HUD grant

AUSTIN — Midland County will receive a $250,000 community development grant, a state agency announced Tuesday. The Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs announced 189 community improvement grants totaling $38 million. The grants go to cities with populations of less than 50,000 and counties with 200,000 or fewer residents and can be used for public works, housing, economic development and planning. The money comes from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and is designed to assist persons of low and moderate income. It is awarded based on competition by proposed projects each year. The funds are distributed through the Texas Community Development Program.

Hospital sale

Sale of the 60-bed Physicians & Surgeons Hospital to the Houston-based Champion Healthcare Corp. by a group of Midland physicians, surgeons and other investors has been finalized. Champion, which manages more than 200 hospitals across the nation, will assume control Saturday. "We intend to work with physicians and other community leaders to further position Physicians & Surgeons Hospital as an integral part of the Midland community," said Ronald R. Patterson, Champion's executive vice president and chief operatihg officer. Champion did not announce the hospital's purchase price. But in 1985, before renovations, P&S, formerly Parkview Hospital, was sold for $2.75 million. Champion earlier announced plans to replace P&S with a new medical center.

Krueger campaign

WASHINGTON — After his surprisingly poor showing in the Texas primary, Sen. Bob Krueger must decide whether President Clinton campaigns for him in next month's runoff election, the Democratic Party's national chairman said Tuesday. Asked at a breakfast meeting if Clinton should go to Texas, Democratic National Committee chairman David Wilhelm replied, "I think that's up to Sen. Krueger."/1B

U.S. delays intervention

Clinton expects Serbs to accept peace plan

■ While administration expects approval, it doesn't think fighting will stop.

By R.W. Apple Jr.
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Even if the self-designated Bosnian Serb parliament rejects an international peace plan when it meets on today, there will be no immediate American military intervention in the Balkans, senior U.S. officials said on Tuesday.

The officials said the Clinton administration expected the parliament to approve the peace plan, negotiated by Cyrus R. Vance and Lord Owen, which it rejected only 10 days ago. One of them said the White House thought the odds were 2 to 1 in favor of approval, but the administration is far less sure that the fighting between Serbs and Muslims will actually stop as a result.

Washington's apprehensions were heightened on Tuesday afternoon by reports of increased Serbian pressure against Muslim enclaves in eastern Bosnia. Water supplies to hard-pressed Srebrenica were not resumed, as promised by the Bosnian Serb leader, Radovan Karadzic, and more than 40,000 towns-people and refugees in Zepa were said to be under tank and artillery attack.

Bosnian Muslim leaders reported that Bosnian Serbs set the Muslim town of Zepa ablaze Tuesday, killing or wounding as many as 100 people. But Bosnian Serbs said that Muslims attacked the town to provoke international military intervention.

Zepa "is burning. It has been attacked by artillery — all size calibers," said Zeljko Grubesik, a staff

House OKs proposal to elect judges

■ Legislators vote 82-52 for system that would divide the nine counties into smaller districts consisting of higher concentrations of minorities.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The Texas House Tuesday voted in favor of a judicial election system meant to increase the number of minority judges in nine counties.

"The core issue here is whether or not people of color will be allowed to sit on both sides of the judge's bench. This is just a matter of simple justice," said Rep. Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston.

The House voted 82-52 to support a proposed court settlement to change the method of electing state district court judges in Bexar, Dallas, Ector, Harris, Jefferson, Lubbock, Midland, Tarrant and Travis counties.

The proposal is the result of a recent federal court panel ruling that says the current countywide system of electing judges discriminates against blacks and Hispanics voters. According to the ruling, white bloc voting essentially prevents minority-backed candidates from winning in those counties.

For example, Harris County has a 42 percent minority population. But of 59 state district judges, less than 10 percent are minorities.

Arts Assembly plans benefit to recoup COA losses

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff writer

Hang onto your tickets. That's what the Arts Assembly is advising those who purchased advance tickets to Palomino Road's Celebration of the Arts performance, canceled because of Saturday's storm.

"In light of the recent storm which struck the Celebration of the Arts, we will be hosting the Summer Art Aid Concert featuring Palomino Road," said Lucy Woodside, executive director of the Arts Assembly of Midland, sponsor of the annual COA.

The date for this summer's concert will be announced within a week, Mrs. Woodside said.

"Advance purchase tickets of their previously scheduled program will be honored for admission to the Art Aid Concert," Mrs. Woodside said. "The need to recover losses from the Celebration of the Arts disaster will cause admission to increase."

Those wanting a refund for their tickets are advised to go to Luskey's where they purchased the tickets, Mrs. Woodside said.

Since the cleanup from Saturday's storm, which whipped through the downtown COA causing injuries, property loss and the event to be canceled, Mrs. Woodside has received several offers of financial aid.

Teachers sue to seek continued state funding

AUSTIN (AP) — A teachers' group announced a federal lawsuit Tuesday seeking to continue state funding for school districts even if lawmakers don't meet a June 1 Texas Supreme Court deadline for reform.

"We need to prepare for the worst, and if funding is cut off, the people hurt the most will be our public school students and public school district employees, and that we will not accept," said Doug Rogers of the Association of Texas Professional Educators.

The group filed the lawsuit in federal court in Sherman against State Comptroller John Sharp, Education Commissioner Lionel Meno and nine East Texas school districts that are among 168 projected to run out of money this summer if state aid is cut off.

School districts are named because they are the ones that contract with teachers, said Alan Bookman of the association.

Bookman said the teachers' group likely wouldn't request a hearing until after June 1. If lawmakers don't come up with a plan to equalize school funding by then, Texas faces a court order

Under deficit-reduction plan, senior citizens' tax bill would rise

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Millions of the nation's wealthiest senior citizens would pay an average of $1,000 more a year under President Clinton's plan to cut the deficit by raising taxes on Social Security benefits, federal officials told Congress Tuesday.

In all, about 9 million middle- and upper-income seniors would see their tax bills rise, but for many the increase would be relatively small.

The administration's proposal targets seniors with annual incomes of at least $25,000 for individuals and $32,000 for married couples. Under the plan, the maximum portion of their Social Security benefits subject to income taxes would be increased from 50 percent to 85 percent.

On average, the tax on benefits would increase from $720 a year to about $1,270, acting Social Security Commissioner Louis Enoff told the Senate Finance Committee. That would raise $1.7 billion in 1994 and $23.3 billion over five years, Enoff said.

Although the plan would affect about one-fourth of all Social Security recipients, most of the money would come from the best-off, another official said.

The Treasury Department's Randolf H. Hardock testified that almost 70 percent of the revenue raised under Clinton's plan would come from 4.4 million households with family incomes of over $75,000.

Those upper-income seniors would pay an average of $90 a month in higher income taxes, Hardock said.

In comparison, about 790,000 house-

U.S. military turns over command to U.N.

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Marine Lt. Gen. Robert Johnston proclaimed the U.S.-led relief effort in Somalia a success Tuesday as he handed over control to the United Nations, telling his successor "It's all yours."

That simple comment signaled the end of Operation Restore Hope and the start of Operation Continue Hope, a reconstruction period aimed at helping war-ravaged Somalia struggle back to its feet.

The U.N. military commander, Lt. Gen. Cevik Bir of Turkey, called the new aid project "historic and unprecedented" in its scope.

Thanks in part to Operation Restore Hope, Somalia is recovering steadily from a civil war that devastated the countryside and led to lawlessness and famine.

Bandits once roamed haughtily in weapons-mounted vehicles, and an estimated 350,000 people died last year from conflict, starvation and disease.

A U.S.-led military coalition came ashore Dec. 9 to safeguard the food shipments that were being looted from aid agencies.

Today, starvation has virtually ended. Aid agencies like the Red Cross are phasing out food programs and focusing more on vaccinations and other health care. Daily death rates in cities like Bardera and Baidoa have dropped from hundreds a day to less than a dozen each.

Markets are thriving, and other than the wooden canes used widely for everything from parental discipline to traffic control, the only visible weapons on the streets belong to the military.

But the threat of violence persists, and Somalis worry that their country could easily slip back into the quicksand of clan violence.

"Let there be no doubt, we are ready . . . to enforce the peace as necessary," declared Bir, who will command a force that is projected to peak at 28,000 troops, including 4,000 Americans.

Earlier, Johnston and Bir began their low-key handover ceremony — typical of the effort for a 'seamless transition" — by inspecting an honor guard from coalition countries.

Johnston described encountering the starvation, devastation and disease when the troops first arrived and began seeing the magnitude of the problem as they deployed across the countryside.

"It was one thing to see it on TV and see it in the newspaper, but quite another thing to witness the effects of famine first-hand, to feel it, smell it, to look into the eyes of children who were completely emotionless, instinctively struggling to survive," he said.

"Now the famine is behind them. They have learned to smile. It's a good feeling to have been part of that, to make it so different."

"It's like night and day," Johnston said. "We've given the city back to the Somalis. You can see it as marketplaces begin to grow."

Retired U.S. colonel risks citizenship to command Estonian military

TALLINN, Estonia (AP) — The Estonian parliament on Tuesday named a retired American colonel as commander-in-chief of the Baltic nation's fledgling armed forces, despite U.S. government objections.

Col. Aleksander Einseln, a 61-year-old American citizen of Estonian descent, immediately assumed command of the country's 2,000-man army, navy and air force. He is subordinate only to the country's president.

"I'm badly needed here," Einseln told The Associated Press in Tallinn. He said he planned to strengthen Estonia's military against a potential threat from neighboring Russia.

Einseln, whose most recent home was in Mountain View, Calif., said Secretary of State Warren Christopher had denied his request to assume the post.

He said he did not know whether he would lose his American citizenship or his $50,000 a year U.S. Army pension. He declined to say whether he had taken an oath of loyalty to Estonia.

Sandra Kaiser, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Embassy in Tallinn said "legal questions did arise" about his decision to accept the post. But she declined to say whether his citizenship would be revoked.

"It would be extraordinary for an American citizen to become the chief of another government's defense forces," Kaiser said.

Einseln, who fled with his family as the Red Army took control of Estonia in 1944, lived in Germany for five years before emigrating to the United States in 1949.

After enlisting in the U.S. Army in 1950, he served in the Korean and Vietnam wars and later rose to the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, holding posts as a specialist on Japan and Eastern Europe.

He served in the U.S. Pacific Command before retiring in 1985.

Einseln said President Lennart Meri, then foreign minister, wooed him for the military post last year because he was the top-ranking Estonian-speaking officer in the U.S. armed forces.

He won unanimous approval Tuesday from Estonian lawmakers.

All three Baltic nations — Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia — have drawn heavily on the military experience of returning emigres, many of whom had fled the Soviet regime.

"There is some resentment among ex-Soviet officers" who never left Estonia, said Vello Vare, an Estonian and retired Soviet general who is now an adviser in the foreign ministry.

Today's high to hit lower 90s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the lower 90s and south to southwest winds at 15-25 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a low in the lower 60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a high in the upper 80s.

After an overnight low of 52, Tuesday's high reached 94, compared to the record high for that date of 103 set in 1947. The record low was 39 set in 1933.

STATE

Skies were clear and the air warm across much of Texas Tuesday as a large mass of tropical air moved into the state.

An area of dry air, however, was spilling into West Texas and a dry line at 4 p.m. stretched from east of Amarillo to Midland to Marfa and was moving east.

It was sunny and humid in North Texas Tuesday, with highs mostly in the 80s. Temperatures ranged from 77 at Stephenville to 85 at Waco. Winds were from the south at 15-25 mph.

High, thin clouds were increasing slowly over West Texas by Tuesday night, but most areas were clear to partly cloudy. High temperatures ranged from 77 at Perryton to 98 at Lajitas and Presidio.

There was some intermittent drizzle in South Texas, but that had ended by late Tuesday. Skies were clear in extreme southeast Texas by midafternoon and cloudy elsewhere. Temperatures ranged from 77 at Hondo to 88 at Del Rio.

The South Texas forecast called mostly cloudy skies through today with highs in the 80s and lows in the 60s and 70s. There was a slight chance for rain in northern portions.

West Texas expected a chance of thunderstorms across the Panhandle and south plains. Otherwise, mostly cloudy skies were expected into tonight with highs in the 80s and 90s and lows in the 50s and 60s.

A slight chance of thunderstorms was forecast for North Texas through Thursday with highs in the 80s and lows in the 60s and 70s.

NATION

There were summer storms in the Southeast Tuesday, and winter weather in the northern Rockies.

Snow fell in Nevada and Wyoming.

In Utah, up to 10 inches of snow fell by Tuesday morning at ski resorts in the Wasatch Mountains. Rain and winds gusting to 74 mph flooded streets in Salt Lake City before the system moved eastward.

"What a way to start off the merry month of May," said William Alder, a National Weather Service meteorologist.

At midday, rains and occassional thunderstorms extended over the central and southern Atlantic coastal states, the central and southern Appalachians, the Ohio Valley, the Great Lakes and the middle Mississippi Valley.

Showers and thunderstorms were also scattered over the Pacific Northwest and the northern half of the Rockies. Rain changed to snow in the higher elevations.

The storm system over Wyoming and a high pressure system over the Pacific combined to bring severe weather to the mountains of Southern California early Tuesday.

A windstorm pounded the Bishop-Mammoth Lakes area. One man was killed when he was struck by a windblown tree limb, authorities said.

Winds estimated at over 100 mph tore a private plane from its moorings at the Mammoth-June Airport. The windows on 64 cars in the airport parking lot were broken by flying debris, airport Manager Bill Manning said.

Rainfall during the 6 hours ending at 2 p.m. EDT included 1.7 inch at Anderson, S.C., 1½ inches at Asheville, N.C., and three-quarters of inch at Atlanta. During the same period, two inches of snow fell at Austin, Nev., and at Rock Springs, Wyo.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

U.S.: Muslim town is set ablaze

member of the Bosnian army operations center.

Town official Fadil Heljic said over ham radio to Zagreb, Croatia, that Serb infantry were advancing from the west and southwest and the area was shelled by heavy artillery.

"We ask that somebody help us and prevent bloodshed," Heljic said.

But the Bosnian Serbs, who have seized about 70 percent of Bosnia in a year of warfare, accused the Muslims of attacking Zepa to discredit Serbs on the eve of the two-day parliament session. It was not known when the Serbs planned to vote on the plan.

If the peace plan is rejected, or if it is approved but Serbian artillery barrages continue and the Serbian troops do not withdraw from Sarajevo and other besieged cities, President Clinton will be faced with demands that he intervene quickly.

Not to do so, a number of senators and representatives are arguing, would make his threats last week to use force sound hollow, and the Bosnian Serbs would gain time for maneuver on the ground and at the bargaining table. The pressure for quick compliance would ease, the lawmakers say.

But several of the top officials dealing with the Bosnian situation said it would be difficult if not impossible to do anything quickly. A State Department expert said it might be a week or so before the United States could mount air strikes.

An option would be a partial lifting of the embargo on arms sales to the Bosnian Muslims, but that would require U.N. approval. Secretary of State Warren Christopher has spent two days trying to persuade the British, French, and others to support this, but he has been rebuffed repeatedly, and it is not clear that the United States could push the plan through the United Nations, even if it wished to open a broad public rift with its closest allies.

Rep. Frank McCloskey of Indiana, a Democrat who serves on the Armed Services and the Foreign Affairs Committees, said on Monday that "the planes should be in the air (tonight)" to take out bridges and gun emplacements in case of a negative vote. Senators of both parties who are considerably less hawkish argued on Tuesday that Clinton would risk losing his credibility, given his saber rattling of last week, unless he acted.

The president decided in principle on Saturday to commit U.S. air power to the Balkans, and the Pentagon has worked out tentative plans for strikes using planes based in Italy and on the carrier Theodore Roosevelt, which is cruising in the Adriatic Sea. But the White House has repeatedly emphasized that Clinton has made no final decision yet.

He has told aides that he would want not only to consult further with congressional leaders before authorizing any bombing but would seek a sense-of-the-Congress resolution before doing so. That would be part of an effort to build public support for American intervention; recent polls show that only about a third of the public currently favors using military force.

