TESTIMONY IN GRUNDY TRIAL COMPLETED

I.C.C. Examiner Recommends Part Of Gulf, West Texas Extension

Red-Haired Texas Girl Held Insane

The stormy career of Rudell Heath, formerly of Amarillo, Texas, and known in California as the "Texas Tornado," was checked Tuesday when she was committed to an insane asylum.

RUDELL DENIES SHE'S 'CRAZY' AFTER TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26. (UP)—Rudell Heath, the red-haired Texas girl whose Hollywood escapades kept police busy, was committed to the state asylum at Norwalk today after a jury in superior court had ruled her insane.

"The doctors say I'm crazy but I'm not," she declared after hearing the testimony of four alienists.

She broke into print when she was fined $1 for shooting at her companionate husband. She missed him. Then she was in an automobile crash and later tried for shoplifting. Afterwards she kicked down the door of a doctor's home. Finally she left the state and was brought back to face a forgery charge, but the mental hearing was substituted.

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW ROAD IS APPROVED

Fredericksburg to Brady Route Favored in Formal Report

SINGLE OBJECTION

Abilene and Southern Opposes Northern End Of Extension

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—The Gulf and West Texas railway would be permitted to construct a new line from Fredericksburg to Brady in Gillespie, Mason and McCulloch, counties, Texas, under recommendations presented to the Interstate Commerce commission today by Examiner J. S. Prichard.

The second proposed unit, that from Eden to San Angelo in Concho and Tom Green counties, would not be approved if the examiner's recommendations are accepted, but action would be deferred until certain trackage agreements had been reached. Prichard also proposed approval of the railroad's application to retain excess earnings from the new construction.

More Briefs Next

Hearings on the Gulf and West Texas application were held by Examiner Davis, but evidence taken by him was turned over to Pritchard to write the report Davis having conducted a number of hearings on his swing into the Southwest.

Further briefs filed by parties to the application is the next routine step and then the commission probably will hear oral arguments and render its decision.

The Abilene and Southern railway was only the opponent of the application. Its objections were set forth in a brief filed with the commission pointing out that it now has an application pending for authority to extend its line from Ballinger to San Angelo and that the extension of the Gulf and West Texas would closely parallel this proposed line for five or six miles. The Abilene and Southern presented no direct testimony at the hearing but counsel cross-examined several of the applicant's witnesses.

Negotiations Incomplete

The Gulf and West Texas' application to construct a line between Eden and San Angelo would be held up by the examiner until it has completed negotiations with Colorado and Santa Fe for trackage rights of 32 miles from Brady to Eden. Examiner Prichard pointed out that no assurances that the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe will permit these trackage rights have been given and that the Gulf & West Texas has indicated if this permission were not forthcoming it would seek to construct its own line between these points.

Morris Sheppard In Austin to See Friends

AUSTIN, Nov. 26. (AP)—United States Senator Morris Sheppard visited state officials today while here with Mrs. Sheppard for a visit with their daughter, Miss Janet Sheppard, studying in the University of Texas. Senator Sheppard said he would spend Thanksgiving at his home in Texarkana and depart Thursday night for Washington to attend the regular session of congress.

POSSE HUNTS NEGRO

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Nov. 26. (AP)—A posse was today searching in the vicinity of Roundaway and Baltzer for Tommy Travillion, alias Willis Hill, negro who shot and perhaps fatally wounded Burnett Carraway, planter of Shelby, Miss., yesterday. Two bloodhounds were being used to trail the negro.

Eastland Grand Jury Passes Lynching Quiz to Successor After Probe Lasting Week

EASTLAND, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—Recommending that "because of the magnitude of the crime," all evidence be turned over to the next regular grand jury session, the special grand jury called to investigate the lynching of Marshall Ratliff, condemned bank robber, was discharged late today without returning any indictments.

The jury had been in session four days and examined nearly 150 witnesses.

Crime Deplored

"We deplore the circumstance of this tragedy," the report said in part, "and have heard all evidence available. On account of the magnitude of this offense, and due to the fact that this grand jury has but a short time to be in session, we recommend that all information be kept and turned over to the incoming grand jury."

The regular grand jury will be empaneled Monday, Dec. 2.

The jury's report also defended the sheriff. "It has come to our knowledge," the report continued, "that there has been some criticism of the Eastland county sheriff and members of his department because some of them were out of the city when the hanging took place. This is because they (the critics) were not acquainted with the facts, since the officers were out of the city on business connected with their offices."

Call Follows Lynching

Appreciation was expressed for cooperation tendered the jury by the county attorney.

The special session was called by Judge George L. Davenport shortly after Ratliff's lynching a week ago tonight. Ratliff, in the Eastland county jail awaiting a sanity hearing, was taken out by a mob and hanged the day after he had shot and fatally wounded Deputy Tom Jones in an attempted jail break.

ROBERT HILL BELIEVED HELD

Arizona Officers Jail Man For Robberies

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 26. (AP)—William F. Purtle, 27, was in jail here today while authorities communicated with Texas cities to determine whether he was an escaped Texas convict, and former member of the notorious Ratliff gang.

Sheriff's deputies said they had been informed that Purtle may be Robert Hill, escaped convict from the Huntsville, Texas penitentiary and companion of Marshall Ratliff.

Ratliff was under sentence of death for his part in a bank robbery when he attempted to escape by shooting a deputy sheriff last week in the Eastland, Texas jail. A few hours later he was lynched by citizens.

One member of the Ratliff gang was electrocuted in Huntsville two months ago for participation in a bank robbery at Cisco, Texas, in which two deputy sheriffs were killed.

Purtle was arrested Friday in connection with four house robberies, but his arrest was not announced, officers said, in order to allow them to communicate with Texas authorities.

When apprehended Purtle was carrying two loaded pistols.

The suspect was sullen and uncommunicative when questioned. He defiantly submitted to taking of finger measurements. When questioned as to whether he served time at Leavenworth for automobile theft, he suddenly turned and said, "how did you find out that?"

Purtle was arraigned in justice court on burglary charges. He waived preliminary hearing and was held to answer before the superior court on the charges.

Compromise Between Hidalgo Groups Denied

McALLEN, Texas, Nov. 26. (INS)—Reports of a compromise between the Hidalgo county administration and the county good government league are unfounded, Sheriff A. Y. Baker today declared in repudiating rumors that the officials and league had patched their troubles.

"Rumors such as this," he declared, "are nothing but a continuation of a fight against me which began two years ago. They were started for the purpose of defeating the county administration and as a fight against my friends' proposal that I run for governor in 1930."

NAME CHANGED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 26.(UP)—The name of the Oklahoma Council of Christian Religion was changed to the Oklahoma Council of Churches at the annual meeting here today. Rev. J. T. McClure, Norman, was elected president.

Slayer Blames Act On Fit of Mad Jealousy

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—Luther Berwick, 28-year-old electric welding student, killed his sweetheart, Belle Crowe, and her escort, William Byrd, his classmate, on the night of Oct. 30 in Port Arthur in a "fit of madness," Berwick testified in his trial for the slaying of Byrd here today.

He was put on the stand by his attorneys shortly before noon and declared he lost his mind when he found the girl he was to marry in the arms of another. He admitted, however, under cross-examination that he hid the pistol after the slaying.

Wild Game Hunter Hurt by Tame Elephant

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Hunting wild animals in the denseness of Central Africa brought nothing more serious than narrow escapes to George Getz Jr., son of the coal company millionaire, but an encounter last night with a tame baby elephant placed him in a hospital.

Mr. Getz was examining the young pachyderm and contemplated purchasing it for his father's zoo. The animal lunged suddenly and pinned the big game hunter against a wall breaking his left arm in two places.

Hotel Man, in Bathtub Looks on as He's Robbed

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 26. (AP)—Kiernan Wallace, hotel proprietor, was having his morning tub today when he heard a strange noise in his bed room. Well soaped and dripping wet, he stepped from the tub to investigate.

He looked in just in time to see a strange man extracting his wallet containing $200 from his trousers pocket. The intruder looked up, saw Wallace, and laughed.

"Come on, chase me," he called, and ran out of the door.

They'll Settle Boundary Line—Maybe

Walter Nelson Jr. has devised the above solution of the Texas-Oklahoma boundary dispute, and will submit it to the governors of the two states during the fall ceremonial of Maskat temple today. By way of explanation, it might be said that Mr. Nelson is a candidate for the Shrine ring, that coveted, mythical emblem which is so much sought prior to the ceremonial and so little mentioned afterwards. The Texas-Oklahoma crap game is the main plank in Mr. Nelson's platform.

Former West Texas Sheriff Indicted With Another on Liquor Charge Here

Two Tom Green County Men Billed After Grand Jury at San Angelo Failed to Find Evidence

Deputy United States Marshal A. W. Billingsley Tuesday served wararants at San Angelo on L. D. Head of Tom Green county, a former sheriff of Stephens county and a former prohibition agent, and J. T. Bullock, also of Tom Green county, and placed the two men in custody to face an indictment charging a prohibition law violation returned by the federal grand jury at Wichita Falls.

The indictment of the two men by the federal grand jury here was made public for the first time Tuesday in Associated Press dispatches from San Angelo which told of the arrest of the men. Federal authorities here explained that the indictment was not released to the public here because the men named had not been placed under arrest.

The dispatches further said that Head and Bullock posted bonds of $1,000 each for their appearance for trial in the San Angelo district federal court next April. It was also reported that the grand jury in Wichita Falls took action against the men after the federal grand jury in San Angelo had failed to vote indictments in the cases.

The indictment against the men resulted, according to the dispatches, from their arrest by prohibition agents and county officers after a raid on a still about seven miles south of San Angelo off the Christoval road.

NEW CHILDRESS ROAD AWARDED

Wilbarger Delegation Told To Proceed With Work

AUSTIN, Nov. 26. (AP)—The state highway commission today concluded its regular monthly awards for road and bridge construction work by letting contracts aggregating $411,117. The total for the session was only $1,039,566, far less than the usual amount.

Contracts were awarded today for approximately 67 miles of work in Mitchell, Brazoria, Refugio, Childress, Anderson, Houston, Brown and Caldwell counties.

A Wilbarger county delegation was advised to go ahead with the construction of grading and drainage structures on highway 23 from Vernon to the Red river with the understanding that the state would not help in the program unless a free bridge was erected across the river.

The low bid on each of the proposed Red river bridges was approximately $230,000.

Contracts let included:

Refugio county: 11.3 miles of grading and drainage structures on highway 113, Cage & Ruby, Bishop, $50,085.77.

Childress county: 9.2 miles of grading and drainage structures on highway 4, Oran Speer, Alvord, $51,047.56.

Brown county: 10.3 miles of grading and drainage structures on highway 129, Huddleston & Work, Crosbyton, $59,024.91.

Galveston Tribune Has 50th Birthday Tuesday

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—The Galveston Tribune today celebrated its 50th birthday anniversary with a special edition. The Tribune is one of the oldest afternoon papers in the state, beginning publication Nov. 26, 1879. During the first decade of its existence it changed hands several times, and in 1926 it was acquired by the News Publishing company. Both the Galveston News, established in 1842 and the oldest paper in the state, and The Tribune now are published in the same plant.

Fire in Mattress Plant Does $2,000 Damage

Flames which broke out in the Bell Mattress factory at Fourth and Lee streets shortly after 9 o'clock Tuesday night caused damage estimated at about $2,000 according to reports of fire department officials.

Two trucks at the place were practically destroyed and an automobile was badly damaged. Several mattresses stacked in the factory were totally destroyed. No damage was caused by the blaze to the structure of the factory, which is built of metal, firemen said. Difficulty in fighting the blaze was caused by the distance to a fire plug, the nearest connection having been about two blocks from the scene of the fire.

SIMMONS DECLINES

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—Though he has until Dec. 10 to reconsider, Lee Simmons of Sherman today strongly indicated that he will persist in declining appointment as manager of the state prison system because he believed he is "needed at home."

CIRCUS MEN LOST

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—Search continued today, without success, for the bodies of C. W. Oldham and Charles Hainkly, circus employes, who were believed to have been drowned in a bayou west of the city where they went fishing Sunday.

DEFENSE AND STATE CLOSE THEIR CASES

Long Series of Incidents to Support Insanity Plea Are Described

CASTNER QUERIED

Head of Hospital for Insane Star Witness; Arguments Today

Testimony in the trial of Roy Grundy, charged with the murder of June Hilburn last Oct. 17, was completed Tuesday afternoon in the 89th district court when both state and defense rested exactly at 5 o'clock. The charge and argument in the case will begin at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Witnesses called to the stand Tuesday afternoon, several of whom had testified earlier in the trial, gave testimony of several widely separated incidents which defense attorneys attempted to work into a chronological story leading up to the day of the slaying, designed to support the defense plea of insanity.

State attorneys made no attempt to repudiate the testimony concerning Grundy's actions on various occasions but confined their attack to questions concerning whether those actions would indicate insanity or whether if, at any time, his actions would lead the witnesses to believe he was mentally unbalanced.

Defense Objects

A barrage of questions concerning Grundy's sanity put to the first few witnesses during the afternoon session of the court led to an objection by R. E. Taylor of defense counsel, who complained that the similarity and repetition of the questions was unnecessary. W. T. Hampton, a friend of the accused man, was then on the stand. At the objection, George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney, released the witness to the defense.

When asked what business he was in, Mr. Hampton said he was not working. To a defense question he replied that he had come from Oklahoma about 10 years ago and had not worked since that time.

"How have you supported yourself? Did you bring enough money with you to live 10 years without working?"

"Well, I've gambled a bit, and made money on several bets."

Grundy Unruffled

The witness stated he had known the defendant for several years but didn't remember having seen the slain man in the Grundy home. He was asked if he saw the defendant the morning of the killing.

"Yes, I just glanced at his face."

"Did he appear pale or frenzied or in any way indicate that he had just done a terrible thing?"

"No."

Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent of the Wichita Falls state hospital, who testified earlier in the trial, was then recalled to the stand by the state. Sam R. Spence, district attorney, told the witness he was going to state a long hypothetical

Trial of McManus Promises to Do Some Better After Very Poor Start

By DAMON RUNYON

copy't, 1929, by Universal Service Co. Inc.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—It is quite true that our little opus down at the old criminal courts building, entitled "the trial of George McManus," (for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, millionaire gambler), has been something of a bust to date, but bear with us, dear folks. We are about to do much better.

In fact, we may state, folks, that it looks as if everything will now be Okay Coakley, as the boys in the back room at the C. C. building might say. We have a new member of the cast playing the difficult role of juror No. 2.

And who, or whom, as the grammatical case may be, do you think we have? Why, we have nobody but that sterling fellow, Edmund C. Shotwell, of the Payson avenue Shotwells—Edmund C., himself.

Mr. Shotwell, who works for the Hudson Motor company, eased himself into the role of juror No. 2 with considerable aplomb at the morning performance today, and the directors of "the trial of George McManus" immediately began getting him up his part by reading him all the lines spoken since the show opened, or from soda to hock card, to quote the boys again.

Mr. Shotwell is a big rubicund man, apparently of great endurance which stood him in good stead ere the shades of night had commenced to close in on Judge Nott's courtroom, because he had to listen to 300 typewritten pages of the story of the murder of Arnold Rothstein as developed so far by the state—the murder of Arnold Rothstein being the motif of "The Trial of George McManus."

GRUNDY TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

State and Defense Rest in Murder Case

question and would ask his opinion on it. The question was, in part:

"Dr. Castner, if a man accused his wife of illicit relations on several different occasions, always with the same man, and threatened her when he was drunk with an ice pick, and came to the house at one time and entered by cutting screen and then threatened to cut her in two in the presence of a young lady visitor who said she would call the officers if he did not leave and he threatened to cut the young lady in two also, saying he had a right to come into his own house; and on another occasion while there was a man visitor in the house, that man kissed his wife and then told her to kiss the visitor; and once when he threatened to kill the man he had accused of having illicit relations with his wife, the man he had told her to kiss, and she laughed and said, 'You'd look good wiggling around in an electric chair,' he replied, 'I'd look as good there as you would in a casket'; and that man on still another occasion flew into a rage when he saw his brother-in-law with his arm on his wife's shoulder in friendly conversation in the presence of her sister; and finally he saw the man he accused of illicit relations standing on the street and shot him three times and then waited for officers to arrive—if a man did all this, would you believe him to be insane?"

Castner Answers

Dr. Castner sat in thought for several moments and then replied:

"There would be much to indicate he realized the gravity of his act."

