Recall petitions target three on council

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

A preliminary look at the recall petition filed with Big Spring City Hall Friday afternoon has three of the five city council members targeted by the effort possibly facing a recall election in May.

According to City Finance Director Peggy Walker, a cursory tally of the signatures

McEwen McDonald Staulcup shows the recall petition was successful in forcing elections for Mayor Russ McEwen, District 3 council member JoAnn Staulcup and District 4 council member Gloria McDonald.

Walker said McEwen received 661 signatures with 473 needed, Staulcup received 115 with 100 signatures needed and McDonald received 162 signatures with 162 needed.

A pair of council members targeted by the petition managed to come out unscathed, as District 1 councilwoman Stephanie Horton received 87 signatures with 100 needed and District 5 councilwoman Joann Knox received 104 signatures with 152 needed.

Charging that the council "circumvented the will of the majority of electors" in passing a law banning smoking in public places last month, local res-

Grand jury hands down 24 indictments

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

A Howard County grand jury handed down 24 indictments this week, including a Big Spring man charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

James Curtis Brown, 40, currently in Howard County Jail, was indicted on a charge of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon (first-degree felony, enhanced), for his alleged part in the multiple stabbing of an acquaintance.

According to police records, Brown was arrested Sept. 12 on a charge of attempted murder after police officials allege he stabbed 48-year-old Gonzalo Hernandez multiple times at a residence in the 1000 block of Nolan.

"When police officers arrived on the scene, the suspect — Mr. Brown — was still at the residence," said Sgt. Tony Everett, public information officer for the Big Spring Police Department. "He was arrested and the victim was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where he was listed in critical condition. The attack was prompted by an argument between the two men. They knew each other prior to the attack."

If convicted, Brown could face five to 99 years or life in prison, as well as a fine not to exceed $10,000.

Also indicted were:
• Janie Annette Dominguez, 35, 2509 Cindy, criminal mischief (state jail felony).

• Shannon Fee, 26, of 607 Bucknell, fraudulent use/possession of identifying information - three counts (state jail felony).

• Rosendo Franco, 23, of 1902 Johnson Street, possession of a

Eighteen-wheel classrooms coming to HC

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Howard College is expanding its workforce training program in a big — big rig, that is — way.

Trustees will hear about plans for the college's new commercial truck driver training course when they hold their monthly meeting at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Student Union Building Tumbleweed Room.

College President Dr. Cheryl Sparks said that HC recently received a grant from the Texas Workforce Commission to provide the course in this area.

The course, which will be offered at the Big Spring campus beginning with the spring semester, will provide both classroom and practical training in all aspects of commercial truck driving.

Sparks said the new course, which is designed to address a statewide shortage of commercial truckers, is a welcome addition to the college's workforce training efforts.

SANTA CLAUS REVEALED

We at the Herald often deal with the pressing issues of the day. From politics to the economy and just about every topic in between, we pride ourselves in doing our utmost to give our readers the answers to important questions.

Of course, we don't always have the answers. Such was the case when we ran into the proverbial brick wall trying to answer a very simple, yet vexing, question: How come nobody ever actually sees Santa as he makes his rounds on Christmas Eve?

Settles Hotel on Moore Board agenda for Monday

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Consideration of financial backing for the Dallas-based Settles Hotel Development Co. tops the agenda for Monday's meeting of the Moore Development Board of Directors.

According to Board President Larry McLellan, the item is only on the meeting agenda as an "in-case" matter.

"I don't really expect the board to take any sort of action on the item Monday. We mainly put it on the agenda just in case something comes up between now and then," said McLellan.

Moore Development directors voted unanimously Dec. 8 to provide up to $3 million to help a former resident Brint Ryan — manager of the Dallas company and the founder and CEO of Ryan & Company, one of the largest state and local tax consulting firms in North America — renovate the Big Spring landmark.

According to city officials, Ryan and his company agreed to purchase the structure for $75,000, with the sale expected to become final by the end of December.

McLellan said the board has issued a letter of intent to Ryan, including stipulations such as:

— SHDC providing Moore officials with a business plan, prospectus and architectural renderings of the proposed project.

— Moore's financial contribution will be on a reimbursement basis; in other words, Moore will only spend money to reimburse SHDC for money already spent on the project.

— Moore Development's contribution to the project will not exceed $3 million. The remainder will come from SHDC.

SHDC announced a $12 million renovation project which includes plans for commercial and residential use of the property, with retail space available on the first and second floors.

McLellan said the ball is now in Ryan's court.

"We've set down our stipulations and I fully expect him (Ryan) to come back with some of his own," said McLellan. "But for now, the ball is in his court. We just have to wait and see what happens."

The board is also expected to meet in an executive session to discuss ongoing efforts to hire a new executive director for the economic development agency.

"At this time, we're looking very hard at about four candidates," McLellan said. "There are still six or seven we're considering, but we've narrowed it down to four who merit serious consideration."

The board is also expected to consider financial and investment reports for November, as well as a proposal from Robert Floyd.

The meeting is to begin at 5:15 p.m.

RECALL

idents Shannon Thomason and Robert "Steve" Campbell filed an affidavit with the city secretary's office Nov. 6 to recall the five members of the council.

Also turning in petitions were Thomas Tafuro, Willard Robinson, Cy Barg, John Huckabee and Cindy McGuire.

Councilmen Gregg Biddison and Manuel Ramirez Jr. — who voted against the smoking ordinance — were not named in the petition or affidavit.

The council's 5-2 decision to pass the ordinance has been a controversial one. With few exceptions, it eliminates smoking in all public places — including restaurants. Bars and lounges are exempt.

The affidavit charges that the mayor and four council members "did not act in the public interest and instead acted to further certain personal agendas" and said they placed "unfair and unenforceable restrictions upon the citizens and businesses of Big Spring."

Walker said she and the rest of her office will spend the next several days verifying the signatures on the petition and making sure they are valid.

"There's no gray area in a situation like this. The signature is either valid or it isn't," said Walker. "If someone signed the petition for District 4 and their voter registration says they live in District 3, that signature will be thrown out. In the end, the result of the petition is going depend on how well the petition organizers managed their end of it."

Walker said she expects to have the official results of the petition by the end of next week.

"We plan to start on it this weekend," said Walker. "It's a very tedious process. We have to verify that each voter is registered in the right district. The numbers we have right now aren't exact, but I feel confident they are very close."

If the required number of signatures have been gathered, Walker said the recall election will be put on the May ballot.

McDonald said the results of the petition didn't surprise her at all.

"I'm really not surprised. I felt like they would get the necessary signatures all along," said McDonald. "Unfortunately, the thing I don't think a lot of people realize is this (recall election) will cost the city thousands of dollars, which is disappointing."

"I really expected them to get enough signatures to force the recall election. However, I don't expect to lose the election."

Thomason, Campbell, Staulcup and McEwen could not be reached for comment.

OUR VIEWS

Please help us make sure kids are getting toys

OK, for the last time this year, we're calling on our community to remember children this holiday season. The last time, because Monday is the final day to run in your donations to the Big Spring Herald/Salvation Army Toy Drive.

And for one last time, we're going to remind you that for children, Christmas just isn't Christmas without a new toy.

Why are we being so heavy-handed? Well, to be brutally honest, the response to this year's call has fallen far short of previous years. Unfortunately, the need in our community hasn't declined.

So, we all need to remember what it was like to be a child. To remember those Christmas Eve nights when it was so hard to go to sleep, because there was just so much anticipation of what Santa would bring that night.

We all know that those feelings, of course, because all of us were children.

Unfortunately, there are families where there simply is no money for buying new toys — homes where simply coming up with adequate food and clothing is a constant struggle.

Most of us can only imagine what Christmas with no toys is like to a child, but we're certain it's not a joyous experience.

We dare say it's something we've thanked the Lord for on many occasions.

Several years ago, one of our advertising representatives recognized the need, came to work the next morning and asked co-workers if they'd be interested in helping make sure that no child in our community had to experience that feeling.

Thus was born the Big Spring Herald/Salvation Army Holiday Toy Drive, the Herald put out the call to local citizens asking for toy donations for needy children and the result was nothing short of staggering.

The community responded in staggering proportions in only a week's time.

So, we know that despite a slow start, Big Spring and Howard County has the capacity and the heart to come through.

So, if you can, please heed the call. We'll have the doors open here at the Herald every Monday at 8 a.m. and we will be here until 5 p.m. for those wishing to donate to the drive.

The toys will be taken to the Salvation Army and distributed next week. Help us make sure every child in need at least one new toy this Christmas.

Don't forget, the Salvation Army's Angel Trees have the Christmas wishes of many needy children and elderly citizens on them as well. And the deadline for that program is Monday, as well.

The Angel Trees are within easy reach, located at the Big Spring Mall, Maurice's, Gayle's Sweet Shoppe, Travelcenters of America truck stop and Wal-Mart. Still another is at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. In addition, the tree for seniors is located here at the Herald.

Please, let's all be able to say we did our best to make it a joyous holiday season throughout Big Spring and Howard County.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

When people overwhelm us, we can handle anything with You, Lord.

Amen

Welcome to my 'Wild Kingdom'

Random thoughts while doing my dead-level best to avoid the Christmas shopping rush:

My cat, Sylvester, is many things.

He is a trusted companion. He is a joy in my life.

He is a constant source of amusement.

He is an occasional pain in the neck.

One thing he's not, however, is a cold-blooded killer.

Most of the time.

My Sylvester, God love his furry soul, is creeping up on his 18th birthday, which is very old for felines.

As a senior senior citizen, it would follow that he's slowing down at least a bit from his wild youthful days.

And, in many ways, he has — he no longer scampers through the house in overdrive, he naps a lot more frequently than he did in his younger years and his favorite perches are gradually becoming closer to ground level.

But let a mouse darken the doors of La Casa de Reagan and it's as if Sylvester has discovered the Fountain of Kitty Youth.

Chasing and disposing of mice has long been a favorite diversion for Sylvester, as it was for the late, great Keyko. Those two were to catching rodents what the Dallas Cowboys used to be to winning — very, very good, in other words.

I've had to make a lot of purchases for my home, but in the past 16 years, I haven't had to spend a red cent on mousetraps. I left that in my boys' very capable paws.

Two specific incidents come to mind.

The first came about a year after I first got the cats. I came home for lunch one day and found them in the kitchen, positioned about three feet apart. They were, I swear, batting a mouse back and forth as if they were playing some perverted version of Ping Pong.

It is the first time I ever saw an animal played to death.

The second came several years later. The three of us were on the couch doing our favorite activity — sleeping — when suddenly, both cats jumped off and made a beeline for the kitchen.

When I made it to the room, I saw that they had hopped up on opposite sides of my L-shaped kitchen counter. Between them was a mouse.

The rest was not pretty — impressive, maybe, but not pretty. Their cooperative-hunting abilities made me gasp, but the subsequent cleanup made me gag, if you catch my drift.

Through the years, mice have occasionally made courageous forays into my house, which only proves that mice are not the smartest creatures around. I have lost count of how many times I have found dismembered rodent body parts in various parts of the house.

Disposing of these remains was, however, a small price to pay. I never liked mice, either, although my reactions to their presence was usually a lot milder in scope than that of Keyko and Sylvester.

Since Keyko's death last year, however, these incidents had become non-existent. I thought it was because my surviving kitty had lost his taste for blood.

Boy, was I wrong.

About a week ago, he and I were once again on the couch. I was watching TV, while I assumed Sylvester was sleeping.