With the same goal in mind, the president would also want to make a television speech to the American people, spelling out the ends he was pursuing in the Balkans, aides said. Like other members of the Vietnam generation, many of his key advisers think that a failure to set tangible goals was a major reason for the American military failure in the Vietnam War.

Two other impediments could delay any bombing runs. Christopher will have to complete his current trip and wrap up the agreement of the British and the French to contribute fighter-bombers of their own to the air campaign, the officials said, and the U.N. question will have to be resolved.

The United States argues that existing Security Council resolutions give it authority to intervene in Bosnia-Herzegovina, but some European countries, reportedly including Russia, believe that a more explicit resolution would be required.

Planning at the Pentagon and at the State Department is now proceeding on two tracks — one assuming that American conditions for behavior by the Bosnian Serbs will not be met, the other assuming that it eventually will. The most complicated question is how long the Bosnian Serbs should be given to meet the conditions of the peace plan that Karadzic signed near Athens on Sunday.

The terms of the pact give the Bosnian Serbs 45 days to comply. But assuming approval by the Bosnian Serbs on Wednesday, American officials say Clinton would want evidence of genuine battlefield change well before that.

In any event, withdrawals of troops units and heavy weapons in the mountainous terrain of the former Yugoslavia would require considerable time, so it would have to get under way reasonably soon to meet the plan's deadline.

Doctors: Cold remedies offer limited relief for children

CHICAGO (AP) — No good evidence exists that young children get relief from over-the-counter cold remedies, say doctors who reviewed 40 years of studies.

The Food and Drug Administration warned last year that well-meaning parents often overdose children with such remedies.

While most people keep several over-the-counter cold remedies at home, "The data on their effectiveness are limited and weak, especially in children," the doctors said in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

The authors — Dr. William Feldman, head of pediatrics at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, and Dr. Michael B.H. Smith, director of ambulatory care at Izaak Walton Killam Children's Hospital in Halifax, Canada — examined every study they could find on the topic in medical literature from January 1950 to January 1991 for all ages.

After eliminating studies that failed to meet rigorous standards, such as comparing the cold remedies to placebos, the doctors analyzed 27 studies, two of which dealt with preschool children's reaction to two different types of children's medicine.

The studies on young children "demonstrated no symptom relief, whereas two done on older children (through age 11) showed some benefit," the authors reported.

Adults fared best, with varying relief from runny noses and congestion.

Although there were only two studies, Smith said, "these are very well-designed studies. ... From a statistical point of view, they were very accurate."

The authors called for more research focusing on benefits and side effects in different age groups.

They refused to disclose the names of the two children's medications studied, but one contained antihistamines and the other contained a combination of antihistamine and decongestants.

"There are many brand names that use the same active pharmaceuticals," Smith said Tuesday.

Karen Richards Brown, a spokeswoman for A.H. Robins Co. Inc., which makes Dimetapp containing the antihistamine and decongestants studied, said Tuesday that the company had not seen the review and had no immediate comment.

SUE: Teachers seek continued funding for schools

(From 1A)

1,048 school districts. Schools rely mainly on state aid and local property taxes.

The association also will monitor a Thursday hearing by State District Judge F. Scott McCown, who oversees the state school funding case, Bookman said. McCown is scheduled to consider a motion that school districts be allowed to continue paying teachers if state funding is stopped.

The federal lawsuit asks that the comptroller be required to release sufficient funds for school districts to pay their employees, prevent anyone from being let go because of a state aid reduction, and to allow them to operate in the upcoming school year.

Although only nine school districts are named in the lawsuit, an order would be effective statewide, Bookman said.

The school districts are Longview, Alto, Cross Roads, Rains, Winona, North Lamar, Grand Saline, Winsboro and Savoy.

As part of the effort to meet the June 1 deadline, the Senate and House committees that oversee public education have scheduled a joint hearing Thursday.

The committee heads — Democratic Rep. Libby Linebarger of Manchaca and Republican Sen. Bill Ratliff of Mount Pleasant — have invited opponents of a share-the-wealth school ballot proposal to offer their funding solutions.

The ballot proposal, which was overwhelmingly defeated Saturday, would have allowed some property tax money to be shifted from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Among those asked to appear are several leading Republicans, including former Gov. Bill Clements, state GOP Chairman Fred Meyer and former gubernatorial candidate Tom Luce.

Meyer said Republicans would provide alternatives, but he blasted Gov. Ann Richards and other Democratic leaders for calling for them.

"Since Gov. Richards has suggested that I and other opponents of her school tax increase should do her job for her, perhaps she should submit her resignation at the same time we submit our quality education proposals," he said. Meyer didn't include Ratliff in his criticism.

Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald said he was "stunned" by the attack. "We don't have time to play those games," he said.

Those who supported the share-the-wealth proposal have said school consolidation may be one of the few options left.

Consolidation bills are pending in the House Public Education Committee, and Ratliff said, "I think the members of the Senate are ready to bite that bullet if that's what we have to do."

Also Tuesday, a business group called the Alliance for Quality Education touted a proposal to reform business taxes and public education funding in one swoop.

The proposal by the alliance — which includes a number of oil, gas and chemical companies — would eliminate the local school property tax on businesses and the state franchise-earned surplus tax.

The levies would be replaced with a tax based on a business's gross revenues, minus its cost of buying goods and services. The tax would apply to all businesses based on their activity in the state.

ARTS: Palomino Road to perform at benefit concert

ray's have all called and offered to put a bucket or a can out in their store for donations for the Arts Assembly to help cover the losses," Mrs. Woodside said.

She said Murray's is selling the ice cream it had left over from COA and put the revenue in the Arts Assembly's coffer.

"The Gem and Mineral Society called to see if they could help replace something that was lost out of the list of things that had been damaged or lost as a result of the wind," Mrs. Woodside said. "People are being very gracious and interested in helping."

Damages the Arts Assembly suffered include the lights on the concession stand, lost and torn tarps and broken peg-board walls for the artists who were outside in Centennial Plaza.

"Those are all the physical things which have to be replaced," Mrs. Woodside said. "Financially, we are going to survive.

"The real loss for the Arts Assembly is the income from the street dance and the Sunday admission. We will put on a Celebration of the Arts, but a shortage of funds may affect how elaborate the celebration can be. The loss of income also affects our ability to fund our sub-granting program to other arts organizations in town."

The Arts Assembly, which has been staging the COA for 10 years, will survive because, Mrs. Woodside said, "Fortunately, we have kept a fund balance to cover our administrative operating expenses for the coming year."

And, the Arts Assembly has the money to pay the bills for the 10th annual COA, Mrs. Woodside said.

"The wind blew it away, but the bills are still there," Mrs. Woodside said. "We still had to pay for the bands even though they didn't perform. You have to pay for the tent rental and the stage setup even though it ended early."

She praised Abilene Tent and Awning for the way it set up its tents.

"My compliments to the tent company and its setup," she said. "All of the tents were still standing except for the one on the edge of the artists' area that our Arts Assembly booth was in."

The Arts Assembly's strong underwriting sponsorship this year helped save the organization from disaster.

"If the community had not been so generous with their sponsorship," Mrs. Woodside said, "we would have had a financial disaster."

PLAN: Taxes on Social Security benefits would increase for some holds with family incomes below $40,000 would have to pay higher taxes averaging $23 a month on their benefits.

"Most retirees would be unaffected by the administration's proposal," Hardock said. "The administration's proposal would have minimal effects on lower-income taxpayers."

The American Association of Retired Persons said higher taxes would be "particularly onerous" for middle-class taxpayers with incomes of $30,000 to $50,000. Such people could wind up paying $1,000 a year more in taxes, said AARP, the nation's largest senior citizens lobby.

"After state taxes, local property taxes, higher out-of-pocket costs for health care and the normal costs of maintaining a household are accounted for, another several hundred to a thousand dollars in new tax liability represents a significant loss," said Judith Brown, chair of AARP's board of directors.

Brown said that for these seniors the amount of lost income is significant, difficult if not impossible to replace.

"Older Americans' income erodes significantly over time, and this tax increase accelerates that trend," she said.

Ron Pollack, executive director of Families USA, another seniors' advocacy group, testified that the tax plan "would throw no one below the poverty line or below 150 percent of the poverty line."

He said the average income of those affected would be over $61,000 a year.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., the committee's chairman, meanwhile, questioned another aspect of Clinton's deficit reduction plan — a proposal to lift the cap on earnings subject to the Medicare payroll tax.

As a result of the Medicare plan, higher-paid workers would put much more into Medicare than other employees but would get the same health-insurance benefits as lower-paid workers when they retired.

"We are at risk of losing the connection between a contributory, social-insurance program ... and moving toward a needs-based, welfare-conditioned system," Moynihan said. "I think this is the issue out there."

The cap on annual earnings subject to the Medicare payroll tax is set at $135,000. Clinton estimates that lifting the cap would raise $29 billion over five years.

HONOR: Cities stress airport's importance

(From 1A)

so the employees could just come by on their breaks," said Suzy McElmurry, manager of Midland's Convention and Visitors Bureau. "We had hamburgers at lunch and this afternoon we had snacks and soft drinks set out."

The Appreciation Day was conducted during National Tourism Week, an idea that Chamber of Commerce representatives were quick to stress.

"We are very pleased to be a cosponsor in this event to tell the airport employees how important they are," said Chuck Cowell, chairman of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. "We have over a half-million visitors that come through this airport and it is the first impression they get of the city and area."

"This airport is an extremely important part of the area's economy," said Billy Bassett of Odessa's Convention and Visitors Bureau. "We would not be able to have the conventions and sporting events that we have here without the availability of air service."

Cowell said visitor expenditures in Midland in 1991 came to more than $109.6 million. The Midland travel industry accounts for 2,150 jobs in the city with a payroll of $43.5 million dollars.

Tourism in Texas generated $20.6 billion in Texas during 1991, putting Texas second to only California in state travel destination.

Cowell said the recent changes at the airport, including the addition of Continental Airlines and American Airlines removing jet service, should only have a temporary impact on the airport.

"Although we lost American Airlines jet services, we gained additional flights on commuter planes," he said. "People will eventually realize they don't have to jet to Dallas. And, the airport is still much better than other regional airports, such as San Angelo and Abilene."

OK: Morales thanks House for support

rales and minority plaintiffs signed a proposed settlement that would divide the nine counties into smaller districts consisting of higher concentrations of minority voters.

Morales had asked lawmakers to endorse the proposal before submitting it to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Following the vote, he praised the House for its support.

The full Senate has not been able to capture enough votes to consider the measure. However, the Senate Committee of the Whole last month approved the proposal 17-13.

House GOP members who objected to the proposal said Republicans would lose a large number of positions under the change.

Graduation party needs your help

Plans are in place for this year's version of Project Graduation, the Midland high schools' substance-free graduation party which is intended to establish a "new tradition of graduation celebration."

Organizers note that this year's party is even more important in the wake of a Midland County Grand Jury's findings of widespread use of alcohol and drugs by Midland teens. Parents looking for ways to encourage their graduates to celebrate sensibly should look to Project Graduation.

The graduation party offers a unique atmosphere for celebration. This year, it will be held June 5 at The Midlander beginning at midnight and continuing until 5 a.m. After the party begins the doors will be locked and no one will be admitted. Anyone leaving the premises will not be readmitted to the party.

More than 40 senior class leaders from both Lee and Midland High Schools have participated in the planning of this year's party along with more than 80 concerned parents and other adults who have served on committees.

To attract the graduates, various merchants and individuals make generous donations of merchandise and cash to be offered as prizes throughout the night at the party. And to ensure that graduates won't collect a prize and then leave the party, they must be present at the end of the party to collect prizes.

There are plenty of activities to keep graduates happy — swimming in the pool, playing tennis or racquetball, games, a casino, music, food and beverages.

In 1992, community-wide contributors donated $28,000 for door prizes and food for Project Graduation. This year, say organizers, all those making a donation of $50 or more will have their names listed in a separate program which will be handed out at all graduation ceremonies. Organizers are asking that donations be mailed to: Project Graduation, P.O. Box 80881, Midland, Tx. 79708-0881.

Corporate sponsors this year include The Midlander, Midland Reporter-Telegram, Midland Independent School District, Continental Airlines, the New Car Dealers Association and the Midland and Lee High Schools Parent-Teacher-Student Associations.

Organizers also point out that it only costs about $35 per student to stage Project Graduation. That isn't very much money when one considers the cost — monetary, social and culturally — of the tragedies recorded in earlier graduation celebrations.

Support Project Graduation. It's worth the cost.

Green is supreme color in Cabinet

WASHINGTON — By appointing a record number of minorities and women, President Clinton delivered his campaign promise to appoint a Cabinet that "looks more like America."

Anderson

But it may actually look more like a suburban cocktail party, according to our examination of the personal finances of Clinton's Cabinet secretaries.

After poring through the personal finances of all the secretaries in both Cabinets, our associate Ed Henry discovered that despite the diversity of Clinton's Cabinet one color still reigns supreme: green. Here are the highlights:

Clinton's men at the Treasury and State departments have the deepest pockets. Lloyd Bentsen is the richest of the Clinton Cabinet — with assets of $4.97 million to $11.025 million plus a blind trust worth over a $1 million. Secretary of State Warren Christopher has assets totaling $4.2 million to $9.2 million.

— Jesse Brown is the first black to head the Department of Veterans Affairs. The former director of the non-profit Disabled American Veterans is worth between $813,000 to $1.8 million. Brown accrued over $50,000 in vacation and sick leave at the not-for-profit group.

— Henry Cisneros, Clinton's pick at Housing and Urban Development, is in charge of reversing the decay of America's inner cities. His predecessor, Kemp, had assets totaling between $333,000 to $745,000. Cisneros has assets of $765,000 to $1.725 million. In 1990, Cisneros took out a loan of over $15,000 in order to buy an airplane.

— Donna Shalala, Clinton's secretary of Health and Human Services, is worth over $600,000 — including stock in Tootsie Roll.

— Commerce Secretary Ron Brown reported assets worth $1.7 million to $3.8 million. He has over $15,000 invested in a company that installs and maintains all of the public telephones in the Los Angeles airport. Bush's Commerce secretary, Robert Mosbacher, reported assets of $3 million to $6.7 million, at least $4 million more in trusts and over $1 million worth of art and antiques.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Clinton may be learning lesson in war

WASHINGTON — What happened when the United States made it plain that further murder and rape in Bosnia would result in the bombing of Serbian positions and the arming of Bosnia defenders?

Safire

Suddenly the light of reason seemed to illuminate the Serbian leadership. The realization that conquest might have a high cost — not only that uniformed killers would be killed, but that Serbian civilians would suffer — caused the dictator in Belgrade to send word to his stooge within Bosnia to sign on the dotted line.

Skepticism is in order; shells still rain on Sarajevo, and it may be that this latest show of sweet reason is a subterfuge. Milosevic in Serbia and Karadzic in occupied Bosnia may be playing nice-war-criminal, tough-war-criminal with Lord Vance-Owen, pretending to make peace until the world relaxes.

If that delaying trick is tried, the best way to prove Western determination would be to turn out the lights in Belgrade — to use air power to smash the utility infrastructure within Serbia in a way that would turn the people against the regime.

But let us assume that this time the instinct for duplicity is overcome by the driving force of fear. No excuses about local commanders not getting the word can be tolerated; the Serbian leadership should be required to execute the first artilleryman who orders a barrage after the cease-fire.

If the credible threat of U.S. military punishment at last stops the carnage, we should insist that the ancient device of a balance of power undergird the peace.

That means that the Muslim Bosnians must be armed to the level of the Serbs within Bosnia, or that the Serbs be disarmed down to the level of the Muslims. How? On a date certain, 100 tanks and 1,000 mobile mortars should be delivered to Bosnian forces unless the same number of Serbian tanks and mortars are turned over to peacekeepers. We have seen how imbalance invites war; give balance a chance.

On the assumption that our saber-rattling succeeds in silencing the guns while a patchwork nation is designed, what will we have learned?

First, in dealing with militias who enjoy bombarding civilians with impunity, we should recognize that fear of retribution works better than pleas for mercy. Serbian gunners may be savage, but they are not suicidal.

