columns.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said the Japanese were being pinched between Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler's 37th Infantry division pushing down river from the south while the 11th Airborne division elements advanced up the valley.

Japs Flee To Hills

The 37th swept through Tuguegarao, capital of Cagayan province, Monday to find the Japanese force which had won control of the city from hard-pressed Filipino guerrillas already in flight to hills to the east. The hills flank the national highway leading to Aparri, coastal city recently taken from the Nipponese.

Beightler's veterans continued their rapid advance, pushing north to Iguig while units of the 11th Airborne in their thrust southward freed the town of Gattaran, nine miles south of Lal-Lo. The air infantrymen then forged ahead two miles farther to Bakas, on the 240-foot wide Dummun river.

A headquarters spokesman estimated that of probably 20,000 Japanese still fighting in northern Luzon, fully half of them are east of the highway with the rugged, unexplored Sierra Madre range at their backs.

The major Allied air activity Sunday continued to be concentrated on Balikpapan, last rich Borneo oil district in Japanese hands. Bombers and fighters of the Fifth and 13th Air forces dropped 260 tons of explosives on Japanese gun positions in the Balikpapan area, on the Borneo east coast. Manggar airdrome was a favored target.

At the same time Fifth AAF fighter bombers sent 270 sorties over northern Luzon Sunday, with close support given to ground forces in the Tuguegarao area.

On Mindanao, the 24th division occupied Tamagan town, two miles north of the river of the same name after a small scale but rough encounter with the enemy and drew to within 26 miles of a junction with the 31st division in the Davao gulf area.

Valley Worked Over

For the third straight day Marine divebombers worked over the Agusan river valley to the north, sending 75 strikes against enemy concentrations in the Daloe area.

Navy Liberators worked over Saigon and Hainan and hit the Kuching shipyards where they met a persistent but unsucessful enemy interceptor.

Japanese bases bordering the broad Makassar strait were heavily bombed by air units that swept over southeastern Borneo and western Celebes. Airfields were cratered.

Great Crisis Is Pictured

(By The Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26 — Tokyo radio in a vibrant display of invasion nerves today reported an Allied landing in the southwest Pacific, a pre-invasion bombardment of Nipponese holdings in Borneo and a confused forecast of an American thrust closer to the Japanese homeland.

The All-India radio, monitored in London, said it heard a Japanese report that an Allied force was attempting a landing on an island halfway between American-conquered Okinawa and Japan's southern shores.

Tokyo English Broadcast

This may have been a confused reception of a Tokyo English language broadcast, beamed to Europe and heard in the United States by the FCC, predicting an Allied invasion of the Amami and Kikai islands in the Amami group, north of Okinawa.

Premier Kantaro Suzuki for the first time admitted the Americans had taken Okinawa and warned his countrymen that the Yanks' "arrogant counteroffensive . . . is expected to be further intensified and lead even to the invasion of our homeland."

The premier's message, reported by the Domei Japanese agency and recorded by the FCC, told the Nipponese the crisis facing their country "is the greatest one since the Mongolian invasion" of 1274.

Island Landing Reported

Domei said without confirmation that Allied units had landed on Ternate, a small island off the east coast of Japanese-held Halmahera in the Moluccas, about 250 miles southeast of the Philippines.

The Allies already are established in the Moluccas, American forces having occupied Morotai island northeast of Halmahera in the drive from New Guinea to the Philippines.

Tokyo radio, after boasting that an Allied invasion of Balikpapan on the southeast coast of Borneo had been thwarted by Japanese defenders, came out again with claims that a 30-ship Allied

GENERAL'S BODIES FOUND

OKINAWA, June 26 (AP)—The bemedalled bodies of Lt. Gen. Mitsuru Ushijima, commanding Japanese general on Okinawa, and his chief of staff have been found in shallow rock graves on the southeast tip of the conquered island. They had committed hara kiri.

Col. Cecil W. Nese, of Salem, Ore., 24th Army corps staff officer said today the bodies of Ushijima, commanding general of the 32nd Japanese Army, and Lt. Gen. Isamu Cho, his chief of staff, had been positively identified.

Both were full field uniforms with medals and insignia of rank pinned on their blouses. The graves were near a cave headquarters.

The bodies of Adm. Minoru Ota, commander of the naval base, and five staff officers, previously had been found in a cave on Oroku peninsula.

Immediate Construction Of New Ward School Ordered

The Board of Trustees of Lubbock Independent School district last night ordered its three-man building committee to begin, immediately, steps leading to construction of a 12-room ward school to be located south and east of the Slaton-Tahoka highways "Y," and also continue study of a three-year building and expansion program aimed at bringing Lubbock schools abreast of already defined needs.

By unanimous vote, the board, in regular monthly business meeting in the schools offices at 1007 Texas avenue, directed the building committee to report on the over-all expansion plans at the next regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night, July 31. If the building committee then advises an early start on the district-wide expansion program, the board is expected to call a bond election to finance the undertaking. Such a program, it is thus far believed, will necessitate a bond issue of from $1,250,000 to $1,500,000.

Recommendations Made

The building committee, composed of Board Vice Chairman Walter G. Alderson, Secretary R. F. Bayless and Chas. A. Guy, already has finished preliminary surveys and has made a partial recommendation. Included in its recommendations, in addition to construction of the ward school south and east of the Slaton-Tahoka "Y," are:

WLB Moves To Soften Strikes

(By The Associated Press)

The War Labor board took steps yesterday to end one of nearly a score of strikes responsible for idleness of 86,000 persons throughout the nation.

Representatives of 15,000 CIO glass workers on strike in 11 cities were called to Washington Thursday for a hearing on why the six-day stoppage had not ended.

The strike was over contract negotiations with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company and the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company, centering on the closed shop and wage demands. Previous WLB orders to return to work have gone unheeded.

Spread Threat Abates

Thousands remained away from war plant jobs in Detroit but a threat that the figure there might mount dissolved when the CIO tabled a proposal to call a strike of maintenance men in a jurisdictional struggle with the AFL.

While the general strike did not materialize, current walkouts of maintenance workers spread to the Ford Motor company and shoved the number of Detroit idle beyond the 50,000 mark.

The controversy involving maintenance workers accounted for 38,347 of Detroit's idle, including

OPA Lifts Rent Bans In Hansford County

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The Office of Price administration announced today it is removing rent control from Hansford county, Tex., effective July 1.

The county, formerly part of the Dalhart defense rental area, is being separated June 30 for purposes of de-control action, the announcement said. Local officials had advised the control was no longer necessary.

Remaining under rent control is the reorganized Dalhart rental area consisting of Dallam, Hartley, Moore and Sherman counties.

MAIL RATE EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Congress agreed today to continue the 3-cent postage on first class mail another two years. A return to the old two-cent rate would have been automatic June 30, without the continuing action in the form of a House resolution which the Senate approved.

Miss Perkins Bids Employes Farewell

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Frances Perkins tossed away her three-cornered hat today, donned a black and white straw sailor and bade farewell to the 1,800 employes of the Labor department.

Standing at one end of a flower-rimmed conference room in the department, she shook hands deftly and thanked each employe for the job he or she had done while she was labor secretary.

A four-piece white-coated chamber orchestra played softly at the opposite end of the room, and it was all sort of sad as the first woman ever to hold a cabinet office prepared to retire. Her resignation is effective Saturday, when she will be succeeded by Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Washington state.

Of her trim new-fangled hat creation, she said "this is my private hat," and indicated that when she shed the tricorner style which has been associated with her from the beginning of the Roosevelt New Deal, she was returning to private life.

However, she would not discuss her future, beyond saying that she would spend a month vacationing in Maine, where her husband, Paul Wilson, is said to be convalescing.

MUSICAL DIRECTOR DIES

NEW YORK, June 26. (AP)—Erno Rapee, 55, musical director of the Radio City Music Hall since its opening in 1932, died today. Born in Budapest, Hungary, where he began his musical career as a pianist, Rapee had been guest conductor of most of the leading symphony orchestras in the United States and Europe.

Aussies Retake Miri Oil Field

MANILA, Wednesday, June 27, (AP) — Australian Ninth division forces completed the reconquest of the great west Borneo oil fields Sunday with the capture of Miri, whose 300 oil wells have been blazing under the Japanese torch for the last three weeks.

The town of 14,500 pre-war population was deserted when the "digger" column, which had landed at the Lutong refinery center several days earlier, pushed through wrecked storage tanks, power stations and office buildings, a headquarters spokesman said today.

Tokyo Reports Ignored

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today did not mention the operation, confining its report of Borneo operations to air activity.

There likewise was no confirmation of reports which the Tokyo radio has been circulating for more than a week that Allied warships have been active off Balikpapan, on the eastern coast of Borneo.

The spokesman said the Aussies walked into Miri without opposition. There was little left of the town.

The Miri oil field, one of the oldest in Borneo, was developed in 1910. Thirty years later, its 300 wells were still producing 1,318,000 barrels of oil annually but the wells were considered near exhaustion at 600 to 1,000 foot levels.

In late 1941 the British, anticipating a Japanese invasion of the island, shipped heavy pumping equipment from Miri to Singapore. The Japanese hauled the equip-

County Leaders Map Campaign To Liven Up Lagging E Bonds

A REALISTIC campaign to do something about a disturbing E bond sales lag in the Seventh War Loan drive was planned in a Tuesday afternoon meeting of 35 Lubbock men associated with committees seeking to shove the drive over the goal.

Several days ago, taking cognizance of the public's lukewarm attitude toward E bonds, the committee, under signatures of Neil H. Wright, general chairman, and Clarence Bestwick, chairman of a citizens committee, sent out letters directing attention to Lubbock's having subscribed only 47 per cent of its E bond total of $1,700,000; whereas Potter county had pledged 62 per cent of the much larger goal of $2,300,000, Childress was 97 per cent over the top, Dalham 94 per cent, Hall 93 per cent, Lamb 79 per cent and Randall 98 per cent.

At Tuesday's committee meeting, Wright presided. Bestwick announced that the county now was 65 per cent subscribed in E bonds. George Kuykendall said that Lubbock Tuesday stood 188th among Texas' 254 counties on E bond subscriptions in ratio to drive totals, and offered the explanation that $40,300 in E bonds had been pledged for the drive by Lubbock county soldiers overseas—"which is more per capita than those here on the home front."

It was decided that a list of "prospects" would be interviewed by committeemen and that civic clubs would hear announcement this week of the state of the drive. Bestwick was given responsibility for informing the Lions and Kiwanis clubs, Kuykendall the Rotary, Wright the ABC and the Optimist clubs.

The committee will place special emphasis on purchase of E bonds as investments for an individual's minor children, and for sons and daughters in the armed services.

London Poles Denounce Warsaw Regime, Lay Claim To Authority

LONDON, June 26 (AP)—The Polish government in London today denounced the newly-formed "National Unity" administration of Warsaw as a "pseudo-government," and declared it would cling to its claim of authority to speak for the Polish nation.

It challenged the authority of the major powers to sponsor creation of the broadened Warsaw government, and asserted Poland now is occupied "by an alien Army and an alien political police."

The declarations were made in a formal note handed to all Allied governments except Russia.

To Name Leaders Soon

Meanwhile, other Polish leaders gathering in Warsaw were expected to announce soon the exact make-up of the new Polish administration agreed upon in talks in Moscow. Many quarters expect Britain and the United States to recognize this new administration.

In that event, today's declaration by the London government of Premier Tomasz Arczszewski may be its last before going into political exile. The big question then would be how much control the local group retains over the Polish Army, nearly 100,000 strong, stationed here, in Italy and on the continent.