"Do you believe he would have been able to realize the consequences?"

"I believe he would have."

"Have you examined the defendant here?"

"I made about a 30-minute examination."

"Could you find anything abnormal in his mental condition, any hallucinations or delusions?"

"Nothing to lead me to believe he could not know right from wrong."

The mental expert was given over to the defense for questioning at that point. He admitted that the examination was not "as extensive as I should want it to be," and that it would not be sufficient "to disclose whether the defendant would be liable to have spells."

"Now I want to ask you a hypothetical question, doctor," Mr. Taylor said. "Every normal person has reflexes, the brain telling the parts of the body what to do and the parts responding. Now if I should walk calmly past that man over there and then turn and shoot him three times with no apparent cause, would I be normal?"

"I don't believe you would," the doctor replied.

"And then if I made no move to object when officers came up and took my gun, if I had no expression of any sort on my face, showed no normal reflexes, in other words, would I be normal in your opinion?"

Again the expert studied the question.

"I would not like to fix an opinion on that."

Tablets Described

To other questions the doctor testified that in reference to the screen-cutting incident, referred to by Mr. Spence, Grundy would have seemed slightly abnormal if the alcohol also referred to were not in evidence. Mr. Taylor asked the witness to describe certain tablets which the defendant was said to have purchased a few days before the slaying. They were said to resemble bromides and to be administered as such but were not like opium or morphine. The doctor described their effect as "having a tendency to make one sleepy or lazy," and said three tablets were sufficient to produce drowsiness. To the question as to the thheft of taking four in one hour, the doctor replied the tablets "affect different persons in various ways."

"If a man walked up to another man," the expert was asked, "and handed him $2 in payment of a debt which was not owed and the man told the payer there was no debt, and later tried to return the money only to find the first man remembered nothing of having paid him the $2, would that man be abnormal?"

Tobacconist Called

The doctor answered in the affirmative. He was then released from the stand and Morris Wolfe, local wholesale tobacco dealer, was called. He was asked to describe the incident of the $2 previously referred to. The witness told how Grundy had come to his store two days before the slaying and had handed Wolfe $2, saying "Here's that money I owe you." He did not understand that he owed no money, the witness testified, and walked from the store. Later, when Wolfe tried to return the money, he said, Grundy did not remember having given it to him. In answer to defense questioning, the witness declared he had always thought "Roy queer and often melancholy."

Mrs. George L. Speer, sister of Mrs. Roy Grundy, was next called to the stand by the defense. She was asked to describe an incident which occurred in her home in Dallas about three years ago in which the defendant had become enraged because he saw Mr. Speer with his arm on Mrs. Grundy's shoulder. Grundy went into a jealous rage, she said.

Mrs. Speer began crying and could not continue her testimony for several minutes. When the attorney asked her to tell what happened later, she said that the defendant had "accused Mr. Speer of unnatural relations with Mrs. Grundy."

E. S. Morris, local druggist, was called to the stand to relate the purchase of the "luminol" tablets mentioned earlier in the trial. He said the tablets were intended to settle the nerves, relieve headache or produce sleep. The witness did not remember selling Grundy a full bottle, he testified. He said Grundy appeared nervous when he bought the tablets.

Orphaned Children at Mangum Given Homes

Special to the Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., Nov. 26.—Legal proceedings were completed this week for the adoption of four of the six children who were orphaned by the death of their mother, Mrs. Oscar Brooks, a month ago. Their father met death in a drowning accident three years ago. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Richards adopted Norma Joyce, 3 years old; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Walker became the legal parents of Dorothy, 5 years old, and Billy Gene, the 7-year-old son, was officially taken by Rev. and Mrs. Sam G. Rogers of Goodwell, Okla. Virginia Inez, 8 years old, is now the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Callahan. Mr. Callahan is presiding elder of the Mangum district of the Methodist church, and Mr. Rogers is pastor at Goodwell.

County Judge Jarrett Todd hopes to place the two remaining children, Oscar, aged 10, and James, 14 years old, in childless homes in the near future.

SHRINE OPENS MEET TODAY

3,000 Expected for Fall Ceremonial

Tuesday night, according to Al Ellis, recorder of the temple.

Each committee Tuesday made its final report to Walter H. Caldwell, potentate, and the program will be carried out as follows:

Wednesday from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. novices will register in the recorder's office. At 10 o'clock the reception committee will go to the Municipal airport to welcome Governor Holloway and the divan officers of India temple, headed by A. E. Murrush, potentate, and Leslie H. Swan, recorder. This party will be escorted to the Kemp hotel, where members will make their headquarters for the ceremonial. At 1:50 o'clock the reception committee will greet Governor Moody at the Union station, and escort him to his rooms in the Kemp, where he will also make his headquarters.

At 11 o'clock Maskat temple will hold a meeting at the temple. At 3 o'clock the novices will assemble in the Faith lodge room for a meeting under the direction of P. B. Curd. The parade will begin at 4 o'clock and will form at Tenth street and Scott avenue under the direction of Horrace Robbins, parade marshal, with the past captains of patrol as assistants. The line of march will continue down Tenth to Ohio, Ohio to Seventh, Seventh to Indiana, Indiana to Tenth, Tenth to Scott, Scott to Seventh and Seventh to the auditorium where the parade will disband.

Ceremonial Work

The prologue and first section of the ceremonial will begin promptly at 6:15. Shriners will be admitted to the lower floor upon presenting their current year's card. Ladies will be received in the balcony.

At 3:30 in the afternoon a dansant will be given in Maskat temple auditorium. A dance also will be given on Wednesday evening. These dances will honor the divan officers of India temple. The regular ceremonial dance will be given on Thursday evening at the temple from 9 to 12 o'clock. Tickets also have been arranged for by the entertainment committee for the Junior college-Wayland Baptist college football game.

The ladies' entertainment has been arranged as follows: Registration in the lobby of Kemp hotel at 8 a. m.; theater parties at the Strand, Majestic and Olympic theaters until 4 o'clock when all will assemble for the parade. Following the parade, transportation will be furnished to the auditorium, where the prologue and ceremonial will take place. The ladies will return to the Wichita club at 8 o'clock where they will have dinner and a program, after which they will be entertained at Maskat temple.

Sid A. Gaines, assisted by Kindel Paulk, Claude Williamson and Ed Tschabold are in charge of the ceremonial while Leon Taylor will direct the band. T. S. Thompson, Ray Wilhite and J. T. Yeargin will direct the patrol and Joe Bailey will act as drum major. Otto Lambert is director of the drum corps and Dr. J. H. Fletcher is president of the chanters.

Reception Committees

Mayor J. W. Akin is general chairman of the entertainment and reception committees and Lester Jones is chairman of the governor's reception committee. Walter D. Cline is chairman of the entertainment committee.

The following will act as divan officers for the ceremonial: Walter H. Caldwell, potentate; W. B. Hamilton, chief rabban; W. J. Morgareidge, assistant rabban; Ed. Peterson, high priest; C. A. Rogers, oriental guide; J. W. Spoonts, first ceremonial; J. W. Akin, second ceremonial; C. S. Richardson, marshal; Bentley Bacon, captain of guard; George Spencer, outer guard; C. C. Randle, inner guard; and C. I. Francis; Charles Johnson and Charles Fuller, orators.

The following have been appointed as committee chairmen for the affair: Entertainment and reception, J. W. Akin; working unity, Guy Rogers; street activities and parade, Horrace Robbins; registration of visitors, Dr. George Hampshire; registration of ladies, Mrs. Walter H. Caldwell; wardrobe, Charles Fuller; Men's room, Kemp hotel, George Spencer; ladies' room, Kemp hotel, Mrs. W. H. Caldwell; Shrine dance, Thursday, Ell Morgan; football and athletics, Thursday, J. T. CAFETERIA TO TREAT NEWSIES

Turkey Dinner in Store for Youngsters

The newsboys—little earnest fellows who really dig for every cent they make—will not be neglected Thanksgiving day.

A big turkey dinner has been ordered for them by W. I. Cameron, operator of the Cameron cafeteria, 714 Eighth street. It will be ready for them, cranberries and all, at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and for a whole hour they will be at liberty to eat everything in sight. And Mr. Cameron has assured them that there will be plenty in sight.

While the feast is going on, Mr. Cameron said, a program of songs and speeches will be given, details of which are now being arranged.

The bulk of the regular customers, Mr. Cameron said, will have been served by 2:30 o'clock. However, he added, a section of the cafeteria will be reserved, during the newsboys' repast, for late diners.

'DOCTOR' JAILED FOR SWINDLING

'Radium Cure' Sold by Defendant to Wichitans

A man who gave his name as Dr. Edward Owen was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and fined $250 on a charge of swindling by a jury in the county court at law Tuesday following his arrest in connection with the selling of an instrument which he claimed would transmit radium particles from a radium element into water, thus creating a cure for a long list of ills.

The accused man sold several prospective buyers his instrument was endorsed by "the clinic," according to testimony in the case. Dr. Everett Jones of the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital, who was called as a prosecution witness, said persons had called him to ask if his clinic was the one referred to and that he denied any knowledge of the contrivance.

Dr. M. H. Glover and Dr. Everett Jones, Wichita Falls physicians who possess radium, testified as to the impossibility of transmitting radium particles from a radium element and of safely containing radium in a simple instrument such as that sold by the defendant. Dr. Jones explained that only one gram of radium, worth about $7,000, could be extracted from 10,000 tons of ore.

The defendant conducted his own case and several of his patients testified that they "thought the radium instrument had done them good." The accused man sold the contrivances for $75 each and stated that "they recharged themselves with radium each hour." He claimed to represent a company which manufactured the instruments in Czecho-Slovakia.

MADE BY THE MAKERS OF NUJOL

Milton Work's Radio Bridge Game

Four well known bridge players of the nation were included in the radio bridge game broadcast Tuesday afternoon from station KGKO. They were Sidney S. Lenz of New York, Wm. E. McKenney of Cleveland, Mrs. Guy U. Purdy of Omaha, Neb., and Mrs. Oscar E. Busby of Dallas.

Positions of players and cards were:

Mr. Lenz, in the "South," the dealer, holds: Spades, K, 8 spot, Hearts, A, 8 spot, 7, 4; Diamonds, K, J, 6; Clubs, Q, 10, 7, 4.

Mr. McKenney, in the "West," at the left of dealer, holds: Spades, A, Q, 10, 9, 7, 4, 3, 2; Hearts, 5, 2; Diamonds, A, Q, 10; Clubs, None.

Mrs. Purdy, in the "North," partner of the dealer holds: Spades, 5; Hearts K, 9, 6, 3; Diamonds 8 spot, 3, 2; Clubs, A, K, 9, 5, 2.

Mrs. Busby, in the "East," holds: Spades, J, 6; Hearts Q, J, 10; Clubs J, 8 spot, 6, 3.

Mr. Lenz, the dealer, bids one no trump in the auction. He has all four suits stopped, a no trump count of 13, and no sound suit bid.

Mr. McKenny, in the "West" bids three spades. Although his hand probably can save game against an adverse no trump (possibly can defeat the contract), there is a good chance of his going game at spades;; so he does not make the usual pass of a no trump bid on the right. With the idea of preempting if possible, he bids three spades instead of the two needed to overcall the one no trump.

Mrs. Purdy, in the "North," bids four clubs.

Mrs. Busby, in the "East," passes although she knows that her partner must have great strength to bid there spades when sitting over a no trump. There is nothing in her hand that would justify an assist.

Mr. Lenz, in the "South," of course, passes his partner's four clubs; but Mr. McKenney, in the "West," in spite of his strong spade hand, fears the possibility of an adverse game at clubs; and in addition he appreciates that East, despite her failure to assist, may hold sufficient strength to produce a game at spades. So Mr. McKenney, in the "West," bids four spades. North and East pass, and South doubles West's four-spade bid. All pass and Mr. McKenney, in the "West," becomes the declarer; Mrs. Busby, in the "East," is the dummy, and Mrs. Purdy, in the "North," is the leader.

Mrs. Purdy, in the "North," leads the king of clubs.

The declarer plays the trey of clubs from the dummy hand; Mr. Lenz, in the "South," plays the encouraging seven and West ruffs (that is trumps) with the duece of spades.

Declarer, appreciating the importance of establishing a heart in the dummy, now leads the deuce of hearts from the closed hand. Mrs. Purdy, in the "North," plays the king; dummy plays the 10; Mr. Lens, in the "South," plays the four.

To trick 3, Mrs. Purdy, in the "North," leads the deuce of clubs; dummy plays the eight; Mr. Lenz, in the "South" the 10; declarer trumps with the trey of spades.

Declarer now leads the five of hearts from the closed hand. North plays the trey, dummy the jack, and Mr. Lenz, in the "South," wins the trick with the ace.

Mr. Lenz, to continue forcing the declarer, leads to trick 5 the queen of clubs from the South hand. West ruffs again, this time with the four of spades. North plays the five of clubs and dummy the six.

The declarer is now in an interesting position. It is possible that South has bid no trump with a singleton king of spades; but it is much more probable, particularly in view of South's business double, that he has that king guarded. It is essential for Mr. McKenney, the declarer, to create an entry in his dummy. He needs it for two reasons; first, so that he can cash the heart he has established in that hand; second, so that he can lead a diamond from that hand for the finesse. Hoping to make dummy's trump jack an entry by drawing out the adverse spade king, Mr. McKenney, in the "West" leads the 10 of spades to trick 6. North plays her singleton five, dummy the six; and Mr. Lenz, in the "South," seeing through declarer's clever scheme, ducks. He plays the eight spot and keeps his king over dummy's jack so as to kill dummy's only entry.

The well conceived ruse of Mr. McKenney, in the "West," having failed, there is only one hope left for him. Perhaps by leading his long trumps he can force embarrassing discards from the adversaries. The attempt to do so will at worst be harmless; so West leads the ace of spades to trick 7, North plays the six of hearts, dummy the jack of spades, and South the king of spades.

To trick 8, West leads the queen of spades, North plays the nine of hearts, dummy the four of diamonds, and South the seven of hearts.

To trick 9, West leads the nine of spades, North plays the deuce of diamonds, dummy the jack of clubs and South the eight spot of hearts.

To trick 10, West leads the 10 of diamonds, North plays the trey, dummy the five, and South the jack.

To trick 11, South leads the four of clubs, declarer trumps with the seven of spades, North plays the nine of clubs and East the seven of diamonds.

To trick 12, declarer leads and wins with the ace of diamonds, the other three players following suit; and South wins the thirteenth trick with the king of diamonds. The adversaries take four tricks, two diamonds and two hearts, thus defeating a doubled declaration by one; East and West score 40 points for four honors divided.

Following the game, Mr. Work said:

"There are one or two points in connection with the auction bidding about which I wish to say a few words. In the first place, West's bid of spades on the first round was in contravention of a sound and recognized bidding principle which provides that a player sitting over (that is on the left of) an original no trump, rarely should overcall the no trump with a suit-bid. He may properly double with a hand that is strong enough to do so because, after a sound double, any long suit which partner may name is likely to produce game; but when he lacks the general strength necessary for an informatory double, as a rule it is better for him to pass and try to defeat the no trump (or at least save game) by opening his strong suit. When a player who would have the lead against a no trump shows his suit by bdidding it, he frequently guides the adversaries away from a no trump contract which they could not fulfill, into a suit-bid in which they go game. However, Mr. McKenney's hand is of a type with which it pays to disregard the usually sound rule. If Mr. McKenney in the "West," should pass and lead his fourth best spade against a no trump, it is almost sure that South will take the first spade trick; and from Mr. McKenney's viewpoint, it is possible that declarer then will make game by running hearts and clubs. Very little assistance is needed from the East hand to produce a game at spades for East and West; so West was quite right when he bid his spades, departing from the rule to not overcall a no trump. I believe in advisable to bid a suit over a no trump whenever two helpful cards in the partner's hand will produce game. I do not believe in doing so at a love score with less than eight probable tricks because it is being too sanguine, when strong and opposing a no trump, to expect more than two tricks from partner. West properly bid three spades instead of two, hoping to keep North from naming either clubs or hearts. The effort to pre-empt did not accomplish its purpose in this case, but nevertheless it was sound bidding.

"Contract bidding of this hand would be ended more quickly than the auction bidding. South with a count of 13 and the four suits all stopped, of course, would bid one no trump; but West, appreciating the chances of game even with less assistance than East would need for a jump from three to four, would bid four spades. This would shut out North's club bid with its show of strength and consequently South would lack the backing needed to justify his double; so at both games West would be the declarer with a contract of four spades, but at contract the four spades would not be doubled. The play in the two games would be identical."