Next, in inducing a vulnerable conqueror to come to the negotiating table, nothing beats a direct, serious international effort to starve the war-making population. A blockade, which was meaningless in self-sufficient Iraq, hit home in oil-dependent Serbia, raising this question: Why were Mitterrand, Kohl and Major, prattling about sanctions for a year, unwilling to impose an effective blockade a year ago?

Finally, in affecting Balkan public opinion, the imminent threat of the use of international force does not "rally the people, unify the nation, make the militants dominant, stiffen the tribal desire to get even" — on the contrary, the likelihood of terrible retaliation scares hell out of most rational people, including all those uninterviewed Serbians who want to get on with their lives.

We are learning plenty about European leaders, who will risk the lives of soldiers on humanitarian missions but not in deterring messy aggression. Forget talk of Europeans "approving" air strikes while "vetoing" the U.S. plan to arm the Bosnians if the Serbs don't stop killing them; the European leaders have taken as their symbol a herd of sheep huddling under the wing of a superpower eagle.

And we are learning which of our own leaders to trust in the crunch. Senators Biden, Mitchell, Lugar and Dole have been stalwarts, in contrast to the quagmirization of the House behind Lee Hamilton and Speaker Foley.

In the Clinton administration, Al Gore, Les Aspin and Tony Lake are providing the backbone for intervention, with a stunning assist from Foggy Bottom below the Seventh Floor.

Barring a last-minute trick by the Serbian leaders to grab land before a cease-fire, President Clinton may be learning the lesson that at first eluded Presidents Roosevelt and Kennedy: the way to avert a war is to be demonstrably ready, willing and able to go to the brink of war.

Asked Sunday why that lifesaving resolve was not shown two months ago, Gore could only counter: "Or two years ago."

William Safire's column is distributed by New York Times News Service.

Women in combat roles to change face of movies

The decision to permit women to hold combat roles in the military will not only change the way America wages battle, but it will also affect the plot of every Hollywood war movie in years to come.

Buchwald

Here's what we will be seeing in our theaters soon:

The scene is an American air base in Blighty, England. Several figures shrouded in fog are on the Tarmac peering out toward Serbia.

We recognize John Wayne, who is in a Red Cross aide's uniform, handing out coffee and doughnuts to the pilots. We find out that his girlfriend, Capt. Ava Gardner, is out there leading a jet fighter squadron.

"How can you send a kid up in a crate like that?" Wayne yells at Gregory Peck, who is the commanding general of the base.

"She's not a kid," says Peck. "She's a woman."

"OK, then," says Wayne, "how can you send up a woman in a crate like that?"

"She's not just a woman. She's a crack Air Force pilot."

"But why would you send her up in weather like this?"

"Because," replies Peck, "flying is a dirty job, and one of the two sexes has to do it."

"This is the last mission she had to fly before she was entitled to go home. If anything happens to her, I'll never forgive you," Wayne warns him.

At this moment, First Lt. Kirk Douglas comes into the control tower. He has a Band-Aid over his eye.

Peck says, "Douglas, this was your flight. Why did you let Gardner have it?"

"I didn't let her," Douglas protests. "I was climbing into my plane when she grabbed my parachute and said, 'I'm taking this flight, Kirk. My sister was shot down over Bosnia and I want to pay the Serbs back.' "

Douglas continues, "I told her, 'No way. You have malaria, and you've been grounded.' The next thing I knew Gardner swung at me and knocked me out. Then she took my plane."

Wayne says, "That sounds like Ava. I'm worried. I gave her a negligee from Victoria's Secret to wear around her neck for good luck, and I found it left behind in her room. General, do you think the weather will clear up?"

"I don't know. I haven't seen anything like this since Air Force women pilots could only fly Piper Cubs."

Douglas says, "If anyone can bring her bird back, it's Gardner. I saw Ava in the Officer's Club last night and she drank three bomber pilots under the table."

Singing "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition," Ava lands the crippled plane.

We're fortunate to have Smith in leadership role

Once again Lamar Smith, congressman for the 21st Congressional District that includes Midland, has been selected by his fellow Republicans in the House of Representatives for a position of leadership. As a freshman congressman representing Midland, Lamar was recognized by his fellow Republicans by being selected the Republican freshman whip. He has been appointed the Texas whip every session of Congress since then. In that position, he met with Republican leadership in the House on a regular basis and helped formulate policy that guided Republicans in their votes in the House. Most recently, Bob Michael, Republican leader in the United States House of Representatives, selected Lamar to be part of a small and select group of Republican House members who will formulate conservative alternatives to the Clinton administration proposals for taxing and spending. This new elite group of Republican House policymakers is called the Theme Team and may be heard addressing the House during morning sessions on C-SPAN.

We are also very fortunate to have Lamar Smith as the only Texas Republican to be appointed to the powerful House Budget Committee. Membership on this committee places Lamar in a strategic position to voice budgetary concerns that affect all of us. Lamar has been dubbed by the ranking Republican budget committee member, Rep. John Kasich, as "the expert in Congress on government overhead spending." Lamar has worked hard to reduce government overhead and now, as a member of the Budget Committee, will have even greater influence in that area.

We should all be proud that our Midland representative is among the ranks of Republican leadership in the House and has such a strong voice on our behalf in Congress through his representation on the House Budget Committee.

Why do Clintons try to shred fabric of U.S.?

Why are the Clintons so filled with hatred for the United States? What is it in their backgrounds that has so embittered them, to engender their obvious efforts that are shredding the social, military, and financial fabric of the U.S.? And the political fabric? Was it their liberal "education" at Yale? Their early schooling in Arkansas?

Whatever it is, they need our prayers, as does the nation.

'Friends of Eos' need to reconsider support

The advertisement titled "Friends of Eos" was a disappointment to me. I believe that most of the sponsors of that ad, if given a full accounting of the facts of the case, would withdraw their public support for Midge and Woody Erskine.

The adversarial couple named in the ad is Dennis and Vanessa Baker. Both are longtime Midlanders with impeccable civic and business credentials. Dennis Baker is a longtime member of numerous wildlife organizations. A graduate of Midland High School and Texas Tech, Dennis returned home to Midland in 1975 to start his career as an independent entomologist.

EOS is asserting a claim of Baker property. Several independent surveys confirmed the property boundary. After attempting to settle the dispute with the Erskine's, the issue moved to district court. The "Historic Windmill" was rotten and collapse was a real concern. The windmill was within Baker property boundaries and liability associated with the structure was clearly on the Baker's shoulders. Finally, the Erskine property is zoned Single Family Residential. Have Midland zoning laws been amended to allow farm animals and domesticated wildlife? Are the Erskines above the law?

I do not know the Erskines but I do know Dennis Baker. He is an asset to the City of Midland as a businessman, family man and civic leader. I suggest that the Friends of Eos reconsider their support for the Erskines in this matter.

Khmer Rouge ambush kills peacekeeper

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Khmer Rouge guerrillas seeking to disrupt a U.N.-supervised vote ambushed a convoy carrying elections workers Tuesday, killing a Japanese peacekeeper and wounding at least eight others.

The assault — a day after a major Khmer Rouge assault on a provincial capital — suggests the pro-Communist group may resort to increasingly bloody means to undermine the May 23-28 vote.

Although the Khmer Rouge is one of the four factions that signed a 1991 peace pact, it has boycotted the election and claims it is rigged to favor its main foe, the Vietnam-installed government.

The Khmer Rouge campaign of violence — and memories of its bloody regime in the 1970s — have frightened dozens of election volunteers away, but U.N. officials have vowed to press ahead with the vote. The parliamentary elections are the centerpiece of a peace accord to end 13 years of civil war.

U.N. officers are being trained in case they must replace civilian election workers.

"This will affect the election," said Uch Kiman, a spokesman for the Phnom Penh government. "If the Khmer Rouge attack from the outside and they create chaos from within, this would scare the people off."

"I think they are going to increase their attacks from now on until the election," he said.

In Tokyo, the death of the peacekeeper, police Inspector Haruyuki Takata, 33, rekindled the dispute over sending Japanese forces overseas. Cambodia was Japan's first deployment of ground force abroad since World War II.

"Overcoming our sadness and staying the course is the way to ensure that this death does not go in vain. That is my feeling," Yohei Kono, the chief Japanese government spokesman.

But opposition parties in Japan contended the Cambodian ceasefire had collapsed. Under Japanese law, that would require withdrawal of Japanese troops.

Several world record-holders hail from India

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Could you grow a 7-foot, 10-inch mustache? Remain standing for 17 years? Write 1,749 letters on a grain of rice? Run across the United States backwards? Crawl 870 miles?

Each of these feats was accomplished by an Indian, and each made it into The Guinness Book of Records.

It's so prestigious that nearly one-fifth of all Guinness mail to its London headquarters is from India. The president of the Guinness World Record Holder Club of India changed his name from Harparkash Rishi to Guinness Rishi.

The competition has led to some discontent, however.

Take the case of Salauddin Chaudhury and his wife, Neena, of Calcutta, who sought a round-the-world driving record.

They drove an Indian Contessa Classic decorated with an Indian flag 25,188 miles in 69 days, 19 hours and 5 minutes in 1989. A certificate they got from Guinness stated they made the "first and fastest" circumnavigation of the world.

But their record didn't appear in the Guinness book until 1991, and when it did it failed to state they were 'first.' The edition also noted the record had been surpassed British army drivers, who set a new speed mark of 39 days, 23 hours and 35 minutes.

So the Chaudhurys raced around the world again in late 1991 and broke the British record by 3 hours and 20 minutes.

In every great city there is one great specialty store.

President contemplates administration changes

■ More national news/8B

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton said Tuesday that he has staff changes in the works to "tighten the focus" of a White House that has come under criticism for inexperience and lack of direction.

"I've never operated here before and there are some things that are very different about the way Washington works — some good and some not so good," Clinton offered Tuesday during an Oval Office photo session.

"We think that there needs to be a little tighter coordination here to make sure that we've got our priorities straight and that those priorities are communicated all the way down to the staff. And a little better focus," he said.

Clinton, who promised an explosive 100-day opening to his presidency, said that for about five weeks now he's been considering "changes in the way our process works to try and improve it. I hope we can make some."

"After all, I just got here," he said.

Clinton said he wanted to "get the focus back on the things that I've been doing from the beginning," singling out his economic plan and health-care reform as top priorities.

Among the moves under discussion is hiring a second deputy to assist chief of staff Mack McLarty.

"When I got to looking at it, every other chief of staff has always had ... three major aides and Mack's been functioning with one," Clinton said. "So I'm trying to figure out a way to give him at least one more."

Clinton's critics complain that the early days of his administration have lacked focus and have been marked by a series of missteps that can be traced in part to a young, inexperienced staff.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, for example, complained this week about a "White House staff that is ill-serving the president with ... sophomoric attacks," after Clinton bungled his facts in a joke about a renovation project in Dole's home state of Kansas.

Clinton said some of the administration's growing pains were the result of trying "to get a lot of things going in a hurry because four years passes in a hurry."

"You wind up having people work very, very hard but maybe getting a little out of focus," he said. "I think we can tighten the focus a little."

White House spokesman George Stephanopoulos rejected suggestions the staff changes were a reflection of dissatisfaction with McLarty's performance, saying Clinton had "confidence in the whole staff."

Los Angeles apartment fire claims 9 lives

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire doors were nailed open and smoke detectors didn't work in an apartment complex where the third fire in less than a month killed seven children and two pregnant women, investigators said Tuesday.

Officials were investigating whether the blaze was set by suspected drug dealers who had been kicked out of the building hours earlier.

Neither pregnant woman's fetus survived. A third pregnant woman who delivered prematurely was among the more than 40 people injured; she and two others were in critical condition. And a comatose 3-year-old boy was declared brain-dead Tuesday.

Nearly all the tenants of the $500-a-month one-bedroom apartments were immigrants from Mexico, El Salvador and Guatemala who came to the United States in the last decade to escape civil war and economic ruin.

William Miranda, a Salvadoran immigrant who was among more than 120 survivors who spent a night in a Red Cross shelter, said the fire made him doubt the wisdom of coming to America.

"Right now I have nothing," said Miranda, 32. "I don't know what I'm going to do."

The fire started Monday evening on the second floor of the stucco building in the heavily Hispanic Westlake neighborhood near downtown. Smoke forced some residents to jump from windows and climb from one balcony to another. Adults handed children to other adults below them.

Sixteen of the building's 40 units were damaged.

Seven people died in a hallway outside a third floor apartment, Fire Chief Donald Manning told the City Council.

"It does appear that the fire started on the second floor and it was allowed to spread throughout the building because the fire doors ... were held open by nails driven into the floor. In one case the door was not there," Manning said.

Manning said the apartment manager had had an angry confrontation with suspected drug dealers hours before the blaze began, and had ordered them out of the building. Arson investigator Terry DePack said possible retaliation was being investigated.

Assistant apartment manager Jose Antonio Ramirez said smoke detectors didn't work and when he complained in recent weeks, "The owner said it was very expensive."

Jurors acquit former deputy

■ Jury finds former Midland County Lt. Deputy Tim Rogers not guilty of DWI.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

A former deputy charged with driving while intoxicated was acquitted Tuesday despite testimony from four police officers that he failed five sobriety tests at the time of arrest.

The six-person jury deliberated less than 10 minutes before returning a not guilty verdict for former Midland County Lt. Deputy Tim Rogers in the Midland County Court-at-Law.

Rogers had been charged with misdemeanor DWI after he was arrested in the early morning hours of Dec. 31, 1992, after he had allegedly been involved in an automobile accident at a local apartment complex.

Rogers wiped tears from his eyes after the verdict was read. His attorney, Hal Upchurch, patted him on the back as the jurors nodded that they all agreed he was not guilty.

Rogers had no comment after the hearing.

"I'm certainly not surprised," Upchurch said.

The state closed its case after two more police officers and a county jailer all testified that they thought Rogers was intoxicated on the night he was arrested.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who was present when Rogers was arrested, testified Tuesday for the defense saying that he didn't believe Rogers was intoxicated.

Painter was called to the scene by Midland police officers.

Upchurch also called a friend of Rogers who was present when the arrest was made, a sheriff's investigator and a waiter who served Rogers three beers several hours before the arrest.

In closing arguments, Upchurch indicated that police officers acted inappropriately when they arrested Rogers and insinuated that one of the supervising officers assisted in the decision to arrest the defendant because the two men did not get along.

The defense attorney also pointed out the inconsistent testimony of the arresting officer, Robert Porter, who contradicted himself on several occasions in his four hours on the stand.

The officer said he did not think Rogers was intoxicated during the initial traffic stop, but indicated that he later changed his mind when the accident occurred.

Ward argued that Porter was apprehensive to arrest a superior officer, although he was in a different branch of law enforcement, until the circumstances warranted action.

Two of the jurors said the unanimous vote for acquittal resulted "because we were not convinced beyond a reasonable doubt" that Rogers was guilty of the crime.

Woman pilot

When Defense Secretary Les Aspin recently opened the door for women to train as fighter pilots, 1st Lt. Ellen McKinnon, a former Midland resident, became one of the first seven women in the country to enter the Air Force's fighter-bomber training program. Ms. McKinnon, an honors student and 1985 graduate of Midland High School, is a T-38 instructor pilot with the 54th Flying Training Squadron at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock. After graduating from MHS, Ms. McKinnon attended the University of Texas at Austin, receiving her degree in 1990. She also was a member of ROTC while in college. Ms. McKinnon, quoted in a Lubbock Avalanche-Journal article, said she believes the timing of Aspin's decision is correct, especially in light of women's performance in the Persian Gulf War. Although they were restricted to support roles, Ms. McKinnon, 25, said women soldiers came under fire and died in the struggle to remove Iraqi forces from Kuwait. Ms. McKinnon received her wings on May 17, 1991.

Krueger to face tough decisions about campaign

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — After his surprisingly poor showing in the Texas primary, Sen. Bob Krueger must decide whether President Clinton campaigns for him in next month's runoff election, the Democratic Party's national chairman said Tuesday.

Asked at a breakfast meeting if Clinton should go to Texas, Democratic National Committee chairman David Wilhelm replied, "I think that's up to Sen. Krueger."