Today's note asserted the new Polish administration "has been created on the basis of unprecedented procedure while the whole of Polish territory is occupied by the Soviet Army, and at a time when Poles are deprived of the elementary rights of man and citizen.

Blamed On Communists

The new Warsaw administration, it charged, had been "created by agents of the so-called provisional government of Poland with the factual support of the Communist party, to which but an insignificant number of the Polish people adhere."

Again the statement assailed the "illegal trial" in Moscow of the treacherously-arrested leaders of the Polish underground movement," and added:

"As leaders of the struggle of the Polish nation against Germany, these men together with the legal Polish government in London are representative of the Polish nation until such time as genuinely free elections are held."

Panhandle's Wheat Harvest Under Way

J. B. Kidd, farm labor field assistant of the cooperative extension program with offices at Plainview, says that wheat harvest is now in progress through the entire Panhandle.

Rain has delayed completion of harvesting in central and north central wheat areas and showers have delayed harvesting in parts of the Panhandle but labor and combines from below the cap rock and from Floyd and Crosby counties are moving into the Panhandle harvest area after early harvest completion.

Combines, combine operators, tractor drivers and harvest hands are needed in Hale, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Armstrong, Deaf Smith, Randall, Potter, Carson, Gray, Roberts, Sherman, Hansford and Ochiltree counties. It is advised by Kidd that no single trucks are needed and he further stated that these vehicles should definitely not come unless accompanied by a combine.

Oklahoma is now cutting although no labor or combines are needed, except in the extreme northern counties, and Kansas will not need outside labor or combines before July 1.

Kidd added that wheat is being piled on the ground in some areas but that ample storage space is available when transportation can be arranged. Vast re-deployment of the armed forces has brought on the shortage of freight cars but movement from the non-storage areas is hoped for in the near future, Kidd added.

Lt. John Byers, First Lubbock Flier To Return From Okinawa, Tells Experiences

Marine First Lt. John C. Byers, 23, first flier to return to the States from Okinawa, described his experiences in the attack of the island while visiting here after completing his Corsair fighter missions in the Pacific.

Outstanding among his experiences was the story of his 40,000 foot session with the Zero, already known here, since it was carried by the Associated Press, but told again in the words of the Marine pilot, whose squadron has credit for 10 Jap planes downed on Okinawa.

"I first spotted the Zero playing hide and seek in and out of heavy cloud banks above our task force," said the Leatherneck flier. "I closed in on him but he eluded my machinegun fire.

"Began Game Of Tag"

"We began a game of tag—and I thought I had him marked for it, but he had other ideas, and escaped again. I was about to drop the hunt when I saw him heading right at me. As he zoomed past, I squeezed the trigger, but to no avail. My guns had jammed. Evidently his guns had done the same. All we had at 40,000 feet was an unplanned 'jam session'."

Advancing to Okinawa from the Bismarck archipelago on D-Day plus 9, the Texas flier flew 21 combat mission in operations from Kadina airfield, first objective wrested from the Japs during the invasion there.

Later he teamed up with squadron mates in a strafing sweep against Kume Shima. They destroyed four planes on the ground.

Supported Ground Forces

A majority of his mission consisted of close aerial support for advancing Army and Leatherneck units. Flying only a few hundred feet in front of infantry troops, they took turns laying down a curtain of steel to pave the way for their comrades assaulting Jap defensive positions.

Byers led his division in bombing and strafing attacks on Sugar Loaf Hill, Okinawa's vantage point now held by the Marines. They also plastered military targets at Nana, in addition to wiping out an enemy stronghold in a small town on Okinawa's east coast.

High spot of his part in the present campaign probably occurred, he added, when he shared in a two plane nuisance raid at night against fresh Jap troop replacements moving up to front lines near Naha. He and his wingman, 1st Lt. Douglas G. Murray of Chicago, destroyed five trucks loaded with ammunition and shot up two supply dumps.

Spotted Jap Route

"The greatest satisfaction we got," Buyers said, was being able to report the exact route the Nips were using to bolster their troop strength defending Naha's important airfield."

"We were constantly harassed by Jap artillery fire from guns near Naha," he said. "Shells struck the airstrip, plane parking area and camp area, almost without let up for the first few days. Jap planes also made regular attacks, dropping bombs all arcund us."

Veil Of Mystery Is Lifted From Soviet Position In Pacific War

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press War Analyst

Russia's position in the war against Japan has been considerably clarified by testimony given to the House appropriations committee.

Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, revealed that lend-lease aid is still being sent to Russian forces in Siberia, even though it has been discontinued in Europe. He justified the expenditure on two grounds:

1. The possibility that Russia will enter the war against Japan exists. That pins down large Japanese forces in northern Manchuria which might otherwise be used against American and other Allied troops fighting Japan.

Would Help Shorten War

2. If Russia comes in against Japan, it will "help to shorten the war and save thousands of American and other Allied lives."

On that basis, Crowley pointed out, the administration feels that lend-lease to Russia should be continued as long as it is of military advantage to the United States.

Even speculation about Russia's intentions toward Japan has been frowned upon hitherto by Washington. That may have been partly for military reasons and partly because the United States did not want to seem in the position of "needling" Russia into action, in the way the Soviet press tried to stampede the western Allies into opening a "second front" against Germany long before they were ready. Russia's justification is that at the time she felt herself to be in a desperate situation.

Allies Not Desperate

The powers presently arrayed against Japan are not desperate by any stretch of the imagination, but they certainly would welcome any aid that would shorten the war by months, weeks or even days. Crowley's statement makes that clear. It is obvious that Russia's entry would change the face of the Far Eastern war completely, even if she did not join in direct attack on the Japanese home islands.

Russia's probable course, if it comes to military action, is discussed in an article by Erwin Lessner in the July issue of Harper's magazine, published Tuesday. He starts out with the forthright statement:

"If Russia joins the war against Japan—and there are strong reasons to believe she will—the main lines of her strategy can be predicted with considerable accuracy."

Russia's Interests Cited

The writer points to Russia's considerable interest in the Pacific, rather than to the supposition that she would undertake a major military effort simply out of gratitude to her western Allies.

Russia's aims, as Major Lessner sees it, would be to build up her own regional security in the Far East just as she is doing in eastern Europe. She regards Korea and Manchuria as essential bastions to ward off an attack on Soviet soil by Japan or any other powers in the Pacific.

That does not necessarily mean, he says, that Russia wants to annex Manchuria and Korea, or even establish Communist governments there. She wants to make sure that the local governments are "sympathetic," as in eastern and central Europe.

Big Army In Siberia

Citing Russia's powerful army of about 1,400,000 men in eastern Siberia, backed by a great reservoir of trained reservists, Major Lessner believes Russia's effort would be directed toward Manchuria and Korea, rather than against the Japanese main islands. The southern part of Sakhalin island, north of Japan, might be taken over, he reasons.

Lessner does not think Russia is likely to make Siberian bases available to United States bombers, but contends that the bases are no longer vitally important since the conquest of Iwo and Okinawa. He thinks that Russia, doing her part by knocking off the formidable Japanese army on the mainland, "probably would prefer to leave to America the grim and complicated business of conquering and trying to rule the Japanese homeland."

Senate Would Return Agency To States

WASHINGTON, June 26. (AP)—The Senate voted today to require the government to return jurisdiction over the United States Employment service to the states within 90 days after the end of war.

The action was taken through adoption by voice vote of a rider to a $1,123,749,241 appropriation bill for the labor department and Federal Security agency for the 1946 fiscal year.

The employment service was taken over from the states by executive proclamation of the late President Roosevelt early in the war to speed the channeling of workers to war industries.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass) offered the amendment to require the postwar transfer back to the states.

Keeton's Rape Case Appeal Is Perfected

Alfred Homer Keeton, 20, Tuesday perfected formal appeal from a 25-year rape conviction in 99th district court.

Mrs. Alyene Furgeson, district clerk, at behest of Judge G. V. Pardue, mailed to the court of criminal appeals a transcript of records and a lengthy statement of fact.

Seven bills of exception were certified by Judge Pardue, one with qualification. All turned on defense objection to evidence, with exception of one; which had to do with a closing argument remark by District Attorney Burton S. Burks to effect that Keeton's trial status was the more remarked inasmuch as he was within draft age and yet was not in uniform. Other bills hinged on pictures of the battered prosecutrix, 18-year-old Ruth Jameson, former student of Texas Tech, and their admissibility into evidence; and statements of witnesses admitted into the trial record as a part of the res gestae.

Keeton has been held in county jail since his trial, the severity of his term of years making him inadmissible to bail. He was a laundry deliveryman before his arrest. The alleged offense was purported to have happened at a tourist camp cabin several months ago. The girl showed evidence of a beating when she gave her statements to the district attorney.

Smith asserted that carriers had maintained an uneven flow of grain to plants here. He said delivery of grain by one railroad in the last week had varied from seven to 250 cars daily.

SHARP TESSA JONES

LOS ANGELES papers carried stories and pictures of Tessa Jones recently, cashier at the Theater Mart in Hollywood, who showed a frustrated bandit an empty drawer when he attempted a holdup recently.

Miss Jones told reporters and the police she thought the man, decked out in best bandit manner, i.e. mask, hat pulled low and a gun, was a member of the cast at the theater trying to "rib" her. She showed him an empty drawer and said the money had been collected. Her quick thinking saved $400 in another drawer.

Miss Jones, who is a part-time photographer's model, was born in Lubbock in 1923 and her father, Edward Kennedy, and her great-aunt, and the woman for whom she was named, Miss Tessa Rhea, are Lubbock residents. She is the grand-niece of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lee who also are pioneer residents, having come across the Plains in a covered wagon and settled in Lubbock in 1910.

IWO JIMA HORROR

THE terrific fighting on Iwo Jima was too awful to be put into words, according to a young man who was there in the early days on the island. In a recent letter he told of his concern that some statesmen and military leaders already are speaking in terms of World War 3 when this conflict is still far from won.

He says he wonders if people will never learn and if sorrow and violent death are to be repeated in another 25 years.

In writing to his wife he said, "You wrote not to worry about anything at home. Well, truthfully, for the last month I almost forgot I had a home because my mind and body were so busy. But now I can dwell again on such pleasant thoughts. You spoke of the so-called 'civilized war' we are fighting. Well, I think there was very little civilized about it.

"I cannot write or put into words the feeling of the hell the men went through. In my wildest thoughts and dreams I could not equal the past month. But the boys were real boys. Our corps did not waste us. I can truthfully say our officers were as careful at it was possible to be on such a place. In fact, our leaders took the chances in some cases to spur us on, and the boys went without a doubt—but with a prayer in their minds, for life moved very fast."

TELEPHONE LANGUAGE

WHEN General Eisenhower, on his visit to London soon after V-E day, declared it was wonderful to be back among friends—"among people whose language I can almost speak" he likely drew some laughs. But he was not the first American to discover that his English language is not the English language of British people.

According to an interesting article in current "Southwestern Telephone News," the large group of former Bell System men and women who help maintain and operate the communications system at the Base Air Depot far in the north of England, have had to learn a lot of new language in order to work with the civilians who handle the British telephone lines.

For plain everyday telephone talk undergoes great changes when it becomes "King's English," and it's only fair to talk that kind of English to subjects of the King.

So, if a Yank maintenance man finds a short circuit or ground on the ring side of the line, he reports it to his British co-worker as a "loop"—although he has always regarded a loop as a circuit in good working condition assigned to a special function.