Suddenly, his ears perked up like a furry pair of switchblades and he flew off the couch like I had just stepped on his tail.

He ran behind a small box I have in the corner of the living room and flushed out a small mouse, who promptly ran toward the middle of the room.

Biiiiiiiig mistake, mousey.

What followed reminded me of an episode of "Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom," with me in the role of narrator Marlon Perkins:

"Nature can be beautiful, but it can also be quite unforgiving, as the following shows. Here, we watch in horrified fascination as the big cat corners and kills its prey."

My declawed, toothless cat proceeded to leap upon the poor mouse and repeated this action two or three times, as if to see just how high he could make the little rodent bounce. When it finally quit bouncing — not to mention moving or breathing — my cat sauntered off, leaving me to handle the cleanup, of course.

Since then, I have become even more impressed with my baby boy. Looking at him, you'd never know that beneath that loving, frequently sleeping exterior, beats the heart of a ruthless killer.

But it does, dear friends — at least where mice are concerned.

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:

In your last weekend edition a letter was posted from a Scott Ragle of Ackerly.

In response to his notations of the group known as Big Spring Freedom, I feel his flattery of calling us children, well this old man takes it as a sign of not aging but feeling young enough to make the right changes for the benefit of all concerned, which is the citizens of Big Spring.

As a retired military and ex-New York state emergency response officer who has made this city his home, I am not backing down, nor will I allow the disabled and elderly as well as the youth of tomorrow be disappointed in making this city a better place to live as well as trying to lower the taxes by bringing business to our fair city.

I never criticized the council members, nor the mayor. I just feel it's time for a change and the change is now.

Whether or not this person, Mr. Ragle, wishes to sign the petition or not makes no difference. If change is what he is afraid of, then by all means stay in your home and order out and don't take part in a new, brighter future for it will come. And I always keep my promises.

The people of Big Spring are speaking out. Whether you get your information from a squirrel or fortune cookie makes no difference. We as a city have every right to speak out.

The first amendment, as well as our ninth amendment, state we are allowed to be heard and make our own choices, not be spoken for like puppets.

The mayor stated himself that we elected them, therefore, we have the right to recall by petition. And for your last remark, we have the right as people, chosen already to run and they will win.

So I end here with this last request to Mr. Ragle. Try writing fiction rather than speaking for the people. You have no idea what you're talking about. Do you really know your neighbors as well as you think?

WILL ROBINSON
— BIG SPRING

TO THE EDITOR:

It is becoming clear to those of us who voted in November that the folks in Washington still didn't get the message and are easing back into their old mindset.

The fact that we want American troops brought home from Iraq pronto seems to have escaped their notice. They plan to talk about it for a few more years and try to make political hay or partisan purposes while American troops continue to die for a war that was initiated on fraudulent grounds by a president who either knew better going in or was just too stupid to know. Either way, impeachment hearings need to move forward promptly.

The folks in Washington also missed a second message: The American people want "homeland security" to start at home by completely overhauling our immigration policies to make it more difficult for those who are our enemies to get into the country.

The first step should be the sealing of our borders and prosecution of those who assist invaders in any way, whether it's directly helping to smuggle them into the country or by providing them with employment when they get here. No country on Earth allows their borders to be violated as we do and it must stop now.

Finally, in case there is any confusion in their minds, the Democratic Party needs to know that we didn't vote for them because we think they are any more honorable than the theocrats in the Republican Party. We voted for them only because the news media won't permit anyone from the America First Party, Libertarian Party, Green Party or independent candidates get their message to the public.

As Americans we must investigate these alternatives via the Internet and then put pressure on the news media in this country to give these viable alternatives a fair chance to be heard. A close look would reveal they more accurately reflect the views of most Americans.

RICHARD D. MANUEL
GROVE CITY, OHIO

TO THE EDITOR:

In early November, an editorial calling for Donald Rumsfeld to be replaced as secretary of defense, showed up simultaneously in the Army Times, Navy Times, Air Force Times and Marine Corps Times. Distributed to members of the U.S. armed forces throughout the world, these publications stated that President Bush must "face the hard bruising truth (that) Rumsfeld has lost credibility with the uniformed leadership, with the troops, with Congress, and with the public at large."

Only days earlier, Bush stated that he wanted both Rumsfeld and Vice President Cheney to remain in their posts for the remaining two years of his administration. As he spoke, more troops were being killed and wounded in a war that has degenerated into a civil conflict between Muslim factions competing for power.

Then, one day after the Republicans suffered what Bush himself called a "thumping" on Election Day, Rumsfeld's resignation was announced. To replace him, Bush turned to Council on Foreign Relations veteran and former CIA Director Robert Gates, a move that does not bode well for the troops caught in a civil war between Islamic factions.

Iraq is no place for American forces no matter who is secretary of defense.

Truck driver given deferred term in fatal crash

WATFORD CITY, N.D. (AP) — A truck driver has been given a two-year deferred sentence for aggravated reckless driving in a crash that killed a man and his two children during a spring snowstorm in western North Dakota.

Authorities said the plea agreement for Ronald Johnson of Mohall was settled this week in Watford City.

If Johnson stays out of trouble for two years, his record could be cleared.

Paul Woods, 44, and children, Jesse, 11, and Millie, 10, were killed April 18, when the U-Haul in which they were traveling was struck head-on by a semitrailer driven by Johnson. Authorities said the semitrailer had drifted into the wrong lane on U.S. 85 during a snowstorm.

Three Canadian travelers were injured when they struck the U-Haul truck in a pileup collision.

Authorities said the Woods family, from Lindale, Texas, was moving to Montana.

Brenda Woods survived the crash that killed her husband and children, and Watford City residents raised money to help with her expenses.

McKenzie County prosecutor Dennis Johnson said the misdemeanor charge was approved by the attorney for Brenda Woods and was recommended by the Highway Patrol after an accident investigation.

The state's attorney said no alcohol, drugs or speeding was involved in the crash. He said Johnson, who was hauling farm fertilizer and was injured, tried to help the victims.

"If he had been drinking, or was operating defective equipment, or fallen asleep — if it had been anything but inclement North Dakota weather, a more serious charge would have been warranted," Dennis Johnson said.

Brenda Woods has filed a civil lawsuit seeking money damages, he said.

Police say evacuee assaulted woman who may have her dog

AUSTIN (AP) — A Hurricane Katrina evacuee who claims rescue workers stole the dog she left behind ripped out the hair of a woman who later adopted the cocker spaniel, police said, moments after a judge ordered mediation in the ownership dispute.

Shalanda Augillard, 36, was arrested and charged with bodily injury after police said she lunged for Tiffany Madura and yanked a tuft of her hair outside a Hays County courtroom on Tuesday.

During the hearing, state District Judge William Henry ordered the dog — named "Hope" by rescue workers — to remain with Madura for the time being.

Augillard sued Madura for the dog in May. The case is one of dozens of lawsuits across the country in which Louisiana pet owners say their animals were essentially kidnapped by rescue workers after Katrina.

Police say security video outside the courtroom shows a visibly agitated Augillard exchanging words with Madura before grabbing a handful of her hair and yanking her head down.

Madura says she has spent thousands of dollars nursing the dog back to health since he was brought to Texas by an Austin volunteer. Rescue workers said they found sickly, black cocker spaniel hanging around a Jefferson Parish feed store.

Augillard says she left her 8-year-old cocker spaniel, Jazz, at her mother's house before Katrina swamped New Orleans. But the dog was left behind when Augillard's mother was pulled from her house.

DNA results indicate the hair taken from Hope matched a brush Augillard provided, but Madura's attorney claims Augillard secretly took a sample from Hope during a visit with the dog.

Madura has said in court filings that even if it was proven the dog was Augillard's, the dog was so sick that it must have been neglected.

Augillard said she found Jazz on a Web site that posted the story of the dog's rescue.

Homeland Security releases $12 million in grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas will get $3.1 million to help local law enforcement guard the U.S.-Mexican border, about half the amount awarded to Arizona.

The money was released by the Department of Homeland Security as part of what it has dubbed "Operation Stonegarden." The grants are to be used by local authorities to help pay for operational costs and equipment used for border security.

Arizona received $6.4 million in grants, New Mexico got $1.6 million and California got $1 million.

"Our ultimate success at the border is going to require close coordination with local authorities and sustained commitments to remedying a security challenge that has been decades in the making," Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff said in a statement.

The money was included in the 2006 emergency spending bill that also paid for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, and recovery costs from Hurricane Katrina and Rita. Money also comes from the Law Enforcement Terrorism Prevention Program grants awarded to states.

Collector pays $2.3 million for century-old $1,000 bill

DALLAS (AP) — An art collector has paid about $2.3 million for a $1,000 U.S. bill printed in 1890, the auction house that brokered the transaction between two anonymous private collectors said Friday.

"This $1,000 bill is one of only two known of its type; the other surviving example is in the museum at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco," said Greg Rohan, president of Dallas-based Heritage Auction Galleries.

He said that type of bank note is known to collectors as a "Grand Watermelon" because the green-striped zeros in the denomination "1,000" printed on the back of the bill look like watermelons.

"Only two Grand Watermelon examples are known with red-color Treasury Department seals printed on the front; the half-dozen other surviving Grand Watermelon notes have brown seals," he said in a news release.

The $2,255,000 price is more than double the previous record for an 1890 Grand Watermelon note. The previous record for any bank note was $2.1 million, according to the Heritage Auction

Galleries. Rohan said that the buyer was "a very advanced and sophisticated East Coast collector of art and rare currency."

Ex-Enron director pleads guilty to defrauding company

HOUSTON (AP) — A former director in Enron Corp.'s human resources department has pleaded guilty to defrauding the company of about $3 million in a scheme involving false consultation services, federal prosecutors announced Friday.

Christian Deeb Rahaim, 38, of Mandeville, La., faces up to 20 years in prison after pleading guilty to wire fraud. He also faces a fine of up to $250,000 or twice the amount of the loss to Enron.

The scheme is not connected to Enron's 2001 bankruptcy.

Diocese failed to turn over records on suspended priest

FORT WORTH (AP) — While Gilbert Pansza was still studying to become a clergyman, he admitted sexually abusing a child in the 1970s to Catholic Bishop Joseph Delaney.

Two years after Pansza's 1998 admission, Delaney ordained him into the priesthood.

Despite a 2002 agreement by bishops nationwide to keep known abusers from serving in the ministry, Pansza continued working. He was eventually promoted to pastor and went on to work at parishes in Fort Worth, Bridgeport, Decatur, Jacksboro and Wichita Falls.

A 2004 order required the Fort Worth Catholic Diocese to hand over records on priests accused of sexual abuse. But nothing about Pansza was surrendered.

The decisions were made by a previous diocesan administration, said John Crumley, an attorney for the diocese. He didn't learn about Pansza's admission until a few days ago, when Delaney's successor found out, Crumley said.

Bishop Kevin Vann, who took over after Delaney's death last year, said that while continuing to review the files of the diocese, officials discovered an admission from Pansza of sexual abuse of a minor. He removed Pansza from active ministry this week.

"I think their first concern was removing him from active ministry," he said. "You sit down and look at everything else later."

What officials found was an abuse allegation from 1998, when someone contacted the diocese and identified an alleged victim of abuse by Pansza. Both Pansza and the alleged victim said the caller was mistaken. But Pansza admitted abusing someone else, before he was a seminarian, said Crumley.

Vann's top aide, the Rev. Michael Olson, reported the information to Tarrant County authorities and officials in the county where the abuse was said to have happened. Olson also is trying to locate the alleged victim, Crumley said.