The question facing Krueger is whether Clinton riding into the Texas campaign would round up Democratic votes or stampede them toward Republican candidate Kay Hutchinson.

Clinton's popularity is so low in the Lone Star State that Krueger rarely mentioned the president's name in the weeks leading up to Saturday's primary. Instead, the Democratic senator often emphasized the votes he had cast against administration proposals.

However, Krueger was still edged out, 28.99 percent to 28.96 percent, by Hutchinson, the state treasurer. The top three Republicans garnered 56 percent of the vote in a field of 24 candi-

Pro-lifer gives her views on Planned Parenthood efforts

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Carol Everett says she is trying to wash away the blood of 35,000 babies.

Ms. Everett — the self-proclaimed 'Scarlet Lady' and the former owner of two abortion clinics in Dallas — spoke out Tuesday against efforts by Planned Parenthood of West Texas to offer abortion services in the Permian Basin.

She also said she believes "sex education sells abortions."

Brian Adamcik
Carol Everett

"Abortion is a skillfully-sold product sold to a poor woman who doesn't have a choice," she said. "Planned Parenthood stirs up the market with their safe sex message, then they break down the wall and laugh about their mother's outdated values on sex. They teach children how to have sex."

Ms. Everett — who now counsels pregnant women and lectures across the nation — talked to residents at San Jacinto Junior High at the invitation of Professional Women for Life.

She said Planned Parenthood will pull out of their decision to offer abortion services if their is enough backlash from the community.

"That's what I'm here for — to send the real message of what abortion is. Planned Parenthood may be building on and saying they are adding abortions here, but in truth they are simply sticking their finger in the air and getting a feel for the reaction of the community," she said.

Group awards Vogler's efforts

Staff report

Ed Vogler, a Midland consulting geologist, civic leader and conservationist, has been awarded the Conservation Medal of the National Society Daughters of the America Revolution (DAR).

The award was based largely on Vogler's "love of nature and conservation" as evidenced in his promoting tree-planting projects in Midland, helping preserve a part of Midland history through restoration of the historic Yucca Theatre and in conserving funds in a water-reservoir project for West Texas.

Vogler, who has been hailed as Midland's "Johnny Appleseed" due to his tree-planting resolve, received the award on Tuesday through the DAR's Lt. William Brewer Chapter in the Midland Woman's Club.

"A tree is the one thing around us that gives more than it receives," Volger said after receiving the award. "There is always music among the trees, but our hearts must be very quiet to hear it."

In accepting the award, Vogler, 77, noted the impact of Earth Day, cited the importance of National Arbor Day, decried the depletion of the world's rain forests and applauded re-forestation efforts to offset the destruction of trees worldwide.

In a letter to the DAR chapter, Mrs. Donald Halamka, national chairman of the National Society DAR, cited Vogler's "great interest in improving the environment by planting trees" and noted that he has "truly has left the Midland area a legacy of beautification."

BUREAU: Officials warn against traveling repairmen

(From 1B)

- Check with local and state authorities to be sure the contractor is properly licensed.
- Find out if the contractor has adequate liability and worker's compensation insurance in case of an accident on your property.
- If possible, ask for and check references.
- Ask if the contractor would be willing to submit a dispute concerning workmanship or service to a third-party mediation or arbitration program and get the commitment in writing.
- Beware of fly-by-night repair businesses soliciting work in unmarked trucks and requiring advance payment and do not succumb to high pressure techniques such as the price is "Good only for today."

All contracts for home repairs should include:

- Name, address and phone number of contractor.
- A written description of all work to be done, including the quality of materials to be used.
- A bid based on the job, not by the unit (hour, gallon, board, etc.)
- A price breakdown for both labor and materials.
- Start up and completion dates.
- A written statement reiterating any oral promises made by the contractor or sales representative, including any warranties on materials or labor.

Residents should never pay for all repairs in advance. The deposit should be no more than one-third of the total contract price.

To protect against property liens that may result if a primary contractor does not pay his subcontractors, a release-of-lien clause should be added to the contract or payments in escrow should be placed until the work is completed.

SPEAK: 'Scarlet Lady' talks to residents about abortion services said the group has no intention of canceling their plans to offer abortions.

"This is a very necessary and legal service that needs to be offered," she said. "We won't change our mind. The one obvious problem will be finding a physician."

Ms. Everett said Planned Parenthood only offers abortions at one clinic in the state — in Houston — and recently backed out of adding abortion services in Waco.

But Ms. Faust said Planned Parenthood in Waco has not abandoned their plans but is instead waiting to hire a physician.

Ms. Everett — who earned $13,625 for performing nearly 600 abortions in the final month before closing her clinics — said Planned Parenthood is only concerned with making money.

"They go into an area where they see the potential for 200 abortions a month. It's a money thing," she said.

Ms. Faust disagreed.

"I'm sure it was a money thing to her, but it's not for us. We realize there have been unscrupulous abortion clinics and we're sorry for that. But that's not us," she said. "Our clients trust us. We're trying to help."

Ms. Everett received an abortion 20 years ago and abandoned her clinics in 1983 — shortly after one woman died and two others had to undergo major surgery. She now offers post-abortion and incest counseling services.

"When the woman died, I thought someone would care ... that there would be an investigation," she said. "But there wasn't, in fact everyone covered it up — including her boyfriend. That woman didn't even get the dignity of an obituary."

Ms. Everett — who has helped perform abortions on women who were not pregnant — said she entered the business to justify aborting her unborn baby.

"I knew I killed my baby. I felt like I was absolving myself of that burden with each abortion I did," she said.

Army, National Guard provide free clinic

RIO GRANDE CITY (AP) — Army and Texas National Guard medical teams came to the nation's second-poorest county Tuesday with a new mission to battle old enemies — rabies, tuberculosis and other preventable diseases.

Organizers said the joint operation with the Texas Department of Health was the first of its kind using military personnel within U.S. borders. Army and National Guard units have set up similar free clinics in other countries for many years.

The civilian-military team held a news conference on the first day of the three-day clinic in Starr County to call attention to the military's increased role in humanitarian efforts, in places such as Somalia and now closer to home.

"We're providing things that they never received," 1st Sgt. Richard Andrade of the Texas National Guard. "The people are appreciative of what we are doing here."

Andrade, a veteran of similar clinics in Bolivia and Guatemala, said poverty and health problems were much more serious south of the border, but Starr County showed many signs of limited access to health care.

Mothers held their wailing babies while waiting for immunizations in the temporary field hospital at the Starr County Fairgrounds.

"For the whole family it's a good opportunity," said Maria C. Rios de Garcia, 21, of Rio Grande City, not far from the border with Mexico.

With her husband out of work and without Medicaid, Mrs. Rios de Garcia said she had trouble affording regular checkups for their 2-year-old son, Jose.

The Texas Department of Health chose Starr County because of alarming increases in animal rabies and estimates that only 30 percent of the county's pre-schoolers are fully immunized.

Starr County tuberculosis rates are double the state average, health officials said.

Three of every five Starr County residents live below poverty, and about one in three are unemployed, according to 1990 Census figures. The Census Bureau said per capital income for the county's 40,500 residents was $4,152 — the second-poorest in the nation behind Shannon County, South Dakota.

The six obstetricians in the county recently announced that an explosion of malpractice lawsuits forced them to stop practicing here, leaving the county without sanctioned childbirth services.

TEACH: Woman in wheelchair tutors German couple ing a German couple, who could barely speak English six months ago.

(From 1B)

"They are doing very well," she said. "Susan could only read seven words on one of the lists. Now, she can read four lists of words."

But, tutoring Franq and Susan Loewen and their three-year-old daughter Crystal means more to Ms. Hartwell than just something to take up time.

It has taught her not to take things for granted.

Ms. Hartwell moved to Midland from Wink in 1987, after she broke her neck in an automobile accident. Bound to her wheelchair, she moved in with her parents. She later moved to her current residence — Rockwood Manor.

"My parents are 68 and 70," she said. "They really can't take care of me."

Although her body is handicapped, her mind isn't, an idea Ms. Hartwell said most people weren't willing to accept.

"Most people think because you're in a wheelchair, you're also deaf and dumb," she said. "I would go to dinner with my mom and the waiter would ask my mom what I wanted for dinner."

Enter the Loewens through the Need to Read program. The German couple moved to Texas from Chihuahua, Mexico, unable to speak or read English.

"Usually in a program like this, you get someone who speaks Spanish," Ms. Hartwell said. "And, I got two that spoke German. It was kind of surprising."

Paired with Ms. Hartwell, Franq, Susan and Crystal began to learn the language through material supplied by Need to Read, as well as Dr. Seuss, album covers and road signs.

"They like music and I like music," Ms. Hartwell said. "I just started pulling out the sheets with the words on them. I use pretty much anything to help them. We've been shopping and to the movies."

While Franq and Susan have been doing well at reading and speaking English, their daughter has developed her own language.

"She speaks Crystal's language," Ms. Hartwell said. "She just lapses in German or English, whatever she feels like. It's kind of a mixture of both."

The Loewens both want to become U.S. citizens and are currently working on getting their driver's licenses with the help of their tutor.

Ms. Hartwell's work will be honored this month at a Need to Read dinner at Claydesta, where she will receive a Volunteer of the Year award. But, that's not the most important thing to Ms. Hartwell.

"I found a lot of things that I have taken for granted," she said. "Like reading, which was always my least favorite thing to do. But, I can do it and lots of people can't. It's important to help them."

Academy honors Hearst executive with top award

NEW YORK — Frank A. Bennack, Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corporation, has been selected by the Board of Trustees of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as its recipient of the coveted Trustees' Award. The honor is to be bestowed upon Bennack at a banquet at the Marriott Marquis Hotel.

First-tier communications executives representing broadcasting and publishing as well as national government office holders of the highest rank and international names from the arts have accepted invitations to be present at the ceremony.

"Mr. Bennack, a national leader in communications and publishing, has made many notable leadership contributions to both broadcasting and publishing in his long and distinguished career," said John Cannon, president of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. "With this recognition he takes his deserved place among those whom he joins who have been similarly honored. They include President John Kennedy, Walter Cronkite, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Edward R. Murrow, Gen. David Sarnoff, William S. Paley, Leonard Goldenson, Dr. Frank Stanton and Ted Turner.

Under Bennack's leadership, The Hearst Corporation has substantially diversified and expanded its operations, more than tripling in size. During his presidency, Hearst has acquired three television stations, 10 newspapers, two trade publishing companies, two major consumer magazines, a television production entity, and various syndication and distribution businesses.

Hearst also has launched, with partners, two leading cable networks and made a major investment in another. The corporation today includes more than 100 separate businesses and a total of more than 13,000 employees.

Convention honors MARC with awards

Staff report

The Midland Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC) was honored with three awards at the recent ARC/Texas Convention in Austin.

Two of the awards were for its newsletter and its integrated recreation program. The third award went to staff member Beverly Stevens, who won the Gene Karaffa Award, which is presented to someone who "consistently demonstrates dedicated service."

"Beverly Stevens is an outstanding example of ARC employees who give above and beyond what their job descriptions require," award organizers said.

Ms. Stevens began working for a local chapter's group home a few years ago "and she immediately stood out — volunteering her time, suggesting new approaches to old problems and teaching dance and aerobics classes on her own initiative."

Ms. Stevens headed up a new program — integrated and leisure activities. According to a press release announcing the award:

"Her exuberance and commitment are credited with bringing immediate, positive results.

"Vacation trips to Texas cities or Six Flags, weekly activities such as concerts, movies, fishing and hunting trips have built bridges between people with mental retardation and the community.

"Last summer, she put together a day camp with teen-agers volunteering their time to help kids with disabilities."

This program — initiated through her efforts — was recognized with the ARC/Texas Retardation Award.

Meanwhile, MARC's newsletter, "On Your MARC," won top newsletter for all ARC chapters. The editor is Jean Jones, a local staff member.

It is published monthly and circulated to more than 600 individuals.

More winners claim share of $50 million

AUSTIN (AP) — After receiving their first checks Tuesday, Gary McKee and Timothy Sturkie said they are glad to be sharing the $50 million Lotto Texas prize with 12 others.

"I was happy that we were going to share it because $50 million is too much money," said McKee, 37, an electrician from Amarillo.

"It's scary," added Timothy Sturkie, 32, of Arlington. "I'm glad we only got part. I think I can handle this."

Each of the 14 people who correctly picked all six numbers drawn Saturday night gets $3,471,816, in 20 annual installments of $173,959.

As of midday Tuesday, 11 winners had arrived at the lottery's Austin headquarters to claim their prizes. Lottery director Nora Linares said officials still were awaiting winners from Granite Shoals, Houston and a second person from Amarillo.

The $50 million prize is the largest awarded since the Texas Lottery began the six-number lotto drawings twice a week in November. The previous record, a $21 million pot, was claimed by a woman from Schulenburg.

Asked his occupation, Sturkie said, "I was a printer — was."

When he realized he'd won, he said, "I started screaming, jumping up and down. I had to call my doctor. My heart was beating a little fast."

Now that he's a millionaire, Sturkie said he would like to meet another: his hero and Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan.

"I'd like to meet him if I could," Sturkie said, adding that he picked two of his six numbers because they were the uniform numerals worn by Ryan and Mickey Mantle.

Ryan's number 34 and Mantle's number 7 were two of the lucky six, along with 10, 11, 23 and 43.

"I'm a down-to-earth person. I hope to stay that way," Sturkie said, adding that with his winnings he's got his eye on "a new truck, maybe a new . . . boat."

And some Texas Rangers tickets. "Good seats, no more outfield."

McKee said his $10 ticket purchase was a last-minute decision.

Mrs. McKee said the family watched Saturday night's drawing on television. "I was writing the numbers down and thought we would win $3, and then I quit looking at the ticket," she said. After realizing they had matched all six, she started screaming. "Gary thought I had seen a mouse."

Two other winners announced were Mary Esparza of San Antonio and Amber Matthews, 20, a Texas A&M student who claimed her prize late Monday — after taking a final exam that morning.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Lady Luck is with you. Focus on business expansion and your restored sense of responsibility. Glamorous friends add zest to your social life. Forming new business alliances in early fall will increase your earning power. Be willing to travel for your work in November and December. A more rewarding home life will get 1994 off to a happy start. If planning to remarry, give family members time to accept your choice.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Pat Carroll, philosopher Karl Marx, actress Alice Faye, actor Michael Palin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A confidential meeting could accomplish two purposes: It could advance your romantic aims while also promoting your worldly ambitions. Educate yourself! Reading will expand your horizons.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Teamwork may not be as satisfying as working on your own now. Check details and trust your judgment. Give more thought to those who are less fortunate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can get an early start this morning. The success of an exciting new venture will depend on the preparations you make. Be careful not to put all your eggs into one basket.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your ideas about travel involve love and a romantic image. Cultivate stable, mature people as friends. You profit from being open to new experiences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Household security and a reorganization occupy your thoughts. Be sensible when planning your financial future. Someone's choices could mystify you; do not overreact.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A good day to put things right with someone who works for you. Expressing your talents in an unusual way boosts your spirits. Try not to keep late hours; get your rest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A new decisiveness lets you make great strides in your field. Do not be insensitive to other people's feelings. A subtle approach leads to fresh discoveries. Get all the facts before passing judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A casual conversation turns to serious topics. Be willing to go out of your way to help someone in need. An evening of music and dance lifts your spirits. Have fun!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A period of meditation settles your mind. Give further thought to innovative ideas. Your hopes are idealistic, loving. Family or community life offers new rewards.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lively, aware people are your best allies. A recently forged partnership is stimulating. Continue to have faith and romance will work out. Put your credit cards away.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Deep thinking can be fruitful even if answers seem blocked. You are known as a whiz in your profession. A new acquaintance interests you despite your different values. Find out more.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have more authority at work now. Once you understand the emotional drama going on behind the scenes, you will find a new financial angle. A talk with the money experts revives your hopes.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are affectionate and shy, hoping to hide any timidity behind a bluff exterior. Count on them to present a confident front in business. Their Taurean determination and perseverance will bring them triumph after triumph. Although they may find it difficult to adjust to a midlife career change, once they get going, they will be wildly successful. They treasure their families and will try to keep their home life low-key and cozy.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣ Study only the North-South cards. Suppose you were declaring the four-spade contract. Realistically, what are the lines you should consider and is there a way to combine them?