High School and College Doings

Neuralgic Pains Stopped By Capudine

Capudine quickly relieves the neuralgic headaches, rheumatic pains, and the aches accompanying colds that make life so miserable for so many people, especially during the winter months. It soothes the tense nerves, quickly stops the pain and affords peaceful relaxation. Being liquid, Capudine acts almost instanly — much quicker than tablets and powders. Contains no opiates and does not upset the stomach, therefore is most desirable.

The next time you suffer from such pains take two teaspoonfuls of Capudine in a little water and note how quickly the pain fades away. Capudine has been sold by druggists for more than 30 years. 30c and 60c bottles.—Adv.

Courage Wins Happiness in Tough Battle

Nurse tells how even a broken leg can be forgotten if simple rule is followed

These are the girls who help us to smile when we need it most.

YOU would think a very old lady laid up with a broken thigh in a plaster cast would be a hard person to keep happy. Yet, according to Nurse Helen V. Griffin, 64 Prospect Avenue, Hackensack, New Jersey, it can be done—if you know how. We may not have broken legs to make us sad, but we have other troubles many of which fly away when we follow this good advice.

"My patient," says Miss Griffin, "being unable to move about by herself became very constipated. Many medicines in pill form were used with little or no results. Finally when we came home from the hospital I began the use of a tablespoonful of Nujol twice daily, later reducing to one a day.

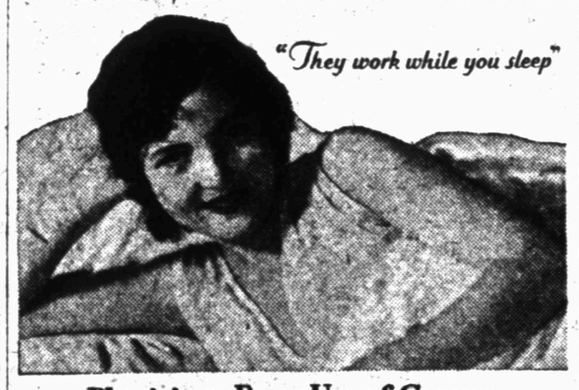

"Soon my patient became regular and comfortable, without any pain or discomfort. This of course gave her confidence in eating as much as her appetite required. Now she is happy and cheerful, since regularity has begun and continued with such little trouble. I could state many instances of excellent results from Nujol, but this is the most recent one."

That's what happens when you learn this easy and simple way to good health. Nurse Griffin knew how harmless Nujol is, containing no drugs or medicine, but acting only as a natural lubricant. She knew how it keeps the excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them) and helps carry them away.

These are the poisons that make us blue, and low in our minds. We all have to get rid of them. Women need a natural aid like Nujol just as much, if not more than men. There are so many physical conditions they have to go through that throw them off balance—upset their normal schedule.

Take Nurse Griffin's advice now and see what Nujol can do for you. You can get it at any drug store for the price of a ticket to a good movie. You will find that Nujol works easily, normally. Keep it up for two weeks and then see the difference.

You'll wonder how you ever lived without this natural, pleasant, easy way to health and happiness!

Physicians Favor Use of Cascara

Doctors who warn against the use of violent, habit-forming purgatives will tell you that cascara is one of the gentlest and most beneficial laxatives known to science. Cascarets are nothing but pure cascara, sweetened with cane sugar and flavored with licorice. You can take them any time that Nature needs a little help with the process of elimination—and never experience any discomfort, nausea or unpleasant after effects.

You can easily tell when you are suffering from faulty elimination. You feel listless, out of sorts, perhaps your tongue is coated or you have a bilious, headachy feeling. Cascarets will clear up this sluggish feeling every time and soon have your system functioning as it should. You needn't hesitate to give them to children or old folks either.

Cascarets always act, and they always act the same way; gentle but thorough. They don't stir up the stomach or upset the system, but they cleanse the entire thirty feet of bowels in one comfortable, thorough action that leaves the system sweet and clean. You'll wake up feeling like a new person; tongue uncoated, breath sweetened, eyes bright, appetite on edge, life worth living again!

Take a delicious, candy Cascaret the next time you have that sluggish feeling—or give them to the children when they are out of sorts. Full medical endorsement proves the principle of Cascarets is right.

Band of Drunken Night Riders Blamed for 'Fire Murder' of Boy

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Nov. 26. (AP)—A band of intoxicated night riders who terrorized this community in efforts to prevent the marriage of a mentally deficient youth of 20 and a girl of the St. James community, today was blamed by Sheriff Sam Johnson for the mutilation and burning alive of Connie Franklin, farm hand, and prospective bridegroom.

Preliminary legal steps were taken today for the trial Dec. 16 of five men under first degree murder indictments in which prosecuting Attorney Hugh Williamson will oppose his younger brother, Ben B. Williamson, former state senator, employed as chief defense counsel.

Statutory Charges

The accused men are: Bill Younger father of five children, and Hubert Hester, both in jail at Newport; Herman Greenway and Joe White, in jail at Batesville, and Alex Fulks, in jail here. Greenway who also is married, and Hester in addition to first degree murder indictments, face statutory charges in connection with an attack on Franklin's 16-year-old intended bride.

Sheriff Johnson quoted the girl as saying she and Franklin, who had been a patient at the state hospital for nervous diseases, were on their way to be married when they were accosted by a band of men. Franklin was mutilated, she said, and after fainting from pain, was tossed upon a blazing log fire by the men, who, she said, expressed the belief he already was dead.

She told the sheriff two of the men led her into the woods and attacked her.

The grand jury was hampered in its investigation for months by threats of reprisals made by the night riders to those they thought might throw light on the crime, Sheriff Johnson said. A note thrown from his cell window by Ross Younger, a brother of one of the men under indictment, in which he threatened to "expose the whole works," unless they obtained his release on bail on a night riding charge was credited by Sheriff Johnson with being the first clue to the crime. Younger was released that night by men who sawed the bars of his cell, the sheriff said. He has not been recaptured.

Why this sanitary pad stays soft

IT is really amazing how Kotex stays soft, even when you have to wear it for hours.

Other forms of sanitary protection may seem comfortable when first adjusted. But Kotex stays soft.

Its filler, Cellucotton absorbent wadding, is laid in many layers, each tissue-thin. This permits circulation of air, and keeps the pad soft and delicate.

The pads are rounded and tapered to fit. Kotex deodorizes, too.

Hospitals use Kotex material

A striking testimony to the superiority of the Kotex material, is the fact that 85% of the leading hospitals use it in preference to any other absorbent.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Fastidious . . . the sign of true daintiness.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

Kotex—45c for 12—at any drug, dry goods or department store.

Samuel Yunt Honored At Forum Tea Room Luncheon

Mrs. C. P. Burton and members of the art department were hostesses Tuesday at a small but extremely interesting luncheon given in the Spanish tea room in honor of Samuel Yunt, known to all lovers of art in the city through the splendid exhibits that have been given at the Forum clubhouse by his gallery. In an informal manner, Mr. Yunt made a talk on art that was inspirational in the highest degree.

"Why are American artists turning so much to beautiful landscapes?" he was asked.

"Because of the war," was his answer. The artists abroad, he said, tormented with bitterness or grief or jealousy, painted pictures expressing these feelings in them. Strong, perhaps and full of spirit, but of an ugly and sometimes a vulgar spirit. But the American artist, native of a happy and prosperous land, sought out the beautiful and tried to interpret it on canvas.

Mr. Yunt is a strong believer in genius being the expression of the God in man. "There is a cause beneath every picture," he said. He quoted often from Robert Henri, pushing his point home with every quotation.

In speaking of sitting for a portrait, Mr. Yunt told of an artist painting his mother and related how she sat several times until she had become accustomed to the sitting and then in a very short time, the artist did two sketches of her marvelously like her and full of her spirit. One of them, he said, he had in the gallery just as he would have placed another sketch, and when one morning, a friend of his mother came in, he turned around to see her before the sketch with tears running down her cheeks. When he asked her what was the matter, she said, "Sam, how did this artist get your mother's very soul?"

"Teach yourself to see," Mr. Yunt said. "When you have taught yourself to see, look for the reason back of the technique, the beautiful color, the sheer artistry, then you have learned the immortality of art."

Covers were laid at the luncheon for Mr. Yunt, Mesdames C. P. Burton, N. M. Hall of Birmingham, Ala., J. L. Jackson Jr., G. B. Smedley, W. W. Silk, Ben G. Oneal, A. G. Holmes and W. M. Cason.

Widow Is Good Marriage Risk, Says Dorothy Dix

The Best Risk in Matrimony Is the Widow, Who Brings to Her Second Marriage All the Diplomacy and Household Efficiency That She Was Forced to Acquire in Her First.

A man wants to know what sort of wife a widow makes. The best, son, the best. A widow is always a preferred matrimonial risk. Experience in matrimony counts as it does in everything else, and the woman who has had a husband is pleasanter to get along with and easier to live with even if she isn't actually a better wife than the maiden who has never been married at all. This is true whether the woman is a sod widow or a grass widow. The woman who has lost her husband by death puts into her treatment of her second husband a lot of the remorse she felt when she looked down through her tears into a coffin and thought how much more tender, how much more loving and considerate she could have been as a wife, while the divorced woman has learned the lesson of her failure and found out that when a husband strays off or gets stolen it is nearly always because the wife has been guilty of contributory negligence.

Hence, she is determined to keep the new one eating out of her hand if being a good wife will turn the trick.

There are as many reasons why a widow makes a better wife than a young girl does as there are reasons why a professional wins out in a game over an amateur. To begin with, she is a better picker than the girl is. She has cut her wisdom teeth on a wedding ring and she knows what qualities to look out for in the man with whom she proposes to live the balance of her life. That is why second wives nearly always wear a more contented expression than first wives do.

The young girl chooses a man for a husband because he is a sheik or because he has soulful eyes or because he has a keen line of love-making or because he is a peachy dancer. She never gives a thought to his temper and disposition or even his ability to make a living.

The widow has found out that all of these extraneous charms are a washout in matrimony. Therefore, when she marries again she selects a man for a husband because he is good-natured and dependable and generous and because she has found out that they have the same taste in everything from politics to pie and because he has some settled, steady way of supporting a family. She doesn't care a rap whether he is bald-headed and bay-windowed or a gilt lovemaker or not. She knows the desirable husband is the man who says it with his checkbook and who is a fireside companion whose wife doesn't have to always keep her eye upon him.

The widow makes a soothing and agreeable wife because she doesn't expect too much of a man. It is a bitter day for the husband as well as for the bride, when she finds out that she is married to a mere man instead of a demigod and he is made to realize how far short he comes of being the hero of her girlish dreams. The widow has been through all this and has scrapped her impossible ideals. She learned about men from her first husband and found out that even the best of them have their little faults and weaknesses and zigzag now and then off of the straight and narrow path.

So she has learned how to take her husband with humor and philosophy and to shut her eyes to what she doesn't want to see and to laugh at his foibles instead of having hysterics over them. Above all, she takes her husband "as is," as the shipping manifests say, and doesn't try to make him over. And this saves a lot of wear and tear on a man's vanity.

Also, the widow has developed a technique in handling a husband. The reason that so many young couples scrap and quarrel and go to the mat on every question that comes up is because of the raw way in which brides go about managing their husbands. They argue about everything. They present ultimatums. They tell unwelcome truths. They trample roughshod over their husbands' idiosyncrasies. They bump their poor, little, silly heads against every wall.

Not so the widow. She studies her man until she has a good working map of all of his tastes and habits and little peculiarities and she walks warily among the pitfalls. She keeps off his prejudices. She never riles him by disputing his assertions or correcting his statements. She picks the psychological moment when he is fed and rested to present bills and tell him that mother is coming for a nice long visit. She jollies him along the way she wants him to go instead of trying to drive him into it and she skips nimbly around his eccentricities, instead of breaking her heart crashing against them.

Furthermore, the man who marries a widow saves his stomach and his pocketbook from the hazardous experimenting of a blundering bride. Most young girls know nothing of either cooking or handling money when they get married and by the time they have learned how to cook a meal that isn't a first aid to the coroner and how to get a hundred cents out of a dollar, they have given their unfortunate husbands chronic dispepsia and brought them to the verge of bankruptcy.

The second husband reaps the reward of the first husband's sufferings. For No. 2 there are no tough steaks, no leathery pie crusts, no leaden biscuit, no wasteful buying. The widow has not only learned her trade of housewife on her first husband, but she has also learned that if a woman wants to keep her husband happy and contented she must feed the brute.

Finally, the widow makes a good wife because she goes into her second marriage more soberly, more intelligently, more determined to make a good wife than she did when she married the first time. When a young girl marries she thinks only of her husband making her happy. When a woman marries the second time she knows that if her marriage is a success that she has to do most of the work of making it one, and so she brings to it a patience, a wisdom, a self-control and an unselfishness that it takes life and suffering to teach.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Reading the numerous missionary reports of Monday, we cannot help remembering what we read the other day, said by Dr. Lyman Powell, of St. Margaret's in the Bronx. "With less than 20 per cent of Bronxites religiously affiliated, the one-quarter of these habitually attending services, brings the total of the dependably religious down to perhaps four per cent and indisputably makes the Bronx as definitely a missionary field as India's coral strands."

◆ ◆ ◆

We believe the missionary work done in the city is called "social service" work, and it is a generous work in all the churches.

◆ ◆ ◆

We are one with a writer in one of the leading magazines last year who sympathized with the poor heathen who, believing in the grace of God, were mystified by denominational missionaries. Accepting a new religion was one thing; then the question rose whether or not the God he had accepted was a Methodist, Baptist, Christian, Episcopal, Catholic or one of the many other churches' Gods.

◆ ◆ ◆

Of course in America it is a simpler thing. But right on our southern border, lies a great mission field.

◆ ◆ ◆

"Though Cortez subdued Mexican natives a hundred years before the Pilgrims settled at Plymouth," we read, "not more than 10 per cent of the 13 million Mexican are of unmixed white blood."

◆ ◆ ◆

"More Mexican Indians have crossed the southern border in one year than lived in the entire territory of New England at the time of the Plymouth settlement."

◆ ◆ ◆

And though this peon is comparatively unassimilable, he is an adept at assimilating charity; in 1925 in Los Angeles county though they were only about 10 per cent of the population, more than 50 per cent of the bureau of Catholic charities and 73 per cent of the city maternity service fund was spent on them.

◆ ◆ ◆

This makes a broad field at home for mission work.

◆ ◆ ◆

Home mission work is a big work. We do not mean the "Home Missionary societies" work they used to have. We mean in homes — each woman to her own.

◆ ◆ ◆

Nothing on earth is as near to our idea of heaven as a family in peace and understanding with one another.

◆ ◆ ◆

Children do not stand in awe of parents in this day as they once did. A father who makes a chum of his son can do more for that son's salvation than anything else on earth—if the father is the right kind of a man. And the same is true of a mother.

◆ ◆ ◆

A mother stands for her children's ideal. What a part to play!

◆ ◆ ◆

A wife has a right to be many women in one; that's a lesson wise women have learned since the day of Cleopatra, with her "infinite variety of charms." A good wife is a harem.

New Numbers Added To Band Concert Program

Two new numbers were added Tuesday to the program of the Thanksgiving entertainment to be given Thursday evening at Memorial auditorium under the auspices of the Playground band. According to C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, the new acts include Jake Avis, in a song number, accompanied by Lee Irvin, and Lucille Snyder and Lucille Crouch, in a violin duet, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Joe Crouch.

Other numbers on the program have been announced as follows: Harrell and Fisher in a comedy act, Phyllis Seeds in a Dutch dance, Edna Mae Shoop in a nature dance and Paul Sisk in a marimba solo.

Over 2,000 school children are expected at the entertainment, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

30 Enroll Here In Pi Omicron Sorority Work

More than 30 members have been enrolled during the past three weeks in the local chapter of the national Pi Omicron sorority, one of the recently organized movements designed to effect an intellectual "renaissance" among adult business and professional women of the country, according to Mrs. Frances DuBose Kelly, staff director, and officers of the Wichita Falls group.

Organized only 20 months ago, the Pi Omicron sorority is known outside its membership primarily because in that short time it has established almost 70 chapters in cities representing every state in the union, according to statements of its founders. Declaring a threefold purpose of advancement in the educational, cultural and social life of adult women, the sorority is said to shape its program of work to afford as nearly as possible the fruits of a university educational course.

