SERIES OF TORNADOES IN SOUTH EXACT HEAVY TOLL OF LIVES AND PROPERTY

PARTS OF FOUR STATES VISITED BY THE STORMS

Twenty-Seven Persons Are Known to Have Been Killed and Many Others Seriously Injured.

Infant Is Blown From Bed to a Picket Fence Where It Was Held Without Injury.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—At least 27 persons were killed and many others were seriously injured as a result of a series of storms, at places reaching proportions of tornadoes, which visited isolated sections of Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma last night and early today.

The heaviest loss of life reported was at Gowen, Okla., a village 15 miles east of McAlester, where 12 persons were killed, when a tornado swept through the foreign section of the village last night. Many others were slightly injured.

Four white persons and six negroes were killed when the storm passed through the northeastern section of Jefferson county and the southeastern section of Lonoke county, Arkansas, early today. The storm in this section left a trail of wrecked buildings for 20 miles. Several were slightly injured, none seriously.

At Sulphur, Okla., two white men, Thomas Atkins, 60, and Virgil Hampton, 70, were killed late yesterday. Nineteen others were seriously injured and scores suffered slight injuries. Property damage is estimated at $100,000. Fifty buildings were completely demolished and 200 people who were left homeless are being cared for in residences which escaped the path of the tornado.

Eight homes were demolished at Sunrise, a village two miles north of Baton Rouge, and a negro woman and her child were killed. Four others were slightly injured there early today.

Twenty persons were injured, a number seriously, when the storm struck Corinth, Miss., today. More than 150 homes were leveled. The storm swept a path more than 100 feet wide, razing every building in its path. Reports from outlying districts tell of considerable property damage.

An aged negro man was killed and several negroes were slightly injured and a score of houses were destroyed and one man was injured near Alexandria, La., when the storm passed there last night. Only meagre details are available from the sections visited by the storm on account of the damage to wire communication, and it is feared the death toll will be greatly increased when complete reports are available. Little effort has been made to estimate the property damage, which, in addition to destroyed homes and other buildings, includes damage to crops and destruction of live stock. Rivers and smaller streams in practically all the sections visited by the storm, which was accompanied by heavy rains, are swollen and some apprehension is felt on this account.

The storm was accompanied by the usual freaks, the most outstanding of which was reported from Kennett, Ark., where a 12-day-old infant was blown from a bed on which it was lying across the yard where its clothing held it suspended to a picket fence, until the storm abated. The baby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Woods, were seriously injured.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

BY H. N. F.

A plea of the law, because it is the law, and especially for the preservation of the Bill of Rights, was the chief point of an address to the University club by Clarence Ousley, candidate for U. S. senator. "It would almost seem from current doings and sayings," said Mr. Ousley, "that the Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the constitution of the United States, are among the dead languages of political thinking, official conduct and mass action. Not a day passes but that the newspapers record a violation of one or more of these precious guarantees of liberty. Many of our people seem to have lost respect for law as law and feel free to disobey any law they did not favor. I once heard a great preacher say that God commands some things because they are right, but that some things are right because God commands them. So, the law commands some things because they are right as we all see the right, and some other things are right for obedience because the law commands them. More than any other need today we need a revival of respect for law—for divine law, for moral law and for civil law—because it is law, for when each becomes a law unto himself, we have anarchy. The dynamiter is not so hurtful to civil order as the smug citizen who violates the law he does not like, or the self-righteous group who punish persons they do not like, or the self-centered community that defies the will of the commonwealth." Mr. Ousley read the Bill of Rights and commented upon each article in detail. He then pointed out how recent mob action violated the first article in respect to freedom of religion and speech, the fourth in respect to unwarranted searches and seizures, the fifth in respect to deprivation of liberty without due process of law, the sixth in respect to trial by jury, and the eighth in respect to cruel and unusual punishments. JOBS SOUGHT FOR JOBLESS VETS IN TEXAS

By Associated Press.

GOLIAD, Texas, March 14.—Declaring that there are 14,000 ex-service men out of work in Texas, Wayne B. Davis, state commander of the American Legion today exhorted mayors of Texas cities to proclaim March 20, as "Unemployed Ex-Service Men's day."

Commander Davis' statement bore on the American Legion's national employment campaign for ex-service men and declared that the first duty of the organization was to help his brother-in-arms in the great conflict.

"There are 700,000 ex-service men in this country out of work," Commander Davis said. "Fourteen thousand of these men live in Texas. 'Ex-service men without employment should return to their home town' is the battle cry, because the American Legion is asking every community to take care of its own.

"Be each legion post in America not only taking a census of all unemployed ex-service men in their communities, but a census of the jobs that are open as well, the legion expects March 20 to bring the jobs and ex-service men together.

"We ask that the preachers interest themselves in this campaign of finding work for the unemployed. We ask the business men to enlist in the fight of securing jobs for veterans. We call on all civic, fraternal and commercial organizations in the state to take some definite action to assist the American Legion to find work for the thousands of these men who only a short while ago carried a 60-pound pack upon their backs and a 10-pound rifle in their hands.

"Speak," Commander Davis concluded, "the entire citizenship of Texas can unite on March 20 in a sincere effort to find jobs for ex-service men in every community of the sta "

SIX TENTATIVE JURORS CHOSEN TO TRY 'FATTY'

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Six jurors had been accepted tentatively at the close of today's session of the third manslaughter trial of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle. Two of them were women. Only a half day session of court was held on account of the funeral of a sister of one of the prospective jurors.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON LOSES $14 A WEEK JOB AS OFFICE BOY

By Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 14.—"Jimmy" Sanford, son of the millionaire turfman, William Sanford, has lost his $14 a week office boy with a local typewriter manufacturing company.

"I'm fired because they wanted to give the job to somebody that needed the money," Jimmy explained today.

So once more Jimmy is on the hunt for a job and in the meantime can afford to fall back on his $2,000 a year allowance to pay his bills at an expensive hotel, where he continues to live. By the terms of his father's will he must work two years before he can come into his $350,000 inheritance.

IS THIS CITY WICKED OR "AS GOOD AS THE AVERAGE"?

Business and residential view of Hollywood.

Wicked or holy? Hollywood, Cal., has occupied more space in the newspapers since the murder of William Desmond Taylor than was ever given any city in the United States. Trained writers from both west and east have taken stands as to the character of the inhabitants of the city. The citizens of Los Angeles are almost a unit in declaring that Hollywood is the equal of the average American city in its morals though the majority of its inhabitants are theatrical people who, as a rule, create an impression which does them an injustice. Hollywood supports one of the finest churches in the country, its boosters point out.

BEN LUNA AND ROWAN CASES ARE AFFIRMED

Men Were Convicted of Complicity in Dallas Robbery and Sentenced to 25 Years in Prison.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—The United States circuit court of appeals today affirmed the decision of the district court at Dallas, Texas, in the cases against Albert L. Rowan and R. Ben Luna, convicted of complicity in the holdup of the Jackson street postoffice sub-station in Dallas January 14, 1921, and sentenced to 25 years at Leavenworth prison.

Seven men were implicated in the affair, said by postal authorities to have been one of the boldest in the history of the southwest. According to evidence, five men in an automobile drove to the sub-station shortly before 7 o'clock on the evening of January 14, began a general fusilade of shots, fatally wounding George W. Street, a postal clerk and two employes, seized five bags of registered mail and escaped. Contents of the pouches proved the bandits made a poor choice, however, for it developed that while containing cancelled liberty bonds and mutilated currency to the paper value of $2,000,000 or more, the bags contained but $7,000 in negotiable currency, most of which was subsequently recovered.

Luna and Rowan were sentenced to 25 years in Leavenworth prison. In addition, Rowman, son of a well known Dallas business man, was found guilty of the murder of Street in a state court and sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment. Luna was not indicted in the state court in connection with the death of Street.

Charles E. Gaines, indicted by both federal and state grand juries, was found guilty by a county court and sentenced to pay the death penalty for murder in connection with Street's death. He has not been tried in federal court.

W. S. Scrivner, escaped Texas convict, self-confessed member of the postoffice bandit gang, and chief prosecuting witness in all trials, was found guilty of mail robbery but sentence was deferred. He was also indicted by the county grand jury for murder, but has not been tried.

Of the three remaining mail robbers Pat Murphy met quick retribution when his automobile was wrecked near Fort Worth three hours after the holdup while he and Scrivner were fleeing from officers. Scrivner was pinned under the car where officers arrested him and later secured his confession. The other two have never been arrested.

MEXICO CITY, March 14.—Tomas Garrido, governor of the state of Tabasco, has been added to the list of state executives ousted by dissenting legislatures.

Word came today that his legislature had deposed him and and named Pedro Casanova as provisional governor.

CATTLEMEN AT MEET TOLD OF TARIFF NEEDS

Organization Is Urged to "Think Together" and to Adopt Set Policy That Will Be Recognized.

By Associated Press

FORT WORTH, March 14.—Entreating the organization to "think together" and adopt a set policy which will be recognized, executive speakers at the opening session of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association dealt upon the urgent need of a protective tariff which will place the cattle industry on an equal basis with foreign marketing. W. W. Turney, president of the association, was the man speaker, in this appeal. It is his last address in his official capacity of president, as he has announced his intention of retiring.

Ike T. Pryor, of San Antonio, also urged the necessity of such a tariff, as did W. D. Davis, who welcomed the cattlemen in behalf of the chamber of commerce. Mayor E. R. Cockrell welcomed the cattlemen to Fort Worth.

Turney announced that the association had taken steps to conduct an educational campaign, urging the eating of meat and pointing out the food value of cattle products. He attacked the action of Herbert Hoover, who, he said, gave out statements during the war that the food value of meat was negligible and proclaiming "meatless days." This, Turney declared, has done more economic injury to the cattle industry than any other one thing that occurred during the war.

The report of the executive committee to the convention, setting out the work of the association, disclosed the great amount of good said to have been done by the war finance corporation. It also tended to show that this institution was created through the efforts of Texas men.

With regard to tariffs, the report said that the opinion of the association on this subject had been communicated to members of congress in Washington and also to the southern tariff congress. The latter organization is in sympathy with these views, the report says, and much valuable data has been furnished the organization.

The reduction of rates also has been stressed by the officers of the association, although few reductions of any sort have been granted by the interstate commerce commission, the report said, adding that a petition of some kind has been before the commission ever since the increase of rates. An increase of from $12 to $15 a car in transportation rates has placed the marketing of cattle on a questionable basis, it said, and the stockmen are losing money because of it.

There are 4,602 members of the association at present, controlling 1,909,464 cattle, according to the report. During the past year 244 applications for membership, controlling 94,518 cattle, have been received.

OFFICIALS SEE NO METHOD TO AVERT STRIKE

John L. Lewis Reassures Secretary Davis of Miners' Willingness to Submit to Arbitration.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Secretary of Labor Davis and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, exchanged views today on the threatened situation in the bituminous coal industry and both were were said, after their conference, to be of the opinion that a national strike in the union fields was inevitable. Mr. Lewis assured Mr. Davis again of the willingness of the miners' union to open negotiations for a new national wage scale, a proposition which mine operators are refusing to entertain.

Mr. Lewis declared the cessation of work in the union mines after April 1, was "coming about automatically," and asserted that "a bold commercial policy of the operators for which the public must pay" was in part responsible. If there is no conference between the miners' union and the operators, he added, referring to the bituminous situation, "there can be no wage contract drawn up. If there is no wage contract, there wont be any coal dug after April 1 in union mines."

ANTHRACITE GROUPS WILL CONFER TODAY

NEW YORK, March 14.—Anthracite miners and operators will meet in joint conference tomorrow with timely prospect of reaching an agreement on wage scales before the expiration of the present contract on March 31, which will mean a suspension of mining in the Pennsylvania hard coal field until satisfactory arrangements have been arrived at.

This was the opinion of operators and miners here tonight for the conference. A suspension would not mean a break in negotiations because before in the history of wage conferences in t his industry operators and miners continued the discussion of wage contracts to a satisfactory conclusion while the colliers remained idle.

The miners union is not expected to make any announcement regarding a suspension in advance of developments indicating that no agreement can be reached by March 31.

DIRECTORS OF SIOUX O. & R. NAMED AGAIN

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Sioux Oil and Refining company, held Tuesday in the local offices, 1116 City National Bank building, the old board of directors was re-elected.

The board members are: W. C. Kirkpatrick, Sioux City, Iowa; A. V. Taylor, Wichita Falls; F. W. Woods, Spencer, Nebraska; George H. Sieb, Sioux City, Iowa; W. H. Ostenberg, Omaha, Nebraska; James T. Pearson, Moline, Ill., and W. H. Harrison, Omaha, Nebraska.

A. V. Taylor is general manager, and G. J. Coffey is secretary and assistant treasurer, both making Wichita Falls their headquarters and their home.

This company has five producing wells in the Burkburnett field, eight producers in Breckenridge, has two now drilling in the Eldorado, Arkansas, pool, and an interest in a well drilling in Mexia. It is also drilling a test in the Ivan pool, in northern Stephens county. The company has several thousand acres of leases in various pools in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE ORDERS FAVORABLE REPORT ON COMPROMISE BONUS MEASURE

VARSITY CLUB HEARS OUSLEY TUESDAY NOON

Senatorial Candidate Denounces Those Who Violate Laws, However High Professed Motive.

For Closer and More Helpful Foreign Relations and Decentralization of Government Authority.

"The dynamiter is not half as much an enemy of civilization as the smug citizen who breaks the laws," declared Clarence Ousley, candidate for the United States senate from Texas, who was a guest of the University club at their weekly luncheon Tuesday. Mr. Ousley's address, a brief, but polished, discussion of some of the problems before the country today, closed with a forceful plea for the preservation of the liberties guaranteed in the first 10 amendments to the Constitution of the United States, and with strong condemnation of "any group, no matter how high the purpose they may profess, who violate these principles guaranteed in the constitution."

Not a day passes in Texas but at least five of these rights are broken, Mr. Ousley declared, mentioning among others those guaranteeing jury trials, guaranteeing against arrests without warrants; against trials where the accusers do not face the accused in open, public trials; and against search of homes without legal warrants obtained with due respect to the rights of the individual.

National Issues

Mr. Ousley, in addition to this, declared that it was of prime importance to the United States to establish close and friendly relations with its neighbors on the earth; declared for the decentralization of the credit system of the United States through decentralization of control of the Federal Reserve system, and the substitution of the thought of manufacturers, merchants and farmers for the 100 per cent control by bankers of the Federal reserve board. He also expressed himself as opposed to the "overlordship of Washington" and declared that he thought that the encroachment of power by the federal government should be stopped.

In declaring for better relations by the United States with its neighbors, he deplored the action of the present administration in refusing representation at the Genoa conference. Using the hypothetical illustration of a West Texas community whose business houses should do business with a Wichita Falls wholesale house, and who in a bad year were unable to pay their debts to the Wichita Falls wholesale house, he asked his hearers if they could imagine a meeting of those creditors without representation by the Wichita Falls wholesale house in the effort to work out the situation. MRS. OBENCHAIN AND FEMININE JUROR IN TEARS

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—Tears came to the eyes of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain today as she listened to the opening arguments in her behalf in her trial on the charge of murdering her sweetheart, J. Belton Kennedy. Alfred F. MacDonald, who made the argument, dealt upon the love which, according to testimony, existed between the defendant and Kennedy, declaring it showed she had no motive for plotting Kennedy's death.

One of the three women on the jury wept when MacDonald read a letter Kennedy wrote to Mrs. Obenchain containing the appeal:

"Love me always." The attorney declared the state's theory that Mrs. Obenchain was "A woman scorned," had been disproved and that "if anything this was a case of a man scorned."

MacDonald will resume his argument tomorrow, according to the announced program.

FORMER MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL PLAYER DIES

By Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, Conn., March 14.—Daniel J. Hoffman, former major league baseball player, died at his home here today, aged 42. He played with the New York and St. Louis clubs of the American league as an outfielder. While with the latter club in Boston in 1905, he was hit on the head by a pitched ball and had not played since.

PRINCE WILL WAIT ONE MORE DAY TO TELL GHOST STORY

By Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S. March 14.—Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, the scientific ghost hunter from New York, announced tonight it would take him another day to complete his report on the ghost of Antigonish.

The report dealing at leangth with the mysterious fires and other manifestations that drove Alex MacDonald with his family from their home in Caledonia Mills—and with the Moot question of whether Dr. Prince saw or did not see the ghost—probably will be made public tomorrow, he said.

In the meantime, Dr. Prince refuses to talk.

ATTEMPTS TO AMEND TREATY ARE DEFEATED

Four Republicans Vote in Affirmative While Equal Number of Democrats Join Opposition.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—After another stormy debate in which possible political consequences of the administration treaty program were discussed from several angles, the senate late today rejected by a division almost on party lines the first two of the proposed amendments to the four power Pacific pact.

At the peak of their strength with eleven short of the full membership present and voting, the opposition to the treaty marshalled 28 democratic and four republican votes, within two of a third of the full senate membership, but three less than enough to upset the two-thirds needed for final ratification if all seantors participate in this vote. Leaders on both sides conceded, however, that at best the division was but a poor index to senate sentiment on the question of ratification itself.

The first of the two amendments acted upon was offered by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and provided that four powers should refrain from aggression against nonsignatories to the treaty or not should be invited to any conference over a Pacific controversy. The proposal was lost, 30 to 55. Later a similar amendment in different form was presented by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, and was vote down, 27 to 50.

On both roll calls four republicans, Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, France of Maryland and LaFollette of Wisconsin, voted in the affirmative while an equal number of democrats, Pomerone of Ohio, Ransdell of Louisiana, Underwood of Alabama, and Williams of Mississippi, joined the opposition.

In the debate preceding the first vote nearly all the issues of the treaty fight were revived and both democrats and republicans indulged in prophecies of what might happen if the arms conference treaties became an issue between the republican and democratic parties. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, warned the democratic side of the chamber that should the four power pact be defeated, President Harding might withdraw the other treaties from the senate and ask the country for a verdict at the polls in November.

Both Senators Lodge, Massachusetts, the republican leader, and Underwood, democrat, Alabama, the democratic leader, argued against the amendments on the ground that they would necessitate reopening the negotiations. When Senator Walsh suggested that the American people would not be satisfied with such an explanation, Senator Lodge retorted that "we'll risk that."

MOTHER OF FOUR TEXAS METHODIST MINISTERS DIES

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, March 14.—Mrs. Mary F. Barcus, age 90 years, died here early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. W. Stanford. She was the widow of Rev. E. R. Barcus, who died in 1896. She had been a member of the Methodist church 80 years and was the mother of 13 children, grandmother of 52 and great grandmother of 28. Four of her sons are Methodist ministers and two of them are now presiding elders.

The sons in the ministry are J. M. Barcus, presiding elder of the Georgetown district; T. S. Barcus, presiding elder of the Brownwood district; J. Sam Barcus of Denton and E. R. Barcus of Austin. Eleven of the children are living and nine of them were present when she died. Her eldest child is 69 years old. Burial will be Wednesday at Stanford chapel, six miles west of the city, her first Texas home of 46 years ago. Her seven sons will be pallbearers.