Even though North's hand is perfectly balanced, we endorse the raise to two spades. K Q x in opener's major is too good support to suppress, so if you don't raise immediately, opener will never play you for that much. Once spades were raised, South's hand revalued to 19 points and the jump to game was automatic.

West led the queen of clubs and, since that virtually marked East with the ace, it was ducked all round. Since there was no way to avoid losing two heart tricks, which would complete the defenders' book, declarer could not afford any other losers. Therefore, a finesse for the king of diamonds had to succeed.

Dummy's two entries must be used to take diamond finesses, so there's no way that South can take advantage of a 3-3 heart split to set up a long heart. It might seem that the only hope is a 3-3 diamond break.

Be careful not to overlook one other chance. If diamonds are 4-2 and the hand that's short in diamonds has only two trumps, the contract is still home.

With careful timing, declarer can test both lines. After ruffing the club continuation, declarer crosses to the table with a high trump and takes a diamond finesse. Dummy's other high trump serves as an entry for a second finesse. Before drawing the last trump, declarer cashes the ace of diamonds. If the cards are as above, West shows out, but can't ruff, so declarer can trump the low diamond and claim the contract.

Mackie outfitted Mafia wives to pay off debt, magazine says

NEW YORK — Bob Mackie, whose fashions have adorned Cher, Diana Ross and a host of other celebrities, outfitted Mafia wives to chip away at a debt he owed a company that had mob ties.

The designer took a loan from Consolidated Carriers in 1987, when he set up Bob Mackie Knits, an offshoot of his Bob Mackie Originals company, Vanity Fair said in its June issue.

Consolidated, a New York trucking company, was controlled at the time by Thomas and Joseph Gambino, sons of the late mob boss Carlo Gambino. The brothers sold the company as part of a plea bargain to settle extortion and antitrust charges.

Falling behind on his loan, Mackie began writing off the debt by making clothes for Joseph Gambino's wife, Arlene. Later, women flocked in to pick outfits for a Gambino family wedding.

Mackie told the magazine the Gambinos are "wonderful, lovely, absolutely terrific people."

The magazine didn't specify how much Mackie borrowed from Consolidated.

BOSTON — John le Carre, master of the spy novel, says fewer people may read his books now that the Cold War is over. And that's just fine with him.

"I wouldn't wish to write that stuff any more and Iwas terribly tired of it," said the creator of "The Spy Who Came in From the Cold" and "The Russia House."

Le Carre

Le Carre's next novel, "The Night Manager," deals with the world of arms-dealing and narcotics traffic.

He told a Boston Bar Association gathering Monday night that the end of the Cold War was a "kind of professional regeneration," adding: "Maybe my usefulness is over. But I'm going to have far more interesting things to write about."

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Queen Elizabeth began a four-day trip to Hungary on Tuesday, the first visit by a reigning British monarch to the former communist nation.

The queen and her husband attended a reception at the Budapest parliament building. President Arpad Goencz and his wife greeted the queen and Prince Philip.

Following the British and Hungarian national anthems, the royal couple and Goencz reviewed the honor guard, then met members of the Hungarian government and the foreign diplomatic corps, all shown nationally on television.

The queen, whose great-great-grandmother was Hungarian, and the prince were invited to Hungary by Goencz, who paid a state visit to Britain in 1991.

The queen will address the parliament on Wednesday. Her itinerary also includes a boat ride on the Danube, a riding display by Magyar horsemen and a night at the opera.

MIAMI — Yo, Madonna! Sylvester Stallone will soon be your neighbor.

He's buying an 11-acre estate that was once part of Villa Vizcaya, a vast compound built by industrialist James Deering in 1916.

The price was $8 million, The Miami Herald said Tuesday.

Madonna, frequently sighted on trendy South Beach, paid $4.9 million last year for a mansion a few doors away.

Other celebrities buying South Florida homes in recent years include Julio Iglesias, Mickey Rourke, Paloma Picasso and fashion designer Gianni Versace.

Stewart Merkin, a Miami lawyer representing Stallone, said the star of the "Rocky" and "Rambo" movies may use the mansion for more than just a seasonal home.

The estate features canals, a Japanese garden, a two-story guest house and a dock that can handle a 100-foot yacht. The main house was built in 1975 and has a ballroom, library, wine cellar and 15th century Swiss drinking room from a chateau in Switzerland.

BRUNSWICK, Maine — George Bush, who often can be found on the golf course or in his fishing boat, assumed the role of spectator on the first full day following his return to his summer home in Maine.

The former president sat in the bleachers Monday at Bowdoin College to watch his nephew, a Colby student, play lacrosse against the Brunswick school.

Bush arrived Sunday at his seaside home in Kennebunkport, about 50 miles to the south, where he plans to spend the summer.

At Bowdoin, Bush wore blue jeans, a light blue windbreaker, casual shoes and a baseball-style cap with the words "U.S. Navy Seabees." He was accompanied by his brother John, whose son, Billy Bush, scored three goals for Colby in its 14-9 loss to Bowdoin.

"He's a good player," said George Bush. He had little else to say to the press, explaining that since leaving office he has generally refrained from talking to reporters.

"I'm just going to stay with this as long as I can," he said of his policy toward the media.

Man kills estranged wife, protectors, self

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) — For weeks, co-workers at a mental hospital tried to protect quiet, hard-working nursing assistant Teresa Bender from her estranged husband, who had been charged with physically and verbally abusing her.

"Teresa knew that he had problems and yet she still married him," former colleague Sue Cornell said Tuesday. "He has been off the deep end, for two years at least."

Hours after expiration of a court order keeping Virgil Bender, 34, away from his 28-year-old wife, he fatally shot Mrs. Bender and two of her protectors — including Cornell's son — in a shotgun ambush at an Oshkosh apartment. He then apparently killed himself.

"I could not understand why this man was not locked up and treated. I know that others out there were afraid of him," said Cornell, whose 27-year-old son, Robert, was killed, along with Glen Lohry, 40.

Neighbors reported hearing gunshots at about 5 a.m. Monday at Mrs. Bender's apartment in Oshkosh, a city of about 50,000 people midway between Wausau and Milwaukee in northeastern Wisconsin.

Investigators were uncertain whether Cornell and Lohry arrived there after being summoned or had spent the night to protect the woman, said Oshkosh Police Sgt. Scott Kronenwetter.

The two men and the woman were each shot twice, Kronenwetter said. "Where two bodies were found indicates they were trying to get out."

Mrs. Bender, Cornell and Lohry worked at the mental hospital as nursing assistants, helping 250 patients with a variety of daily chores, said director Stanley York. Cornell and Lohry were friends of Mrs. Bender's and had escorted her home several times to protect her, York said.

Virgil Bender worked at the hospital for four years before he was fired in January 1992 in a "medical termination," York said.

Bender was charged with battery after a fight at the couple's home April 13 and had been arrested Thursday for disorderly conduct for shouting profanities at his wife, said Joe Paulus, Winnebago County district attorney.

A friend posted $150 to free Bender from jail on the second charge and he was ordered to have no contact with his wife for 72 hours, "the typical cooling-off period," the prosecutor said.

Study: Alcohol raises risk of breast cancer

Women who have high risk factors for breast cancer, he said, could consider avoiding alcohol since the beverage clearly aggravates the risk.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two alcoholic drinks a day are enough to raise hormone levels in women and put them at greater risk of developing breast cancer, according to a study at the National Institutes of Health.

The research provides a possible reason that other studies have shown an increase of breast cancer among women who drink, said Marsha E. Reichman, who did the research while at the National Cancer Institute.

Diet and disease research over the last 10 years have shown that women who drink moderately have a breast cancer risk that is 40 to 100 percent greater than women who don't drink. Other studies have associated estrogen, a hormone, with breast cancer.

Reichman said the new study is the first to provide a link between the earlier findings.

"This is the first study to suggest that the mechanism by which alcohol affects breast cancer risk may be the increase in hormones caused by alcohol," she said.

A report on the study is to be published Wednesday in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Ironically, the study comes three days after Boston researchers reported that three drinks a day may reduce the risk of heart attack by up to 50 percent.

The studies reflect an effort by biological scientists to relate the chemistry of diet to disease. Other studies have shown that conditions such as heart disease, cancer and stroke are linked to dietary habits in some people.

In the breast cancer study, one of Reichman's co-authors, Joseph T. Judd, said the goal of his field is to determine precisely how different chemicals influence the risk of disease. Eventually, he said, science may hit on the perfect diet that will enable people to avoid disease-causing eating habits.

"We are far from knowing the whole story on diet and disease now," said Judd, a scientist at the Beltsville Human Nutrition Research Center of the Department of Agriculture.

In the study, 34 women were divided into two groups and tested for effects of alcohol through six menstrual cycles. Throughout the study, the women were on controlled diets so that the only dietary difference was the alcohol. Blood and urine tests were taken for three days during three phases of the menstrual cycle.

For half of the study, one group of women were given nightly 30 grams of pure grain alcohol mixed in orange juice. The other group was given orange juice without the alcohol. For the second half of the study, the groups reversed their alcohol use. In this way, both halves of the study group received the alcohol dose for three menstrual cycles.

Blood tests showed increases in estrogen of up to 31.9 percent during the middle phase of the menstrual cycle, the peri-ovulatory phase, for women who were drinking. Urine tests showed a similar increase in estrogen excreted during the luteal, or final, phase of the menstrual cycle for those on alcohol.

In an editorial published with the study, Dr. Matthew P. Longnecker of the UCLA School of Public Health said the findings may not be relevant to most women since studies have shown that fewer than 3 percent of American women drink 30 grams of alcohol daily.

Judd said that the alcohol used was pure, or 200 proof. He said that 30 grams of the beverage is approximately equal to the amount of alcohol used in two "very strong" mixed drinks, such as martinis.

In making dietary decisions based on what is now known, said Judd, "people have to consider overall risk factors for disease."

Women who have high risk factors for breast cancer, he said, could consider avoiding alcohol since the beverage clearly aggravates the risk. Among the known breast cancer risks are a family history of the disease and certain types of breast cysts.

Judd said that for people at high risk of heart disease, moderate alcohol use could help reach a blood chemistry that benefits the heart.

Stunt pilot dies in crash at air show

EL TORO MARINE CORPS AIR STATION, Calif. (AP) — A former Pensacola, Fla., aviator and Texas crop duster who learned to fly at 15, James Gregory died doing what he loved, said family and friends.

The stunt pilot, killed in a flaming crash at this base's annual air show, would have been 41 Thursday.

"He lived probably more in the 40 years than a lot of people do in 60," said his father, Ernest Gregory of Flint, Mich.

Gregory's F-86 Sabre jet slammed into the runway Sunday and went up in flames in front of about 500,000 spectators. For some reason, Gregory failed to pull out of a loop.

"The only consolation is that he was doing what he enjoyed," said Marie Gregory, his mother. Funeral services were planned Saturday in Flint, where he was born, she said.

"That's how he enjoyed life, living on the edge. It was a thrill for him," said Beth Gregory, his wife of 10 years.

Gregory got his pilot's license at 16, but had been training a year before that, she said.

After a year of dusting crops in Texas, he went to work for Lockheed Corp. in North Carolina. Then came stints in Nigeria and Germany.

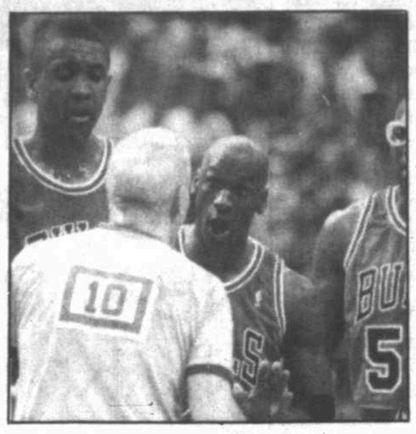
Bulls sew up series

Pacers, Jazz also win first-rounders



Bill Carwright, left, and Michael Jordan argue a call in Tuesday night's game.

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Michael Jordan refused to let a sprained right ankle keep him from carrying the two-time defending NBA champion Chicago Bulls to the second round of the playoffs.

Jordan scored 14 of his 39 points after being helped off the floor late in the third quarter and led the Bulls to a 98-88 victory over the Atlanta Hawks and a sweep of their best-of-5 first-round series.

The Bulls now await the winner of the New Jersey-Cleveland series, tied 1-1 going into their game Wednesday night at the Meadowlands.

Jordan left the floor with 3:45 left in the third. He had just made an 18-foot fall-away jumper with 3:52 remaining to put the Bulls ahead 68-61.

As he kept retreating, Jordan suddenly fell to the floor in pain. He returned to the lockerroom, where his right ankle was taped, and reappeared on the court just before the start of the fourth quarter.

Jordan scored two baskets and a free throw to give the Bulls a 79-69 lead with 9:42 to play, and then gave Chicago its biggest lead of the night with an over-the-head dunk, making it 87-74 with 5:51 remaining.

Pacers 116, Knicks 93

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Pacers capitalized on the third-quarter ejection of New York's John Starks and Reggie Miller's 36 points to rout the Knicks and stay alive in their best-of-5 playoff.

The Knicks lead the series 2-1, with Game 4 in Indianapolis Thursday night.

Starks was ejected for butting Miller with 8:42 left in the third quarter. Miller's free throws tied the game 59-59, igniting a streak of 10 consecutive points and a 19-4 spurt. After the ejection the Pacers outscored the Knicks 59-34.

Angels open trip with loss

Staff report

SAN ANTONIO — The good news for Midland in the Texas League here Tuesday night was the Angels' pitching staff gave up only four hits. The bad news was that San Antonio's Anthony Collier had two of them.

Collier, who had not rounded the bases on a single hit this year, blasted two home runs to right field to account for Midland's 3-1 loss to the Missions.

Collier's first shot was a two-run dinger off of Midland starter Erik Bennett that erased Midland's 1-0 lead it had held since the second inning. Collier's shot came with Lott on first base, who had reached on one of the other two hits by the Missions in the game.

■ Box score/3C

Collier's second shot was an insurance mark in the seventh and that one chased Bennett (1-2) from the game.

Midland had taken a 1-0 lead in the second inning on Kevin Davis' fifth homer of the year. All three homers went to right field where a howling wind showed its only mercy.

Javier Delahoya (2-3) went the distance to get the win, allowing Midland only three hits and two walks. Delahoya struckout six.

P.J. Forbes had two-thirds of the Angel offensive attack with two singles in four trips to the plate, but only Davis, with his homer, was the only other Angel with a hit.

Midland has won only four of its last 14 games. The Angels are now 3-8 on the road this year.

This is a short road trip with only four more games against the Missions before returning to Angels Stadium Monday to face Tulsa, a Texas Rangers' farm club.

ANGEL NOTE: When Kevin Davis hit a towering home run in Monday night's 7-6 Angel win over Wichita, all money that fans held up for Davis' efforts was donated to the family of Mary-Ann Flora. In addition, the Angels' organization matched the donation with $500. Flora, wife of former Midland Angel Kevin Flora, and her 4-year-old nephew were killed in an automobile accident April 22 near Van Horn.

Low scores, high praise

■ The Midland College Chaparrals try to defend their national golf title a month from now in Arizona.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

One summer ago, the Midland College golf team won the National Junior College Athletic Association golf title after coming close the two previous years.

That national championship team was comprised largely of sophomores who had been around the block a time or two.

But this year's Chaparral linksters are made up mostly of freshmen, and if what the first-year junior collegians have accomplished thusfar is any indication, they could show that age means little in the world of JUCO golf.

Currently ranked third in the nation behind Scottsdale Community College, host of the 1993 NJCAA tournament, June 8-11, and Brevard College, a perennial thorn in everyone's side, MC has the makings of a true powerhouse, if not this year then surely in 1994.

MC qualified for the NJCAA tourney after winning the Region V tournament last week. That victory capped a stretch of five straight tournaments the Chaps won when competing head-up with fellow Western Junior College Athletic Conference schools in conference and regional events.

In the five conference tournaments, MC averaged 291.3 as a team, which breaks down to 72.82 per player per round.

