College football brochures continue to trickle into the newspaper office, although only three from the Southwest Conference have made it so far.

One is from Texas Christian Universoty, where two Snyderites are due to see action this year. One, Frankie Grimmett, was red,shirted last year and is expected to make a bid for a starting slot at end. And, according to the TCU bruchure, one of Grimmett's nicknames among his fellow students is "Sparkle City."

The other Snyderite in Frogland is David McGinnis, who must have put on quite a surge in spring training, coming right off the freshman team and working himself onto the second unit as a defensive back.

We are approaching one of those overlapping situations in the athletic world, as football moves in on baseball. However, at this time, the professional football exhibition season is in doubt as the players and club owners continue to argue over contracts.

For all practical purposes, football season begins the coming week on the Texas high school scene. The annual Texas High School Coaches Association School will be held at Houston, after which the coaches have a week to rush back home and get set for fall workouts to begin.

College football season will begin earlier than usual for many teams since the NCAA has approved 11-game schedules. Many major colleges will begin their seasons as early as Sept. 12.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. has sent questionnaires to 44,000 Texas hunters asking them to participate in a state-wide mourning dove harvest survey in September. Those participating in the survey will be asked to notify the department on IBM cards the counties in which they hunted, the number of hours spent hunting, the number of doves bagged and the date of each hunt. The information from the survey is expected to enhance management practices, which, in turn, will improve hunting in the future.

Right-Wingers Block Decision On US Plan

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel's divided Cabinet made another apparently futile attempt today to agree on the U.S. Middle East peace plan, as right-wing ministers threatened to quit the government if it is accepted.

The Cabinet adjourned until Thursday after trying for two hours to effect a compromise between Prime Minister Golda Meir's ruling Labor party and the right-wing Gahal party which holds six of the 24 Cabinet seats and refuses to go along with the U.S. proposal.

In a stormy meeting of the Gahal leadership Tuesday night, party head Menahem Begin exclaimed that the proposal by U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers "is not a plan for the peace of Israel, but a plan for the destruction of Israel."

The rightist ministers oppose the U.S. plan because it calls for Israeli withdrawal from land seized from the Arabs in the 1967 Middle East war. The Gahal party wants to keep all captured soil.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan meanwhile denied that he had threatened to resign if the government accepted the U.S. proposal. He told a group of high school students in Tel Aviv that he would accept the plan reluctantly.

"We are not so strong we can forfeit our allies," he said.

Local press reports said earlier Tuesday that Dayan had misgivings about the plan because it speaks of Israeli withdrawal from lands captured in the 1967 Middle East war. Dayan believes Israel's security depends on retention of the Gaza Strip, the Syrian Golan Heights, and the strip of Sinai coastland that runs from Israel's southern tip to the Red Sea. The Gahal party advocates holding on to all of the occupied territory.

Dayan also said the Soviet Union has "supervisors" of SAM2 and SAM3 antiaircraft missiles in Syria as well as Egypt. Egypt is known to have both models of the Soviet missile and Russian technicians helping to man them, but an Israeli command spokesman said he had no knowledge that the Syrians have any SAM3s.

The American peace proposal, put forth by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, calls for a 90-day cease-fire so that U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring can resume his third-party attempts to bring the Arabs and the Israelis together. Egypt and Jordan have accepted the plan, but the Palestinian guerrilla organizations have turned it down and vowed to keep on fighting.

Revenue Sharing Faces Reluctant Congress

By JOHN M. PEARCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York would be the major beneficiary of the Nixon administration's revenue sharing plan, with California not far behind, a Treasury Department breakdown of the impact of the proposal shows.

The department prepared an 84-page listing of how much each state and most cities and counties would receive when the proposal goes into full effect in 1975 — provided it gets through a reluctant Congress.

New York would receive $542.67 million in the first full year, while California would receive $536.57 million, the table shows. However, New York would be required to pass on almost $228 million of its share to local governments — $157 million to New York City alone — while California would pass on only $166 million.

The federal grants would build up to the totals in the years before revenue sharing takes full effect and a full $5 billion is sent from the federal treasury to the states.

The Treasury's breakdown is one facet of a major campaign to urge public support for revenue sharing, which has languished for almost 11 months in congressional committees.

President Nixon, in an unpublicized memorandum to senior administration officials late last month, called the plan "the financial heart of the New Federalism" and urged then "to make known, at every suitable occasion, our strong desire to secure its enactment in 1970."

Former Budget Director Robert P. Mayo gave the program a plug in an interview this week, urging that revenue sharing be made "a matter of high national priority."

Under the revenue sharing plan, each state's allocation would be figured according to its population and "revenue effort" — the taxes it collects in proportion to its total personal income.

Local government allocations would depend entirely on the revenues they generate in proportion to all the money raised in the state, both by the state government and other local governments. It would reward those that already carry their share of financing in relation to other localities, and penalize those with low level taxes.

The money left over would be available to the state government.

Communists Win Kiri Rom Battle

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The battle for the Kiri Rom plateau ended today in a major Communist victory as the last government troops fled from the hill resort.

The Cambodian command released no casualty figures for the 18-day battle, but several hundred government troops were believed killed or wounded. Five government battalions were ambushed, overrun or driven down the slopes in confusion.

Enemy losses were believed considerably less.

One Cambodian field officer said the defeat might force his senior officers to re-evaluate their defense strategy. Western military experts said the government should have abandoned the area 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh when it was first overrun July 11. They said it was of no strategic importance, and the battle was an obvious enemy trap to cause heavy government casualties.

It was the second major Communist victory in Indochina in a week. U.S. forces abandoned Fire Base Ripcord in the northwestern sector of South Vietnam last Thursday after North Vietnamese fire killed 61 Americans and wounded 345 in three weeks of attacks.

After the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese drove one battalion from Kiri Rom at the start of the battle, the government rushed more than 1,500 troops to the area to do battle with an enemy force estimated at more than 1,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

After several days of inflicting heavy losses on the Cambodians, the enemy forces pulled back and let the government troops regain considerable territory on the top of the plateau. Then they closed in and cut the roads up the slopes, leaving four Cambodian battalions under siege.

Two of these battalions were thrown into headlong retreat down the slopes Monday by heavy mortar fire and enemy assault troops. The Cambodian military spokesman said it was decided to withdraw the rest of the force for "tactical reasons" and that they made their way down safely.

Heavy clouds prevented effective air support by Cambodia's tiny air force and South Vietnamese gunships. The government forces also had no artillery support.

Desegregation Talks Continue

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Federal civil rights experts told Texas school officials today they are not picking on the South and letting school desegregation in the North go unnoticed.

"Northern states have not done enough to eliminate discrimination in their schools," Stanley Pottinger, director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Civil Rights Section, asserted at the opening session in the second day of desegregation talks with 38 schools.

"But it is more difficult to prove a case in the North ... Most Southern states have legalized segregation in some way, it's on their law books. Most of the Northern segregation is not by law but by housing and living patterns.

"I want to assure you there is not any difference in the perspective our office considers segregation in the North and South and we do not consider it more important to eliminate segregation in the South than the North," Pottinger asserted.

Negotiators from HEW and the Justice Department talked with 18 schools Tuesday but reported they were unable to reach any agreement.

Most Texas officials said they expected to face federal law suits in the near future.

Twenty more schools were on the schedule today, each to get a one-hour session with the HEW and Justice Department experts from Washington and Dallas.

The two-day hearing was called after the Justice Department warned the Texas Education Agency that about 50 Texas schools had not filed acceptable desegregation plans. Still other Texas schools, including those in the largest cities, are already involved in federal court suits.

"As a whole the sessions have been harmonious," Pottinger told his late afternoon press briefing.

Most of the Texas school men appearing returned from the closed door negotiations with reports they expect federal suits to be filed against them in the next week or 10 days.

Hugh Fleischer, deputy chief of the civil rights section of the Justice Department, said any suits necessary likely would be filed individually in the four judicial sections of Texas.

"About all we know after all that talking is that the plan we have been operating under for several years is not acceptable to them," said Reginald Evans, head of the Temple schoolboard.

"We've been operating under a freedom of choice plan prepared by HEW and 81 per cent of our schools are integrated," said Earl Luna, attorney for Garland. "Now they say the one Negro school we have out of 31 must be worked into the plan. This means busing or some other expensive type solution."

Showers Cool Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers took the edge off hot weather around El Paso in far West Texas during the night and early today, with some of the skimpy moisture ranging northward into the Panhandle-Plains sector.

At that, El Paso measured only .03 inch of rain and it apparently was no heavier elsewhere.

There also were a few showers along the coast from Port Aransas to Palacios and over the Gulf of Mexico.

Early morning temperatures sagged to 67 degrees at El Paso and 69 at Amarillo and Midland. Readings were mostly in the 70s at other points, staying as high was 82 at Galveston.

Dock Strike Is Ended

LONDON (AP) — Britain's two-week-old national dock strike ended today.

The 46,000 striking longshoremen accepted the peace formula of a government Court of Inquiry and called off their fight to get higher basic pay.

It was Britain's first nationwide dock tie-up in 44 years and threatened serious food shortages.

Are pipe smokers selfish?

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Why are pipe smokers the most selfish and egotistical of all men? My gentleman friend recently gave up cigarettes, and he's taken up a pipe instead. It may be easier on his lungs, but it's harder on me.

He is so vain he doesn't want to spoil his silhouette with pockets bulging with a tobacco pouch, two pipes, a goodly supply of matches, pipe cleaners, etc., so when we're together he asks me to carry his smoking gear in my purse. I don't mind, really, but when we're at a party I have to be right at his elbow like a "servant" in case he wants something.