VOTE ON BILL NINETEEN FOR; FIVE AGAINST

Three Democrats and Two Republicans Cast Ballots Opposing Favorable Report on Measure.

Formal Report Will Be Submitted at Once With Time for Calling Up Bill Yet Undetermined.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A favorable report on the long controverted soldiers' bonus bill was ordered today by the house ways and means committee by a vote of 19 to 5. Chairman Fordney plans to submit his formal report tomorrow or Thursday, but said the time of calling the measure up in the house would not be fixed definitely until after the return here of Speaker Gillett, who is in Florida with President Harding.

The vote on the measure today in the committee was taken ten minutes after Secretary Mellon, Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger and Governor Harding of the federal reserve board, had been questioned for two hours in open session as to their ideas of the band loan adjusted certificate plan. The five members voting against a favorable report were Garner of Texas; Kitchin, North Carolina, and Collier Mississippi, democrats, and Treadway of Massachusetts, and Tilson of Connecticut, republicans. All members of the committee were present with the exception of Mr. Kitchin and Representative Chandler, republican, Oklahoma, whose votes were cast by proxy.

Before the final vote the committee rejected, 19 to 5 an amendment offered by representative Backarach, republican, New Jersey, to impose for a period of three years a one-per cent tax on wholesales, designed to raise $500,000,000 with which to finance the bonus.

Those supporting this amendment were all republicans, Longworth of Ohio, Bacarach, Mott, of New York, Tilson and Watson of Pennsylvania.

Under an amendment suggested by Governor Harding and adopted by unanimous vote, the banks making original loans on the adjusted service certificates could have those certificates rediscounted by other banks authorized to make original loans on the certificates. Governor Harding objected to having the certificates rediscountable by federal reserve banks, saying the general economic effect would be unfavorable.

The committee rejected an amendment by Representative Oldfield, democrat, Arkansas, proposing to restore the original cash provision in place of the bank loan amendment and to reimpose the excess profits tax as a means of raising the required revenue. Another amendment to restore the war time maximum sutrax rate of sixty-five per cent also was rejected.

INDICATES DISAPPROVAL OF RULE SSUSPENSION

PALM BEACH, March 14.—Speaker Gillet of the house indicated while here today with President Harding that he might rule against a motion to call up the soldiers' bonus bill next Monday under suspension of rules.

Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee, and other republican leaders have discussed at Washington the advisability of calling up the bill under such suspension to expedite passage under limited debate, but the speaker intimated that he favored opportunity for more extensive debate.

Mr. Gillet will s peak on the armament conference treaties at Springfield, Mass., but he intended to be in Washington in time to preside over the house.

Release From Gatesville to Be Through Judges

Release from the State Training School for boys at Gatesville in the order of the county judges according order of the county juges according to information received Tuesday by Juvenile Officer Yates. In the past an application for release has been made to the state institution, officials of which decided whether or not the inmate would be released.

Under the new policy, said to have been inaugurated by Governor Neff, the application for release will be made to the county judge of the county in which the boy lives by his parents and friends. If the judge decides that the boy should be released he will forward an order to the Hon. S. B. Cowell, chairman of the state board of control at Austin who will in turn forward the order to the school. The boy will be released as soon as the order is received.

BANKS OF DALLAS CONTINUED GAINS

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, March 13.—The twelve local banks, without exception, show an increase in resources, deposits and cash on hand, through what has been generally termed a period of business depression, according to a national bank call as of March 10. The gain in resources since December 31, 1921, is $3,127,909.38. The gain in cash is $5,224,800.01. The gain in deposits is $5,610,550.25. The increases are almost as great as those during the period between September 6 and December 31, 1921, when the last statement was rendered to the comptroller of currency.

Resources of the twelve banks are shown as $121,616,373.19; cash, $34,628,947.30; deposits, $98,207,166.14.

HULL CHARGES REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION FAILS TO SHOW CREDITABLE RECORD

By CORDELL HULL,
Chairman Democratic National Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Two or three Republican leaders just now are engaged in the ungracious task of trying to picture to the county a creditable record for the Harding Administration thus far.

In order to measure the heights to which a person or a political party rises in any endeavor, there must first be established a base line.

Republican accomplishments must inevitably be weighed and their merits determined in the light of republican pre-election promises, and also in connection with the unusual opportunities for greater service than in strictly normal times when the opportunity and the need for service are only ordinary.

If a political party wholly fails to meet reasonable expectations in complying with its promises, or to rise to a great occasion which must be met by the wisest and most constructive means, then that party is a failure as an agency of government even though it does perform the usual, ordinary and commonplace functions which only normal conditions require.

The true test of republican success or failure during the past twelve months is the question of whether the party leaders were able to visualize the physical facts showing the true position of America, political and economic under post-war conditions; their true relationship to the world situation, and to conceive and apply such sound economic and other policies as would best safeguard our economic and other essential interests and meet our plain responsibilities in the same connection, and thereby enable America to steer such a wise and correct course as would most redound to the safety and prosperity of herself and of the world.

The mere pointing to inconsequential budgetary paper-savings at the treasury or to the usual public highway appropriations, or to the passage of many bridge and dam bills, or to the taking of only a minor and a partial step in dealing with combined domestic and world peace and economic conditions by a restricted disarmament conference—these accomplishments when compared with the really great and fundamental problems to be solved and the corresponding duties and opportunities to do so to the lasting good of the people here and everywhere dwindle into comparative insignificance. A political party that has thus signally failed on a great occasion is estopped from offering an excuse or even a plea in mitigation.

Republican leaders were supposed to have a full and correct grasp of post-war conditions and problems, and a program of sound remedies therefor when they made their innumerable promises to the people for support in 1920. If they did not have such a program matured, or, if having it, they maneuvered themselves into such an impossible position, by antagonizing most all the domestic and foreign policies of the party then in power, for the sole purpose of getting control of the government, with the result that they could not later execute any intelligible program, their condition of failure as a party is all the more glaring and culpable.

Cordell Hull.

In the light of the true facts, I charge that the Republican leadership from 1918 to 1921 wholly failed to grasp world facts and conditions and America's true relation to them. Instead of so doing, these leaders early in 1919 proclaimed the policy of "every nation for itself" and of "commercial isolation" for ourselves. At this very time the crying need was the further establishment of peace conditions everywhere by the close moral and economic co-operation of all nations, especially the stronger ones.

The second step was that which is even still demanded, that all governments should speedily balance their budgets, establish sound currency systems, maintain trade-relations, and proceed with the work of catching up with production. Republican opposition at every stage was a chief factor in dead-locking our own government from 1918 to 1921 and in keeping Europe at a standstill during the same time, with the result that no concerted efforts to avoid or to lessen the violent panic conditions, that came largely as a result, were made by the various nations.

The great reconstruction program offered by this government in 1919 dealing with all post-war conditions was defeated or indefinitely delayed by a republican congress. The present administration is now proposing, to the extent that it is offering any practical, sound plans, the same remedies to restore this country from panic conditions that a democratic administration proposed in 1919 to avoid them. Democrats then proposed, among other things, early world disarmament of every kind—not of a few major battleships merely—large reductions of war taxes which disarmament immediately would have made possible; credit and other facilities to maintain our foreign markets; cautiously dealing with credit expansion, suppressing wild speculation, promoting full and peaceful employment of labor and capital, early return of public utilities to private operation, vigorous handling of the high cost of living problems, speedy demobilization of the army, early removal of war restrictions, speedy budget and water power legislation, and punishment of criminal profiteering.

Had the republican leaders practically joined during 1919 and 1920 in putting these proposals into prompt effect, America's business and economic condition to day would be vastly different. Three big results of such blind partisan negation at that stage are the loss of our foreign markets, the consequent ruin of our once great merchant marine, and failure appreciably to reduce taxes. This nation can never get out of the present economic "slough of despond" and back to sound stable prosperity until our foreign market conditions are restored to a healthy reciprocal and radical reduction of all governmental expenditures are effected.

The republican high tariff policy and commercial isolation, which thus far have been their outstanding remedies for all post-war ills, fly in the fact of every sound economic law of today. These mean ruin to our foreign markets and in turn continued stagnation and panic industrial conditions at home.

The republican congress in control for three years, and the entire administration for one year, have wholly failed both to make good their pre-election promises, and to grasp the true economic conditions and apply sound remedies therefor.

These were and are the paramount problems, and they offer the real and true test of republican accomplishments thus far. The administration has clearly missed the fundamental both of conditions and remedies.

The patent failure of the chief republican policies and the astonishing breakdown of the reactionary leadership, after March 4, 1921, constitute the chief distinguishing characteristics of the first months of the Harding administration. The first year of this administration will always be notable for its failures rather than its successes.

Having, for temporary political advantage, helped to create conditions now so grievously complained of by the people, republican leaders are estopped from asking to be excused for their failure to remedy them.

BUSY DAY IS PLANNED FOR OUSLEY HERE

Senatorial Candidate Will Be Guest of Honor at University Club at Tuesday Luncheon.

Wichita Falls friends of Clarence Ousley, candidate for the United States senate, who pays his first visit to Wichita Falls since his announcement today, have planned a very busy day, the program of activity including practically every minute of his stay from his arrival at 7:30, until his departure tonight.

A committee, composed of Judge C. L. Bass, Norris Ewing, president of the University club, Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, John P. Marrs and Bruce Greenwood, will meet Mr. Ousley at the station this morning, and at eight o'clock the visitor and committee members will be guests of Judge Bass at breakfast at the Kemp.

A private conference with friends and supporters of Mr. Ousley is scheduled from 9 to 11 o'clock. From 11 o'clock until the time for the University club luncheon, where Mr. Ousley will be the guest of honor, and the speaker of the meeting there will be an informal reception held in the mezzanine parlor for friends of the visitor.

An invitation has been extended to all men and women interested to attend the University club luncheon, which was made open to the public because of the general interest in the visiting candidate. A number of prominent business and professional men will be guests of the club at this occasion, and will sit at the speaker's table. These guests include: Judge C. L. Bass, J. A. Kemp, W. D. Cline, Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, B. D. Donnell, G. Clint Wood, Judge C. F. Spencer, T. B. [illegible], P. P. Langford, W. M. McGregor, and John C. Kay.

Following the luncheon a public reception will be held in the mezzanine parlor. The program for the afternoon is taken up by an automobile ride through Michita county.

Venths Will Tour Europe This Summer

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Venth were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald during their professional engagement here. They were loud in their praise of "the city that faith built," the Kiwanians and the very large and appreciative audience that packed the Wichita theater last night.

Dean Venth, President H. E. Stout and others of the faculty of the fine arts department of the Texas Woman's college, returned to Fort Worth last night.

Dr. Stout had a strenuous day. During the morning hours he called at the Wichita Falls high school and paid his respects to Superintendent Clark and other friends. At the noon hour he was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis luncheon and was the dinner guest of Judge P. A. Martin. Taking it all in all the lieutenant governor of the Kiwanians of Texas and Oklahoma set a lively pace for others of his party during their visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Veuth have crossed the Atlantic fifteen times. They will conduct a special tour of seven countries of the continent of Europe this summer, during vacation time, sailing June 17, and making the return trip early in September.

Mrs. Venth may be seen at the Kemp hotel, room 740, today between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock for detailed information concerning the tour.

Sibley-Taylor To Confer on Car Extension

L. L. Albritton, manager of the Wichita Falls Traction company, will meet with the residents of Sibley-Taylor addition tonight, to discuss the proposed Sibley-Taylor street car line, according to announcement Monday night from the committee which has been at work on the project, from the interests of the addition.

The meeting will be held at the Sibley-Taylor community house, at 7:30, and an urgent request is made for all residents to be present. Important developments are expected.

PROCEDURE ON BONUS BILL YET UNDETERMINED

Republican Leaders May Be Unable to Bring Measure Up in House Under Suspension of Rules.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Republican leaders were confronted today with the possibility that they might be unable to bring about a vote in the house on the compromise soldiers' bonus bill under the suspension of rules next Monday. With a favorable report by the ways and means committee, promised by Chairman Fordney, they generally were agreed that the bill should be disposed of early next week.

Inability, however, to ascertain whether Speaker Gillet, who is in Florida with President Harding, would entertain a motion to suspend the rules, coupled with reports that he might decline to do so, made the question of procedure uncertain.

Republican members of the ways and means committee who at a morning meeting decided to proceed with their plans for a report of the measure at the meeting of the full committee scheduled for tomorrow, despite objections to its provisions by Secretary Mellon and Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger, held a conference later in the day with members of the republican steering committee and several others, including Representative Walsh, Massachusetts, acting speaker, and Representative Fess, Ohio, and Towner, Iowa.

It was agreed at this meeting not to make a final decision on procedure until the views of the speaker could be learned. In case he opposed the suspension of rules program, it was said that the bill probably would be brought up early next week under a rule which, although it would require only a majority vote on final passage and could be drafted to prevent amendments from the floor, would permit the offering of a motion to recommit.

Other developments of the day in the bonus situation were the issuance of statements by two members of the house, Representatives Treadway of Massachusetts, a republican member of the ways and means comittee, and Hawes, democrat, Missouri, both of whom expressed opposition to the bonus bill, and the announcement by Representative Freear of Wisconsin, a republican member of the ways and means comittee, that had written Secretary Mellon "replying" to the letter of the treasury head to Mr. Fordney in which Mr. Mellon declared the bill, if enacted, would involve a "dangerous abuse of government credit."

SERIES OF TORNADOES IN SOUTH EXACT HEAVY TOLL OF LIVES AND PROPERTY

PARTS OF FOUR STATES VISITED BY THE STORMS

Twenty-Seven Persons Are Known to Have Been Killed and Many Others Seriously Injured.

Infant Is Blown From Bed to a Picket Fence Where It Was Held Without Injury.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—At least 27 persons were killed and many others were seriously injured as a result of a series of storms, at places reaching proportions of tornadoes, which visited isolated sections of Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma last night and early today.

The heaviest loss of life reported was at Gowen, Okla., a village 15 miles east of McAlester, where 12 persons were killed, when a tornado swept through the foreign section of the village last night. Many others were slightly injured.

Four white persons and six negroes were killed when the storm passed through the northeastern section of Jefferson county and the southeastern section of Lonoke county, Arkansas, early today. The storm in this section left a trail of wrecked buildings for 20 miles. Several were slightly injured, none seriously.

At Sulphur, Okla., two white men, Thomas Atkins, 60, and Virgil Hampton, 70, were killed late yesterday. Nineteen others were seriously injured and scores suffered slight injuries. Property damage is estimated at $100,000. Fifty buildings were completely demolished and 200 people who were left homeless are being cared for in residences which escaped the path of the tornado.

Eight homes were demolished at Sunrise, a village two miles north of Baton Rouge, and a negro woman and her child were killed. Four others were slightly injured there early today.

Twenty persons were injured, a number seriously, when the storm struck Corinth, Miss., today. More than 150 homes were leveled. The storm swept a path more than 100 feet wide, razing every building in its path. Reports from outlying districts tell of considerable property damage.

An aged negro man was killed and several negroes were slightly injured and a score of houses were destroyed and one man was injured near Alexandria, La., when the storm passed there last night. Only meagre details are available from the sections visited by the storm on account of the damage to wire communication, and it is feared the death toll will be greatly increased when complete reports are available. Little effort has been made to estimate the property damage, which, in addition to destroyed homes and other buildings, includes damage to crops and destruction of live stock. Rivers and smaller streams in practically all the sections visited by the storm, which was accompanied by heavy rains, are swollen and some apprehension is felt on this account.

The storm was accompanied by the usual freaks, the most outstanding of which was reported from Kennett, Ark., where a 12-day-old infant was blown from a bed on which it was lying across the yard where its clothing held it suspended to a picket fence, until the storm abated. The baby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Woods, were seriously injured.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

BY H. N. F.

A plea of the law, because it is the law, and especially for the preservation of the Bill of Rights, was the chief point of an address to the University club by Clarence Ousley, candidate for U. S. senator. "It would almost seem from current doings and sayings," said Mr. Ousley, "that the Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the constitution of the United States, are among the dead languages of political thinking, official conduct and mass action. Not a day passes but that the newspapers record a violation of one or more of these precious guarantees of liberty. Many of our people seem to have lost respect for law as law and feel free to disobey any law they did not favor. I once heard a great preacher say that God commands some things because they are right, but that some things are right because God commands them. So, the law commands some things because they are right as we all see the right, and some other things are right for obedience because the law commands them. More than any other need today we need a revival of respect for law—for divine law, for moral law and for civil law—because it is law, for when each becomes a law unto himself, we have anarchy. The dynamiter is not so hurtful to civil order as the smug citizen who violates the law he does not like, or the self-righteous group who punish persons they do not like, or the self-centered community that defies the will of the commonwealth." Mr. Ousley read the Bill of Rights and commented upon each article in detail. He then pointed out how recent mob action violated the first article in respect to freedom of religion and speech, the fourth in respect to unwarranted searches and seizures, the fifth in respect to deprivation of liberty without due process of law, the sixth in respect to trial by jury, and the eighth in respect to cruel and unusual punishments. JOBS SOUGHT FOR JOBLESS VETS IN TEXAS

By Associated Press.

GOLIAD, Texas, March 14.—Declaring that there are 14,000 ex-service men out of work in Texas, Wayne B. Davis, state commander of the American Legion today exhorted mayors of Texas cities to proclaim March 20, as "Unemployed Ex-Service Men's day."

Commander Davis' statement bore on the American Legion's national employment campaign for ex-service men and declared that the first duty of the organization was to help his brother-in-arms in the great conflict.

"There are 700,000 ex-service men in this country out of work," Commander Davis said. "Fourteen thousand of these men live in Texas. 'Ex-service men without employment should return to their home town' is the battle cry, because the American Legion is asking every community to take care of its own.

"By each legion post in America not only taking a census of all unemployed ex-service men in their communities, but a census of the jobs that are open as well, the legion expects March 20 to bring the jobs and ex-service men together.

"We ask that the preachers interest themselves in this campaign of finding work for the unemployed. We ask the business men to enlist in the fight of securing jobs for veterans. We call on all civic, fraternal and commercial organizations in the state to take some definite action to assist the American Legion to find work for the thousands of these men who only a short while ago carried a 60-pound pack upon their backs and a 10-pound rifle in their hands.

"Scouts," Commander Davis concluded, "the entire citizenship of Texas can unite on March 20 in a sincere effort to find jobs for ex-service men in every community of the sta "

SIX TENTATIVE JURORS CHOSEN TO TRY 'FATTY'

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Six jurors had been accepted tentatively at the close of today's session of the third manslaughter trial of Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle. Two of them were women. Only a half day session of court was held on account of the funeral of a sister of one of the prospective jurors.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON LOSES $14 A WEEK JOB AS OFFICE BOY

By Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 14.—"Jimmy" Sanford, son of the millionaire turfman, William Sanford, has lost his $14 a week office boy with a local typewriter manufacturing company.

"I'm fired because they wanted to give the job to somebody that needed the money," Jimmy explained today.

So once more Jimmy is on the hunt for a job and in the meantime is forced to fall back on his $2,000 a year allowance to pay his bills at an expensive hotel, where he continues to live. By the terms of his father's will he must work two years before he can come into his $350,000 inheritance.