Five of the top 10 medalists in WJCAC tournament play this season were from MC, including the top four, who each averaged less than 73 strokes per round.

Chad Campbell, a freshman from the West Texas golf machine known as Andrews High School, was the top medalist with a 72.1 scoring average. He was followed by the Scottish trio of Stephen Dundas (72.3), Guy Redford (72.7) and Darren Summers (72.9). Eighth medalist was Shawn Savage, of Plainview, who closed the year with a 74.7 scoring average.

'Beat up' Wallace released

■ Winston Cup points leader Rusty Wallace vows to be back in his Team Penske Pontiac in two weeks.

Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Winston Cup points-leader Rusty Wallace was released from the hospital Tuesday, two days after he broke a wrist and sustained a concussion in a crash at the Winston 500.

"I'm kind of beat up," Wallace said as he left Carraway Methodist Medical Center. "But I plan on running at Sears Point in two weeks."

The next Winston Cup race will be May 16 on the grueling road course in Sonoma, Calif. Wallace will carry an 86-point lead over Dale Earnhardt into that event.

Wallace, 36, said he had no hard feelings against Earnhardt, who blamed himself after his car clipped Wallace's from behind and sent it into a terrifying barrel-roll as they crossed the finish line at Talladega Superspeedway.

Rusty Wallace

"He took the blame for it, but it wasn't his fault," said Wallace, who was flown by helicopter to the hospital after rescuers freed him from the car. "It was just a racing deal."

Wallace said he was flying to Indianapolis to be checked out by his orthopedic surgeon and "try to get back on track. I've got two weeks before I've got to be in the car."

In the meantime, two of his Pontiacs are being tested this week by Scott Sharp, a former Sports Car Club of America Trans-Am champion.

"Scott will test both cars and, working with engineer Terry Satchell, will provide us with a good feel for what to expect when we return to Sears Point for the race out there in a couple of weeks," Wallace said.

Wallace has had a chance to watch replays of his wreck, in which his car flipped 10 times and came to rest in the grass infield beyond the finish line.

"It has to be the most spectacular sixth-place finish in history," quipped Wallace.

Cowboys top financial team

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, riding a Super Bowl championship, lead all professional sports franchises with an estimated value of $165 million.

Financial World magazine rated all 103 franchises in major league baseball, the NFL, NBA and NHL and found the Cowboys No. 1, the first time in the three years of the survey a baseball team did not top the list.

The New York Yankees were second at $160 million and the Toronto Blue Jays and Los Angeles Lakers tied for third at $155 million.

Last year's list had the Yankees on top at $200 million, with the Cowboys not even among the top teams at $146 million. Financial World credited Texas Stadium and its $20 million in revenue as the main reason Dallas jumped to the top.

Record suspension

LANDOVER, Md. — Dale Hunter of the Washington Capitals received a record 21-game suspension without pay by the NHL on Tuesday, a move designed to punish him and send a message across the league.

The suspension, the longest for an on-ice incident in NHL history, takes effect at the start of next season. Hunter cannot play in exhibition games or practice with the Capitals until two weeks before the suspension ends.

The suspension will cost Hunter about $150,000 in salary. Under league rules, the Capitals also will be fined that amount.

Hunter was penalized for a blindside check on the New York Islanders' Pierre Turgeon in a playoff game April 28. Turgeon had just given New York a 5-1 third-period lead and was raising his arms in celebration when Hunter rammed him into the boards.

Dotson arrested

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers defensive end Santana Dotson was arrested at a bar early Tuesday on charges of carrying a concealed firearm, police said.

Dotson, 23, was arrested about 2 a.m. EDT at the Yucatan Liquor Stand after a security guard spotted him carrying a .38-caliber automatic pistol. Santana told officers he had the weapon to protect himself from another patron at the bar who had threatened him with a razor.

He was released from the Hillsborough County Jail within an hour after posting $1,000 bond.

Rangers come from behind to win

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Ivan Rodriguez and Juan Gonzalez hit run-scoring singles in the eighth inning Tuesday night and the Texas Rangers rallied past the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2.

■ AL Roundup

Juan Guzman, coming off the first shutout of his career, took a 2-1 lead into the eighth.

Julio Franco led off with a double and Gonzalez tied it with a single off Duane Ward (0-1). With two outs, Rodriguez singled to center.

Brian Bohanon (1-0) got the last out in the eighth and was the winner. Tom Henke pitched a perfect ninth against his former team for his fifth save.

The Rangers, who had scored 22 runs on 29 hits in their last two games, were shut down early by Guzman.

Toronto took a 2-0 lead in the third against Charlie Leibrandt, making his first appearance against the Blue Jays since losing the sixth and final game of the World Series for Atlanta last year.

Center fielder David Hulse got a late jump on Devon White's fly and the ball glanced off his glove for a double, setting up RBI singles by Roberto Alomar and Joe Carter.

Texas scored in the third on Doug Strange's double and Julio Franco's single.

Leibrandt gave up six hits in seven innings. In his last appearance against Toronto, he gave up Dave Winfield's two-run double in the 11th inning in the Blue Jays' 4-3 win over the Braves.

Yankees 4, Athletics 2

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly hit his first home run of the season and Kevin Maas had a three-run homer, leading Bob Wickman and the New York Yankees past the Oakland Athletics.

Wickman (3-0) gave up one run on three hits in eight innings. Steve Farr pitched the ninth and got his sixth save despite allowing Troy Neel's third home run of the year.

Mattingly homered for the first time in 175 at-bats, dating back to last Sept. 15 against Chicago's Alex Fernandez. He connected in the first inning against Shawn Hillegas (1-3), and later singled twice.

Maas hit his second home run of the season in the fourth. He connected after Mattingly singled and Danny Tartabull walked.

Indians 5, Angels 3

CLEVELAND — Carlos Martinez brought back Cleveland with a two-run homer in the sixth inning and the Indians sent the California Angels to their fifth straight loss.

Cleveland swept the two-game series and has won four in a row.

Dennis Cook (1-0) pitched 2 2-3 scoreless innings, allowing one hit and striking out three. Derek Lilliquist got three outs for his fourth save.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1

MILWAUKEE — Mike Boddicker pitched six innings for his first victory as a starter since 1991 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Chicago White Sox.

Kevin Reimer homered, doubled and drove in three runs.

Mariners 7, Red Sox 6

BOSTON — The Seattle Mariners sweated out Boston's five-run rally in the ninth inning and held on to beat the Red Sox.

Andre Dawson drove in two runs with a pinch-single off Norm Charlton, making it 7-6 and putting runners at first and second with one out in the ninth. But Charlton retired Billy Hatcher and John Valentin on routine fly balls for his fifth save.

Twins 4, Orioles 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Scott Erickson got his first victory of the year and the Minnesota Twins defeated the Baltimore Orioles for their first three-game winning streak of the season.

Baltimore's Harold Baines extended his streak of reaching base to 13 with a walk in the first inning.

NBA: Pacers hand NY Knicks first loss

(From 1C)

Detlef Schrempf, held to 24 points in the first two games, had 29 for the Pacers and Rik Smits scored 25. Patrick Ewing led New York with 19 points and 13 rebounds.

Starks, a crucial component of the Knicks' offense, is a volatile player whose temper often undermines his game. After Starks bumped Miller, Ewing and Charles Oakley, in an unusual move, berated their teammate on the court before he walked to the locker room.

The Pacers outscored New York 38-15 in the third quarter when the Knicks scored only two baskets in a span of 5:26 when Indiana broke the game open. Miller's jumper with 3:44 left in the third quarter gave Indiana a 76-63 lead and the Knicks never drew closer than 11 points again.

The Pacers, who connected on 60 percent of their shots, opened their biggest lead of the night, 105-80, on two Miller free throws with 5:48 left, and the Knicks never got closer than 19 again.

Indiana shot 82 percent in the third quarter, making 14 of 17 shots. New York, disorganized without Starks at point guard and with Ewing on the bench after picking up his fourth foul with 5:37 left in the third period, shot 27 percent, hitting on just 6 of 22 attempts.

Schrempf had 11 points in the quarter and Miller had 10 as each made 4 of 5 shots.

The victory ended a six-game playoff losing streak for Indiana, which has never won a playoff series in five previous appearances.

Indiana, which saw New York overcome a 16-point deficit in the third quarter of Sunday's game, began slowly.

New York jumped to a 12-point advantage in the game's first five minutes before the Pacers fought back to take a 35-33 lead. A dunk off a rebound by Charles Smith then ignited a 14-2 New York spurt that put the Knicks ahead 47-37 with 6:56 left in the first half.

Smits made Indiana's only basket in a four-minute span. And though Indiana managed to cut its deficit to three late in the first half, the Pacers trailed 55-49 at the break when Doc Rivers sank a 15-footer at the buzzer.

Jazz 90, Sonics 80

SALT LAKE CITY — John Stockton, shaking off the effects of a car accident the day before, ignited a fourth-quarter rally Tuesday night as the Utah Jazz defeated the Seattle SuperSonics to take a 2-1 advantage in their best-of-5 NBA playoff series.

The Jazz, trailing until early in the final period, outscored the Sonics 18-6 to begin the period and hung on the rest of the way. Utah can close out the series at home Thursday night.

Trailing 69-65, Stockton sank a 3-pointer and, moments later, stole the ball and fed Jay Humphries for a layup to give Utah its first lead of the game, 72-71.

In the closing minutes, Utah's David Benoit scored five points as Utah outscored Seattle 11-2 in the final 2:55. A jumper by Sonic guard Ricky Pierce was Seattle's only score in the final 3:20.

If Seattle wins Thursday in the Delta Center, the teams will play the finale Saturday in Seattle.

Cards' Tewksbury six-hits Astros

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Bob Tewksbury threw a six-hitter and had a two-run single as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Houston Astros 6-1 Tuesday night.

Tewksbury (2-3) has won his last two starts after losing his first three decisions. Tewksbury, a career .126 hitter, has had a two-run single in each of the last two games and is batting .300 in 10 at-bats.

Tewksbury struck out three and walked one, only his second of the season in 32 2-3 innings. It was the first complete game of the season for a Cardinals pitcher and Tewksbury's first since Aug. 31, 1992.

The Cardinals battered Astros starter Pete Harnisch (2-1) for nine hits and six runs, five earned, in 4 2-3 innings. Harnisch has allowed 12 earned runs in 14 2-3 innings on the road, and he's 0-3 with a 8.44 ERA for his career against the Cardinals.

The loss was only the fourth in 12 road games for the Astros.

Tewksbury's two-out, two-run single was the Cardinals' third hit of the second inning. Ray Lankford and Mark Whiten had run-scoring singles and Todd Zeile had an RBI double in the four-run fifth to chase Harnisch.

■ NL Roundup

Expos 6, Padres 1

MONTREAL — Dennis Martinez threw a five-hitter for his 195th career win as the Montreal Expos broke a three-game losing slide with a victory over the San Diego Padres.

Larry Walker and Moises Alou each had two-run singles in support of Martinez (2-4), who struck out four and walked two for his first complete game of the season.

Greg Harris (1-5) allowed seven hits and three walks while striking out three in four-plus innings. He left the game in the fifth after Walker's single.

Fred McGriff hit a home run to right to give the Padres a 1-0 lead in the first inning after Martinez had retired the first two batters.

In the bottom of the inning, Montreal tied it on Darrin Fletcher's bases-loaded walk with two outs. A walk and stolen base by Delino DeShields, a single by Moises Alou and a walk by Larry Walker loaded the bases.

The Expos went ahead 2-1 in the third when Marquis Grissom singled, stole second, moved to third on a groundout by Walker and scored on a groundout by Frank Bolick.

Braves 3, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Mark Lemke doubled off the pitching shoulder of Pittsburgh's Tim Wakefield in the sixth inning, driving in two runs in support of Tom Glavine as the Atlanta Braves beat the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lemke's sharp one-hopper ricocheted off Wakefield's right shoulder and into short left field, allowing Ron Gant and Sid Bream to score. Gant had opened the inning with a walk and Bream's double moved him to third.

Glavine (4-0) improved his career regular season record against Pittsburgh to 11-5. He was 4-0 against them last year. In the postseason, however, he's 0-4 against Pittsburgh and lost twice last fall to Wakefield in the National League playoffs.

Glavine walked one and struck out seven in eight innings. He had struck out only seven in 32 innings over five previous starts. Mike Stanton pitched the ninth for his 10th save, allowing Pittsburgh's second run on a grounder by Lloyd McClendon.

Pittsburgh's only run off Glavine came on Kevin Young's leadoff homer in the fifth. It broke a 1-for-18 slide for Young and was his first extra base hit since April 12, a span of 54 at-bats.

Marlins 9, Reds 6

MIAMI — Florida's Orestes Destrade drove in five runs and Chris Hammond survived two homers by his former teammates to beat Cincinnati.

Destrade hit a three-run homer in Florida's four-run first inning against Tim Pugh (2-2). Destrade singled home a run in the fourth and drove in another with a bases-loaded groundout in the fifth.

The home run was just the second this season for Destrade, who averaged almost 40 a year playing the last four seasons in Japan.

Rockies 14, Cubs 13

CHICAGO — The Colorado Rockies won a wild one at Wrigley Field, surviving two dramatic home runs by Sammy Sosa and defeating the Chicago Cubs in 11 innings.

Sosa hit a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning, capping a five-run rally and tying it at 10. He had a two-run shot during a three-run 11th, making him 5 for 6, but the Cubs still fell short.

Jim Tatum hit the first grand slam in Colorado history, connecting during a six-run eighth inning that made it 10-5. Joe Girardi, Jerald Clark and Charlie Hayes also homered for the Rockies in a game that was scoreless entering the fifth inning.

Rebs win practice

Junior Brian Quinonez hit an RBI single with no outs, giving Midland Lee an 8-7 victory over Big Spring in nine innings of non-district high school baseball played Tuesday at Johnson Field.

After Big Spring (14-8) came back from a 3-2 deficit with five runs in the the sixth inning, the Rebels answered with four runs in the bottom of the inning, as Albert Marmolejo's bases-loaded, ground-rule double tied the game at 7-7. That's where the scored was at the end of the regulation seven innings, even though Lee stranded runners on the corners in the seventh.

In the eighth, Lee had the bases packed with no outs, but could not push a run across until Quinonez' hit in the ninth.

Junior pitcher Sean Low (1-0) made his first varsity appearance of the season, picking up the victory in one inning of relief.

The Rebels used the outing as a warm-up for this weekend's bi-district playoff series against Lubbock Coronado. Lee (23-5) will travel to Lubbock Friday to open the best-of-3 series at O'Banion Field before the series comes to Midland's Angels Stadium at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Prices get blahs

NEW YORK — The Tuesday blahs hit the oil markets in anticipation of petroleum supply statistics and prices fell off without any other economic stimulus.

Natural gas prices rose, with contracts for delivery in June settling at $2.317 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 2.8 cents.

West Texas Intermediate for June delivery fell 18 cents to close at $20.39 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers lowered their posted price 25 cents to $18.75 per barrel.

After trading finished on Tuesday, API reported an increase in oil inventories last week.

Meanwhile, the industry group said refineries decreased their operations to 89.2 percent from 89.3 percent.

Crude oil supplies rose 2.3 million barrels to 347.64 million barrels. Unleaded gasoline stocks rose 370 thousand barrels to 223.07 million barrels. Distillate stocks rose 240 thousand barrels to 100.13 million barrels.

Mack unit sold

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — Mack Trucks Inc., which hasn't turned a profit since 1988, has jettisoned more weight by agreeing to sell its financing company to a subsidiary of Ford Motor Co.

The Allentown-based company will sell Mack Financial Corp. and its assets worth $590 million in the United States and $75 million in Canada to Associates Corp. of North America.

Associates, based in Dallas, will enter a long-term contract with Mack, offering truck financing to distributors and customers.

Dollar weakens

NEW YORK — The dollar weakened further against other major currencies Tuesday amid jitters about the U.S. economy, but trading volume was light ahead of April employment data due out Friday.

In New York, the dollar fell to 110.25 Japanese yen from late Monday's 110.78 yen.

