Tower pushes for strong defense

By KRISTIN GAZLAY

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, serving his fourth and last term in Congress, continued his push for increased defense spending Friday, telling a receptive military audience that "without national security, we have nothing."

Tower, R-Texas, traveled to Kelly Air Force Base to help celebrate Hispanic Heritage Week.

The senator, who reaffirmed that he would not seek re-election, pointed to the Soviets' recent downing of a Korean Air Lines jetliner carrying 269 people to bolster his argument for increased military spending.

"This is the kind of barbarity that should give you some kind of idea why we should spend a great deal of money on our national defenses," Tower said.

"There are a lot of people who say we're a little heartless to spend so much on defense when there's still so much human suffering out there, but nothing is more important to our people than our national security," he said. "Without national security, we have nothing."

Tower, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, also said military spending helped lift the country out of a recessionary tailspin by creating jobs — especially in the fields of automobiles, shipbuilding and the aircraft industry.

"Spending by the Department of Defense kept that recession from being as bad as it could be," he said.

Tower denied that his trip was politically motivated, part of President Reagan's and fellow Republicans' continuing efforts to snag the Hispanic vote.

Sen. Tower

"There are a lot of people who say we're a little heartless to spend so much on defense when there's still so much human suffering out there, but nothing is more important to our people than our national security. Without national security, we have nothing."

— Sen. John Tower

Kelly has 9,800 Hispanics in its workforce, about 52 percent of the total number of Mexican-Americans employed by the Air Force.

Candidates began announcing for Tower's seat just hours after he jolted political observers Aug. 23 by stating that he was "bored" and wouldn't run in 1984.

Tower said Friday that he had no plans to endorse any of the candidates currently in the race, but wouldn't speculate whether he would change his mind later.

"I feel confident that a Republican can hold onto my seat," he said, predicting that a Reagan candidacy, along with a healthier economy, could pave the way for a GOP candidate.

Meanwhile, he said, he's "continuing to function in the Senate" and enjoying the political hubbub surrounding his decision not to run for a fifth term.

"Few people have the experience of being able to view their own obituaries," he said. "Why, even my Democratic colleagues have been telling me how sorry they are to see me go."

Tower is to Dallas on Friday afternoon and planned to return to Washington on Monday.

White House: Bipartisan support needed for force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, under pressure from Senate Democrats, urged Congress on Friday to give "strong bipartisan support" for keeping the Marine peacekeeping mission in Lebanon at a time when cease-fire negotiations have reached a critical stage.

Shortly after the appeal from President Reagan's chief spokesman, Larry Speakes, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., outlined a new proposal designed to clear away legal questions that have clouded the future of the 1,200-man peacekeeping force.

Democrats reserved judgment on Baker's idea.

Speakes said the Reagan administration is trying to settle a dispute with Congress over invoking the 1973 War Powers Act, which would require Reagan to withdraw the Marines in 60 to 90 days unless Congress declared war or voted to keep them in Beirut.

Baker unveiled his proposal during a meeting at the Capitol that was called at the request of White House Chief of Staff James Baker III.

An aide to the majority leader said the resolution had not been drafted but would be designed to "precipitate a Senate action that will get beyond the legal question of the War Powers Act and try to deal with the substance of what to do about the Marines in Lebanon."

One of the Democrats who attended the meeting, Sen. Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, said he could not comment on the resolution until he had seen it.

Baker's aide, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Baker asked Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., to come back on Monday to consider specific language. He said the resolution would include "a finding under the War Powers Act."

Byrd said he and the other Democrats argued during the meeting that before Congress can act the president must "lay out clearly and specifically what he wants."

"I didn't get much of a reaction out of Jim Baker," he said.

Speakes told reporters, "Our first interest is the safety of the U.S. Marines in their critical role in Lebanon."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who has been taking part in the negotiations, said, "I think the argument as to whether or not the act should start taking effect and should be taken into account now by the administration, I think is reasonably well won. The very fact that they are now discussing how it is to be done would leave me to believe we are going to, I hope, work out some sort of a compromise."

Byrd said the White House statement "implies that Democrats are, in some way, giving comfort to those who oppose our policies in Lebanon, specifically the Syrians."

"The truth is the American people, who have sent their sons to a situation where hostilities exist, want the comfort that Congress is asserting its role in sharing decision-making and responsibility for maintaining troops in Lebanon," he said.

Percy agreed that Congress should assert its role, but added, "If the Syrians thought there was a definite time frame put on and that the will of the American people might be broken if there were more casualties, I think there is a very good chance that they would make an extraordinary effort to see that those casualties did occur. They may or may not have been aiming at Americans before. I think it would give them added incentive to aim at Americans."

The president, during a photo session in his Oval Office, was asked whether he could live with some form of the War Powers Act.

"I'm sure I can, yes," he told reporters. But he refused to discuss what limits he might accept, saying they were being negotiated with congressional leaders.

Senate Democrats introduced legislation Thursday that would legally bind Reagan to withdraw the Marines in 60 to 90 days, unless Congress authorizes them to remain. Under their resolution, the clock would start running Aug. 29, when the first two Marines were killed in artillery shelling from Moslem militia positions. Two Marines were killed Sept. 6.

"We believe the situation in Lebanon, indeed in the Middle East region, is at a pivotal point in the current discussions that could lead to a cease-fire in Lebanon," Speakes told reporters Friday.

"We believe the effort at negotiating going on at this moment is a cornerstone of the peaceful resolution of the conflict there, he said. "Strong bipartisan support for the U.S. role in Lebanon is essential to keep this process on track."

A senior White House official, who spoke only on condition that he not be quoted by name, suggested that any time limit imposed on the Marine peacekeeping mission could benefit Soviet-backed Syrian forces that are supporting Druse Moslem militiamen in their battle against the Lebanese Army.

Man who filed police brutality suit arrested on drug charges

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

A 20-year-old city man whose police brutality complaint last winter resulted in the dismissal of former Midland canine officer Lonnie Payne has been arrested on felony drug charges.

The man, George Benavides of 619 S. Mineola, was released from custody Friday after posting bonds totaling $52,500 on charges ranging from possession of heroin to felony escape, according to Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry.

In sketchy police reports, Benavides and another man were arrested near the intersection of Lamesa Road and Illinois Avenue late Thursday morning. The other man reportedly was freed after questioning.

Following his arrest, Benavides complained of being ill and allegedly escaped custody for a brief period as he was being taken to Midland Memorial Hospital for examination.

In addition to the heroin and escape charges, he was charged with "possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver." The type of substance was not specified in the police report.

Prior to his arrest Thursday, Benavides was free on a $25,000 personal recognizance bond on misdemeanor charges of attempting to steal $32 worth of meat from the M-System Food Store at

A Street and Scharbauer Drive last Feb. 8.

Payne, who worked off-duty as an M-System security guard at the time, made the shoplifting arrest and was fired from the police force after a grand jury indicted him Feb. 16 on charges of abusing a prisoner.

The felony indictment stemmed from Benavides' complaint that he was kicked and beaten by Payne, 32, after being handcuffed at the store.

The complaint was investigated by the Texas Rangers, the Midland County Sheriff's Department and the internal affairs division of the police force before it was presented to the grand jury.

Benavides was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital for head, eye, neck and back injuries the day of the shoplifting arrest.

In a written statement to authorities at the time, Payne denied using unnecessary force, saying Benavides hit him in the face with his fist and "resisted arrest and continued to fight" until he was subdued.

Benavides' attorney, Sandy Torres, filed a $1.2 million civil suit against Payne and M-System the day Payne was indicted.

Both the civil suit and the criminal case against him are still pending in court.

Torres declined comment on the drug and escape charges against Benavides.

Officials develop new assessment of incident

NEW YORK (AP) — American intelligence officials have developed a new assessment of the Korean airliner incident which contradicts what both American and Soviet officials have said about the downing of Flight 007, ABC News reported Friday.

The report, on ABC's "World News Tonight," said the new assessment has been shown to high-ranking officials at the White House, State Department and Pentagon.

A White House official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, denied that any high-ranking White House official had seen such an assessment. Sondra McCarty, a State Department spokeswoman, said Friday evening she had no comment on the network's report.

A Soviet fighter shot down the airliner with a missile on Sept. 1. The plane carried 269 people, including 61 Americans, and all died.

Quoting unidentified American intelligence and government sources, ABC reported that the new analysis showed:

Israelis remember Yom Kippur War

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Like every other Israeli, Yehuda Atal remembers exactly where he was and what he was doing on that terrible Yom Kippur 10 years ago. The young economist was relaxing on the banks of the Potomac River in Washington when he heard on his radio that Syria and Egypt had attacked Israel. Like thousands of other Israeli emigres, he got on a plane home to join the fight. Ten years have passed since the war which broke out on Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement. It began Oct. 6, 1973, but the anniversary follows the Jewish calendar and this year falls on Saturday. It has been marked by an outpouring of reminiscences and graveside memorial services. This week Israel television screened a three-part documentary which tried to answer the question that shook Israeli society to its roots — how could an entire nation have been caught so unawares. "Even now, after a decade, it is impossible to discuss the Yom Kippur War unemotionally," writes Hirsh Goodman, the Jerusalem Post's military correspondent. "The death toll was too high: the scars, physical and mental, too deep." Yom Kippur 1973 was Israel's Pearl Harbor, a day of infamy that still reverberates through Israeli society. The war toppled a government and rocked the army. It changed thousands of lives, driving some to religion, some to political extremism, others to emigrate. "We were all guilty," an Israeli leader said afterward, and most agree with him. The lightning victory in the six-day war of 1967 had bred national arrogance and a sense that behind its new, distant borders, Israel was invincible.

Walesa: Solidarity backers need to form regional groups

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa, in an interview published in an underground newspaper, urged backers of the outlawed Solidarity labor movement to form regional organizations to continue the struggle for free trade unions. He suggested, however, that they not use the name Solidarity. "One must realize that at present under the Solidarity label we will win nothing in our fight against the government," Walesa was quoted as saying. "We must therefore suspend Solidarity for the time being, without forgetting its ideals, and create new, regional, community opposition unions which have their own names." The statements were published in the clandestine paper "CDN," initials for the Polish words "To Be Continued." Copies were handed to Western correspondents Friday. CDN reported that Walesa, who was Solidarity's leader, said the new organizations should "constructively criticize the government...take critical stands at open meetings...and create a situation whereby the government will not be able to manage the economic and social spheres. They also should be ready to unite under the Solidarity banner "in the twinkling of an eye," Walesa said, according to the CDN report. It was believed that the new organizations proposed by Walesa also would be illegal under the Oct. 1982 law that dissolved Solidarity — the only free union federation in the Soviet bloc. The 39-year-old labor leader, reached by telephone at his apartment in Gdansk, said the article accurately reflected his thinking, but was not the result of "a single interview, rather parts of various interviews and talks put together." In calling for regional organizations, Walesa appeared to acknowledge that Communist authorities had broken the national Solidarity structure, and was returning to the grass-roots methods he used to organize the underground free union movement. Solidarity was legalized in a pact with the government during nation-wide strikes in August 1980. The CDN article reported that Walesa said his statements also reflected the thinking of his advisers, Roman Catholic clerics, and, to an extent, Pope John Paul II. He declined to give details of his conversation with the pope during the pontiff's tumultuous visit to his homeland in June, but spoke of the "wisdom" of an editorial in the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano.

Political process frozen as Israel observes holy day

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin remained in seclusion Friday, and political talks on forming a new government were frozen as Israel virtually shut down for Yom Kippur, the hallowed Day of Atonement. From the Awali River in Lebanon to the baking Red Sea port of Eilat, thousands of Israelis crowded into synagogues and began the traditional 25-hour fast from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday as penance for sins committed during the past Jewish year of 5743. Traffic halted, airports closed and border crossing points were shut until Saturday night. Secular Jews who do not observe Yom Kippur dined behind shuttered windows and refrained from driving lest they be stoned by orthodox zealots. The local first aid service appealed to the public not to impede ambulances. Negotiations were to resume Saturday night on choosing a successor to Begin, who resigned on Thursday. President Chaim Herzog said he would begin consultations with political parties Sunday on whom to appoint to head the next government. He was to see the opposition Labor Party first because it is the largest faction in Parliament, and Begin's Likud bloc later in the day. Israel radio said Herzog might announce his choice on Wednesday. Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir was chosen by the Likud Party to succeed Begin. Shamir, an old comrade of Begin from the days when they fought together for Israeli independence, expects Herzog to appoint him premier-designate because he has the signed agreement of all other parties in the outgoing coalition to continue serving under him. The Labor Party wants its leader, Shimon Peres, appointed because it outnumbers Likud 50-46 in the 120-member Parliament.

Wealthy Filipinos protest regime

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippines' usually placid financial center exploded with firecrackers and confetti Friday and thousands of office workers and executives spilled into the streets to demand the resignation of President Ferdinand E. Marcos. The unprecedented demonstration in Manila's Makati suburb was the latest in a campaign to pressure Marcos to quit following the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino Aug. 21. Marcos' foes accuse his regime of complicity in the murder, a charge he denies. "The cream has now joined the masses and that is what is significant to me," said Aquino's younger brother, Agapito. It was the first time that opposition to the Marcos regime had surfaced publicly in the local business community, a group that previously had stayed aloof from such open displays of political sentiment. The protest was the fourth this week. The series is the most sustained since Marcos, in power for nearly 18 years, crushed anti-government riots in 1972 by declaring martial law. He ended the emergency in 1981 but strict controls remain.

ICAO orders probe of incident

MONTREAL (AP) — The International Civil Aviation Organization on Friday ordered an investigation of the Soviet downing of a South Korean passenger jet, rejecting Soviet objections that the decision was "unacceptable to us."

Meeting in emergency session, the governing council of the ICAO voted 26-2 with three abstentions to accept the resolution "deeply deploring the destruction of an aircraft in commercial international service resulting in the loss of 269 innocent lives." It did not directly condemn the Soviets for their action.

The resolution, sponsored by 11 nations, urges all parties — including the Soviet Union — to cooperate with the ICAO's probe of the downing of Korean Air Lines Flight 007 on Sept. 1. The Boeing 747 was shot down by jet fighters when it entered Soviet air space after deviating from the planned course between Anchorage, Alaska, and Seoul, South Korea.

The ICAO, a U.N. agency, directed its Air Navigation Commission to consider rule changes "to prevent a recurrence of such a tragic incident" and to look for ways to improve communication between military and civil aircraft and air traffic control services.

"We cannot agree to this resolution," Soviet delegate Ivan V. Orlovets said before the vote. "This resolution does not give the true reasons for the incident."

After adjournment, Orlovets refused to say whether his country would cooperate with the agency probe.

The head of the U.S. delegation, Federal Aviation Administrator J. Lynn Helms, expressed satisfaction with the resolution.

"We are pleased at the very, very strong support that has been evidenced by the world civil aviation community as reflected by the strong and positive vote," Helms said.

If the Soviets refuse to cooperate with the investigation, they would "clearly establish that the impact of civil aviation safety is not as meaningful to them as it is to the rest of the world," he added.

South Korean spokesman Park Kun said his country had hoped for a stronger condemnation of the Soviet attack.

"The resolution is far, far behind our expectations, to be frank," Park said in the council. "Nevertheless, as a member of ICAO and the international community we wanted to be responsible and accommodating."

Park said Soviet cooperation is "the only way they can re-establish their credibility as a member of ICAO."

The council also adopted a French proposal to begin work on an amendment to the agency charter "involving an undertaking to abstain from recourse to the use of force against civil aircraft."

Only Czechoslovakia voted with the Soviet Union against the resolution in the 33-member council. Abstaining were India, China and Algeria. Iraq and Lebanon were absent.

The resolution was introduced by Canada and co-sponsored by the United States, France, Italy, Australia, Spain, Denmark, West Germany, Japan, Britain and the Netherlands.

Also voting in favor were Egypt, El Salvador, Indonesia, Jamaica, Madagascar, Mexico, Nigeria, Pakistan, Senegal, Uganda, Cameroon, Venezuela, Argentina, Brazil and Colombia.

Soviets again refuse to accept note

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department tried again today to deliver two diplomatic notes demanding compensation from the Soviet Union for the Americans and South Koreans killed when a Soviet fighter shot down a South Korean airliner.

But, for the second time this week, the Soviets refused to accept the note.

The State Department, meanwhile, confirmed that state officials in New York and New Jersey had said they wouldn't permit a Soviet plane carrying Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to use commercial airports in the New York when he travels to the United Nations later this month.

The action was taken to protest the shooting down of a South Korean airliner two weeks ago.

John Hughes, the department spokesman, said the State Department had asked state officials to grant the Soviets landing rights for a special flight for Gromyko, but they refused. The Reagan administration has approved a special flight for Gromyko, Hughes said.

He said Gromyko would be allowed to fly into a military airport in the area, but that he couldn't travel on a commercial Aeroflot flight, the Soviet national airline. When it was pointed out that Gromyko doesn't normally travel on a commercial Soviet airliner, but does travel in a government aircraft with the designation "Aeroflot" on the side, Hughes said he didn't know whether that plane would be allowed to land or not.

Many Western nations have banned Aeroflot flights for a two-week period to protest the airliner tragedy. However, there is no regularly scheduled direct commercial airliner travel between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Regarding the diplomatic note, Hughes said the second-ranking diplomat in the Soviet Embassy, Oleg Sokolov, was told there might be international repercussions if the Soviets continued to refuse to accept the note.

Sokolov was summoned to the State Department for a meeting with Richard Burt, the assistant secretary of state.

But even after Burt warned of repercussions, Sokolov still refused to accept the note, Hughes said. Soviet officials have denied any wrongdoing in shooting down the airliner and have refused to pay any compensation.

After Sokolov left the building without the note, the State Department delivered the note to the Soviet Embassy. Hughes said it wasn't returned.

China's gang leaders get death

PEKING (AP) — Shanghai courts have sentenced more than 15 alleged gang leaders to death this week for rape, robbery and assault as part of a national crackdown on crime, Shanghai newspapers said.

Six of the people ordered to be executed had led gangs in armed street battles, the newspapers said. Others included the leader of a gang that ripped the blouses off two women and then assaulted them.

Authorities outlaw witchcraft

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) — Soccer authorities, concerned by the use of witchcraft on the playing field, announced Friday they will impose a $450 fine on any team caught using magic charms.

Teams frequently rely on magic, and consider their witch doctor as important as their trainer. It is a common sight to see players or spectators sprinkling "divine water" within the opponent's goal before a game.

Announcing the crackdown, local soccer official Joel Nhleko described witchcraft as "a devil practice" and said he feared it would lead to serious violence.

Turks observe Soviet cruiser

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A new type of Soviet cruiser passed through the Turkish straits in the latest sign of a Soviet military buildup in the Mediterranean, Turkish naval experts said Friday.

The experts said the 13,000-ton Shaba came from the Black Sea and entered the Mediterranean late Thursday. It was accompanied on its maiden voyage by a Kashin class destroyer, they said.

Soviets: Pilot boasted of spying

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet army newspaper on Friday accused the pilot of the downed South Korean jumbo jetliner of boasting to friends about carrying out spy missions for the United States under a secret agreement between Korean Air Lines and the CIA.

There was no immediate comment from South Korean officials. A Soviet interceptor shot down the jetliner Sept. 1 over the Soviet island of Sakhalin. All 269 people aboard the airliner were killed. The Soviets have claimed that the plane was on a spy mission organized by the United States.

Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star), the newspaper of the Soviet Ministry of Defense, did not cite any proof for its statements or say how it got its information.