IS THIS CITY WICKED OR "AS GOOD AS THE AVERAGE"?

Business and residential view of Hollywood.

Wicked or holy? Hollywood, Cal., has occupied more space in the newspapers since the murder of William Desmond Taylor than was ever given any city in the United States. Trained writers from both west and east have taken stands as to the character of the inhabitants of the city. The citizens of Los Angeles are almost a unit in declaring that Hollywood is the equal of the average American city in its morals though the majority of its inhabitants are theatrical people who, as a rule, create an impression which does them an injustice. Hollywood supports one of the finest churches in the country, its boosters point out.

BEN LUNA AND ROWAN CASES ARE AFFIRMED

Men Were Convicted of Complicity in Dallas Robbery and Sentenced to 25 Years in Prison.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—The United States circuit court of appeals today affirmed the decision of the district court at Dallas, Texas, in the cases against Albert L. Rowan and R. Ben Luna, convicted of complicity in the holdup of the Jackson street postoffice sub-station in Dallas January 14, 1921, and sentenced to 25 years at Leavenworth prison.

Seven men were implicated in the affair, said by postal authorities to have been one of the boldest in the history of the southwest. According to evidence, five men in an automobile drove to the sub-station shortly before 7 o'clock on the evening of January 14, began a general fusilade of shots, fatally wounding George W. Street, a postal clerk and two employes, seized five bags of registered mail and escaped. Contents of the pouches proved the bandits made a poor choice, however, for it developed that while containing cancelled liberty bonds and mutilated currency to the paper value of $2,000,000 or more, the bags contained but $7,000 in negotiable currency, most of which was subsequently recovered.

Luna and Rowan were sentenced to 25 years in Leavenworth prison. In addition, Rowman, son of a well known Dallas business man, was found guilty of the murder of Street in a state court and sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment. Luna was not indicted in the state court in connection with the death of Street.

Charles E. Gaines, indicted by both federal and state grand juries, was found guilty by a county court and sentenced to pay the death penalty for murder in connection with Street's death. He has not been tried in federal court.

W. S. Scrivner, escaped Texas convict, self-confessed member of the postoffice bandit gang, and chief prosecuting witness in all trials, was found guilty of mail robbery but sentence was deferred. He was also indicted by the county grand jury for murder, but has not been tried.

Of the three remaining mail robbers Pat Murphy met quick retribution when his automobile was wrecked near Fort Worth three hours after the holdup while he and Scrivner were fleeing from officers. Scrivner was pinned under the car where officers arrested him and later secured his confession. The other two have never been arrested.

TABASCO WAS TOO HOT FOR GOVERNOR GARRIDO

By Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 14.—Tomas Garrido, governor of the state of Tabasco, has been added to the list of state executives ousted by dissenting legislatures.

Word came today that his legislature had deposed him and and named Pedro Casanova as provisional governor.

CATTLEMEN AT MEET TOLD OF TARIFF NEEDS

Organization Is Urged to "Think Together" and to Adopt Set Policy That Will Be Recognized.

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, March 14.—Entreating the organization to "think together" and adopt a set policy which will be recognized, executive speakers at the opening session of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association dealt upon the urgent need of a protective tariff which will place the cattle industry on an equal basis with foreign marketing. W. W. Turney, president of the association, was the man speaker, in this appeal. It is his last address in his official capacity of president, as he has announced his intention of retiring.

Ike T. Pryor, of San Antonio, also urged the necessity of such a tariff, as did W. D. Davis, who welcomed the cattlemen in behalf of the chamber of commerce. Mayor E. R. Cockrell welcomed the cattlemen to Fort Worth.

Turney announced that the association had taken steps to conduct an educational campaign, urging the eating of meat and pointing out the food value of cattle products. He attacked the action of Herbert Hoover, who, he said, gave out statements during the war that the food value of meat was negligible and proclaiming "meatless days." This, Turney declared, has done more economic injury to the cattle industry than any other one thing that occurred during the war.

The report of the executive committee to the convention, setting out the work of the association, disclosed the great amount of good said to have been done by the war finance corporation. It also tended to show that this institution was created through the efforts of Texas men.

With regard to tariffs, the report said that the opinion of the association on this subject had been communicated to members of congress in Washington and also to the southern tariff congress. The latter organization is in sympathy with these views, the report says, and much valuable data has been furnished the organization.

The reduction of rates also has been stressed by the officers of the association, although few reductions of any sort have been granted by the interstate commerce commission, the report said, adding that a petition of some kind has been before the commission ever since the increase of rates. An increase of from $12 to $15 a car in transportation rates has placed the marketing of cattle on a questionable basis, it said, and the stockmen are losing money because of it.

There are 4,602 members of the association at present, controlling 1,909,464 cattle, according to the report. During the past year 244 applications for membership, controlling 64,518 cattle, have been received.

OFFICIALS SEE NO METHOD TO AVERT STRIKE

John L. Lewis Reassures Secretary Davis of Miners' Willingness to Submit to Arbitration.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Secretary of Labor Davis and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, exchanged views today on the threatened situation in the bituminous coal industry and both were were said, after their conference, to be of the opinion that a national strike in the union fields was inevitable. Mr. Lewis assured Mr. Davis again of the willingness of the miners' union to open negotiations for a new national wage scale, a proposition which mine operators are refusing to entertain.

Mr. Lewis declared the cessation of work in the union mines after April 1, was "coming about automatically," and asserted that "a bold commercial policy of the operators for which the public must pay" was in part responsible. If there is no conference between the miners' union and the operators, he added, referring to the bituminous situation, "there can be no wage contract drawn up. If there is no wage contract, there wont be any coal dug after April 1 in union mines."

ANTHRACITE GROUPS WILL CONFER TODAY

NEW YORK, March 14.—Anthracite miners and operators will meet in joint conference tomorrow with timely prospect of reaching an agreement on wage scales before the expiration of the present contract on March 31, which will mean a suspension of mining in the Pennsylvania hard coal field until satisfactory arrangements have been arrived at.

This was the opinion of operators and miners here tonight for the conference. A suspension would not mean a break in negotiations because before in the history of wage conferences in t his industry operators and miners continued the discussion of wage contracts to a satisfactory conclusion while the colliers remained idle.

The miners union is not expected to make any announcement regarding a suspension in advance of developments indicating that no agreement can be reached by March 31.

DIRECTORS OF SIOUX O. & R. NAMED AGAIN

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Sioux Oil and Refining company, held Tuesday in the local offices, 1116 City National Bank building, the old board of directors was re-elected.

The board members are: W. C. Kirkpatrick, Sioux City, Iowa; A. V. Taylor, Wichita Falls; F. W. Woods, Spencer, Nebraska; George H. Sich, Sioux City, Iowa; W. H. Ostenberg, Omaha, Nebraska; James T. Pearson, Moline, Ill., and W. H. Harrison, Omaha, Nebraska.

A. V. Taylor is general manager, and G. J. Coffey is secretary and assistant treasurer, both making Wichita Falls their headquarters and their home.

This company has five producing wells in the Burkburnett field, eight producers in Breckenridge, has two now drilling in the Eldorado, Arkansas, pool, and an interest in a well drilling in Mexia. It is also drilling a test in the Ivan pool, in northern Stephens county. The company has several thousand acres of leases in various pools in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE ORDERS FAVORABLE REPORT ON COMPROMISE BONUS MEASURE

VARSITY CLUB HEARS OUSLEY TUESDAY NOON

Senatorial Candidate Denounces Those Who Violate Laws, However High Professed Motive.

For Closer and More Helpful Foreign Relations and Decentralization of Government Authority.

"The dynamiter is not half as much an enemy of civilization as the smug citizen who breaks the laws," declared Clarence Ousley, candidate for the United States senate from Texas, who was a guest of the University club at their weekly luncheon Tuesday. Mr. Ousley's address, a brief, but polished, discussion of some of the problems before the country today, closed with a forceful plea for the preservation of the liberties guaranteed in the first 10 amendments to the Constitution of the United States, and with strong condemnation of "any group, no matter how high the purpose they may profess, who violate these principles guaranteed in the constitution."

Not a day passes in Texas but at least five of these rights are broken, Mr. Ousley declared, mentioning among others those guaranteeing jury trials, guaranteeing against arrests without warrants; against trials where the accusers do not face the accused in open, public trials; and against search of homes without legal warrants obtained with due respect to the rights of the individual.

National Issues

Mr. Ousley, in addition to this, declared that it was of prime importance to the United States to establish close and friendly relations with its neighbors on the earth; declared for the decentralization of the credit system of the United States through decentralization of control of the Federal Reserve system, and the substitution of the thought of manufacturers, merchants and farmers for the 100 per cent control by bankers of the Federal reserve board. He also expressed himself as opposed to the "overlordship of Washington" and declared that he thought that the encroachment of power by the federal government should be stopped.

In declaring for better relations by the United States with its neighbors, he deplored the action of the present administration in refusing representation at the Genoa conference. Using the hypothetical illustration of a West Texas community whose business houses should do business with a Wichita Falls wholesale house, and who in a bad year were unable to pay their debts to the Wichita Falls wholesale house, he asked his hearers if they could imagine a meeting of those creditors without representation by the Wichita Falls wholesale house in the effort to work out the situation. No

MRS. OBENCHAIN AND FEMININE JUROR IN TEARS

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—Tears came to the eyes of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain today as she listened to the opening arguments in her behalf in her trial on the charge of murdering her sweetheart, J. Belton Kennedy. Alfred F. MacDonald, who made the argument, dealt upon the love which, according to testimony, existed between the defendant and Kennedy, declaring it showed she had no motive for plotting Kennedy's death.

One of the three women on the jury wept when MacDonald read a letter Kennedy wrote to Mrs. Obenchain containing the appeal:

"Love me always." The attorney declared the state's theory that Mrs. Obenchain was "A woman scorned," had been disproved and that "if anything this was a case of a man scorned."

MacDonald will resume his argument tomorrow, according to the announced program.

FORMER MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL PLAYER DIES

By Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, Conn., March 14.—Daniel J. Hoffman, former major league baseball player, died at his home here today, aged 42. He played with the New York and St. Louis clubs of the American league as an outfielder. While with the latter club in Boston in 1905, he was hit on the head by a pitched ball and had not played since.

PRINCE WILL WAIT ONE MORE DAY TO TELL GHOST STORY

By Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S. March 14.—Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, the scientific ghost hunter from New York, announced tonight it would take him another day to complete his report on the ghost of Antigonish.

The report dealing at leangth with the mysterious fires and other manifestations that drove Alex MacDonald with his family from their home in Caledonia Mills—and with the Moot question of whether Dr. Prince saw or did not see the ghost—probably will be made public tomorrow, he said.

In the meantime, Dr. Prince refuses to talk.

ATTEMPTS TO AMEND TREATY ARE DEFEATED

Four Republicans Vote in Affirmative While Equal Number of Democrats Join Opposition.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—After another stormy debate in which possible political consequences of the administration treaty program were discussed from several angles, the senate late today rejected by a division almost on party lines the first two of the proposed amendments to the four power Pacific pact.

At the peak of their strength with eleven short of the full membership present and voting, the opposition to the treaty marshalled 28 democratic and four republican votes, within two of a third of the full senate membership, but three less than enough to upset the two-thirds needed for final ratification if all senators participate in this vote. Leaders on both sides conceded, however, that at best the division was but a poor index to senate sentiment on the question of ratification itself.

The first of the two amendments acted upon was offered by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and provided that four powers should refrain from aggression against non-signatories to the treaty or not should be invited to any conference over a Pacific controversy. The proposal was lost, 30 to 55. Later a similar amendment in different form was presented by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, and was vote down, 27 to 50.

On both roll calls four republicans, Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, France of Maryland and LaFollette of Wisconsin, voted in the affirmative while an equal number of democrats, Pomerene of Ohio, Ransdell of Louisiana, Underwood of Alabama, and Williams of Mississippi, joined the opposition.

In the debate preceding the first vote nearly all the issues of the treaty fight were revived and both democrats and republicans indulged in prophecies of what might happen if the arms conference treaties became an issue between the republican and democratic parties. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, warned the democratic side of the chamber that should the four power pact be defeated, President Harding might withdraw the other treaties from the senate and ask the country for a verdict at the polls in November.

Both Senators Lodge, Massachusetts, the republican leader, and Underwood, democrat, Alabama, the democratic leader, argued against the amendments on the ground that they would necessitate reopening the negotiations. When Senator Walsh suggested that the American people would not be satisfied with such an explanation, Senator Lodge retorted that "we'll risk that."

MOTHER OF FOUR TEXAS METHODIST MINISTERS DIES

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, March 14.—Mrs. Mary F. Barcus, age 90 years, died here early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. W. Stanford. She was the widow of Rev. E. R. Barcus, who died in 1896. She had been a member of the Methodist church 80 years and was the mother of 13 children, grandmother of 52 and great grandmother of 28. Four of her sons are Methodist ministers and two of them are now presiding elders.

The sons in the ministry are J. M. Barcus, presiding elder of the Georgetown district; T. S. Barcus, presiding elder of the Brownwood district; J. Sam Barcus of Denton and E. R. Barcus of Austin. Eleven of the children are living and nine of them were present when she died. Her eldest child is 69 years old. Burial will be Wednesday at Stanford chapel, six miles west of the city, her first Texas home of 48 years ago. Her seven sons will be pallbearers.

VOTE ON BILL NINETEEN FOR; FIVE AGAINST

Three Democrats and Two Republicans Cast Ballots Opposing Favorable Report on Measure.

Formal Report Will Be Submitted at Once With Time for Calling Up Bill Yet Undetermined.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A favorable report on the long controverted soldiers' bonus bill was ordered today by the house ways and means committee by a vote of 19 to 5. Chairman Fordney plans to submit his formal report tomorrow or Thursday, but said the time of calling the measure up in the house would not be fixed definitely until after the return here of Speaker Gillett, who is in Florida with President Harding.

The vote on the measure today in the committee was taken ten minutes after Secretary Mellon, Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger and Governor Harding of the federal reserve board, had been questioned for two hours in open session as to their ideas of the band loan adjusted certificate plan. The five members voting against a favorable report were Garner of Texas; Kitchin, North Carolina, and Collier Mississippi, democrats, and Treadway of Massachusetts, and Tilson of Connecticut, republicans. All members of the committee were present with the exception of Mr. Kitchin and Representative Chandler, republican, Oklahoma, whose votes were cast by proxy.

Before the final vote the committee rejected, 19 to 5 an amendment offered by representative Backarach, republican, New Jersey, to impose for a period of three years a one-per cent tax on wholesales, designed to raise $500,000,000 with which to finance the bonus.

Those supporting this amendment were all republicans, Longworth of Ohio, Bacarach, Mott, of New York, Tilson and Watson of Pennsylvania.

Under an amendment suggested by Governor Harding and adopted by unanimous vote, the banks making original loans on the adjusted service certificates could have those certificates rediscounted by other banks authorized to make original loans on the certificates. Governor Harding objected to having the certificates rediscountable by federal reserve banks, saying the general economic effect would be unfavorable.

The committee rejected an amendment by Representative Oldfield, democrat, Arkansas, proposing to restore the original cash provision in place of the bank loan amendment and to reimpose the excess profits tax as a means of raising the required revenue. Another amendment to restore the war time maximum sutrax rate of sixty-five per cent also was rejected.

INDICATES DISAPPROVAL OF RULE SSUSPENSION

PALM BEACH, March 14.—Speaker Gillet of the house indicated while here today with President Harding that he might rule against a motion to call up the soldiers' bonus bill next Monday under suspension of rules.

Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means conimittee, and other republican leaders have discussed at Washington the advisability of calling up the bill under such suspension to expedite passage under limited debate, but the speaker intimated that he favored opportunity for more extensive debate.

Mr. Gillet will speak on the armament conference treaties at Springfield, Mass., but he intended to be in Washington in time to preside over the house.

Release From Gatesville to Be Through Judges

Release from the State Training School for boys at Gatesville in the order of the county judges according order of the county juroes according to information received Tuesday by Juvenile Officer Yates. In the past an application for release has been made to the state institution, officials of which decided whether or not the inmate would be released.

Under the new policy, said to have been inaugurated by Governor Neff, the application for release will be made to the county judge of the county in which the boy lives by his parents and friends. If the judge decides that the boy should be released he will forward an order to the Hon. S. B. Cowell, chairman of the state board of control at Austin who will in turn forward the order to the school. The boy will be released as soon as the order is received.

MEN REFUSE TO ANSWER WHEN ASKED OF KLAN

Two Austin Citizens Are Questioned in Connection With Probe of Peeler Clayton Murder.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 14.—Police Commissioner J. D. Copeland and F. G. Reynolds, Austin citizens, will be called before the Travis county grand jury tomorrow to be given a second opportunity to answer questions put to them today about the Ku Klux Klan, Judge J. R. Hamilton of the criminal district court, ordered today, after the case had been appealed to him by District Attorney J. B. Robertson.

The two men appeared before the grand jury today, which is understood to be investigating the killing of Peeler Clayton, taxicab driver shot to death last December in an alley bordering the Ku Klux Klan hall. Later Mr. Robertson and the two men appeared before Judge Hamilton.

Mr. Robertson asked the witnesses the questions and they again refused to answer, claiming that their constitutional rights gave them the privilege of not answering.

Judge Hamilton then questioned them. They still refused to answer.

"I understand then," said Judge Hamilton, "that the questions you refuse to answer are these:

"Whether you are members of the Ku Klux Klan?"

"Who the officers are?"

"Who the members are?"

"Who you saw at the meetings?"

The witnesses replied in the affirmative.

Judge Hamilton also asked the witnesses whether the Ku Klux Klan ever sent out threats, whether they had heard the members talk of doing so, and if they had ever heard a klansman express an opinion on the killing of Peeler Clayton. To all of these the witnesses replied "No."

The grand jury, through Mr. Robertson and D. A. Gregg, foreman, asked Judge Hamilton if it had the authority to force the two men to answer the questions propounded to them. Judge Hamilton had previously informed both men that if they were promised immunity that they could be forced to answer, failure or refusal to do so meaning a fine or a jail sentence. However, in reply to the grand jury's request, Judge Hamilton said that he would like to consult additional counsel in the case and set 10 o'clock tomorrow morning as the hour for the witnesses to be brought before the jury and given the second opportunity to answer the questions.

Things Picking Up Generally, Says Culberson

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 14.—"We are having more inquiries for trucks than since 1919 and export business is picking up," declared J. R. Culberson, president of the Wichita Motors company, assemblers of the celebrated Wichita trucks, with headquarters in Wichita Falls, who is in the city a few days in connection with the tariff parley that is to be held here.

"Our plant at Wichita Falls is now turning out about 60 cars a month, which is quite an increase over a month ago. Our export business is showing a very favorable gain and we see a general rift in the cloud of depression that has overhung the country in a pall for the last 12 months. Our plants have a capacity of 300 to 400 cars a month. We hope to have the plants running to full capacity in a short time."

Mr. Culberson said that he was here to attend the tariff meeting which has been called to meet here Tuesday, and that he would try to see something of the exposition while in the city. He had nothing to give out in regard to the campaign which the republicans expect to wage during the summer, he said.