Since Delaney was to weak from cancer treatment to deal with the 2004 judge's order for priest records, the work likely fell to his two top aides, the Rev. Robert Wilson and the Rev. Joseph Schumacher, Crumley said.

Diocese officials say both priests knew of Pansza's admission.

Wilson and Schumacher declined to comment to The Dallas Morning News and neither works as a top aide to Vann.

No accusations have been made against Pansza, 55, since he became a priest, the diocese said. Pansza most recently led Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Wichita Falls.

Texas prepares for possible pandemic flu outbreak

By JAMIE STENGLE
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — With a statewide drill planned for next year to test Texas' preparedness for a possible pandemic flu outbreak, health officials are continuing to tweak the state's response plan.

Several similar drills have already been done locally and regionally.

"With pandemic flu, so much of it starts out as a local response," said Emily Palmer, spokeswoman for the Texas Department of State Health Services, which is heading up the response to a possible pandemic.

The state plan has been in place since 2004 and updated several times since. Local health departments, hospitals, businesses and schools also have prepared their own plans in coordination with the state.

A pandemic flu outbreak occurs when a new, highly contagious form of the flu virus emerges. There is heightened concern that the Asian bird flu could cause a pandemic if it starts easily spreading among humans.

In the last century there were three flu pandemics, the worst being a 1918 outbreak that killed about 50 million people worldwide, and 500,000 in the U.S.

Cherise Rohr-Allegrini, epidemiologist at the San Antonio Metro Health District, said that the department has been working not only with city and county agencies to help them come up with preparedness plans, but also with schools and businesses.

"A large part of our preparedness is making sure other people are prepared," Rohr-Allegrini said.

In Dallas, the city is working on a plan to fill spots if a third of the work force is out sick or caring for a sick person. For instance, library personnel, who would not be essential during a pandemic, could be trained to be 911 operators, said Kenny Shaw, director of the city's office of emergency management.

In West Texas, about 120 people attended the Ector County Health Department's two-day flu summit at the end of November, said Sallie Connor, public health preparedness program manager for the department.

The state's plan estimates that an international outbreak of a new variation of the flu could have a 25 to 50 percent attack rate, meaning 5 to 10 million Texans could get sick.

Of those, 4 percent — between 200,000 to 400,000 — might have to be hospitalized. Between 75,000 to 500,000 Texans could die.

The plan notes that while local communities are considering alternatives to provide care for the sick, there won't be enough hospital beds for the severely ill.

The Texas Hospital Association says the state's 554 hospitals have about 77,000 beds. Most people would have to be cared for at home.

But during a pandemic, health officials say staffing the hospitals — rather than a shortage of beds — will be the biggest problem.

Rohr-Allegrini said hospital staff will need training to take on extra duties in case many other employees are unable to report to work.

Among points still to be completed are how many extra antivirals Texas will order.

Antivirals like Tamiflu can be used to reduce flu symptoms and can also help protect against it. The state already has access to about 3.3 million antivirals as part of the national stockpile.

Officials are in the process of tweaking the guidelines for who will get antivirals, both as a precaution and a treatment.

Much of the planning for a pandemic — which could last up to a year with two waves of outbreaks — will depend on various factors, including how much warning is available before the pandemic strikes and its severity, Palmer said. It is also unknown whether antivirals would be effective against whatever strain hits and how long it might take to get a vaccine.

"Everybody would go into their response planning mode," Palmer said. "I know there's going to be a lot of decisions that are made at a last minute."

Florida governor suspends executions

California judge declares injection method unconstitutional, says it can be fixed

By DAVID KRAVETS

Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Faced with grim testimony of poorly trained executioners operating in cramped, dimly lit quarters, a federal judge declared California's execution procedure unconstitutional.

The state's "implementation of lethal injection is broken, but it can be fixed," U.S. District Judge Jeremy Fogel ruled Friday in San Jose, extending a moratorium on executions in the nation's most populous state.

The decision is the latest in a nationwide challenge to lethal injection — the preferred execution method in 37 states — and came as Florida Gov. Jeb Bush suspended all executions there after a bungled execution this week. Missouri's injection method, which is similar to California's, was declared unconstitutional last month by a federal judge.

Fogel said the California case raised the question of whether the three execution drugs administered by the San Quentin State Prison are so painful that they "offend" the ban on cruel and unusual punishment. He said he was compelled "to answer that question in the affirmative."

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld executions — by lethal injection, hanging, firing squad, electric chair and gas chamber — despite the pain they might cause, but has left unsettled the issue of whether the pain is unconstitutionally excessive.

California has been under a capital punishment moratorium since February, when Fogel called off the execution of rapist and murderer Michael Morales amid concerns that condemned inmates might suffer excruciating deaths.

Fogel found evidence that the last six men executed at San Quentin might have been conscious and still breathing when lethal drugs were administered.

A four-day hearing in September revealed that prison guards were inadequately trained to participate in executions. One prison official who was part of the execution team had been sanctioned for smuggling drugs into San Quentin.

Drugs were not properly accounted for, at times they weren't properly mixed and unused drugs were not returned to the prison's pharmacy. Executioners worked in the crowded chamber under dim lights.

Fogel ordered anesthesiologists to be on hand, or demanded that a licensed medical professional inject a large, fatal dose of a sedative instead of the additional paralyzing agent and heart-stopping drugs that are normally used. But no medical professional was willing to participate.

Morales, 47, of Stockton, raped and brutally beat a 17-year-old Lodi girl 25 years ago.

In Florida, Angel Nieves Diaz, 55, was put to death Wednesday for murdering the manager of a Miami topless bar during a holdup in 1979.

Medical examiner Dr. William Hamilton said Diaz's execution took 34 minutes — twice as long as usual — and required a rare second dose of lethal chemicals because the needles were inserted clear through his veins and into the flesh in his arms. The chemicals are supposed to go into the veins.

Hamilton, who performed the autopsy, refused to say whether he thought Diaz died a painful death.

"I am going to defer answers about pain and suffering until the autopsy is complete," he said. He said the results were preliminary and other tests may take several weeks.

Missing a vein when administering the injections would cause "both psychological and physical discomfort — probably pretty severe," said Dr. J. Kent Garman, an emeritus professor of anesthesia at the Stanford School of Medicine in California.

An inmate would remain conscious for a longer period of time and would likely be aware of increased difficulty breathing and pain caused by angina, the interruption of blood flow to the heart, Garman said.

Bush created a commission to examine the state's lethal injection process in light of Diaz's case, and he halted the signing of any more death warrants until the panel completes its final report by March 1.

The medical examiner's findings contradicted the explanation given by prison officials, who said Diaz needed the second dose because liver disease caused him to metabolize the drugs more slowly. Hamilton said that although there were records that Diaz had hepatitis, his liver appeared normal.

Executions in Florida normally take no more than about 15 minutes, with the inmate rendered unconscious and motionless within three to five minutes. But Diaz appeared to be moving 24 minutes after the first injection, grimacing, blinking, licking his lips, blowing and appearing to mouth words.

As a result of the chemicals going into Diaz's arms around the elbow, he had an 12-inch chemical burn on his right arm and an 11-inch chemical burn on his left arm, Hamilton said.

Florida Corrections Secretary James McDonough said the execution team did not see any swelling of the arms, which would have been an indication that the chemicals were going into tissues and not veins.

Florida got rid of the electric chair after two inmates' heads caught fire during executions in the 1990s and another suffered a severe nosebleed in 2000. Twenty people have been executed by lethal injection in Florida since the state switched from the electric chair in 2000.

Florida's death row has 374 inmates, while California's is the largest, with more than 650 inmates.

Bush to propose earmark changes for Congress

By DEB RIECHMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — President Bush said Saturday that his administration will outline a series of changes that would clamp down on the common Capitol Hill practice of slipping pet projects into spending bills.

These projects, called earmarks, are spending provisions that often are put into bills at the last minute, so they never get debated or discussed, Bush said in his weekly radio address.

"It is not surprising that this often leads to unnecessary federal spending, such as a swimming pool or a teapot museum tucked into a big spending bill," he said.

The president said his administration's proposal would make earmarks more transparent, make lawmakers more accountable for the earmarks they propose, and help reduce the overall number of earmarks.

Many lawmakers claim they are better suited than others in government to know what their states need. Bush said the use of earmarks has exploded, and pointed to a Congressional Research Service report that the number of earmarks has increased from about 3,000 in 1996 to 13,000 this year.

"I respect Congress' authority over the public purse, but the time has come to reform the earmark process and dramatically reduce the number of earmarks," Bush said.

Democrats, who will take control of Congress on Jan. 4, already announced their plan to wipe out billions of dollars in lawmakers' home-state projects in unfinished spending bills. On Monday, the incoming Democratic chairmen of the House and Senate Appropriations committees announced that they would eliminate earmarks from the nine unfinished spending bills for the budget year that began Oct. 1.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., and Sen. Robert

Byrd, D-W.Va., said they would restore earmarking in the upcoming 2008 budget cycle, but only after implementing changes. Obey said he was pleased that the president supports their plan.

"But it should be noted that all of the earmarks combined don't begin to match the increase in the deficit caused by the president wasting $50 billion in supersized tax cuts for those making more than $1 million a year while other Americans sleep on the streets," Obey said.

This summer, Republicans announced changes to require spending bills to carry lists of earmarks and their sponsors. That's a good start, Bush said, but more needs to be done by both parties.

"Republicans and Democrats alike have an opportunity to demonstrate our commitment to spending restraint and good government by making earmark reform a top priority for the next Congress," Bush said. "When it comes to spending your money, you expect us to rise above party labels."

Byrd said any effort to change the way business gets done in Washington cannot begin and end with the appropriations process.

"We also must address earmarks in the tax codes which have resulted in huge loopholes for corporate America while middle-class America is left holding the bag," Byrd said.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Trump management is an integral part of the play of any suit contract.

It includes the frequently crucial decision of whether to draw all, some or none of the opposing trumps at the outset. It might also include the question of whether to ruff high, low or not at all in situations where declarer has an opportunity to trump.

Take this deal where South mismanaged his trumps and as a result failed to make four hearts. He ruffed West's second spade lead and played the K-Q-A of trumps.

When the suit broke 4-2, South next tried to run dummy's diamonds. But East ruffed the third round and returned a spade, forcing declarer to use his last trump. After that, the only trick South could score was the ace of clubs, and he finished down two.

The deal illustrates how important it is for declarer to decide at the start how to handle his trumps. In this case, South did not give adequate thought to what he could do to protect against a 4-2 trump break — mathematically 12 percent more likely than a 3-3 division. Had he taken the appropriate measures, he could have assured the contract against both a 3-3 and a 4-2 split.

The correct play is to discard a club on the second spade lead! This allows declarer to retain all of his trumps and leaves him in full control.

Another spade lead can be ruffed in dummy, after which South cashes the king of hearts, crosses to the queen of diamonds and plays the A-Q of trumps. When the suit fails to divide evenly, he concedes a trump to East's ten and takes the rest of the tricks.

The contract is equally certain if West leads a trump or a diamond at trick three. Declarer is sure to score four hearts, five diamonds and the ace of clubs for 10 tricks in all.

IN BRIEF

Rockets drop game against Lakers

Kobe Bryant scored a season-high 53 points, making 14 of 16 free throws, and the Los Angeles Lakers rallied from a 21-point deficit to beat the Houston Rockets 112-101 in double overtime Friday night.