Soviets launch personal attack on president

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — Lambasting Ronald Reagan as a bloodthirsty "ignoramus," the Kremlin has turned its propaganda barrage over the South Korean airliner into one of the angriest and most sustained personal attacks against any U.S. president.

Departing from previous policy toward American presidents, the Soviets have named Reagan in virtually every press commentary on the plane over the past two weeks, lending a highly personal touch to the constant flow of anti-American propaganda in the state-controlled press.

A Soviet interceptor shot down the South Korean jumbo jet Sept. 1, killing the 269 people aboard, and the Soviet Union has accused the United States of sending the plane over Soviet territory on a spy mission.

Government newspapers have run a series of biting cartoons caricaturing Reagan as a blind cowboy, a bloody-fanged gorilla and a Nazi-like propagandist bellowing into a megaphone.

Anti-Reagan rhetoric began right after he took office and intensified with the president's depiction of the Soviet Union as an "evil empire."

But the airliner disaster served as a focus for the Kremlin's clear dislike of Reagan.

Even before a Soviet fighter shot down the Boeing 747, a Soviet source who insisted on anonymity, predicted personal attacks on Reagan would increase and that their tone would get nastier as the 1984 election approaches.

Although the source said the Kremlin would like to tarnish Reagan's image with the American electorate, it appeared questionable that such a Soviet campaign would have that result in the United States.

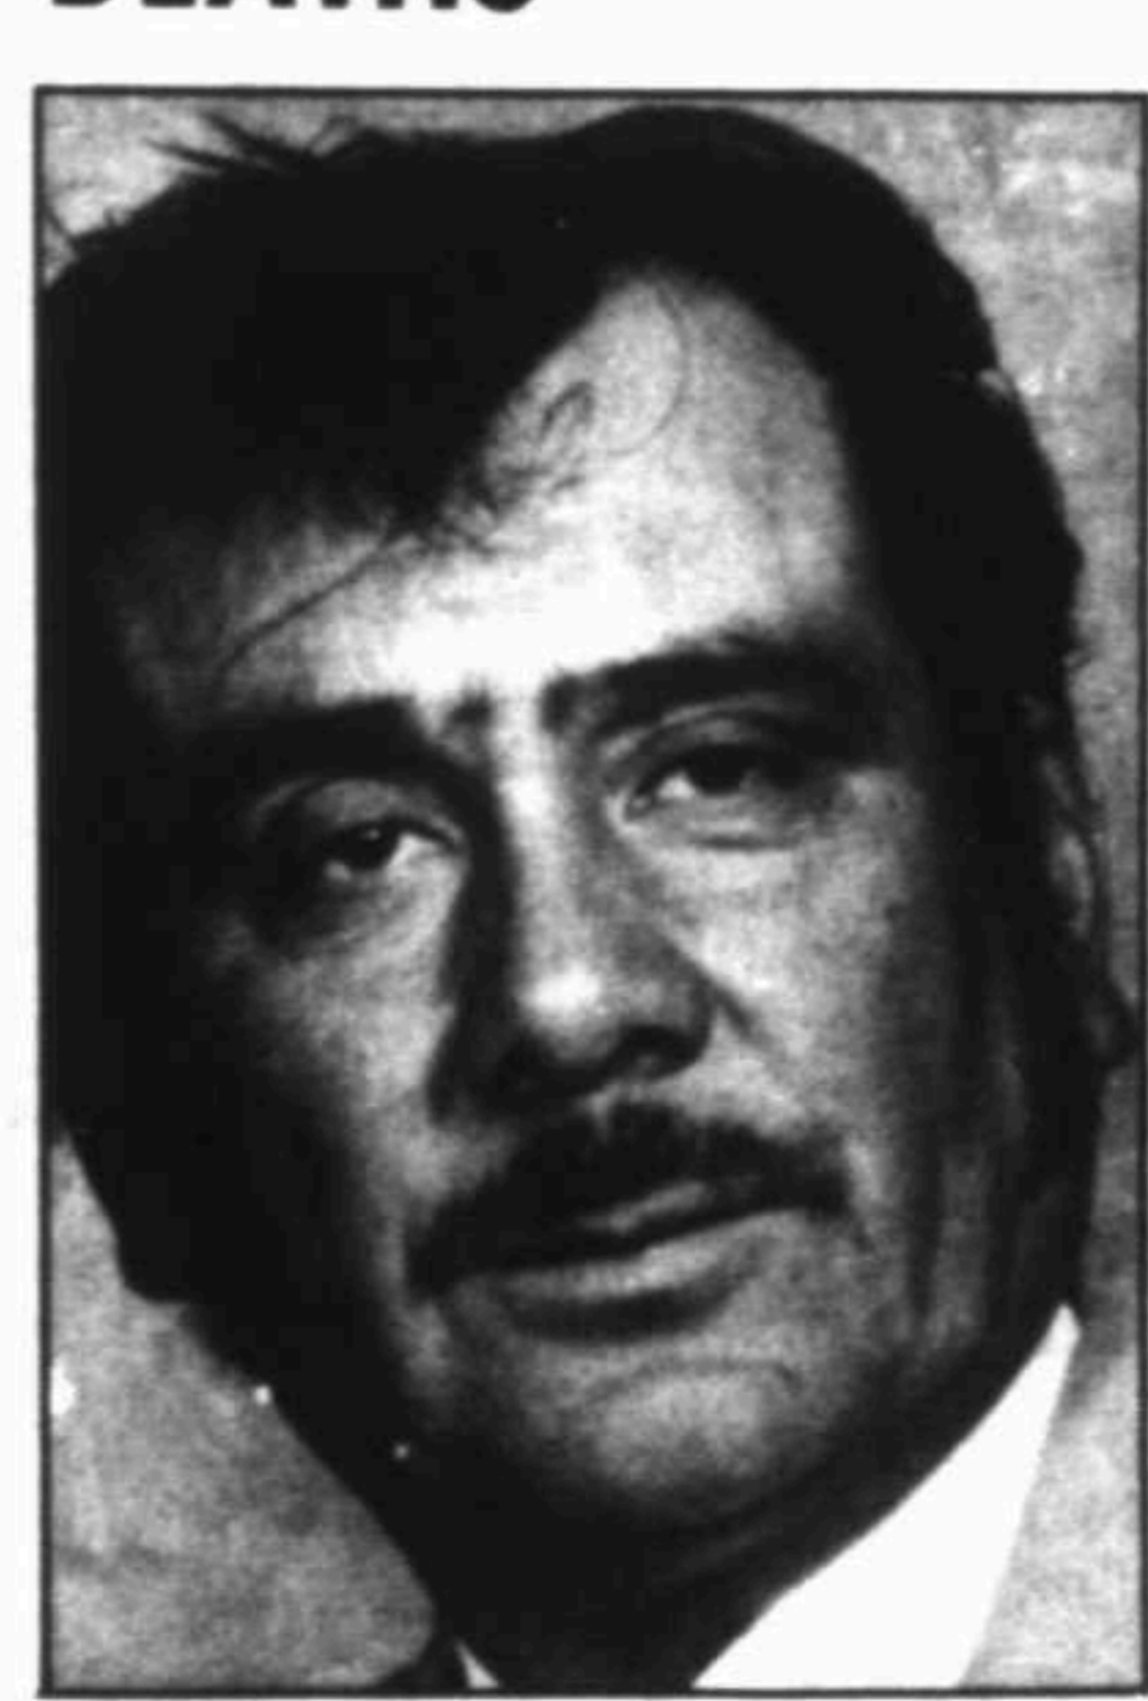

In the first "government statement" on the airliner, the Kremlin immediately singled out Reagan as the purported mastermind of what the Soviets insist was a spy mission.

Saying Reagan "makes himself out as an ignoramus" about international law, the Soviets accused him of fanning anti-Soviet hysteria to disrupt the Geneva arms talks and drum up support for his military policies.

The Soviets have claimed all along that Reagan "callously" ignored the safety of those aboard the South Korean plane, but Bolshakov took that one step farther. He claimed the 747 "was sent deliberately into Soviet airspace with an obvious hope that it would be destroyed by the Soviet Union."

The campaign has been orchestrated to blame Reagan and the United States, to defend the Soviet action and to assure Soviets that the Kremlin acted properly in shooting down the airliner.

IRS doesn't want to play role of debt-collection agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of the Internal Revenue Service said Friday that voluntary payment of federal income taxes will suffer if Congress insists on using the IRS as a debt-collection agency.

The IRS already is required to withhold tax refunds from parents who are behind in making child-support payments and whose spouses receive welfare. Congress now is considering a bill requiring the IRS to withhold tax refunds from people who have defaulted on federal student loans.

"It is our belief that most taxpayers proceed on the assumption that the information on their tax returns is inviolate, and will not be pulled from their returns and used against them in a non-tax matter," IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. told a Senate Finance subcommittee.

"The fact that this program (child-support enforcement), and others like it, are authorized by Congress and entirely legal is of little consequence to these taxpayers; they still feel it somehow violates their trust in the tax administration system," Egger added.

SIMILAR CONCERNS were raised by the Treasury Department, parent agency of the IRS.

"Taxpayers become indebted to the federal government in many ways, and any broad-scale use of the tax system to collect debts owed in connection with these federal programs may detract from regular collection efforts and could have troublesome implications," Ronald A. Pearlman, deputy assistant secretary of the treasury, said.

Egger said the IRS expects to report later this year on a study of how enforcement of the child-support program, which began in January 1982, has affected taxpayers. Because divorced or separated mothers often must apply for government welfare when they don't receive child-support payments, Congress directed the IRS to go after the delinquents.

In the first eight months of 1983, the IRS reduced the tax refunds of 323,000 delinquent parents. Those offsets, totaling $170 million and averaging about $526, were turned over to state welfare agencies.

"We are concerned that taxpayers' filing and paying habits will be altered once they've experienced an offset (reduction of refund), leading to a greater number of filing delinquencies and unpaid balance-due accounts," Egger said.

JOHN P. ABBOT, a Utah state official and president-elect of the National Reciprocal Family Support Enforcement Association, said more than half of all women who receive child support get less than they are supposed to, and that children are owed more than $4 billion in delinquent support payments.

"The IRS tax-offset program has been a tremendous success and should be further expanded" to cover non-welfare families and people who owe debts to the government, Abbot said.

John F. Simonette of the General Accounting Office, noting that $14 billion is now past due in non-tax debts owed the government, said the IRS should be able to use what it has learned in the child-support program to develop a workable debt-collection plan. But he cautioned that GAO's support of such a plan "should not be interpreted as a recommendation that IRS become a debt-collection clearinghouse."

In a one-month test in 1979, GAO studied 613 delinquent debts that had been written off and found that 36 percent of them, or $153,000, could have been collected over a two-year period by reducing tax refunds. Simonette noted that in 1980 alone, Oregon was able to collect $3.7 million in delinquent debts by withholding state tax refunds.

WILLIS ANN Wolfe, executive director of the Iowa College Aid Commission, endorsed the bill by Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, that would let the IRS subtract from a tax refund any federal student loan that is six months past due.

"Going after student loans in the same way that the IRS goes after delinquent taxes — and applying the same penalties — might go a long way toward dramatizing the obligation to repay these loans," she said.

The only other legally sanctioned non-tax use to which the IRS has been put in recent years was in gathering information from retail stores to help enforce federal price controls during the Nixon administration.

THFC schedules hearing Nov. 18

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Health Facilities Commission has scheduled a hearing Nov. 18, on a request from Terrace West Nursing Center of Midland to provide nursing services through the reclassification of beds.

The nursing center seeks to reclassify 24 of its 150 intensive care beds to skilled nursing care beds, according to THFC. The licensure of the facility would change from 150 intensive care beds to 126 intensive care beds and 24 skilled nursing care beds.

Opposition to the application must be filed with the THFC by 5 p.m. Oct. 31.

Rotary Club gives awards to seniors

Midland West Rotary Club has given Youth Leadership Awards to three local high school seniors.

Recipients are Doug Cummins, 3600 Gulf, Lee High; Hal Hester, 3906 Willingham Drive, Permian Basin High School; Edmond Martin, 3603 Gulf, Lee High.

The three returned recently from a five-day Camp RYLA held in the mountains near Taos, N.M. At the camp the students heard talks from professionals representing numerous fields on the subject of careers, goals and the free enterprise system.

DPS captain killed during gun-handling demonstration

GARLAND (AP) — A veteran Texas Department of Public Safety captain was killed Friday when a gun handled by another trooper discharged during a demonstration of gun-handling and survival techniques, the DPS said.

Capt. Robert Ray Jones, 58, a 34-year veteran of the department, was pronounced dead at 4:15 p.m. at Baylor Hospital, officials said. The shooting occurred about 3:05 p.m. in the troopers' report room.

Jones asked to see techniques trooper Ross Powell, 36, learned last week at re-training school in Austin, Rich said. Powell, a 13-year veteran of the force, unloaded his revolver, demonstrated some self-defense techniques, then reloaded the gun and placed it back in his holster, Rich said.

Assessment contradicts U.S., Soviet accounts

—For the 2½ hours the Soviets tracked the commercial jet, they believed they were watching an American RC-135 spy plane and not a 747 jumbo jet. President Reagan has said "there is no way a pilot could mistake this for anything other than a civilian airliner."

—Soviet interceptors misidentified the plane because they were always at least 2,000 feet below the plane and looking up, unable to discern the distinctive silhouette of a 747 jumbo jet. At no time did the interceptors fly at the same altitude as the jet, ABC said. This would contradict the Soviet contention that its pilots tried signaling the Korean plane by wiggling the interceptor's wings.

—An interceptor that fired bullets at the Korean jetliner was so far behind that the airliner was well out of range of the weapon, ABC quoted analysts as saying. Whether the shots were meant as a warning or to shoot down the aircraft was not determined, but in either case the bullets could not have reached the target.

Asked about the reported new assessment, the White House official said, "while we normally don't comment on intelligence matters, no high official in the White House has seen such a paper."

"Our best and most current analysis received today says that our information does not prove one way or the other what the Soviets knew," the official said. "The record shows that after 2½ hours of tracking, the Soviet forces did not make an adequate effort to find out what the aircraft was."

ABC said its sources stressed that what Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz said shortly after the incident was based on the best available information at the time. But other government sources told the network the Reagan administration took the information and drew conclusions that went beyond what was really known in an effort to strengthen the case against the Soviet Union.

Decades-long debate goes on over memorial

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The nation's long-debated memorial to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, authorized but not yet funded by Congress, would wipe out 8.8 acres of heavily used playing fields in West Potomac Park and erase the much-traveled drive beside the Tidal Basin cherry trees, according to an official assessment of its environmental impact.

The memorial would also, the report says, increase auto traffic in the park by 30 percent, compress it by transforming a present one-way loop around the park into a two-way road doubling back upon itself, and complicate parking for the teams and individuals who pack the park on weekends.

"It is the opinion of the National Park Service that this is not an adverse impact" on the park, the final environmental impact statement on the project says. The statement was released jointly by the FDR Memorial Commission and the National Capital Parks region of the National Park Service.

The 168-page statement, dated in June but only recently distributed, suggests on the one hand that life in West Potomac Park would probably be simpler — and probably better for its present users — were the $31 million monument to the nation's 32nd president never built.

"On the other hand," the statement says, "a no-build alternative would be contrary to a 30-year commitment by Congress to memorialize FDR... (and) would result in the loss of a great potential city and national resource."

The debate over where and how to memorialize the father of the New Deal has been under way ever since his death in 1945. Legislation in 1959 reserved a site for the memorial in West Potomac Park. The FDR Memorial Commission, created by Congress in 1955, has endured stormy debates and public rejection of previous memorial designs, the most famous of which called for giant granite tablets derided as "instant Stonehenge."

The project described in the impact statement was approved by Congress in 1982. It would be a slightly scaled-down version of the $46 million to $50 million design authorized by Congress and approved by the Fine Arts Commission in 1978, only to be rejected by the Department of the Interior the following year as too costly.

Designed by San Francisco landscape architect Lawrence Halprin, the memorial as originally conceived would have been the largest and most expensive one ever built in the United States and would have also been the most expensive to maintain. It would have required an annual operating budget of between $1.2 million and $1.6 million, including a permanent staff of 45 to 49 and a part-time staff of 24 — roughly twice the funds and staff needed for the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials.

The current plan eliminates a previously proposed interpretive center, tourmobile access road and information kiosk, and shrinks the overall size of the project from 10 to 8.8 acres.

"The 66-acre section of West Potomac Park that Congress designated as the site of the FDR Memorial presently contains a polo field, a rugby field, two cricket pitches, three soccer fields and 11 softball fields," the impact statement says.

"Construction of the memorial will require relocation or reorientation of most of these fields."

The statement repeatedly notes "there will be no decrease in the number of sports fields in West Potomac Park as a result of construction of the FDR Memorial," but adds, "Some sports fields will, however, be relocated."

Pennington County State's Attorney Rod Lefholz, center, gestures during a press conference Friday morning in Rapid City, S.D., in which he announced that Bobby Kennedy Jr. had been charged with one count of possession of heroin, a felony.

Kennedy charged with possession of heroin

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy Jr., whose bag was searched as he traveled to South Dakota seeking help for a drug problem, was charged Friday with heroin possession.

The felony charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

An arrest warrant was issued.

"We've filed a one-count felony complaint against Mr. Kennedy charging him with possession of heroin," said Rod Lefholz, Pennington County state's attorney.

The 29-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy will appear in court in Rapid City within two weeks, Lefholz said, adding he couldn't be more specific because Kennedy has admitted himself to a hospital for treatment of a drug problem.

Lefholz said he doesn't know where Kennedy is being treated. The delay in the initial court appearance is not uncommon in drug or alcohol cases, said the prosecutor.

"Obviously, we don't just jerk people out of a hospital bed," he said. "Frankly, we're not too worried" about Kennedy not showing up in court, he added.

Kennedy, a former New York City assistant district attorney, came under investigation Sunday after he got sick on a flight from Minneapolis to Rapid City.

Officials continued to refuse Friday to say what led them to get a warrant to search Kennedy's flight bag for "contraband and controlled substances."

According to Bill Walsh of Deadwood, a hotel owner and family friend, Kennedy was on his way to the Black Hills to seek help for drug dependency.

Walsh, a former Catholic priest who has helped set up mental health programs in western South Dakota, said he and Kennedy planned to spend a few days discussing Kennedy's options before he entered a drug program.

Kennedy was charged after the results of a drug analysis became available Thursday night, said the prosecutor.

Circuit Judge Merton B. Tice Jr. granted a personal recognizance bond for Kennedy, a practice Lefholz said is common in such cases.

Lefholz would not specify the amount of heroin allegedly involved, but said it was small.

Teamsters reject plan to slash their wages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Teamsters Union, despite high unemployment among their own ranks, smashed on Friday a plan that would have slashed the wages of laid-off truckers in return for bolstering their chances of being rehired.

The proposal was turned down 94,086 to 13,082, a union spokesman announced.

Teamsters president Jackie Presser had urged union members to go along with the offer to their current contract as a way to "restore economic dignity and security to thousands of laid-off Teamsters and their families."

There was no immediate reaction from Presser to the defeat. He was quoted in the union's announcement of the vote results as saying he "hoped that labor and management jointly could continue to find ways to put unemployed workers back to work."

The announcement also said, "The rider had been discussed as an alternative during the past year and was offered by the 129-member national freight industry negotiating committee as a potential solution to unemployment for the members to consider."

"The final determination was always in the hands of the members."

Ken Paff, organizer for the dissident Teamsters for a Democratic Union, applauded the vote results, calling them "an unprecedented, overwhelming defeat of Presser's big concessionary package."