Also his tobacco has a sickeningly "sweet" aroma and it smells like cookies are burning. Please print this with your advice. He thinks you're the grooviest. PACK MULE

DEAR PACK MULE: Advice for whom? Your gentleman friend seems to be doing all right if he can load his lady down with the smoking gear and have her at his elbow in case he needs something. If you feel abused don't depend on "smoke signals." Tell him in plain English.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 40-year-old bachelor who feels that he should live with a woman before considering marriage. He claims that two people don't really know each other until they live together.

I believe that two people can get to know each other well enough without living together, if enough time is allowed.

I realize that they will not know everything about each other, but they'll know enough to decide whether they want to be married to each other.

I would appreciate your opinion in print.

BEING COURTED

DEAR BEING: I'm with you. Tell him it's nix on the undress rehearsals.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard of bridal showers for a bride, but here's a new one: A shower for a groom-to-be!

He is going to be married in the town of the bride, which is customary, which is 2,000 miles from here, and none of his family knows the bride or her people. The groom is a nice enough fellow, but I have never heard of giving a "shower" for a groom, have you? SHOOK IN MONTANA

DEAR SHOOK: Yes. But I have also heard of people selling "tickets" to showers, which doesn't make it "proper" in my book. There is entirely too much "begging" for money and gifts, which should be voluntary. The only solution to stamping out such tasteless practices is to decline to be a part of it.

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a gentleman who seems very much interested in me. He's charming, well-to-do and attractive. We're not kids, he's 50 plus and I'm a few years younger.

Last evening we were having dinner in a very fashionable spot when a trio of musicians strolled by. [An accordion, guitar, and violin.] They asked if we had any "favorites," whereupon my gentleman friend replied, "No. We like them all." I then said, "Do you know 'Chasing Rainbows'?"

They stood by our table and played "Chasing Rainbows." Afterwards my escort smiled and said, "Thank you . . . that was very nice."

I was terribly embarrassed. I thought he should have given them something. On the way home I mentioned it and he said he didn't think it was necessary, since the musicians were paid to play anyway. One word led to another and a heated argument followed. Do you think I was wrong to bring it up? And isn't it customary to tip musicians under these circumstances? RAINBOW CHASER

DEAR CHASER: I think you were wrong to have made an issue of it. And yes, it is customary to "tip" musicians for playing requests, even though the musicians sometimes solicit them. P. S. A lesson might have been learned from this. Don't expect a "pot of gold" at the end of THAT rainbow.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

FPC Urged To Exempt Producers

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — A Texan urged the Federal Power Commission today to exempt all producers of natural gas from price regulations and restrictions.

If, however, the FPC chooses not to exempt all producers, he said, the commission should "promptly and extensively" increase the permissible rates at the well level.

Tom Sealy of Midland, representing the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, told a commission hearing such action is necessary to curb a serious decline in natural gas reserves.

Sealy and other witnesses testified that higher prices plus other lesser incentives would encourage new exploratory drilling and reverse a gas shortage trend viewed by many as critical.

Aware of declining reserves, the FPC decided to re-open the historic Permian Basin Rate case in a move aimed at finding new answers to lingering problems.

"The blunt truth of the matter is that the nation today is in extremely short supply of gas as a fuel energy, both as to new gas-well gas and flowing gas," Sealy said.

He said the nation's demand has far exceeded the supply because FPC regulations "fail to offer a sufficient incentive to the producer to even continue, much less expedite, his tempo of drilling and exploration for new gas."

Unless the situation is reversed, he said, "suppliers of energy sources for residential, commercial, industrial and other purposes will have to resort entirely to fuel oils and liquified natural gas, both domestic and imported."

Sealy said this will result in a "drastic increase to the consumer in the cost of this energy source."

Locals Go To Bush Session At Big Spring

About 20 or more Scurry Countians were among those who attended the George Bush, Texas style, hamburger supper in Big Spring Tuesday night. Some 200 people turned out to hear the Republican candidate for the United States Senate.

Bush said that one of the primary concerns in the race was a need for new leadership in the senate. He added that the first vote the new senator would cast will be for the organization of the senate, and if elected, his vote would be for new leadership more in harmony with the thinking of West Texans.

He stated that the people of this area were looking more and more at the man, and less and less at the party label. He reminded the audience that he had lived for years in the Midland-Odessa area before moving to Houston, and he knew the philosophy of West Texans.

Bush listed a number of key issues in the race, such as the permissiveness that has been prevalent in recent years, the crime rate, and support of President Nixon in his attempt to bring about a just peace in the Far East.

Witness Tells Of Seeing Two Murders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Screams pierced the darkness, Linda Kasabian said, as a man, blood streaming from his wounds, stumbled from actress Sharon Tate's hilltop mansion across the lawn.

"We looked into each other's eyes for a moment, and I said, 'I'm sorry, I'm sorry. Oh, God, make it stop.'"

Sobbing into her hands, the petite, green-eyed Mrs. Kasabian testified Tuesday that she saw two persons slain at Miss Tate's home Aug. 9 and heard the screams of three other victims pleading for their lives.

"I heard a man scream out 'No, No' and then I just heard screams. I don't have any words to describe how these screams were. It was just unbelieveably, horribly terrible," Mrs. Kasabian cried.

The sandy-haired 21-year-old mother of two told her version of the bloodbath as she testified at the murder-conspiracy trial of shaggy-haired cult leader Charles M. Manson, 35, and three women followers.

Mrs. Kasabian said Manson instructed her to follow the orders of his lieutenant, Charles "Tex" Watson. Then he sent Watson, Mrs. Kasabian and two other girl followers on a midnight mission which ended at the home of Miss Tate, 26, a blonde, pregnant movie star.

Mrs. Kasabian testified that she saw Watson shoot to death the first victim, Steven Parent, 18, a visitor driving away from the house, and stab and beat to death Wojieiech Frykowski, 37, a Polish-born guest whose body was found later on the lawn.

Mrs. Kasabian said it was Frykowski she encountered on the lawn, and at one point, after he had fallen, he tried to get up and "Tex hit him on the head and was stabbing him in the back ... I don't know how many times. He just kept doing it and doing it and doing it."

Still weeping, Mrs. Kasabian told of seeing one of Manson's codefendants, Patricia "Katie" Krenwinkel, 22, knife raised, chasing nightgown-clad Abigail Folger, 26, across the lawn. Miss Folger, a coffee company heiress, also died outside the house.

Mrs. Kasabian said another defendant, Susan "Sadie" Atkins, 21, approached her in the midst of the killing.

"I said, 'Sadie, make it stop,' but she said, 'It's too late,'" Mrs. Kasabian continued.

Mrs. Kasabian said she didn't see Miss Folger slain. And apparently she didn't witness the killings of Miss Tate and hair stylist Jay Sebring, 35, who died in the house.

Mrs. Kasabian's testimony was interrupted by a rapid-fire volley of objections by Manson's attorney, Irving Kanarek, who vainly challenged virtually every prosecution question.

Action Is Due On Salt Water System

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will seek Thursday to wrap up details of financing a system of brackish ground water for the SACROC oil repressuring unit in Scurry County.

The board meets at 10 a.m. in Big Spring, and while firming up details of this project, it also will review the general water situation.

Paschal Odom, assistant general manager, said Friday that the transition to a temporary system to recover some 20,000 additional acre feet from Lake J. B. Thomas had been made without a bobble. A temporary pump nearer the dam is now delivering water to a canal which maintains a static level for the pumping pool at the Big Spring-Odessa intake. The operation is working like a charm, he said.

Also operating smoothly is a second temporary pump to help maintain the pumping pool at Lake E. V. Spence. This will enable a second large pump at the main intake to be used, and thus boost the level of the Moss Creek reservoir near Big Spring to a desired level. During a recent period of peak demand, CRMWD drew on reserves in the lake.

Cities (Odessa, Midland, Big Spring, Stanton and Snyder) have been using between 52 and 55 million gallons of water a day this month.

The ground water system to serve SACROC wwll be a self-sustaining operation. One test well has been drilled and has indicated an adequate supply of brackish water around 600 feet. The district has advertised for supply line pipe bids. Proposals for pumps and gathering lines will be taken later.

Dr. Paine Is Leaving NASA

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Thomas O. Paine, who guided the National Aeronautics and Space Administration through man's first trip to the moon, is leaving the agency for a job outside the aerospace field.

"I will miss you. I hate to leave. My heart will always be with NASA," Paine said in a letter to the agency's 140,000 employes after he submitted his surprise resignation to President Nixon at the Western White House Tuesday.

He told reporters at San Clemente, Calif., his resignation—effective Sept. 15—had nothing to do with cuts in the space budget. He is returning to the General Electric Co.

In the letter to NASA employes, he said, "Now is the appropriate time for a change in command at NASA, and it coincides with my wish to return to private industry."

He referred also to his family financial obligations, saying:

"From a strictly professional point of view, there's obviously enough excitement and challenge and opportunity to serve in the future space program to almost compel me to continue in NASA despite the growing demands of a family of four teenagers.

"But the fascinating job that I see ahead to which the administrator must be committed will require more months of effort than my personal situation will permit."

The salary of the NASA administrator is $42,500 a year.

Paine, 48, came to the agency in January 1968 as assistant administrator from the General Electric Co. Center for Advanced Studies, Santa Barbara, Calif., of which he was manager.

He became acting administrator of NASA in October 1968 on the retirement of James E. Webb, and was appointed administrator March 5, 1969. He was the third man to hold that office.

President Nixon, in a letter accepting Paine's resignation, said: "It has been a privilege to know you and to work with you and to share with you the sense of excitement, adventure and achievement that has marked this time of triumph in the nation's space program."

There was no indication of a choice as to Paine's successor. If there is no appointment by Sept. 15 the agency's No. 2 officer, Vienna-born Deputy Administrator George M. Low, 44, would become acting administrator.

Fire Destroys Paul Quinn Cafeteria

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Officials of the all-Negro Paul Quinn College closed the school today after fire destroyed the cafeteria. Firemen reported gunfire and said they were pelted with rocks when they tried to battle the blaze.