The Lakers trailed until the final 1 1/2 minutes of regulation, then squeaked out a back-and-forth first overtime before scoring the first nine points of the second OT to pull away.

Bryant's 13th career game of 50 or more points came against Yao Ming, who led the Rockets with 35 points, 15 rebounds and a career-high eight blocked shots.

Rafer Alston had 19 points and 10 assists for Houston, which was without Tracy McGrady for the third consecutive game because of back spasms.

Dallas Stars make personnel changes

The Dallas Stars recalled goaltender Mike Smith from the AHL Iowa Stars on Friday and assigned center Joel Lundqvist and goaltender Dan Ellis to the development team.

Earlier Friday, the Stars assigned Smith to the Iowa team in exchange for Ellis, but Ellis' flight to Los Angeles for the Stars' Saturday game was canceled, said team spokesman Mark Janko. Smith will fill the backup goalie slot Saturday, he said.

Smith has a 5-3-0 record with Dallas this season, along with a 2.27 goals-against average and a .903 save percentage.

Ellis has a 7-7-0 record for Iowa this season, with a 3.85 goals-against average and a .871 save average.

He played his only NHL game with Dallas in a 4-3 win against Los Angeles in Feb. 2004.

Fankhauser secures the Steers' victory

Big Spring basketball tops Greenwood, 53-52

MIKE GRIMES

With Greenwood leading Big Spring 52-50 and only 1.2 seconds left to play in the game, Scott Fankhauser swished three straight free throws to win the game for the Steers' 53-52.

The win Friday night, coming against a school that beat Big Spring by 40-plus points last year, keeps the Steers rolling in the right direction as district play nears.

"Based on the way I heard this game went last season," Steers coach Joey Martin said, "this was a big win for our program. The players and the fans can see that we play an exciting brand of basketball, and now they see that we can win these close games. This should do wonders for our confidence."

In the first half both teams raced up and down the court trading baskets. The Steers found a way to stretch the lead to seven points, a game high for either team, after a Rondell Trevino 3-pointer, but the Rangers were able to answer and close the gap in the final minute of the half.

In the first half Trevino led the Steers with 11 points and Fankhauser added 6 more.

Lane Flowers was 2-of-3 from beyond the arc for the visiting Rangers and led his team with 11 points at intermission.

As both teams headed for the locker room, the score was 32-30 in Big Spring's favor.

Terrance Clemons fights for and grabs a rebound in the Steers' 53-52 victory over Greenwood Friday night. Clemons scored 10 points in the game and had eight in the second half.

In the second half of action, neither team could pull away and the score remained close. The largest lead never exceeded four points and the game felt like it would come down to the final possession.

The Big Spring student body did its part by harassing everything the Rangers tried to do.

Big Spring JV wins again

MIKE GRIMES

Sports Editor

Big Spring's junior varsity boy's basketball is team is rocking and rolling through its fall schedule.

The Steers (10-1) continue to win despite having members of the team move up and down from the varsity squad and Friday night they used their deep bench to wipe out the Greenwood Rangers, 54-42 at the Steer Gym.

The Rangers jumped to an early lead and outscored the Steers 6-0 through the first 4:46 of the game. That's when the home town team rattled off 13 unanswered points and took a commanding 13-7 advantage into the second quarter.

With just under three minutes to play before halftime, the Rangers were hit with a technical foul and the Steers made them pay by connecting on the first of two free throws and then hitting a 3-pointer on the ensuing possession. By the time the buzzer sounded and the two teams headed for the locker rooms, the Steers had hit a second 3-pointer and pushed the lead to 11 points.

"The key player tonight was Tyrone Clemons," said junior varsity coach Randal Petty. "He can almost always be counted on for 12 to 15 points a game, but tonight I think he had that at the break."

Actually he had 18 points at the half and finished the game as the leading scorer with 26.

Freshman Matt Ritchey added 5 points and grabbed 6 rebounds in the first 16 minutes of play.

"What makes us so strong is our bench," Petty added. "We're ten to twelve deep and we can sub and bring kids off the bench in any situation. That allows us to press for all 32 minutes of the game and really applies more pressure than most teams are used to facing."

In the third period the two teams traded turnovers, rebounds and a few points. The shooting percentages dropped for both schools and the Steers managed to score all of 6 points, but still maintained a 10 point lead.

In the fourth quarter Darrious McCallister, a leading scorer for the varsity team Tuesday night, drained 4-of-6 from the floor and ended the game as the second leading scorer with 11 points.

"Tyrone and Darrious both played well and really complimented each other," Petty said after the win. "All three freshman, Daniel (Segundo) — Tyler (Tannehill) — and Matt (Ritchey) turned in solid performances and that's what we need each night."

On Monday Dec. 18, the Big Spring junior varsity basketball team will travel to face Snyder. Tip off is scheduled for 6 p.m.

Big Spring's Matt Ritchey scored 6 points and played strong defense in Friday night's 54-42 non-district win over the Rangers.

Falcons not sure about facing Cowboys

By PAUL NEWBERRY

AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Maybe this is the good time to be facing the Dallas Cowboys. Maybe not.

The Atlanta Falcons aren't sure.

Granted, the Cowboys hardly looked like a play-off contender in last weekend's 42-17 loss to New Orleans. Surely their confidence was shaken a bit, their bravado taken down a notch or two after such a crashing halt to a run of four straight wins.

Then again, there are times when a blowout loss serves as a wake-up call, the sort of slap in the face a talented team needs to regain its focus. Maybe the Cowboys will be in the mood for payback against the next team on the schedule.

That just happens to be the Falcons (7-6), who are hosting Dallas (8-5) on Saturday night in a game that will have major impact on the NFC play-off race.

"When a team puts 42 points on you in a national TV game, a little bit of doubt starts to creep in," Falcons linebacker Ike Reese said. "To lose like that before they come in here is not necessarily a bad thing."

Bagwell helped lift Astros to among baseball's elite

By JOE STINEBAKER

Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — When Jeff Bagwell joined the Houston Astros in 1991, they were a last-place team having trouble drawing fans to a stadium that had seen its better days.

Bagwell's enormous popularity helped triple the team's annual attendance in the 1990s and his slugging helped lift the team from mediocrity to perennial pennant contention.

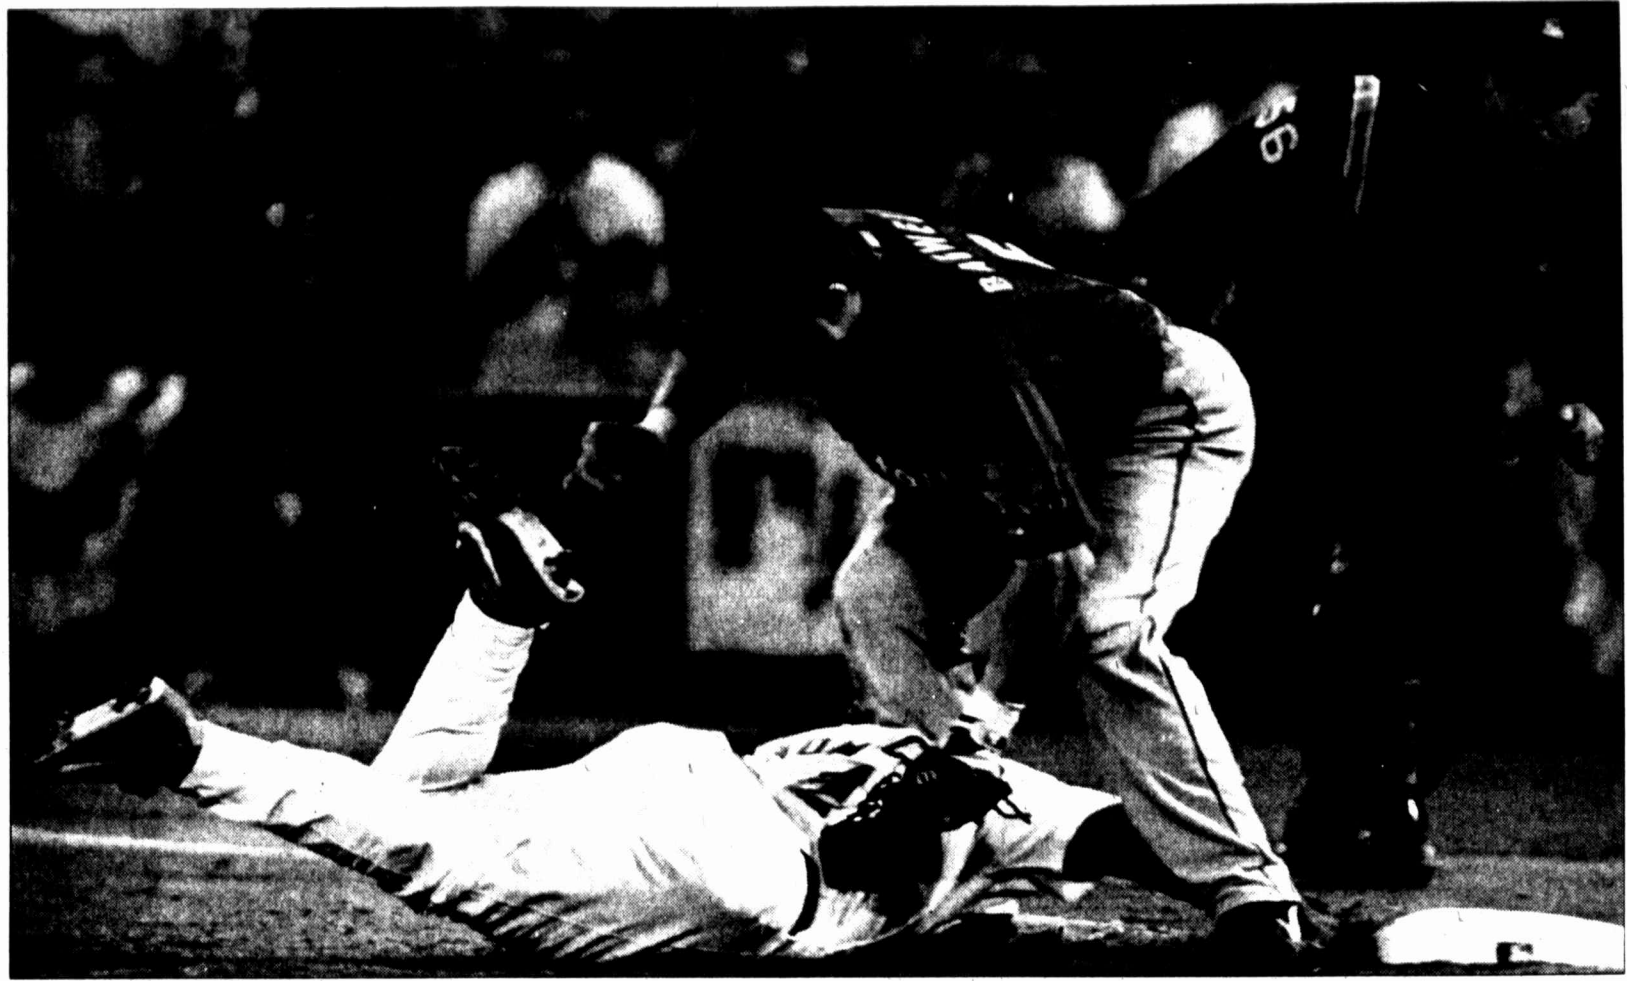

Bagwell's 16-year career with the Astros came to a close Friday, ending his time as one of Houston's best-loved athletes. Along with his teammate and friend, Craig Biggio, Bagwell helped convert Houston to a far more savvy baseball city.