Paff argued that the plan was made up of "all giveaways. Talk about jobs was hogwash... People are going to be hired back when there's freight to be moved."

Trucking Management Inc., the bargaining arm for the industry, expressed disappointment with the vote.

Arthur H. Bunte Jr., president of the bargaining unit, said, "Our goal remains to work with the Teamsters to find ways to improve conditions in the trucking industry."

Under the leadership of former Teamsters president Roy L. Williams, the nation's largest union granted wide-ranging economic concessions to the freight industry in March 1982 as it settled on a new agreement.

There had been indications recently that the industry, facing increased competition from non-union carriers, was pushing for additional relief.

The rejected plan would have allowed trucking companies to rehire truckers and warehousemen laid off before April 6 at a lower rate than paid to drivers who are still employed. Drivers who have lost their jobs since April would be exempt from the lower rates. Currently employed workers would not be affected.

The plan was worked out last month as a proposed rider to the existing National Master Freight Agreement that covers some 300,000 union truck drivers and freight handlers. The master contract, which expires March 31, 1985, was negotiated with Trucking Management Inc., the bargaining arm for the industry.

With the lower wage rates, union officials contended, the trucking companies would have been able to expand their operations into areas currently dominated by non-union drivers and, in turn, hire new drivers.

According to Teamsters' figures, layoffs in general freight trucking soared to about one-third of seniority lists in April.

Six American Nazis convicted of conspiracy

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Six American Nazis who said they were only "going along" with an undercover federal agent were convicted Friday in their third trial on charges of conspiracy to firebomb parts of Greensboro three years ago.

Three of the defendants were sentenced to five years in prison and three others received suspended sentences.

All six immediately announced they would appeal the convictions.

The Nazis were convicted of plotting to bomb Greensboro if six Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen on trial there in 1980 were found guilty of the shooting deaths of five Communists. The Communists were killed during a "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro in November 1979.

Prosecutors in the conspiracy trial contended that the Nazis canceled their plans when the Greensboro defendants were acquitted.

U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow Jones gave five-year sentences to Raeford Melano Caudle, Joseph Gorrell Pierce and Frank Lee Braswell. The three were also fined $10,000 each.

Jones gave suspended two-year sentences and $1,000 fines to Patsy Keeter Braswell, Roger Allen Pierce and James Christopher Talbert.

The sentences were the same the six received in September 1981 after being convicted on the same charges. The U.S. Court of Appeals ordered a new trial for the six earlier this year. The first trial of the case in 1981 ended in a mistrial.

Politics inflame parents' custody battle

CHICAGO (AP) — The rhetoric of revolution, dark conspiracies and political persecution. At issue is the future of one 12-year-old girl.

Once in love and marching together against the Vietnam War, Tina Fishman Stevenson and her ex-husband, Ted Fishman, are now political adversaries and bitter opponents in a custody fight over their daughter, Riva.

Riva's mother, a supporter of the Revolutionary Communist Party, and her father, employed by a weapons manufacturer, face each other in Circuit Court today for a custody hearing.

Past court action in California gave the girl to the father, holding that Mrs. Fishman Stevenson was too wrapped up in revolutionary politics to be a good mother.

Riva — now living temporarily in a Chicago foster home — has said she wants to live with the father and his family in Redwood City, Calif.

At a court hearing last June, Riva slapped her mother and screamed "I hate you!"

Riva's father is a computer specialist with Lockheed Missile and Space Co. Her mother, who lives in Chicago, supports the Revolutionary Communist Party, a Maoist group.

Those divergent philosophies have sparked acrimonious exchanges between Riva's parents, with the custody fight involving charges of government conspiracies, legal kidnapping, political persecution, sexism and brainwashing.

"I definitely am being punished for my political views in a very underhanded way," said Mrs. Fishman Stevenson, who accuses the U.S. government and her ex-husband of conspiring against her.

"They are using this case as a political football ... to say that revolutionaries make bad mothers and politically active women do not care about their children."

Mrs. Fishman Stevenson said the only reason Riva says she doesn't want to live with her is because "she has been poisoned against me in living with her father and his family." That, she said, explains Riva's slapping her.

But Fishman said his former wife is trying to indoctrinate his daughter with Revolutionary Communist philosophy. "From Riva's standpoint, it's like having a mosquito around who won't go away," he says of his daughter's attitude toward her mother.

Riva "knows what the alternatives are. She knows what she wants."

When Riva, who was learning Hebrew and Jewish traditions at her father's home, was ordered to visit her mother after living in California for two years, she ran away after two days. Police put her in a foster home pending a custody decision.

Mrs. Fishman Stevenson, divorced from Fishman in 1974 after 10 years of marriage, was granted custody of her daughter in an original court order. Their other daughter, Shanti, 15, lives with Fishman.

Riva lived with her mother in Chicago and Indiana for several years, although her father attempted to get custody.

In 1979, Mrs. Fishman Stevenson — a part-time nurse who remarried — was arrested at a demonstration in Washington, D.C., protesting the visit of Deng Xiaoping, then deputy prime minister of China.

Recycled aluminum increases

NEW YORK (AP) — As much as half of all the raw materials used by American industry to manufacture new aluminum products could come from recycled scrap during the 1980s, a recycling executive predicts.

"The general state of the economy will, of course, dictate the specific future use patterns for recycled aluminum as raw material," says M.J. Mighdoll, executive vice president of the National Association of Recycling Industries (NARI).

"But," he adds, "there is every indication that its use will continue to expand, and it could very well reach a total of 50 percent of the nation's raw material supply before the end of this decade."

Mighdoll attributes recycled aluminum's growing importance to the "unprecedented growth in the recovery of aluminum beverage cans and the tremendous energy-saving values of aluminum scrap."

THE BETTER HALF

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, September 18, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The distinguished English author and lexicographer Samuel Johnson was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: rising Chicago Cubs star Ryne Sandberg, actor Robert Blake, Frankie Avalon and the elusive Greta Garbo. The moves you make in September will pay off in October and November. Expand your social and business horizons. You get a rare career opportunity as the year draws to a close. Stay on your toes! January is an excellent time to launch a new business. Romance puts you in touch with fascinating people. Put your best foot forward when meeting an older person with influence. ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your memories seem better when you are alone to enjoy them. Be patient when dealing with a parent-child dispute. Friends are better company than your relatives today. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Love blossoms anew between you and a former sweetheart. Homemakers need to get caught up on their chores. A romance upsets a child. Offer comfort, not advice. Your words are convincing. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A mistake can be rectified. Mate helps you get back on your feet. A good day to let each member of your household do as he pleases. Accept a loving friend's suggestion. CANCER (June 21-July 22): You could have unexpected company today. Do not show your dismay. Grin and bear it. A treasured item disappears, but will eventually be found. A child's imagination needs free rein. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Family needs must come first even if it means changing all your plans. The sacrifice will be worth it. The right romantic partner understands. Your social obligations may be getting out of hand. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Handle a money matter so that the check gets in the mail today. A mistake could cost you and your loved ones time and money. Be careful about dates. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What you say and do when socializing with business colleagues. Voice your views on a community improvement program to your neighbors. Entertaining at home is fun and saves money. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find the solution to a problem that has worried you for days. Loved one is holding something back from you to protect your feelings. Ask him/her for the whole story. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A generation gap no longer exists. Family heirlooms could cause arguments between brothers and sisters. Play it cool but take steps to protect your interests. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An anonymous supporter gives you valuable information. A one-day trip is a wonderful break for someone who has felt confined recently. You get good news about a financial project. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those who have been going through a rough time now see the light at the end of the tunnel. Follow your heart this evening. Romance is more rewarding than in the recent past. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A promise is fulfilled. You are both surprised and pleased. A child who has been testing your authority now backs off. Sell or give away clothes and furniture you no longer use.

What's new this TV season

NEW YORK (AP) — John Wayne would have turned off the new television season.

Male leads in new series for 1983-84 just ain't what they used to be. They don't try to rearrange faces with their fists or let sidearms do their talking.

No sir. These sentimental types have feelings. They apologize. They turn the other cheek. Sometimes, the cheek is even wet with tears.

"Men are more vulnerable," says Alec Baldwin of CBS' new medical show, "Cutter to Houston." "I think it's more interesting to do things differently."

In the series, Baldwin's character, Hal, wants to date the town bully's sister. The bully has other ideas and it looks like an old-fashioned barroom brawl is brewing, until Hal comes up with a novel suggestion:

"If I strike you out, you leave your sister alone."

Strikeouts rather than shootouts? If last year's movie hit "Tootsie" could have a man become a better man by dressing as a woman, anything's possible.

"LAST YEAR, I was supposed to be vulnerable. But this year I really am," says Bruce Boxleitner, whose last series about the adventures of animal trapper Frank Buck withered on the vine. Now he's a spy with a passive-resistance streak in CBS' "Scarecrow and Mrs. King."

On NBC's "The Rousers," star Chad Everett says, "We try to approach fisticuffs with tongue-in-cheek fervor." Only when the bad guy harasses a woman does Everett's Wyatt Earp III put up his dukes.

The Duke, John Wayne, would approve of rescuing damsels in distress. Wayne would not, however, approve of the one western this season, NBC's "Yellow Rose."

"INSTEAD OF riding around on horses for 52 minutes, we only ride around for eight," says Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment.

"Yellow Rose," a beautifully filmed contemporary drama on a working ranch in Texas, has some fist-fights, but Roy (David Soul) can also apologize to Chance (Sam Elliott) in a poignant moment. This may be the compelling soap opera that third-rated NBC has never had. It is so genuinely human that it may appeal to non-soap lovers. This ranch is no Southfork.

NBC, which is making the only dramatic shows worth watching, is bringing reality to the 10 p.m. Eastern time slot. Besides returning "Hill Street Blues" and "St. Elsewhere" and the new "Yellow Rose," there's "Bay City Blues," about the life and loves of young minor league baseball players in a working-class town, and "For Love and Honor," about the life and loves of young paratroopers in training during peacetime.

"FOR LOVE and Honor" has the look, feel and barking-sergeant sound of last summer's sleeper movie, "An Officer and a Gentleman." Also in the military vein is "Emerald Point N.A.S.," first titled "Navy." In this CBS program, Dennis Weaver plays an on-base commander and a widower who worries about his sailors, his three daughters and the maneuvers all might perform. This show will have more beds than boats, and more soap than water.

ABC also has a new serial, "Hotel," which is going the Disneyland route. In the pilot, for instance, the king of Portugal comes to the St. Gregory Hotel and leaves with a waitress. Fairy tale time.

"Hotel" stars Bette Davis, whose contract calls for limited appearances, and James Brolin, who may be remembered for his last goody-goody role on "Marcus Welby, M.D."

TV DOCTORS are fashionable again. Besides returning "Trapper John, M.D." and "St. Elsewhere," CBS introduces "Cutter to Houston" and ABC has "Trauma Center" — two shows with strangely similar scripts.

On both pilot episodes, explosions cause serious arm injuries. The CBS limb is amputated, the one on ABC is saved when Lou Ferrigno (formerly The Incredible Hulk) sticks it in a cooler for successful reconnecting surgery.

Company waits to salvage Spanish galleon San Jose

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

CHICAGO — Almost two years ago, a research submarine pinpointed the possible location of the one of the most valuable wrecks in history, the sunken Spanish galleon San Jose, which went down 275 years ago off the coast of Colombia carrying gold and silver coins, ingots, plate, jewelry and religious articles now worth at least $1 billion.

Sea Search-Armada, a Chicago group that under an exclusive search contract has spent nearly $10 million looking for the San Jose, proposed to the Colombian government that it salvage the treasure and split the proceeds 50-50 with the government. Then, six months ago, according to Chicago venture capitalist Warren Stearns, head of Sea Search, talks with the government stalled inexplicably.

About that time, Texas oilman John G. McMillian, the hard-driving chief of Northwest Energy Co., a natural gas pipeline firm based in Salt Lake City, appeared on the scene to pursue what he calls "a longstanding interest of mine."

Now, Stearns said, a Colombian navy officer has recommended that Stearns be awarded a 5 percent finder's fee and that McMillian get the contract to be the principal salvor.

Colombian President Belisario Betancur has appointed a special commission to advise him on the salvage contract. A decision on who gets the contract is expected soon.

McMillian said he hosted a dinner for numerous senior Colombian ministers in Bogota "in the past six or eight weeks" and visited them to discuss the proposal. "You call them up, tell them what you want to do and go see them," he said.

At the beginning of the summer, he hired an archivist, Mendel Peterson, former director of underwater exploration projects for the Smithsonian Institution, to direct the effort to compute the location of the San Jose and the value of her cargo. Peterson said his work is not yet complete.

Stearns, who said he has visited Colombian officials in Bogota and the ambassador in Washington, calls McMillian "an opportunistic interloper (with) no background, no legal rights, making statements that he's a serious bidder. Colombian law and legal opinions give us exclusive rights to enter into a (salvage) contract with Colombia."

On Aug. 18, Stearns and several associates discussed their salvage problems with Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., at the Chicago Club here.

Stearns said there is a "million-to-one chance" Sea Search has not found the ship. A Colombian refusal to grant salvage rights to the finders would be unprecedented, he said.

McMillian said his salvage effort could take up to 120 days of deep sea diving and cost Northwest Energy about $5 million if the hulk and its treasure are found.

"We have made a proposal to be the contractor for the Colombian government for the San Jose and other such wrecks as may be in Colombian waters," McMillian said. "The San Jose is there. I think it's been located; it hasn't really been verified. History says it's there, in 800 feet of water...We have made a proposal. It hasn't been accepted..."

He declined to divulge the terms of his proposal beyond saying, "We'd be looking at a continuing relationship with Colombia."

He said he believes there are "four or five" groups bidding for the right to salvage the San Jose.

The San Jose is now the rotted remains of a wooden vessel about 180 feet long that probably was launched almost 300 years ago in Spain. It was armed with bronze cannons, according to Sea Search's archivist, Dr. Eugene Lyon, who has spent years in the Archives of the Indies in Seville, Spain, researching galleons to learn about the Spanish presence in North America.

The bronze cannons, some weighing two tons, give the ship an unusual magnetic signature, which Stearns said he is certain that Sea Search's deep-diving submarine, Auguste Piccard, detected during several passes over a site where Lyons and two other experts calculated that the ship had come to rest under 800 feet of water.

The San Jose was about 20 miles off Cartagena, New Granada, as Colombia was called then, leading a treasure armada of 17 ships when she was attacked by a British squadron on June 8, 1708. The 64-gun Spanish ship was defeated. Just as the British flagship closed in to take her as a prize, she exploded and sank.

More than 600 Spanish sailors, officers, colonial gentry and servants drowned. They took with them all their savings, plus treasure headed for the coffers of King Philip V of Spain and the merchants who bankrolled much of Spain's New World enterprises.

Unlike most Spanish bullion ships lost in the Caribbean during the three centuries the Spanish plundered New World riches, not one royal escudo has ever been salvaged from the San Jose. At 800 feet, the Caribbean sea floor where it sank is far beyond the recovery capabilities of past years.

Armed with exotic gear perfected in this era of electronics, offshore oil drilling, deep-diving submarines and advanced knowledge of human chemistry, modern salvors now have the ability to locate and salvage deeply submerged wrecks covered with silt and coral. They use side-scan sonars, magnetometers, satellite navigation and undersea locator beacons.

The deepest, richest salvage to date occurred two years ago, when British divers working at 800 feet cut through the hull of British cruiser HMS Edinburgh and retrieved gold ingots worth $72 million. The ship went down after a German submarine torpedoed her in the frigid Barents Sea off the Soviet north coast in 1942 as she was carrying gold to the United States as a Lend Lease payment.

McMillian said he has retained the Scottish firm of divers who brought back the Edinburgh's gold to dive on the San Jose.

Assuming the galleon is found, whoever eventually gets the salvage contract will proceed in a similar way. A support ship will be positioned over the hulk and kept almost motionless.

Rubik ready to market cube's successors

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Erno Rubik, having addicted 100 million people with his maddening puzzle cubes, is about to inflict Rubik's Cheese on the world. And then Rubik's Secret.

The plastic Cheese, a sort of a multi-hued Dutch gouda that fights back, should be available for international marketing early next year, perhaps with another name, Rubik said in an interview. The Cheese, basically a Cube of another shape, works on the same principle — you have to get the colors lined up properly.

The Secret is still an idea kicking around loose, causing anguish for Rubik, a 39-year-old millionaire in a country where the average wage is the equivalent of $100 a month.

As custom dictates for builders of better mousetraps, the world has beaten a path to his door. But Rubik doesn't know what to tell it.