Fire Capt. A. C. Monroe said units went to the campus four times during the night, adding "We were harrassed all night."

Peace officers were called to the campus about 10 p.m. as students staged what authorities described as a demonstration protesting the firing of certain school personnel.

Officials said the demonstration lasted about 30 minutes and it was about 3 a.m. before the fire broke out that destroyed the cafeteria. No damage estimate was available.

Monroe said the first call turned out to be a bonfire on the athletic field and firemen did not go on campus.

He said firemen later returned when a frame building was reported on fire. Monroe said a crowd started pelting firemen with rocks and forced them to pull out. One firemen was slightly injured by a rock.

Monroe said fire units stopped short of the campus later when shooting was reported on the campus.

Firemen were called the fourth time when the cafeteria went up in flames. Monroe said the cafeteria was the only building destroyed but several others including a dormitory received fire damage.

Monroe said arson investigators were on campus this morning.

B. B. King Has Blues Roots

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

B.B. King owes $25 that he doesn't mind paying. He says, "One of my utility men, who's been with me 18 years, brought up the subject of $25 the other day. We used to play dances on the west side of Las Vegas a long time ago. One night we were driving down the Strip and he said, 'Some day we'll see your name up there.' We made a bet—10 years ago—and believe it or not he remenbered."

Betting that his own name never would be in lights in Las Vegas is typical of King. "From a small boy I always thought I'd be disappointed if I don't get a lot of things I'd like to have, so I try and prepare myself for the worst," he says.

"I guess I'm hoping secretly, though."

In 1956, a typical year, King played 342 one-nighters, in places that not only aren't nationally known but some aren't very widely known in their own localities. This year he played a major room in a Las Vegas hotel and Carnegie Hall. When he performed recently before 80,000 at a concert held at a racetrack, he was most impressed because there were no fights. "For a guy playing dances the kind I been playing over the years it was unbelieveable. I've had to leave many halls when bottles were flying around."

The change in King's career came when English rock groups started playing blues and Bill Graham a couple of years ago decided to show the kids "blues roots." He booked King into the Fillmore in San Francisco.

King says, "I used to play there all the time before it was called the Fillmore and it was about 90 per cent black. I saw that audience was about 95 per cent white and I thought they'd brought me to the wrong place. But they carried me to the same dressing room I used to have. My teeth were chattering and my knees were doing the same. I was trying to be composed and stay together but I was waiting for this big moment when they'd say, 'Oh, no, not him.' But I got on stage and went into my regular thing, 'Everyday I Have the Blues.' It got just as quiet and when I finished the tune it was like thunder in the place. I guess that was the greatest thrill I've ever had in my life. It was something I'd never had before, a standing ovation."

King says people often ask him if he's changed his style since he became known. He tells them no, if he'd been going to change his style he'd have done it in the 1950s when the style didn't seem to be getting him anyplace. But he never has changed it since he started singing blues in Memphis in 1947.

King was born 43 years ago, on a plantation between Indianola and Itta Bena, Miss. He started singing blues when he was in the Army; previously had sung only gospel. In 1947 King went to Memphis, where his cousin Bukka White lived. There Sonny Boy Williamson got him his first job.

He became a disc jockey called the Beale Street Blues Boy and also performed live. His first hit record was "Three O'Clock Blues" in 1949 and that's when he started traveling. After recording for a couple of labels which didn't promote his records, he now records for Bluesway, an ABC label. His biggest hit has been "The Thrill Is Gone." He writes about 60 per cent of the songs he sings.

Sometimes, he says, he hears a song on the radio and thinks, "When did I record that?" and then realizes that it isn't him, it's a blues rock group. But he doesn't mind being copied. It was blues rock that sparked the current interest in blues. And, he says, he had plenty of influences on his music—White, Williamson, Blind Lemon. And he greatly admires Jimmy Rushing. King doesn't think the current interest in blues is a fad. "As long as you have people missing people, you're going to have somebody singing blues."

But King does have a difference of opinion with some young musicians.

He's against narcotics. "I've lived a very clean life. I don't do a vulgar show. I wasn't into anything that society was against as far as I know. I've tried to live in such a way that people could respect it. I've had a few people as idols as human beings—Martin Luther King, Nat King Cole, John Kennedy, Duke Ellington.

"Many times I thought I wasn't treated fairly. But today all of that, the bad times, everything, is worth it. With things like they are today, the experiences I've had have been worth it all, every bit."

Seafood Delicacies of the Deep

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

About 300 years ago, a Pilgrim father was strolling along a lonely strand when his nostrils were assailed by a tantalizing odor of seafood. Around the bend he came upon a tribe of Indians busy cooking clams and fish over hot rocks strewn with seaweed.

The Indians turned out to be friendly, and they initiated the stranger into the mysteries of the clambake. Ever since then, Americans have been glorifying the mollusk and its finny cousins with bakes, barbecues, boils and fries that attract thousands of hungry tourists each summer from Maine to California.

New England is the clambake, but its fame has spread down the Atlantic Seaboard and across the Pacific Coast where the clam has been replaced by the abalone.

Today's clambake is a far cry from the snack the Indians whipped up for our inquisitive Pilgrim forefather. It has been expanded into a multicourse banquet running the gamut from steaming bowls of creamy New England chowder to succulent lobsters; tangy sausages and finally fragrant slabs of apple pie.

Coastal communities in New York and along the Jersey shore have adopted the clambake with a few local touches. For one thing, they insist that Manhattan clam chowder is more ribsticking than the creamed mixture preferred in New England. The dispute has gone on for years.

Heading south into Maryland, home of the famed blue crab, tourists find the clambake replaced by cookouts of golden-brown fried crabs, velvety crab casseroles and tangy crab cutlets.

Virginia marks the opening of the oyster season early in September with festivals featuring such delicacies as oyster stew, barbecued oysters and oysters pickled southern style in cloves and white vinegar.

Tennessee, home of the fish fry, provides a summer long series of cookouts that have become famous throughout the deep South. Tons of catfish are served crackling crisp each season with corn meal hushpuppies.

In Florida, fish and crustaceans are so plentiful and inexpensive that the state puts on a year-round series of seafood fetes. Favorite dishes there include scallops paprika, barbecued eel and fork-tender turtle steaks from the great loggerheads that swim in the warm waters off Key West.

Louisiana, noted for its French wine sauces and Creole Pompano which Mark Twain said was "as delicious as the less criminal forms of sin," holds a number of seafood festivals each summer.

So does the Mississippi gulf port of Biloxi, the world's best known shrimp and oyster port, where a crew may pull in as much as 50,000 pounds of shrimp in one season.

Every June there is a colorful ceremony in Biloxi known as the blessing of the shrimp fleet. Hundreds of gaily bedecked trawlers sail past a priest who sprinkles the flotilla with holy water and asks the Lord's protection for the fishermen.

The ritual signals a weekend of gaity climaxed by a mammoth shrimp feast. It features such dishes as Jambalaya, Gumbo and shrimp stuffed in eggplant, tomatoes, and green peppers. There is shrimp salad galore, shrimp patties, barbecued shrimp, and of course well chilled shrimp cocktail.

Biloxi is proud of its shrimp dishes and with good reason. Here is a recipe by Alena Cerenich that was a feature of a Biloxi festival a few years ago.

BILOXI JAMBALAYA

1 medium sweet green pepper
1 large onion
2 cloves garlic
Heart of one bunch celery
½ cup olive oil
1 can tomato sauce (about 12 oz)
1½ pounds peeled, deveined raw shrimp
1 cup raw rice thoroughly washed
1 large potato diced
Salt, pepper and 1 teaspoon sugar

Fry in the olive oil about 20 minutes over low heat chopped onion, green pepper, celery and garlic, then add one can tomato sauce. In another pot, boil diced potato until completely absorbed in one quart water, then add some of mixture to tomato gravy and let simmer another 20 minutes.

Add raw shrimp and cook about 15 minutes, then add raw rice plus remainder of potato water as it cooks and thickens. Simmer another 20 minutes until liquid disappears and mixture is virtually dry.

Serve with green salad, dry french bread and cold rose wine. Serves Four.

Mariculture May Be Big Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mariculture"—the farming of the sea—could become a major world industry by 1980, according to Marine Office-Appleton & Cox Corp. (MOAC). MOAC said that there will not be enough arable land available in the future to grow food for a population increasing at the rate of 60 million a year.

Next time you make dumplings from biscuit mix, add minced parsley. Use about ¼ cup of the parsley to about two cups of the mix.

Dip strips of cooked carrots in milk and then in corn flake crumbs; fry crumbed carrots in melted butter in a large skillet. If you like, you can add salt and pepper to the crumbs.

Americans Becoming Credit Card Dropouts

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A mutation in the species Debtor Americanus may be making its appearance. Statistical evidence of its emergence has not yet been compiled, but an unusual number of people appear to have its characteristics.

Americans are big debtors and have been since World War II. More than $120 billion is now owed by consumers, $36 billion of it for automobiles and $30 billion more for personal loans. That's why the mutation is interesting; it's quite a contrast to the familiar species.

What is it called? The credit card dropout. What are its characteristics? A weariness with financial problems that justly or unjustly are attributed to the credit card.

One mutation, a well paid individual who enjoys living close to his limit, described his situation the other day.

"I was planning a trip to Europe this October with my wife and four kids. I think it's wise to let youngsters see and observe the places they read about in their books. I thought I could afford it.

"My wife told me that she and the children needed clothes for the trip and I didn't object. I told her to go out and buy them, that she had the cards. I didn't question her anymore; I make a good salary and have outside income, too.

"In fact I felt so good I went out and bought $120 worth of ties. I know that sounds absurd, but I buy ties every two years and never in between. It's not that I'm extravagant; I don't keep that kind of money on me, but I do have credit cards."

Then the bills came in.