Or he may report his ground as "an earthing on the A leg." If it is a ground on both sides of the line, he says "an earthing on both legs."

• • •

ALSO every newcomer in the British theater of operations has to keep it firmly in mind that an operator's, "Are you through?" is equivalent to "Did you get your party?" or "Are you waiting?"

What Americans call a permanent signal, the British plant man designates as P. G., or permanent glow. And Yanks in the Base area no longer talk about block terminals, cross boxes or manholes; they have become distribution points, discases and junction boxes.

Operators manning the 30-position switchboard at the Base Air Depot have learned a lot from the English women on the General Post Office Boards. For instance, they now say, 'Your number is engaged," instead of "The line is busy," and if you ask for 1-1-7-7, they will pass it to GPO as "double-one, double-seven."

War Funds Approved, But Forced Discharge Of Fathers Defeated

WASHINGTON, June 26. (AP)—A $38,500,285,951 War department appropriation for the fiscal year beginning July 1 won unanimous House approval today after a move to force the Army to discharge fathers of four or more children was defeated.

The big measure, boosting to approximately $245,000,000,000 total funds made available to the War department since July 1, 1940, went to the Senate by a voice vote.

Practically No Debate

There was almost no debate on the huge money items in the measure Congress hopes will provide the "Sunday punch" to defeat Japan, but more than two hours were spent discussing the Army's point system of discharges and the relative merits of butter and oleomargarine in a fighting man's diet.

Rep. Engel (R-Mich) fathered the fight to force the discharge of the dads. He offered an amendment, which was defeated by a non-record vote of 115 to 89, to allow any soldier in the enlisted ranks to obtain his discharge by application prior to September 1 if he is the father of four or more living children.

The present point system providing for discharge of men with 85 or more points allows 12 points for each child, not in excess of three.

Thomason Opposes It

Rep. Thomason (D-Tex), ranking member of the military committee, opposed the amendment on the ground it had not been considered thoroughly.

So did Rep. Kilday (D-Tex), coauthor of legislation giving fathers draft deferment priority. Kilday contended that for each father given his discharge under the Engel plan, a man with a long and arduous service record and eligible for release by points would be required to remain in service.

The oleomargarine-butter controversy developed over an amendment by Rep. Poage (D-Tex) to eliminate a ban in the bill against use of oleomargarine or butter substitutes on Army menus. The amendment lost by an 80 to 54 count.

Hollywood Couple Married By Proxy

EL PASO, June 26. (AP)—Merle Oberon, the screen star, was married by proxy today to Lucien Ballard, Hollywood movie cameraman, in a ceremony performed at Juarez, across the Mexican border from El Paso.

The film star had obtained a "quickie" Mexican divorce at Juarez on June 4 from Sir Alexander Korda, British movie producer.

The proxy marriage ceremony, arranged by the star's El Paso attorney, William A. Cocke, was performed by Civil Registrar Raul Orozco.

Attorney T. J. Portillo was the proxy "bridegroom" representing Ballard, and Alexjandro Munoz was the "bride" representing the actress.

Both Miss Oberon and Ballard are in Hollywood.

She gave her name as Estelle Merle O'Brien, 30. Ballard is 37.

Order On Stamping Meat Given By OPA

COLUMBUS, O., June 26. (AP)—The Office of Price Administration, in a move to curtail black market transactions in meat, has ordered that wholesale cuts from class 2 and 3 slaughterers be stamped with their OPA permit number, the Columbus district OPA office announced today.

The new regulation is effective nationwide July 15, the OPA said.

Earl Fellows, district OPA slaughter control specialist, said the stamping regulation would enable OPA inspectors more easily to trace the source of meat.

Port Arthur Honors Outstanding Soldier

PORT ARTHUR, June 26. (AP)—Port Arthur today observed "Sergeant Adams day," honoring S/Sgt. Lucian Adams, its 22-year-old Congressional Medal of Honor winner with speeches, meetings, and band music.

Mayor W. H. Bailey and Chamber of Commerce President M. T. Ball addressed one gathering. Tonight, Adams appeared at a downtown war bond auction.

On Oct. 28, 1944, near St. Dies, France, Adams, a member of the Third division of the Seventh Army, single-handedly destroyed three German machine gun nests. His feat opened the way for relief of two American companies which were trapped and being cut to pieces. American tanks attempting the rescue had been turned back.

The sergeant killed 13 Germans with his rifle and grenades and captured two others. His mother is Mrs. Rosa Adams of Port Arthur.

Woman To Face Charge In Assault

FORT WORTH, June 26. (AP)—Mrs. Ray Robinson, a 34-year-old brunette, was charged with assault to murder today after she admitted to District Attorney Al Clyde she shot and seriously wounded her 39-year-old husband "because of another woman."

Robinson was in a Fort Worth hospital suffering from three bullet wounds. Police said he was shot in the abdomen, chest and left leg with a .32 caliber pistol as he entered an automobile in Fort Worth with a party of friends.

Mrs. Robinson, who helps her husband operate a basement tavern in Fort Worth, said he was in their place of business only about an hour yesterday.

"I went to look for him when I closed and finally found him," she said. "I fired the first shot just to scare him. I don't remember how many shots there were."

Explaining the shooting was "over another woman," she told officers her husband "talked about that girl a lot."

Generals Eisenhower and Bradley lived across the hall from each other when they were attending West Point.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Buses are overburdened as never before. A crisis is near. With more men, tires and gas going to war, present service can barely be maintained. Each day brings greater loads. When you must travel locally, let this be your creed:

1. Do Not Ride in Rush Hours, except to and from your job.
2. Have Exact Fare Ready, saves time and fuss.
3. Move Back When Driver Asks, speeds your ride.

This simple creed will work wonders.

Bodies Recovered From Sunken Boat

NEW ORLEANS, June 26. (AP)—Navy divers have recovered the bodies of three of five persons drowned in the sinking of the tug "Nellie" in 20 feet of water of the intracoastal canal, about 25 miles east of New Orleans.

Victims recovered were Ernest Peacock, 18 year old second mate of Bountstown, Fla.; Mrs. Marie Ward, 25, wife of the second engineer, Pensacola, Fla., and Mrs. Alton Busbee, 21, wife of the chief engineer, Pensacola.

The Coast Guard had started preparations for raising the tug, owned by the Aiken Towboat company of Pensacola. The tug was en route to Carabelle, Fla., from Port Arthur, Tex., towing barges containing 10,000 barrels of high test gasoline.

Several Men Of Area Initiated In Shrine

Several men of Lubbock and towns in this vicinity were initiated into the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at the Khiva Temple 25th anniversary celebration of its founding in Amarillo Monday.

They included J. R. Fitzgerald, Petersburg; C. D. Gore, Brownfield; Clifford J. Pharr, Abernathy; F. W. Janes, Littlefield; J. L. Sisk, Levelland, and Iran E. Bain, William G. Williams, B. L. Clutter, jr., and C. W. Ratliff, Lubbock.

Approximately 1,800 Sriners and their wives registered for the meeting.

Logic Unusual But Not Good Enough

DALLAS, June 26. (AP)—Deputy Sheriffs J. Hulse and C. C. Mooney admitted that the logic expounded by a negro arrested last night for speeding was unusual — but not good enough.

When the motorist demanded to know why he had been stopped, the deputies told him he was going more than 65 miles an hour.

That couldn't be true, the accused man insisted, because he hadn't been away from home for an hour.

He finished the night in the county jail.

Opinion Given On Passenger Car Use

AUSTIN, June 26. (AP)—Passenger vehicles can't be bought by counties for supplying materials for road machinery, the attorney general's department ruled today.

The opinion to Willacy county Attorney R. F. Robinson pointed out the county might buy pickup or dump trucks for taking supplies to grading machinery. But, the opinion held, passenger vehicles are not suited for that purpose and cannot be bought for such from road and bridge funds.

Raising Legislators' Pay Second Amendment On August 25 Ballot

By WILLIAM E. KEYS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, June 26.—The people will decide Aug. 25 if the pay of members of the state legislature will be increased to $3,650 a year.

A constitutional amendment with this intent is the second one of four appearing on a ballot at the special election of Aug. 25.

If approved, it will give legislators quite a pay boost. What it does is pay them $10 a day for every day of their tenure which is two years for house members, four years for Senate members.

Means $3,650 Annually

That means a member of the house would receive $3,650 each year for two years and senators would receive the same annual amount for four years.

As it is now, both representatives and senators receive $10 a day for the first 120 days of a general session (of which there is one every odd year) and $5 a day as long as the general session continues thereafter. They also receive $10 a day during a special session which is limited by the constitution to 30 days.

The pay raise amendment was submitted by the 48th legislature which ended its general session in June. Debate on the measure produced contrasted ideas on what pay legislators should receive. Obviously a healthy majority thought the people ought to pass on the $10 a day continuous pay proposition. Otherwise the amendment would not apear on the Aug. 25 ballot. Others felt the amount was too low. A $10,000 annual pay scale, equal to that of congressmen and federal judges, was mentioned. Proponents said they thought the responsibilities of state lawmakers were equal to those of congressmen.

Other Divergent Views

Some felt that the present pay is enough. Still others believed a man or woman should serve his state without pay. Pay scale of legislatures varies among states. A New England commonwealth pays its legislators $100 a year.

The proposed amendment to the Texas constitution does not alter the mileage allowance of members, $250 for each 25 miles going to and returning from a session, regardless of the mode of travel and computed by the nearest and most direct route of travel by land.

Full Text Not On Ballot

The Aug. 25 ballot will not carry the full text of the proposed amendment.

It will permit the voter to support or reject the amendment by making his choice of sections for or against "the constitutional amendment providing for continuous salary per diem of all members of the legislature during their tenure of office."

Candidate Churchill Takes Cheers, Boos

COVENTRY, June 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, tired-looking but still sharp-tongued, continued his 1,000-mile electioneering tour through the English countryside today after taking cheers and boos with equal unconcern in the first day of his intensive campaign on behalf of the Conservative party.

Led by a police escort and bowling and smiling from an open touring car, Churchill praised the United States, insisted upon friendly relations with Russia and flung taunts at his political enemies in numerous brief speeches yesterday.

"You haven't much chance against me with my microphone," he told Laborites at Coventry who sought to drown him out with their party song, "Red Flag."

The crowds were good-natured and even Churchill's most loyal supporters seemed to enjoy the taunts from his enemies.

Churchill changed from his famed black "election hat" to a grey Homburg between towns and picnicked informally en route on egg and sardine sandwiches and Scotch whisky.

The prime minister reminded his listeners that there was a fight still ahead.

"The United States stood by us in noble fashion," he declared. "We must stand by them."

Railroads Preparing To Contest ICC Order

NEW ORLEANS, June 26. (AP)—Western railroads are preparing to contest the Interstate Commerce commission order for a 10 per cent decrease in class rates, Louis A. Schwartz, general manager of the New Orleans traffic and transportation bureau, said here.

The decrease would apply to both southern and western roads.

Southern lines already have indicated they would comply with the order which goes into effect Aug. 30. Eastern lines, which were ordered to increase class rates 10 per cent have indicated they, too, would comply.

Little Saipan Boat Yard Does Big Job, Wins Ingenuity 'I'

By BONNIE WILEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAIPAN—The biggest little boat repair yard in the Pacific—doing business here on dusty, dirty Saipan—has won its "I" for ingenuity.

It broke all Navy records for such work in repairing landing craft damaged at Iwo Jima in time for them to be used in the Okinawa invasion.