"Things at Wichita Falls are picking up with the commencement of work on the $4,000,000 irrigation project," Mr. Culberson said. "The project is giving many of the idle men of that section employment. In my opinion, the Wichita Falls irrigation project will prove to be of such inestimable benefit to the agricultural interests of our section that many similar projects will be started over West Texas."

PRELIMINARY HEARING TO BE HELD TODAY

The preliminary hearing for E. A. Wells of Burkburnett charged with the theft of an automobile will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., according to information Tuesday from the district attorney's office. The preliminary hearing for Tom Jones, arrested last week by police officers in connection with the alleged theft of equipment from the Waggoner meat market on Scott street, will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Wells was arrested last week. He is alleged to have stolen an automobile from a Burkburnett resident. He is being held at the county jail. Jones was released on bond following his arrest.

AUTO INSURANCE COMPANY IS SUED

The Automobile Insurance company was made defendant Tuesday in the 30th district court in a suit for $3,000 brought by Lee McGee, local resident. According to the plaintiff's petition he had a Cadillac car insured with the defendant company as a protection against theft.

The petition alleges that the car was stolen from him while at Mexia, Texas. According to the petition the company has refused to carry out their contract and pay him for his loss.

Varsity Club Hears Ousley Tuesday Noon

more should the United States absent itself from the Genoa conference, the speaker asserting the two cases are parallel. Declaring that the criticism against the administration was not dictated by hide bound partisanship, he warmly commended the administration's share in the Arms Conference, particularly the part of Secretary Hughes, and condemned the "quibbling tactics of democrats in congress who are opposing the conference treaties out of mere partisanship.

Criticises Bank Board

He criticised the administration of the federal reserve board when the depression following the war became apparent—declaring that the bankers on the board with the typical banker mind became panicky and locked the brakes, with the result that the machine skidded and finally crashed. With men on the board of the type of famous merchants, manufacturers and the like that he named, thinking and acting in terms of conditions in the industries with which they were acquainted, he expressed the belief that if they had not been able to avoid the crash they would at least have cushioned the fall. The course of the federal board he criticised he illustrated by declaring that they forgot the pressure which would "liquify the gas of inflation would in turn solidify the liquid," and asserted that before the board members realized it they had frozen the loans desired to liquidate.

Expressig himself as believing that the federal reserve banks should be administered without coercion from Washington, as a complement for his contention for decentralization of the federal authority, he expressed himself as believing that men who thought in terms of Texas wheat, Texas cotton, Texas oil and Texas cattle were as capable of administering the credit of the section as the bankers on the Washington board, whom he declared not a whit more capable than many men and bankers in Wichita Falls.

Farmers of the constitution of the United States, Mr. Ousley said, were men who had been forced to study self government, and who had had experience in fighting suppression. They feared a King, he said, and feared a King Congress. They realized that no set of men should be given unlimited authority, he said. So they conferred powers on congress, but stipulated that congress should go so far, but no farther. He expressed his conviction that further encroachments of power should be prevented.

"The Least Law"

"The least law is as sacred as the most important one," Mr. Ousley declared in his appeal for respect for laws. "The 18th amendment to the constitution is as binding as the 4th."

It is only by respect for laws that this government can endure, he declared, reminding his hearers that after they have exercised their function as loyal subjects to the will of the majority to perform, regardless of their personal approval or disapproval of the laws enacted.

"There is a saying that God ordered certain things because they are right, and that other things are right because God commanded them. So some things are laws because they are right and others are right because they are the law."

"We must treat all laws as equally sacred. We cannot condemn murder and condone mob violence. We cannot condemn morphine peddling and condone bootlegging."

Mob Tendency

A tendency to mob violence and disrespect for law abroad in the land today he considered a threat to the life of this government, a threat which could only be combatted by adherence and actual living of the principles on which the government is founded. This tendency he indicated to be to his mind akin to bolshevism. "We caught the flu from Europe. It is my contention that we may in the same manner contract Europe's mental diseases."

Forestalling the possibility that he might be considered an alarmist, he asked his hearers who dreamed ten years ago that 60,000,000 of the best educated, most industrious and best disciplined among the people of the earth would suddenly go crazy. "I do not have any sympathy with those who say that the German people were driven by their militarists into the late war—they were simply drunk with the same dream of power which animated their kaiser," he observed in this connection. Similarly, he asked, who would have dreamed five years ago that the 130,000,000 of Russian people would go crazy, and attempt to promote prosperity by destroying their industries, dynamiting their banks, and obliterating all of the activities through which they derived prosperity?

Personal Side

Only briefly in his talk did he mention the personal side of his campaign, soon after being introduced to the members of the club by the classmate of his youth, Judge C. L. Bass. He spoke of the period as one of reaction after the greatest action the world has seen, and declared that the solution of problems confronting the nation could be facilitated by wise government policies. It could not be done at once, and expectation of its being accomplished by a miracle man should not be entertained, for he reminded his hearers that the day of miracles was past. The problems confronting the country, he declared, were not ones to be solved by an emotionalist, a sensationalist or an invalid. They required far-seeing statesmanship for their solution, he said, and he urged that if his hearers did not believe that he possessed the qualification demanded by the problems of the time, to employ one of his opponents in the same manner they would employ one in their private business.

ELECTRA MAN'S BOND REDUCED

Judge P. A. Martin of the 30th district court Tuesday reduced the bond of Jack Garrett of Electra, indicted on a statutory charge from $5,000 to $2,000. Garrett was arrested a week ago, and since that time has been confined at the county jail unable to furnish the $5,000 bond.

THUG, DISGUISED AS WOMAN, ROBS BANK MESSENGER

Joseph Lindsay, disguised bandit.

Rather matronly looking woman for a bandit, isn't she? After "she" had held up Charls Lazaro, Pittsburg bank messenger, blinded him with an ammonia pistol and seized his satchel containing $15,000, "she" was captured by police and found to be Robert Lindsay. The disguise consisted of a fur-trimmed velvet coat, eyeglasses, hat, wig and brown dress. The bank clerk is recovering in the Allegheny general hospital.

Artist Talks Of Colors to Women's Club

A lecture on "Picture Appreciation" made by Emil Hermann, local artist, was a feature of the weekly meeting of the Business Woman's club held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening. Mr. Hermann spoke in an interesting manner on color contrasts and the effect of incorrectly blended colors on the disposition.

Following the lecture, the regular contests for the evening were held i nwhich Miss Lucy Huggins won the in which MissLucy Huggins won the first prize, a pair of spring slippers given by the Collier-Landon Sporting Goods company.

About 66 members were present at the dinner served preceding the lecture.

LATE MILLIONAIRE'S SON ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGES

By Associated Press.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 14.—Miss Emmeline Kwakerneck, 19 years western state normal student, injured when she jumped early Sunday morning from an automobile driven by John D. Dodge, son of the late millionaire automobile manufacturer of Detroit, was said this morning to be in a serious condition. At the hospital, it was stated she was suffering from a fractured skull.

Dodge, arraigned yesterday on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated and illegally transporting liquor, is under bonds of $7,000 to appear for a hearing Tuesday, March 21. Miss Ethel Clemens and Miss Sue Stegenga, also Western State normal students, who were also in the machine with Miss Kwakerneck, Dodge and Rex Earl of this city, have been summoned as witnesses at the hearing. Earl, charged with drunkenness, was released under bond of $500.

Aside from denying he was intoxicated and asserting it was planned only to give the young women "a little ride," Dodge has refused to discuss the affair.

Polce Upset Wedding Plans of Man Alleged to Have Over Dozen Wives Scattered Over Country

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 14.—Some of the tangled threads in the matrimonial ventures of Isaiah Moore, 32, choir singer, church worker and man of many wives and many aliases, who is held in jail here on charges of bigamy and embezzlement, seemed on the way of being unraveled today with receipt of reports from cities bearing evidence concerning some of his numerous marriages.

Moore is said by police to have admitted he has at least 14 or 15 wives scattered throughout the country, but he has been able to remember the names of only 11 of them. The story of his matrimonial escapades have been verified in several instances and police believe information concerning the others will be forthcoming soon.

Moore waived preliminary examination in city court today and was held to the grand jury under $5,000 bond. He appeared in a highly nervous condition when he appeared in court, twitching and jerking constantly. Later when questioned in his cell regarding his frequent marriages, Moore said: "I think it was all due to my nervous condition. It seems that as long as I was petted and 'babied' my condition was improved. At other times I would feel depressed and lonely and want to run away. Then I would find some one else and fall in love with them for a time."

Moore was taken in custody in Minneapolis several days ago by an operative of a private detective agency as the result of a complaint made by his last wife, who was Miss Harriet Evans, an Indiana school teacher. He was engaged to marry a girl in Minneapolis when arrested, it was said.

VALUABLES DISAPPEARED SAME TIME ISAIAH DID

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., March 14.—Isaiah Moore, held at Indianapolis on a bigamy charge, deserted Amelia Werner, said to be one of his eleven wives, six weeks after he had married her at Windsor, Ontario, Mrs. Jacob Werner of Detroit, mother of the girl, said today. Mrs. Werner told local authorities that six weeks after the marriage Moore asked for a loan of $14,000 with which to start a baking business, Mrs. Werner withheld the money, and declares Moore disappeared that night. A diamond ring valued at $150 disappeared at the same time and the mother obtained a warrant for his arrest, although the man was not located.

MOORE IS SAID TO HAVE LEFT PEORIA SUDDENLY

By Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., March 14.—Isaiah Moore, held in Indianapolis on bigamy and embezzlement charges, married Laura Hertzberg here June 25, 1921, under name of George Church, county court records show. The woman gave her home at Chicago. They were married by Miss Amelia Giarke, assistant pastor at the Central Christian church here and the man gave his name to the minister as George Churchill, her records show.

Moore lived here for a month or more and slept most of the day and worked as a baker at night, it was said at the residence where he lived. He roomed in one of the best residence sections of the city here and always paid his bills promptly, it was said. He left suddenly, saying he was going to be married.

NEBRASKA SHERIFF ALSO LEANING ON THE TRAIL

By Associated Press.

DAVID CITY, Neb., March 14.—Florence Johnson of David City, Nebraska, who married James E. Vaughn, alias Isaiah Moore, obtained a divorce from him February last, according to Ike West, sheriff of Butler county. "I've been looking for him for some time on a charge of issuing a fraudulent check here, but I guess its no use now," said Sheriff West upon being advised of his arrest at Indianapolis upon a charge of bigamy and embezzlement.

ONE WIFE DIED WITHOUT ANY KNOWLEDGE OF DUPE

By Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 14.—Death overtook Laura Shields five months ago without her suspecting that she had been duped by her husband, Howard Melvin, alias Isaiah Moore, who is reported to have confessed at Indianapolis that he had been married to eleven women, Miss Mary I. Shields, Laura's younger sister, said.

"Laura was married to Howard Melvin three years ago," Miss Shields said. "He seemed very religious, talked religion and attended church regularly."

"THAT SOUNDS LIKE HIM" SAYS ONE OF WIVES

By Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., March 14.—Isaiah Moore, under arrest in Indianapolis on a charge of embezzling funds from his eleventh wife, who under the name of "J. H. Vaughn" married Miss Florence Johnson of David City, April 3, 1920, was described by Miss Johnson as a "Beau Brummell" who made quite a hit among the younger set at David City, according to the Omaha World-Herald which printed an interview with her today.

Miss Johnson who recently obtained a divorce from "Vaughn" said he had been in David City three or four months before she met him at church.

"He sang in the Congregational choir and as I attended the First Christian church, he often attended our Christian endeavor meetings," she was quoted as saying over the long distance telephone. "He took an active part in all church doings."

Miss Johnson asked to be pardoned for laughing when told her former husband was under arrest for embezzlement.

"That seems to have been a popular stunt with him," she said. "He stung my mother and me for $700."

DENBY'S NEPHEW WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Charles Denby Jr.

Charles Denby, Jr., nephew of Secretary Denby of the navy, has been awarded the Moses Taylor Pyne memorial scholarship by the national alumni association of Princeton. The award is made annually to a member of the senior class on the basis of scholastic standing, character and interest in the advancement of Princeton ideals.

COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE GETS SURVEY OF WORK IN LOCAL COURTS DURING PAST YEAR

A survey of the work of all courts in Wichita Falls for the entire year 1921, from the city police court and the justice courts, through the county court of law and to the district court, was read to members of the Wichita County Executive association Tuesday afternoon—a report which members of the committee expressed themselves as feeling fully showed where the loop holes in the law administration existed during the past year and indicating the direction in which a remedy is to be sought.

The slowness of action in criminal cases and the lack of proper records for the pushing of cases to a finish was indicated as one of the glaring shortcomings in all courts from the highest to the lowest—these with several other features that the committee did not see fit to make public yesterday, but which are to be given to the public in a serial form beginning Thursday morning. Thursday the record and criticism of the city court will be made public, Friday the justice courts, Saturday the county court at law, and Sunday the district courts—with several highlights outside the court proper but in connection with its functions that the committee feels that the public is entitled to know.

It is not to be inferred from this report that it is entirely critical, for the private investigator employed by the committee has been fair and impartial in his analyses of the facts brought out by the figures collected. The committee believes that the compilation of this work, which gives a definite ground on which to base future actions of the associations they represent, rather than shooting in the dark, disposes of the first step before the association. The first part of the report will appear in the morning. Several of the defects mentioned in the report have been largely corrected since the arousing of public sentiment for law enforcement, the investigator verbally reported to the committee, members of the press committee announce.

STRAW HATS
Charm With Color

THE straws are of distinctive character and as flexible as any fabric; ingenious trimmings and unique brims add their necessary note of smartness. But it is unquestionably through their glory of color that these Hats achieve so much charm. Such rich tones as Etruscan red, periwinkle and canna reach their highest degree of beauty when they appear in the Spring Hat of straw.

Turbans, of supple straw braids, quite orientally employ embroideries or quills that gleam in lacquer or cire finish. A number are priced at $8.50 and $9.95.

Picturesque modes, gracefully large, include fruit among their trimmings, or flowers as winsome as any Madame Nature has fashioned. Priced as low as $9.95.

Only when you try on some of these new modes will you fully appreciate their unusual beauty and distinctive character.

Justice of the Peace Maxwell, who has been confined to his home for the past six weeks, due to illness, will return to his office at the courthouse the latter part of the week, according to information Tuesday from his home, 1408 Eight street. Justice Maxwell became seriously ill six weeks ago and has been confined to his bed most of the time since. During the last few days his condition has shown marked improvement. The business of the two justice offices has been handled by Justice Gwinn during Justice Maxwell's absence.

Mrs. J. T. Woolfin, who was taken recently to the Glenrose sanitarium by her son, W. T. Woolfin, for treatment for paralysis, is reported improved. Mr. Woolfin, who has also been ill while there, is reported better.

CHARGE COTTON EXCHANGE HUGE 'BUCKET SHOP'

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Charges that the American Cotton exchange is a huge bucketshop where actual trading is rare and where the southern speculator is at the mercy of the New York broker, were made today by former members of the exchange at a "John Doe" investigation conducted by the district attorney's office before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. Witnesses testified to numerous instances of "cross trading," fictitious orders, dummy accounts, "scalping," secret manipulation of unrecorded transactions, sensational advertising designed to woo the business of small speculators in the south and undisguised bucketing of orders. W. B. Wilson and J. H. Watson, members of the firm of Wilson and company, which was expelled from the exchange last Februark 28, on charges that they had warned clients against further dealings with the institution, were personal witnesses for the prosecution.

GOVERNOR NEFF HEARS RECITAL OF ORPHAN PROTEGE

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, March 14.—Governor Pat M. Neff occupied a place in the audience at the R. B. Spencer home here today to hear the graduating recital of Miss Beatrice Preston, under Professor Severin Frank, Baylor university. Some time ago the governor, then a private citizen, found Miss Preston in the Knights of Pythias Orphanage at Weatherford.

He offered her choice of educations—she chose music, and was graduated today as his protege.

UNCLE SEEKS TO OBTAIN RELEASE OF $100,000 HEIRESS IN ASYLUM

The court battle of Miss Dorothy D. Gordon, twenty-two, heiress to $100,000, to obtain her freedom from McLean asylum, Waverly, is scheduled to open soon in Boston. Her uncle, John D. Gardiner, is directing her fight. He charges the girl's guardians, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Jardine, caused the girl to go insane by telling her that her parents had not been married and asks the court to restrain them from visiting her. She is confined as hopelessly insane. If successful, Gardiner plans a fight to release her from the asylum.

Famous Opera Singer Laughs When "Informed" That Her "100 Per Cent" Chauffeur-Husband Deserted Her

By Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., March 14.—For a woman who just had been informed that her husband had "deserted her," Margaret Matzenauer, famous opera singer, was in a delightful, light-hearted mood when seen by newspaper men at her suite in a local hotel tonight.

She was shown press dispatches from San Francisco containing an interview credited to her husband, in which he said he was no hot house plant. That brought hearty laughter from her.

"There is absolutely nothing to the statement from San Francisco," she said between ripples of laughter. "My husband is in Minterrey on business. When he left New York he kissed me good-bye and I bade him God Speed. There was no escaping to it."

Her attention was called to that part of the interview in which her husband refers to taking his breakfast in bed.

"Why, can you imagine a big, six-foot, perfect specimen of manhood taking his breakfast in bed? He never had breakfast in bed in his life. He's not that kind of a man and if he ever asked for such a thing I would chase him out of the house.

"Somebody has played a joke on a reporter, that's all. No man would express himself as Mr. Glotzbach is credited with expressing himself in the interview. It sounds more like a 3-year-old child."

"How about squirming in mental anguish on the rear seat cushions?" she was asked.

"Never since we have been married has he done that. I bought him a high-priced car with an inside drive because he insisted that he drive himself and he has had that wish gratified every time we go out. He never gets in the other car, which is driven by our chauffeur, and is used mainly to take my little girl to school."

The San Francisco Dispatch said her husband asserted that "Orchids will thrive in hot houses, but wild mustard needs the California sun."

"I guess that means that I am an orchid," the diva laughed, "and I feel quite complemented."

"In regard to my husband getting tired of the 'mad scene from Lucia' I never sang that in my life, for it is a high coloratura part.

"When I married Mr. Goltzbach," Mme. Matzenauer concluded, "I said that artists should not marry artists and so far I have never had reason to vary from that statement. My husband is not what one could call artistic, though he enjoys music, and if he has not changed in the last two weeks he is still the 100 percent man I said he was when I married him."

ACCOUNT OF INTERVIEW SINGER TERMS A HOAX

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Margaret Matznauer, famous diva, apparently has lost her chauffeur husband, whom she termed "100 per cent man."

The husband, Floyd Goltzbach, has come back to his job at the Del-monte hotel here driving tourists about.

About a year ago, he took Mme. Matznauer out for a drive—for hire. She sat on the front seat with him, better to enjoy the scenery. Later came the engagement and marriage.

The San Francisco Examiner gives Glotzbach's reasons for leaving his bride in New York.

"I'd rather be a chauffeur," he said. It would seem Glotzbach was forced to let another man drive his wife's automobile.