"I knew they looked awfully big and I began to get worried about them. But can you imagine, when I added them up I found I owed $3,800. Now the trip is off and so are the credit purchases. I'm paying cash from now on."

Check with your friends and you'll probably find a similar experience, although hopefully on a smaller scale. Families have been cutting back since the economy began drifting into recession. And now many families feel they do not have adequate control over expenses when several cards are outstanding.

There are other reasons also to explain the actions of the dropouts. While many credit card operations are efficient, a good many are suffering from indigestion of the bookkeeping system. They are belching out all sorts of errors.

Despite the seeming increase in the number of dropouts, the rise in credit card debt continues, and now there is a total of more than $15 billion outstanding, or several billions more than during last year.

Evidence of further resistance is that many individuals now badger storeowners for cash discounts, arguing that since they are saving the seller time and expense, the rewards should be shared.

Junior Editors Quiz on HEAT ABSORPTION

QUESTION: Which absorbs the most heat, white or black?

* * *

ANSWER: Black. You can prove this by the experiment in the picture. Get a white card and a black one. Let a few drops of candle wax fall on each. When wax cools, hold both cards an equal distance from a lighted bulb. The black card will get warmer first, so the wax on it will melt first, proving that black absorbs heat more than white. Objects appear to have different colors according to whether the light rays of these different colors are absorbed or reflected by them. A red apple, for example, absorbs the other color rays, but rejects the red rays. That's why we see it as red. Black, being the absence of color, is by nature cool, because color is related to heat. So empty black absorbs the light rays. We don't see any colored light rays reflected back, so it looks black. But a bit of white cloth rejects the white heat rays instead of absorbing them; therefore, white is the best color to wear in a hot climate.

Remarks Wives Tire Of

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Husbandly remarks that every housewife gets tired of hearing:

"What do you want a new dress for? You haven't even worn out the one you were married in."

"I can't today, but I'll do it tomorrow for sure."

"What I can't understand about you, Harriet, is how you can spend all afternoon watching other people's troubles on those television soap operas and then, the minute I come through the door, you want me to listen to your troubles."

"Well, if you must know why I wanted to marry you, it's because I though it was a good idea — at the time."

"Do you have to fix breakfast every morning looking like you were practicing for Halloween?"

"What do you mean I never talk to you anymore? What is there to talk about anyway? The weather or the price of hay?"

"There are going to be some changes made around here, and I mean starting right now."

"What difference does it make if you are putting on a little weight? Only single girls really have to worry about their figure."

"Yeah, I forgot it was our anniversary. By the way, which one is it?"

"I don't mind eating leftovers at all. What I don't like eating is leftovers made from leftovers."

"What is the use of me giving Junior a talk about sex, Harriet? At his age he won't believe anything about it unless he hears it from the bigger boys."

"Guess who I ran into today. My old high school sweetheart, just back from shedding a husband in Reno. He must be out of his mind to let her get away. Personally, I think she's getting more attractive every time I see her."

"Glad you like the flowers, Harriet. The old guy I bought them from on the street corner wanted a buck and a half for them. But I finally talked him down to a buck. Personally, I think he probably stole them from a cemetery anyway."

"Can you lend me $5 out of your household money, Harriet? No. It isn't for lunch. I'm keeping three other women on the sly, and one of them needs $5 to get a tooth filled."

"Why don't I ever take you dancing anymore? For the same reason I don't take you on a trip to the moon."

"What do you want to waste your money for getting your hair dyed. Harriet? After all, isn't every wife supposed to get old and gray sometime?"

Dodgers Rip C-City

Snyder Dodgers toppled Colorado City last night in Towle Park 12 to 0 in the District Junior Teenage League tournament.

Snyder collected 12 hits off C-City pitchers Bruce Hill and John Ridge. Daryl Stokes, Jimmy Dyess, Scotty Sullivan and Marvin McClanahan each clubbed two hits. McClanahan went two for five at the plate with a double in the third and a single in the fifth. Sullivan cracked singles in the first and third, to go two for three. Dyess cracked two hits for four times at bat, stroking singles in the second and sixth, while Stokes was two for three at the plate with singles in the fifth and sixth.

Larry Beard whacked a single in the third, Charles Cain clubbed a double in the fourth, and Tim Holder and Randy Dryden each stroked singles in the fifth.

Colorado City scattered five hits off Tim Holder, while Holder fanned six men. Tim Stansel clubbed two hits for C-City with singles in the third and fifth. Terry Haggerton rapped singles in the first and seventh, while Melvin Jackson stroked a single in the sixth.

Snyder was scoreless in the first inning but brought in one run in the second after Robert Braziel got on base with an error and advanced on a sacrifice by Dryden and Dyess' second-inning single.

Snyder tallied five more runs in the third off McClanahan's double, singles by Beard and Sullivan and walks by Braziel, Cain, and Holder. The Snyder Dodgers scored once more in the fourth, three times in the sixth, and once in the seventh.

The only Colorado City run came in the third inning, after Haggerton got on with a base on balls and advanced on Stansel's single and an error by Sullivan.

In a second game, Colorado City and Kermit battled again with Kermit coming out on top 7 to 5. Kermit clubbed seven hits. J. Mills cracked a triple in the second and a double in the sixth, G. Shaver singled in the sixth, and stroked a triple in the seventh, J. Adams rapped singles in the sixth and seventh, and Gregory clubbed a double in the sixth.

Colorado City tapped five hits off Shaver and Mills. Stansel whacked doubles in the first and seventh, Ridge cracked a double in the sixth, and Haggerton and Jackson managed singles in the sixth, while Taylor doubled in the fifth.

The Dodgers will play Kermit tonight at 6:30 in Towle Park. If Kermit should win the first game a second game will be played immediately afterwards for the championship.

Players Say 1970 NFL Season Is In Jeopardy

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — National Football League owners broke off contract talks with the Players Association Tuesday night and immediately were charged by the players with bargaining in bad faith and placing the 1970 professional football season in jeopardy.

Theodore Kheel, labor consultant to the owners' negotiating committee, announced the end of the five-day-old negotiations conducted under the guidance of federal mediators.

"For all practical purposes," said Kheel, "we are just as far apart as when we first met here Friday."

Not so, said Ken Lindquist, labor consultant for the association. "We feel a settlement is near. We want to remain in session. We regret this recess very much. Without communications there is no way to settlement."

It was learned that the owners' committee of Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys; Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills, and Rankin Smith, owner of the Atlanta Falcons, would meet in New York Wednesday to formulate a report for the rest of the 26 NFL owners. The committee will meet with the other owners Thursday in Chicago to present suggestions and recommendations for the next step in the dispute.

Hours later, in New York, the Players Association announced that a special meeting of all 26 player-representatives of the NFL teams had been called for Chicago today.

"The meeting is for the purpose of determining a course of action for the days ahead," said the NFLPA spokesman, Tom Vance, in announcing the special meeting at 2 a.m., EDT.

The NFL is running out of time with the first exhibition game scheduled for Aug. 7 in Los Angeles. Nine more are slated for Aug. 8. It will have to cancel the games, play them with rookies and free agents, or perhaps lift the training camp ban on veteran players invoked by the owners until the contract dispute is settled.

Lifting the ban would test the strength of the association, which has directed veteran players to stay away from camp until the negotiation over pension benefits is resolved.

It also was learned after the five-day wall of silence which prevailed over the talks was lifted, that money still was the key issue. The association wants the owners to boost their four-year $18 million dollar pension contribution offer. The owners refuse to budge. The association has asked for $26 million.

The Players' Association committee president John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts, Ernie Wright of the Cincinnati Bengals and Ken Bowman of the Green Bay Packers was upset by the owners' recess move.

In a statement read by Lindquist, they said, "The National Football League Players Association and its membership is saddened by this development, but we remain hopeful that the owners see fit to return quickly to the bargaining table and the mediation progress. When the owners are ready to negotiate in good faith, an agreement will be concluded. It is, once again, apparent that the owners ... are putting the 1970 professional football season in jeopardy by this action."

Kheel said the committee had no idea of how long it would be before it returned to the bargaining table. Asked if the owners would open training camps to the veterans, he replied, "that is a matter to be decided ..."

Kheel said the owners would be in touch with the mediators "as soon as we believe we can bring about an agreement. We are sorry it has not been possible to reach an agreement here." He added that the mediators had been extremely helpful in basic matters important to collective bargaining. "In this area we made great progress," he said.

Mackey was asked if the pensions figures recently disclosed by the owners were accurate. They showed for example that a 15-year veteran at age 65 would collect $59,940 annually.

Kheel interrupted to say the figures were accurate.

Mackey then commented:

"When you talk about figures you can add one and one and get two. No matter how many times you add one and one you get two. But it depends on how many years you add to it (pension) and there are a lot of different basics on which you can arrive at that figure. You could arrive at it from one and one-half ... so when you say, is their mathematics accurate, I would say that it is. But as to whether or not it applies to our situation, no, it does not."

Abilene Sidelines Snyder Nationals

The Snyder National League succumbed to errors and advantageous hitting last night to fall to Abilene Eastern 9 to 4 in the Little League playoffs.

Hurler Ricky Beard was hit four times by Abilene, but fanned thirteen men in the process. Snyder jumped to an early lead in the game, scoring three runs in the first inning after Kelly Ragland got on with an error and Phil Robinson and Clifford Kay cracked singles. Snyder scored one more run in the second after Beard rapped a single and advanced on a fielder's choice by Ragland and a single by Phil Robinson.

Abilene was scoreless in the first three innings, unable to get a man on until the third when Terry Goodman clubbed a single, but was unable to advance. Abilene chalked up three runs in the fourth with Sammy Tindall stroking a single, followed by Harold Renninger with a double.

Abilene scored three times more in the fifth with Bobby Lawson whacking a double. Snyder's mound troubles really surfaced in the sixth with Abilene bringing home three more runs with three walks and no hits.