According to Miss Blance Reed of Atlanta, Ga., president of the national organization, "there is an increasing general demand for education in some form or other; and everywhere in all classes of society, interest in acquiring better knowledge is apparent. Until recently, people thought of education as something for children; something which one either got or missed in early years, and something which they generally forgot in mature years. The 'highly' educated person was the exception in the community, and the philosophy of higher education did not appeal to a wide public."

Relative to the rapidly increasing number of study groups now extant outside of schools, colleges and universities, Miss Reed said: "Something very significant is happening. Perhaps at no time since the thirteenth century has a desire for higher education so nearly approached a mass movement."

Under the plans adopted by the sorority, members of local chapters meet twice monthly for the discussion of study material which has been covered by daily assignments. Each chapter has a director, employed by the national organization, whose work includes tutorial discussion of study courses, but analysis of current events, presentation of book reviews, and instruction in public speaking.

The library furnished members of the Pi Omicron sorority has been selected by a group of educational authorities headed by Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Princeton university, Dr. Bliss Perry, Harvard university, and Dr. John Huston Finley of New York City university, it was said.

Courses of study include public speaking, literature, history, philosophy, psychology, sciences, art, drama, biography, fiction, essays, humor and fantasy. The program of study has been built upon the theory that "adult education is a way of living, which should be open to all for its own sake; except in children, ignorance is by no means an innocent thing," according to the national president.

Mrs. Lillian H. Kerr, public speaking department head of the Wichita Falls Academy of Fine Arts, has been selected as the educational director and sponsor of the Wichita Falls chapter of the sorority. Meetings are to be held on the first and third Thursdays of each month at the Episcopal parish house. Miss Mayme Kuhfuss was elected president at the chapter's first meeting, last Thursday.

First Methodist Wesley Girls Have Monthly Party

Members of the Wesley Girls Sunday school class of the First Methodist church enjoyed their regular monthly party in the parlors of the church Tuesday afternoon. Circle one, Mrs. W. J. McAllister, chairman, was the hostess circle for the day and Mesdames Jim Hanks, H. Hay, Geo. W. Cooper, H. O. Rupnow, T. A. Rogers, E. F. Bohmfalk, R. E. Fisher, E. H. Eddleman, J. A. Stulken, C. F. Pearl, O. M. Short, W. C. Dillard, B. R. Bagwell and George Dimock entertained the personnel of the class.

The opening devotional was given very beautifully by Mrs. E. F. Bohmfalk and Mrs. Z. C. Adams read an interesting paper on the customs of the French people.

Russell McAfee completed the program with two readings.

The hostess circle served a delicious plate to Mesdames John B. McKinley, J. C. Harris, W. J. McAllister, H. G. Parker, J. B. King, O. K. Connor, M. T. Junker, James R. Welsh, J. C. O'Brien, D. H. College Players Give Program At Forum Clubhouse

Presenting a very interesting and entertaining program, the Blue Curtain players of the Junior college were well received by a small but appreciative audience at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Preceding the one act play, Aaron Kruger read his dramatized version of "China Blue Eyes." The plot of the play was centered around a young girl, shy boy and her efforts to inveigle him. The characters were well portrayed by Mr. Kruger.

Another interesting feature was the monologue given by Miss Katherine Ashford, when she read "Bridging," which very cleverly portrayed the talkative young flapper at a bridge party.

The one act play, "Getting Acquainted" was an exceptionally clever comedy. The two old maid sisters, Jane and Priscilla Stewart have as their only hopes, an old bachelor who has been courting both of them for 18 years and is not able to make up his mind which of the two he wants, Jane gets herself a job and meets another eligible, so when John Purdy calls as usual on Tuesday night she flatly demands that he make his choice. He finally decides to marry Priscilla and Jane leaves them to "get acquainted."

Jane is played by Miss Lela Belle Jenkins and Katherin Keller takes the part of the meek Priscilla. W. A. Johnson depicts the bashful John Purdy.

The student director for the play was Miss Josephine Kelly, while Miss Juanita Kinsey, sponsor for the players presented the actors.

Keep Free from FAT

In excess; it's easy now

Modern science has found that excess fat is largely due to an under-active gland. Starve as you will, exercise as you will, you are bound to fail unless you correct the cause.

That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak, too much food goes to fat, too little to fuel and energy. So modern physicians, in treating obesity, supply the gland substance which is scant.

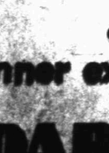

That is the method employed in Marmola prescription tablets, prepared by a famous medical laboratory. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Anybody, in any circle, can see what a change has come. Excess fat is disappearing fast. New youth and beauty, new health and vitality, are conspicuous everywhere.

If you are abnormal in your weight, a certain gland is abnormal. Try Marmola. Feed the factor lacking. Watch the pounds go, the new vitality return. You will be amazed and delighted. But the formula in each box of Marmola will tell you the reason. To people who know, there is no excuse today for obesity. Start to remedy that ill condition now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

Marriage for Two--By Arthur Somers Roche

Larry tracy finds his world tumbling about his ears as he hears his fiancee, Helen Wilson, announce her determination of breaking their engagement, so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton. Desperately Larry pleads with her, feeling their love degraded by the money value she puts upon it. When she refuses to reconsider, he threatens in pique to marry the first girl who will have him.

"I'll let you give me $500. On the absolute condition that you agree never to make any attempt to meet me, to know me, to see me."

I'm Hungry

Her body seemed suddenly to collapse inwardly, as a building, its supports withdrawn, might fall upon itself. Her hands fell upon her knees, and her shoulders rounded. Her lips—how pale they were—parted and that fixed gaze of hers now rooted itself upon the placid houses across the street.

Tracy looked uneasily about him. Policemen had little imagination and might easily mistake him for the common type of masher. But there was no uniformed man nearer than the traffic jam some blocks away. He leaned toward the girl.

This was stark tragedy that he was witnessing. What might be the nature of the tragedy he could not imagine. But the quick, impulsive generosity which was his most salient trait made him forget, for the moment, his hatred of her sex.

"I—beg pardon, but—are you ill?" he asked.

By an effort so painful that it hurt Tracy to watch her, she straightened her back and half-faced him. Her eyes, deepest black, blazed at him. It was almost, he thought, as though she hated him.

"Damn you," she said, "I'm hungry!"

He gasped. Then, because in certain matters he was wise he understood the profane preface to her confession. Too weak, too tired, to make pretense, pride made her hate herself for the admission and hate the person who had wrung it from her.

A moment ago, thinking she looked half starved, Tracy had mentally consigned her to unending famine. Now he reversed himself utterly. The words had hardly left her lips when he was at the curb, signaling a taxi that had somehow escaped the jam farther uptown. The chauffeur swung into the walk.

For a moment Tracy thought the girl would refuse the offer of his arm. But pride had evidently been dying in her soul, and its last flare-up had been the "daman" which she had uttered.

Pathetically weak, she let Tracy assist her from the bench, across the sidewalk and into the taxi. The chauffeur eyed them with a mixture of suspicion and sympathy.

"Lady sick—or full of hop?" he asked.

"Starved," said Tracy simply.

If the chauffeur suspected one of those yellow-journal drugging affairs, if his mind turned to thoughts of white slavery, it might prove embarrassing for the girl. To his credit, Tracy gave no thought to possible embarrassment for himself.

"Goddlemighty," gasped the driver. "Where to?"

"The nearest restaurant," said Tracy. "Not a big one—." He thought of the girl's possible uneasiness in a too-fashionable dining room.

"I gotcha, boss," said the taximan.

He started the car before Tracy was settled beside the girl. She lay back, limp, and the eyes she turned upon him had completely lost their blaze. They were listless, dull.

"Just a couple of minutes," said Tracy, "and you'll be all right."

She made no answer. There was no expression on her face to indicate that she heard him. Tracy felt a panicky fear that she'd die, right in the taxi, on the way to the restaurant. But he told himself, people didn't die suddenly from starvation. They—good God, what a world! A world in which people could be hungry on Fifth avenue.

The taxi drew up before a smart little restaurant on a side street. Tracy would have preferred a lunchroom. The girl's condition would be less noticeable, less embarrassing to her. But time was precious. He assisted her from the car and put his hand in his pocket.

The chauffeur waved away the proffered bill.

"What the hell," he muttered, "if a dame's hungry, I guess I can give her a free ride. But say, boss, after the meal is over—well, do your huntin' where the game has some chance, hey?"

Tracy nodded. In the queer kinship which suffering arouses among its witnesses, there could be no resentment that a taximan should teach him elementary principles of honor. He led the girl into the restaurant.

A Jest at Fate

The maitre d'hotel met him at the dining-room entrance. He greeted Tracy with that mixture of familiarity and servility which is the grand manner of his breed. He didn't know Tracy, but he recognized that here was one who did not deem his obligations satisfied when he tipped a mere waiter. Such a man as this left pleasant sums in the discreet palms of headwaiters.

"A table—here, sir—quiet—"

That the girl was shabby meant nothing. This maitre d'hotel had seen many a girl, shabby one week, become bedecked with jewels the next, when her escort on the first occasion had happened to be of the Tracy type.

Something passed from Tracy to the obsequious palm. The maitre d'hotel was not guilty of the vulgarity of glancing at the denomination of the bill.

"Soup," said Tracy. "Consomme of a chicken broth.

"Whatever is ready. But quickly. Then chops—potatoes, a salad—"

"Immediately," said the maitre d'hotel.

Tracy detained him. "But first—some brandy. The lady is—not feeling well."

The young man underwent a close scrutiny. He passed it well. This was no prohibition enforcement official.

"Instantly, sir," was the reply.

Tracy sat down opposite the girl. "Just one minute," he said.

She looked at him listlessly. She made no reply, and Tracy felt increasing embarrassment. It was as though, somehow, he were guilty of the social order that caused young girls to go hungry.

The waiter relieved the strain by his appearance with a tiny glass of brandy. He set it on the table and disappeared.

"Drink it," said Tracy.

The girl picked it up. Its fumes rose to her nostrils and they quivered ever so faintly. Then she set the glass down. She made as though to rise. Tracy touched her on the shoulder and her weakness made her fall back into her chair. But her pale mouth was stubborn.

"I won't—I can't," she moaned.

"Good God, drink it," said Tracy. Then he thought he understood. "Scruples about liquor?"

"About men," she replied. "I—I haven't any money. I—don't know that I'll ever have money. I—won't pay—the way you expect."

Tracy stared at her. Anger, then contempt, then amusement were in his eyes.

"Are you so vain," he asked, "that you think I'd care a hoot for that sort of pay—from you?"

His psychology was sounder than he had dared hope. Her thinned blood was thickened enough with resentment at the insult to show in her cheeks.

"Now," she said, "you owe me something."

She raised the glass to her lips and sipped it slowly. As she put it down the waiter placed a bowl of soup on the table. He served her deftly. Again her nostril dilated faintly. She glanced at Tracy. Her lips parted in the slightest of smiles.

"You even," she said, "owe me the soup."

"Let us hope," he said sardonically, "that you'll be sufficiently my creditor to eat a chop. I can then think of some further rudeness which will justify your acceptance of a salad."

Then he busied himself lighting a cigaret. It was not pleasant, watching a famished girl eat her first mouthful since—when?

He put down his cigaret and lighted another. He crushed the burning end of that one upon a saucer and picked up the first. He put the wrong end in his mouth and smothered a profanity. The girl looked up from her soup.

"Lucky for you," she said, "that you inherited money."

He stared at her, surprised by her words into forgetfulness of embarrassment.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

She frowned at him. A spoonful of soup was on its way to her mouth. She swallowed it and the thinness of her throat made painfully the articulation of the muscles. The spoon went to the plate again. The trembling fingers caused the silver to clatter upon the china, and he looked away again. For a minute or two there was silence, except for the tiny sounds of liquid being scooped up from the plate.

He remembered having read something of the technique of feeding starving people. One gave them a little at a time, lest their famished organs suffer more from repletion than from emptiness. He stole another glance at her.

She was holding herself in, he saw. Her impulse was to lift the plate to her mouth, drain it at one draft, but she was slowly, methodically, spooning it to her mouth. He looked away again.

"Thank you," she said.

He knew exactly what she meant. She was grateful that he did not witness more of her humiliation. What manner of girl was this, who in the most dreadful poverty could appreciate nuances of manners that he had only unconsciously observed?

Up to now he had only been sorry for her in a general way. She was typical of all the misery and poverty in the world. But suddenly she became capable of calling upon that specific pity and sorrow which we reserve for individuals who have compelled our admiration.

Poor, humiliated thing! And why should she feel humiliated? People aren't humiliated because ignorance of the rules of right living result in ill-health. People feel no shame because an accident has crippled them. Then why feel humiliation because of economic ignorance or misfortune?

Now the waiter appeared. If he felt slight surprise that Tracy ate nothing, or that Tracy's companion should order at 5 in the afternoon a meal that was more of luncheon or dinner than a tea, he didn't show it. Perhaps the maitre d'hotel had intimated something about the transfer of largesse to him, or more probably the waiter was something of a psychologist himself, and anticipated a suitably gratifying reward for deft and incurious service.

"You may look at me now," said the girl.

Her voice had lost the quality of desperation. There was almost a touch of amusement in its tones. It was an assured voice, the voice of a girl accustomed to other things than the charity of a casual stranger. Tracy, looking up for the third time, met her eyes.

The agony, the horror, the desperation had left them. Oddly, he felt himself color. She had, in some intangible way, taken command of the situation, and the embarrassment that might have been hers had become almost wholly his.

The terrific repression which she had manifested as she attacked the soup was not so plainly visible now, although her fingers still trembled slightly as she manipulated the knife and fork.

She guessed at his embarrassment.

"You may talk to me," she said.

Tracy withheld his amusement at her grand manner. She was, he knew, fighting for self-control, and if her fractional victory showed itself by a something that absolutely hinted and condescension, he would admire rather than condemn.

"You're Beautiful"

"What do you mean by saying that I was lucky to have inherited money? How do you know that I inherited money? And why should that have been luck?"

"Men so sensitive that they can't look at suffering are not the founders of great fortunes," she remarked dryly.

Tracy's eyes widened. The philosophy may not have been original with her, but that she could think of it and apply it just now proved her remarkable.

"And it's cant," she went on, "to deny that the possession of money is good luck. Try its lack," she added.

For the first time she smiled. It was a pathetic, brave little smile that sat oddly on lips, Tracy unaccountably felt, which should only be curled in merriment.

"I have finished the chops," she said, "and I am waiting for a justification for eating your salad."

This was courage of the highest order. To make a jest of one's misery may be only a gesture, but decent pride is the mother of that gesture, and serene honesty is its usual sire.

"I like," he said, "very short women."

And now pathos momentarily left her lips, and they hinted of that gayety which was, he thought, their natural birthright.

"Is that the best you can do by way of insult? It seems to me hardly fitting, but—I think it must serve."

"I shall try to think up something to justify a dessert," he said.

She shook her head, and the movement rippled her short black hair. It was well-kept hair, Tracy decided. For that matter, despite her shabbiness, there was an almost tragic neatness about her. Her nails, her hands. . . .

"I am not in a cage," she suddenly blazed.

"I didn't mean to stare," he quickly apologized.

"And I didn't mean to lose my temper," she met him more than half way. "And I don't want dessert, but—coffee?"

"Won't my liking for short women do for the coffee?" he asked.

For the first time since boyhood he felt tears close to his eyes. Heaven knew that he liked light bandiage, but the circumstances. . . . Her starvation, her poverty, her incredible bravery.

"If," she said, "your imagination is so poor—well, we'll let my upgainly height serve."

"It isn't ungainly," he said swiftly. "Why—you're just exactly right." He leaned eagerly across the table. "Why—I think you—you're beautiful. You're the bravest—" He paused a moment. "You're beautiful," he blurted out.

She was. At least, in that slim body, in those lovely eyes and sweet lips and straight proud nose, were all the elements of beauty. All she needed was care, rest, decent food, lack of worry. He hadn't noticed it before. Somehow, it would have been a mockery to have been aware of her charm when she was starving. But now he was aware of it, and a too-patent admiration showed in his eyes.

She pushed back her chair.

"You haven't had your coffee," he said.