It has taken over an immense amount of captured Japanese equipment and converted it to American use, thereby saving tons of valuable shipping space between here and the states.

Difference In Methods

"This small boat repair unit," pointed out the officer in charge, Cmdr. Bernard M. Olsen of Staten Island, New York, "is a good example of the difference between our warfare and that of the Japs. They were using this same spot as a repair yard, so first thing we did when we came was to increase this front from 100 feet, which they were using, to 1000 feet—American style."

One feature of the yard is its work wall—a sort of superman shelf that runs along the waterfront. They made it by driving some posts into the sand, running metal aviation strip sheets between the posts and then filling in the middle with coral. In comes a little boat—anything up to 50 feet—to be repaired. Down swoops a big crane which picks up the little boat—anything up to 20 tons—in its iron hands, like nothing at all, swinging it right up onto the sea wall where the Navy crews pounce upon it to get it back into action again.

About 2,000 Repaired

"Since we got underway, officially, we've repaired about 2000 small boats," Olsen said. "We have about 350 of them in here right now."

Among the yard's equipment is some that's changed hands as often as a Christmas tie. Like one of the cranes, for example.

"The Japs captured that crane from us when they took Guam and we took it back when we invaded Saipan," Olsen said. "And see that net tender over there? Well, the Japs took it away from the British at Singapore and we took it away from the Japs here. It's pretty well shot up. We just use it to tie to."

U. S. S. Pennsylvania Is Back In Action

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26 (AP)—The time and war worn old battleship Pennsylvania was back in action in the Pacific today after a three-months overhaul at Hunter's Point drydocks, guns of the Pearl Harbor victims Oklahoma and Nevada transferred to her turrets.

It took 211,645 nine-hour man days to put the 29-year-old veteran of two wars back in condition to resume the battle against the Japanese. During 13 Pacific amphibious operations she had hurled more than 11 million pounds of steel at the enemy.

When the old battleship, commissioned at Newport News, Va., in 1916, reached Hunter's Point she was suffering from a severe case of combat fatigue.

But Captain W. M. Moses and a crew of 1400 took her to sea again in high spirits.

Public Continues To Favor New Method Of Ratifying Treaties, Gallup Poll Shows

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—When the U. S. House of Representatives went on record in favor of giving itself a voice in ratification of treaties, it had the backing of the American people.

A survey just completed across the nation finds that a majority of the civilians in this country favor having treaties ratified by presidential approval plus a majority of the House and Senate.

GALLUP

This is in contrast to the present method of treaty ratification, which calls for presidential approval and approval of two-thirds of the Senate.

The idea actually has been acceptable to the American people as far back as October, 1943, when the Institute first questioned a cross-section of the public about it.

Whether the Senate will agree to share its august treaty-making prerogative with the House is of course another question. As for the general public, present sentiment on the issue is shown by replies to the following question:

"Which one of these three ways would you, personally, favor as the best way to have peace treaties approved?"

The three alternatives given voters are: (1) Approval by the President only, (2) Approval by the President and a majority of the whole Congress, (3) Approval by the President and two-thirds of the Senate—the present method.

The replies today, as compared to earlier surveys on the same issue:

	Oct. 1943	May 1944	Today
Pres. only	7%	7%	7%
Pres. and maj. whole Congress	54	60	58
Pres. and two-thirds Senate	25	19	21
Don't know	14	14	14

Analysis of the replies brought forth some other interesting facts about public thinking on the question of treaty ratification:

1. Throughout the nation as a whole, only about one-third are able to say how treaties are at present ratified.

2. Among the people who are able to name present treaty ratification procedures, the majority favor changing requirements to approval of the President and a majority of both the House and Senate.

3. Among people who have attended college, almost two out of three know the present ratification procedures, but better than two out of three think the best system would be to provide approval of the President and a majority of both branches of Congress.

Budapest Slowly Emerging From War's Ravages; People Kept Busy

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following account of conditions in Budapest is the first dispatch by an American correspondent from the Hungarian capital since America's entry into World War 2. A. I. Goldberg, who covered most of the European campaign with the U. S. Seventh Army, visited Budapest in the course of a jeep journey that also took in Prague, Vienna and Bratislava.)

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 20. (Delayed) — Budapest, her beauty shattered, is slowly emerging from the war's wreckage that left Buda a collection of gaunt, granite skeletons overlooking the Danube and heaps of rubble in Pest on the east side of the river.

There are a number of structures undamaged except for glass broken by the pounding of Rusian artillery in the city's 52-day siege, and in some districts on the city's border life appears almost normal. There is a shortage of food and fuel. The situation already is bad, with the prospect that more than 75 per cent will be cut from this year's harvests.

Reparations Demands

Accounts are doleful on all sides. Hungarians, quick to forget they declared war against the United Nations, are smarting under the heavy restitution and reparations demands being made on them.

They resent demands for quartering and feeding Red Army soldiers serving as occupation troops or streaming through here in thousands on their journey home.

Hungarians fall back on the plea: "The Nazis made us do it and, anyway, we didn't fight very hard."

They look askance at the prospect of dismemberment of their industry; and they are worried over the news that Hungary in the next six years must pay $300,000,000 in reparations, $200,000,000 of it to Soviet Russia. The remainder will be divided between Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

People Are At Work

But the people of Budapest are working, and the Hungarian trait for taking it easy is getting short shift from Russian occupation authorities. These, under Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, dominate the Allied Control commission, which includes a British detachment under General Edgecombe and an American unit under Maj. Gen. William Key.

Every Budapest resident, no matter his previous rank or position, must do at least one day's manual labor cleaning up the city. Results are apparent. Rubble is neatly stacked in the streets, and on the west side of the Danube there remain few streets where a jeep cannot operate.

Payment Of Traffic Fines Here Heavy

Evidence of sharpened enforcement regulations and of the increasing number of police to cope with traffic problems was presented in corporation court Monday when 48 persons paid traffic tickets.

Almost all the fines resulted from "moving violations"; such as, running red lights, speeding, running stop signs, turning where turns are prohibited, and crossing from the wrong to the correct lane in front of other motorists.

At that, most of the police will concede, traffic is showing a definite improvement, more recognition of control efforts.

Liberal Views Taken

"Most of those who appear to pay fines in corporation court have been liberal in their views of police efforts to enforce ordinances," said Solon Lea, city recorder.

"Those who are in favor of more realistic enforcement say they have observed more caution of other drivers."

Police warned, however, that it is noticeable that many motorists continue to turn right at red traffic lights without coming to a complete stop; that some "cut through" ramps of filling stations and many, particularly in the residential section, pay no attention to stop signs.

The police, not yet up to its full strength, is attempting to "watch all violations," and has promised to "give tickets where violations are noted."

Odear came here from Houston, where he was with the Eastern Airlines to succeed Bill Brown, transferred to Amarillo as Essair station manager.

New Kings Due To Be Named In Major Leagues In 1945

NEW YORK, June 26. (UP) — Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown—at least as far as the various major league baseball champions of 1944 are concerned.

With the current season drawing close to the half-way mark today, most of last year's individual leaders were bogged down while new and sometimes surprising gentlemen have risen to take their places.

New Batting Leaders

Swinging a bat with plenty of hits in it, Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves indicates that he means business in his efforts to annex the major league batting championship. And as far as last year's champ, Fred (Dixie) Walker of the Brooklyn Dodgers is concerned Holmes apparently doesn't need to worry.

Lou Boudreau, Cleveland Indians' manager and 1944 American League leader, is little better off. Replacing him is the amazing Tony Cuccinello of the Chicago White Sox, finally blossoming out as a hitter after a decade of play.

One of the few likely to succeed himself is Hal Newhouser, crafty Tiger southpaw, who is ahead of his 1944 pitching time table with 11 victories and four defeats. Going at that pace he will win more than 30 games whereas in 1944 he picked up 29 wins while losing nine times. Even his leadership is in jeopardy. Russ Christopher, the one-man pitching staff for Philadelphia's white elephant Athletics, has won 11 while losing only two and Rookie Dave (Boo) Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox tops Newhouser in percentage with 10 triumphs and two losses.

In the National League Ted Wilks of the Cards, who won 17 and lost four, has equalled his 1944 record on the losing side with four defeats, but he has mustered up only four wins to go with them. His ex-team mate, Morton Cooper, now of the Braves, is the current National League leader with six triumphs and one loss, but that is a long way from big Mort's 1944 total of 22 and 7.

Nicholson Big Bust

One of the biggest "busts" of the year has been Bill Nicholson, the 1944 home run and runs batted in king from the Chicago Cubs. Things have gotten so bad with him that he is going to take hitting lessons from Rogers Hornsby, one of the all-time National League greats in the base-hit department. Nicholson to date is 16th in runs batted in with 31 while likable Luis Olmo, the Battin' Latin from Brooklyn is the new leader with 54 to date. Ernie Lombardi of the Giants is the new home run leader with 13 while Nicholson has only five, a far cry from his 33 total of 1944.

In the American League two 1944 champions apparently have decided to switch crowns. Vernon Stephens of the Browns has displaced Nick Etten of the Yankees as the home run leader with 11, while Etten, who hit 22 last year, has gotten only five to date in 1945. However, Etten is tied with Bob Johnson of the Red Sox for the runs batted in leadership with 39. Stephens, who led the league with 109 last year, has only 29 thus far and rates fifth.

There are new leaders in both leagues in base-stealing. George Case of Washington, who lost his title to George Stirnweiss of the Yankees last season, is back in front again with 13 while Stirnweiss is second with 10. In the National, Olmo has nine and Johnny Barrett of the Pirates, the 1944 leader, is second with eight. Stirnweiss stole 55 last year while Barrett pilfered 28.

Then of course there are the Browns and Cards. The 1944 pennant winners, they now are in sixth place and second respectively in thier current campaigns.

Post Ten Wins Over Blue Bonnet Again

Pete Hill's Blue Bonnet laundry softball team suffered its third loss of the season, and second to Post, here Tuesday afternoon when the Post club came from behind to nose out a 2 to 1 decision.

The game was an airtight hurling duel between Adams of Post and Littrell of Blue Bonnet, with Adams limiting the Lubbock team to three hits. Littrell gave up only five hits.

Blue Bonnet scored in the first inning, and held the 1-0 lead until the fifth, when Post tied the score. The winning run scored in the sixth inning.

The Blue Bonnet team will play the Lubbock Army Air field MPs this afternoon in a City league game at the Thirty-Second and Adams street diamond.

Yankees Defeat St. Louis, 5-4

ST. LOUIS, June 26 (AP)—The New York Yankees shaved a half-game off Detroit's first place margin tonight as they defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4, to move within one game of the leaders.

It was the first of a three game series, and the first Yankee victory at Sportsmans' park since July of last year.

New Mexico Lobos Announce Grid Card

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 26. (AP)—A tentative seven-game 1945 football schedule for the University of New Mexico Lobos which will bring the Lobos' old rivals, Texas Tech, to Albuquerque this fall was announced today.

The schedule, depending on travel conditions and the progress of the war in the Pacific, is as follows:

Sept. 22—Eastern New Mexico college at Albuquerque.
Sept. 29—Lubbock Army Air field at Albuquerque.
Oct. 6 — West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon, Tex.
Oct. 13 — Colorado college at Colorado Springs.
Nov. 3—Univ. of Colorado at Albuquerque.
Nov. 10—Utah university at Albuquerque.
Nov. 24—Texas Tech at Albuquerque.