Ultimately, his arthritic right shoulder forced him off the field.

"Physically, I can not do it anymore," the 38-year-old Bagwell said in announcing his retirement. "I wish I could. I wish I could continue to play and try to win a World Series in Houston. But I'm just not physically able to do that anymore. . . . I feel very blessed to have met all of you, to be part of the Houston Astros for 15, 16 years."

When Bagwell joined the Astros as a relatively scrawny 22-year-old, the team finished 29 games out of first place and drew just over 1.2 million fans to the cavernous Astrodome. By the time he left, the Astros had defended their first-ever NL pennant before 3 million fans at Minute Maid Park.

Astros owner Drayton McLane acknowledged Bagwell's importance, telling him: "In the 15 years you have Astros' first baseman Jeff Bagwell, shown making a defensive play in the NLCS in St. Louis, retired from playing this week. Bagwell has been called the "heartbeat" of the Houston franchise by owner Drayton McLane and will remain with the organization in a special role. MCT photo played here, you have been the person that has lifted this franchise, and we thank you for that. "A lot of great things have occurred.

We've had championships, we've gone to the World Series, and we got a new stadium. And Jeff Bagwell has been an integral part. And I have said for many years that Jeff has been really the heartbeat of the Houston Astros."

favor ... our students caused some turnovers by being so vocal and in a close game like this, that's important," Martin added, as he waved and talked to students and parents after the game.

With 3:00 left to play in regulation, the score was knotted at 48 apiece.

The Steers went cold from the field and missed six consecutive shots over the next two minutes.

With under a minute to play and the Steers trailing by two, Jason Walker swooped into the paint to grab an offensive rebound and lay it off the glass to tie the score.

Walker, the Steers leading scorer this season, ended the game with 11 rebounds.

As the clock dwindled down, the Rangers missed three straight shots before Flowers followed his missed jumper for an easy layup under the basket — the Rangers lead 52-50, with 5.4 seconds remaining.

After a Steers timeout, Coach Martin made all the right calls.

BSHS inbounded the ball on a pass to mid-court and immediately called a timeout. With 5.0 seconds still remaining, the Steers went to the bench for Martin's next play.

"That's the type of game I enjoy coaching," Martin said after the gym emptied. "Advancing the ball for the sole purpose of taking a timeout, the opposing coach using his last foul to give and then having to go to our third option off the inbounds play to win the game. That's what excites me and why I love coaching this game."

After the timeout the ball was passed to Fankhauser's hands, he looked to pass first and shoot second.

However, before he could make either move, the Rangers fouled him and sent the ball back to the baseline with 2.6 seconds flashing on the scoreboard. The foul was called before a shot attempt and did not send the Rangers over the limit.

The third and final inbounds play drawn up by Coach Martin led to Fankhauser again. While not the first option, the senior had no choice but to launch an immediate 3-pointer. The leather ball was swatted away from the basket after it left his finger tips, but the Ranger player crashed into Fankhauser as the referee's whistle blew for a shooting foul with 1.2 left on the game clock.

DALLAS

ly. "That just makes them more dangerous," he said. "I wish they had won, to tell you the truth."

Both teams have reached that must-win stage of the season. The Cowboys are clinging to a one-game lead in the NFC East over Philadelphia and the New York Giants. The Falcons are part of a three-way deadlock for two wild-card spots, with two other teams just a game behind.

Led by quarterback Tony Romo, the Cowboys had won five of six games until they got steamrolled by New Orleans.

"That was pretty difficult to take," Dallas coach Bill Parcells said. "I don't think any coach can see something like that coming. We played very poorly across the board. We had played pretty good football for six weeks up to that. But we just didn't give ourselves a chance to win."

The pass-happy Saints repeatedly went deep on the Cowboys, whose secondary took much of the heat for letting things get out of hand. Drew Brees threw for 384 yards and five touchdowns, including a 61-yarder to Reggie Bush and a 42-yarder to Devery Henderson.

"We did give up five touchdown passes," Parcells said, essentially pointing a finger at the defensive backs. "We were in position two times on long passes. We were right there to make the play, but in both cases we didn't."

Safety Roy Williams got a bit defensive when the spotlight was turned on the leaky coverage.

"Everybody knows that whatever goes wrong with the defense, it's going to be the secondary's fault," he moaned. "That is what it is. You've got to have a short-term memory in football."

In fact, he's tired of talking about the Saints. He's only worried about the Falcons, who have won two in a row after a four-game losing streak imperiled their playoff hopes.

"That's in the past. We don't dwell in the past," Williams said. "The only people talking about the last game are the media, trying to throw it in our face. But we're not worried about the last game."

The Falcons, the NFL's top rushing team, don't present nearly as big a threat through the air as the Saints. And Atlanta's dynamic ground game could be short-staffed if its top two runners, Warrick Dunn and Jerious Norwood, aren't able to play.

Both went down with injuries in last week's victory at Tampa Bay and were questionable for the prime-time game. Together, they have rushed for 1,547 yards.

But the Falcons still have Michael Vick, who is on the verge of a season record for most yards rushing by a quarterback.

He is 34 behind Bobby Douglass, who rushed for 968 with the Bears in 1972, and just 66 away from becoming the first quarterback to rush for 1,000 yards.

He's not the only Atlanta player with a shot at a major record. Kicker Morten Andersen is one point away from tying Gary Anderson as the most prolific scorer in NFL history.

Shrugging off his pursuit of history, Vick stressed the need to pass effectively, especially after watching what New Orleans did a week ago, and knowing that Dunn and Norwood won't be at full strength if they play.

"We definitely have to throw the football," Vick said. "We've got to get ball into the air and make some plays in the passing game. They have a good run-support defense. We're not just going to line up and run the ball against them, regardless of who we've got back there."

Romo and the Cowboys are hoping to take advantage of Atlanta's injury-depleted secondary. Keep an eye on cornerback Hall, who likely will spend most of the night covering Terrell Owens.

T.O. is just 29 yards away from his seventh 1,000-yard season, and Hall has no illusions about keeping the receiver er from getting it this week.

"Oh, he's going to get his thousand," said Hall, who kept Owens out of the end zone when the two went head-to-head in the 2005 season opener. "When you throw it as much as they do, you know he's going to get 30 yards. But there's a lot of playmakers on that team."

Indeed, if the Falcons devote all their attention to stopping Owens, they'll likely be burned by Terry Glenn (58 receptions, 825 yards, 6 TDs) and Jason Witten (49 receptions). They also have to contend with Romo's athleticism and ability to throw on the run, though the first-year starter is coming off his worst performance.

"I don't think he could possibly keep up the pace he was at," Parcells said. "And we became a pretty one-dimensional team for the entire second half of that game."

The Falcons have played well defensively the last two weeks, getting a boost from the return to form of three-time Pro Bowler John Abraham. He had a sack and forced a fumble in the 17-6 win over the Bucs.

"Granted, the last two offenses we've played (Washington and Tampa Bay) are not as good as the offense we're playing this week," Reese said. "But we're starting to get our mojo back."

"Coach told me he didn't care if I made the free throws to win the game or not," Fankhauser said from the scorers table after the win. "After the tournament in Monahans last week, when I threw up three air-balls in three straight games from the free throw line, Coach had me practicing from the charity stripe with my eyes closed this week."

Judge orders paternity test taken of Duke lacrosse rape accuser's baby

By ALLEN G. BREED
AP National Writer

DURHAM, N.C. — A judge Friday ordered a paternity test on a baby expected by the woman who has accused three Duke lacrosse players of rape. But both the district attorney and the defense rejected any possibility that one of the men is the father.

News of the accuser's pregnancy comes roughly nine months after the team party where she says she was raped.

District Attorney Mike Nifong said the woman's baby is due in the first week of February.

The defense asked for the paternity test. At the same time, defense attorney Joseph Cheshire said it is an "absolute impossibility" that she got pregnant during the alleged attack.

Cheshire said the woman was given a pregnancy test immediately after reporting she was raped — and it was negative — and she took an emergency contraceptive. In addition, DNA tests found no genetic material from any Duke lacrosse team members on the woman or her clothes.

A person familiar with the case, speaking to The Associated Press on the condition of anonymity, confirmed the pregnancy late Thursday but had no information about the father.

Also Friday, a lab director admitted in court that after an agreement with Nifong, he violated his own procedures and withheld results showing none of the players' DNA was found on or in the woman's body.

Dr. Brian Meehan, lab director at DNA Security Inc., said he and Nifong agreed to include only DNA matches in the report on his testing results. The report released in May omitted information about people the DNA tests excluded, including the fact that no genetic material from any member of the lacrosse team was among that from several males found in the accuser's underwear and body.

"We are extremely troubled by that," Cheshire said.

The full testing results, showing the exclusions, were disclosed through a defense request in October. They did not become public until Wednesday.

Meehan said that he had been concerned about sensitive, private information becoming public and that the omission was not an attempt to withhold information.

"I was just trying to do the right thing," he explained.

Air Force coach DeBerry retires

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. — Fisher DeBerry dumped a box of belongings from his office into his SUV and drove off slowly with wife LuAnn, leaving behind the campus he loved along with a lot of unanswered questions.

The 68-year-old DeBerry retired Friday after 23 years as Air Force's football coach, finishing with three straight losing seasons and two big controversies in his final years.

DeBerry, whose 169-109-1 record made him the winningest coach in Air Force history, had the third-longest tenure at one school of any active college coach, after Joe Paterno (41 years at Penn State) and Bobby Bowden (31 years at Florida State).

Coming off a third straight losing season for the first time in his 23 years at the academy, DeBerry read a prepared statement at a news conference, then walked off without taking questions.

"There comes a time in every man's life when I think you have to look at the big picture and decide what's the best thing for your family," said DeBerry, who guided the Falcons to three conference championships and spent 27 years at the school, including four as an assistant coach.

He briefly hugged athletic director Hans Meuh on his way out of the Falcon Athletic Center Hall of Excellence.

Meuh demurred when asked if DeBerry had been pressured to make changes on his staff.

"We had our normal end-of-season discussion. We met a couple of times and talked about it and bounced ideas back and forth and ultimately, Fisher just decided that it was time," Meuh said. "Coming from the military, you always know when it's time to put your papers in to retire."

Safety Bobby Giannini said DeBerry told his players in an emotional half-hour meeting Friday morning before finals that he wanted to spend more time with his family — his two children and five grandchildren live in Oklahoma.

"And I sincerely believe that. He's always been straightforward with us and wouldn't lie to us about that," Giannini said. "He's wants to spend more time with his family and after 44 years of one job, I don't blame him for that."

Senior quarterback Shaun Carney, the point man in the Falcons' potent triple-option offense, said he didn't think Coach DeBerry was nudged out the door, either.

"He talked about how his family played such an integral role in his decision, how he wanted to be there for his children, his grandchildren as they grew up," Carney said.

ASTRO

Even Houston Mayor Bill White weighed in on Bagwell's retirement.

"The greatest hitter in Astros history may have hung up his spikes, but his home run trot keeps replaying in our best baseball memories," he said in a statement. "As a ballplayer, a team leader and a great community-minded Houstonian, we all appreciate having been witness to his career here. We look forward to his continued presence with our team, in our city and in the Hall of Fame."

Bagwell said he was grateful that he was able to spend his entire major league career with one team.