"I could always have coffee if I cared to be told that I'm pretty," she said. "Well," and she sighed faintly, "you did very well."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that you didn't pay the kind of compliments that your kind of man pays to my kind of woman right at the start. But now—"

"Pride," he interrupted her, "is admirable, until it becomes conceit. Are you so vain that you mistake honest admiration for admirable traits for a way of—of approach?"

"I'm sorry," she said. "Please—may I have coffee—and a cigaret?"

Where Are You Going?"

She was one of those rare people whose apologies carry with them more than a formal acknowledgement of the demands of a situation and are so convincing that the burden shifts to their recipients. A certain tender and eager unwillingness to hurt was in her voice.

Tracy offered her his cigaret case. She took one, accepted the light he offered and inhaled the smoke. She smoked as he liked to see a woman smoke. It was not a pretty accomplishment that aped masculinity. It was an appreciation of the good things of life. She drank her coffee, too, as though she understood that coffee at the conclusion of a repast was not a beverage, but something designed to balance perfectly a culinary architectural design.

The waiter, removing the dishes, still hovered near. Doubtless the man wanted to be gone, to snatch those few hours of leisure granted to waiters. Tracy paid the check and tipped him generously.

Once again the girl started to rise. She held a slim hand out to Tracy. He ignored it.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

That sudden anger shone again in her eyes.

"If I were—of your class," she said, "you would not make inquiries. You would not think that the purchase of a meal did more than render you under an obligation."

"And if you," he said, "were not so suspicious—"

BENEFACTOR DIES

BANGOR, Maine, Nov. 26. (UP)—Taking an injured young woman to the hospital here today after an automobile accident, Francis Rutter suffered a heart attack and died in the hospital receiving room a few moments later.

LEAPS TO DEATH

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (UP)—Alfred Carrier, 60, leaped from the fifteenth floor of Mandell Brothers' department store here today, in crowded Madison street, and was killed. He had worked at the store for 40 years. Ill health was believed to have prompted the leap.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

You Get Protective Lubrication With

Conoco Germ-Processed Paraffin Base Motor Oil

CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil retains its fluidity at sub-zero temperatures. In fact, there is no practical operating condition in winter that will affect its ready lubricating flow.

Due to the Germ process and the select, premium, paraffin base crude stocks used, CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil positively does not break down under the most intense cylinder wall heat.

A climb, high speed, heavy load, the temperature—none of these conditions affect the ready lubricating qualities of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil.

This oil is different from all other oils in one outstanding respect. It actually penetrates metal surfaces. The oil never leaves the bearings. In effect, a fracture-proof film—a carry-over film—is always on duty, lubricating your motor from the instant you put your foot on the starter.

When the temperature drops down to the sub-zero zone protect your motor by using CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil. Know the satisfaction of realizing that your motor is well lubricated even before you start it.

Drive in at the nearest station displaying the Red Triangle now, today and have your crankcase drained. Your winter driving will change from one of worry to one of pleasure and satisfaction.

Herbert Kaufman's
MILLIKAN AND THE MILKMAN
Daily Editorial

PROFESSOR HARLOW SHAPley, who surveys futures and fundamentals from Harvard's astronomical laboratory, discovers, after squinting through the most powerful telescopes and microscopes at present command, that we are still crawling among "the foothills of knowledge."

He tosses imagination, among other tidbits for digestion, the fact that the material system (of which the pinpoint where we dwell is such a piddling part) measures "more than a thousand million trillion miles across."

In light of which observation, it would appear that man will be indefinitely occupied with research, practice correction and the investigation of substance and environment.

Students of yesterday must step aside for experts on tomorrow.

Live problems can't be solved with dead theories. One thought that hasn't previously occurred to anybody else, is more important than a library full of trite knowledge.

Consequently, Dr. Millikan's value to society is equal to that of the average million individuals who never contribute a lasting thought or a permanent principle to progress.

Millikan is now assured that radioactivity largely emanates from four sources, to-wit: helium, oxygen, silicon and iron, and upon that premise, inventors will eventually contrive apparatus to control rays and resultant forces which may soon require the junking of all present wireless and power systems.

Of course, merely a choice few are mentally privileged to enlist in such adventures.

THE RANK and file of the Adamsons aren't technically trained or sympathetically inclined to super-achievement.

But only fatuous self-satisfaction and downright laziness account for the empty roles that majorities play in affairs.

For instance, is any balance sheet indebted to your ingenuity for a dividend increasing notion?

Are you the author of a single idea to reduce costs or leaks or lacks?

Probably not. You prefer to brood instead over the injustice and inappreciation which continue to relegate you to the background of action.

Lacking the spark-plugs of initiative and enterprise, folk who do possess them, are masters of your time and energy.

You may know as much as the man who bosses you, but you don't show as much.

You may be "better educated," but unless reflection has distilled some motor essence from your college fueling, you won't work without a driving belt.

Wherever a highbrow is taking orders from a roughneck, it's because he has neither the guts nor the gumption to give orders to himself.

No individual is worth more than his output. Your place is fixed and your wage is based on production.

In the long run, a man gets no more out of this world than he takes out of himself. The jobs we hold, continue to fit until we grow out of them.

There's no room for development in a standardized situation for which every contingency has been anticipated by set rule and regulation.

Disprove the validity of the rule or successfully challenge the soundness of the regulation, and you immediately become a candidate for promotion and distinction.

The difference between a Millikan and a milkman is that one uses his faculties and the other lets them drowse.

Kahn to Seek Aid for Families of Gun Victims

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. (UP)—Representative Florence P. Kahn, Republican, California, said today she would ask the house judiciary committee early in the regular session of congress next month to hold hearings on her bill to pay $25,000 to the families of persons killed by federal prohibition officers.

A high mountain in Idaho has been named after Senator Borah. We know a couple of states with nice, deep valleys that could be named after some other congressmen, without stretching the imagination, either.

Tight shoes for women are said to be unfashionable this winter. Some other discomfort will be found to take their place, however.

Harvard has 55,000 alumni and Yale has 35,000. Maybe that's why Yale seems to be getting along so nicely.

We Can Guide Our Destiny

IT IS STRANGE that this country should be developing a philosophy which holds that men are the creatures of circumstance, powerless to affect their own destinies. Strange—because, if you look about you, you will see so many cases where men, working alone, have completely changed everything about them in accordance with their own desires.

There are illustrations, for example, in the field of politics and government.

Indianapolis for years was cursed with a corrupt and callous political ring. Its government was a disgrace. Fraud and chicanery were firmly entrenched—so much so that the average Indianapolis citizen, whenever he thought about them, simply sighed and concluded that there was nothing that could be done about it.

But Indianapolis happened to have one man who was determined to change matters—a man named Boyd Gurley, who chanced to be editor of the Indianapolis Times.

Gurley set himself the task of restoring clean government to his city.

It looked like a hopeless job. His paper was not prosperous and it was not influential. All of the strong forces of the city were on the other side. Gurley had to work alone.

But he went to it. Day after day and week after week he hammered away. He got evidence to prove the existence of corruption, and he never let up until he had made everyone in Indianapolis aware of it.

Finally, at this fall's election, Gurley won out. The voters threw out the old ring and put a set of honest, capable and energetic officials into office.

Indianapolis, as a result, is about to return to the list of well governed cities—and all because one man was determined to change things.

Then there is Chicago. For years Chicago was cursed with a frightful alliance between crime and politics. The underworld was bold and defiant. Gang leaders ran things to suit themselves. The city was "wide open," and it did not seem possible that matters could be remedied.

But the Chicago voters, getting disgusted, put a man named John A. Swanson into the state's attorney's office; and Swanson appointed one Patrick Roche as his special investigator and told him to clean things up.

Roche sailed into action. He struck the gangsters wherever he found them. He smashed gambling halls, raided vice dens, cut down the profits of the underworld ring and made things generally so uncomfortable for the gangsters that many of them are leaving Chicago for good.

Gurley and Roche are two examples. They have proved, once more, that circumstances can always be made to give way before a man of courage and determination.

Now for a Barber Poll

SOME TERSE, proverbial sentence like "Even the worm will turn," should be created to commemorate the plea for more original and diversified conversation of which a barber in this city recently delivered himself.

There has been in this country a strongly intrenched impression that toleration of the barber's endless comment on the weather and local society was one of the prices inevitably to be paid for tonsorial service. Many a wit has scored with versified reference to "all the latest gossip from the barber shops." But one who is successfully engaged in that vocation was driven to express himself recently when his wife remarked the pleasure to be derived from meeting persons whose conversation reflects a state of mental expansion rather than one of contraction, and is therefore refreshingly interesting.

"If interesting conversation is so welcome to you in your environment, what would you do if compelled to listen nine hours a day to the exact opposite? Three-cycle talk: the weather, last night's radio program, and football. The weather can't be changed by repeating the forecast; who cares if he picked up Honolulu or Sydney? And football can't be played over more than a thousand times without palling."

Which is, by way of pertinent observation, quite accurately descriptive of much daily talk. Talk which depends upon friendly courtesy of the listener, rather than upon its intellectual content, for its right to take time. All the words in the language have been used; most of the possible sentences have been formed; their recurrent expression might be expected in some measure to connect with thought—thought in the speaker's own right. But does it, often?

A Long Session in Prospect

THE REGULAR SESSION OF CONGRESS which opens Monday is likely to be of long duration.

A tariff bill remains to be passed and this will likely take some weeks. Changes in the federal reserve law are to be asked. Senator Sheppard's proposed amendment to the prohibition law is to receive attention, there will probably be a resolution for adherence to the world court, appropriation bills are to be passed and there are many other important matters to come before the legislative body.

Some senators have ventured the prediction that the coming session is not likely to adjourn before next September.

This would hold congress in session through the primary period in most states when a number of senators and all congressmen are up for renomination. In that case the attention of congressmen will be divided between their political fences at home and the legislative matters before them. It would be much better if congress could adjourn early in the summer, but this does not now seem possible.

I think no matter where you stray
That I shall go with you a way.
Though you may wander sweeter lands,
You will not soon forget my hands,
Nor yet the way I held my head,
Nor all the tremulous things I said.
You will see me small and white,
And smiling, in the secret night,
And feel my arms about you when
The day comes fluttering back again.
I think no matter where you be,
You'll hold me in your memory
And keep my image, there without me,
By telling later loves about me.

Of All Things!

Joe Frisco was telling a group last night about one of his chums, who is a well known jazz dancer. The chum, it appears, is in love with one of the brown-skins in the "Hot Chocolates" show and is seen with her in the hot-spots in Harlem every yawning.

"He's really nuts about her," Frisco was saying, "in fact, he wants to marry her, but her family objects to him."

"Why, I wonder?" asked a breathless listener.

"Because," was the devastating answer, "he's an actor."

Nonsense

Ring Lardner, co-author of "June Moon," a New York comedy classic, was groaning last night because he cannot locate someone to play the Harry Rosenthal role in the Chicago company. "It sure is tough," said Lardner, "you know it isn't easy to find an actor to play the piano for the Chicago company."

"Why not?"

"Because of the difference in time."

Sarcastically Speaking

During the recent rehearsals at the Lyric of "Fifty Million Frenchmen," such privileged persons as Vincent Astor, Courtney Burr and William Rhinelander Stewart were nightly observers. They came each evening in their top hats and other tall millinery and occupied front pews.

When the director told the chorus to report at the same time the next evening, one of the girls stared at the society personages and flipped: "Okey, pel! What'll I wear?"

The Morning Mail

"Dear Mr. Winchell," writes Maisie Clark, "I'm leaving next week to go home to a small town, because, after three years, I failed to get what you call a "break" on Broadway. I've been in the show business since I was a child. I've played in productions with the Four Cohans, the Four Mortons and with other worthwhiles, but I've never figured in a scandal, a holdup or a divorce, so you see I've very little chance on this so-called beautiful street of yours. Just what is the secret of getting a job here, can you tell me?"

No ma'am.

Dear Santa Claus:

Give the Kiddies woolly lambs,
Give the ladies beaus—
Bring all hungry people hams
And bring the mean ones woes.

Give all lonely souls a ring,
And let the cruel freeze;
Me? Why, Santa dear, just bring
Me Greta Garbo, please.
—LEONARD HALL.

In Case You Didn't Know

They were discussing the great success of "Blackbirds," the sepia revusical which ran over a year, although the critics blackballed it. "Yes," remarked one enthusiast, "you must hand it to the darkies for real rhythm!"

"And the amazing dancing!" ventured another.

"It's the spirit of the negro," ejaculated a third.

As a matter of fact, the "Blackbirds" show was fashioned in this manner. It was produced, staged, directed and the dancing was arranged by Lew Leslie, a Jew. The hot tunes, including "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" were orchestrated by a lad tagged Arthur Goodman. The lyrics were written by Lew Field's daughter, Dorothy, a German heebess, and the blazing melodies by an Irishman named Jimmy McHugh!

A Real Pal

Lester Edwards passes along this overhead Times Square gab. Two veteran actors were discussing the old days. "Say what you will," groaned the first, "it is getting terrible. Nothing like the old days when we both were in the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. I don't know where my next meal is coming from!"

"Don't be so down-hearted," comforted the other, "drop around to my hotel room some day next week and we'll sit down—and hum over a few tunes from 'The Mikado.'"

Recovery

When my heart was broken,
The thoughts that filled my head!
I beat my breast and tore my hair
And wished that I were dead.

But now my heart is mended,
And now my thoughts are sane,
I beat my breast and tear my hair
To be in love again.
—SELMA ROBINSON.

Thrust

Percy Hammond, who covered his last show this season for the New York Herald Tribune last night (he is to cruise around the world during an indef leave of ab) was barred for a spell in Chicago a few years ago. When the producer invited him to come to his shows again, Percy refused to be handcuffed. He wound up his review in this manner: "After reading over my report I see that I have disliked everything—except the chorus girls' knees—and there nature has anticipated me."

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who mistakes passionate affection for deep love shall be disappointed."

True lovers love and respect the individuality of each other and passionate affection is only one of the many delights of such lovers. When this is the only attraction between man and woman it will in time turn into disgust and repulsion, bringing about separation or a living death which is worse.

'EASY' The Love Story of a Modern Girl
By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XLIX

Could he actually be refusing to let her take the money when he knew how much it meant to her?

"I would have banked on you, Jim Goodwin," she said slowly, "as I would have banked on . . ."

She stopped . . . Who was there in the world that she could count on?

Not a living soul. She had gone to everyone who might have helped her. And, one by one, they had turned her down . . . The bank and Johnny Lawler . . . Uncle Hamby . . . Jeanie and Brooke . . . And now, Jim Goodwin.

"I won't lend you a nickel," he was telling her in a grim sort of way. "I'm not going to have you mixed up in this thing—worried like this—any more."

He was turning the car now, and going back along the road they had just passed over.

"Where is this girl now? Where's her lawyer?" he asked, and Ann Marie told him.

"All right," he said, "we'll go right down to see them now before they can start anything. They're nothing but a couple of blackmailers, as I see it . . . And I'll just lay you a bet, Ann Mary. I'll bet you that when I wave a five-hundred dollar check before their eyes, they'll grab it and run for cover."

The car left the green coolness of the park and shot out into the hot crowded noon-day streets.

It left the town behind and went like the wind over the suburban roads and the flat country roads with the dust hanging above them and the grass, smelling sweet and dry, along the sides.

It streaked along the wide road past the country club, where Ann Marie had danced so many many times. Like a flash of black-and-silver in the sun, it hummed past Pleasant street and the shabby brown house. Into Front street and past the book-store where Mr. Macy was taking his afternoon nap, tilted back against the wall in his chair . . . Past Mr. Lawler's bank and the pawn shop where Ann Marie had sold her dead mother's pendant to buy Howdy a railroad ticket . . .

It stopped in front of the red-brick building where Lawyer Beesley's sign "George W. Beesley—Attorney" hung beside a door.

It was not until then that Ann Marie woke up . . . She opened her eyes and discovered that her head was on Jim's shoulder and that her neck was stiff . . . She had slept all the way back home like an exhausted child.

Her blue eyes were wide and dewy with sleep between the thick fringe of her lashes as she raised them to Jim's steady brown ones. One side of her face was rosy and crushes where it had lain against his coat. Her hair had come loose and it lay on her shoulders, all gold lights and brown ripples . . . Tousled and rumpled and dusty, she never had looked so beautiful in all her life than she looked then to Jim Goodwin.

"Wait until I pin up my hair—and I'll go in to see him with you," she said, her voice still thick and drowsy with sleep.