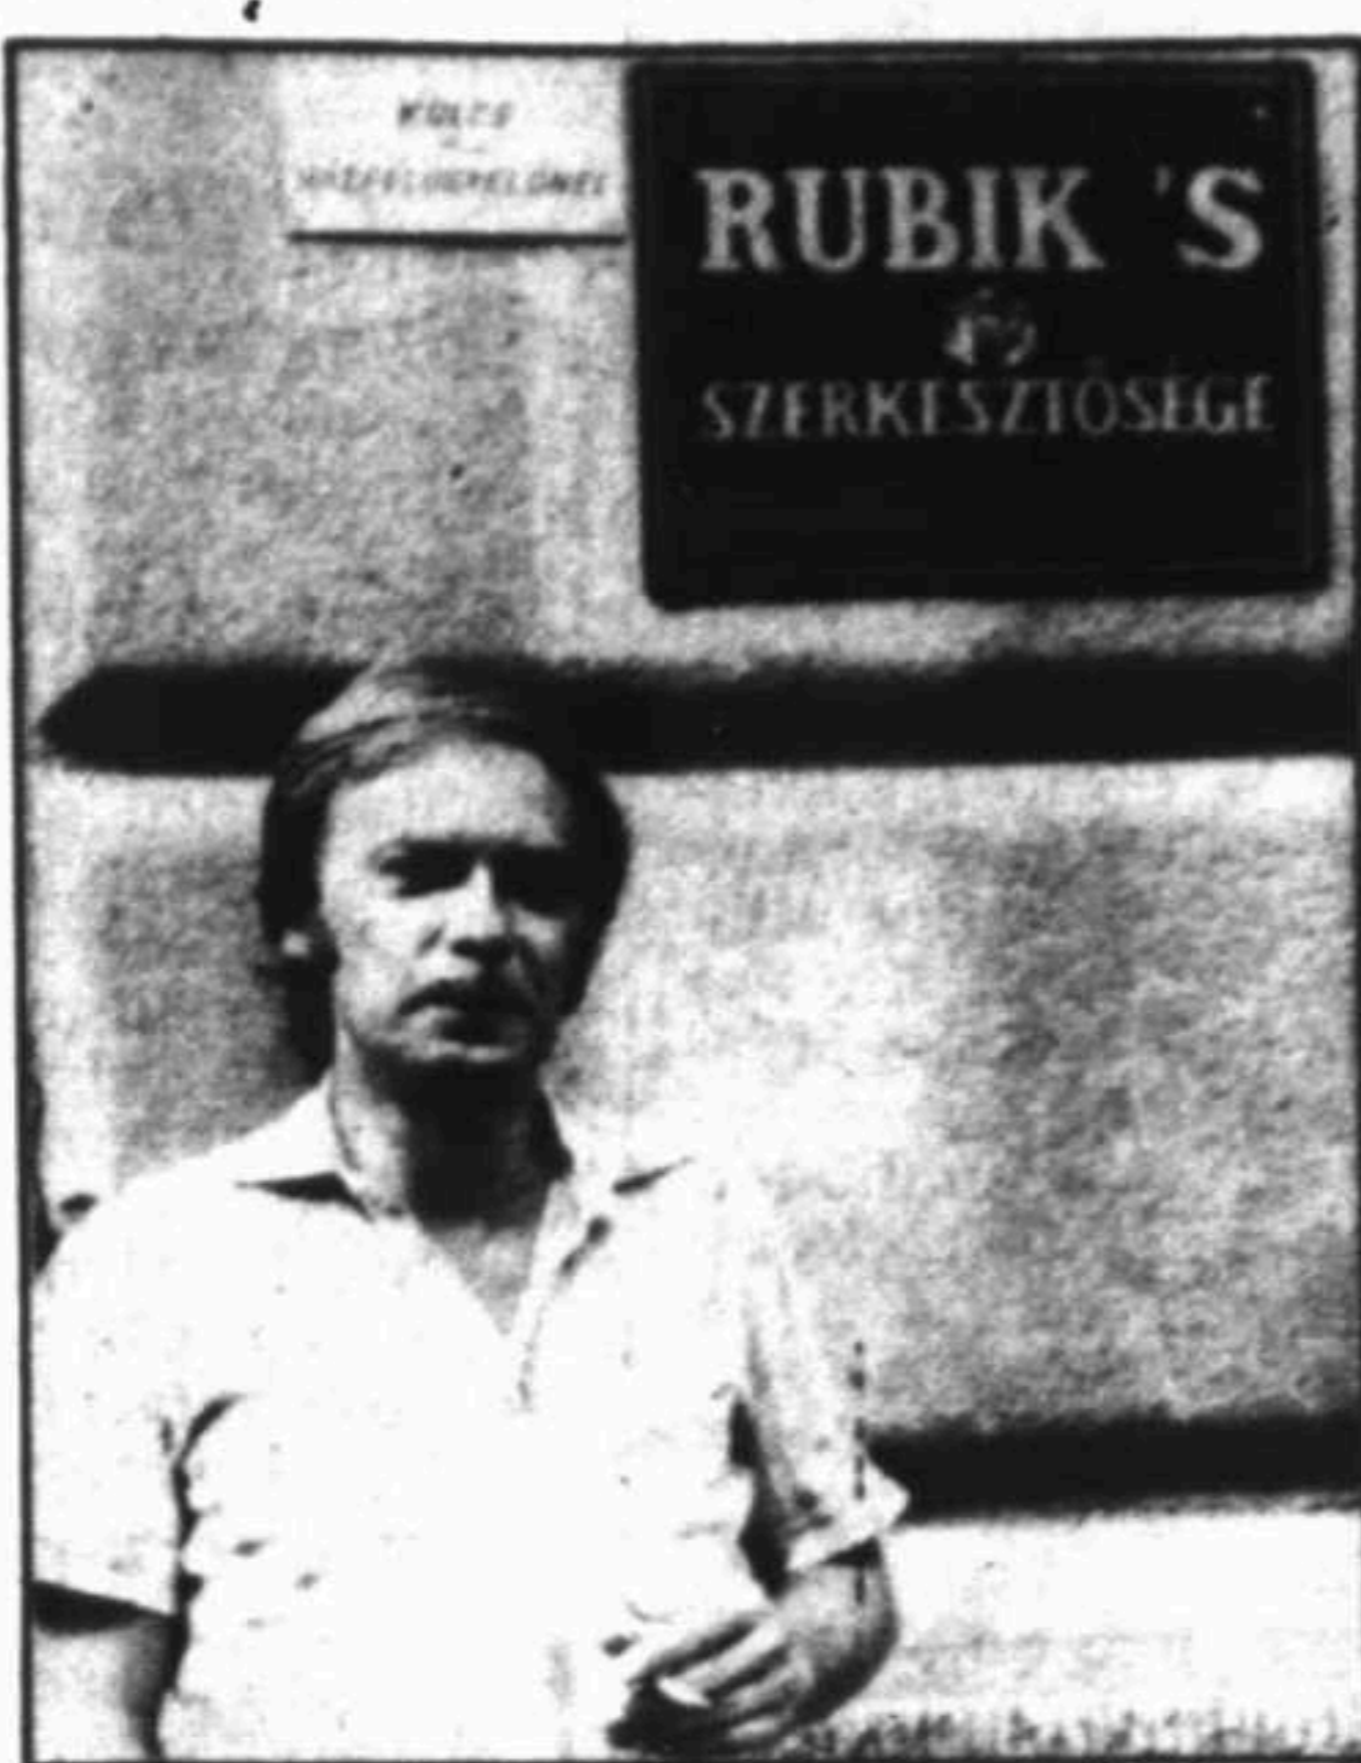

"Everyone expects something better," he said. "But I'm not a toy maker, I design buildings, engineering works. How can I top the cube? It's a terrible problem."

Asked how he first worked out the concept of Rubik's Cube, he said "I have answered that so many times ..."

But he brightened up, with an impish grin, when asked about the cube's addictive properties:

"It is a trap, and it is easy to walk into it. It looks quite harmless. But once you get hold of it ... it affects self-esteem, vanity. You figure so many others have done it, children, and you tell yourself you're not more stupid than they are ..."

With some pride, Rubik says 50 million copies of 100 different books have been sold explaining how to solve his puzzle. With less satisfaction, he notes that twice as many pirated versions of the cube are sold as are legally licensed ones.

Rubik's stated aim is ignoring success, and he goes back to work in September as a teacher at the Academy of Applied Arts in Budapest, a university-level design school.

But his life has been reordered by the cube. He just finished a 300-page manuscript — a sort of autobiography — for William Morrow & Co. Inc. publishers in New York.

He puts out a quarterly magazine, Rubik's, in English, German, French, Russian and Hungarian, dealing with "logic and fantasy." And he has set up a foundation to offer grants to promising Hungarian inventors.

Last year, Rubik made 25 foreign trips including four tours of the United States.

At home, his success is sometimes an embarrassment for the Communist government, sometimes a source of national pride. Authorities courting Western financiers cite him as an example of the way enterprising Hungarians can do well. Because of patent laws, tax on his royalties is limited to 20 percent.

But "they play him down in the press and publicly," said one media specialist who asked not to be named. "Personal success, individual enterprise are still not encouraged in the system."

If the world has imposed on Rubik, he has returned the compliment. Cubaholics on six continents write him hundreds of letters a month describing their adventures with his puzzle.

Cecil Smith, for example, claims a world record for cube ownership. Smith, 54, of Hanahan, S.C., has 617 cubes. His letter was signed, "Cubingly yours."

Abuses, Soviet-Cuban ties cause Grenadians concern

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Nearly 4½ years after the English-speaking Caribbean's first revolution, Grenada's leftist leaders point to a lengthy list of improvements while playing down increasing complaints about stifled freedoms.

In some 25 interviews recently, many Grenadians complained about the lack of elections and an independent press, rising taxes, Soviet and Cuban presences here and the large number of political detainees.

"There is a lot of fear about the future of the country," said Phil Bonaparte, a Grenadian medical student. "But it's hard to air your views. Few people will talk about the political situation. They don't want to be labeled counterrevolutionary."

Maurice Bishop, the 39-year-old prime minister, said in an interview, however, his support is deeper than ever.

"I think it's very important not to confuse occasional symptoms or a surface response to certain issues," he said. "Obviously, people complain. But as for the overall mood of the country, there is very heightened popular support of the revolution."

The movement that ousted Prime Minister Eric Gairy on March 13, 1979, is led by a team of London-educated socialists.

Their litany of accomplishments includes expanded services, free education, free health care, road improvements, low-cost housing, and curbing government corruption and sexual harassment.

"I think people all over the world have short memories," Bishop said. "They tend to take these things very lightly and they expect more and more.

"Therefore, we have to get across to the population that benefits don't drop out of the sky like manna from heaven. They come through increased production. More work. More sacrifices."

A 1982 World Bank report said Bishop took over a deteriorating, corrupt economy and it praised the new government's efforts to stimulate the economy. But the international recession and what Bishop calls "American economic aggression" have hurt tourism and agricultural exports.

Costa Rica defends model democracy

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — At the southern end of the Central American chain of military-dominated governments and guerrilla wars, Costa Rica remains an idyllic land of verdant mountains and pristine beaches that defends its model democracy without an army.

But runoff from the regional turmoil spills over in the form of more refugees than the country can absorb, disruption along its northern border from fighting in Nicaragua and additional economic problems.

"There is much talk that if this (Central American) war occurs there will be a regionalization, an internationalization of the war," President Luis Alberto Monge said in a recent interview with The Associated Press. "But what we most fear, more than a possible invasion of our country in case there is a war, is a 'migration bomb.'"

"We already have many refugees here from Central America, especially from El Salvador and Nicaragua. If this increases violently we would need extraordinary, massive, immediate aid from the United Nations and other international organizations to be able to confront the 'migration bomb.'"

Officials recently began issuing documents for the estimated 200,000 illegal immigrants in the country, most of them Central Americans. Those who don't register will be expelled, Assistant Interior Minister Enrique Chacon Zuniga said.

But in a country of 2.4 million, many Costa Ricans are concerned that large numbers of refugees will not be easily assimilated.

Costa Ricans spend about 30 percent of their national budget on education and pride themselves on their 90 percent literacy rate, one of the highest in Latin America; the 11-year-old National Youth Symphony, and theater and dance groups. They fear the immigrants could rapidly change the texture of the population.

A recent wave of squatter invasions indicates the already existing pressure for housing and small parcels of land in the mountainous, West Virginia-sized country. Most of the available land is not good for farming and much is inaccessible and requires investment to make it usable.

Aware of its vulnerability, the country encourages peace efforts. Monge helped U.S. presidential envoy Richard Stone in both of his meetings with Salvadoran leftists.

The government emphasizes its neutrality in armed conflicts. But Monge says "when the confrontation is over ideas or elections, we are not neutral, we are belligerently in favor of democracy."

One of those conflicts is on Costa Rica's northern doorstep, where Nicaraguan exiles, led by former revolutionary leader Eden Pastora, are fighting the leftist Sandinista government. Pastora and his followers, who still consider themselves Sandinistas, oppose the Managua leadership, saying it has curbed freedoms, delayed elections and become too closely aligned with Moscow and Havana.

Pastora was known as Commander Zero during the revolution that culminated in the July 1979 overthrow of rightist President Anastasio Somoza.

Life in Libya little changed by fighting

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The war in Chad is having some adverse effects on life in oil-rich Libya, but the drop in oil prices is probably having more. And there are no obvious signs of the poverty and hunger prevalent in other African nations.

One resident said a friend lost a son, an air force pilot, in the desert war to the south.

Others reported panic buying in Tripoli's stores after heavy fighting broke out in Chad in June.

They said the army confiscated all privately owned four-wheel-drive trucks during the summer, presumably to haul supplies to the troops in northern Chad.

They also said hospitals have run out of many medicines. One resident said he heard a doctor remark jokingly that if he wanted a cholera vaccination, he would have to go to Chad.

French and American diplomatic sources in Chad estimate that 3,000 Libyan troops, backed by 100 warplanes, numerous tanks and artillery, are aiding former President Goukouni Oueddei in his fight against President Hissene Habre.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy has consistently denied his troops are fighting in Chad.

It is hard to gauge what effect the war is having on the popularity of Khadafy, whose only official title is Leader of the Revolution and who transformed the former Italian colony into a radical socialist state. Libyans apparently are afraid to speak frankly, and diplomats and foreigners find reliable information hard to come by.

"Regardless of what you think of Khadafy, it cannot be denied that he has done a phenomenal job of improving the lot of his people," said one diplomat.

He has poured billions of oil dollars into new roads, houses, hospitals and schools for a nation that is 95 percent barren rock and desert with only 3 million people.

But harder times have come because of the world oil glut that has driven down the price of petroleum, which provides 95 percent of the country's income. The annual oil income — once more than $25 billion — is expected to be less than half that this year.

However, military spending, estimated at more than a third of the government budget, is increasing because of the war. And diplomats say this is aggravating the shortage of hard currency because oil dollars must be used to buy more military supplies.

As a result, Khadafy's ambitious 1981-85 five-year plan has been drastically reduced from $62 billion. Half-finished construction projects dot Tripoli's skyline. But work is plentiful, and the economy still employs a million foreigners who do most of the menial labor.

The Libyans tend to stick to well-paying managerial jobs. They are cash rich, residents say, but because of the foreign currency shortage there is little to spend their money on.

Food, most of it imported, is ample, but distribution is erratic, and shortages of various products are frequent. This leads to a lot of hoarding, residents said.

Consumer goods are also in short supply. The country manufactures no cars, and none have been imported for nearly two years. Spare parts are impossible to find, so it is not unusual to see people arriving from abroad carrying mufflers or tires.

With little else to spend their money on, the well-to-do have turned to housing construction. Plush villas, some with marble or tiled outer walls, are popping up all over the clean capital city.

Khadafy still brands the United States the "great devil" and reviles it at every occasion, but U.S. products are considered a status symbol.

Visiting dignitaries are driven around in Cadillacs and Chevrolets. Blue jeans are the height of fashion, and Marlboros are one of the most popular brands of cigarettes.

Car used to transport Jews makes final journey to Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — When a boxcar used to transport Jews during World War II was delivered to the Jewish Community Center here, Dorothy Hersch couldn't bear to watch. Schoolchildren looked on Thursday as a crane unloaded the boxcar at the center, where it will become part of a memorial for Holocaust survivors. But Mrs. Hersch, whose husband's family was killed in German concentration camps, could not look. "I turn away from it. It's painful," she said. "It's very real, and it's very personal."

For others who knew the grim purpose of the boxcar, the arrival of the red carriage brought a mixture of emotions. Mike Jacobs, an Auschwitz survivor responsible for bringing the boxcar to Dallas from Belgium, said the first thing he did was walk inside — and remember. "I'm sure this car is soaked with tears; the walls, the floors," Jacobs said. "I remembered I traveled in a car like this with my parents," Jacobs told The Dallas Morning News. "They would hold me up to the windows so I could look out to see signs or villages to tell which direction we were taking."

He and his family traveled in a similar car for 3 1/2 days in November 1939, he said. The boxcar was donated by the Belgian government. It was transported by ship from Holland to Galveston and then by truck to Dallas. "Well look, I'm a Jew. I have to be interested," Alex Pershan said.

Murdered millionaire had violent temper, acquaintances say

DALLAS (AP) — Some acquaintances of Henry Harrison Kyle say they were not surprised that the Texas millionaire's stormy relationship with his two sons culminated in violence. Kyle was shot to death July 22 at his mansion in the Bel-Air section of Los Angeles. His elder son, 20-year-old Henry Harrison "Rick" Kyle Jr., has been charged with murder in the case.

The 60-year-old tycoon had moved into the spacious home with a new wife — his fifth — after starting a new business, a Hollywood movie syndication company. "He was the most violent split personality I've ever met," a Dallas businessman who asked not to be identified told the Dallas Times Herald. He said Kyle's frequent arguments with his sons — Rick and Scott, 19 — sometimes erupted into fights in which "he beat the boys with his fists."

Kyle, born in poverty in Tennessee, first made a name for himself when he joined the Marine Corps as a pilot during World War II. He was decorated for his exploits in the Pacific and later won a second Distinguished Flying Cross in the Korean War. "He was a hell of an aviator and a fearless man...totally fearless," said

Maj. Gen. Ralph W. Spanjer, a longtime friend of Kyle's and former superintendent of the Marine Military Academy in Harlingen. "He was one of the most dead-eye and accurate fliers and bombers." After the war, Kyle graduated from law school at Southern Methodist University and worked as an investigator for the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington. In the 1960s, he returned to Dallas to develop apartment complexes throughout Texas and the Midwest. As his businesses grew into a thriving empire, however, he was married and divorced four times.

John Greer, a longtime handyman of Kyle's, said the businessman tried to find time to spend with his sons, taking them hunting and sometimes cooking them breakfast. Greer said Kyle's military strictness caused tension, however, when the boys entered their teens. "They used to be real sweet boys," Greer said, "but they do grow up." He said Kyle's relationship with his sons "became pretty strained in the later years." Buddy Vines, who was general manager of Kyle's oilfield equipment company and still works for a Kyle-owned firm, said the father "was really hard on them. He wanted them to be like him, to excel at everything they did. He wanted them to have that drive."

Vapors force evacuation

HIGGENBOTHAM (AP) — Residents in a six-square-mile area were forced to evacuate their homes early Friday when a vapor cloud rose from a ruptured pipeline, officials said. By mid-afternoon, the cloud of ethane and propane had dissipated and residents of this West Texas farming community were allowed to return home, said Fred Isaac of Tulsa, Okla., president of the Mid-

American Pipeline Co. Isaac's company owns the 55,000-barrel underground well where a pipeline broke about 4:15 a.m. "We've let the people back in their homes but there's an oilfield just north of there where we're still not letting them operate," Isaac said. No injuries were reported from the cloud, 12 miles east of Hobbs, N.M.

Black widow spiders invade classroom, bite students

DANBURY (AP) — Hundreds of just-hatched black widow spiders escaped from a jar in a classroom and bit at least 10 middle school students. A school official said Friday it's the last time live spiders will be displayed in schools in his district.

Ten students at Danbury Middle School were treated for the bites at a hospital, superintendent Keith Swim said. He said six were held overnight and one boy suffered considerable nausea and aching shoulders. The episode began last week when a student found a spider and took it to science teacher

Jack Cameron. Swim said Cameron identified the highly poisonous spider by its black body and red belly and put it in a closed jar in his classroom.

But over the weekend, Swim said, eggs the spider had laid hatched and the tiny babies escaped through air holes in the jar's metal lid. The students were bitten Monday.

"I don't think the teacher or anybody else would have thought those little rascals would be small enough to get through those holes," Swim said.

Auburn by two over Horns

SWC Roundup

By Associated Press
The mystery quarterback will be revealed today as the injury-plagued Texas Longhorns, preseason favorites to capture the SWC title, take on Auburn as one-point underdogs.

Texas coach Fred Akers has refused to name the starter who will replace No. 1 quarterback Todd Dodge, suffering from a separated shoulder that will keep him on the sidelines for several weeks.

Either Rob Moerschell or Rick McIvor will emerge as Texas' signal caller at the 11:38 a.m. (CBS-TV).

Moerschell said Akers' silence on Dodge's replacement has forced the War Eagles "to work on two quarterbacks."

"They have a tremendous heritage and tremendous tradition," Auburn coach Pat Dye said of the Horns. "We face a big challenge."

Texas is among the last college teams in the nation to begin its season. Auburn already has posted a 24-3 victory over Southern Mississippi.

"It concerns me that they have the advantage of having played a game where we have not," said Akers. "Auburn is one of the top teams in the country."

In other games, unbeaten Baylor, an impressive 40-36 conqueror of Brigham Young last week, takes its three-quarterback offense to El Paso to joust once-beaten Texas-El Paso; Texas A&M hosts Arkansas State as the Aggies try to bounce back from an opening two-point loss to California; Texas Christian tries to win its first road game since 1979 when coach Jim Wacker preaches his Horned Frog gospel at Kansas State; unbeaten Arkansas entertains once-whipped New Mexico; Rice tries to break a 16-game losing streak when Louisiana State comes calling, and Houston hopes to shake off a solid thrashing by Miami in an Astrodom meeting with Lamar University. All the games are at night.

The Bears will be facing a team coached by Bill Yung, who spent seven years as offensive coordinator for Grant Teaff at Baylor.

Quarterback Cody Carlson said the Bears are very wary of UTEP.

"If we go out there thinking it's not going to be hard, we'll be in sad shape," Carlson said.

