RACKETEERS TAKE CHARGE OF HUNT FOR BABY

Nine Injured When Racing Car Crashes Rails

'Baby Bond' Campaign Opened With Appeals By Nation's Leaders

WASHINGTON, March 6. (US)—Declaring that "the future of the American people is the safest risk in the world," President Hoover tonight opened his nation-wide drive against hoarding.

In a radio address through the National and Columbia broadcasting systems, the chief executive made what he termed a "call to the faith of a people," appealing to the nation to free its financial institutions from the threatening dangers of frightened money.

His address formally ushered in an intensive drive over the entire country, which will be marked tomorrow morning by the widely advertised "baby bond" issue of the treasury department.

Other Speakers

With the president on the radio program tonight were Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury; Senator Joseph T. Robinson, senate Democratic leader, and Col. Frank Knox.

The president said the citizen who withdraws his deposits from the bank does not realize the harm he does.

"His dollar compels the bank to withdraw many times that amount of credit from the use of borrowers," he said.

"These borrowers are the local merchants, the local manufacturers, the local farmers, and their borrowings are the money they use to buy goods, to pay wages, and the cost of keeping their business going."

General Dawes called attention to the fact that the citizen who merely buys the bonds out of money now deposited in banks, giving a check for them, is not aiding the situation. He said:

Use of Currency Urged

"Where the bonds can be sold for currency which has been hoarded, the sale puts this money into circulation and at work again. The man or woman who puts back a sum of hoarded money into a sound bank, or buys a government bond with it, is directly contributing to a return of prosperous conditions."

Senator Robinson said other safe investments, for hoarded money are as useful as the redeposit of money in banks, or the purchase of bonds. He mentioned real estate, specifically, as an especially profitable investment at this time.

Secretary Mills said:

"Hoarding has undoubtedly been a major factor in the inability of our banking system to function fully in this emergency and has in fact been one of the primary causes of the later phases of the business depression."

Results Reported

The preliminary anti-hoarding drive appeared today to have realized some results, as treasury department figures disclosed a reduction of $150,000,000 in the amount of hoarded money in the past several weeks.

The baby bond issue will carry two per cent interest, will mature in 12 months, and will be redeemable in 60 days. It will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, and $500, and there is no limit on the subscription of any person or corporation. Its object is to draw as much of the remaining hoarded money as possible.

Suit Against 15 Big Oil Concerns To Resume Today

AUSTIN, March 6. (AP)—The state's suit against 15 major oil companies and two petroleum associations, alleging anti-trust law violations, is scheduled to be resumed in Travis county district court tomorrow.

After almost a month's arguments on points of law the suit was recessed 10 days ago to give the large number of attorneys concerned in the litigation an opportunity to devote some attention to other matters.

Arguments were set to continue on pleas of abatement and misjoinder. These points disposed of, defendants' exceptions of the state's petition, in the form of general demurrers will be taken up.

FIVE DROWN AS BOATS CAPSIZE

Coast Guardsmen Victims Of Heavy Surf

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 6. (UP)—Five coast guardsmen were drowned tonight when two surfboats capsized off Heinz pier. The two boats went down within one hour of each other. The dead: William R. Barton, 21 years old, a surfman of Atlantic City.

Harold Livingston, 24, machinist, of Woodbine, N. J.; Marvin E. Rhodes, 23, boatswain, of Atlantic City; William Graham, 26 years old, surfman, of Newport, N. C.; David Barnett, 24, surfman of Bay Head, N. J.

A driving snowstorm which made visibility less than two feet on the beaches hampered recovery of the bodies. Capt. Irwin W. Steele, in charge of this coast guard district, assigned 15 men to patrol duty near the scene of the accidents.

The two surfboats went down in one of the most severe storms this part of New Jersey has experienced in 10 years.

Chinese Claim They Are 'Forced' Into U. S.

TUCSON, Ariz., March 6. (AP)—C. C. Courtney, chief of the Tucson subdivision of the federal immigration border patrol, has announced receipt of reports from patrolmen that Chinese crossing the border from Mexico had complained they were forced to cross by Mexican officials.

More than 400 Chinese were arrested in February and held for deportation, a record, Courtney said, since the exodus began, and so far this month they have been crossing into the United States at a rate of 15 to 20 a night. Five hundred recently were deported to China.

Indicted Man Escapes From Alpine Hospital

ALPINE, Texas, March 6. (AP)—Pat O'Hara, indicted for burglary, escaped from a hospital here last night. He was taken to the hospital two weeks ago when attacked by pneumonia, and had been chained to the bed.

Filing off his leg chains, apparently he walked away in his night clothes, and while he was not re-arrested immediately officers believed he could not go far because of his weakened condition.

Fatal Shooting Closes Discussion Over Rent

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 6. (UP)—An argument over payment of the rent of a house leased jointly was blamed for the shooting that caused the death today of John Channon, 45.

Charles Vance, 35, surrendered to county authorities after the killing and he is held in jail on a charge of murder. He handed officers a shotgun that he allegedly used to shoot Channon.

15 Machine Gun Slugs Hit Chicago Clansman

CHICAGO, March 6. (AP)—Charles O'Donnell, member of a south side clan which has long been identified with the beer trade, was shot and seriously wounded today by machine gunners who fired from ambush.

Trapped between the double doors of the entrance to his apartment house by gunmen concealed in shrubbery outside, O'Donnell was struck by 15 slugs. He fell to the floor, feigning death, and the execution squad departed. Physicians said he would live.

Detectives ascribed the attempted assassination to strife within the rum industry and investigated rumors that a rift had occurred in the family ties that bound together the seven surviving brothers.

Gov. Murray Says Tour Of States Just Opened

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 6. (UP)—Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma started home today after a week of stumping which he believes will give him North Dakota's delegation to the Democratic presidential convention.

"But this speech making in North Dakota is just a starter," he said. "I'm going to talk in a dozen or so states, from Florida to Oregon and back to New York. I'll go to the Chicago convention with enough support, and write a platform, even though it's a minority report that will blow up all those platformless candidates."

SPEED MACHINE HURTLES INTO CROWD OF FANS

Spectators Struggle Wildly To Escape Danger At Houston Track

DRIVER UNINJURED

Rip Bales Only Bruised When Curve Is Taken On Two Wheels

HOUSTON, March 6. (AP)—Nine persons were injured late today when a racing car plowed through the rail at the South Main street speedway here.

The racer of Lew Wilson of Galveston, driven by Rip Bales, also of Galveston, just had taken third place on the fifth lap of an eight-lap race for professional drivers, and Bales was attempting to negotiate the north turn on the half mile track.

Swerves Wildly

The machine swerved wildly on two wheels and the driver could be seen desperately trying to bring it round safely.

Spectators, packed around the railing at the turn, made a wild struggle to get away. They had only begun to part, however, when the car crashed into the guard railing, splintering it.

The machine, hurled around by the impact of the collision with the railing spun crazily on the ground, knocking down several who almost had escaped from its path.

Crowd in Panic

T. L. Supple, who was standing 10 feet from the spot where the car plunged through the railing, said men and women, held almost in their tracks by the mass of people behind and beside them, fought frantically to escape from the path of the car.

Bales, the driver, was not injured beyond being shaken up.

The injured:

W. S. Noble, 33, of Addicks, cut about the face.

J. K. Hancock, 26, bruised on the leg.

Mrs. Rosalie Workman, 20, broken right leg and bruises and cuts.

Jimmie Fowler, 17, cut and bruised.

Mrs. J. L. Gentry, 26, broken right leg.

Claude Harmon, 23, bruised.

L. E. Chasey, 27.

A. D. McKeehan, 21.

Claude Hogue, 21, foot injury.

An undetermined number of persons, a dozen or more, were given emergency treatment for slight hurts at the track by physicians.

Stomach Analysis Made In Death of Salesman

LAREDO, Texas, March 6. (AP)—Authorities investigating the death of John W. Ackerman, San Antonio salesman, today awaited a report from Austin on an analysis of the contents of Ackerman's stomach.

The analysis was asked after Ackerman's body was found in an automobile beside a highway near Laredo under circumstances which led some to believe he might have met with foul play.

A note found on the back of an order pad referred to two Mexicans who "got me at Eagle Pass" and to one "holding a pistol at my back." The note said the Mexicans forced the salesman to "go the wrong way."

Says France Justified In Non-Payment of Debt

PARIS, March 6. (US)—Henry Berenger, former ambassador to Washington, today declared France will be justified in refusing to pay war debts to America except as Germany pays reparations to France.

The co-author of the Mellon-Berenger Franco-American debt accord said that justification can be found in the minutes of the accord negotiations for April 23, 1926. A statement of his declaring that France would be within her rights in refusing to continue payments if not paid by Germany is incorporated in the minutes of that day, he said.

Body Of 'March King' To Rest In Cemetery At National Capital

READING, Pa., March 6. (AP)—John Philip Sousa laid down his baton today and the blare of brass bands faded forever from his ears. The bandmaster who inspired two continents with his stirring compositions died as he had wished—"still in harness."

Physicians said it was a heart attack that struck down the 77-year-old "march king" only a short while after he had led a local band through rehearsal.

Sousa was stricken after attending a banquet in his honor. His secretary, Miss Lillian Finegan, found him ill in his suite in the Hotel Abraham Lincoln a few minutes after midnight. The house physician was summoned, but Sousa ded at 12:30 o'clock.

Legon Guard of Honor

His widow, Mrs. Jane Sousa, his daughters, Miss Jane Percilla Sousa, of Sands Point, Long Island, and Mrs. Hamilton Abert, of New York, and his son-in-law came here today. Abert accompanied the body to Washington by train while the widow and daughters returned to New York and will go to Washington tomorrow.

The body was escorted from the hotel to the Pennsylvania station by an honor guard composed of members of local posts of the American Legion.

The funeral services will be held Thursday at a funeral director's establishment and burial will be in the congressional cemetery. The hour of the funeral will be set after the arrival of Sousa's son, John Philip Sousa Jr. from La Jolla, Calif.

A career of more than 65 years before the public, during which he composed more than 300 works and had directed his famous band in most of the principal cities of the world, made Sousa one of the most widely known of contemporary American musicians.

Throughout his notable career he remained to the last a band master. No activity could persuade him to abandon his baton. His annual tours at the head of his famous organization carried the music classics to the smallest communities in the hope of awakening them to an appreciation of good music.

In Marine Band at 13

The "march king's" programs emphasized the martial, patriotic theme, ignored the trite and popularized the best in music. His compositions were versatile, including operas and musical comedy.

Sousa became a member of the United States marine corps band when only 13 years old through a plan of his father, a member of the band, to thwart the boy's plans to run away with a circus band. Later young Sousa conducted theatrical and other orchestras and gave violin lessons. In 1877 he joined the orchestra of Jacques Offenbach, composer of "The Tales of Hoffman," as first violinist. Congressman Commended For Prohibition Stand

COLUMBUS, Texas, March 6. (AP)—The ninth Texas district of the American Legion today adopted a resolution commending Congressman J. J. Mansfield of Columbus for his stand in favor of a house vote on a national referendum on prohibition.

Gov. R. S. Sterling told the convention the legion was the nation's greatest bulwark against Bolshevism and Communism.

Mrs. Sterling received an ovation when she was introduced. Miss Inez Sterling, daughter of William W. Sterling, adjutant general, was presented to the gathering.

Fruit Trees Unhurt as Winter Hits at Laredo

LAREDO, Texas, March 6. (AP)—Although this section experienced genuine winter temperatures this morning, when the mercury dropped to 38 degrees, no damage was done citrus or other fruit trees, some of which were in full blossom or had embryo fruit on them. No damage was reported to tender vegetation, including watermelons, cantaloupes, tomatoes and squash.

MEXICAN DEAD ON HIGHWAY

LOCKHART, Texas, March 6. (UP)—Authorities tonight attempted to establish the identity of a Mexican found dead on state highway 29.

'Baering' Down On The News

BY ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

We have laws in the country for all our ills. Unfortunately, we also have laws for most of our blessings.

We need one more law and we require it faster than Floyd Gibbons can say hello folks.

It should be aimed dead center at the quarter-wits who write crank letters.

Crank letters give the police wrong steers, obstruct justice and tear the living hearts of people in trouble.

The writers of these horrible epistles can be easily traced. Run them down and put them in a third-class postoffice with first-class padded walls.

We have learned one thing from the tragedy that is stirring the world. Let the postmasters read all the letters before they are mailed. That would enable them to grab the cranks and put about 50 years of federal postage on them.

NEW NORTHER STRIKES AREA

Government Bulletin Warns Of Colder Weather

Coming on the heels of the coldest weather of the winter season in Wichita Falls a second blue norther struck Wichita Falls and vicinity at 10 o'clock Sunday night. Small flurries of snow were reported by railroad dispatchers in the Panhandle and in Northern Oklahoma, and the government weather bureau warned stockmen in North Texas to protect their animals.

Swept on by a high wind, the norther sent the temperature hurtling downward six degrees in Wichita Falls from 44 to 38 degrees in a few minutes at 10:30 p. m. The mercury stood at 31 degrees at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning and with the temperature already below the freezing point of 32 degrees the third consecutive cold night was well under way.

Childress reported a temperature of 27 degrees with the mercury falling rapidly, after a 10-degree drop in 30 minutes at 10:30 p. m.

The cold wave struck Kays, Okla., at 4 p. m. and at 10:30 p. m. the mercury stood at 10 degrees above zero. Other temperatures on the Katy lines included 12 degrees at Forgan, 15 at Woodward, and 30 at Altus, Okla. Snow flurries were reported from Northern Oklahoma and from Dalhart north in Texas, where the temperature stood at 14 degrees at 10:30 p. m.

No rain was reported by either Denver or Katy dispatchers with a dry freeze threatened. The mercury dropped to 27 degrees early Sunday morning but climbed to 58 degrees at 5 p. m. It dropped slowly until the sharp break at 10 o'clock.

Strike Danger Looms In Illinois Mine Area

CHICAGO, March 6. (AP)—Possibility of strike in the Illinois bituminous coal fields loomed tonight on the eve of the joint meeting here between the wage scale committees of the State Coal Operators' Labor association and the Illinois district, United Mine Workers of America.

The present contract expires March 31, and unless a new agreement is reached by then indications are work will suspend in state mines.

HOPES ARE REVIVED

Direct Assurance From Abductors Declares Tot 'Alive and Safe'

NEWARK, N. J., March 7. (AP) (Monday)—Deputy Chief of Police Brex, after questioning the two men all night, announced today police would continue to hold Henry (Red) Johnson, friend of the nurse-maid to the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, but would not hold Johansen Junge, friend of Johnson.

NEW YORK, March 6. (US)—The underworld tonight had taken charge of the world's most famous kidnaping case, definite word having been received from the kidnapers of their 20-month-old son by Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Assurance directly from the abductors late Saturday that the "baby is alive and safe," was promptly followed by the designation by the Lindberghs of Salvatore (Salvy) Spitale, powerful figure in New York City's underworld, and Irving Bitz, his henchman, as "go-betweens" and their prompt acceptance of the mission.