But Jim shook his head. "No. You're not going to get into this at all," he insisted firmly. "You're to sit right here in this car. I can take care of this whole thing in ten minutes—and I can do it a lot more easily if you stay right here."

She watched him disappear into the building.

And while he was gone, she sat there in her corner and thought over the last day or two . . .

"I ought to have gone straight to Jim in the first place," she thought. "I might have known he would be the only person who'd care about me enough to help me—"

Why, he was the only person who had done anything for her in years . . . ever since she had begun to earn enough money to pay her own board and her own way in the world, as a matter of fact!

No one else had found jobs for her and offered to lend her money . . . No one else had planned good times for her . . . No one else had put out a helping hand when she was in trouble.

He had been kindness and goodness, itself, to her. And she never would forget his kindness and his goodness.

"But I know I don't love him," she told herself. "I do, too, in a way—but he never could thrill me!"

Then, all at once, she heard someone yell in the building where Lawyer Beeseley had his offices.

She looked up at the second story windows . . . They were open and the sound had come from them.

While she looked at them, she heard a door open and then bang shut within the building. There were foot-steps and a sound of scuffling on the stairs, and then—

And the two men came through the narrow doorway at the bottom of them. Their coats were off, and they were struggling together. Pushing and pulling each other around the uneven sidewalk.

Ann Marie could hardly believe her eyes . . . One of the men was George Beeseley and the other was Jim Goodwin!

But she would scarcely have known Jim if it had not been for his clothes . . . His hair was standing straight up on his head, and his face was flushed. His collar had been pulled open and his tie was gone . . . And in his eyes was a look of joy and amusement. A young boyish look that she never had seen there before.

He looked like a boy, winning a fight in a school-yard . . . His teeth flashed in a grin and he grunted and breathed hard the way prize fighters do in the ring. His cheek was bleeding.

There is a little of the cave-woman left in every woman who is worth her salt—and Ann Marie found herself thrilling to the sight fo this battle of the sidewalk.

She opened the door of the car and stepped out to get a better look at it . . . and just as she set foot to the ground the somewhat flabby figure of George Beeseley fell at her feet and lay sprawled there at its full length . . . . Jim had knocked him down.

Panting, Jim spoke to her.

"Wait a jiffy!" he said and ran up the stairs of the building.

He came back with his coat on and he was smoothing his hair down with his hands.

"Don't do that—please!" said Ann Marie, as he stepped over George Beeseley's legs and began to get back into the car. "I liked you so much better the other way—all wild-looking! Why, Jim, I didn't know you could be like that!"

The thrill he had given her still trembled in her voice and shone from her eyes.

"Like what?" he asked.

"Like a prize fighter!" she breathed. "Why, Jim, you were wonderful—you old rough-neck!"

Jim laughed.

"There are a lot of things you don't know about me," he said, his nostrils still dilated with his quick hard breathing. "You haven't exactly tried to find out anything about me, so far, have you?"

He swung the car around in the street and stopped a moment at the other side of the road to watch George Beeseley pick himself up and go slowly and painfully back into the red brick building.

"Well, where do we go from here?" he asked.

"Let's drive past the bookstore and tell Howdy that Beesley won't bother him any more," Ann Marie answered. "You don't think he will, do you?"

Jim shook his head with its wildly rumpled hair.

"Not on your life!" he said. "I settled with him with a small check—I wrote it for him, and he didn't want to take it! But I think he'll be glad to take it now!"

The car drew alongside the curb in front of the bookstore. Howdy, himself, was lounging in the doorway, looking out at the afternoon parade on Front street.

He came across the sidewalk to them, and Ann Marie told him what just happened.

"Jim has given Mr. Beeseley a check," she said. "And all our trouble is over."

Howdy grinned lazily.

"Looks as if you'd given him a darn good licking, too," he answered, and then: "Well, I'm glad it's settled."

And with no more than that—with not a word of thanks he turned on his hel and sauntered back to his doorway.

"So long," he called amiably as the great car slid away from the curb.

There was a long silence as they went through the streets of the little town, and swept smoothly into the country-side where the shadows of afternoon lay over the fields like the hands of peace.

"Well, that's the end of all that trouble," Ann Marie sighed, putting her head back on the soft cushions of the car.

"Yes—and it ought to be the end of all the rest of the trouble you have with your family!" Jim answered her, and there was a note of anger and exasperation in his voice. "You're always doing things for them—don't think I don't know all about it—and just now your brother didn't even have the grace to thank you!"

Well, that was true enough when you stopped to think about, Ann Marie said of herself.

"Think of yourself for a change," said Jim. "Why don't you? The Howdy trouble is over. The girls are safely married. You won't have to spend half of your time looking after them and Neal any more. You'll work and do the things you want to do, and after a while you'll get over your hurt."

"What do you mean?" asked Ann Marie. "You mean that you think I'm hurt and crushed because Neal didn't marry me?"

With his dark eyes on the ribbon of road ahead of him Jim nodded.

"Oh, but you're wrong!" said Ann Marie. "I've found out that I didn't care for him as much as I thought I did. It's true that, in the beginning, I was terribly infatuated with him. But quite a long time ago I began to get over it—without realizing what was happening to me."

She could feel his eyes turning towards her. He had slowed down the car, and it slid to a standstill at the side of the road.

"I think it began that first night when you paid for the gingerale and all the things that Neal sent me out to buy," she went on. "I think I began comparing you with him right then. You see, he was always wanting me to do things for him—and you were always doing things for me. Taking care of me—treating me like as if I were something precious."

"You are," Jim said so quietly that she could scarcely hear him.

"And Jim—women like to be taken care of by a man," Ann Marie said. "They—they can't help caring for the man who really is a man and not a spoiled selfish child—and I care for you a great deal."

Her eyes filled with tears. It is always so easy to cry when you are tired and have been through a lot.

"I didn't know how to thank you, though," she said, with her handkerchief over her eyes. "Jim you've been so good—"

She felt his hand on her shoulder—very lightly and timidly, the way a man always touches the woman he loves for the first time.

"Ann Marie." His voice was very close to her ear. "You're always doing everything you can to make people happy . . . Will you do something for me? Will you let me put my arms around you and kiss you just once?"

With her wet eyes closed the tear stains on her face, Ann Marie raised her lips to Jim's lips.

. . . . A car swooped by them on its way to New York.

"Neckers," said the man in it to himself. "Neckers—always cluttering up the highways—"

But in a way he was wrong . . . . There were two people in that car who had spent a long time finding out that they were meant for each other—for always.

Reaching Out

If you hold out your finger at a baby he will likely grasp it with a firm hold. This is one of the first of the human reflexes. Every baby soon arrives at the reaching stage when he grasps for anything that he can get his hands on. It is not enough to see—he insists on touching. By feeling, squeezing and running over an object with his fingers, he learns its size, smoothness, etc., until it interests him no longer, when he reaches for something else which interests him. In this way he notices an immense number of things in a short time, and learns more in the first five years of his life concerning hot, cold, sharp and dull and other touch sensations than probably he does the rest of his life.

This general reaching and experimenting process continues up to about 25 years, and then the reaching, learning, testing process may stop. There is no real reason for the reaching reflex ever to stop. We may no longer need to add a great deal to our information about physical objects, but there are still many new ideas in the mental field that we have not tasted, handled and made our own.

I often notice this lack of reaching desire, otherwise known as curiousity, in patients. Because they have never tried a certain food or vegetable which is really very wholesome, they insist they don't want to—that it isn't very good—that they know they won't like it. The saying that one never knows until one tries certainly applies here. This inertia habit of not trying to reach out for things seems to apply especially to new ideas of all sorts. The man who thinks that "what is good enough for father is good enough for me" has lost his reaching reflex a long ago and is cheating himself of new experiments, adventures and knowledge. Even though a new form of diet much superior to the old has been worked out, some of the population fail to benefit because they have quit reaching out for new ideas.

This reaching for better things can be applied to habits. Every once in a while it is a good idea to hold an inventory on your habits of living. Look especially to your dietetic habits. If you are taking meat and starch and acids in gas-forming mixtures and suffer from indigestion as a result, you should learn to reach out for some of my articles on diet and find out which are the best habits of eating and then substitute them for your old ones.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Myxedema)

Question—R. S. asks: "What are the symptoms of a deficient thyroid? Would the complexion be sallow?"

Answer—In adults a serious lack of thyroid secretion has a definite effect and is known as myxedema, so-called because of a peculiar mucuslike substance underneath the skin producing a puffed-like swelling. This puffiness resembles ordinary dropsy, but differs in that it does not pit upon the pressure of the fingers. There is much swelling, especially in the nose and cheeks, thus giving a dull, thickened expression. The person suffering from myxedema may become prematurely aged, the tongue become enlarged, the skin dry and with a peculiar sallow color. Baldness frequently results. The weight often increases. The temperature is normal and the heart action is slow.

(Grape Cure)

Question—M. R. H. writes: "Recently I learned that you have had considerable experience in using grapes of grape juice in administering a diet cure to your patients. Will you please inform me just what success you have had with the use of grapes or grape juice?"

Answer—I frequently use the grape diet and grape juice fast in my private practice with very remarkable results. The whole grapes with the exception of the seeds are used, except when there is some inflammation of the intestinal tract in which case only the juice is used. Either the fresh raw juice or the pasteurized grape juice produces satisfactory results. No sugar should be added, however, as this interferes with the curative action. Grapes furnish plenty of nourishment to maintain the patient's strength and also furnish an abundance of the protective alkaline elements which are so necessary in building up the body resistance against disease. Grape juice is readily digested, and grape sugar is assimilated by the body more readily than any other form of sugar.

Banker Dies After Fifth Suicide Try

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 26. (INS)—Reed C. Peters, one of Omaha's wealthiest and most prominent citizens, died today from the effects of five attempts to commit suicide, following the failure of the Peters Trust company, which he headed.

Peters began his attempt at self-destruction here yesterday by throwing himself under a truck. This failed and he threw himself under another truck, then slashed his wrists, swallowed poison and tried to hurl himself under a train. All attempts were made within six hours.

Rich Necklace Shown By Austrian Nobleman

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. (INS)—A $500,000 necklace of 47 large diamonds set in gold and silver, which Napoleon I presented to the Empress Maria Louisa on the birth of their only child, the Duke of Reichstadt, was resting in the safe deposit vaults of a Fifth avenue bank here today.

The heirloom was brought to this country by a member of the Hapsburg family of Austria and was shown privately yesterday by Mrs. C. F. Townsend, representing the Archduchess of Austria, Maria Theresa, the owner.

Thanksgiving Classics

Tomorrow's football menu will be about up to the Thanksgiving day average with no titles involved. Here are some of the leading games:

Pennsylvania-Cornell; Vanderbilt-Sewanee; Georgia-Alabama; Pittsburgh-Penn State; N. Y. U.-Carnegie Tech; Columbia-Syracuse; North Carolina-Virginia; Florida-W. and L.; Texas Aggies-Texas; Brown-Colgate; Georgia Tech-Auburn.

Two of the oldest games in the list belong to Vanderbilt and Sewanee and also to Virginia and North Carolina. They have a tradition that goes back nearly 40 years—back to the early 90's. The Pennsylvania-Cornell gathering is another old-fashioned show that goes far back into football history. And the Penn-Cornell game tomorrow should be the best in several seasons because Penn is not quite up to her late standards and Cornell is better than Ithaca has known for some time.

If Masters is back in shape and ready to move along Pennsylvania should have the edge. In spite of many losses from 1928 the Red and Blue outfit this season has been high class most of the way. It was high class against California and high class against the Navy. It did a neat job against Columbia with down its power against Penn State. But with his full lineup in action, Lou Young has a pretty good football team that will be a lot better next fall when you will hear more about Masters, Gentle and a few others.

Cornell has a good, hard fighting team and a line that will match anything the Red and Blue can send into action. But Cornell has no set of backs to carry on with the pick of Pennsylvania's running, kicking and passing flock.

Pittsburgh and Penn State

Pittsburgh now faces its final barrier in Penn State. If the Panthers gallop over this team as they did over Carnegie Tech it will be almost impossible to rate any team above them.

The Pitt schedule hasn't been as hard at Notre Dame's. But when you figure in Nebraska, West Virginia, Ohio State, W. and J., Carnegie Tech and Penn State the road hasn't been banked with rose leaves. Pitt's closest call came against Nebraska. After that every other game was a picnic party. It took a strong offensive team to run wild against the Carnegie Tech eleven that held Notre Dame to a touchdown.

Pittsburgh's strength has run all the way through. There have been no weak spots in either line or backfield. In Donchess, Uansa, Parkinson, Dumoleo and others the Panthers have had stars well above the average of the season's play.

Just how Pittsburgh and Notre Dame or Pittsburgh and Purdue would come out is one of those discussions that will lead nowhere. At least to no spot where there is a landing field.

But it is fairly certain that Pittsburgh would be an even bet against any team in football, and those who have seen Pitt play would be quite willing to put up a few modest dollars against any rival—just as the backers of Purdue and Notre Dame might do—and probably would. Any modern football team that goes through a good schedule without losing a game doesn't have to bother about any ranking. It has made its own ranking. It has written its own headlines. All that it needs to do is point to results—and let the others do most of the chattering.

It is impossible to prove that one good football team is better than another good football team, for the breaks of the game, turns of luck and mental attitude for the day all play such decisive roles. In the meanwhile, no unbeaten team is completely out of danger until the season is over.

In the last few weeks of the season Colgate has come along as one of the best teams in football. There are few teams better rigged out in fundamental play. It has depended on no one or two backs to break through and win, but on a par with any team in the country there has been a fine average running through the squad.

It will be interesting to see what Colgate can do against Brown. Colgate ought to win. If Colgate wins decisively there will be no question as to its high place. It has yet to lose a game in the East, suffering one early season defeat by Wisconsin, and that was back around the beginning of October.

The University of Utah is a long way from the Atlantic coast and it isn't in any close walking distance of the Pacific or the mid-west. So it has missed many centers of publicity. But those who have seen Utah play have a lot to say about this team's strength and almost as much about the ability of "Powerhouse" Pomeroy, her big fullback. Certainly few football stars have acquired any more vividly descriptive titles than this athlete carries with him into and through the line.

Hollis to Meet Mangum in Last of Conference Games

Special to The Record News

HOLLIS, Okla., Nov. 26.—The Hollis Tigers will meet the Mangum team here on Thanksgiving day in the last conference game of the season. According to Joe Bailey Metcalf, Tiger coach, this game promises to be one of the best played this season.

Mangum has never defeated Hollis in the history of the two schools and the Tigers are going to be plenty stubborn defending this record and also winning second place in the conference.

Metcalf hopes to have his team in the best of condition for the game Thanksgiving day. Pete Locke has been out of the last two match games with an injured ankle but will probably be ready for Thursday's game.

The Hollis boys feel like they are going to have tough going but if the boys keep the spirit and fight the way they have for the past two weeks they will be a hard outfit to beat, says Metcalf.

The probable lineup for Thursday's game is: Adams, left end; Chapman, left tackle; Sheid, left guard; Patrick, center; Whiteside or McCullough, right guard; Teague, right tackle; Burgett or Coppage, right end; Sims, full back; Abernathy or Locke, left half; Goodwin, right half; Williams or Locke, quarterback.

COSSEY STARS FOR REAGAN

Hollis Outstanding for Zundy

Playing their fourth annual City championship football game, the Reagan Junior high school eleven and the Zundelowitz gridders put up one of the greatest battles of their young lives to play each other to a 6 to 6 tie game Tuesday afternoon at Spudder park before a crowd estimated from 1,500 to 2,000 persons. The game was a magnificent exhibition of youthful courage and fighting spirit on the gridiron. The contest started off looking as if the Reaganites were going to have a runaway affair of the battle but, after the first touchdown in the opening minutes of the game, the Zundelowitz youngsters steadied and staged a heroic rally to stop the swift moving running attack of Reagan. They not only stopped the Reaganites but turned the tables upon their adversaries in the second quarter and threw across a touchdown of their own to match the one scored by Coach Beck's proteges.

Reagan's Touchdown

Reagan won the toss and chose to receive the kickoff. Merchant kicked to Captain Cossey who returned the ball to his 39-yard line. Then on a thrilling left end run Cossey ripped off 15 yards for the initial first down of the game. Reagan was held for downs and had to punt, which was received by Hollis on his 30-yard line. On the second play the ball was fumbled and recovered by Reagan on the enemy's 20-yard line. Then began a series of line plunges by Captain Cossey and Fooshee which took the ball straight for the goal line. Cossey tore through the center of the line for the first touchdown. Decker missed the try for extra point.