"That's always been a big thing for me, and always meant a lot for me," he said. "I feel very proud of the fact that I spent my entire career with this organization. And that was something that Craig and I both have talked about for years. That was something that was very important to us — to give the fans some identity of, at least you knew every single day that Biggio and Bagwell would be out on the right side of infield."

Along with Biggio, Bagwell led the Astros to four division titles and the team's first NL pennant in 2005.

Bagwell retired as Houston's leader in homers (449), RBIs (1,529), walks (1,401) and extra-base hits (969). He finished with a .297 career average.

Using an unusual stance that featured a wide crouch, Bagwell finished three homers behind his childhood idol, Carl Yastrzemski.

Bagwell, the 1991 NL rookie of the year and 1994 NL MVP, will remain with the Astros as part of a personal-services agreement struck with the team this week. He is expected to work with Astros hitters, assist in the front office and make appearances for the team.

His retirement came the same day the team and its insurance company settled a lawsuit over efforts to recoup some of the $17 million Bagwell was to have earned last year. Details of the agreement were not revealed.

Former teammates and colleagues described Bagwell as a "blue-collar guy" and "one of the guys" who accepted the fame and celebrity of his career only reluctantly.

"For as great a player as he was, he was also one of the most humble people I've ever been around," former Astros general manager Gerry Hunsicker said. "He really let his play do his talking for him."

A native of Boston, Bagwell was traded by the Red Sox to Houston in August 1990 for pitcher Larry Andersen. Astros manager Art Howe switched Bagwell from third base to first base to accommodate Ken Caminiti, who became one of Bagwell's closest friends.

"If any number should be hanging up there in those rafters (at Minute Maid Park), it should be No. 5," Hunsicker said. "Jeff was a leader because of the way he played the game, the way he carried himself on and off the field and the way he treated people."

The Santa Solution

*We had a question about Santa Claus, so we decided to go to the experts at Marcy Elementary
for an answer. Here's what they told us.*

We at the Herald often deal with the pressing issues of the day. From politics to the economy and just about every topic in between, we pride ourselves in doing our utmost to give our readers the answers to important questions.

Of course, we don't always have the answers. Such was the case when we ran into the proverbial brick wall trying to answer a very simple, yet vexing, question: How come nobody ever actually sees Santa as he makes his rounds on Christmas Eve?

Think about it:

He's a large man, with a large, flowing beard, dressed almost entirely in red, riding a sleigh packed with millions of toys and powered by nine reindeer — one with a conspicuously shiny red nose.

At the very least, you'd think he'd be a bit conspicuous.

We asked engineers, physicists and scientists for an explanation.

They were stumped.

We asked philosophers, theologians and political pundits for a solution.

They were of no help.

Fortunately, we didn't have to go far to find the answer we were seeking. It was practically in our back yard, so to speak.

Noted Santa Claus experts — doubling as third graders at Marcy Elementary in Big Spring — were more than happy to provide the answers we were so desperately seeking. And those answers were so simple, yet so logical, that we wondered why we didn't think of them ourselves.

It just goes to show that, when it comes to Santa Claus, at least, some things are better left in the hands of children.

He just takes a long time to get the reindeer and sleigh ready.

— Angel D.

You never see Santa on Christmas Eve because he has to pick out your presents for Christmas. That's why he takes so long.

— Lindsey W.

I think no one sees Santa Claus on Christmas Eve because he is invisible. And I think his spirit runs the sleigh. I think he sleeps the other 11 months so he can go to all the houses. I also think the reindeer have invisible wings. And a lot of energy.

— Mani V.

— Efen C.

When he knows you're asleep, he sneaks into your living room and delivers presents to you — well, to your tree — and he eats the cookies and drinks the milk you put out for him ... and sometimes, you can hear the reindeer bells ringing.

— Abyssa P.

He won't come when you're awake, but will when you're asleep, and you can't wake up when you're asleep.

— Nathan P.

How come you never see Santa on Christmas Eve? Because we are asleep in our beds ... and we don't hear a jingle from the reindeer.

— Samantha M.

You never see Santa Claus on Christmas Eve because you really should be asleep then.

— Diamonique M.

You never see him because you are asleep and he sends the presents to your Mom.

— Alexia R.

He steps quietly.

— Mathew S.

He parks his sleigh ... goes down the chimney, tippy-toes quickly but quietly, reaches in his bag and puts the presents under the tree. It must make a lot of noise.

— Marcus C.

— Meranda G.

Our thanks go to Principal Carie Dunnam, teachers Nikki Michulka, Ann McAnulty, Elsi Tucker, Mary Terrazas and Sheryl Gass — and of course, to the third-graders who provided us with the answers we needed.

Elrod-Eckhardt

Laura Jean Elrod of San Antonio, formerly of Big Spring, and Brian Jason Eckhardt of Boerne exchanged wedding vows and were united in marriage Sept. 23, 2006, at Saint John's Lutheran Church in San Antonio with Pastor Tom Robison officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dee Elrod of Big Spring, the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Elrod and Mrs. Velta Lloyd, and the late Mr. Judson Lloyd of Big Spring.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus H. Eckhardt of Fair Oaks Ranch, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Eckhardt of San Antonio and Wanda Ahrens and the late Sylvester Ahrens of Cherry Springs.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dee Elrod. She carried a hand tied bouquet of red roses accented with rhinestone clusters and wrapped with ivory ribbon.

For her wedding, the bride chose an original formal gown of light Italian ivory satin designed for Jacqueline Bridals private collection. The design featured a strapless sweetheart neckline lavishly hand beaded in Swarovski crystals, seed pearls and rhinestone accents. The fitted bodice flowed to a full a-line silhouette. Bead work enhanced the back tulip closure and extended down and around the outer edges of the cathedral length train.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a fingertip single layer veil of soft ivory illusion. The veil was adorned with scattered rhinestones and fell from a silver tiara embellished with Austrian crystals and rhinestones.

The bride carried a Viennese handkerchief from her paternal grandmother and wore a borrowed gold bracelet with heart and key from her maternal grandmother. For something new, she wore a twisted strand of ivory pearls.

The maid of honor was Leslie Kay Elrod of Big Spring, sister of the bride. Attendants were Rhonda Eckhardt, sister of the groom, of Maumelle, Ark., Heather Fitzgerald Readle of Lubbock, Kathryn Floyd of Magnolia, Kathryn Knox Milyard of Plano and Amy Newsome of San Antonio, all friends of the bride.

The bride's attendants wore matching two-piece formal length gowns of garnet crepe accented at the waist with satin ribbon belts. They carried hand tied bouquets of red roses and purple Dutch iris. The flower girl was Miss Julia Kraemer, cousin of the groom, of San Antonio. She wore an ivory organza dress and carried an ivory basket tied with silk bows of ivory and garnet ribbon.

The best man was Manolito Rodriguez of San Antonio. Groomsmen were Eric Burk of San Antonio, cousin of the groom, Corey Friar of Boerne, Scott Puckett of San Antonio, Chris Strickland of Willis and Jace Williamson of La Vista, Neb., all friends of the groom.

Ushers were Allen Lloyd of McAllen, John Laurence of Abilene, cousins of the bride, and Nathan Merecka and Justin Moseley of Floresville, friends of the groom. The ring bearer was Master Jonathan Merecka of Floresville, a friend of the groom.

The historic church was accented with two large arrangements in silver urns of red roses, bells of Ireland, purple Dutch iris and assorted ferns. Two ornately carved wood floor candelabras were filled with ivory tapers. A unity candle was displayed at the front of the church. A single ivory candle filled each aisle candelabra and was accented with grape clustered ivy tied with silver and garnet ribbons.

Karen Elrod Thomas, flutist, aunt of the bride, played classical selections as the guests and family were seated. Organist Victor Schaper played the processional and recessional. Robert Lloyd, uncle of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and was accompanied by J'Nevelyn Lloyd, pianist and aunt of the bride. Scripture readers were Toby Burk, cousin of the groom, and Stephanie Lloyd, cousin of the bride.

Following the double-ring ceremony, the guests attended a reception including dinner and dancing at the Ye Kendall Inn in Boerne. The guests' tables were covered in white cloths and garnet organza overlays. The tables were decorated with tall crystal candlesticks and arrangements of red roses and purple iris.

The bride's table featured a four-tiered square wedding cake separated by fresh red roses between layers and topped with a standing silver monogram. The cake rested on a family silver tray. The table was draped in a white tablecloth with garnet organza overlays. A tall crystal trumpet vase was filled with red roses and graduated crystal candlesticks held large white crystalized candles.

The groom's table was over draped with a large furred cowhide and featured an Italian cream cake decorated with a miniature deer hunt scene. It was displayed on a wood base made by the groom's father. Rustic candlesticks were surrounded by arrangements of red roses and peacock feathers.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents the night before the wedding. Guests enjoyed a Mexican dinner along the San Antonio river walk and were entertained by a river boat cruise.

The bride is a 1995 graduate of Big Spring High School. She graduated from Texas Tech University in 1999 with a bachelor's degree in accounting. She is an administrative officer of tax and regulatory reporting for Frost Bank in San Antonio.

The groom is a 1995 graduate of Boerne High School. He is the operations manager for San Antonio Belting and Pulley Company Inc.

Following a wedding trip to Playa del Carmen, Mexico, the couple are making their home in San Antonio.

Speedway Motorsports rewards CEO for paying debt

By NICOLAS BRULLIARD

Dow Jones Newswires
WASHINGTON — How about a bonus for paying off your debt to the company?
That's the unusual compensation arrangement Speedway Motorsports Inc. set up for its chief executive. Part of Chairman and Chief Executive O. Bruton Smith's $1.45 million bonus for 2006 was based on the fact that he repaid some of the money he's owed his company for at least four years, according to a recent filing with the Securities and Exchange

Part of Chairman and Chief Executive O. Bruton Smith's $1.45 million bonus for 2006 was based on the fact that he repaid some of the money he's owed his company for at least four years.

Commission. This has compensation experts puzzled.
"Basing a portion of a bonus on simply the repayment of outstanding debt is not only unusual, it is inconsistent with pay for performance," said Bruce R. Ellig, author of a guide to executive compensation.

Smith's 2006 bonus was based on three components: meeting target return on average equity, Smith's "reduction of debt" owed to the company and Speedway Motorsports' meeting or exceeding forecast earnings. Lauri Wilks, spokeswoman for the Concord, N.C., promoter of race car events, said there is no specific weighting set either for Smith's debt-reduction bonus criterion or the other two factors.

Wilks said she did not know the amount of Smith's outstanding debt to Speedway Motorsports, which owns Texas Motor Speedway in Fort Worth, Texas. It stood at $1.9 million at the end of last year, and was related both to the CEO's life insurance premiums being treated as loans and "cash advances and expenses paid by the company on behalf of the chairman before July 30, 2002," according to Speedway Motorsports's most recent proxy statement.

Smith's debt to his company stood at $9 million at the end of 2002, was reduced to $3.8 million at the end of 2003 and declined to $2.9 million at the end of 2004, according to past proxy statements.

Wilks said that the life insurance arrangement is no longer in effect, and that the company

Auto savvy

Resist buying a car on impulse

With most auto manufacturers offering end-of-year deals, many consumers are being tempted to consider a bigger than usual holiday purchase this season. While rebates and incentives are packaged to help companies move out 2006 models to make room for the 2007 inventory, they also present consumers with a unique opportunity for a happy holiday experience. According to Automotive News, in December 2004 and again in 2005, nearly 1.5 million new vehicles found their way into U.S. garages and driveways, as consumers wrapped up deals during the holiday season.