Baughan Return Brightens Rams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Player departures and scrimmage cancellations were the usual at many of pro football's training camps but the Los Angeles Rams were more excited about an addition to their roster.

"This is great news for the Ram coaches, the Ram players and, most of all, Ram fans," Coach George Allen said Tuesday after veteran linebacker Maxi Baughan renounced his retirement.

"Getting Maxie back is like having your quarterback return," Allen said of the 10-year National Football League veteran. The defensive signal caller had undergone knee surgery each of the past two years and announced his retirement after the 1969 season.

"He said his leg feels better than it did a year ago," Allen said of the 30-year-old All-Pro. Allen added he plans to use Baughan as he did two other veterans—Dick Bass and Tommy Mason—last year, holding them out of most preseason games.

Elsewhere, the Washington Redskins and Houston Oilers announced cutbacks in preseason activity.

The 'Skins canceled Saturday's annual intrasquad scrimmage which drew 10,000 fans last year. The Oilers, only 10 days away from their exhibition opener with Chicago, cut out one of their two daily workouts.

Houston Coach Wally Lemm said the cutback isn't being made because he feels the team is ready but because with only 24 rookies in camp there's not much more that can be done without the Oiler veterans, absent due to the player-owner dispute.

The Redskins also announced they have dropped six rookies from the squad—wide receiver Vincent Matthews, tackle Frank Goodish, defensive halfback Terrell Ray, defensive tackle Fred Sumrall, linebacker Roy Lee Davis and cornerback Neal Smith.

Finley's Suggestion Is Ignored

MONTREAL (AP) — Charles O. Finley's suggestion that baseball needs colored bases didn't get very much attention at Tuesday's major league meeting.

It was one of the items that the baseball owners didn't even discuss as the baseball czars shelved several matters and referred others to study.

Finley, the owner of Oakland A's of the American League, said baseball needs a blue bag at first, a red bag at second and so on. Why? No special reason. It is just that Charlie O. likes to keep things moving.

The first day of the two-day sessions were quite uneventful but Chub Feeney, president of the National League, Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn promised some interesting news after today's joint session.

Among subjects discussed Tuesday was a proposal by the Montreal Expos of the National League that Canadian amateur baseball be put on a equal footing with that of the United States in terms of grants from the major leagues.

At present, only U.S. amateur baseball benefits from the major leagues' financial program.

Melton, Egan Have Troubles

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Melton, the Chicago White Sox' free-swinging young slugger, ended a string of 10 strikeouts in as many official trips to the plate with a ninth inning fly ball in Tuesday night's 4-2 loss to Baltimore.

Meanwhile, California catcher Egan set an American League record with five passed balls ... and committed a costly error to boot ... as the Angels bowed to the New York Yankees 6-5.

Milwaukee's Al Downing stymied Washington 5-1 with a two-hitter, but Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew, Kansas City's Bob Oliver and Oakland's Sal Bando made solid contact in other AL games, socking decisive home runs as the Twins trimmed Cleveland 5-2, the Royals stunned Detroit 7-6 and the A's slugged Boston 6-4.

In the National League, Pittsburgh edged Cincinnati 4-3; the New York Mets thumped San Francisco 12-2; Los Angeles downed Philadelphia 6-2; Montreal shaded San Diego 5-4; St. Louis beat Atlanta 6-4 and Houston drubbed the Chicago Cubs 10-4.

Orioles southpaw Mike Cuellar, who tossed a three-hitter for his 14th victory in 20 decisions, fanned Melton three times before the Chicago third baseman flied to left fielder Don Buford in the ninth, ending his strikeout skein three short of the AL mark set by Washington pitcher Jim Hannan two years ago.

Two walks interrupted Hannan's run of 13 strikeouts. Melton had drawn a walk and been hit by a pitch, in addition to seven strikeouts, during a doubleheader against Detroit last Friday night. He was making his first start for the Sox since then.

The record of 12 strikeouts in consecutive plate appearances was set in 1965 by former Los Angeles mound ace Sandy Koufax. Pitcher Bill Hands of the Chicago Cubs had a 1968 string of 14 strikeouts, but it was broken by a walk and two sacrifice bunts.

Egan's troubles began with a first inning passed ball. He was charged with another in the fourth, a third in the fifth and two more in the sixth when he failed to handle Eddie Fisher knuckleballs. In that inning, Egan also dropped a throw to the plate, allowing Danny Cater to score the deciding run.

While Egan came within one passed ball of the 68-year-old major league record for a single game held by Cincinnati's Harry Vickers, Yankee catcher Thurman Munson peppered California pitching for four hits, including a two-run homer.

Mike McCormick, acquired last week from San Francisco, picked up the victory in his first start for the Yanks with late-inning help from reliever Lindy McDaniel.

Downing, winless in four previous decisions since the Brewers picked him up in a trade with Oakland, limited the Senators to a third inning bloop single by Tom Grieve and a fifth inning single by Tim Cullen.

Golfers Honor Spiro Agnew

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was honored for his contributions to golf at the $75 a plate sixth annual All-American Collegiate Golf dinner Tuesday night.

The vice president was given a blue jacket with an insignia making him an honorary member of the All-American squad.

Stars Can Win, Graham Asserts

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — In the words of Otto Graham, dauntless coach of the underdog collegiate squad, the 37th All-Star Football Game will be played at Soldier Field Friday night as "the most unusual in many, many years."

Graham's 36-member collegiate squad and the pro champion Kansas City Chiefs will clash with 11th hour preparation and inspiration after the Chicago Tribune Charity classic nearly was cancelled by the current National Football League owner-player labor dispute.

"We have had only one full scrimmage, but as a group we have the talent to give the Chiefs a heck of a football game and with a couple of breaks we can win it," said Graham, whose All-Stars barely were shaded, 26-24, by the New York Jets last year.

Because the Chiefs didn't get permission from their NFL player colleagues to begin practice until last Saturday, the oddsmakers have been slow in posting an official "line" on the game.

The Chiefs, who smothered the Minnesota Vikings 23-7 in the Super Bowl game last January, may hold considerably less than the customary two-touchdown favoritism accorded the pros in a series they dominate with a 25-9-2 record.

The game will be telecast nationally via ABC beginning at 9:30 p.m., EDT.

Graham, whose All-Stars recorded the last two collegiate triumphs—in 1963 over the Green Bay Packers and in 1958 over the Detroit Lions—said his troubles have been a lot different than in previous years.

Last year, for instance, Graham had to get along without such superstars as O.J. Simpson of Southern California and LeRoy Keyes of Purdue, who were dickering for big pro contracts.

"This year, we have only two quarterbacks—with No. 1 draft choice Terry Bradshaw being sidelined by injury," said Graham. "We missed our usual pro type scrimmage with the St. Louis Cardinals and there also was the psychological affect of the possibility that the game never would be played."

Graham's two quarterbacks, opposing talented Len Dawson of the Chiefs, are Dennis Shaw of San Diego State and Purdue's Mike Phipps.

"Both Shaw and Phipps are fine quarterbacks and the one you see come out to start will be the winner of a coin toss just before the game," said Graham.

Graham minimized his squad's apparent advantage in drilling since July 10 in contrast to the Chiefs' practice start last weekend.

"Don't anybody feel sorry for the Chiefs because they got a late start," said the former star quarterback of the old Cleveland Browns.

"Hank Stram always has things very well organized. Most of his players live in Kansas City and have been working out three and four hours a day on their own. I'm sure they'll be ready."

Flames Rap Lamesa, 19-8

The Snyder Flames bombed Lamesa 19 to 8 in Lamesa last night. Neil Henry handled pitching chores for Snyder. Jay Rody was the big Snyder hitter, clubbing a home run in the first, a double in the second, a single in the third and a single in the seventh.

Jessie McClain tagged a homer in the first, and a double in the sixth, while Luthra Thompson managed singles in the third, fourth, and fifth, and Barbara Moffett doubled in the third and singled in the fifth.

Wanda Hudgens was credited with an unassisted triple play in the bottom of the seventh. She sacked a line drive with the bases loaded, tagged the runner going home, and the runner advancing to third.

The Flames' next game will be Friday at Nelson park in Abilene in the Hamby tournament. Game time will be about 9 p.m.

Wein Says There Will Always Be Jazz Music

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There are always going to be articles written that jazz is coming back, says George Wein, impresario of the Newport Jazz Festival, but jazz has never left and never will leave.

"There always will be jazz music because some musicians always will want to play jazz. It is the tree, the roots, the strength. Everything else feeds off it and steals from it.

Rock music's current drawing on jazz neither weakens nor strengthens jazz itself, Wein believes. It has been variously said to do both.

"Rock groups which use jazz don't want to appear at a jazz festival. They can rent a hall and make all the money themselves.

"They feel inferior technically to the jazz musicians at a jazz festival. Also, the jazz in their music basically is pseudo. It's related, but not real. They lack faith in the music itself."

Wein organizes festivals and concerts widely in both America and Europe and keeps together a middle-of-the-road traditional jazz group called the Newport Allstars.

In America, he says, jazz fans will listen politely to a program offering several groups doing different styles of jazz and rock fans will listen to a program which includes some jazz—but not fans in Berlin and Paris. "In Berlin, the people who come to hear modern jazz will boo the traditional, and vice versa. I still mix the programs up; I feel it is healthy for people to be exposed to music other than that which caused them to buy the ticket. But this year I'm going to change for Berlin, and just present one type of jazz at a time."

Wein, who doodles quietly at a grand piano in his office while he talks, explained how he got his start. "I was a musician and still am. I found when I was working, if the band didn't have work, I'd say, 'Why don't we do this?' One time we didn't have any work and I said, 'Let's put on our own concerts.' My first concert was in 1949, in Boston. I was 23.

"I didn't calculate and decide I was going to do this. But I didn't wait for the phone to ring. I got an idea and I picked up the phone and called somebody.