"It would drive any man crazy to sit back among the cushions and squirm every time he felt the backlash of the transmission when all is needed was a real mechanician," he declared.

The paper says Glotzbach insisted there had been no friction; that the chauffeur husband just "escaped" when his bride was not looking; that he will not go back.

Mme. Matznauer, it is said wants her husband back.

There is talk of compromises from New York, but unlistened to, says Glotzbach.

Glotzbach says he did not enjoy breakfasts in bed. Nor did sitting up night after night through the mad scene of Lucia appeal to an ear attuned to the hum of a smooth running motor.

KANSAS-GULF TO DRILL FAST, SAYS MOURER

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Addressing several hundred stockholders at the annual meeting of the Kansas and Gulf company here today, H. L. Mourer, president, announced that an extensive drilling campaign was planned for 1922.

A vote of confidence in officers of the company passed. The advisory board gave its total income for 1921 as $2,314,858.08 and the operating profit as $1,247,220. A net operating profit of $32,000 was shown by the Southern Oil corporation running at 50 per cent of capacity for the six months ending Dec. 31 last, it was asserted.

The following members of the board of directors were re-elected: A. C. Adams, Binghampton, N. Y.; R. H. Bennett, Northtowanda, N. Y.; F. A. Hofbeins, Buffalo; H. L. Mourer, Wichita Falls, Texas; H. J. Weller, Decatur, Ill.; E. Householder, Elgin, Ill.; H. S. Hoover, W. H. Lattimer and W. P. Mayor, all of Chicago.

POSTMASTER KEEPS "WELL DRESSED" MAN WAITING IN OFFICE

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 14.—A Well dressed gentleman, unknown to any of the clerks, walked into Postmaster Lueder's office yesterday.

"Son, may I see Mr. Lueder?" he asked a clerk.

"He's busy; sit down," was the answer.

The gentleman waited fifteen minutes. Then:

"Son, do you suppose I could see Mr. Lueder now?"

"No, he's still talking to a bunch of clerks," was the reply.

"Well, you take him this card," said the stranger.

The clerk looked at the card. On it was:

"Dr. Hubert M. Work, postmaster general."

HORSE OWNED BY W. F. WEEKS WINS BIG PRIZE

W. F. Weeks, prominent local attorney, was all puffed up with pride yesterday—and rightly so. Word was received from Fort Worth that Easter Cloud, a stallion from the Weeks stables, had captured the sweepstakes prize for five-gaited saddle horses, the biggest honor in the Fort Worth horse show.

Easter Cloud was purchased a short time ago by Weeks from Miss Lulu Long of Kansas City, whose entries have time and again "mopped up" at the Madison Square Garden horse show in New York and who is generally recognized as this country's foremost horsewoman. The horse was ridden at the Fort Worth show by John Hook, of the Long stables.

Weeks has a number of other horses entered in the show.

Illiterate at 21, College Man at 32—Franklin

His life and work in the mountains will be described at a joint prayer meeting of the First and Central Presbyterian churches at the building of the former tonight by Rev. C. M. Franklin, teacher and minister, who at 21 did not know a letter, and now at 32 is a college graduate and a teacher himself. Deprived of school through opposition of his father to his attendance, young Franklin packed his few possessions on reaching his majority and set out to obtain an education, well knowing that this decision meant his casting himself out of the family circle.

Rev. Franklin is a close student of nature, and his description of the animal and bird life in the mountains is expected to be as interesting to the children as his description of life and manners in the mountains is to the older people. No collection is to be taken up at the meeting, it is announced by J. C. Hunt and Mrs. E. S. Goodner who, representing their respective congregations, arranged the joint meeting.

FIREMEN LIFT HOUSE FROM PATH OF FLAMES

By Associated Press.

MEXIA, Texas, March 14.—Fire companies that were called to the scene of a blaze in a row of small oil field shacks just out of the city limits and away from water connections today picked up one small house bodily and rolled it out of the way checking the advance of the flames. The fire was sweeping toward the crowded section of the western city limits in the teeth of a strong wind. Five small houses were destroyed.

monstrous crimes," he said, "and they lose nothing of their criminality by the profession of righteous or patriotic motive." After discussing the reserved powers of the people and the states, he said: "On the other hand, absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority is a fundamental tenet of Jeffersonian Democracy. We exercise our sovereignty when we choose our officers and instruct them. When they have acted upon the warrant of our authority, we are no longer sovereigns; we are severally and separately the subjects of the common sovereignty we have set above us. We are not good citizens when we rage against murder and tolerate mobs, when we condone morphine peddling and condone bootlegging. The greatest law and the least law are equal law. If the law trespasses upon our constitutional liberties the remedy is to invoke the constitution and nullify the law. We do not preserve one part of the constitution by violating another part. The first amendment is as sacred as the last, the fourth as the eighteenth. When we take the obligation of citizens, we subscribe to the whole body of the law, and when we violate any part of it we are unfaithful sovereigns and disloyal subjects.

It is the intention of the department of commerce to send a party, headed by Assistant Secretary C. H. Huston, to Alaska this summer for the purpose of making a general investigation of conditions in which that department is particularly interested. The bureau of fisheries, the coast and geodetic survey, the lighthouse service, and the steamboat inspection service are the bureaus of the department of commerce which are closely identified with the affairs of the territory. It is the purpose to determine in what ways these bureaus can be of greater benefit in developing Alaska. Particular attention will be devoted to the salmon fisheries of the territory, which yield products of an average annual value of $40,000,000 and in normal seasons give employment to upwards of 20,000 persons and represent an investment of about $70,000,000. It will be the purpose also to observe conditions in respect to the fur-seal industry at the Pribilo Islands, which work is administered by the department of commerce through the bureau of fisheries. The American fur-seal herd resorts to the Pribilo Islands for breeding purposes, and each year some of the surplus male seals are killed there and the pelts subsequently disposed of for the account of the government. In the season of 1921 there were taken 23,671 sealskins from the herd which numbered 581,458 animals. The annual censuses of the herd show a satisfactory growth each year, the net increase being about 5 per cent after deducting those killed. The skins are dressed, dyed and machined, and sold at public auction through the department's selling agents at St. Louis, and the proceeds are covered into the treasury of the United States. On the average the sealskins yield the government from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 annually. The government also engaged in foxing operations on the Pribilo Islands, the take averaging about 1,000 blue skins each year, which net about $100,000.

After thirty years of slow, persistent advance since its first appearance in this country near the Mexican border, the boll weevil has now reached the limit of cotton cultivation, except in Western Texas, Southwestern Oklahoma, Northeastern North Carolina, and Virginia, according to Department Circular 210, Dispersion of the Boll Weevil in 1921, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Each step of the spread has been against the stubborn efforts of the Government, the States, and the individual planters to hold the past in check. The mild winter of 1920-21 and the wet summer of 1921 favored an abnormal multiplication of the insect throughout the territory affected. In determining the extent of its spread last year the search over a great part of the territory surveyed was for the last cotton fields rather than for the weevil because all fields were infested. It still remains to be seen, says the circular, whether the weevil can maintain existence in the extreme portions of the cotton belt in which it now finds itself. For the first time the States of Missouri and Kentucky were invaded by the weevil and all fields in these States were found to be infested. The gain west of the Mississippi river is very nearly equal to that east of the river. The greatest gain in any single State, however, is 15,700 square miles in North Carolina. The circular contains a map showing the spread of the pest each year since its discovery in 1892 in the southernmost tip of Texas. Copies of the circular may be had free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

A KNEE BANDAGE

"Willie, look at the bandage on your knee! Down half way to your ankle, and the dressing all off the wound. If ever there was an exasperating boy—"

And Willie's mother, who believed firmly in germs, began to adjust the bandage that was indeed nearer Willie's ankle than his knee.

As Willie was one of the small boys who go in forsocks, the rather severe gash he had beside his chubby knee was quite uncovered, and the dressing looked as if it had fallen off and been replaced several times.

"When will you learn—" began Willie's mother, just as Willie said, interestedly:

"What's sasprate, mother? And why doesn't a round bandage stay on my knee?"

Willie's Mother Thinks

Willie's mother seldom tried to answer all his questions, because the small boy asked questions so fast that he seemed never to notice when a few went unanswered.

"There must surely be some other kind of bandage," thought Willie's mother. "Unless the child sits still in a chair the bandage keeps slipping every time he walks. And there isn't anything to pin it to so it will stay up."

Then in walked Madge, the girl who had spent most of one winter in a hospital where she had had opportunities to observe ways and means.

"If you don't mind the criticism," she said, "the reason the bandage keeps slipping is that it is not the right kind of a bandage for a knee. What you want is a four-tail knee bandage. Regular thing for a knee, you know."

Boy's Mother Makes Inquiries.

"But how do you do it?" asked Willie's mother.

"Just take a piece of muslin or cotton, its length depending upon the size of the knee," said Madge, "and split it at each end, toward the centre. Because Willie has a small knee a piece of cotton seven inches wide and twenty-four inches long will be just the thing. Then split each end about six inches—see?" And Madge illustrated with scissors and the cotton Willie's mother had produced.

The result was a strip of cloth with two parts at each end. The dressing having been applied to Willie's knee, the strip of cloth was placed with its centre directly upon the front of the knee. The ends were then passed behind the knee, crossed, and brought around to the front. The two lower ends were brought up to the top of the knee and knotted securely, though not so tightly as to disturb the circulation.

The Problem Easily Solved.

The two upper ends were tied in precisely the same fashion, only at the lower part of the knee. The result was a firm bandage that held the dressing securely, yet allowed Willie to walk easily. And instead of loosening the bandage with every movement of his leg, as had been the case when a roller bandage had been applied, each time Willie moved his leg he tightened the knots a little. And the bandage simply could not slip.

So his mother breathed again, sure that the dressing was remaining in place and not dropping on the floor now and then, to be replaced by a small boy who had not the slightest fear of infecting his wounded knee.

OLD MAN COYOTE'S DARK PLOT

(Copyrighted by J. G. Lloyd.)

Of course, you know what a plot is. It is a plan, a secret plan usually. Sometimes a plot is very, very nice, as when you plan to give some one a very pleasant surprise. But a dark plot is a plan to bring trouble to some one. Reddy and Granny Fox are great plotters, and their plots are always dark. Old Man Coyote is an even greater plotter, and his plots are just as dark. Very sly and very crafty are Reddy and Granny Fox, but just a little more sly and a wee bit more crafty is Old Man Coyote. That is one reason Reddy and Granny are afraid of him.

So when he came out and told them how foolish they were to quarrel with Redtail the Hawk over Peter Rabbit, because as long as he stayed under the big pile of brush where he was hiding he was safe, and how much better it would be if all four of them agreed upon a plan which he had and which he was sure would result in Peter being caught by one of them, they looked at him suspiciously. But Old Man Coyote's tongue is very smooth, very smooth. He said that he had a plan which would give each an equal chance to catch Peter Rabbit and which would surely give one of them a good dinner. Reddy and Granny and Redtail thought it over a little while and then they agreed. They themselves couldn't think of any way by which they could reach Peter, and they knew how very smart and crafty Old Man Coyote is. It might be that he really had a plan worth trying.

Old Man Coyote turned his head aside to hide a grin as he prepared to tell the others what his plan was. "It is very simple," said he. "There are four of us, and there is only one pile of brush. I will hide where I can watch one side; Reddy Fox will hide where he can watch another side; Granny Fox will hide where she can watch another side, and Redtail will watch from a tree on the fourth side. All we have to do is to be patient. Peter will be hungry by and by.

"There is nothing to eat under that pile of brush, and after a while he will just have to come out. If we all pretend that we have given up trying to catch him and start off just as if we were really going away, he will think that we really have gone. Then when he feels quite sure that the way is clear he will come out to try to get home to the Old Briar Patch. He is just as likely to come out one side as another, and so each has just as good a chance of catching him as the others. I am quite willing that you shall decide between you which sides you will watch, and I will take the one that is left. Now, what do you say?"

It certainly sounded like a very simple and perfectly fair plan, and they all agreed that it was worth trying. Reddy and Granny Fox winked at each other very slyly and each understood what that wink meant. If Reddy should catch Peter he would divide with Granny, and if Granny should catch Peter, she would divide with Reddy. In that way each felt sure of two chances for a rabbit dinner to one chance for each of the others. If Old Man Coyote saw that wink, he didn't let them know it. He just sat down and politely waited for the others to decide which sides they would watch. When at last they had agreed, all four pretended to give up the hunt for Peter and started off as if they really intended to leave Peter alone.

"It is very simple, said he. "There are four of us, and there is only one pile of brush."

And all the time underneath the big pile of brush poor Peter Rabbit sat with his heart going pit-a-pat listening with all his might to hear what he could of Old Man Coyote's dark plot. He couldn't hear it all, but he heard just enough to make him feel sure that when they pretended to give up and go away they really had done nothing of the kind. What should he do What could he do? How ever was he going to get back to the dear, safe Old Briar Patch?

Unknown Famous Men Cagiostro

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

Foremost and most spectacular of unknown celebrities is Cagliostro.

All of us have read that fascinating string of novels by Alexander Dumas, including the Three Musketeers, The Queen's Necklace, Joseph Balsamo and the rest.

In the life of Joseph Balsamo he dealt with this character of Cagliostro, a figure which had strongly impressed the imagination of Europe.

No one seems to know just who Cagliostro really was, and no two people appear to have agreed about the acts of his life. And this was Cagliostro's hold; he was a professional man of mystery. He had all of the showman's art of concealment.

What is certain is that a strange man who claimed to be sometimes a physician, sometimes a spiritualistic medium, sometimes an alchemist, roamed about Europe in the days that preceded the French Revolution.

Dumas called him Joseph Balsamo, but he called himself Cagliostro, although he claimed not to know his real name and he did not even stick to this one name at all times and places.

He said that he was born in Medina in 1749.

Whether he was from Medina or Palermo, we know that he came up to London at the time of the outbreak of the American Revolution. Just how or where he got his money to come nobody knows. We do know, however, that he had an affair with the London police and was accused of getting money under false pretenses.

We find him again in Amsterdam, in Frankfort, in Berlin in Konigsberg.

Again suddenly the whole of Saint Petersburg is agog about a great magician. Cagliostro had arrived.

Those were days favorable to his craft. Mesmer was then announcing his first attempts in hypnotism. Swedenborg had convinced many people that it was a very simple matter to converse with the angels. Freemasonry was in its virile youth, and as Cagliostro was thought to be high up in masonry circles that added to his glamour of mystery.

Everybody in Petrograd was seeing ghosts and having other strange psychic experiences.

Next he showed up in Warsaw, and afterwards in Strasbourg.

In Strasbourg he was not a crook nor a magician; he was a physician and a physician who could cure anything. It would take a large book to hold the account of all the strange and marvellous stories of his doings in Strasbourg.

Then he went to Paris where he posed as a seer. He would get his house full of people and give mystical speeches, after the manner of the theosophists. It is but fair to say, however, that the theosophists would not accept him as one of their number any more than would the doctors or the chemists.

He got into trouble again in Paris, as he seemed to find trouble everywhere. The Queen's necklace disappeared; that famous necklace that had much to do with the French Revolution. Cagliostro was mixed up in this but finally was declared innocent and betook himself to London.

After two years in London the place grew too hot for him again and he went to switzerland and then to Rome.

That was the end of him. For in 1791 he got into trouble with the Inquisition, an institution that was just as mysterious and much more powerful than he. He was locked up in the Fortress of San Leone. There they turned the key upon him and there he disappears from history.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Now for the Fireside Thunder and Lightning Sets.

Sweet days are ahead. The ambition, felt by every human being at one time or another, to hurl a bolt of lightning is within early realization.

o o o

And, as far as thunder is concerned, you soon may be able to roll your own.

o o o

Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, electrical wizard, claims to have discovered a method of producing thunder and lightning which, as the druggist would say, are "just as good" as the original articles.

o o o

By pressing the third button from the left and turning lever No. 3 in his laboratory, the scientist recently released a lightning bolt that ripped a miniature tree from tip to base and shattered specified oak planks to smithereens.

o o o

Great! Only thing that remains to be done now is to put the apparatus up in parlor game sets so the young and old may while away the dull evenings.

o o o

No home will be complete without a Lightning Casting Outfit. Children will cry for it.

o o o

Little Willie will amuse himself casting zig-zag bolts at the cat. Sister Susie will kill the duller hours trying to score a direct hit on her doll with a Jovian bolt at thirty paces. Pa and Ma will fight it out with personally conducted electrical storms in the kitchen.

o o o

A good time will be had by all except the neighbors.

o o o

Landlords will call at their own peril. A shot of lightning between the eyes is enough to take any man's mind off the mere matter of back rent.

It really is very simple, according to Dr. Steinmetz. Ever since the scientist saw his first thunderstorm he has wanted to make one just like it. With possible improvements on the lightning.

o o o

In that ambition he has had nothing on members of the human race. Practically every man has longed to produce his own lightning bolts. It has been simply a case of never getting down to it. Every time a thunderstorm came along it would remind a fellow of his ambition, but..... well, so many other things would come up between storms to distract him!

o o o

But once you make up your mind to perfect indoor lightning and set steadfastly to work success is certain, it seems. No success is possible on the other hand, if, in the midst of perfecting a few cushion shots with lightning, you succumb to an invitation to drop work and run down to the burlesque house.

o o o

To be a successful lightning maker you've got to concentrate. Dr. Steinmetz has concentrated, and what's the result? He is now an even money choice in the betting whenever he is matched with a real honest-to-goodness thunder storm.

o o o

Really, awfully simple! When the secret is marketed, and every well-conducted home has its own set, a caller, on a stifling summer evening, may remark: "Could you serve a cooling thunder storm? I'm so warm!"

"Certainly," will be the reply. "Will you have two lumps of lightning with your thunderstorms or three?"

"Three, if you don't mind. Are you sure it isn't too much trouble?"

"No trouble at all, m'dear. I just love to get up dainty little electrical disturbances for my friends."

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

My wife says she has spoiled the Brown divorce case. She has knocked some deserving lawyer—no, two deserving lawyers—out of a fee apiece. And she did it so easily that she has to smile in looking back.

"Just by taking ribbons away from Mrs. Brown," said she.

You don't know Mrs. Brown of course. But she used to look like Mrs. Guy Fawkes. There wasn't a curve or angle on her frame to which she did not anchor a ribbon or a dingle-dangle of some sort, or a fringe or something to jingle. She wasn't a bad looking woman if she had let herself alone. Fact is, she is a mighty good looking woman. But by the time she finished dressing for her impersonation of Young Hair-in-the-Eye, the Sioux Squaw, she would scare a city horse.

Brown is one of the silent, observing, tongue tied sort. He made several attempts to correct the more obvious faults of Mrs. Brown's apparel, and got precisely what every husband gets who clambers on that particular thin ice. He began to pull away. Did not go out with his wife, for—to tell the straight truth about it—he was ashamed of her. It is no good saying that he was not a loyal husband. Even loyal husbands often have their faculties and the power of thought. Not even a loyal husband could enjoy going out with a woman at whom people openly laughed when they saw her on the street. Poor Mrs. Brown felt him slipping away from her and redoubled her efforts to hold. By that I mean she put on more ribbons and more bells and more fluttering ends.