Events of importance rapidly followed.

Automobile Returns

At 5 o'clock this morning Spitale's powerful automobile returned, covered with mud and dust, to its garage at Christie and Grand streets. This followed a definite report that the new underworld mediators had spent the night in the Lindbergh home at Hopewell.

The big car left again at 2:20 this afternoon, taking a route across Staten Island, presumably toward the Hopewell sector. It did not arrive at the Lindbergh estate, but was reported back again mysteriously near the Central Park west home of Spitale in this city this evening.

New Hope Evidenced

Speculation was rife as to whether Spitale had already been in touch with the kidnapers.

In any event there was evidence of new hope in the minds of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh that their baby was safe and that feeling was reflected generally by those connected with the week old effort to restore the child.

It was believed by police and other authorities that as soon as satisfactory arrangements could be made through Spitale for the payment of the $50,000 ransom demanded by the abductors, the baby would be restored to its parents.

So far as Spitale and Bitz were concerned, those arrangements were completed early today and were quickly followed by an appeal by the famous racketeer to the kidnapers to make known their plan for meeting the mediators and making the exchange of the precious human package for the "fifty grand" which is to be turned over in small bills.

Ace Sleuth Helps

The negotiations which led to the designation of Spitale and Bitz were made by Col. Henry L. Breckenridge, lawyer, and John J. Fogarty, Long Island's ace private detective. Colonel Breckenridge, Lindbergh's personal attorney, early Wednesday summoned Fogarty from his Mineola home. Fogarty was Colonel Lindbergh's private bodyguard

Late Picture Of Baby's Nurse

Because she was the first to discover that Baby Lindbergh was missing, Betty Gow, above, nurse in the Lindbergh home, has held an important place in news of the investigation. Reports from the Lindbergh home state she has spent hours weeping in her room in one of the wings of the house. Picture above is a closeup snapped shortly before the kidnaping.

Reporters Grill Police Official On 'Inside' Story Of Investigation

TRENTON, N. J., March 6. (AP)—The appointment of "go-betweens" in the search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby was characterized by Major Charles Schoeffel of the New Jersey state police today as a "private matter" undertaken by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh without consulting Schoeffel or "any other officers at this investigation."

The major's statement was made in response to the questions of newspaper men.

Q.—Have (Salvy) Spitale and (Irving) Bitz, the designated "go-betweens," expressed willingness to act as the intermediaries in this case?

A.—I never heard of either of these two men until Colonel Lindbergh issued his statement. I have never seen them and Colonel Lindbergh never spoke to me about them. I know he didn't speak to any of the other officers at this investigation. Colonel Lindbergh is a very quiet chap and does not express all he knows.

Q.—Who suggested Spitale and Bitz as possible "go-betweens" and why?

A.—I know nothing about it and it is a private matter of the colonel's. He prepared his message without consulting the state police.

Q.—Have Spitale and Bitz contacted the kidnapers or received any message from them?

A.—Don't imagine so or Colonel Lindbergh would have heard by now.

Q.—In case Spitale and Bitz are able to bring the kidnaping to a successful solution, what will be their legal position with respect to future prosecution?

A.—I refer you to the attorney-general.

Q.—Did Spitale and Bitz, or either or both, communicate with Colonel Lindbergh, state police or New York police?

A.—I do not know whether they communicated with New York police or Colonel Lindbergh, but I do know that they did not with New Jersey police.

Q.—The Englewood (N. J.) chief of police says Capt. John J. Lamb, state police, at the Lindbergh home asked him to have Johnson taken into custody. Why was Johnson wanted?

A.—I think Johnson telephoned Betty Gow. It seems he left Englewood the day after or the day of the kidnaping and Captain Lamb wanted him for questioning.

Q.—Where is Johnson now and in whose custody?

A.—He was at Englewood this afternoon.

Q.—Has Edward J. Hickey, Hartford investigator, who brought Johnson from Connecticut, visited the Lindbergh home?

A.—No. He was not there. Johnson is being taken to Newark and men from Hopewell will question him there.

Q.—Did Betty Gow tell police that she had a date with Johnson on Sunday and Monday night and that he telephoned her Tuesday night?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Where is Betty Gow now?

A.—At the Lindbergh home at Hopewell doing her duties there.

Q.—Has she been at the estate ever since the kidnaping?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Can she leave the estate if she wants to alone?

A.—She is not under arrest.

Q.—Where did Director of Public Safety Kern Dodge of Philadelphia and Governor Moore of New Jersey confer last night?

A.—I do not know that they did confer.

Q.—Has the butler left the Lindbergh estate since Thursday at 6 a. m.?

A.—No.

Q.—How can the kidnapers get in touch with Colonel Lindbergh if the state police are intercepting all communications though of a strictly personal nature?

A.—They can't unless they telephone and Colonel Lindbergh gets directly on the telephone or unless they send one of Colonel Lindbergh's friends over.

Q.—Is there a United States department of justice officer on duty at the Lindbergh home?

A.—No, there is not.

Q.—Is there complete harmony between Colonel Lindbergh and the state police over the return of the baby?

A.—There is complete harmony so far as the circumstances of the crime and the investigation go.

Q.—Is there harmony between the state police and government men?

A.—There are no federal men there.

Q.—Has Colonel Lindbergh asked the government to take over the investigation?

A.—No.

Q.—Why have state police not been advised of the negotiations between Colonel Lindbergh and Spitale?

A.—That is Colonel Lindbergh's private matter.

Q.—Did not Colonel Lindbergh confer with Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf and express regret over the way the investigation has been conducted to date?

A.—That is an unfair question.

Q.—What do state police think of the plan of Ellis Parker (Burlington county, N. J., police official) that the police withdraw and allow the kidnapers to return the child?

A.—I am not the head of the investigation and you must go to Colonel Schwartzkopf for that answer.

Q.—When do police expect an arrest?

A.—That is hard to answer.

Q.—Is there any one besides Johnson suspected?

A.—Johnson is only detained for questioning. He came to Nev Jersey voluntarily.

Q.—As a matter of fact are not the kidnapers known to the lice and a search being made for them?

A.—Their names are not known.

Q.—Why was Inspector Walsh removed as spokesman for the state police at these interviews and Major Schoeffel substituted?

A.—At the request of Inspector Walsh.

After the interview was concluded, state police said they knew of no basis for reports that the baby would be returned in 48 hours.

Former Cop Will Go to Trial in Murder Case

AMARILLO, Texas, March 6. (AP)—E. R. "Jack" Murr, 33, former Amarillo policeman, will face trial here tomorrow on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Bill Elston, 25-year-old son of a Panhandle judge, at a dance resort here last July.

Mutilated Bodies Of Two Women Found In Burning Automobile

BALSAM LAKE, Wis., March 6. (AP)—The bodies of two women, one shot through the head and the other having a crushed skull, were found today in a burning automobile, two miles west of Turtle Lake. The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

The blazing car was found by passing motorists on a side road one mile off county highway No. 8, northwest of Turtle Lake. The motorists tossed snow on the machine and succeeded in extinguishing the fire.

Killing Planned

That the killing had been deliberately planned was indicated, county authorities said, by the fact a spare automobile tire had been tossed into the burning car and its license plates had been removed.

The bodies were taken to an undertaking parlor here while authorities attempted to find clues that might show identity of the women.

Acid apparently had been poured on the faces. A large black purse, a pint bottle, which had contained acid, and a serial number of the car offered virtually the only clues.

Ages in Doubt

The purse contained two envelopes from a St. Paul hotel but there was no writing or other marks on them. A powder puff, powder box and a mirror were other articles in the purse.

Sheriff James Olson said the bodies were so badly burned that it was impossible to tell the age of the women.

DESCRIPTION TALLIES WITH CHICAGO WOMEN

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 6. (AP)—A check at the Ryan hotel here tonight showed that two Chicago women left there Saturday night in an automobile similar to the one found near Balsam Lake, Wis., today, with the bodies of two women in it.

The women had registered as Margaret and Marjorie Perrie, Chicago. They arrived at the hotel Thursday morning.

Prominent Texan Calls Ambulance And Kills Himself With Shotgun

ABILENE, Texas, March 6. (AP)—Sam Reed, prominent in fraternal organizations here, shot and killed himself early today after telephoning an undertaker to "come over in about 15 minutes—no hurry—bring an ambulance."

His body was found in his office, on its side with a shotgun on a desk. One shell had been discharged, and the load of shot had pierced the heart.

Justice of the Peace Carl P. Hulsey rendered a verdict of suicide.

Reed left several notes to his family, to lodge associates suggesting the name of one to succeed him as local secretary of the Woodmen of the World, and one to an undertaker fixing the maximum amount of expenses for his funeral.

He was a 32nd degree Mason, a Knight commander of the court of honor, and in a short time would have been made honorary 33rd degree Mason.

Burial was set for tomorrow afternoon at Iberis, near Abilene.

RACKETEERS AID LINDBERGH

Underworld Takes Charge Of Baby Hunt

when the Lone Eagle returned from his Paris flight.

When the new plan was formulated late Saturday, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh made a personal appeal to the kidnapers to deal with the new go-betweens, promising personal safety on the honor of the two gangland heroes.

SPITALE AND BITZ ARE "RIGHT GUYS"

(Copyt. 1932, by The Associated Press)

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 6.—The Lindberghs established an underworld contact today in the search for their kidnaped baby, but what led to this step and what results, if any it, had achieved were as much a mystery as the whereabouts of the famous infant.

In a public statement last midnight Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh designated Salvatore (Salvy) Spitale and Irving Bitz of New York, his reputed henchman, as their "go-betweens" in the hope the kidnapers would carry on negotiations for the return of the child.

Johnson Grilled

Meantime, a new puzzle developed from an announcement at Hartford, Conn., that Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor suitor of Betty Gow, the stolen baby's nurse, had been delivered to Englewood, N. J., police last night and that New Jersey authorities had been given all information gained in examination of Johnson.

Englewood police, however, denied they had Johnson.

Later it was learned Johnson was being held at Newark police headquarters for further questioning.

The Lindbergh statement, couched in seeming ambiguous language, was subject to a variety of interpretations.

It said:

"If the kidnapers of our child are unwilling to deal direct, we fully authorize 'Salvy' Spitale and Irving Bitz to act as our go-betweens. We will also follow any other method suggested by the kidnapers that we can be sure will bring the return of our child.

"Charles A. Lindbergh, Anne Lindbergh."

Two Interpretations

Some interpreted the announcement to mean that the Lindberghs had already been in some sort of communication with the kidnapers and the appointment of Spitale and Bitz was the first step in actual negotiations for payment of the demanded $50,000 ransom.

Others believed it was merely an invitation to the kidnapers, who had not been contacted by the Lindberghs, to get in touch with the go-betweens as being safe persons for criminals to deal with.

The announcement also left it open to interpretation whether Spitale and Bitz themselves were known to the Lindberghs and had been appointed after a conference or whether the Lindberghs merely were given names and told they were what are known to the underworld as "right guys."

Police Non-Committal

Police were non-committal about the whole matter of the underworld go-betweens but the Jersey state police did say that they were not looking for Spitale and Bitz, knew nothing about them, and were ignorant of how the Lindberghs had picked on them as emissaries.

So far as could be learned Lindbergh remained at his home all day, but observers watched all roads ceaselessly in the belief he might be planning a sortie, possibly into the underworld itself at the call of the kidnapers or their representatives.

In their published apepals to the kidnapers the Lindberghs have expressed their entire willingness to go anywhere at any time to meet the kidnapers on their henchmen for a discussion of terms.

The history of Spitale and Bitz are as dark as the low clouds which hung over the Lindbergh home today, pouring rain, snow and sleet down on the sour mud of the hilltop estate, from which the 20-month-old child was spirited away Tuesday night.

Friends of Diamond

Both are known to New York police as former friends of Jack (Legs) Diamond, the gangster who was slain in Albany, N. Y., in December after three previous attempts on his life.

Diamond was reported to have double-crossed his former partners in bootlegging ventures. It was well known among detectives that bitter enmity had supplanted the warm friendship that once existed between them.

Spitale was sought for questioning after Diamond was killed. His brother, Joe, is proprietor of a roadhouse in the Catskills near the Saratoga Inn at which "Legs" was shot in one of the previous attempts on his life.

When gunmen poured a fusilade into Diamond in the hotel Monticello in the fall of 1930 hotel employes said two men giving names of the Siptale brother had visited Diamond's room during the day.

"Salvy" Spitale was brought before Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York in the investigation of the murder of Vincent Coll, young metropolitan gang leader, and was quoted as saying he was "through with the racket as far as this shooting business goes."

"There are plenty of ways to make money without using a gun," he was quoted as telling Commissioner Mulrooney.

Salvy Has Family

Neighbors said Spitale has two children, a boy and a girl. He is described as about 35 years old, a natty dresser, about five feet, eight inches tall and of swarthy complexion.

He was said by his friends, however, to know Lindbergh only as "that famous flier."

While Diamond was known as a man trusted by no one, Spitale is recognized in underworld circles as a man who keeps his word.

Police Inspector Vincent Sweeney in New York described him as "an able fixer."

Commissioner Mulrooney said Spitale was arrested on a narcotic charge in 1926 and 1927 and the charge was dismissed. He said he could not issue photographs or other information about the two men because their records had been removed from his files.

In connection with the detention of Johnson, State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn in Hartford announced shortly after noon that the sailor had been taken to Englewood, where he once lived, at 5 p. m. yesterday by County Detective Edward J. Hickey, who, with Alcorn, came into prominence during their prosecution of Gerald Chapman, police slayer.

Johnson was taken into custody at the home of a brother in Hartford Friday night, almost simultaneously with the discovery of two communications to the Lindberghs in the mail at Hartford.

He was questioned all Friday night and the grilling was renewed behind locked doors there yesterday.

Jersey state police officials up until today have said repeatedly they were not interested in Johnson and did not want to question him. Although they subjected his sweetheart, Miss Gow, to long questioning, they described her yesterday as being "all right."

Frank Brex, chief of Newark detectives, left the Lindbergh home here late in the day for Newark to participate in the examination there of Johnson.

At Newark no one was permitted even to see Johnson pending the arrival of Brex. It was established that at 3 p. m., Johnson was taken to Brex's office to await the latter's arrival. Officers escorting Johnson had made a stop with him earlier at Englewood.

Here's Lindy's And Anne's Public Appeal To Kidnapers

Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make a personal contact with the kidnappers of our child.

Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return and we feel certain that the kidnappers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promises that we may make in connection with his return.

We urge those who have the child to select any representative that they desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and any place that they may designate.

If this is accepted, we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child.