The dollar slipped against the British pound. In New York, the pound fetched $1.5660, slightly more than late Monday's $1.5650.

Dow flat

NEW YORK — While the Dow Jones Industrial Average ended almost flat Tuesday, the Nasdaq over-the-counter index jumped for a sixth straight session, this time buoyed by bonds as well as by strong technology and cable shares.

The Dow fell 0.27 point to 3,446.19.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 11 to 6 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Nasdaq soared 11.45 points to 678.16.

Economy index dips 1 percent

■ Government's forecasting gauge takes worst drop in more than two years.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge recorded its worst drop during March in more than two years, signaling lethargic growth this year. "There's no real oomph," an economist said.

The Index of Leading Indicators fell 1 percent, the sharpest decline since November 1990, in the middle of the recession, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

At the White House, President Clinton used the report to prod Congress to enact his proposed budget-deficit cuts, which he said would stimulate the economy by keeping interest rates low.

"The best thing we can do for the economy this year clearly is to pass a multi-year deficit-reduction plan because of what it will do to interest rates," he told reporters in the Oval Office.

He said at the moment he did not plan any new initiatives but, "I wouldn't rule anything out down the road."

His press secretary, Dee Dee Myers, blamed the economy's sluggishness on Clinton's Republican predecessors' "failure to invest" and warned it "cannot be fixed overnight."

The index is designed to predict economic activity six to nine months in advance. Three consecutive declines are a good, although far from foolproof, sign of a recession ahead.

Economists said the index's movements so far this year signaled sluggish growth rather than a renewed recession. The index rose 0.5 percent in February, edged down 0.1 percent in January and jumped 1.7 percent in December, the biggest increase in 10 years.

"I don't think we're headed into some dark night. . . . It's just that there's no real oomph," said economist Paul W. Boltz of T. Rowe Price Associates in Baltimore.

He attributed the latest drop partly to a blizzard that hit the Northeast in the mid-March, but said it also reflected fundamental problems. These include employers' reluctance to expand their payrolls and weak export sales to troubled economies in Europe and Japan.

Economist Mark M. Zandi of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa., said U.S. growth is unlikely to return to the fourth quarter rate — 4.7 percent as measured by the gross domestic product — anytime soon. GDP grew an anemic 1.8 percent in the first quarter.

However, Zandi said he expected a gradual pickup, to around a 3 percent rate, by late in the year, after employers get a better idea of how Clinton's proposed tax increases and health care reforms will affect them.

"Each day you pick up the newspaper there's another trial balloon and that uncertainty is making employers cautious. . . . They want to hold off on hiring until they find out a little more," he said.

In March, nine of the index's forward-looking indicators declined. In order of their effect on the index, from largest to smallest, the negative indicators were:

- A decline in building permits.
- A rise in new claims for unemployment benefits, from a weekly average of 343,000 in February to 376,000 in March.
- A decrease in the average workweek at factories, from 41.5 hours in February to 41.2 in March.
- A dip in consumer confidence as measured by a University of Michigan survey, the third in a row.
- A decline in orders and contracts for new commercial buildings and business machines like factory equipment and computers.
- A drop in new orders to factories for consumer goods.
- A decrease in the inflation-adjusted money supply.
- A speedup in delivery times from factories, a sign of falling demand.
- A fall in the inflation-adjusted backlog of orders at factories, a sign the current workforce is having little trouble keeping up with demand.

Economists said building permits, unemployment benefits and the workweek probably all were affected by the March storm.

Two indicators were positive. Stock prices, as measured by the Standard & Poor's 500, rose. The prices of raw materials rose, a sign of increased demand.

The various changes left the index at a seasonally adjusted 152.0, up 2.8 percent from a year ago and down 0.6 percent from three months ago.

Big Mac marks 25th birthday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jim Delligatti's invention is more than a hot seller. The Big Mac is the sandwich that warmed McDonald's to the idea of changing its menu with the times.

Delligatti, a McDonald's franchise owner in western Pennsylvania, conceived the idea of combining two all-beef patties, special sauce, lettuce, cheese, pickles, onions on a sesame seed bun in 1966.

It took him two years to sell the company on the idea, but since then, 14 billion have been sold. On Tuesday, the company celebrated the 25th anniversary of the Big Mac.

"Franchisees like him led the company to say, 'Maybe we need to be a little bit more open,' " said William Hockett, regional vice president of McDonald's Corp.

Having been burned by the Hulaburger, a ham-and-pineapple bomb cooked up by Chairman Ray Kroc, McDonald's was initially cool to the Big Mac. Executives didn't want to fix a menu that wasn't broken.

"I tried for two years to get McDonald's to let me try this," said Delligatti, who still owns 15 of the 47 McDonald's franchises he has opened in western Pennsylvania.

As Delligatti waited for the company to say yes, he tinkered with the ingredients of the special sauce in the kitchen of his original franchise in suburban Pittsburgh. (He still won't say what's in the sauce).

Diners at his Uniontown franchise were the first to taste the Big Mac. The next year, 1968, it was on the menu in every McDonald's in the country.

Delligatti celebrated the Big Mac's 25th anniversary by blowing out the candles on a 200-pound, hamburger-shaped cake at a downtown McDonald's.

After the Big Mac's success, McDonald's took chances on suggestions from other franchisees for a fish sandwich (Filet-O-Fish) and an egg-cheese-and-bacon sandwich (Egg McMuffin). Both are now often-copied fast-food standards.

Shell Oil Co. CEO to retire

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. President Frank H. Richardson, who reached customary retirement age early this year, announced Tuesday he will step down July 1.

Phillip J. Carroll, executive vice president of administration, will be nominated to the Shell Oil Co. board of directors to succeed Richardson as president and chief executive officer effective July 1.

Richardson, a 60-year-old South Dakota native, first joined Shell Oil in 1955 as an engineer in Midland, Texas. Richardson spent his early career in the exploration and production organization and in Shell Oil's research arm, Shell Develop Development Company.

He became vice president of corporate planning in 1978 and continued to move up in the Shell ranks, named executive vice president of products in 1983.

In 1992, Richardson received the Distinguished Service Award of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Carroll, a New Orleans native, joined Shell in 1961 as a petroleum engineer. After working various assignments in New Orleans, Midland, New York and Los Angeles, he was named director of the Energy Conservation Division for the U.S. Department of Commerce in 1973.

Carroll returned to Shell Oil's exploration and production division a year later and was elected vice president of public affairs for Shell Oil Company in 1979.

Shell Oil Co. reported $239 million in first quarter earnings compared with a $452 million loss in the same period a year ago. Excluding the 1992 charges of $635 million related to the adoption of financial accounting standards for retiree health care benefits and income taxes, earnings were up $195 million.

Shell also announced Tuesday Michael H. Grasley, vice president of chemical products will be named president of Shell Chemical Company.

Midland Park Mall has a retailer relocate to larger quarters and welcomes a new tenant.

FOOT LOCKER has moved to a larger location in the J.C. Penney wing of the mall. The new location is described as approximately three times larger than the former location and has up-to-date fixtures. The new space allows for expansion of the store's lines of athletic shoes and apparel.

A grand reopening celebration is in the planning stages.

The mall also welcomes THE CANDY BIN, which opened a little over a week ago.

Store manager Susan Drennan said the store carries 300 kinds of candy from 39 flavors of Jelly Bellies jelly beans to old fashioned candies like taffy and hard stick candies to a variety of chocolates. There is also a large line of sugar-free candies available.

The store also offers a variety of gift baskets containing not just candy but snacks, gourmet items or potpourri. Delivery is available in both Midland and Odessa.

There is also a variety of Troll dolls, stuffed animals, ceramic mugs and cards.

This marks the second Candy Bin location; the first was opened last summer in Permian Mall. The stores are owned by Odessan Kay Hooper.

Steve Jobs mellows, but his vision is eyed with skepticism

By John Enders
Associated Press writer

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Steve Jobs, multimillionaire cofounder of Apple Computer, still has the brash, knockabout look that made him a symbol of the 1970s corporate counterculture.

There are holes in his jeans and sneakers on his feet. His straight black hair falls down over his forehead.

But today, at 38, Jobs is older and somewhat mellowed. Despite guiding his young Next Computer Inc. through a struggle for survival in a brutal and unforgiving market, Jobs seems happy. He'd rather look ahead than back.

With Steve Wozniak, Jobs built the first Apple in a garage. His sales abilities turned upstart Apple into a giant, ushering in the era of easy-to-use Macintosh personal computers.

National magazines and a computer industry hungry for heroes hailed him as one of the nation's brilliant young entrepreneurs.

Like William Gates, founder and chairman of the wildly successful personal computer software giant Microsoft Corp., Jobs was viewed as an example of American ingenuity that would keep foreign competitors scrambling to keep up.

Now he is enmeshed in the business battle of his life, feverishly working to convince a skeptical world that his eight-year-old company is the next Microsoft.

Ousted as chairman of Apple in a power struggle eight years ago, Jobs founded Next with a big chunk of his own change, $100 million from Canon Inc. and a large equity investment from Ross Perot.

Next recently has undergone radical changes, jettisoning its chief operating officer and its computer hardware business and laying off half its 500 employees. Canon is negotiating to buy the hardware side.

But Jobs remains convinced that his company's critically acclaimed operating system software, NextStep — designed to unify mainframes, workstations and PCs on a single seamless and uniquely flexible system — is the answer to the biggest computing problems of business, government and universities.

"People are always ragging at wanting an alternative to Microsoft," Jobs said in an interview at Next headquarters in a palm-lined high-tech industrial park south of San Francisco. "Here we are. This is the only alternative to Microsoft.

"NextStep is the best work of my life. The question is, will people hear about it?"

When first released in 1988, Next computers ran on a commonly used operating system known as Unix, with microprocessors built by Motorola Corp. — the same computer chip used in Apple computers.

Next's sleek black boxes were unique, but the real strength of the company is NextStep, its "object-oriented" software.

With prepackaged batches of computer code, object-oriented software allows programmers to develop custom applications faster and easier than other software operating systems.

As more companies migrate away from bulky roomsized mainframe computers and powerful but expensive workstations, they are moving toward groups of PCs hooked together in what are called client-server networks.

A big obstacle to this migration is that they run overlapping and in some cases incompatible operating systems and software programs.

The NextStep software system allows programmers to link the systems together quickly and easily, developing applications that work for all of them.

Next claims to be two to four years ahead of Microsoft in developing its own object-oriented system. It has sold systems to the McCaw cellular phone business, a number of government agencies including intelligence agencies and the military, and large corporations with complex and overlapping computing needs.

Gates, whose company is so powerful that the government has investigated it for possible antitrust violations, said he doesn't mind the competition.

"I have known Steve Jobs for over 14 years. I both admire and respect him and his contribution to the industry," he said.

Unlike its original version, NextStep now will run on machines that use the most advanced microprocessors, the internal brains of a computer.

In today's market, as powerful and expensive workstations like Next are giving way to lower-cost PCs running powerful Intel Corp. microprocessors like the recently announced Pentium chip, Jobs says he believes Next is positioned perfectly.

"My confidence that NextStep is the best client-server software in the world is unshakable," Jobs said.

The rest of the world apparently does not share that faith.

Next's agreement with Dell Computer, Epson America Inc. and other computer makers to include NextStep in their machines was an important marketing step, analysts said. But Jobs' failure to convince Hewlett-Packard Co., the world's leading workstation maker, to also install the system was a big minus, they said.

In addition, the recent layoffs of half the company's employees and the departure of former president and chief operating officer Peter van Cuylenburg have created management problems for Jobs, who sometimes is criticized as arrogant, domineering and hostile to constructive criticism.

"Having a know-it-all attitude sometimes has gotten him into trouble," said Rikki Kirzner, who follows Next for Dataquest Inc., a computer industry market research.

For Jobs, who has had his share of tremendous successes, such as the Apple II and the Macintosh, mixed with forgettable failures, such as the Apple III and the ill-fated Lisa computer, Next's next step is critical. He knows the computing world is watching.

"I have made more mistakes than anyone else I know," Jobs said. "I am a product-driven person."

Few people have been as intimately tied to the computer industry as the high-school dropout who sold his old Volkswagen and nearly everything else he owned to raise enough money to build the first Apple, a simple circuit board with no keyboard or case. Some use terms such as genius, brilliant, inspired.

Steve Jobs

"If brilliance is recognizing great opportunities in the marketplace and acting on them effectively, clearly he's brilliant," said Kimball Brown, an analyst with Info Corp., a computer research concern in Santa Clara, Calif.

"This industry and my adult life have overlapped 100 percent," Jobs said. "I can't think of anything else I would rather have done with my life."

But Jobs said he still doesn't get hung up on the fame.

"I've never read any of the books that have been written about me. I think we're born and in a flash we're dead. I didn't think I'd live 'til 30.

"Now, I've got a wife, kids, a home, a dog. And I like it."

Restaurateur Norman Brinker resumes his post as CEO

DALLAS (AP) — A beaming Norman Brinker was back on the job Tuesday, reclaiming his spot as chief executive of Brinker International after recovering from a January polo accident that left him temporarily comatose.

Brinker

"I'm just thrilled to be back," Brinker, 61, told reporters following a board meeting that clinched the CEO's comeback. "I feel absolutely spectacular."

Brinker, looking and sounding healthy but walking a bit stiffly, was accompanied by president and chief operating officer Ron McDougall, who was acting CEO during the restaurateur's convalescence.

Dallas-based Brinker owns and operates four restaurant chains: Chili's Grill & Bar, Grady's American Grill, Romano's Macaroni Grill and Spageddies Italian Food.

The company's headquarters was adorned with a rainbow of balloons and a sign that said "Welcome Back Norman!"

Several Brinker board members have said they replaced Brinker only with the understanding he would return to his old job if he recovered.

When McDougall took over, he urged workers to perform for Brinker.

"I told employees to deliver the best quarter that the company has in its history, and they delivered in spades," McDougall said.

The company's third quarter profit was up 38 percent over a year ago on record revenues.

Earnings for the three months ending March 31 were $12.8 million, or 40 cents per share, compared with $9.3 million or 30 cents a share for the same period in 1992.

"Chili's has nine years of same store sales increases. It's just incredible. And this year it continued right on in spite of all the physical improprieties that have happened — the snowstorm and the windstorm — we've had an all time record quarter," Brinker said.

Also Tuesday, former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach was elected to fill an opening on the 11-member board. Staubach is current president and CEO of The Staubach Co., a real estate venture.

"With his broad based experience and business acumen, Roger will make an excellent addition to the board," McDougall said.

Both Brinker and McDougall declined to take full credit for the company's success.

"I'm glad to get back and join this team again. This is not a Norman Brinker company this is a team company, and that's what makes it exciting," Brinker said.

Two Grady's and four Romano's restaurants were opened during the third quarter. In addition to the 21 Grady's, 19 Romano's and one Spageddies restaurants currently open, Brinker said it plans to inaugurate three Grady's, four Romano's and two Spageddies restaurants during the fourth quarter.

"The past has been good, but the future is incredible," Brinker said.

Radio Shack plans four new outlets

FORT WORTH (AP) — Tandy Corp., owner of Radio Shack and other electronic stores, announced plans Tuesday for four new retail outlets.

The new stores will be known as Radio Shack Express, Computer City Express, Famous Brand Electronics and Energy Express Plus.

The company expects to open 12 Radio Shack Express stores, each of them 1,200 square feet, in highly populated markets. They will carry 75 percent of the popular electronics products sold in Radio Shack outlets.

Computer City Express stores will be located in major metropolitan markets and carry top-selling personal computer and home office products sold in the chain's larger SuperCenters.

Famous Brand Electronics stores will be located in outlet shopping malls. The 3,500-square-foot stores will cared a variety of audio and video products from Radio Shack and other leading manufacturers.

Start Mother's Day with a healthy breakfast

By Catharine Powers
Associated Press

Mother's Day stirs up childhood memories of me, my brothers and sisters preparing breakfast for my mother. The food was relatively unsophisticated, and it was difficult for mom to eat — once all four children climbed into bed to "help."

Nevertheless, it was our token of love to her on Mother's Day.

This year, Mother's Day takes on new significance. Last year, on Mother's Day, I was giving birth to my first child, Andrew.