"Whenever I try to buy an attraction everybody else is buying and present it, I always fail. When I've tried to be creative and produce a festival of my own, I've won enough so that I've been a successful producer and promoter."

Last year, the Newport Jazz Festival included rock acts but Wein who is running his 16th festival there this summer says not this year. "I think I've done enough with rock. Last year I was in with both feet and made and lost money. But you can only be what you are and who you are. I like some of the groups very much, but I'm a jazzman.

"Rock artists nowadays like Slv of the Family Stone know how to get a crowd up on its feet. It's part of the act, calculated.

"When a jazz artist does it, it's a true happening."

What about the people who say that the great moments of the Newport Jazz Festival—like that one—are all in the past?

Wein says, "They started the second year, saying 'It was better last year.'"

"It's an old story—'You should have been here when.' Actually, people live in their memories. The jazz festivals in the past two or three years have been more memorable than many we've had."

Marijuana Seized At Beaumont

BEAUMONT (AP)— Officers seized 24 pounds of marijuana Tuesday and arrested a man, 24, and a high school pupil, 15, both of Beaumont.

Chief Deputy Sheriff H. C. Anderson said the cache, believed the largest amount ever confiscated in Jefferson County, was reported by a farmer who discovered the marijuana in a rice field.

Officers said that two suitcases in the field west of Beaumont contained 11 packages and one sack of the weed.

Sheriff's deputies staked out the area and arrested the pair when they went to the cache.

Anderson estimated the street sale value of the marijuana at $8,000 to $10,000.

Cardigan Bay, harness racing's first million-dollar winner, retired with career earnings of $1,000,837.

BEFORE BEING ABRUPTLY FIRED

Silber Was Committee's Choice For UT Head

AUSTIN (AP) — Dr. John R. Silber was the top choice of a special committee for the presidency of the University of Texas when he was abruptly fired as dean last Friday.

Frank C. Erwin Jr., the regent chairman who many claim engineered the firing of Silber, reportedly told him his dismissal would "outdo" the 1944 Homer P. Rainey controversy at the school.

The source said Erwin told Sibler, just hours before he was fired, that "I've always admired you because you do your homework. But I do mine, too, and this time I have all the chips. This will make you famous, John. It will outdo Rainey."

Ironically, Erwin, then a university student, supported Rainey in the president's losing battle against the regents over academic freedom. Rainey's dismissal touched off a three-day protest strike by students, and more than 6,000 of the 12,500 students paraded to the capitol carrying a black coffin labeled "Academic Freedom."

A source whose contacts include educators and businessmen around the state, as well as in Austin, said the university's new administration, which fired Silber, also is considering dismissing Page Keeton, dean of the UT Law School.

The source said the jobs of Deans A.Y. Taniguchi of architecture and George Kozmetsky of business administration also were in danger.

He mentioned specifically that Erwin did not like Kozmetsky's allegedly traveling around the state seeking money from outside sources for the College of Business Administration. The source also said Sibler had been a great fund-raiser for the School of Arts and Sciences, but that acting president Bryce Jordan turned down a $225,000 grant from the Ford Foundation until the regents could look at it.

"Frank doesn't want anybody out there he can't control," the source said.

Late Tuesday, LeMaistre and Jordan issued a joint statement: "There is absolutely no truth to the rumors that other deans at the University of Texas in Austin will be removed."

LeMaistre and Jordan said the rumor is not new and was specifically denied when brought up at a regular meeting of all the university deans on Monday.

Silber, 43, is a native of San Antonio and was educated at [illegible] University there and at Yale before joining the Philosophy Department here in 1955. He was made chairman in 1962 and became dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in December 1967. He has said he will stay on as a teacher.

Silber had disagreed with the new administration over its proposal to split Arts and Sciences into three colleges, a move which would dilute Silber's influence. And he also wanted to limit the university's enrollment to 35,000, which Erwin opposed.

A university source accused Silber of "building an empire" and "going around the state beating the drums for his position."

The Arts and Sciences Foundation, a group made up mostly of businessmen from throughout the state, had asked Silber to speak at a series of "Meet the Dean" dinners and it was one of those, in Dallas, that particularly upset Erwin, the source said.

He said Erwin and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, a close friend of Erwin, showed up last September at the Brook Hollow Country Club at a dinner arranged for Silber by the sister-in-law of Robert Strauss, finance chairman for the National Democratic Party.

The dinner raised $14,000, at $50 a person, the source said, and "Erwin didn't like the way Silber had them eating out of his hand."

The source said a former regent cautioned Silber then that he "was on his way out" because of his increasing popularity.

The letters sent out by the five-member committee looking for a new president brought enthusiastic support for Silber from educators, businessmen, judges, lawyers and magazine editors.

An Indiana educator said Silber has that "mysterious quality called charisma" and "tells it like it is."

An editor of an academic journal said, "He is a man of whom the faculty could be proud but the citizens need not feel separated from."

A former UT regent said Silber would be "ideal" as president. Three who replied mentioned that Silber would be able to handle campus student unrest. A Texas judge said his son was convinced that Silber "has remarkable understanding of, and is particularly well qualified to cope with, the underlying causes and outward manifestations of student grievances, unrest and revolt."

A former Ohio and Colorado educator said Silber's thoughts of anticipating and handling student unrest "have now developed into fairly standard procedures" at colleges around the nation.

A California professor said, "He is above all a humane person, ready to give himself to the common enterprise, most especially the enterprise of education, and he knows with the knowledge of the adroit politician that self-giving makes one from time to time expendable. Therefore he is not afraid."

Job Corp Trainees Discharged

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — About 200 trainees at the Camp Gary Job Corps center have been discharged for taking part in two nights of Rock the disturbances, officials said.

Spokesmen said the number may reach 300 as investigations continue at the Federal center for young men. Disturbances there Sunday and Monday nights were described as the worst in its five-year history.

About eight deputy U.S. marshals joined a beefed-up security force Tuesday night to guard against further trouble.

Officials said fire gutted a dormitory Monday night as about 200 men went on a rock-throwing rampage in the general area where 300 to 500 were involved in a similar disturbance Sunday night.

The incidents apparently stemmed from a fight between youths billeted in separate dormitory areas known as the "Gray and Orange Blocks," officials said.

About 30 were were treated for minor injuries Sunday night and the same number received treatment Monday night, spokesmen said.

The center has about 3,000 students.

Those discharged were being returned home by bus.

Drilling Request Is Protested

GALVESTON (AP) — Army engineers here said they are waiting to hear from two oil companies about some 3,000 protests received on the companies requests to drill wells in West Galveston Bay.

Col. Frank Moon, the Galveston district engineer, said the corps submits protestors "no matter if there is one or 100" to the applicant to allow him to resolve the objections.

Texaco and the Cabot Corp. of Houston have applied to drill oil wells in West Bay. They would be the first wells drilled in recent years in the bay which has heavy recreation use.

If the applicants cannot resolve the objections, Moon said, then the district engineer's officer is charged with making a recommendation to the chief of engineers.

Moon said there is also a provision for holding public hearings on the matter but he said he did not know if a hearing would be held.

Bricklayers Accept Raise

DALLAS (AP) — Bricklayers in Dallas and Fort Worth accepted a 30 per cent raise in pay and fringe benefits over three years in agreeing Tuesday to end a four-week-old strike. By the end of 1973, wages will rise to $7.80 an hour.

Both sides expressed satisfaction with the settlement, which gives union members in Fort Worth a $2.31½ hourly increase and those in Dallas $2.06½ more.

At the start of the walkout by 575 bricklayers, they demanded a raise of $2.50 per hour.

Abbie Gets Permission

CHICAGO (AP) — Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, one of the convicted defendants in the Chicago riot trial, has received court permission for an August trip to Cuba.

Hoffman, 33, is appealing his conviction on a charge of interstate travel to incite rioting at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention. He was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000.

Permission for the Cuban trip was granted by the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday.

Hoffman's lawyer said the defendant planned to collect information for a series of magazine articles on Cuban youth. He leaves for Cuba next Tuesday by way of St. John, N.B., where he will board a ship, and is scheduled to return by the same route, arriving Aug. 30.

Landscape Architect

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: I am a girl and will be a sophomore in high school this fall. I love to work in my garden. Can a woman have a good career as a landscape architect? — M.B.A., Chicago

Yes, if you like both design and nature, and are willing to do the necessary spadework. Although only 5 to 10 per cent are female, this is "a superb career choice for women," says Mrs. Emmet J. Layton, herself a successful landscape architect and planner in St. Louis, and a U. of Wisconsin faculty member.

GOOD LOOKS. Landscape architecture is the design profession which creates a better landscape to make outdoor space more enjoyable and usable for people. It covers the physical adaptation of men's entire environment, and, in fact, the term "environmental design" is increasingly used to express the comprehensive concept.

Examples of the art include: parkways, playgrounds, homes and gardens, institutions, shopping centers, industrial sites, housing developments, hotels and resorts, parks, subdivisions, campuses and country clubs.

PERENNIAL HIRING. Landscape architects may be owners or employees of landscape architectural firms; others work for architectural or engineering firms, government agencies (such as public housing, city planning, urban renewal, highways, parks and recreational facilities), educational institutions, and any type of industrial firm. What do they do? It's a . . .

GARDEN VARIETY. Services performed include: giving advice on planting and land planning problems — using professional comprehension of plant materials, plant installation, and planting maintenance . . . preparing or reviewing criteria for master and site plans . . . selection of sites . . . making preliminary studies, sketches, models and reports . . . preparing working drawings, cost estimates and specifications for taking of contractors' bids . . . supervising construction, approving the quality of materials and workmanship . . . administering landscape projects and acting as client's agent and advisor. Interested? Here's how you . . .

TRAIN FOR THE IVY. To enter this profession, you'll need at least a bachelor's degree in landscape architecture (4-5 years). A master's degree may be required in some jobs. There are also preprofessional positions requiring less education.