Charles A. Lindbergh
Anne Lindbergh

Backed by the governor of New Jersey and law officials of the two counties bordering their Hopewell estate, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh pledged immunity and a reward to kidnapers of their baby boy in the personal appeal shown above. It was issued from their home and bore both their signatures as shown. The letter was typewritten by Colonel Lindbergh.

SPITALE READY TO 'PLAY BALL'

Lindy's Go-Between Gives Out Statements

NEW YORK, March 6. (AP)—In a statement tonight, "Salvy" Spitale and Irving Bitz offered to "play ball with the kidnapers" of the Lindbergh baby.

The statement was issued by Spitale to The Daily News after he and Bitz, the "go-betweens" named by Colonel Lindbergh, had given out an earlier statement to The American.

"We hope for no personal profit whatsoever," said the statement.

"Further, we have not been in communication with the kidnapers, nor have they been in communication with us."

To this, Spitale added:

"As the father of two children, I told the representative of the Lindbergh family that I was concerned with only one thing—to recover the child, alive and in good health.

"My only thought is, that as a man of my word, my promise that I'll play ball with the kidnapers insures them of a square deal."

"We were asked by a representative of Colonel Lindbergh to act for him, in the hope that the kidnapers would get in touch with us," they told The News.

The American printed the following statement as coming from Spitale:

"When I was first approached in this matter by representatives of the Lindberghs I said I did not want to have my name dragged into the delicate situation, but that if I could help in any way to aid the Lindberghs get back their child I would be only too glad to do so and would take any sacrifice upon myself that would aid that end.

"I wish the New York American to print this request from me at the earliest possible opportunity either through a representative of the Lindberghs or through the Lindberghs personally.

"Nothing in the world would have brought me into this very delicate situation if I did not know what it is to be a father, having two children of my own, and if I did not know that the missing child is not only the child of the Lindberghs but the child of America."

Warships Assemble For Navy War Game

SAN PEDRO, Calif., March 6. (AP)—Warships, singly and by divisions, came to anchor here today in a preliminary rendezvous for what officers declare will be the greatest war game ever played by the United States navy, the solution of problem 13, consisting of the defense of the Pacific coast from a tremendous attacking force.

The Pacific battle force, named the Blue, is scheduled to sail to the attack from Lahaina Roads, Hawaii Tuesday night. The Atlantic scouting force, called the Black, is gathering for the defense.

Fort Worth Real Estate Dealer Dies

FORT WORTH, March 6. (AP)—John W. Floore, Fort Worth real estate dealer, died late today in a hospital after a week's illness.

Floore, an associate since 1928 in the real estate firm of Harwood-Floore company Inc., resided in Cleburne before coming to Fort Worth.

Three Railroad Presidents Voice Belief U. S. Business Is Improving

AMARILLO, Texas, March 6. (AP)—Presidents of three railroads, here today on an inspection tour, expressed the belief that business conditions generally are showing improvement, although the change has not manifest itself in rail traffic.

The three are Ralph Budd of the Burlington system; W. P. Kenney of the Great Northern, and Charles Donnelly, of the Northern Pacific.

Walker D. Hines, director general of railroads during the war-time administration and now with the C. B. and Q. railway, accompanied the three rail chiefs. The official group was accompanied by other high ranking railroad officials.

Tomorrow they will inspect the Denver's new Childress-Pampa line, now under construction.

RAIL OFFICIALS MAY PASS THROUGH HERE

President Ralph Budd of the Burlington railway system and a group of other high rail officials are expected to pass through Wichita Falls, probably Monday night or Tuesday, advices from Fort Worth and Denver railway offices here indicated Sunday night. The group is not expected to stop in Wichita Falls, however.

The primary purpose of the trip south by the group of officials is for an inspection of the new Childress-Pampa project. Superintendent S. A. Covington of the Denver here had not been advised about details of the trip.

Industrial Operations Resumed in Ohio Area

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio, March 6. (AP)—Increased industrial operations affecting hundreds of workers are scheduled for this week along the Ohio river front in Belmont county.

The Wheeling Steel corporation mill in Martins Ferry will resume operations tomorrow, after a one-week suspension. It is expected additional men will be recalled to work at the Laughlin plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company here.

The Imperial Glass company at Bellaire will resume operations tomorrow, after a week's shutdown. Another plant scheduled to resume Monday is the Benwood, W. Va., works of the Wheeling Steel corporation, across the river from Bellaire.

CHINESE FEAR NANKING DRIVE

Troop Movement Viewed As Threat to Capital

(By The Associated Press)

Continued Japanese troop movements into Shanghai prompted Chinese today to say they feared Japan might attempt to capture Nanking, China's capital.

Sianfu was set up as a temporary co-capital with Honanfu, to which the government recently withdrew.

The Chinese government would continue to resist "foreign aggression as long as necessary," said a resolution by the central executive committee of the Kuomintang (Nationalist) party.

Japanese authorities said the initial reinforcements were late arrivals of the Sanghai expedition, which could not be halted until the danger of further fighting was over.

Although the guns had ceased to roar, there was nothing to indicate that peace or armistice negotiations were making headway.

The main body of a Japanese brigade reached Ninguta, Manchuria, to join the advance detachment which occupied that city Saturday.

Serious Communist outbreaks in the southern part of Kiansi province, China, with the Communists laying siege to Kanchow, were reported.

Canton is taking care of thousands of destitute refugees from Shanghai, the wealthier refugees going to Hongkong, which one of them said had more night life.

Two Mexicans Shot To Death Near Marfa

MARFA, Texas, March 6. (AP)—Alcarcia Jiminez and Manuel Calderon were shot to death today at a private filling station on a ranch on the Rio Grande near Ruidosa.

Officers were told another Mexican rode up on a horse, fired at Calderon and Jiminez with a rifle, and then crossed the river into Mexico. The two victims were changing a tire on their automobile when their assailant approached. The slaying was believed an aftermath of a feud.

Zero Temperature Due In Chicago Cold Wave

CHICAGO, March 6. (US)—Just as spring was about to step across the threshold, winter seared the Middle West today. The temperature fell to 5 above zero in Chicago. To the west and northwest it was from 5 to 15 below.

No immediate moderation was in sight tonight and forecasts indicated that zero might be reached here before morning. If the temperature drops that low it will be the coldest in two years. One above was the lowest recorded last winter and 4 above was lowest during the previous year.

Forum Departments Will Entertain At Luncheon

Members of the writers, literature and drama departments of the Woman's Forum will entertain with a Texas day luncheon at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Thursday at noon. Decorations in keeping with the idea will be used featuring Texas industries.

An attractive program has been arranged including a play, "The Worm," which depicts stirring scenes in the state penitentiary, written by Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, in which Mrs. J. T. Harrell will take the leading role. Others in the cast include Mrs. Ann Barker and W. B. Dent of Burkburnett.

Mrs. Pearl Calhoun Davis, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff, will sing "Texas Our Texas" and a Texas flag will be presented to Mrs. J. A. Kemp in a pretty ceremonial. This flag, matching in size and standard the United States flag presented to the forum at the bicentennial luncheon, is the gift of 25 daughters of Texas who are members of the forum.

The decorations are unique in interest. The central decoration on the head of the T in which shape the table is built, will be the beautiful Ort sculpture, "The Covered Wagon." Red, white and blue will mark the center of the tables and other decorations will be features marking Texas industries, including derricks, miniature trucks of flour, cotton and a farm scene marking the irrigation and the dairy features.

Mrs. Johnson Chairman

Mrs. Grover C. Johnson is chairman of arrangements and is being assisted by Mesdames M. T. Clements, Walter K. Campbell, James P. Bowen, O. W. Harvey and J. L. Elkin.

Mesdames Ola G Hamlin, chairman of the literature department and M. T. Clements, chairman of the writers department, will preside.

Hostesses will include Mesdames James P. Bowen, W. M. Cason, J. Truman Stevens, Curtis Atkinson, C. N. Alexander, Grover C. Johnson, T. T. T. Reese, J. J. Perkins and Leslie Humphrey.

Club members are urged to make their reservations as early as possible. None will be taken after Wednesday evening. Mrs. O. W. Harvey, 5956, and Mrs. J. S. Boyd, 5379, will take reservations.

Choir of C. I. A. Gives Excellent Concert At Forum

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

Vivacity and spontaneity blended happily with authentic musicianship in the singing of the C. I. A. Girls' choir of Denton before about 200 persons at the Woman's Forum auditorium Sunday afternoon under the direction of William E. Jones, dean of music at the Denton institution.

That almost 150 girls at the school, represented by the 25 who appeared here, master annually an extensive repertoire of excellent compositions is in itself an inspiration to those who value highly the influence of music. Their work argues convincingly the devotion of North Texas to the arts, and the concert performance of this selected ensemble may rightly arouse the pride of this section.

The choir presented here by Mr. Jones divides voices of musical clarity into three-part singing of a very high order. As he explained, emphasis is placed upon extensive study of many works rather than upon memorizing a few. Despite the use of the printed score, the singers reflected an unusual degree of discipline, being minutely attentive to every detail of Mr. Jones' direction almost without exception. A second outstanding accomplishment was the exquisite shading of tone for reflection of feeling. The balance of parts was quite as effective as the blending of indivfdual voices into a unified tonal quality.

Youthful spirit enriched a finished technique particularly in two choral numbers, the exacting "Smiling Dawn" from Handel's "Jephtha," and the concluding number, "Lochinvar's Ride," admirably scored by Harry Rowe Shelley.

Soloists chosen for the concert here were Miss Theresa Sutherland, pianist, and Miss Helen Buchard, contralto. Miss Sutherland revealed a wealth of feeling in 'Siciliana,' by Respighi, and enacted a brilliant modernistic picture with vigorous technique in the Rachmaninoff, "Humoresque." Dramatic intensity was uppermost in Miss Buchard's singing of Dudley Buck's "Sunset," and Mary Turner Salter's "Cry of Rachel."

Between choral groups, Miss Helen Sherwood entertained her hearers delightfully with a reading, "I Like Americans."

Vocal numbers were supported by responsive accompaniments, Miss Margaret Hughston playing for the choir, and Miss Mary Ella Smith for Miss Burchard.

The following program was given:
"Mother of Light," college song.
"By Babylon's Waves" (Gounod).
"Ave Maria" (Abt.).
"The Smiling Dawn" (Handel).
The choir.
"Sicilian" (Respighi) and "Humoresque" ..... (Rachmaninoff).
Miss Theresa Sutherland, pianist
"I Like Americans," reading, Miss Helen Sherwood.
"Sunset" (Buck) and "Crying of Rachel" ..... (Salter).
Miss Helen Burchard, contralto
"Bendemeer's Stream" (Old Irish); "Bonnie Doon," Scotch Air; and "Lochinvar's Ride" (Shelley).
The choir

The singers were presented by Mrs. Guy Rogers on behalf of the music department of the forum. Mrs. Rogers announced that John Lomax, collector of Texas range and folk lore, is to be presented in a lecture-recital at the forum Wednesday night, March 9, at 8:15 o'clock.

Miss Jenkins Is Honoree at Party

Complimenting Miss Jimmie Jenkins, whose marriage to Willis Duff, son of Dr. and Mrs. Guy B. Duff, is announced to take place at the College Presbyterian church Saturday, March 19, Mesdames J. C. Jenkins and S. B. Jenkins entertained with a delightful bridge party at their home on Polk street Friday evening.

Six tables were arranged for the games and the pretty St. Patrick's color scheme was carried out in the decorations, appointments and refreshment plate.

In the games, the honoree received the high score favor, a cookey jar; and Miss Mary Estes was awarded the low score prize, twin silhouette pictures.

Out of town guests were Misses Mola Eggleston, Marie Ramsey and Nina Ruth Terrell of Vernon.

Social Etiquette Discussed By Mrs. Gore

SENATOR AND MRS. THOMAS P. GORE

Wife Of Veteran Oklahoma Senator Writes About Changes In Customs

By MRS. THOMAS P. GORE
Wife of United States Senator Gore of Oklahoma
As Told to Annabel Lee

I have watched Washington's social parade for 22 years, and it has been my experience that it is a great place to get new ideas and shed old ones.

I have ambled along with it myself for a number of years as a senator's wife, and have discovered many changes during that period in the social world and its manner of doing things.

I have witnessed that dignified body, the United States senate, change from silk hats and Prince Alberts to seersuckers and sacks; from an exchange of cards among senators announcing return for a new session to an informal "How are you, Tom?" when they meet in the senate.

Social usage is constantly undergoing surprising changes, if it were good form to show surprise. Not the least of the fads that we have borrowed from our English cousins is the fashion of not introducing our guests. Your hostess does not have to introduce you; the fact that you are all guests places you upon an equal footing. Afterward, if you meet these guests at another function and do not care to continue the acquaintance, you can simply ignore them — or perhaps be ignored.

I remember hearing Mrs. Champ Clark tell an amusing incident of a dinner that she attended at Mrs. Longworth's home several years ago.

The speaker and Mrs. Clark were guests of honor. At the table Mrs. Clark was placed next to a congenial lady, who shared her opinions about many things under discussion in congress. The lady was frank in warm admiration of Mrs. Clark's views and pressed an invitation to visit her in New York.

On their way home Mrs. Clark asked the speaker who the agreeable lady was, but the speaker did not know. When she reached her home, she telephoned Mrs. Longworth an dinquired the name of the gracious dinner guest.

"Oh, that," said Mrs. Longworth, "is Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt."

Separate Drawing Rooms

Another innovation I have noticed recently lies in the segregation of the sexes after dinner. It was once the fashion for the ladies to leave the table to their liege lords and go to the drawing room, to be joined by them later for feasts of reason and flow of soul.

But lately the men are sent to one drawing room and the women to another, and all you hear of is scintillating wit and repartee between the sexes is when the ranking guest comes to the door and nods to his wife that it is time to depart.

The White House has approved of this innovation and is practicing it, but has substituted moving pictures for the ladies' entertainment.

Indeed, the capital's transformation is little short of amazing.

I used to think that were I in the official family, I would choose to be the wife of the secretary of the navy, or war, because of the benefits these ladies enjoy, such as uniformed officers to decorate their functions and the added attraction of having the navy or marine bands play for garden parties or ball rooms.

The yacht Mayflower has vanished from Washington's playground. This may be wise economy, but it has robbed the wives of the presidents of considerable amusement.

The old Mayflower has helped some of our presidents to express or cultivate their tastes for interior decoration. I am told that Mrs. Wilson had the yacht altered to make it more comfortable for her stricken husband. She had an elevator installed, despite the protest from a congressman on the floor of the house that cutting a hole in the hull would make the craft unseaworthy.

Mrs. Harding had all of the hangings changed, as the color scheme was not to her liking. Just what Mrs. Coolidge did I am not sure. I know that she and the president enjoyed taking official parties on week-end cruises, and it was one of these parties that a good Democrat learned from the president how oatmeal should be cooked.

Exempted From Return Visits

Isn't it surprising to note how quickly people can change from one position to another, politically and socially?