Baylor ranked a two-touchdown choice over UTEP. Texas A&M was a three-touchdown choice over Arkansas State, TCU was a field goal favorite over the Wildcats, Arkansas was a 14-point nod over New Mexico, LSU was a 20-point favorite over Rice and Houston was a 24-point selection over Lamar.

Anthony Sciaraffa earned the starting TCU quarterback job from Anthony Gully by taking the Horned Frog 80 yards in the dying moments for a game-tying field goal against Kansas.

El Paso Eastwood runningback Herb Warden (32) finds little room to run as the Midland Lee defense swarms in to make the tackle at Memorial Stadium Friday night. The Rebels ended their non-district schedule with a 34-0 victory over the Troopers.

Rebs strike Troopers like thunder

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

One minute El Paso Eastwood and Midland Lee were slugging it out in a close ball game at Memorial Stadium and the next, seemingly, the Rebels had it well in hand.

With 7:28 remaining in the third quarter, Lee held a 7-0 lead. In the next 2:23 seconds the Rebels scored four touchdowns to go up 34-0 and that score held up to the end giving them their third straight victory of the season for a 3-0 record.

Isaac Garnett got the Rebel scoring going when he broke for a 30-yard touchdown on Lee's first possession of the second half. Craig Kamradt kicked the extra point for a 14-0 lead and the scoring onslaught was on.

El Paso quarterback John Brochu fumbled the first snap after the kickoff and Eddie Kittle recovered the ball on the 10. A penalty moved the ball to the five and Lee quarterback Jeff Motley, on his first carry of the season, ran it in.

El Paso fumbled for the second time in the half on the ensuing kickoff and Lee's Thomas Manley fell on the ball at the two-yard line, setting up Garnett's second touchdown run of the game and a 27-0 lead. Kamradt missed the point after kick wide to the right.

line. Ellis was hauled down at the 32. "I think I could have scored if I'd intercepted the ball cleanly," said Ellis.

After the interception, Motley guided the Rebels down field until a quarterback keeper was called and he ran 25 yards for an apparent touchdown. A motion penalty called the play back.

Motley, who was the Lee's No. 1 quarterback coming out of spring practice, was injured before the first game in a three-wheeler accident and Friday's game was his first appearance of the year.

On the lost touchdown he said, "I rushed the play. I should have called a time out but rushed the play because the time clock was about to run out. But, it felt really good to get to see some action."

THE REBELS seemed to be having trouble with Eastwood's defense in the first half, picking up 122 yards rushing and one touchdown. Walter Jones came up with the first tally on a 13-yard run at the start of the second quarter and Kamradt booted the PAT for a 7-0 lead. That score held up until the third.

"Eastwood had a little to do with the way we played in the first half," said Lee coach Spike Dykes. "They played well."

Garnett led the Lee rushing attack up the middle with 83 yards on nine carries while Jones added 65 on six carries around the ends. Nine other Rebels carried the ball to account for the rest of the 233 yards in the game, including three quarterbacks: John Abbott, Motley and Dennis Matta.

"They're tough to stop inside and outside," said Ware. "I was real proud of our defense in the first half. We gave up a lot of yards but didn't let Lee score. They have a good ball club. They play very, very well. We like playing them because we know we're in a ball game when we come down and play. Our kids grow up a lot."

Next Friday the Rebels open District 4-5A play against Odessa High at Ratliff Stadium. Eastwood, which fell to 0-3 with the loss, has a week off before opening its district season.

THE TROOPERS managed to hang on the ball after the kickoff long enough to run three plays before punting. Tony Prensiau's kick came down at the 50-yard line where Tyrone Thurman was waiting. He followed his blocking to the left side and ran the distance for Lee's final score. Kamradt's kick made it 34-0 with 5:05 left in the quarter.

"Don't let anyone ever tell you that the kicking game isn't important," said Lee assistant coach Van Tom Whatley.

The Rebel scoring corresponded with a brief rain storm that hit seconds before El Paso's first fumble, but Trooper coach Todd Ware wasn't going to blame his team's collapse on the weather.

"They hit us hard and we fumbled the ball," he said. "The quarterback (Brochu) didn't get the snap and on the punt return, we told them all along to be ready. They loafed down field and Lee ran it back. Defensively we looked good tonight but, here again, the offense made a lot of mistakes deep in our territory and cost us 21 quick points: You can't come back from that."

THOUGH LEE scored 34 points, the victory has to be attributed to the Rebel defense and kicking game which set up most of them. In the first half, El Paso was able to pick up only 12 yards rushing while using the short pass to gain 32.

The Troopers never seriously threatened the Rebel shutout until the fourth quarter when Lee's Reggie Ellis stepped in front of a Brochu pass thrown from the Rebel 17-yard

TERRY WILLIAMSON Midland swims in good fortune

Mother Nature dealt Midland football fans a rare treat on a rare weekend at Memorial Stadium.

Mother Nature waited to dump a brief shower until after Midland High's 14-13 Thursday victory over No. 5 ranked Lubbock Estacado and the Bulldogs are thankful. The shower came during Midland Lee's 34-0 win over El Paso Eastwood Friday and the Rebels are thankful. It was a dose of good luck three ways.

Midland High's vaunted passing attack doesn't need rain — anytime. But it seemed to inspire the Rebels Friday. And all of Midland will take rain when they can get it.

The Bulldogs got back their hard fought respect after defeating the fine Estacado team and the Rebels didn't do any harm to a No. 8 state ranking with a second straight shutout.

However, it is hoped that the Rebels won't be merely a "mudder" team from here on out. That's pushing West Texas luck beyond the "Twilight Zone."

Lee held a mere 7-0 third quarter lead against Eastwood Friday when Mother Nature gave the Rebs a spark. The Lee fans didn't know how to react to rain and they fled for cover like stranded goats. By the time the brief rain stopped and seats were found again, the Rebels had scored four times, covering a space of about three minutes. Now that's production.

Isaac Garnett started the rally with a 30-yard TD run as the rain began. Quarterback Jeff "Shoulder" Motley followed with his 5-yard TD run on his first carry of the season. The rout was on. Eastwood was a goner.

"It wasn't even supposed to rain, was it?" asked Garnett. "I don't know what it was, but the rain seemed to turn everyone on. I can't explain it."

Angels 8, Rangers 6

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Darryl Sconiers hit a two-run double and scored on right fielder Tommy Dunbar's two-base error to cap a four-run eighth inning and give the California Angels an 8-6 victory over the Texas Rangers Friday.

With reliever John Butcher, 6-8, protecting a 6-4 lead, Bob Boone singled with one out and Rob Wilfong walked. Gary Pettis' RBI single made it 6-5.

Luis Sanchez, 10-8, worked the final 2-2-3 to gain the win.

Crane rumbles past Stanton, 27-0

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

CRANE—Either the Crane Golden Cranes are awesome, or the Stanton Buffaloes have a long season in front of them.

Actually, neither team is probably destined to play the way they played Friday. Crane dominated the action throughout, and Stanton was felled at every turn in suffering a 27-0 loss to the Cranes.

Once again, the wrecking crew Vasquez brothers led the way for Crane. Quarterback Joe Vasquez threw for 78 yards and scored twice, and brother Jim rambled for 131 yards on 27 carries, scoring once.

After a scoreless first period in which the Cranes looked fairly awful, things got rolling. Jim Vasquez started to warm up early in the second frame, rushing seven times for 57 yards. Joe ran for the remaining eight in the scoring drive and capped the possession by sneaking in from the one.

After holding the Buffs on their next try, the brothers moved Crane again. Stanton held the ball for all of one minute, 32 seconds before the Cranes went 56 yards on nine plays. The Cranes mixed it up a little on this drive, and the TD was a thing of beauty out of coach Rickey White's playbook.

On third and goal from the ten, Joe Vasquez handed the ball off to slotback Todd Rodgers on the left. Rodgers, who had been the Crane quarterback going into the season, has seen less duty since the development of Vasquez as the starter.

But on this play, Rodgers drew in the defense then lofted a pass over the surprised Stanton secondary to Joe Vasquez. Vasquez had crept past the defense swinging wide right form the handoff and caught the pass for the score.

Crane almost added a cheapie.

After taking the ball with four seconds in the quarter, Joe Vasquez hit a perfect 47 yard strike to end Bobby Ryan, but Ryan was caught at the three as the gun sounded.

At the half, Crane had outgained Stanton in first downs (13-2), rushing yardage (99-1), passing yardage (80-20) and of course, points.

It didn't get much better for the Buffs in the second half. At one point late in the third quarter, the Buffs wishbone had been twisted, snapped and fed to the dogs with the leftovers, accounting for a minus 7 on the ground and 13 yards total.

Not a pretty sight, unless one hails from Crane.

Crane tallied in the third to close the door for good. Stanton's best chance to make a game of it came when Robby Barnes, who was clobbered all night, recovered a fumble after a pass completion at the Buff

LEVELLAND—Midland College held down third place, three strokes off the pace, with a 289 in the Western Junior College Conference golf tournament Friday at South Plains College.

New Mexico Junior College shot a team 286 to set the pace with Western Texas College at 288. New Mexico Military Institute, 292; South Plains, 294, and Odessa College, 295, completed the field.

Midland College was led by Drew Ragland's 69, good for third in the individual scoring. Jeff Crawford had a 71 for fourth and Rob Marburger shot a 74, Ed Barnes 75, Chris Gomez 76, and Jeff Pinkston 78.

Reds rip Astros, 8-3

From wire reports
CINCINNATI — Nick Eskey, Eddie Milner and Gary Redus slammed fourth-inning home runs to power the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

The homers keyed a five-run rally that helped the Reds to their fourth consecutive victory. Bruce Berenyi, 8-14, allowed six hits over eight innings for the victory. He also helped himself by collecting three hits.

Eskey started the fourth-inning outburst against rookie Jeff Heathcock, 1-1, with his 12th homer to tie the game 3-3. Paul Householder then walked, stole second and scored on a throwing error by first baseman

Phils beat Cards in 13

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt scored from third base on a wild pitch with two outs in the 13th inning as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 and remained in a first-place tie in the National League East with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Schmidt drew a walk off loser Steve Baker, 0-1, to open the 13th and took second on pinch hitter Kiko Garcia's sacrifice bunt. One out later, Schmidt went to third when Baker threw a wild pitch with Bo Diaz at the plate. Baker then uncorked another wild pitch, and Schmidt raced with the game-winning run.

Willie Hernandez, 7-4, was the winner with Phils 3, Cards 2 three innings of scoreless relief as the Cardinals managed only three hits off three Philadelphia pitchers.

Pittsburgh routed Montreal 9-0 to remain deadlocked with the Phillies.

The Cardinals had threatened in the top of the 13th when Porter singled, took second on a wild pitch and third on a sacrifice bunt by Jeff Doyle. But Hernandez worked out of the jam by striking out Floyd Rayford and pinch hitter Bill Lyons.

Philadelphia starter Charles Hudson allowed just one hit in his eight

Braves 6, Padres 0

ATLANTA — Hot-hitting Dale Murphy went 4-for-4 and Craig McMurtry tossed a four-hitter as Atlanta clipped San Diego 6-0.

Murphy, who had his first four-hit game of the season, now has 28 hits in his last 54 at-bats. Murphy started Padres starter Tim Lollar toward his 15th defeat in 18 decisions when he doubled to lead off the fourth.

White Sox only one game away

CHICAGO (AP) — Floyd Bannister fired a two-hitter, and Harold Baines broke a scoreless tie with a solo homer in the seventh inning Friday night to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 7-0 victory over Seattle, reducing their magic number to one in their bid for the American League West title.

The White Sox exploded for six more runs — getting two RBI apiece from Greg Walker and Carlton Fisk — in the eighth inning to salt away a victory that assured them of at least a tie for the division title.

One more victory or one Kansas City loss will give Chicago its first division crown and first championship since winning the American League pennant in 1959.

White Sox only one game away

Bannister, 15-10, was magnificent in posting his 12th victory in 13 decisions since the All-Star break. The left-hander struck out a career-high 12 and walked two.

Baines' homer was his 17th and came with one out in the seventh inning off loser Bryan Clark, 7-8. It was also Baines' 18th game-winning run-batted-in.

Fisk singled to start the White Sox's eighth, stole second and scored on Greg Luzinski's single. Chris Nyman, running for Luzinski, advanced to second on a wild pitch by Bill Caudill, and Baines was walked intentionally.

After a second wild pitch by Caudill allowed the runners to advance, pinch-hitter Jerry Hairston was walked intentionally to

NEW YORK — Rick Reuschel, in his second start since being recalled from Class A, went 7-2 in his first major-league victory since 1981 as the Chicago Cubs beat New York Mets 7-4.

The 34-year-old right-hander, sidelined for all of the 1982 with a shoulder injury, allowed five hits while striking out two and walking one in getting his first decision of the year. Reuschel, called up from Quad Cities of the Midwest League on Sept. 3, last won in the major leagues on Sept. 23, for the New York Yankees.

Run-scoring doubles by Ron Cey and Jody Davis highlighted a three-run fourth inning for Chicago.

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Miller drove in the tie-breaking run with a pinch triple in the sixth inning, and the Boston Red Sox added four more runs in the seventh and end Detroit's six-game winning streak, 6-1.

Left-hander Bobby Ojeda scattered nine hits for his 10th victory in 17 decisions.

Miller, who signed a two-year contract extending through the 1985 season prior to the game, lined his triple to right off starter Dan Petry, 17-9, scoring Reid Nichols from third base.

Twins 11, Jays 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Tim Teufel's five hits, including his first two major league home runs, led the Minnesota Twins to an 11-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Teufel, who is now 16-for-35 for a .457 average since being recalled Sept. 1, also had two singles, a triple, scored five runs, drove in three and extended his hitting streak to eight games.

PITTSBURGH — Rookie Jose DeLeon scattered nine hits and rookie Marvell Wynne belted a grand slam as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Montreal Expos 9-0 Friday night, ending Charlie Lea's personal eight-game winning streak.

DeLeon, 7-2, walked five and struck out eight en route to his second shutout of the season. It was the right-hander's third complete game of the season. Lea, 15-9, gave up seven hits in six innings and is now 0-6 lifetime against Pittsburgh.

Wynne's eighth-inning grand slam, his first in the majors and his seventh home run of the season, came off reliever Jeff Reardon.

Buckeyes' Bruce believes 4th quarter will tell tale

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Ohio State's Earle Bruce believes that history will repeat itself Saturday, when his sixth-ranked Buckeyes visit No. 2 Oklahoma in an important college football game.

"I've always looked at all good games and you have to be strong in the fourth quarter," Bruce said. "That's what I've told my team. That's what makes the difference."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer would agree, since it was in the fourth quarter — with six seconds left — that Uwe Von Schamann kicked a 41-yard field goal to beat the Buckeyes 29-28 in the teams' only meeting in 1977.

"I still remember the kick," said Switzer, who will be seeking his 100th career victory Saturday. "It was one of the biggest wins of my career."

The game (2:30 p.m., ABC-TV) features two of college football's top offensive players — Ohio State quarterback Mike Tomczak and Oklahoma tailback Marcus Dupree.

Tomczak completed 21 of 25 passes for 273 yards and four touchdowns in the Buckeyes' 31-6 romp over Oregon last week.

"If we were throwing against the second team, with no pass rush, we couldn't do that," Switzer said.

Dupree, meanwhile, rushed for 138 yards on 24 carries in the Sooners' season-opening 27-14 victory at Stanford. Last year, as a freshman, Dupree gained 905 yards.

Both defenses appear solid, although Oklahoma coaches are worried about how its secondary will stack up against Tomczak.

Oklahoma is led by All-America tackle Rick Bryan, who had a 14-yard sack and eight tackles against Stanford, and end Kevin Murphy, who made nine tackles and was named Big Eight Conference Defensive Player of the Week. Stanford had minus-1 yards rushing against the Sooners.

College Football

Ohio State counters with linebacker Rowland Tatum, who recorded 14 tackles against Oregon. The Buckeyes surrendered only 84 yards rushing in their season-opener.

The Sooners' secondary gave up 291 yards through the air to coach-happy Stanford, but defensive coach Gary Gibbs doesn't think it was an accurate gauge of his players' abilities.

EIGHTH-RATED Michigan visits No. 16 Washington and No. 17 Maryland hosts No. 20 West Virginia at night. Meanwhile, top-ranked Nebraska visits Minnesota for a night game, while defending national champion Penn State attempts to recover from the worst start (0-2) in Coach Joe Paterno's 18-year career at home against No. 13 Iowa.

Fourth-ranked Notre Dame entertains Michigan State No. 7. Arizona visits Washington State, ninth-ranked Florida State is at Tulane and No. 10 North Carolina plays host to Miami of Ohio.

In the AP Second Ten, No. 11 Georgia is at Clemson, Mississippi at No. 12 Alabama, No. 14 Southern California at Oregon State for a night game and Indiana State at No. 15 Florida under the lights. Southern Methodist and Pitt, the 18-19 teams, have the weekend off.

THE LAST regular-season clash between Michigan and Washington in 1970, but they have since met in two Rose Bowls.

"I think Washington has the type of program that's always going to have a good football team, and I think this one is going to make a run for the conference (Pacific-10) championship," says Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler.

"I think we will have to play a great football game. We'll have to make a great deal of improvement from the opening week (a 20-17 victory over Washington State) in order to beat Washington."

Maryland's Boomer Esiason and West Virginia's Hostetler waged aerial warfare a year ago. Hostetler was 19-of-37 for 285 yards and one touchdown as the Mountaineers won 19-18, while Esiason went 24-of-40 for 217 yards and a TD.

"In Maryland, we are going to face a big, strong and loaded football team," warns WVU Coach Don Nehlen. "They have veterans at almost every position and a great quarterback and running back (Wille Joyce). They are one of the better football teams in America."

SO IS NOTRE Dame, if last week's 52-6 mauling of Purdue is any indication.

"We didn't play poorly for an opener," says Coach Gerry Faust, "but we've got a long way to go and a lot of things to improve. I think we found out we weren't in as good shape as we thought we were, and that's going to be crucial in these warm-weather games."

Faust was, however, impressed with Michigan State's 23-17 triumph over Colorado. The last time the Spartans won an opener (1978), they tied for the Big Ten title. And it was the first time since 1933 that a Michigan State coach won his debut.

At Penn State, the question is CAN they play with anybody? The Nittany Lions have been embarrassed by Nebraska 44-6 and Cincinnati 14-3.

"I thought we were better than we are," says Paterno. "... We're going to come up and have a good football team before it's over."

SWC coaches vote for drug-testing program

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference track coaches have passed a resolution calling for random, on-campus drug testing of athletes by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The action, in a 16-0 vote with two women coaches absent, was taken Wednesday at a meeting in Dallas and was aimed at the use of anabolic steroids, the body-building drug that is banned in international competition.

"We recommend that the NCAA institute a drug testing program for all intercollegiate athletics, for all sports during the year," Southern Methodist University Coach Ted McLaughlin told the Dallas Times Herald.

The resolution, however, has to be approved by the SWC athletic directors, who meet in Dallas next Wednesday, and also by SWC faculty representatives.

At present, the NCAA does not test athletes for drugs. Its does, however, condemn "the employment of nontherapeutic drugs in any of its member institutions." The statement is part of the NCAA manual's section on recommended policies and practices, and isn't a rule policed by the NCAA.

"I think such a plan would stop steroid use tomorrow. I think this would be the only way to stop," said McLaughlin, whose team won the NCAA indoor and track titles this year.

"If the athletes were under the threat of walking into the weight room and being tested any time, it would stop tomorrow," he said.