FERNS AND FUNDS. The American Society of Landscape Architects (ASLA) estimates 1970 starting salaries in private offices for bachelor's degree holders at $8-10,000, and $10-14,000 with a master's degree. Latest available figures (1968) show 65 per cent of experienced persons earned $10-20,000; and that about 25 per cent of self-employed landscape architects earned over $20,000.

FLOWER POWER. Opportunities are expected to remain relatively favorable throughout the 1970s. ASLA spokesman Gary Robinette says the job market is holding up: "Perhaps 2-4 offers per graduate as compared to 4-6 offers last year, and they may not be able to choose a particular geographical area as easily as before."

REMEDIAL WEEDING. Preprofessional summer experience is expected. City students should try for rural experience, and vice versa. Try nurseries, greenhouses, floral shops, Natural Park Service, civil engineering firms. Learn to identify plant material by taking field walks (including city streets) and garden tours, attending flower shows, visiting botanical gardens where you should READ the plant labels.

PLANT EARLY. ASLA has a brand new career booklet. For one free copy, send me a postcard at this newspaper asking for "New ASLA."

$2 Minimum Wage Urged By Meany

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said today low wage workers are hit hardest by inflation and urged Congress to increase the federal minimum wage to at least $2 an hour.

"Inflation hits these people harder than anyone else. Today's minimum wage of $1.60 is just a few cents more in terms of purchasing power than $1.25 was in 1966," Meany said in a statement prepared for the House Education and Labor Committee.

The last minimum wage increas, from $1.25 to $1.60 over several years, were enacted in 1966.

Meany called it shocking that many low paid workers would be better off financially if they quit their jobs and entered the welfare rolls.

"That is appalling," said the 75-year-old leader of the 13.6 million member labor federation. "We do not believe any employed worker should be forced to go on welfare rolls in order to survive."

Meany said the current federal minimum wage means only $3,200 a year to a worker for a full year's work, less two weeks of unpaid vacation. A $2 minimum would provide $4,000 a year.

"Even $2 an hour is barely above the government-defined poverty level for families with two children," Meany said.

Meany also urged Congress to provide double-time pay for overtime work, instead of the present time and one-half and to shorten the work week or the work year.

He said the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act should also be broadened to embrace some 7 million workers, including farm workers, who are not now covered. The law now covers some 40 million workers.

Shortening the federal standard work week would also help spread jobs to combat rising unemployment, he added.

Hurd Named Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Hurd, 56, of Laredo, Tex., was sworn Tuesday as ambassador to South Africa.

Hurd replaces William Roundtree. He is expected to leave for South Africa about Sept. 1.

Hurd is an oil operator and rancher.

Machines Get Clean Health Bill

HOUSTON (AP) — The sale of 100 used voting machines to Harris County for $1,500 each after they had originally been purchased in Tampa, Fla., for $30 each was given a clean bill of health Tuesday by a grand jury.

The jury, which investigated the purchase, said the price was fair and that there was no evidence of criminal activity in the transaction.

Hillsboro County, Fla., sold the machines to Southern Municipal Sales of Jacksonville, Fla., for $30 each and that company in turn sold them for $500 each to the Shoup Voting Machine Company of Nashville, Tenn.

The grand jury said Shoup spent $700 overhauling each machine and sold them to Harris County with the same five-year warranty given to new machines.

Contractors Meet Friday

Constructors from a wide area of West Texas will convene on Friday at Lubbock's Holiday Inn-Parkway, it was announced today by C. B. Martin, president of the West Texas Chapter, Associated General Contractors (AGC).

The occasion is the regular quarterly meeting of the chapter, which serves the construction industry in a 69-county region, chiefly in the area of labor negotiations, legislation, and in architect and owner relations governing building construction.

The board of directors will meet at 4 p.m., with directors attending from Wichita Falls, Abilene, San Angelo, Midland-Odessa, Big Spring, and Lubbock. Agenda items will include the progress of rebuilding Lubbock's tornado-damaged properties, and also the impact of the recent strikes in Lubbock by the carpenters and the laborers' unions, which shut down most worl for a total of seven weeks' working time

AF Promotes James W. May

ALAMOGORDO, N. M. — James W. May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie J. May, 2701 Avenue J, Snyder, has been promoted to airman first class in the U. S. Air Force.

Airman May is an aircraft mechanic at Holloman AFB, N.M., with the 6583rd Organizational Maintenance Squadron, a unit of the Air Force Systems Command which manages research and development of USAF aerospace systems.

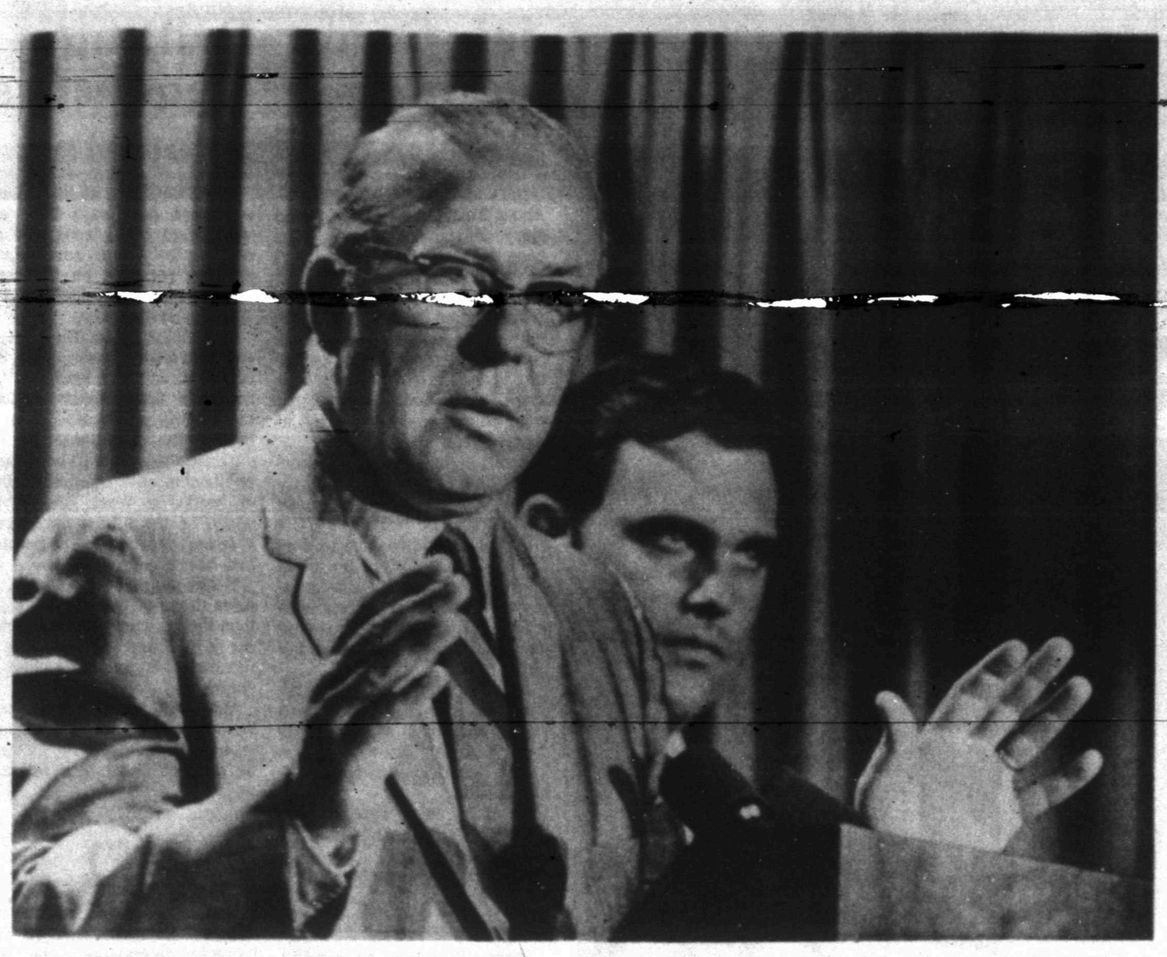

The airman is a 1969 graduate of Hobbs High School.

The trotting mare Fresh Yankee, now 7 years old, was purchased as a yearling for $900 by Canadian Duncan Macdonald and has won in excess of $580,000.

Panel Makes 113 Proposals On Defense Reorganization

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A blue-ribbon panel's sweeping reorganization plan to strengthen civilian control over the U.S. military establishment has been met in Congress with some enthusiasm but no commitments.

"They're talking about some of the things we've been talking about in Congress for years," Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, said Tuesday. "I'm very enthusiastic about it although I might not agree with every recommendation."

The White House-appointed panel, whose chairman, Gilbert Fitzhugh, called the Pentagon "just an amorphous lump ... with nobody in charge of anything," released its findings Tuesday. The 113 recommendations represent the most far-reaching Defense Department reorganization plan in 10 years.

Both Armed Services Committee chairmen, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., said their staffs are studying the 29-page proposal and declined to comment until they see the results.

A major proposal would put a civilian deputy secretary of defense in direct charge of U.S. war and other military operations, and of a centralized intelligence setup.

A related proposal, sure to stir controversy, would strip the Joint Chiefs of Staff of its military operations functions. These would go to a separate staff under a general or admiral directly accountable to the civilian deputy secretary.

The Fitzhugh panel did not say who should be the top military operations officer.

Putting the operations under a single officer was turned down by the Hoover Commission 20 years ago when the idea was opposed in Congress.

The military chiefs still would be uniformed heads of their respective services under the Fitzhugh panel proposal, and would retain authority to recruit, train and equip their forces.

Fitzhugh acknowledged the joint chiefs are "less than enthusiastic about the panel's reorganization ideas."

The civilian operations chief would be one of three deputy secretaries sharing the Pentagon's major responsibilities.