According to the ruling of the state department, the wives of the vice presidents are not expected to return calls in person; that is, they are not supposed to leave their cards personally, but must send them in by footmen. Perhaps this is no new social wrinkle. It may have been the custom for the past 20 years, but it is the first time I ever heard of it.

I recall that there have been other "second ladies" of the land who have very graciously accepted invitations. Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Coolidge were always kindly in their acceptance of hospitality. These three women were courteous enough to ask to be received or else go voluntarily on "official" reception days and mingle with the other guests.

Mrs. Gann (Vice President Curtis' sister and official hostess) continues to hold to her decision about not accepting any invitations except to functions given in her honor. I am convinced, though, that the clamoring public (which wishes it said that it has entertained a vice president) will be willing to abide by any decision, and I am equally sure that the vice president will accept to the limit of his ability.

As you know, the principal duty of the vice president is to attend all those functions where the president and first lady cannot be present. One could imagine what the life of a president and his wife would be were they to accept all kinds of invitations. To accept one and refuse another would offend.

Vice presidents must relieve the president as much as possible in social activities from which the president is exempt. They must know every one and go everywhere, regardless of personal feelings. They may wish to lead lives of seclusion, but that is no longer possible.

Their one consolation is that, no matter how many invitations they may accept, they are not called upon to return these courtesies. The prestige of their presence at any social function equalizes the amenities and relieves them of any further responsibility.

There may be occasions when the vice president entertains visiting foreign potentates, such as the king and queen of the Belgians during the Wilson administration. The illness of the president at time made White House hospitality impossible. All social obligations rested upon Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, who were the center of social life.

Guest Royal

As the United States government has never thought it necessary to furnish a home for the vice president in which to do the nation's entertaining, Mrs. Thomas Walsh lent her palatial home for this occasion. The expense of the repast and lavish display was borne, of course, by Uncle Sam.

Now, the king of the Belgians is a very tall man. He wore all his regimentals, with all of his inherited and acquired decorations, adding to his height by his plumed chapeau.

The host, Mr. Marshall, on the contrary, was a very short man. It was a very colorful scene. The diplomatic corps was resplendent, with brilliant colors and waving plumes, and our own army and navy, not to be outdone, fairly shone in trappings of gold lace and braid.

We were in the presence of royalty, and probably somewhat in awe, but when Vice President Marshall and the king arose from the table and led the procession from the state dining room, all awe of them vanished, for some one whispered:

"They look for all the world like Mutt and Jeff."

There is some revival of the campaign to buy a suitable home for the vice president, and appropriate sufficient money to maintain it. Otherwise the establishment might prove an embarrassing problem for occupants not blessed with considerable worldly goods. In fact, a poor man would find any one of the many hotels much cheaper and more comfortable than the management of a social menage on a limited income.

It is current gossip that these hotels are willing and anxious to make such rates that none would refuse. A vice president's name on the hotel register is a great advertisement, and in addition to the possible entertainment of foreign dignitaries, the vice president must entertain the president of the United States.

Social usage is very important at the capital and is only understood by persons who are experienced in entertaining. To many, the red tape that holds together the social fabric here appears useless. It seems to smack of aristocracy rather than democracy and the bitterest battles have been waged at times over matters of social precedence.

Indeed, the state department has been called upon more than once to settle these controversies, so trivial to the uninitiated, as to whether a cabinet officer's wife outranked a senator's wife.

The decision, while authoritative, still left a vague solution of inconsequential gain, for while a cabinet officer outranked a senator at dinner, the senator outranked the cabinet officer on other occasions, such as entering an elevator. But the justices of the supreme court outrank either.

Seniority and Rank Solve Problems

The seniority rule is adhered to pretty strictly, and so is the position of various officials. One can't sidestep the rules, for the social game must be played along hard and fast lines. In fact, by some it is considered easier to forgive the sins of breaking the Ten Commandments than to condone violation of the conventions of diplomatic or official Washington.

I recall a dinner some years ago at which the wife of a supreme court justice and certain cabinet officers' wives were the guests. The guest of honor was about an hour late, and we stood draped about the room rather unhappily for the most part and certainly very weary.

Mrs. Lurton, the justice's wife, who was the ranking personage, for some reason preferred to stand while waiting for the belated guest to arrive. The wife of a cabinet officer stood near me. At last she spoke to me:

"My feet are paining me so I simply can't stand it!"

"Why don't you sit down, then?" I replied.

I have never forgotten her look of shocked surprise.

"What! Sit down in the presence of a justice's wife? Never!"

She stuck to her guns and would rather have braved death than sit down in the presence of an outranking sister.

It is a good thing that society is fitted out with a knowledge of the social ritual, for it solves many difficult problems for the newcomer. If the wife of the stranger belongs to the official set, she will have less trouble, for the custom has arisen that the wife of the senior senator shall act as her pilot.

Taxicab Adventure in High Society

Not many years ago I piloted the wife of a new member of congress through the bewildered maze of her first official calls. Neither of us owned a car, and so we cabbed to the homes of opulent or official nabobs. The first place we entered we found a congenial group who pressed upon us to have some tea.

"No, thanks," said my ward. "We have a taxi waiting for us and must hurry on."

The next place we entered she repeated the faus pas. When we reached the street I warned her that if she dared to call attention again that we were riding around in a public conveyance, instead of a Rolls Royce, I would promptly remove my wraps and prepare to spend the afternoon, no matter how fast the meter clocked. Today no member of the official set is more punctilious about the niceties of social observance than she.

This is not more ludicrous than my own mistake on my arrival in Washington for my husband's first term. The ladies of the cabinet call upon the wives of the senators first, I had read a little book on social usage, but I learned more from the lady who was conducting me on these first calls. She had been in official life 30 years, but I soon discovered that she was rather hazy on precedence.

I found myself in the home of Secretary Cortelyou. But Miss Hanes, Mrs. Cortelyou's secretary, who was announcing the guests, was certainly not hazy on the proper mode of procedure. She had all the names of the new senators' wives "right" in her mind. When I announced my name she said:

"Oh, Mrs. Gore, how kind of you to call upon us."

She was a relative of Mrs. Cortelyou. Her voice was withering in its cloying sweetness, and her manner proclaimed my mistake. She approached Mrs. Cortelyou and introduced me in this manner:

"Mrs. Gore is so kind as to call."

It was too late to retreat, so to cover my embarrassment I chose frankness and said:

"Mrs. Cortelyou, it is not kindness, but ignorance."

She laughed merrily and so did I.

First President Created Etiquette

Our first president was a stickler for propriety in dress and behavior. His sense of form laid down simple but adequate rules, although their interpretation in tradition and practice sometimes leads into deep water. Old world courts are saved from the embarrassment of social friction by close adherence to the dictum of "procol," which is the last word in deciding every particular for court usage.

We hadn't a bowing acquaintance with "protocol" in our own country until four years ago. Then the state department added a bureau of international relations. This division is helpful to the foreign corps stationed here. It gives its advice, when sought, on the fastidious delicacies of official entertainment, but is reluctant to dispense rulings willy nilly. Mr. James Clement Dunn is the present social architect and chief of this division.

D.A.R. Meets For Luncheon Program At Forum Club

With Mesdames J. E. H. Railey, Carrie Wilcox, A. H. Carrigan, E. C. deMontel, C. L. Grandberry, Charles H. Birk, and Clark Wilcox, hostesses, members of the Major Francis Grice chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met for their regular monthly luncheon and program at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Saturday.

St. Patrick's day was featured in the dainty, fragrant decorations of plum blossoms and ivy, also in the white candles arranged in crystal holders and tied with green ribbon.

The program was opened with a memorial ceremony to Mrs. Dan Rubsam, led by Mrs. A. H. Carrigan. A salute was given to the flag and the entertaining program included two cowboy songs, "The Hills of Home" by Fox, and "The Home on the Range" by Guion, sung by Mrs. M. M. Garrett with Mrs. Luke McCrory at the piano. Mrs. John R. Hyatt talked on "Pioneer Women of Texas."

Plates were arranged for Mesdames S. Y. Ferguson, C. E. Borland, John R. Hyatt, Louis Gould, Fred T. Couper, A. C. Ladlam, C. L. Apple, C. C. Arnold, J. W. Burt, E. T. Duff, Lula Bristol, C. W. A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON.—Two documents flowed over the desks of Washington political writers recently.

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR

One from Richmond, Va., set out why Harry Flood Byrd was hailed as the state's "best governor since Thomas Jefferson."

The other from Fort Worth, Texas, depicted Melvin Traylor as a "Homespun American."

Thus are the Byrd and Traylor booms for the Democratic presidential nomination duly documented. Yet the pamphlets do not stress particularly the presidential aspirations of the men.

Offering—But for What?

The Byrd material, for instance, comes from the "Virginia Byrd Committee" in Richmond. The slogan on the front says that "Virginia offers Harry Byrd to the nation," but does not specify for what job.

The Traylor booklet comes from the "Traylor for President Club" in Texas—neither the state of his birth nor his present residence, but only the locale of a period of his early life.

An included note by the secretary-manager of the club sets out that Mr. Traylor "is not an active or even receptive candidate for political honors."

Washington newswriters generally took both these documents as framed with a view to vice presidential rather than presidential honors.

In Byrd's case, in addition to the state legislature's endorsement of Traylor for the presidential race, the unanimous approval of that action by the Virginia delegation in congress is paraded. Even so, it all smacks of vice presidential strategy.

It may seem a bit queer that the Traylor introduction should come from Texas rather than Kentucky, where he was born, or Illinois, where he is now a banker.

Obviously, with Texas all "het up" over the presidential boom for Speaker Garner just at the moment, the chance of a Texas shift to Traylor at the Democratic convention is a bit remote.

Possibilities

Still, if Garner should be nominated, strong Texas support for Traylor as his running mate might be considered helpful by Traylor's friends.

Traylor's case, be it for president or vice president, has the disadvantage of having no favorite son beginnings.

Program by Choir Is Given at Burkburnett

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, March 6.—The Wichita Valley Scottish Rite choir, under the direction of Dr. L. D. Parnell, presented a program at the high school auditorium here Friday night, March 4. The program was sponsored by the local high school P.-T. A. and was presented as follows:

"Dusk of Night," Arkhangelsky; "Absent," Metcalf; "Oh, Promise Me," De Koven; tap dance by Harland Eugene Choat Jr.; "Bonnie Doone," arranged by Paul Loring; "I Pass by Your Window," May H. Brahe; "Oh, Hall Us Ye Free" (from Ernani), Verdi; "De Little Old Log Cabin in De Lane," by Hays, and "Old Black Joe," by Stephen Foster, sung by Mr. R. E. Shepherd; "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," unknown; "Gentle Annie," Stephen Foster; "Go Down Moses," negro spiritual; "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," negro spiritual; Spanish dance by Miss Maurine Adams and Mr. Scott Griffis; "Listen to the Lambs," Dett; "River, River," (Chilean folksong) arrangement of Stephen Zoltal; "The Long Day Closes," Arthur Sullivan.

Boycott the Japs?

ONCE in a while, when a fire starts in a crowded city block, firemen dynamite certain houses in the paths of the flames in order to save the rest of the buildings from destruction. It is a good stunt—provided that they are careful to keep the dynamite from doing more damage than the fire itself.

One is reminded of that, somehow, by the proposal that the United States should use the economic boycott to force Japan to give up unwarranted aggression in the far east and respect the sanctity of treaties.

The end in view is laudable. The boycott itself, however, is dynamite. It would have to be handled with extreme care.

Those who favor using the boycott present their case about as follows:

Unless some definite and effective pressure is put upon the Japanese government, it is futile to hope that Japan will give up her militaristic adventure in China. So far, the authorities at Tokyo have shown unmistakably that mere diplomatic protests have no power to move them.

The boycott is a form of pressure that would have a direct and positive effect on Japan's economic life.

Silk is Japan's most important export and the United States is by far Japan's most important customer. If the United States should suddenly stop buying silks, Japan's business and industrial world would suddenly begin to stagnate. The most reactionary and militaristic of governments would be unable to go on with the Chinese adventure in the face of the protests that Japan's industrial, financial and labor leaders would be sure to voice.

Furthermore, Japan's disregard of treaties and of the opinion of the other world powers is extremely flagrant. As Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer of Princeton remarks, if the world permits a military faction like that now in power in Japan to go its own way in spite of world disapproval, "there is little hope for progress in disarmament and for progress in world peace for a long time to come."

Such well-informed and influential citizens as Newton D. Baker, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and Prof. F. W. Taussig, famed economist, have indorsed the boycott. As an effective means of upholding treaties and preserving world order they say, it is worth trying.

Against the boycott there are presented arguments that run about as follows:

Japan today is on the warpath. Her government is in the hands of a military group whose members have decided to risk all on an attempt to get their own way in China by force of arms. Japan has meditated this step for years, has waited for a propitious moment and is now committed to it so deeply that members of the ruling party would face almost any alternative rather than withdraw.

For that reason, the economic boycott might well be the most dangerous instrument the United States could use; it might easily lead directly to war with Japan, with ultimate consequences that no man can foresee.

It is, for instance, conceivable that the pressure which the boycott would put on all classes of Japanese citizens would result in an overwhelming public demand in Japan, not for cessation of the Chinese adventure, but for war with the United States.

In such a war, waged in the far east, the advantages would all be with Japan—in the beginning, at any rate. The United States navy would be put under a tremendous handicap if compelled to operate on a major scale that far from home.

President Hoover and most of the leading members of congress have warned the United States of these dangers inherent in the boycott. If the whole world could be induced to join the move, it might succeed. But the other nations almost certainly would not join. The United Stated would have to go it alone—and the consequences might be catastrophic.

De Valera Again

SEVERAL years ago the ordinary American citizen, when he thought of affairs in the Irish Free State, more or less took it for granted that Eamonn de Valera was out of the picture. The moderate faction in Irish politics seemed to have the upper hand, and the man who had battled so earnestly for Irish independence was apparently through for good.

And now, suddenly emerging again, Mr. de Valera comes to the top as the next president of the Free State.

Evidently it is a hard thing to make a has-been of a man who doesn't know when he is licked. That Mr. de Valera comes in that category is obvious. The Irish, loving a steadfast fighter, have given him at last the highest place that is in their power to give. The world will watch with interest to see what he does with it.

So Goes It

Now you go on to new and fairer fields
And I go back to solitude again;
A beaten lad who finds that romance yields
A maximum of heartbreak and of pain;
Nor will I try again to storm your heart
With magic vows that I can never keep.
Far better, dear, for us to stay apart
Than wake a weary bow-boy from his sleep.

And in the course of time your lips will be
Forgotten fruit—your memory will stir
No knife in me—nor will I crave to see
The one-time human being that you were!

And, as for me—you'll tell the newest lad
About a harmless interlude you had.
—The Melancholy Don Wahn.

Haw!