Kiko Bejines' death really no surprise

Los Angeles Times- Washington Post News Service

A lot of people were surprised when young Kiko Bejines got killed in a fight with the supposedly light-hitting Alberto Davilla at the Olympic Auditorium in Los Angeles a week ago. They shouldn't have been. Kiko was a perfect psychological profile for what happened to him. No one knows for sure how many fatalities there have been in ring history. Too many. Records are haphazardly kept. Some fatalities are swept under the rug, others are unreported, injuries are wrongfully ascribed and there are no followups, generally. Only in celebrated instances is a death that occurs weeks or months after the event traced back to the blows that caused it.

But one thing is sure: Incidences of death from ring injuries are alarmingly on the increase. While fighters are fewer and fights are fewer, deaths are higher.

The reason is obvious: the victims today are as ill prepared for their deadly adventure as a baby on a ledge.

Years ago, boxing fatalities were infrequent. In an era when fights were far more numerous, fighters learned their trade a hard, painstaking way, taking a course in lumps in places like the Holyoke Arena, the Newark Armory, Chicago Stadium, Ridgewood Grove, St. Nick's Arena, the undercard at Scranton, walkout bouts at the Garden, filled gyms, lodge smokers - places where you soon learned whether you belonged or not. You fought four-round bouts till you proved you were in the ring sport.

You learned your cruel trade - or you went back to driving a bus. You learned how to slip punches, how to tie up an opponent, how to hook off the jab, how to avoid the hook off the jab. You learned how to hold on when in trouble, you learned how to get off the ropes, the floor, the clinch. You learned what never to do. You led with your left and countered with your right.

You never overmatched yourself. You fought four-rounders till you were ready for six and six till you were ready for eight. You fought semi-finals till you were ready for mains. You were a pro in every sense of the word by then, wise, skilled, cunning, savvy, able to defend yourself. You had all the moves. You knew your trade like an old cabinetmaker. The ones who didn't and couldn't were pulled to one side by the wise old trainers and advised to forget it before they got hurt.

Benny Leonard, the great lightweight champion, to pull a name out of the book, had 210 fights. He got his title shot on his 107th fight.

Tony Canzoneri, who held two titles, got his lightweight title shot in his 92nd fight. He got his featherweight title chance on his 56th. How many fights do you think Dempsey had when he got his chance against Willard? Seventy-two.

How many fights you think Leon Spinks had when he fought Muhammad Ali for the title? Seven. Ees-ee-vee-ee-en. Some went as many as three rounds.

The most precocious fighter who ever lived, Joe Louis, had 40 fights before his title shot. Sugar Ray Robinson had 76 before his.

Perhaps you noticed how many fights that joke of a contender had the other night before he fought Larry Holmes for the greatest bauble in sport, the heavyweight championship of the world? Scott Frank had 21. He beat such renowned legends of the prize ring as C.J. Bar Brown, Guy Casale and Randy Willis. He got a decision over Chuck Wepner, better known as the Red River.

You used to have to fight half your life to get a title shot. You hoped to be like Archie Moore, cute, resourceful, the whole book on boxing, the greatest mechanic that ever stepped in a ring. No matter what an opponent did in the ring, Archie had seen it. And knew what to do about it. Archie had had 234 fights, some against the sons of fathers he had fought a generation earlier. Today, a guy gets a light-heavy title shot after 16 fights, as Michael Spinks recently did.

Deuk-Koo Kim, who got killed in a fight by Ray (Boom Boom) Mancini, was in his 20th lifetime fight. He had vanquished such worthies as Myung-Soo Park and Flash Romeo in such citadels of boxing knowledge as Seoul and Pusan before keeping his date with a blood clot.

Television wouldn't dream of pitting a public-park player against Jack Nicklaus in a million-dollar golf match. Nor would it pit a playground player against Jimmy Connors at center court in Flushing and try to sell ads to Toyota. You wouldn't ask a sandlotter to bat against Nolan Ryan on prime time or let a high schooler go against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Yet they do all of those things in boxing. It's even more outrageous. I mean, Jack Nicklaus isn't going to kill anybody with a 1-iron. Jimmy Connors isn't going to put his opponent in an oxygen tent. Nolan Ryan is not going to aim at his head.

Bear in mind, these are championship fights they are killing people in. These are supposedly the highest practitioners of the art.

Well, Kiko Bejines had about 24 fights up to this year and none recently. He was 20 years old. He was fighting a guy who had nearly 60 pro bouts.

Fuzzy Zoeller...shares top spot.

Caldwell moves into tie for 1st

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rex Caldwell, an almost-weekly bridesmaid earlier this season, fired a 6-under-par 66 and moved into an apparent three-way tie for the lead Friday in Las Vegas Pro-Celebrity Classic, a new PGA Tour event that offers $1,050,000 in total prize money.

Caldwell, a non-winner who lost two play-offs and had a string of three consecutive runner-up finishes early this year, completed 54 holes of this five-day, four-course, 90-hole event at 203.

Fuzzy Zoeller, who has led or shared the lead all the way, and veteran J.C. Snead also had the same total and were in a numerical tie for the top.

Zoeller, however, is 13 under par. Caldwell and Snead are 12 under par.

Landry gets tough, locks up Cowboys

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys kiss their families goodbye and say hello to Coach Tom Landry Saturday night in another chapter of his 1983 get-tough policy.

Landry wants to insure his team is concentrating about the New York Giants and not lawn-mowing or the neon lights of Dallas nightlife. So he ordered them to a local hotel the night before the 3 p.m. Sunday National Football League game.

Former FBI agent Larry Wansley and his security patrol will be on hand to monitor privacy. And the coaches will be there to make certain the players heed the midnight curfew.

Landry has not forgotten that some players on the team broke curfew the night before Dallas lost to Washington in the National Conference title game.

The Cowboys haven't been sequestered in a hotel the night before a home game since 1974.

Landry has brought back a lot of old work ethic habits, including the dreaded grass drills and wind sprints which the players dearly loathe.

However, superior conditioning has been the prime factor in Dallas' come-from-behind victories over Washington and St. Louis.

"Our conditioning paid off in those two games," said defensive tackle John Dutton. "We were tired but we kept plugging. You could see the other two teams hanging their heads."

There have been a few grumbles about Landry making the team come together the night before a home game.

SCRATCHPAD Kansas drops Russian cagers

From wire reports

BASKETBALL— At the request of the Amateur Basketball Association of the U.S.A., the University of Kansas canceled a Nov. 16 game with Russia, making the Jayhawks the seventh team to cancel the Reds...

BASEBALL—Houston extended Manager Bob Lillis' contract two years. Lillis, 53, took over Aug. 10, 1982 after Bill Virdon was fired and directed the Astros to a 28-23 record over the rest of the season...

FOOTBALL—Former Wyoming coach Pat Dye seems to have left a legacy of wishbone offenses. Only four Division I-A universities currently use the wishbone, and Dye coached three of them. Dye's Auburn team runs the wishbone, and the formation still is in vogue at Wyoming and East Carolina, where Dye previously coached...

Texas' top receiver, split end Brent Duhon, has a hairline fracture in his right hand but is expected to play against Auburn today. Quarterback Todd Dodge, linebacker Jeff Leiding and three other receivers are injured. Dodge has a shoulder separation and Leiding a cut leg that required 16 stitches and later got infected...

Quarterback Bubby Brister, who dropped out of Tulane Wednesday, enrolled at NE La., where he hopes to play next season. Brister quit the Wave rather than share playing time with Jon English, son of coach Wally English...

TENNIS—Second-seeded Andrea Jaeger, 6-1, 6-3 over Vicki Nelson, and No. 3 Kathy Horvath, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 over Anne Hobbs, won quarterfinals in the Tokyo Queen's Grand Prix...

Richard Wertheim, 60, a linesman who fell backward from his chair after being hit by a tennis ball at the U.S. Open Championship last week died of head injuries suffered in the fall. He had been unconscious and on a respirator in the hospital's intensive care unit since the incident Saturday and did not respond to treatment...

SHORT TAKES—Frank Shorter will run in the New York City Marathon Oct. 23... The first Rikers Island Olympics, in which more than 200 inmates will compete in many track and field events, will be held Oct. 1. The Olympics will be conducted on a new track that is being built in the recreation yard at the island's Adolescent Redemption and Detention Center. But no pole vault...

Joie de Vie, who has won $947, 526, will try to become the first trotter to win more than $1 million in a year Sunday in the Colonial Trot for 3-year-old colts in Philadelphia...

Butler the other player

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner confirmed Friday night that starting left fielder Brett Butler is going to Cleveland as the third player in the trade which brought pitcher Len Barker to Atlanta.

"I couldn't lie to him," Turner said. Butler apparently cornered Turner earlier Friday and asked for the trade.

The trade brought Barker to Atlanta in exchange for Butler at the end of the season, pitcher Rick Behenna, who already is with the Indians, and rookie third baseman Brook Jacoby.

"But we had to get help with our pitching staff. I wanted — we all wanted — to get into the World Series, especially for Phil Niekro because you never know how much longer he's got."

Niekro, 44, has been pitching in the majors since 1964 and has said repeatedly his dream is to pitch in the World Series.

Butler, a 5-10, 160-pound speedster, is popular with Braves' fans.

"That's one of the tough things about giving him up," Turner said. "I think the guy's going to be another Pete Rose. But you have to give up quality to get quality."

"We got one of the best pitchers in the American League in Barker. He's young (28), but he's experienced."

Bond's protest is turned down

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Alan Bond, who heads the syndicate campaigning America's Cup challenger Australia II, was disappointed when he learned Friday that his protest of U.S. defender Liberty's latest victory had been disallowed.

The man who claims he has spent $16 million in four attempts to win sailing's most coveted prize, says the decision has not soured him on the sport. He doesn't agree with an international jury's verdict that Liberty did not foul Australia II, but bears no animosity, at least not publicly.

"I think you've got to accept that this is part of yachting," he said after the International Yacht Racing Union's panel refused to overturn the Thursday's victory that gave Liberty a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series. "There was no antagonism. We're all good sailors and we'll be out there tomorrow."

The Australians contended Liberty's skipper Dennis Conner swerved in front of their boat, causing a near collision. The jury decided otherwise.

DISPLAYS & EXHIBITS

The public is invited to the free reception.

DECORATING CENTER, 1608 N. Big Spring St., will display an outstanding collection of limited edition bronze sculptures by Bob Parks, acclaimed as one of the finest sculptors in the western art field today. Parks, who has recently commissioned to sculpt the SMU Mustang, will be attending the exhibit from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 23.

MUSEUM OF SOUTHWEST invites the public to enjoy the current exhibits: The First National Bank Collection; Las Llaneros; The Archaeology of the Southern Llano Estacado; Pueblo Pottery and Basketry from the Naomi Tackett Collection; Zapotec Weaving, and selections from our permanent collection.

SUNSHINE GIRLS will have their 3rd Annual Sunshine Sale at 2000 Neely St., Friday, Sept. 23, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, Sept. 24, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be country crafts, ceramics, dough art, afghans, seasonal wreaths, Christmas items, children's gifts, seashells, tole and decorative painting and much more. Participating artists are Barbara Burke, Jo Barbee, Shirley Craig, Rixie Connell and Gayle Madonna.

FAMOUS BRANDS, Inc. Clothing Sale will be at Chaparral Center, Saturday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m.

MIDLAND ASSOCIATION FOR RETARDED CITIZENS, in conjunction with the Midland Polo Club, will have its annual Polo Benefit Match at the Polo Grounds at 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25. Admission to the match, which will be highlighted with sky divers, half-time show and celebrity players, is $2.50 per person. Sponsor tickets, which include a Texas-style barbecue, are available by calling the MARC office, 682-9771.

HOWARD COUNTY FAIR, to be held in Big Spring, will include a fiddlers' contest. The chairman, Pete Jenkins, encourages all area and regional fiddlers to attend and participate. The contest will start at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20, at the Howard County Fair Barn.

MIDLAND JAYCEE WOMEN BINGO DAY will be held Saturday, Sept. 24, in Midland Center. The event will be held from 1 to 8 p.m. Proceeds will benefit various organizations that the Midland Jaycee Women support, such as Hospice, Rape Crisis Center, Teen Challenge and many others. Merchants from the Midland area have donated prizes.

MIDLAND COMMUNITY THEATRE presents two inter-related Texas comedies: "Lone Star" focuses on three good old boys out behind Angels Bar; "Laundry and Bourbon" deals with their wives out back on the porch. The shows, which began Friday, have performances scheduled through Oct. 1 at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 7:30 p.m. Thursdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays. Tickets are $5 on Fridays and Saturdays, $4 on Thursdays and Sundays. Call MCT Box Office, 682-4111, for reservations.

THEATRE SCHOOL REGISTRATION for Midland Community Theatre's nationally-renowned Theatre School's fall semester will be held through Friday, September 23. Classes are offered for Grades 1-3 in Creative Dramatics; for Grades 4-6 in Introduction to Acting and in Grades 7-12 in Play Production. Tuition for MCT members is $50 per semester and for non-members it is $90. Classes are held once a week after school. Call 682-2544 for specific class times and to register your children.

The public is invited to the free reception.

MUSEUMS featured

AUSTIN (AP) - An author who has written a book on Texas museums nominates the Alamo in San Antonio as the greatest museum attraction in the state.

Ron Tyler says the best name for a museum, however, is the J.U. and Florence B. Fields Museum of Fine Living in Hereford.

Most out-of-the-way museum? Tyler says that would be the Guadalupe National Park exhibit near Pine Springs, which has a Carlsbad, N.M., mailing address.

WHAT IS CHARACTER?

A schoolboy said, "Character is what you are in the dark." Darkness is a part of the world, but it loses its power when we come into the presence of Jesus, the "Light of the World." Why not expose yourself to the light of God's love by studying and worshipping with us this Sunday?

'Silent censorship' blasted by religious booksellers

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Protests came from many Christian book dealers this week against what they call a "silent censorship" of books with a religious perspective — even those for which demand is big.

They said many religiously oriented books, even big sellers, are mostly skipped by reviewers, general bookstores and as a result, by general best-seller lists.

Cal Thomas

"This also tends to keep such books from libraries and schools, which look to the authorities to see what is happening in the reading world," says William R. Anderson of the Christian Booksellers Association in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"It's a kind of selective, silent censorship, but it's just as damaging as the more overt types," Anderson said in a telephone interview.

"It's an infringement against civil liberties, against the right to choose."

The "banned books" charge, raised in displays in numerous Christian bookstores across the country, provided an ironic counterpoint to the "banned books week" being observed in many general bookstores.

RELIGION

They, under sponsorship of the American Booksellers Association and others, cited a list of 93 titles challenged or restricted, often in schools on grounds of belittling chastity, parents or religion.

"Don't take the First Amendment lightly," reads a poster for the secular campaign for freedom of ideas.

To that, the religious booksellers add their "amen," although they don't back morally questionable reading fare for school children — a parental complaint in some cases of books listed as restricted by general bookstores.

The problem of "silent censorship" of religious books doesn't result from some planned conspiracy, writes Cal Thomas in his current big-selling "Book Burning," published by Crossway Books, and he adds:

"Rather we face a subtle elitist bias that holds Christian values are less legitimate than secular views and somehow unfit for the general public."

He contends "everyone has a right to speak" but "the Christian voice is being choked off" despite the fact that most Americans espouse Judeo-

Christian values. He writes: "There is a tendency to keep Christian thinking out of the mainstream, to marginalize it and make it look like a product of a 'fringe' group"

Franny Schaeffer, an evangelical film maker and author of another Crossway big-seller, "A Time for Anger," also says "there is no doubt that religious books are being discriminated against."

Anderson and various religious publishers cite numerous other high-selling, religiously based books, their outlets mostly restricted to religious bookstores and largely bypassed in outlets for the general public, including: "The Act of Marriage" by the Rev.

Tim LaHaye, which has sold 1.2 million copies since 1979; "Joni" by Joni Erksen, which has sold 1.4 million copies since 1978, both published by Zondervan.

Also several books by pediatrician James Dobson, published by Tyndale House, including "The Strong-Willed Child," which has sold 400,000 copies since 1978; "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women," about 1 million copies since 1980, and "Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions," 175,000 copies since 1982.

Most any of these, statistically, would qualify as best sellers, but don't make the general lists, since the sales are mostly in religion bookstores, which aren't included in compiling the lists.

Church association to meet

The Midland Association of Churches is meeting noon Tuesday at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 3301 Neely St.

The executive committee will meet at 11:15 a.m. The luncheon program will be presented by the United Way of Midland.

MAC is an organization of clergy and laity from various area churches. The association helps disseminate information, apprise members of various local activities and services, and helps support several local service organizations. It also sponsors yearly Thanksgiving and Easter community worship services.

MAC is open to all Midland clergy and church members. All interested parties are invited to attend MAC meetings.

tist Church, invites women to attend this special event.

Anglican communion rite set

The Anglican Church of North America, diocese of the Southwest, invites the public to attend a holy communion service Sunday at 10 a.m. at Ellis Funeral Home chapel, 801 Andrews Highway.

The Anglican Church uses the 1928 edition of the Book of Common Prayer. The bishop of the diocese is H. Edwin Caudill and celebrant for the service will be the Rev. Chris Hoffman of Prescott, Ariz.

Immediately following the service, an organizational meeting will be held.

Parklea has new minister

The Rev. Terry L. Chapman has recently become minister at Parklea Baptist Church of Midland.

Born and raised in Dallas, Chapman received his graduate of theology and bachelor of arts degrees from North Texas Baptist College, Fort Worth, and his master of arts degree from Sacramento Baptist College, Sacramento, Calif.

He has conducted revivals, Bible conferences and Sunday School clinics in many states.

Chapman is married to Jackie Key of Dallas. The couple has two children, Terry Jr. and Misty Dawn.

Rev. Chapman

Adolescent growth considered

First Presbyterian Church will again sponsor a series of classes for "Father-Son (boys ages 10-13)" and "Mother-Daughter (girls ages 10-14)" which deal with adolescent growth.

"Mother-Daughter" classes are being taught by Dr. Walter Parks, gynecologist, and the Rev. F. Ray Riddle. They meet at 6:45 p.m. Wednesdays through Oct. 12 in Room 225.

"Father-Son" classes are being taught by Dr. Robert Johnston, urologist, and Ed Johnson. They meet at Wednesdays at the same time through Oct. 5 in Room 204.

Swindoll film series continues

The second in a series of six films by Charles Swindoll will be shown Sunday at 6 p.m. at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford St.

The film, "Godliness: The Perils of Hothouse Christianity," focuses on Paul's writings to the first believers. The 52-minute film will be shown in the church's sanctuary.

The public is invited to attend.

Students visit nursing home

Students of the Seventh Day Adventist School, grades 1-4, are making weekly visits to the Terrace Garden Nursing Home where they are adopting grandparents.

The children take flowers, cards and books. On holidays and on birthdays, they will take small fruit baskets and gifts. This ministry is also carried into the homes of shut-ins.

The program is sponsored by Kathryn Qualls and Elaine Qualls.

Altar society meeting held

An organizational meeting was held Sept. 12 for St. Ann's Altar and Rosary Society.

The meeting began with mass at 9 a.m., followed by a business meeting. Refreshments were served in the church's parlor.

'Adventures in Living' seminar offered

"Adventures in Living," a seminar for Midlanders who are seeking tools for better communications in relationships, will be held Sept. 25-26 at The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity and Trinity School.