A second would be in charge of the major cost items: weapons and equipment research and procurement, military bases and manpower. A third would be in charge of weapons and equipment tests and evaluation.

The strategic missiles in all three services would go under control of one military command, all land-sea-air conventional forces under the control of another, and all supply and logistics under the control of a third.

These three military-wide commands would be directly responsible to the central military operations staff.

A dozen recommendations for curbing cost overruns include "fly before buy" testing of weapons before they are committed to full-scale production, a policy already agreed to by Laird; elimination of nonessential and costly sophisticated gadgetry, and emphasis on modernizing existing weapons systems rather than scrapping them for new ones.

Two of the 14 Fitzhugh panel members dissented. Wilfred J. McNeil, former Pentagon comptroller, said instead of centralizing decision-making authority, the recommendations "should go in the other direction."

Fitzhugh, board chairman of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., said about 90 per cent of the plan could be carried out without approval of Congress.

But Laird has made a point of keeping good relations with Congress, which controls his purse strings, and is likely to seek its blessing even on sections that do not require it.

Production Of Wool May Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wool production is expected to decline again this year because of fewer sheep and lambs on U.S. farms, according to Agriculture Department economists.

Officials estimated shorn wool output at about 161.9 million pounds, two per cent less than in 1969 and the smallest production since 1873, according to government records.

The Crop Reporting Board estimated the number of sheep and lambs to be shorn at 19,023,000 head, three per cent fewer than last year. The average weight per fleece, however, was estimated to be slightly heavier—8.51 pounds compared with 8.47 last year.

Texas, the leading wool producer, expects a clip of 30.6 million pounds, a gain of three per cent from 1969 although the number of sheep and lambs to be shorn remains the same.

Officials said the Texas wool increase is based on an expected gain of two-tenths of a pound in the average weight of fleeces.

Wyoming, the second-ranked producer, expects a production of almost 7.8 million pounds, a two per cent gain from 1969; but third-ranked California is estimated down seven per cent with production at 11.7 million pounds.

Smith Announces $21,340 Grant

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith announced approval Monday of a $21,340 grant to the Lower Rio Grande Valley Development Council, which serves 22 cities, 19 "special purpose" governments and Cameron, Hidalgo and Willacy counties.

Similar grants in the past have been used to make criminal justice plans, establish an emergency operating communication center, study tourism, determine regional goals and for economic development.

More Wreckage Of Spanish Galleons Found

PORT MANSFIELD, Tex. (AP) — A monthlong search in the murky water of the Gulf of Mexico has resulted in the discovery of more wreckage of Spanish galleons lost in a 1553 hurricane, an official of the state antiquities committee said Tuesday.

Dr. Fred Wendorf, chairman of the committee, and from the anthropology department of Southern Methodist University, said searchers using electronic devices have found eight signals indicating the presence of large quantities of metal. Only one has been proven to be the wreckage of an actual Spanish galleon.

Dr. Wendorf said officials of the Institute for Underwater Research, Inc., have pinpointed the wreckage of at least one galleon and have retrieved artifacts to prove their discovery.

Company officials displayed a rust-encrusted cannon, some ancient wood fragments and some ballast stones for newsmen Tuesday.

Texas land commissioner Jerry Sadler, who has been involved in controversies over sunken treasure found off the Texas coast, paid his first visit to the treasure hunt site Tuesday.

Dr. Wendorf pointed out that the non-profit corporation was removing only enough artifacts to determine what had been found. Platoro, Ltd., a Gary, Ind. firm, found one galleon and removed treasure from it before the Texas Antiquities Committee was established. The matter of who owns the treasure that Platoro found is now before the federal courts.

The non-profit corporation, working with a permit from the state committee, spent about $35,000 on the month-long scientific survey, according to Dr. Wendorf.

Gene McDermott, president of the corporation, urged state officials to preserve the wreckage of the ancient galleons which were lost in a hurricane after they left the New World for Spain.

"Because they belong to a relatively little-known period of Texas history, it is all the more important that they be adequately studied for the benefit of future generations," said McDermott.

Dr. Wendorf said the wreck sites are being kept under surveillance by patrol boats and airplanes to keep would-be pirates away.

Scott Hays, an SMU anthropology graduate student, said the cannon is of the same type known to have been aboard Spanish galleons. He said it is easily identified by large swivel rings on both ends of the barrel. He said the cannon would be cleaned in an attempt to determine where and possibly when it was manufactured.

The scientific survey of the Gulf area along Padre Island has been conducted in three phases, according to Hays. After the signals are detected, scuba divers are sent to investigate. The third step, if the metal turns out to be part of a ship, is the recording of the site for future study and eventual recovery of artifacts.

Divers visited the site where the cannon was found Tuesday for the benefit of newsmen and Sadler. They retrieved several ballast stones and some other rocks not native to the area. Hays said at least one of the rocks was obsidian, meaning it was volcanic in origin. He said it might have originated in Mexico or South America.

The divers, who must grope in near darkness in the murky water, also reported finding a long piece of wood. Hays said it might be part of the keel of a ship.

An unidentified vehicle with its license plates covered watched from the beach of South Padre Island Tuesday as the divers worked. The occupants of the red-and-white four wheel drive vehicle drove stakes in the beach even with the diving location.

Officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department at Corpus Christi were asked by Dr. Wendorf to find out who was driving the vehicle.

An airplane also circled several times just as the diving operation was completed.

"He's been watching us a lot," Dr. Wendorf said. "He buzzes us almost every day," he added.

Dr. Wendorf said he planned to check with the Federal Aviation Administration to determine who owns the plane.

The survey is to end Friday. Dr. Wendorf said he did not know if the corporation would conduct further operations next summer.

Crackdown Ordered On Job Discrimination

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has ordered a crackdown on subordinates who drag their feet in the hiring and promotion of Negroes, Mexican-Americans and women.

The action was revealed after a presidential defense panel reported Tuesday the Pentagon's nondiscrimination policies "leave much to be desired."

Laird ordered his manpower chief, Asst. Secretary Roger Kelley, to conduct a widespread review and issue a report by Sept. 1 on "what the situation is in each administrative unit of the department."

After that, Laird said, he expects a status report each quarter starting in January which will show "equal opportunity trends, identify problem areas, and indicate corrective actions ...."

He asked Kelley to examine complaint procedures and formulate plans to eliminate deficiencies by Oct. 30.

Further, Laird directed a review of all outstanding Defense Department directives on the question of equal opportunity. A new directive, should be issued, if necessary, he said.

However, some officials acknowledged that directives hardly get to the root of the problem—lower echelon officials who refuse to comply with orders.

The Defense Department employs 1.2 million civilian employes and there often may be a wide gap between directives from the top and performance down below, officials noted.

The blue-ribbon panel studying Pentagon reorganization was obviously aware of this problem, recalling the series of equal opportunity orders issued by Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and Secreataries of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Clark Clifford.

"The record of implementation, however, leaves much to be desired," the panel said. "In fact, the responsibility for implementation is so diffused that in some areas it has proved to be ineffective."

Minority definitions in the equal opportunity area usually refer to Negroes, but officials said Laird also was concerned about discrimination against Mexican Americans and women, particularly in promotions.

Man's Life Savings Found

McMINNVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Youths riding minibikes across a field near here Tuesday discovered a waterlogged paper bag containing more than $7,000 believed lost by an elderly Texas farmer.

Officers said the man, in his late 80s, came to them and said he had lost his live savings more than two months ago while searching for relatives in the Middle Tennessee area.

"Nobdoy really took the old man seriously," said Police Chief Charles Reaves.

"He came here on a bus and told us he'd gotten off outside of town. He said he was afraid someone would take his money so he hid it."

Officers sent the man back to Athens, Tex., on a bus. He was not logged in the records because he had not been arrested, they said.

However, officials of the First National Bank of Athens said a retired farmer, John B. Earls, withdrew a large amount of money last May.

The bank officials said Earls lived at Brownsboro, Tex., 15 miles from Athens.

Road Bids Tabulated

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Highway Department tabulated the following low bids Tuesday on highway projects, by counties:

Matagorda—Loop 141, from Texas 35 in Palacios south and west 2 miles, paving and surfacing, South Texas Construction Co., Corpus Christi, $690,839.

Brazoria—Farm 1495, from 1.5 miles southeast of Freeport to 1 mile north of Bryan Beach, .4 mile, surfacing, A.M. Vogel, Houston, $296,740.

Angelina—Texas 103 and Farm 58, from U.S. 59 east to Herty and from U.S. 69 and Denman Ave. southeast to Loop 287, 3.3 miles, paving and seal coating shoulders, Austin Road Co., Dallas, $68,398.

Navarro—Texas 31, from Powell to Interstate 45, 5.6 miles paving, Uvalde Construction Co. Dallas, $57,182.

Collin—Texas 78 from 1.9 miles north of Texas 205 to 2.2 miles north of Elm Creek, 6.8 miles grading, base and surfacing, including bridges at Price Creek and Elm Creek, Adams Bros., Athens, $2,896,193.

Polk—Park 56 surfacing 1.8 miles near administration building, main drive and loop road in Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation, Pitt Construction Co., Lufkin, $72,473.

Sergeant To Try Climbing

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP) — During his 130-mile trek across Death Valley last week, Army S.Sgt. Jack Nelson, 34, passed through the lowest point in the Western Hemisphere. Now he says he's thinking about climbing to one of the world's highest places.

"Next year I think I'll go climbing," he said Monday, "probably the Matterhorn," whose 14,685 foot high peak rises majestically in the Swiss Alps and is always covered by snow.

'Copter Load Of Gifts To Jackie

The helicopter went to the Ionian islet of Scorpios, private hideaway of her husband, Aristotle Onassis. Her children, Caroline and John F. Kennedy Jr., are spending their summer vacation with her there.

One present, made by Greek jeweler Ilias Lalaounis, was a pair of gold earrings depicting a satellite's orbits in space.