Roach Wins Again Over Texas Champ

HOUSTON, June 26 (AP)—Possibly the finest amateur fighter ever to appear in Houston, Sgt. Lavern Roach of Plainview, Tex. and the Cherry Point, N. C., Marine base, scored a unanimous decision over Houston's Gilbert Garcia in the five round main event of the E-bond boxing show here tonight.

The show, sponsored by the War Sports Activities committee and underwritten by the Houston Elks lodge, grossed $1,600,000 in E-bond sales.

The main event never was close. Roach, who weighed 147 to Garcia's 140, had too much strength, too much speed, too much reach and too much skill, consistently beat Garcia to the punch and won every round.

Bainbridge Navy Is Winner Over Cards

BALTIMORE, June 26. (AP)—The Bainbridge Naval Training Center baseball team trounced the St. Louis Cardinals, 9 to 6 today before 8,000 sailors.

Ken Raffensberger, former Philadelphia Phils ace, let the major leaguers down with ten hits while his mates clicked off 16 against three St. Louis hurlers.

Dick Sisler, son of the great George Sisler and himself Cardinal property, led the Sailors' attack with four hits in four times up, including two doubles.

Presidents Cup In Semi-Finals

As the Presidents Cup golf matches move into the semi-finals a real battle is developing in the lower bracket of the championship flight with plenty of fireworks promised before the week is over.

The matches in the lower bracket will pair up one of the most familiar foursomes on the Lubbock Country club course, with Amos Howard battling Chick Trout, while Morley Jennings squares off with Raymond Marshall.

This round of matches should be played off by tonight, with the next matches scheduled to be played off Sunday night.

The pairings in the upper bracket will send J. B. McCauley against Dr. J. H. Stiles while Dr. M. F. Swart plays W. F. Dean.

In matches of the earlier round, McCauley defeated Stoney Wall, 3 and 2, Stiles beat John Markman, 2 and 1, Swart defeated A. E. E. Miller, one up, and Dean nosed out Hiram Parks, one up in 19 holes.

In the lower bracket, Howard beat Jack Markham, 3 and 2, Trout won handily over Cecil Horne, 5 and 3, Jennings defeated Cliff Widener, 3 and 2, and Marshall won over Jake Warnick, 4 and 3.

The eight matches coming up in the consolation bracket were paired this week as follows: E. H. Armstrong vs. T. E. Patterson; F. L. Lindsey vs. L. H. McLarty; C. F. Anderson vs. Truman Hutson; Wright Kerr vs. W. D. Gerand; R. H. Bean vs. Dr. D. C. Williams; M. K. Dean vs. Tom Lemond; Jimmy Samson vs. Jack Goodgion, and Ben Smith vs. Fenner Tubbs.

Preliminaries Open Today In Golf Meet

CHICAGO, June 26. (AP)—A select field of 31 professionals and 14 amateurs tomorrow begin a ring-around-the-rosy tune-up for the $12,300 Chicago Victory National Open golf tournament at Calumet Country club, Friday through Sunday.

Such noteworthy drive-for-dough chaps as Byron Nelson, Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Sam Byrd, Craig Wood and Jimmy Hines tomorrow and Thursday will team up with amateur, senior and women stars in a 36-hole whirligig for three different titles.

Some 31 foursomes will set out for the pro-woman, pro-amateur and pro-senior championships. The former is up for grass because Lt. Patty Berg of the Marines will be unable to compete. The red-headed Minneapolis star last year teamed with Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., for the pro-woman title.

Also undefended is the pro-amateur championship because Steve Kovach, Pittsburgh steelworker, turned pro since teaming with Ky Laffoon to win that phase of last year's meet.

Section C Ten Cops Win Over Grocermen

Scoring all their runs in the first inning, Lubbock Army Air field's Section C softball ten won a 5 to 2 decision over Edwards Grocery club Tuesday afternoon in a crucial city league softball game.

The game was a hurling duel between Calcagno of the winners and Maloney of the losers. Calcagno limited the Grocermen to two hits, while Maloney gave up only three hits.

Errors caused most of the damage in the first inning, as Section C scored all five runs. Maloney blanked them the rest of the way after his defense settled down. Calcagno hurled shut out ball for five innings, but Edwards scored twice in the sixth, but the rally was short.

Kiwanis Nine Noses Out Optimists, 4-1

Buddy Weber, mound ace of the Kiwanis club, and Billy Travis, top moundsman of the Optimist club, hooked up in a pitching duel Tuesday afternoon at the Boys club diamond, with the Kiwanis winning a 4 to 1 decision, in what was termed as the season's best game.

Both pitchers stacked up strikeouts throughout the seven innings, were exceedingly stingy with base hits, and turned in some sensational pitching.

Optimist Top Hitting

The Optimists outhit the Kiwanis, as Travis limited the winners to only two hits, while Weber was touched for four safe blows. Ten errors, evenly divided between the teams, accounted for most of the scoring done by either side.

The first two inning were scoreless, then the Kiwanis pushed over a run in the last of the third. The Optimists bounded right back, and tied the score in the fourth.

Rally In Sixth

The first Kiwanis batter reached first on an error in the last of the sixth. Travis got the next two out, with the runner moving around to third base. Galey hit a high pop fly that fell between the pitcher and second baseman, and the winning run scored. A hit batsman put another on base, then Bobby Reed hit a Texas leaguer over first that scored two runs, and iced away the game.

Feller Hurls Navy To Win Over Bosox

GREAT LAKES, Ill., June 26. (AP)—Bob Feller blazed a third strike past Dolph Camilli, with a runner on second and two down in the ninth inning, this afternoon to give the Great Lakes Bluejackets a 3 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox at the Naval training center.

Camilli was the ninth strikeout for Feller. It was the fourteenth victory of the season for the Sailors, and their second straight over major league competition.

Truman Closes World Parley

flight eastward, to offer the charter to the Senate in Washington Monday, and the sun of a sparkling day was dipping into the Pacific when the last signature went on the charter.

It is a document whose core creates a compact security council, of eleven members, five great nations and six lesser ones, to which has been assigned the primary responsibility for preserving world security by peaceful methods and, if necessary, by force of arms.

But all nations will be represented in a general assembly, where they may bring the voice of public opinion to bear on almost any international issue.

Court of Justice

In addition, the new world organization will have an international court of justice, a council charged with supervising the dependent areas of the world, and a council to attack international social and economic ills.

President Truman closed one of the great assemblies of history with an assurance that "you have created a great instrument for peace."

"The world must now use it!" Mr. Truman said.

Addressing the final plenary session the chief executive appealed to delegates of 50 nations to make the charter "a living thing," to seek its immediate ratification. He promised:

Goes To Senate At Once

"I shall send this charter to the United States Senate, at once. I am sure that the overwhelming sentiment of the people of my country and of their representatives in the Senate is in favor of immediate ratification."

Mr. Truman was given a rising ovation. He smiled and, extending his arms outward, declared, "Oh, what a great day this can be in history."

Facing him as he spoke were the men and women who met here two months and a day ago to draft a master plan for peace. Behind him was a bright blue background, with the flags of all the United Nations silhouetted against it, interspersed between four austere, golden columns.

Justifies Confidence

Speaking with a trace of Missouri tang, Mr. Truman told dignitaries gathered from the world over they had justified the conference and hope of peace-loving people.

Secretary of State Stettinius introduced Mr. Truman by saying simply, "fellow delegates, the President of the United States."

"With this charter," the President said, "the world can begin to look forward to the time when all worthy human beings may be permitted to live decently as free people. . . .

"If we should falter in the future in our will to use it, millions now living will surely die . . .

"Let us not fail to grasp this supreme chance to establish a worldwide rule of reason—to create an enduring peace under the guidance of God."

Rousing Ovation

President Truman finished speaking at 5:28 p. m. and was given a standing ovation by the delegations.

After announcing that the interim commission would meet tomorrow to start laying plans for bridging the gap between the conference and ratification of the new league, Stettinius raised his gavel and said:

"I now hereby declare the United Nations conference on international organization adjourned."

His gavel fell. It was 5:29 p. m. The band swung into the Star Spangled Banner. When it was over, Stettinius took the President's arm and walked off the Opera house stage.

Others Precede Him

Ten conference delegation chiefs, most of them in their native tongues, had preceded the President in addressing the closing conference session in San Francisco's War Memorial Opera house.

Mr. Truman walked across a court to the Opera house from the auditorium of the Veterans Memorial building, where he had watched the American delegation sign the charter, starting at 3:16 p. m. (pwt). A dozen more delegations still had to affix their signatures after the final plenary meeting.

Stettinius Signs

With the rest of the American delegation at the conference lined up behind him, Secretary of State Stettinius eased into a blue armchair and penned his name swiftly and firmly on the charter of a new world organization dedicated to peace.

Stettinius glanced up, spoke briefly. The other delegates stepped forward in turn to place their names on the charter—Senators Tom Connally and Arthur Vandenberg, Representatives Sol Bloom and Charles A. Eaton, Commander Harold E. Stassen, Dean Virginia Gildersleeve.

"We are all aware," Stettinius said, "that this is an extremely historic occasion. The charter for world peace has been completed. But this is not the end—it is only the beginning. A great task lies before us.

"With faith in our cause, good will in our hearts, we will com-this task. I am confident that with God's help we will reach our goal."

Shakes President's Hand

He arose from the chair, and Mr. Truman shook his hand.

When the signing was completed, Mr. Truman and Stettinius walked across a court separating the Veterans building and Opera house, arriving promptly at 3:30 p.m. for the final conference session. A band struck up "Hail to the Chief" when they appeared on the platform before the biggest audience of the conference. The large hall vibrated with applause.

When he rapped the meeting to order, Stettinius called for a minute of silence in honor of all the men and women of the United Nations armed forces "living and dead, whose courage and sacrifice have made this conference possible.

Then the final speeches of the conference—11 in all including Mr. Truman's—began.

The speakers, and what they said, each in his own tongue:

Stettinius: "This charter is a compact born of suffering and war. With it now rests our hope for good and lasting peace."

Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegation chief: "This instrument will, I believe, prove itself to be an epoch-making document."

Soviet delegation chief Andrei A. Gromyko: "The charter of the organization, which is the result of ceaseless work of delegations participating in the conference, affords solid ground to consider the work of the conference a success."

British delegation chief, the Earl of Halifax: "If men are serious in wanting peace and are ready to make sacrifices for it, they may find means to win it."

French Delegate

Joseph Paul-Boncour, chief French delegate: "The international organization will no longer be unarmed against violence."

Pedro Leao Velloso, Brazilian chairman: "The contribution of the American nations could not fail to be of outstanding value."

Chairman Jan Masaryk of the Czechoslovakian delegation: "Let us please stop talking of the next world war."

Ezequiel Padilla, chief of the Mexican delegation: "The small nations must not forget that they are not too small to dream of, yearn and fight for the cause of mankind."

Prince Amir Faisal Ibn Abdul Azis, Saudi Arabian chairman: "This charter does not represent perfection . . . Nevertheless, it is doubtless the best ever produced by peoples representing fifty states."

Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, South African chairman; "It is for our peace-loving peoples to see that this great peace plan is backed with all their energy, all their heart and soul."

At noon, with the eight delegates of China leading the way, the conference framers had started filing solemnly up to a blue table in the auditorium of the Veterans building. One by one they inscribed their names on a document sure to occupy a great spot in history.

Bill Mauldin Flays General Patton For 'Dictation' Efforts

DENVER, June 26 (U.P.) — Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the Third Army, today was the target of a charge that he tried to "dictate" the thoughts and emotion of his men.