Today, breakfast is taking a healthy turn away from fat-laden breakfast meats, butters and sugary syrups. With a few minor changes, the first meal of the day can be the foundation for a healthy diet and lifestyle. What better way to start off Mother's Day!

And, since I am still trying to lose a few of those "pregnancy pounds," I'm offering some creative, delicious and nutritious recipes from The Culinary Institute's new book, "The Professional Chef's Techniques of Healthy Cooking" (Van Nostrand Reinhold).

BANANA PANCAKES

1¼ cups oat bran
1½ cups all-purpose flour, sifted
1 tablespoon baking soda
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1 cup plain nonfat yogurt
1 ripe banana, peeled, mashed with a fork
1 tablespoon corn oil
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 egg whites

Combine the oat bran, flour, baking soda and sugar in a bowl. Stir to combine the ingredients evenly.

In a separate small bowl mix the yogurt, banana, corn oil and vanilla. Add these ingredients to the dry ingredients; stir just until blended. Beat the egg whites until medium peaks form; fold them into the pancake batter.

Heat a nonstick griddle or skillet over medium high heat until a drop of water "travels" across the surface before evaporating. Drop the batter using a ⅓ cup measuring cup onto the preheated griddle; cook for about 2 minutes on the first side (bubbles will burst on the surface and the top side will appear slightly dull). Turn and finish cooking on the second side for another 2 minutes. Serve the pancakes at once, or keep them warm in a 200-degree oven, loosely covered with foil. Makes 18 to 20 medium pancakes.

NOTE: If this recipe produces more pancakes than you can eat in one sitting, cook all the batter anyway. Lay the pancakes out on a baking sheet; place in a freezer for about 20 minutes. Transfer the frozen pancakes to a freezer container or bag. It will be easy to remove the number you want. Reheat in a skillet or in the microwave oven, about 20 seconds at medium (50 percent power), or until warm.

WARM FRUIT COMPOTE

2 cups sliced, cored and peeled fresh fruits, such as berries, peaches, nectarines, apricots, bananas, papayas, pineapples and cherries
½ cup pureed raspberries
½ cup peach or apricot nectar
2 teaspoons orange zest

Combine all ingredients in a saucepan. Heat over low heat, stirring frequently, until warm, but not boiling. If the sauce seems too sweet, add a few drops of fresh lemon juice. Serve immediately with pancakes, waffles or crepes. Will keep in the refrigerator for about 3 days. Makes 2 cups.

NOTE: For an instant breakfast drink, combine leftover compote with nonfat yogurt and orange juice; blend until smooth.

MAPLE AND APPLE BUTTER SYRUP

1¼ cups apple butter
½ cup fresh unfiltered apple cider
1¼ cups maple syrup

Combine the apple butter and cider in a saucepan over low heat. Heat gently, stirring frequently, until it comes to a simmer. Add the maple syrup and return to a simmer. Will keep under refrigeration for up to 2 weeks. To reheat, warm gently over low heat or in a microwave oven. Makes 2 cups.

Host a tea for Mom on Mother's Day

Associated Press

Mother's Day Tea can make Mom feel very special. Julee Rosso offers a tray full of delicious dishes — including currant scones and warm ginger tea — in her new cookbook, "Great Good Food: Luscious Lower-Fat Cooking."

CURRANT SCONES

1 cup currants
¼ cup fresh orange juice
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup low-fat buttermilk
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
3 tablespoons canola oil
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Soak the currants in the orange juice for 1 hour. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly spray or wipe two baking sheets with vegetable oil.

In a medium-size bowl, place all of the remaining ingredients and stir with a fork just until blended; do not overmix. Add the soaked currants and juice.

Drop the dough in 2 tablespoon measures spaced about 1½ inches apart on the sheets. You should have 24 scones. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes, until golden brown.

Nutrition information per scone: 69 cal., 12 g carbo., 2 g pro., 0 mg chol., 2 g fat.

WARM GINGER TEA

4 teaspoons loose English breakfast tea
1 teaspoon chopped fresh ginger
4 orange slices, ¼-inch thick
8 whole cloves

Fill a kettle with water and bring to a boil. Rinse the inside of a teapot with 2 cups hot water and drain. Put the tea leaves and ginger in the teapot and add 6 cups of boiling water. Cover the teapot with a tea towel and steep for 5 minutes.

Stud each orange slice with 2 cloves and place at the bottom of a teacup. Stir the tea, then strain into the cups. Makes 4 servings.

Chicken pot pie made microwavable

By Linda Anderson

Everybody had their own favorite comfort foods. Most people will list things like mom's meatloaf with mashed potatoes; homemade chicken soup; hot chocolate with marshmallows; or pot roast. All those things are on my list too, but so are a lot of other, more convenient foods — like pot pies.

Anderson

I admit it, I love frozen pot pies. When I was a kid my favorite was Banquet tuna pot pie, but I haven't seen those in years. (In fact, I've noticed that frozen pot pies don't taste like they used to either — something about thinner crusts and not as much filling.)

Evidently a lot of other people are fond of pot pies too, because food manufacturers are beginning to market some pot pies designed to be cooked in the microwave oven, which was unknown in most kitchens in my childhood.

Tyson's White Meat Chicken Pie is one of these new products. When I found out that this particular pot pie has no vegetables in it — just chicken and sauce — I couldn't resist buying one, although I do have my doubts about microwaveable pot pies. They just can't seem to get the crust right...

A single-serving 9-ounce Tyson White Meat Chicken Pie cost $1.89, which is quite a bit more than an ordinary pot pie costs, but you have to pay extra to get the convenience of "microwaveable" anything.

Label advertising claims the pie has "Tender chunks of all-white chicken meat, in a rich creamy sauce topped with a flaky pastry crust," and that it's "Great for Microwave or Conventional Oven."

This part is my favorite: "Remember the old-fashioned goodness of homemade chicken pie? Tyson brings it back with a delicious, fresh tasting pie that has all the flavor ot the good old days. There was only one way we could make it better: we made it microwaveable, too."

In the taste-test — well, all I can say was that the company made a valiant effort. The chicken was good and so was the sauce. And I loved the fact that the pie had no vegetables and a lot of chicken.

Still can't get the crust right though...

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Cookbooks are great gifts for Moms who like to cook

By Carol Deegan
Associated Press

Not all Moms love to cook, but most find themselves preparing meals for their families on a daily basis (whether they like it or not).

One way to make meal preparation more interesting: give Mom a cookbook that can provide inspiration and lift her out of everyday cooking doldrums. It doesn't have to be a fancy cookbook, just one that can give Mom an idea or two to make cooking more interesting — and fun.

Two helpful, basic cookbooks: "The 5 in 10 Cookbook: 5 Ingredients in 10 Minutes or Less" by Paula Hamilton (Hearst Books, $15) and "The Kitchen Survival Guide" by Lora Brody (William Morrow, $20).

The 5 in 10 Cookbook

Hamilton's cookbook couldn't be more simple: 164 easy recipes that use no more than five ingredients and cook in 10 minutes or less; everything from appetizers and soups to main courses and desserts.

Among the offerings: rotelle with feta, chopped tomatoes and olives; Caribbean chicken curry; red cabbage and apples in caraway cream sauce; and lemon cloud pie.

Hamilton, the food editor of the Oakland Tribune, stresses the importance of a well-stocked pantry, adding: "Although saving time was our goal, we found that we saved a fortune when we stopped bringing in carryout a couple of nights a week and started limiting the number of ingredients we purchased."

The Kitchen Survival Guide

Although "The Kitchen Survival Guide" is targeted for the newly graduated, newly married, newly single and others who are venturing into the kitchen for the first time, it is also a good source of information for veteran cooks who still aren't sure whether ketchup should go in the refrigerator (it shouldn't), how to tell if eggs are fresh (an egg is stale if it floats in a bowl of water), or how to keep green beans, fresh spinach and peas green (add a pinch of baking soda to the cooking water).

'Although saving time was our goal, we found that we saved a fortune when we stopped bringing in carryout a couple of nights a week and started limiting the number of ingredients we purchased.'

— Paula Hamilton
cookbook author

Brody builds kitchen confidence with 130 basic recipes as well as hundreds of helpful hints that Grandma forgot to share. Recipes include a zesty three-bean salad, beef bourguignon and better-than-store-bought oatmeal cookies.

Brody, who lives in Newton, Mass., is also the author of "Growing Up on the Chocolate Diet," "Indulgences" and "Cooking with Memories."

Great Good Food

For Moms who want to cut the fat out of their family's meals: "Great Good Food: Luscious Lower-Fat Cooking" by Julee Rosso (Crown-Turtle Bay Books, $19 softcover; $29.95 hardcover) is filled with some 800 recipes, menus and a nutrition update.

In the introduction, Rosso says she's become aware of the frustrations of home cooks who want to prepare meals every day that are more healthful, that have fewer fats and less cholesterol — and yet will please the palate.

Her cookbook explains how to figure a daily fat allowance in calories and grams, tells how to stock a "low-fat" pantry and provides "great good basics" such as yogurt cheese, chicken broth, flaky pie crust and sourdough starter.

The recipes are divided by season. The cookbook also contains menus for special occasions, international dishes and the "new classics" including pestos, flavored oils and salad spritzes, splashes and sprays.

Rosso's selection of innovative and taste-tempting recipes includes rum-glazed country ham, Colorado pasta salad, fried green tomatoes and peach pie. Rosso, the co-author of the Silver Palate cookbooks and "The New Basics Cookbook," lives in Saugatuck, Mich., where she and her husband own the Wickwood Country Inn.

DEAR ABBY

Son's laughter amidst tears embarrasses mom at funeral

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last week, I attended the funeral of a cousin I was especially close to. We were the same age (56) and he was dearly loved by all who knew him.

Van Buren

In the middle of the minister's eulogy, my son, who was seated in the row ahead of me, started to laugh. Seated next to him was his cousin, and for some reason, they both started to laugh. My son is 31 and his cousin is a year younger. Abby, here are two grown men attending a funeral, and they were laughing so hard, their shoulders were shaking.

Tears were running down my son's cheeks, so I handed him my handkerchief. It was pale pink with butterflies embroidered on it, and when his cousin saw it, he got hysterical all over again. Mind you, this was during a funeral service.

I finally tapped my son on the shoulder and motioned for him to leave and take his cousin with him. (Later someone mentioned to me that my son took my cousin's death very hard. I didn't say anything.)

After the service, I apologized to the minister. He said, "I've seen this happen before; don't worry about it."

Abby, is there some explanation for this? Getting the giggles at a funeral seems very odd to me. — EMBARRASSED IN BOSTON

DEAR EMBARRASSED: It's not unusual for the emotions to become confused when one is stressed out, grieving or elated. Inappropriate laughter ("I laughed so hard, I cried") and "tears of joy" are natural reactions.

So, as the minister said, "Don't worry about it."

DEAR ABBY: I do not know how to tell you this, but this is not a perfect world we're living in. So, to the people who are bothered by their neighbors' floodlights, may I suggest that they move somewhere else?

We live out in the sticks of West Virginia. It takes the state police or sheriff 30 minutes to get to our house after they're called. It takes the fire department 15 minutes.

We farm and have a lot of equipment to worry about. One small tractor costs more than $20,000. Everything we own is engraved with our license numbers for the police to trace if it is stolen.

If we lived in a perfect world, we would not need lights to protect us. We have six 150-watt mercury vapor lights shining bright and locks on the barns, and still gasoline is stolen from our truck parked in our driveway next to our house.

When some of our cars were stolen, the insurance company refused to pay. Why? No locks on the gates! Our woods are used for a sexual fun house! In spite of the no-trespassing signs, someone grew pot in seven containers in our woods last year. There are varmints in the country, both the four-legged and two-legged variety. — PHILIP D. KEISTER, GREENVILLE, W.VA.

DEAR PHILIP: I suspect you are attempting to downplay the many attractive aspects of your beautiful state in order to discourage people from moving there. (Look what happened to California; even the threat of earthquakes didn't help.)

ACS Texas Golf Card benefits mom, cancer

Staff report

Mother's Day is Sunday, and if you're still looking for a last minute gift for mom — and she likes the links — consider giving her (or any golf lover) a Texas Golf Card.

For just $25, mom will be able to golf at courses around the state for reduced or free greens fees through Dec. 31. And the courses participating in this program are quality courses. Maybe mom will finally get to play the 18 holes of her dreams.

"With the Texas Golf Card, everyone wins," said Larry Martin, chairman of the Texas Division Golf Committee. "Not only do Texas golfers get to enjoy golf at a great value, they also are helping a great cause that makes a difference for those affected by cancer."

Proceeds from the Texas Golf Card fund American Cancer Society projects and research in communities throughout the state.

For more information about the Texas Golf Card, call 1-800-ACS-2345, or contact the local ACS at 683-6374. Payment by check, Visa, Mastercard or American Express is accepted.

Crowned with fresh raspberries, this Angel Food Cake is the perfect dessert to make Mom feel special or Mother's Day, or to use for any summer entertaining.

Make Mom an angel for her day

Associated Press

Packaged cake mix and chilled whipping cream make a delicate Petal Pink Angel Cake for Mother's Day. The cake is topped with "flowers" made with sliced almonds and raspberries. Older children can help bake the cake; younger kids can help with the frosting.

PETAL PINK ANGEL CAKE
1 package angel food cake mix
¾ teaspoon almond extract
Red food coloring
2 cups whipping cream, chilled
1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
¼ cup sliced almonds, for garnish
Fresh raspberries, for garnish

Mix cake ingredients according to package directions. Fold in ½ teaspoon of the almond extract. Place 3 cups of the batter in a medium bowl. Fold in 3 drops red food coloring. Spoon half the white batter into an ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Cover with pink batter. Top with remaining white batter. To prevent air pockets from forming in the cake while baking, use a spatula to press the batter into the sides and bottom of the pan. Bake and cool cake following package directions.

For the frosting, place whipping cream, gelatin and remaining ¼ teaspoon almond extract in a large bowl. Beat at medium speed with an electric mixer. Add confectioners' sugar gradually. Beat at high speed until soft peaks form. Tint with 3 drops of red food coloring.

To assemble, place cake on serving plate. Frost sides and top with whipping cream mixture. Decorate with sliced almonds and raspberries to form flowers. Use the raspberries as the flowers and the almonds as the petals.

Recipe is from Duncan Hines.

Brownies can make Mom feel like a star

Associated Press

Mom is the star on Mother's Day and to show her just how much you care, dad and the kids can make a batch of star- and heart-shaped brownies. Let the kids stir the batter, while dad takes charge of the baking. When the brownies have cooled, everyone grabs a cookie cutter.

COCOA BROWNIE CUT-OUTS
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup cocoa
⅓ cup all-purpose flour
½ cup applesauce
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup finely chopped nuts
Powdered sugar

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Line an 8-inch square baking pan with foil; spray foil with vegetable cooking spray. In a small mixer bowl, stir together granulated sugar, cocoa and flour. Add applesauce, egg whites and vanilla; beat until well blended. Stir in nuts. Spread batter in prepared pan. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 minutes or until edges are firm. Cool completely on a wire rack. Place in the freezer about 15 minutes for easier cutting.

Lift brownies from pan using the sides of the foil; carefully peel off the foil. With small cookie cutters, cut brownies into desired shapes or cut into squares. Sprinkle powdered sugar over top. Makes 16 brownies.

Summer Childcare DIRECTORY ©

As a childcare provider you are well aware of the vital concern for today's children by today's parents. For this reason we will be publishing the Annual Childcare Directory on Sunday, May 16th.

If you have ever wished for a method to reach more parents with information about the services that you provide, the Childcare Directory is your wish come true. Midland parents have come to rely on this directory as a guide to quality childcare. This section focuses on the basic "who, what, where and when" of quality childcare in the our area and includes a locator map.

You will probably want your facility represented with an ad in this special section, a dot on a location map, a photo and a story about your facility. We have some special packages for this ranging from 8" ads to 18" ads. We also have ads that are not packaged and can run in the section without any of the other special advantages. For more information and to reserve your ad in the Childcare Directory call:

DELIVERY

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of distributor ship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!