"You do not know how to dress,"," my wife said one day.

She is terribly plain spoken on occasion, is Mrs. Pilgrim, and she told Mrs. Brown just what was the matter and they had a truly feminine racket which ended in tears and a reconciliation and an agreement by Mrs. Pilgrim that she should take charge of the other woman's wadrobe. She got rid of those trunkfuls of terrible junk poor Mrs. Brown had pathetically accumulated in her effort to make herself pretty in her husband's eyes. Whenever Mrs. Brown protested Mrs. Pilgrim waved a monitory finger at her. I've had that same finger waved at me, and I know the effect.

"But I don't like that," Mrs. Brown protested when Mrs. Pilgrim began to buy the new dresses.

"Do you love your husband?" was the reply discourteous.

It's all over now. Mrs. Brown knows what she can wear, and no matter how much her unregenerate, savage, barbarian taste pulls at her, she depends on line and pose rather than on the Derby Day effect she used to value. And the Browns are happy as ever, and Brown has gone back to bragging about his wife.

But Mrs. Brown is one woman in a million. No other woman I know would have submitted to that sort of rough stuff.

A bill has been introduced in congress prohibiting the transportation in interstate commerce and through the mails of revolvers and all other small arms except those to be used in the army and navy. It is a measure intended to lessen the commission of crime, and should be heartily endorsed by all good citizens in letters to their congressmen.

More effective, of course, would be a measure to prohibit, not merely the transportation, but also the manufacture and sale of revolvers and other small firearms to civilians. But this is a matter for state legislation. And pressure should most certainly be brought to bear on state legislators everywhere to secure the enactment of such prohibitory law.

The only persons to be adversely affected thereby would be criminals and revolver manufacturers. The former can hardly come forward with any sound objections. Neither can the latter. The saving of one human life from a desperado's bullet counts for infinitely more than any amount of monetary gain through the making of revolvers.

And it may be set down as certain that many lives would be saved if revolvers were less readily available to criminals than they are today.

At a recent mass meeting in Chicago that city's chief of detectives declared that over 90 per cent of Chicago's crime was committed with the aid of pistols and revolvers. A judge added that nothing would more effectually put a stop to Chicago's epidemic of crimes of violence than the enactment of anti-revolver laws.

Many other authorities on crime prevention might be cited to similar effect. According to George P. Le Brun, for example, the passing and enforcing of such laws would cut at least in half the yearly average of 7,500 murders in the United States.

To the objection that criminals would still contrive to procure revolvers "somehow," it may well be answered that, provided all the states cooperate, the difficulties in the way of revolver getting would be virtually insurmountable for the common run of criminals. And criminals' zeal to get revolvers would conspicuously cool if the penalty for more revolver carrying were made really severe.

England's experience goes to bear this out. Since the passage of the pistol act in 1903, narrowly restricting the private possession of revolvers and other firearms, there has been a marked diminution in crimes accompanied with violence.

Something, decidedly, should and must be done to reduce the murder rate on this side of the Atlantic. Action to put a nation wide ban on the revolver would be at least a first step in the right direction. And it is action that cannot be taken a day too soon.

The Daily Story

RIGHT OF WAY

It was one of these still country nights when, except for the gentle breathing of the leaves in the treetop of the tall poplar at the ranch house gate, the earth lay wrapped in soundless sleep, with the soft-stepping moonlight tiptoeing about as though afraid to wake her.

"Good night, mother," said a man's voice from the dusk of the ranch house porch. "No, I'm not coming in yet a while."

As the door into the lighted hall shut upon the soft blur of the woman's retreating figure there came a quick, sharp striking of a match, and a moment later Tom Wheaton, hatless, smoking his pipe, was strolling down one of the broad, straight aisles leading through the prune orchard in its springtide flood of bloom on the left of the drive.

The silvery whiteness of the blossoming trees looked as though the moonlight had caught and been trapped in their branches—the dappled light and shadow on the ground, spotless of weeds, a figured runner of carpet. Tom Wheaton was not of a poetic nature and the business end of it—the planting, the pruning, the spraying of the trees, the disposing of the fruit at the highest figure, the prosaic hard labor of keeping things going—had taken away all the romance of ranching. But on such a night of bloom and beauty he still felt a quickening thrill. Besides tonight his thoughts were restless, wandering off on all sorts of dreamy bypaths.

Partly, he supposed, this was because dear old Reg was home again, with all the life and optimism his presence always brought. It stirred a fellow up; shook him out of his humdrum groove; partly because for the first time in years he felt free to dream. For different as his life had been from what he would have chosen, he had made good. He had got things finally into the shape he had been working for ever since his father's death. And now that the new hillside orchards were bearing—the acreage that had been such a Herculean task to clear of stubborn scrub oak growth—its outcrop of rock had had to be blown out piecemeal by dynamite—each year the ranch would bring in a better income. Besides Reg, at last being financially on his feet, meant a big expense saved the family exchequer.

A little smile played upon the sober face of the man facing the orchard. He did not grudge a cent spent on Reg. But there had been times in the past, particularly during the year of post-graduate work at Oxford and the following two years of study and travel on the continent, when it had been a pretty hard pull to meet some of the bills.

Tom Wheaton was not given to retrospection. The day and the day's exacting task had generally demanded his whole attention. But that moonlight night of wandering thoughts, as he came to the orchard's side boundary, and, perching on the fence between the Wheaton place and the adjoining Coulter ranch, tugged musingly at his pipe, it rose vividly before him again—the moment of decision when he had stood at the parting of the ways of life! the time seven years before when after his father's death he knew that he and his brother could not both go back to college; that even had there been money enough, one of them must stay to manage the ranch and to be with their mother.

He had not hesitated. With Reg's brilliant mind, to tie him down on the ranch would have been a crime. But he wondered if any one realized the bitter disappointment it had been to stop college, to give up his cherished ambition of studying law. Certainly not his mother. For from boyhood up Reg, handsome, talented and lovable, had been his mother's idol, and, although the younger son, had always been given the right of way as a matter of course. And as much as his mother's partiality sometimes hurt, for Tom was no tin saint, he bore no resentment in his heart against the favorite brother. He took almost as much pride as his mother in the diplomatic appointment the young fellow had just won—a position of no small importance in itself and one which, with Reg's talents, would inevitably lead to higher distinction.

Like a stifled sigh of the sleeping earth came an owl's fluttering hoot. As far as he personally was concerned residence abroad had no lure. The little old United States was good enough for him. But he knew that going to Europe, seeing new places, meeting new people had long been the dream of Mildred Coulter's heart—the dear little next-door neighbor, whose intimate friendship was the consolation prize for all that Tom Wheaton had failed to score in the game of life. And now, when at last he was in a position to ask her to be his wife, if only he could have gone to her with some such radiant happiness to offer.

The man on the fence gave a start. Suddenly the enveloping silence was stirred by a sound of voices. A man's voice and a girl's in animated talk, in gay-winged laughter. Though distant, at once he recognized them. It was Reg and Mildred Coulter.

So this was the meaning of Reggie's eagerness to see "all his friends," when in spite of his mother's protests three evenings of that first week at home he had hurried off directly after supper.

The face of the man sitting there went white, and a fierce, angry light sprang into his eyes. All his life he had stood aside and let Reg have the right of way. But not now. He'd not give Mildred up. True, there was no engagement between them. It had been his chivalric notion to leave her absolutely free until he was in a position to marry. But she belonged to him by every claim—the claim of years of intimate intercourse; the claim of the depth of his love for her; the claim of his need of her. And with all the strength of his manhood he would fight for his own.

The voices had abruptly ceased and a moment later he knew, he felt, rather than heard, that Reggie was approaching through the Coulter orchard.

"Hello, that you, old scout!" exclaimed the younger brother in surprise as he came out from the white haze of bloom and halted at the fence. The moonlight was turned full on his handsome face and upon it Tom saw a new glow—a new shiny look in the eyes. "Do you know since I've been home this time I've made a wonderful discovery?' said Reginald Wheaton in his impulsive way. "That after all the philandering of my college and globe-trotting days, the one girl in the world for me is right here at Plumfield Center. Say," he burst out indignantly, "it must have been mighty hard lines for a girl like Mildred Coulter, who would grace any position, to have been buried alive on a ranch all these years. If you'd seen the wistful eagerness on her beautiful face tonight when we talked of Europe together, you'd know what being shut out of things has meant to her. But if only she'll give me a chance," he ended in a radiant tone, "I'll make it up to the little girl for all she has missed in the past." He put his hands on the top rail and leaped the fence into the home orchard. "Coming on back to the house, Tom" he asked.

"No, not yet," answered the older brother. "I'm going to finish my pipe."

He sat staring into space. As one in a trance. As one stunned by a blow. "I can't give her up! I can't give her up!" he thought.

The words kept beating against his brain, until he almost cried out in pain. It was no longer a question of Reg's right of way. It was giving the right of way to the girl he loved; the right of way to a happy, full, rich life in an environment worthy of her charm and beauty.

Only two little weeks remained of Reg's visit. But he made the most of them as far as Mildred was concerned. Never had a girl had a more ardent suitor, a more impassioned wooing. And in dumb agony Tom stood aside and gave the right of way.

It was the day before Reggie left and Tom watched him go by the Coulter ranch through the short cut way of the orchards—and knew why he had gone.

There was no doubt in his mind what Mildred's answer would be. Reg was the kind of man that made all women a little breathless, and during his whole life anything he had set his heart on he always got.

Yet when he came back an hour later there was no air of victory about the slow-walking figure, no triumph in the sober, set face. "I suppose a fellow has to take his medicine," he said, in a sorry attempt at speaking lightly, "but I must say I don't like the bitter taste of defeat."

"You mean?" said Tom Wheaton in astonishment.

"That she turned me down hard," answered Reg in a surprised, dazed tone.

Two nights later there was no longer moonlight in the orchards, but a bright starry radiance everywhere, in the sky overheard, upon the white bloom of the trees, in the happy eyes of the girl walking at Tom Wheaton's side.

For to a woman the world and its fulness—of honors, of opportunities, of pleasures—is as nothing compared to life with the man she loves. And it was Tom who had long ago won the right of way to Mildred Coulter's heart.

THE QUIET VILLAGE

In Pruneville, when the clocks strike nine, the lights go out along the line, the streets are dark and bare; and moral citizens, at that, wind up the clock, turn out the cat, and to the hay repair. At times the citizens will go to see a helpful movie show that some great truth expounds, or when a lecturer arrives to brighten up their quiet lives with hoarse but earnest sounds. But breaks like these are far between; the voters are but seldom seen away from home at night; no lights are shining in their homes, but harmless dreams pervade their domes, where they are sleeping tight. If you remark their lives are tame, they'll tell you of a checker game that lasted seven years, with final honors yet to win—and they can't see why you should grin, nor understand your sneers. Gay slacks from the crowded marts stop there for gas to run their carts, and gaze with high disdain; to live in such a burg, they've said, when there are towns that are not dead, is neither safe nor sane. But Pruneville people, in their way, seem cheerful, jubilant and gay, despite the city's jeers; in their old age they're hale and spry, they laugh and sleep and seldom die at less than five score years.

Representing dues from both old and new members, 90 workers in the Civic League membership drive launched Tuesday under the general chairmanship of Mrs. J. M. Isbell, reported $435 collected as dues from old and new members.

The workers reported that they were received by those called upon with courtesy, where there was response to the door bell.

At the close of the morning campaign, a delicious luncheon consisting of sandwiches, apple pie, coffee with whipped cream was served the workers at the Y. W. C. A.

Wool Embroidery Trims the Dotted Swiss Frock Sketched

Colored dotted swiss is always a delightful fabric, and fortunately it never goes out of style. For several years this material has played an important role in the development of clothes for children as well as grown-ups, and such is emphatically true of apparel recommended for spring and summer. If a good quality is bought, and it never really pays to buy cheap, poor quality fabrics, a dotted swiss frock will stand very hard wear and tear, and to a very large extent the fabric is its own trimming. Figured and dotted materials, plaids, checks, stripes, etc., require very little in the way of embellishment.

The frock shown, designed for a girl of six to ten years, features the low waist with ruffles forming a flaring, smart little skirt. The dress sketched was in a brown with tan dots, and each ruffle was finished at its edge with a blanket stitch in tan wool. Navy blue and red, gray with rose or light blue, and red with white dots, are some of the popular combinations.

In addition to the blanket stitch embroidery done in tan wool on the little frock sketched, a tan wool cord also formed a lacing at either side of the skirt. A smart hat to match might be developed, with tan crown and filled brim, tan wool embroidery and crocheted flowers of the wool trimming it.

When a dotted swiss frock is trimmed otherwise than with mere touches of simple embroidery, plain swiss is frequently used, and net lace or plain bands of net set on the edges of ruffles, on sleeves, etc., also constitute a dainty and effective trimming.

Both silk and wool jersey cloth are being extensively featured for children's dresses for spring, bloomers almost always accompanying these frocks.

A Wife or a Profession?

BY CAROLYN BEECHER

(Copyright, 1922, by Carolyn Beecher)

Chapter XXIV

It is strange the effect marriage, the close association of two persons, often has on one or both. Until her marriage to Howard, Annette Gilbert had been rather a sensible girl and was considered so because of her interest in her Red Cross and other war work. One knowing her then would have said she would look upon Howard's interest in his patients as only the natural thing and to be commended.

Perfect satisfaction would have been hers now had Howard given only the hours between nine and five to his work and devoted the remainder of his time to her. That his night calls were frequent, that he never hesitated to answer them because of distance or the patient's inability to pay, caused Annette to urge him constantly to give up his profession and engage in business.

"If you would keep office hours like Dr. Agnew does, from ten to eleven, and four until five, and make your visits during the day as he does I wouldn't say a word. He always takes an hour or more for luncheon, too, and he is a bachelor. No lonely, neglected wife waiting for him as you have. And Luella says he makes big money. That he knows how to charge for his services."

"I have heard he gets large fees." Howard's quiet tone angered Annette.

"You are a better doctor than he is, more capable. Why don't you try to get some of the wealthy practice, and give up the other and stay with me instead of chasing out after every poor person in town—and for nothing! I heard your uncle say the other night that the laborer is worthy of his hire. Of course, he was quoting, but it seems to me it is true. That it isn't at all called for that one should work for nothing."

"Annette, please, dear, don't let us have any more of these discussions. They never lead us anywhere, and they do leave scars—deep ones." This last he added so low she did no hear.

"Forgive me, Howard!" penitent as she often was when he spoke in that tone. "I do try to be patient, to content myself, but I feel so lonely, so as if you cared so much more for everything, for almost everybody than you do for me."

"Nonsense, dear. Of course, I'll forgive you. I was late last night, but that poor little bambino of Pelletti's was terribly ill and he, poor fellow, was so frightened."

"A fruit-stand Italian!"

"Yes, but he loves his children. She will get well, I think. I wish you—would you, Annette—take something to her? A little broth or something. When uncle looked after that family he never failed to see they had some good broth and other simple things. The mother speaks no English, and she is apt to feed that child spaghetti."

"I'll take her some broth if you wish me to."

"That's a good girl," he returned, hiding the disappointment he felt that she was doing it for him, not because of any feeling for the sick child.

On her way to the Pellettis, Annette ran into Luella.

"Where in the world are you going with that bowl?" she asked.

"To the Pellettis. Their baby is sick, and Howard says the mother is apt to feed it spaghetti unless someone takes them the right food."

"Um—why don't you use that idea to see his other patient, that Norwell girl at the hospital? I'll bet I would if he were my husband. I met him this morning and he was in such a hurry to get to the hospital he never saw me, although I had to turn to the side of the road to let him pass. He was driving like mad, too. He'll be arrested for breaking the speed laws if he doesn't watch out."

"He forgets how fast he is driving when he is thinking," Annette answered, "and he often passes people without seeing them." She was aware that Howard cared little for Luella, so was the more apologetic, although she could give no reason for his dislike.

"Well, I must hurry home. Dr. Agnew is lunching with us. I'll see you in a day or two. We must have some more bridge. Kent Moore is to be here about a month and we must do something to entertain him."

"I must have you all over to our house," Annette answered. Then wished she had not been so impulsive. It might be awkward. Howard and Dr. Agnew were not at all friendly. But Luella saved her embarrassment by saying:

"Just ask Kent Moore and me. That will make four, and we can have a game of bridge." Then, having done all the mischief she could, Luella left her.

"I'll do as Luella suggested. I don't see why I didn't think of it. I'll take some broth or something over to Miss Norwell. I'll see for myself the sort of a girl Howard is spending so much of his time with. He can't be angry if I am trying to do a kindness."

Thus she salved her conscience, which tried to warn her that Howard would not approve of her plan.

BOND DENTON MAN ORDERED FORFEITED

The $3,000 bond of John B. Thomas, well known resident of Denton, who was to have been tried in district court there Monday for the alleged violation of the state prohibition act was forefited when the accused failed to appear for trial according to information Tuesday from Archie Tyler, federal prohibition enforcement officer in charge of this district who returned here from Denton.

According to Mr. Tyler the judge of the court ordered Thomas' bond forfeited when his case was called and he failed to appear. It is understood that his present whereabouts are known and he will be re-arrested and brought to Denton for trial. Mr. Tyler was one of the officers who took part in a raid of a farm said to have belonged to Thomas on which a still was alleged to have been found in operation.

CALOMEL IS A DANGEROUS DRUG

Next Dose May Salivate You, Loosen Teeth or Start Rheumatism.

Calomel is mercury; quicksilver. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. (Adv.)

DAINTY SLIPPERS AND SMART SHOES FOR THE NEW SEASON

In buying shoes one must now look ahead to a spring season in which sports costumes, wool hose or silk and wool, or silk liale in all of the soft colors, will be worn with footwear of the sport order in a variety of leathers. A shoe is not in the sport class simply because there is a dominant interest in sport wear. Sport shoes are for street, golf and walking, but for dress and semi-dress the pretty straps in patent, satin, brocade and suede are correct. Shown here are a number of new styles, including straps with jeweled buckles for evening wear, suedes and satins for evening wear, white buck with fringed tongue for street and sports wear in summer and gold cloth mules for the boudoir.

Wichita Falls Dog Wins 5 Firsts in Fort Worth Show

EUGENE M., JR., TAKES TOTAL OF SEVEN PLACES AGAINST BIG FIELD OF 300 ENTRIES

BY C. F. C.

Eugene M., Jr., the big, rangy black and white setter owned by Claude Woods that made such a remarkable showing at Bowie recently, added to his dog honors yesterday by capturing seven ribbons at the Forth Worth Kennel Club show. 'Gene grabbed five firsts, one second and a reserve place in competition with an entry list of 300 of the finest dogs in Texas.

Details concerning the setter's triumphs were omitted from a telegram received last night by the sporting editor of The Record News from Woods, the wire reading briefly as follows:

"Gene wins five firsts, one second and reserve winner, Fort Worth shaw here today. Entries in show about 300."

The Fort Worth show is the third occasion on which Eugene M., Jr., has called the attention of prominent bird dog men to Wichita Falls. Last year at the Houston bench show 'Gene swept the field, being placed by the judges as the finest dog exhibited of any type and also winning the blue ribbon in the setter class.