The accusations came from Bill Mauldin, Scripps-Howard cartoonist considered a spokesman for the American soldier. Maudlin was in Denver yesterday en route with his wife to Los Angeles where he will see his 22-month-old son for the first time.

Discharged Two Days Earlier

Point-discharged from the Army two days ago, Maudlin, the creator of the famous "Up Front With Mauldin" and its successor "Sweating It Out," revealed some details about an interview he had with General Patton last March in Luxembourg.

Explaining that his recent discharge had nothing to do with his expression of opinion, Mauldin said that General Patton called him into headquarters and "tried to tell me what I should think and what I should draw, what GI's should think, what the American people should think."

The young artists refuted a statement attributed to the general several weeks ago that he had seen only two of Maudlin's cartoons and liked neither of them. When General Patton summoned him, Mauldin said, his desk was covered with examples of Mauldin-pictured representations of soldier life in Europe.

Said Bad On Morale

"He said my cartoons were undermining the morale of the Army, were destroying confidence in the command, were making soldiers unsoldierly," Mauldin said.

"He said that I was blowing off steam for the soldiers, that I was giving them an outlet for their emotions. He said he did not believe that soldiers should have any steam let off for them or have any outlet for their emotions.

Chicago Flooded By Bogus Red Stamps

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP)—OPA officials announced tonight that counterfeit red ration stamps have flooded Chicago within the past 48 hours "by the millions" and predicted the bogus meat coupons would "spread throughout the nation quickly."

Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, said the counterfeit stamps threaten a meat famine "worse than anything so far experienced."

He reported that within the past two days men have been offering bogus stamps indiscriminately to merchants at a cost of six cents each and that "some merchants have sent as many as 10,000 counterfeit coupons to the certification center in a single envelope."

L. D. Edwards, head of the ration currency protection unit here, said special code numbers have been duplicated on the stamps and it is "the best job of counterfeit ever done on ration stamps.

22,000 at Packard Motor Car company. Other strikes included 7,500 at Budd Wheel company, 975 at Stinson Aircraft, 700 at five lumber companies, 4,000 at Hudson Motor Car company and 145 at Chrysler corporation.

Chicago Truck Strike

How many of the 6,000 members of the Independent Chicago Truck Drivers' union, on strike since July 16, responded to a union back-to-work call remained undetermined. Cartage companies reported few independents back and Army drivers continued hauling loads.

A strike of printing tradesmen at the R. R. Donnelley and Sons company, Chicago, where 1,100 are out, continued. A union spokesman said the Chicago Typographical union had voted transfers of $10,000 from its fund to support the strike over the company's insistence on continuing a 40-year open shop policy.

Most Houston Markets Closed

HOUSTON, June 26 (AP)—Nearly 1000 meat markets were closed today, as proprietors entered the second day of a shutdown in protest against over-ceiling prices and tie-in sales, Pat S. Stone, secretary of the Retail Grocers association, announced.

Reports to the association showed that the closing of members is practically 100 per cent, he said, while of all independents throughout the city, the shutdown is 90 per cent.

Chain stores have announced they will keep their markets open, as have some independents.

The close-down of independents will continue until the objectives of the association are achieved, Stone said.

Objectives Listed

They are: to break the black market in Houston; to eliminate tie-in sales demanded by meat wholesalers, and to assure a fair distribution of meat to all markets throughout the city, so that the small units will get their fair share of meat available, just the same as larger stores, Stone said.

At a directors' meeting last night, a resolution was passed, thanking the members for "their splendid cooperation in the shutdown, and thanking non-members of the association for their support of the movement.

Non-Members Join Movement

Almost as many non-members have joined the movement as there are members of the association, Stone said. He pointed out that the large number of non-members joining in the closing shows "how vicious the black market in meats here is," and illustrates the way retail grocers feel about it.

He said that many markets which had previously indicated they would remain open had decided to join the association and closed their markets before the end of the day yesterday.

Chain Stores Open

All the large chain stores in the city and a scattering of independents were open all day yesterday. The chains have announced they will continue to sell meat.

Stores in a number of small places throughout the county joined the Houston markets, Stone said, and Pasadena reported more than half the markets there had closed.

The OPA has indicated that a wholesale investigation of meat deals is pending, and the rationing board issued a statement asking that consumers report any overcharges to the board.

ditional classroom facilities at Senior High school; addition of a combination cafeteria, auditorium and study hall at Dunbar school for negroes; shop facilities for Guadalupe school for Mexicans; two new junior high schools—one adjacent to Green Acres in the Southwest edge of Lubbock for which 10 acres already have been purchased; the other to be located on the 13-acre Dora Roberts property bounded by Avenues P and Q and Thirtieth and Thirty-second streets; cafeteria facilities for all schools in the system; and remodeling and modernizing of the present Junior High building, including the addition of a combination gymnasium-study hall, a cafeteria, and revamping of the north wing to care for ward school pupils.

Room Needed Now

Supt. R. W. Matthews told the board last night that even if one new junior high building and the projected southeast ward building were ready for use this coming September, "we still wouldn't have enough room adequately to care for the student load." Early construction order on the new southeast ward will result in that building's being ready for occupancy a year from next September, but no sooner, due to materials and manpower shortages.

The board last night approved sale of the old Southwest ward property to Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hardy, highest bidders following advertisement of the property for sale. A two-room brick building and four acres of land are involved in the property which has not been used for school purposes for the past decade. Price was $2,500, with the school district retaining 51 per cent of the mineral rights. The property is located five miles southwest of the courthouse.

Resignations of Mrs. Mary Ware, director of music at Senior High, and Mrs. Pearl Talley, Guadalupe, were accepted and Superintendent Matthews announced Mrs. Ware's successor as Mrs. John Watson, previously co-ordinator of music for the system and a member of the Central ward faculty. Four new teachers were elected on nomination by the superintendent. They are Miss Pauline Moreley, Dupre; Mrs. Eunice Adams, Guadalupe; Miss Wilma Higgins, McWhorter, and Mrs. Katharine Stewart, Wilson. The board also directed Superintendent Matthews to take whatever steps are necessary to employ a band director and and agriculture teacher, two major posts yet unfilled for the 1945-46 school year.

Present at the meeting were Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, chairman; Trustees H. L. Allen, Paul Hardwick, E. J. Parsons, R. F. Bayless and Chas. A. Guy. Business Manager A. C. Jackson and Superintendent Matthews also were present. Out of the city was Trustee Walter G. Alderson.

PATTERN OF JAP STRATEGY FOR THE SHOWDOWN — The chips are down on Japan's great gamble for victory in the Pacific. The enemy raked in some fat pots in the early days of the war, when the Allies thought he was bluffing, but found he held many an ace. Now, with his luck running out, the Jap is playing 'em close to his vest. Troops withdrawn from central China will solidify northern defenses for strongest possible stand there. Forces several hundred thousand strong in southeast Asia and the East Indies may be left to their fate, with orders to fight suicide stands and impede Allied advance as much as possible. U. S. aerial, submarine and surface forces, cutting their vital sea-borne "life-line" at many points, have virtually isolated them from Japan, anyway.

JAP PRISONER TOLL ON OWINAWA 9,498

GUAM, Wednesday, June 27 (AP) Emerging from caves, canefields and brushy valleys, scores of Japanese carrying surrender leaflets gave themselves up to American Tenth Army troops yesterday.

The day's total of prisoners, including hundreds of Nipponese captured at rifle point or driven from caves with grenades, was 802, increasing to 9,498 the number of enemy troops in stockades on Okinawa. The figures were given in Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique today.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26 (AP) — Radio Tokyo reported tonight that Allied troops landed on Kume island, 50 miles west of Okinawa, this morning (Japanese time.)

No details were given in the broadcast, which was beamed in English to American areas and was recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

Such a landing would expand the American foothold in the central Ryukyus, where American troops have captured Okinawa and nearly a score of tiny nearby islands.

There was no Allied confirmation of the Kume invasion report.

Yank patrols continued their mopup operations throughout southern Okinawa.

A number of Japanese planes appeared over the Okinawa area Monday night but did no damage with the few bombs they dropped, the communique reported. Twelve raiders were destroyed by anti-aircraft fire and combat air patrols.

The Japanese came over in a dozen very small waves. They included some slow, short-ranged float planes. Ground crewmen said they recognized an old single-engine Pete biplane with floats. That type plane normally is used for reconnaissance. Most Japanese float planes barely have sufficient range to make a round trip from Kyushu.

They answered another call later from the same block, going to City tailors where a small blaze had been put out before their arrival.

Police Hit Snag In Hit And Run Inquiry

With the identity of the driver of the automobile which struck down a child Saturday night at Nineteenth and College Ave. still undetermined, police requested Tuesday that a woman driving a black Ford coupe in the vicinity at the time of the accident report to them and assist in sifting innumerable bits of information on the case.

The woman, an expectant mother, spent approximately 30 minutes at the accident scene immediately after the youngster, Harold Wayne Hall, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hall of 214 Ave. U, was hit.

Capt. Lewis Kitirell of the traffic detail said officers had been given several important clues but that some "elimination" is necessary before the investigation can progress further.

At Lubbock General hospital last night the child's condition was reported as "fair" despite a bad concussion and other injuries that he suffered. He showed interest yesterday in several toys scattered over his bed.

New York Skirted By Diminishing Storm

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — Showers will hit New York City tonight in the wake of a tropical storm which skirted the town on 30 to 40 mile-an-hour winds this afternoon, the weather bureau said.

The storm, traveling about 22 miles an hour in a northeasterly direction, may hit the extreme southeast end of Massachusetts with 35 to 40 miles an hour winds.

Ratification Plan

giving his version of the draft in a similar speech Friday.

3—Hearings of the committee, it is hoped, will last two weeks; debate on the floor another two weeks, a final vote one month from next Monday.

Some Doubt Expressed

There was some disagreement however that this schedule can be met.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb), the minority whip, said he believes the Senate should recess while the foreign relations committee "goes through normal hearings." A "refreshed" Senate, Wherry contended to reporters, would be in a better position to thresh out the final decision on the floor.

This view was shared by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) who said he saw "no organized fight" against the charter in the offing, nor would he take part in a "spearhead to defeat it."

Wheeler said in an interview:

"I may vote for it. I don't know. But I don't believe this organization or any other of this kind is going to be a cureall for preventing war."

Now the tank farms, the refinery at Lutong, power stations and workshops need reconstruction once more.

The Japanese garrison of Miri was believed to be falling back on Kuching, several hundred miles farther down the west coast of Borneo.

Copper is very seldom discovered by itself; it is generally associated with other valuable metals.

Dollars, Versus Blood

Expense Not Always Important

WHEN a final report on its activities in Europe is made by the Foreign Economic administration, it will provide interesting reading, judging by a few samples which the FEA already has released. The FEA spent millions of dollars in Spain, Turkey, Portugal and in other countries to keep valuable war goods from flowing to Germany.

This bidding for everything against all competitors brought on an inflationary spiral so that toward the end of the conflict the U. S. was paying 3,000 per cent more than the prewar price for Portuguerse tungsten. Turkish copper was bid in at $1,600 a ton, compared to the normal price of $250 dollars a ton. Other prices we paid for critical materials in the "battle of money" were comparable.

Of course, it is possible—and doubtless probable—that some of our money was wasted in this economic tug-of-war in which so much was at stake. We confidently expect that when all accounts are in, there will be uncovered instances in which great sums literally were tossed away quite needlessly.