Benjamin F. Holzman, exploiter for George White's "Scandals," relates the one about Nick Young, drama defender for the Boston American, which is a good paper, too. Mr. Young, it appears, is very fond of old cheese. The manager of a new show playing Boston knew this and sent to Canada for a special sort of cheese to present to the critic. The cheese arrived and was forwarded to the play-heckler at his paper.

That night he had to cover the newest play, so in his haste he put the cheese in his coat pocket, put on his overcoat and went to his aisle pew. (Pew—meaning seat.) It was a pretty warm evening, and in the natural course of events the patrons near Young began to smell the nostril-annoyer.

Finally, one of the customers, who couldn't stand it any longer, inquired in a loud voice: "What on earth is that awful odor?"

And the critic innocently replied: "I'm afraid it must be the show!"

I Give Up

A Form of Criticism

And Lee Wahl says that he sees in the papers that the police cars are now equipped with radios. "Huh," says Lee, "when those in the speakeasies are just as good!"

By Way of Report

Jane Pettigrew of the Hotel Detroiter, Detroit, is among the many who have written along these lines: "Why not make good your threat and disclose the name of the ham actor (star?) who got the girl discharged and then she committed suicide. That's a long time ago. How about it?"

He still is in the show. And to mention his name would probably result in a suit for "defamation of character," which would easily be won by him, considering that the company manager and others who know it to be a fact, are afraid now—and are reluctant about supplying me with the necessary affidavits.

I'm weary of "holding the bag," Miss Pettigrew. Some other time, perhaps. A Winchelephant never forgets.

A Proposition, Yet

Harold J. Wendt, managing editor of the Wind River Mountaineer of Lander, Wyo., recalls the last presidential race when Al E. Smith was traveling through his state. While on the train, Smith observed three or four thousand sheep on the plains.

He turned to a westerner and chirped: "Where are all the barns to keep those sheep in?"

His Better Offer

Jerry Lipkowitz of 70 Wall St. offers the one about the landlord of a handsome building on Riverside Dr., who cornered an "Earl Carroll" who owed him four months' rent, and said: "I can't understand why you're moving. You have a beautiful five-room apartment here; you're not paying rent, and I'm not kicking, because conditions are what they are. So why move?"

"You dun't telling me?" snapped Mr. Mefoofsky. "I know I'm not paying rant—but I'm moving to Tsentril Pok Vast—at de same price and besites—dey hace helactric frijee-ay-turrs dare!"

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

A FISH THAT PRAYED — During my stay in Vienna last year my attention was called to a most bizarre gravestone in the Jewish cemetery situated at IX Seegasse, in the Austrian capital. It is surmounted by the likeness of a fish, and marks the final resting place of a carp which, before expiring in the frying pan, is said to have startled a Viennese hausfrau by exclaiming "Listen (O) Israel," the two Hebrew words of the an antemortem prayer. I secured a photograph of the curious monument on the spot and from it drew this cartoon.

CHAPTER 42

The two girls were sitting there talking, perched up on the rocks like two birds when Lois say a yellow roadster drive up to the curb and stop. The top was still down on Bruce's car and Lois could see plainly from the glare of the street light the pretty face of a girl in the seat beside him.

Lois' first impulse has been to jump down from the rocks and run away. Margaret observed Lois catch her breath and then she looked in the direction of the car space and saw immediately what the trouble was. Bruce wasn't talking to the girl. But she certainly was talking to him. If any one who knew Sybil Morse could see her now he would swear that it wasn't she. It couldn't be. She was looking up into Bruce's face and talking to him as though her very life depended on it. It did.

"Oh, why couldn't he have gone some place else with her," Lois, wounded at heart, said to Margaret. "He didn't have to bring her here. This is our spot. We always come here. It belongs to us."

"Now, now, where is all that faith and trust and the rest of that bunk that you were going to have?" Margaret cautioned.

Lois started to speak and then stopped herself. All of her resolutions, both to herself and Bruce, weren't going to mean anything if she didn't take hold of herself. Margaret helped her.

"Heavens, he probably doesn't enjoy being out here with that girl, whoever she is. Can't you tell by the way he looks at her. Or rather by the way he doesn't look at her."

Lois nodded slowly.

"Well," Margaret went on, "he had to take her some place. She probably even asked him to take her for a ride. He couldn't refuse when she was a guest in his own home."

"No," he couldn't," Lois admitted "Could he?"

"Besides," Margaret said, 'he told you he loved you, didn't he? That he didn't love anybody except you?"

"Yes."

"Well then, what do you care if he brings a dozen girls out here?"

Lois thought that Margaret probably was right but it was hard to go through something like this. She couldn't help feeling bad about it. Any girl would be jealous, seeing Bruce sitting there wth another girl not 50 feet away from her.

"Let's go," Lois said nervously.

Margaret smiled. "Walk out there in front of him so that he'll have to speak to you and be embarrassed and goodness knows what else."

"No," Lois remonstrated. "There's another way to get out of here without going past his car."

Lois clambered down from the rocks and Margaret followed her complaining that she was no walrus and never had been much of a hand at climbing around on rocks. Lois paid no attention to her. She was interested only in getting away from there so that she wouldn't have to sit and watch that girl making love to her Bruce. She knew that was what was occurring. She could tell by the way the girl was looking at him.

It was in fact, exactly what was taking place. Sybil had grown tired of dancing and asked Bruce to take her for a drive, as per the instructions of her mother. She was now, also, at the instructions of her mother, telling Bruce how much her father was going to do for her when she married.

"We have a place on Long Island, you know. Father bought it a long time ago. But we never built on it. He's going to build a home for me there, a summer home, you know."

Bruce nodded absently.

"Then mother is going to give me a car and pay for my chauffeur for a year. Isn't that nice of her?"

Bruce nodded again absently.

He was a little surprised at Sybil's apparent ease. She seemed to be able to talk all right now. She wasn't blushing either. He didn't know that she had been rehearsing for this date with him for the past week.

From the way she talked Bruce gathered that she was all ready to take the vows with somebody. She certainly intimated as much. He hoped so. Then she would be off the list. His aunt couldn't ride him concerning Sybil any longer.

"When are you getting married?" he asked her hopefully.

Sybil shifted uneasily in the seat. "Oh," she said, "oh, I didn't mean that I was getting married." She laughed nervously. "Goodness, did you think I meant that? I didn't intend to give you the wrong impression."

"Just my luck," Bruce thought. "Oh, well."

He said, "Well I didn't know. You spoke of the things your family was going to give you."

"I know," she explained, "but I meant when I did get married."

Bruce wasn't looking at her but he could feel her eyes on him. He didn't like it. He was uncomfortable. He suggested several times that they go back to the party, but Sybil always had some ready excuse for him. One time she even put her hand on the wheel when she thought that he was about to start the motor.

He sat there and thought about the girl he wished he were with tonight. Sybil talked on and on. Bruce's mind went wandering. He was thinking of his future with Lois. If Sybil had only known what a hopeless task she had before her she wouldn't even have attempted talking to him. But she didn't know, so she went on with everything that her mother had so carefully coached her to say.

She told Bruce that she had liked him ever since they were young. She thought it was nice to be a friend of some one as long as that. Their friendship had meant so much to her. Bruce thought vaguely about the night that he had tried to kiss her when they had been playing games at somebody's party and she had gone home crying. He had been terribly embarrassed about it and the fellows had kidded him for weeks. He never quite found it in his heart to forgive her for it.

She told him that she hoped he wouldn't think she was bold but that she would like to have him take her to the club some Friday night.

"I have an engagement every Friday night with my girl," Bruce told her point-blank. He stared out coldly at the lake. He felt Sybil relax a little. "Oh," she said, "I did not know about that."

"Yes," Bruce virtually grunted. He wanted to say "Well, you know it now," but he didn't.

The next time he asked her whether she were ready to go back to the house, she was. She never said a word all the way back. Bruce was bored and his Aunt Eleanore didn't fail to observe, either, that he had been out with Sybil.

She made out as though there were some deep secret about their ride.

"Where have you two been?" she questioned, pointing a finger accusingly at Sybil and saying it loudly enough for everyone in the room to hear.

CHAPTER 43

To all outward appearances the visit of Mrs. Morse to the home of Mrs. Durand was only a little social call that might take place at any time along the fashionable north shore streets. But it had been arranged with something in mind.

Eleanore Durand was a little nervous as she walked into the library where Mrs. Morse was just giving her wraps to the maid. Eleanore hurried over to her. "My dear," she said taking her hands, "I'm so happy to see you. I was saying to Charles the other evening that we didn't see half enough of you people, but you know how it is. We've just returned from Europe and there are so many things in the house that need attention!"

Eleanore knew as well as did Mrs. Morse that there wasn't a thing in the house that needed attention except Bruce. But of course one does not speak of things like that. Mrs. Morse has heard all about the happening at the country club with Mrs. Hayes and Lois as the central figures. She also knew that Mrs. Hayes had conveyed the facts by letter as fast as she could get them to Mrs. Durand, but that was not what Mrs. Morse had come to discuss.

She had come at Mrs. Durand's request. The morning following the party Mrs. Morse had been surprised by hearing the maid say, "Mrs. Durand to speak to you, ma'am." Mrs. Morse couldn't imagine why Mrs. Durand had been so attentive lately. Or rather, she could imagine. And she was just as eager as Mrs. Durand was to have something come of her thoughts.

For a time, the two women talked generalities. Mrs. Durand had exhausted herself early on her trip to Europe because she and Charles hadn't been able to stay long enough to really see anything new.

"Of course this is our sixth time across," she hastened to add.

"I know," Mrs. Morse said politely, "but it was too bad that you had to return so quickly."

"Business," Mrs. Durand said shortly, "Charles never knows when he has to be back here. Some of his affairs are in such a bad state."

"It's difficult to trust a lawyer implicitly," Mrs. Morse said helpfully.

Then Mrs. Durand broke the ice bracely.

"Did Sybil have a pleasant time last night?" she asked.

Mrs. Morse beamed. "My, yes," she said glowingly. "She said it was a beautiful party, and of course she's so fond of Bruce, you know."

Mrs. Durand feigned great surprise. "Oh, is she?" Her eyebrows raised ever so slightly.

"Yes," Mrs. Morse would have liked to say more but she thought the next step should be made by Mrs. Durand. There was a short silence. Then Mrs. Durand went into the subject thoroughly.

"And Bruce likes Sybil," she said. Mrs. Morse was somewhat surprised to hear this after the pitiful tale that Sybil had told her concerning Bruce's attitude only this morning.

"We've been hoping, Charles and I, that Bruce and Sybil would—well, that they might get married," Eleanore hadn't intended to say it exactly like that—so pointedly. But she had begun to flounder. Therefore it was better to make a clean breast of it.

"We want Bruce to get married,

The resources of our free information bureau are at your service. You are invited to call upon it as often as you please. It is being maintained solely to serve you. What question can we answer for you? There is no charge at all except two cents in coin or stamps for return postage. Address your letter to the Record News Information Bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Can zebras be domesticated? —N. E.

A.—They can be. In fact, zebras have been domesticated, although not on a very large scale.

Q.—What size turkeys are most salable?—C. P.

A.—The market demand is for birds weighing an average of 10 pounds dressed.

Q.—How many graduates has West Point had?—J. D. L. M.

A.—Since 1802, when the military academy was organized, there have been 9,323 graduates.

Q.—What is the music used in Mata Hari?—C. T.

A.—"Spring time"; "Now That You're Gone"; "When the Clock Strikes Twelve"; "Mystery"; "Tango Des Amours."

Q.—What sports require the most skill?—S. D. F.

A.—A recent poll of sports writers showed a majority of them voting for golf as the game requiring the most skill. Baseball was ranked second and tennis third.

Q.—Who received the Pulitzer prize for the best American novel in 1929 and 1930?—L. L.

A.—In 1930 the award went to Oliver La Farge for "Laughing Boy." In 1929 it went to Julia Peterkin for "Scarlet Sister Mary."

Q.—What were the last words of Charles II of England?—B. B.

A.—Last Words of Distinguished Men and Women, edited by F. R. Marvin, says that the last words of Charles II were "Don't let poor Nelly starve."

Q.—How many flying hours has Colonel Lindbergh?—M. S.

A.—The aeronautical bureau says that there is no record kept of the number of miles that Colonel Lindbergh has flown. Up to October, 1930, it was estimated that he had flown 4,100 hours.

Q.—Who was Washington's drill master?—E. L. T.

A.—He was Gen. Von Steuben, a German officer, who aided General, later President, Washington in the revolutionary war, and was the first foreign officer to aid in drilling the raw colonial troops.

Q.—What is the lowest temperature which has ever been reached? —R. H. H.

A.—The bureau of standards says that the lowest temperature produced so far is about eight-tenths of a degree Centigrade above absolute zero.

Q.—What was the remarkable price paid on a horse for place at the Miami race track?—A. A.

A.—Baal, running a maiden race at Hialeah park, established the world's record place price of $971.10 on Feb. 4. Only four tickets were cashed. The 3-year-old paid $248.30 on show tickets.

Q.—Was there ever a Saint Valentine?—P. T.

A.—Some writers are inclined to think that no such person as St. Valentine ever existed, though there appears to be ample proof that he was a Christian bishop in the third century after the death of Christ and that he suffered martyrdom under the Emperor Claudius on Feb. 14, 271 A. D.

Q.—Are there hills or mountains where automobiles will coast uphill?—B. H. C.

A.—Automobiles do not coast uphill. The fact that they seem to is the result of an optical illusion produced by contrast in two grades. Such hills may be found wherever roads curve around large hills or mountains. The sharp contrast of two grades or two declines produces the illusion.

Q.—Did the Republican party favor bi-metallism in 1896?—E. C.

A.—The plank as finally adopted was as follows: "The Republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold. We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are, therefore, opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved. All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States of all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth."

The Record News Offers New Booklet, Everybody's Coin Book

Leading coin collectors and dealers have pronounced this to be one of the most interesting and most informative treatments of the subject that has ever been made available to the public. It traces the history of coins, tells all about them, what makes them of value to collectors, lists the rarer United States coins, and instructs the beginner in how to start and build up his collection.

It is a companion publication to Everybody's Stamp Book and either one or both may be ordered on this coupon at the price of 10 cents a copy for each.

Heath and Diet Advice

What Is an Adhesion?

Have you ever seen a plant that became unhealthy because it was "root-bound"? When the roots are tangled and matted together the plant becomes undermined and sickly. In a way, about the same thing happens when a patient's intestines become grown together by adhesions. Bowels which are hindered and hampered by adhesions do not move and function normally, but become all bound up, and the same thing happens to the human being that happens to the plant; he becomes sick.