While incentives are tempting and can lead to impulse buying, the Better Business Bureau suggests consumers take the time during the busy holiday season to thoroughly check out a vehicle before making a purchase — just as they would at any other time of the year. Auto shoppers can review BBB tips for buying a new vehicle and review reliability reports on auto dealers through the BBB Web site: <http://www.bbb.org>.

Once purchase decisions are made and the holiday season has passed, the BBB can again help consumers who may experience problems with their new vehicle.

"The competition for customers in the automotive industry continues to drive improvements in the quality of vehicles and creates pressure on every manufacturer to satisfy and retain each customer, but occasionally problems do arise," said Steve Cole, president and CEO of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. "If you're having trouble with your new car, and are not satisfied with the dealership response, you should contact the manufacturer or warrantor of your vehicle."

Consumers can obtain the 800 number for manufacturers and research lemon law provisions on the BBB Web site at www.lemonlaw.bbb.org.

Recognizing the importance of vehicles to our lives, every state and the District of Columbia has enacted a lemon law to protect consumers when they purchase or lease a defective product. The lemon laws establish a standard for when vehicles should be repurchased or replaced by the manufacturer.

If manufacturers are not able to resolve buyer concerns, dispute resolution may be an option to consider. Given that the BBB provides mediation and arbitration service for the vast majority of the automotive industry, each year the BBB receives nearly 40,000 requests for assistance with auto warranty issues.

The arbitration process provided by the BBB is not binding on the consumer, but if they accept the arbitrator's award, the manufacturer/warrantor is legally bound to abide by the arbitrator's decision. Car owners can determine if BBB dispute resolution is an option through the BBB Web site or by calling the BBB AUTO LINE Program at 1-800-955-5100.

For all purchases this holiday season, but especially for major expenditures like new car buying, the BBB encourages consumers to take their time, resist impulse buying based upon sales promotions, and check out companies' reliability reports with the BBB before finalizing deals.

For additional consumer tips, contact the BBB at www.permian-basin.bbb.org or call at (432) 563-1880 or (800) 592-4433.

Students persuade Rice to stop buying Kleenex

HOUSTON (AP) — It might be more difficult to find a Kleenex on the Rice University campus in the near future.

Students have persuaded campus officials to quit buying Kleenex products in favor of those that include recycled material and exclude material from trees cut from North America's largest ancient forest — the Boreal forest that stretches from Alaska through Canada.

"It was an initiative that students involved in various environmental groups started," said Kyle Saari, a sophomore earth science major. "We simply showed our purchasing (department) that there are cheaper and environmentally superior products, so it was a no-brainer."

A Rice spokesman said the university has not officially "banned" purchase of Kleenex or other products made by Kimberly-Clark Corp. In an e-mail, the university said it "does not endorse products nor boycott them."

University spokesman B.J. Almond said less than 5 percent of Rice's tissue purchases were Kimberly-Clark products.

New jet fighter makes 1st flight from FW facility, lands early

FORT WORTH (AP) — The new stealth fighter jet that will replace an aging fleet of military planes took off for the first time Friday, landing about 30 minutes into a planned hourlong flight. The shorter time in the air did not mean the pilot of the Joint Strike Fighter, also known as the F-35, encountered problems, said a spokesman for Lockheed Martin Corp., which is building the planes. "Right now we are characterizing the flight as hugely successful," Tom Jurkowsky said. Runway tests that began last week were completed earlier this week. Officials had been waiting for good weather for the maiden flight, which almost didn't happen Friday because of fog. The takeoff was witnessed by hundreds at the Lockheed Martin facility where the planes are being built in possibly the largest defense contract ever, $275 billion over the next two decades. After 10 years of development, Lockheed Martin is moving to the early stages of production for what could be thousands of fighter jets for the American military and eight countries. The U.S. plans to use the F-35 to replace aging planes used by the Marines, Air Force and Navy, including jets like the F-16, the F-18, and the Harrier jet.

stopped "any kind of loans" to Smith after the Sarbanes-Oxley law prohibiting public companies from extending new loans to their executives took effect in 2002. Paying off his debt has been a factor in Smith's bonus for at least the past three years, according to earlier SEC filings. "With increased scrutiny of companies and compensation, the outside directors of the company and the compensation committee wanted the chairman to actively reduce any kind of debt that he owed," Wilks said. Ellig called the arrangement "a little strange," and said it equated to a double benefit because the company first lent money to the chief executive and then rewarded him for paying it off later. Wilks of Speedway Motorsports noted that Smith has been paying off his debt substantially over the past few years. Lucian A. Bebhuk, Harvard

Law School professor and director of its corporate governance program, said that he had never encountered an executive bonus that took into account the recipient's payback of loans, and he called individual debt reduction "a very funny performance measure."

ucts that were cheaper and less harmful to the environment," Almond said. "Our purchasers substituted these products, but there is no official prohibition of buying Kimberly-Clark products for use on campus." Kimberly-Clark, based in the Dallas suburb of Irving, is the target of several university campaigns, Saari said. In April, American University in Washington, D.C., announced it would quit using Kimberly-Clark products, and in November Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., sent a letter of concern to the company, he said. In a prepared statement, Kimberly-Clark said that based on Canadian Forest Service data, its "global use of Boreal fiber represented just 4 percent of the pulp and 1.4 percent of all forest products (lumber, pulp, and newsprint) produced from the Boreal region in 2005."

She is sick of popsie-woopie, among other things

Dear Margo: I have been seeing a really nice guy, "Jack," for a little over three months. We started off very slowly since he was out of town a lot, mostly talking on the phone every night.

MARGO HOWARD

Well, the phone calls became three or more a day. I was getting irritated because I just don't have that much time (or phone minutes) to spend on the phone, and honestly, I don't have that much to talk about in one day. So I stopped taking all the calls and would only talk to him once a day, or just text message a few times. Issue solved.

Well, now my issue is the cutesy talk and his need to constantly kiss when we're together. We are both in our mid-20s. We are not teenagers, so I don't feel the need, nor do I have the desire, to "make out" all the time.

I've told him that I don't like PDA and find it inappropriate and offensive. I'm a private person, and kissing in front of other people makes me uncomfortable. I also feel that cutesy talk is insulting my intelligence. It makes me CRINGE to hear him talk this way and read text messages written this way.

I'm an educated woman with extensive verbal communication skills. The thing is, he thinks he's being charming. I do not want to hurt his feelings, but every time he starts to talk like this, I just want to scream, "Stop talking to me like that! It's annoying!"

Other than this we get along great, when he communicates in a normal fashion. How do I get him to cut out the cutesy talk? — Irritated

Dear Ir: This chap is either judgment-impaired or a case of arrested development, so it's your call as to how to proceed. Your first step might be to simply ask him to stop with the cutesy talk, which I'm assuming is baby talk — always a mistake, even with babies.

If he can't get out of the habit, well, ta-ta. As for the PDA, he is either proving something to someone or he's never had a girlfriend before. — Margo, Immaturely

HE'D RATHER DO IT ALONE

Hello, Margo: I am writing because, most of the time, my man would rather masturbate than have sex. He tells me I am very sexy, and we do have good sex, but he will tell me he is sick, or send me out to the store to get me out of the house, then does it. I come back, and he is all of a sudden fine.

Sometimes I am very hurt when I want sex and he doesn't, but then he will go to the computer, and I know what he's doing. I know we all masturbate when our mate is not around, but to put it first, in place of your mate, bothers me.

We have talked about it, and he says he will make the effort, but then he doesn't. I think it is plain laziness on his part because it's easier to have sex with yourself than to put in the effort for someone else. What do you think? — Susan

Dear Suze: It had actually never occurred to me that masturbation was for lazy people because it was "easier" than having sex with another person. I always thought it was kind of a last resort when you were in the mood and your partner was not home.

In any case, a couple's sex life is often a metaphor for the state of the relationship. Might he perceive you as critical or demanding? Perhaps there is performance anxiety?

Before you can improve your sex life, you need to figure out your issues, some of which may be painful to address. A therapist can help with this. Come to think of it, in this instance I don't believe you can get anywhere without a therapist. — Margo, psychologically

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS
The sun forms a harmonious angle to stern Saturn on this, the second day of Hanukkah. Is there a skill you've wanted to hone, but haven't been able to muster up the self-discipline? Discipline is a nonissue now. A worthy goal has magnetic pull that trumps any tendency you might have had to get distracted or bored.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The person you find fascinating is the same one everyone else likes. (Never mind that you were there first.) Turn up your charisma and go for it. You're especially effective where a Virgo person is concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). This day fits perfectly, but not obviously, into your plan. Unexpected events are the most brilliant. Perhaps your plan has genius in it that you didn't understand when you were designing it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). How are you going to make more money in less time? It's not so much about being efficient as it is about choosing projects that compel you so you lose track of time altogether.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It would be fantastic if you had your own life coach teaching you the fast and direct route to your goal. Maybe you do. A friend you admire is a strong motivating force.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Be gentle with that person who is trying to hide the flaws from you. Nobody likes to be exposed. Let others know it's safe to be real with you. Then honor the statement with your discretion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You like knowing where you're supposed to be and what you're supposed to be doing. That doesn't mean you'll go there and do it — it's just more comfortable knowing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Someone is stuck in dogmatic and outworn ways, and you're the right person to bring this individual into the 21st century. Step up and be a leader. You wear it well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Love doesn't respond to planning. Boy, do you wish it did. It would be so much better to pick when and how and who you fall for. Instead, it sort of sneaks up on you, and then you have to make sense of it all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). If there's one thing you do better than anyone around, it's going on an adventure and living to tell about it. Your wanderlust sets in, and you're off on another one!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It seems you don't have enough guidance, information and resources — but you can't with grunts and a wave of his cave stick. OK, maybe that's an exaggeration. But we do know that many early societies celebrated the sun's majestic entrance into Capricorn because they built things to tell us. Worldwide, there are temples, observatories and mystical structures like Stonehenge that are built in perfect alignment with the solar position of the winter solstice. Religious celebrations, usually occurring within days of the solstice, tie nicely into these seasonal passages and contribute cultural richness and tradition to the celestial events. But what does it mean to you on a personal level when his highness the sun graces Capricorn with his presence? It's boot camp for the body and church for the mind. It's a call for discipline and accountability, hard and necessary work, actions that are important, not just to you, but to your people and the world at large. Happy

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Emotions can create mental cacophony that gets in the way of communication, causing you to misinterpret what you hear. You need an impartial translator. Turn to a Taurus or Libra person.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Welcome to the week of the winter solstice, which occurs this year on Thursday, Dec. 21. The solstice is marked by the sun's entry into Capricorn and has been a celebrated time of the year since early man took notice, no doubt, with grunts and a wave of his cave stick. OK, maybe that's an exaggeration. But we do know that many early societies celebrated the sun's majestic entrance into Capricorn because they built things to tell us. Worldwide, there are temples, observatories and mystical structures like Stonehenge that are built in perfect alignment with the solar position of the winter solstice. Annie's Mailbox ®: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: Last year, I had a miscarriage. It was a very difficult time for me. Recently, I found out that my sister-in-law, a registered nurse, had accessed my patient records from the hospital. She informed everyone in her family, including my husband, that I was lying about the miscarriage because the ultrasound read "hemorrhaging."