Yet, our attitude regarding the purchasing in neutral countries prior to the German collapse is the same it always has been in connection with war moves. To us dollars are not important when compared to blood and lives and whenever they can be used, instead of men, to hit the enemy where it hurts, we believe in using them unstintingly and without regret.

A Lesson In Geography

AS far as most West Texans are concerned and, for that matter, most Americans—Borneo here-to-fore has been nothing more or less than a remote Pacific island from which circus and carnival "wild men" allegedly were brought for display to gawking show crowds.

But as the inexorable tide of war sweeps closer to Japan, Borneo today takes on a new importance to us all.

We can use it, as can our Allies, and use it to good advantage as our fighting men press toward victory over the Nipponese. Already, Borneo is the scene of considerable activity and more is promised.

What sort of a place is Borneo, from which letters soon may be pouring in great numbers to South Plains homes from fighting sons on duty there? What is the source of its importance in the war against Japan. Well:

Borneo is a steaming jungle, inhabited by some 3,000,000 orabesmen and 5,000 Europeans. The latter, before the Japs took over, controlled the place, the British the northwest coast and the Dutch the big remainder.

Borneo is exceeded in area only by three other islands, Australia, Greenland and New Guinea. It is nearly twice as large as Japan. Head hunters, poisonous snakes and insects, tropical diseases and stifling heat notwithstanding, it is one of the most coveted spots on the earth.

Just southwest of the Philippines, Borneo lies athwart Singapore. Hence it is strategic. Furthermore, it produces rubber and oil. Australian troops under General MacArthur now are in the process of ridding it of the Japs for these reasons.

Oil produced in the Brunei region, which once was a refueling point for the Japanese fleet, can be transported to American warships operating in the western Pacific in a fraction of the time it takes to carry it from the United States.

As the war continues, reserve supplies of natural crude rubber, needed in considerable amounts for mixing with artificial rubber, are becoming lower and lower. Even modest shipments from Borneo could be of major importance to Allied military industries.

So Borneo, for so many years a sort of "never-never land" in the minds of Americans, now becomes a very real, very vital place, indeed.

Blessing --- Or Curse?

ROBERT RIPLEY, the Believe-It-Or-Not man whose drawings daily appear on this page, must have had his tongue in his cheek the other day when he devoted about a third of his cartoon space to the weird talent of one Billy Hayward, of Fresno, Calif.

It isn't that we doubt the Ripley claim that Bro. Hayward can play two trombones at once—employing his feet to make the instruments "slide." Nobody doubts Ripley any more; because he always can prove the truth of his features.

The point is, we wonder if Hayward's strange specialty is one which, in the final analysis, bring more applause, or more condemnation.

Doubtless his neighbors can best render a verdict!

There should be no objection to a woman wearing a short skirt, provided she wears a slip that is shorter.

Summer people were beginning to build cottages along our coast. We held them at an arm's length, though they tried hard to be friendly. We loved our bay the way you love anything you take for granted, and their admiration shamed us a little. At the same time we resented the extravagant way they talked about it. What we called "a nice view," they called "a superb vista." A plain sandbar was to them "bewitching" and a coarse growth of marsh grass "too lovely for words."

They spent hours on end in the graveyard, looking at the inscriptions on the stones. "Did you see this one?" they would call, reading it out loud. "Isn't it quaint and frightful?"

People were "quaint," too. Cap'n Pettigrew, blowing his horn. Mr. Giddings, singing his hymns as he worked.

Sometimes they went bathing, wearing special suits and hats designed for that purpose. (We always wore cast-off winter dresses that stained the water where we stood.) But they never stayed in very long. The water was too cold, they said, the shore too rocky. Few of them could swim, but they joined hands and ducked merrily.

We saw a good deal of them at the American House. They often waited for the stage on our piazza, leaning their walking sticks against a post. ("Walking sticks!" Mrs. Guptill scoffed. "Their legs are as good as ours.") Sometimes they would spend an hour or two there, talking among themselves. So-and-so was up a point, they said, or down. Sometimes they used our telephones, since the lines didn't go to the Narrows, where most of them had their cottages. They could never remember to ring the bell, and when they talked they didn't say "Hello" like the rest of us, but "Yes" or "Are you there?"

They were all demanding. Sometimes they wanted ice water, sometimes a palm-leaf fan. Sometimes they wanted an errand run. It used to get under our skins a little.

"Of all the brass!" Sue used to say when they were out of hearing. (Sue was picking up all kinds of rough language.)

* * *

They were always in a hurry, though we couldn't see why, for they obviously had nothing to do with their time. Yet it irked them to have to wait for anything. "A full day late," they would exlaim when they got their New York papers. (As though the world could change in 24 hours, we thought.)

The women were the talkers. They had a good deal to say about Alice Roosevelt, Bar Harbor, bridge whist, and a new sickness known as appendicitis. (Just a fancy name for plain inflamation of the bowels, it was, my father said.) They talked about fashions, too. Mesh bags. Lavallieres. Bloomers. Crepon Crepu. Libellula blue. They spoke of Paris and Naples as though they were Bangor and Augusta. "Remember that winter on the Riviera. . . ."

The men were for the most part docile and weary. It seemed to us that more than anything else they wanted to find a quiet place and stay there. But there was little chance of that. No sooner had their wives finished discussing the past winter than they began to plan the one ahead. "Where can we go next!" they would demand a little petulantly. "We've been to. . . ." Then they would begin to count the places off on their fingers. Sometimes it took both hands.

We had to be civil to them. They paid high taxes, my father reminded us. They were bringing the coast a boom that it badly needed. They hired carpenters, cooks, table girls, gardeners. They bought local supplies. Besides, they brought us business. Almost every afternoon one or two of them rented a buggy or a surrey and jogged around the village, looking quite proud of themselves. (Most of them had left their automobiles behind, preferring what they called "the simple life.")

"How's for the sorrel today?" they would say airily, calling Benjamin by name just as though they had always known him.

"Maybe." He used to take a good deal of satisfaction in keeping them waiting.

* * *

More than anything else we resented their tipping. We weren't accustomed to handling money around for favors. If you were a child and did an errand for a neighbor, you didn't expect any pay, except a cookie, maybe, if she happened to be baking. Strangers sometimes offered you pennies after you had spoken a piece or sung a song, but if you were well brought up, you never took them. Yet the summer people handed out dimes and quarters right and left, not only to the children but to men and women as well for nothing at all. We took it as an insult, a bribe, an implication that we wouldn't have done a good job otherwise.

Our first experience came in the dining room. One Sunday Ada found a quarter under a napkin. "That's a funny place to drop money," she said, "Run and give it to the people who sat here."

I got to the piazza just as Benjamin was appearing with their surrey. "You left this, sir," I said, extending the quarter.

The man squinted at it. "Why, it's a tip," he wheezed. "For the waitress."

I didn't know what a tip was then. But I took it back reluctantly, avoiding Ada's eyes. "It's for you," I told her. "The man said so."

Hre face flamed. She seized the quarter, dashed out the door and after the surrey, which was fast disappearing. Ten minutes later she returned, perspiring and grimy with dust. I guess he won't try that again," she said angrily.

That man never did.

OVERSUBSCRIBES GOAL

SAN ANTONIO, June 26. (AP)—Bexar county had oversubscribed its goal in the Seventh War loan today by almost $8,000,000, but sales of E bonds were more than $2,000,000 short of the quota, it was announced. The official total now stands at $32,167,772.50 or 122.4 per cent of the quota of $26,285,000.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

ACCORDING to the United States Census bureau, a girl's chances to get married taper off after she reaches the ripe old age of twenty-two.

(By the way, in the same issue of my paper, in which this story appeared, there was a picture of a 101-year-old bridegroom in Racine, Wisc., tasting a piece of the wedding cake which his 62-year-old bride had baked for the occasion).

BRANDEIS

Well, the Census bureau reported that half of the women who marry for the first time in the United States do so before they are 21 years and 7 months old. Half of the American first-time bridegrooms are 24 years and 3 months old.

In the South, the report said, the average girl is ten months younger and the average man 11 months younger than the over-all figure. In the colder North they are a few months older.

* * *

Well, there you are.

Fortunately in the mapority of cases marriage is still made by Cupid rather than the United States Census bureau.

In my own community there will soon be a wedding at which the bride will be more than 50 and the groom several years her senior.

Hope, as you know, springs eternal in the human breast, and hope chests get fuller with the years.

A reader asked me the other day:

"What is the best age for a girl to marry?"

My answer was:

"The age at which you find the man you love and who can afford to make you happy."

* * *

MY guess is that after this war statisticians will lower the average marrying age by quite a few years.

My guess is, furthermore, that these same statisticians will find quite a rise in the divorce rate.

I don't think it makes much difference what a person's physical age is at the time of marriage.

It is the mental and the spiritual age that counts.

There are lots of girls—and certainly very many men—who, at 21 or 24 are still entirely too young mentally to realize the responsibilities and duties of marriage.

There are others who at 18 or 20 have learned the meaning of life by the burdens they have had to assume and who may make splendid wives or husbands.

* * *

One of the rose bushes in my garden was all through blooming last July. And then, suddenly, in October, it broke out into new blossoms that surpassed in beauty everything that it had borne in June.

I asked a gardener to explain the phenomenon.

"Well, there wa sstill some sfring left way down somewhere in that plant," he said.

Which is as good an explanation as any.

Jobless Dole Plan Out

Committee Can't See HST's Idea

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT Truman's request for legislation providing $25 a week for 26 weeks for war plant workers laid off during the reconversion period will die a quiet death in the House Ways and Means committee. Although the honeymoon of the White House and Capitol Hill has not yet waned, even his own leaders don't want to touch this proposition.

Piled on top of military and other necessary expenditures ,the cost appalls the men who must raise the revenue. The figure that the total number that might be eligible for the bonus would approximately 6,000,000. It consists of man and women in factories which cannot shift overnight from manufacture of tanks, planes, ships and heavy artillery to peace time production. Many concerns can convert in a few weeks after they get materials.

TUCKER

If the committee's forecast of 6,000,000 applicants for the unemployment subsidy is accurate, the government would have to lay out more than $4,000,000,000 at one time or another. And the canny legislators believe that the offering would be an inducement to laziness. They fear that the jobless would make no attempt to find other work during the period of the payment.

A proposal for financing people laid off during the changeover from peace to war production was once advanced by Justice Frank Murphy, then governor of Michigan. He asked for no more than $300,000,000.

Now the Ways and Meaners feel that there is less need for such a cushion. If highly paid war workers have not saved enough for a rainy day, the tax raisers figure that they deserve no help from Uncle Sam.

* * *

KNUDSEN: Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen has quit Washington with only slight acclaim as production manager of the defense effort in the early pre-Pearl Harbor days. But his fellows maintain that the former General Motors executive's accomplishments, to use their own words, "shortened the conflict by from six to 12 months."

He came to the capital in the spring of 1940—before the fall of France — as head of the old National Defense Advisory commission. As an immigrant and a frequent revisitor to Europe, he had an excellent background of its historic clashes and how they spread.

But he had little authority or money, and he was shunted into crowded offices in the federal Reserve system. He and Jesse Jones, the big lender, did not let those things worry or stop them. They worked together as closely as the telephones which linked their desks.

Every so often Bill would call up and ask in a semi-whisper, "Got any money today, Uncle Jesse?" When the answer was Yes, the next question was: "Do you want to spend a little—about $50,000,000?" After another affirmative reply Knudsen would say, "Well, I am sending so-and-so to see you right away."