Spurred on by their first success, the Reaganites took the ball at mid-field soon after the first touchdown and started a second drive down the field that carried them to the shadow of the goal post in what looked like another touchdown for them. With but split seconds to go and about a yard, the gun sounded ending the first period.

Zundy's Touchdown

The Zundy boys came back fighting to beat the band in the second quarter and unleashed an attack that yielded them fruit in the form of a touchdown that tied up the score. Taking the ball on their own seven-yard line, the Zundelowitz eleven fought themselves out from the danger zone and out into the open field. Hollis and Merchant hit the line on straight football and ploughed through for six, seven and 10 yards to chalk up two straight first downs. Then they were held and Merchant got off a beautiful 40-yard punt, one of the longest ever seen made by a Junior high school player, and straight down the field the fleet-footed Hollis followed the punt and tackled the receiver on his 28-yard line. On the next play Hollis and Costello broke through to throw Fooshee for an eight-yard loss. Then on an exchange of punts Reagan found themselves in possession of the ball backed up on their own eight-yard line. On the next play Fletcher fumbled the ball on the 14-yard line and Rice fell on it for Zundy. Taking the ball on the Reagan 14-yard line the Zundelowitz exhibited a real driving attack with Hollis and Merchant bearing the brunt of the onslaught. Three powerful plunges and Hollis carried the ball over for his mates and thereby tied the score.

The Second Half

In the second half both teams came back fighting hard and desperately in an effort to break the deadlock and cinch the game. Reagan distinctly outplayed the Zundelowitz boys in both the third and the fourth quarters but could not deliver the winning punch. Three times in the second half Reagan entered into the dangerous 20-yard zone of the opponent but could not deliver the fatal punch. Early in the fourth quarter Fooshee intercepted a Zundy forward pass on their 40-yard line and the Reaganites start again on a march that looked like another marker. Terrific off tackle plunges and line bucks by Berry, Cossey, Merchant and Fooshe took the ball to the nine-yard line. Then with their backs to the wall the Zundy eleven made a determined stand and held off the menacing thrust of the enemy and the ball went over and they promptly booted the ball out of danger.

The game ended with the ball in midfield. The contest was featured not only by the superbly ball lugging by the backfielders on both sides but by the gritty fighting spirit by the opposing lines. Captain Cossey, Fletcher, Fooshee and Berry all played a bangup brand of ball and gave promise by their playing in this game that they will be heard from later on in big high school games. For the Zundelowitz eleven Hollis, who plays halfback, looks like a coming great player. Gabal played a smart game at quarterback post and also looked good on the defense.

COYOTES REST, THEN SET OFF

Entire Squad in Fine Physical Trim

Instead of their usual hard scrimmage session at this time of the week's training, the Coyote Pack put in a heavy Tuesday afternoon doing nothing but resting in preparation for their coming Thanksgiving day melee with the Amarillo Sandies at Butler field. Though this is not exactly the orthodox thing before the hardest game on a team's schedule, Coach Barry Holton calculates that it is the best training that he could possibly give his team at this time.

The Pack has had a two week's grind of it since the game with Lubbock and have now reached the fine point of their season's training. It is because that he believes that his men are on the very edge that Coach Holton declared in favor of a training holiday on Tuesday afternoon. The best trained boxers always watch the time when they think that they have reached the peak of their abilities and then take a few days off, resting and storing upu energy for the supreme test. Just before the game with Vernon nearly a month ago, Coach Holton slackened his field training and gave the boys a rest. And it will be remembered that it was this contest that the Pack displayed their finest playing of the season. Thus the Coyotes mentor feels that he is pursuing the course that will best fit his charges for their hardest battle of the year.

The squad will depart with their coaches and managers Tuesday night for the scene of the battle. They will arrive in Amarillo early Wednesday and after a lengthy rest they will take to the practice field for their final workout before entering the fray with the vaunted district champions, the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm.

The following squad members are making the trip: Beaty, Dixon, J. Carstarphen, Skeen, Holden, B. Carstarphen, Lee, Dickey, Hodgkiss, Norwood, Smith, Daniels, Davis, Morris, Malone, Elliott, J. T. Holton, Fowler, Guy, King, Winthrow, Cox, Kelly, Ray.

SANDIES TAPERING OFF HARD PROGRAM

Special to The Record News

AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 26.—The Golden Sandies of Amarillo following one of the most enthusiastic workouts of the season Monday began to taper off their work today in preparation for the big final to the district race Thanksgiving day with the Coyotes of Wichita Falls. A light signal drill and a snappy session of skull work was the practice menu dished up by Coaches Dutch Smith and Marshall May today. With the team in top shape and with 19 lettermen facing their final district game under the Black and Gold of Amarillo the Sandies are determined to wind up their district season in a blaze of glory. They do not underestimate the strength of their Turkey day opponents but they are going into the game confident of victory. The boys are expecting to run up against a powerful line when they face the Coyote forwards and they do not anticipate any sort of runaway. The Sandies and the Coyotes will divide Wednesday afternoon at Butler field, each team planning a light final workout. The weather was clear and warm today and there are no cold weather nor storms in sight. If the weather remains good a record crowd of perhaps 10,000 is expected for the clash Thursday.

Turkey Day Loses Some Grid Glamor

Major Attractions Come After the Holiday

By DIXON STEWART

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. (UP)—Thanksgiving day has lost its place as the red letter day on the college football calendar. Not only does the holiday no longer mark the end of the season, but this year few important games are scheduled for the day which in former years boasted the major attractions of the season.

Many of the major football teams closed their seasons last Saturday, but several important games are booked for next Saturday and sporadic games will continue throughout the month of December, with the formal ending of the season set for New Years day, when the annual Rose bowl game will be played at Pasadena.

The Thanksgiving day schedule offers only three contests of more than local interest, Pittsburgh playing Penn State at Pittsburgh, Tennessee meeting "Shipwreck" Kelly and his colorful Kentucky crew at Lexington and Tulane journeying to Baton Rouge for a clash with Louisiana State.

Of the three games the Tennessee-Kentucky battle promises the best competition. Tennessee will be fighting to maintain its undefeated and untied record and to win the Southern conference championship. Kentucky has also had a successful season and is certain to give Tennessee a gruelling struggle. The Kentuckians' only defeat of the season, a 24-13 set-back at the hands of Alabama, occurred while Kelly, Kentucky's backfield ace, was out of the line-up. With Kelly fit for action, the blue grass team will be an even money bet against Tennessee.

Tulane's clash with Louisiana State promises little excitement. Louisiana, defeated by Arkansas and Duke, is regarded as a "set-up" for the Green Wave, which has come through a hard schedule undefeated and earned recognition as one of the five national leaders.

Numerous traditional contests such as Columbia vs. Syracuse and Pennsylvania vs. Cornell add color to the schedule and will furnish high class competition. However, none of the opposing teams are undefeated and few have any claim to high ranking among teams of their section.

New York university and Carnegie Tech furnished New York's headliner.

Professor Picks All-Italian Team

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 26. (AP)—Seven schools are represented on an all-Italian football team picked by Luigi Passarelli, professor of Italian at the University of Arkansas.

Notre Dame, Georgetown, Fordham and Colgate tied for honors with two each on the team selected by the professor, who spends his time on the Arkansas Razorbacks' sidelines when he is not expounding the romance languages to his students.

INDIANS PLAY BEFORE MOODY

Shriners Will Attend Game In Body

Among the notables who will very likely see the Wichita Falls Junior college Indians engage the Wayland Junior college Jackrabbits here at Spudder park on Thanksgiving day will be none other than Gov. Dan Moody and Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma. These two distinguished state officials will come here to attend the Shriners convention which is being held on Thanksgiving day. The Shriners have arranged their program to include an attendance in a body at the Indian-Jackrabbit game. They will have their Shriner's band at the game and will add to the gayiety and glamor of the big game.

The Indians have been at hard training since the time of their scoreless game with the John Tarleton Plowboys here at Spudder park last Wednesday. The team is somewhat crippled up and also have suffered the loss of one of their star ball carriers, Dale Davis, who has dropped out of school this last week and will not play against the Jackrabbits.

That the Jackrabbits have a powerful team is shown by their recent 41 to 20 defeat of the Cameron Aggie team. They have also been in steady training and will come here set on taking home the scalp of the Indians. The fracas will undoubtedly be bitterly contested for they are avowedly not in a peaceful frame of mind with an extra season of battling, scuffling, hard knocks, and tie games to confound their natures.

Oklahoman Held For Attempted Murder

ARKANSAS CITY, Nov. 26. (AP)—Troy Hadicke, arrested here yesterday for the alleged attempted slaying of his former wife and their son Robert, in Kay county, Okla., has waived extradition and been taken to Newkirk, Okla. Hadicke is alleged to have placed ground glass in sugar in an attempted slaying June 13, 1928, while the family operated a hotel in Ponca City, Okla. The warrant for his arrest was issued the following December.

Camels have made smoking a national pleasure!

With years of steady growth behind them, Camels continue to grow. They are smoked today by more millions than ever before.

The increasing popularity of smoking in the United States exactly parallels the growth of Camel Cigarettes. Camel has given smokers a cigarette of genuine quality . . . a marvelous blend of choicest tobaccos . . . mild, fragrant, satisfying. This is the quality that smokers depend upon, and they can rest assured it will never be sacrificed. Taste in smoking, as the real pleasure of smoking is experienced, leads directly to Camel quality.

STATE HI SCHOOL FOOTBALL TITLES AT STAKE THIS WEEK

WACO-TEMPLE OPEN THE WAR

Many Honors Decided on Thanksgiving

DALLAS, Nov. 26. (AP)—The loose ends of the state high school football race will be picked up during the next four days and by Sunday, providing favorites come through, eight district winners will stand ready to go into the final stages of the marathon.

Waco and Temple will fire the opening gun when they clash tomorrow at Temple in an important district 4 battle. Waco, with four straight victories, can clinch the championship of its section by defeating the Wildcats. As Temple has lost both to Cleburne and Corsicana, the Tigers enter the game favorites.

Titles in four other districts will be decided on Thanksgiving day. In the event that any of the races end in ties, they will be played off Dec. 3, in order not to hold up bidistrict competition.

Marshall vs. Tyler

Marshall and Tyler meet Thursday at Tyler for district 6 honors. Marshall now leads with four wins. Tyler has won three and lost one, and thus has a chance to tie up the race by defeating Marshall.

John Reagan of Houston is expected to sew up the district 7 title by defeating Sam Houston high on Thursday. Reagan has won five straight. Port Arthur, with five victories and a tie, still has a chance, providing it defeats Jeff Davis of Houston Thursday.

Denton Is Ambitious

The Denton Broncos can nail down the district 5 flag with a victory over the weak Gainesville eleven Thursday at Denton. The Broncos have won four in a row. Sulphur Springs, with five wins and a tie, appears destined to finish second.

District 3, in which eleven Dallas and Fort Worth High schools are grouped, is in a tangled condition. Games this week might straighten things out, but it is doubtful. Oak Cliff of Dallas and Central of Fort Worth are tied for the leadership, each with five victories, one defeat and one tie. Central is scheduled to play North Side at Fort Worth on Thursday, while Oak Cliff will meet Forest at Dallas on Saturday. It will be necessary for one of them to win and the other lose to clear the title. If both lose, Forest would win the crown.

Sandies and Coyotes

Amarillo has one more obstacle in its path in district 1, playing Wichita Falls Thursday at Amarillo. A victory would give the Sandstorm a record of six straight. If Wichita should pull an upset and win, however, and Lubbock down Plainview, there would be a tie for the crown. Amarillo is expected to win by a good margin.

Titles in the two remaining districts already have been awarded. Breckenridge clinched district 2 laurels with its eighth straight victory last week. The Brownsville Eagles likewise have smothered each of their eight rivals in district 8.

Judge Raps Big Fines for Boys

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 26. (UP)—Judge G. W. Clark today rapped the policy of assessing heavy fines on youths who plead guilty to driving an automobile while intoxicated.

When Haskell Westefison, 21, came before him today for sentence, he fined the youth $10 and costs and announced the fine was his maximum for such cases, or even for second offenders.

"Give the boys a chance," said Judge Clark. "They are not intentional felons. Many a boy has been sent to hell in one jump by a judge who sends him, repentant and frightened, to the penitentiary or levies a discouraging fine upon him.

ON TO AMARILLO

Hundreds Expected to Follow Pack to Big Game

On to Amarillo and to the big Coyote-Golden Sandstorm Thanksgiving day game is the battle cry of hundreds of football fans and partisans who are getting all set to make the trip on the Amarillo special. Though the running of the special is not assured beyond the shadow of doubt, those in charge say that it is practically certain that the train will be made up. Ticket sales were going fast late Tuesday and officials are going ahead with preparations for accommodation of a large crowd of rabid fans and Coyote followers.

According to present arrangements, the special will leave Wichita Falls around 5:30 on the day of the game and arrive in Amarillo at noon. The fans will thus have time to look their favorites over the last time before they go into battle.

It is expected that a goodly band of the Coyote cheering squad will be on hand to carry on the big noise making stunts that usually feature the Amarillo-Wichita Falls game.

The Amarillo special is also expected to be finely decorated and with streamers, banners, and all the other holiday trappings that usually accompany the grand battle between the ancient rivals.

Tickets may be had from Haley's Drug company, on Tenth and Broad streets. These should be purchased as soon as possible in order to give the officials time to complete last-minute details of the running of the special.

Grandfield Eleven Set for Game With Frederick Gridders

Special to The Record News

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Nov. 26.—Everything is set for the annual Thanksgiving day classic at Frederick, Okla., between Grandfield and Frederick for the county championship.

Frederick reports that every arrangement is being made to accommodate the largest crowd that has ever filled Fairground park for a football game.

The Grandfield players are all reported to be in excellent condition with the exception of Captain Lawson whose hand was slightly injured in a car accident Sunday.

FIGHT OR QUIT, DEMPSEY SAYS

Former Champ Lays Down Law to His "Stable"

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Jack Dempsey is becoming as popular as a referee, as he was when he was Old Man Mauler himself, drawing the greatest crowds in the history of the fist fight industry.

Now, as a referee, he is packing 'em in, because he is making fighters fight. Dempsey, located in Chicago as a boxing promoter, hops around the Middle West refereeing here and there and collecting from $3,000 to $5,000 a night for his effort.

And it is good business for the promoters to have Dempsey as an added attraction because he has succeeded in making two dollars come into the box office where only one came in before. He still is the idol of the fist fight public.

There is one thing that Dempsey will not tolerate in the ring and that is stalling on the part of contestants. If they show inclination of coasting, Dempsey immediately calls a halt and threatens to toss the offenders out of the ring. It is his idea that fighters are paid to fight and he makes them do it.

The business of appearing in Des Moines tonight, Cincinnati tomorrow night, and some other spot the next is about to get the better of the former world's heavyweight champion, however, because of the demand on him to attend luncheons and banquets Dempsey says by the time he gets into the ring, he usually is almost exhausted.

But Jack delivers the goods—he makes them fight.

Guaranty State B. & L. Bowlers Take Three in Row to Tie With Bankers

The Guaranty Building and Loan association company pin topplers toppled over the P. B. M. company rollers for three straight on Tuesday night at the Spudder bowling alleys and by doing so went into a tie for first place honors with the City National bank. The Coca-Cola bowlers made it three in a row from the Fox Chevrolet company to bring their standing up from eighth to fourth place in the league rating. W. B. McClurkan took two out of three from Boone-Kemp Inc.

Maunders of Boone-Kemp had high three games with a grand total of 494 and also had high single game with a total of 191 points.

11,000 Helped By Salvation Army

The local unit of the Salvation army during the past year has administered aid to 11,000 persons, according to the report of C. A. Deberry, secretary of the corps, at the advisory board meeting held Tuesday morning.

Mr. Deberry said records of all cases were properly filed. A total of 163 men and boys were sheltered at the men's annex at the city hall during the month of September, the secretary reported, and beds for 245 men were provided during the month of October. It was pointed out that the Salvation army does emergency relief work only, cases remaining in their hands over 60 days being turned over to the Family Relief association.

Ensign A. Schultz reported on the distribution of the budget and described the Salvation army home in San Antonio. Mrs. Schultz described the work of the life saving scouts. Dr. F. N. Collard, president, was in charge of the board meeting.