The Rev. John DeFoore and his staff from the John DeFoore Counseling Center, Boerne, will present the counseling sessions, which are jointly sponsored by Holy Trinity and Midland Speakers Council. DeFoore founded the Pastoral Care and Counseling Center, Boerne, in 1978 and is executive director of the organization.

An evening session will be conducted Sept. 25 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Trinity School, 3500 W. Wadley Ave. On Sept. 26, a men-only session will be held from 7-8 a.m. at Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., and a women-only session will be held from 9:30-10:30 a.m. at the same location. A nursery, coffee and doughnuts will be provided in the morning sessions.

Children of junior high and high school age are invited to the evening sessions Sept. 25 and Sept.

26 from 7-9:30 p.m. Both will be held at Trinity School.

Before establishing his Boerne Counseling Center, DeFoore conducted a private counseling service in Boerne and, for five years, was executive director of the Pastoral Care and Counseling Center, Abilene.

He has a bachelor of science degree from Mississippi College, a bachelor of divinity and master of theology degrees from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and has done doctoral work at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. He has also studied at Princeton and Union seminaries.

DeFoore has been pastor of churches in Texas, Mississippi, Kentucky, Alabama and Scotland. For five years he was a pastor and missionary in Alaska and president of the Alaska Baptist Convention.

There is no charge for the workshop, but donations will be accepted. For more information call Janice and Bob Henry, 684-7860; Joan and Mark Pace, 683-2080; Janet and Jack Swallow, 683-7964; or Laura and Jim Brown, 683-1460.

Communication concepts workshop set

Rev. Rhoads

The Communications Work Area of First United Methodist Church, Main Street at Illinois Avenue, is sponsoring a two-day workshop on communications Friday and Saturday.

The theme will be "Communicating and Communicators," focusing on communication concepts and ideas for the local church. Friday's 7-9 p.m. session is designed for local church leaders. The Saturday session from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. is open to other churches in and out of the city. The session includes a snack lunch at the church.

Leading the workshop will be the Rev. Carl E. Rhoads, III, who is the minister in charge of pastoral care at First UMC of Shreveport, La.

Assisting in the workshop will be other specialists in various areas of communications, including Betty King with KMID-TV, Georgia Temple with the Midland Reporter-Telegram and Dr. Charles E. Lutrick, who serves on the board of The Wesleyan Satellite Network.

Persons involved in any phase of communications within local churches will find this workshop helpful. There is no registration fee, only a $3 charge for the noon meal. Participants are requested to call the church office, 682-3701, by Thursday to make reservations.

Northeast Baptist celebrating anniversary

Northeast Baptist Chapel is holding an anniversary celebration Sunday after evening worship when an ice cream and cake supper will be held in Leonard and Brenda Coffman's yard.

Northeast Baptist Chapel is a new mission in the Midland area. It began with six persons conducting a weekly

Bible study during the summer of 1982 — Leonard and Helen Lef-twich, Orval and Doris Jones and the Coff-mans. The Bible study grew until it was decided to have a regular church service and Sunday School complete with dinner on the grounds. "The grounds" was the Coff-man yard.

Then Tesoro Crude Oil Company offered its facilities, corner of Highway 80 and FM 1130N, for services which have been held there since that time. Land has recently been obtained on FM 1130N through the Southern Baptist Association and plans are being made to start building in the near future.

The first Vacation Bible School, held in July, had an average attendance of 55. The first revival, held in August, had an average attendance of 50 to 60. Regular services held each week include Sunday School, 9:45 a.m.; morning worship, 11 a.m.; evening worship, 6:30 p.m.; ladies prayer meeting Monday, 7 p.m.; and Wednesday prayer and Bible study, 7 p.m.

This Sunday, services before supper will be held at 6 p.m. at the Tesoro meeting place. During this service, a special love offering will be taken for a recovery fund in the name of 16-year-old Joe Ballard, who is suffering from a broken neck due to a car accident in June.

The public is invited to attend Sunday's service and anniversary celebration.

Poll: Interest in religion growing

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Most adult Americans are more interested in religion than they were five years ago, although less than half say they actually participate in religious activities, according to a Gallup poll. The survey, conducted for the Christian Broadcasting Network, also found that Americans have a growing belief that religion can answer the problems of the world, while faith in science to solve those problems has dropped.

"Religious interest and involvement is extremely high in this country and growing, but deep commitment levels are still at a fairly low level."

'Singing tower's' music fills gardens

LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP) — Milford Myhre has a rare job, one that many people would have trouble even spelling correctly. He's the carillonneur at Bok Tower Gardens, a Dutch immigrant's gift to the United States.

"They are better than almost anywhere in the world," Myhre says of the 53 bronze bells he plays in the 206-foot tower, the magnificent centerpiece in 130 acres of gardens, ponds and woodland.

Although the bells are almost completely hidden from the view of the 175,000 visitors who come each year, the music Myhre creates from "the singing tower" fills the area with distinctive sounds likened to carillons of Belgium, France, England and, to a lesser degree, some other European countries.

Here, visitors find a peaceful alternative to the dazzle and hubbub of Florida's more renowned tourist attractions. Serenity envelops all as they walk the neat paths through the gardens filled with trees, bushes, birds and squirrels.

The stillness is broken only by Myhre's live recitals or his taped renditions of classical music broadcast every half hour over an elaborate quadrophonic sound system.

Edward W. Bok had the gardens established and the bell tower built here on Iron Mountain, one of Florida's highest points at an elevation of 295 feet.

Bok, born in Helder, Netherlands, Oct. 9, 1863, and his parents moved to Brooklyn, N.Y., when he was almost 7 years old, says Charlene Johnston, director of community relations for the American Foundation which Bok created in 1923 to direct his philanthropic enterprises.

Bok was also a successful author and was editor of the Ladies' Home Journal from 1887 until 1919 before retiring here.

"Mr. Bok found Iron Mountain a peaceful place to walk and in the late 1920s got the idea for building the bell tower remembering them from when he was a child in the Netherlands," explains Ms. Johnston.

Construction of the tower began in 1927, was completed a year later and was dedicated in 1929 by President Calvin Coolidge. Bok died Jan. 9, 1930.

"They are better than almost anywhere in the world," a musician says of the 53 bronze bells.

The tower was built with pink and gray marble from Tate, Ga., and tan coquina rock native to the St. Augustine area.

The bells, cast in Loughborough, England, vary in size from 17 pounds to 12 tons and are hung from four levels.

Myhre, president of the World Carillon Federation, plays the carillon from a keyboard located in a small playing room on the level below. He manipulates rods and foot pedals which activate bell clappers.

"It has no similarity to other keyboards," says Myhre, one of only two paid, full-time carillonneurs in the United States. "There's as much difference as there is between an organ and a guitar." Myhre became the second carillonneur here in 1968, succeeding Anton Brees, who died the year before.

The tower, 51 feet wide at the base and 37 feet across at the top, has never been open to the public. Librarian Helena Caldwell works on the fifth level and Myhre has a studio on the sixth. The ground floor is a large single room, equipped with fireplace, where Bok worked in retirement.

Outside the massive brass entrance depicting the Book of Genesis in 30 panels is Bok's grave, marked by a simple plaque. The tower is encircled by a moat filled with goldfish and a distinctive wrought-iron fence created by Samuel Yellin, a Polish immigrant who Ms. Johnston says did much of the iron work at St. Marks Church in Philadelphia and the gateway at Washington National Cathedral.

"It's a restful place," adds Ms. Johnston, "and Mr. Bok wanted people to share what he had here. It was his way of thanking America for letting him live in the land of opportunity. For that reason, he never said how much he spent to build it."

Strauss troubled with pants pirates

Millions spent to detect counterfeits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Put your Levi's on. Now take them off. Put them on again. If the seams look like they're ready to split and the dye is dripping after the second wash, you could be wearing a fake.

But don't feel too badly. You're not alone.

Thousands of people every year slip into counterfeit Levi's. Levi Strauss & Co., the world's largest apparel maker with annual sales of $2.8 billion, says it loses about $5 million a year to the pants pirates.

But Peter Phillippe, whose job is to track down the fakes and prosecute those who make them, says money isn't the most important thing to the San Francisco-based company.

"(Counterfeiting) brings our labels into disrepute and that's the sort of thing we want to stamp out regardless of cost," he said.

The fakes are hard to separate from the real thing, says Phillippe. Fake Levi's may look good on the shelf, but fall apart after they've been worn awhile.

"In the majority of cases you'll begin to see a quality difference," he said. "Some of (the counterfeiters) are more careful, but that's not the most common. The more common is they're cutting corners. They want to make an extra buck."

Counterfeiters often use inferior thread or dyes that continue bleeding after the first and second washings, he said.

Phillippe, the company's chief counsel, said there are usually small signs that betray the phony.

"The denim may be very similar, but the quality of the workmanship won't be there," he said. "The stitching on the back pocket might not look quite right."

Most consumers don't see the clues until too late, he said.

"Unless you're a very careful shopper you probably shop your size," he said. "If you bought the product before, you wouldn't look beyond the exterior of the jeans."

"A trained person can pick it out in most cases when you compare," Phillippe said. "It's not too bad when you're comparing the genuine with the counterfeit, but you don't always have that luxury."

"The counterfeiter is not always going to have two piles," he said. "What they may have is just a pile of counterfeit jeans, and then it's a whole lot harder because you've got no basis for comparison."

Phillippe said Levi spends about $2 million a year tracking down those who illegally pass off their pants under its label. Twenty people handle anti-counterfeiting, and thousands of sales people snoop through store shelves looking for phony products.

Most of the counterfeit Levi's are sold and manufactured outside the United States, and many fake jeans, T-shirts and other products are sold in the Philippines, he said.

"The single biggest source is the Far East, by a long shot," he said. "The laws are lax, the enforcement is lax and there are a lot of apparel manufacturers generally."

"The basic heavyweight denim jeans are the principal targets because they're the most heavily sold product," Phillippe said.

Product counterfeiting "is a very big problem," with loss estimates approaching $16 billion a year worldwide, he said.

Levi and other major companies aren't taking the problem sitting down. Nearly 150 corporations and associations have joined the International Anti-counterfeiting Coalition, which lobbies for tougher laws to discourage those who churn out phony products.

In addition, the company uses a "light signature" system that shoots a beam of light through garment labels and tags, giving each shirt or pair of pants its own identification number, Phillippe said. As no two numbers are alike, the system "fingerprints" each garment.

To check for a pair of counterfeit jeans, the company buys its own products from stores and runs them through the light sig-

Peter Phillippe, whose job is to track down fake Levi's, holds an authentic pair with legitimate labels and a bogus pair that brings the Levi label into disrepute. The real ones are on the left; the fake on the right.

nature system again. "The machine will compare the reading it takes the second time with the reading that was taken the first time," he said. "Unless they match, you've got a counterfeit garment."

Phillippe said Levi also sets up "sting" operations to nab the counterfeiters with its own detectives posing as buyers.

The counterfeiter is very much like a burglar, with one important distinction, he said. "Instead of stealing a product from you, he's stealing your good name."

Substance in sharks could inhibit tumor growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unlike other fish, sharks don't get cancer. And researchers say the mystery substance found in shark cartilage that may be responsible also inhibits tumor growth in mammals.

Scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have discovered a substance in shark cartilage that slows the growth of new blood vessels toward solid tumors, thereby cutting off tumor growth.

In a report published Friday in Science magazine, Dr. Robert Langer and Anne Lee, a former graduate student, say the yet unidentified substance "significantly inhibited" vessel formation around tumors implanted in rabbits.

While the substance did not appear to cause toxic effects in rabbits or mice as it slowed tumor growth, much more research is needed before scientists know if it will have a role in cancer treatment.

Cartilage is gristle — the tough, elastic connective tissue found around bones in mammals. In sharks, the skeleton is composed entirely of cartilage and not bone.

Langer said in a telephone interview that the protein substance extracted from shark cartilage resembles a similar compound found several years ago in the cartilage of calves which also inhibits tumor growth.

The scientist said that since neither substance has been completely purified, he doesn't know yet if they are identical, or just similar, compounds. Both appear to have about the same potency in tumor inhibition, he said.

Langer said the researchers looked for the inhibitor in sharks because it is difficult to obtain enough cartilage from calves to extract the substance for testing.

"Cartilage composes about 6 percent of the shark's total body weight, compared to less than 0.6 percent in calves," said the report.

"In addition, some sharks are very large, about 10 times heavier than calves."

The researchers were able to get 900-pound, 20-foot-long sharks for the work and found that the inhibitor substance was much more abundant in the shark cartilage than in that of calves.

While it takes 500 grams of calf cartilage to get one milligram of the extract, the same amount of inhibitor can be processed from one-half gram of shark cartilage, they reported.

The researchers said the abundance of this material in sharks may help explain why these creatures so rarely show evidence of cancer, in contrast to mammals, bony fish and amphibians.

Tests with the inhibitor and tumors transplanted into the eyes of rabbits indicate that the substance does not act directly on the tumor itself, but deprives the cancer mass of its necessary supply of blood.

Tumor cells continued to grow under rabbit corneas treated with the substance, but they did not form tumor masses, said the report.

After 19 days, all untreated control animals had large tumors forming under the cornea.

Sharks don't get cancer. This may be because of a substance in shark cartilage believed to slow the growth of new blood vessels toward solid tumors.

Women who use tampons may suffer from vaginal ulcers

Hearst News Service

Approximately one out of five women who use tampons may suffer recurrent vaginal and cervical ulcers as a result of tampon use, according to a study released Friday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The ulcers, abrasions along the walls of the vagina and birth canal, can cause abnormal discharges, urinary problems and pain during intercourse, according to the authors of the study, Dr. Steven M. Weissberg of South Miami Hospital and Dr. Melvin G. Dodson of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

But Weissberg explained, "This (the report) should not cause any kind of panic. It is simply to make physicians aware of the condition so that it could be properly treated."

Based on their own research and previous studies, Weissberg and Dodson determined that vaginal and cervical ulcers sometimes occur when a tampon is constantly pressed against the wall of the vagina and the tissue becomes over-dry.

"The incidence of tampon-associated ulcers increases with prolonged use and with the use of superabsorbent tampons," the researchers wrote.

Weissberg said the ulcers disappeared soon after tampon use was discontinued but reappeared as soon as the patient began using them again. In many cases, the problem was compounded when the ulcers would begin to bleed and the woman, believing her menstrual cycle was not over, would insert another tampon.

Some of the ulcers can be detected only with the use of a microscope, while others can be as large as 1 inch by 2 inches.

Decreased calcium levels also were found to possibly be partly responsible for the tendency toward ulcerations.

Weissberg and Dodson do not recommend discontinuing the use of tampons. Instead, they suggest women use regular rather than superabsorbent tampons and wear them for no more than four hours at a time, never overnight. They also recommend women use tampons only on the heaviest days of their menstrual cycle.

This is the second affliction to be associated with tampon use.

In June 1980, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta first reported a link between tampon use and toxic shock syndrome, a sometimes fatal disease which usually afflicts young women who use tampons.

Heiress faces trial in death

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Frances Schreuder, a Manhattan socialite, faces trial Monday on charges she coaxed her teen-age son to murder her millionaire father, a Utah auto parts magnate, because she feared she would be disinherited for her free-spending ways.

The killing, and the mother-son connection, might have made a good book — the late Thomas Thompson, who wrote of murder and money in Texas in "Blood and Money," had planned a volume on the Schreuders before his death last year.

"This case has everything — blood and money," Thompson told a reporter in July 1982, moments after Marc Schreuder was sentenced to five years to life in prison for having, at age 17, shot his 76-year-old grandfather in the back and head.

"But of course," Thompson added, "the real story is with the mother."

Indeed, despite her absence from her son's trial, Mrs. Schreuder's name was often invoked by witnesses who said the 45-year-old woman, a New York City Ballet board member, master-minded the July 23, 1978, murder of her father, Franklin Bradshaw, when he grew weary of bankrolling her.

At his death, Bradshaw's estate — based on a 31-store auto parts chain and investments in hundreds of lucrative oil and gas leases — was valued at $10.4 million.

Eighteen months after the slaying, police arrested Schreuder, then a student at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. He later was certified an adult and extradited to Utah to stand trial.

In October 1981, a second of Bradshaw's three daughters, Marilyn Reagan, brought police a gun that ballistic tests showed was the murder weapon. She said she had gotten it from a family friend, Richard Behrens of New York. Behrens testified he had hidden the gun at Mrs. Schreuder's request but broke his word when she failed to repay a $3,700 loan.

Mrs. Schreuder was arrested in March 1982 at her midtown Manhattan apartment and was charged — as her son had been 15 months before — with first-degree murder, a capital offense.

Soon free on $500,000 cash bail provided by her mother, Bernice Bradshaw, Mrs. Schreuder fought extradition from New York while her son stood trial.

Family members and employees testified Bradshaw was angered by his youngest daughter's incessant demands for money and because he believed her sons, Marc and Larry, had stolen thousands of dollars while working for him in 1977.

One employee, Douglas Steele, said Bradshaw even cut off funds to his wife because she sent money to her daughter against his wishes.

A disgusted Bradshaw finally wrote a memorandum indicating his intention to write Mrs. Schreuder out of his will, Steele said.

The prosecution contended Mrs. Schreuder, learning of her father's plan, paid $5,000 to a purported "hit man" to kill her father. But the man, New York printer Myles Manning, testified he'd pocketed the money and told Mrs. Schreuder he'd been unsuccessful.

"She needed someone to carry out this dirty plan, but she couldn't find anybody to do it" except her son, Deputy Salt Lake County Attorney Ernie Jones said in opening arguments in Schreuder's trial.

Schreuder, now 22, did not take the witness stand. But by allowing his former lawyer, David Frankel, to relate prior conversations between them, Schreuder admitted he had bought a .357 Magnum revolver in Midland, Texas, and had shot his grandfather the next morning at the victim's auto parts warehouse in Salt Lake City.

For a year and a half before the murder, Frankel testified, Schreuder's "mother had told him that his grandfather had to be killed because he was going to disinherit them and they were going to be thrown out on the street."

Psychiatrist Louis Moench, who twice interviewed Schreuder, told 3rd District Judge James Sawaya the youth's bond with his mother was "extremely pathological ... in essence a sick relationship" in which she threatened or attempted suicide when she didn't get her way.

Still, Sawaya found

Study finds drug abuse in anesthesiology

Copley News Service

Doctors and nurses involved in the field of anesthesiology seem to be more prone to drug abuse than people in other areas of medical practice, according to a report published today by a University of California at San Diego School of Medicine investigator.

"There is indeed a problem in anesthesia," said Dr. Clarence F. Ward, an assistant clinical professor of anesthesiology and principal author of the article in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"The number of anesthesiologists (nurses) and anesthesiologists (doctors) being referred to drug rehabilitation facilities is three- or four-fold what their overall population should reflect proportionately," he said.

The reasons for this concentration of drug abuse aren't clear, Ward said in an interview today, but he noted that anesthesiology is "a stress-filled, solo job not done in concert with others."

In addition, he said, there's "not much ego gratification" in the job.

Just as in business and athletics, he said, drug abuse often "strikes the brightest and the best."

Strangely, Ward said, although there is a great potential for harm, his study indicates that actual injury to patients resulting from drug abuse is "extraordinarily rare."

The major factor in this drug abuse problem, he said, is the "remarkably easy access to incredibly powerful drugs and the expertise you need to use them once you get them."

Ward's report is the result of a survey of 289 anesthesia programs in the United States covering a 10-year period between 1970 and 1980. The study found that 74 percent of these programs had at least one case of drug dependence and some had five or more involving medical personnel.