"So-and-so" would be a manufacturer known to Knudsen from his General Motors days. The "Great Dane" knew in detail the applicant's ability, his production capacity, his labor situation, his proximity to raw materials and railroads.

On the basis of his associate's knowledge and assurances, "Uncle Jesse" shelled out dough even before Congress had authorized specific expenditures. It is probable that technical indictments could be returned against the production manager and the spender.

But by mid-1940 they had promoted the construction of $300,000,000 worth of plants for the manufacture of munitions. The figure rose to $2,600,000,000 in the early Spring of 1942, a few months after Pearl Harbor, and to $4,000,000,000 by the end of that year. It is now $11,000,000,000. But without that advance production Britain and Russia might have fallen too early for our entry to have counted.

So a valued decoration was given to the "Great Dane." In his acceptance speech, he turned to "Uncle Jesse" and commented, "You should get this medal, not Knudsen!"

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

KEEP your glasses focussed on Korea for new hammer blows.

Our softening up of Tokyo, Shizuoka and other centers may be neutralized if industries go underground — as happened in German late in the war—and a steady stream of imports pours into the blitzed islands.

The vital artery to cut is the Korea Strait. All direct rail communications to Manchuria pass through the Hermit Kingdom, taking out coal, steel, oil, chemicals, cattle, horses, hogs and manufactures. The little country itself produces much of the rice consumed by Japan, and large amounts of cotton.

LEMAN

Should Hirohito's home fields and factories be leveled by B-29 bombs, he could go on fighting provided that his life line to northern Asia still functioned.

He is in the same position that Great Britain was in 1940. Her factories and shipyards were badly strafed but a bridge of ships took ample replacements to her from the "Arsenal of Democracy."

The original U-boat attacks were directed against merchantmen — not troop transports. Had they succeeded, England's economy would have been strangled to death. Japan's peril lies in the water strip between Nippon and Chosen.

* * *

LANDING: Military experts maintain that, barring an immediate invasion of the homeland, Korea would be an excellent preliminary landing spot. Actually, it is not so far from Okinawa and Miyaka Island as the familiar Mercator maps make it appear.

The north abounds in high mountains, the south in plains, transportation networks and ports — facilities vital to amphibious operations.

Korean officials in New York say that the climate is like that of the northern United States. There is a severe rainy season in August — corresponding to our "dog days" — and in the crags around Fusan the mercury often drops to thirty degrees below zero. Our boys would need their rubbers and overcoats.

On first thought, a landing in Korea — remote from the Philippine bases and surrounded by hostile defenders — seems like sticking our neck into a noose. But an offensive there might be more effective than one on a distant Chinese coast, and less difficult than one on the islands of Kyushu, Shikiku or Honshu.

It would put the enemy in a dilemma. He would not dare call in his Manchurian divisions so long as the enigmatic Soviet armies were mobilized along the Amur river and in Vladivostok.

Waters patrolled by vigilant American ships and planes would bar reinforcements from Japan or Shankhai. His isolated garrisons might have air support, but we would not go in unless we had power enough to stay.

* * *

RICE: A blow at Japanese installations in Korea would be turning the tables. Tokyo's first incursion of Asia was there in 1592 when for six years Emperor Hideyoshi plundered and butchered the inhabitants.

Down through the centuries Nippon has preyed on her meek neighbor. She annexed the kingdom in 1910 with the concent of Washington and London, despite our earlier guarantees to uphold Korean independence. Liberation would erase a black mark from our record.

Sealing off the peninsula would starve Japan. So dependent are the Nips on its rice that Tokyo demands a "voluntary contribution" of nearly all of the annual crop. Kin Taichin, a revolutionary leader, on his arrival in Yenan disclosed that the outraged peasants refuse to harvest rice unless driven to it at the point of a bayonet. Chinese underground forces recently burned a huge granary in Jenchuan; the ringleaders were jailed.

Present Outlook Encouraging, But:

Postwar Racial Trouble Feared

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — This country was swept by a wave of intolerance after the first World war, 25 years ago.

Those who lived through those times can recall the Ku Klux Klan, that hooded order with its flaming crosses, its night riding, its cowardly persecutions—and its rise to political power in a number of states. They can recall, too, the attempt by some interests to crush labor, and the "Red raids" exploited by some for the same purpose, carried out by extra-legal processes which caused a federal district attorney in Philadelphia to resign in protest.

STOKES

The atmosphere is much better this time as the nation heads into another postwar period, though there are bad spots here and there, such as the persecution of Japanese-Americans on the Pacific Coast. This seems to find some public officials stricken with sudden and strange timidity. And then there is discriminations based on race, religion, creed or color.

* * *

Outlook Is Encouraging

On the whole, however, the outlook is encouraging.

This is due to the influence of earnest, sincere people and to protective instrumentalities devised by government and private agencies with the co-operation of public-spirited people, among them the late President Roosevelt. He spoke often against any display here of the sort of intolerance against which we were fighting.

Attorney General Biddle deserves credit for his activity on behalf of protection of civil liberties. Another effective job has been done quietly, too, by the fair employment practice committee, created by President Roosevelt, in keeping down discriminations in industry and government on account of race, religion, creed or color.

* * *

PRESIDENT Truman also has spoken up recently with a warning of the necessity of watchfulness in the postwar period. This was in connection with his request to Congress to provide funds for the FEPC in its present status and to enact the bill for a permanent Fair Employment Practice commission which has been kept bottled up in the House Rules committee.

Southerners in Congress have been fighting both the existing FEPC and the proposal for a permanent commission. The House failed to provide funds for the present FEPC. The issue is now before the Senate, where friends of the FEPC will try to retain the $446,000 appropriation voted by the appropriations committee.

It is significant, in connection with the Southern opposition, that Southern industrialists seem to be more progressive on this matter than Southern members of Congress, judging from the report just submitted to the President by Chairman Malcolm Ross of FEPC, covering its operations from July, 1943, through December, 1944.

* * *

Far West Lags

It says that "compliance in Southern war industries does not lag notably behind the rest of the country." Southern industrial managers have shown a disposition to co-operate in employment of negroes. The change in attitude in the South has been quite noticeable, according to FEPC officials, though there are still difficulties there. It has a somewhat better record than the Far West.

* * *

THE report has some interesting things to say about the future problem, among them:

"A one-front war entails the siphoning of workers from cutback plants and shipyards into one or two places: (1) war plants which will expand to provide material for Pacific warfare, (2) plants reconverted to consumer goods.

"Negroes and Mexican-Americans, who comprise the two minority groups large enough to set aside as a known economic problem, have found war work largely in those industries due to have the deepest employment cutbacks during the war against Japan.

"Both groups must abide by the seniority rules applying in their industries, and special privileges in lay-offs would be both impossible and harmful. Both, however, need special protection against discrimination in whatever industry the laid-off workers attempt to enter, be it another war plant or a reconverted plant."

* * *

Powers Are Curtailed

In the case of reconverted plants, the present temporary FEPC has no jurisdiction since its authority extends only to war plants. A permanent FEPC is necessary to reach such plants.

"Committee studies of racial tension in congested war production areas show the necessity for keeping the channels of job opportunities open to all applicants," the report says. "Continuing high production, and high morale, are both at stake."

PRICES CONTINUE STRONG

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — Assorted stock market favorites continued to touch best levels for the past eight years or longer in today's fast proceedings although selling put many recent leaders in the minus column.

Search Indicates No Americans Were Captured By Japs On Okinawa

By RUSSELL ANNABEL
United Press War Writer

OKINAWA, June 26—The Japanese approximately took no prisoners on Okinawa.

Many of our men listed as missing in action could have fallen alive into the enemy's hands, yet troops say careful search of captured enemy garrisons, aid stations, and hospitals reveals no trace of them. Army authorities disclose they had not been notified by the Japanese of any American prisoners of war.

Causes Suggested

The only conclusions reached here were that the Americans, finding themselves surrounded by Japanese, preferred to fight to the death or that the Japanese abandoned all pretense of civilized warfare and killed all they could, or both.

Yet when the going got rough, the Japanese themselves were willing enough to surrender and take advantage of our good treatment of prisoners. Their "no quarter" warfare was revealed to be strictly one-sided. In our stockades and hospitals now are 8,696 Japanese military prisoners and more are coming in daily, according to Maj. Max Cady, Seattle, Wash., assistant provost marshal.

They are badly beaten men. The fire of fanaticism apparently been kicked out of them. They seem to have forgotten the manifest destiny and glory of the empire and the Samurai code of suicide and seem to be thinking only of cigarets, food, and a chance to rest.

Get Same Rations

They are getting the same rations as our troops and the same hospital treatment with their own medics and nurses working with ours, according to Regimental Surgeon Maj. Earl B. Lokey of New Orleans, La., of the 382nd infantry group. Even Korean concubines have been accepted as apprentice nurses to help care for wounded Japanese.

But in the front lines where mopping up continues you hear the gaunt sun-blistered American kids wondering what happened to their missing buddies—the airmen who were downed behind enemy lines, the patrols that never returned, the wounded who had vanished when stretcher-bearers returned for them.

He Hates The Japs

"We fall all over ourselves to treat the Japanese prisoners of war right," said a grimy machine-gunner, "but brother I'd sure hate to be captured by those snake-eyed crooks we've been bringing in."

There is probably no more pathetic sight in warfare than a man searching among the dead for his missing buddy, convinced his pal would be better off dead than alive and in the hands of enemy. That's the way these veterans of the Pacific war feel about it. They willingly fight like civilized men rather than like savages, but they don't expect as much from the Japanese.

PARIS, June 26. (AP)—Sources close to the Duke of Windsor said today his Paris home on Boulevard Cuchet is being renovated and that the former king and duchess are expected to return.

She has been employed in a Louisiana ordnance plant. Lt Reid is visiting at the 2615 Elm residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reid, on 30-day furlough expiring July 20, when he will be stationed at Okmulgee, Okla., general hospital for treatment and observation of injuries. Another will be given at 8:30 Tuesday, east of the textile engineering building.

Confirmation of the death of Pvt. Fred E. Ratcliff, 24, a prisoner of the Japanese since the fall of Bataan, who was killed Oct. 24, 1944, when a Jap ship carrying American prisoners was torpedoed by a U. S. submarine near Mindoro island, has been received by his mother, Mrs. Belle Wilson of Childress. The Japanese government has released a list of American prisoners who lost their lives when the ship sank quickly 200 miles off the China coast. Pvt. Ratcliff entered the Army Sept. 7, 1940, and went to the Philippines November of 1941. He survived the battle of Bataan and the Death March. Besides his mother and step-father, Pvt. Ratcliff is survived by one brother, Cpl. Edwin T. Ratcliff, who is serving in Germany; and one sister, Mrs. Hazel Moyers of 1511 Twenty-second.

Eaker Says No Early Victory Is Possible

DURANT, Okla., June 26. (U.P.)—Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander of the Army Air forces and modest recipient of a heroes' homage here today, said a recent tour of the Pacific convinced him "no early victory is possible there."

Eaker, formerly top air commander in Europe, praised the thousands of skilled airmen who helped defeat Germany.

"The speed with which our young citizen soldiers completed their training and proved superior means we need never worry about militarism," Eaker told a war bond rally in the auditorium of Southeastern Oklahoma State college, his alma mater.

"We can defend ourselves and protect our principles."

He described the Japanese as the "deadliest and dirtiest" of our foes.

Eaker, who piloted the Question Mark to endurance-record fame years ago while today's hottest pilots were flying model airplanes, had little to say outside of his prepared speech.