Many people hear about adhesions but they really do not know what an adhesion is. The first step in the formation of the ordinary variety of adhesions is prolapsus. As the stomach and the intestines sag down into the pelvis, they become crowded and the surfaces of the various organs rub on each other. After sufficient rubbing, inflammation sets in and as always happens when inflammation is present the blood vessels throw out a great deal of lymph. When adhesions have formed, the parts where the greatest irritation was located have healed by means of scar tissue, which is formed by the lymph changing into a thick, tough substance which is a fibrous tissue. Wherever the scar tissue forms it binds the two surfaces in such a way that they are truly grown together. It is the rule for several adhesions to be found at one site. An adhesion really represents a successful effort at healing an inflammation by the formation of scar tissue.

Adhesions may be found around the gall bladder, bowels, uterus, appendix, injured joints, and around healed surgical incisions. While many patients believe their adhesions are the result of an operation, it is undoubtedly true that the majority of adhesions are the results of prolapsus or inflammation and are found in patients who have never been operated upon.

One of the most far reaching effects of intestinal adhesions is a severe constipation, resulting from the interference with normal movements of the bowels, due to binding, kinking or narrowing of the inside of the bowel, any of which many obstruct the normal passage of the bowel contents.

The presence of "Attic" adhesions around the gall bladder may cause a distressing illness which is hard to diagnose from other gall bladder disorders and stomach ulcers.

Adhesions are often an important obstacle against recovery where the patient is crippled with rheumatism or arthritis, as in such a case the adhered bowel may become a focal point of infection. The intestinal toxemia which is the real cause of most types of rheumatism becomes much worse where adhesions are plentiful and a complete cure, especially with arthritis, is often impossible until the adhesions of the bowels are broken or loosened.

Surgery is not usually necessary where internal adhesions are present. Bloodless surgery by means of manipulative treatments has been remarkably successful in hundreds of cases under my observation. In tomorrow's article I will discuss this beneficial type of treatment. It is always good to know of this method for the treatment of adhesions, as you may sometime be in need of information on this subject. Don't miss tomorrow's article.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Blood-letting

Question—X. inquires: "Since high blood pressure has become so common, why have the doctors abandoned the old method of bleeding the patient? This seems a logical way of getting rid of a surplus of blood. When this method was being practiced, high blood pressure was unknown."

Answer—Bleeding the patient temporarily reduces the amount of blood, but it does not cure the cause of the arterial tension. The blood pressure can very readily be brought down to normal by a fasting and diet regimen, and the patient's general health at the same time is improved. This method should be understood by every practicing physician, since it is much more satisfactory than some of the methods of treatment now in vogue.

Food for Young Traveler

Question—Mrs. Della O. asks: "Will you kindly tell me the best food for an 11-month-old baby from Montana to Vermont? Would you suggest canned milk to avoid making more than the one change?"

Answer—For the trip you can take either powdered milk or canned evaporated milk with you for the baby. Be sure, however, to also take plenty of oranges and canned tomato juice to supplement the diet.

Rye Bread

uestion—Mr. Baxter G. asks: "Is rye bread starchy, and would it be harmful for one to eat who is on a diet for inward goiter which causes rapid heart beat and whose blood pressure is at times above normal?"

Answer—It is very difficult to obtain bread made from rye flour, as most of this bread contains only from 10 to 15 per cent of rye flour with wheat flour. In any case all bread is starchy, and I do not recommend either bread or anything made of cereals during the time one is trying to recover from any kind of thyroid derangement or when one's blood pressure is too high.

MILT STEENGRAFE AND FLINN SOLD TO SHREVEPORT CLUB

PRESSNELL AND SMILEY ARRIVE

Rookies Play First Game Of Training Season

Contracts of Milton Steengrafe, veteran right handed pitcher, and Roland Flinn, prospective Spudder hurler, have been sold outright to the Shreveport baseball club.

Completion of the deal, which had been pending some time, was announced Sunday by Guy Airey, Spudder secretary.

Flinn, tall right-handed hurler, had a fair year last season with the San Antonio Indians, to whom he was sent on option. He tried out in the spring camp here in 1930 and that season was sent on option to Augusta, Ga., of the South Atlantic league.

Long Career Ends

In disposing of Steengrafe's services, the club parted with a hurler who had a conspicuous role with Spudder winners of other years, but who last year was a mere shell of his former self. Steengrafe joined the club in 1927, was one of the leading aces of the Texas league champion's pitching staff that year, and won the fourth and final game of the 1927 Dixie series. The game was played at New Orleans. Steengrafe allowed but two hits in carving out a 4 to 2 victory.

In 1930 he was the leading pitcher of the staff, with 19 victories and eight defeats; and with Hal Wiltse, who won 19 and lost 9, provided the club with its main pitching punch. Steengrafe, however, lost his two assignments against the Fort Worth Cats in the league play-off.

Last year the veteran got off to a bad start in the very opening game of the season, and never recovered his stride. In the early stages of the opening game with Fort Worth here he strained a muscle in his side and was forced to leave the field. He was on the shelf several weeks before returning to duty. He finished the season with six victories and 11 losses.

Pressnell Reports

In fine shape and anxious to get to work at once, Tot Pressnell, tricky slow ball hurler of last year's brigade, arrived in town yesterday. Pressnell was the first of last year's regulars to report. With him came Frank Smiley, right-handed pitcher signed some time ago by the Spudders. Both Pressnell and Smiley came from their home, Findlay, Ohio.

Pressnell's arrival heralded a general invasion of Wichita Falls by pitchers and catchers, which was expected to take place today. The battery force is due to report for duty Tuesday, and practically all are expected to arrive a day ahead of time. In addition to the pitchers and catchers, several players who specialize in other positions were expected to arrive a little early, although it is not necessary for the rank and file to report until March 15. Among those expected in this week, according to Airey, are Aloysius Bejma, highly-touted second baseman; Roy Sabine, prospective frist baseman; and Arthur Garbark, promising shortstop candidate. They may arrive today or Tuesday, Airey said.

Conlan Suits Up

Tom Conlan, California hurler, arrived Saturday, and took his first workout Sunday. Conlan drove through from California with Larry Bettencourt, former Spudder home run clouter who is en route to St. Louis and Florida to join the Browns. They arrived here Saturday.

Meanwhile the rookies in Manager Hank Severeid's very active Seventh street camp, participated in the first actual ball game of the season Sunday afternoon. Though a strong and rather chilly wind was blowing, the sun was warm when the boys suited up at 10:30 in the morning, and after about an hour and a half of fungo hitting and batting practice, Manager Hank let his boys choose up sides and go at it in regulation style.

They did, for 10 innings. Everything was regulation. They even had a score at the end of the game, although it was difficult to tell who had won, for the teams omitted the very vital detail of naming themselves.

Anyway, the team whose pitching staff consisted of Lefty Gillum, Jim Linson, and A. J. Hellmer, defeated the nine whose pitchers were Ace Kimbell, Archie Pittman and Rhame. The score was 5 to 3.

Manager Severeid was very much pleased with the showing the boys made. "They fielded pretty well, everything considered," he said, "but there wasn't much hitting."

Frank Jarvis, the Portsmouth powerhouse, and Malcolm Mauldin, product of local sandlots, were the closest things to dangerous hitters revealed in the game. Mauldin played on the team that won, and Jarvis on the team that lost. Both connected for a couple of well-socked hits.

The winners, in addition to the pitchers already named, line up with Barrett in left field, Mauldin in center field, Ogleby in right field, Goode at First, Turgeon on second, Jones at short, Eubanks at third, and Wharton behind the plate.

The gang will go into action again this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

A. A. U. Basket Ball Tourney Opens Today

KANSAS CITY, March 6. (AP)—Several of the nation's best club, independent and college basket ball squads tested the suspended baskets in convention hall today, preparing for the A. A. U. national tournament which swings into action here tomorrow afternoon.

A last-minute shift permitted the entrance of the Brown Paper Mill team of Monroe, La., which will play the Piggly Wigglys of Denver in the first round at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The Empire Connors of Springfield, Ill., and the St. Patrick's Knights of Columbus, Chicago, withdrew, leaving a field of 35 in the race for the national title won the last two years by the Henry team of Wichita, Kan.

The schedule Monday includes:

2 p. m.—Piggly Wiggly, Denver, vs. Brown Paper Mill, Monroe, La.

9 p. m.—Kansas City Athletic club vs. West Texas Teachers, Canyon, Texas.

Connie Mack Zips A Few Over——Pirate Hurler Learns How

Spring came back to Connie Mack the other day down at Fort Myers, Fla., where the Athletics are training for another championship campaign. So he seized time by the forelock and the baseball by the handle and zipped a few high hard ones over the plate. Attaboy, Mack!

The young man throwing the baseball is Charley Wood, of the Pirates, and the man teaching him how to keep his balance while doing it is George Gibson, manager of the Pirates. George figures that Charley will be in a better position to field grounders if he gets set for them correctly, and is using the stick to show him how.

Training Camp Chatter

PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

MIAMI, Fla., March 6. (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics evened the exhibition spring "world series" today by beating the Cardinals in a slugfest, 14 to 12. Oscar Roettger, first baseman of the A's, hit three home runs, winning the game with the last one in the eighth. Dizzy Dean, Cardinal rookie star, was bombarded for six runs in the first inning. The two teams contributed nine home runs.

CINCINNATI REDS

TAMPA, Fla., March 6. (UP)—Playing in a cold wind on a wet field, the Cincinnati Reds opened their exhibition season here today by beating a team of amateurs from a Tampa cigar factory league, 5 to 0. Dan Howley sent 18 different players against the Cubans.

Mickey Heath decided the game in the second inning with a homer to right after Grantham had opened with a walk. Leo Durocher was the only Red to play through the whole game.

Score:		R.	H.	E.
Tampa	000 000 000—0	3	2
Cincinnati	020 210 00x—5	4	1

Jerez, Munoz, Garcia and Onis, Durane; Hilcher, Eckart, Mills and Marion, Prost.

BOSTON BRAVES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6. (UP)—The coldest weather of the winter and a muddy field kept the Boston Braves indoors all day. Warmer weather is promised for tomorrow and Manager McKechnie hopes to make his long planned sprint races a feature of the daily training program.

CLEVELAND INDIANS

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 6. (UP)—While a trio of Cleveland pitchers held the New Orleans Pelicans to six hits, the Indians pounded two of the Southern league twirlers for a 10 to 5 victory today in the first exhibition game of the training season.

Score:		R.	H.	E.
New Orleans	000 005 000—	5	6	6
Cleveland	201 310 12x—10	13	1

Perrin, Bryant, Parks and Hendrix, Smith; Lee, Parson, Bean and Myatt, Pytlak.

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES

WINTERHAVEN, Fla., March 6. (UP)—High wind almost halted the Phillies today but Burt Shotton managed to have the boys in uniform for a short time. The workout consisted of limbering up exercise, much of the time being spent in jogging around the park. The first practice game of the season will be held tomorrow, with Gene Connelly acting as captain of one team, and L. Todd, leader of the other. Todd's line-up contains many of the last year's stars, including Klein, Whitney, Hurst and Mallon.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX

SAN ANTONIO, March 6. (UP)—The bad weather which drove the White Sox indoors Saturday, changed today and the Comiskey outfit cancelled a scheduled holiday to make up for lost time. Although no game was carded more than 1,000 persons went to League park, the Sox' new training base, to watch the drill.

BROOKLYN ROBINS

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 6. (UP)—Manager Max Carey of the Dodgers plans to continue his one workout a day program indefinitely.

"Players are getting into condition just as rapidly as I want them to," Max said in making known his intentions. He plans to resume the series of practice games between regulars and yannigans at tomorrow's session. Today the players enjoyed a day of rest and it was the last Sunday they will have off until the end of the championship season.

Wichita Poloists Lose To El Ranchito Four

FORT WORTH, March 6. (AP)—El Ranchito polo team, captained by Cecil Childers, won the first of a three-game series with Wichita Falls players this afternoon on El Ranchito field, 10 goals to 5. The two teams meet again Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

Wichita Falls was minus the services of Capt. Charles Featherstone.

Hopes Soar For U. S. Victory In 1500-Meter Race During Olympics

NEW YORK, March 6. (UP)—United States hopes of victory in the 1,500 meter event of the summer Olympic games, already brightened by the marvelous winter performances of the Pennsylvanian Gene Venzke, were even more definite today with the 11th annual I. C. A. A. A., in door championships complete.

This was so because of the running of two young collegians, Norwood Penrose Hallowell of Harvard and Frank Nordell who wears the Violet of New York university.

To Pen Hallowell went the glory of victory in the mile run, but the margin over Nordell, No. 2 man of the event, was so slight as to make it almost inconsquential. Only a game and daring bell lap sprint brought victory to the pale runner in the Crimson of Harvard.

The important thing is that Hallowell set a new intercollegiate record of 4:12.4 for the indoor mile. This figure is within four-tenths of a second of the long standing Paavo Nurmi-Joie Ray world record which was recently twice broken by Gene Venzke who now has been timed at 4:10. Hallowell's figure lowered the intercollegiate mark by 2 and four-fifths seconds, and even bettered the outdoor intercollegiate mark of 4:14.4, held by the somewhat immortal John Paul Jones of Cornell.

All of which leaves the United States with three A No. 1 milers, who, of course, will strive for the honor of representing this country in the 1,500-meter, the nearest approach to the mile distance that Olympic competition contains.

France did have Jules Lademougue, unofficial holder of the world's record for the outdoor mile as its great Olympic hope, but the French athletic federation last week declared this superior runner was ineligible.

Trophies Given Winners In Olney Rural Tourney

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, March 6.—Bitter Creek, Tonk Valley, Colston and Murray won titles in their various divisions in the Young county rural basket ball tournament, which ended here Saturday night.

The Bitter Creek junior girls won out in the finals over the Ingleside girls, the Tonk Valley junior boys defeated Ingleside, Colston senior boys won over the Ingleside seniors, and Murray defeated the Bitter Creek senior boys to win the various championships. The Olney Chamber of Commerce presented each winner with a trophy. Nearly 300 saw the final games.

ROOKIE BURNS UP CUB CAMP

Young Infielder Gives Vets Merry Race

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

AVALON, Calif., March 6.—The destiny of the Chicago Cubs may rest on the broad shoulders of a tall youth who at this time last year had not played a game of professional baseball. It's a long hurdle from a bookkeeper's cage in a California bank to the infield of a major league ball club, but 22-year-old Stanley Hack may make it. If he does the Cubs are likely to have something to say about the final reckoning in the National league.

With only one year's experience in real baseball behind him, young Hack has teamed up with Charley Grimm, Billy Herman and Woody English as one-fourth of the best infield the Cubs can muster and for the time being at least he is a regular.

Fast Base Runner

The fact that Hack slammed out two triples in the first game the Cubs played against the proud Giants, did not hurt his chances to get the final nod at third base. The lad "can carry the mail" for he can lope around the bases in 14 seconds. The Pacific Coast league, where he batted .352 and fielded .942 for Sacramento his first year out will tell anyone he is hard to get out. Some of the wisest Cubs will be surprised if he does not get his first major league experience the first day of the season.