Woods entered the dog again in the bench show at Bowie, although he had taken 'Gene to the neighboring Texas city primarily to run him in the trials of the Oil Belt Field Trials association. 'Gene captured four firsts in that show, including being named as the finest setter exhibited and placed as the second finest dog in the entire field of 160 entries, the judges placing the Wichita Falls setter even above Champion Becky Broomhill.

Woods entered 'Gene in the field trials in the amateur all-age and open all-age events. The setter captured fourth place in the amateur stake, and many competent critics were of the openly expressed opinion that he should have received second and at the worst third. Only 'Gene's closest admirers expected the dog to make a showing in the open all-age stake, in which a number of the greatest bird dogs in America were entered. But again the setter put up a brilliant race, and was taken by the judges into the second series before finally losing out in the tiny closing field of six wonderful dogs.

Eugene M., Jr., is destined to be crowned a bench show champion, with a right to that title before his name, if he continues to collect honors. To win a championship a dog must first win a certain total of places in duly credited bench shows under the rules of the American Kennel Club. I am not certain of the number of places that the dog must win, but I don't believe 'Gene can be very far from that championship right now.

Eugene M., Jr., is a thoroughbred all the way. His dam was Lady Okla, owned by "Doc" L. O. Landon, of this city, and his father was Champion Eugene M., one of the finest bird dogs ever bred in the United States.

RED AND BLACK NINE PROMISES TO BE WINNER

By "HANK" HAYES

Unless the dope runs wild later, Wichita Falls high scool should have a winning baseball team this spring. The squad is working out daily under the eye of Coach Henderson, who has uncovered a number of new players who are likely to make good. There is an abundance of material and every position on the team has several candidates.

Even the hurling problem has become a minor one, with Bourland, Ray, Harris and Waggoner beginning to show steady improvement. Bob McAbee, last year's ace, will not represent the school this season as he expects to work out with the Spudders at every opportunity.

Quilliam and Ross, the latter a new man, are battling for the job of first string catcher. Kenley at first, and Capt. Kinziar at shortstop are expected to be fixtures in the infield; Bashara, Neal and Deems are fighting for a regular assignment at second, and Roberts and Miller are the two most likely hot corner artists. The team promises to have a hard-hitting outfield picked from Baldwin, Haney, Skeen and Crites.

Manager Denheim has not completed a full schedule as yet, but has arranged games with the local Shrine team March 25; Vernon high May 12; Graham high April 14 at Iowa Park during the district meet—and is also seeking games with Waxahachie high, Bryant high of Dallas and Central high of Fort Worth. Oklahoma City high filled its early, and was unable to give the Red and Black a date.

Arrangements are being made to obtain either Athletic park or the Texas company diamond, so that the team's activities can be put on a solid financial basis.

McGRAW HOPES TO MAKE FIRST SACKER OF THIS LANKY PACIFIC COAST PITCHER

George Stanton working out at first at San Antonio.

John McGraw, Giant leader, has decided that the future holds more for George Stanton, lanky southpaw hurler, as a first baseman than as a pitcher. Stanton has two assets a good first baseman needs—rangy build and a southpaw whip. He came from the Pacific Coast league and stands 6 feet 5½ inches in height.

GRUDGE BATTLE BETWEEN TWO LEAGUES WHEN JACK HOLLAND BRINGS HIS OKLAHOMANS HERE

BY "NICK" CARTER

There's going to be an old grudge settled at Athletic park this coming Saturday and Sunday; the grudge held by Jack Holland, boss of the Oklahoma City club of the Western league, against every club in the Texas league—and I've got a hunch it won't be settled entirely to the satisfaction of Holland.

Jack is bringing his Oklahomans here primarily because he has been asserting for two years that he can lick any Texas league club that ever existed. But Jack also has an eye for the almighty dollar, and he made the local baseball association guarantee his club against rain, hail, snow, north winds, rheumatism, asthma, catarrh of the nose and throat, tonsilitis, whooping cough and gout before he finally agreed to attempt to prove his assertion that the Western league is faster than the Texas circuit. Holland admits his club is in first class condition right now, and that his pitchers are looking unusually good—but he hasn't seen any pitching yet!

Skipper Salm has two or three aces in the hole to turn over and exhibit to Jack, if it becomes necessary. Frank Kitchens, Babe Ruth, Jumbo Ramsey, Rabbit Dorrough and Abe Bowman are due back from Marlin the tail end of this week, and any one of the four hurlers mentioned may take a shot at the Oklahoma City crew if none of the promising-looking rookie flingers can stop 'em.

Those two games Saturday and Sunday should furnish more fireworks by far than the games last week with the Cleveland Indians. I spent two years looking 'em over in the Western league, and while I believe the Texas loop is stronger, I'll admit that the old Western circuit has produced many great ballplayers in the past, has some fine players right now and will show many more good ones in the future.

Ruth Must Be Good

Referring back again to the four Spudder hurlers at Marlin, here's some dope that's worth hearing; that sounds good. The Indianapolis club of the American association, a Class AA organization as most of you fans know, is training at Marlin. Kitchens has had his flingers working out with the Hoosiers—and yesterday Jack Hendricks, boss of the Indianapolis aggregation, wired Salm here asking him to put a price on Babe Ruth. Sufficient to say that Salm didn't do so, but the telegram certainly pleased him. Kitchens earlier had reported to Salm that Ruth appeared to have everything a pitcher should have this year, and you can bet your last dollar that Jack Hendricks isn't trying to buy a green flinger unless he has given the lad a mighty close scrutiny.

"Iefty" Odom is still missing. Although the young southpaw signed a contract and received his orders to report to Kitch at Marlin, he never has done so; wants some more concessions, and he hasn't a change in the world to get 'em. The way things are shaping up now Odom won't be missed if he never checks in; he's only hurting his own chances if he really cares to play professional baseball.

Walter received a letter from Danny Clark yesterday, and Danny appears to be weakening under the strain of trying to land that job of second-basing for the Detroit Tigers; at least, Danny inserted a sentence in his letter saying: "I want to come back to Wichita Falls if I don't make good here; don't let them send me anywhere else." Clark has a tough row to hoe with Detroit, and I doubt if he can make the grade with Pep Young showing his brilliant 1920 form and with some six or eight other infield candidates very much on the job.

Evans Is Released

The boys got in another fast workout yesterday afternoon. Salm cut young Evans loose from the squad as the youngster, although he showed considerable ability for a sandlotter is clearly outclassed by several of the more experienced infield candidates. Sorey and Wright battled together around second base, while Tex McDonald and Hall fought it out at the hot corner. Wright is good, all right but I doubt if he can outfield this Sorey bird. Hall made an unusually fine impression. Jake Miller was there in earnest, and in the batting practice soaked the old pill on the nose as per other seasons. Speed Comstock drove one out of the park. Beck laid several solidly against the fence and all the boys, in fact, hit the ball hard.

Salm is a little worried about White, whose transportation was wired to him a week ago, but who has failed to appear or send any word. On his record while with the Oakland club of the Coast league White is a real infielder, and the Skipper needs 'em all right now in order to settle that problem satisfactorily.

CARNIVAL OF LEGION POST FULL SUCCESS

With attractions ranging all the way from a three ring circus, a pink elephant, and numerous sideshows, to the Honorable Clarence Ousley, who as a visitor entered fully into the spirit of the occasion, the American Legion Carnival Tuesday night was literally a "howling" success. There were between three and four hundred who attended, the American Legion club rooms being packed, and the crowd had a regular noisy, carnival time.

There were two main attractions, the Girls club circus, with Miss Janis McCallister as ringmaster, and a playlet, "Modes and Manners" by the Business Women's Dramatic club, with Miss Bruce Dickson director. Both were exceedingly clever. The Girls club circus furnished the side shows, which included some highly original and entertaining features.

All the regulation candy, hot dog, sandwich, and ice cream and cold drink stands which accompany carnivals and circuses were represented, with Legion Auxiliary members behind the counters. Steaming coffee was dispensed free, with the compliments of Carrol-Brough-Robinson & Gates, the coffee being the "First Pick" brand.

Jazz music and dancing provided the grand finale for the carnival, with a large number of dancers on the floor. The treasurers of the various booths were not able to report Tuesday night, but a nice sum for the Auxiliary treasury was assured.

Dr. Ledford to Speak Today at Lions' Meeting

Dr. H. B. Ledford, local physician, will speak at the luncheon today of the Lions club to be held at the usual hour at the Kemp hotel. Dr. Ledford will speak on the subject, "A Parent's Greatest Responsibility."

The speaker is a specialist on the care and diseases of children and is considered an authority on the subject which he will discuss. A general invitation to hear Dr. Ledford is extended to the public.

BARNES TO START FOR GIANTS TODAY AGAINST WHITE SOX

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, March 14.—Manager McGraw of the New York Giants said tonight he would start Jess Barnes against the White Sox tomorrow in the third game of the Giants-White Six exhibition series. Barnes has been getting into shape rapidly and the Giant manager hopes he will tame the Sox, who have won one and tied one of the two spring games with the Giants thus far.

Kleinman to Be Speaker at Tariff Meeting

Charleston A. Kleinman, who recently appeared before a congressional committee as a representative of the southern tariff congress at a hearing with relation to the oil industry, has been invited by J. A. Arnold, vice president of the association, to address a forthcoming meeting of the association in Fort Worth at which the formation of an agricultural bloc will be attempted. Mr. Kleinman expects to attend the meeting. He has been devoting a considerable amount of his time recently to the work of the association.

PIRATES SELL GEORGE WHITTED TO DODGERS

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 14.—The Pittsburgh National league baseball club officials today announced that George B. Whitted, outfielder, had been sold to the Brooklyn club for the waiver price of $2,500. Summa, a recruit outfielder bought from the Rochester club of the International league, was sold to the Wichita Falls club of the Texas league, it also was announced.

SPUDS BUY HOMER SUMMA TO CLOSE GAP IN OUTFIELD

Homer Summa, one of the fastest outfielder in the International league last year, was purchased yesterday by Manager Walter Salm from the Rochester club. Summa is a fine fielder, unusually fast on his feet and hit last season around the .350 mark. He received a tryout with Pittsburgh two years ago, but the Pirates were loaded with good outfielders and Summa was sent to the Birmingham Barons. Last year with Rochester he was rated the finest outfielder in the International loop.

Although no figures were made public, it is understood that the local baseball association had to hand over a big wad of cash for Summa. The deal is taken as an indication that Salm has about given up hope of Bescher's return to the game. If Summa plays the kind of baseball here that he has been playing the last two years, the Spudders should still have the greatest outfield in the Texas league, whether or not Bescher reports.

Some Chest-Nuts

An Irish woman appeared in police court as the result of a quarrel with her husband. The magistrate shook his head sadly as he looked at her.

"Dear, dear," he said, "this is dreadful. Here are you, Mrs. Flannigan, mother of a family, with your eye blacked, your lip torn, your cheek bruised, and your nose broken. Dreadful, dreadful!"

"Ah, sure, your honor," answered the woman, somewhat sadly. Then she added, "But wait until you see Flannigan!"

"Why do you turn out for every road hog who comes along?" she asked, rather crossly. "The right of way is yours."

"Surely," said her husband calmly, "but my reason is suggested by an epitaph I saw the other day:

"Here lies the body of William Jay,
He died maintaining his right of way;
He was right, dead right, as he sped along,
But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong."

When Freddie came home from school he was crying. "Teacher whipped me because I was the only one who could answer a question she asked the class," he wailed. Freddy's mother was both astounded and angry. "I'll see the teacher about that! What was the question she asked you?"

"She wanted to know who put the glue in her ink bottle."

A get-rich-quick lump of physical energy in the form of an out-of-work commercial traveler applied to the manager of a firm, explaining that, once on the job, he could guarantee such a flock of orders that the staff would be unable to cope with them.

The manager knew his business and said: "Well, young fellow, I'd like to see if you could do something. I can't. Industry is in a topsy-turvy muddle, and you can't get order out of chaos."

The applicant squared his shoulders and declared as he looked up a telephone directory: "Let me do it. I haven't the pleasure of knowing Mr. Kayoss, but I'll get an order out of him somehow."

He didn't get the job, though.

The local conference was over, and the hostesses were returning from seeing the visitors off at the station.

"Who did you have Mrs. Brown?" asked Mrs. Jones.

"Oh, I had a very nice minister!" replied Mrs. Brown. "Who did you have?"

"Well, I had two locust preachers."

"Oh, you mean two local preachers, Mrs. Brown!"

"No; I had two locust preachers!" was the reply.

"But locusts are those things which come in swarms and eat up everything, and——"

"That's right;" said her friend; I had two of them!"

The laborer is worthy of his hire and the man who is always making trouble deserves what he gets when his payday finally rolls around, as it always does.

MARKET REPORTS

Grain

CHICAGO, March 14.—Upturns in the price of wheat resulted today from enlarged commission house buying, based more or less on opinions that something of a rally from the recent severe decline was about due. The market closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 3-4c higher, with May 1.33 7-8 to 1 3-4 and July 1.15 1-2 to 1.15 5-8. Corn gained 1-4 to 1-2c; oats finished 1-4c off to 1-8c advance, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 20c.

Notwithstanding lower quotations from Liverpool, there was no rush here to sell wheat at the opening, and the fact became quite evident that liquidation, which had been a conspicuous factor of late, was ended for at least the time being. Further rains in the southwest, like the weakness at Liverpool, counted only as a transient bearish influence. With a few strong commission houses taking the buying side, the market gradually developed an upward tendency that during the greater part of the day much more than offset initial declines in price.

Reports that 2,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been purchased for shipment to Europe and that in addition Germany had also bought some wheat helped strengthen values in the last part of the session. It was said, too, that a large amount of rye had been worked for export.

Corn and oats were steadied by the action of the wheat market, and by smallness of receipts. Export and domestic demand for both feedstuffs, however, was rather low.

Packers buying lifted the provision market a little although for a while lower quotations on hogs had a depressing influence on values.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, March 14.—There was a decline of 1-16c in Cuban raw sugar prices today, spot declining to 2 1-4c cost and freight, equal to 3.86 and April 2 3-8 cost and freight, equal to 3.92. Porto Ricos were quoted at 3.86. There were sales of 35,000 bags of Cubas in port and 40,000 bags for April shipment, and nearly 100,000 bags of Porto Ricos for April shipment at quoted prices. There were also sales of 10,000 bags of Cubas for May shipment at 3.98 and 102,000 bags of Philippine April-May at 4 cents.

Raw sugar futures were easier early in sympathy with the decline in the spot market. Prices at one time showed declines of one to three points, but offerings were light and on renewed buying by outside interests and some covering firmed up again, closing unchanged to 4 points net higher; May 2.48; July 2.67; Sep. 2.84; Dec. 2.80.

There was no change in refined sugar with fine granulated listed at 5.30, but the demand was less active.

In refined futures there were sales of two lots of May at 5.85 or 10 points above the previous close. Final prices were five lower to 20 higher, closing: May 5.85; July 5.90; Sept. 6.00.

COFFEE

NEW YORK, March 14.—The market for coffee futures opened at a decline of 7 points under selling by brokers, with European connections and some scattering liquidation. After selling 8.80 early Sept. contract rallied to 8.87 on covering, but the improvement was not fully maintained owing to reports of a slightly easier tone in the cost and freight market. The market closed net unchanged to 2 points lower. Sales were reported of about 33,000 bags. March 8.71; May 8.80; July 8.82; Sept. 8.84; Oct. 8.85; Dec. 8.87.

Spot coffee was reported in fair demand at 9 3-8 for Rio 7s and 13 1-4 to 13 1-2 for Santos 4s.

Stocks

NEW YORK, March 14.—The prominence and strength of numerous speculative issues and the uneven movement of shares of intrinsic value today characterized another active but professional session on the stock exchange. Dealings approximate 900,000, but this impressive total was made up largely of motors and kindred accessories, sugars, independent steels, secondary equipment and utilities, notably the gas group.

Dividend paying rails and industrials of the same description became fairly active and strong later, especially trans-continentals, coolers and several of the eastern trunk lines.

Specific features of the advance comprised consolidated gas, Studebaker preferred, American sugar, Cuba cane sugar common and preferred, American woolen, Keelsey, Southern Pacific, Reading and New York Central at net gains of 1 to 6 points.

Foremost among the backward or heavy stocks were the foreign oils, particularly Mexican petroleum and General Asphalt and several of the food specialties. Market street railways prior preferred cancelled part of its recent steady advance.

Apart from the more unfavorable aspects of the labor situation, as indicated by increasing probability of a strike by the soft coal miners and further wage cuts in the steel and textile trades, the day's news was regarded as encouraging.

London's markets were steadier, this being evidenced by the rally in foreign exchanges in this market. Local supplies of call money were unusually abundant and freely obtainable in private loans at 3¾ and even 3½ per cent. The recovery in the London rate of exchange amounted to fully 3½ cents from yesterday's minimum. French and Italian rates were 7 to 12 points better, but neutrals, including Holland, Norway and Sweden again reacted. South American bills were depressed on selling at this center for London accounts.

Cotton

NEW YORK, March 14.—Early declines as a result of near month liquidation were followed by sharp rallies in the cotton market today. May sold off to 17.70 on the early break and later advanced to 17.93, closing at 17.01. New crop months were relatively firm during the entire day with October selling at 16.73 or 33 points net higher. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 1 to 32 points.

The opening was irrgular with June 14 points and May two points lower, while other months were unchanged to 4 points higher on relatively steady cables. Fewer March notices were issued than looked for, only 17 being reported but the feature of the early trading was heavy, spot house selling of both March and May. March broke to 17.70 or 21 points net lower, and within 20 points of the May price and the weakness of the near position had an unsettling influence on the general list. July sold off to 16.59 and October 16.30 or 2 to 9 points net lower, but selling of new crop deliveries was held in check by the forecast for rains in the eastern belt and as soon as near month liquidations slackened, the general list turned firmer.

Near month offerings were absorbed by Liverpool buying, presumably to cover short straddles, and there also was trade buying against cash cotton. This left the market with a comparatively small supply of contracts and prices rallied during the afternoon on covering in the old crop months and scattering demand for the new crop delivery. The firmer late ruling of foreign exchange and continued reports of improving conditions in Manchester, encouraged the rally which carried March up to 18.18, and July to 17.25 or 7 to 21 points net higher on the old crop positions while new crop months showed advances of 33 to 34 points.

There was not much comment on the census report showing domestic consumption of 473,075 bales for February against 395,115 last year. Reports that preliminary returns to a prominent southwestern spot firm pointed to an increase of 20 per cent in the Texas acreage seemed to be offset by the fear of further delays in farm work. Exports today 28,423, making 3,045,912 so far this season. Port receipts 25,487. U. S. port stocks 1,049,500.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Fluctuations in cotton today carried the price above and below the level of yesterday's close, May trading at its lowest at 16.38 and at its highest at 16.69, finally closing at 16.66. At the close the list was at net gains on the session of 14 to 23 points.

Much of the buying was done on the continued rainy weather in central and eastern portions of the belt and on expectations of further rains east of the Mississippi river. In the early trading, buying on excessive moisture was restricted because of the satisfaction felt over the rainfall in west Texas and Oklahoma.