Missionary priests back Chile's poor

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Roman Catholic missionary priests are providing strong moral support for the exploding anti-government unrest among Chile's poor.

While Chile's Catholic hierarchy takes a conciliatory role to promote talks between the government and the political opposition, priests who live and work in Santiago's slums defend demonstrations against President Augusto Pinochet's military regime.

Scores of Chilean and foreign missionaries have been caught up in the confrontations between demonstrators and armed riot police during the monthly opposition-led "Days of National Protest" that began in May.

Some have played heroic roles defusing confrontations and called for peaceful protests. Others preach the legitimacy of violence to counter repression that has left 50 people dead in five months of unrest.

Their involvement is a continuation of the role priests and other members of the clergy have played in recent political drives to end poverty and illiteracy and promote human rights throughout South and Central America. In Nicaragua, for example, some priests are leading members of the Sandinista movement.

"It is very difficult to condemn violence," said the Rev. Ronaldo Munoz, a theologian who lives in the Santiago slum neighborhood of La Granja. "I have the obligation to tell people to think about their actions. But I don't have the right to tell a father to watch his wife or children killed before defending himself."

The Rev. David Murphy, an English priest in the Maip section of Santiago, says, "The church always accompanies each side in a battle between armies. If my people go out to risk their lives at barricades, I must go with them. The church must be present."

Bishops in this largely Catholic country have long irritated Pinochet by criticizing the disappearance and torture of hundreds of political prisoners. They have also spoken against the government's tolerance of high unemployment, which is 30 percent nationwide and double that in many slums.

The government often accuses the church of being infiltrated by Marxists. Three foreign missionaries were expelled in March for what the government called politically suspect activity.

Since the monthly protests started, the bishops have been more restrained.

But many priests have become involved in the protest movement. Last Saturday some of them organized a funeral Mass and march for an unarmed worker shot to death by policemen in Santiago's La Victoria neighborhood.

Eleven people were killed in four cities during four nights of protests that ended Sunday on the 10th anniversary of the coup that deposed elected Marxist President Salvador Allende and put Pinochet in power.

Temple being restored by Chinese

QUFU, China (AP) — Confucius once advised: "It is indeed harmful to come under the sway of utterly new and strange doctrines." For more than 2,000 years Chinese emperors went along with that idea and paid homage to the ancient philosopher.

to Xu Shaofeng of the Qufu Foreign Affairs office.

Now Confucius' tombstone has been cemented back together, with metal bands reinforcing it, and so have many of the tablets.

Now the people who run China under a definitely new doctrine — Marxism and Mao Tse-tung's thought — are spending millions of dollars to refurbish a Confucian temple and feudal manor home here, thus bearing witness to the former emperors' homage.

Much of the work done so far has been repairs of damage done in the 1966-76 "Cultural Revolution," when radical-leftist Red Guards denounced everything old. Confucius' gravestone was smashed into a hundred pieces and heavy stone tablets bearing the emperors' lavish praise of the old teacher were blasted, pounded and pulled down.

The buildings, bearing no such offensive messages, were largely left alone because of the intervention of then-Premier Chou En-lai, who telephoned the little country town of Qufu — Confucius' hometown — to order the mauling young Red Guards back to Peking, according

Slow recovery expected

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile is starting to emerge from a long economic recession that has spawned months of unrest against President Augusto Pinochet's military government but the recovery is expected to be slow.

After a five-year boom under widely acclaimed free-market policies, the economy shrank 14 percent last year before hitting what now appears to have been its low point in the first quarter of 1983.

Since then, industry analysts have reported slight improvement of such key indicators as construction and electricity consumption. Output of basic items like textiles, shoes, paper, steel and glass has risen modestly, as have earnings from copper, fish, lumber and other major exports.

Unemployment has fallen from a peak of 25 percent a year ago to 19 percent — a result of new hiring at factories and construction sites, and an expanded public job program.

These trends started before the first "Day of National Protest" in May against Pinochet's government. But they have not been enough to stem the angry demonstrations staged each month since then by hundreds of thousands of Chileans.

Nor have the upward curves on the charts made any visible impact on the classic scenes of depression that abound here — merchants illegally hawking trinkets on pedestrian malls, slum dwellers lined up at church soup kitchens, women with infants begging at stoplights amid rush-hour traffic.

Beware of these signs of restaurant rip-offs

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — No matter where you wander, on land or sea or foam, you can be pretty sure it's El Rip-off when:

—The restaurant menu arrives leather-bound like a high school diploma, and English therein is a second language.

—The doorman is attired as a Venetian gondolier, a Baluchi dock wallop or a Beefeater on leave from a gin bottle.

—The waitresses are gowned and corseted like Moll Flanders and unfurl the chef's specials from a parchment scroll or display them on little wooden boards like early American hymnals.

—The piped-in music is Vivaldi or Elizabethan madrigals.

—The lighting decor, borrowed from a Penang opium den, is too dark for anyone unequipped with a miner's headlamp to read the prices.

—The wine waiter, who calls himself Le Sommelier, hovers pretentiously with a little copper spoon around his neck, as if dealing in cocaine and presents a winelist which is a scrapbook of old bottle labels.

—The lamb chops, like the maitre d', are attired in white socks.

Mulligan's
Stew

—The menu reads like a Rand McNally gazetteer, with everything coming from someplace: Bay of Fundy scallops, Omaha corn-fed beef, Long Island pommes de terre, Jerusalem artichokes, Dublin Bay prawns, Boston lettuce, asparagus from Allentown, Pa. It reminds me of a summer or two ago when I was traveling on the west coast of Ireland and asked the waiter at a small hotel in County Claire if the oysters were fresh. "Be gad," he said, "they just came down on the bus."

—Engraved pewter plates adorn your table service, but disappear as soon as the first stick of celery arrives.

—The staff busies itself with removing and adding knives and forks, doling out rolls from a wicker hamper, filling up water glasses, lighting candles, arranging cheese spreads and relish trays instead of building that first life-giving extra dry martini.

—Entrees on the menu are preceded by the definite article as in "the steak — $25," "the lobster — $30" or "the haunch of venison — $40," also sometimes so listed in French, as in "le steak or le bifsteck," "L'homard" and "Selle et cimier de chevreuil." Places inclined to this sort of thing usually carry names like "Ragweed Seed, A Restaurant" or "Sibyl's, a Dining Experience."

—An acute case of the cutes afflicts the prose style of the menu concocter, translating fish choices into "doubloons from our own Spanish galleon," "treasures from Davy Jones's locker," "finny fantasies from our favorite fishing fleet" or some such bilge. In extreme cases of cuteness, an attempt is made at humor, as in "The Godfather's Lasagna Gorgonzola — an offer you can't refuse" or "Waffles Wichita Lineman — A ding-a-ling's delight."

—When both the chef and the wine bottle have a white napkin nattily knotted about their necks and seem to expect applause on sight.

The menu lists "Les Legumes" or "Riches du Jardin," but the waitress pops her bubblegum and inquires, "What'll you have for a veg?"

—The check arrives in a velvet case worthy of the Magna Carta on a silver tray, upside down, but the blow is softened by a Swiss chocolate and an individually wrapped turkey quill toothpick.

Gator moving

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Waldo the alligator is getting a new home, not because she's too big — at 10 feet or fierce, but because she's too friendly.

"I hate to see her go," said 86-year-old farmer Charlie Stevenson, who had kept the gator in a pond on his farm. "She has been my pet for 18 years," he said. "She is just one of the family."

Stevenson's wife said the family feared the creature would scare strangers. Waldo was lured into a bear cage by Stevenson and state wildlife officers. She didn't put up a fight, but did show her teeth.

'Gender gap' not apparent in Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Public opinion pollsters may say that President Reagan's support among women is shaky, but he's doing well among this year's Miss America contestants.

At the beauty pageant, which winds up with final competition Saturday night, gaps of concern include those that show between teeth or between the dancers rehearsing their numbers. The "gender gap" is not among them.

In an informal survey, 36 of the women said they thought Reagan was doing a good job as president. Twelve said they did not approve of his performance, while two said they had not yet made up their minds.

At the same time, 28 of the contestants said they did not believe there is widespread disaffection among women with the president. Nineteen said they thought it did exist, and three said they were not sure.

For months now, public opinion polls have shown that Reagan's support among women is far weaker than it is among men.

"I wonder about those polls," said Miss Idaho, 20-year-old Elaine Pack. "I'm thinking they might be slanted, looking for sensationalism. He's appointed women and I think he's done an outstanding job."

Miss Wisconsin, Wendy Lynn Wagner, 22, said the more she knows about Reagan, the more she likes him.

"Before I started paying close attention to current events, I didn't like him at all," she said. "Now I do. He's not a sheep, he's a lion. You need somebody strong who is going to defend you."

Miss Utah, Lynn Lambert, 21, said she believed the president was being picked on unfairly by women.

"Women attack him like homosexuals attack him and blacks attack him, because he's the best thing to attack," she said. "They need someone they can harp on."

Miss Mississippi, Wanda Gayle Geddie, 24, said women she knows support the president, but she said she believed that opinions vary according to who is asked.

"If you ask Barbara Honeger, she'd surely say there is a gender gap," she said, referring to the former Justice Department employee who resigned and accused the president of being insensitive to women's issues. "But if you asked Sandra Day O'Connor, I'm sure she'd give a completely different answer."

Reagan appointed Mrs. O'Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court last year.

Amy Elizabeth Keys, Miss Maryland, said she did not favor Reagan's performance in his job. She added that the president's appointments of women to some key jobs were "cosmetic changes" that were ill-designed.

"He makes a big deal about putting women in certain positions," she said. "If he'd just place them there and let people realize it on their own, it would be better."

Added Miss Vermont, 19-year-old Juliet A. Lambert, "I think as the elections approach, he's trying to do something. He's definitely putting more emphasis on this issue now. Before that, he concentrated on building up our weaponry."

Some of the women said that despite Reagan's opposition to the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, his policies were, in the long run, benefiting women.

"Women may be hurting more than men, but he is concerned with women," said Miss Ohio, Pamela Helean Rigas, who is 22. "But by helping the economy, he's helping all minorities."

Founder of singles magazine sues former live-in partner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The founder of a national singles magazine says she was "dazzled" by a Chicago millionaire she met through her own publication. But now she is suing him, claiming he took control of the magazine when they broke up.

Suzanne Douglas, 43, who filed the $20 million civil suit Friday in Superior Court, contends she met Melvin Lannert after placing an ad in the magazine and that they had a 1 1/2-year love affair.

The publication, Intro, features dozens of personal ads by people seeking the perfect mate.

"My magazine, which I devoted five years of my life to, is being run by a tool and die man," Ms. Douglas said in an interview at the office of her attorney, Merle Horwitz. "I feel like a mother whose child has just been torn away."

Lannert inherited Paragon Tool & Die Inc., a Glenview, Ill., machine tool supplier.

Lannert, 54, bailed out Intro when the magazine was cash-short in January 1981. Last Aug. 8 he fired Ms. Douglas, who was the editor.

A secretary, who would not give her name, said at the Los Angeles office of Lannert's magazine that he was not available for comment.

Ms. Douglas' voice broke at times as she related her version of a love affair she now contends was intended only to help Lannert's income tax situation.

She said they met after she placed an ad for a mate in her own magazine in March 1981. She said Lannert answered the ad, but also had written to the magazine earlier asking whether she was interested in acquiring more capital to back the publication.

Their first meeting came about the Fourth of July in 1981 when he invited her to spend the holiday weekend in Chicago, she said.

"I flew in and he just dazzled me," Ms. Douglas recalled. "He flew me to Mackinac Island for horseback riding, he took me on his 44-foot sailboat, he wined me and dined me all over town. That commenced our exclusive relationship."

They also had plans to marry, she said. By December 1981, Intro needed $250,000 to pay off its creditors. Ms. Douglas said that was when Lannert persuaded her to sell to him.

Her attorney conceded there were other ways to raise the capital, but Ms. Douglas explained, "I thought it was the only thing we could do. I was running out of time. He also said he would pay the printer ($60,000) immediately if I agreed" to his proposal.

"I trusted him...we talked about a pre-nuptial agreement and we were living together."

Ms. Douglas said Lannert then began undercutting her authority at the office and demoted her from publisher.

"He became progressively more and more difficult. He would countermand my instructions. I couldn't even choose between Sparklets or Arrowhead" (two brands of bottled drinking water).

She said the problems at the office spilled over into their home life.

After she was fired in August, she said both she and Lannert moved out of their condominium. She is now jobless and collecting unemployment.

"I never dreamed this man would not honor his commitments on the magazine — that had nothing to do with the love match," she said.

Horwitz said his client's suit is based both on the Marvin Mitchelson "palimony" case — in which California courts said live-in lovers have a contract even without marriage — as well as what Horwitz contended was Lannert's breach of contract.

Trying to cut down on fat in diet? Try alligator meat

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Diet-conscious folks in south Louisiana can look to the alligator, says a Louisiana State University professor of food science.

Alligator meat contains only about 1 percent fat, while beef can run as high as 25 percent, pork 20 percent and even chicken meat is about 6 percent fat, according to Dr. Stanley Biede.

"Alligator is also as high in protein as the more traditional meats such as beef and poultry, and higher in calcium and potassium," said Biede, who recently analyzed the meat from nine gators.

However, it's not for all dieters, he said.

"For some reason — probably diet-related — the meat is also higher in salt, which makes it less desirable for dieters with blood pressure problems," he said.

Biede said the alligators, provided by the state Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, weighed 26 to 154 pounds, with 44 to 68 percent of that meat. He analyzed meat from the right hind leg, lower torso, tail and lower jaw.

Alligator flesh looks like pork or chicken, he said, and "is a wholesome and non-gamey-tasting food that adapts to just about any meat recipe."

Actress 'scared' of tumor, but confident

LONDON (AP) — Actress Diana Dors, who has had two operations to remove cancerous tumors in the past year, said Friday she is "scared" but confident she will survive.

Miss Dors, 51, told television viewers she had been "a wicked so-and-so" in the past, but did not regard cancer as "God's revenge."

"Of course I'm scared...inasmuch as I don't want it to keep coming back," said Miss Dors in an interview on a breakfast-time channel, TV-AM.

"But, on the other hand, it has chosen the wrong person by actually choosing me. OK, it's a terrible thing, but it can be fought providing it is caught in time."

Miss Dors had an operation two weeks ago to remove a small cancerous tumor. Doctors removed another tumor during surgery a year ago for an ovarian cyst.

"I could so easily have lost my faith this time because I have been praying for a year that I would stay free of cancer, and then they said they'd found it again," said Miss Dors. "That's the moment when God tests you...but I know I'm going to be all right. I just know it."

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret left London on Friday to attend the independence celebrations of the tiny Caribbean island state of St. Kitts-Nevis.

Margaret will represent her sister, Queen Elizabeth II, at ceremonies Monday when St. Kitts-Nevis, consisting of two islands with a population of 60,000, gain independence from Britain.

St. Kitts-Nevis, at the northern tip of the Windward Island chain, is the last of six British associated states in the Caribbean to become independent.

Claimed by Britain in 1623, St. Kitts was the first island in the British West Indies to be colonized.

Minister for Overseas Development Timothy Raison and 50 members of the Royal Marines Band also will take part in the ceremonies, which begin this weekend.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The state Legislature, commencing its 200th session, called on a soap opera star to re-enact the speech Abraham Lincoln made in 1861 praising New Jersey's contribution to U.S. history.

Senators, assemblymen and spectators crowded the lower chamber Thursday as Mark La Mura, who portrays Mark Dalton on "All My Children," recreated the address Lincoln delivered during a stop here en route to his inauguration.

The state Legislature's first session was in 1776, when the United States declared its independence. The Legislature had one-year sessions until 1968, when a constitutional amendment was passed mandating two-year sessions.

Dressed in 19th century clothing, La Mura recalled Lincoln's words: "I cannot but remember the place New Jersey holds in the early history of our country."

"I remember that in the Revolutionary struggle none had more of its battle fields. I remember of reading, in my youth, a small book — the life of Washington — and of all his struggles, none fixed itself on my mind so indelibly, as the crossing of the Delaware, preceding the battle of Trenton."

"Even President Lincoln was descended from the New Jersey Legislature," said Gov. Thomas H. Kean said. "One of his ancestors was John Bowne, speaker of the House of Assembly 300 years ago, in 1683."

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Chief Justice Warren Burger accepted the National Freedoms Foundation's highest award on the site where soldiers of a fledgling nation survived a bitter winter more than 200 years ago.

Burger said he accepted the foundation's George Washington award "with gratitude" and in the spirit of the soldiers in Washington's army who camped at Valley Forge in 1777-78.

The chief justice told the audience of 250 on Thursday night that he discarded a brief formal speech to reflect instead on the imprint Valley Forge had on the U.S. Constitution.

The award, last presented in 1979, is given by a special jury to recognize people for their patriotism. It cited Burger for his "leadership in the American judicial system and his tireless efforts to preserve and protect the careful balance between state and federal systems."

Boston cardinal undergoes emergency surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Cardinal Humberto Medeiros underwent six hours of emergency surgery Friday to replace a heart valve and bypass three "extremely" diseased arteries. Doctors said his illness could have been fatal within three days.

The 67-year-old archbishop of Boston was in satisfactory but serious condition, said Dr. Richard Cleveland, chief surgeon at St. Elizabeth's Hospital who directed the operation.

"He is not out of danger by any manner or means," said Cleveland. "The next 48 hours are critical."

"The procedure went in routine fashion. While he is still in serious condition, we are satisfied with his progress at this time," added the surgeon.

"We did not think he could have left the hospital without a surgical procedure," Cleveland told a news conference, "and we did not think he would last until Monday without it. He had extremely severe coronary disease."

Dr. John O. Pastore, Medeiros' cardiologist, said the cardinal first complained of occasional tightness in his chest months ago, but it was not clear that the problem was angina.

During the operation, doctors rerouted blood around three clogged portions of the cardinal's left coronary artery. His right coronary artery was also plugged, but it was too damaged to repair. "Anybody who undergoes a several-hour open heart surgical procedure by necessity is in serious condition at the conclusion of the procedure," Cleveland said.

Medeiros, leader of more than 2 million Roman Catholics in the nation's second-largest archdiocese, was hospitalized last week after a mild heart attack. Doctors found "severe coronary artery disease which was symptomatic to the point where it was necessary for us to move ahead with some urgency," Cleveland said.

"In any emergency operation, and I think we'd have to classify this as an emergency procedure, there is a significant element of risk," the surgeon said.

The surgery involved replacement of a leaking mitral heart valve and of three sections of artery supplying the heart muscle.

The cardinal also suffers from diabetes and hypertension. He has been hospitalized six times in 18 months. Catholics attended special Masses at Boston churches to pray for Medeiros, and higher Masses were reported at many services.

"The quality of the apartment is much better than any others I've seen in Midland."

Mary and Perry Nelson talk about The Clusters:

"The extras included seem like a real bonus. We're former-homeowners, so it takes a really nice apartment complex to satisfy us."

"I have a lot more kitchen appliances than I ever did in my own home. Dishwasher, trash compactor, garbage disposal, side-by-side refrigerator, built-in microwave, washer and dryer."

But that's not all. You also get French doors to patios/balconies, mini-blinds, ceiling fans and your choice of wall coverings.

Plus unmatched amenities such as luxurious clubhouse, two pools with Jacuzzis, lighted tennis courts, 4-station jogging trail, aerobics classes and exercise room.

Come and visit and you'll see why the Nelsons' say, "There have been many days we've come home and said, 'They've really done it again, they've gone first class.'"

The Clusters. Midland's finest adult community. Special pricing now available.