Caterpillar Club Gets New Members As Fort Sill Men Make Air Leap

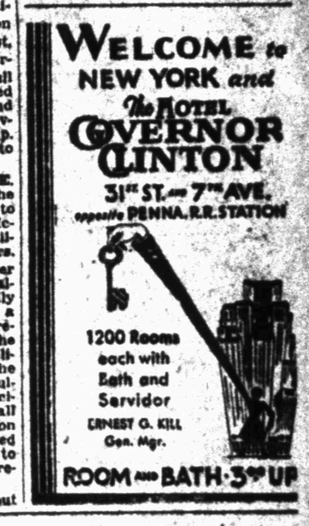

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 26.—Four army men of Post field, Fort Sill, three of them commissioned officers, who leaped into the air near Tuttle Monday morning at an altitude of 6,200 feet when the balloon in which they were traveling burst, had never before made an emergency jump, but are now full fledged members of the so-called Caterpillar club of the army and navy. Three of the men had never before made a parachute jump. All landed safely and returned to Post field late Monday night.

Lieutenants J. A. Terro and E. M. Goglesonger were piloting the big balloon on a trial flight to Oklahoma City. Lieut. J. W. Mecauley and Master Sergeant William J. Mansfield were passengers.

The officers noted shortly after leaving the field that the big balloon was expanding more rapidly than the gas could be released, a condition caused by sun rays creating concentrated heat within the balloon. Expansion exceeded facilities for release of the gas and the balloon burst. All four men simultaneously leaped, having anticipated the emergency, and all landed safely, the deflated balloon falling near. A truck was drafted to return the men and balloon to Post field. The balloon can be repaired, officers state.

The accident occurred about 10:30 a. m. The army men permitted themselves a drop of several hundred feet before pulling the cords which released their chutes, in order to avoid becoming entangled with the balloon remnants.

CHICAGO COTTON

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Cotton opened 8 to 12 points lower on continued liquidation by December and easiness in outside markets and failed to rally except momentarily. The close was at the bottom for the day 15 to 22 points lower. Cables were about 3 American points lower than due. A total of 3,200 bales had been tendered against December contracts here.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—Continued dullness prevails in the wool market. Some houses report no inquiries at all. Those that have sales report the volumes small. Quotations are mostly nominal because of the lack in trading. Values appear to be about steady on 64's and finer domestic wools, while on 56 and 48 blood grades the expressed ideas of values are lower.

DAIRY OUTLOOK IN AREA GOOD

Big Increase in Deliveries of Milk Expected

Wholesale deliveries of whole milk, which during the past summer ran almost as high as 75,000 pounds daily in this city, will far exceed that figure during the 1930 season, according to estimates of leaders in that industry, based on developments now under way in this community.

Sale of cows is not flourishing with local dealers now, it was stated Tuesday, but the condition was ascribed to the fact that most of the supply of milk cows will come fresh in the spring, and that purchase is usually deferred under these conditions. The market on good dairy stock is better now than it has been for a considerable period, it was stated.

Aside from small additions expected to be made by numerous owners of small herds, the volume of milk produced in this section will be materially increased by establishment of a number of larger dairy herds. Among these will be the Guernsey herd of the Riverside farm, of C. I. Francis and A. H. Drake; a herd of registered blue-ribbon Jerseys being brought here by P. R. Freeman, manager of the Southwest Dairy Products company's interests in this city; and other herds for which arrangements are tentative, but which are assured for production next spring.

Extensive alterations in the plant formerly used by the Kraft Cheese company, and the Producers Creamery, both of which now are controlled by the Southwest Dairy Products company, will greatly increase the milk-manufacturing capacities of those establishments. Ferguson Ice Cream company has recently moved into new quarters, at Fourth and Ohio, which was built in anticipation of large increases in milk receipts. It has been predicted that wholesale deliveries of milk during the coming summer will run close to 90,000 pounds daily.

Cotton ginnings for the season moved up to a total of 18,932, with 186 bales reported for Tuesday.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. (AP)—Cotton was lower today under near month liquidation and local and Wall street selling. After selling off to 17.42 January rallied to 17.51 or 6 points net higher but broke to 17.35, in the late trading and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 11 to 18 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 7 points, with the active months showing net losses of 5 to 8 points during the first few months. December eased to 17.26 and March to 17.71, but the offerings were absorbed and the market worked back to or a shade above yesterday's closing quotations during the middle of the day.

December contracts sold up to 17.38, and May to 18.06 making recoveries of about 4 to 10 points from the low levels of the morning, but the demand tapered off at the advance and the market weakened again during the afternoon.

Some southern selling was reported on the late decline, while there was a renewal of local and Wall street liquidation on the break which carried December off to 17.22 and May to 17.90. Closing quotations were at the lowest on most positions.

Trading was quiet during the greater part of the day, and local brokers said there seemed more disposition to even up commitments in preparation for the Thanksgiving day adjournment than to undertake fresh commitments.

Exports today 20,069, making 3,050,620 so far this season. Port receipts 57,377. U. S. port stocks 2,602,682.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26. (AP)—Cotton closed nearly 51 a bale lower today due to selling attributed to the weakness in Liverpool. There was a good rally around noon but demand was limited and the loss of the day were reached in final trading when January traded off from 17.46 to 17.31 and closed at that figure for a net loss of 17 points. The general market closed steady at net declines of 17 to 19 points.

Although Liverpool cables were relatively steady the local market opened easy at net losses of 5 to 6 points. Prices continued to decline during the first half of the morning until December sold at 17.20, January 17.39 and March 17.63, or to 19 points under yesterday's close. Circulation of additional December notices seemed responsible for the decline.

Later in the morning the market recovered when it was reported that notices were promptly stopped. Shorts covered on the unfavorable weather and there was more or less trade buying. Under the demand active positions rallied 7 to 13 points from the lows with December at 17.35, January 17.46 and March 17.73.

In final trading the market turned decidedly weak under pre-holiday liquidation and some selling attributed to the weakness in the stock market. All active months made new lows for the day with December at 17.15, January 17.31 and March 17.58, or 16 to 17 points net down. Final prices were at the lows.

COAL BARON GIVEN PAROLE

J. V. Thompson Free Until Dec. 21

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 26. (INS)—J. V. Thompson, former coal baron and one time multimillionaire, under arrest here for embezzlement of $200,000 and cited for contempt of court, today was paroled by Judge J. W. Dawson of orphans court.

The parole was granted until Dec. 21 in order to give Thompson an opportunity to close a six million dollar coal deal. On that December date, Judge Dawson ruled, Thompson must appear in orphans court for further disposition of the case relative to the issuance of a bench warrant for contempt.

Thompson was paroled to his attorney, J. L. Spurgeon, who is required to know Thompson's whereabouts at all times.

Thompson, arrested in Altoona, Pa., last night when he was en route from Pittsburgh to New York, was indicted last June on a charge of embezzling $200,000 from the estate of John Niccolls of Uniontown, father of Lydia Niccolls, princess of Thurn and Taxis, who preferred the charges. The allegation is that Thompson borrowed the amount from the estate, giving a worthless note as security.

Thompson failed from approximately $65,000,000 about 15 years ago and his own estate is still in the process of liquidation.

Bridge Playing Called The 'Lowest Depth'

BOSTON, Nov. 26. (UP)—Bridge playing is the "lowest depth to which the human being can fall," in the opinion of Prof. Robert E. Rogers of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Rogers' impressions of the game were given during a lecture before a group of students at the state house here.

He described the game as "a combination of reflex actions and mental telpathy from which no great nourishment is obtained."

KELLOGG HONORED

OXFORD, Eng., Nov. 26. (AP)—Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state now in England, was honored by a convocation of the University of Oxford today. An honorary degree of doctor of civil law, which originally it had been intended to confer upon him last June, was conferred this afternoon.

THREE TOTS BURN TO DEATH

Fire in Kitchen Blocks Means of Escape

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Nov. 26. (INS)—Three children were burned to death in their home today when a fire started in the kitchen and cut off escape from a bedroom, four other children escaped by leaping from a window.

The three burned to death are Clara, 13; Charles 8; and Mary, 6, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Verenna.

According to police, the fire started when Mrs. Verenna threw a liquid fuel on a coal fire.

Lee Woods Funeral Is Held Duncan Tuesday

DUNCAN, Okla., Nov. 26.—Funeral services were held here Tuesday afternoon for Lee Woods, 59, Stephens county pioneer and one of the founders of the Duncan Weekly Eagle in 1893. Mr. Woods died here Sunday after a long illness.

In 1892, Mr. Woods came to Duncan with his father from Tarrant county, Texas, and a year later established the Weekly Eagle. After the death of his father in 1910, Mr. Woods continued as publisher of the newspaper until his death.

He was active in politics and served as postmaster during the Wilson administration. He is survived by his widow, who assumed the management of the newspaper when her husband became ill in July.

WICHITA PREPARES BIG WELCOME FOR SANTA HERE DEC. 7

MR. CLAUS TO 'SCOUT' CITY

Merchants Offer "Bright Light" Display for Visitor

Santa Claus is to be given a Christmas party in Wichita Falls on Saturday, Dec. 7, and all the boys and girls in this city will be invited.

This information was received by The Record News Tuesday when a message from Santa Claus' headquarters at the north pole stating that he could visit Wichita Falls on Dec. 7 was followed quickly by plans to give the warm-hearted fellow a real reception here.

Watches Boys and Girls

Boys and girls who have been counting the days remaining before Dec. 25 may wonder how Santa Claus can get away for a party here when he is so very busy preparing for Christmas. It's this way, he says: Almost a year has gone by since he was here, and many things change in a year. Some children have moved to other cities; some here have moved to other houses; some new families have come into Wichita Falls. Then too, he likes to slip around and see just how boys and girls are living, so that he can tell just about what they would like most to have. So on this trip to Wichita Falls, he will look over the situation carefully in order to plan his return on Christmas eve.

Remembering that Santa Claus lives most of the time under the light of the Midnight sun at the north pole, members of the Retail Merchants' association got together Tuesday and decided to dress the city up in all the lights that can be hung along the streets, for Santa's visit, so that he will feel at home. Santa will arrive at 10 o'clock in the morning, and will be greeted with a parade in the business section. When he comes downtown at 6 o'clock that evening, he will see four strands of street lights hung on every street from Sixth to Tenth and from Ohio avenue to Lamar. These lights will all be turned on at once when the store window lights are turned on. There will be many other Christmas decorations, and a celebration of Santa Claus' presence here is being planned.

All of the decorations and lights put up for Santa Claus' party on Dec. 7 will be left up until Christmas day, so that his visit will be remembered, and so that the city will look just the same when he comes looking for it on Christmas eve.

R. D. Kennedy, president; John W. Thomas, secretary; and a committee of Ralph De Shong, Nathan Lynch, and Joe Art are in charge of arrangements for the Dec. 7 party.

He's Coming to Wichita Falls Soon

POSTOFFICE PLEA RENEWED

Wichitans Appear Before Federal Committee

Claims of Wichita Falls for a new federal building, as provided tentatively in the appropriations made by congress last spring, again were presented before the inter-departmental building commission in Washington Tuesday by a trio of Wichita Falls citizens and Guinn Williams of Decatur, congressman from this district, according to dispatches to The Record News from Washington.

Orville Bullington, president of the chamber of commerce here, and chairman of the state Republican committee; J. J. Perkins, and J. T. Harrell, president of the City National bank appeared with Mr. Williams at the meeting of the commission Tuesday morning. They emphasized in their petition for allotment of $500,000 in 1930 President Hoover's urgent recommendation that all government works be completed. Recognition of this city's need of a new federal building by the treasury department, and the fact that various sites have been inspected, were mentioned by the Wichita Falls delegation. It was also pointed out that the size of this state entitles it to more than the two public structures already definitely provided for.

Members of the committee were sympathetic to the proposal, the dispatch said, but were unable at this time to give a definite answer. Members of the Wichita Falls delegation were encouraged by the reception accorded them, and expressed the belief that a new building for this city will be included in any allotments made during the coming year, it was said.

Business Women's Play Draws Good Audience

"Aunt Lucia" was repeated Tuesday night at the Woman's Forum clubhouse, under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's club with another capacity audience.

Just as many laughs featured the second production as the first. The collegiate atmosphere in the play was heightened and brightened by the two freshmen, Frederick Sehmann and Bob Crocker, who pulled a good line of college humor with the sangfroid of old actors. Vernon Black impressed the audience with his ability as a cheer leader. Incidentally, Vernon made a plea for tourists to the high school football game in Amarillo, that drew a round of applause.

People who arrived early enough Monday evening enjoyed thoroughly the miramba numbers given by Paul Sisk with Miss Marie Albritton as accompanist. Other miramba numbers were given Tuesday evening by the same artist with Miss Albritton at the piano.

ARCHER BACKS DEEP OIL TEST

Business Men Buy Stock at Meet Tuesday

Several substantial blocks of stock in the Deep Oil Development company were subscribed by Archer City business men following a luncheon held in that city Tuesday noon at which a number of Wichita Falls men were among the speakers, according to information given The Record News.

Almost 30 business and professional men of Archer City, said to be almost entirely representative of the various business establishments there, organized the Community Luncheon club at Tuesday's meeting, and decided that meetings will be held twice each month.

Harry Hines, J. C. Mytinger, Lee Underwood, and Luke McCrory were the visitors from Wichita Falls, all of them speaking briefly on the subject of the deep oil drilling campaign about to get under way in this section. Plans for acceptance of other subscriptions from citizens of the Archer City community will be made within the next few days, it was said.

WORK ON WATER PLANT

Work on the city water plant filter beds is progressing nicely, a second carload of sand having been placed in the beds Tuesday, A. H. Douglass, manager of the department, said. Several more carloads of sand are to be placed in the beds, Dr. Douglass said.

Boy, 4, Confesses To Slaying His Mother

BATAVIA, N. Y., Nov. 26. (UP)—Four-year-old Elmer Shulz Jr. admitted to police today that he fired the shot which killed his 26-year-old mother, who died yesterday. Her husband, a farmer, was held by police. Police released him today when little Elmer, weeping, told how he pointed his father's shotgun at his mother, said playfully "I'm going to shot you, Mama," and pulled the trigger.

BUILDING PERMIT

The firm of Joline, Hallbrook & Woods Tuesday was awarded a permit to erect a filling station at 1411 Lamar street at a cost of $3,680.

It is a comfortable feeling to know that you are working yourself into your own business so that in time you could GIVE UP THE WAGE EARNING JOB.

Visit the Model Farm in Weeks Community of Little Farms located near Westmoreland Swimming pool and see what irrigating water and abundance of fertilizer will do when scientifically applied. It will be a revelation to you. If you cannot come write for free literature.

Result Has Been Amazing Says Lubbock Farmer

"For several years I have had an awful lot of trouble with my stomach, and everything I ate disagreed with me and after meals I would have that puffed up, bloated feeling," said Mr. W. W. Murrell of 1614 Ninth street, Lubbock, Texas. "I would belch my food up and I got to the point where I was afraid to eat anything because of the suffering I knew it would cause me. I was constipated and had terrible headaches and my sleep was very poor, and my system seemed to be all run down. I was losing weight and felt tired and worn out all the time. My condition grew gradually worse and I felt that unless I got the right medicine my troubles would soon become critical. A friend recommended Orgatone to me and it has not only relieved me of my troubles, but has built me up amazingly. I have taken one bottle and my stomach is now in good shape. My appetite is fine and I eat what I want without feeling a sign of indigestion and the gas does not form on my stomach any more. My heart seems to be back to normal, my constipation and all that tired worn-out feeling is gone. Orgatone has been a great thing for me and I do not think anybody like I was can make a mistake by giving it a trial. It has started me on the road to health after 16 years of suffering, and I think it is the best medicine in the world."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue.—Adv.

Wichitan Staff Gives Program at Ad Club

Members of the editorial and business staff off The Wichitan, high school and Junior college publication, and A. F. Edwards, faculty sponsor of the paper, presented the program given before the weekly meeting of the Ad club at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

Taking off the fixed and unrelenting advertising manager which the paper's ad solicitor meets in the business houses of the city, Elmer Parrish efficiently squelched the efforts of the solicitor as portrayed by Phillip Kouri, in a short skit. Both are members of the advertising soliciting force of the school paper.

Policies of the paper were discussed by Oliver Fudge, a member of the editorial board. Mr. Edwards was in charge of the program, introducing the various members of the group, and talked briefly on the circulation of the paper.