Young Billy Herman, only five months older than Hack, who was graduated from Louisville last year in time to win the right to start the new season, will be the second baseman, leaving the veteran Hornsby, still boasting a potent batting eye, as alternate for either second or third.

Vets in Outfield

Youth is having its fling in the infield but the freshmen are finding the going much harder in the outfield. Riggs Stephenson, out last year with injuries, has come back with a bang and will be hard to eject from left field, Hazen Cuyler has center field all by himself and Lance Richbourg, former Brave and a fast man, is making a strong bid for the other place. Dan Taylor, Vince Barton, Johnny Moore, Mike Kreevich and Marvin Gudat are all in a receptive mood but two, and maybe three, will be left at Los Angeles when the Cubs go away to the baseball wars.

Burleigh Grimes, wearing his sixth National league uniform, will take his place as a regular pitcher along with Charley Root, Guy Bush, Bob Smith, Pat Malone, Jakie May or Les Sweetland and probably Lon Warneke or Ed Baecht. There will be a wild scramble before the pitching staff is named with plenty of lockers available at Wrigley field, Los Angeles, for the left overs. Lyle (Bud) Tinning, a newcomer from Des Moines, where he won 24 games and lost but two has shown something, as was to be expected.

Gabby Hartnett and Ralston Hemsley will share the major catching burden with the veteran Zach Taylor and young Bill Campbell contesting the additional assignment. Hack and Herman have stolen the spotlight from the other infielders but Lester Bell, Clarence Blair and Bill Jurgess are back from last year and Harry Taylor, a smooth fielding first sacker, is joining them in trying.

Two Lawton Bowling Teams Defeat Locals

Two Lawton, Okla., bowling teams proved superior to local pin knockers at the Spudder alleys Sunday afternoon, the first team defeating Harry Katz' Specials, 2,749 to 2,590 and the second defeating the City National bank bowlers, 2,672 to 2,558. A good sized crowd saw the matches. The Wichita Falls bowlers plan to meet the Lawton teams in a return match at Lawton, probably next Sunday.

Lott Beats Allison in International Tourney

HAVANA, March 6. (AP)—George Lott of Chicago defeated Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, in the final round of singles of the international tennis tournament here today. The scores were 6-4, 3-6, 13-11, 6-2.

Allison and J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., won the doubles title, defeating Lott and his Canadian partner, Marcel Rainville, in straight sets, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2.

English Polo Star Injured in Fall

DEL MONTE, Calif., March 6. (AP)—Capt. C. T. "Pat" Roark, 10-goal international polo star of Great Britain, was seriously injured in a match here today when his horse fell and rolled over him. He regained consciousness after being taken to a hospital.

Baylor Bears Upset Basket Ball Tradition In Winning S. W. Title

DALLAS, March 6. (AP)—Champions usually don't repeat on the gridiron in the Southwest conference, and it begins to look as though the same practice might become a custom on the basket ball court.

This year a new titlist, Baylor university of Waco, was enthroned. The Bears nosed out last year's conqueror, Texas Christian university, by one game, thanks to help last week from the lowly Southern Methodist Mustangs, who finished in the cellar.

The Bruins lost a game each to the Christians and the Arkansas Razorbacks, finishing with 10 victories and two defeats. Arkansas, repeating champion until last year, wound up the season in third place. Texas, dropping its final game to the Texas Aggies at College Station last night, 14 to 9, nevertheless came in fourth. The Aggies and Rice tied for fifth.

Southern Methodist registered the biggest upset of the season by beating Texas Christian, 32 to 30, in an overtime tilt. Had the Frogs won, there probably would have been a playoff for the title.

The Frogs were unable to repeat, but their star center, Adolph "Too Tall" Dietzel set a scoring record which has a good chance of lasting through the final year of his career and for many years to come. He counted 191 points, about 16 a game.

Final standing:

Team—	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	Op
Baylor	10	2	.833	422	339
T. C. U.	9	3	.750	434	315
Arkansas	8	4	.667	373	305
Texas	5	7	.417	298	342
Texas A. & M.	4	8	.333	308	316
Rice	4	8	.333	277	372
S. M. U.	2	10	.167	281	386

Last week's results:

Monday—Arkansas 34, Rice 19, at Houston.

Tuesday—Baylor 40, Southern Methodist 28, at Waco.

Wednesday—Arkansas 33, Texas Aggies 27, at College Station.

Thursday—Southern Methodist 32, Texas Christian 30, at Dallas.

Saturday—Texas Aggies 14, Texas 9, at College Station.

Purdue Regains Title In Western Conference

CHICAGO, March 6. (AP)—The Western conference basket ball championship has gone back to purdue, a spot with which it has become very familiar since 1918, when the whole league played the game for the first time.

The Boilermakers, the almost unanimous pick before the season opened, proved their right to the 1932 title last night in trouncing Northwestern's defending champions, 31 to 17, at Evanston, and won their third undisputed championship since 1918.

The season will finish tomorrow with four games.

to settle down," Mrs. Durand asserted. "We're willing to give him everything to start him out. Furnish a home for him, everything that a young couple needs these days. It's a worry not to have him married."

Mrs. Morse knew. She wondered what Mrs. Durand would do if she had a girl on her hands to worry about. A boy could always get married. But a girl, well, especially a girl like Sybil who wasn't a vamp or the least bit of the come-hithery type, had to wait for some one to come along who admired her type. And the some ones didn't come very speedily.

Mrs. Morse, therefore, was willing to agree to Mrs. Durand's plan or idea or whatever it was that she had. Mrs. Durand was not the type of woman to call one over to see her unless she had something in mind.

"I spoke to Bruce last night about Sybil," Mrs. Durand went on. "He seems to be crazy about her. Would like to marry her, in fact."

This was going to be easy then. Mrs. Morse would agree to a marriage as quickly as she could get the words out of her mouth, which was exactly what she did. She still was skeptical, even after Mrs. Durand had assured her vehemently that Bruce actually desired to marry Sybil. It was beyond Mrs. Morse's wildest dreams. She couldn't believe that anything she had so longed for could actually become a reality.

"Bruce always has been bashful about girls," Mrs. Durand explained, lamely. "He told me last night after he came home that he thought Sybil was the finest girl he ever had known."

Mrs. Morse had complete confidence in Eleanore Durand. She had seen things that seemed to be headed straight for failures at the country club become the success of the season under the guiding hand of Eleanore Durand. Eleanore seemed to have a knack of making a failure a success.

"I want to see them married just as soon as possible," Mrs. Durand continued. "Charles is very much perturbed because we had to break up our vacation and I'm anxious to get back some place where it's warm for the winter. We simply can't go, however, unless Bruce gets himself settled."

Mrs. Morse smiled understandingly.

"I feel the same way about Sybil," she said. "Mr. Morse and I would love to go away this winter, but Sybil likes it here with her own crowd, you know."

"Yes, I know," but Mrs. Durand wasn't thinking that. She was thinking about broaching the subject of Bruce's engagement to Sybil. She wondered whether it would be noticeable that the engagement was due chiefly to her own desires if she told Mrs. Morse her idea of having the engagement announced in the papers prior to telling Bruce and Sybil anything about it.

Eleanor Durand knew that this would be the only way that she could put this affair over. It was the biggest job she ever had attempted. Even now, as she thought about it more, it seemed to get bigger and bigger, almost elusive. She wasn't going to let it get away from her. But she was aware that she would have to proceed cautiously. It wouldn't do to tell Bruce of her plans. She would have to see them announced first by the newspapers and then she could simply hold him to the announcement with threats.

Mrs. Morse guessed how this engagement was to be arranged even before Eleanore Durand found the courage to tell her about it.

STILL SEIZED BY OFFICERS

200-Gallon Plant Nabbed Near Iowa Park

Sheriff Perry Browning and Pat Allen, chief field deputy, confiscated a 200-gallon still on a farm a short distance south of Iowa Park Sunday morning, and turned out 51 barrels of whisky mash almost ready for the distilling process, according to information given The Record News.

The two officers were making a search for two automobiles reported as stolen Saturday night. While making the rounds of isolated spots in which stolen cars frequently are left after being stripped Mr. Browning said they discovered the still in the last stages of assembly. No arrests were made.

The sheriff also had been called to Iowa Park, where a pool of blood upon a filling station platform had aroused fear of foul play during the night. Investigation lead to the conclusion that the blood had dripped from a truck upon which livestock was being carried.

Local Deaths

EUDORA REESE

Funeral services for Miss Eudora Reese, 14, will be held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Reese, 411 Austin, at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning. Miss Reese died at the family residence Saturday night after a brief illness. The Rev. Ben Bell, pastor of the Wilson Memorial Methodist church, will officiate and burial will be in Rosemont in charge of the Merkle Undertaking company.

Survivors are the parents and and two sisters, the Misses Henrietta and Clara Alma Reese.

The Rev. Mr. Bell will be assisted by the Rev. B. L. Baits, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

Pallbearers will be Will Anderson, Fred Dodson, Tommy Ewing, John Croucher, A. A. Lasienge and Hershel Lillard.

MRS. L. M. ZOOK

Funeral services for Mrs. L. M. Zook, 73, of Amarillo, who died in a Wichita Falls hospital Wednesday afternoon, will be held from the Hines mortuary chapel at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon with Rev. W. D. Bratton, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, officiating. Burial will be in Lakeview. Mrs. Paul Whititt of Amarillo, a surviving daughter, will attend the services.

WILLIAM HENRY BROWN

William Henry Brown, 51, of Rising Star, Texas, died at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at a Wichita Falls hospital following an attack of pneumonia. The body is being held by the Hines mortuary pending the arrival of his widow, Mrs. W. H. Brown of Rising Star.

MERLE GRAHAM

Merle Graham, 35, of Denison, died at a local hospital at 11 o'clock Sunday morning after a short illness. The body was forwarded to Denison at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the Hines mortuary where services will be held Monday. His mother, Mrs. Sallie Graham, accompanied the remains.

St. Augustine's lure to the fisherman includes the gamey tarpon, trout, bass, bream, whiting, red snapper, Spanish mackerel as among the finny prizes of a day's catch.

IN STYLE

Thieves Collect Hosiery In Series of Petty Robberies

Tastes of prowlers and thieves in Wichita Falls over the weekend ran to hosiery in what police characterized as criminal efforts to furnish spring wardrobes.

Seventeen pairs of women's hose and 10 pairs of men's hose were taken from a clothesline at the H. R. Fricklin home, 2011 Elizabeth; the G. R. Kinney company, 822 Indiana, reported the loss of 12 pairs of women's hose and one pair of children's shoes.

The Rev. B. L. Baits, 2011½ Taft, told police a large blanket was taken from his car at 407 Austin Saturday night. Dr. P. L. Myers, 2504 Tenth, reported a purse containing a small amount of change and some school papers taken by a prowler.

PRESIDENT OF PERU IS SHOT

Assassin Wounds Cerro In Crowded Church

LIMA, Peru, March 6. (UP)—A tall, pale-faced young man, nattily dressed in blue coat and white trousers, stepped up beside President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro in the center aisle of the Miraflores church today and fired a pistol at the president at close range.

The president fell back against his companions, clutching his left shoulder where the bullet had penetrated.

Colonel Antonio Rodriguez, chief of the military household, leaped in front of the president, shielding him from the bullet. Colonel Rodriguez was wounded and fell to the floor. The president sprang forward, drawing his pistol.

It was not the first time Lieut. Col. Sanchez Cerro had faced gun fire, but it was perhaps the closest that he had ever come to death.

The would-be assassin stood his ground and fired a third time. Then, before the president could get into a position where his own pistol would not endanger the crowd of women and children in the church, his aide, Luis Solari, fired at the attacker.

The bullet from Solari's gun struck the assassin, whose name later was given as Jose Melgar, an Aprista party member.

There is practically no pollution of the waters in the vicinity of Baltimore. The city has two systems, one known as the storm sewer to take care of oil, tar and other wastes, and the other the city sewage.

HASKELL EGG OUTPUT CLIMBS

1,200 Cases of 'Hen Fruit' Shipped in 9 Days

Special to The Record News.

RULE, Texas, March 6.—Haskell county is fast becoming one of the big egg producers of the state.

In nine days' time 1,200 cases of eggs were shipped out of the county to other markets. This means that there were 36,000 dozen eggs sold out of the county, besides the number of dozens of eggs that were consumed by home consumption.

W. E. Nelson Dies Here at Age of 61

W. E. Nelson, 61, 2706 Baltimore, died at the family residence at 10 o'clock Sunday night. Mr. Nelson had been in ill health for the past two years.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Sunday night but services are to be held Tuesday afternoon in charge of the Hines mortuary.

Mr. Nelson was a native of Wise county and came to Wichita Falls six years ago from Seymour, where he resided four years. He was employed as a watchman until his health forced his retirement.

Pallbearers will be J. J. Nipper, R. T. Whitworth, T. E. McGinty, D. D. Robinson, J. H. Lewis, A. F. Sandefer, William Stevens and E. M. Stephens.

Survivors include his widow; five daughters, Mrs. B. P. Jones of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Clifford Riggs of Jacksboro, Mrs. Raymond Gill, and the Misses Erma Lee and Rubena Nelson, all of Wichita Falls; and three grandchildren, Jo Nell Jones, Thurman Riggs and Billie Jim Riggs.

Woman Dies Unaware Of Her Husband's Death

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6. (AP)—Unaware her husband had preceded her in death by three days, Mrs. Carrie M. Boschke, 63, widow of George W. Boschke, chief engineer of the Southern Pacific company, succumbed to pneumonia here today.

She died still waiting for her husband to return from an imaginary "business trip" he told her he was going on when he became ill with pneumonia and went to a hospital. He did not wish her to worry, he told friends.

When Mrs. Boschke became ill the next day she asked that no word be sent to her husband because she expected to be well by the time he "returned." Her condition became such that physicians advised against telling her of Boschke's death Thursday.

Nesbitt Recommended As Legion Commander

GARLAND, Texas, March 6. (AP)—The fifth Texas district of the American Legion today recommended election of Carl Nesbitt of Mineola as the next state commander. Nesbitt is commander of the first division.

The auxiliary urged payment of the remainder of the soldiers bonus. Mrs. C. S. Hutchins of Greenville, president of the auxiliary in the first division, spoke.

Texan Dies Aboard Interurban Near Dallas

DALLAS, March 6. (AP)—C. B. Taylor, 73, of Palmer, Ellis county, died on the Fort Worth-Dallas interurban today. The death was discovered by the conductor when the Dallas terminal was reached. A coroner returned a verdict of death due to heart attack. Mr. Taylor was a merchant.

State Deaths

F. B. BELL

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., March 6.—F. B. Bell, 59, prominent Chattanooga farmer, died Tuesday afternoon at his home six miles north of Chattanooga, and funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Baptist church. Burial was made at the Faxon cemetery.