Selling on the rains in the west and on the rather unsatisfactory showing of the census bureau report on American consumption for February, 473,073 bales against 526,552 in January, carried the market to its lowest levels 8 to 16 points under the close of yesterday. After the middle of the morning prices commenced to rise on private cablegrams from Liverpool reporting large sales to India by Manchester and on statements of a better spot demand locally and over the south generally.

According to market gossip, much of the buying of the late session was due to expectations of another wet weather map in the morning. At the highest, the trading months were 16 to 27 up net.

COTTON SEED OIL

NEW YORK, March 14.—After declining 5 to 14 points under liquidation by overnight longs, cotton seed oil firmed up with lard and closed at net gains of five to fifteen points. Sales 24,300 barrels. Prime crude, 9.75@10.00; prime summer yellow spot 11.20@11.75; May 11.46; July 11.56; September 11.70.

DRY GOODS

NEW YORK, March 14.—Cotton goods markets were very quiet. Revisions of wide sheeting, sheet and pillow case prices have become general, the new levels being 7 cents a yard lower than the old. Gray goods were dull. Yarns eased with curtailment of production increasing. Wool goods were quiet. Burlaps were firm with some advance reported on heavy eights. Silks ruled quiet.

WHEAT KING OF FARM EXPORTS FOR LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 14. — Wheat was king of American agricultural exports in 1921.

An analysis of the 1921 exports of 32 of the principal agricultural products grown in the United States made public today by the department of agriculture, shows that more wheat was exported during last year than in any preceding year, in the history of the country and that for the first time the export value of wheat and flour exceeded the value of cotton exports. Exports of corn in 1921, including corn meal converted into terms of corn, were larger than in any year since 1900. Since 1919 the United States has become an exporter of rice, the exports of 600,050,000 pounds in 1921 being more than 2½ times the average annual rice exports in the five-year period, 1910 to 1914.

The principal agricultural exports during 1921 and their declared values were:

Wheat and wheat flour, $554,000,000; cotton $534,000,000; pork and pork products, including lard $246,000,000; leaf tobacco, $205,000,000; corn and corn meal, $97,000,000; sugar, $49,000,000; rye $44,000,000; condensed and evaporated milk, $38,000,000; cotton seed oil $24,000,000; rice $21,000,000 and barley $21,000,000.

Cotton exports in 1921 totalled 6,678,000 bales of 500 pounds each with a declared value of $534,242,000, as compared with 6,359,000 bales valued at $1,136,409,000 exported in 1920.

J. P. Jones, County Judge, County Commissioners, J. M. Isbell, County Engineer

You have not seen fit to reply to our open letter No. 1 published in the daily papers of this city March 4th, 5th and 6th. It seems to us that if our position is not right you would be glad to explain to the Tax Payers wherein we have misinformed them.

We are, in this letter, going to give some additional information regarding the way you are buying sand for the concrete roads you are building in this county. First we want the Tax Payers to know that since the Company has been under its present management at least, it has had no desire to have you buy any of our products without it is first-class in every respect and meets the specifications of the State and Federal Highway Departments, whose specifications you work under in securing State and Federal Aid. To show you our good faith in this respect we wrote you a letter some months ago suggesting that we would be pleased to have you place an inspector at our plant, appointed by you to pass on the quality of our product and the expense of having such inspector to be met by us. You refused to do this, and after such refusal we made arrangements with the best consulting engineer in this city to inspect and test every car of our sand before it was hauled to your unloading plant. It was not our intention for any car to be delivered to you from our plant until it had received this very rigid examination. However, we cannot be responsible for samples exhibited when taken by a prejudiced party, as it is entirely too easy for a sample to be taken and "salted" with Wichita County dirt and then tested or exhibited.

We want the Tax Payers to know that several weeks ago we called on you while the Court was in session and brought with us samples of sand taken from cars shipped you from other plants and placed them before you. You were of the impression when these samples were shown you that this sand was from our plant and immediately condemned it, saying that you could not afford to use any such sand in your roads. We think you were absolutely right in this instance, as some of the sand was of very inferior quality, containing clay balls, roots, sticks and other foreign matter, making it a very poor quality of sand. It develops however, at this meeting that the sand had already been unloaded at your plant and was unquestionably used in the road work. In other words it seemed that after you found that it did not come from our plant some miraculous change in quality of same was effected and the sand was entirely satisfactory, according to your judgment, for use. Please understand that the sand we are now discussing is sand that you are now paying 10c per ton more for than we are asking for ours which will pass the most rigid examination by an unprejudiced and competent engineer.

Another question we would like to ask and have you answer to the Tax Payers of this County is, why are you so anxious to have all the money released by the banks so it can all be spent this year, instead of running over several months into the next year? What benefits, if any, are to be derived by the Tax Payers in having this money spent more rapidly than you first anticipated? Why not give your successors in office a chance to spend a portion of this money and see if they cannot build more miles of road for the same money than you are building?

Since writing our Open Letter No. 1 numerous Tax Payers of this County have written and talked to us about this proposition, all of whom, without exception, have suggested that we, in the vernacular of the baseball fan "Pour It On." And for your information will say that their suggestion is going to be followed until justice and right prevail.

We shall be glad to hear from as many of the Tax Payers of this County as see fit to write or talk to us regarding it and invite either criticism or commendation of our attitude, as all we are asking for is a square deal, which if given to us will mean a saving of many thousands of dollars to the Tax Payers of Wichita County.

Today Is the Last Day to File Your Income Tax

—The government desires that every person avail himself of every credit, deduction and exemption which the law provides. Many new features have been written into the new law and provisions are now made for credits, deductions and exemptions which did not formerly exist. Some of these new provisions are retroactive and may be applied as part payment on taxes for this year.

—You will find it to your advantage to have your income tax return compiled and audited by a competent income tax accountant. The firms listed below are specialists in this phase of accountancy.

ORDINANCE No. 395
AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE WORKING OF PRISONERS CONVICTED IN THE CORPORATION COURT.
BE IT ORDAINED BY THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN OF THE CITY OF WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS.
Section 1. Any person who has been convicted in the Corporation Court of the City of Wichita Falls for the violation of any law of the State of Texas or of any ordinance of the City of Wichita Falls, and who has been committed to jail in default of the payment of the fine and costs, or either, adjudged against him or her, may be required to labor on the public streets or on any public work of the City that may now or hereafter be authorized by the City charter or ordinances of the City, a sufficient number of days to liquidate said fine and costs as provided in Section 4 of this ordinance; provided that in no event shall any prisoner who is physically unable to labor as evidenced by certificates from the City Health Officer provided for in Section 4 of this ordinance, be required to labor under the provisions of this section; and provided that no prisoner shall be required to labor under the provisions of this section after he or she shall have tendered in cash the balance of any fine or costs still due the city by him or her after deducting all credits due thereon as provided for in Section 4 for labor already performed under the provisions of this section; provided further that in no event shall any prisoner be required to labor under the provisions of this ordinance for a longer period than six months for the satisfaction of any commitment.
Section 2. Such persons so required to labor shall not be allowed to come in conflict with the employed laborers of the City of Wichita Falls, and when such persons are required to labor on the streets or other public works of the said City of Wichita Falls, the person who has supervision of them shall first ask the City Official having charge of the streets or such public works to designate the place where such person or persons so convicted shall be put to labor; provided that should such official refuse to designate such place, then the person having supervision, or the Mayor of the City of Wichita Falls, shall put them at labor on such streets or such public work as he may deem best or proper for the best interests of the public.
Section 3. Such persons so convicted are to be worked under the supervision of the Chief of Police of the City of Wichita Falls, or some suitable person detailed by said Chief of Police or the Mayor, for that purpose; provided that such person or persons so convicted shall not be required to work more than eight (8) hours during any one day.
Section 4. Every prisoner who has been required to labor under the provision of this ordinance shall receive a credit of fifty cents (50c) per day on the fine and costs adjudged against him or her for every day he or she has been required to labor and for every intervening Sunday or legal holiday on which no work was required.
In the event any prisoner is physically unable to labor a certificate shall be required of the City Health Officer, setting forth this fact and every such person shall receive a credit of fifty cents (50c) per day on the fines and costs adjudged against him or her for every day he or she has been required to labor under such certificate.
In the event the City of Wichita Falls fails to require any prisoner to labor under the provisions of this ordinance, such prisoner shall receive a credit of Three Dollars ($3.00) per day on the fine and costs adjudged against him or her for each day he or she remains in jail; provided that no person shall receive credit at the rate of Three Dollars ($3.00) per day on the fine or costs adjudged against him or her unless such prisoner has made written affidavit to the fact that he or she has been confined in jail at least ten days.
When any prisoner shall be entitled under the provisions of this section to credits aggregating the total amount of the fine and costs adjudged against him or her, or when any prisoner tenders in cash any balance of such fines and costs after deducting all credits that he or she may be entitled to under the provisions of this ordinance or in the event that the certificate of the City Health Officer hereinbefore provided for directs the immediate release of any prisoner, either it to be a necessity for the preservatmo of the prisoner's health, or when any prisoner shall have labored six months under the provisions of this ordinance to the satisfaction of any complaint, such prisoner shall be released from custody.
Section 5. Should any prisoner convicted and required to labor under the provisions of this ordinance then and there, physically and mentally able to labor, fail and refuse to labor as heretofore provided or ordered so to do by the person having supervision, such prisoner may be put on bread and water diet until they comply with the orders of the person having supervision of said prisoner.
Section 6. Female convicts shall under all circumstances be kept separate and apart from male convicts.
Passed and approved this 13th day of March, 1922.
W. D. CLINE, Mayor.
Attest—
GEO. W. THORBURN, City Clerk.

DR. STRATON URGES SENSATIONALISM IN PULPITS BY PASTORS

NEW YORK, March 14.—In a letter to "discriminating New Yorkers" Rev. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, today pleaded for the overthrow of "pulpit pussy-footing" and the adoption of more "sensational preaching."

It was from Dr. Straton's pulpit that William A. Brady, the theatrical producer, recently defended the morals of the stage and moving picture studio, in an open debate with the pastor. Reverend Dr. Stuart MacArthur, pastor emeritus, recently withdrew from the congregation after criticising his successor for sensationalism.

"There is no use in trying to heal the cancer of sin with soothing syrup," Dr. Straton declared in his open letter, "and it is idle to sprinkle cologne water upon the putrid iniquities of a rebellious race." To counteract the "appalling looseness of the times," he asserted, "every real preacher must be a sensationalist because religion is the most revolutionary thing ever given the earth."

HOLLIDAY WILL NOT DRAW PAY FOR SERVICES

State Comptroller Refuses to O. K. Bill Presented During Vacancy in District Attorney's Office.

Sam Holliday who served as district attorney following the resignation of H. R. Wilson and pending the appointment of District Attorney Schenck will not receive pay from the state for his services. In a letter from the state comptroller Mr. Holliday was informed that the state could not legally pay him $225 for his services during the three weeks that he was acting district attorney. It was expected that he would receive $15 a day for services during actual trial of cases.

Mr. Holliday who was assistant district attorney under H. R. Wilson and has been appointed to the same office by District Attorney Schenck, was appointed acting district attorney by Judge E. Napier of the 78th district court to try several criminal cases while the office of district attorney was vacant.

In his letter the state comptroller says that a state statute procides that in a county where there is both a county and district attorney the former shall assume the duties of district attorney when the latter position is vacant. For that reason there is provision made for the salary of an acting district attorney. As the situation now stands Mr. Holliday will receive no pay from either the county or state for the three weeks service during which several criminal cases were tried with convictions resulting.

AGED VERNON MAN IS KILLED LATE MONDAY

Believed to have stepped off a second floor porch while walking in his sleep some time Monday night, J. M. Sligh, well known resident of Vernon, was found in a dying condition early Tuesday morning in the yard of the home of his nephew, C. D. Shamburger, 2501 Ninth street. Mr. Sligh, who was 69 years of age, died at 10 a. m. without regaining consciousness.

Members of the Shamburger family were not aware of the accident until Mr. Sligh was discovered by a motorman who passed by the home in an early morning run. It is believed that during the night he stepped off the porch. He struck on his head which was severely bruised. No bones were fractured. He lay in the unconscious condition until discovered in the morning. The deceased came here from Vernon a week ago to visit his nephew. He had been in fil health for some time.

The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Shamburger home. Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, will have charge of the services. Active pallbearers will be W. W. Gardner, Bert Broday, W. S. Curlee, J. B Abbott, G. E. Ragland and Marvin Smith. Honorary pallbearers will be Judge P. A. Martin, S. Y. Ferguson, W. B. Fitzgerald, W. M. McGregor, C. H. Clark and J. R. Chambers.

Following the services here the remains will be taken to Vernon for burial. A sister, Mrs. A. T. Boger, a nephew, A. C. Boger, and a niece, Mrs. Cecil Story, are residents of that city.

Principles of Inge Campaign Are Announced

A reduction of the gas rate, better lighting, more paving and economy in government are high lights in the principles on which he asks election as street commissioner, announced by Nat L. Inge, local real estate man, Tuesday evening.

Mr. Inge's declaration of principles, with nine divisions, follows:

1. Government for the people and by the people in the administration of the affairs of the city.

2. I believe that preference should be extended to the employment of people living in the city of Wichita Falls, where the same can be done.

3. All encouragement should be extended to all of our educational institutions.

4. I believe that the expenses of the city should be retrenched where possible, keeping in mind the progress of the city and the interest of all concerned. I believe that the tax money of the people should be expended where the same will do the most good, and not expended promiscuously.

5. I am for better light in the residential sections of the city.

6. I am for the extension of telephone and light systems under the proper conditions.

7. More pavement and better pavement and the same for less money.

8. And above all, I am for the reduction of the present gas rate, and this should be done by all means.

When elected, I promise the people of Wichita Falls, I will devote sufficient time to this important office, and that I will use my best efforts in carrying out, not only the above things set out, but I am for anything for the betterment of Wichita Falls, the city that faith built, and her people.

We always have noticed that people with a lot of check have pretty well developed organs of speech, but that their hearing is awfully dull.

Money can get most anything. Many a homely girl never could have won a husband if she had not had plenty of it.

Women Blind to Woman's Suffering

How many men, think you, have any idea of the pain endured by women in their own household, and often without a murmur? They have no patience when the overworked wife and mother begins to get pale, have headaches, backaches, faint spells, or is melancholy and cannot sleep. There is help for every woman in this condition, as evidenced by the many voluntary letters of recommendation which we are continually publishing in this paper for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to give it a trial.—Adv.

WICHITA FALLS HAS MORE THAN 7,000 QUALIFIED VOTERS NOW

City's 12 Boxes Have Approximately 69 Per Cent of the Voters in Wichita County for 1922.

Approximately 7,250 men and women residents of this city have paid their poll taxes and are eligible to vote in the city election to be held on April 4. County Tax Collector Tittle late Tuesday completed a check of the 23 voting boxes in the county. This is approximately 69 per cent of the county total.

The check representing the first official count to be made by the tax collector's office shows that the county has 11,321 qualified voters of which 7,594 will vote in the 12 boxes located in this city. Some residents living outside the city limits will vote here but it is not believed that this total exceeds 250 making 7,250 qualified voters in the city. The number is approximately 20 per cent larger than any previous vote in the history of the city.

No accurate check was made on the comparative number of men and women voters. It is estimated that the number of qualified women voters is approximately 35 per cent of the total.

When the county primaries are held next July the number of voters per box will vary from 23 in box 20, commonly know nas Denny, to 1,269 in box 4 located at the court house. Under the new redistricting plan perfected several weeks ago by county officials the large boxes are located in this city and the towns of the county. A peculiar situation exists in Electra which was allotted two boxes. One of the boxes has 1,001 voters and the other 294.

Following are the number of voters, based on the 23 divisions of the county for voting purposes: 1, 415; 2, 602; 3, 302; 4, 1,269; 5, 1,147; 6, 271; 7, 274; 8, 900; 9, 837; 10, 758; 11, 402; 12, 390. All twelve boxes are located in this city. The remaining boxes are 13, Allendale, 32; 14, Cashion, 84; 15, Burkburnett, 606; 16, Burkburnett, 694; 17, Iowa Park, 319; 18, Iowa Park, 281; 20, Denny, 23; 21, Electra, 294; 26, Electra, 1001; 23, Mount Carmel, 61.

SIBLEY-TAYLOR CAR LINE FUND WELL STARTED

Approximately $5,000 of the $12,000 needed to secure an extension of the street car line into the Sibley-Taylor addition has been raised, according to the report Tuesday night of the committee appointed to raise the fund. The report was made by R. B. Havener, chairman of the committee, at a meeting Tuesday night of the Sibley Taylor Improvement association, held at the Yale street tabernacle, corner of Yale and Twenty-second streets.

Members of the committee expressed confidence that the remaining $7,000 could be raised among the residents of that section and the 12-block extension in street car service secured. The committee will meet this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the tabernacle.

L. L. Albritton, manager of the Wichita Falls Traction company, explained the offer for the construction of the extension made by the company. He said that the street car line had not been and was not a paying proposition for stockholders. He said that the $12,000 was asked not as a bonus for the company, but merely to cover part of the cost of the improvement, the total cost of which would be around $35,000.

Under the plan agreed upon by the company and citizens the extension would start up Seventeenth street off Holliday, go under the railroad tracks at Yale street, down Yale to Twenty-fourth street, and down the latter street to Grhee. The construction of the line will start as soon as the citizens' fund is raised.

The school board will be asked to construct a grade school building at the corner of Holliday and Twenty-fourth streets, according to a decision made at the meeting. A committee was appointed to appear before the board to secure the building which members of the association agreed as one of the most needed improvements in the addition.

WILL FRANK REPLY OF PRINCESS BRING DIVORCE ACTION?

Princess Sophie Charlotte.

Germany is wondering if the frank statement of Princess Sophie Charlotte, wife of Prince Eitel Friedrich, son of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, in a Berlin court the other day will be followed by proceedings for divorce on the part of the prince. Baron Plettenberg was being sued for divorce by his wife. The princess was named as co-respondent. When asked if a statement which she signed regarding her relations with the baron were true, she said, "I swear it is true with the greatest of pleasure."

LOCAL GIRL IS TO ACCOMPANY ANNE MORGAN

Miss Rhea Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Gardner was chosen by Miss Anne Morgan to accompany her on a part of her trip as secretary as a result of a liking for Miss Gardner's personality and her work when she assisted her while in Wichita Falls. Miss Gardner left Tuesday afternoon to join Miss Morgan in St. Louis.

In expressing her praise of Wichita Falls and of its people, and of her desire to return for a visit some time in the future, Miss Morgan particularly praised the appointments and the service at the Kemp hotel. She was intensely interested by the oil development here, and by her trip to Electra, although the rain precluded the party's leaving the highway for a closer view of some of the operations.

The importance of a self-important man is confined to himself though he does not always realize it.

A girl may love to wear a string of beads, but she does not want the beads of perspiration she would get helping mother with the housework.

When it comes to reducing, even if her waist line never is, a super-stout can at least boast of a slim chance.