Annie, I was shocked

KATHY MITCHELL

and hurt. My doctor had done a positive pregnancy test, and hemorrhaging is not unusual with a miscarriage. How could my sister-in-law be so mean? Worse, my father-in-law and mother-in-law were actually happy about the miscarriage and told my husband we needed another child like a hole in the head. (We have two children.) I have lupus and other health issues that will necessitate future tests. To avoid additional privacy violations, I informed the hospital that I wanted my chart locked. When they asked the reason, I told them. The hospital chose to demote my sister-in-law and, after an investigation, she was fired.

My husband's entire family will no longer have anything to do with us and told my husband he is out of the will. His grandmother said she is taking back our children's Christmas presents. Grandma claims my husband asked her to return them. He never did.

Obviously, my husband is hurt, too, but he's disgusted with the way his family has acted. I come from a very loving family and have no idea how to respond. My parents say it's a blessing they have written us off and I should get a lawyer. What do you say? — Hurt and Confused

Dear Hurt: We're not sure why you need a lawyer, so let's not make this more acrimonious than it already is. Normally, we would tell you to make every effort to get along with the in-laws, but yours sound like a nest of vipers, and we agree that you are better off without them. Fill your life with those people who treat you decently.

Dear Annie: My wife and I have been married over 25 years. When we go out three or four times a month, I like her to dress more provocatively. I'm not talking about leather and chains, just a lower-cut top, or maybe open a few buttons on her blouse. I like to see her. She points out that I like others to see her, too. She says I'm harassing her. We've agreed to defer to your wisdom. — Proud of Her in Cincy

Dear Cincy: This level of prurient activity should be agreeable to both parties. It turns you on when others admire your wife's body, but it makes your wife feel like a trophy on display. She's not a new car. We don't think your wife should have to do this, but knowing how much it pleases you, she may agree to it once in a while. The choice should be hers.

Dear Annie: This is for "Grieving in Wisconsin," whose sister, "Sophia," recently died after a long illness. Now Sophia's partner, "John," is dating again and wants to bring his lady friend to the sister's home. The sister thinks this means John never truly loved Sophia.

For over 30 years, I watched my wife slowly die from an untreatable, degenerative disease. She was my friend, therapist, confidante, sounding board, lover and much more. By the time she died, both of us had long since gone through the grief process. It may have started when she was no longer able to drive, or when she couldn't pick up a glass, or when she was unable to lift her arms to give me a hug. In the final months, she often said, "I want this over with." Death was a relief.

John wants to keep the memories of Sophia alive by staying close to her family. His home is probably run down because John spent all his time, energy and money caring for Sophia. I hope I've made my point. — B.T.

Dear B.T.: You have indeed. Thank you for making it clear that grief has many faces.

Dear Annie: Our beautiful and gifted 19-year-old daughter, "Serena," went away to college last year, and when she came home on spring break, she was totally changed. Serena now says she is a lesbian. She never showed any signs of being gay and even had a boyfriend before she left.

We have since found out that several of her classmates and friends from high school are also lesbians. Since the percentage of homosexuals is relatively low, how can this be? Is it a college fad? Peer pressure or gay influence on a naive young woman?

We don't understand how Serena could change so drastically. She dresses like a guy. She won't discuss it with us. We are really worried about her and don't understand. Please give us some insight. — Heartsick Parents

Dear Heartsick: It's possible Serena has always been gay and simply hid it from you. (That also would explain why many of her friends are gay.) Or she could be experimenting with her sexuality, which is not uncommon at her age, in which case, her lesbian identity is temporary. Serena may not wish to discuss it because she feels you are too judgmental, or she may be unsure of her convictions and doesn't want to be questioned. Either way, don't freak out over this. She is what she is, and it will sort itself out eventually. Know someone with a terrific record collection? Ion Audio has created the world's first USB turntable.

Record player converts vinyl records to MP3

By CRAIG CROSSMAN
McClatchy-Tribune News

Know someone with a terrific record collection? Maybe it's you. But regardless of who it is, I'm sure they're feeling the passage of decades as their record collection becomes more and more obsolete. Granted the passing isn't totally linear in that there continues to be small resurgences in the industry when it comes to finding players that will spin these aging vinyl disks. You can even find amplifiers that use a tube or two to capture the missing "warmth" that's supposedly lost in our digital players.

Now when it comes to computers, there are those who still run DOS. Like those who keep those old records, there will probably always be people that think we took a wrong turn when we turned onto the GUI path. And you know, there's nothing wrong with holding onto the older ways. There will always be a market for antiques. But if one of your new year's resolutions is to move that old record collection into the digital 21st century, there's something you should be checking out.

Ion Audio has created the world's first USB turntable and it's a looker. Sporting a sleek, silver base, the iTTUSB turntable is traditionally rectangular in its shape on the right side but is modernly curved on its left. The turntable sports the traditional stylus arm that you swing out over and lower onto the spinning record. You'll find many of the other traditional features here as well including a 45 adapter for those smaller single-song records, an adjustable anti-skating control for increased stereo balancing and line level RCA output jacks if you want to connect the turntable to a more traditional setup such as your home stereo system. Place the needle onto the record and you're playing just like you did years ago but with a twist. The belt drive turntable has the ability to connect directly with your Macintosh or Windows PC via a USB cable.

Included with the iTTUSB are both Windows and Mac versions of Audacity software which is a popular recording application although you can use the iTTUSB with anything that you might already have that records form an external source. Ion also includes a trial version of SoundSoap 2 from Bias. This utility lets you literally remove the clicks and pops you get from scratches and other types of wear that notoriously plagued the vinyl formats.

When you're ready to make the conversion, simply place the record onto the iTTUSB and begin playing. The music from the record is instantly captured and stored onto your computer in a choice of audio formats including MP3. Once transferred, you treat the audio files like any other. Move them onto your MP3 player, copy them into your copy of iTunes, or whatever else you use to play, store and organize your music files.

The iTTUSB plays 33 1/3 and 45 RPM records but the included software allows you to convert 78 RPM records too. Just play them at the slower speeds and once digitized, the software speeds up the digital recording to the faster speed. Nice. The list price is $145.

So there you have it. No more worries about your old record collection. Just make the conversion and put the records safely away for the next generation. And don't worry about your DOS computer this coming year. Maybe the next one will be when you throw caution to the wind and get a copy of Windows or buy a Macintosh.

'The Nativity Story' a holiday revelation

In the Gospels of Matthew and Luke, few details are given about the Virgin Mary's life or how she felt when told she would be the mother of God.

No biblical quotes are written to describe the emotions that burned through Joseph when he discovered his wife was pregnant and he had not touched her.

And, not one passage exists where Mary and Joseph speak about their marriage and how they will raise their son, who will become the Messiah.

In the film "The Nativity Story," which opens worldwide Friday, an evangelical screenwriter and Presbyterian director make a bold attempt to flesh out the intimate emotions missing from the Bible. Though the film uses the Gospel narratives as an outline and relies on research for historic authenticity, the story includes imagined dialogue and dramatic scenes to bring life to the characters.

The urge to humanize biblical figures — also reflected in popular books such as Anita Diamant's "The Red Tent" and Anne Rice's "Christ the Lord" — is understandable, according to Chicago's archbishop Cardinal Francis George and biblical scholars. It is based on a spiritual desire to get closer to God by identifying with ordinary people who experienced him.

"There is a great yearning for the holy and what doesn't change, and we need a way to access that," said Sister Rose Pacatte, a Catholic nun and director of the Pauline Center for Media Studies in southern California. "This movie succeeds because it follows the Scriptures, but at the same time expands the characters, so they are living breathing people with emotions and dilemmas."

Already, the personalized approach has met with success, pleasing Vatican officials who screened the film Sunday and other Christians who viewed the movie in church this week.

Catherine Hardwicke, who directed the film, recalled that as a child she built nacimientos, or reproductions of the Nativity scene, in her Texas living room. Working with screenwriter Mike Rich, Hardwicke said the goal for the film was to bring those porcelain figures to life as real people with problems, fears and doubts.

As an example, Hardwicke cites the moment when Joseph discovers Mary is pregnant and decides he must divorce her privately. The King James Version of the Gospel of Matthew reads: "Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily." In "The Nativity Story," that verse becomes a long, painful scene where a weeping Joseph tells Mary his decision, amid a heart-breaking mix of emotion ranging from anger and confusion to shame and betrayal.

"What we tried to do was go deeper into that sentence and think what were all the things that led up to that decision," said Hardwicke. "Of course, it didn't come out of nowhere. There's a whole historical, anthropological, social and political context for that. The rules of society at the time were not delineated in Matthew, but you can research that ... which is what we tried our best to do, to really fill in all those simple beautiful sentences."

George said exploring the emotional state of Joseph and Mary is a "part of the cultural landscape" in the United States.

"You can only speculate about what her feelings must have been" when Mary learned of her destiny, the cardinal said. "She must have been dismayed at first. But it's the kind of speculation we like to extrapolate into people's psyche centuries back."

The Gospels are objective rather than subjective, he said, and for good reason.

"There's a toughness about the Gospels. That's because they're talking about events that have to change the world and history," George said. "We read into it our own questions. That's legitimate enough. (But) we can't assume the answers there are authentic. They are simply a result of the imagination."

Still, George added, the joy Mary expresses to her cousin Elizabeth — "My soul is magnified" — provides a clue to her spiritual state, and perhaps her emotional state as well.

According to Pacatte, the role of Mary in film has evolved dramatically from pious Christmas card figure to courageous woman. In the 1960s movies "King of Kings" and "The Greatest Story Ever Told," Mary was reverent and restrained, an image out of a Renaissance painting.

Franco Zeffirelli's 1977 miniseries "Jesus of Nazareth" took more time to show Gospel scenes but continued to depict Mary as a devout figure with few if any faults. In 1988, Martin Scorsese drew a more earthy Mary in "The Last Temptation of Christ," and Mel Gibson humanized her in 2004's "The Passion of the Christ" with tender flashbacks of a young mother playing with Jesus.

"The Nativity Story" emerges with a Mary who is the most human so far. Actress Keisha Castle-Hughes shows a teenage Jewish girl who becomes upset when told of her arranged marriage with Joseph, but later softens after she realizes they were called to be together by God.

"If you track that evolution, you can see how this movie was able to take risks and succeed," said Pacatte.

In some ways, the movie's portrayal of Joseph is even more striking since the Bible barely says anything about him except that he is a just and righteous man. Touching scenes were invented between Joseph and Mary to show that trait.

Scot McKnight, professor of religious studies at North Park University in Chicago, said he believes the movie could have gone further in developing Mary. In his new book "The Real Mary: Why Evangelical Christians Can Embrace the Mother of Jesus," McKnight analyzes Mary and finds her to be a gutsy, dangerous woman.

"I would like to have seen a more robust Mary, a more active Mary," he said. "If we listen to her famous song the Magnificat, you find she is a woman protesting injustice and going toe to toe with Herod. She's demanding justice that will be delivered by her son.

"The movie is helping our understanding of her, but it's still a bit traditional to me."

In response to Catholic devotion to Mary, some Protestants have downplayed her role, worried the attention would overshadow Jesus. McKnight hopes Protestants will use his book and the movie as a way to accept her.

Members of Willow Creek Community Church in South Barrington, Ill., who viewed the movie this week said they enjoyed how the story filled in emotional gaps missing in the Bible.

"Overall, I loved it," said Marie Allen of Elgin, Ill. "The Bible never really talks about the emotion between Mary and Joseph, but in the movie you see that. We can't be sure that's how it happened.

God.

"They had to have faith and they had to trust. And it's hard to trust. It was then and it still is today," she said.