J. T. GLASS

Special to The Record News

M'LEAN, Texas, March 6.—Funeral services were held this afternoon for J. T. Glass, 75, at the First Baptist church by Rev. C. C. Goff, pastor, and Rev. W. A. Erwin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Glass was one of the first settlers to come to this section of the country. He was engaged in farming and stock raising and made a success. He came here 32 years ago. His ranch is in Donley county, south of McLean.

DANIEL TALKS ON HUMILITY

Jesus' Acts at Last Supper Described

Jesus' act of washing his disciples' feet at the Last Supper was an impressive manner of teaching His followers a lasting lesson in humility, Roy J. Daniel told members of the Kay Bible class at the First Methodist church Sunday morning. More than 100 men were present.

Incidents from modern life were recited by the speaker to point the inclusion of true humility in characters which obtain recognition for greatness.

Mr. Daniel's talk in part was as follows:

"This lesson teaches humility. What does humility mean? It means 'state or quality of being humble in spirit.' It means 'freedom from pride.'

"Jesus and His disciples had gathered together for their last supper—it was a feast in honor of the passover, celebrating that time and night when the death angel passed over the homes of the first born of the Jews during the days of Israelite slavery in the land of Egypt. The disciples were talking and began to argue as to who would be first in the new kingdom Jesus came to establish. You remember that one time a mother asked Jesus to permit one of her sons to sit upon His right hand and the other son to sit upon His left hand when He had established His kingdom and throne. After talking about it for awhile the disciples turned to Jesus and asked Him who would be first in His kingdom. His answer was that the Master came into the world to minister, not to be ministered unto. Let him who would be first among you be the servant of all. Let him who would be chief serve others.

Points Out Judas

'At that last supper Jesus told the disciples that one in the crowd there gathered would betray Him into the hands of His enemies. He told them He knew which one it was going to be. Each one asked Him, 'Is it I?' Jesus answered that the one to whom He would pass the sop would be the betrayer. Judas Iscariot had been already in secret conference with the leaders of the Sanhedrin in Jerusalem, and had arranged with the members of that body that he would kiss the Master on the cheek so that they would know the one to arrest in the darkness of night. Jesus passed the sop to Judas. Judas stammered out that there must be some mistake, that he was not going to betray the Lord. But when things had quieted down Jesus in a low tone told Judas to go and be about his dastardly business for which he was to receive the filthy sum of 30 pieces of silver. Judas left the supper and carried out his deal with the Sanhedrin. He betrayed his Lord, then remorse of conscience compelled him to hurl the dirty money to the ground, and he went out and hanged himself to the limb of a tree.

"At that last supper Jesus suddenly arose, tied about His body a towel, took a basin of water and announced He was going to wash each disciple's feet. They were dumfounded, and Jesus said, 'You do not understand why I am doing this but you will understand pretty soon.' Simon Peter said, 'No, Lord, you are not going to wash my feet. That is the work of a servant. It ought to be that I shall wash thine.' Jesus informed Peter that if he did not permit the washing then he would have no part in the kingdom of Christ. Then Peter cried out, 'Wash not only my feet but also my hands and head. Wash me all over if that is the situation.'

"After Jesus had washed their feet and before He sat down again He said unto them: 'Do you know why I have done this unto you? You call Me your Lord and Master. I am your Lord and Master. And since I have washed your feet, then you ought to do the same to each other. I have given you an example. I have shown you how to be humble. Let each one of you, my disciples, show humility toward the others.'

"Across the Hudson from West Point is the Church of Father Paul, and you know by that that it is a Catholic church. Father Paul is one of the best examples of true humility in all America. Some 20 years ago he started his church with little financial banking. It is located on the highway leading from New York to Albany. People whom you and I call tramps he calls Brothers Christopher. All sorts of men pass by his church. Some have left or lost their jobs; some have quarreled with their wives; some are life-long victims of the wanderlust. He has a house for them in which they may sleep, and no questions are asked them. They may come to the kitchen for their meals, and if they know any trade they may help if needed. When they have stayed with him as long as they wish, they move on. His motto is: 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My Brethren ye have done it unto Me.' In gentle accents and with benevolence in his fine eyes Father Paul calls them brothers and not tramps.

"You recall the story about ex-President Taft and the painter in the city of Washington. One fine morning while Taft was walking to the capitol for a meeting or session of the supreme court of which at that time he was the chief justice, he passed a painter up on a ladder painting the front of a building. The painter had just dropped his paint brush, and he yelled down, 'Hey, Fatty, hand me up that brush I just dropped.' The ex-president and then chief justice of the greatest court in the world stopped, picked up the brush, and handed it to the painter with a smile and a cheerful good morning. When the painter saw who it was he almost fell from the ladder. That is American humility.

Sam Houston

"Just the other day we celebrated the birthday of a great man in Texas history who with all his greatness knew also how to be humble. As a boy Sam Houston resented and resisted the tyranny of his brothers, but he was humble when his mother talked to him. She could always calm her hot-tempered son. She understood the queer boy, and was the first to know that he had a great heart and a head full of common sense, when others believed that Sam was headed straight for hell. As his mother lay dying, and while holding her hand, Sam Houston wept his first burning tears and made up his mind to give up the wild savage life with the Cherokees, return to the white man's civilization, and inscribe again his name higher than ever on the everlasting scroll of earthly fame. Sam Houston was ever humble in all his relations and dealings with Andrew Jackson. While in congress where he had been placed by Jackson, Houston was not too proud to purchase milk cows at the request of the political boss of the Volunteer state. And while governor of Tennessee it was not beneath the dignity of Sam Houston to swap horses for the owner of the Hermitage. As Andrew Jackson lay dying Sam Houston rushed from Texas to his bedside and arrived at the Hermitage at 9 o'clock at night just three hours after Jackson had died at 6. Houston buried his face on the chest of the great man who had done so much for him and wept for hours. Then Houston took his young son, Sam, to the bedside of the great childless soldier and fighter and said, 'My son, never forget that you have looked upon the face and features of Andrew Jackson.'

Let us at all times be humble, and remember the words of the poet, Grey, in his 'Elegy in a Country Churchyard':

" 'The boasts of heraldry, the pomp of power,
All that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour,
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.' "

Burkburnett Postoffice Remodeling Progresses

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, March 6.—Remodeling and repairing work on the postoffice building here is progressing rapidly. The interior has been completely painted and considerable repair work done. Two doors were changed to windows. The entire supply of fixtures and equipment will be replaced with new equipment, and the inside arrangement will be changed to give more convenient service.

Dances Rhumba In 'Wonder Bar'

Luana Alcaniz, whose dancing of the rhumba is one of the few things in "The Wonder Bar" to district attention from Al Jolson, was interviewed on physical health the other day. Says Miss Alcaniz: "My rules of health are brief and simple—at all times eat lightly, sleep as much in the open as possible—and smile, smile, smile."

The big musical comedy review, "The Wonder Bar," with Al Jolson in person will be at Memorial auditorium, one night, March 11. The large stage and lower floor of the auditorium will be converted into an elaborate continental cabaret, and will be connected with runways out into the lower floor in order that the large company of funmakers can mingle with the audience. Tickets are on sale at Renfro Drug, phone 2-0015.

'Man' Is Subject of Scientist Sermon

The lesson-sermon subject was "Man" in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

"O man greatly beloved, fear not: peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong," was the golden text, taken from Daniel 10:19.

The service included the following passage from the Bible (Isaiah 2:22): "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?"

These citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also included (pp. 190, 525):

"This mortal seeming is temporal; it never merges into immortal being, but finally disappears, and immortal man, spiritual and eternal, is found to be the real man . . . Man reflects God; mankind represents the Adamic race, and is a human, not a divine, creation."

Cooker Inventor to Address Club Women

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, March 6.—It has been announced that J. P. Dowell of McKinney, Texas, inventor of the automatic cooker, will be present at the meeting of the Wichita County Federated club at Iowa Park, March 9, to explain the cooker and answer questions, following a demonstration of the cooking.

The club meeting is called for the purpose of electing officers for the next two years and the federated clubs of Iowa Park will be hostess to those attending. Every one who plans to attend is requested to get in touch with Mrs. O. C. Burrows, president of the Pleasant Valley Home Demonstration club, for reservations. Lunch will be served at the basement of the First Baptist church and the meeting will be held in the church building.

STILL KING

Two Millionth Bale Of Cotton Shipped At Houston

HOUSTON, March 6. (AP)—It still is the land of cotton, Texas is.

The Italian steamer Ida sailed down the ship channel the other day with the two millionth bale of cotton exported here in the 1931-32 season.

The port, its officials said, thus set up a record not equalled by any other in America.

Two other ships engaged in a sort of race with the Ida to see which would carry away the two millionth bale, but the Ida won handsomely.

RULE HOST TO BANK MEETING

Three County Association Holds Session

Special to The Record News

RULE, Texas, March 6.—A bankers association, composed of Haskell, Knox and Throckmorton, met in Rule in their regular session recently.

The meeting was held at the First Christian church of this city. Invocation was given by Rev. J. Perry King, pastor of the First Baptist church of Rule; welcome address by Mayor Dr. J. C. Davis; response by O. E. Patterson, vice president of the First National bank of Haskell.

L. W. Jones, former banker of Rule, delivered an address on "The Attitude of the Customer Toward the Bank" Joe C. Williams, county agent, made an interesting talk on the farm work over the county, and the constructive way in which the farmers are meeting present conditions. Miss Eileen Partlow, home demonstration agent, gave valuable information as to what the women were doing throughout the county.

A round table discussion was participated in by a number of the bankers concerning banking problems. Luncheon was served at the Whorton hotel.

Those attending were O. E. Patterson of Haskell, J. M. Averitt of Knox City, E. W. McGloehan of Munday, H. A. Pendleton of Munday, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Montgomery of Haskell, E. O. Veteran Panhandle Judge Furnishes Movies With Pointers On Accuracy

WELLINGTON, March 6. (AP)—Emphatically denying any basis for modern fiction and motion pictures which depict the stage coaches and mail carriers of the early Texas days as victims of Panhandle bandits during the lawless 90's, Judge P. W. Myers, second postmaster in this section and the oldest living pioneer in Collingsworth county, said that during the half century he has lived in the Panhandle no attempt has been made to interfere with the United States mails.

Judge Myers came to the Panhandle in 1882 and organized the second postoffice in this section, which he named Fresno. In 1902 he assisted in organizing Collingsworth county, which was known as "Killingsworth county" for 25 years because the cowboys were killed on the slightest pretext.

"It is ridiculous the way this portion of the world has been played up through modern literature and picture shows," Judge Myers said. "I will admit that we had a shooting scraps every week when there were only 176 men in the county and for over 25 years a feud flourished between the factions, but never to my recollection did the mail ever fail to go through. Government regulations were just about as strict then as they are now—and besides there never was anything in the mails much except personal letters.

"I have the highest respect for literature and feel that it does much toward the development of civilization, but it gives me a pain to read a story, based on the "lawless 90's of the Panhandle and find that a bold, bad bandit has taken thousands of dollars from the stage or mail coach.

"I came to the Panhandle in the Pony Express days and ran a postoffice when mail coaches were in their prime, but never in my life did I hear of the mails being robbed in this section.

"Occasionally I have seen a bad hombre shot in church and there are six bullet holes in the courthouse representing shooting scrapes there, but I never did hear of any gun play in a postoffice or of a stage coach being held up in this section."

Graham and Wichita Pastors Exchange Pulpits

Rev. Bryan Kiethly, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Graham, occupied the pulpit at the First Southern Presbyterian church here Sunday morning, while Dr. Gaines B. Hall, pastor of the local church, preached both morning and evening in the Graham church.

Addressing his sermon particularly to the young people, in observance of "Young People's Day" in the church, the visiting speaker outlined "three good reasons why we must love Jesus Christ."

"We must love Him because we become like that which we love; like that at which we look; like that with which we are surrounded" he said. We must love Him because of what He has done for us: He has provided the light in which we live. And we must love Him because He laid down His life that we might behold, remember, and find the more abundant life.

HORSE FALL IS FATAL TO MAN

Leo Floyd, 24, Crushed When Mount Jumps

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, March 6.—Leo Floyd, 24, employe of the W. T. Waggoner estate, died at 4 o'clock Sunday morning from injuries received at 5 p. m. Saturday when his horse fell on him after jumping a gate. Floyd was brought to a Vernon hospital from the Waggoner ranch, 15 miles south of Vernon. His death was attributed to internal injuries.

Funeral services were being arranged Sunday afternoon. Survivors include his parents who reside at Tahoka, Texas; two brothers and three sisters. Floyd had resided in Vernon for five years and was employed on the Waggoner estate most of that time.

Meeting of Shriners Called Monday Night

Final plans and committee reports in preparation for entertainment of Imperial Potentate Thomas J. Houston on Wednesday, March 9, will be the principal items for consideration at a meeting of Maskat temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., Monday evening at the temple auditorium. The meeting is the regular monthly business session but was called for Monday instead of Tuesday due to the arrival of Potentate Houston on Wednesday, according to Al Ellis, recorder.

Potentate Sydney A. Gaines of Maskat temple desires reports from all committees working on the program for Potentate Houston's visit. An informal smoker will follow the business session in charge of Chairman Emil Hermann of the entertainment committee.

GRAND JURY MEETS TODAY

24 Cases Wait Investigation In Final Session

Members of the January grand jury will assemble Monday morning for their third and final monthly session for the current term of the 89th district court, with approximately 24 cases scheduled for investigation, according to George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney.

Mr. Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistants to District Attorney Sam B. Spence, will present evidence to the inquisitors during the session which opens Monday. Mr. Spence will be in Graham to work with the Young county grand jury to be impaneled in the 30th district court there Monday morning by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district.

Judge Martin's presence on the bench at Graham this week is due to Judge Allan D. Montgomery's assignment as special judge in the district court in Hutchinson county.

Club Boys Attend Stock Show Today

Representatives of Wichita county 4-H boys clubs plan to leave at 6 o'clock Monday morning for Fort Worth in charge of County Agent G. C. McGown, where they will be guests of the Fat Stock Show and Exposition. Twelve boys announced plans of making the trip in automobiles furnished by Carl Williamson, W. L. Hodges and Jack H. Martin.

The group will attend calf-judging events. The group to make the trips includes Bennett Cooksey, Louis Cooksey, Billie Hodges, W. R. Parrish, William Stewart, Carl Goetze, John Miley, Eldon Morris, Edwin Muller, Virgil Evans, Richard Williamson, and John W. Williamson. They will return Monday evening.

Poultry Association To Meet Here Tuesday

Plans connected with 4-H boys' club poultry projects and preparations for a show in Wichita Falls will be considered at a meeting of the Wichita Valley Poultry association Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the chamber of commerce offices in the Hamilton building.

Members of the 4-H clubs who have signed agreements to conduct the projects will attend the meeting and will be given settings of eggs from designated breeds. Leading breeders are donating the eggs. The work is supervised by County Agent G. C. McGown and Miss Ethel Louise Webb, home agent.
